CIA Director Points Finger at Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former CIA Director Richard Helms said today congressional oversight of covert CIA activities has been inadequate and often made him feel "quite lonely" because he could not share his problems with Congress.

Helms also said if presidents directed the CIA to undertake an illegal activity, the agency director should "argue it out with the President."

Helms, CIA director from 1966 to 1973 and now ambassador to Iran, testified before the Senate Government Operations Committee which is studying improved congressional oversight of the entire U.S. intelligence community.

Helms, successor, William E. Colby, called a news conference Monday to denounce the leak of a House committee report that said, among other things, intelligence agencies vastly understated their expenses to congressional oversight committees. The report said the expenses ran in the neighborhood of $10 billion annually.

Colby, who is leaving the agency after 2½ years as director, said the leak was "the obvious bursting of the dam protecting many of our secret operations and activities."

Helms said he took full responsibility for everything that occurred in the agency during his tenure even though he did not always know all the details of covert operations and sometimes "things went a little farther than I realized."

In response to questions, Helms agreed there has not been sufficient congressional oversight of CIA operations. "I think there were many times when I would have liked to

A Senate vote on the nomination of George Bush to replace Colby was expected later today. Approval was by no means certain ahead of time because many senators objected to having a politician — Bush was a congressman and head of the GP — head the spy agency. Colby, speaking from the agency's Langley, Va., headquarters, said the report "should not have been issued" by the House intelligence committee "and should not have been leaked" to the New York Times.

City Looks at Fire Protection

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Pampa city commissioners today instructed City Manager Mack Wofford to open negotiations with Gray and Roberts Counties and the City of Lefors on a new cost method for furnishing fire protection to the outlying communities.

The decision was reached during discussion of an agenda item for renewal of fire contracts.

The city currently is providing fire protection to all three at a flat cost of $231 per run.

City Manager Mack Wofford suggested that since the city was actually losing money on the calls that the rate be raised $30 to $261 per run. If there are no fire calls over the period of the one-year contract there is no charge.

City Commissioner Joe Curtis said he didn't think it seemed fair to Pampa taxpayers to give out of - of - city residents a standby fire department for free.

Curtis suggested that probably there should be a charge per call plus a minimum charge for the available service.

"We're not trying to make money," Curtis said. He added he thought the city should receive a fair amount for making the service available. Curtis and Commissioner Linden Shepherd also said consideration possibly should be given to a flat annual charge for the fire protection service.

Wofford said that had been discussed with the Gray and Roberts Counties and Lefors in 1969 but no change was made.

He told commissioners the Pampa fire department averages about 100 runs per year outside the city limits under the current contracts. He said last year's total revenue from the calls was $23,920.

Commissioners did not renew the contracts today at the higher per call rate but decided to continue service at $230 per run until a decision is reached on the proposal for change.

Decision to make a pre-application for a $250,000 Housing and Urban Development grant under terms of the Community Development of 1974 was reached by commissioners.

Two public hearings on the pre-application were set for Feb. 10 following the commission's regular meeting and again at 9:30 a.m. Feb. 11.

The city manager said the money if granted would be applied to Pampa's $1.2 million five-year water line replacement program.

The pre-application he said would first go to the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission which would decide Pampa's chances of getting the grant and the need for making application to HUD.

In other business: Following a public hearing, commissioners asked that legislation be drawn authorizing a zoning change from SF - 2 to Commercial on all of Blocks 1 and 2 of the Mason Addition and Tract 137 - A.

The bid of G.W. James Material Co. at $28,919 was accepted for the paving of Perry St.

Tax service contracts with Gray County and the Pampa Independent School District were approved. The city's charge to each was raised from $4,200 a year to $4,800. It was explained by the city manager that the city does not make appraisals under the contract but merely supplies property descriptions and other information.

Action on a request for city cooperation in constructing an automobile drag strip was postponed until later when representatives of the National Hot Rod Association were unable to attend today's meeting.

A public hearing on proposed demolition of 17 vacant buildings was set for Feb. 24. The structures are located at 915 Murphy, 615 Campbell, 704 Brunow, 826 Brunow, 925 Brunow, 904 Scott, 836 and 813 Campbell, 611 N. Wynne, 716 and 715½ Henry, 331 - 33 Sunset Dr., 138 - 40 N. Burglars Hit Terminal Burglars at Hardin & Roth Truck Terminal, 805 W. Brown, may have planned to make a much bigger haul than they did this morning, but apparently they were scared off when Jay Lynn Roth, assistant manager, opened for business.

Roth first thought they had taken $1,000 in checks and $100 in cash, but he later found the checks and the money on the floor.

However, station tools valued at about $600 and $50 in postage stamps were missing, and the inventory was not complete at noon today.

Roth said entry was gained by using a tire tool to pry open a side door.

"I think they were still in when I came to work," he added. He explained that he went into the cafe in the building and was told that it sounded like someone was in the station.

"I came right over and things were strewn. My dad's El Camino was parked inside, and apparently they (burglars) were in the process of taking his Citizens Band radio. I think I scared them off," Roth said.

The burglars apparently exited through the back door. Roth said this is the first time the station has been burglarized but it was robbed several years ago.

In listing the missing tools, he included an electric drill, an air chisel, four impact wrenches and others.

"They got a few other things, too," he said. "They broke into a filing cabinet and took about $50 in stamps and a little change."

The burglary was reported to the Pampa Police Department at 6 a.m. Officers were continuing the investigation today.

Jurors Selected for Hearst Trial

By DONALD B. THACKREY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For Patricia Hearst, today was the start of her day in court. Her hopes lay in the hands of a top criminal lawyer who will argue she helped rob a bank because she thought she was a dead little girl if she didn't.

The prosecution had 50 witnesses and 40 photographs to try to prove the 21-year-old newspaper heiress stood in the bank lobby with a carbine in her hands two months after she was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army.

A major question in Miss Hearst's favor was, why?

A panel of 250 prospective jurors were to be brought into federal court today for selection of the 12 regular and six alternates who will spend a sequestered two months or more looking for the answer. Jury selection was expected to take two days at the most.

Miss Hearst was kidnapped from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment on Feb. 4, 1974. Later, on a tape recording, she said she had joined her captors, denounced her family and said she had fallen in love with one of the terrorists.

The abduction and the later series of crimes blamed on Miss Hearst and other members of the SLA touched off one of the biggest manhunts in U.S. history. It ended with the capture at gunpoint of Miss Hearst and three other members of the SLA in San Francisco last September.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter removed the last obstacle to the trial

Monday when he rejected a defense motion for dismissal on grounds the grand jury had not been told the details of her "violent abduction."

Carter said it was not the duty of a grand jury to decide guilt or innocence — simply whether there was enough evidence to bring an indictment.

Such was interest surrounding the trial that 111 seats were set aside for news media and only 66 for the general public plus six for Miss Hearst's family.

Carter refused to issue a "gag order" to prevent both sides from discussing a case which follows in the last six years on the heels of Sirhan Sirhan, the Manson "family," Angela Davis, Daniel Ellsberg, mass murderer Juan Corona and wuld-be presidential assassins Lynette Fromme and Sara Jane Moore.

At a hearing on the eve of her trial, Miss Hearst looked frail and remote sitting in the courtroom. There were dark circles below her eyes in a pale face. She wore a navy blue pants suit with a white scarf, and her auburn hair was combed in a smooth, long wave.

Fifteen feet away sat her parents, San Francisco Examiner president Randolph Hearst and his wife, Catherine, and his younger sister, Vicki. They smiled at each other and whispered inaudibly.

Monday's pretrial hearing turned into a shouting match involving U.S. Attorney James Browning Jr. and defense lawyer Albert Johnson over a prosecution motion over the "gag order."

Misspeaking himself, Browning demanded an "end to these out-of-state courtrooms."

Carter calmed them down. "Jury selection will begin tomorrow," he said. "You can't do much more damage."

As is customary in a federal court, Carter will put all the questions to the prospective jurors regarding their possible bias. The defense has suggested 102 specific questions to be asked and the prosecution about 50.

