

Rumsfeld Claims Soviet Leads Race

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld told President Ford and a group of Republican congressional leaders today the Soviet Union is ahead of the United States in developing all major conventional military weapons.

Following a White House briefing on the defense budget by Rumsfeld, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott quoted the defense chief as saying Soviet military construction programs "are ahead in every category except helicopters."

Scott paraphrased Rumsfeld as saying: "The Soviet Union is seeking something more than a rough equivalent. They are seeking superiority."

Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., told reporters the $112.7 billion defense budget for fiscal 1977 billion represents a 5 per cent increase in real defense spending.

He said defense spending today takes up only 24 per cent of the federal budget and called the "lowest level since before Pearl Harbor."

Anderson said the increases are necessary "if the United States is to maintain its present level of sufficiency and equivalence" with the Soviet Union.

On another subject, Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., the No. 2 ranking Senate Republican, told reporters "we feel there is a good chance the veto" of the $6.2 billion public works jobs bill "will be sustained in the Senate, if not in the House."

Ford delivered a Washington's birthday address to a convention of high school principals Monday. He promised to ask for additional primary school aid money above his budget proposals.

The Birds Are Here

Huge flocks of blackbirds, sometimes appearing like a great cloud, are prevalent over the Panhandle area this time of year. According to some agricultural experts the bird problem in the area has been increasing in the past few years and the loss of grain to the pests is becoming considerable. In one poll of federal employees, Ford said, more than two-thirds refused to sign an excerpt from the Declaration of Independence and nearly half failed to recognize the phrase "we hold these truths to be self evident."

News Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House announced today that President Ford will hold a televised news conference at 8 p.m. EST in the East Room to disclose his proposals to reform U.S. intelligence agencies.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that Ford will open the news conference with about a five minute statement on his recommendations to reorganize intelligence operations.

Strauss Wants Nixon To Stay Out of China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Robert Strauss of the Democratic National Committee said today President Ford should ask Richard Nixon to abandon his plans for a return trip to China.

Nixon departs for China this Saturday, three days before the New Hampshire primary. He made his first trip in 1972 when, as President, he started the world by re-opening informal relations with the Communist power.

"You know as well as I do that our former President, who went to China the way he did and opened the doors, doesn't go over there as a private citizen," he said.

Lengthy Session, No Action

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff
Following a two- and a half hour executive session Monday night in the conference room at Highland General Hospital, the hospital board and the Gray County Commissioners Court reconvened in open session at their annual joint meeting and Gray County Judge Don Cain announced that "No final action was taken during the executive session."

The closed session was held by the commissioners and board members to "discuss personnel matters." Before the meeting, one board member said that some of the discussion in the closed session would stem from a bill for $1,625.89 from Elliott Office Supply Co. in Amarillo for office furniture purchased by the hospital administrator, Bob Monogue.

The judge prefaced his "no action" statement with considerable commentary. "This is a public hospital," he said, "and all of the business matters before this group as well as the commissioners court is public business. Everybody in this county is interested in the hospital. There isn't any tax money going into the operation of this hospital, yet the money that is out here and at the bank that is collected out here becomes public money because this is a public hospital."

Before the board and court went into the closed portion of the meeting, there had been an audience of about 30 persons, including several representatives from radio and television stations and The Pampa News. Many of the members of the audience waited for the closed session to conclude, passing the time in the hallway outside the conference room, and in a hospital snack bar.

Cain told the group, in his comments about the closed session, that "the news media has the right under the first amendment to report the facts as they see them and criticize public officials. We don't all see eye to eye, of course, with each other or with the news media. But, what I think we need to do is to try to work together and see all the facets of the complicated problems that we have in the hospital, deal strictly with the issues that we're trying to solve, keep personalities out of the matter and work together for a good hospital. We have a great hospital. We have some great people working for it and I want to see it continue."

Following Cain's re-opening comments, Fred Neslage, chairman of the hospital board said, "Thank you, Don. I'd like to answer that by saying that you've absolutely hit the nail on the head as far as I'm concerned. I feel that we have a tremendous institution here. I've seen it grow from just a prairie out here on the side of a hill."

Neslage turned the floor back to Judge Cain. "We've had a lengthy meeting — a lengthy discussion between the commissioners court and the hospital board," Cain said. "We've gone over a number of matters that have been called to the attention of the commissioners court and to the hospital board. We are endeavoring to work on these problems together. The commissioners court has every confidence in the hospital board to resolve these problems."

Cain said that the "specific matter concerning the Elliott Office Supply Account has been referred back to the hospital board and the hospital board is taking it under advisement and will give it further study."

The other county commissioners, all present, included Joe Clarke, precinct one; Don Hinton, precinct two; and Ted Simmons, precinct four.

Members of the hospital board include, Dr. R.M. Bellamy, Don Ritter, Mrs. Suzie Wilkinson, Ed Patman, Bill Tidwell and Neslage.

France Recognizes Angola

By United Press International
France today became the first major Western nation to recognize the Soviet-backed Angolan People's Republic.

The French move, announced by a Foreign Ministry statement, appeared to foreshadow a similar move by other European Common Market members.

Sweden Monday announced it was recognizing the Marxist Angolan regime and the British Foreign Office said it was considering a similar move in conjunction with other members of the European Common market.

Jackson Accuses Carter

By ELIZABETH WHARTON
United Press International
Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., ending a three-day campaign in Florida, accused Jimmy Carter today of saying different things in different parts of the country.

President Ford, stepping up his personal campaigning against Ronald Reagan, disclosed he will travel to New Hampshire Thursday for a final two days of politicking before that state's Feb. 24 GOP presidential primary.

Jackson said Carter is a strong contender among Democrats in Florida, and Alabama Gov. George Wallace is leading him there. But he predicted he will match or better both of them in winning delegates at the state's March 9 primary.

He accused Carter of talking out of both sides of his mouth. "In Pensacola and Jacksonville, he is for a strong defense," Jackson said. "In Miami, he promises to cut the defense budget by billions. In Iowa, he promises to abolish legalized abortion. In New York, he promises to oppose a constitutional amendment for such a change."

Murder Still Unsolved

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
PANHANDLE — It has been eight days since the body of 12-year-old Rhonda Keys of Amarillo was found beneath a culvert near here and the murder is still unsolved.

The sheriff has never believed the murder took place in Carson County, and he still doesn't. "We are thinking probably Potter County," he said. "Our investigation is as intense as ever. We are checking different ones all the time," he said.

Sheriff Nunn, who has been here for 21 years, said three murders have taken place in Carson County in that length of time. One, which occurred about six years ago, still is unsolved.

However, Sheriff Nunn said this morning that the two beatings could have been done by the same person. "We just don't know right now," he said. "We have some reasons to think there is a possibility."

Rhonda Keys reportedly spent the night of Feb. 1 at home with her brother since the mother was hospitalized. When he awakened and found that she was gone, he reported that to his father.

The father told police he first thought she was in school, but he returned home and called the school. After he learned she was absent, he reported his daughter as missing, police said.

An autopsy was ordered after the body was found, but Sheriff Nunn said the report is not back.

The Keys girl was identified five hours after she was found.

Answering Marx

Has the United States surpassed the Soviet Union in the century - and a half old dreams of Karl Marx for economic betterment of the working class? Some New York Stock Exchange economists, polled by The Wall Street Journal, think we have.

The Marxian objective was to give workers control over what they own. Leninist instrumentation of that end was, of course, revolution. America's means was, and is, the stock market.

Two reliable indices of that achievement are the number of people who own shares in public corporations and the number of people who, indirectly, through their institutional funds, have some stake in the economic future.

The economists found that a startling 115 million, about 72 percent of the population over the age of 13, comprise the latter category. Add direct shareholders and the figure becomes 88 percent of the over 13 segment of the population.

That is astonishing, especially when put up against the lie, circulated during the 1960s, that a minuscule segment - this comprised by the wealthiest - controlled all corporate power in this country.

Now, it will of course be argued that the individual stock owner, living in the suburb, has no real voice, that his decisions never really "trickle up" to the topmost reaches of power, in the direction of the economy. What the argument fails to perceive is that the share purchase is, precisely and intrinsically, a vote for some course of the economy. Buy GM and that means you approve of GM.

The argument also suffers in comparison. In Russia, no worker has any say in, any piece of, the economy. The people who do have private dachas and drive automobiles, as the New York Times' Hedrick Smith is the most recent to point out, are the minions of the Kremlin. If you're not one of these, and not many are. Eke!

