

First Balloting Begins for President

By LEWIS LORD

United Press International

President Ford and Jimmy Carter jumped to an early but tiny lead today in the New Hampshire primary — the nation's first balloting in the 1976 race for president. The 25 voters in the Dixville Notch hamlet stepped simultaneously into 25 voting booths in a flag-bedecked hotel ante-room at midnight EST. Moments later the town's returns were announced. Fifteen of the 25 were Republicans. Eleven voted for Ford and four for Ronald Reagan.

Carter, one of the leaders in the Democratic primary, got six votes. The other four Democrats in Dixville Notch voted for Birch Bayh, Henry Jackson, Morris Udall and a noncandidate, Wallace Johnson, a former mayor of Berkeley, Calif.

Ford predicted victory in the state. Reagan said his polls pointed to a "neck and neck race... with a slight margin for us." But Reagan stressed there's a sizable undecided bloc in the Granite State. Carter forecast a first-or second-place finish for himself in the five-man Democratic primary, and Udall said he would be "up there close to the top." Seven Democrats appeared on a nationally televised forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters in Boston and split on how to fight unemployment and inflation.

The President, addressing a national governors' meeting in Washington, criticized Reagan's proposal that federal social programs be shifted to the states. Ford said it was "easy to offer unrealistic suggestions in the heat of an election year."

Ford pledged to "never irresponsibly transfer serious problems from the federal government to state governments without regard for human needs and fiscal realities."

Reagan, campaigning in western Illinois, again contended government close to home is best. Plugging for revenue sharing, he said: "I don't think anyone can sit in Washington and make decisions affecting the states."

In other developments: — Sargent Shriver, worth $6 million, is the richest presidential candidate. Money Magazine reported, and Fred Harris, worth $78,000, the poorest. It said Ronald Reagan made $783,000 last year — more than any other candidate — primarily as a newspaper columnist, radio commentator and speaker. He's worth $2 million, Money said.

— Daniel Ellsberg, the former defense analyst who leaked the Pentagon Papers to reporters, said in Boston he would support Fred Harris in the March 2 Massachusetts primary. He said Harris would strive to "bring the CIA, the Pentagon and the multinational corporations under control."

— Maine Gov. James Longley, an independent, left a White House meeting with the President saying "at this moment" he preferred Ford over any other candidate of either party.

— George Wallace, campaigning in Florence, S.C., criticized a move by some South Carolina Democratic leaders to send an uncommitted delegation to the national convention. He said a vote for an uncommitted delegate is a vote for "the political pros."

Warehouse Burns

Cities Service Oil Co. lost a warehouse and contents to fire Monday afternoon. The flames, fanned by high winds, jumped the road and burned small amounts of grass. The fire is believed to have been started from a welding torch being used in work on a metal fence outside the warehouse. Contents included paint, anti-freeze, connections, supplies, assorted tools and pay zone samples taken from various area wells over the years.

Fire Destroys Building

A Cities Service warehouse, located three miles west of town on US 60, was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon after a portion of the building apparently became ignited by a welding torch being used on a metal fence next to the structure.

Four units and nine firemen from the Pampa Fire Department answered a 3:45 p.m. call and men were on duty at the scene until 11:20 p.m.

High winds compounded problems for the fire fighters, with cinders being blown across the dirt road east of the site to start fires in the pasture. These grass fires were easily contained and apparently caused little damage.

"It's going to be a pretty good loss," said Dean Carson, Cities Service production foreman.

He said the building contained "miscellaneous items." There reportedly were connections, radio equipment, paint, anti-freeze, and other supplies and tools stored there.

Jack Russell, a pumper with Cities Service for 31 years, brought a 40-year-old picture into the office of The News today which shows the warehouse surrounded by oil camp houses and tall derricks.

Included among items burned in the fire, Russell said, were "different pay zone samples taken over the years and racked in there for reference."

The name on the warehouse in the old photo was "The Empire Companies." Russell said that was changed to Cities Service, "I think, in the late 30s."

City Wants To Control Subdivision Development

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Initial steps were taken today by city commissioners to control subdivision development within a three-mile radius of the Pampa city limits.

The action came following a report from City Manager Mack Wofford that Pampa needs to take advantage of a state law which permits cities to control such development on adjacent lands to meet requirements of city ordinances and regulations in the event of annexation.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson, stating an ordinance is badly needed to cover the proposal, asked that the city staff begin an immediate study that would enable City Atty. Bob Gordon to draw up legislation covering subdivision development.

The city manager said a subdivision ordinance development by Marving Springer & Associates, Dallas consultant engineers who made a study of Pampa's project planning needs in the 1960s, could be used as a model for the proposed legislation.

Pampa currently is experiencing an upsurge in residential and commercial development," Wofford said, "and we need to get into a position where we can control development plans adjacent to the city so they will meet city needs and city requirements. Otherwise we will face many problems when annexation time comes."

City Attorney Gordon advised the commissioners that legislation granting city control within the adjacent three-mile limit would be legal, but that an ordinance would be needed to authorize such control.

Under the subdivision ordinance a developer of a subdivision would be required to make the plat fit into the city's planning of such things as streets and alleys, sewer and water lines and other city regulations.

"Such an ordinance would solve many problems that will face us in the future," City Manager Wofford said.

The proposal he said would be carried out with the approval of the city attorney, consultant engineers and City Planning and Zoning Commission.

In other business today, city commissioners:

Adopted a resolution setting Saturday, April 3, as municipal election day. Two commissioners will be elected to fill vacancies in Wards 2 and 4. Voting places will be at City Hall, North Side fire station, Optimists Boys Club and South Side fire station for Wards 1, 2, 3 and 4 respectively.

Approved on final reading an ordinance changing zoning from SF-2 to commercial on property described as all of Blocks 1 and 2 of the Mason Addition and Tract 137-A.

Rejected current bids for lease of land adjacent to the sewage treatment plant and authorized re-advertising for bids to be opened March 23.

Appointed Gary Baker chairman of the City Traffic Commission to succeed Floyd Sackett, resigned.

Prior to regular city business, a public hearing was conducted on proposed demolition 17 abandoned buildings. Owners of four of the buildings appeared and promised removal or repair and were given continuances.

Structures at 915 Murphy, 615 Campbell, 704, 826 and 925 Brunow, 904 Scott, 836 Campbell, 611 N. Wynne, 716 Henry, 438-40 N. Ballard, 316-18 Doyle, 640 Roberta and 824 Bradley Dr. were ordered removed.

Hearst IQ Dropped 20

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's IQ had dropped 20 points and she showed a terrorized "survivor syndrome" reminiscent of prisoners of war after her capture last fall, says a brainwashing expert testifying on her behalf.

Dr. Louis West, a psychiatrist who worked with POWs following the Korean War, opened the mental portion of Miss Hearst's defense Monday after she wound up seven days of testimony by taking the 5th Amendment 42 times.

West said the 22-year-old newspaper heiress had a "strained facial expression" last September and would "collapse" when asked about her kidnaping or the weeks afterward that she spent in a closet.

Miss Hearst's demeanor was different Monday — calm, cool and incisive — when she defied the judge's orders and refused to answer questions about events or evidence concerning a year in her underground life.

"I refuse to answer on grounds it might tend to incriminate me and cause extreme danger to myself and my family."

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter threatened to cite her for contempt of court for not answering. But it was considered likely he would wait until the end of the trial to issue any contempt citations.

Carter had ruled she gave up the safeguard of the 5th Amendment when she voluntarily took the stand in her own defense.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey instructed her not to answer on grounds she might incriminate herself in an April, 1975, bank robbery at Carmichael, Calif., in which a mother of four was killed by a shotgun blast.

Steven Soliah, with whom Miss Hearst was living when she was captured, has been charged with the robbery.

West told the jury of seven women and five men that prior to her kidnaping on Feb. 4, 1974, Miss Hearst's IQ tested at 129 and 130 — well above average — but on tests he administered two weeks after her capture last Sept. 18 she scored only 110 — in the average category.

