Bicentennial Bronc-Buster

Pampa artist Winnie Turner of 1125 S. Christy wanted to paint something of the town's folk history for the bicentennial. So with the blessing of the Gray County Bicentennial Commission, she went to work on this mural located on North Hobart. The project, which is about one-third finished, will tell of "Old Bones" who used to ride the Santa Fe trains through the region in the early 1900s — making whistle stops to ride whatever brones were in the area. "Helping" M. Turner are her grandchildren, Christina, 8, and Neal, 4. Two cyclists, James Fleming, 9, and 14-year-old Michael Dyer check on the progress later.

MD Strike Spreads

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — When Edward Winslow woke up, he couldn't breathe. He also couldn't get his family doctor to treat him.

Winslow suffers from emphysema and requires oxygen occasionally to help relieve his condition. His wife, Nella, said he usually receives such treatment from their family doctor.

But the doctor has closed his office to protest rising malpractice insurance premiums and was referring patients to the emergency room at Santa Monica Hospital.

His immediate emergency was relieved — but Mrs. Winslow worried about the next time.

More and more persons were sent to hospital emergency rooms as general practitioners joined specialists in closing their office doors, escalating the Southern California doctors' strike which began Jan. 1 and has spread to six counties with a population of 10 million persons.

A Los Angeles woman, who preferred to remain anonymous, took her husband to Santa Monica Hospital to have his heart checked — something normally taken care of by their family doctor.

"Up until this point I had not really been inconvenienced by the doctors' strike," she said. "At this point I don't feel let down by my doctor because I haven't really needed him."

"But all in all I feel insecure. It's frightening. I'm the kind of person who likes knowing there's a doctor there."

"This is our first emergency and there's nothing more frightening than not having a doctor there when you have a problem."

"I really sympathized with the doctors at first," said Richard Smith. "I'm a contractor and know how insurance can take a bite out of your income. But when it hits you so close to home, you then lose your sympathy."

Smith, 54, said he began to feel ill during the night but did not think about it until he woke up in the morning with severe stomach pains. He tried to call his physician who he said had been treating his family for nearly 30 years.

"He sent me here (Santa Monica emergency room). I'd really rather see him than another doctor," Smith said.

Although Joanna Hooley still has a family doctor who will see her, she feels she was affected by the strike in a different way. Her husband was in a car accident in the San Fernando Valley and was taken to a nearby hospital.

But Mrs. Hooley said they didn't have the proper equipment available so he was sent to County-USC Medical Center 30 miles to the east. They could not treat him so they shipped him to Santa Monica, about 25 miles west.

"With this crisis I think they had to check around to see where equipment and personnel were available to handle my husband's injury," Mrs. Hooley said.

Mrs. Hooley seven months pregnant, has been assured her obstetrician would take care of her through her pregnancy and she has a family doctor who will be her pediatrician after the child is born.

But she said both doctors told her they were taking no new patients.

"The only problem I've had to deal with is not having the freedom of making appointments whenever I want to, like I could before," she said.

"My doctor has just completely quit his practice," said a

62-year-old Culver City woman who asked to be identified only as Ruth. "At my age, you come to think of your doctor as someone very special, someone you've known for a long time."

"I'm a little scared of someone I don't know. I could call my doctor just for reassurance, but how can I call a hospital? Of course, I feel sorry for him having to pay all that money for insurance and guess I'd quit in his position, too."

Since the strike, which hit Santa Monica a month before other doctors officially went out, revenue has declined about 25 per cent at the hospital because of a lack of elective surgery, the spokeswoman said.

The cutback has curtailed hiring and spending and put many employes on four-day work weeks.

But activity in the emergency room has taken a dramatic rise. She said that on a typical day last week there were 125 patients seen in emergency, compared to 63 on that same day a year ago. Before the slowdown, the average was 80.

"We're seeing all patients now, no matter what their problems, because we don't want things to become emergencies," she said.

The hospital census was 72.4 per cent one day last week, compared with 94.8 per cent on a corresponding day last year.

Defense Unloads Pre-Trial Motion

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Only last-minute legal maneuvering stands in the way of Tuesday's start of the trial of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst on bank robbery charges.

Defense attorneys Friday filed several motions — including one to wipe out the indictment against Miss Hearst — in U.S. District Court Judge Oliver Carter scheduled arguments on these for today.

The request to quash the indictment said "exculpatory" evidence was withheld by the prosecution in its presentation to the grand jury.

"We believe that, if the grand jury had all the evidence available in the case, they would never have indicted Patty," Tom May, one defense lawyer, said.

The forceful nature of her abduction — the violent and dangerous character of her abductors were not brought up," Miss Hearst, 21, daughter of San Francisco Examiner president Randolph Hearst, was charged with being a member of a Symbionese Liberation Army robbery team which took $10,960 in a holdup of a San Francisco branch bank April 15, 1974 — 10 weeks after her abduction by the small terrorist group.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of 25 years in prison and a $25,000 fine. She also is charged with carrying a firearm in the commission of a robbery.

felony. This carries a maximum penalty of one to 10 years behind bars.

F. Lee Bailey, chief defense lawyer, previously said Miss Hearst participated in the holdup because "of physical coercion, and fear and threat of death." He also had said she was turned from being a quiet University of California student to a tough-talking revolutionary because of brainwashing.

Impaneling of a jury is expected to take two days and the trial is expected to last two months.

The New York Daily News reported Miss Hearst would testify that just after her abduction in Berkeley, Calif., she was carried by her kidnapers from one house to another in a garbage can.

The newspaper also said she had been held in a closet two feet deep, six feet wide and eight feet high. It said her eyes were taped and rugs were placed over the door so she could see and hear nothing.

Miss Hearst was arrested here in September with SLA members Wendy Yoshimura, William Harris and his wife, Emily Miss Hearst has been held without bail in San Mateo County Jail in nearby Redwood City.

The Harris are on trial in Los Angeles and Miss Yoshimura is awaiting trial in Alameda County on explosives charges.

Israeli's Rabin Leaves for States

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin leaves for the United States today with a promise of Israeli willingness to make "far-reaching territorial compromises" in return for peace with the Arabs.

But official sources said Rabin would carry with him no dramatic new proposals for a Middle East settlement on his 11-day official visit.

One source in Tel Aviv said Rabin's talks with U.S. officials would be "conceptual, discussing principles and overall developments in the Middle East as well as bilateral issues."

"The main concern will be how to get through 1976 without any shocks," another source said. "The U.S. administration is interested in that, too."

Speaking at a Jewish war veterans' convention Sunday night, Rabin called for a return to the Geneva peace talks.

"The best way today is to come and say let's go to the peace conference at Geneva," he said. "Let's meet there and negotiate peace."

Speaking of his country's need for defensible borders, Rabin said:

"We are ready for far-reaching territorial compromises, beyond what we have now, but we cannot accept the principle of returning to the lines before the 1967 war."

The Israeli leader flies first to Philadelphia for an official welcoming from Mayor Frank L. Rizzo and a Bicentennial visit to the Liberty Bell.

Pampans in Hurry To Pay City Taxes

Pampans are paying their 1975 city taxes at a faster clip than they did one year ago, according to figures obtained today from the City Tax Department.

City Tax Assessor Collector Aubrey L. Jones reported 80.23 per cent of the 1975 tax roll had been collected up until 10 o'clock this morning.

That compares with only 78.24 per cent collections on the 1974 tax levy for the same period.

With the deadline for paying city taxes coming up Jan. 31, Jones reported that as of this forenoon $869,972 had been collected on the total 1975 tax levy of $1,084,272.

That compares with the $805,366 total six days before the deadline for 1974 tax collections on a total levy of $1,028,282.

Tax department officials report 96.28 per cent of last year's total city taxes were collected as of Oct. 1, 1975 when the new fiscal year started.

With the increase in collections this year, indications were that the percentage of collections this year possible would exceed one year ago.

Penalties for delinquent taxes begin with 2 1/2 per cent on Feb. 1, five per cent March 1, seven and a half per cent April 1, ten per cent May first and increase thereafter one-half of per cent each month.

Jones said a reminder was being issued today that just five more days remain to pay current city taxes before the delinquent tax penalty becomes effective.

Senator Used Tax Funds on Camera

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Indicted Senate Secretary Charles A. Schnabel personally ordered his initials and Social Security number engraved on a camera rented with state funds and used taxpayers money to pay for repairs to the camera last year, according to records released today by District Attorney Robert O. Smith.

Schnabel's attorneys two weeks ago said the engraving was done without his knowledge when the camera was sent for repairs last fall.

However, order forms from Honeywell Pentax photography department in Denver show Schnabel's signature on the special order for engraving to personalize the camera.

A letter attached to the order form from Senate Media Services supervisor Claiborn

Crane indicate the cost of the repairs were to be billed to the Senate. Honeywell's records indicate the Texas Senate was charged $47.10 for the work on the camera last August.

Schnabel has been charged with two counts of theft and one count of official misconduct. He is also under investigation by a grand jury coordinated by Smith for other accusations which involve payroll padding and accepting kickbacks.

Previous testimony and records have shown Schnabel used Senate funds to lease the camera from a friend and former Senate photographer in 1973. The Senate secretary kept the camera after the state's year lease expired. The lease price was only slightly less than the retail cost of the camera.

Smith showed reporters reports on the camera as the grand jury questioned a former Senate employe about reports she gave Schnabel all or part of her Senate pay during portions of 1970, 1971 and 1972 in kickbacks.

Former state senators who once worked with Schnabel said during the weekend he is guilty of nothing that other officials aren't guilty of and organized a committee to help defray the cost of his defense.

Former Sen. Jack Strong of Longview, says Schnabel may have bent the rules in his 20 years in the Senate post, but said if rules were bent, it was because the Senators expected them to be.

"Sure he's bent a rule or two," Strong said. "But if you indicted every one in Austin that's bent rules, we'd just have to stop the judicial process for the next 40 years."

"Let's be honest about it. The senators expected Charlie to pretty well do what they wanted done. Maybe Senate secretaries are not supposed to be quite that accommodating to the members, but that's what the senators expect."

Schnabel has been charged with two counts of theft and one count of official misconduct. He is also under investigation by District Attorney Robert Smith for other accusations which involve payroll padding and accepting kickbacks.

"This is going to be an expensive thing and Charlie doesn't have that much resources," Strong said. "So far everybody I've talked to agreed to help."

Strong said he sent a $100 contribution to Schnabel and had invited others to send what they could.

"Charlie's got a lot of friends," he said. "There are a lot of people through the years that have observed his standards of morality in a number of different situations. I'd be for my friends even if I thought he was guilty. But in the particular case I believe him innocent of any moral wrongdoing."

Strong said former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, now a Brownwood construction company executive was among the dozen or so people he said he had contacted.

Strong said Barnes told him he never knew of Schnabel doing anything wrong.

Former Sens. J.P. Word of Meridian, Ralph Hall of Rockwall and Jimmie Phillips, now of Austin, also say they will help Schnabel.