Comparatively, then, America enjoys a well-greased, if not perfect, system of economic democracy. There are countries, Sweden for instance, which pretend to be an economic third force. But such systems have merely complicated - squeezed the integrity out of each individual vote - the system by lawing political power over economic power. Can someone please explain to us why that is superior?

Notwithstanding our current recessionary and inflationary difficulties (brought about precisely by the nuisance ingredient of politics), the American experience has been the greatest economic triumph ever. We don't know what Karl Marx would be writing today, but his central concern, worker self-determination, has been answered - by private enterprise capitalism!

More Zealotry

To its credit, the Consumer Products Safety Commission (CPSC) refused to panic and impose the ban on fluorocarbons in aerosol containers demanded by militant environmentalists. By a split three to two vote, the commission ruled that there was insufficient evidence to justify the ban pending the outcome of intensive studies over the next three years.

By just such a narrow margin were the environmentalists thwarted and the disruption of an $8 billion a year industry avoided.

Nevertheless, to some extent, damage has already been done. The adverse publicity, growing out of the theory that fluorocarbons might be harmful to the ozone blanket shielding the earth and the possibility that the government might be pressured into imposing a ban on their use, had already done its damaging work for some time. Harm had already been done to an industry upon which over a million workers depend for their livelihoods.

industry's first casualty of misguided environmentalist zeal. Its 1975 sales off by over $4 million from 1974, and suffering a $238,855 loss for the year as compared to a net profit of $134,054 the year before, the company's president, H.R. Shepherd, was quoted as attributing the firm's decline to "unwarranted, adverse publicity that has been given to aerosol products, the result of an unproved theory that the discharge of fluorocarbon propellants is causing a depletion of ozone in the earth's upper atmosphere."

With the Milford plant closed, Aerosol Techniques will consolidate its operations at four other plants located in New Jersey, Boston and Illinois which are designed to work with hydrocarbons, chlorocarbons, carbon dioxide and other propellants which have not been attacked by the environmentalists.

The Milford plant shutdown, the company's treasurer, William Hirst, was cited as saying, will throw between 100 and 150 Aerosol Techniques employees out of work.

Such is the power of zealots to do harm.

Aerosol Techniques, Inc. of Milford, Conn., which announced its decision to close its plant, may prove to be the

Red China: Reality and Propaganda

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

When the history of the 20th century is written, the emergence of Communist China will be seen as one of the greatest tragedies for mankind. The Maoist regime has slaughtered millions of opponents of communism and made every effort to annihilate traditional Chinese civilization and ethical norms.

The Rev. Mark Tennien, a Maryknoll missionary who was imprisoned by the Chinese Communists, is among the many writers who has described the atrocities on which the "New China" is based. In his book, he reports that the communists "executed by bullet between 180,000 and 190,000 people in the province of Kwangsi during the first six months" they were in power.

The years since the communist takeover on the Chinese mainland have been years of terror and debasement of the Chinese people. Mao's philosophy and political structure reduces man to the lowest level, and scores all that the Chinese have created over thousands of years.

In the West, however, the Chinese Communists and their supporters have sought to present the "New China" as a workers' paradise. It is important, therefore, to keep track of the efforts being made to give Red China a new, favorable image in the United States.

For that reason, Edward Walsh, staff researcher for the U.S. Industrial Council recently covered a significant meeting in Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Walsh filed this report:

"With a twenty-foot long red banner proclaiming 'Serve the People' in English and Chinese setting the tone for the evening, the Southern chapter of the United States - China People's Friendship Association recently gathered in Nashville, Tenn., to witness Ms. Anita Blackwell Wright denounce the United States as an insane society, and offer praise of Communist China as a nation of trust, loyalty, friendliness, courtesy, obedience, discipline, and bravery."

Ms. Wright, a civil rights activist from Isaquena County, Mississippi, visited Red China in 1972 with a women's delegation led by actress Shirley Maclaine. She had been involved in the civil rights movement of the sixties, led voter registration drives in Mississippi, and was for a time associated with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC).

"Ms. Wright, defiantly proud of her lack of formal education, emphasizes the 'non-academic' nature of it. Her association with civil rights activism as a reaction to childhood poverty has become a self-righteous moral crusade: 'Tune in, keep on movin', don't let anyone stop you - we're going to get a mental health program going in this country...' Her objective in Nashville was to whip up the fervor of the U.S. - China People's Friendship Association. This organization seeks to build support for Red China's foreign policy objectives.

Mr. Walsh noted: "But the speech was hardly necessary; the enthusiasm for moral and political chaos which the USCPFA fosters is already brimming over in this crowd: teenagers, college students, middle-aged and elderly men and women, sad refugees of the Age of Aquarius, were still seeking the warm corpse of the Revolution, the Cause, the Brave New World which never existed outside their tormented souls."

"It is all reminiscent of the poignant, ominous observation of Whittaker Chambers, who in his autobiography notes that while communists make full use of liberal and their solicitudes... in private, they treat them with that sneering contempt that the strong and predatory almost invariably feel for victims who volunteer to help in their own victimization."

"Ms. Wright remarked pathetically: 'What is communism? I still don't know, really, and don't care about the politics of communism. I don't know if there's freedom in China, but I'd sure like to have what they've got!' She made much of the 'looks in people's eyes, the happiness, contentment, patience, and personal concern,' commenting, 'Somewhere in the world there are people who are human on a mass basis - it's taught.'"

"Ms. Wright has suspended her devotion to voter registration drives in Mississippi, in order to wing warm-hearted pacans to life in Red China, where no one votes.

"So far we've got 'None-of-the-above' clobbering the field."

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Nixon's Mysterious Mission

By WILLIAM RUSHER

Even in retirement, Richard Nixon seems incapable of a simple, straightforward act. His scheduled visit to Peking on February 21 is in the grand Nixonian tradition: devious, mysterious, and full of unspecified portent.

In the first place, what little we have been told about it is false. It is being described as a purely "private" affair, which is most assuredly not. In addition, the White House leaked (then unconvincedly denied) a protective rumor that President Ford was "annoyed" because Mr. Nixon had timed his visit to begin just three days before the New Hampshire primary, possibly jeopardizing Ford's chances there. The fact is that Ford has every reason to hope that he will benefit in New Hampshire by the Nixon trip.

Let us begin with what we know, and extrapolate from there. The death of Chou En-lai was a staggering blow to the Nixon-Kissinger policy of détente with Red China, which President Ford had endorsed. A year ago, while in Hong Kong, I was told by a lifelong student of China that much might depend on who died first: Mao or Chou. For while both were committed to a policy of hostility to Russia and détente with the United States (as "the lesser enemy"), Chou represented the forces of comparative stability in Peking, while Mao was compulsive revolutionary, forever bringing the political pot to a boil.

For the past year, as Chou faded, his handpicked Deputy Premier, Teng Hsiao-ping (who had been disgraced during the Cultural Revolution and then suddenly "rehabilitated"), ran day-to-day affairs in Peking. Teng was clearly Chou's choice to succeed him, and Washington heartily endorsed that scenario. But within a matter of days after Chou's death, Teng vanished from sight, and now an obscure Sixth Deputy Premier, Hua Kuo-feng, steps forth as Acting Premier, pending formal ratification of his appointment, by the Party and the People's Congress.

One can imagine the State Department's dismay at these bewildering and unexpected developments. Crafty old Mao, having outlived the suave and "stable" Chou, seems to have struck again. Will Hua Long survive as Premier? If so, what will his policies be? Is Mao still on course for détente? How long will he live, and what is now likely to happen when he dies?

These are highly important questions, and to obtain reliable answers to them, Messrs. Ford and Kissinger have turned to Richard Nixon. Like it or not - and many of the former president's critics dislike it intensely - Chairman Mao's personal fondness for Mr. Nixon ranks, in the contest of our relations with Red China, as a national asset. (Perhaps Mao senses in him a kindred spirit.) In any case, it has suddenly become imperative for the White House to learn as much as it can about what is going on in Peking, and it is dispatching the Sage of San Clemente to find out.

The timing of his trip - so redundantly soon after the visit of Julie and David Eisenhower - certainly implies haste, but you can be sure that President Ford did not overlook its domestic political implications, or decree that these must be disregarded. If it had been deemed advisable, Mr. Nixon could have been dispatched to Peking and been home again well before the New Hampshire primary on the 24th. Alternatively his trip, whatever its urgency, could surely have been postponed until the 25th. (Nobody, incidentally, would have been happier to accommodate President Ford's political convenience in this respect than Mr. Nixon, who is working energetically behind the scenes for the renomination of the man who pardoned him.)