Johnson said he had no hope of finding anyone who never heard of the Patricia Hearst case — "only those who have not formed an opinion."

Once the jury is picked, the first prosecution witnesses are expected to be the employees, customers and bystanders at the Hibernia branch bank where $10,200 was taken and two men wounded during the getaway.

The other participants in the robbery were Donald De Freeze, the "Field Marshal General Cinque" of the SLA, Willie Wolfe, Nancy Ling Perry, Patricia Soltysik, Camilla Hall and Angela Alwood. All six died in a fiery shootout with police and the FBI in Los Angeles May 17, 1974.

The question of Miss Hearst's motivation in joining the bank holdup likely will fall to a battery of psychiatrists testifying for each side.

Still undisclosed was whether Miss Hearst herself would take the stand.

"That has not been decided," Johnson said Monday.

Easy info access—

A new kind of enterprise is flourishing in Washington — thanks to the Freedom of Information Act, which has pruned open the files of federal agencies, thanks more to the ever-growing volume of facts, data and documents churned out by the government, and probably thanks most of all to the pervasive presence of the federal bureaucracy in every aspect of our lives.

The enterprise is document retrieval, a field in which some half-dozen firms have sprung up in recent years with names like Disclosure, Inc., Federal Filing Service, Fast Federal Services, Washington Researchers, Washington Service Bureau and FACS (Fast, Accurate, Confidential Service), Inc. A large corporation, for instance, wants to know how the Federal Trade Commission might react to an action it is contemplating.

A widow with a claim with the Veterans Administration needs her husband's Army serial number.

A businessman wants to set up a profit-sharing plan and needs details from the Labor Department.

A consumer group wants to find out how a certain product fared in a Consumer Products Safety Commission test.

The answers to these and thousands of other questions from corporate executives, lawyers, financial institutions and private individuals are available in the bulging files of this or that government agency. But who knows where to look or has the time or resources to go to Washington to get the information?

That's where the "document detectives" come in.

There's nothing very mysterious about what we do," says FACS president Arthur Lewis. "All the information we have access to is public information. But our staff knows how to hone in on specific areas like bird dogs."

Most requests are processed within 24 hours. For that kind of service FACS charges a fee of $7.50, plus 50 cents a page for photocopying. If a customer must have the information the same day, the charge is $10, plus 60 cents a page. If he can wait a week, the cost is $6, plus 35 cents a page.

There appears to be no chance of a recession in the document retrieval business. "Sixty-seven federal agencies make over 7,000 rulings in one year's time," says Lewis. "That gives you an idea of just how much information is available. For businessmen, these files are gold mines."

And for those who mine them, too.

Clearing House

Editor: Clarendon College begins another semester of classes at the Pampa High School, both in the afternoon and evening. Enrollment seems to have grown considerably since last semester, or last year. I think that the citizens of the Pampa area are fortunate to have the opportunity to obtain a college education and we should show Clarendon College our gratitude and appreciation for their efforts to bring college education closer to our homes. It seems over the past few years people who have been out of school; individuals who have struggled to make a living have come to realize the value of some college education to get ahead. In the past working people have found it almost impossible to get this opportunity because of the distance they had to travel to classes.

Clarendon College is doing us a great service, providing some of the finest teaching personnel anywhere in the state. Anyone that has taken any courses comes away from the classes feeling that the staff of Clarendon College is concerned that every individual do their very best, learn as much as possible, and the professors seem to go out of their way to help. It is my hope we see more courses offered, that we see Clarendon College become a permanent member of our area with an off-campus college in Pampa. No doubt Frank Phillips is a fine college, but Clarendon College has taken it upon themselves to invest time and money and bring educational opportunity closer to home.

Question Box

QUESTION: Recently there was a news story that a Midwestern school board had banned the book "Jaws" from its library. Immediately there was a cry of "book burning" from several sides. Is it book burning for a tax-supported school district to deny students the right to read a best seller? Shouldn't the board be required to provide what the students want?

ANSWER: We do not consider such an action as book burning. It does demonstrate one of the principal objections people believing in freedom have to allowing a political agency to operate schools, libraries or any other educational facility.

When people establish a political agency to operate a school or a library, they set up a board to decide matters of policy and to appoint employees to carry out those policies.

In the case of a library, there are few such institutions which can provide all — or even a wide selection of — reading matter. The board and librarians are put in office to make choices. And choose they do. Generally speaking, such boards, particularly in smaller communities, will make selections in accordance with what they think is best for their community. Or the decision may be a political one based on what the board members believe the majority — sometimes the most vocal majority — want. It is seldom that such a board can make selections satisfactory to all of a community. So they will weed out anything that they think will bring objections, and many times provide only the most bland diet of reading fare, just as most tax-supported schools don't and probably can't provide anything more than a bland, unsatisfactory training for the young people because subjects and courses must be designed to offend the smallest number of voters and parents.

We have pointed out many times that tax-supported schools can never be completely satisfactory, even at their best, because of the political nature. It is the same with libraries financed by taxes.

Only when there is a market to guide teachers and librarians is there a possibility to provide what the people want. They will tell the entrepreneur what they want when they buy or rent the library or when they make use of the educational facility. Anything else can hardly hope to satisfy the prospective consumer.

Child's 'Leash' May Be Lifesaver

DEAR ABBY: May I please respond to INDIGNANT MOTHER, who tried to justify placing her child in a harness to save him from being lost or run over, or falling down a flight of stairs?

A child should be taught — not leashed! To defend using a harness by saying it's for the child's protection is a cop-out used by parents who are too lazy or busy to look after their own children. There is no substitute for a mother's personal attention.

Of course, unkind remarks from strangers are out of place, but someone should open the eyes of mothers who put leashes on children. Maybe the mothers should put leashes on THEMSELVES and be walked through stores and airports for their "protection." Adults also get lost, run over and fall down stairs.

I say, God giveth and God taketh away, harness or no harness.

UNLEASHED IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR UNLEASHED: Please read on for another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: This is for INDIGNANT MOTHER, who was frequently subjected to insults from strangers because she used a harness on her 2-year-old child.

I, too, used a harness, and a plain, old-fashioned dog leash on my two children when they were toddlers. They were only 11 months apart in age and quite a handful. While I worked in the yard or hung my clothes outside, I'd clip their harnesses to the clothes line so they could run and play within safe limits.

While shopping with my harnessed youngsters, I collected many cold stares from strangers. Some even reminded me that I was raising children — not dogs.

Then, something happened that made it easier for me to bear those insults. A beautiful, 2-year-old neighbor girl was killed. Two minutes earlier, she was beside her mother in the kitchen. There was one broken-hearted mother, one dead child and one unsuspecting driver who didn't see the wee curly head dart from between two parked cars until he felt the thump of a wheel go over her little body.

That was 25 years ago. Today I am the mother of two living children and six grandchildren, and I thank God that He gave me the intelligence to value the lives of my children above the criticism of a few "know-it-alls."

Indignant mother, forget your indignation and rock your living baby to sleep. Keep him harnessed until he's old enough to understand simple danger. It's much better than carrying flowers to a small grave.

MRS. O.K. IN VA.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to the mother who uses a harness on her small child! Many mothers don't use one because they are afraid of appearing "cruel."

As a physical therapist, I have treated many small children for dislocated shoulders caused by impatient parents who have literally pulled their children's arms out of their sockets holding onto their hands in traffic.

A dislocated shoulder can go undetected for a long time while causing much damage and discomfort.

ALL FOR HARNESSSES

Tom Tiede
Primaries:red herring before the deluge?

By Tom Tiede

ORLANDO, Fla. — (NEA) — Selected associates of Ronald Reagan are beginning to believe that the fight for the Republican presidential nomination will end — one way or the other — in Florida's May 9 primary. The feeling is that if Reagan wins in New Hampshire, then repeats the victory here, the public will thereafter abandon a President so weak. But if Reagan stumbles in either state, momentum will be lost against a seated chief executive, possibly for good.