"I'd do anything I could to help him and I'm sure every senator and former senator feels the same," said Phillips, now a legislative lobbyist.

He said he had not contributed to the defense fund yet but had volunteered to defend Schnabel.

Schnabel has hired attorney Donald Thomas, who represented former President Lyndon Johnson, and two criminal defense lawyers, Roy Q. Minton and Charles R. Burton.

"They don't come cheap," said one attorney familiar with the three lawyers.

A reporter interviewing Schnabel was told the three were paid a total of $50,000, but as the reporter wrote the figure Schnabel said he was just joking.

"Charlie told me what the retainer was and it's much, much less than that," Strong said.

Ousted Judge Carrillo Wants To Be Alone

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Ousted District Judge O.P. Carrillo, impeached and convicted and barred from ever holding office again, says he wants to go home now and be alone. He says the political machine he helped build in Duval County will probably never operate again.

The Texas Senate removed Carrillo last week at the end of a two week trial and months of investigations. His attorneys say the case will be appealed, but other officials say the courts probably won't get involved.

"Ultimately the people in Duval County are going to be completely independent," Carrillo said discussing his conviction. "When a candidate presents himself he's going to have to show his credentials. There's not going to be any package deals anymore."

"The machine is gone, you can forget about the machine."

Carrillo, a 51-year-old bachelor, said he would like to return to his 1,500 acre ranch, change the locks on the gates and be alone for awhile.

He said he would leave the appeal proceedings to his attorneys, but special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said he doubted the courts would accept jurisdiction.

"There is not a case on record that a court interfered in an impeachment procedure," Jaworski said.

Of the 10 articles of impeachment brought against Carrillo by the House, the Senate only heard arguments on two and found him guilty of one. The eight remaining counts were dismissed.

Carrillo, the first office holder in 59 years to be removed, was convicted of illegally obtaining government funds by collecting money for the rental of equipment that either did not exist, or that the governmental agencies did not use.

Of his removal, Carrillo was philosophical.

"I'm not the first one that has been cut up in a political entanglement, and I won't be the last," he said. "If the ones voting (on impeachment) were from my district where they know me, I don't think I would have any trouble getting off."

The Duval County political machine has held power for the last half-century, but until last year it was controlled by George Parr, the so-called "Duke of Duval."

But Parr's suicide at age 73 precipitated a power void and a struggle for leadership. Key participants were Parr's nephew, Archer Parr, and three brothers, Judge O.P. Carrillo, County Commissioner Ramiro Carrillo and State Rep. Oscar Carrillo.

Archer Parr is now serving a sentence for income tax evasion. Carrillo has been removed from office and also found guilty of income tax evasion and Carrillo's brother, Ramiro, has also been found guilty on a tax charge.

Best Football Coach

Don Sessom of Groom was named Football Coach of the Year at the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame's annual ceremonies Sunday afternoon in the Amarillo College gymnasium. Several Groom followers and players were on hand to honor Sessom and were part of the crowd of more than 350 sports fans who attended the ceremonies. Canadian senior Tresea Williams was named Tennis Player of the Year.

Eating the Lesser of Two Cancerous Evils

The latest man-made substance banned by the Food and Drug Administration because it has induced cancer in laboratory animals is Red Dye No. 2, used for decades in a host of products as a coloring agent.

Actually, if the Delaney Clause of the Food and Drug Act, which prohibits the use of food additives known to produce cancer, were applied to natural substances, no foodstuff could be legally sold or consumed. Or so contends Russell S. Adams Jr., a professor of soil science at the University of Minnesota.

There are many natural substances in the environment, he says, which are among the most powerful toxins and carcinogens (cancer producers) known to man and which are often present in the soil at much higher levels than pesticides. What is not yet known with certainty, however, is whether these chemicals are taken up by plants and translocated in biologically active form to the human diet.

Further complicating the matter is the debate over whether carcinogens can produce cancer at any dose level or whether there are "thresholds" below which they are safe. According to Adams, the normal laboratory rat or mouse is highly susceptible to cancer, even when not experimentally exposed to cancer-causing chemicals.

Also, as laboratory techniques improve, what is considered to be a "zero" level of danger today, which the Delaney Clause demands, may not be a "zero" level tomorrow.

"In a practical sense," says Adams, "we must establish finite tolerances for substances we wish to avoid. Rarely will we be presented with clear-cut decisions. Usually a choice must be made between the less hazardous of two alternatives."

Most Americans, however, have come to expect certainty from scientists and clear-cut decisions from those charged with protecting the public welfare. Thus we seem to be on our way to developing the healthiest rats in the world, if nothing else.

Less Is More

New York City and Long Island bricklayers have decided that an hour's work at $7.49 is better than no work at $9.99.

That much a cut in hourly pay, plus reductions in overtime pay and fringe benefits totalling 40 per cent, has been agreed upon by members of the International Union of Bricklayers and Allied Craftworkers in the hope of stimulating the depressed residential construction business.

"They had no work," says a contractor. "They realized the cost of the product was too high and the only way they could reduce it was to reduce wages."

This kind of attitude could spread. It might even get as far as Detroit, where the cost of new cars keeps going up whether sales are good or bad.

An old saying has it that ladies who propose to gentlemen during a leap year and are not accepted may instead ask for a silk dress.

Ray Cromley

We can't fight what we don't see

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — To a marked degree, it was a failure of British and French military intelligence that enabled Hitler to make his rapid conquest of France in World War II.

It was a failure of intelligence which made Pearl Harbor possible, and which led in some considerable measure to the misconceptions resulting in our unsuccessful effort in South Vietnam.

It was a failure of intelligence also which resulted in the much heavier than expected early Israeli losses in the last round with Egypt.

Today, we are not well informed on the expansion of Peking or Hanoi backed underground groups in Thailand, Malaysia and the Philippines which could endanger the existence of those lands. We are not certain by any means of North Korea's scenario for an invasion of the south, or whether such an invasion is planned for the near future.

Had Soviet and Cuban plans for Angola been known early enough in the game, this country might have been able to take political and economic action at a strategic moment to prevent the introduction of outsiders. Once commitments have become as deep as today in Angola, peaceful resolution becomes difficult indeed.

If the Russians know the Western order of battle in Europe and we don't know the Soviet dispositions and strengths in the border areas and the details which normally are preludes to attacks, the USSR can arrange easily to be in a position to roll over the NATO forces in the first hours of a Red attack.

It is all very well to talk about defending ourselves from a Russian attack after Moscow launches its missiles or sends its troops across strategic borders. But it is certain that unless we have more warning than we can acquire from satellites and other electronic means, we shall be ill prepared at the crucial moment and suffer many more civilian and military casualties than if we had better intelligence. No nation can afford to be on ready alert in full force year after year without going broke emotionally and economically.

All this is a prelude to saying that if we are to avoid war, or successfully defend ourselves if and when war comes, we must know in detail what potential attackers are planning.

Your life and mine, and the lives of untold millions may depend on our having such adequate intelligence. It may make the difference between war and peace.

We are not here talking of dirty tricks or assassinations of foreign leaders or other special operations which have no place in spying. We are talking solely of the gathering of information on the possible actions and capabilities of foreign aggressive powers and foreign terrorist organizations, actions which could endanger the U.S. or its allies in the free world.

Russia and its satellites do not announce their planning or buildups in the daily press, and if we allow our spy organizations to be destroyed or emasculated it is not only a clutch of CIA agents who will be endangered. Spy satellites, other electronic means and document analysis are not enough.

In the final analysis there is no substitute for skilled men and women operatives. Not Mata Hari types, but rather researchers who slowly build contacts in one country and another to contribute missing links in our knowledge. Because of the all pervasive police systems in Communist and other totalitarian nations, a good deal of the agent information must be picked up in third countries.

Bill Drafted To Put Tax On Packaging

By C.R. BATTEN
Representative Fred B. Rooney, D - Pa., has drafted a bill that would tax containers made from un-recycled materials. The purpose of the bill is to encourage reclamation of used packaging, and the safe and efficient disposal of the packaging that cannot be reclaimed.

The tax would begin at $2.64 per ton for flexible packaging and 50 cents per thousand containers for rigid packaging materials. It would increase over a 10-year period to $26 and $5, respectively.

Flexible packaging would include paper, cellophane, plastics, and flexible and semi-flexible aluminum products. The rigid containers would include steel cans, glass jars, and nonflexible aluminum cans.

The money received from the tax would be used to subsidize producers of recycled materials — the subsidies decreasing as the charges increase. The bill would provide $750 million in federal loan guarantees to finance solid waste disposal and resource recovery plants.

It is not clear to this observer whether the tax would be imposed on the manufacturer of the packaging material, or on the converter who purchases the material and converts it into milk cartons, coke bottles, beer cans, and all the other containers we find strewn along the nation's highways. Either way, the effect would be the same.

The first impact of such a tax would be to reduce the prices that the producer receives for raw materials. The marginal producers would be immediately forced out of business. This would limit the supply, of course, which is apparently what the Congressman and potential supporters of his bill would like to see. After all, the reasoning goes, the resources that are not used today will still be there tomorrow, and we can go get them if we need them.

But the assumption could well be false. It neglects to consider some facts of life of both the mineral and the renewable resource industries. Once closed down, mines are often extremely expensive and difficult to reopen. It may take years of development work. Once closed, some deep mines with water seepage problems for example, may never be opened again.

Timber lands and timber growing operations are long-term investments that are filled with many risks which are multiplied by an increased uncertainty for the future. Another tax that immediately reduces income makes investment in timber that much less attractive, and less timber will be available in future years.

The immediate reaction of many owners would be to "cut out and get out" — to liquidate their investment, and put their money into something that promises greater returns.

So the timber we think we are saving today may not be there tomorrow.

Passage of the Rooney bill would discourage long term investment in all kinds of natural resources. The end result would be to limit the supply of resources and cause consumer prices to rise. At some point price controls would be imposed, investors (whether corporate stockholders or individual resource owners) would withdraw from unprofitable industries.

We should realize that we will never assure future generations of adequate supplies of natural resources if we continue to pile taxes, price controls and regulations on top of taxes, price controls and regulations.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Look Out For Fed Welfare!

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The sheer number of proposals we are hearing, these days, concerning management of the national welfare burden is the best evidence of what an enormous problem it has become. For over forty years, demagogues have written the issue to glory, promising more and more "benefits" to more and more voters, all of course in the name of compassion. Each new "benefit" was routinely hailed as a sacred right which had been denied the needy, till that very moment, by a nation with a stone where its heart should be.

If the City of New York hadn't inadvertently called attention to the basic flaw in the whole process by going bankrupt in a final spasm of generosity, I have no doubt the game would have gone on until the Bureau of Engraving and Printing simply gave up trying to print enough scrip to "meet" the government's obligations.

But now, suddenly, we have learned that there is a bottom to the government barrel after all. Almost worse, we have begun to realize what a mountain of legal obligations we already owe to the welfare constituency and all the other interests that specialize in raiding the public till. This whole vast cargo has broken loose and is sliding around in the hold of the ship of state, and the issue is: where will it come to rest?

