INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Unheralded Phil Mahre of White Pass, Wash., ignored the World Cup ski reputations of his rivals and zoomed down the slope with a fourth place finish today after the first round of the Olympic giant slalom in which defending champion Gustavo Thoeni of Italy gained a commanding lead.

Cup racing, scored a few top 10 finishes but the experts ignored him in terms of Olympic success because of his inexperience and broken legs which slowed his development in 1974-75.

Ernst Good of Switzerland, the first man down the slope, clocked 1:44.60 while Heim Hemmi of Switzerland, who raced immediately behind Thoeni, finished in 1:45.31 to hold third place.

17th place for best finish among the three Americans. Michael Devecka of Bend, Ore., was 28th, with Walter Malmquist of Post Mills, Vt., one place further back.

IOC sources said she was given a medication by her team doctor which contained one of the drugs prohibited under Olympic rules. They said although the rules had been broken, it was clear she had not meant to break them and would therefore be allowed to take part in other events later this week.

not to ban Kulakova from the Games completely. "She had a bad cold and at 3 o'clock in the morning she took some nose drops from a friend without telling the doctor," he said.

To Valley Forge Via Wagon Train

They Trek Across Country with Pride and Joy

Discover America

It was the pickup's turn to pull as the foursome of Hood Southern, his granddaughter, Pride and Joy went across New Mexico and into the Texas Panhandle. They were in Pampa this weekend and plan to leave Tuesday or Wednesday for Lawton, Okla., where they will meet the southern route of the bicentennial wagon train across America. It will then be the mules' turn to work.

Ride a mule
Somehow the bright red bumper sticker splashed across the door of Hood Southern's 1968 Chevy pickup doesn't surprise you, maybe because two black mules ride in the back of the pickup.

Southern, 71, and his 19-year-old granddaughter, Cindy Laurason, ride in front. And all four are on their way to Valley Forge, Pa., as part of a bicentennial wagon trail crossing the nation.

The Chevy will be leading the party some of the time, the mules will provide the power the rest of the time.

"I've been across in a car but I've always wanted to drive across the country in a mule train—slow enough so I can see it," he said.

At 3 miles an hour, Southern ought to get plenty of sight seeing. And that's one of the reasons his granddaughter made the last minute decision to join him. She wanted to see this part of the country.

So slowly the tiny group moved through southern California. But halfway through Arizona, Southern decided his mules needed a rest.

Lawton, Okla., this week and continue toward the July 4 meeting at Valley Forge. Before then he plans to trade pickups. The old blue one's been giving him trouble. And besides, Cindy is getting tired of sleeping in the cab, he laughed.

But Cindy doesn't mind too much. Her grandfather calls her his muleskinner, swamper, truck driver and cook.

"If he can make it, I guess I can," she says matter of factly.

Although they didn't say so, Pride and Joy will probably make it too.

"Boy, I'll tell you there's a pair of little sweethearts," Southern says of them.

Once in a while their stubborn streaks come through. And sometimes they get overanxious to shuck their harnesses and take their evening dirt baths. But Southern sees that they get plenty of food and care.

"I'm happy now. My mules are taken care of. That's the first thing I do when I get to camp," he said Saturday evening after he'd put his mules in one of L.G. Clifton's corrals.

Oklahoma. His wagon, which he designed from the running gear up, has been home for Southern since Dec. 4, when he loaded up and went to California where the train was to begin.

The wagon has feeding facilities for people and mules. And there's a mattress for Southern and a butane stove, many more comforts than the pioneers had in their covered wagons, Southern noted.

Nine wagons started from California. Southern wouldn't repeat some of their experiences. No one would believe it, he said. But he did say that the group was like one big family, that they traveled about 20 miles a day depending on camp facilities, that the train had a wagonmaster and that their reception throughout their trip had been very good.

Most other wagons are horse drawn. One fella was in a wheel chair being pulled by a Shetland pony.

The mule driver is financing the trip by himself with a little help from the Texas County, Okla., group and some donations.

The pilgrimage started when the State of Pennsylvania set up a fund of $300,000 to sponsor the wagons. The first train left on the Northwest Route from Washington on June 8. A total of 60 wagons are expected to take the five separate routes.

News Roundup

Payroll Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress today to increase Social Security payroll taxes by 0.3 per cent for both employees and their employers, and to extend Medicare benefits to cover "catastrophic" health costs.

Ford said his proposals are aimed at helping all Americans to live in dignity, security and good health.

At a ceremony in the Oval Office, Ford signed a special message to Congress urging passage of the legislation. He first outlined the proposals in his State of the Union Address Jan. 19.

"As President, I intend to do everything in my power to help our nation demonstrate by its deeds a deep concern for the dignity and worth of our older persons," Ford said. "By so doing, our nation will continue to benefit from the contributions that older persons can make to the strengthening of our nation."

Ford said the increase in the Social Security tax was necessary to build up a trust fund that is being depleted because benefit payments are increasing faster than revenues. Under his plan, the tax would increase from 5.85 per cent to 6.15 per cent Jan. 1, 1977.

Soliah Charge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Steven Soliah, who lived with Patricia Hearst at the time of her capture, is himself charged with bank robbery. He was hoping today the charge would be dismissed.

His attorneys have moved for dismissal and questioned whether, because of all the publicity, Soliah even could get a fair trial.

U.S. District Judge Philip Wilkins also was to rule today on a defense motion to transfer the case of the former college athlete to San Francisco, site of the Hearst trial.

During three weeks of pre-trial hearings, defense attorney Sheldon Otis argued that a fair trial for Soliah was impossible because news reports had tied the 27-year-old housepainter to the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

His co-counsel, Steffan Imhoff, said moving the trial to San Francisco was a "less drastic alternative."

$20 Places

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Spectators trying to get into the Patricia Hearst trial are selling their places in line for as much as $20, sources say.

Those who don't pay take their chances in the unusually young lineup of persons who try each morning, each afternoon, each recess, to squeeze into the courtroom to see the fragile-looking 21-year-old heiress.

They may see her take the stand today to make her first public statement on events following her 1974 kidnapping, says one of her attorneys, Al Johnson.

What is it that makes the curiosity seekers wait in line to study Miss Hearst?

Connally Votes

United Press International
John B. Connally, the former governor of Texas who switched to the Republican Party more than two years ago, may become a write-in candidate in New Hampshire's Feb. 24 Democratic primary, according to reports published today.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Washington Star said the write-in effort is being organized by Richard Vignone of Falls Church, Va., a principal sponsor of the new national Conservative Caucus, with support from William Loeb, the conservative publisher of the Manchester Union Leader, the state's largest newspaper.

The reports said a decision will be made in the next few days on whether to proceed with the write-in effort.

The Star said Connally, who served as Treasury secretary in the Nixon administration, is traveling in Japan and apparently has not been consulted on the possible write-in effort.

Two Democrats who are in the bidding for the Democratic nomination, Fred Harris and Jimmy Carter, are running almost dead even in Oklahoma's Democratic caucuses.

Dutch Probe Lockheed Payoff

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (UPI) — The Dutch cabinet met today to appoint a committee of "three wise men" to investigate reports Lockheed Aircraft Corp. paid Prince Bernhard $11 million for his help in selling warplanes, government sources said.

A government committee Sunday identified the 64-year-old consort of Dutch Queen Juliana as the "high Dutch official" mentioned by a Lockheed executive in testimony before a Senate subcommittee on overseas payments by the firm.

The committee also reported Bernhard's denial he received any money from Lockheed.

Government sources said the cabinet of Socialist Premier Joop den Uyl was expected to announce the names of the investigating committee to Parliament on Tuesday. The sources said the investigation would take about six weeks.

Press reports said committee members probably would include the attorney general, the vice president of the state council—the advisory body to the queen—and an elder statesman experienced in international business affairs.

The probe of the queen's consort presented the Dutch Royal House of Orange with its worst crisis since 1956 when the royal family last appointed a committee of "three wise men" to rule on a controversy involving a member of the family.

A middle-aged faith healer hired by Queen Juliana to treat her youngest daughter, Princess Marijke, for an eye ailment was charged with wielding undue influence over the monarch.

The committee ruled the faith healer, Greet Hofmans, should leave the court to mend a "royal rift" between the queen and her husband.

The newspaper De Volkskrant said "as its worst consequence, this recurrent crisis could entail the abdication of the queen."

Constitutional law professor Jan Prakke said if the investigating committee found the prince had accepted a bribe, he would not be immune from criminal prosecution.

In announcing his decision Sunday to launch a "thorough and independent" investigation into the charges, den Uyl stressed the probe "does not mean Prince Bernhard has been guilty of any reprehensible acts."

"Nobody should be considered guilty before his guilt has been proven," den Uyl said.

This goes for any citizen, and it goes for Prince Bernhard too.

The German-born Bernhard, inspector general of the Dutch armed forces, is an internationally known business leader who has served as a director of KLM Dutch airlines and the Royal Netherlands Fokker aircraft company.

Lockheed executive A.C. Kotchian told the Senate subcommittee Friday the aerospace firm paid $11 million to "a high government official in the Netherlands" to gain help in selling jetfighters to the Dutch air force.

Congressional sources said the official was Bernhard.

The Dutch communique said that "on the basis of statements made before the Church subcommittee, on the basis of information sought on the matter, and also on the basis of talks with Prince Bernhard, it (the government) drew the conclusion that by a high Dutch official Prince Bernhard was meant."

Prince Bernhard has declared on his part that he never received or accepted any money from Lockheed and that he also would appreciate an investigation into the matter in which his name has been mentioned," the communique said.

"It goes without saying that all efforts will be made so that the investigation, which may not be a simple one, will nevertheless lead to a conclusion soon," den Uyl said.

"I think this is in everybody's interest."

Hospital Personnel Under County Scrutiny

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Personnel matters at both Highland General Hospital and at the Gray County courthouse will be discussed during Friday and Monday meetings of the Commissioners Court.

The court will meet Friday the 13th for its regular session. The ninth item on the agenda calls for an executive session to discuss personnel matters.

However, the eighth item calls for an announcement of the annual meeting of the commissioners court and the hospital board on Monday, Feb. 16 at the hospital with an executive meeting scheduled at that time.