The precise timing of Nixon's trip, then, was almost certainly chosen to maximize its impact in New Hampshire. No doubt Mr. Nixon has many critics there, but few of them will be voting in the Republican primary, New Hampshire, in fact, was traditionally "Nixon country" in the good old days, and Ford's strategists must be aware that Nixon still has many admirers in the Granite State - as elsewhere. Mr. Ford, therefore, however much he may deny it, actually stands to gain politically by sending his old boss, at this particular moment, on a spectacular mission to Peking.

BATTIN' AROUND Here's More About Right to Bear Arms

By C.R. BATTEN

Every session of state and federal legislatures in recent years seems to bring a stronger push to ban firearms from the honest citizen.

I say "from the honest citizen" advisedly, because he is the only one who would obey such a law. The lawbreakers would show no more respect for a law banning handguns than they show for existing laws against robbery and murder.

A major defense of those who want to keep their firearms is the second amendment to the Constitution: "A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed."

This amendment recognizes the armed citizen as the basic defense of the nation, say the proponents of free gun ownership, and guarantees that the citizens will always have the weapons needed in the case of emergency.

But, counter the gun control advocates, this amendment was designed for a time when we had no standing army, and the citizen was truly the first line of defense. In this day of electronic and atomic warfare, the citizen militia is obsolete, so the second amendment has no bearing on the question.

If we go back to the origins of the Bill of Rights, we may be better able to understand the intent of the second amendment.

There was considerable opposition to the Constitution as it was written. Sixteen of the 55 delegates who attended the Constitutional Convention did not sign it. Among them were two of the three delegates from New York. Rhode Island was represented. Patrick Henry declined his appointment as delegate, and later led the opposition to ratification in the Virginia convention. The New York convention ratified the Constitution by a vote of 30 to 27, and Rhode Island by an even narrower margin: 34 to 32.

Many persons saw the Constitution as an instrument of power, rather than a protector of liberty, so they demanded that it be amended to guarantee the rights of the people from infringement by a strong government.

Believing it better to ratify the Constitution and amend it later, rather than to delay the Union further, several states submitted proposed amendments in the same documents in which they ratified the Constitution. Five states included a statement affirming the right of the citizen, to bear arms.

The first, New Hampshire, said simply: "Congress shall never disarm any Citizen unless such as are or have been in Actual Rebellion."

The amendments, proposed by Virginia, New York, North Carolina and Rhode Island were all very similar.

On firearms, Virginia wrote: "That the people have a right to keep and bear arms; that a well regulated Militia composed of the body of the people trained to arms is the proper, natural and safe defence of a free State." North Carolina and Rhode Island's proposals were identical. New York changed the wording slightly to read, "...including the body of the people capable of bearing Arms, is the proper..."

The wording of what turned out to be the second amendment to the Constitution got muddled by Congress, so that it is possible to debate its meaning.

But the original wording as submitted to Congress by the states is clear: the citizens' right to bear arms is inalienable.

Perhaps Alexander Hamilton was right, when he wrote in The Federalist that bills of rights "...are not only unnecessary in the proposed Constitution but would even be dangerous. They would contain various exceptions to powers which are not granted; and, on this very account, would afford a colorable pretext to claim more than were granted. For why declare that things shall not be done which there is no power to do?"

Dear Abby

Former Patient Praises Mental Hospital

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: May God bless you for asking readers who had spent three months or more in a mental hospital to write to you explaining the problems of getting back into society. You really do care about people, don't you?

I spent two years in a county mental hospital. At first I expected to be thrown together with freaks and nuts who would climb the walls, scream bloody murder and act crazy. Some were a little strange, and occasionally hostile and hard to handle, but none was dangerous. Most were in a deep state of depression.

Abby, will you please say a kind word for those wonderful people who work with disturbed patients? It takes a deep love for humanity to care for people who are mentally ill.

Today I am home, well and happy, and I know I never could have made it without the patient, loving and understanding people who looked after me. Thank you.

FORMER MENTAL PATIENT

DEAR FORMER: I appreciate your kind letter. And I still welcome letters from former mental patients. You need not sign your names. The response to my request has been heartwarming.

DEAR ABBY: I am a minister's wife, and I would like to tell you what Christmas means to me.

It means spending the holidays going to programs in which my musically talented children perform. (Most ministers marry women who can play the piano so they will always have someone to play for the services. These wives usually produce musically gifted children.)

Christmas means working hard to make gifts for the family in order to live within a limited budget. Ministers' wives have always done this. It means cooking everything from scratch for the same reason.

Christmas means being excluded from a lot of holiday parties because most people don't want us to know the kind of drinks they're serving. (We know anyway.)

Christmas means spending all the time at the stove, sink or washing machine. Nobody offers to help with anything, and after a few tries, you end up doing it alone because it's easier than begging for help.

Christmas means receiving gifts from your family that will enable you to serve them better - rarely anything to satisfy your personal, feminine desires.

Christmas means becoming physically exhausted and trying to keep it from showing. The family isn't concerned. Any suggestions, Abby?

NAMELESS AND NO LOCATION

DEAR NAMELESS: Yours is the saddest Christmas song I've ever heard. Clip this and show it to your family. If they don't know how you feel, they should.

Hospitals' Occupancy Climbs

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Highland General and McLean General hospitals' occupancy was up in January and continues to climb in February with flu patients numbering at least one-third of the total.

The report on financial matters and other business was presented Monday night during a joint meeting of the Gray County Commissioners Court and the hospital board.

The meeting was held in the conference room of Highland General Hospital.

Robert Monogue, administrator, said revenue reports show that Highland General had the "biggest month ever" in January. The total number of patient days for the hospital was 2,909.

The McLean hospital recorded 228 patient days.

"There has been more sickness at McLean—quite a bit of flu. We like to think it is a new trend—but we have quite a few flu patients here also," Monogue said.

The McLean hospital averaged about seven patients per day, which is good compared with one and two patients a day last summer.

Fred Neslage, chairman of the board, said that the McLean report is "the best we have done in a long time."

"We're encouraged about that," he said.

A regional medical technician program, sponsored by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, was announced during the session. The course could include 36 students who are required to spend 40 hours in a hospital setting.

Monogue said 16 hours would be spent in the emergency receiving center of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. The remainder for local students would be at Highland General Hospital.

County Judge Don Cain said the commissioners court has said it would pay up to $60 for any county personnel who would like to take the course.

Ed Patman of McLean, board member, discussed a new data processing system which he said would speed up the cash flow by its ability to produce fast billing.

He said the cost with trade-in would be $28,000. Neslage asked if the county would not be able to use the old machine or derive benefits from the new.

Patman replied that the new unit has many possibilities. The old unit, he said, is outdated. No action was taken on the possible purchase.

Dr. C. F. Sparger, chief of staff, reported that Dr. Nam Kyu Lee, a Korean immigrant, has been approved for hospital privileges.

"The amount may vary from time to time," he added.

The financial report shows that Highland General's gross revenue in January was $347,313.29. McLean's net loss was $3,393.14 as compared with $6,000 to $8,000 monthly losses in 1975.

Grade pay raises for several employees, defined as "routine salary increases" were approved by the board.

They must also be approved by the commissioners court, according to Friday action of the court which requires that raises be approved by the board and the court, and certified to the treasurer by a copy of the minutes in which they were approved.

He gunned down the dean of engineering, Raymond Ghson, a Lebanese, who died in hospital. He then shot to death the dean of students, Robert Najem, 42, a Lebanese born U.S. citizen from Worcester, Mass.

Najem was married and had four children.

The shootings sent panicked students and staff racing for cover.

Najem ran across the campus to the main administration building and entered the office of the university vice president George Hakim holding him at gunpoint with eight other staff members.

Earlier reports that University President Samuel B. Kirkwood was among the hostages proved incorrect as Kirkwood slipped out of the building during the confusion.

Other reports that another group of dissident students was involved in the operation were denied by Najem.

"I did it all on my own. I did it all on my own," Najem was quoted by a university information department spokesman as saying at the time.

Najem, waving a pistol in one hand and a grenade in the other, demanded a machine gun and an automobile, the spokesman said.

Besides Hakim, and the university personnel director George Sayegh, the hostages included two secretaries, two security officials and two American staff members.

They were the Assistant Controller, Ernest Konkin, of Newton Falls, Ohio, and Lewis Cajoleas of New Orleans, La.