Ronald Reagan has outraged the welfare crowd by proposing to turn over to the individual states some $90 billion worth of giveaways already being handled by the federal government. Each state could continue any of these programs it found meritorious, and discontinue any that struck it as unnecessary. And while each state would, of course, have to raise from its citizens the money necessary to fund the programs if continued, net tax payments would be dramatically less, since federal income taxes could promptly be reduced by an estimated 23 per cent.

Reagan predicted that his proposal would bring "howls of protest" from those with a vested interest in federal welfare programs, and no prophecy was ever more swiftly vindicated. Of course they protest! If you had lobbied through Congress a bill to have Uncle Sam make regular cash payments to your particular group, how would you enjoy the prospect of having to start all over again and smuggle your subsidy through fifty separate state legislatures? The Reagan proposal is the most daring and effective suggestion for reviewing and reducing our backbreaking national welfare burden that has ever been made.

Conversely, the proposal of four Democratic governors (Carey of New York, Byrne of New Jersey, Shapp of Pennsylvania, and Lucey of Wisconsin) that all welfare programs be "federalized" — i.e., that such welfare programs as are today still funded and run by the federal government — is surely one of the most pernicious ideas imaginable.

In the first place, it would automatically and inevitably result in a sharp increase in overall welfare expenditures, since Congress could not be expected to vote to reduce the fat welfare checks of states like New York, yet could hardly vote to pay New York welfare recipients more than those in other states. Welfare, in short, would everywhere rise to the level of the highest state benefits now paid anywhere.

In the second place, once the burden of paying for all the follies hitherto invented by local demagogues had been shifted to the federal government, how long do you think it would be before mayors and governors in various cities and states started running for office on the pledge to do a little something extra, out of state revenues, for the needy among their own constituents? Federalized welfare, in short, would simply and instantly become a floor on which a new generation of local demagogues could build. If we desire to survive as a free and solvent nation, we'd better kill that deadly proposal — fast.

Dear Abby

Patient Should Practice What Doc Doesn't

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I wanted to start the New Year right, so I went to my doctor for a complete physical checkup. He told me I had to lose 30 pounds and I had to quit smoking. Well, I wish you could have seen this doctor. His stomach was hanging over his belt. If he'd been a woman you would have sworn he was in his eight months!

All the while he talked to me he was smoking up a storm. I noticed the ashtray he was using had about eight cigarette butts in it — all less than a quarter of an inch long. Abby, this doctor is supposed to be the best. Can you tell me how a patient is supposed to have confidence in a doctor who can't do what he orders his patients to do?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Just because he lacks the willpower to lose weight and quit smoking does not mean he's a poor physician. It only means he's afflicted with the same weaknesses that some of his patients are.

DEAR ABBY: I work 10 hours a day. I teach school in a poverty area and teach English to Vietnamese people after school. When I get home to my large, four-bedroom house, I am tired, but I must resume my "housewife" role. Since my husband and I have no children, it is assumed by our friends that I have nothing to do. My husband sometimes reluctantly "helps" me with the housework. Since I work as hard as he does, why doesn't he come home and automatically start the housework so I can "help" him?

We've talked about this, but he doesn't seem to understand. Do you?

Thanks for listening.

BUSHED

DEAR BUSHED: If your husband doesn't understand, it's because he doesn't want to. He's still playing with yesterday's rules. Educate him.

DEAR ABBY: I just read where they are trying to pass a law in North Carolina to make all horse owners put DIAPERS on their horses in order to keep the streets clean. I know it sounds crazy, but if you think about it, it makes a lot of sense. I hope they pass that law. And after that, maybe it will catch on and they'll do the same thing for dogs!

FED UP IN N.Y.

DEAR FED: And now let's hear it for pigeons!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hearing too much from back home

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Soon after assuming office in 1934, a now dead congressman from California named John McGroarty wrote a constituent that "one of the countless drawbacks of being in Congress is that I am compelled to receive impertinent letters from a jackass like you." Several lines later he closed, urging his correspondent to "please take two running jumps and go to hell."

No doubt every member of the national legislature has been tempted with this kind of release from time to time, and with good reason. Far from being the valuable aid to lawmakers that mythology has insisted, letters to Congress people are a serious problem. Not because some of the notes are impertinent, but because taken together congressional mail is all but too voluminous to handle.

The bulk of the incoming correspondence is bad enough — some 25 million pieces a year to the House of Representatives, and though no figures are kept in the Senate at least another 20 million on that side of the Capitol. But further, all of it must be answered, for response is considered both a moral and political duty. Thus time, effort and money must endlessly be spent in reply to each schoolchild's request for autographs, each angry voter's demand for attention.

The result then is a superlative nightmare. This fiscal year congressional members will spend up to $36,000 each, or more than $40 million together, on an estimated 320 million units of franked mail. By comparison, this is 10 times what it was in John McGroarty's time. Not all of it goes to constituents, of course (Congress sends more than 200,000 letters annually just to the Pentagon), but the form letter pap to the folks back home constitutes the fat of the whole.

Form letters? Though perhaps half of the working hours logged on Capitol Hill are spent on mail work, there still is not enough time for very much more than standardized replies to constituent letters. The members themselves, actually, see only a tiny fraction of their correspondence, the mail often being handled by teen-age volunteers who, in many cases, read the incoming, fashion replies and even give the inevitable "Warm Regards" from, say, Missouri Rep. James Symington.

A onetime volunteer in Symington's office says that the student help does not always answer constituents willy nilly. "Sometimes I was given instructions. I remember when I got a letter on abortion, for instance, I was instructed to 'answer ambiguously.' I thought that was funny because how can you talk about abortion ambiguously? You're either for it or against it." Other times the ambiguous answer is easier. "If we got a letter saying 'Dear Congressman, why are you a creep?' we had a form reply which said 'Thank you for your interest, if you have any other questions please write me back.'"

The form letter has its drawbacks, certainly. Former Texas Rep. John Dowdy, who standardized his replies to cover everything from births to anniversaries, once sent a note of condolence to a man who had shotgunned his wife to death. For the most part, however, the phony personalization works well. Most representatives rent IBM machines that enable "Dear Mr. Jones" to get several paragraphs of ambiguity that Mr. Jones would swear was typed by the representative's own busy fingers. The Senate is even more efficient, and removed. It pools the IBM machines so that the same ambiguities can be sent to a rightwinger in Mississippi and a revolutionary in northern New Jersey.

All of this is nonsense, assuredly, but of a sacred variety. Few members will admit the postal link with their public is forged by a kid working in the office with rock music plugged to his ear. Most insist the letters are valuable signals from the people. And occasionally they may be. Over the years New York Rep. Edward Pattison has received so many letters on the subject of cruelty to animals that without investigation or inquiry of his own he has recently been moved to co-sponsor a House bill addressed to the matter.

Still, only ideologists fancy that letters to Congress count for much. If you really want results, sigh, better you should send contributions.

Nixon — Man of Many Moods

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Charles W. Colson, former White House special counsel, says ex-President Richard M. Nixon was "at times brutally cold, calculating, a manipulator of power" but also at times a compassionate person who could never bring himself to point out a secretary's misspellings.

In Colson's new book, "Born Again," the one time White House hatchet man expressed admiration for Nixon's foreign policy. As Watergate wore on, Colson said, Nixon lost his moral judgment, grew suspicious and even questioned whether he could trust the Secret Service and whether Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski was bugging him.

"Richard Nixon is a man of many parts, at times brutally cold, calculating, a manipulator of power," Colson said. "But he is other things, too — at times an intensely compassionate being who all his 60-plus years held up his own mother as a saint and could never bring himself to point out to a secretary her misspellings. I once saw him redictate a letter to eliminate a troublesome word, rather than embarrass the secretary."

Colson, once one of Nixon's highest-ranking and closest aides, said that after he'd pleaded guilty in June 1974, Nixon phoned him one evening.

"Near the end of the conversation I told him that regardless of any mistakes he had made, it was because of his presidency that my sons would not have to go to war," Colson said. "That to me outweighed the pain, even of prison. His moral judgment had been blurred, and I couldn't forget the courageous long-viewed way in which he set out to create a more stable order in the world."

Colson said that even though he resigned the White House in early 1973 he continued to advise Nixon and even acted as his impeachment adviser. Colson also said that he agreed to Nixon's suggestion that he ask Agnew to resign.

"A proud and erect man, he (Agnew) sat stoically behind his king-sized polished desk as I pressed home the points why he should resign," Colson said. "I could see the hurt in his eyes when he realized that his own president had turned against him."

Coal Announcement Due

DENVER (UPI) — Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe is expected Monday to announce that a moratorium on federal coal leasing in the northern Great Plains will be lifted.

A news conference has been scheduled in Denver for the secretary, and sources in Washington confirm that a statement lifting the three-year-old moratorium on federal coal leasing has been prepared for Kleppe to issue.

Kleppe will be in Denver for a White House Conference on consumer affairs.

The action may be related to the U.S. Supreme Court's decision to review an appeal in the Sierra Club lawsuit which has stalled new coal development on federal leases in the northern Great Plains.

The Supreme Court in announcing its decision to hear that appeal also lifted the injunction that had halted coal development, at least until it reaches a decision in the case.

The environmental group filed suit to halt licensing of four mines on grounds additional studies were needed in the northern Great Plains. An appeals court issued an injunction and said unless the regional impact statement was prepared, more legal action was possible to halt future licensing.

George Has No Chance Predicts Sen. Humphrey

By United Press International
 Senator Hubert Humphrey, non-candidate presidential hopeful, says that no matter what happens in the primaries Alabama Gov. George Wallace is not going to be on the Democratic ticket this year.

Wallace virtually ruled out another third party race this year, and a new poll showed Ronald Reagan leading President Ford in New Hampshire.

On ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" Sunday, Humphrey was pressed on whether he would support a Wallace ticket.

"He is not going to be on the ticket this year," he replied. "You know it and I know it."

Wallace campaigned in Florida even as returns showed him with an impressive victory in the precinct caucuses of Mississippi Saturday. He had some 41 per cent of the first-round selections to 18 per cent for Jimmy Carter, his nearest competitor, and around 13 per cent for Sargent Shriver.