The commissioners will meet with the hospital board to discuss personnel matters.

In regard to the executive sessions which were announced today through the regular notice of the Gray County Commissioners Court meeting, Judge Don Cain said:

"The agenda speaks for itself." He added that he would have no further comment.

One county official, however, commented that the sessions are expected to "get interesting."

Gray County has 425 employees including those at Highland General and McLean General Hospitals with an annual payroll in excess of $2.5 million.

The county's 1975 payroll was $724,253.64 for 104 employees. The hospital's payroll totaled $1,742,331.69.

County employees received a 10 per cent across-the-board raise in January, and hospital employees received raises ranging from 2 per cent to 35 per cent as reflected in checks distributed Feb. 2.

The hospital budget for 1976 became controversial before it was passed in January.

During an open meeting of the commissioners court where the budget was discussed, a Pampa resident questioned the court about an "expensive" executive chair and other furnishings purchased for Highland General Hospital in 1975.

The bill was presented for payment at the Courthouse Friday and will not be paid until after the Gray County Commissioners Court approval scheduled Friday.

Purchased from Elliott Office Supply in Amarillo were items totaling $2,021.89—less a 20 per cent discount which reduces the amount owed to $1,625.89.

The description reads "executive chair open arms No. 903 brick leather vph" at $813.36 less 20 per cent reducing the amount to $650.59.

Other furniture on the bill includes three side chairs with open arms at $495 each or $1,485—less 20 per cent, and one "square table—solar gray smoked glass" at $229—less 20 per cent.

According to the statement the merchandise was shipped "direct" and received on Nov. 16.

Judge Cain said this morning that he knew nothing about the furniture bills dated in November until today. He commented no further on that issue.

The commissioners court agenda calls for consideration of the treasurer's report and the county's January welfare report.

Authorization for bids for a new maintainer with trade in for Precinct 4—McLean—also will be considered. Payment would be from revenue sharing funds.

Approval of the bond for Public Weigher Lee Heaton is also on the agenda.

The court will consider approval of payments from revenue sharing funds to Texas Engineering and Development Co. and Merriman & Barber Engineers for work on the livestock pavilion.

If any action is taken at the county's executive session meeting, the court will reconvene Friday in open session, according to the agenda.

How To Cut Fuel Bills

Not only has the high cost of housing placed home ownership out of reach for millions of Americans, but many people who already own homes are finding the cost of running them taking increasingly large chunks out of their household budgets.

Addressing a meeting of the National Association of Home Builders in Dallas the other day, Guy O. Mabry, vice president of Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., cited the case of a New Jersey homeowner whose annual fuel bills were almost as high as his mortgage payments and warned that "heating and cooling a house may soon become a luxury, unless the nation's builders take immediate steps to effectively reduce home energy consumption."

Mabry calls for a home energy efficiency rating system, similar to Detroit's miles-per-gallon designation, to help consumers. Just as m.p.g. has become the watchword of new car buyers, "e.p.m." (energy per month) costs are fast becoming the major concern of today's new home buyer, he says.

For starters, a doubling of current Federal Housing Administration minimum standards for insulation in attics, walls and floors "would have an immediate impact in lowering home energy consumption."

This, of course, would mean more business for the makers of insulation and less business for the energy utilities. But the latter are in little danger of running out of customers for all the energy they can provide in the foreseeable future.

There are also other energy-saving steps builders can take, such as double-paned windows, insulated doors with magnetic weatherstripping and tighter construction to reduce air infiltration.

Nor need the low "e.p.m."

Don Oakley Stupidity of airing U.S. intelligence

No other country has ever, or could ever, go through the kind of public airing of its intelligence apparatus as the United States has in the past few months. Such a thing would be totally unimaginable in the Soviet Union, and not much more conceivable even in the European democracies.

There is no question that in the kind of world we live in, the U.S. must maintain an effective, dependable — and secure — intelligence system.

But while the Congress, the administration and the CIA ponder just how this is to be accomplished, while at the same time giving the people, through their representatives, better oversight and control over the secret undertakings of their government than they have hitherto had, it is essential that we keep this whole matter of intelligence in perspective.

The best intelligence apparatus in the world is utterly useless if those empowered to act upon the information it provides fail to do so, or wish it away, or distort it to make it conform to desired policy or preconceived notions.

Our own recent history provides more than a few examples of this.

Before World War II, the U.S. possessed that dream of all espionage agents, the ability to read the enemy's diplomatic code; in this case the potential enemy was Japan.

Yet during the latter days of 1941, when it was obvious that the Japanese were planning an attack this knowledge was ignored or disbelieved.

Again, in the Vietnam war, the U.S. had abundant and reliable forewarning of the Communist Tet offensive of 1967. But this information was suppressed because it ran counter to what some people wanted to believe, or wanted the country to believe. And again the penalty was the unnecessary loss of many American, as well as Vietnamese, lives.

For all the reputed brilliance of then-Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and others directing the war, the nation could have been just as well, or as ill, served if someone had simply stood blindfolded and thrown darts at a list of options.

We must also make the distinction between intelligence gathering, which is absolutely vital and not in dispute in the current discussion, and covert activities aimed at changing certain realities we don't like.

The CIA's role in the overthrow of President Allende of Chile, its alleged assassination plots against various national leaders, its secret financial support of anti-Communist politicians, however anti-democratic they may be, its violations of its charter prohibiting domestic spying, its booby-trapped Castro cigars — the list runs the gamut from the obscene to the ludicrous — all these activities have done more to harm America's real interests and to undermine its security than one can conceive happening if we had no intelligence apparatus at all.

Despite all the soul-searching in Washington these days, the question facing Americans is not really that of how a democracy can have an accountable yet effective intelligence system, without running the risk of constant, damaging leaks of secret information.

Nor is it a matter of the quality or reliability of our intelligence people, although there are also instances of their wrongly evaluating data or having been caught napping.

Rather, the question, as it has been throughout history, is the uses or misuses to which a nation puts its intelligence establishment and the military and political information it acquires. And that, of course, ultimately depends upon the wisdom and integrity — nay, the plain common sense — of its leaders.

Many Illegal Immigrants In the U.S.

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

At a recent meeting of the Philadelphia Society, a speaker warned that the abortive Moroccan mass march on Spanish Sahara indicated what the United States may face from Mexico in the future.

The speaker pointed out that Mexico's population has soared above 50 million and that demographers predict it will reach 150 million. The likelihood, he said, is that the Mexican economy will give way under these masses of humanity and that they may attempt a "non-violent" march across the border into the rich United States.

There's nothing extravagant about this vision. The long U.S. border with Mexico is open to a much greater degree than the majority of Americans realize. The U.S. Immigration Service recently estimated that there are eight million illegal residents in the United States, five million of them from Mexico.

And while statistics are hard to find, observers of the New York scene recognize that tremendous numbers of people from Caribbean countries are entering the metropolis on a brief stopover in Puerto Rico. From New York City, they move on to other communities. Unless something is done to arrest this population movement, the United States may siphon off the surplus population of backward Caribbean lands.

The presence of millions of illegal residents is a heavy burden on the legitimate citizens of the United States. The aliens take jobs that should go to citizens, and receive huge amounts of public assistance.

In addition, there is a cultural penetration of the United States that cannot be dismissed as meaningless. Each year, there is stronger political pressure for bilingualism. If the government and people do not arrest this movement, the United States could have a problem of language, cultural strife, and separatism similar to that experienced by Canada. In Canada, bilingualism is a threat to the future of the Canadian Confederation.

This problem of illegal residence in the United States is not likely to be discussed in the presidential campaign. Yet it is a major issue for our people in the nation's bicentennial future. Americans must consider the cultural integrity of their nation. While the United States is a nation built by immigrants, North America is no longer an unsettled continent. Americans must be firm in their resolve to limit very strictly the flow of aliens into the country.

Population pressures are rising around the world. In all likelihood, the Third World will become increasingly insistent that the doors to America be reopened.

Americans have only to look at Great Britain today to comprehend the tragedy that can result from unrestricted immigration from backward lands. The traditional character of Britain has been altered by the masses of Commonwealth residents admitted in the years after World War II, a flood of newcomers from Jamaica, Pakistan, Uganda and other countries.

Today, these people form a nation within a nation in Britain. In the main, they retain the lifestyles and social and political attitudes of the countries of their origin. They do not share the basic values of British civilization, with its emphasis on personal liberty under law.

Europe, too, has serious problems with its migrant workers, many of whom want to stay on the Continent. France, for example, has a large population of North Africans who are aliens in and hostile to French civilization.

A real danger exists that, as a result of large-scale influx of Third World elements, the people of the Western countries will have their traditional institutions radically changed — and that Western civilization itself may be dispossessed in the long run.

Americans, therefore, will have to be very tough about their survival needs as a people. They must prevent millions of jobs being taken by illegal residents. Overall, Americans need to ensure that the population balance is not tipped so as to affect the fundamental institutions and values of their nation.

BATTIN' AROUND Here Is Cause For Optimism

By C.R. BATTEN

There are many reasons for optimism for those who believe that the predominance of economic illiteracy among opinion molders is contributing to the expanding government that is taking us down the road to purgatory.

An outstanding example occurred recently, on a Sunday morning CBS radio program called "Spectrum." The program presented six opinions from different points of view.

John K. Jessup started out by saying that one of the blessings of 1975 is an awakening of political philosophy. He discussed Robert Nozick's award-winning book "Anarchy, State, and Utopia" (Basic Books, $12.95).

"It states the case for a minimum government, or a night watchman state," said Jessup, "which Thomas Jefferson hopefully described as a wise and frugal government which will restrain men from injuring one another and leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits."

Recent experience has given us more reason to fear strong government than ever before, Jessup said.

"The tug of war between equality and liberty has been the chief strand in our two centuries of political history," he explained. "In 1975, we learned to face it again at both the theoretical and practical levels. That's a pretty good history lesson for one year."

A few years ago Nozick's book might have been dismissed by fellow intellectuals as the work of a cranky reactionary, according to Jessup. One might add that it would have also been deemed unworthy of comment by radio or other mass news media.

On the same program, Phyllis Schlafly reported that the National Council of Churches called "capitalism a system that is basically unjust." It resolved to work for radical change in economic, political and religious values in society. It proclaimed its belief that Capitalism should be abolished.