The psychiatrist, first of three to be called by the defense, said Miss Hearst had a "survivor syndrome" reminiscent of released POWs when he first saw her 12 days after she was caught.

"There was not only weeping and an inability to talk, but a rapid pulse rate up to 140 — double that of normal. She broke out in a cold, clammy sweat and her appearance was that of someone who had been terrorized or really was experiencing some kind of profound fear."

West described the process which made Miss Hearst cooperate with her kidnapers as "coercive persuasion." He said he preferred that to brainwashing, "which is a grab bag of any kind of influence exerted by a captor over a captive."

He said his work with 36 POWs who cooperated with their North Korean captors showed they were broken down with little physical pain by the three D's — "debility, dependency and dread."

In an obvious parallel to Miss Hearst's case, West said debility resulted from confinement, which caused the victim to become weak and rundown. Dependency, he said, was built by forcing the prisoner to turn to his captors for "every little thing — elimination, feeding and so forth," while dread included the fear of death, torture or their family being attacked.

Hearing Slated For Packerland

A hearing to determine a date for a jury trial in the case the state has filed against Packerland Packing Co. of Texas Inc. is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. March 5 in 31st District Court here.

Judge Grainger McElhane set the "hearing for the purpose of pre-trial proceedings and to determine a jury date" following a letter from Paul Gosselink, and assistant attorney general.

Notices of the March 5 proceeding have been sent of David Holt, Pampa attorney who is representing Packerland, and to Gosselink and John Warner, of Lubbock regional supervisor for the Texas Air Control Board.

The jury trial is expected to require a minimum of two days, according to Gosselink.

The State of Texas in a suit filed here on Dec. 2 asked the court to fine Packerland from $50 to $1,000 per day for each violation of the Texas Clean Air Act.

An official with the Texas Air Control Board said the suit involves "past violations and the odor problems."

Holt in filing the answer on behalf of Packerland denied the allegations contained in the state's petition.

Tale of Two Cities Service Names

This photo, taken in about 1936, shows on the left the warehouse that burned Monday. The Empire Companies name was changed to Cities Service in the late 1930s, according to Jack Russell, a pumper who has been with the company for 31 years. Russell, who brought the photo into The News, said that the Cities Service camp was located behind the warehouse at one time. The houses at the right of the picture, Russell said, were part of the Shell camp. The area is located three miles west of Pampa on U.S. 60. It looks different today, with no derricks and few houses.

Soviet Will Oppose US Interference

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev said today detente remains the main plank of Soviet foreign policy, but warned that Moscow will oppose the United States if it interferes in the affairs of other countries.

He also urged an end to the arms race — "mankind is tired of sitting on mountains of weapons" — proposed a worldwide treaty banning force in solving disputes and suggested Britain and France join the superpowers in guaranteeing Middle East frontiers.

The 69-year-old Soviet leader, peering at his notes through rimless spectacles, made his remarks in a long and firmly delivered keynote speech at the opening session of the 25th Communist Party Congress.

Brezhnev hailed the achievements of five years of detente as "truly everlasting significance," saying "detente has become the leading trend, the main outcome of our party's international policy."

Relations with the United States, he said, had taken a "turn for the better" and decisively reduced the danger of nuclear war.

But in what analysts took to be a reference to the Soviet-American confrontation over Angola, Brezhnev said:

"It is no secret that some difficulties stem from those aspects of Washington policy, which jeopardize the freedom and independence of peoples and constitute gross interference in their internal affairs on the side of the forces of oppression and reaction."

"We have opposed and will continue to oppose such actions," Brezhnev said.

The Soviet Union has accused the United States of sending aid to African factions in Angola that were backed by South African troops.

The West charged the Soviets funneled massive arms assistance and arranged for 12,000 Cuban troops to fight alongside the Marxist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, which now virtually controls the former Portuguese colony.

Having made his point on U.S. "interference," Brezhnev said: "I want to emphasize once more that the Soviet Union is firmly determined to... further improve Soviet-U.S. relations..."

Brezhnev looked healthy and spoke firmly on foreign affairs before 5,000 party delegates at the Kremlin Palace of Congresses. Occasionally stopping to sip water, he delivered the first section of the speech in two hours. Brezhnev resumed on domestic affairs after a 40-minute break.

Denouncing as a "monstrous lie" suggestions that Moscow posed a military threat to the West, Brezhnev said "the Soviet Union has not the slightest intention of attacking anyone."

He said the Soviet Union attaches "the utmost importance" to the problem of limiting strategic arms and repeatedly offered limits to existing types of weapons and bans on development of new arms systems.

He said Moscow suggested a ban on missile-carrying Trident submarines and the new strategic B1 bombers in the United States, as well as on similar weapons in the U.S.S.R.

"Deploably, these proposals were not accepted by the U.S. side. But we have not withdrawn them," Brezhnev said.

On the subject of the Middle East, he suggested Britain and France join the Soviet Union and the United States to guarantee national borders in that region.

The official Tass news agency described Brezhnev's foreign policy platform as "a program for further struggle for peace and international cooperation and for the freedom and independence of peoples."

An aura of uncertainty continues to hang over major policy and farm program issues facing American agriculture.

This was the message left with the audience at the February membership luncheon of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Monday in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn by Dr. Ronald D. Knutson, Texas A&M extension economist in agricultural policy and marketing.

The current economic environment, specific policy issues and how the issues will be resolved, Dr. Knutson stated, all boils down to a state of uncertainty.

"There are four forces involved in affecting agricultural policies," he said. "They are agri-business, the producer, the consumer and government."

Dr. Knutson said a complete change has taken place in the last two or three years.

"Where agri-business and the producer once had the power," he stated, "the power thrust now is moving to the government."

"The most important issue, then, is—in whose interest is our food and fiber policy going to be made—the farmer, agri-business and the consumer, or in the interest of government? And is it going to be a noose around our neck? Think about it."

The speaker pointed to price fluctuations. He said farm prices maintained a fairly level plane until 1972.

"They took off in 1972," he said, "and bounced up and down until 1975 when they sagged off. There now is an uncertain future of ups and downs. But prices the farmer pays are rising and will continue to rise."

Touching on farm income components, Dr. Knutson stated net income for farmers hit a high of $30 billion to $32 billion in 1973 and in 1975 the figure was back down to $28 billion.

Discussing the federal government's food aid programs, Dr. Knutson said that $7 billion or 70 per cent of the U.S. Department of Agriculture budget is spent on welfare—food stamps and school lunch programs.

Illustrated slides and graphs were used by Dr. Knutson to implement his remarks concerning the role of food in the world economy, food prices, food as a tool of diplomacy and the open market versus government programs.

In substance, the speaker drove home the point that agriculture's future is unsettled and the consumer is the fellow who is being hurt.

Clyde Carruth, general superintendent of the Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show here March 15-17, spoke briefly on improvements made for this year's show.

The luncheon speaker was introduced by Foster Whaley, retired Gray County agricultural agent. Following the program Whaley and his wife were presented with a silver coffee service and a certificate of appreciation for Whaley's "dedication to youth and Gray County" during his term of office from 1960 to 1976.

Monday's program was presented by the Chamber of Commerce Agri-Business Committee, headed by Luther Robinson.

The invocation was by the Rev. Norman Dow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, and luncheon music by Mrs. Joyce Walberg at the organ.

USDA Regs Draw Fire

By EDWARD A. FULTON
DALLAS (UPI)—An attorney for 13 "baby beef" packing plants says new regulations will force grocers to stock more expensive cuts and reduce the availability of cheaper meat.

Attorney Stephen Holley said Monday Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz issued the new grading regulations to appease the "heavy beef" industry. He said the regulations would cost the baby beef industry and consumers millions of dollars.

"Monday there was a piece of meat on the shelf at Kroger or Tom Thumb selling like hotcakes and today that piece of meat won't be on the shelf," Holley said. "That's your chicken fried steak. Your lean, tender beef."

