

Factions Agree to Lebanon Cease-fire

By MICHAEL KEATS
BEIRUT, LEBANON (UPI) — A joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian committee announced a cease-fire throughout Lebanon for 8 p.m. today (1 p.m. EST), Beirut radio said.

The move came shortly after warring Moslem and Christian factions joined Palestinians and Syria agreed on a new cease-fire and initiatives to end Lebanon's nine-month long civil war.

All sides agreed to form a joint Lebanese-Palestinian-Syrian committee to supervise arrangements for a truce in the war that has taken nearly 10,000 lives and wounded more than 20,000 persons.

During the heavy fighting the leftist Moslems and Palestinian forces won control of an estimated two-thirds to three-quarters of Lebanon and compressed the Christian Phalangists into a triangular area in Eastern Beirut along the seashore with the apex of the triangle pointing toward the west.

Key provision of the truce accord worked out with the Syrian leadership would end or modify Christian domination of parliament and take note of the fact Moslems have become the majority in Lebanon.

Moslem—and Palestinian—resentment of Christian domination of parliament, business, the civil service etc. was one of the principal causes for the current strife.

Despite the announcement Moslem left-wingers and their Palestinian allies battled with right-wing Christian militiamen and Lebanese security forces in scattered fighting across the country.

A Palestinian spokesman said the joint progressive forces had overcome "isolationists" around Chitoura on the main highway between Damascus and Beirut and pushed west toward the Lebanese capital.

However, reporters in the area said Army units still occupied the foothills west of Chitoura despite a barrage of heavy mortar and artillery fire.

The announcement of the cease-fire followed a new peace initiative by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, who arrived Wednesday for his fourth attempt at arranging a truce.

There were unconfirmed reports that Lebanese air force planes had bombed Palestinian mortar positions near the village of Saadyat — the fortress hometown of Interior Minister Camille Chamoun — where thousands of refugees from the Christian town of Damour fled before the Moslem advance.

Christian militiamen had earlier vowed

"no peace with the Palestinians" and said they were uniting to drive Palestinian troops from Lebanon.

Earlier today the fighting had swung to Beirut, where rocket and mortar and heavy machinegun fire echoed across the crumbling capital.

According to political sources, Khaddam's peace proposals had the backing of the Moslems and centered around previous demands that included:

— An even ratio between Moslems and Christians in parliament instead of the present 6-5 majority favoring the Christians

— An end to civil service appointments based on religion

— The prime minister to be elected by parliament instead of chosen by the president

— The establishment of planning and development councils to chart social and economic reforms

Christian forces issued a "non-peace with the Palestinians" pledge in a broadcast over their pirate radio station.

Beirut Radio also reported renewed fighting in the northern port of Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city.

Burning Dump

A fire Wednesday at Pampa's landfill site resulted in heavy, black smoke that covered the city. The cloud could be seen for many miles in the otherwise clear day. City Manager Mack Wofford said today that if fires at

Dump Fires Pour Smoke over City

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

A fire at the city dump east of town Wednesday resulted in a cloud of black smoke floating over the city. The smoke was visible many miles away.

"Somebody set that thing," Pampa City Manager Mack Wofford said of the fire. "It was not set by the city."

He said that sanitation department employees were on hand to contain the fire while it burned itself out.

"You really don't have much choice," he said. "There's not much you can do. Most of that fire was underground."

Wofford said that fires at the dump may cause the city problems with the Texas Air Control Board. It is against state laws to burn refuse at the landfill site.

The city manager said that it may be necessary for the city to fence off the area and control it. Most of the area towns do have landfills fenced and make a charge for its use. "We have tried to leave it open to the public, but if this continues to happen

Wofford said that it would be an expensive undertaking for the city to fence off the landfill operation. In addition to the initial expense of the fencing, employees would be required to man the gate and it would be difficult to keep the site open evening and weekend hours.

This could result in an inconvenience for someone who wants to clean his garage out on the weekend," Wofford commented.

Congress May Supervise CIA Secret Operations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today there was no way the CIA could have foreseen the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia and that critics expect far too much of intelligence forecasts.

Rusk defended the much criticized intelligence agency in testimony before the Senate government operations committee, which is considering proposals for strict congressional oversight of the intelligence agencies.

"The Soviets moved into Czechoslovakia on a certain day back in 1968," said Rusk, who was secretary of state at that time.

"I had the impression then that they made that decision only about three days before. If we had asked the intelligence community to estimate the situation one week before, as we did, there was no way they could have foreseen that."

A draft report on CIA performance now under consideration by the House intelligence committee reportedly criticizes the agency for having failed to predict the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Rusk, however, also said he now realizes that the CIA did not inform him of all its covert operations when he was secretary of state.

He urged Congress to create a joint committee to oversee intelligence operations and also said members of the National Security Agency should be held personally responsible for exerting much closer control over covert operations than they have in the past.

The Senate committee was in its second day of hearings on the oversight issue. It learned Wednesday that the Senate intelligence committee is drafting a law empowering Congress for the first time to supervise, oppose and even publicize secret operations of U.S. intelligence.

Committee sources expect the panel sometime next week to approve the unprecedented legislation essentially as it was outlined Wednesday — knowing the White House likely will fight the major provisions point by point.

The Senate Government Operations Committee moved today into its second day of hearings on the intelligence oversight issue. Scheduled witnesses were former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach and David Phillips, president of the Retired Intelligence Officers Association.

At the same time, the House intelligence committee continued its review of a draft report on the performance of U.S. intelligence agencies that also may anger the White House and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

In closed session, the House panel Wednesday rejected 8 to 4 a proposal that some classified details of CIA operations — reportedly including a number of failures to predict major crises — be dropped from the public report due at the end of this month.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate intelligence panel, outlined Wednesday the main points of oversight legislation his panel is drafting. Committee sources said they expect the bill to follow Church's outline despite opposition from Sen. John Tower, the panel's ranking Republican, and anticipated White House objections.

Senate May Change Mind On Keeping Schnabel

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Increasing disclosures of apparent wrongdoing by indicted Senate Secretary Charles Schnabel are giving some senators second thoughts about keeping him in his $37,500-a-year job until completion of his trial.

The Senat conducted a closed, heated debate Jan. 5 on whether to keep Schnabel. The decision made then was to let him serve at least until his guilt or innocence had been proven.

But Wednesday, two of the 18 senators who voted to retain Schnabel say they might change their vote if the question were asked again.

"His bad judgement makes his position here very tenuous," one senator told UPI.

Lt. Gov. William Hobby, who recommended discharging Schnabel at the first vote, said he favored a second one now and felt the results would be different.

Senators who agonized greatly over the first vote, however, are not anxious to get into a heated debate on Schnabel again. But most seem to feel it is inevitable.

"It may very well be that before we finish the Carrillo trial it will come up again," one said.

Since the initial vote, several new disclosures have been made about Schnabel's conduct in office.

It was learned this week that a University of Texas coach was on the Senate payroll while drawing fulltime pay from UT. Another disclosure this week, concerned the discovery of Schnabel's initials and social security number on a camera rented by the Senate.

Schnabel arranged in September, 1973 for the Senate to rent the camera, two flash attachments and a special lens for a one year period at a cost of $741 — at least $26 more than the equipment sold for.

Democrats Deplore Austerity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To the Republicans in Congress President Ford's budget was praised for its leanness. The Democrats however deplored its austerity on social programs.

But there were exceptions. GOP Sen. Jacob Javits of New York called it "a retreat from federal responsibility" and Democratic Rep. George Mahon of Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, urged party colleagues not to increase it.

In the televised Democratic response to the budget and State of the Union messages, Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, described Ford's economic plans as "penny-wise and pound-foolish" and called for new programs to put unemployed Americans back to work.

The Democrats, giving their view of the state of the union, have accused President Ford of inept, panicky management of the economy and called for new programs to "substantially" reduce unemployment.

In a nationally televised Democratic party reply to Ford's State of the Union speech, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine also criticized U.S. actions in Angola, saying American foreign policy should be conducted openly.

"The President's plans for the economy are penny-wise and pound-foolish," Muskie said Wednesday night. "Under them, America's factories are producing only three-fourths as many goods as they actually could."

To combat unemployment, Muskie proposed — Direct employment programs in which federal dollars would pay for public service jobs such as classroom teaching aides and hospital attendants.

— Federal assistance to local communities for short-term public works projects and to avoid layoffs in local government services such as police and trash collection.

Ford says the way to attack unemployment is to make the economy generally healthier. He proposed tax depreciation in areas of high unemployment as an incentive to create more jobs.

Muskie said Ford's budget "offers no new jobs" and that Ford even plans to veto the limited short-term job-creating bills pending in Congress.

He said the present administration did not cause the country's recent economic problems but compounded them "partly by inept, often panicky management of the economy, starting with the first Nixon administration."

What the nation needs at this time is leadership that will not jump from one economic panic button to another," he said.

Muskie also made these economic proposals:

— More tax cuts without increased federal spending. He said Congress should reject Ford's proposal to raise Social Security payroll taxes.

— An energy policy to keep oil and natural prices at "reasonable levels" until the economy can absorb increases.

— A food policy giving farmers "a guarantee of reasonable incomes and consumers a guarantee of reasonable prices."

— A wage-price council which will make life miserable for any big corporation that raises prices without very good reason.

— An antitrust policy to "move immediately to prevent powerful firms from gaining too much control over both markets and capital, not spend years in court arguing cases after it is too late."

But the central theme was jobs. Muskie said "most economists" believe that under Ford's policies unemployment will not fall below 7 per cent in this decade.

But government and industry experts, he said, "tell us that we can, if we choose, significantly reduce the present unemployment during the next fiscal year."

One of the harshest critics was House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill. "The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977."

"We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

One of the warmer endorsers was Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, assistant Senate GOP leader. "I can't recall a time when there has been a budget so well presented. It's really a time to put politics aside."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the people of this country to hold very closely" to Ford's recommendations.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, said, "While I withhold judgment on whether he made the cuts in the right places, I strongly agree with him on the need to hold the line on spending."

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., chairman of Congress Joint Economic Committee, criticized the employment aspects of Ford's budget. "The President has managed to produce a budget which will create neither private nor public jobs and which, by his own forecast, will not reduce inflation in 1977," he said.

Usery Nominated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford announced today he is nominating W.J. Usery to be labor secretary, succeeding John T. Dunlop who resigned in disagreement over vetoed labor legislation.

Ford made the announcement in the Oval Office with Usery, the 50-year-old director of the federal mediation service, by his side.

Ford praised Usery's long experience and tremendous record "in dealing with controversial labor disputes in the mediation service and said that his background "qualified him superbly" for the cabinet post.

He told Usery that he was assuming a "very tough job" and forecast the year ahead would see labor-management disputes in the rubber, auto and trucking industries.

Carter-Wallace Showdown

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, fresh from his triumph in Iowa, and Alabama Gov. George Wallace stage their first head-on showdown Saturday in Mississippi in their bids for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mississippi Democrats, split between regulars and loyalists, will choose their national convention delegates in 2,133 precinct caucuses.

Carter got off to a fast start Monday in Iowa's precinct caucuses, collecting 27.7 per cent of the delegate support. But he is expected to face a stiff challenge this weekend from four other Democratic hopefuls — including Wallace.

It will be the first real test this year for Wallace, who carried Mississippi as a third party candidate in 1968 and has widespread support in the state.

Wallace has said he could win an outright primary in Mississippi but didn't expect to do well in the precinct caucuses which he said may be dominated by "political activists."

However, there were reports Wallace forces were gearing for an all-out attempt Saturday to name delegates committed to the Alabama governor.

Carter and Wallace are among five candidates who have made one or more visits to Mississippi in recent weeks. Sargent Shriver and former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma were in the state Wednesday and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, a frequent visitor, planned a return trip Friday.

Carter "better watch out" in the New Hampshire primary, says Morris Udall, who got less than 6 per cent of the Iowa caucus vote.

Udall told a church gathering in Washington Wednesday night, "Don't read an obituary on my campaign. I've never been better."

While not flatly predicting victory, Udall said Carter has acknowledged the Udall forces are better organized in New Hampshire, "and he better watch out because we'll get better. The primaries will decide everything."

Also competing for that vote will be Lloyd Bentsen, Sargent Shriver and Fred Harris.

President Ford's campaign manager, Howard Callaway, campaigned for his boss in Florida Wednesday, praising Ford's budget and his proposal for catastrophic health insurance. Callaway told reporters he is happy with the way the campaign is going and predicted Ford will beat Ronald Reagan in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts.

In other developments — Terry Sanford denied comment on a Raleigh News and Observer story that he is planning to withdraw as a candidate. The former North Carolina governor called a news conference for Friday but said, "Nobody knows what I'm going to say. I'm not 100 per cent sure of what I'm going to say."

The ARB's Muscle

There are disturbing questions involved in the Air Resources Board's tough penalization of American Motors, not the least of which is a matter of justice. Our feeling that the young ARB chairman, Tom Quinn, takes special pleasure in throwing his weight around among huge industrialists is reinforced by his own injudicious remarks in announcing the $4.2 million fine.

On the one hand Quinn simply announces that American is producing and selling a lot of polluting automobiles. "We have never seen so many dirty cars." Dirty? Who said? Why, Quinn, along with his agency's employees, said. The legislature has empowered Quinn to make such expensive judgments. His word against the manufacturer's.