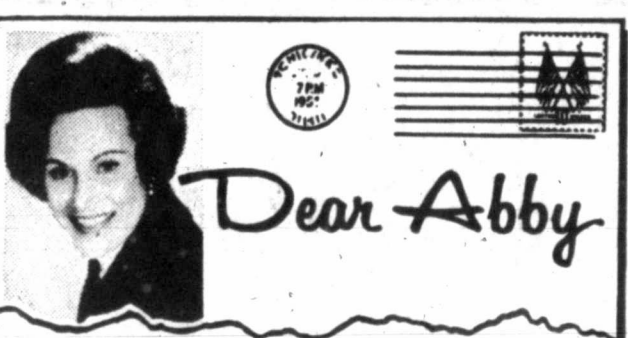

Such a statement makes no sense, said Schlafly. "The National Council of Churches is financially supported by the abundant generosity of those who have prospered under capitalism. Some day Americans are going to get fed up with the ingratitude and inconsistencies of those who bite the hand that feeds them."

A second commentary by Jessup discussed the option offered to Nevada voters this year of voting for "None of the Above." He pointed out that the number of voters has been getting disturbingly low. "None of the above" on the ballot will give people an opportunity to vote in a positive way against all the candidates. It could warn both political parties that they had better put up a more attractive slate the next time around, Jessup said.

M. Stanton Evans pointed out that the federal government is supposedly "in the business of curing unemployment... The selfsame federal planners who are allegedly combating the problems of economic slump and joblessness are themselves the principle cause of both conditions."

According to Evans, two members of Congress observed that as people are allowed the freedom to invest in machinings and plant expansion jobs are created. But to the extent that capital is diverted from such purposes by regulation, jobs are destroyed.

Researchers in occupational safety and health shows that in 1972 eight per cent of investments in the textile industry and 12 per cent in steel were devoted to meeting federal requirements. The McGraw Hill Dept. of Economics has reported that health and safety outlays are expected to grow from $2.5 billion in 1972 to $3.4 billion in 1977.

Dear Abby

Seeks Love Secrets Of Red-blooded Americans

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man who's in love with a beautiful, 28-year-old divorcee. I want to marry her, but she keeps wanting more time to think it over.

In the meantime, she's seeing another man, and I'm afraid he has the edge on me. You see, he's part Kickapoo Indian, and I hear Indians are superior to the white man when it comes to lovemaking: Closely guarded tribal secrets on how to satisfy a woman are passed down from father to son. If there is any truth to that, I'm willing to pay whatever is necessary to find out.

Let me say that I was married for four years, and I never had any complaints from my wife, but if Indians are better lovers than white men, I would like to find out why.

Maybe your readers can help.

ED IN EAST ILLINOIS

DEAR ED: I can offer two suggestions: Try The Bureau of Indian Affairs or the American Indian Movement.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to that ding-a-ling who is seriously considering suing his parents for $100,000 for having had him circumcised as an infant—a "barbaric surgery, an assault on his person, which permanently maimed and disfigured him." In my opinion, he was circumcised at the wrong end.

YIDDISH MAMA: SILVER SPRINGS, MD.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old nurse who has been widowed for 15 years.

In the line of duty, I took care of a very attractive well-to-do widower, age 59. When he left the hospital, he asked if he could see me again so we could get better acquainted. I agreed.

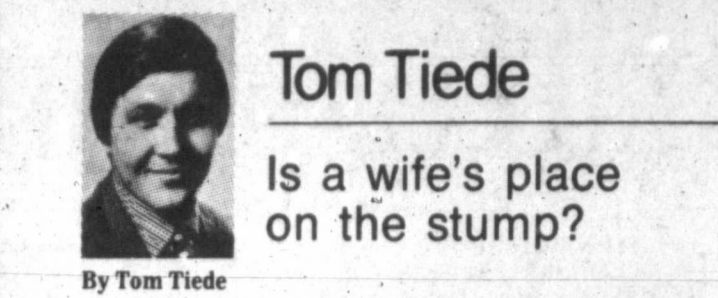

It took him nearly six months to call me, after which we started dating. I was on cloud eight! We've been going out for over a year now, and he proposed marriage.

My problem is that he admits that he is still seeing several other women and says that until he has a definite answer from me he will continue to date others.

Abby, this has turned me off on him and made me skeptical of his so-called marriage proposal. I am losing my respect for him. If a man thinks enough of a woman to want to marry her, why would he want to date other women? How can I say yes tonight when I know he had another woman in his arms last night?

FRUSTRATED AT 60

DEAR FRUSTRATED: My guess is that he is trying to maneuver you into an early decision. If you want to marry him, say yes. And until you do, he's a free agent.

Tom Tiede Is a wife's place on the stump?

By Tom Tiede

SALEM, N.H. — (NEA) — Eunice Shriver was 40 minutes late in arriving at the local Senior Citizens' Center. Standing on bare floors, amid paint-peeling walls and under a spiral of flypaper, she told the elderly people they had a "lovely place." Then she removed her coat, revealing a flawlessly hand-knit frock the cost of which doubtless exceeded the monthly income of any in attendance.

But what was most disastrous about the appearance here of the wife of Democratic presidential candidate Sargent Shriver was, in the words of one present, "she didn't tell us anything." She shook hands, exchanged pleasantries, moved from face to face like a kindly WAC officer inspecting the troops — and then left. What about the Social Security controversy, what about rumored Medicare cutbacks, what about tax relief for elderly home owners? Mrs. Shriver was mum.

She did of course make a brief pitch for her husband and introduced her inevitable sister, Pat Lawford, but her innocuous visit served mainly to raise again a never settled campaign question: What is the purpose of stumping wives, and in any event do they do any good?

Put to Mrs. Shriver at the Center here, she said the question is a fair one to which she has no answer. In her case her Kennedy kinship (she is, of course, the sister of Senator Ted) probably muddles an easy assessment. She is at least as well known as her candidate husband. And in fact, her Kennedy connection regularly gains her more local media attention than the candidate himself. On the other hand, her family ties can be detrimental; one septuagenarian here said he didn't mind Mr. Shriver "but I never trust his woman."

Campaign officers usually are optimists about electioneering wives. Particularly if they are personable. Maria Carrier, New Hampshire coordinator of the Morris Udall bid, says Mrs. Udall's appearances give voters a look at the congressman's private side, "and for people who want to know as much about a candidate as possible this is all to the good." Actually, times are such that if a candidate's wife were not appearing, suspicions would arise. Already Hubert Humphrey is trying to squelch rumors that his wife Muriel is balking at the idea of leaving her home for another White House race.

It is of course possible for spouses to become issues in their own right during campaigns. Sen. Edmund Muskie suffered severely when rumors were passed in New Hampshire's 1972 primary that his wife enjoyed her cups too much. And this time around candidate Fred Harris' wife LaDonna is feared by many in this state as a radical feminist, although many others view her as of better presidential timber than her husband. Then there was the wife some years ago here who was described as "talking like a street walker and acting even worse"; she is coyly remembered as having had "all the sensitivity of a pickax."

For all the risks, no candidate this year is without a campaigning Mrs. (except Eugene McCarthy, who is separated). Moreover, most candidates have enlisted other family members, if for no other reason than they usually work without remuneration. President Ford has gone so far as to cut short the skiing vacation of his daughter Susan, his hope being she can help his effort in New Hampshire. Ford has not asked his son Jack to campaign, however, that kid having been repeatedly quoted as saying he hopes old dad loses the election.

For Mrs. Shriver's part, she says she tries to do her best for her husband, avoiding at all costs embarrassing controversies. She says she not only stumps for him, but adds personal input to his election strategy. When asked questions about issues, she says she normally gives his opinions instead of her own; "almost always, our opinions on these things are the same — ALMOST always."

But does she do any good? She did with her brother John, she did with other brothers Robert and Edward, but the odds are against her doing much for her face-in-the-crowd husband. However, ladies at the Senior Center here say she still has a chance: "If she would come back and tell us how she stays so thin, we'd be ever so grateful."

Rule from baseball's early days: Fans will NOT be permitted to jump on an outfielder's back while he is making a catch!

The ancient Greeks gave their dead coins to pay their ferry passage to the underworld—no doubt they had to take the underground, too.

Educators Here Disagree with Findings

Learning to Like Learning

(Editor's note: According to government reports, the Title 1 program which was initiated to help teach lower income children to read flunked on a national scale. But Pampa teachers and administrators disagree. This is the second in a two-part series where Pampa News reporter Jeanne Grimes reveals her findings on the program in Pampa schools.)

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Success or failure of Title 1 efforts is reduced finally to computer printouts — numbers which don't necessarily tell the whole story, the human story.

Teachers use the test results, and at the same time are skeptical of them. They are hesitant to rely too heavily on figures and not enough on the one to one teacher-student relationship.

As Arlene Gibson of Lamar School said, some children "try so hard they work up to and beyond their capabilities."

Ms. Gibson said that once in a great while a student will backslide, but that the child must have the right attitude and self-confidence.

Ms. Rosenbaum of Baker said that true regression or backsliding usually occurs only in the summer months when the child is not enrolled in the program.

Asked to explain test scores which indicate some students lose reading ability during the school year, she said, "If it (regression) does show up on a post-test, the reason is most likely that the kid just marked answers and didn't really take the test."

Cameron Marsh, Travis School principal, said "Very seldom do we get a student who does not have the ability to read."

"I have been extremely well pleased with the reading program and all other special programs because they are based on individual instruction and that is the key to education."

In the majority of cases, Marsh said, students are helped and do show progress. Those students who might be termed failures, he added, will eventually dropout of school.

Angie Walker at Mann Elementary School said many of her students would have been termed "slow learners" a few years ago and added that it takes these children a lot longer to gain the skills of "average" children.

Some of the children, she said, have learning disabilities and some "just don't care." Most of the Title 1 children will show some gains in their reading ability — but not enough to allow them to be successful in regular reading classes. She blames a lack of motivation for many of the educational difficulties.

Ms. Walker estimates that 75 per cent of her students enjoy working in the program, but adds, "We're not here to please them; we're here to help them. But we do try to make it enjoyable."