Though speculation, this kind of foreward to the 1976 campaign is an indictment of the way the political parties choose their heroes. Clearly, neither Ford nor Reagan are popular enough for voters in just two small states to make the national decision between them. Yet it could happen. It has happened. The downfall of Lyndon Johnson, it's remembered, began in 1968's New Hampshire primary when Eugene McCarthy and the voters combined for the coup.

There is a word for this kind of political shaking out: risky. Emotions of the moment are weak roots for democratic leadership. Yet the American system of staggered primary selection virtually assures that emotions — and theatrics and mindless energy — will play a principal role in party making. Few candidates can survive 30 primaries as statesmen; merely the best salesmen are there at the end.

To be sure, hawking is the chief strategy for both sides in Florida's Republican race. And it is embittered, somewhat hate-filled hawking as well. Taking a page from his mentor, benefactor, Ford is gearing up to sell the voters the idea he is their President. To counter, Reagan is peddling the idea he is their last hope, promising such exaggerations as a 23 per cent tax and $90 billion budget cut. Meanwhile, both staffs spend great amounts of time belittling each other, all the while insisting, with small evidence, that given the alternative their champions will have no worries on election day.

This drumming involves huge sums of money, of course, about $1.9 million altogether, or $4 for each of the votes that will be cast. Not surprisingly it also involves some highly suspicious morality: Reagan's people insist Ford's people have taken a poll which gives the President a mere single point advantage among questioned voters. Ford's people say all polls show the President leading comfortably. Ho hum. Nonetheless, somebody is lying, or at least misrepresenting.

There are those here who wonder about the profit of all this salesmanship. Noting soberly that "We Republicans are a relatively small group of people," Ford campaign publicist John Coleman also reminds that the division of fractions produces even smaller fractions. Yet at the same time he admits to no responsibility on his side: "We've got a President in office, we've got the incumbency advantage, why does this other guy want to step in and mess things up?"

And so it goes. The posturing, the sleight of hand, the peddling. Ford's campaign director recently commented that though his head was with the President, his heart was with Reagan. When the quote spread he issued a retraction, this time insisting that his "heart, head, hands and feet" and presumably liver were with the President alone.

Wonderful, but what does it mean? A headline or two, a moment's controversy, a roomful of mimeographed corrections? It does not put food on the tables of the unemployed, because primary politics never do.

In essence the primaries are a time of suspended meaningfulness, and of immobilized creativity. The idea is not to be brilliant but successful, to cater to the greatest number of special interest groups, to charm the largest percentage of the computer listings, to solicit the most important of the party's powerful. Promise them anything, like a 23 per cent tax cut, but get them all on the right side.

It is shabby business, to say the least, one that does not bode well for anything but four more years of four more years. Check that. The primaries also tend to reinforce the conviction among legions of concerned Americans that whatever hasn't happened in politics will happen, and that when it does no one will be safe from it.

What people are saying...

Sen. Edward Kennedy

"It is not impossible that people throwing these stories around have another target. John Kennedy is dead. The real target now is Ted Kennedy, even though he says he won't run for the presidency."

Pierre Salinger, press secretary to John F. Kennedy, referring to allegations concerning the late president's sex life.

"We do not want Africa to be a testing ground for sophisticated weapons."

Sir Seretse Khama, President of Botswana, calling for a peaceful settlement in Angola.

"Now that Dr. Cassidy is safely out of Chile, I can state what we have up to now deliberately refrained from publicizing. This is that Dr. Cassidy was tortured by the Chilean security police. No British government can accept such uncivilized, brutal treatment of a British subject at the hands of a foreign government."

James Callaghan, British Foreign Secretary, reacting to the torture of a British doctor in Chile.

"The Cuban revolution has not only radically changed the face of the country, but also has made an indelible imprint on the whole liberation struggle of Latin America... if the possibility today of a 'second liberation' of (Latin America) is becoming a more realistic prospect, this is to a considerable degree the result of the influence of the Cuban example."

Mikhail A. Suslov, the Soviet Politburo's revolutionary strategist.

"Television: the great molester of children, cannot be redeemed with the sprinkling of a few sesame seeds."

Dr. James Billington, director of the Smithsonian Institution's International Center for Scholars, in an address to the National Association of Episcopal Schools.

"Let's get one point clear. All throughout the struggle against Portuguese colonialism and all the time we were subject to exploitation, oppression and the worst brutalities, Mr. Kissinger had absolutely nothing to say."

Dr. Agostinho Neto, leader of the MPLA in Angola, responding to a question about Henry Kissinger's concern that the presence of the Soviet Union in Angola is upsetting world equilibrium.

"Spanking and punishment, particularly at the hands of authority figures who are not trusted and respected, is often ineffective, and even incites delinquent behavior... Excessive spanking provides the young child with a model for handling frustration and disagreement that he or she will use again and again — to fight others, to rear their own children and to handle conflict."

Hartmann Predicts Humphrey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Counsellor Robert Hartmann sat in the White House chuckling over the Iowa and Mississippi showings of Jimmy Carter and George Wallace and predicted Hubert Humphrey will be the Democratic presidential nominee.

"Well, I still think so after the Iowa and Mississippi caucuses," Hartmann said Monday. "I think Hubert will get it — if he can avoid getting into the primaries, if he can remain a noncandidate."

Although President Ford has brought Rogers C.B. Morton into the White House as a political liaison, Hartmann remains most veteran of Ford's most senior advisers. And the size of his office — second only to Ford's own — is something of a testament to Hartmann's clout.

Talking about Ford and politics, Hartmann also said:

— No, the President has not adopted a strategy of moving to the political right to defeat Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination and then shifting toward the center to defeat the Democratic candidate in the November election.

"The President has portrayed himself as he is, really is, in the State of the Union message... It (shifting first right and then to the left or center) would create a credibility gap at the worst possible time," Hartmann said.

— Ford was not reciting a final list when he told visiting New Hampshire editors last week he was giving consideration as running mate on the GOP ticket to Sens. Charles Percy, Howard Baker, William Brock and Edward Brooke and various governors as well as Commerce Secretary-designate Elliot Richardson.

"I got the feeling that he was speaking from the top of his head and not giving an all-inclusive list. That list is capable of being added to — and subtracted from," Hartmann said.

— Ford is pleased that in his judgment the campaign has been one more of issues than of personalities. "I think you have to say that Reagan himself is issue oriented," the counsellor said.

— If Ford is elected, yes, he almost surely will face again a Democratic-controlled Congress. But, said Hartmann, his election would be a message from the voters to the lawmakers and the lawmakers would cooperate with the President on his program.

— "I venture to say the platforms of the two major parties will be fairly similar. That the federal government must be activist in getting things to happen, on what the national priorities are, that the federal government is trying to do too much and spending is out of hand and that both will display caution about making any big promises..."

— Hartmann said he believes Ford will make no changes in his current Cabinet and other top administrative posts before the election "unless one of them gets his nose too far out of joint."

US Vetoes UN Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The United States has cast its 13th veto in U.N. history to block a resolution calling for establishment of an independent Palestinian state and Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory.

The vote was 9-1 Monday night in favor of the resolution. Britain, Italy and Sweden abstained and China and Libya refused to take part in the vote. However, the U.S. ballot was all that was needed to kill the measure.

U.S. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan told the Council he vetoed the resolution because the negotiating framework of the Geneva Middle East peace conference established under previous U.N. resolutions "would have been altered in ways that would have been seriously harmful to the future of the peace-making process."

He said the veto was based not on antipathy to the aspirations of the Palestinians, but on the conviction that passage would not better their condition "nor be the most effective way of addressing the long neglected problem of their future in the context of an overall settlement."

In Washington, the State Department said "there would be no chance of further progress if this negotiating framework, painfully erected over years of trial and error, were not left intact."

The two-week debate on the Middle East brought a tactical victory to the Arabs in gaining recognition for the Palestine Liberation Organization as a major political factor in the Middle East.

Israel boycotted the session because the PLO was included in the debate.

Junior Symington To Seek Senate Seat

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Rep. James W. Symington, the 48-year-old son of retiring Sen. Stuart Symington, has announced he will seek his father's seat in the state's Democratic primary next summer.