Another faculty member, Radwan Malawi, was allowed to leave the group to act as mediator and Professor of Medicine, George Abu Haidar, volunteered to take his place with the other hostages, the spokesman said.

Haidar convinced Najem to leave the building and they

Beirut Gunman Slays Two

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—A student gunman apparently nursing a grudge killed two faculty members at the American University of Beirut today and was himself shot when Palestinian guerrillas arrived to arrest him. One of the victims was an American.

University officials identified the killer as Najem Najem, a 23-year-old Jordanian engineering student who was expelled last year from the university along with 103 other militant students—after a series of strikes and unrest at the university.

He was refused re-entry, apparently nursing a grudge, returned to the university today armed with a pistol and several hand grenades.

He gunned down the dean of engineering, Raymond Ghson, a Lebanese, who died in hospital. He then shot to death the dean of students, Robert Najem, 42, a Lebanese born U.S. citizen from Worcester, Mass.

Najem was married and had four children.

The shootings sent panicked students and staff racing for cover.

Najem ran across the campus to the main administration building and entered the office of the university vice president George Hakim holding him at gunpoint with eight other staff walked out where members of the guerrilla Police—the Palestine Armed Struggle Command—and Lebanese security forces were waiting.

Najem gave himself up and was taken to an auto.

Just as he was about to enter the vehicle, a man identified as a University employee rushed forward and shot Najem with a pistol he had concealed in a sling. The incident was reminiscent of the killing of Lee Harvey Oswald by Jack Ruby after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

Security officials bundled both Najem and the university employee into the vehicle and sped away.

The extent of Najem's injuries was not immediately known.

The incident marked the second day of random killings in Beirut blunting the city's efforts to return to normal after 10 months of civil war.

On Monday, gunmen shot dead a Kurdish municipal worker in a killing that sparked a wave of kidnappings and counter-kidnappings and renewed tension in the war-battered commercial sector.

In other violence, a lone gunman armed with a silenced-pistol shot and killed a Turkish diplomat Oktar Sent on Beirut's busy Hamra Street.

Burned Boy Gets $590,000

HOUSTON (UPI)—A 12-year-old boy has been awarded $590,000 in a suit alleging he was severely burned in 1967 in an explosion of a can of tire sealer.

The father of Ricky Tankersley, 3 years old at the time of the accident, sued on behalf of his son, who was burned over 50 per cent of his body in the accident. State District Judge George Miller approved the settlement Monday.

The can exploded while Ricky and his younger brother, Troy, were watching an attendant repair a tire at the Tankersley's service station.

The defendants were the American Can Co. of New York, makers of the can; Atlas Supply Corp. of Springfield, N.J., designers of the product; Technical Rubber Co., Inc., of Johnstown, Ohio, product assembler; B.F. Goodrich Co. of Akron, Ohio, manufacturers of the adhesive in the can; and the American Oil Co. of Kansas City, Mo., distributor of the product.

Union Facing Eviction

PHARR, Tex. (UPI)—The head of the Texas Farm Workers Union says he doubts his organization will be forcibly evicted from the United Farm Workers building, but he says the group will move anyway.

Antonio Orendain, director of the TFW, said Monday he agreed the United Farm Workers Union, which ordered the eviction, owned the building. But he said morally the TFW should be allowed to use it.

"We have no support from any other group," Orendain said. "When we came to Texas in 1966 the United Farm Workers did not have anything. We did everything in the name of the United Farm Workers and we used these facilities here."

"I think that legally the UFW owns us 100 per cent, but morally the Texas Farm Workers are entitled to use these resources here."

Orendain's union has split with the Cesar Chavez's California based UFW because Chavez did not like the way the Texas group was organizing. In a letter written in December, Chavez ordered the Texas group to leave the UFW's building.

In his letter, Chavez denounced the Texas union as having been "infiltrated by provocateurs."

The letter ordered the Texans out of the UFW hall Feb. 15, but initially Orendain said the organization would not move unless forced out by police. Monday Orendain altered his position, saying his group would leave voluntarily.

"I think they (the California UFW) are not going to force notice," he said. "They told us to leave on the 15th of this month. So, as soon as we find a place, we'll move ourselves. They haven't enforced anything. We will leave on our own, the sooner the better."

Orendain said his group, which was sent to Texas by the UFW in the mid-1960s to organize the workers, split from the main group in 1973 and officially incorporated as the Texas Farm Workers Union August 22, 1975.

Orendain held the title of Texas organizer for the UFW until last spring and was still regarded as Chavez's No. 1 man when renewed picketing began at Rio Grande Valley melon farms.

Violence erupted and Chavez reportedly was embarrassed at viewing network newsfilm of a group of Texas union men harassing field workers near the Mexican border.

Indians Consider Move

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Indians occupying 612 acres of state-owned land in the Adirondacks since May, 1974 say they may be willing to move to "a suitable" alternative.

In a weekend interview with Rochester radio station WHAM at their Moss Lake location, Art Montour said the Indian band needs "a suitable area of land where we can do some farming, where we can raise some animals and raise our children and grandchildren in the atmosphere that we've begun here."

He said their present "Ganienkeh Nation" encampment was not such an area. "I don't think Moss Lake could be termed one of those areas because there's been friction already and the friction doesn't seem to want to go away."

The Indians have occupied the 612-acre, state-owned site near Eagle Bay, claiming it under the terms of a 1794 treaty.

In addition, they claim ownership to some nine million acres of Adirondack land in New York and Vermont.

Montour, who also uses the Indian name, Kakwirakeron, said there were three million acres of "unoccupied and unused land" in the Adirondacks that could serve as suitable alternative sites.

"Some of that is pretty decent land and most of it is pretty well isolated, where our people can live in peace and harmony with their environment and their surrounding neighbors without imposing or infringing on each other," he said.

Their present Moss Lake camp "is located between two small towns and there's always a certain amount of friction," he said.

Michael Blair, a spokesman for Concerned Persons of the Central Adirondacks, a group representing a number of local residents, said the heavily wooded campsite, rather than friction between Indians and white residents, prompted Montour's comments.

"That area is not practical for what they want and we've been telling them that all along," he said. "It's not friction that's the problem, but the site they've chosen."

Gonorrhea Cases Told In Prison

HOUSTON (UPI)—A large number of youthful inmates at a Texas Department of Corrections first-time offender unit have developed gonorrhea, according to a copyrighted story by a television reporter.

Reporter Marvin Zindler of station KTRK-TV said Monday the Ferguson Unit of the state prison had reported more than 100 cases of venereal disease, which he said was concentrated in an area where homosexual inmates were housed.

He said other inmates in the prison also had the disease and said possibly all of the 1,600 inmates should be examined. The unit holds offenders between 17 and 21 years of age.

Zindler said he learned of the situation from the mother of an inmate who told of her son's disease in a letter.

In his report, Zindler quoted prison physician Dr. Ralph Gray as saying youths who had no homosexual contact prior to prison were also involved.

Cataract surgery works well

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My mother, age 60, has a cataract in one eye. She is beginning to stumble and fall, cannot read much and cannot continue her hobby of sewing. This is making her life miserable and she is very nervous.

The hard round lens must be removed before it causes complications. Such a lens can lead to glaucoma, the buildup of pressure in the eye that can cause blindness.

Sometimes a doctor doesn't want to remove a cataract because his examination shows that the vision is still quite adequate. There are many people with some clouding of the lens of one or even both eyes who still see rather well and are happy with their sight.

What are the disadvantages of having this surgery done earlier? Is it a more difficult operation for the doctor? Are the chances of success less? Why does he say to wait so long when I've read that in these modern times it's not necessary for a cataract to be "ripe" before surgery.

In other cases, the patient may have other visual problems totally unrelated to the formation of cataracts. These additional defects may be more important, and the patient may not greatly benefit from surgery. So it is not all black or white.

DEAR READER - A cataract is simply the clouding of the small, normally clear lens in the eye. We see by light images being transmitted through the lens. When it clouds from internal changes we can't see because it is opaque.

In cases where the cataract is the only important visual problem cataract surgery is remarkably effective. It will restore vision in over 95 percent of cases. The operation is simple and there are now even choices in types of operations. I would suggest asking your doctor again about your mother's status in view of what you state are her visual problems. If she does have this much trouble because of the cataract formation alone, then perhaps he will consider earlier surgery. If you are not satisfied with his opinion you are always entitled to obtain a second opinion from a qualified ophthalmologist.