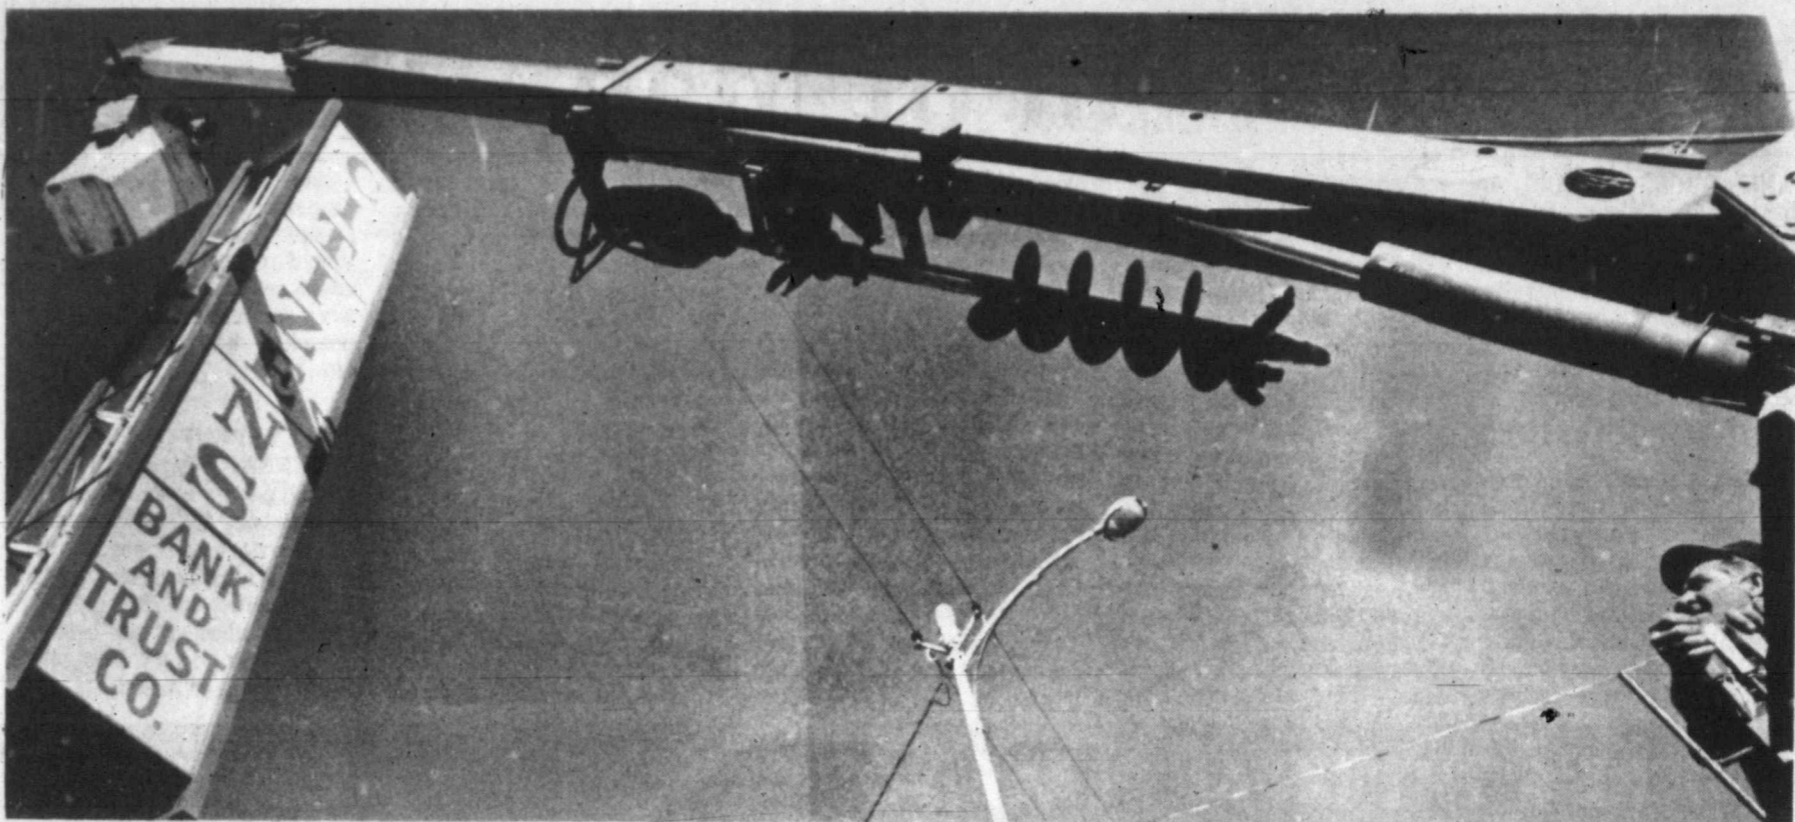

Final returns in Mississippi will not be available for a week or more, but the early results made the March 9 primary in Florida crucial to Carter's claim that he is the only Democrat who can compete against Wallace in the South.

Addressing an overflow crowd in Plant City, Fla., Saturday night, Wallace all but eliminated the chance of a third party effort this year.

"I believe you could say I have ruled out the probability of running as a third party candidate," he said. It was the closest he had come to ruling out a repeat of his 1968 run on the American Independent Party ticket.

On the Republican side, Newsweek magazine reported Sunday Reagan "has built a significant early lead" over Ford in the first phase of the New Hampshire primary campaign.

Government Groups Trim Postal Costs

United Press International
 Many disgruntled Americans are learning there are ways other than the Postal Service to get their letters and packages delivered.

The Postal Service is still very much in business. But its higher rates and what critics say is poor service have persuaded many users to send mail by bus, deliver it by hand or pay their bills in person.

Postal officials in Washington predicted 88 billion letters will be mailed this fiscal year, 1.2 billion fewer than last year. Officials expect another 4 or 5 per cent drop over the next five years as different ways to send messages become popular.

A nationwide survey by UPI disclosed some actions were being taken to reduce postal costs, especially among government agencies.

The Treasury Department has started transferring social security payments electronically to recipients' bank accounts, and the Agriculture Department has begun purging its massive mailing lists to cut outgoing mail.

The Oklahoma senate recently gave unanimous approval to a bill creating an interagency mail service, while in Albany, N.Y., state budget director Peter Goldmark has told all department heads to use postcards instead of letters whenever possible.

In Portland, Ore., and Trenton, N.J., Greyhound and Trailways bus lines reported a 10 to 15 per cent increase in outgoing packages. John Medeiros, a Greyhound agent in Trenton, said, "I think people believe it is cheaper to ship things by bus now — and faster too."

Utility companies and other businesses which send bills and receive payments by mail are looking at ways to reduce the three-cent increase in first-class postage which went into effect on Dec. 31.

Utility companies in Rhode Island, North Carolina and other states are considering delivering bills by hand and establishing collection boxes in shopping centers to save money for themselves and their customers.

In Tampa, Fla., General Telephone Co. reported a large increase in hand-delivered account payments at company offices.

Still, most persons apparently are accepting higher postal costs. The Postal Service said it anticipated the drop when it set the higher rates.

Postal spokesman Foo Wong in San Francisco said his only difficulty with the new rates was a temporary shortage of small-denomination stamps.

"People are more or less resigned to the increase," Wong said.

Other spokesmen across the country said any decrease in volume could just as well be blamed on the recession as on the 13-cent stamp.

In a related development, the Scripps-Howard News Service recently mailed 40 letters with the old 10 cent stamps to 17 different cities. Every letter was delivered to its destination without being challenged for the additional three cents.

"Based on the unanimous result of the ... survey, anyone still using 10 cent is getting away with it," the Scripps-Howard story said.

"And if only a tiny fraction of the 240 million pieces of mail (handled daily) is going through three cents shy ... the cost to the beleaguered postal USPS may be considerable."

Amarillo Slim Joins Derby Town Festivities

By ANNA BURCHELL
 Pampa News Staff

McLEAN — "It seems strange for a professional gambler to follow gospel singers," Amarillo Slim told a packed house Saturday at the McLean High School auditorium.

He spoke at the McLean Derby Town Jubilee, sponsored by the McLean High School Future Business Leaders of America. His address followed the Keynotes of Perryton.

"I do gamble — make no bones about it," he said.

He added that the one thing he had not done in his gambling career was to look for one who "worked all week for $200."

"I seek the high rollers," he said.

Amarillo Slim was introduced by George Terry, one of the founders of the Jubilee.

The guest star said many are of the opinion that gamblers are crooks. However, he told of a recent political meeting he had attended in another state.

"I felt like a saint among all those politicians," he said.

He told the audience that he had been asked many times if he had any political aspirations. He replied to his own comment by saying:

"No, the only thing I ever ran for was the city limits."

It was at that point that he told of his arrest in hometown of Amarillo on Oct. 19.

"I was arrested and charged with bookmaking," he said.

He said he has never done any bookmaking in Amarillo... and it doesn't make a heckuva lot of sense that I start now."

He then told the audience that following that episode was the first time he had ever hidden in his life. He explained that major newspapers and television stations from over nation had tried to contact him, but he had been advised by attorney to do no talking.

He said he began doing some talk shows after he won the 1972 World Series in gambling.

Of his experiences in talk shows he said Dinah Shore was "one of the most gracious hosts."

Speaking of liquor, he said, "Liquor is made to sell — not to drink — I don't use it."

In closing, Amarillo Slim commented that "whatever you do, you have to think."

"I am at peace with myself," he emphasized. During intermission, he mingled with the group and was swamped with requests for autographs.

Terry told the audience that McLean was fortunate to have Amarillo Slim as a guest.

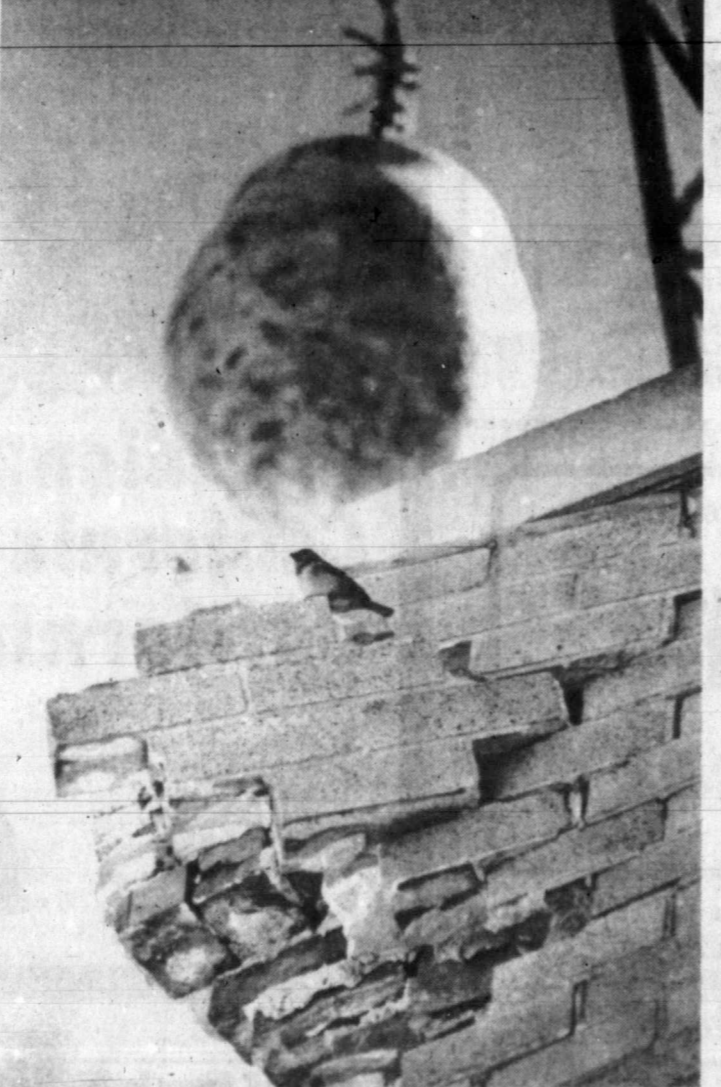

"He usually gets a lot of money for this type thing — but he came here for nothing," Terry said.