"U.S. baby beef good grade round steak cost $1.19 per pound. U.S. heavy beef good grade round steak costs $1.79 per pound. They are eliminating that less expensive meat and putting it in commercial markets."

The grading changes, which went into effect nationwide Monday, altered the connection between maturity, conformation and marbling in beef. In referring to cuts made into chicken fried steak, Holley said the new requirements added one-half degree more marbling for cattle up to 30-months-old before they could be graded "good" rather than "standard."

Animals generally less than 30-months-old and about 400 pounds when dressed were dropped from "good" to "standard." The reduction in grade meant the meat would not be sold in retail outlets selling only good or choice meat.

Holley said the new system would cost the industry from $12 million to $15 million per year.

He also said the requirements were the result of "first cousin politics" between Butz and large feedlots selling beef from mature, heavy cattle which were twice as old and dressed out to twice the poundage as "baby beef." The regulations lower the requirements for grading "heavy beef" as good, choice and prime.

"This is nothing but a blatant, political attempt to help the heavy cattle feeders and the heavy ranchers reduce their costs of feeding the animals at the direct expense of the consumer," Holley said.

Teen-age pregnancies are up—and with them come the highest rates of infant death and low birthweight of any maternal age group. So reports Joseph F. Nee, head of the National Foundation, a voluntary health agency concerned with maternal and newborn health.

Judge To Hear Packers

DALLAS (UPI)—A judge has ruled he will hear a dispute between "baby beef" packers and the Department of Agriculture, and if necessary won't hesitate to dissolve new grading standards.

U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham said Monday his court would accept jurisdiction in the case, even though he knew little about how beef was graded.

"Draped in robes and augustly clothed in power as he may be, the plain fact is this court is just a man who only a few hours ago knew less about meat grades than his wife who makes the family purchases," Higginbotham said.

"It will know before this case ends."

In accepting the case, Higginbotham said the standards could go into effect but warned the Department of Agriculture it should present a strong case showing the standards to be fair.

"The Department of Agriculture should take heed," Higginbotham said. "This court will resolve these questions of fairness as it studies this record."

"It will not hesitate to act strongly, if with the fullness of time it finds...the department to have been out of bounds."

While rejecting the packers' plea for a temporary injunction, Higginbotham did rule in favor of the packing houses in some instances. He rejected the USDA claim his court did not have jurisdiction and said the USDA may not have considered the Southwest "baby beef" industry in adopting the new standards.

He said the packing houses did not adequately support their contention that the new regulations were "capricious," but enough doubt remained to warrant a trial. He admitted he knew little about the industry.

Dallas attorney Stephen Holley, representing the 13 packing plants located in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, said the regulations were a result of "first cousin politics" between the Ford administration and the big ranches and feedlots which produce heavy, mature beef.

The new regulations raise the qualifications for "baby beef"—up to 30 months old—to be graded "good" instead of "standard," and lower the qualifications for mature, heavy beef to be graded either "good," "choice" or "prime."

Firemen Fight Grass Fires

Firemen were called to extinguish two grass fires within the city Monday afternoon.

They were called to 2214 Beech at 3 p.m. where grass and shrubbery beside a house were burning. The house was owned by Kenneth Richardson.

K.N. Kirby, fireman, said today that some damage was done to the side of the house and the roof.

Earlier in the afternoon, the fire department was called to the 800 block of Kingsmill for a grass fire in a vacant lot.

"It is so dry things burn like gasoline," Kirby said. He added that firemen would rest easier if the area could receive some moisture.

Judge Revokes DWI Probation

A Pampa man is serving a 30-day jail term as a result of a driving while intoxicated charge which prompted Gray County Judge Don Cain to revoke his probation.

Mickey Blaine Rigdon, 36, of Pampa, pleaded guilty to a driving while intoxicated charge. He was fined $100 and sentenced to a three jail term. His probation was revoked because he consumed an alcoholic beverage.

In other recent action, Blair Leslie Mitchell, 23, of Neosho, Mo., pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana under two ounces.

He was fined $250 plus court costs and granted a six month probation term.

Velma Lee Chavers, 62, of Clarendon pleaded guilty to a driving while intoxicated charge and was fined $200 and granted a six month probation term.

Wheat Crop 'Too Weak'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Kansas wheat farmers confronting the worst potential drought in 20 years say their crop is too weak to withstand the expected blustery March winds.

Wheat stands in the western two-thirds of the state, without a healthy rainfall since November, are too scrawny to stand the kind of wind storms which usually occur two or three times in March. But there is little prospect of significant moisture before then.

Farm officials today said the drought is shaping up to be the worst since 1956, but nothing like the 1930s Dust Bowl days.

Some farmers already have given up and begun planting spring crops like oats and barley to replace the winter wheat.

"We really haven't had anything this severe since the mid-'50s," said Frank Bieberly, extension agronomist at Kansas State University. "We're going to have to have some moisture and some top growth."

Officials of the Kansas Association of Wheat Growers flew over some of the worst drought areas in southwest

Kansas Monday and later estimated the summer harvest may be 150 million bushels less than last year's 355 million bushels, or a loss to farmers of up to $400 million.

"We have the poorest conditions overall that I've seen in my years of farming," said Tom Ostrander of Wellington, a farmer for more than 30 years and president last year of the wheat growers.

Wheat Growers President Earl Hayes said the flying tour showed "a lot of the crop has died off but a lot of it still is hanging on. But each day we see more and more wheat dying. If rain does fall, it'll be a multi-million dollar rainfall for Kansas farmers."

The chief National Weather Service forecaster for Kansas, Phil Shideler, said his office has predicted no moisture this week and a dry period through mid-March.

"But beyond the next few days it could be a different story," he said. "We've gone through quite an extended period now with very little moisture. There could be a pattern change. I think we shouldn't overreact to this thing yet. We're far from any Dust Bowl days."

Disaster relief applications to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have multiplied in recent weeks. State director Frank Mosier said 1,072 applications were on file two weeks ago and he estimated a 50 per cent increase since then.

"If we do get the heavy March winds before we get some good growing weather, we definitely will have some dust problems," Mosier said. "But I think we still anticipate a fair crop. There's no cause for alarm in my opinion."

Ostrander said farmers probably would receive $22-$23 per acre in relief payments "and this will be a drop in the bucket compared to their actual expenses per acre, but it will help."

The day-to-day weather changes have heavily influenced wheat futures trading at the Kansas City Board of Trade.

"Prices went down Friday because it might rain over the weekend, but it didn't amount to anything so they went back up today (Monday)," said Roderick Turnbull, public relations director for the board. "There isn't any doubt that the whole world over wheat prices are up because it isn't raining in western Kansas."

Kansas State agronomist Bieberly said a number of farmers have plowed up their wheat and started planting a crop which they can harvest in the summer in time to prepare the soil to plant a new wheat crop in the fall.

Man Threw Children From Second Floor

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI)—John Ellis Sr. checked himself out of a hospital mental unit. Less than 24 hours later in a fit of rage, he threw two of his children from a second-story balcony and tossed another down a flight of stairs.

Two of the children landed on an asphalt parking lot. One was killed and another hospitalized in the outburst Sunday.

Police said an argument with his wife had enraged Ellis. It took four police officers, summoned by a neighbor at the Cherokee Arms Apartment complex, to subdue 5-foot-6, 135-lb. Ellis.

"He wasn't very big, but in the state he was in, it took a lot of police officers to get him down," said Charleston County coroner Kenneth Chue.

Ellis was taken to South Carolina State Hospital in Columbia 125 miles away. He was charged with one count of murder and two counts of aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill.

Chue said Ellis had checked himself out of the mental unit at the Charleston Veterans Administration Hospital Saturday where he had been a "voluntary" patient.

"Apparently the people over there (at the hospital) didn't think he was serious enough to have to be confined," Chue said.

Chue said Ellis began arguing with his wife, Merle, 28, shortly after midnight. Police said he began choking her but she managed to get free and flee the building, screaming.

Man Drown In Tank

SANTO, Tex. (UPI)—A state trooper said he stopped a man for erratic driving late Sunday and the man bolted from the patrol car, jumped into a stock tank near the road and drown.