She said of her years in the program (she has taught PESO at Mann since 1967) she has had "pretty good success considering the children." The area's high mobility rate is damaging to the child's education, she said.

In a report of test figures for Title 1 in 1974-75, the Pampa ISD said it "considers the program to be most successful and an effective utilization of Title 1 funds."

Of $73,427 appropriated that year, $58,781 was used for teachers' salaries and $6,600 was allocated for instructional aides cost $3,750 and $1,881 purchased materials and supplies. Staff development (workshops and seminars) cost $1,466, miscellaneous funds amounted to $578 and indirect cost was $371. Cost per pupil was $180.85.

Of 307 students who were pre- and post-tested in the 1974-75 school year, approximately 9.5 per cent showed a decline in reading ability — a figure far below the 60 per cent mentioned in the General Accounting Office report. Gains were recorded for 272 students, or approximately 88.5 per cent — compared to 34 per cent cited in the GAO report. Five students, — fewer than 2 per cent — showed no progress or regression in the six months between the tests. The national figure was 6 per cent.

Since the fall of 1972, the Pampa ISD has been allocated $291,621 in Title 1 funds. In the current school year, funding has amounted to $62,217 and Assistant Superintendent James Trusty said it is possible additional money will be allocated before the end of this school year.

Wilsam Hill, Title 1 coordinator, said, "Some children need clinical reading services which are not provided here. This is strictly a one to one teaching relationship."

"Some children," she added, "do not read at the 'normal' level. Their maximum is below the national norm."

The testing is regarded with mixed feelings by teachers.

Ms. Marylee Rosenbaum of Baker said she does not release any of the pre- and post-test information to her students.

"They probably wouldn't understand the results anyway," she said. But she does keep each student informed on individual progress throughout the year.

Ms. Gibson disagrees, saying, "If they asked, I would tell them their scores. You have to be honest with them. The kids know they are not performing up to par or they wouldn't be in here."

Teachers and administrators alike said the most emphasis should be on learning situations and not testing. Because, helpful though it is, testing does not tell the whole story.

"If we really understood why they need this help, we'd have all the answers to education," Ms. Rosenbaum said.

Ms. Hill and Marjorie Gaut of the Pampa ISD are puzzled over the GAO's attack on Title 1, though both said it was possible that schools included in the damaging report were inner city schools beset by many problems other than students who can't read.

"All we can do," said Ms. Gaut, "is keep trying and we try the best we can."

18 Die in Weekend Fires

By United Press International

Killer fires in four states destroyed whole families and caused thousands of dollars in damage Sunday.

At least 18 persons were reported killed.

A pre-dawn fire raced through a two-story frame house in Warren, Pa., killing a family of seven. Fire officials said Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown, one of their daughters and their four sons died of smoke inhalation.

Five members of a young Chicago family were killed when fire swept their North Side apartment building. A police official said an investigation showed no signs of arson although 17 other fires have been set in the area since Jan.

The victims — John Dampitz, 22, his wife, Vickie, 21, and their children, a 1-year-old girl and two boys, ages 2 and 4 — were unable to escape from their second-floor apartment. All died of smoke inhalation and burns, a hospital spokesman said.

It was the third multifatality fire in Chicago in 10 days. The combined death count was 29.

A fire in a two-story frame house in Lawton, Okla., killed Gerald Russell Vernon, 25, Cindy Brown, 24, and her 3-year-old daughter, Cris. All were burned beyond recognition, the county medical examiner said.

Two other persons, Peter Jackson, 23, and Tony Roberts,

5, escaped from the house. Jackson required hospitalization for smoke inhalation.

Comanche County Sheriff Coy Rogers said it was believed the fire was started by an overheated woodburning stove in the kitchen.

In New York, a roof and a large airconditioning unit collapsed during a restaurant blaze, killing three firemen who were battling the flames. The deaths brought to five the number of firefighters who killed in the line of duty in New York this year.

Six other firemen were injured when the roof and airconditioning unit caved in at the Jolly Giant Family Restaurant on Staten Island.

First Ladies To Be Topic

Members of the Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club will get the lowdown on former first ladies at a dinner meeting Feb. 17.

Paula Bishop of Colorado Springs will deliver a researched presentation "Tattle Tales About the First Ladies" — including the parts these women have played in the successes of their famous husbands.

Presidents' wives have been known as vote-getters, perfect hostesses and advisors to their husbands, Ms. Bishop said.

E.E. Shelhamer, club president, said the meeting would be in the M.K. Brown Heritage Room.

Ms. Bishop, a former school teacher, has been appearing on the lecture circuit several years and has talked to audiences in 43 states. She was listed in "Who's Who in American Women" in 1963 and has also worked many summers as a youth sponsor and camp counselor.

Ms. Bishop, a native of the midwest, earned her bachelor's degree at Oklahoma State Normal School now Central State University. She has also done graduate work at Columbia University and Colorado University.

Tickets for the 7:30 p.m. appearance are on sale at Heard and Jones and must be purchased Feb. 16. Cost is $5.

Members will also be asked to vote on three new directors to replace three retiring directors, Shelhamer said.

Train Hits Car; No One Injured

"From the looks of that car I was lucky to walk away," Steven Plunk, 21, driver of an automobile which was struck Sunday night by a Santa Fe train three miles west of Pampa. Plunk of 1330 Hamilton said he had been visiting friends. "I came up over a hill and there was train. I just tried to get out of the way. I grabbed the floor and floor-boarded it. The train hit the back of the car and when it did I heard everything," Plunk added.

Asked if he were scared, Plunk replied: "Just a little." Burl Pipes of the Texas Highway Patrol, who investigated the accident, said it occurred on a dirt county road between the two Cabot plants. "He (Plunk) just didn't see the train until it was too late and he tried to get across," Pipes said. Pipes said he had no damage estimate, but added that the Plunk car is a total loss.

Assault Charges Filed Against Pampa Man

Aggravated assault charges were filed Saturday against James Edgar Grange, 32, of 414 N. Somerville. Pampa police officers answered a call that Grange had allegedly threatened a former girlfriend with a knife. They contacted Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford who issued a warrant for Grange's arrest. He is being held in county jail. Officers also investigated a burglary Saturday. Gary Douglas Smith of 205 1/2 N. Nelson told police that someone had entered his home and had stolen three oriental rugs valued at $150. A non-injury accident occurred in the 800 block of W. Francis between Kirk W. Story of Lefors and Bonnie C. Langston of Amarillo. Mickey Blaine Rigdon of 412 N. Somerville was stopped Saturday for a traffic violation and officers discovered he was driving with a suspended license. Sunday's police reports showed that officers investigated one theft. David St. Clair told police that within the past two weeks someone had entered his unlocked garage and removed a tool box, sockets, a Greenly Hole Saw Set and numerous other tools.

Hearst May Take Stand

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The big question in the bank robbery trial of Patricia Hearst is whether she became a gun-carrying revolutionary because of brainwashing and fear. There was a chance Miss Hearst might take the stand for the first time since her arrest last September to tell of her kidnapping by the Symbionese Liberation Army Feb. 4, 1974, and the rigors of her first weeks of incarceration. In a court affidavit filed during pretrial maneuvering she said she was tortured and made to suffer physical indignities at the hands of her abductors. Her attorneys have said she participated in the April, 1974, robbery out of fear and because of mental pressure. F. Lee Bailey, her chief attorney, said there was a good chance he might put her on the stand today in an attempt to keep a tape recording made by Miss Hearst out of her trial. In it she said she participated of her own free will in the holdup with several other SLA members. The jury would not be present during the special hearing before U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter. In other developments: — Dr. Robert Lifton, a Yale University professor of psychology and brainwash expert, told newsmen he would testify for the defense in Miss Hearst's trial. "I interviewed her for about 15 hours between the 8th and 10th of January," he said. The controversial tape recording was made nine days after the robbery.

Frank Phillips To Offer Aerobic Dance

Frank Phillips College in Borger will offer an aerobic dance class, beginning Feb. 17. The theme will be "dance your way to physical fitness." The 10-week, 20-session class will meet Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8 p.m. in FPC gymnasium with Mary Sue Hazelwood of Amarillo, one of the four-certified instructors in the Panhandle area, as instructor. Additional information may be obtained by calling the FPC division of continuing education. The class is limited to 50 students.

Deaths Reach 15,000

GUATEMALA CITY. Guatemala (UPI) — Government officials say the death toll has reached more than 15,000 in this Central American republic, hammered by three series of earth tremors in five days of devastation. A new set of shocks battered the capital early Sunday, swaying buildings, driving panicked citizens into the streets and prompting churchmen to call on their parishioners to repent. Aftershocks rippled through the city late in the day. Citizens refused to enter their damaged homes, preferring to camp out in makeshift tents despite gusty winds, a temperature drop to the low 50s and the city's first rainstorm since the tremors began. The official National Emergency Committee Sunday night placed the death toll at 15,043, with 37,000 injured since the initial quake rumbled through Guatemala and other parts of Central America Wednesday. The committee said at least 220,000 Guatemalans lost their homes in the quakes, but reports had not arrived from many small towns left isolated by landslides and communication failures. Sunday's tremors began at 3:20 a.m. EST, heavily damaging the Neuropsychiatric Hospital in the capital and sending patients running in panic. Patients from three other hospitals were sent to a treatment center at the trade fairgrounds. Sporadic looting prompted several neighborhoods to organize vigilante committees. Roman Catholic priests celebrated open air masses outside their wrecked churches, repeating Cardinal Mario Casariego's words that the quakes were "the will of the all-powerful one" and urging Guatemalans to repent their sins. Some districts in the capital reported outbreaks of diarrhea. People lined up at outdoor infirmaries to get inoculations against diphtheria, tetanus and typhoid. Outside the capital, bulldozers and tractors worked to remove tons of earth that fell across the Pan-American Highway in landslides following the Wednesday quake and the first powerful aftershock Friday. At Chimaltenango, 40 miles from the capital, officials said they had been unable to reach seven or eight hillside hamlets. Chimaltenango, with 5,110 dead, was believed to be the hardest hit municipality in the country.