Upon meeting a Pampa couple he asked if he didn't meet them at a recent Democratic function in Amarillo.

He had, and she asked Amarillo Slim if he is a "good Democrat."

"Off and on," he replied. "But I try to stay away from them politics."

Men, women and children of all ages attended the jubilee which included local and area talent. Proceeds went to the McLean High School Future Business Leaders.

Lower the Boom

Prize Filly Almost Dies

DALLAS (UPI) — To some a healthy, well cared for thoroughbred is beauty in motion. But to others, particularly European fanciers, a horse is just meat on the table.

Millionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt discovered that fact when his bay filly, Carnauba, winner of $60,000 on the Italian racing circuit this season but stolen recently, barely escaped the knives of a Milanese butcher.

"She was in the back yard of the butcher shop about to be slaughtered," Hunt's wife, Caroline, said Saturday. "She was in terrible condition. In Italy horsemeat is like rabbit or any other sort of meat."

The family survivors of the late oil billionaire H. L. Hunt, learned of the horse's recovery late Friday.

Mrs. Hunt said the butcher named the man who had sold him Carnauba and an arrest had been made. She had not seen the horse but suspected "she's in such bad condition she will not race again."

"We'll just get her back in good shape and bring her to Kentucky to use in breeding," she said.

A horse steak costs Europeans about $2.14 a pound.

Pampa PD Checks Complaints

Theft of clothes from a local laundromat. — Four hundred and eighty dollars was taken in a residence burglary. — Vandalism at Woodrow Wilson School and at local residence. — These and an attempted burglary were among the weekend reports Pampa Police Department officers investigated Saturday night and Sunday.

Donetta Wampler of 2116 Lynn reported theft of clothes from a local laundromat. She said someone told her some young women were there, and she confronted, one who denied taking them.

However, police went with her to see the subject later. The woman admitted taking the clothes and returned them to the owner. No charges were filed.

Pat Schaeff of 301 S. Ballard said $480 was taken from a dresser drawer. The door had been broken to gain entry, she said.

A.C. Powell of 914 Browning said someone had broken a window pane on the north side of the building at Woodrow Wilson School.

Entry was possible, but nothing seemed to be missing, he said.

R.L. Bonner of 600 S. Somerville reported that during the past four months someone removed a Japanese Rifle Model 25 with a Bayonet from a closet in his bedroom.

Keldon Terry Ellis of 616 Doucette said all members of his family left the residence about 4 p.m. Saturday, and when they returned later that afternoon they discovered the glass patio door broken — apparently from a BB gun. Police said four juveniles were in the area, but all denied any knowledge of the broken door.

Mrs. Wayne Robertson of 2520 Mary Ellen said a Citizens Band Radio was taken from her car.

An Amarillo woman reported that her husband struck her shortly before midnight at a local lounge.

An attempted burglary was reported Sunday night at Sissy's Lounge. The damage was about one foot from the rear door and police said it could have been done with a sledge hammer or car bumper.

Mainly About People

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — The Tequendama Falls, Colombia's highest waterfalls at 427 feet, are an elusive tourist attraction. The falls on the Bogota River about 15 miles southwest of Bogota have little water in dry seasons and at other times, are often blaaeted by dense fog even if surrounding areas enjoy bright sunshine.

Flats Hamper Ambulance, Woman Dies

A 32-year old Amarillo woman died Saturday night after a pickup truck in which she was riding went out of control six miles south of McLean and rolled over three times.

The Department of Public Safety officials said Ann Cherry was taken to an Amarillo hospital, but the ambulance had a flat near Conway which was repaired.

It had another flat near Amarillo and at that point Ms. Cherry was transferred to another ambulance.

She died shortly after reaching an Amarillo hospital.

WONDERFUL WORLD OF TRAVEL "CAPE TO KENYA"

Wednesday, Jan. 28, 1976
 7:30 P.M.

PRESENTATION BY THAYER SOULE

Mrs. Robert A. Fultz
Former Karen Sue Abernathy

Fultz-Abernathy Vows

Wedding vows were solemnized recently for Miss Karen Sue Abernathy and Robert Alan Fultz, both of Gallup, N.M.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill J. Abernathy of 2235 Duncan, Pampa. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Clay Fultz of Gallup.

The wedding took place in the Bethany Christian Reformed Church in Gallup with the Rev. Alfred Mulder, pastor, officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

Pianist was Miss Diane Smith of Gallup with Florencio Aragon of Albuquerque as vocalist.

Miss Judith Abernathy of Gallup was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Patricia Fultz of Gallup, sister of the bridegroom.

Rick Aragon, of Albuquerque, nephew of the bridegroom, was candlelighter.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Randy Yurkovich of Gallup was groomsmen. Ushers were Larry Cato and Rick Aragon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white nylon marquisette gown, accented by a chapel-length train of Alecon lace.

Her chapel-length veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap with pearl accents.

The reception was held at the Holiday Inn of Gallup with Mrs. Florencio Aragon, Mrs. Joy Bruce, Mrs. Charlotte Peterson, and Mrs. Mike Dusseau assisting.

The couple now live in Gallup. They spent their honeymoon in Las Vegas, Nev.

The bride was graduated from Pampa High School and West Texas State University. She is a teacher in the Gallup Junior High School.

Her husband was graduated from Gallup High School and attended the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. He is now employed at Clay Fultz Insurance Agency in Gallup.

Club News

The Pampa African Violet Society installed new officers at a recent meeting in the Norman Walberg home at 621 E. Kingsmill.

Officers for 1976 are Mrs. Don Glaxner, president; Mrs. Norman Walberg, vice president; Mrs. Evan Jones, historian; librarian; Mrs. Lee Moore, secretary; treasurer; Mrs. V.N. Osborn, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Charles Glison, reporter.

The installation was conducted by Mrs. H.H. Boynton, who also gave a program on the history of the American flag.

The meeting was attended by eight members and one guest.

The Alpha Iota Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota met Jan. 12 at Southwestern Public Service Company. Hostesses for the meeting were Flo Quattlebaum, Priscilla Alexander, and Helen Burns.

The amendment on expenses which was proposed in December was voted on and approved.

Following the business meeting, a cooking demonstration was given by Mildred Prince. Ms. Prince shared much helpful information concerning the use of the microwave oven. Twenty members ate the dishes which were prepared.

Twentieth Century Culture Club met Jan. 13 in the home of Mrs. D.D. Cambren, 1715 Beech. Mrs. Ross Buzzard served as co-hostess.

Mrs. Rufe Jordan, president, called the meeting to order and conducted a short business meeting. Mrs. James Poole introduced Mrs. J.L. Chase who presented the program on the life of Frank Lloyd Wright.

She stated that he was a flamboyant character, beautifully and belligerently articulate and willing to express his ideas, opinions, and feelings. Wright had almost a compulsion to create the perfect place to live. He believed that "A building is not just a place to be. It is a way to be." His concept of architecture was so all-encompassing that it permeated nearly every aspect of his life, from his clothes, cut to his order and design, to the chairs, napkins, bed, and even the desk blotter that he used.

Twenty members attended the meeting. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. N.D. Steele.

The white stork, one of Europe's best loved birds, is so tall that even when the young are two feet high they are still babies and need their parents' care.

She Wants to Come Home—Someday

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Geraldine Chaplin was 8 when her father whisked his family away from Hollywood, and while Charlie Chaplin never wanted to return, his daughter would like to live here again.

But for the moment that's impossible.

Geraldine, a tiny gamin with enormous eyes and a brilliant smile, lives with Spanish director Carlos Saura who only makes movies in Spain.

They are unmarried because Carlos can't get a divorce in his native land. They also are the parents of a year-old son, Shane.

"I suppose we will continue to live in Madrid as long as Carlos is determined to make movies about middle class Spaniards," she said somewhat forlornly. "Or until they throw us out."

Happily, Geraldine is enjoying a resurgence in her career. She has made five movies in the past year, all but one of them requiring her to leave Spain, her home for the past 11 years, taking Carlos and Shane with her.

"I did 'The Revenger' for Jacques Rivette in France, 'Buffalo Bill and the Indians' for Bob Altman in Canada, and 'Raise Crows' for Carlos in Spain," she said.

"Three different pictures in three different languages for the three best directors in the world. I'm very proud of that."

She is delighted by the two-fold benefits of her work. It gets her out of Spain in addition to stocking the family larder.

Demand for her talent also has quelled Geraldine's self-doubts.

"When I did 'Dr. Zhivago' I thought I would become a star and be inundated with offers for all the best pictures," she said, poking fun at herself.

"But I imagine my acting left a great deal to be desired. I went through a period when I didn't work at all for a year or two. Not that I was turning down parts. I simply wasn't offered anything."

"Even now, I think every role I play will be my last."

Geraldine is in Hollywood to star in "Welcome to L.A.," Altman's latest film. Carlos and Shane are with her. When the picture is completed she will stop by Switzerland to visit her parents before returning to Spain.

"The old insecurities are still with me," she said, smiling. "I have no film in sight when this one is over. I'd like a period of inactivity if I knew for sure I had a job in the future. But I don't."

"I look forward to visiting my father and mother. Shane is grandchild number 10 for my parents. Even so, Dad is very fond of him. Maybe it's because I am the first daughter and waited until I was 30 to have my first child."

"Shane has never been separated from me. If I couldn't take him with me on foreign locations for my pictures, I wouldn't accept the work."

"But we need the money and we love to travel. Carlos is never bored and he never visits the set when I'm working for another director. He is the world's greatest tourist."

"Carlos spent six weeks in Calgary (Canada) when I was playing Annie Oakley in 'Buffalo Bill.' He probably knows the city as well as anyone in Canada. Here in Hollywood he gets on a bus and rides to the end of the line just sightseeing."

On their last visit to California Geraldine and Carlos walked from the Beverly Hills hotel to the hilltop home where her father once lived — next door to Mary Pickford's estate, Pickfair.

"We were stopped by policemen who wanted to know what we were doing," Geraldine said. "They couldn't believe we were just walking and they offered to drive us to the house."

"I didn't tell them who I was. And we insisted on walking anyway. I just have vague memories about the house and the sort of life we lived in those days. Seeing the place again revived just a few recollections.

"But it did kindle a desire in me to live here once again. And some day I hope that will be possible for us."

Bit Parts: Howard Koch will

Scholarship Deadline Feb. 15

The Texas Federation of Music Clubs is offering two $600 scholarships to Texas students interested in attending the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich.

Tuition and board charges for the eight-week camp is $1,200 and must be accompanied by a $50 deposit for personal expenses.

One scholarship will go for a voice student or stringed instrument student (does not include piano) and the other to a player of a woodwind or brass instrument.