One of the prime indications for removal of a cataract is when the vision is affected to the point that it induces disability in the patient. I personally think this is very important in older people. Some of their most important pleasures are dependent upon seeing. In fact, I think many older people become prematurely senile because they can't see to read and stay in touch with the world, and they can't hear very well either. With such sensory deprivation it is little wonder that they withdraw, get nervous or even lose touch with reality.

You do not have to wait until the cataract is "ripe" to remove. A "ripe" cataract is one that is completely opaque.

BOSTON (UPI) - Nancy Kissinger has been released from Massachusetts General Hospital eight days after undergoing surgery for a gastric ulcer.

Hospital spokesman Martin Bander said the wife of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "was able to walk, was regaining strength and was eating bland diet foods with small frequent meals" at the time of her release.

Mrs. Kissinger was escorted from the hospital by her husband. The operation removed 40 per cent of her stomach in an attempt to relieve ulcer problems that have plagued her for more than nine years.

HENRY PUT DOWN

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) - Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said Sunday Secretary of State Henry Kissinger doesn't "put his cards on the table" in his official dealings.

Weicker, one of seven senators who voted against Kissinger's confirmation, said it was up to the executive branch to decide if the secretary should be ousted.

If Kissinger asked for a vote of confidence, "I would certainly not give it to him," the senator said in a broadcast interview. "I like a man who puts his cards on the table, and Henry Kissinger certainly doesn't."

CULTS SCRUTINY

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., has agreed to set up a meeting next week between government officials and angry parents whose children have joined religious cults.

Dole has scheduled meetings with officials of the Internal Revenue Service, the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Justice Department to answer questions from the parents, some of whom would like to ban cults such as the Children of God and the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

The parents feel the cults have brainwashed their children, resulting in discord between children and parents.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) - James Butler's Aerial Sign Co. didn't receive any takers for skywriting "I Love You" messages for Valentine's Day but got one request which didn't exactly fit in with the spirit of the day.

A woman who did not give her name handed Butler $135 Saturday to have one of his planes tow a five-foot-high sign over the Miami area for 90 minutes.

The sign read: "I love you John. Get a divorce."

Butler said he accepted the order with reluctance.

"A lot of women with husbands named John could have gotten pretty upset," he said.

Street Jeweler Reports On Handicraft, Income

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) - Michael Beath sits behind his jewelry stand and in some seasons makes $80 per day.

Beath, 35, sells necklaces and earrings that he makes himself.

Beath is one of thousands of artists throughout the country who has found that it isn't necessary to open a store and to have vast amounts of capital to go into business for yourself. All it takes is a $70 license, a stand and a handmade product to sell.

In Berkeley, some 200 street artists line five blocks of Telegraph Avenue with their stands. Jewelry is the most common item displayed, but other favorites are pottery, belts, pocketbooks, pipes and plants.

Beath clears about $5,000 per year, but he claims that some street artists make up to $50,000.

"You make as much money as you want to make," Beath says, touching his blond beard and peering behind rimless glasses. "It all depends on how much time and effort you put into it."

Beath strings puka shells onto a silver chain as he talks. "I have to make jewelry while I sit here," he says. "Otherwise, it would take up too much time."

Beath spends Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays sitting behind his two card tables, across the street from the University of California. He spends another two days each week buying materials, mostly through the mail.

"Every time you buy something, you have to investigate 10 sources first to make sure you're getting the best deal."

Beath tried to open a store two years ago. "I dropped it after three months. You have to get a license for everything you can imagine and put up with bureaucratic red tape like you would never ever believe. I'm going to keep my business to the back seat of my car and sometimes, a backpack."

Four years ago, when Beath began setting up his stand in Berkeley, there weren't many street artists. "There were just some corner flower stands, people selling pencils. Nothing like the way it is now."

"People who are a little devious - like Berkeley people - began doing this because they refused to put bolt A on a nut B.

They also refused to fill up 50 weeks each year so that they could have two to themselves."

Beath and his wife - who is one of 4,000 street artists licensed in San Francisco - rent a $70 per month apartment near here, in Oakland. They now own a car. "Together we make enough to live and travel."

"A lot of people who had had straight jobs began making things and selling them after being unemployed for the past few years," Beath says. "All the unemployment has served as a kind of half-way house between the straight jobs and the street artists."

"Berkeley is a mellow place," he said. "I like to stay here from August through January. Berkeley counterculture people don't have much money, though, so after the Christmas season I spend the next six months traveling throughout the country, sometimes throughout Europe. I'm leaving Wednesday with $200 and I'll sell as I go along."

"You have to travel to make money. You have to keep up your contacts and sell to as many small businessmen as you can. I spend a lot of time in Berkeley just filling orders that small businessmen send me."

"I expected to starve when I first started doing this, and I nearly did the first year. But with a capitalistic mentality, you can make lots of money - you just keep buying at one price, selling at another price and another place."

"The amount of money you make depends only on how much you hustle. I'm a capitalist, doing just what people did years ago, when everyone started his own backyard enterprise to make money."

"People are gaining respect for the guy who can make things on his own. I think we're going back to a time when people like street artists who make things themselves and sell them themselves will be respected. We're going to be the ones who survive and who make it."

Tree Root Cures Anemia

By JOHN MOODY

NEW YORK (UPI) - The root of a tree that Africans use as a toothbrush may provide the cure for sickle cell anemia, the blood disease that affects 50,000 black Americans, according to a noted researcher.

Professor Koji Nakanishi, head of a research team at Columbia University, said Friday a chemical produced by the plant, has converted diseased sickle-shaped blood cells back into healthy ones in test-tube experiments.

"We are very cautious about saying we have a cure because we don't have any clinical results - that is, no human patients have been given the drug," said Nakanishi, an organic chemist, said. "But this is the most promising treatment for sickle cell I've seen so far."

Sickle cell anemia is a genetically carried disease usually fatal to victims, who are almost exclusively blacks or persons of Mediterranean descent.

"Normal red blood cells are round," Nakanishi said. "But in some people, mostly blacks, the cells are deformed into sickle shapes when they do heavy exercise. The deformed cells cannot pass through the blood vessels and the vessels become clogged."

The current research began by mistake. Nakanishi said, when Dr. Donald Ekong of the University of Ibadan, Nigeria, decided to see why the fagara, a commonly found shrub tree in African countries, made such a good toothbrush.

"Africans use the root of the tree and cut it so it becomes brushlike and use it as a toothbrush," Nakanishi said. "So Dr. Ekong thought if it had properties that keep the teeth from decaying, it might be antibacterial. He began testing it on a medium of blood, and the fagara root began changing the shape of sickled red blood cells into healthy round ones."

Nutritionist Answer Oysters Best Source of Zinc

By DR. JEAN MAYER Professor of Nutrition Harvard University

Q. I am trying to follow a cholesterol-lowering diet. Although I've made a number of changes in my food habits, I just can't get used to drinking skim milk. I've read about the research devoted to developing meats that contain more polyunsaturates, and I'm wondering whether similar efforts are being made to develop whole milk containing less saturated fat.

A. You can't yet get it from your local dairy, but milk containing more polyunsaturates is being produced under experimental conditions by using specially treated oilseed meals as feed.

As far back as 1939, it was reported that an increase in linoleic acid (the most common polyunsaturated fatty acid) in milk occurred when cows were fed cracked soybeans. Recent interest in trying to develop higher levels of polyunsaturates in traditional foods has prompted a reinvestigation of the use of dietary oilseeds to increase milk-fat unsaturation.

In 1972, it was reported that milk containing more polyunsaturates could be produced by feeding cows flaxseed oil encapsulated in a casein formaldehyde coat. The special coat protects the unsaturated oil from hydrogenation by bacteria in the rumen. The oil is then absorbed and subsequently excreted into the milk, producing a polyunsaturated milk fat.

Unfortunately, this feed supplement is quite expensive. In order to make "polyunsaturated" milk economically feasible, it is crucial to find less expensive protected feeds. Thus, researchers have turned once again to soybeans, and the results have been quite promising. In the most recently reported study, it was possible to double the percentage of linoleic acid in the milk at a cost of only one or two cents a quart. And in case you're wondering, the amount of formaldehyde in the milk was considered very slight.

Q. I was particularly interested in one of your articles in which you discussed the role of zinc in human nutrition. Could you tell me which are the best dietary sources of zinc?

A. By far the best source of zinc is oysters, particularly those harvested from Atlantic waters. While the zinc content varies considerably, on the average, three ounces of Atlantic oysters provide 75 milligrams of zinc, or five times the Recommended Dietary Allowance for the average adult. Pacific species contain on the average only nine milligrams of zinc, but that's still more than half of the daily requirement.