The man was identified as James Travis English, 35, of Abilene.

Patrolman Dean Richardson said he stopped English, his wife and four children on Interstate 20 west of Fort Worth.

Richardson said he brought English to his patrol car, but suddenly English bolted from the car and hopped into a shallow stock tank near the road.

Richardson called for help and other highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies came to the tank. For 45 minutes, English walked about in the tank with the deputies and highway patrolman trying to coax him out.

Finally, as the man attempted to walk out, he stepped into a hole and vanished. The body was recovered and taken to Dallas for an autopsy.

Truckers Want Bargain Power

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Independent truckers Monday hinted at another nationwide boycott if Congress does not pass legislation enabling them to negotiate directly with manufacturers to haul regulated freight.

Michael Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association, also said truckers were protesting "the apathy of Congress." Parkhurst said the leader of a boycott two years ago to protest increased gasoline prices.

"The independent truckers are at war with the apathy of Congress. We want the right to compete," Parkhurst said at a news conference following a two-day "war council" of 20 state presidents of the association.

"We're not going to come out and tell you it's going to happen. But if Congress doesn't begin to act fast, the truckers will, once again, be forced to take their case to the public," he said.

Present Interstate Commerce Commission regulations say independents may haul exempt products such as livestock and produce, but for all other loads, must lease their trucks to regulated carriers. Bills pending in both houses of Congress would change ICC regulations.

Parkhurst said about half the independent truckers run empty on return trips because they are unable to negotiate loads with manufacturers.

Another meeting with the state presidents is scheduled for March in San Francisco where they will finalize lobbying efforts for truckers who plan to meet in Washington in April.

The first attack will be in Congress. If the truckers have to drive their trucks around the Capitol, they'll do it," said Parkhurst. "They're running out of patience because they are running out of money."

Nixon Plays Campaigner's Role During China Visit

PEKING (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon, acting like a political campaigner, strolled through Peking's massive Gate of Heavenly Peace Square today and almost was crushed by Chinese eager to shake his hand.

Longtime residents said it was the first time they could remember a visitor of Nixon's stature venturing into the square to meet ordinary Chinese.

Nixon planned to meet for the third time this afternoon with acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng. They held more than four hours of talks during their first two meetings.

Nixon took his stroll after touring Peking's historical museum on the eastern side of the square.

When he first stopped to shake hands and talk, the crowd almost crushed him while shouting, "Welcome to China" and reaching to shake his hand.

He talked to one man holding a boy in his arms.

"How old is he?" Nixon asked. The father held up four fingers and said in Chinese, "Four years."

"What do you want him to be when he grows up?" Nixon asked.

"Whatever our government decides," the father replied. "You answer the call of Chairman Mao."

"Oh," said Nixon. "You mean whatever the party decides."

As he pushed through the crowd, surrounded by Secret Service agents and Chinese bodyguards as well as reporters and photographers, Nixon stopped frequently, particularly when he spotted a child.

He told one man, "I hope you will come to the United States some day. I will greet you then."

"How old are you?" he asked. The man replied he was 30.

"You have plenty of time," he said. Then moving his arms in a sweeping gesture he said, "You're all young. You all have time to visit the United States. I'm sure you will some day."

While touring the historical museum, a jovial Nixon quipped about Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Wang Yen-chiu, director of China's Bureau of Archeological Research, explained the exhibits to Nixon and his wife, Pat.

When he showed Nixon a sample of the first Chinese writing characters, dating back about 5,000 years, he said, "You will notice some of them look like letters of your alphabet."

"Yes," Nixon said, "I see. There's an 'O,' a 'C' and an 'S.'"

There's also a 'K,' Wang said, pointing to one of the largest and most prominent characters.

"That's how far Kissinger goes back," Nixon said of his former adviser.

Foreign Minister Chiao Kuanhua, who speaks perfect English, roared with laughter.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Fire fighters today suggested dynamiting shaky walls in two 10-story sections of a grain elevator nearly demolished by an explosion which killed seven persons, left two others missing and caused $42 million in damages.

Small fires continued to flare in the two sections of the Goodpasture Inc. elevator operation on the Houston Ship Channel, and attempts to search for more possible victims was hampered by the dangerous buildings.

Goodpasture has taken over the search operation, said Houston Fire Department spokesman Paul Carr. "We are just keeping the fires under control. We consider the most practical route to be detonating the structures."

Goodpasture officials could not be reached for comment.

Executive vice president Truitt Kennedy Monday sought to dispel the fire department's theory that a welder's torch touched off grain dust, causing the massive explosion.

"We have checked and can find no sign that there was anyone doing any welding at the time of the explosion," he said.

as an official of the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration investigated the explosion site.

"All I can say is the cause is currently under investigation," said Bob Griffin, the official.

Kennedy said the facility would have to be rebuilt from the ground, and it would be at least one year before it would be operational.

Carr said several eyewitnesses told fire officials a welding crew was working near the site of the explosion Sunday afternoon.

Fire officials, as they dug through the twisted metal and concrete in the first frantic hours after the blast, criticized Goodpasture for not supplying an accurate list of persons working.

"Goodpasture has a poor record of safety standards and poor safety maintenance," said Carr.

Another controversy resulted from the blast. City, county and other agencies with fire fighting crews argued over who was responsible for handling the rescue and fire fighting at the site.

The Goodpasture elevator is located in suburban Galena Park, which has a small fire-fighting crew.

C.R. Cook, an assistant chief with the Houston fire department, said the ship channel area lacked adequate protection against such disasters. He said the Port of Houston Authority had firefighting authority, but it only had two fireboats.

"Unprotected on land," he said, the industries along the channel needed a solution worked out immediately.

Many of the huge petrochemical plants along the channel have their own fire fighting equipment. Goodpasture had none available when the blast hurled chunks of concrete 200 yards, flattened heavy machinery, broke glass in stores one mile away and started many fires.

The victims "never knew what hit them," said police officer W.G. Mathis.

permitting his residence to be used for dealing marijuana.

The resolution passed the House easily, and at first appeared to face no difficulty in the Senate.

Mainly About People

The Top of Texas Republican Women's Club will have their regular monthly meeting at 9:45 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. Scott Nisbet, 1206 N. Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Spert, 2202 5th St., apt. 8, Lubbock, are parents of a baby boy who weighed 6 pounds 1 ounce when born on Feb. 20. He was named Stephen Matthew Spert. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John M. Brown, 1229 Charles, and Mrs. Johnnie L. Spert, 1816 Dogwood.

One Files For Mayor In Lefors

LEFORS — One candidate for mayor and four for councilmen have filed for office in the Lefors municipal election April 3.

The mayoral candidate is Leonard R. Cain and Jesse Baker, J.W. Franks, Royce Gee and Wendall Akin are seeking the three vacant council seats.

Deadline for filing is Wednesday, March 3.

Gunmen Release Hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Mohammed Haymour was released from a Canadian mental hospital last September. He did not seem disturbed, but talked a lot about how much he wanted to be with his four children.

Monday afternoon, thousands of miles from his adopted home on the Canadian prairie, Haymour led four Lebanese gunmen in a raid on Canada's Embassy in Beirut, taking 18 hostages in an eight-hour war of nerves with Palestinian and Lebanese authorities.

Haymour demanded to be reunited with his kids, living with his estranged wife in a small town in the western Canadian province of Alberta.

He also asked repayment of $500,000 the Canadian government allegedly owed him and apologies from a physician and lawyer, who testified he was insane.

Negotiators made countless trips up three flights of stairs to the embassy, in the Bank Sakkab office center on uptown Hamra St. Outside, police carrying grenade launchers and machine guns ringed the building.

About 9 p.m. a hostage suddenly stuck his head out of a window and flashed a victory sign. It was all over.

The hostages, among them Canadian Charge d'Affaires Alan Sullivan, were released unharmed. The five gunmen were taken away for questioning.

Officials said negotiators promised Haymour, a Lebanese-born Canadian citizen, they would investigate his claims.