Applications must be returned to the chairman of the Scholarship Board of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs by Feb. 15. A letter of recommendation from a music teacher or school principal must accompany the application and applicants must be high school students, residents of Texas and members of some division of the Federation.

Auditions may be required in the final selection.

For additional information, contact the scholarship chairman, Mrs. Lamoine M. Hall Jr., 4137 Witfield, Ft. Worth, Texas 76109.

Myriad of Services Offered

The Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation activities in Gray County include an alcoholism counseling services program, planned parenthood, manpower training programs and other services.

A summary of the services available here was outlined by Beverly Sublett, outreach worker for the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation.

The request was made by County Judge Don Cain.

"We have moved into a new building at 1425 Alcock," Ms. Sublett said.

The building serves Alcoholism Counseling Services, Planned Parenthood and Manpower Training programs, she added.

She explained that the alcoholism services program provides Gray County with individual counseling in alcohol and drug related problems.

The Planned Parenthood Program provides the community residents with a tuberculosis test clinic, pap smears, cultures, pelvic and breast examinations, prenatal counseling, referral information and assistance.

The Manpower Training Programs provide jobs in a training situation for people who "meet poverty, unemployment, or underemployment guidelines."

The Community Action Program as a whole provides the area with services which include transportation for senior citizens, aid in finding jobs, helps to establish a referral system to other agencies, counseling services "and serves as a friend to all," Ms. Sublett said.

Canada leads the world in nickel production.

Debbie Kay McLennan of Pampa is among the 259 students named to the dean's list for the fall semester of 1975 at Bee County College in Beeville, Tex.

Marsh Gamblin of Pampa is among the 35 students from Panhandle State University, who is now participating in the practice teaching.

The students are teaching in various public schools in Oklahoma.

John R. "Rocky" Hills, a West

Texas State University senior, student in Canyon was one of four students selected for a regular army commission by the U.S. Army ROTC.

Hills is the son of John R. Hills of Route 1, Pampa.

He will be commissioned in the ordnance corps as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army upon graduation from WTSU.

He is now majoring in industrial technology.

Butch Casey, a 1975 graduate of Pampa High School, was named to the dean's honor roll for the fall semester at West Texas State University in Canyon. He is a member of the WTSU band.

Bill Douglas Jr. is attending college at Fort Hays State College in Hays, Kan. He was on the deans honor roll during the fall semester.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JANUARY 27
Your birthday today: Finds you in a restless mood, eager to move on to another stage and feeling pinched for ready resources regardless of how much you actually have available. Thrift is needed all year as objectives spread out in unforeseen directions and responsibilities increase. Relationships intensify to a high degree. Today's natives prefer peace and have sharp memories that allow them to act in harmony with past experience.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: What looks like progress on paper may not be so in reality. Once over lightly in most regular routines is enough. Serious planning is overdue.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: VIP's don't respond to requests. Action lies not in sweeping dramatic changes but in small yet significant adjustments. Relationships are sensitive.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Friends work at cross-purposes. Keep your schedule straight so you're free to function as you please. Stay close to familiar places and well-known activities.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Projects running full speed ahead encounter resistance or internal stress. Rethink the entire operation. If you want to go on, reorganize along better lines.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Resist the prodding of your mate or restless associates to make some grand gesture. Realize their intensity of purpose. Travel and communications require detailed care.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Certain matters must be brought to conclusion, although they may not be complete or to your liking. Step back for a clear view, avoid nitpicking and look to the future.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Much of today's performance is poorly directed; don't feel sorry for yourself just because extra work falls on you. Family news contains surprises. Be tactful.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Whoever is in charge finds fault. If it's you, remember that you'll still need the goodwill of associates tomorrow. You have a blind spot about finances.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Work advances quite well if you do the obvious. Avoid bringing in outside people, boasting or criticizing. Limit travel to essential trips.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: The unexpected crops up. Don't jump to any conclusions even though people refuse to go out of their way to be helpful. Forgive friends' errors and strive for improved understanding.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: If you must switch things around, the less you say about it, the better. Impulsive remarks hit the wrong target. Stick near home base and take inventory.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Let events run in normal channels. Skip wisecracks or gossip. If you can't pull off what you want singlehandedly get help another day.

Royal Among Inductees

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Darrell Royal, although not a Texas native, played his high school football close enough to the Texas Panhandle that the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame could not keep him from being an inductee.

Royal, along with Grady Burson of Amarillo and Dick Todd of Crowell were inducted into the Hall of Fame during ceremonies Sunday afternoon before more than 350 sports fans in the Amarillo College gymnasium.

Royal's induction followed the honoring of Burson, the 37th member in the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame. Burson was a do-it-all fullback for West Texas State in 1921-24 and is still considered one of the greatest players in history from that school.

Royal, a Hollis, Okla., native, was a starting defensive back and All-American quarterback at the University of Oklahoma in the late 1940's. As head coach of the University of Texas, Royal has attained a 161-42-4 record and has coached the Longhorns to 11 Southwest Conference titles and three national championships.

Todd, the 39th inductee, scored 664 points at Crowell High School from 1931-34. He was an All-Southwest Conference halfback for Texas A&M and an outstanding professional end for the Washington Redskins.

Ken Cleveland of Dimmitt High School was named the overall area Coach of the Year Sunday for coaching the Bobcats to the Class AA state championship last season.

Cleveland was chosen from a list of coaches of the year in individual sports. The list included Don Sessom, Groom football coach; Jerry Allen, Amarillo Legion baseball coach; Ralph Newton, Spearman girls golf coach; Davis Kent, WTSU tennis coach, and Buddy Ables, Olton girls track coach.

Carolyn Bush of the Wayland Flying Queens basketball team was named overall Player of the Year. Nominees included Sears Woods, Northwestern Oklahoma State, baseball; Michael Kelson, West Texas State, football; Dick Weston, Miami, golf; Tresea Williams, Canadian, tennis, and Tim Son, Baylor, track.

The Dee Henry Memorial Award for courage went to Mark Mendenhall of Guymon, Okla., a kicker who bounced back from broken leg bones. Special Achievement Awards were awarded to Ann Dunivan, Amarillo High girls volleyball coach; Fred Davidson, Amarillo Caprock wrestling coach, and J. Wes Kleinschmidt, a 62-year booster of WTSU athletics.

Darrell Royal, University of Texas head football coach and a native of Hollis, Okla., was the 38th inductee into the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame, which held its annual ceremonies Sunday at Amarillo College. Royal followed Grady Burson, the 37th inductee and a former

West Texas State football standout. The 39th member was Dick Todd of Crowell who was a high-scoring halfback in high school and a standout for Texas A&M. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Crenshaw Captures Crosby Purse

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Ben Crenshaw won the tournament and deservedly so, but the 1976 Crosby probably will be better known over the years as the week Jack Nicklaus finally proved he was human.

There have been fans who might have enjoyed what happened to Nicklaus Sunday in the windup of the Crosby. That's not to say Nicklaus doesn't have his legion of followers, but in every sport there are those who pay to boo heroes.

While golf fans never boo, they smiled politely as Nicklaus, the man they said would never blow the lead in the final round of any tournament he had locked up, shot an 82. That's right, Nicklaus shot an 82. The round would have done justice to any weekend amateur because it included two triple bogeys, one double and five bogeys.

While Nicklaus, who has won 58 American titles and two British opens since joining the tour in 1962, was hanking his way around Pebble Beach, which he calls his favorite golf course, Crenshaw, 24, was shooting a solid three-under-par 69 that won him the $37,000 first prize by two shots over Mike Morley.

There seemed to be poetic justice in the windup—Crenshaw breaking a slump of 2½ years, Morley winning $21,090 for his biggest payday in six years and George Burns, a rookie, tying the veteran Dave Hill for third and winning, $10,915.

Nicklaus' 82 dropped him to three-over for the tourney and left him way back in the pack with Johnny Miller, who opened the 1976 season by winning the Tucson Open. Miller, at least, had an excuse. He was bothered by a sore back and the flu in the first two rounds, shooting 74-77, but recovered for a pair of 70s. Nicklaus simply blew the lead he held going into the final round when he could have won by playing even par.

No one ever got to find out Jack's feelings about the 82 because he left the area in a hurry for a flight to Japan where he has business interests. He'll be back next week, though, to play in the Bob Hope Desert Classic in Palm Springs, Calif.

"I've worked hard this winter, and it showed here," Crenshaw said of his 72-hole score of seven-under-par 281. "I've also taken a new view of my career, and I think now I'm headed in the right direction."

"Pebble Beach is never easy," he said. "But I love the course. It's such a challenge. I made up my mind that I would not let a mistake upset me because there is no way to keep from making a few mistakes on this course."

Crenshaw bogeyed the first hole for his only lapse, then bounced back to birdie the second, fourth and ninth holes and that put him six-under for the tourney and a shot off the lead, which Morley held on the turn.

Nicklaus was still alive at that point, trailing by only a shot. Then the fun began for Crenshaw and the agony for Nicklaus and, to a lesser degree, to Morley.

Crenshaw ran down a 40-foot putt for a birdie on the 12th that gave him the lead and he parred home to win while Nicklaus took triple bogeys on the 13th and 18th, a double on the 17th and a bogey on the 12th.

Morley took a bogey on the 11th and another on the 14th. Those mistakes finished him but he hung on with par saving puts on the 15th and 17th to clinch second.

Pro Bowl Ends Season

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An anticlimactic Pro Bowl ends the pro football season tonight in a game marked by the absence of top-rated quarterbacks and other standout players from both National Football League conferences.

Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw was injured in the last quarter of the Steelers' 21-17 win over Dallas, and the Cowboy's Roger Staubach — named to replace Minnesota Viking Fran Tarkenton — also bowed out because of an injury.

The quarterbacking jobs went to Jim Hart of the NFL St. Louis Cardinals, and to Ken Anderson of Cincinnati in the AFC.