Obviously, it's really not necessary to go broke eating oysters in order to get all the zinc you need. There are other excellent sources, such as beef, poultry (particularly the dark meat), liver, eggs and dairy products. Dried beans and other legumes, as well as nuts, seeds and whole grains also provide generous amounts. (Fruits and most vegetables are generally poor sources.)

In fact, as long as you are eating a well-balanced and varied diet, including primarily unprocessed foods, there's simply no need to worry about getting all the zinc you need. The zinc requirement is small - 16 milligrams for most adults and 25 milligrams for pregnant women - and it's easily met.

Let's suppose your dinner last night included a three-ounce hamburger, a potato, a cup of peas, a lettuce wedge and sliced peaches. Such a menu would provide eight milligrams of zinc, which is over half the Recommended Dietary Allowance for most adults and nearly one-third of the requirement for pregnant women.

Marginal zinc deficiency with symptoms that include impaired taste, a slowdown in wound healing and retarded growth in children is likely to occur only in individuals who get most of their calories from overrefined foods, sugars and fats.

(Dr. Mayer has compiled an "A to Z" guide to all the mineral you need every day - and which foods are the best sources. Colonies in space could solve global crises and provide new attractive worlds, possibly by 1990, according to Dr. Gerald K. O'Neill, a professor of physics at Princeton University.

Pampa's Economy Prospers

Groom Trims Valley, 51-49, in Bi-District

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff
Holding Valley's top scorer to two shots in the second half and escaping the taller team's tight defense, the Groom Tigettes turned a 10-point deficit in the first half into a 51-49 victory by two points Monday night in a battle for the bi-district championship in the Clarendon Junior College Fieldhouse.

fourth quarter," he said after the game.

Groom coach Carol Sessom credited the win to her girls. "They didn't give up. I had my doubts but they didn't. They kept after it and played real good."

"Turnovers made the differences," she added. Groom capitalized on eight turnovers in the last half, including five steals.

Groom will meet the winner of tonight's Sanderson-Fort Davis game at 7 p.m. Friday in Levelland in the regional tournament's first round.

Valley out rebounded Groom, 31-24.

Top scorer of the game was Groom forward Marcia Krizan who sank eight of 20 field goal attempts and 11 of 17 free throws. She sports a 25-point per game average.

Connie DeAn made five of 14 field goals and two for two free throws for 12 points. Connie Crowell also scored 12 points, hitting six of 12 shots from the floor.

Sherice Price scored 19 points to spearhead the Patriotettes. Groom held Mitchie Lipscomb to 16 points (four field goals and eight points from the free throw line), well below her 25.6 point average.

Joanie Turner, a 5-8

sophomore, scored 14 points, hitting nearly a third of her shots.

"We just didn't get the ball to Lipscomb the second half. She shot three for 11 the first half and totalled four for 13. She usually shoots 70 per cent," Sanders said.

The Tigettes, who entered the playoff with a 10-0 District 3-B record, outshouted their opponents, following their shots and keeping up with Valley's defensive screens despite their handicapped sizes.

In the second quarter Valley's Price collected on five free throw attempts and hit two jump shots. Valley's defense tightened around Groom, and at halftime, Valley lead Groom 31-23.

In the second half, Krizan demonstrated her versatile shooting talents by scoring on layups and long shots. In the fourth quarter she hit a 15-foot jumper followed by a quick 10-foot jump shot to tie the score and heighten the pitch of the game.

Valley's starting guard Dodi Lane fouled out and Krizan hit two free throws to put Groom ahead, 44-42 with 5:17 left on the clock.

Valley's Lipscomb hit two foul shots after being fouled and again tied the score at 4:44 minutes left.

A foul by Debra Parsley brought Krizan two more throws, but she missed the second.

Defense was what counted in the last quarter and Groom's guards - Sandra Smith, Toni Bralley, Sherri Smith and Donna Reed - held Valley to two field goals.

With 2:47 minutes left in the game and the score tied at 47-47, Groom called timeout. After a word from Coach Sessom, the forwards went into a delay game, looking for fouls from the valley guards.

"Go get it," Coach Sanders yelled at his girls. They did, and the Groom team got what they wanted - five free throws.

Groom and Valley met for the second time in three years Monday. Last year, the Patriotettes carried off the bi-district title but were defeated in the semifinals of the regional tournament.

Groom last season lost to Allison in the district playoff. The Tigettes won the title in 1974.

This is Sessom's last season at Tigette coach. Her husband, football coach Don Sessom led Groom to the state runner-up spot and has accepted a position at Quanah.

Mrs. Sessom will not coach in Quanah and she's not sure how she'll like that. But Football Coach Sessom admitted Monday that it would be kind of nice to have his wife at home.

PHS Hosts Dons

Amarillo Palo Duro, which came close the last time when the teams met, gets a second chance against Pampa at 7:45 p.m. today, when the teams tangle in a District 3-A AAAA contest in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Pampa, 23-5 for the season and 1-1 in the second half of district play, edged Palo Duro, 5-19 overall and 0-2 in the second half, 38-33, in the first half. The Harvesters went on to win the outright first-half title with a 5-0 record.

Pampa, should it win its next three games, will gain at least a tie for the second-half title and will capture the outright district championship. The Harvesters, no matter what happens in the second half, are assured of at least a spot in the district-championship game.

"We need to win our next three," Pampa Coach Robert McPherson said. "We're not approaching this game like we approached Caprock (the Longhorns upset Pampa, 58-56, in the second-half opener).

"We had a real good practice today (Monday), a lot better than we had a week ago before the Caprock game. We've got to play them one at a time and take each opponent seriously."

Pampa starters (with scoring and rebounding averages) today will be 6-4 junior post Don Hughes (12.9, 8.5), 6-1 senior forward Jewel Landers (5.2, 8.3), 6-1 senior forward Richard Lane (7.9, 4.3), 6-0 junior guard Rayford Young (8.6, 2.5) and 6-2 junior guard Brian Bailey (13.4, 5.8).

Also expected to see action are guards Forrest Taylor and Pee Wee Steele and post Winslow Ellis.

Palo Duro will counter with 6-5 senior post Wesley Roberts, 6-4 senior forward Jeff Varber, 6-3 junior post Cleveland Winston, 5-10 senior guard Sylvester Moore and 5-10 senior guard Willie Johnson.

Moore, averaging 16.6 points per game, scored 12 points in the first meeting.

Williams, Godine Found Ineligible This Season

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) - The fans down at Good Time Charlie's bar took the news philosophically. Two starters on Texas A&M's league-leading basketball team have been declared ineligible.

But the boys at Charlie's aren't mad. Disappointed? Well, maybe. Bitter? Possibly. But mad?

Never. "All the schools do it. If they're going to investigate our school they should investigate all the schools. I've talked with a bunch of players from other schools and, phew, you wouldn't believe some of the things they tell me go on where they are.

"But mad?" said John Lopez, slowly repeating the question. "No, I'm not mad."

Joe Draker wasn't angry either.

"I don't think anybody knows the truth about this thing. I guess if they were in violation they'll deserve all the punishment they get - like getting kicked off the team."

"No, it doesn't make me angry," he said. "But they deserve anything they get."

What the boys at Charlie's specifically aren't mad about is the ineligibility of freshmen players Jarvis Williams and Karl Godine. What could make them truly angry is the possibility the Aggies also may have to forfeit all the games Williams and Godine played in.

Williams and Godine were declared ineligible by the Southwest Conference following meetings in Dallas. Conference officials, however, would not say why the two were suspended, and would not say if the Aggies would have to forfeit all the victories the two played in.

Godine, a 6-3 guard averaging 13 points a game, has started every game. Williams, a 6-6 forward averaging 7.7 points and 5.4 rebounds, has started the last 16.

Dennis Tardan, an investigative reporter for the Houston News Service, said the suspensions were based on recruiting violations he had found. He contended Williams and Godine were given new cars and possibly cash to sign with the Aggies.

"Two recruiters for other Southwest Conference schools say the word was put out among the conference recruiters that to get either player a school would have to sign both as a pair and that the school would have to provide cars and cash," Tardan said.

Both players were recruited by the Aggies from Houston Kashmere High School, which won the state championship two years in a row.

The last time such an incident took place was in 1965 when Texas Tech was leading the conference by three games with three to play. The conference ruled Norman Reuther was ineligible for academic reasons and the Red Raiders were forced to forfeit their victories. Reuther is now an assistant coach at A&M.