"There's no question of our agreeing to pay him anything, but we will look into it and, if he is entitled to any money, then he shall receive it," a Canadian Embassy spokesman said.

Lebanese Parliamentary Deputy Michel Maalouly, who helped negotiate the hostages' release, said Haymour was "really not a criminal."

"He meant no harm," Maalouly said. "He's just a father badly in need of his children."

Haymour's Canadian wife and four children now live in Wetaskiwin, a small town about 40 miles south of Edmonton, the capital of the prairie province of Alberta.

The Purple Heart originally was awarded for bravery. It was founded in 1782 by George Washington and only three of the medals were awarded.

Wants Moore Deported

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Computer specialist Richard Moore served a prison term for a marijuana conviction in his native England. One Oklahoma legislator says that's grounds enough for his deportation.

"I can't understand it," Moore said after hearing the Oklahoma Senate debate a resolution on his case Monday "I almost feel as if I'm facing trial again."

Moore, a British subject, has worked for an international computer firm more than eight years, nearly three years in this country. Now he faces possible deportation to England because of a 1967 marijuana conviction for which he served a 20-month prison term.

Moore, 36, married and the father of a 2-year-old American-born child, said he hopes to become an American citizen.

"I have tried to live a good life," he said. "I have lived a good life."

The Senate passed a resolution by a 24-21 vote, asking Congress to grant Moore a permanent residence visa.

But Sen. Gene Stipe, DM-Calester, said he will ask the vote be reconsidered. Stipe said a copy of Moore's arrest record shows he had four convictions involving drugs and also one for car theft.

Moore said the latter charge was for "taking a joy ride" 15 years ago, for which he paid a $10 fine. The drug charges, all dated July 13, 1967, accused Moore on two counts of possessing small quantities of marijuana, one count for possessing six amphetamine tablets and one count of upon his arrival Monday, with Foreign Minister Gonzalo Facio praising him as "one of the greatest architects of peace."

The secretary apparently was unaware of a brief skirmish in downtown San Jose between police and about 100 members of the Federation of University Students. They carried banners denouncing Kissinger as an "assassin" and demanding he go home.

Police arrested 18 students.

Negotiations over the Panama Canal are based on "points of departure" noted in the 1974 agreement, including changing the current treaty to end the United States' permanent sovereignty over the Canal.

The 40-mile long waterway was opened in 1914, with the United States claiming control "in perpetuity."

The Panamanians want the new treaty, which would have to be approved by Congress, to set a fixed expiration date on U.S. control.

Sinai Watch System Ahead of Schedule

DALLAS (UPI) — A spokesman for E-Systems Inc. says the firm took less than a month to install the Sinai Desert surveillance system that is the cornerstone of a peace-keeping agreement between Egypt and Israel.

The sophisticated electronic system will warn of troop and vehicle movement in the buffer zone with "detection equipment so sensitive that it can distinguish between a man, a truck and a jackrabbit out there in the desert," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said Monday the system was completed last Thursday, three days ahead of schedule.

"I can also say that under the terms of the truce agreement signed by the governments of Egypt and Israel, the system became functional at noon Sunday," the spokesman said.

"We have not received clearance from the American Department of State as yet to disclose the full details of the system and how it is being manned, but I hope to get that shortly."

The system, primarily built by the E-Systems division in Greenville, Tex., 45 miles north of Dallas, was part of an agreement coordinated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger between the two Middle East countries.

It involves a base camp which monitors sensor fields that have been placed at either end of the Giddi Pass and the Mitla Pass in the desert, both located about 30 miles from the Suez Canal.

About 150 E-Systems employees will run the electronic equipment and 28 State Department employees will make policy decisions at the Sinai command site.

Congress approved United States participation in the project only after lengthy debate. It doubted the wisdom of placing U.S. civilians and State Department personnel in the middle of a possible new Middle East war.

The legislation finally created the U.S. Sinai Support Mission which has overall administrative control of the agreement. It selected E-Systems from six bidders to build the surveillance layout, primarily because the Dallas company said it could meet the deadline.

The first E-Systems technicians reached the Sinai Jan. 21 and began construction. Less than a month later, the project was finished.

Kissinger Returns

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today turned to a review of the sensitive Panama Canal negotiations before winding up his six-nation Latin American tour and flying back to Washington.

Two years ago Kissinger and Juan Antonio Tack, then foreign minister of Panama, signed an eight-point agreement to begin talks on control of the canal.

Tack now is Panama's chief negotiator and the two men planned to discuss the progress of the negotiations today in their first meeting since the agreement was signed Feb. 1, 1974.

Kissinger, whose arrival in Costa Rica was marred by leftist student demonstrations, is on the final day of an eight-day tour — his first diplomatic mission through Latin America.

Today's agenda included private meetings with the foreign ministers of Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

Kissinger also scheduled a helicopter tour of Guatemala to examine some of the areas destroyed by a series of earthquakes earlier this month that killed more than 20,000 persons.

The secretary's earlier stops included Venezuela, Peru, Brazil and Colombia.

Kissinger received an extraordinarily warm welcome

AWBA To Honor Boss Tonight

A woman will be named Boss of the Year at the annual Bosses Night Banquet of the American Womens Business Association tonight.

The organization of approximately 40 area women submitted seven anonymous applications to a panel of three judges.

The panel made their selection on the basis of civic contributions and achievements described in the letters. Judges were Earl Davis, James McCoy and Wanda Tigrett.

Main speaker at the banquet at 7 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church will be the Rev. John Hansard, pastor of the Hobart Baptist Church. He will present a dramatization of Patrick Henry's speech.

Three Accidents Told

Three criminal mischief complaints, three non-injury accidents and one hit and run accident were investigated by the Pampa Police Department Monday.

Mrs. Mary Francis of the Mini Mart on Alcock told police that between 11 p.m. Monday and 12:40 a.m. today someone had thrown a beer bottle through the glass in the front of the store.

Two farm tractors on a railroad car that was parked south of the Sandra Warehouse on Feb. 3 and 4 were vandalized. Bob Thrasher of the Santa Fe Depot reported that the tractors had been damaged by rocks. Damages was estimated at $500-600.

Sometime between Saturday and Monday, someone shot two plate glasses at Zales Jewelers, 107 N. Cuyler, according to a report received from Tony Vegs, manager. Police said a BB or pellet gun was used.

A car owned by Robert E. Burns was parked in the 600 block of W. Browning and was struck by an unknown vehicle.

Non-injury accidents occurred at the 100 block of E. Harvester, 700 block of W. Francis and on Browning.

Man Dies In Accident Near Groom

A 75-year-old Berkeley, Calif., man was killed Monday morning in a one-car accident on Interstate 40 and one-half miles east of Groom, according to the Texas Highway Patrol.

Theopous Austin, traveling east, missed a curve in the road causing his car to run into a ditch. The car hit a sign and rolled over four times, throwing Austin out of the car, officers said.

Austin was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace E.L. Anderson acting as coroner.

The highway patrol said it appeared Austin was killed instantly.

Drivers who arrived shortly after the accident said the sun was interfering with visibility, making it difficult to see the curve. The highway patrol said the accident at 7:20 a.m. probably resulted when the sun blinded Austin.

Wedding Coordinators Plan Each Detail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When comic strip reporter Brenda Starr married longtime fiance Basil St. John on television in January, every detail down to the black orchid corsages was handled by a wedding coordinating company.

The function of the eight-year-old business "is to take the burdens and the worries of preparation of a wedding off the bride's family," says Ellen Proxmire, wife of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., mother of five, and one of the founders of the Wonderful Weddings, Inc.

In an interview, Mrs. Proxmire said she and two of her friends decided Washington needed such a business after her oldest daughter was married in a complicated, interfaith ceremony. The other founders are Gretchen Posten, wife of an attorney, and Barbara Boggs, daughter-in-law of Rep. Corrine C. (Lindy) Boggs, D-La.