And American executives are left growling in a "We didn't mean it, boss" posture. Quinn capitalizes on the fears by warning the manufacturers of an investigation to see if their assertions of clean-running cars were "intentionally falsified," though the young bureaucrat leaves little doubt that he believes they're guilty.

Such a preliminary verdict is particularly obnoxious in anybody. But such arrogance is especially damaging to California's economy, taking all AMC Matadors, Hornets and Gremlins equipped with V-8 engines off the market until a final verdict is in. Surely the smog capability of those vehicles, which depends on whom you listen to, is negligible compared to the abundance of other industrial smog producers.

It is a very curious political arrangement that enables the same agency to carry out tests of alleged guilt AND fine those adjudged guilty. The potential for corruption and dictatorial power that could adversely affect the economy is obvious. In fact, Quinn has already demonstrated the latter danger.

Veggies Can't Do It All

It has always been a dubious proposition that if Americans were to eat one less hamburger or steak per capita per week it would release vast amounts of grain for consumption by the world's hungry peoples.

Even if agricultural logistics were the simple, and even assuming that everything livestock eat humans could eat, a meatless world would still be dependent upon animal products in hundreds of ways.

In a book published last year, "More Meat - Or Less - On the Dinner Table," author Wayne Anderson listed some of the ways animal by-products are used - in the making of lubricants, paint driers, liquid detergents, wetting and emulsifying agents, synthetic rubber, polishes and waxes.

Important pharmaceutical and health aids comprise an entirely separate list. Among them are heparin, a blood anticoagulant, and insulin, which about one million American diabetics require to regulate their blood sugar levels. It takes the pancreas glands of 7,500 hogs or 1,500 cattle to make one ounce of insulin.

In a modern society in short, there can be no such thing as true vegetarianism.

Did Oswald Shoot The Wrong Man?

By BILL CHOYKE
News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON - Here are some items from the nation's capital of interest to Texas.

WRONG TARGET? - A subcommittee of the Senate Intelligence Committee is investigating the possibility that Lee Harvey Oswald was really aiming for Texas Gov. John Connally on Nov. 22, 1963, not President Kennedy.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., said in a recent interview with the News Washington bureau that his two-member assassination subcommittee is looking into the possibility that Oswald was paid to kill Connally by Dallas nightclub operator Jack Ruby, who later murdered Oswald.

According to sources close to the committee, Oswald could have been a "patsy" for another individual or group who actually assassinated Kennedy.

As the theory goes, Ruby served as a "bagman" paying Oswald to kill Connally. According to Schweiker, the Warren Commission, which investigated the series of bizarre incidents more than a decade ago, said that Texas attorney Carroll Jarnegan testified that he overheard Oswald ask Ruby for money to kill Connally. It is also believed that Oswald developed a grudge against Connally dating back to when the former Texas governor was Secretary of the Navy.

Schweiker said that the subcommittee, which includes Sen. Gary Hart, D-Col., is also investigating the possibility that Oswald killed Kennedy for personal financial gain and not for political and ideological reasons. The subcommittee hopes to answer the question of whether Oswald was ever an agent of the United States or another government, a double agent or simply a money grabber before it closes its probe.

NEW NYC REPORT: New disclosures by the Federal Reserve System indicated that more Texas banks than previously thought would have been severely injured by a New York City default.

Last November the FED, as the system is commonly called, said 21 banks in Texas each have 20 per cent of more of their capital (amount of money owners have invested in the bank) tied up in New York City or New York State securities. But a report issued earlier this month shows that the figure was understated.

The new findings reveal that 51 commercial banks in Texas have "significant holdings" in New York City and State obligations. The holding total $48.8 million - approximately $35 million more than previously believed.

The new FED report, which showed that 954 banks in 33 states hold $6.491 billion in New York City and State - related obligations, has led to renewed congressional charges that the Ford Administration misread the full impact of a New York City default on the nation's financial institutions.

LUCRATIVE PRACTICES: The government has disclosed that 28 Texas doctors received $100,000 or more for the federal Medicaid program in 1974.

The doctors were concentrated in the San Antonio, Houston and Dallas areas. They were among 215 doctors identified nationally by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as having billed the government for at least $100,000 for treating low-income patients in 1974.

The HEW report names Dr. Darnaso Oliva of San Antonio as making the most money - $215,185 - from Medicaid patients.

WASHINGTON - Since President John Kennedy was killed on that dark day in Dallas many years ago a cult of assassination buffs has spawned, proliferating theories, for money and fame, about who "really" killed JFK. As long as there was an audience willing to listen - and pay - or book publishers offering lucrative contracts, you could be sure that enterprising "theorists" would cook up still more Kennedy grist for their mills.

At one time these Kennedy cultists were looked upon with skepticism by most of the American public, who nevertheless paid their hard-earned money for books, etc., so that they could have their curiosity piqued again and again by the anti-Warren Commission "zanies."

While it was entertaining to read about the "second gun theory," the "CIA connection," the "mysterious" deaths of key witnesses, we never really believed, in our days of innocence, that such things could really be. Thus the stack of "non-fiction" books purporting to find fatal flaws in the Warren Commission report was generally relegated to our minds to the fiction category.

But time painfully taught us that truth is sometimes stranger than fiction. Today we hear of the CIA concocting assassination plots with the Mafia, of plans to give Castro exploding cigars and a powder that could cause him to lose his hair, of the FBI destroying important documents and having a "do not file" procedure for certain sensitive material of an FBI letter sent to Martin Luther King suggesting that it might be a good idea if he committed suicide.

Yes, Virginia, fiction was never like this.

What this means in terms of Kennedy assassination theories is that what at one time looked totally implausible has often become totally plausible. If former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover could have authorized the King suicide letter, it's not far fetched to believe he could have covered up valuable information on Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin, that might have embarrassed the FBI and shed new light on the killing.

Indeed, there is already some evidence that Hoover intentionally withheld information on Oswald from the Warren panel.

It's known that the FBI had a regulation which said all information uncovered by agents that might embarrass the bureau was to be forwarded to Washington for further action. Could that action have been to bury the embarrassing information in the "do not file" bin, never to be seen again?

So the suspicions grow, cynicism mounts and theories sprout. The various theories about the Kennedy murder "have become a permanent enclave of irrationality in our national consciousness," according to a recent article by two Kennedy assassination buffs.

Yet, the largely underground anti-Warren Commission movement has slowly gained respectability. Kennedy assassination cultists now hold regional and national seminars which have drawn up to 2,000 people. Opinion polls show about half the public favors reopening the investigation. Bills are introduced in Congress, with a sizeable backing, calling for a reopening of the Kennedy assassination probe, as well as subsequent assassination investigations. The Senate Intelligence Committee set up a subcommittee just to look into the Kennedy murder.

Still, calls for a new probe have failed to spur action. Why? According to Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., a member of the Senate panel looking into Kennedy's death, it will probably take a "blockbuster" revelation to generate enough support in Congress for reopening the Kennedy investigation. And so far, Schweiker says, he hasn't found that blockbuster, although he's convinced there are enough small bombshells uncovered to warrant a new probe.

The tragedy of this whole episode in American history might be that that blockbuster will never be uncovered. Schweiker has only a handful of staffers to find a smoking gun and only a few more months to sniff it out. Furthermore, he's battling intelligence agencies who live and die by secrecy and are fearful of allowing any daylight into their dark operations.

But it's quite clear, for anyone willing to examine the information already available, that there is more than enough cause to reopen the probe now.

Enough Evidence on Record To Re-Open The JFK Probe

Ray Cromley Fear first product of nuclear plants

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON - (NEA) - Instead of working ourselves into a frenzy about possible accidents in fission nuclear power plants, which in the long run are inevitable - we would better spend time and our effort doing research on improved safeguards, more reliable and less costly than those employed today.

For one thing is clear. In all too short a time - and for a considerable period - until that distant happy day when fission nuclear power, solar power and the like become practical as major energy sources - we shall be heavily dependent on fission nuclear power plants if we are to get by the energy crunch in good shape.

There's been much talk about our great coal and oil shale resources, and these are magnificent assets. Coal use, for one will gradually be tripled in four decades or so. There was considerable talk for awhile that shale and coal could fill the energy breach. But newer studies have convinced even those who have invested heavily in these resources, that the difficulties of rapid coal and shale production are so great we cannot count on them meeting our needs in the near and mid term future. In fact, the date at which men in this field see coal and shale production at significant levels dreamed of only a year back keeps slipping into the future.

By contrast, nuclear power is practical now in much expanded quantities, delayed only by the time required to build plants and hassle in endless lawsuits over differences on environmental problems which should have been long resolved if only both sides would get their facts straight.

And fission nuclear power can be made considerably cheaper, relatively, that is, relatively, what with the price of everything going up all too rapidly - with a reasonable amount of experience in running plants and added research. Equally important, nuclear power plants can be made safer if we will put a greater effort into practical experiments and depend less on mathematical probabilities to assure ourselves that all is well.

The building of a strong domestic nuclear industry has collateral advantages. Billions we must today send abroad for imported petroleum would be used to build up "snc nuclear power facilities, expand exploration and mining and promote a wide range of supporting industries, giving direct and indirect employment to a good many additional men and women.

Safer, more efficient nuclear power plants would have a ready market in Western Europe, Japan and in assorted countries. The growth of this industry worldwide would reduce the economic imbalances which heavy dependence on foreign oil now creates. This bolstering of a flock of domestic economies would promote stability.

And of course, as things go now, there's the continuing threat of petroleum blackmail, which can be lessened or removed only by increasing our relative energy self-sufficiency to reasonable levels.

Much of the concern over fission nuclear plants arises from the belief they will eventually be built in such commanding numbers the world will be flooded with dangerous nuclear byproducts and wastes - and that there will be a high probability of accidents, a probability which increases, of course, with the number of plants.

In our nuclear thinking, we need to remember that, important as they may be for an interim period, fission nuclear plants are not likely to be a dominant power source in the long term. They will probably, therefore, never be built in the numbers sufficient to justify the worries outlined above. And the thesis of this column has been that added research can further significantly cut the probability of serious accidents.

Sharon Dresses Down Man Who Wanted Women To Dress Up

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Prefers Skirts," who wants to determine dress for all the women in the world: Thanks to you and your kind, Buddy, 100 million American women are learning the following things: Any woman not physically handicapped is strong enough to open a door and move a chair. Waitresses should be paid a living wage by their employers and not have to depend on the generosity of the customer as if waitresses were performing dogs rewarded with bits of food.

We are also learning that all the "gentlemanly courtesies" you extend (when you are in the mood) are not worth a 60 per cent pay differential, and that when we earn our own money with our own labor, we can pay our own bills and maintain our self-respect as adult human beings (commonly known as "feeling like a man").

And meditate on this for a little while, pal: One hundred million American women get up and dressed every single day without giving one second's thought to how you feel about their outfits.

Feel free, Abby, to use my name.

SHARON S. MILLER, DETROIT, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: "Prefers Skirts" who refuses to tip a waitress in trousers has got to be some kind of nut.

In the first place, the boss decides what the employees shall wear.

I'm a 26-year-old mother of two who applied for a job as cocktail waitress in a supper club.

The hours were fine and so was the pay, but when I saw the costume I had to wear, I told the boss I was applying for a job as a cocktail waitress - not a striptease dancer. Needless to say, I didn't take that job.

I'm not putting down waitresses who work in such costumes. If they're hungry enough, they'll wear them.

THANK HEAVENS, I WASN'T.

MODEST IN HAWAII

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those lucky women who has always looked at least ten years younger than my age. Consequently, when I got into my 40's I started lying about my age.

Not only did I lie to my friends about my age, I also lied to my doctor, which has been costing me money.

You see, I recently went into a hospital and didn't want to admit my real age, so I didn't use my Social Security Medicare card, and I had to pay for everything myself. (The same with my doctor bill.)

How can I overcome this feeling of embarrassment about my real age?

LOOKS YOUNG

DEAR LOOKS: Look at it this way: A person who looks younger than his age has something of which to be proud. So why not admit it!

Kissinger Reports Progress in Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today he has made "some progress" in strategic arms limitation talks with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, and the gap between the sides has narrowed.

"We have made some progress on a number of important issues," Kissinger said in a brief chat with newsmen. "So far the negotiations have been serious with both sides making responsible proposals and narrowing the gap."

The Soviet leaders requested that this morning's meeting be delayed until 6 p.m. (10 a.m. EST), apparently because of a secret meeting of the ruling Politburo, U.S. officials said.

Kissinger said: "I think we are on a course in which we can take the progress made to Washington and see where we go from there."

"We are not on any particular schedule," Kissinger added. "Our schedule is the one needed for the peace of the world."

Asked if he still intended to leave Moscow Friday, Kissinger noted that many NATO foreign ministers expected to meet him in Brussels and said, "It would be very difficult to change my schedule."

Would he return to Moscow? "I would have to see what develops," Kissinger said.

Some Soviet sources also said progress was being made toward an arms agreement.

U.S. officials said the third session of talks—Kissinger held two meetings Wednesday with Communist party general secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev—had been scheduled to begin at about noon, followed by a luncheon at 2 p.m.

An hour later, the waiting Kissinger party had received no word the Soviets were ready to begin and eventually American officials said the session was rescheduled for 6 p.m. (10 a.m. EST) U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. gave the luncheon for Kissinger with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko as guest of honor. U.S. officials said 23 Soviet guests attended the luncheon at Stoessel's residence, Spaso house.

No reason for the delay was announced. There was speculation, but no confirmation, that the Soviet politburo might have been meeting to consider the status of the talks.