Hoosiers Edge Purdue

By United Press International
About the only team that might beat Indiana's No. 1 ranked basketball team is Indiana itself.

The chance that youthful Coach Bobby Knight, as intense in practice or at a game as his most inspired players, will let that happen was mighty slim.

The Hoosiers ran their Big Ten season record to 13-0, their Big Ten winning streak to 32 games and their overall winning streak to 52 regular season games Monday night with a 74-71 decision over intrastate rival Purdue.

The game stacked up as the last real test for the Hoosiers, the last stumbling block for them en route to a second straight unbeaten 18-0 season in the Big Ten. Now Indiana will entertain Minnesota, Iowa and Ohio State and travel to Wisconsin and Northwestern to close out the regular season.

Monday, Purdue pulled within one point of the Hoosiers in the final minute but couldn't break up Indiana's spread offense, which the Hoosiers used to stall the final four minutes. Kent Benson, with a blocked shot and two key rebounds in the final minute, stymied Purdue's last chances to win.

Scott May had 26 points for Indiana and Eugene Parker 23 for Purdue, both players winning praise from the rival coaches.

Ali To Meet Jean Coopman

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) - Muhammad Ali, bothered by a hacking cough, was bearing down in his training today while Belgian challenger Jean Pierre Coopman was winding his up.

The two will meet for the world heavyweight title Friday night in Roberto Clemente Municipal Coliseum. All went seven rounds, never throwing a punch until the last. In Monday's sparring against three separate opponents. The champion had a cough and the sniffles, but his press agent, Bobby Goodman, said the cold was slight and "a common thing to fighters."

Coopman, sharing the training a ea setup in the ballroom of the sumptuous El San Juan Hotel, did not spar at all Monday. His trainer, George Kanter, said the challenger would spar for the last time today.

champion would be down to 225. Ali's physical advantage is not only in weight. He is a bigger man than Coopman.

But Dundee, watching Coopman shadowbox Monday, remarked that at least the challenger had long arms, an apparent reference to the last Ali-Frazier bout in which Frazier could almost never reach the champion.

In the workout, Ali demonstrated his famous back-up defense, gloves in front of his face and arms guarding his midsection, but on three occasions he deliberately threw himself wide open to let his sparring partners, Alonzo Johnson, Jimmy Ellis and Rodney Bobick, pound his body. Bobick, who came last, had to face the champion's single offensive spurt of the day.

AMARILLO - The West Texas State Buffalos get a reprieve from the grueling Missouri Valley Conference wars at 7:30 p.m. today when they host North Texas State in the Amarillo Civic Center.

But, it won't be a reprieve in the sense that the Buffs will have an easy time. North Texas State, 17-3 for the season as an independent, owns the nation's No. 3 offense, averaging 95.3 points per game.

West Texas whipped Bradley, 74-66, Saturday to move to 16-4 for the season.

Both teams have been ranked in the top 20 this season.

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

February 4, 1776:

Leading Connecticut and New Jersey troops, Major General Charles Lee, dispatched from Cambridge by General Washington to fortify the New York area, enters New York City. A soldier of fortune born in England, and currently the third-ranking officer in the Continental Army, Lee is arrogant, profane, ugly, and followed by his private pack of dogs wherever he goes. He is a capable military commander, but vastly overrated; for Washington and Congress, he causes little but trouble and constant irritation. Captured in December, 1776, he is exchanged in April, 1778. He behaves miserably at Monmouth in June of that year, is court-martialed, vindicated, and suspended from command. He dies, largely an enigma, in Philadelphia in 1782.

Recommends Fed Run Grain Inspection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A General Accounting Office report recommends that the federal government take over most of the nation's scandal-ridden grain inspection system. The report, to be officially released today, urges Congress to set up a federal grain inspection system under which the Agriculture Department would control sampling, grading and weighing at all ports and major inland grain terminals, according to a draft obtained by UPI.

Nationally, the report said, Agriculture Department supervisors found incorrect grades on 10 to 20 per cent of the samples they rechecked, with some areas exceeding 30 per cent. "For those, including country elevator operators and foreign buyers, who must rely on grades as a basis for settling large dollar value transactions, this rate of accuracy does not offer a reasonable degree of reliability," the draft said.

GAO officials said an administration plan to strengthen and retain the traditional system — where grain is inspected by more than 100 private and state agencies under Agriculture Department supervision — would not solve CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — An army of 150 federal banking agents swarmed over Hamilton National Bank, tallying cash and assets. Within hours, they declared it the third largest bank failure in U.S. history.

But, officials said, depositors stood to lose nothing. The only change they would note when doors opened today was the name — no longer Hamilton National, but the First Tennessee National Bank.

When the federal tallying was through Monday, the First Tennessee National Corp. of Memphis stepped in and bought Hamilton National for $16,251,000.

George W. Hill, chief of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's division of liquidation, said that in size Hamilton National's failure was behind only Franklin National Bank in New York, with $3.7 billion in assets, and the United States National Bank of San Diego, with assets of $1.265 billion.

Hamilton National buckled under a load of more than $84 million in foreclosed and questionable loans sold to the bank by Hamilton Mortgage Co. Both the bank and the mortgage company are owned by Hamilton Bancshares, Inc., one of the state's largest bank holding companies.

The Chattanooga bank was the largest of 11 in the chain. It was understood to have had about $34 million in foreclosed loans and $50 million in questionable loans.

It was reported the bank posted its stock as collateral for $80 million in loans from a group of New York banks. That money is still owed.

Those who would suffer the most, Hill said, were Hamilton's shareholders. The bank's stock, which sold for about $25 a share in 1973, dropped to $2 or $3 a share last week before trading was suspended. Today, it was virtually worthless.

The deal to sell Hamilton National to First Tennessee National, a bank holding company that owns First National Bank of Memphis, went through within an hour of the announcement that the bank was insolvent and had been placed in receivership of FDIC.

Hill and his 150-man force moved in Monday afternoon, as soon as the bank closed, to begin counting money and proving assets. The agents spread out through the bank's operations center, its warehouse and 23 branches.

Hill said that as buyer First Tennessee will get the good assets, in this case mostly good loans. The FDIC will take over loans that are the most questionable and an agent will live in Chattanooga for several years attempting to eke out as many benefits as possible from those.

Drugs Delay Cancer

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — A one-two-three punch with drugs just after breast surgery curbs later flare-ups of cancer, according to Italian researchers.

They said all breast cancer patients in their study had positive lymph node involvement, making them high risks for recurrence of cancer in the other breast or at a distant point in the body.

Dr. Gianni Bonadonna and associates of Italy's Istituto Nazionale Tumori in Milan said they found the drug mix cut cancer recurrence from 24 to 5.3 per cent.

The investigation was supported by the American National Cancer Institute. A report on the research, in the current New England Journal of Medicine, was accompanied by an editorial in which Dr. James Holland, head of the Cancer Center at New York's Mount Sinai Hospital, said, "...Bonadonna et al report a work of monumental importance."

The drugs, given orally and intravenously, included cyclophosphamide, methotrexate and 5-Fluorouracil — a mix called CMF.

Asked what she thought was America's biggest problem today, Mrs. Pizzo said: "insanity."

That's Crazy
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Perpetual candidate Cecilia Pizzo says she's temporarily through with local elections and is going for the big one — president of the United States.

Mrs. Pizzo, 62, finished sixth in a field of six with 4,348 votes in the Louisiana gubernatorial elections in November.

In a handwritten statement, Mrs. Pizzo said she is running for president as "an independent American."

"To sum my platform up in a nutshell, proper leadership in an uncertain age," Mrs. Pizzo said.

Asked what she thought was America's biggest problem today, Mrs. Pizzo said: "insanity."

Soil Week Slated

Discussion of Soil Stewardship Week in May will be included in the agenda of the Wednesday meeting of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors.

The board members will review for approval conservation plans on Jack Turpen, Emmet Lefors, and E.V. Fulton. A Great Plains contract on Turpen also will be reviewed.

Billy Davis will report on progress of the McClellan Creek Watershed.

Directors will review the treasury report and re-organize bank accounts.

Other items to be discussed include attendance to the Panhandle Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts set for Feb. 25 in Perryton; the status of the 1976 Agricultural Conservation Program; Senate Bill 2081, "Resource Planning Act of 1974," and funding status of the Great Plains Conservation Program for the 1977 fiscal year — the national budget allocates no funds for GP contracts in 1977.