The business takes care of everything from ordering invitations to recording the wedding gifts. It operates out of a converted one-bedroom apartment in the District of Columbia's upper Georgetown section, but its influence has spread to 70 cities.

About six years ago, the trio took in two, more partners, Harriet Schwartz and Dorothy Mickler, and began handling convention tours. They also organize commercial parties for anyone who needs help in planning a social event. Mrs. Proxmire said weddings now represent only about 20 per cent of their business and convention tours, about 80 per cent.

The five women also run a five-day training school twice a year, at $500 per customer, for people who want to start their own wedding-coordinating businesses.

"We see that they are well on their way, but we are not responsible for their success. We have what I call a loose association," Mrs. Proxmire said.

Since their first wedding in December, 1967, the women have handled the nuptials of several congressional children, a Greek city planner and the daughter of then defense secretary Melvin R. Laird.

Mrs. Proxmire said of the latter: "In a wedding like that you have to be concerned about security. When his son was married, the wedding was disrupted by demonstrators, so all the guests were sworn to secrecy."

But the "climax of our career," Mrs. Proxmire said with a laugh, "was to marry Brenda Starr."

"We had the invitations designed, handled the guest list (including advice columnist Ann Landers), worked with the caterers, fiddled with the color scheme," she said.

Comic strip characters aside, Mrs. Proxmire believes her business is most helpful to a prospective bride who lives away from home and has only a modest budget or a working woman who doesn't have time for all the wedding details.

"A lot of different pieces go into the production of a wedding, and any one of them can cause difficulty," Mrs. Proxmire said.

In one instance, two sisters decided to appear in each other's weddings on the same day, but in different churches.

"They had a joint garden party at their home, on a day that was 115 degrees in the shade. No one had checked out the power capabilities of the electrical system in the house. The minute everything was plugged in, all our fuses blew — no fans, no stoves," she said.

"In addition we were trying a new bakery, and the next thing we noticed was the cake in a heap on the grass.

"We took the bottom layer off, pulled it down so it would hold firm and draped the base with leaves and ferns.

"Another time a limousine got lost with the mother of the groom from Greece, who didn't speak English. We've had a band that didn't show up at all, and a bride who fainted."

Each wedding coordinator carries a panic bag on the day of the ceremony. It contains smelling salts, tissues, safety pins, tape, hair pins, stockings, gloves, bobby pins and aspirin.

Mrs. Proxmire said typical customers are a working man and woman in their mid 20's with their own ideas about the kind of wedding they want.

"The young people today are writing their own ceremonies and choosing their own music. The wedding ceremony today doesn't fit into the old pattern."

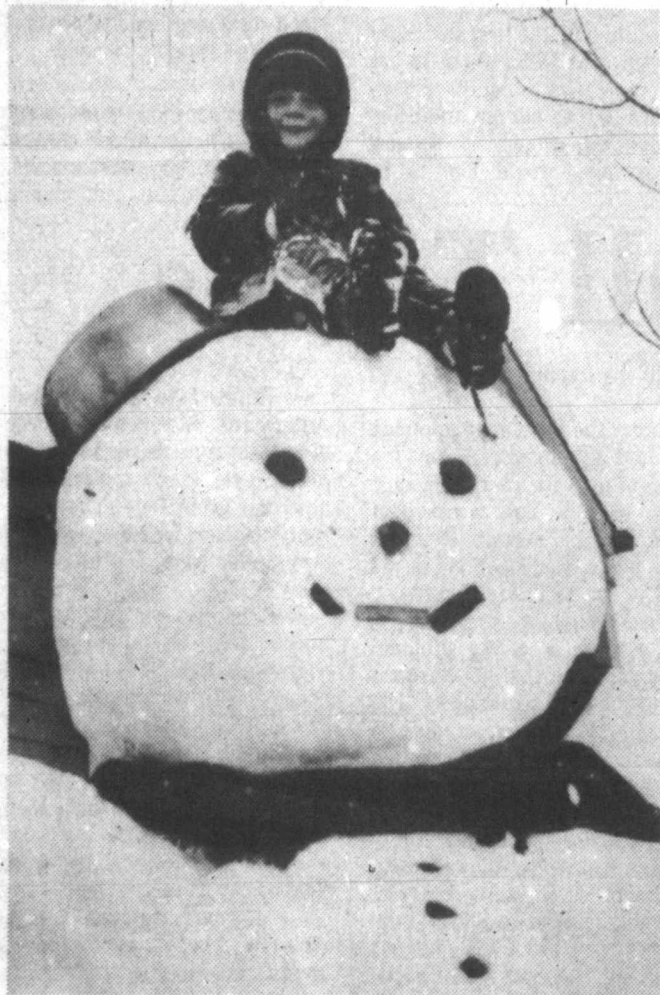

Still, most weddings are held in church, with an average of 100 guests and costing between $2,000 and $3,000, she said. The company's fees range from $200 to $1,000, she added.

"If a girl wants to be married 100 miles from here at the foot of a mountain and have her reception in a barn (as did one bride) or under a particular tree on a shore farm site (as did another), then you know that will be very complicated and very expensive," she said.

Anger Cools Off

Sitters Adapt To Laws

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — Babysitters in Lyndon Johnson's hometown have cooled off since their angry cry last month over official demands they meet state regulations governing day-care centers.

Norma Schmidt says she won't turn away all the children she cares for after all. She'll comply with the rules. But to do so, she says, she has had to trim back on the number of tots she can handle.

And she's thinking of raising her rates. A month ago all three of the town's day care operators thought they might have to shut down because of Texas Welfare Department regulations which went in effect Jan. 1.

The new regulations, the subject of numerous complaints recently by day care operators across the state, provide any person caring for a child who is not a relative must obtain child care licenses or cease business. To obtain the licenses the operators must upgrade their facilities and meet new child-to-babysitter ratios.

Mrs. Schmidt, who cares for six children — down from 10 when the regulations were imposed — said she may have to raise her daily fees from $2.50 to $3 per child.

She said a welfare department worker told her her home would have to meet fire and health standards and she would have to fence her yard and provide separate pillows for the youngsters.

"They told me they'd go easy on the fence for awhile," Mrs. Schmidt said.

She said the parents of the children she had to eliminate made other day care arrangements in the Hill Country community of 648 residents, the namesake hometown and ranch site of the late President.

"Some of the mothers have sent their children to family members, and others are gone here and there and yonder," she said.

Leotta Wilson, who was caring for eight children a month ago, increased her total to 12 to take up the slack left when Mrs. Schmidt cut back and another operator left town. Another day care center has opened and can care for six children.

Mrs. Wilson, too, had to upgrade her facilities and is thinking about raising her rates.

"I'm thinking about going to $3 and maybe charging weekly rates for some," she said. "But, you know in a small town like this they don't make very much and don't have that much to spend. That's $10 a month extra for babysitting, and I know a few people might not like it."

Mrs. Wilson said she feels some of the new bookkeeping regulations are unnecessary.

"There are several things I don't agree with, but I guess I'll have to do them," she said. "It seems like each time they (welfare department workers) come they give you a little more to do."

Because of the numerous complaints by day care operators, additional hearings on the regulations have been scheduled for this week in Lubbock, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and Alice.

Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said the standards are subject to change and public comment is important.

Mrs. Schmidt's public comment a month ago — before her ire settled — was a vow to quit the business.

"When the state can come into your home and tell you what you can do or not do, well, that's just too much," she said.

The American Legion Auxiliary met recently at Furr's Cafeteria for a Dutch supper and business meeting.

Members were told that furniture had been moved from the Council of Clubs to the Senior Citizens Center for use by center members. Mrs. Gladys Turner, membership chairman, reported that the Auxiliary has 26 paid up members.

The group heard a letter from the district president informing them of the District Conference in Nazareth March 13-14. Delegates will elect new officers at the conference.

The members then heard a program "The Helping Hand" delivered by Mrs. Lee Harrar.

Gamma Conclave of Kappa Kappa Iota met recently for the annual guest night at Furr's Cafeteria.