Troops Seize Major Goal

By United Press International — Soviet-backed troops today claimed to have seized their rivals' capital city, a major goal in their weeks-long southern drive for a military victory in the Angolan civil war. In a broadcast from Luanda monitored in Johannesburg, the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola said the city of Huambo was "liberated" Sunday afternoon. It did not give details of the battle. The pro-Western National Union for the Total Independence of Angola denied the claim. But its president, Jonas Savimbi, conceded Sunday his forces might have to evacuate Huambo. Angola's second largest city and a key railroad junction. He also said the National Union might have to abandon its military headquarters at Silva Porto, 100 miles to the east. News of the setback came amid reports of a mysterious mercenary "Col. Callan" accused of ordering a mass execution of mutinous British mercenaries in northern Angola and of slaying eight Popular Movement prisoners of war. The Popular movement, backed by Soviet tanks and spearheaded by 10,000-12,000 Cuban soldiers, launched an offensive in December against the National Union and its ally the National Front for the Liberation of Angola. Western diplomats said the apparent collapse of the pro-Western capital could signal a new phase in Popular Movement efforts to win recognition from hitherto noncommittal African states. NBC reported from Zaire Sunday that 14 British mercenaries serving with pro-Western forces in northern Angola were executed on the orders of a Greek commander because they refused to fight. It said the commander forced British soldiers to carry out the order by training machineguns on them. Soldiers from the area

White Students Jeer Blacks in Florida

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — White students booed and jeered the few black students who arrived today at Escambia High school when classes resumed for the first time since a Thursday riot over the name of the school athletic teams left four students wounded by gunshots, six injured and at least nine arrested. None of the first nine buses bringing black students for the start of classes had more than 10 students aboard. School officials said the buses normally carry 40 to 50 students each. Seventy uniformed police, wearing riot helmets and equipped with riot sticks, were around the school and inside its corridors. White students with bulky objects in their pockets were searched. There were no immediate reports of violence, but some students said the atmosphere inside, where newsmen were prohibited, was tense, and there were rumors of a projected mass walkout by whites. Greg Finney, 17, a senior, said he was frisked and followed down a hallway because he had a bulky hair brush in his back pocket. Robert Moore, 16, a sophomore, said, "I'm going to school but I don't know if I'm going to stay there. There's talk of a mass walkout by the whites. I don't know who's organizing it—it's all by word of mouth. But if things get tense, I'm going." A student, who asked that his name be withheld, watched a nearly empty bus arrive with black students and said, "Good. As long as they don't come, there won't be any violence. Let them stay home." Despite efforts of black community leaders during the weekend, few of the blacks, who number about one-fourth of the student body, were on hand for classes. Escambia High's nickname was Rebels until a federal judge in Pensacola responded to black protests in 1973 and ruled a name change. The nickname was changed to Raiders. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the lower court ruling and told the school board to let students decide on a name. In a surprise election last Wednesday, Rebels was selected, but principal Chris Banakas said the change lacked the necessary approval by two-thirds of the student body.

Mayor Will Go To Amarillo

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson will attend a meeting of the Texas Highway Branch of the Association of General Contractors of America at noon Tuesday in the Amarillo Country Club. District Highway Engineer A.L. McKee, luncheon speaker, will discuss problems facing the Texas Department of Public Transportation and review funding needs of the department.

Civil Rights Agency Questions City Views

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights wants to know Mayor R.D. Wilkerson's views about desegregation. The mayor received a questionnaire and letter today from John A. Buggs, federal director of the Civil Rights agency, instructing him to answer questions in the three-page civil rights quiz. Buggs stated in the letter that the questionnaire had first been sent to the mayor on Jan. 19, but as yet no answer had been received. City Manager Mack Wofford said the mayor's official mail is delivered to the city manager's office and that to his knowledge no such letter had been received until today. Today's letter explained that the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights is the "fact-finding agency within the Executive Branch authorized under the Civil Rights Act of 1975 to study and collect information concerning legal developments constituting denials of equal protection of laws under the Constitution because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin, or in the administration of justice." The letter from the Civil Rights director also states that "this is the statutory authority for collection of information on individuals." City Manager Wofford said he would channel the letter and questionnaire to the mayor who does not maintain an office in City Hall.

Connally Write-in May Be Underway

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A decision will be made in the next few days whether to proceed with a planned write-in campaign for former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr., a Republican, in the New Hampshire Democratic presidential primary Feb. 24, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said today. The move is aimed at tapping the large pool of undecided voters found in samplings of New Hampshire Democrats, the Post said, "and at capitalizing on the failure so far of any candidate to emerge from the large Democratic field with a clear lead." The story, written from Manchester, N.H., by a Washington correspondent, said the effort is led by Richard Viguierie, identified as "one of the country's principal conservative activists." The Post said William Loeb, publisher of the influential Manchester Union Leader, is backing the write-in campaign for Connally, former Texas governor and an influential member of the administration of former President Richard M. Nixon. Well informed political sources here doubt that the effort would have more than a limited effect on the Democratic primary, the Post said. "In a very close race, however, it could influence the outcome, chiefly by damaging Jimmy Carter, who is rated as the current front runner." The Post said a Connally write-in campaign could heighten the challenge of Ronald Reagan in his bid to unseat President Ford as the Republican nominee, especially among the independent voters who may vote in the GOP primary. It could also further Connally's own career. "If, without any effort on his part or even without his blessing, a write-in effort pulled a fair number of votes," the newspaper said, "the former Nixon Administration Cabinet officer would be in a stronger position to consider seeking the nomination if Mr. Ford and Reagan knock each other out."

Catalans Provoke Riots

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Catalans demanding autonomy for their region have confronted the Spanish government for the second time in two weeks, provoking street battles with riot police. Witnesses charged police brutality in suppressing the demonstration, the second in as many Sundays and a sign of a new challenge to King Juan Carlos' 11-week-old reign. The king spent the weekend skiing near Granada. Running battles between demonstrators and police, backed by helicopters and water cannon, choked the center of Barcelona with smoke and teargas and stopped traffic for hours. Police using clubs, rubber bullets, teargas, fire hoses and smoke bombs clashed for four hours Sunday with an estimated 25,000 protesters in the streets of this Mediterranean port city. British newspapers identified him as a "Col. Callan." One mercenary who managed to leave Angola said in London he had seen "Callan" kill eight captured soldiers of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola. "It was done by Col. Callan with his own automatic pistol," Tom Chambers, 45, a former Royal Air Force sergeant, told the Daily Express. "All the men were shot straight in the back of the head." According to Chambers, "Callan" is a former Greek terrorist leader who fought against the British in Cyprus. "He just seemed to get a kick out of killing," he said. In London, the Foreign Office said it had asked its embassy in Zaire to investigate the reported killings of the British mercenaries, but a spokesman said the incident would be "particularly difficult ... to check." In Leeds, England, a man who claimed to be a spokesman for a mercenary-recruiting agency called Security Advisory Services attached little importance to the report. "If anything like this had happened, we would be the first to know," he said.

Best Selling Author Deals in Romance

author, Roberta Leigh, a 42-year-old Englishwoman whose "romances" sell a guaranteed one-million copies each, worldwide.

sale of roughly 12 million. She's been touring North America to publicize her latest book, "Temporary Wife," published by Harlequin Enterprises Limited, a Toronto publishing house that boasts a stable of 140 writers specializing in the kind of fluffy fiction women's magazines tend to buy their pages with.

And how can anyone take her characters seriously? In "Temporary Wife," for example, Luke Adams, a young, rivetingly handsome ex-Cambridge don turned business magnate, marries spunky, pretty but not ravishing Emily Lamb. It's strictly business because Luke has to protect the affair he's having with ravishing but Machiavellian Gina, his boss's wife. We know, of course, that the goodhearted Emily is the perfect wife for Luke, but it takes a considerable amount of will he, won't he, before he finally realizes it, too.

humor when she mentions her first "romance," written at 14 when she was in boarding school outside of London. "I worked out a fantastic plot around my teachers, one of whom was a nun, so it was highly illicit."

LITERATURE for Roberta Leigh means three-dimensional characters and happy endings.

things: love and emotion, because that's where they do have control."

She was, she says, a "rather lonely and introspective child. My parents were in their forties when I was born and I grew up during the war. I remember that being very frightened that a U-boat would suddenly come out of the sea and that we'd all be murdered."

"My favorite authors were Grimm and Hans Christian Andersen. Yes, I do think all that motivated me to write what I do."

Married at 17 to a now-retired real estate man, she has one son—"They never read my books"—and she can never recall a time when she didn't think of herself as a man's equal and sometimes his superior.

"I dislike being called 'Ms.," she says, zee-ing the word bumble bee fashion. "I don't think there's any shame in letting people know I'm married. It's men who should have two titles so women know who they're dealing with."

Roberta Leigh knows exactly who and what she's dealing with, that's for sure. And if she's accused of projecting a tinted cellophane view of life, well, considering the real commodity, who's to say there's anything wrong with that, anyway?

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: With Thanksgiving day right around the corner, I thought this tip might help out. I've found a neat way to thaw a large turkey in cold water. For a fast thaw, cold water is advised and it should be changed often. But in what container?

I purchased a dozen bobbins and filled them with the colors of thread I use most often. Takes seconds to change thread. Try it — has saved hours for me.

Mrs. E.H.K.

I use our ice chest which is seldom in use this time of the year, anyhow. I put it in the bathtub, add the turkey and fill the ice chest with cold water. A very easy way! The water can be changed with no concern over spills and it's indeed a very large container!

What a darling discovery, dear. I'll bet mothers, too, really use this hint on rainy days.

Heloise

And that's a fact, folks. Of course, the best method for thawing a turkey is to leave it in the refrigerator for two or three days and let it thaw out very slowly — retains more of its natural juices that way. But if you are faced with having to thaw one quickly, Mrs. Hanson's hint is terrific and timely.

Dear Heloise: How about those new plastic insulated bottles (not vacuum) in the kids' lunch boxes. Unbreakable, but by lunch time the contents are less than refrigerator cold. Fill the bottle at night and place it (without cup and stopper) in the freezer. Put the stopper and cup in the lunch box to remind you in the morning to remove the bottle from the freezer.

The contents will be frozen, but by noontime only slivers of ice will remain. My 5-year-old is thrilled by the ice in his drink and the coldness of the liquid.

Margaret Daniels

LETTER OF THOUGHT Dear Heloise: My father always said that anything worthwhile must be earned.