In a series of five news conferences throughout Missouri Monday, Symington said he would run on his own record, and not try to get the job through the influence of his famous father.

"I am running on my 16 years of national experience, eight of them in Congress," Symington said.

He enters a race expected to be fought among five major candidates. Besides Symington, former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and former U. S. Attorney F. Russell Millin already have filed for the race, and Rep. Jerry Linton, D-Mo., and Kansas City Mayor Charles B. Wheeler are expected to file.

Symington was U. S. Chief of Protocol under President Lyndon B. Johnson. He had practiced law until 1958, when he began a series of various government jobs. In 1968, veteran Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., ran unsuccessfully for the Senate seat captured by Sen. Thomas R. Eagleton. Symington replaced Curtis, removing half of the state's Republicans in congress.

"My program in a nutshell will be to strengthen the American family and the farm," Symington told a news conference at the Kansas City Municipal Airport. "By doing so, we will strengthen the domestic economy."

Symington's stand on abortion, however, was expected to lose him support of many favoring a strong anti-abortion law.

A major issue in the 2nd District in 1974 was Symington's non-support for a proposed constitutional amendment nullifying the Supreme Court's decision allowing women to have abortions in the first three months of pregnancy.

Texas Primary On For Sure

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department cleared Texas' presidential primary bill late Monday afternoon, thus removing any threat of state officials calling off the May 1 state primary.

A spokesman for Justice, which had been reviewing the new Texas law since early January, said the federal government after "careful analysis saw nothing to object to" in the state primary bill.

Under the extended Federal Voting Rights Act which effects Texas for the first time, state and local election laws and other changes in the election process dating back to Nov. 1972, must be cleared by the Justice Department or a U.S. District Court in Washington.

In reviewing the election materials, Justice officials must determine their impact on language and racial minorities.

Texas' new primary law calls for election of presidential delegates to the nominating convention in the state's 31 senatorial districts. In response to a request by Justice officials, Texas Secretary of State Mark White had sent to Washington a map of the senatorial districts and 1970 census data for each district.

Because there are no black state senators, minority group representatives had charged that the new primary bill, known as the "Bentsen Bill" (for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D - Houston) discriminated against them.

Based on Monday's decision, Justice concluded the bill had no discriminatory impact on minority groups. White's office in Austin said the secretary of state out of town this morning and could not be reached for comment. A spokesman for Bentsen said the senator "expected it would be approved."

Bentsen, who is seeking both the Presidency and reelection to the senate is said to have influenced the drafting of the bill, which gives the winner in each district all presidential delegates.

Justice's latest decision followed by one working day a decision to object to parts of the state's legislative redistricting bill. Under this ruling, Justice refused to clear redistricting affecting only Tarrant and Jefferson Counties.

In a letter dated Jan. 23, J.P. Pottinger, head of the Justice's Civil Rights Division, told White that his department's "evaluation indicates" that minority residential concentration is fragmented in those two counties, thereby causing a discriminatory effect.

As far as changes in the other legislative districts, Justice could find no evidence of a discriminatory impact on minority groups.

Two Thefts Reported

Two separate theft reports were received Monday night by the Pampa Police Department including gasoline and construction material.

Richard Hernandez, superintendent for the Texas Engineering Co. of Amarillo, said his firm's material was being stolen from the rodeo grounds.

The theft, he said, occurred between Saturday and Monday. The missing material included 26 pieces of 12-foot galvanized sheet iron and 19 pieces of eight-foot sheet iron.

Becky Cook, an employee of Allsup's Grocery, 1900 N. Hobart, said someone took $9.45 in regular gas without paying.

Rabin, Ford Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israeli officials are disavowing published reports their government wants to wait until after the U.S. elections this fall before accepting American efforts to obtain a Middle East peace.

Israel Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, in the United States to lobby for his country's interests, was to meet today with President Ford, who has indicated he may travel to the Middle East this year.

A spokesman for the Israeli embassy said that contrary to reports Israel will stall U.S. peace efforts until after the election — and the possibility of a U.S. administration more favorable to Israel's interests — Rabin will urge the earliest possible reconvening of the Geneva conference.

Teamster Continues Game Tactics with Jury

DETROIT (UPI) — New Jersey teamster Stephen A. Andretta walked into a federal grand jury room today to answer more questions about former Teamster boss James Hoffa's disappearance and immediately resumed his hide-and-seek tactics with the jury.

The 40-year-old union official from Little Ferry, N.J., entered the federal building jury room a few minutes after 10 a.m., stayed for about a minute and then left the room to consult with his attorney, William Bufalino Sr.

Last Thursday Andretta walked out of the room 27 times to seek Bufalino's advice on answers for the grand jury.

Andretta has spent 47 days in a Milan, Mich., federal prison for initially refusing to answer a grand jury question Dec. 10. U.S. District Court Judge Ralph M. Freeman cited Andretta with contempt for his refusal.

Although Andretta appeared last week and again entered the jury session today, he is still under Freeman's contempt ruling.

Andretta was given immunity from prosecution for his testimony, even though he didn't want it. When he declined last month to tell jurors where he was July 30, the day Hoffa vanished from a suburban restaurant, Freeman ordered him jailed until he was ready to answer.

Bufalino said last Thursday that Andretta answered the first question and thus purged himself of the contempt citation. But Freeman, apparently annoyed at Andretta's frequent trips outside the jury room, let the citation stand. Bufalino has said he will appeal that ruling.

Federal prosecutors want Andretta's testimony because his 38-year-old brother, Thomas, has been named by an informant as one of three men responsible for Hoffa's disappearance. The three, however, have not been charged in the case.

The Andrettas are connected with a Teamsters local in Union City, N.J. Another official with that local is Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano. Hoffa said he was meeting Provenzano at the Machus Red Fox Restaurant the day he vanished.

Five Receive DWI Sentences

Five persons were sentenced Monday on charges of driving while intoxicated after they entered pleas before County Judge Don Cain.

He fined two $100 plus court costs and ordered them to serve three days in jail — a sentence they had already served.

They include Warren Harding Vicars, 55, of Perryton, and Tall C. Berryman, 48, of Pampa. Those who were fined $200 plus court costs and received six month probated terms include William Jerry Kinslow, 17, of Pampa, Randall Kerry Brown, 23, of Skellytown, and Derrel Elwood Hext, 20, of Pampa. Charletta Yvonne Blackmon pleaded innocent to charges of possession of marijuana, less than two ounces. Her trial will be scheduled for a later date.

John W. Warner, county attorney, represented the state in the guilty pleas.

Judge Cain warned each of the dangers of alcohol. Warner said terms of probation require that not one drop of alcohol be consumed during the probation term.

There's Meaning in that Chirping

By JAMES J. DOYLE PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The little bird that chirps outside your window may have learned his song much the same way a child learns language, by imitating adult speech. Dr. Masakazu Konishi of California Institute of Technology said some species of birds inherit the ability to sing their songs. Others learn by mimicking the songs of adult birds.

And in some species, the pattern of song varies with locality, like dialects in humans.

The dialect accents are transmitted through the generations by young birds learning from adult singing.

Konishi, who studies the vocal development in birds in his research on behavioral development, said each species of bird has a unique repertoire of

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Perhaps it was a tongue-in-cheek, sales-raising pep talk for executives. Then again, it may be a serious quest.

Whatever the intent, General Motors' "60-60-60" plan has heated up the long-simmering market share war between GM and the Ford Motor Co. The losers could be the two smaller members of the U.S. auto industry — Chrysler and American Motors.

GM executives now say the "60-60-60" plan was just for internal consumption. Translated, it meant 60 per cent of the domestic car market with GM stock selling at $60 by the time the top two executives reached their 60th birthdays.

The only part that hasn't been accomplished is the 60 per cent share of the market.

Ford executives, while generally sidestepping any name-calling feud over market shares, have been heard to mutter that if — and they really qualify that "if" — GM ever did get a 60 per cent share, it wouldn't come out of Ford's share.

The stakes are high. It can cost hundreds of millions of dollars to bring a new car from the drawing board to the dealer's showroom.