Busy Bee Cafe Robbed

Hams, beer, wine, chicken, hotlinks, bread, fish, french fries and bacon were among the items taken Wednesday night in a burglary at the Busy Bee Cafe, 410 Maple.

Raymond Ward, operator, reported the burglary. Officers said entry was gained through a window on the north side of the building.

Pampa Police Department Patrolman Charles Love was assigned to investigate the burglary.

In another burglary Wednesday, M.T. Harmon of 2314 Duncan said that sometime between noon and early afternoon someone entered his residence through an unlocked door in the garage.

Missing items included five guns taken from a locked cabinet in the master bedroom. The cabinet door had been pried open with an unknown tool. A portable television set and a citizens band radio were also missing.

Theft reports on the police blotter today included one from Gailya Thomas of 310 Browning who reported that someone took $18 from her purse while she was at Highland General Hospital Wednesday morning following an injury sustained in an automobile accident at Browning and Ballard.

Pat Bailey of Pampa said his Citizens Band radio antenna and mounting brackets were taken between 8:30 a.m. and noon Wednesday while his pickup was parked at Pampa High School.

Lynn Odom of 120 W. Tuke said someone stole a trailer parked in a vacant field near his place of business.

Mrs. Vera Tubbs of 1104 Terrace reported that over the weekend someone threw rocks and broke the windshield in her car parked in the driveway. She said a window on the south side of her house also was broken.

Here comes richer sauces, casseroles, desserts, candies.

Milnot is what evaporated milk wishes it could be.

Escapee Condition Satisfactory

CLOVIS, N.M. (UPI) — A prison escapee suspected of taking seven persons hostage during three days of flight was in satisfactory condition under guard today recovering from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

John D. Burton, 42, allegedly shot himself in the left lung Tuesday as officers closed in on the farm house where he was hiding. He underwent surgery and Memorial Hospital officials said he was "talking, eating and doing real well" Wednesday.

Curry County Sheriff R.B. Boney said Burton probably would remain at the hospital for at least a week. He said his office and the state police had stationed officers at Burton's hospital room.

"He told one of our deputies that he was not going back to the penitentiary," Boney said. "He said he was just tired of serving time."

Burton allegedly took his hostages in three separate incidents following his escape from the Springer Boys' School Saturday. The hostages were a state policeman, a Springer woman and her two young children, a Springer area rancher and his teen-aged daughter and an Albuquerque taxi driver. None was harmed.

Burton had been assigned to the detention home a year ago as a trustee in a youth counseling program, which was suspended following his escape.

He pleaded guilty to a second-degree murder charge in 1957 and was paroled from the penitentiary eight years later. He was convicted of armed robbery in 1973, paroled for a second time and picked up about two years ago on a parole violation.

Gift to Hospital

The Frankenthal family owners of Packerland Packing Co. of Texas Inc. presented Highland General Hospital a $2,000 check this week. This is the third consecutive year the firm has made a contribution to the local facility. Horace Williams, hospital administrative assistant, left, and Fred Neslage, hospital board chairman, showed the check to board members Monday night. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Pilot, Controller Faulted in Air Crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board has issued an unprecedented split verdict on why a Trans World Airlines jet hit a Virginia mountaintop 14 months ago, killing all 92 persons aboard.

Unable to agree on the probable cause of the worst U.S. air disaster in more than two years, three members of the board formally reported Wednesday the pilot was at fault and two said an air traffic controller must share the blame.

Six Pampans To Receive Nursing Caps

Six Pampans will be among 25 vocational nursing students to receive their caps in ceremonies at 2 p.m. Friday at Frank Phillips College in Borger.

Conducting the capping ceremonies, which mark the end of the pre-clinical training for LVNs, will be Mrs. Ella Weeler, registered nurse and director of the college's Department of Nursing, and Mrs. Marilyn Vermillion, registered nurse and nursing instructor.

Also participating in the cappings will be Dr. William E. Raab, college president, and Andy Hicks, director of occupational and technological education.

The Pampa students are LaVerne Busby, Connie McFall, Tammy Hale, Barbara Shaw, Debbie Singleton and Georgia Whitaker. Other area students are Peggy Doiel of Perryton and Rhonda Brownfield of Lefors.

The Air Line Pilots Association called both verdicts incorrect. It said the real culprit was Federal Aviation Administration mismanagement of the air traffic control system — not a single pilot or a controller — and that the TWA tragedy may be repeated because the problems behind it have not been solved.

The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization generally endorsed the majority report but joined ALPA in calling the FAA's "inability to act quickly to solve air hazards" a root cause of the crash.

Safety board members John Reed, Louis Thayer and Isabel Burgess filed a majority report saying TWA Flight 514 crashed Dec. 1, 1974, because its crew descended to an altitude of 1,800 feet in an area where on board charts showed the minimum safe altitude was 3,400 feet.

The minority — Francis

McAdams, the board's only pilot, and William Haley — dissented in a report saying the radar controller handing the flight shares the blame because he did not follow FAA rules requiring him to keep the plane safely above the mountain.

A spokesman said the board had never previously split 3-2 on the cause of an air crash.

The board's majority said TWA pilot Richard Brock was responsible for avoiding the mountain because his plane was not under radar control.

It said Brock disregarded a flight chart showing minimum safe altitude and made a faulty decision to descend to 1,800 feet after receiving his approach clearance.

But McAdams and Haley said controller Merle Dameron clearly was required to treat Flight 514 as a radar arrival and help it avoid the mountain.

Making a List

The chairman of the Texas Employment Commission, Harold Dudley of Austin, made his first visit to Pampa Wednesday afternoon. TEC Head Visits Pampa

Points Out Housing Problem

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Pampa is fortunate to have an unemployment rate of less than 4 per cent, Harold Dudley of Austin, chairman of the Texas Employment Commission said Wednesday.

He predicted that Texas has the best potential for economic growth of any state in the nation.

Dudley was visiting the Pampa Texas Employment Commission (TEC) office for the first time during his five-year tenure as head of the TEC.

He explained that the state has a 6 per cent unemployment rate while the national level is 7.8 per cent.

He said there are several reasons why Texas enjoys a relatively good status.

"We have diversity of industry. West Texas is unique in the nation...it is the largest region with such low unemployment. The area is energy and agriculturally oriented," he said.

"Governor Briscoe very wisely asked for expansion of agricultural production...agriculture is the only way to balance our payments in foreign trade," he commented.

He told TEC employees that Texas is energy oriented not only in oil and petrochemicals — but "just around the corner is solar energy."

He smiled and said that during his tour to this area he had been reminded that "there is a great utilization of wind."

Asked if he thought the maximum unemployment benefits in Texas would be raised to $100 weekly in the near future Dudley replied:

"The Ways and Means Sub Committee that has deliberated on unemployment insurance amounts and debated the subject for some time has failed to come up with a recommendation."

The maximum benefit in Texas is now $63 weekly. "In my estimation the federal government will pass a standard for all states to abide by — but a little politics will take place first," he added.

As for unemployment fraud, Dudley pointed out that the percentage is almost nil, but added that the state is stepping up its efforts to see that "only those who deserve unemployment benefits receive them."

Asked if the Texas First Program, adopted last summer by Governor Briscoe, had any effect on unemployment, he replied:

"It brought attention to the fact that leaders are trying. A lot of people were placed in the labor force," he said.

He commented that Texas is a good place to live and do business, but predicted that Pampa is probably among those cities that must solve housing problems before many more could be brought in and placed on payrolls.

Dudley served as an executive assistant to former Governor Preston Smith — a position in which he served for two years.

He was appointed to his present post by Governor Briscoe five years ago.

He emphasized that TEC is a "personal service and not an assembly line."

He said the employees have compassion for those who enter the doors unemployed and do their best to find a job for each.

"I'm here to thank our employees for the job they have done and the way they have done it. They are now doing three to four times the amount of work they did over a year ago. The recession has brought about a need and our people have responded, he said."

Bill Ragsdale, manager of the Pampa TEC office, introduced Dudley and thanked him for his concern for this area.

Stamp Fraud Called Serious

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department, calling fraud a "serious problem" among agencies handling food stamp sales, says almost $17.5 million has either been lost or deposited late in federal accounts.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Feltner said about $10.8 million of the mishandled money is "delayed" — meaning the money is not lost but for various reasons, its deposit is "lagging" so the federal government does not receive full interest on the funds.

But $6,690,727 is "missing," Feltner said, and the department has no idea where it is. He said, however, the government will recover the money by billing the states for the shortage. Feltner testified Wednesday in a Senate agriculture subcommittee reviewing the reports indicating widespread "vendor fraud" in the food stamp program.

Sens. James Allen, D-Ala., and Robert Dole, R-Kan., blamed the shortage on the agriculture department's lax administration of the food stamp program. But Feltner said the department and the states share the blame since both failed to check vendor reports adequately.

Feltner said the late and missing deposits were uncovered in a review of about 12,000 of the 14,000 authorized food stamp vendors.

The law allows the states and counties to sell food stamps themselves or authorize sales by vendors such as banks, post offices, credit unions and currency exchanges. Most states have taken the vendor approach but this does not relieve their liability for the dollar value of the food coupons. As a result, Feltner said, the states are the "first recourse" in recovering the missing money.

Feltner did not list the states involved because the figures are "tentative" and the losses could be even higher.

The lost and lagging deposits were found in 16 audits and a review of records for 12,000 vendors between July, 1974, and September, 1975. The review covered all areas except New York City, Vermont and Connecticut and all vendors except post offices.

Inflation Bothers Most

HOUSTON (UPI) — Inflation bothers the American consumer more than anything, but big government is not far behind, according to federal officials gauging public sentiment.

People's view of government responsiveness was the subject of a meeting Wednesday at the University of Houston where representatives of 17 agencies sought grass roots input on the matter.

"The major concern of all consumers is inflation," said consumer affairs counselor Virginia Knauer.

Mrs. Knauer appeared with Russell Train, Environmental Protection Agency chief, and William Baroody, President Ford's public policy adviser at the morning meeting attended by some 800 persons.

Following presentation of the consumer plans, audience members were given up to three minutes to critique, comment or make suggestions on how big government can best serve the public.

The three officials told reporters many citizens were concerned about limiting the expansion of government and getting and keeping jobs.

"Consumers are skeptical about the need for more big government," said Mrs. Knauer.

Baroody said transcripts of the White House-sponsored meetings would be used to direct the role of consumer oriented agencies.

"People come in numbers and people care in depth about the government process," Baroody said. "The people are buying the fact there has been a fundamental change in this country. It's a breakdown in confidence and trust."

Train said although President Ford made no direct mention of preserving the physical environment in his State of the Union message to Congress, there would be no marked change in policy.

"The present priorities are on the economy in particular and secondly on energy," Train said. "I think our (EPA) programs remain quite strongly supported by the President."

Boston Students Stage Walk Out

BOSTON (UPI) — About 450 white students today walked out of East Boston High School, site of demonstrations for the past two days.

School authorities said another walkout was possible later in the day from among the approximately 800 students. The situation at South Boston High School and Charlestown High was described as tense. At least 20 students walked out of Charlestown High.

The area around Hyde Park High remained quiet with the school ordered shut for the day following a day of violence Wednesday.

There were no reports of major trouble in the East Boston demonstration, where students Wednesday tipped over several automobiles and snarled morning rush hour traffic. Extra city and state police were in the area and dispersed any large crowds.

There were reports that white students at several schools planned walkouts today in sympathy with the Hyde Park students involved in the Wednesday trouble. Boston School Supt. Marion Fahey closed the school because of the racial fighting which she termed "a setback" to desegregation efforts.

Fighting broke out at Hyde Park Wednesday when white students confronted black students who had emerged from a meeting in the school cafeteria. Eight persons were arrested in connection with the fighting.

In a different part of the city earlier in the morning, nine persons were arrested after white, antibusing demonstrators attempted to block the Summer Tunnel and overturned five cars near East Boston High School. The tunnel is a major route for morning commuters into Boston.

Gas Off, Woman Dies

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Equitable Gas Co. says it did not violate company policy by shutting off the gas to the home of an elderly woman who froze to death.

The body of Sophia Easer, about 70, was found in her home Monday.

An Equitable spokesman said Wednesday the gas was turned off in Miss Easer's home Jan. 5 because she failed to pay her $72.13 gas bill for four months' service.

The spokesman said company policy dictates that gas will not be turned off at any residence for nonpayment on any day when the predicted high temperature is below 20 degrees.

Police said Miss Easer was not destitute. Officers found more than $700 hidden in her house, a stack of stock certificates and bank records showing a balance of five figures.

Residents of the neighborhood where Miss Easer lived said she kept to herself and had lived alone for years. She was last seen Jan. 10.

Marines Start Fire

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — A fire that swept out of the Camp Pendleton Marine base "like a tornado" and burned through blocks of expensive homes near Richard Nixon's estate was 100 per cent contained early today.

Officials said they hoped to control the blaze, which burned 1,800 acres inside the Marine Corps base and the coastal city of San Clemente, by midday.

"We have a control line completely around the fire and it's not going to get any bigger," a fire spokesman said.

"The winds have died down and there's not enough fire there to blow up again."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Gov. Ray Blanton told officials from 17 states and the Virgin Islands today that overcrowded prisons have become "human warehouses" breeding tension and violence.

"When inmates are jammed almost shoulder to shoulder, and two and four men to a cell, much of our time is spent just trying to head-off violence and death," the governor said at a two-day conference on prison conditions.