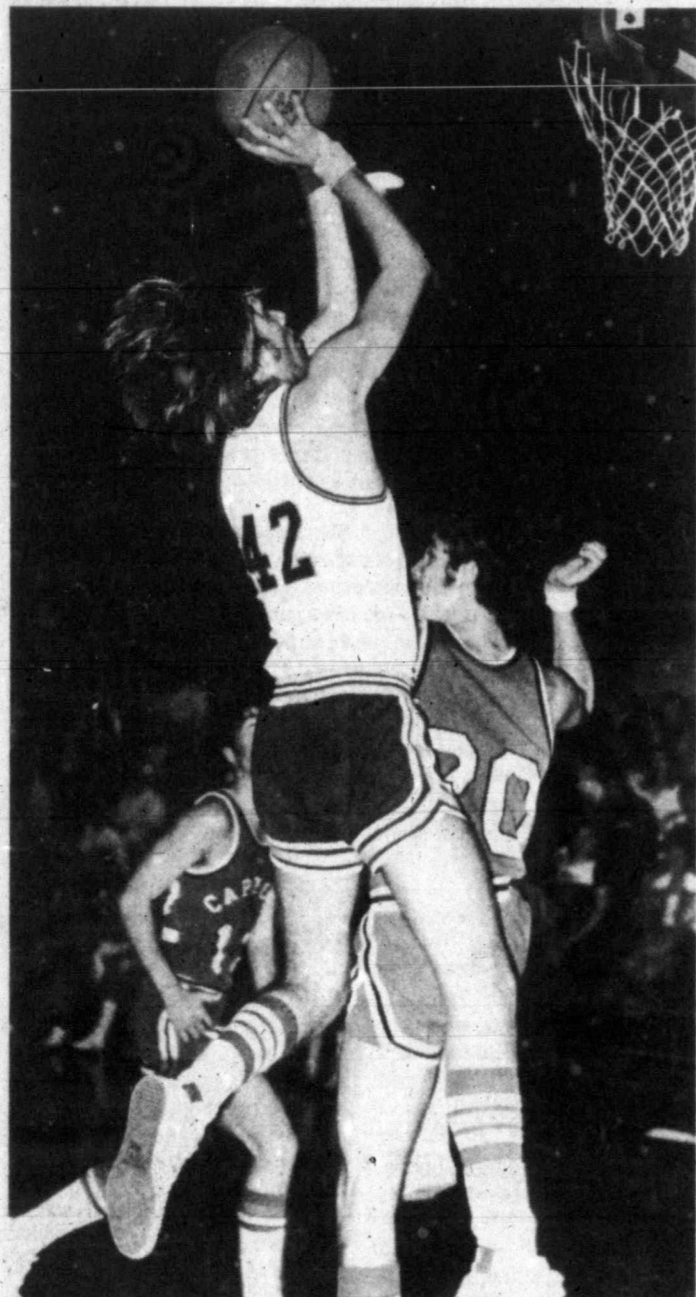

A crowd of about 30,000 is expected for the nationally televised game at the Louisiana Superdome.

New Orleans Saints ticket manager Henry Simoneaux said sales had been hurt by a player dispute with NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle over pensions. The problem was temporarily resolved Thursday, but it was too late to help the box office.

Not that small crowds for the Pro Bowl are anything new, coming as it does as an afterthought to the season, with the players out to enjoy themselves and avoid costly injury that could affect the regular season.

Most players echo the same sentiments. The game is fun. It's a chance to play alongside men who have been rivals all year—the best in the business.

Tech, Arkansas Win Clashes

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

Latching hold of the South-west Conference basketball lead was not all that easy for Texas Tech.

And keeping it is not going to be an easy chore, either — particularly with the schedule that faces the Red Raiders this week. Tech (now 6-1) moved in front of the SWC chase last Saturday thanks to a three-point decision over Southern Methodist in Lubbock and a controversial double-overtime, 93-91 victory by Arkansas over Texas A&M (4-1) in Fayetteville.

"We have two tough road games this week," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "We are going to have our hands full this week."

First of all Tech must journey on Wednesday night to Arkansas — known around the conference now as the spot where time stands still.

And on Saturday night Tech travels to Houston where the Cougars have proved unbeatable thus far in conference play.

There will be a heavy round of action this week, beginning tonight with four games.

Going into this week's play SMU, Arkansas and Houston are all at 4-3 and trying to stay close to Texas Tech and Texas A&M.

SMU and Houston tangle tonight in Dallas in the top early week attraction. Other games tonight find Arkansas at Baylor (3-4), TCU (3-3) at Texas (2-5) and Texas A&M hosting Rice (0-7).

Before Tech visits Fayetteville Wednesday night he will likely check on the status of the clock at Barnhill Fieldhouse.

The clock was not working last Saturday night when the Texas A&M Aggies came to call and that led to a great deal of grief.

An Arkansas basket by Jack Schulte that tied the game at the end of the first overtime period and the layup scored by the Razorbacks' Sidney Moncrief which won the game at the close of the second overtime were both questionable points.

A&M boosters said both baskets were scored after time ran out. And, indeed, no horn ever sounded at the close of the second overtime.

"I'm just sick," said Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf after the game. "We got had twice. We worked so hard. I'm not upset at the officiating at all. I'm just upset at the timekeeping."

The time was kept by a stopwatch on the sidelines and the timekeeper called out "five seconds," when a jump ball was called at A&M's end of the court as the second overtime was running out.

Arkansas won the tip, Schulte dribbled the ball once and then threw it the length of the court to Moncrief. He, in turn, dribbled the ball two or three times before laying it in for the winning points.

"There is no way all that could have happened in five seconds," Metcalf said. "The clock starts when the ball is tipped and it is impossible they could have scored before time ran out."

Use Thumb To Steer Ball Before Release

By GIL WUEST
Harvester Lines

How many times have I said that your thumb steers the ball? Several thousand probably. Remember, the ball will go where the thumb points.

Again and again, you've also heard, "Stay at the foul line in a delivery position until the ball hits the pins." That is so you can check out your delivery position.

What are you supposed to check? Check it's your spot, hand and where you are at the line. Don't move after you have delivered the ball. Stay there until you check several important things.

After you have picked up your ball correctly, which means with both hands so you won't drop it or put a strain on your bowling hand carry the ball to your position on the approach. Then, place your fingers and thumb in the ball.

Now you are ready to start your delivery routine: 1 - find your starting position on the approach (register in your head exactly what board the ankle side of your sliding sole is on); 2 - Deliver the ball over your arrow (hit it); 3 - Check your follow - through and look at your hand; 4 - Now check your sliding foot (side of sole) and see exactly what board it is on.

For strikes, the sliding foot should finish on the same board you started on. That means you'll have walked straight, so you will be able to swing your arm straight.

Try these tips the next time you bowl and you will have good results.

Foreman-Frazier Next?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — So what now for George Foreman? With Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton apparently lined up for a July title fight, Foreman may be headed for a second meeting with Joe Frazier.

Frazier was on hand Saturday and watched Foreman get off the canvas twice in the fourth round and knock out Denver's 33-year-old Ron Lyle in the fifth.

It was hardly the same Foreman who knocked Frazier down six times and scored a second-round KO for the heavyweight crown at Kingston, Jamaica, three short years ago.

If there was any further question about his invincibility after what happened 15 months ago, it was answered by the Lyle fight.

Foreman, a man thought to have superhuman credentials after mowing down his first 40 pro foes, is definitely mortal.

"I'd like to stay active," Foreman said when asked about his future plans. "I want to become champion again. If that takes knocking everybody out in the world, I'll do it. I know now that I can't be inactive and fight the top contenders, though. There are no short cuts. Ron Lyle proved that to me."

Against Lyle, Foreman was staggered in the first and fifth rounds in addition to being down twice in the fourth. He trailed on two of the three scorecards after four rounds although he had Lyle down in the fourth round, too.

Lyle talked about a rematch but the ex-heavyweight king declared, "I'll say no to that."

Although Foreman didn't exactly help his reputation Saturday, he did demonstrate he wasn't a quitter.

"I think I won the fight on determination," he said. "I showed people I was able to take a punch, and I had determination. When he knocked me down, I told myself I was determined to make him hit the floor just as hard.

"Gil Clancy (Foreman's new manager) told me the name of the game is determination. Well, I'm determined to be champion of the world. I'm determined to fight for the title and I will become the winner."

Foreman made $225,000 for fighting Lyle, who got $140,000. Lyle, who was a 5-1 underdog, didn't hurt his earning power, either. Although he will turn 34 next month and now has lost three of his last four, Lyle still must be regarded as a legitimate contender in a division where the contenders are scarce.

The Foreman bandwagon is now being decorated by Jerry Perenchio, the financial whiz who promoted, with Jack Kent Cooke's backing, the first Frazier-Ali fight in New York.

Perenchio is president of Tandem Productions, owner of television's "All in the Family," "Maude," "The Jeffersons," "Sanford and Sons" and others. Perenchio wants Foreman to fight his way back into public demand. He arranged for the Foreman-Lyle fight at Caesars Palace.

Buffs Stomp Braves

By United Press International

No. 18 West Texas State needed some encouragement this week following their loss to Louisville, and Bradley turned out to be just what they needed.

With a 66-56 win over Bradley, West Texas moved its season mark to 13-2 and boosted its Missouri Valley Conference slate to 3-0 — good enough to maintain the league leadership. "It was probably the biggest win for me, my players and our program," said West Texas coach Ron Ekker.

"Our play in the last five minutes was tremendous. Our whole team came to life at the end. Eugene Smith was just tremendous down the stretch.

Smith scored 26 points and helped the Buffaloes break open a tight game in the last few minutes.

The victory kept West Texas ahead of Southern Illinois (4-1) and Wichita (2-1) in the MVC race. No other clubs are above .500 in league play.

Southern Illinois stayed close to the Buffaloes with a narrow home win Saturday night over Tulsa, 79-76. Wichita did not play a league game last week, but, like West Texas, the Wheatshockers fell to Louisville in a non-conference contest, 56-52.

This will be another light week for conference action, but there will be a key game Thursday night when West Texas visits Wichita. The Buffaloes will also visit Drake (1-2) on Saturday night.

Southern Illinois does not have a conference encounter this week, but Wichita will host New Mexico State (1-4) Saturday night after its earlier meeting with West Texas.

Washington Watch GAO Questions Business Practices

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — One Texas defense contractor and seven subcontractors, all concentrated in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, have engaged in questionable and possibly illegal business practices over the past several years, a government study charged recently.

The report, drafted by the General Accounting Office (GAO), said that at least two of the subcontractors regularly provided officials of Bell Helicopter Co., a Fort Worth defense contractor, with gifts and entertainment which tended to promote favoritism in the awarding of subcontracts.

While the GAO said the gratuities and entertainment usually amounted to small sums — under $25 — Congress's investigative agency also detailed instances in Texas of alleged kickbacks and questionable charges by subcontractors.

The eight Texas firms were among two prime contractors and 28 subcontractors studied by the GAO at the request of a Joint Economic Subcommittee headed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

In many cases, the GAO said the cost of the gratuities and entertainment was passed on to the federal government through the prime contractors. Additionally, GAO officials observed that the questionable expenses were generally listed as deductible business costs on the subcontractor's income tax returns.

In Texas, GAO investigators found that:

- Two employees of Murdock Machine and Engineering Co., a former Bell subcontractor, received a total of $6,500 in "consultant fees" shortly after one of the employees sold surplus equipment to a Dallas-area dealer for one per cent of its estimated value.
- While the case was turned over to the Justice Department for review, a GAO spokesman said the Dallas FBI office did not believe the alleged scheme was in violation of any federal law. The two Murdock employees were dismissed, however, the report said.
- The Trio Manufacturing Inc., and the B&M Machine Co. frequently entertained the Bell employees who were instrumental in selecting subcontractors. The GAO said Bell records show that these two subcontractors held over 400 contracts with Bell — far more than most other subcontractors.
- In the case of the B&M Machine Co., its employees entertained three Bell officials a total of 65 times in one year. The entertainment generally consisted of meals and drinks costing less than $25 each time, the GAO said.
- In the case of the Trio Manufacturing Co., Bell officials had been similarly entertained 189 times over a two-year period ending Sept. 30, 1974. The Trio firm also purchased an airline ticket for a Bell employee and loaned credit cards and a television set to a Bell buying-group supervisor, the GAO said.
- A spokesman for Bell Helicopter in Fort Worth declined comment on the report. "We haven't seen the report," he said.
- Glenn Boydston, owner of B&M Machine, acknowledged that his company entertained Bell employees in the past. However, Boydston said the purpose was not to induce business.