A one percentage point gain in market share — 70,000 cars even in depressed 1975 — can bring a third of a billion dollars in revenue into a company's bank account. It's not a nickel and dime game.

The first three months of the 1976-model year (October-December of 1975) give a glimpse of the bruising battle between GM and Ford and the problems faced by Chrysler and AMC.

In those final three months, GM grabbed a 54 per cent share of the market, slightly above its normal level, and Ford increased from a traditional 27.5 per cent share to 29.4 per cent. Both Chrysler and AMC lost ground — Chrysler falling to 12.8 per cent largely because of a late 1976-model introduction and AMC to a low 3.8 per cent.

The industrywide small car surge of the 1974 and 1975 model years created a see-saw market, with Ford and GM jockeying for position.

When the oil embargo in the autumn of 1973 created a market for small cars GM, the traditional big-car specialist, floundered through most of 1974 while Ford and AMC picked away at GM's carefully nurtured share of the domestic industry.

GM added a slew of small models to its lineup — Monza, Astre, Sunbird, Skyhawk and Starfire. None was a high volume line, but all helped rebuild GM's share of the market in 1975.

Ford countered with Granada and Monarch in the compact class and played the add-a-car game with the Mercury Bobcat, a more luxurious version of the Pinto.

The end result was a virtual stalemate between the two, with their market shares in the first nine months of 1975 virtually unchanged from 1973. In the secondary war, Chrysler lost ground to AMC.

Auditions Seek Voice Talent

Auditions for the Metropolitan Opera in the southwest region will be Feb. 21 in San Antonio College's McAllister Auditorium.

Preliminary auditions for the west Texas and New Mexico district will be Feb. 7 at the University of Texas at El Paso. For all other areas in the region, preliminary auditions will be Feb. 19 and 20 in San Antonio.

Local sponsors of the auditions are the Junior Leagues of San Antonio and El Paso.

Regional auditions have been used by the Metropolitan Opera National Council since 1953.

Enrollments Limited In New Course

James Welch, safety director from Ft. Worth, will instruct a Multi Media Instructor Class Feb. 3 and 4 in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

Prerequisite for the course is completion of the Standard Multi Media course. Enrollments are limited and further information is available from the Gray County chapter of the American Red Cross, 669-7121.

Classes will meet from 12:30-5 p.m.

Patriotic Show Here Thursday

"Easy to Love America" — a two-hour concert saluting the bicentennial — will play to a Pampa audience at M.K. Brown Auditorium Thursday.

Curtain time for the show which covers American music during the past 200 years is 8 p.m. "Easy," a group of four area musicians, will also provide humorous interpretations from the nation's history.

Tickets for the show are $3 and proceeds will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Later, in sexual maturity, the bird will hear his own sound and compare it to the model he heard.

Falls are out-ranked only by motor vehicle accidents as a cause of accidental death. More than half of all fatal falls occur at home.

Jaycees An Open Group

Pampa Jaycee President Richard Morris has invited young men between the ages of 18 and 36 to attend Jaycee meetings.

He added that the local organization is active and is "the only truly young men's organization in Pampa."

Wives may join the Jayceeettes, he said. Local meetings are held at speech, in that there is a critical period of there are several similarities in language acquisition," he said. "In humans there is a critical period in child development when speech is learned and the bird's song is also acquired during a period of early development."

If a white-crowned sparrow fails to hear normal song between the second and seventh weeks after birth, it will develop an abnormal song that cannot be corrected.

This kind of sparrow also learns dialect, Konishi said, and knows which songs to learn. It copies the songs of its own kind, but refuses to learn the songs of other birds.

Konishi said a study using computer-generated songs shows the bird uses simple acoustical cues and does not sing during the learning period, but just listens.

Club News

"Planting Red" — for a bicentennial garden — was the first in a series of three programs to be given to members of the Pampa Garden Club.

Mrs. Georgia Holding presented the program and advised members on the ideal plants to be used for special height and color effects.

Mrs. Holding said the Eutin rose, Grotendorst and Robin Hood roses produce good color effects and for height she recommended the canna and the Scarlet Ruffle zinnia.

Some more compact plants named during the program included Sprinter geranium, red cockscomb, several varieties of petunias and mums.

Members also elected new officers who will be installed in May. They are Mrs. Rue Hestand, president; Mrs. E.L. Hudson, first vice president; Mrs. Marion Brown, second vice president; Mrs. A.B. Cross, treasurer; Mrs. Lee Moore, recording secretary; Mrs. Booker Mohon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C.C. Matheny, historian, and Mrs. Helen Knox, parliamentarian.

Next meeting of the club will be Feb. 2 and the program will include a panel on blue and white plantings.

The Southwestern T-Bone Club will meet Thursday at the Big Texan Steak House in Amarillo for a dinner meeting, according to Rex McAnelly, president.

Speaker at the dinner will be Bill Clayton, speaker of the house. Tickets are $7.

The development of folk music in America from the 18th century to present times was discussed during the Monday meeting of the Retired Teachers Association.

John Glover, minister of music for the First Baptist Church, presented the program during a session held in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas.

He discussed themes of certain ballads and told how they express feeling and emotions of the people in a specific area and time.

The speaker illustrated each period by singing a typical ballad or hymn.

He included "My Horses Ain't Hungry," "Oh, Susanna," and "All Day in the Saddle." He also sang "There's a Church in the Wild Wood," and "America the Beautiful."

Other participants were Mrs. Lula B. Owen and Mrs. Quentin Williams.

Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. B.R. Nuckols, Mr. and Mrs. B.G. Gordon, Ms. Elsie Cunningham and Ms. Ruby Smith.

Forty-five members attended.

"The Promise Fulfilled — The Promise Broken" was the program topic presented during the Tuesday meeting of the 20th Century Cotillion.

Mrs. Dean Copeland, speaker, discussed first attempts toward equal rights for women. The new slate of officers for the coming year includes Mrs. Fred Simmons, president; Mrs.

John Osborne, vice president; Mrs. Russell Neefe, secretary; Mrs. Clarence Kirby, treasurer; Mrs. Ed Brainard, public relations; Mrs. Charles Lair, antique show chairman with Mrs. W.B. McIntyre as co-chairman. Mrs. Jerry Kotara is parliamentarian.

During the business session, Mrs. Timothy Hoiles was welcomed as a new member. Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. Ralph McKinney. Preparation is now underway for the 1976 antique show set April 1-3.

"Today's Texas" was the theme of the recent meeting of the Lefors Art & Civic Club in the Civic Center. A puzzle made by one of the members with questions pertaining to Texas history was worked by each one present.

The business meeting was called to order by Mrs. Joe Watson who announced that the piano for the Civic Center was paid in full. The club will cater the jr. and sr. banquet this year if it can be moved to a different date.

The Villanueva family suffered a fire in their home and the club voted to give them a gift certificate with which to purchase items they will need.

Following the parliamentary tip the secretary read the Constitution and officers were elected for the 1976-77 year.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Jerrel Julian and Mrs. Chestine Dunn.

Members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary at Flotilla 52, a booth during the upcoming Boat Sports and Travel Show in the Amarillo Civic Auditorium, Jan. 30 - Feb. 1, will talk with interested boat owners.

Members of the Flotilla are prepared to discuss safety equipment required for awarding of the auxiliary's 1976 decal.

Proper boating procedures will also be discussed. This is the fourth year that Flotilla 52 of the USCG has offered a course in the Amarillo area.

Ruth Sullins Wilkerson, a former Pampa resident, addressed a meeting of TOPS Club TX-149 in the educational building of the Central Baptist Church recently.

Mrs. Wilkerson, International Division 2 winner in 1974 and Kansas State TOPS Queen that year, told the audience that under the TOPS program, she was able to lose 164½ pounds in 11 months. She now lives in Wichita, Kan.

Guests at the meeting were members of other local TOPS clubs, TX-840 and TX-41.