The program, an interpretation of the Book of Psalms, was presented by Ila Pool and was accompanied by a slide show.

Kappa Kappa Iota concludes from Pampa and Lefors will in joint session in March at the Lovett Memorial Library.

The Alpha Kappa Chapter of ESA met recently in the home of Mrs. Bob Eastham. Mrs. Tommy Sells was co-hostess. Mrs. Glen McConnell introduced Mrs. Dennis Kuempel as the guest speaker for the Education Program. Mrs. Kuempel gave a demonstration on how to build a terrarium.

Plans were made for the upcoming Muscular Dystrophy Dance to be on March 20. Also there were discussions in regard to ESA State Convention that will be in Amarillo May 20.

Don't Fret about Child's Cussing

Obscene or profane four-letter words have a "magical" quality to most children, Mrs. Ilene Miller, a family life education specialist, says.

"This happens because these words usually provoke some kind of reaction from parents, teachers and other adults. Reactions range from anger, amusement, disgust, dismay, worry and embarrassment to feelings of personal insult," she added.

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Obscene words, at first, are just like other words a child is learning. But the child soon discovers the obscene or profane words have the power to produce strong emotional reactions when other words don't."

A child may hear and see adults or other children use these words without understanding their meaning — but he sees the emotional power the words have. Sometimes he knows the meaning of the words but hasn't learned a better way to express his thoughts.

"It is not surprising that a child will continue to use the four-letter words frequently to trigger that strong emotional reaction in adults. Children find it extremely fascinating to do this because it gives them a feeling of power and importance. The fact that certain words are forbidden increases that fascination," she continued.

Parents and teachers wonder how to cope with these verbal expressions. Sometimes parents paddle a child, wash out his mouth or punish him in some other way. These approaches may stop the words, but what about the child's thoughts and emotions?

"Perhaps the best approach is to relax, not worry and try not to react emotionally at all. In this way, the child will not experience the emotional power of these words."

Lacy Attends Drama Meet

Pampa High School drama teacher Rochelle Lacy recently attended the Texas Educational Theatre Association convention in Dallas.

She was accompanied by Gradene Underwood, Pampa High School student. The pair participated in workshops and business meetings and Ms. Underwood modeled costumes from the Pampa High School drama department.

They also attended productions at Southern Methodist University and the Dallas Theatre Center.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Your reply to the reader who was taking tranquilizers with coffee brought to mind the experience I had with my son. He was in a mental ward in our city hospital and I visited him every day.

During the visits, I noticed that patients had free access to coffee. They could drink as much as they wanted at any time. This has always bothered me because it doesn't seem logical for many of them to take daily doses of tranquilizers while at the same time drink coffee all day.

I don't know if all mental wards allow free access to coffee, but I do know this hospital still keeps the coffee pot hot for their patients.

DEAR READER — Because of the caffeine in coffee, I must say that it should be used only for those who want a stimulus, as on awakening, if then. I see no value and lots of harm in permitting or encouraging people to drink lots of coffee containing caffeine, the nerve stimulant, who need tranquilizers in or out of the hospital. In general, anyone who is nervous, anxious or keyed up really does not need a nervous stimulant.

Those wanting more information on coffee can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 1-1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Your answer is badly needed. Reading your advice on hormones, that estrogen is used to control tallness in girls, has prompted me to write quickly for your advice on where to locate the proper specialist or the title the doctor would be listed under.

Our family doctor does not believe in hormones of any kind. He is an old-fashioned, lovable family doctor and we live in a small town.

My daughter is 16 years old and is 5 feet 11 and still growing. She is beautiful and a real brain. But the complex she is getting from her height is making her miserable and me heartsick and guilty I didn't seek outside help in a larger city when she started growing rapidly at age 11.

Tallness is not a factor in our family. I'm 5-foot-5 and my husband is 5-foot-7.

Can estrogen really help at this late stage?

DEAR READER — You want to see an endocrinologist for an evaluation of her status. I don't have your address so I don't know what city to tell you to go to but you can usually get up-to-date help from an endocrinology clinic in any university medical center.

Estrogen causes calcification of the long bones in the legs and stops growth. It will not reverse any bone growth that already exists.

Whether your daughter will benefit from this therapy will depend upon her present endocrine status. If she is already producing lots of estrogen it might not be needed and only an evaluation will tell you. Also such an evaluation will tell you if she has any endocrine changes that might influence her growth pattern that needs correction.

Many tall girls are proud of their height and are not concerned about it. After all, it is better to be tall, bright and good looking than just average or less in all departments.

Job Bill Views Vary

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Republicans and Democrats here are expressing opposite opinions on the contested Public Works Employment Bill, vetoed recently by President Ford.

"The bill would create work for the unemployed and remove many from the welfare rolls," Mrs. Ruth Osborne of Pampa, 31st District Democratic Committeewoman said today.

Joe Curtis of Pampa, 31st District Republican Committeeman, said, "It is my personal feeling, and that of most Republicans, that making jobs for the sake of making jobs in no solution. It is a temporary stop gap... it isn't progress in any manner."

Ms. Osborne said she agrees with U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower (D - Vernon) in his vote to override the President's veto.

Hightower said he is maintaining his position against frivolous government spending, but added, "I am convinced that funds to be spent under provisions of this bill will pay dividends to my constituents and the nation."

He cited federally funded sewage treatment facilities under construction in 11 cities throughout the Panhandle, and said had the bill been defeated, funding would not have been available for these projects.

Hightower added that Texas would lose $261.7 million for construction of similar projects.

Hightower's opponent, former Congressman Bob Price of Pampa said the majority of the 94th Congress is of the opinion that it must spend money to "create jobs and help the people keep pace with inflation."

He said this argument ignores the fact that government spending, particularly deficit spending, creates inflation.

Price said the reason "we need to create jobs is that the private sector has been cutting back in the face of too much government regulation and lack of profit incentive."

"We need to work for a 'Jobs Creation Act' which will remove excessive tax regulation burdens on private business and industry so that investment for expansion and job creation in the private sector would occur. This kind of business expansion would create lasting and productive jobs," Price added.

Hightower, in reply to arguments that such programs produce no lasting results, said the nation is still using more than 19,000 facilities such as schools and libraries that were built more than 25 years ago by the Works Progress Administration.

Bond Set For Terrorists

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bail has been set at $100,000 for six suspected members of a terrorist group that claimed responsibility for numerous bombings of San Francisco Bay area supermarkets.

They were arraigned Monday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith. He said the bail was high but this was "an unusual case" and the suspects were charged "with very serious crimes."

Goldsmith set a preliminary hearing for March 3.

The six were arrested during the weekend in a raid on a home in Richmond, Calif., by FBI agents and policemen, who seized more than 150 pounds of explosives. A seventh suspect was picked up in a raid in Oakland, Calif.

FBI agents said the raids broke the back of the New World Liberation Front, which said it bombed public utility stations, and the Emiliano Zapata Unit, which said it bombed Safeway stores.

The NWLF also said it bombed the Hearst Castle in San Simeon, Calif.

Radical sources said the six suspects were members only of the Zapata Unit.

Arrested in Oakland was David Miller, 21, wanted in Madison, Wis., on charges of assaulting a policeman during a demonstration for Karl Armstrong, convicted of a 1970 bombing, which killed one person at the University of Wisconsin.

Those arraigned before Goldsmith were Stephen Scipes, 24,

Janice Orson, 28, Carolyn Williams, 28, Frederick Salkin, 23, Ellen Kesend, 28, and Alfonso Garcia, 35.

Barry Portman of the Public Defender's office asked the magistrate to issue a "gag order" to prevent the FBI and U.S. attorney's office from talking publicly about the case. Goldsmith said he would delay a decision until the government could respond.

Oil Land May Be Sold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department has proposed selling 61 land tracts in the Gulf of Mexico this winter for the production of oil.

Department spokesman said the tracts, in scattered areas off the coasts of Louisiana and Texas, cover a total 254,385 acres. They said, however, public hearings had to be held before any sale could be set.