Anything just handed to one on a silver platter so to speak, and completely free of any effort on their part to acquire it, usually has little or no value and very seldom appreciated. Years later in my life when I had children of my own, I taught them to work and earn what they had.

I sew for all my family so, naturally, I buy my material when on sale. It may be months before I sew what I have purchased and, like all mothers, I do not remember every piece of material I have at home.

Likewise, I may get an idea of a coordinate outfit and would like to match a piece of material I already have at home. Or I need to know the color-to-buy matching notions.

When I purchase material, I clip just a small piece off the very corner of the material and tape it in a small notebook which I always carry in my handbag.

When I use the material I do not remove the sample, as I still seem to find reasons to refer to it, like matching a scarf, etc. to the outfit.

Mrs. Margaret Sas

I couldn't agree more!

Heloise

After years of dressmaking, I decided I was using too much time winding different colors of thread on the few bobbins I had.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 10
Your birthday today: Finds you in active pursuit of opportunity. Take the cash while you can and convert potentials and latent assets into useful forms now. Discipline yourself to a steady budget, systematic savings and provision for the future. Relationships are lively and require extra time and attention. Today's natives are impulsive but well-intentioned, very persistent once they are set on a goal.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Getting organized early makes all the difference. Squeeze in as many types of people as possible. Special errands further your future plans.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Connections you haven't exploited come to life and provide incentive. Avoid secret dealings and unfair alliances. Move up your schedules.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Keeping friends and their financial ideas out of your activities is difficult but desirable. Patiently work things out and don't get into a quarrel.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Your job develops complexities that require careful judgment. Intuition leads you to open a new line of resources; keep them to yourself.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Basic decisions abruptly advance career matters. Assemble a long-range program and fill in the details as fast as you can. Allies are encouraging.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Assuming all pledges are honored, you still must work with a sense of dedication. Those who care are in there pitching; don't take them for granted.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: A clash you fail to understand is based upon concealed facts and personality problems. Since it is a private argument, stay out of it.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Finances take a turn for the better as you see things that previously escaped you. Step up the tempo. Property deals are favored early in the day.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Bright ideas are numerous and tempting. Avoid being dictatorial or patronizing. Technical advice from experts has beneficial ramifications.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Be sure those sponsoring you know the complete details of your responsibilities, but don't insert complaints in your report. Your plans may be adopted now.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

The bidding: South West North East
1♥ 4♦ 4♥ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♦. West's pre-emptive four-diamond bid was a fine call, and really made it rough for North. But the latter came up with the winning answer when he elected to support his partner's hearts. However, as will be observed, North's confidence was misplaced.

After his ace of diamonds had captured the opening lead, West continued with the diamond queen. Dummy's king was played and East ruffed. East returned a spade. South finessing his queen unsuccessfully. With the adverse location of the queen of clubs, declarer eventually had to lose a club trick, and thus incur a one-trick set.

If there were any one thing of which declarer should have been reasonably certain it was that West, for his preemptive call, had a seven-card suit; and, hence, that East possessed a singleton diamond. Declarer's concern should have been that East would obtain the lead to play a spade before dummy's club suit became established. Had he been aware of these two points, he would not have put up dummy's king of diamonds at trick two. Instead, he would have played a low diamond, allowing West's queen to capture trick two.

Whatever West now played, he could not prevent declarer from fulfilling his contract. A third diamond lead would be ruffed by South, after which trumps would be drawn. The club finesse would then be taken. East's queen winning South would now be able to discard his spade queen on one of dummy's high clubs.

If East, at trick two, decided to ruff his partner's queen of diamonds in order to shift to a spade at trick three, it wouldn't help the defenders. South would take the trick with his ace, draw trumps, and one the high king of diamonds would discard his spade queen.

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — When you survive a tornado which kills five of your friends, you have to be lucky. But Colleen O'Connor and partner Jim Mills of Colorado Springs will need more than luck today if they are to win the Olympic ice dancing gold medal.

Figure skating judges, drawn mainly from the East bloc countries, traditionally favor champions. This was displayed all too plainly Saturday when Russia's Irina Rodina and Aleksandr Zaitsev were marked high, despite a mediocre performance, en route to the gold medal in the pairs event.

O'Connor and Mills were third after the compulsory program to Ludmila Pakhomova and Aleksandr Gorshkov, the five-time world champions from Russia, and another Russian pair, reigning world title holders Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov.

"I would not be realistic to expect us to win the gold medal, but we hope to attract the judges' attention sufficiently so we can score high enough to split the Russians," said O'Connor.

Colleen is enjoying her first Olympics, despite the stiff competition and the questionable judging. Life is to be lived and even Innsbruck, a sleepy town in the foothills of the Alps, can be an exciting place for a girl from suburban Chicago.

Back in 1967, Colleen, then 16, was lucky to survive a tornado which struck when she was practicing for a roller skating competition. She was hospitalized for three weeks and left with 32 stitches in her head, the result of being buried for over 45 minutes under a pile of rubble.

The only other final on a light day of competition was the Nordic Combined in which East Germany's Ulrich Wehling was favored to repeat as champion. He scored 225.5 points on the 70-meter hill Sunday to outdistance the opposition. A 15-kilometer cross-country race completes the event.

James Galanes of Brattleboro, Vt., was the best placed American in the field of 34 in 25th spot with 184.1 points. Teammates Walter Malmquist of Post Mills, Vt., was one place back, while Mike Devecka of Bend, Ore., was 32nd.

Elsewhere in the program, the men's first heat of the giant slalom was scheduled along with the compulsory program in women's figure skating in which Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., faced a stiff challenge in world champion Dianne de Leeuw, a native Californian representing Holland.

Sunday's hectic action produced an upset victor in the women's downhill and a bronze medal for Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn.

Cindy, in a comparative slump during the World Cup season preceding the Olympics, hit back with a great run, but it was not quite good enough to stop Rosi Totschnig of West Germany and Brigitte Totschnig of Austria from finishing ahead of her.

Mittermaier, the current World Cup leader, won her first ever downhill in over eight years of competitive skiing with a time of 1:46.16 after it looked as if pre-race favorite Brigitte Totschnig of Austria would win.

Nelson, 20, clocked 1:47.50. She said later, "I wanted to win a medal or medals. This is the first."

I am happy, but, of course, I would have been a lot more satisfied with a gold.

"I realize I have to ski a lot better than I did today to get one."

The downhill is Cindy's best event, but she finished third in a Cup slalom, so she may yet harvest a gold before the week is out.

Otherwise, the day belonged to Russia. Nikolai Bajukov won the men's 15-kilometer race in which last Thursday's hero, Bill Koch of Guilford, Vt., finished sixth, while Tatiana Averina won her fourth medal, and second gold, by taking the women's 3,000-meters in Olympic record time. Nancy Swider of Park Ridge, Ill., finished seventh.

David Santee of Park Ridge, Ill., was in fifth place in the men's figure skating after the compulsory program in which Russia's world champion Sergei Volkov led European champion John Curry, a transplanted New Yorker, by two ordinal points.

Czechs Blank US Hockey Team

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — It really couldn't have been any different, even if Jim Warden had four arms and a prayer.

For almost two periods, the acrobatic miracles of the lanky goaltender held a powerful Czechoslovak squad to a single goal. As Warden rejected wave after wave of attackers, illusion clouded reality and lent the hazy impression that a shocking upset could be achieved.

But there was no way it could be. The skill, the poise, the experience, they all belonged to Czechoslovakia, and in the end the United States was wiped out, 5-0, for its second loss in as many games in the Olympic hockey championship.

"He was excellent," was the simple appraisal of the Czech coach, Karel Gut. "The United States was quite strong physically and very ambitious, but they lack experience. They are of very young age."

Jiri Holecck, 10 years older than Warden at 31 and a professional caliber goaltender, achieved the shutout.

The Czechs, it must be granted, were without two top players. Jiri Novak and Jiri Holik, bedded with the flu, and several others who did play were weakened by the virus that is becoming a major concern in the olympic village.

On the other hand, this is also the same team that recently beat the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, 6-1, outshooting them, 49-13, and causing Bobby Hull to comment, "the score could have been 15-1."

"They're an excellent hockey team, capable of beating anyone," said U.S. coach Bob Johnson. "We don't have some of the skills the Czechs have, and we have to make up for it with enthusiasm."

"In our game plan we needed good goaltending from Jim Warden, and we got it. They have one of the finest power plays in hockey, and we stopped them six times. Our defense did a very good job in front of our net. We forechecked and created a lot of loose pucks. But somewhere along the line we needed a goal, and that's what we couldn't get."

For more than 38 minutes, the frustrated Czechs could manage only a single goal, thanks to the quick reflexes of Warden, a 21-year-old Californian who attends Michigan Tech. But then not even he could hold off the wave.

PAMPA DAILY NEWS Monday, February 9, 1976 9

Wichita State Leading by 1/2

By United Press International
So much for all of that "charity begins at home" business. The Wichita Wheatshockers found quite a lot of it on the road Saturday night.

Wichita moved into a half game lead over West Texas and Southern Illinois in the Missouri Valley Conference race during the weekend with a 70-61 decision over Tulsa on the Hurricanes' floor.

And it came about thanks to a whole lot of free throw shooting. The Shockers hit 26 of 34 free throw opportunities while Tulsa had only 12 chances from the line and made seven.

Wichita guard Cal Burton symbolized the night by hitting four straight free throws after a flagrant foul on Tulsa which was quickly followed by two technicals called on the Hurricanes' bench.

Earlier in the week Wichita enjoyed a night at home by destroying Bradley, 84-61, and at the end of the week had compiled a 6-1 league mark.

Southern Illinois and West Texas are each at 5-1, the Salukies having drummed Drake, 72-57, Saturday night and West Texas having held off New Mexico State in Amarillo, 68-66 in overtime.

Maurice Cheeks hit a 15-foot jumper shot with two seconds remaining in the overtime period to give the Buffaloes the victory.

Regulation time ended with a 60-60 score, neither team being able to break the deadlock in the final three minutes.

Big games are on the schedule this week in the league. West Texas travels to Southern Illinois Thursday night and Southern Illinois then goes to Wichita on Saturday evening.