STAR-SPANGLED HISTORY

HISTORICAL DRAWINGS BY JOSEPH BOGGS BEALE (1841-1920)

NATHAN HALE

Twenty-one year old Nathan Hale had volunteered for a special assignment: he was to obtain information on the British position for General Washington. Disguising himself as a Dutch schoolmaster, Hale had successfully crossed British lines and was returning to the American side when he was captured. Many believe he was betrayed by a cousin. Before being hanged as a spy by the British, he made for himself a place in history when he said, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." Harvester Post Winslow Ellis (54), used sparingly against Amarillo Caprock Friday, may start against the Amarillo Tascosa Rebels, who visit Harvester Fieldhouse for a 7:45 p.m. game today. Ellis, a 6-6 junior, will have the task of covering 6-4 junior post, Dwight Cleveland, Tascosa's leading scorer with a 15.8 average. Tascosa was the pre-season favorite to win the District 3-AAAA championship, while Pampa was picked to finish second.

Pampa Entertains Rebels

Two of the three first-half leaders in District 3-AAAA meet today when Pampa hosts Amarillo Tascosa at 7:45 p.m. in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Pampa, 18-4 for the season, is 1-0 in district play after a 53-45 win over Amarillo Caprock Friday. Tascosa, 11-9 and 1-0 after a 71-66 win over Amarillo Palo Duro, was the pre-season favorite to capture the district championship.

The Rebels have been slowed by a knee injury to Lewis Moore, who will miss today's game, and a lack of overall consistency.

Rebel Coach Dave Camfield was satisfied with his team's play against Palo Duro, even though Tascosa was expected to make the game a rout.

"That was the first time in two years we've gone without Lewis Moore in the starting lineup. They didn't know what they could do. And, in the first three minutes of the game we lost Mike Lorenc with a turned ankle," Camfield said.

"We were able to still go into the locker room at halftime with the lead. Mike came back in the second half and gave us senior leadership.

"We played real good considering the mental problems our kids were adjusting to. I was pleased with them. We did not have a senior on the floor."

Lorenc, a 6-0 senior guard, is Tascosa's "best player", said Pampa Coach Robert McPherson. The Rebel guard, a returning starter, is averaging 12.3 points per game.

The leading scorer on the team is Dwight Cleveland, a 6-4 junior post averaging 15.8 points. Other starters include 6-3 junior forward Lloyd White, 6-0 junior guard Greg Morgan and either 6-6 junior forward DeWayne Gilbreath or 6-0 junior Cliff Defee.

Gilbreath quit the team recently but has been readmitted, according to Camfield.

He said, "We had a pretty good workout today (Monday). It was very evident we were anticipating a very difficult ball game from the atmosphere of the kids. They have a lotta respect for Pampa even though most of them haven't seen Pampa play."

"The score will probably be in the 50's and the team that gets in foul trouble will be severely handicapped."

That may be particularly true for the Rebels, who have little bench strength.

McPherson, like Camfield, expects a tough battle. "I think it'll be a close ball game, a very physical ball game. We win against them, we've got to do another good job on defense," McPherson said.

Pampa starters will be 6-4 junior Donnie Hughes, averaging 14.2 points and 8.3 rebounds; 6-2 junior Brian Bailey, 12.1, 6.1; 6-1 senior Jewel Landers, 5.6, 8.1; 6-1 senior Richard Lane, 8.2, 4.4, and either 6-6 junior Winslow Ellis, 4.3, 4.2, or 5-10 senior Forrest Taylor, 1.3, 1.0.

Should Taylor start at guard, Hughes will play the post position. Should Ellis play, Hughes will move to forward and Landers and Bailey will play the guard spots.

"I don't think Tascosa is as good as they were a year ago," McPherson said, "from the simple standpoint they don't have the depth or as much guard play as they did a year ago."

"Lorenc is an outstanding guard, though, and a fine outside shooter. I don't think they shoot as good as they did last year."

"Their strong point is their rebounding. And Mike Lorenc is the key to their ball club. He handles the press real well and he's a very smart player."

"I also think Lloyd White is a real good player. He didn't play last year but every time I've seen him, I've been impressed. Cleveland is real tough around the basket, as is Gilbreath."

The junior varsity contest will start at 6 p.m. today in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Pampa, 15-5 for the season, will start 6-2 Junior Keith Fisher at post, 6-2 sophomore Rickey Buntun and either 6-2 sophomore Rusty Ward or 6-1 sophomore at forwards and 5-9 junior Mark Ebenkamp and either 6-0 sophomore David Greene or 5-6 sophomore Tim Reddell at guards.

In other 3-AAAA games today, Amarillo Palo Duro hosts Borger and Amarillo High visits Caprock.

Caps in Last Place, But Trying

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — When people sit down and start talking about losing teams, those who lost so often they weren't simply awful anymore, they were funny, someone will bring up the early New York Mets, the Cleveland Cavaliers of a few seasons back or perhaps Virginia and Kansas State, still co-holders of the major college football record for losing 28 straight.

Which is the worst team ever? There has to be a lot of lively debate over that one. My own personal choice among the teams I've seen would have to be the bumbling, fumbling 1962-1963 Mets, who set a major league record by losing 231 games over that period, but I'm not so sure the present

Washington Capitals of the National Hockey League are any better. They are in a word, pathetic.

People thought they were bad last season, their first in the NHL, when they managed to win only eight of the 80 games they played. This year, though, they're worse, with only four wins in 49 contests.

The Caps are last in their division and last in the league. Detroit, the team above them in the standings, is so far ahead it's almost out of sight. The Caps trail the Red Wings by 21 points.

So earth-shaking a development was it considered when the Caps beat the New York Rangers, 7-5, for their fourth victory of the season last Friday after going 25 straight games without a win, one TV channel in Washington led off its nightly news program with the heart-stopping announcement:

"The Capitals won a game! Stay tuned for further details."

When the game was over, the Washington players bubbled over, hugging and congratulating each other as if they had just won themselves the Stanley Cup. Forgotten in the general exhilaration was the sobering fact that these were only the floundering last-place in-their-own-division Rangers they had beaten, and not the world champion Philadelphia Flyers.

That didn't matter to most of the fans on hand, some of whom got up on their feet and gave the Caps a standing ovation. One fan, with a cup of beer in each hand and obviously, carried away a little, leaned over the boards and hollered out to the players. "Hey, we're number 17!"

Sports

PAMPA DAILY NEWS Tuesday, January 27, 1976 7

Not quite. Even the most optimistic Washington fan concedes there is virtually no hope of catching Detroit this season.

Next season, maybe things will be different. At least that's what the Caps hope, remembering that the New York Islanders won only 12 games their first season while losing 101 in their first two, but came on strong with young players to make the playoffs in their third year of operation. That's the Caps' big hope—their kids.

"We have the youngest team in the NHL by far," says Chip Campbell, the Caps' publicist.

"It averages barely 23 years old and that gives us hope. We all feel things are going to get better. You have to keep thinking that because if you didn't, losing the way we have been, you'd go batty. You'd go right over the wall."

N-LV Climbs To 3rd

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a manner befitting a school that is situated in the nation's gambling center, the University of Nevada at Las Vegas continues to make the big score—both on the court and in the ratings.

The Rebels, the nation's leading offensive team with an average of 107.2 points a game, boosted its record to 20-0 with a pair of easy victories over Nevada-Reno last week and climbed two places to No. 3 this week in the United Press International Board of Coaches college basketball ratings. Nevada-Las Vegas, which has been beating its opponents by an average of more than 20 points a game, replaced Maryland after the Terrapins fell to No. 7 following a loss to Clemson. (The Terps also lost to North Carolina last Sunday, but that is not counted in this week's ratings.)

For the second week in a row the top 10 underwent a major shakeup as four of last week's top 10—Maryland, North Carolina, UCLA and St. John's (NY)—were beaten. North Carolina (12-2) managed to hold onto the No. 4 spot despite losing to North Carolina State, but UCLA (14-3), a loser to Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., dropped from eighth to 10th and St. John's (14-2), upset by Princeton in overtime, fell from 10th to 16th.

Indiana continued its vise-like grip on the No. 1 spot after running its record to 16-0 with a pair of victories last week. The Hoosiers once again received all the first place votes cast by the 42-member coaches board for a perfect 420 points.