Blanton initiated the conference at a meeting of the Southern Governors Conference in Orlando, Fla. last September.

Rembrandt Purchased

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's National Gallery of Art announced today the purchase of a little-known masterpiece by Rembrandt.

The price was not disclosed, but art sources said it exceeded $1 million.

The painting is a three-quarter length portrait said to depict Hendrickje Stoffels, Rembrandt's mistress when the portrait was painted in 1650.

"It is a very, very important work of art," said National Gallery director Michael Levey.

Two years of negotiation involving the private owner, the national treasury and tax authorities, Levey said, resulted in a purchase price "far

Hearst Judge Has Surgery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's bank robbery trial got a one-day delay Wednesday when the hearing judge underwent minor emergency surgery.

The newspaper heiress' trial on charges she took part in the Symbionese Liberation Army's robbery of a San Francisco bank now begins next Tuesday.

A hearing of various defense motions scheduled for Wednesday was postponed until Monday after U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter decided to have immediate vascular surgery on his neck.

The postponement of the Wednesday hearing prompted U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli to order a 24-hour delay in the start of Miss Hearst's trial.

Railroads Look Forward to Good Year

By DANIEL WEST
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — America's railroad industry, still reeling from last year's combination punches of inflation and recession, is pegging its hopes for a strong comeback in 1976 on a general revitalization of the economy and a lot of help from Congress.

Nationwide, railroads employ well over 500,000 persons and have an annual payroll of about $7.5 billion. In Texas alone, rails employ 29,300 workers and pay $1.7 million in wages each year.

When asked to sum up the financial picture domestic rails conjured up in 1975, the word most frequently used by top industry managers is "disastrous." And for good reason. During the first nine months of last year, the industry suffered a $128 million deficit — the first since the 1930's.

But these officials, asked for their assessment of the prospects for 1976, expressed guarded optimism. The key word here seems to be "if." Railroads can again prosper, they say, if freight traffic increases, if government regulators grant further rate hikes, if passenger service catches on, if material and labor costs begin to stabilize, and if Congress moves quickly on a number of critical rail bills.

The major piece of legislation sought by the industry is the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1975, which was passed by Congress just before the Christmas recess but has not been sent to the White House because of fears that, without substantial changes, the measure would be vetoed by President Ford.

Stephen Ailes, president of the American Association of Railroad (AAR) has called the bill the most "comprehensive railroad legislation in this century, which incorporates provisions marking a major turning point in national policy toward railroads."

The AAR and other industry organs here have urged Department of Transportation (DOT) Secretary William Coleman and Ford to sign the $6.5 billion measure once it reaches the White House.

Joining the industry in pressing for enactment have been the bill's streamline financially plagued rail lines in the Northeast and Midwest. It also would provide loan guarantees, fund improvements of passenger facilities, and offer low-interest loans for track improvements. In addition, the bill would effect a host of regulatory reforms, including giving the rails greater flexibility in setting freight rates.

Among other rail bills the industry is banking on is one to help upgrade badly delapidated track and roadway through a public service jobs program. This measure was in conference committee when Congress adjourned.

Industry Capitol Hill lobbyists may also try again to repeal a 1974 bill that permitted states to increase truck weights on interstate highways to 80,000 pounds with no increased user charge. Rail officials called this "a free ride for a 16 per cent increase in load and a further competitive edge over railroads." One try to repeal the measure — already adopted by 22 states and rejected by 14 others — was narrowly defeated in the final hours before Congress' Christmas - New Year's recess.

The industry also is worried about a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' plan to "Develop" the upper reaches of the Mississippi River. Such a dredging operation, they fear, would be a boon to waterway freight haulers, at the expense of nearby rail lines.

A final bill on the industry's legislative horizon for 1976 is one that would give private developers eminent domain for building a coal slurry pipeline from Far West states to points South and East. Rails for years have been planning to dominate coal trafficking from the new Western coal reserves and don't want the pipeline as competition.

Largely, then, railroad officials are looking to Congress for protection for implementation of a long-sought policy change that is, they contend, needed to offset the competitive advantage that has drifted over the past two decades toward truck and barge freight hauling.

the rails took a beating financially in 1975, there clearly was evidence that its clamoring for fairer treatment with regard to competing modes was heard. DOT chief Coleman, in a major policy speech, said there must be a remedy for "the inequity of government subsidy to the railroads' major competitors — water carriers and, to some extent, motor carriers."

Coleman, who was praised widely on Capitol Hill for his pro-rail statement, said further that "government policy must move in the direction of increasing equal competitive opportunity among transportation modes...and enabling each mode to realize its inherent advantages."

AAR's Ailes said the only thing that saved American railroads from the poorhouse in 1975 (one took that trip, the Rock Island declared bankruptcy) was a 13 per cent freight rate increase granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission in April.

"The first half of 1975," Ailes said in a recent speech, "saw the industry experience one of the worst reversals in history, as well as one of the sharpest declines in net earnings."

According to AAR figures, net earnings after fixed charges reflected a net loss of $224 million for the first six months of 1975. This compares with a $307 million profit picture during the same period in 1974.

The new rate increases should bring nationwide rail industry gross earnings up to around $15.5 billion for last year, or only two percent below 1974's record $15.9 billion. But because of soaring costs, says Ailes, the profits are slender at best.

Recent studies by DOT indicate that in 1975 fuel costs for railroads increased 18 percent, materials jumped 33 percent and labor rose 15 percent. Finding a way to cut these costs, coupled with a demonstrable "bottoming out" of the recession and legislative help from Capitol Hill are the factors railroads say are needed if 1976 is to be a good year.

Did you ever see a balloon walking? Could be that not even seeing is quite believing for spectators at a Tallahassee, Fla., parade. On the other hand, they may be wondering what's holding the man inside there down.

Nixon Tax Case Reopened by IRS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service has reopened a civil tax fraud investigation into Richard M. Nixon's 1969 tax return, the Washington Post and the New York Times reported today.

In a story by Bob Woodward, one of two reporters who gained fame through reporting the Watergate case, the Post noted the IRS had concluded in 1974 it did not have sufficient evidence to charge the former President with civil fraud.

Now, the paper reported, informed sources said the agency "believes it can show that the former President had had knowledge of a backdated deed claiming an illegal deduction for his gift of papers to the government."

IRS officials would neither confirm nor deny the reports. An official contacted late Tuesday night noted the bureau almost never discusses tax returns or tax problems of individuals.

"In the case of the former President," the official said, "the only public statements we have made were in congressional committees when we discussed certain disclosures which we did not originate."

If fraud is proved against Nixon, the Post said, he would be forced to pay $22,121.45, which would include $148,080.97 for a 1969 deficiency found by the IRS in 1974 plus a 50 per cent penalty for fraud of $74,040.48.

Nixon could challenge a fraud assessment in court.

Nixon had no legal obligation to pay the 1969 tax deficiency because the three-year statute of limitations had expired. But fraud has no statute of limitations and makes the basic tax deficiency also collectible at any time.

In 1974, when the IRS ruled Nixon's vice presidential papers were not a legal claim against his taxes, Nixon paid the amount due for the 1970-72 returns and said he also would pay the 1969 deficiency although he was not required to do so.

The Post said its sources reported he has not done so.

President Ford's pardon of Nixon covers only criminal matters and would not apply to civil tax fraud.

AOPA Says FAA Wasteful

Spending by the Federal Aviation Administration is "wasteful and excessive" and the FAA engineering and development program during fiscal year 1976 could be reduced by more than $75 million, an organization of private pilots has told the Senate Commerce Committee's aviation subcommittee. This is about 80 percent of the current budget.

Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association said that more than half of the traffic control towers at airports could be closed and service at many others reduced to part-time operations.

The association said research programs in the field of aviation safety are being conducted by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the FAA could save an estimated $4 million by wiping out these activities from its operation. Similarly, AOPA suggested leaving environmental programs to NASA and private enterprise to save another $6.8 million.

Research and development in aviation medicine have not produced a useful output, AOPA charged, nor is there any evidence that medical factors are a significant problem to aviation safety. Discarding this program could save $2.7 million, the association said.

Research and development in aviation medicine have not produced a useful output, AOPA charged, nor is there any evidence that medical factors are a significant problem to aviation safety. Discarding this program could save $2.7 million, the association said.

"Expenditures for radar," AOPA said, "have led to wasteful extensions of positive control areas around major airports and at altitudes above 12,500 feet." Pointing out that this equipment has required aircraft owners to purchase expensive electronic equipment to fly in controlled airspace or to crowd more closely together in the remaining airspace, the association statement said "FAA required more people and more equipment, while aircraft owners suffered a substantial loss in aircraft utility."

The association said that a recent study conducted for the FAA indicated that airports constructed with federal aid cost nearly one-third more than airports built by local governments or private industry without federal assistance.

Fashion Designs by Blind

By Ellie Grossman
NEW YORK (NEA) — A fashion show at Bellevue Hospital — New York's personal tribute to the Middle Ages with its dreary surroundings and overcrowding?

With blind and partially sighted men and women from The Lighthouse modeling clothes they designed and made?
The mind totters. But on a recent, cold evening, the event took place. And it was something of a miracle play.

For two hours, in a bright dining room turned showroom in Bellevue's New Building, 23 models displayed mohair ponchos, suede dashikis, pant and beach outfits, caftans and evening ensembles.

And the audience — perhaps 50 rehabilitation patients who arrived in wheelchairs and on crutches — was faithful to the end. All applauded the models, the entertainment and the moderator, Lucia Morena, a white-haired, blind Avon lady who kept them buoyed up with a lively commentary she'd memorized from a tape cassette.

Walter Goodridge, enviably at ease with himself and the world, modeled two attractive dashikis and doubled on the piano. Now 60, stocky and balancing, he has been blind for twelve and a half years.

"When I lost my sight, I had time to sit down and examine myself," he says. "It takes a little faith but I found I could do a lot of things. I was going to take dictaphone typing at The Lighthouse last year but I have arthritis in my fingers; so I signed up for the fashion design workshop."

"I never made clothes before. I've never even seen a dashiki, but you know, if you live in fear, you never get anything done. You have to try. I want to make a pair of terry coveralls next. They're good for the beach and coming out of the shower. But I'm going to cut them like an Eisenhower jacket and pants, because a one-piece outfit is too unwieldy."

Juanita Ballinger, director of the fashion design workshop, has been teaching for seven years at The Lighthouse, also known as the New York Association for the Blind. The workshop, she says, is two years old.

"It's part of our adult leisure education program. We have 14 people in the class ranging from 23 to 75, including all races, and we meet once a week for a two-hour class. We also have a one-hour workshop where we discuss our shows and touch on posture, exercise, make-up and who's going to entertain during intermission."

Most of her students are partially sighted, the rest totally blind, she says. Each has his own dress form, or mannequin, on which he fits a pattern duplicating his own measurements.

"It takes six months to drape the pattern and transfer it to oaktag paper using braille or large-figure tape measures. But they can then adapt that basic pattern — a sleeveless top and skirt for a woman; pants and shirt for a man — to whatever they want."

It takes another six months to complete the garment which is made from sample cuts of solid and print fabrics donated by the community.

All the students travel independently about the city with dog or cane. Walter Goodridge uses a cane. Before he left that night to face a long subway ride home alone, he explained his outlook:

"The subway used to terrify me, but people are helpful. You know the story about Abraham and Isaac and how Abraham was going to kill Isaac and God stopped him and said, use the ram instead. Well, I agree with what my sister says: Don't worry, God always has a ram in the thicket."

What's in Sight?

Models from the New York Association for the Blind wore clothes they designed and made at a fashion show for patients at New York's Bellevue General Hospital.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When you accidentally chip the rim of one of your precious, impossible to replace, crystal goblets, don't sink into a fit of depression.

Instead, head for your manicure box and a plain, ordinary emery board. The short three-inch ones are easiest to work with.

Start with the fine side and, slowly and carefully, smooth off all the sharp edges, inside and out, testing with a forefinger as you work.

Then with the coarse side of the emery board, still working with care, soften and taper down the sharp corners of the chip until it becomes only a slight dip in the rim.

Finish with a little more stroking with the fine side to round the edge slightly and your precious piece of crystal is ready for service again for any guest, and not to be "reserved for myself" for fear of a cut lip!

Mrs. W. J. Z.

Dear Heloise:

Here is a tip to prolong the life of your cutting scissors and, if you've bought any lately, you know they are not inexpensive.

When you have finished cutting out a garment, wipe your finger along the side of your nose (without make-up, of course), and then along the cutting edge of one of the scissor blades. Repeat the process for the other blade.

You'll find scissors will be much less prone to pitting.

Julie

Very true, according to one of the leading manufacturers of fine scissors.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise:

It is raining here today, as it does much of the time. I had a neighbor tell me just yesterday how depressed rain makes her, so I suggested she think, "When it's raining, we don't need to feel bad because we need to stay inside anyway and get all those unmentionable chores done, instead of feeling bad when we need to stay in on a lovely sunny day when we'd like to be outside."

But then, why stay in then — save all those little chores for rainy days. That way, we can have a good attitude all the time.

Did I make sense?

Mrs. W. Zaugg

You did to me. What a bright outlook on life you must have.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Possibly the biggest swindle I have ever seen in my life occurred some years ago in a tournament when today's deal came up. The deal also demonstrates that on any given deal — on any given day — even the mightiest can be defeated by the veriest of tyros.