West Texas also has a Saturday night encounter with Bradley (3-4) in Peoria.

Unchallenged Layup

Pampa's Donnie Hughes gets an easy two points in the fourth quarter of his team's 53-51 win over Borger Friday. The Harvesters, outright first-half champions in District 3-AAAA play, open the second go-round at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Amarillo Caprock. The Harvesters whipped Caprock, 53-45, in the first half. Pampa carries a 22-4 record into Tuesday's game. (Pampa News photo by Robert Echols)

Ashe Wins Classic By Downing Gottfried

By United Press International
With $17,000 dollars in new prize money, Arthur Ashe says he believes television's bigger money challenge matches are not good for the game. Ashe took his third World Championship Tennis tournament this year, flattening Brian Gottfried, 6-2, 6-4, in the finals Sunday of the United Virginia Bank Tennis Classic in Richmond.

Ashe said promoter Bill Riordan, Jimmy Connors' former manager, approached him in Philadelphia earlier this month, proposing a TV challenge match on the order of the Connors-Rod Laver and Connors-John Newcombe matches last year.

"I told him to see my lawyer (Donald Dell)," Ashe said. "I'm not against challenge matches. But how they are set up, it's not good for the game. With so much money in the bank, why should a player try harder?"

Philadelphia Hires Vermeil of UCLA

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles' exhaustive and sometimes embarrassing search for a new head coach ended this weekend when Dick Vermeil did what Joe Paterno and Frank Kush wouldn't do.

Vermeil, who coached UCLA to an upset win over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl last New Year's day, signed a five-year contract to coach the Eagles, replacing Mike McCormack, who was fired at the end of last season.

Earns 17th Victory

Miller Fires 63, Wins Hope

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Until someone more animated comes along, Johnny Miller will have to do as the most outspoken and forthright player on the PGA tour.

When Miller misses a shot—which isn't often—he says, "I hacked it," or "I played it badly," or "it was as dumb a thing as anyone could do."

But when he makes a good shot, especially if he sinks a long putt, the good-looking blond Californian says, "that was ridiculous."

Ridiculous or not, Miller made a string of nine birdies Sunday in about as spectacular and powerful a closing round as one could hope for, for a nine under 63 and a three shot victory in the $180,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

The 63 gave Miller a 90-hole score of 16-under-par 344, won a prize of $36,000, boosted his 1976 earnings to $84,370, his career earnings to $1,031,522 and accounted for his 17th career victory.

Miller called it his best tournament victory, and it well might have been. He went into

From The Channel... Women's Tournament Upcoming

By GIL WUEST
Attention, league officers. Is there one of you who can supply the weekly league results to the newspaper? Generally the responsibility for turning in this information is the Vice President's, but any one of you may.

Thanks for the information available here at the lanes. There's a slot by the front door of the Pampa News building in which you may slip the results of your league so you can drop it off any time.

The league participants enjoy seeing their accomplishments acknowledged in this way too.

The entry blanks for the Pampa Women's Bowling Association city tournament will be available here at the lanes this week. Entry closing date is March 6. Plan to enter, ladies.

and have a great tournament this year.

State Retirement Paid Wealthy Texas Rancher

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A multimillionaire rancher, who wanted to qualify for a state pension, was put on Senate Secretary Charles A. Schnabel's payroll for two months last year and paid $300 to write a 2½ page letter.

As a result, A.W. Moursund received his first state retirement check of $626.17 in January.

Moursund, a wealthy lawyer-banker-rancher who was trustee for Lyndon Johnson's many business interests when Johnson was president, refused to tell newsmen what work he did for his Senate pay.

"I don't give out interviews. I haven't for 20 years. That's my policy," Moursund said when contacted once at his Round Mountain, Tex., home.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said he asked Schnabel to help Moursund, a campaign supporter, find a state job to qualify for state retirement.

"That was right at the end of August," Doggett said. "Charlie told me he had found something for him at the Parks and Wildlife Department. I subsequently learned he had done something on the brucellosis program for the Senate."

Senate records indicate Moursund went on the payroll Aug. 25. Checks apparently were mailed to his Johnson City post office box in August and September.

Doggett said Moursund told him he lacked only two months time to qualify for a state pension.

"That's clearly why he wanted to work for the state. He just said he was right on the edge of his retirement and hoped he could get a job for the state," Doggett said.

Moursund, who has ranching interests in Texas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and reportedly South America, worked at the capitol in the 1930s as a night watchman and elevator operator. He also has previous state service as a legislator and member of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

Moursund indicated in his answers to a questionnaire from State Auditor George McNeil that he prepared a brief on brucellosis while employed by the Senate.

Sen. Max Sherman, D-Amarillo, chairman of the Senate Natural Resources Committee, told UPI-Schnabel sent him a 2½ page letter from Moursund concerning brucellosis about two months ago.

"I don't know Mr. Moursund or any of the circumstances," Sherman said. "It is a subject that obviously is going to come up. But we didn't ask for it."

Schnabel's letter to Sherman indicates Moursund was assigned a "brucellosis project."

The letter details Moursund's gripes about regulations presently imposed by the federal government in an effort to control the spread of brucellosis in cattle.

He called the existing program ridiculous, ineffectual and a waste of taxpayers' money as well as a financial burden for cattle owners.

Schnabel indicated in his letter to Sherman that Moursund's 2½ page letter was only "part of his report." But when asked to see any additional work done by Moursund, Schnabel said "that's it."

Schnabel Got Money

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Several state paychecks issued to Senate employees in 1969 and 1971 were cashed and deposited in the bank account of Senate Secretary Charles A. Schnabel.

The Travis County Grand Jury has subpoenaed records of Schnabel's personal checking account and the "special" account he maintained at the bank.

One of the state employees, Peggy McPhaul, says she never received a $230 paycheck the Senate issued in her name in September, 1969, and did not sign it.

The employee named on the other check, Faythe Ann Blake, died in Dallas last year.

Docs To Let Voters Decide

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Medical Association has decided to let the voters decide whether its radical plan to end the state's malpractice insurance crisis should be made a part of the state constitution.

The doctors want to place an initiative, containing details of the plan, on the November ballot. They need 499,846 signatures by mid-June to qualify the measure. If adopted, the plan would be written into California's constitution.

The strategy was worked out during the weekend by the executive council of the state association, the nation's second largest, at its 106th annual convention.

Details may be changed after debate between militant and moderate physicians expected this week. But its intent was to revolutionize medical liability law.

The main provisions were: — To abolish trial by jury of malpractice claims. Cases would be arbitrated by "a qualified expert or panels of experts" to be set up by the legislature. — The amount of noneconomic damages for physical impairment, disfigurement, pain and suffering would be limited to $100,000.

— Decisions could be reviewed by appellate courts only "as to questions of law."

— Lawyers' fees, which now range up to 50 per cent in difficult cases, would be on a sliding scale providing attorneys with 10 per cent of any amount between $50,000 and the $100,000 limit.

Some doctors have seen their malpractice insurance premiums triple this year. They have dramatized their case with work stoppages in both northern and southern California.

Legislative leaders and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. have refused to support provisions of the doctors' plan. They have worked out their own plan which would create an insurance fund, financed by physicians but backed by the state, and which would require doctors to provide some free service to the poor.

Should their proposed measure qualify for the November ballot, the doctors would need only a majority vote of the people to amend the state constitution.

Concert Tickets

Letters went into the mail today to members of the Pampa Community Concert Association for season ticket renewals for the 1976-77 concert season. Mrs. Bruce Riehart, left, and Mrs. E.L. Green Jr., co-chairpersons for the annual membership drive, ready the campaign material. Renewal applications must be in the mail by March 1. Drive headquarters will be open March 8, 9 and 10 in the lobby of Coronado Inn for memberships not renewed in the "mail-in" campaign.

Unions Plan 'Catchup'

United Press International Union bosses are calling 1976 a "catchup" year — a year to catch up with losses suffered during the recession.

Truckers, rubber and electrical workers, building tradesmen and some 15 million public employees are bucking for increases in pay and fringe benefits.

Economists say the demands could result in more inflation.

"Most forecasters are calling for inflation between 5 and 7 per cent," said Dr. Joseph Seneca, chairman of the economics department at Rutgers College.

"But I think you could see a marked upward change if these contract settlements run higher — if labor unions press very hard for significant wages."

"Certainly there's a good case that the unions may feel there's some catching up to be done."

Major union contracts covering some 4.5 million industrial workers are scheduled to expire this year and huge wage and fringe demands are expected. Police, firemen and other public employees, considered a "underbox" by new Labor Secretary W.J. Usery, could be even tougher at the bargaining table.

Last month, police and firemen in the District of Columbia won an 18 per cent pay hike over 10 months. Police in Prince Georges County, Md., agreed to an average 14.5 per cent increase over two years.

Usery predicts settlements will average about 10 per cent this year. But the big unions say they want more.

President Harry Bridges of the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union, whose contract doesn't expire until 1978, said the average worker's net income has declined 9 per cent.

"It's definitely a catch-up year," said Charles Marcante, head of the 720,000-member New Jersey AFL-CIO. "We're going after the dollars in hand."

Even the most optimistic of economists, former White House adviser Walter Heller of the University of Minnesota, predicts a "modest wage-push inflation" ahead.

Dr. Murray Weidenbaum of Washington University, a former assistant secretary of the treasury, criticized the unions for trying to "catch up."

"The entire society has suffered a decline in real income because of the worldwide increase in the price of oil," he said. "If one segment of society, the unions, are going to protect themselves against that decline in real income, which is behind us, it will be at the expense of the rest of us."

"The whole society can't catch up, so to speak. The only thing that could support such large increases would be a very substantial increase in productivity."

GOP Lacks KC Rooms

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — GOP officials say a lack of adequate hotel space could force the Republican National Committee to change the site of its 1976 convention.

Area hotels last fall promised to provide nearly 16,000 rooms during the August convention. But now local and national party leaders say about 10 per cent of the original 16,000 rooms are being held back.

"If we don't get that commitment, we'll move the convention, something we are prepared to do," a GOP official in Washington said Saturday. "The last word from Ody Fish (committee vice chairman and convention manager) is that we will not take one room less than the original commitment."