Marquette, which won three games during the week to raise its record to 14-1, held on to second place with 341 points and Washington, which raised its mark to 16-1 with a pair of victories at Hawaii, climbed up one place to No. 5 this week behind Las Vegas and North Carolina.

Rutgers, unbeaten in 15 games, continued its climb among the top 10, advancing two places to No. 6. Alabama (13-2), moved up one notch to No. 8 and Tennessee (12-2) climbed back into the top 10 in the No. 9 slot.

Six coaches from each of the seven geographical areas of the nation comprise the UPI ratings board. Each week they vote on the top 10 teams and points are awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first through 10th.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United Press International Board of Coaches top 20 college basketball teams with first place votes and records in parentheses (records include games played through Saturday, Jan. 24).

NFC Stages Rally To Sink AFC 23-20

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The National Football Conference was trailing the AFC 20-9 with less than six minutes to play when coach Chuck Knox sent in young quarterback Mike Boryla of Philadelphia to replace veteran Jim Hart of St. Louis.

Boryla, 24, who did not even expect to play in the 1976 Pro Bowl, immediately engineered an eight-play touchdown drive and two minutes later capped another attack with an eight-yard touchdown pass to Mel Gray of St. Louis, and suddenly the NFC was ahead to stay, 23-20, with only 69 seconds left to play.

"It proves that contrary to what some people say, the Pro Bowl is really an exciting game and the players go all out," said Knox, coach of the Los Angeles Rams. "This shows what this Pro Bowl game really is."

Even losing coach John Madden of the Oakland Raiders agreed Monday night's game was a thriller. "It is a great game. On one football field you have the opportunity to see the 80 best players in the world."

Boryla, who was picked after top ranked pros including Fran Tarkenton and Roger Staubach turned down the job because of injuries, said he expected to spend the game on the sidelines watching the veterans.

"The whole thing was very unexpected, my being here and all," said the second year player from Stanford. "I didn't get called until Monday (a week ago). I didn't know if I was going to play or not—that was unclear. I was watching, but I wasn't sure how much I would play."

"It was a make-or-break situation, and I like situations like that," Boryla said.

The game, which evened the series at three games each for the AFC and the NFC, had other crowd-pleasing ingredients, including a punt that struck the giant overhanging television screen in the Superdome, several break-away returns of kickoffs and punts and three Pro Bowl records.

The teams' combined return yardage exceeded 500 yards.

The longest return was a 90-yard punt run back by Billy "White Shoes" Johnson of the Houston Oilers, who was voted most-valuable player in the press box in balloting that was completed before Boryla's last-minute heroics.

The old mark was an 82-yard return by Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys in 1971.

"I just wanted to get into that end zone," Johnson said. "I want to move as fast as I can at a time like that. When I see the last man left, I just look to see how much sideline I have left and how far to go."

AFC back-up quarterback Dan Pastorini's heaved a 64-yard scoring strike to teammate Ken Burrough with 12 seconds left in the first half for the longest pass completion in Pro Bowl history.

The third record was set by Lawrence McCutcheon of the Rams, who broke loose on a 41-yard run in the fourth quarter, the longest run from scrimmage in a Pro Bowl game.

Punter Ray Guy of Oakland, who brought a 43.8 yard average into the game, kicked the ball smack into one of the six 22-foot tall television screens hanging from the roof of the domed stadium early in the first half. The officials ruled the ball was dead when it touched the screen, and Guy punted again.

'Black Panther's' Capture Ends Hunt

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — For a man of his size he was tremendously strong and when the two policemen handcuffed him to a railing with the help of four husky miners he snarled like the wild animal the media had compared him with — the Black Panther.

One of the policemen was bleeding from a gunshot wound in the hand, for the end of the long search for Britain's most wanted man was in key with the violence of the crimes with which the suspect was charged — four murders, three attempted murders, one kidnaping.

Britain, with a population of 57 million, has fewer murders than some American cities, but there are probably more British slayings worthy of inclusion in the annals of crime. When the usually even-tempered Britons are moved to kill the methods are often bizarre.

The Case of the Black Panther — so-called because he dressed in black — opened a year ago, Jan. 14, 1975, when Lesley Whittle, a 17-year-old heiress to a small fortune was abducted from the bedroom of her family home in the village of Highley in Shropshire. There were a series of ransom demands for $100,000 or she would be killed.

Kidnaping is exceedingly rare in Britain and police set up a 160-strong around-the-clock task force to find the girl. The local police called on Scotland Yard for help, as many provincial police forces do, and Detective Commander John Morrison arrived from London to direct what was to become one of the biggest manhunts in years.

Seven weeks later, after the kidnaper had been frightened away from a ransom rendezvous, police combed an area near Kidsgrove, 60 miles from her home, and in a drainage shaft found the naked body of the girl hanged by a wire around her neck.

An autopsy showed she had been frightened to death.

By now Morrison, from thousands of interviews and other information, was convinced the man they were looking for was a mass murderer who had cold-bloodedly slain three postmasters, almost beaten to death the wife of one of them and put seven slugs into the body of a security guard who challenged him.

The man was medium height or slightly less, in his 30s, dark hair, staring eyes. They also had a recording of his voice giving ransom instructions.

On Dec. 12 Constables Tony White and Stuart McKenzie stopped their patrol car to check out a man carrying a parcel near the small post office on Leeming Lane in the mining town of Mansfield.

"What's in the parcel?"

White asked.

The man reached into it and pulled out a sawed-off shotgun. He ordered White and McKenzie back into the car and told them to drive him eight miles to Blidworth. British police do not usually carry guns and White and McKenzie were unarmed. Nevertheless they passed through the village of Rainworth, White jumped the suspect and was shot in the hand.

McKenzie brought the car to a screeching stop in front of a line of people waiting to get into a fish and chips shop, joined in the fight with the suspect and shouted for help. Four miners left the line and helped overpower the man who also carried two knives, a mask and explosives.

"We held his arms," said miner Roy Morris. "Then I went into the shop to get my tenpennyworth of fish and chips."

Police identified the suspect as Donald Neilson, 38, married and the father of a 14-year-old schoolgirl. He pleaded not guilty but it was many hours before he said his first words. One theory is that he might not have wanted his voice print to be matched against the tape recording in police possession.

Neighbors said Neilson did not act like the brutal killer police described. He was quiet and apparently hard working. He was very considerate of his daughter. He changed his name to Neilson because he did not want her teased in school by other students.

His real name is Nappie. Nappies are diapers in Britain.

Texas Underspending For Young Offenders

By SCOTT MAIER
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Texas lags far behind most states in taking youthful offenders out of institutions and placing them into more highly regarded community-based programs, according to a study sponsored by the Department of Justice.

Less than three per cent of the state's juvenile offenders were sent to community correctional centers that emphasize contact between youths and the outside community in 1974 according to Justice. Only eight states placed fewer youthful offenders in these community centers.

The Justice Department study also found that Texas spends considerably less money than most states on such programs. While, nationwide, the average expenditure per capita for community corrections was 15 cents, Texas spent less than two cents per capita on community programs.

In contrast, Texas devoted $1.65 per capita for institutional treatment of its youthful offenders — 32 cents less than the national average.

Community-based programs, designed to encourage attendance at local schools and employment in the neighborhood, are advocated by many correctional authorities. Fifty-four per cent of state agency administrators surveyed by the authors of the study agreed that "community-based programs are better than even the most effective institutions."

The report noted that in 1967 the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice urged correctional authorities to "develop more extensive community programs" as an alternative to institutionalizing both juvenile and adult offenders. The Commission concluded in its report that such programs are generally less costly and at least as effective as institutional treatment.

English Vineyards Fall Prey

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON, Dec. 00 (UPI) — The vineyard owner stretched nylon nets over his precious grapes, figuratively thumbed his nose at the waiting sparrows and blackbirds and mentally computed the thousands of bottles of wine he could expect that autumn.

Looking back he saw the sparrows pecking in frustration at the netting. But, wait... what were those cheeky little devils up to now? As the ancient Romans could have told him, never underestimate the sparrow — from on high they were dive bombing the nylon and there were already tears in a number of places.