North — South vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
South West North East
4NT Pass 7NT Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

South's opening four notrump bid probably came about as a result of a miscount of his hand. Technically, an opening bid of four notrump shows a balanced hand containing 28-30 high-card points (an extension of the opening bid of three notrump showing 25-27 high-card points). North, having 9 high-card points, plus a very workable five-card suit, figured that 13 tricks would be there for the taking. Hence his prompt leap to the grand slam.

As is evident, 13 tricks are there for the taking, thanks to either a successful finesse against East's king of clubs, or by the cashing of the three top hearts, thereby making a winner out of dummy's fourth heart. But South, misled completely by West's opening lead, never gave even a passing thought to availing himself of either of these two lines of play.

When West led the heart jack at trick one, declarer was absolutely certain of one thing: that West's heart suit was headed by the J-10, for no one ever leads an unsupported jack against a grand slam contract. The jack of hearts was captured by South's queen, after which the king of hearts was cashed. Next came South's remaining heart, and when West followed suit with the three, dummy's nine was inserted, the finesse being taken against West's presumed jack. As can be observed, East's ten took the setting trick.

Had West chosen to make a more normal lead (let's say the fourth — from — the — highest spade). South would have romped in with his contract. He first would have tested the hearts by cashing the king, queen, and ace. Dummy's fourth heart would, on this given day, have become declarer's thirteenth trick. Had the hearts not been divided favorably (on some other day), as a last resort the club finesse would be taken. I'm glad I wasn't sitting South.

Second Season Creaks Open for Television

NEW YORK (UPI) — The television audience shot down 15 of the 26 new shows the networks produced with great fanfare last September, and now the casualties are being dragged off the screen and replaced with new, or anyway other, entries.

Television's "second season" has yet to catch on as a cause for national celebration, but instead stealthily slips into the schedules in bits and pieces.

A few of the replacements already are on the air, with others about to bow in.

Of those already on the air, "One Day At A Time", Norman Lear's latest contribution to situation comedy on CBS, has proved a winner so far, even getting up into the top ten of the Nielsen ratings.

"The Blue Knight", the new CBS cop show starring George Kennedy, is performing adequately in the ratings and could end up either a winner or a loser.

"Popi", new on CBS Tuesday nights (8:30-9 p.m., Eastern time), stars Hector Elizondo in a situation comedy about a Puerto Rican father who holds three part-time jobs to support his young sons. It replaces "Joe & Sons", a situation comedy about an Italian-American father struggling to raise two young sons.

NBC's scene of the September season's Thursday night massacre which saw "The Montefuscos" and "Fay" pulled off the air before the frost was on the pumpkin, has found 8-9 p.m. (Eastern time) a continuing trouble spot. Its new sitcoms in that slot, "Grady" and "The Cop and the Kid", have been unable so far to establish themselves as shows the audience hates to miss.

ABC, slower than the competition to replace old shows with new, has so far aired only "The Bionic Woman," a spin-off of "The Six Million Dollar Man" who, according to one character on the show, cost less than $6 million because her parts were smaller. It could prove another winner for ABC.

Other CBS entries for the new season are "Sara", which will premiere Feb. 13, 8-9 p.m. Eastern time, with Brenda Vaccaro as a 19th Century schoolteacher who leaves the cozy East to teach frontier children in Colorado, and "The Sonny & Cher Show" that will replace just plain "Cher".

NBC has five more for its schedule — two comedies, two cops shows and one variety hour.

"The Dumplings" will be the first of the comedies, bowing in Jan. 28, 9:30-10 p.m., Eastern time, starring James Coco and Geraldine Brooks in another Norman Lear situation comedy, this one about a couple who run a lunch counter in a New York City office building.

On Jan. 30 a familiar face returns, when Danny Thomas impersonates an irascible doctor with a heart of mush in "The Practice" (8:30-9 p.m. Eastern time).

A new variety entry is "The Rich Little Show," to bow in Feb. 2, 8-9 p.m., Eastern time, and the good news on this Monday night entry is the appearance of Charlotte Rae, a very funny lady, as a regular.

In the cops department, Jack Warden, who used to be a New York cop in "N.Y.P.D.", has transferred to the Los Angeles force in "Jigsaw John," to bow in Feb. 2 from 10-11 p.m., Eastern time.

The next night, Feb. 3, Wayne Rogers, who used to be a doctor in Korea on "M-A-S-H", turns up in "City of Angels" as a private detective in the Los Angeles of the 1930s. The opening show is the first segment of a three-part drama about a plot that threatens the entire nation.

ABC has come up with two new shows that avoid the cops and sitcom cycle — the "Donnie and Marie Osmond Show," a variety hour from 8-9 p.m., Eastern time, debuting Jan. 23, and "Almost Anything Goes", an hour of wild games and contests bowing in 8-9 p.m., Jan. 24.

It's back to situation comedy with "Laverne and Shirley," with Penny Marshall and Shirley Feeney as a couple of rough-and-ready nice girls who work in the bottle cap division of Schottz Brewery in Milwaukee in the 1950s. It's a spinoff of "Happy Days" scheduled to bow in Jan. 27, 8:30-9 p.m. Eastern time.

Its back to cops with "Superstar", with Paul Sorvino as a tough San Francisco policeman, who will premiere Feb. 21, 10-11 p.m. Eastern time.

ABC also is running a mini-series, "Rich Man, Poor Man," a 12 hour film version of the Irwin Shaw novel with a lot of famous names in cameo roles. Plans are air two special two-hour episodes Feb. 1 and 2, 9-11 p.m., Eastern time, then show an hour a week on Monday nights until March 22, when "Rich Man, Poor Man" will wind up in a two-hour special.

If audiences find these selections less than attention-riveting, look at it this way: If television were as good as everyone wishes it would be, how would Dad tear himself away to read his paper? Would Mom stand for banishment in the kitchen? When would the kids do their homework? Tune in next September.

Jack Sprat Eats No Fat, And His Wife Shouldn't Either

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff
Jack Sprat could eat no fat. His wife could eat no lean. And so betwixt the two of them they licked the platter clean. The poem ends there, but according to evidence from the American Heart Association, Mrs. Sprat could likely be a victim of heart or blood vessel disease.

Medical research has shown that too many fatty foods can be damaging to the heart and blood vessel system. Eating fat is only one of the factors linked with the rise in heart and blood vessel problems, but it is one factor which we can do something about.

Fat takes up to 45 per cent of the average daily diet of calories for most people in the United States. The heart association wants to cut that percentage to 30 to 35.

The Gray County Division of the American Heart Association emphasizes nutrition, good eating and cholesterol content of food in its education about diets which are good for the heart.

Margarette Cox and Bobbie

Silcott, co-chairmen of the organization's diet committee, urge, "Teach your children, that's the main thing." They emphasize that a low cholesterol diet is for people of all ages... "starting young."

Atherosclerosis, cholesterol that is actually deposited in the artery walls, is getting too much of a good thing, the heart association says. Cholesterol is high in egg yolks, fatty meats, organ meats, cream, cheese, butter, shellfish, lard, coconut, luncheon meats, and chocolate.

Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Silcott recommend that cooks avoid deep fat frying, select lean meat, use vegetable oil in cooking and brown meats in the broiler instead of a greased pan. They recommend families eat fish, chicken, turkey and veal more often than beef, lamb, pork and ham.

The two women, who are both nurses, are preparing to give club programs about developing good low cholesterol nutrition.

Following are three menus containing foods recommended by the heart association and other low cholesterol books, several of which are available at Lovett Memorial Library.

Combine peas, celery, salt and broth and cook gently until peas and celery are tender.

Thicken liquid with cornstarch which has been mixed with a little water. Serve in sauce dishes.
Makes six servings.

Reheat oven to 325 degrees. Place skinned fillets in shallow oiled baking pan. Add salt, a dash of cayenne pepper, the wine and stock. Cover with foil and bake 20 minutes or until tender.

1/2 cup white wine
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped walnuts

1 1/4 cup hot water
Sift together first four ingredients. Add the skim milk, oil and walnuts. Mix well. Spread into an oiled 8-inch square pan.

Mix together 2 1/2 tablespoons cocoa and brown sugar and sprinkle evenly over the top of the pudding. Pour carefully onto the back of a teaspoon over the pudding 1 1/4 cup hot water.

1/2 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup light chicken or fish stock or canned clam juice cayenne pepper

Quick and Easy Refrigerator Rolls

Oven Fried Potatoes
4 medium potatoes
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
Peel potatoes and cut into French-fry size. Remove all excess moisture and place potatoes into a bowl. Sprinkle with vegetable and toss as if making tossed salad.

When the oil and potatoes are mixed, spread on a cookie sheet and place in hot oven (475-500 degrees) for 35 minutes. Turn potatoes so they will brown evenly on both sides. Sprinkle with salt before serving.

For more brownness, place under broiler for a minute or two.

Restaurants Rates Top

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Giovanna D'Agostino is as Italian as her name. So is her cooking. Mama D, as everyone calls her who has known her for six seconds, runs Sammy D's in the Dinkytown section of Minneapolis, recently rated by "Chef Institutional" magazine as one of the dozen best American restaurants.

The restaurant led to her cookbook. While she was helping her son in his sandwich shop near the University of Minnesota a few years ago, a student asked, "Why don't you make spaghetti?" "Come back tomorrow," Mama D replied, and the next day spaghetti was on the menu. Then another student asked, "Why don't you make lasagna?" and got the same answer. The menu mushroomed to include eggplant and veal parmigiana, fettucine, chicken cacciatore, and pretty soon they had to change the name from Sammy D's Sandwich Shop.

"I do all the cooking myself," she said in a telephone interview. "I use no additives, no preservatives, no junk. Love is still the main ingredient, in food and in life. I lead with my heart, and my favorite people are still the young college kids," said the round-faced, white-haired woman who looks like everyone's Italian grandmother.

Unlike most native Italians, her Calabrian mother wasn't much of a cook. After Mama D got married, she asked her husband how he liked her cooking. "His words said good, but his face said different," she recalled. "So I went around to all the Italians I knew, getting recipes, improvising, refining." Soon her husband's face said "fantastic" when he sat down to a meal, and that was important to Mama D.

Colson Tells Nixon Thoughts

Your Horoscope By Jeane Dixon

(Editor's Note: The following story was written by a UPI reporter who interviewed Charles Colson several times during the Watergate affair.)
By WESLEY G. PIPPERT
 ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Former White House lawyer Charles W. Colson says Richard M. Nixon believed Gen. Alexander M. Haig and John B. Connally Jr. were "the only two men around here" qualified to succeed him in the presidency.

 Colson also said in a new book he negotiated Connally's switch to the Republican party as the Watergate crisis heated up in early 1973 and pledged him Nixon's support for the 1976

GOP nomination.
 The book, "Born Again," will be published March by Chosen Books and distributed by Fleming H. Revell. UPI obtained access to it.
 The title refers to Colson's Christian conversion between the time he left the White House in early 1973 and his plea of guilty to obstruction of justice in the Pentagon Papers case in 1974.

 About two-thirds of the book deals with Colson's religious experience. He now works full-time at Fellowship House in Washington and concentrates on prison ministries.
 Colson also said:
 — Haig, Nixon's last White House chief of staff and now NATO commander, had believed Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski "would protect" Nixon. Colson called it one of the "classic miscalculations" of Watergate.
 — A raging, roaring, table-pounding Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger suspected "wholesale subversion" in the government during the 1971 leak of the Pentagon Papers, and there was fear China would cancel Nixon's 1972 trip there.
 — A "quiet and fatalistic" Nixon told Colson on the day the 1973 Vietnamese peace agreement was signed, "No telling how long this peace agreement will last — a year or two or more. But we kept our word — we'll get our prisoners home. The South Vietnamese, at least those poor devils will have a chance."
 Colson said Nixon confided his 1976 political plans after ordering mining of North Vietnamese harbors in May, 1972.
 "When told the decision would infuriate the American people and perhaps cost him the election, now only five months away," Colson wrote, "I saw the President's jaw tighten."
 "So what!" he snapped. "It's the right thing to do. If I didn't do it, the presidency wouldn't be worth getting re-elected to."