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Gov. Jimmy Carter won two out of three of the preprimary presidential skirmishes last week, even though there wasn't a single vote cast in either one.

Just as important to the Carter campaign as his showing in the Iowa precinct caucuses was the announcement by former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina that he was getting out of the race.

But Carter's relatively poor showing in comparison with George Wallace in the Mississippi first-round delegate selection meetings was the other side of the coin.

Carter proved he was in the same league with the so-called "Washington-based" candidates by finishing a strong first in Iowa. Now, however, his hope of achieving national prominence as the only Democrat who can beat Wallace in the South is endangered.

Sanford's withdrawal is important for the North Carolina primary March 23. Originally it looked as if Sanford and Carter would split the moderate vote in North Carolina, leaving the rest of the field to Wallace. Now it's Carter and Wallace, one-on-one.

But before that, Carter must face a field of liberals in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts, then take on Wallace in Florida.

President Ford is getting a lot of surrogate help in his New Hampshire battle.

The Ford committee announced last week Treasury Secretary William Simon, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary David Mathews, Commerce Secretary-designate Elliot Richardson, Sen. John Tower of Texas and energy chief Frank Zarb will be among those stumping the Granite State for the President.

While Ford will campaign in New Hampshire the weekend of Feb. 7-8, the other administration figures will be sent because the President won't have time to match Reagan's heavier campaign schedule.

Reagan was running late recently when he swept through several desk-crowded floors of Mutual Grace Insurance Co. in Keene, N.H.

He smoothly handles appearances before large crowds, but with individual voters, he often appears ill at ease.

He explained to insurance company clerks and secretaries he didn't have time to shake individual hands. He stood in the middle of a spot clear of desks and waved and smiled.

"All I can do is stand here and feel kind of silly and wave," Reagan said. There was no response.

"Thank you, thank you," he said. He moved on.

Jewish groups, a consumers forum and the International Association of Machinists.

Carter announced he will enter the District of Columbia's May 4 primary, where his main challenge will be two favorite son slates, one headed by Mayor Walter Washington, and the other by Walter Fountroy, the District's nonvoting congressman.

Sanford's withdrawal came as an apparent surprise to his national staff working in New Hampshire.

"We're going ahead full steam in this office and around the state," Curt Moffatt, Sanford's scheduler and advance man, said less than 12 hours before Sanford withdrew.

The agenda for the Young Republican Leadership Conference in Washington this week has a distinctively conservative flavor. Keynote speaker is Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. Gov. James Edwards of South Carolina is a luncheon speaker. Reagan is addressing the "Bicentennial Banquet."

And although there is an item on the young Republicans' agenda labeled "base broadening," it is billed as "Rep. Steven Symms, Idaho, and Sen. James McClure, Idaho, vs. Rep. Paul McCloskey Jr., California."

Politicos Close the Gaps

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

Saying good-bye is not a unisex trait. There is a basic difference between the way a man says good-bye and a woman makes her exit. If you don't believe it, then try to imagine for a moment that a man has jumped out of a car and is saying good-bye to his good friend, Burt, with whom he has just had lunch.

"Hey, Burt, I've had a ball. You know we really ought to do this more often. I get in a rut. I really do. A ten-minute lunch at the desk out of a brown bag gets to be a drag. That peach melba for dessert is right here (pointing to hips). What the heck. You only live once, right? Was that a meringue crust? I think Bob served that one night at a cookout. Which reminds me, we owe them. I'm ashamed to look Bob and Doris in the face. We've been to their house eight times now and we've never entertained them."

"Listen, I'm holding you up and you're running all the gas out of your car. Did you just have your pistons ground? I thought so. You don't have to tell me if you don't want to, but where do you take your car to be serviced? Ed's Garage? That's where Stew takes his car. He's been a standing there for years. The only thing I heard about Ed is that he's overpriced, but you've been happy there."

"Hey, while I'm thinking of it, did you see who who was waiting to be seated while we were having lunch? Fred Fronkmyer. I'm not kidding."

He and his wife — you didn't know he was married again? Three months ago. I've been to all his weddings. He's going to keep doing it until he gets it right. We shouldn't joke about poor Fred. Listen, I've got to get going, these knee-length elastic stockings are killing me. One size fits all. Who are they kidding? You could amputate my leg to the knee as I'm standing here and it's so numb I wouldn't feel a thing.

"You were about to say something. No, no, I've got a minute. Say that again. Arnold and Velma are a role — changing? Arnold will be climbing the wall in two weeks. He doesn't even like children. Especially his own. Which reminds me, hasn't Bruce lost a lot of weight? If you ask me I think he's gone too far. He used to have a shape, but I saw him on the golf course the other day and he's about as sexy as a pencil."

"Must run. Listen, before I go, love your leisure suit. You should always wear green. I mean it. Call me sometime. You don't have my new number? Give me a pencil. You'd think I'd have a pencil in one of these pockets, wouldn't you? Silly. I'm not going to write my number on the back of your driver's license. You have to keep it until, good grief, Burt, it's expired. You're driving around with an expired license. Imagine that, a person three years older than I am driving around... say, Burt, speaking of age, guess how old... let 'em honk. I'm leaving in a minute..."

Twain Role a Lot to Bear

By EDWARD A. FULTON

DALLAS (UPI) — Hal Holbrook's portrayal of Mark Twain places a weight on the actor far heavier than the responsibility to entertain. The 40-year-old show has made Holbrook the custodian of America's best-loved literary legend.

Holbrook's stage presentations of "Mark Twain Tonight" provide for many their last encounter with Twain's thoughts and personality since perhaps a childhood reading of

"Huckleberry Finn."

"When I first started doing this show, I remember it was intimidating to think of the weight," Holbrook said. "When I began, I was in it in such a small way that nobody was making any waves about me. I was playing in such small places all over that I never felt that I was doing a hell of a lot to carry any legend anywhere."

"When the thing got to be very successful, I was aware of what was taking place. All I could do was to do him the way I think he would like. I have to interpret Twain with my head and my heart. Just as you would read him and get your own ideas. I have to leave it up to the intelligence and imagination of people to determine whether it's acceptable or not."

The show has surely been acceptable. Holbrook has been making a living doing Twain since 1948 when he was part of a two-person show in which he portrayed Twain and five other characters.

"I didn't know anything about Twain. I had to read just to find out the most superficial things and in reading about him I became very interested," Holbrook said.

"I began the research while I was out touring. I knew I was going to do a show alone and I had to develop an entire evening of Twain. The only way I knew to do it was to read everything he wrote. It was just a long job of sifting."

"There has been a rather enormous editing job done on the material to bring it into present focus. I select — and I have to take the responsibility for that. There is hardly a selection I do that would read the same way in the original Twain. The purpose is to talk about today through the words of a man who died many years ago."

He began the solo show in 1954, playing in the high school gymnasium of every little town in the Southwest and most of them in the South.

"I played from Seguin to Pecos. Name the town: I played Pampa, Borger, McAllen, Alice, Bonham, every where," Holbrook said.

"During those years (1954-1959), I was trying to squeeze into this person, creating physical things, a walk, a voice, arm movements, everything. It was mechanical. Then there comes a time when you hit up against a wall. It's a click, a relaxing, when you release your own energies, your own personality, your thoughts, your feelings. That is when the character takes on life."

"Oddly enough, that was when I opened in a little theater in New York and became very successful with it. Now when I'm out there on the stage, I don't think any more about being Mark Twain than I do about being Hal Holbrook. The two have merged for me now," Holbrook said regardless of his research and effort, he believes Twain would be appalled with "Mark Twain Tonight."

"I don't think he would be pleased with anybody doing him," Holbrook said. "I think he would say, 'What does that jerk think he is doing? Good Lord, I was no more like that than the man in and the moon' and Twain would resent the money I'm making."

"I think the thing that would probably please Twain is that he is still a new author to some people. That he is regarded as something to discover. That he said things that, in a sense, could have been said about today."

"He is fresh, you see. That would please him. And the fact that the estate was still making royalties would please him most of all."

Storage-Saving Features

Room enough for everything — including the kitchen sink — is only one feature in this "Kitchen of Storage Ideas" presented in the February issue of Family Circle Magazine. Extras include a unique knife storage and bins for food wraps, ventilated vegetable storage and an island of cooking utensils hanging over the cooking center. The kitchen was designed on the suggestions of wives of the nation's leading home builders.

Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors

In 1930 Paul Carmichael became manager of the Pampa Mortuary and began funeral direction services for Pampa residents that are continuing today.

Herman Whatley began working with Carmichael in 1937 and in 1965 he was made a member of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors, Inc.

The firm moved to their present location at 600 N. Ward ten years ago. Bob Carmichael said.

Paul Carmichael received 50-year recognition from the state's licensing body last year. The business is a member of National Selected Morticians — and organization of limited membership. Only one firm per city is permitted to join the National Selected Morticians and membership is by invitation only.

Bob Carmichael, second-generation mortician, is also a partner in the business. He said that currently a mortician must have one year of formal schooling and two years of apprenticeship before he can be licensed by the state.

His son, Doug Carmichael, is currently in training with the firm and has one year of apprentice work yet to complete.

The firm has maintained its own chapel facilities except for a period in 1965 when they were located in temporary quarters following a fire.

Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors, Inc., employs seven people.

Florida Clime Finds Soupy Warm and Well

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — For Soupy the naked duck, the third home of his short lifetime is the happiest and he now can be heard merrily quacking away.

Soupy, who was hatched last November without feathers in the tiny town of Sligo, Ky., is now staying at the home of Mrs. Alice Darling, a 73-year-old widow who also owns three dogs, three birds and a cat.

"He quacks and walks and talks all over this place," Mrs. Darling said. "He's just as cute as he can be."

Soupy wasn't always this happy. After he was born, the bald bird was kept bundled up in a blanket in the garage of Mrs. W.A. Wilson, who appealed for someone to take the duck for fear he might freeze with the cold Kentucky winter at hand.

Kathi Miller of Tampa drove all night to take him back to the warm climate. But Mrs. Miller and her husband soon found the duck too much to cope with and called Mrs. Darling for help.

"It's all over for Soupy now," Mrs. Darling said. "He is just going to sit next to me, keep warm and have a happy ending."

CURRENCY EXCHANGE

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Currency exchange houses here, closed since April 14, were authorized to open again in late November to facilitate money changing by tourists from neighboring countries.

In the interim, visitors were forced to stand in line at banks to buy Argentine pesos, or to use their own currency to buy goods in stores willing to accept foreign money.