Birds are only one of the hazards of viticulture, or the production of wine, in Britain. A combined assault by sparrows and blackbirds might break the heart of a vineyard owner in France, Italy or Germany, but a farmer has to be made of sterner stuff even to attempt to grow suitable grapes in this comparatively inhospitable northern nation.

First of all he realizes most of his country is so far north it is on or beyond the fringe of the possible as far as producing vintage wine goes. The city of Lincoln, in the northeast claims, in fact, the world's northernmost vines. He cannot count on the weather and even given the best of all circumstances he cannot hope to challenge the great wines of the continent.

In Europe the vast areas under cultivation dilute the threat from birds. In Britain every blackbird and sparrow seems to head for the 385 acres under cultivation in 120 vineyards at the most crucial time before the harvest.

Nevertheless British tenacity in the face of these drawbacks has earned the admiration of continental producers at first disposed to chuckle at the phrase "English wine" when the first modern English vintage came on the market in 1952 after a 30-year hiatus.

This season, said Jack Ward of the English Vineyards Association, is a classic example of the heartbreak that goes with extracting a good quality white wine, not unlike a Moselle or an Alsatian Riesling, from English vines more up put (There is no English red wine — not enough hot weather.)

"We had that wonderful war August," he said, "and we were sure the sugar content of the grapes would be high. Then came the rains of September — double the normal rainfall — and when we analyzed the grapes the sugar content had actually fallen. So what we hoped would be a record year for quantity and quality was only the former. Our cooperative pressed two and a half times the grapes of 1974."

"Ah well," he said, philosophically, "there's always next year."

English viticulturists have been saying something like that for at least 1700 years. Jack Ward and the other doughty cultivators of southern England are the inheritors of so long a tradition it is remarkable how many people, even in their homeland, are unaware that there is a fine local product.

As Ward sadly admits many seem to confuse "English wine" which is produced in a quantity of something over 150,000 bottles a year with the mass-produced "British wine" selling some 100 million bottles a year.

"British wine" is made from an imported grape concentrate into a sherry or port type drink. "English wine" is locally grown, fermented and bottled and the confusion in the public mind niggles its proud producers.

"We'll never produce a Trockenbeerenauslese (one of the best German wines)," said Ward. "We simply don't get enough heat. But our wines do compare with a good Alsatian or German and it's a long long way from plonk."

Lower Taxes May Result

By United Press International
Taxpayers facing their 1975 Federal 104 income tax return form will find a number of new items on the return that may bring lower taxes. These new items result from enactment of the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 last March.

As a starter, you may find — especially if you are in the low-income brackets — that you do not have to file a return this year even though you had to do so last year. The reason is that the gross income levels for filing returns have been increased for 1975. The following shows the differences between the 1975 filing levels and those that applied to 1974 returns:

Single individual, 1974 filing level	$2,050, 1975 filing level	$2,350
Single individual (age 65 or over)	1974 $2,800, 1975 $3,100
Married couple filing jointly	1974 $2,800, 1975 $3,400
Married couple filing jointly	1974 $3,550, 1975 $4,150
Married couple filing joint return (both spouses age 65 or over)	1974 $4,300, 1975 $4,900
Married individual, filing separate return	1974 $750, 1975 $750
Surviving spouse	1974 $2,050, 1975 $2,650

Under the filing requirements, you qualify as a "surviving spouse" if you are unmarried and your spouse died in 1973 or 1974. In addition, you must have furnished over half the cost of maintaining your home for 1975 as the principal residence of your dependent child.

Even though you do not meet any of the above filing requirements for 1975, you should file a return if you are eligible for the new tax credit for earned income. This credit is refundable, that is, it will be paid to you even though you have no 1975 income tax liability. Any excess credit will be returned to you as a tax refund.

Another surprise awaits you if you do not itemize your nonbusiness deductions (that is, those for taxes, medical expenses, interest costs, etc.). You will take the standard deduction, and this deduction has been increased for 1975. The deduction is the higher of (1) low income allowance or (2) your percentage standard deduction.

The low income allowance for 1975 is $1,600 for single individuals, $1,900 for married persons filing jointly and for surviving spouses, and $950 for married persons filing separately.

The thick upper tush of a warthog help it to push through thornbush. The sharp lower tush serve as chief defense against attacking leopards or cheetahs.

To qualify for the new tax credit for earned income, you must meet two conditions. First, you must have maintained a residence during 1975 which was the principal place of abode for yourself and one or more of your dependent children. Secondly, your earned income (wages, salary, net earnings from self-employment, etc.) — or your adjusted gross income, if larger — must be less than $8,000. The credit is an amount equal to 10 per cent of the first $4,000 of earned income, with a maximum credit of $400. However, the credit is reduced by 10 per cent of the amount of earned income (or adjusted gross income, if larger) above $4,000. This means that the credit is completely eliminated at the $8,000 or higher level of earned income or adjusted gross income. Should the credit be more than your 1975 tax liability, any excess credit will be returned to you as a tax refund.

Another surprise awaits you if you do not itemize your nonbusiness deductions (that is, those for taxes, medical expenses, interest costs, etc.). You will take the standard deduction, and this deduction has been increased for 1975. The deduction is the higher of (1) low income allowance or (2) your percentage standard deduction.

Veterinarians advise preventive treatment for heartworm by April for all dogs in the United States. The parasite, which often is fatal, formerly was confined to the southern U.S. It is turning up with increasing frequency in colder areas.

Heartworm is spread by mosquitoes. Treatment is by an intravenous injection to kill the worms in the dog's heart and oral dosage with an organic iodine compound to kill circulating first-stage larvae, followed by drug treatment to prevent future invasions.

Preventive medicine is available as an elixir or tablet given daily or in a medicated food sold only with a veterinarian's prescription.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — How do I find inner peace? Let me count the ways. There's Yoga and Transcendental Meditation, Gestalt psychology and Biofeedback, Tupperware parties and... Well, the ways seem to be increasing faster than I count them.

Suffice to say that with all of the psychic soothers available these days, inner turmoil has as many cures as acid indigestion. I was reading the other day about a study of transcendental meditators conducted by a group of University of Washington psychologists. They found that for about 40 per cent of the time, the persons supposedly meditating actually were asleep.

This, however, does not necessarily mean that the disciples of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the head guru of TM, as it is called, were goofing off. It could be they also were followers of Sommeil Sonno Zzzzz, leader of a new inner peace movement called Transcendental Catnaps (TC). Among the many amazing things about the father of TC is the fact that he is only four years old.

Born in a cave somewhere between Inner and Outer Mongolia, he is said to have exhibited the first manifestations of the concept at the age of two weeks. His precocious psychic development was discovered by his parents, Sam and Bertha Zzzzz. The elder Zzzzzs noted that there were periods when little Sommeil became fretful, fidgeting around in his crib and spitting up on his bib. Sure signs of inner turmoil.

At such times, Mother Zzzzz would place the infant on her shoulder and pat his back until he burped. Almost immediately, Sommeil would close his eyes and enter a cataleptic state in which he would lie motionless for 15 or 20 minutes. Upon returning to cosmic awareness, he would smile beatifically, gurgle blissfully and joyously kick the cradle gym. Sure signs of inner peace.

His parents assumed that during Sommeil's dormant stages he was in some sort of trance. But as he grew older and learned to talk, he revealed that actually he was taking a little snooze.

Although poor, ignorant yak herders, the Zzzzzs instinctively realized their son was onto something big. When he reached the age of three, they took him into the village for an audience with the local lama.

Deeply impressed, the lama, who doubled as a literary agent, signed up Sommeil for a book about Transcendental Catnaps. The American edition will be published soon under the title "Forty Winks to Tranquility."

I learned all of this the other day when young Zzzzz, currently on a U.S. tour, stopped off here for consultations. Outwardly, he seemed a normal droopy-eyed kid. But when I asked him to sum up the meaning of life, his words belied his tender years:

"He who counteth not sheep when he meditates, the same shall saweth no logs."