"Later he confided: 'Only Al and John understand. (Al Haig, then Kissinger's deputy, and John Connally, secretary of the Treasury.) They're the only ones in the whole government besides you and Bob (Haldeman, then White House chief of staff) who favored this decision."
 "Then wistfully he added: 'You know, Chuck, those are the only two men around here qualified to fill this job when I step down.'" Colson wrote.
 The decision to mine the harbor was made just prior to Nixon's Moscow trip and the Watergate break-in that led to his resignation.
 Colson said he recommended Haig be named chief of staff after Haldeman resigned April 30, 1973, and negotiated Connally's switch to the Republican party with pledge of Nixon's 1976 support.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Veterinarians advise preventive treatment for heartworm by April for all dogs in the United States. The parasite, which often is fatal, formerly was confined to the southern U.S. It is turning up with increasing frequency in colder areas.
 Heartworm is spread by mosquitoes. Treatment an intravenous injection to kill the worms in the dog's heart and oral dosage with an organic iodine compound to kill circulating first stage larvae, followed by drug treatment to prevent future invasions.
 Preventive medicine is available as an elixir or tablet given daily or in a medicated food sold only with a veterinarian's prescription.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 23

Your birthday today: Revision is the constant phenomenon in this year's growth. You leap to get around obstacles, use your own shortcomings well and deal with uncooperative people. All in all you become a more seasoned person, prepared for opportunity coming later. Relationships are shaky and cannot be taken for granted. Today's natives are fond of changing locations, finding new sets of friends.
Aries [March 21-April 19]: Stay clear of potential critics, as you're all in a mood for sparring. Concentrate on work that takes no direct cooperation. Don't ask for special consideration.
Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Squabbles easily grow into disputes but should be sidetracked at the start. You encounter complications during travel and can't get the right information.
Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You talk faster than you think and get yourself into a commitment you don't want. Only undertake short-term, single transactions now. Youngsters are full of profitable ideas.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: If you insist on taking on others' emotional problems, get it out of your system by working hard. Passing the anxiety along to loved ones spoils relationships.
Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Your pride gets in the way and makes it difficult to define your needs. Communications require extra effort but nobody is ready to listen. Don't make any large promises.
Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: You must invest more of your time to help others. Wait until asked, then be selective. One detail creates trouble if you happen to skip it; use your head!
Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Today is a good day for the young and the young at heart. Take initiative and speak up for your ideas. You get encouragement from unexpected directions.
Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Avoid overdoing, particularly if your health is to be affected. Although things seem to be going well, that's no excuse for taking people for granted.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Go it alone in money matters. Taking care of others turns out to be a huge responsibility. Those who are closest to you emotionally may be the hardest to cope with.
Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: There's a better time and place to bid for the attention of influential people. It's best to develop your own approach and make use of available resources.
Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You've tempted to take action, whether or not you have thought out where it leads, just to get yourself and your enterprises off the ground. Avoid premature moves.
Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Strive for an impersonal attitude. Let friends worry about their own hangups. It's probable you're hearing only a small part of the story. Don't believe promises.

Program Reverses Effects

By BRUCE E. HICKS
UPI Science Writer
 TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A study has strongly suggested a major disease that blocks blood vessels and causes nearly 1,000,000 deaths a year is reversible, according to a Los Angeles physician.
 It is the first time such clinical evidence has been found, although physicians have believed such things as exercise, diet, drugs and reduced smoking could lessen the danger from the disease, called atherosclerosis.

year in nine of the 40 patients in a study group.
 "We have now studied more than 100 men and have learned that for some of them a one-year program of weight loss and exercise reduced vessel incrustations (buildup of fat which blocks the blood flow)," Blankenhorn said. "This is important because it points the way to preventive maintenance treatments for atherosclerosis which can be applied and evaluated for each individual's response before heart attack or stroke occurs."
 The annual check on the other 60 patients from the study has not been completed, he added. In the group check, the disease worsened in 14 and there was no change in the other 17. Without treatment, the disease likely would have increased in nearly all, he suggested.

 Blankenhorn told the American Heart Association Science Writers Forum Tuesday the exact cause of the reversal of the disease in the nine patients was not known.
 "I do feel confident in saying there was a change," he said, "but what caused the change I cannot be sure. We simply have a demonstration that it reversed."
 Blankenhorn said it was the first time that anyone has been able to clinically show regression of the disease. He said animal studies showed the disease could be checked, but it had not been possible before to confirm the same for humans.

Dr. David H. Blankenhorn of the University of Southern California said a new technique for measuring the amount of fat buildup in blood vessels showed the disease regressed in one

Arkansas Asks NBC For Public Apology
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — The Arkansas House has approved a resolution criticizing a national television program for depicting Arkansas in "a degrading hillbilly image."
 The House, on a voice vote, Tuesday overwhelmingly adopted a strongly worded resolution condemning the NBC Today Show for the program. The resolution directed that a copy be set to the president of NBC and to the Federal Communications Commission.
 The resolution also asks for a public apology by NBC and for equal time to depict a different view of the state.
 Rep. Ode Maddox of Oden, sponsor of the resolution, said NBC "used a combination of country music and slanted, biased and sarcastic techniques to depict Arkansas in a degrading hillbilly image."
 Maddox termed the Today Show presentation "journalistically unethical, prejudiced and insulting," and said it "shocked, insulted and appalled" the people of Arkansas.
 Rep. Tommy Sparks of Forgyce said he feared if the state's beauty were accurately portrayed, "all those damn Yankees are going to want to come down here and be with us."

Says Charges Political

By ROLAND LINDSEY
UPI Capitol Reporter
 AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — District Judge O.P. Carrillo says Senate impeachment charges against him are politically motivated and supported by lies.
 Carrillo, testifying Tuesday in his own defense, said prosecution witness Cleofas Gonzales had been told what to say and that Attorney General John Hill had sided with a faction opposing the Carrillos in a Duval County feud.
 "I think that someone could come out and prompt Mr. Gonzales to say something, and like a little computer he spits it right out," Carrillo testified. "I wouldn't believe Cleofas Gonzales on a stack of Bibles."
 "Over the years I'm certain Mr. Gonzales was stealing from us at the Farm and Ranch store."
 In the first week of Carrillo's impeachment, Gonzales testified that as manager of the Carrillo family's Farm and Ranch store, he helped funnel county welfare funds back to the family.
 He said welfare money was paid to the "Zertuche Store," which he said did not exist, and that Carrillo used the money to do his own shopping.
 Carrillo's accusation that Hill had joined a political faction headed by Archer Parr was in response to prosecutor Terry Doyle's question about why several county officials refused to testify on the grounds of self incrimination.
 "They have because the attorney general, who went down there taking instructions from Archer Parr in this case, has been down there with his sights set to get all the Carrillos," the judge said, "and that is the main purpose and everyone knows it. It's common knowledge back home."
 "I definitely do make the accusation that the attorney general of the state of Texas, Mr. John Hill, has made agreements and gotten together with Archer Parr and went down there to help them control and take over the water district."
 Carrillo said two Parrs and a bank controlled by the Parr family had taken money from the water district, and Hill had done nothing about it.

 The attorney general, who entered the Senate chamber just as the accusations started, left shortly after Carrillo's comments saying his office had conducted an impartial investigation.
 "I don't feel that our office needs any defense," Hill said. "I don't feel defensive about the kind of investigation our office has carried on. We've been totally impartial as far as political factions in Duval County are concerned."

Bentsen For Gas Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says Congress should grant higher prices to natural gas producers to keep the producers in business.
 Testifying Tuesday before the House subcommittee on Energy and Power, Bentsen urged adoption of his bill which phases out federal regulation of natural gas prices at the point of production.
 Subcommittee Chairman Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., said even with higher prices, there was not proof producers would put the money into natural gas.
 "What assurance to we have that, as you put it, producers won't take their chips and invest in Ringling Circus, Marcor, or Reston, Va.," Dingell asked, citing energy firms' nonenergy investments in recent years.

"You have the assurance of a competitive marketplace," Bentsen said. "These wells will be drilled if these producers have the assurance of a reasonable return on their investment."
 "The real issue in this debate is whether the Congress will adopt a policy which will encourage the production of domestic reserves or whether they will be developed overseas."
 Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., said past experience has failed to prove higher prices bring on enough new gas.
 "The price of natural gas in the (unregulated) intrastate market has increased 1,100 per cent from 1968 to 1975, and yet production in Louisiana and Texas has continued to decline each year," he said.

Tammy Richardson In Critical Condition

Tammy Richardson, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Richardson of 2214 Beech, is listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Mrs. Richardson, contacted at the hospital said her daughter had gone on a shopping trip after school Monday. She came home and was planning to go to the movies that night, though her mother said she was complaining of a headache.

When Mrs. Richardson went to tell her daughter it was time to go to the movie, she found Tammy in a coma.

The family took Tammy to Highland General Hospital and her doctor ordered her transfer to the Amarillo facility.

Mrs. Richardson said the doctor told them that a blood vessel in the base of the brain had ruptured.

"She is responding to medications," Mrs. Richardson said, "and her pulse is normal, though she has not regained consciousness."

"The doctor didn't give us any hope when we brought Tammy in," said Mrs. Richardson, adding that "as far as we're concerned, it is a miracle she is still alive."

Elvis Strikes Again

DENVER (UPI)—Television newsman Don Kinney thought one of his friends was playing a joke by calling and saying he was singer Elvis Presley and offering to buy him a luxury car. He found out quickly enough, however, it wasn't a joke at all.

Kinney, who works for KOA-TV, read an article on the "Denver Today" show Tuesday describing how Presley, who is vacationing in Vail, had purchased Cadillacs and Lincoln Mark IV Continentals for four members of the Denver Police Department.

At the end of his news item, Kinney jokingly said, "I wouldn't mind an economy car."

Several minutes later, his phone rang. The caller identified himself as Presley, said he liked Kinney's story and told Kinney his own new $13,000 Cadillac was waiting to be picked up at a local dealership.

"I thought it was a hoax," Kinney said. "We talked a little more and I tried to figure which one of my friends was doing a number on me."

He finally was convinced when Detective Ron Pietrafesa, one of the officers to whom Presley gave a car and who is vacationing with the singer, took the receiver and said, "This is no gag. You will receive a car."

"He (Presley) said he liked the way I read the story," Kinney said. "It (the car) is a Cadillac Seville."

Late last week, Presley gave cars to Pietrafesa, Police Capt. Jerry Kennedy and Police Medical Coordinator Dr. Gerald Starkey Jr. Monday, Presley bought another Cadillac for Police Sgt. Robert Cantwell. All the officers were involved in providing security for Presley during a concert tour in Colorado more than two years ago.

"He told me he bought the car for me because he liked me," Cantwell said.

Kinney said Presley was "very pleasant. He said he's having a good time on his vacation and likes it because people are leaving him alone."

Officials also said Presley had bought luxury sedans for two women he met while on his concert tour and for the wives of two of his vacation companions. Presley has now purchased nine cars in Colorado at a total cost of more than $110,000.

Voting Rights Act Set For Discussion Friday

The Voting Rights Act, which Gray County was placed under in late 1975, will be discussed at 7 p.m. Friday during a meeting of county precinct workers.

The meeting was called by Rex McAnelly, Gray County Democratic chairman, and will be held in the courthouse annex.

Discussions will include voter registration, and the filling of precinct vacancies within the county which may have occurred recently.

Precinct, county, state and national conventions also will be discussed.

Ruth Osborne of Pampa, 31st District Committeewoman, announced Wednesday that more than twice the required number of signatures needed to allow Texas Senator Lloyd Bentsen to file as a presidential candidate have been obtained within the 31st District which includes 26 counties.

While in Amarillo last week Bentsen said:

"I have always felt that the most precious right we have is the right to vote. The Voting Rights Act will simplify procedures and eliminate a lot of court trials. I have always walked the extra mile to protect the individual's right to vote."

The public is invited to the 7 p.m. Friday meeting.

CHANGED MIND for Sen. Philip Hart has resulted from congressional investigations of U.S. intelligence agencies.

Uncharged Carrillo May Run

BENAVIDES, Tex. (UPI) — The only Carrillo brother not linked to various charges of Duval County corruption says he may run for county judge this year — and probably would win if he did.

"I haven't entered anything yet," said Oscar Carrillo, the older brother of indicted District Judge O.P. Carrillo and former County Commissioner Ramiro Carrillo. "I've been considering."

"I've had a lot of people call. A lot of old friends, trying to get me into the race. But I haven't made up my mind yet. I probably will next week."

The elder Carrillo told UPI Tuesday he had visited with many county residents and had found they were angered by state and federal interference with the county's government. He said voters would probably unite behind old-line Democrats at the polls this spring despite the charges of corruption.

Carrillo, a former state representative and the only major county political figure with a clean slate after two years of investigations, said he also was considering running for state representative against Rep. Terry Canales, D-Prentiss, who introduced the resolution to impeach O.P. Carrillo as South Texas district judge.

The Texas Senate is now hearing the case against O.P. Carrillo, who is charged with using welfare funds to buy his family's groceries and funneling county money to his own account from the rental of allegedly nonexistent equipment.

Both O.P. and Ramiro Carrillo also have been convicted of falsifying income tax forms.

If Oscar Carrillo were to enter and win the county judge's race, it would show the family still had support against its rival political faction — the Parr family of Duval County.

Archer Parr was ousted from the county judge's office a year ago and his uncle, "Duke of Duval" George B. Parr committed suicide.

Currently, the county government is being run by a court-appointed commissioners court. And two rival school boards are conducting business for the Benavides Independent School District under court order.

Oscar Carrillo was critical of Attorney General John Hill's investigation of the county, which included roles by the Texas Rangers, District Judge Darrell Hester of Brownsville and District Attorney Arnulfo Guerra of Rio Grande City.

"I don't mind criticizing the judge (Hester) openly," Carrillo said. "I don't give a damn. This is what we've been fighting for."

"A little old man came and told me the other day, 'we had one gringo (George Parr) who decided what to do sometime back. Now we've got four.'"

The first keyboard instrument is believed to have been invented in Egypt, shortly before the Christian era.

Garvey Still Talking Of Pro Bowl Boycott

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Ed Garvey, head of the National Football League Players' Association, says players are questioning the effectiveness of pressure tactics in negotiations with the league, and adds that most of the stars chosen would like to play the Pro Bowl without any arguments.

The players union has been talking of a Pro Bowl boycott if the league fails to improve the players' pension package, which Garvey says is on the brink of failure. But Garvey said a meeting scheduled tonight would determine the status of the game, scheduled for Monday night in the Louisiana Superdome.

"Obviously, I think people would like to play the game — and they would like to have these problems resolved," he said Wednesday. "If they play the game, it won't lessen their concern for the pension. Their problems aren't going to go away until the owners are willing to sit down and work things out."