Says Refugees Discouraged From Returning to Vietnam

FORT SMITH, Ark. (UPI) — An official of the United States Catholic Conference Sunday denied reports Vietnamese refugees are being discouraged from returning to Vietnam.

"No one is being encouraged or discouraged," said David Lewis, Lewis was USCC director at Ft. Chaffee, the largest refugee camp in the United States, and is currently directing a USCC program to help resettled refugees.

Lewis said he hadn't found any refugees who want to return to Vietnam, although he had found some who are homesick.

"I have not come in contact with anybody who made an expressed wish to return," Lewis said. "I have found lots of homesickness, but there is a difference in being homesick and wanting to go back."

"The people I am working with are making a full effort to adjust. There are probably some here who want to return, but I haven't had contact with them."

The American Friends Service Committee Sunday said United States officials running the refugee camps tended to discourage Vietnamese repatriation and recommended the U.S. begin direct negotiations with the government of Vietnam to allow refugees to return home if they wish.

The Quaker relief organization, said about 300 refugees currently in the United States wanted to return to Vietnam.

Illegals Fly In
DENVER (UPI) — Aliens entering the U.S. illegally have begun taking commercial flights into the country in large numbers, but the reduced staff of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has been unable to halt the practice.

James E. Hardin, director of the regional immigration office, said Denver has been a key destination for the illegal aliens because of its proximity to Mexico and western agriculture areas.

"These are major smuggling operations. These people have gotten so brazen that they even go in large groups to buy their airplane tickets," he said.

One group of 1,546 refugees returned to Vietnam from Guam in October. The Vietnamese government, criticized the unauthorized return, but admitted the refugees to the country.

Lewis said the United Nations High Commission for Refugees was the agency designed to negotiate repatriation with the Vietnamese government, not the U.S. government.

Lewis said refugees wishing to return to Vietnam had been encouraged to register with the UNHCR in the event repatriation is arranged. Lewis said he saw "no immediate indication" that repatriation would occur anytime soon, but said negotiations were continuing.

Wagering Tax
OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Gambling figure Tracy C. "Pody" Poe had no argument with the Internal Revenue Service, which said he owed $2,045.86 in wagering taxes for December, 1974. But he suggested the tax agents collect $1,400 of the amount from the FBI.

"I admit I owed the money, and I told them (IRS). 'You've got it, the government's got it,'" Poe said Monday.

Poe informed the IRS the FBI confiscated the $1,400 in cash during a raid in December, 1974, and never returned the money. He said he was not arguing about the amount owed, but suggested if the IRS wanted the money it should "walk across the hall" and get it from the FBI.

The $600 plus balance was paid by Poe and the IRS has marked the lien it filed against Poe last summer paid in full.

PUBLIC SCRIBES
HONG KONG (UPI) — An old Hong Kong occupation has attracted the interest of tourists. Many of them are using the services of public scribes who sit in the streets and write letters for Chinese who cannot write their own.

But tourists find it funny to send a letter in Chinese to someone back home, who must head for the nearest Chinese restaurant or laundry to get a translation.

The letters are usually short, Chinese versions of "Wish you were here."

NUDE CRUISES
NEW YORK (UPI) — Vacations in the Buff Tours has announced it has chartered the 34-passenger schooner Harvey Gamage for four weeklong nude cruises in the U.S. and British Virgin Islands through April 11.

Schnabel Scandal
May Prompt Audit
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The investigation into the activities of Senate Secretary Charles A. Schnabel has convinced some state officials that changes are needed in the methods of auditing legislative finances.

Schnabel, Senate secretary for 20 years, hired and fired hundreds of workers, had almost unlimited authority to set salaries and order bonuses and was able to cosign some employees' paychecks to loan companies.

Schnabel will be arraigned Thursday on charges of forgery, theft and official misconduct in the misuse of Senate payrolls, employees, equipment and supplies.

Two of the indictments against him charged he stole paychecks he had issued to two workers in 1971 without their knowledge.

Both women told investigators they did not know the checks were issued in their names, never received the money and never authorized anyone to cash the checks or borrow money on them.

Attorney General John L. Hill said the task force created to investigate Schnabel will continue working for at least several weeks on some of the indictments against the Senate administrator and to prepare recommendations for tightening up Senate operations.

"We will be looking at what recommendations we can make that will help improve the ability of the Senate to handle its fiscal affairs, particularly audit procedures," Hill said.

Hill indicated he is considering suggesting steps to provide for a more independent audit of legislative financial operations in the future.

Under present arrangements the Senate auditor answers directly to Schnabel.

Both houses of the legislature are periodically examined by State Auditor George McNeil, but McNeil himself is appointed by a six-man legislative committee.

"I have a serious question in my mind whether a system where the state auditor is an employe of the legislative branch is the most effective way to structure your auditing arm," Hill says. "That's one (matter) I'm very interested in."

McNeil says he is not intimidated by the fact he is hired by legislators.

"I've never had any interference. No one's even talked to me about it," the auditor says.

Soviet Offers Arms

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has offered an unlimited supply of weapons and military advisers to Rhodesia's African nationalists for their guerrilla struggle against the white supremacy regime of Premier Ian Smith, the London Daily Mail said today.

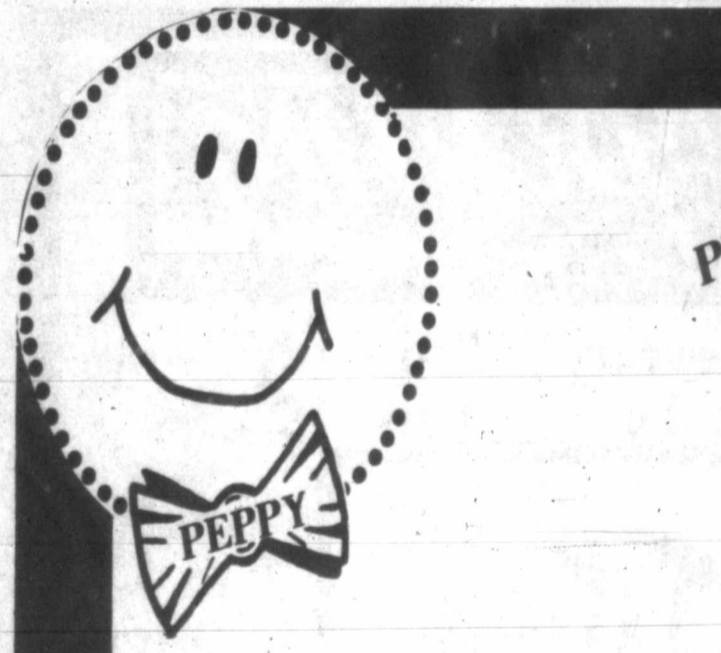

A dispatch by the Daily Mail's diplomatic correspondent John Dickie said the Soviets "proffered this blank check" at a secret meeting in Budapest with Joshua Nkomo, the Rhodesian African nationalist leader who has been negotiating with Smith.

Dicke said Nkomo "slipped out of London 10 days ago after seeing James Callaghan at the Foreign Office and flew for a one-day meeting in Budapest with a high powered Soviet delegation."

"Mr. Nkomo's aides will deny the encounter ever took place," Dickie said, "since they have a cover for his visit — his son Phutani is a student in Budapest."

But the story said it is "irrefutable" that the Russians have offered to provide "massive supplies of sophisticated military equipment and training advisers to operate from Rhodesia's neighbor Mozambique."

"Moscow," he said, "is anxious to get in before the Chinese because of suspicions that Peking may be planning to counterbalance the Soviet gains in Angola by providing backing in Tanzania for anti-Smith guerrillas."

Builders Plumbing Supply

R.D. Wilkerson

Builders Plumbing Supply has undergone a lot of expansion in the nearly 30 years it has been owned by R.D. Wilkerson.

Wilkerson said when he purchased the business in 1946 following World War II, it consisted of a 25-foot frontage on the 500 block of S. Cuyler. Now, including parking, it occupies five lots — between 150 and 175 feet of frontage.

"We have a dual operation here," Wilkerson said. "A very complete plumbing, heating and air conditioning store plus qualified service people."

The business employs about 12 people who are all licensed and qualified for different specialties.

"We work for all people," Wilkerson said, "plus industrial commercial firms."

He added that there has always been some type of plumbing business at that location since 1929, but he added that Builders Plumbing Supply was founded in 1942. It was four years old when he purchased it.

The store is open from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays-Saturdays and carries many lines of merchandise to provide a complete supply store and service department.