Ray Bennisson, director of the Kansas City Convention and Visitors Bureau, said GOP officials told him a move was possible unless the housing problem was resolved.

"They said it was a highly critical situation," Bennisson said. "They said to have a successful convention they needed to have every room originally promised to them."

But Bennisson says he is confident all rooms originally pledged will be given to the GOP.

"I am convinced the community will meet their responsibilities and commitments," he said. "These problems are very concerning, but I don't think we can panic about them."

Weekend News Summary

By United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI) — The sun belt, and Florida in particular, led the nation in metropolitan growth in the first four years of this decade, the U.S. Census Bureau has reported.

Reporting on population trends in 272 U.S. metropolitan areas, the bureau said Florida had seven of 13 areas that grew by at least 20 per cent between 1970 and 1974. Colorado and Texas had two and Arizona one.

"Growth in the metropolitan population in the early 1970s has been confined largely to the south and west," the bureau said. "This is a rare period in recent American history when nonmetropolitan America has grown faster than its metropolitan counterpart."

By mid-1974, the metropolitan areas had a census of 155 million, up 3.4 per cent from 1970, while rural population swelled by 5.5 per cent, to 56.4 million.

HONG KONG (UPI) — In a surprise appointment, Hua Kuo-feng, a protégé of Communist Party chairman Mao Tse-tung and China's top policeman, was named acting successor to Premier Chou En-lai, who died of cancer last month.

In a routine dispatch, the New China News Agency confirmed the appointment by saying, "Hua Kuo-feng, acting premier of the State Council, met and had a cordial and friendly talk ... with Jose de Jesus Sanchez Carrero" of Venezuela.

PRICHARD, Ala. (UPI) — Seven persons, including four teen-agers being chased by police, died in an automobile crash when the teen-agers' auto smashed into another car carrying three passengers.

Alabama state police said the three adults in the second car "didn't have a chance" when the teen-agers' car, crossed the center line and hit them head-on at more than 100 miles per hour.

Troopers said they chased the car at speeds in excess of 115 mph first on an interstate, then onto a state highway and finally onto a winding narrow road near Prichard.

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson has suggested West Germany or another country help mediate Britain's longstanding dispute with Iceland over cod fishing rights.

But West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt declined the role and suggested the North Atlantic Treaty Organization handle the mediation. Both Britain and Iceland are members of the alliance.

The move came as Iceland's prime minister, Geir Hallgrimsson, said his government was trying to decide whether to break off diplomatic relations with Britain because of the dispute.

The flareup began in October after Iceland extended its territorial limit from 50 to 200 miles to protect its stocks of codfish. Britain refused to recognize the extension and sent warships to protect its fishing fleet.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Maryland plans to implement emergency regulations for handling the toxic pesticide kepone by midmonth, state Labor Commissioner Harvey Epstein says.

Waukesha-Pearce Industries

J.C. Beyer, Waukesha - Pearce Industries district manager.

Waukesha - Pearce Industries, a division of Pearce Industries Inc. of Houston, was founded in 1923. The Pampa WPI branch office opened in 1952, and is now located on Price Road.

J.C. Beyer is district manager.

WPI deals primarily in sales and service and Waukesha engines but also carries a line of pumps, small Kobler air cooled engines and parts and accessories related to the servicing of engines. The branch office here employs 15 persons.

The firm has enjoyed continued growth in the Panhandle, according to Beyer. It now operates in four Southwest states and part of Mexico.

"We just added a new shop with 15-ton hoist to handle our larger equipment," Beyer said.

"I feel that our continued growth will persist so long as there is a development of oil and gas resources in the Panhandle area," he added.

Economy Maintains Slow Recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The welcome drop in unemployment is the big news as the economy continues a slow recovery in the early months of 1976.

The increase in those working was the kind of data sure to be paraded before the body politic, with presidential elections coming up.

Democrats have been on the attack because of unemployment, but President Ford hailed Friday's news about nearly one-half million persons back on the job as "marvelous."

Government, and some private, economists continued to regard developments as indicating steady progress out of the recession, but with inflation still a problem.

A summary of the latest figures:

UNEMPLOYMENT: Unemployment fell from 8.3 per cent in December to 7.8 per cent in January as 450,000 nonfarm workers returned to work. The still unemployed totaled 7.3 million, with 78.1 million working. There were gains in all categories except teenagers, whose jobless rate rose 0.3 per cent to 19.9.

INFLATION: Measured at 6.5 per cent during the last three months of 1975, the second-lowest quarterly rate in three years. The Consumer Price Index, the measure of inflation, stood at 166.3 in December, meaning goods which cost $100 in 1967 cost $166.30 in December.

REAL EARNINGS: Average workers' "real" spendable earnings — weekly pay after inflation and deductions — rose only 0.2 per cent faster than the cost of living in 1975. But the one-shot tax cut gave him a 3.8 per cent rise.

WHOLESALE PRICES: The cost of living rose 0.5 per cent in December, floating upward on increases for public transportation, autos, medical services and some foods. The Wholesale Price Index was 178.7 from a 1967 base of 100, meaning goods costing $100 in 1967 cost $178.7 now.

TRADE — The United States had a record $11 billion annual trade surplus in 1975. Exports exceeded imports in December for the 11th straight month. The previous yearly high was $7.1 billion in 1964; the trade deficit for 1974 was $2.4 billion.

INDICATORS: The index of leading business indicators finished the fourth quarter of 1975 down by 0.2 per cent to 102.2. It had risen 0.4 in December.

GNP: The Gross National Product rose 5.4 per cent in the last quarter of 1975, but not enough to offset the year's losses — 2 per cent after 1974's 1.8 per cent drop.

EXPORT FIGURES: Pennsylvania's exports to foreign countries increased 42.5 per cent during 1974, according to State Commerce Secretary John J. O'Connor, jumping to $3.2 billion from the previous year's total of $2.2 billion.

Almost 160,000 jobs in the state now depend upon international commerce, O'Connor said, compared with just 100,000 in 1971. O'Connor estimates another 15,000 to 20,000 jobs are the direct results of the approximately 100 foreign-owned firms operating manufacturing plants in the state.

Little things are important

Small in size, but performing an important function when needed... what would we do without nuts and bolts?

Classified Ads are like that too! In fact, they do more things for more people at lower cost than any other form of advertising!

Buying... selling... hiring... finding... renting... or just telling, a small, low-cost Classified Ad will do a big, important job for you.

It's easy to place your ad... just dial 669-2525

Youth Center Slate Told

The Youth Center daily schedule has been set for the week of Feb. 9-15. The Dolphin swim team will work out 4 to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday followed by an open swim time for all the public from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday 1 to 4:30 p.m. and Sunday 2 to 4:30 p.m. are swim times, too. The recreation hall is open for pool, ping pong, foosball, pin ball, checkers, dominoes, chess and other quiet games daily from 4 to 10 p.m. The gym will be open for leisure time basketball, tumbling, wrestling, jogging and trampolining weekdays from 4 to 6:00 p.m. and on weekends during the afternoons.

The leagues basketball schedule will start on Monday at 6 p.m. with Pampa News playing Celanese followed by women's league action placing First Bapt. vs Lefors at 7:30 p.m. and Shoenail Supply vs M.D. Snider at 8:40 p.m. On Wednesday men's action will be P.O. Texaco vs Dorchester Gas at 7 p.m. and Spearman vs 1st Nat. Bank at 8:30 p.m. On Thursday the winter league will conclude competition with 1st Bapt. Ch. vs Holtman Trucks at 7:00 p.m. and Carter's 66ers vs Malcolm Hinkle at 8:30 p.m. Scores from this weeks competition found Holtman Trucks 55 Malcolm Hinkle 38; Pampa News 76 Dorchester Gas 64; Spearman 74 P.O. Texaco 51; Shoenail Supply 35 Lefors 19 and M.D. Snider 24 1st Bapt. Ch. 14. The Youth Center's Dolphin swim team will compete in a swim meet being held at the Maverick Club in Amarillo on Feb. 14 and 15. Both "A" and "B" swimmers in boys and girls divisions will be entering. Enrollment in the Dolphin swim club is still open to anyone interested in competitive swimming. Persons who are interested may come by during any workout time to receive full information or they may call coaches Malcolm Douglas and Richard Hill.

Moving Adjustments Cover Much

By Ray De Crane
(Seventh in a Series)
If you obtained a new job last year or were transferred by your employer to a new location and a move in residence was required by the job switch, you may have a sizable income tax adjustment. This applies if you are an employee, a new job holder, a self-employed person, or a partner in a business organization. In order to be eligible, these conditions must be met: The change in job locations would have required at least 50 additional miles in commuting one way if you had not moved;

you must be employed full-time in the general vicinity of the new job location (not necessarily with the same employer) for at least 39 weeks during the first 12 months following the move. Self-employed persons must continue to work in the new location for at least 78 weeks during the 24 months following the move. At least 39 of those weeks must be in the first 12 months. To claim the adjustment, you must first include in gross income any reimbursed moving expenses from your employer. If eligible, here are the expenses you are permitted to deduct: (1) actual charge for moving household effects, furnishings and personal property, charges for packing and crating and for in-transit storage and insurance; (2) the travel expenses of all regular members of your family, including meals and lodging enroute; (3) the cost of house-hunting trips to the new location after employment was obtained; (4) cost of meals and lodging in temporary quarters in the new location for up to 30 days after obtaining employment, and (5) the cost of selling the old residence and purchasing another, or settling an old lease and acquiring another. In the latter category are such items as a broker's commission, closing costs, attorney fees, and points charged on a mortgage if not otherwise deductible as interest. A loss on the sale of a residence, however, is not deductible. While there are no dollar limitations on Points 1 and 2, IRS regulations hold that the charges must be reasonable. The maximum deduction allowed on 3, 4 and 5 is $2,500, of which not more than $1,000 is allowed for house-hunting trips and temporary living expenses. On separate returns of married people, the limits are $1,250 overall, of which not more than $500 may be for house-hunting and temporary quarters, if both work in the new location. If only one married person is employed, that person may claim the full $2,500 of which not more than $1,000 may be for house-hunting and temporary quarters. When a moving expense adjustment is claimed, Form 3903 should be completed and attached to your Form 1040. (NEXT: Employee business expense.)