Garvey said he hoped to talk today with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, the league Management Council and other NFL officials, "so at least I can make a full report to the players as to what the reaction is."

"I would think the league would want to send someone or have someone available to talk to the players at the meeting, and I would think they would be most welcome."

Garvey says the issue is a $5 million owner contribution to the pension fund which has been in escrow since 1972 when the union failed to negotiate a new contract.

"A lot of people — players, that is — question whether collective bargaining works, or whether any pressure on the owners works at this point. It should be obvious that we don't have all the answers," he added.

Garvey said the problem would be resolved if the money was transferred to the fund, and added that one of his major points was to work with more players, especially the top names, in the union operation.

"We came in here with a feeling that we should involve the stars and the superstars in the whole problem more than we have in the past and to present them with the situation and seek their counsel."

that got Ekker's vote for the eventual conference titlist in November.

The big game this week is Saturday against Bradley, Ekker explains. "Louisville is a non-conference game for us, and although it would be a prestigious win if we could beat them, I'm satisfied with the prestige we got when we beat them at Louisville. Now, I want to win the conference."

The Buffs now have won nine straight to put their record at 12-1, the best start since the 1941-42 squad won 17 of its first 18 games. It's all been done without one star.

"I think balance has been a key to our success," Ekker adds. "We have eight very good players, and they are never all going to be flat at the same time."

"It's amazing when you can take a Bobby Anderson and throw him into a clutch situation and he plays as well as he does. The same thing about Reggie Ramey and Milt Henderson, or whoever. Yes, I'm pleased with our bench."

Louisville boasts a balanced attack also. Coach Denny Crum has four players averaging in double figures, topped by sophomore center Ricky Gallon's 16.2 mark. Gallon is also averaging 8.2 rebounds per game.

Conover 'Immature' Coach

HOUSTON (UPI) — Ted N. Law, a big financial booster of private Rice University, did not like head football coach Al Conover.

"Too immature for the image of Rice," said Law. The man Law liked, an acquaintance of several years, was Homer Rice.

"He (Rice) had to fit three categories," said Law. "One was character and the many things that come with being a good human being. Second was the ability to fit into the Rice picture. Third was coaching ability. He fit all three."

The week after Christmas Conover planned to resume fulltime recruiting. Then he abruptly resigned and was paid about $27,000.

"I was still active in the program two days before my resignation," he said. He refused to talk about the terms of that resignation, which occurred on Jan. 2, and said he would never return to coaching.

"I bought a part interest in a hog farm, and it was a step up," Conover said.

After the resignation a prominent Rice alumni club executive, W.C. Treadway Jr., asked, "Why is this such a big thing? Conover has been fired, and that is that. Let's just forget about it and try to get a winning program."

As a Rice assistant coach who stepped up to the head job four years ago at the urging of his players, Conover worked his team hard but made college football fun.

If he wasn't driving a hearse onto the AstroTurf for his players to bury their mistakes on pieces of paper, Conover was drawing laughs by riding a Mustang to practice during the week his team played SMU. Pre-game talks were likely to be interrupted by firecrackers or flying chairs.

But Conover did not produce a winning season. And Law did not like him for his antics.

Rice University, enrollment 2,500, considers itself the Harvard of the South. Academic standards are tough, making it hard for student-athletes to get in and stay in. Recruiting athletes to meet standards is nerve-racking.

"Rice is not like your average university," said Law, relaxing in his seventh floor office in the River Oaks Bank Building. "The atmosphere out there is serious, studious. The coach out there needs to fit, to be scholarly."

Hackerman said coaches were interviewed during a three-week search in compliance with Department of Health, Education and Welfare equal opportunity guidelines. But some friends of Rice University thought differently.

Dickie Maegle, likely the finest halfback Rice has ever suited up and now a local businessman, said the coach hunt was no contest.

"There is one man, the same man who put up the money to pay off Conover, who is railroading his choice into the job," said Maegle. "And the choice is a dubious one at that."

Maegle spoke of Homer Rice.

"He's 49 years old, has headed a football team two years and has not won anything, except in high school," he said. "The one man who wants him spoke up in a committee meeting and said, 'yes, but he has written books on football.'"

Of Maegle, Law said: "He contributes about $25 every year or so to the athletic program. Enough said."

Hackerman two weeks ago said despite Conover's losing record he expected to see him fulfill his two year contract. Because Rice is a private institution, there are no public records of the hiring and firing. Law denied putting up the money to see his man get the job.

The university offered Homer Rice, the former athletic director at the University of North Carolina, the head coaching and athletic director jobs at Rice. But the school had only advertised — under HEW guidelines — to fill the coaching vacancy.

Guy Named Kuberski Stars

By United Press International

Steve Kuberski, the 6-foot-7 Boston Celtics reserve forward is, by now, quite used to starting each game and then taking his place on the bench while Paul Silas takes over for the remainder of the game.

But against the Phoenix Suns Wednesday night, Kuberski, via some uncustomary sharpshooting, changed the script. The rugged forward scored 10 first quarter points—including a pair of three-point plays—and Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn decided to leave Kuberski in this time.

Then in the third quarter, Kuberski contributed eight points during a 10-2 spurt that sent the Celtics off to an eventual 114-100 victory.

"This is the most I've played all year," said Kuberski who wound up with a season-high 20 points in 23 minutes of play. "I was just fortunate the ball was going my way. My points were coming off fast breaks and they (the Suns) were giving me the inside—especially on the fast break."

Boston's Charlie Scott led all scorers with 26 points while Alvan Adams led Phoenix with 23.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Buffalo beat Atlanta 102-94, Detroit downed Seattle 111-104 and Chicago put away New Orleans 102-83.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky tripped the New York Nets 106-91 and Indiana whipped Virginia 119-106.

Pistons 111, Sonics 104

Eric Money scored 26 points in leading Detroit past Seattle as the Pistons snapped an eight-game losing streak. Curtis Rowe and George Trapp had 25 points each for Detroit.

Braves 102, Hawks 94

Bob McAdoo scored 30 points as Buffalo snapped a five-game losing streak. McAdoo's two closing baskets broke up a close game and gave the Braves a comfortable six-point lead with a minute to go.

Bulls 102, Jazz 93

Norm Van Lier scored 27 points and Chicago took advantage of cold New Orleans shooting. Symbolic of the Jazz' shooting woes was Pete Maravich, who hit only 3-of-15 shots. A crowd of 19,223 boosted the Jazz season attendance to a club record 215,490.

Colons 100, Nets 91

Artis Gilmore and Maurice Lucas sparked Kentucky in the final 3½ minutes. Lucas broke an 89-89 tie with two straight baskets and Gilmore added the last seven Kentucky points, winding up with 29 points and 26 rebounds.

Pacers 119, Squires 106

Virginia General Manager Jack Ankersen's debut as coach was a rude one as Bo Lamar scored 22 points in the second and third periods and Billy Keller pumped in a game high 24 in the Indiana victory. Ankersen replaced Bill Musselman as Squires coach Tuesday night.

Clemson Stuns Maryland 82-77 In Atlanta Coast Conference Tilt

By United Press International

Clemson, relying on clutch shooting in the game's final minutes by reserves Greg Coles and Stan Rome, shocked the home court Terps 82-77 to leave Maryland 13-2 but a meek 1-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Clemson is 13-3 and 3-1 in the ACC.

"It was our 10-guy theory," Clemson Coach Bill Foster said. "Our bench has done it all the way this year. We have to use everyone we've got and they come through."

Rome's first basket of the game tied the contest at 62-62 with 6:15 left. Coles followed with a six-foot jumper from the base line to give Clemson the lead and Rome boosted it to five on a three-point play. The Tigers never again trailed.

The Clemson bench had to take over the scoring load when 7-foot center Tree Rollins got his fourth foul early in the second half. Rollins wound up leading the team scoring with 16 points but had to play cautiously until he fouled out with 2:15 left.

Coles, closed with 12 points, including nine in the second half, while Rome scored five—all in the final six minutes.

No. 2 ranked Marquette reeled off 10 straight points midway through the first half to coast to an easy 76-62 victory over Creighton. Earl Tatum and Butch Lee scored 18 points apiece to lead Marquette to its ninth straight win and 13th in 14 games.

Unbeaten Nevada Las Vegas, held almost dead even for the first 35 minutes, exploded for a 20-2 blitz to down Nevada Reno 120-98. Eddie Owens led the fifth-ranked winners with 29 points.

Senior forward Beaver Smith hit a 15-foot jump shot in the final two minutes to help St. John's protect its No. 10 ranking with a 53-51 victory over Boston College.

Adrian Dantley scored 30 points to lead 18th-ranked Notre Dame to a 97-60 victory over St. Joseph's of Indiana.

News Stings Mobeetic

Mobeetic's nickname is the Hornets, not the Antelopes, as mentioned in Wednesday's News.

The Hornets whipped Lefors 69-48 in a District 3-B contest Tuesday in the Pirates' gymnasium.

3-4A Warfare Begins

Pampa, blessed with the league's best defense, statistically, and armed with a low-scoring but balanced offense, opens District 3-AAAA basketball warfare against Amarillo Caprock Friday night in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The Harvesters, 17-4 for the season, although somewhat inexperienced, are ready, according to Coach Robert McPherson, who has been impatiently waiting for Friday's opener since the final game of last season when Pampa lost to Lubbock-Monterey in the bi-district contest.

"This is one of the best non-conferences, record-wise, we've had," McPherson said. The Pampa coach divides non-conference and district games, calling them "separate seasons."

"I just hope the next season is as good as the last one," he added.

Pampa is giving up less than 4 points a game, having held 15 opponents to less than 50, but the Harvesters aren't scoring much more themselves. McPherson contributes it to inexperience.

"We don't have the type of ball club that blows people out," he said. "We don't have outstanding individuals. Our team this year is playing with more of a team-type attitude."

"We're capable of scoring a lot of points. Some of our players are young. A little inexperience hurts us in spots."

McPherson added, "But they've certainly matured and grown up."

Pampa starts two juniors — 6-4 post Donnie Hughes, 6-2 guard Brian Bailey. Two seniors — 5-10 guard Forrest Taylor and 6-1 forward Jewel Landers — played on the junior varsity last season. Only one starter, 6-1 senior forward Richard Lane, saw full time action on the varsity last year.

Other players are 6-6 post Winslow Ellis, 5-11 guard Pee Wee Steele and 6-0 guard Rayford Young. They are juniors.

The rebuilding season has been enjoyable to McPherson.

"It's fun. I enjoy working with any group of kids as long as they have a good attitude toward the game. These kids are mature — they play the best defense of anybody in the district and they're intelligent, also."

Caprock, 7-11 for the season, will challenge Pampa's defense with a guard-oriented offense which isn't afraid to take a long shot.

"They're a good shooting ball club," McPherson said. "In one ball game, they put the ball up 79 times, and that's more than 30 times what we do. They're not timid or bashful with the ball."

"Anybody that wins that first conference game is in good shape — it puts you in first place right at the start."

It's 'Super Week' For Buff Cagers

CANYON — If Texas Panhandle football fans had their "Super Sunday" with the Dallas Cowboys last week, West Texas State University basketball fans should get the same kind of treat this week.

In what may be the biggest week for West Texas State this season, the nationally-ranked Buffaloes host the Louisville Cardinals today, and preseason Missouri Valley Conference favorite Bradley Saturday night, in 7:30 p.m. games in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

The largest crowd ever for Buffalo basketball in the Civic Center, which has a capacity attendance of near 6,000, is expected for the Louisville game. WT vaulted into the national spotlight with the overtime triumph at Louisville Jan. 3, when the Cards were ranked 10th in the nation. The prospects of a rematch have sparked unprecedented excitement in the Buffs.

"I don't know how you could ask for two better home games, unless you are the coach," Ron Ekker, who is the Buff coach, says. "Fans just don't get two big games in a row like that."

While most of the attention has been given to tonight's Louisville game, Ekker has devoted much of his attention to Saturday night's crucial MVC game against Bradley, the team

Corn Acreage Boost Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers preparing for spring planting currently intend to boost corn acreage nearly 4 per cent, which could mean another record harvest to help hold down food prices, an Agriculture Department report shows.

The report also indicated, however, wheat production this year could dip from last year's record in spite of an indicated gain in planting of spring wheat, and soybean production may be down.

Other highlights of the report, based on a survey of farmers' intentions as of January 1, included a projected 17 per cent increase in cotton planting and a cut of one-tenth of one per cent in sugarbeet acreage.

The survey showed growers intend to plant 80.8 million acres of corn compared to the 77.9 million acres last year. The 1975 acreage had produced a record harvest of nearly 5.8 billion bushels, up 24 per cent from 1974.

No production forecast for 1976 was made in the report. But if weather conditions are good, the increased acreage could produce another record crop. If per-acre yields in 1976 remain at last year's level, for example, the corn harvest could reach about 6 billion bushels, up 200 million from the 1975 harvest.

Corn is a key to future food prices because it is the basic raw material for producing livestock foods like meat, milk and poultry. Another big corn crop would brighten prospects for Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz's prediction that retail food price gains could be held to 4-5 per cent this year, about half the food inflation rate of 1975.

The preliminary January planting intentions report, which will be followed by another check-up survey in April as farmers get closer to actual planting dates, showed plans for 126.1 million acres of all feed grains — corn, sorghum, oats and barley. This would be up 2 per cent from last year.

Soybean prospective plantings were put at 50.9 million acres, down 7 per cent from last year as farmers reacted to poor prices. But cotton acreage was projected at 11.2 million acres, up 17 per cent from 1975 in response to better market prospects.

Durum wheat plans were estimated at 5.2 million acres, up 8 per cent from 1975 and other spring wheat at 14.8 million acres, up 5 per cent. But the winter wheat crop, which makes up most of the harvest, is currently estimated at 9 per cent below 1975. As a result, the total wheat crop — depending on weather conditions — could be about 6 per cent below last year's 2.1 billion bushels.

Sorghum acreage intentions were put at 18.6 million acres, up 4 per cent from 1975; oats at 17.1 million acres, down 1 per cent; and barley at 9.5 million acres, virtually unchanged from last year.

Another big corn crop this year, in addition to holding down retail food price advances, would furnish supplies for continuing heavy exports which take about two-thirds of the nation's wheat, 25 per cent of the corn and nearly a third of the soybeans. The Soviet Union, which has already bought more than 500 million bushels of wheat and corn from 1975 crops, has agreed under a long-term deal to buy at least 230,000 million bushels of the two grains in the year starting Oct. 1.

Final Witnesses To Be Called

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Defense attorneys in the Senate trial of District Judge O.P. Carrillo say they will call five more witnesses to testify on the first two impeachment articles, but should complete their case by Friday.

Carrillo Wednesday completed four days of testimony in his own defense, consistently denying wrongdoing in his handling of Duval County funds and reiterating his accusations that the charges against him were a conspiracy of lies.

Senate special prosecutors claim Carrillo used various methods to funnel county funds to his personal use, including taking county welfare funds to buy his own groceries and pocketing county money paid for the rental of nonexistent equipment.

In completing his testimony, Carrillo did not deny there had been theft of Duval County funds, but blamed the thefts on his opponents in the continuing political power struggle in the county — the late George Parr and Archer Parr.

George Parr committed suicide last year and Archer Parr is serving a 10-year sentence for lying to a federal grand jury.

During his testimony Wednesday, Assistant Attorney General John Odum questioned Carrillo about checks received from the Benavides Implement and Hardware, including a $1,018 check on July 15, 1971.

Carrillo said the check was for rent on equipment he owned, but said he could not recall the exact transaction. Odum said an earlier witness, former Duval County employee Cleofas Gonzales, had testified Carrillo had no equipment to rent and the rental scheme was designed to channel county funds to Carrillo.

"I know that Mr. Gonzales was lying," Carrillo said. "There is no question in my mind that for the last two years at least Mr. Gonzales has had a vendetta and has been out to see that I am completely destroyed."

Hank Shot

NEDERLAND, Tex. (UPI) — An autopsy on the body of Southeast Texas politician Jerry Hanks indicates his murderer shot Hanks twice — first in the chest from several feet away and then again in the back of the head at point blank range.

Hanks, 43, was killed late Tuesday as he left his pharmacy.

Hanks body was found at the rear of his car with a money bag from the pharmacy lying nearby. Police say because the money was not taken, robbery has been virtually ruled out a motive for the slaying.

Woodcock Predicts Strike

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers says automakers can expect a strike this fall if they try to hold off union demands with pleas based on their two-year sales slump.

The warning was delivered Wednesday by UAW President Leonard Woodcock in outlining strategy for contract talks covering nearly 750,000 auto workers.

UAW members attending a three-day production workers conference to set goals for the negotiations generally agreed with Woodcock's warning that the fragile state of the economy will not prevent a strike if the union considers it necessary.

In his opening address to the 1,000 delegates representing hourly workers, Woodcock said the union never rules out a strike. The UAW has shut down at least one auto company in each of the last three bargaining years for industry contracts.

"They are saying we can't have a strike because of the fragile state of the economy," Woodcock said. "Granted, a long strike would be a depressant on the economic recovery, but this is a responsible union and we understand our obligations.

"But it would be a sad, sad mistake for the other side to think they are freed of the obligation to bargain sensibly and in good faith. They're too sensible to make that mistake. It takes two to make peace, but just one to make war."

"There are mixed feelings about a strike, but there always are," Don Britton, of Chrysler UAW Local 212 in Detroit, said.

The largest squid ever captured was 57 feet long.

Friendly John

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — For bicentennial goers facing an emergency — of sorts — in Philadelphia, there's always "Friendly John," a red, white and blue booklet with a colonial man sketched on the cover.

It tells the reader where to find a restroom. Just about every need was anticipated by novelty makers and printers expecting millions of visitors. They made hundreds of thousands of bicentennial posters, buttons, tape recorders, T-shirts, maps and earrings.

The city built a multi-million dollar pedestrian mall and placed "76" markers atop each street light. The National Park Service moved the Liberty Bell to larger quarters. Even police cars and paddy wagons were plastered with bicentennial stickers.

But city officials confessed one of their big problems was finding enough restrooms for visitors.

"Knowing where to find a bathroom is probably more essential than knowing where to find a restaurant or gasoline station," said William Hoover, publisher of "Friendly John."

"The city couldn't just build bathrooms that would be obsolete in a year. So they should have talked to restaurant owners and published this book."

The city didn't. So Hoover, 48, a printer of Westmont, N.J., went to work.

"At the present time, there are simply not enough public facilities to handle the visitors," he said.

Hoover and some friends "got on the telephones and started calling around to owners of restaurants, hotels, taverns and business offices."

Hoover's booklet bears a $1 price tag. It lists where to find those "necessary conveniences." He said the owners of listed restaurants or theaters have agreed to be included in the booklet and promised to open their facilities to visitors who have a copy of "Friendly John."

"Each name in this directory, from the small office to the large business establishment, has freely and willingly offered to the public the use of his 'friendly john' or restroom," Hoover said.

Hoover's booklet also lists historic places in the Philadelphia-southern New Jersey area as well as emergency police and fire department numbers. But its main feature is the list of 250 businesses which have restrooms available for visitors.

"After all," he said, "the most popular attraction at the bicentennial may end up being a restroom."

Teacher Resists Rapist

CHICAGO (UPI) — A masked gunman held a gun between the eyes of a first-grade schoolteacher and forced her to undress in front of her class Wednesday.

But she fought off his rape attempt before the eyes of 28 children.

Timothy King, principal at Simon Gugenheim Elementary School, called the 41-year-old teacher a "heroine."

"It was a hysterical situation, but she was in control," King said. "Anybody in that situation that would think of her class before herself knowing what was probably coming is pretty heroic."

Police said the unidentified teacher pleaded with the gunman, "Please don't do this in front of the children," and resisted until he finally settled for $16 from her purse and fled.

Police Lt. Joseph Curtin said the masked man entered the classroom in a mobile unit about 10 feet from the main school building "under a pretense of looking for a student."

Once inside, he drew a small automatic pistol and "told the children to put their heads down," Curtin said.

"Of course, with a first-grade class of 28 students, they're not going to put their heads down. I'd say most of the students did observe the whole thing."

"Surprisingly, for a first-grade class the kids were very alert and sharp-minded. They realized right away that something was happening. They were scared."

Curtin said the gunman ordered the teacher into one of two washrooms at the back of the mobile unit, but "apparently one of the kids must have screamed out and he changed his mind."

The attacker then forced the teacher into the doorway of the washroom.

"He put the gun right between her eyes and told her to disrobe or he'd blow her head off," Curtin said.

"Then he exposed himself to the children, but he did not lower his trousers. He tried to rape her in front of the class."

"She begged him, 'Please don't do this in front of the children.' She resisted him."

The teacher was treated for minor bruises and shock at a hospital. The children were sent home for the day.

"They were all frightened, worried that the teacher would be all right," King said.

KENNEDY'S MISTAKE

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary under President John F. Kennedy, says the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in 1962 was Kennedy's "most serious mistake," but American public opinion contributed to the decision to launch the plan.

"I believe the landing in the Bay of Pigs was perhaps President Kennedy's most serious mistake. But it would be fair to consider that in those days we were living through the end of the Cold War, and Americans were not resigned to having a Communist country less than 90 miles away. At least there did exist a strong pressure of public opinion on the government," Salinger said Tuesday in an interview with the newspaper Excelsior.

Salinger, now an associate editor of the Paris newspaper "L'Express," is in Mexico to film a television program.

GRACE AND OLEG

LONDON (UPI) — Grace Kelly might not have married Prince Rainier of Monaco if another suitor hadn't been doublecrossed by Joseph Kennedy, father of the late President John F. Kennedy.

The story is told in a new biography of the former film star by veteran British journalist Gwen Robyns, titled "Princess Grace."

The suitor was Oleg Cassini, the handsome designer who was Miss Kelly's constant companion in 1954 and 1955. Cassini mentioned marriage but there was the problem of reconciling his two divorces with the fact the Kellys were Roman Catholic.

Joseph Kennedy, a devout Catholic, reportedly agreed to intercede on Cassini's behalf, Miss Robyns said.

"We all went to a little French restaurant," she quoted Cassini as saying. "And no sooner had we sat down than Kennedy started in on Grace. I sat spellbound as I listened."

"Now listen Grace," Kennedy said, "you are a good Catholic girl. You represent a good Catholic family and you must not get involved with Oleg. He's a wonderful guy but it wouldn't work."

"I looked in amazement. I said to him, 'why are you double crossing me in this when your own daughter Pat married an actor (Peter Lawford)?' I called him a dirty monkey but he stuck to his guns."

REDFORD APPOINTED

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Movie actor Robert Redford has been named chairman of the Provo Canyon Sewer District.

Redford, who owns the Sundance Ski Resort in the canyon, was named Tuesday as chairman of the district which is trying to get a sewer system for the scenic canyon.

The district was supposed to hold an election last fall to name new board members and a chairman but Utah County officials said no election was held. Outgoing chairman Kent Patten said the board got together and decided to name Redford to the job.

KAREN'S COMPLAINT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actress Karen Black has lost a legal battle over a movie in which she plays a male homosexual.

Miss Black two weeks ago won a temporary restraining order against Sherwin Tilton, a student at Art Center College of Design. She said she had appeared in his movie, "Owen," as a favor, believing that it would be shown only in his classes, but had learned of plans to distribute the film commercially.

She complained there were plans to show the movie together with "Dog Day Afternoon," which features a bisexual bank robber. She was afraid the combination would offend theatergoers and harm her chance of an Academy Award for her performance in "Day of the Locust," she said.

Superior Court Judge Norman Dowds at first prohibited Tilton from screening the movie outside the college, but Tuesday the judge lifted the restraining order, saying he could find no evidence that the film student had any plans to violate his understanding with Miss Black.

NEW DATE FOR CHRIS

FAIRFAX, Va. (UPI) — Chris Evert obviously didn't want to keep her date waiting.

She took just 45 minutes Tuesday night to polish off Kathy Kuykendall of Miami, 6-2, 6-1, to advance to the quarterfinals of the $75,000 Virginia Slims of Washington tennis tournament. Then she left with her escort for the evening — Jack Ford, the president's son.

As the pair posed for pictures in the media room, Evert, who was once Jimmy Connors' fiancée, quipped: "We're engaged." The tournament official who set up the date quickly responded: "That's in humor, at least right now."

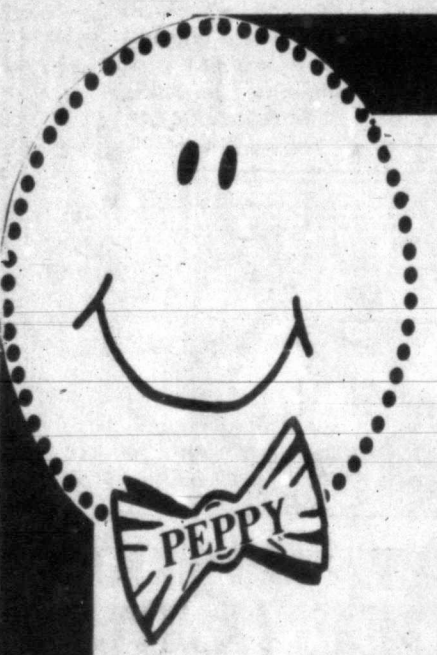

Before Ford was introduced, Evert said she'd rather spend her time playing tennis than making public appearances.

"When I have time off, I don't want to be in the limelight," she said.

But she didn't seem to mind when about 20 photographers vied for the best positions to take her picture with Ford.

Under the glare of automatic flashes, Ford pointed to a photographer and said: "I feel like I just got married."

According to the American Heart Association three eggs a week is the limit for a healthy heart.

GERM FINISH
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Department of Agriculture researchers have perfected antibacterial finishes for cotton that can survive 20 laundering cycles and be applied simultaneously with durable preshrink and other chemical finishes.

They're trying to increase antibacterial action and durability to 50 launderings, says the USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Germ-fighting fabrics could be used for everything from clothing with built-in deodorants and bed linens to bandages and hospital gowns, the researchers said.

GREEK TOURISM
ATHENS (UPI) — Nearly three million tourists visited Greece in the first 10 months of 1975, bringing more than $500 million of foreign exchange into the country, according to the statistical service.

American tourists headed the list with 409,747 arrivals, followed by 376,851 West Germans. The figures marked an increase of 43 per cent over 1974, the year of the Cyprus crisis.

AEROFLOT REPORT
MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet airline Aeroflot will have carried 430 million passengers and 11 million tons of freight in the 1971-1975 five-year plan ending in December, 1975, the Tass news agency reported.