Ordinarily, the first step is for the Interior Department to ask oil companies to list tracts they would like to bid on, and other interested groups to suggest areas they would like to be excluded from the proposed sale for various reasons.

In a statement announcing the tract selection, the department said regulations allow the director of the Bureau of Land Management at times to skip this step and to select tracts.

"This type of sale sometimes is considered necessary for timely, orderly development in well-established, highly developed (offshore) leasing areas of the Gulf of Mexico," it said.

Income from jobs while going to college helps 40 per cent of students at four-year schools.

Teenager Shoots Family

BLUE MOUND, Tex. (UPI) — Police today said an unemployed teen-ager armed with a deer rifle shot and killed four members of a family Monday night and was slain by a fifth family member who returned home.

Police Chief Gary Erwin said the bodies of the family members, all dressed in bed clothes, were found in four different rooms. All were shot in the head. The assailant was found in the kitchen. Erwin said the teen-ager was shot by the family's eldest son, who had been visiting relatives.

Erwin said he believed the teen-ager was burglarizing the home and was surprised by a member of the family.

Erwin said the assailant lived in his neighborhood and had never been in serious trouble.

I never see anything like this again.

"There was nothing there to steal really. There was nothing of value in the house. They were just middle class people in a quiet neighborhood."

Erwin said the assailant lived in his neighborhood and had never been in serious trouble.

Richard, Liz Split

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Burton says he and Elizabeth Taylor are separated — again. There was no word as to whether they might be divorcing — again.

News that Burton and Miss Taylor apparently have decided — again — they are not enjoying the pleasure of one another's company surfaced Monday when she canceled a party producer Alexander Cohen was holding for her 44th birthday.

"Elizabeth rang me and said she would not be here Friday of this week to be present at her birthday party," Cohen said.

He said she then told him she and Burton had decided to separate.

Monday night, as he entered Manhattan's Plymouth Theater where he is starring in "Equus," Burton was asked by reporters if reports of the separation were true.

"Yes," the actor answered tersely as he made his way to the theater's stage door entrance.

He did not answer a reporter who asked whether the couple would be divorced.

The Burtons were married the first time in 1961 and divorced in 1974, then were remarried last year.

New York Post theatrical columnist Earl Wilson said the latest split followed reports Miss Taylor "had been having a secret romance in Switzerland with a Maltese advertising man, Peter Dermann, 37, while Burton was here rehearsing."

Cohen said, "I don't want to speculate in all that rubbish."

The producer said he doubted Burton's performance would be affected. The actor is playing in previews of the show, which officially opens Thursday night.

"Richard Burton is the thorough professional of all time," Cohen said. "Nothing that happens in his personal life will affect his theatrical commitment."

Green Stamp Store Opens

An S&H Green Stamp redemption center open in Pampa at 10 a.m. today. It will be located at 910 W. Kentucky, adjacent to Coronado Center.

Featuring a self-service contemporary format, the new center will offer more than 3,000 square feet of display and storage space for customer convenience. Ample parking is also provided.

The new center will serve a trade area population of 45,000. It has been designed to accommodate the Green Stamp savers who shop at Furr's Supermarkets, IDL Drug and other merchants in the trade area.

Store hours will be from 10 a.m. through 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Court Boosts Small Towns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court has given a boost to communities that want to retain a small-town character, and issued other decisions on subjects ranging from Polish jokes to Social Security benefits for husbands.

The court Monday refused to review a building industry challenge to a Petaluma, Calif., plan designed to slow down a dramatic population growth by restricting to 500 a year construction of apartment buildings with more than four units.

Under the Petaluma plan, permits must be evenly divided between single family and multifamily units and about 8 to 12 per cent must be built for low and moderate income persons.

The court's rejection of a construction industry appeal from a lower court decision upholding the plan does not have legal force. But the lower court's opinion will be cited as a precedent in other cases.

In a busy day after a four-week recess the court also accepted an important test case involving widowers' and husbands' retirement benefits under Social Security compared with the rights of wives and widows.

Under the law a man applying for old-age insurance on the basis of his wife's earnings must show that he had received at least half his support from his wife when she began receiving old-age or disability benefits or when she died.

A woman in a like situation need not show that her husband furnished half her support. The dependency of the man must be proven, while that of the woman is presumed.

The court also:

- Refused to grant Polish-Americans the right to free broadcast time to counter Polish jokes. It rejected a request from an ethnic group for equal time to reply to jokes told by comedian Steve Allen on an ABC television show in 1972.
- Accepted for review two major antitrust cases, one of them challenging tie-ins of cheap credit with the purchase of readily available goods and the other finding that individual retailers can collect treble damages when a major industry supplier buys into the local market and lessens competition.

Strip Restoration Required

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas strip miners will be required to restore land and assume responsibility for successful revegetation.

The Texas Railroad Commission Monday adopted the new rules requiring land restoration. The new regulations are expected to be filed with the secretary of state later this week and will take effect 30 days after the filing date.

The new rules require mining operators to assume responsibility for successful revegetation for a period of four years beyond the first year in which vegetation is reestablished.

The standards also say miners are to maximize the utilization and conservation of mineral resources so there will be no need to remine the same areas later.

The railroad commission can designate certain areas unsuitable for mining if state officials decide reclamation would not be feasible, if significant damage to important historic, cultural or archaeological areas or to important natural systems would result, if long range productivity of water supply or food and fiber products would suffer or if there are frequent floods or an unstable geology.

"We have not accepted confidential information filings in any other operations," Commissioner Jim Langdon said. "Everything filed is public record."

Commission Chairman Ben Ramsey said the proposal for confidential filings "brings in the doctrine of leakage."

Lawmakers voted last year to give the railroad commission authority to regulate surface mining of lignite, coal and uranium.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimated that paying widowers and husbands on the same basis as widows and wives would cost the government about $400 million a year at a time when Social Security funds are already under pressure.

To bring about equality the court would not necessarily have to require equal payments to both sexes. It could rule in such a way that women would have to prove dependency as men now do.

Agreed to clarify how strictly federal agents must identify potential suspects when seeking wiretap authorization from a court.

Seattle Library Keeps Busy

SEATTLE (UPI) — Seattle's shaky economy has provided a boom to one business — lending books.

Seattle's public libraries are experiencing the greatest surge of patrons in history, it was announced Sunday.

Last year over one million people, an average of 3,000 a day, browsed through the downtown central library.

A total of 4,173,722 books from the system's 23 branches were checked out, breaking the previous record of 4,118,720 in 1932.

"Traditionally when the economy is bad the use of libraries goes up," head librarian Ronald Duberly said. "Last year was our banner year."

Colorado Nice Place To Build Bomb

DENVER (UPI) — A New York researcher says terrorists are attracted to the Rocky Mountain region because of its social climate and environment.

"It's much more interesting to build a bomb in Colorado than, say, in Kansas," said Dr. J. Bowyer Bell, a researcher at the Institute of War and Peace Institute of Columbia University.

"You have a fluid, young, transient community. Colorado is a nice place to drift around in."

There were 21 bombings in the Denver area last year, but Bell said he doubted the number represented a serious threat to the political system.

"I don't think the bombings you are getting are anything more than symbolic protest. They are not part of any great conspiracy," said Bell.

"You will find that many of these (attacks) are coordinated, many are choreographed for the media. You know, 'Don't shoot, Abdul. We are not yet in prime time.'"

Borger Has It Tough In District-Title Bid

Borger will have its back to the wall trying to win the District 3 - AAAA championship this week, while Pampa can end any question of who will be the conference representative in the playoffs by winning today.

Borger must win today to win the second-half title and force a playoff with first-half winner Pampa. Pampa, with a win tonight, would win the second-half crown and its second consecutive district championship.

"They really are in trouble," Harvester Coach Robert McPherson said of the Bulldogs. "They have to win two ball games in a row to win; we just have to win one."

"Our kids are ready to play, I know they are. They were ready to play Saturday — they're fired up."

The contest matches the league's top offensive team — Borger — against the best defensive unit — Pampa. The Bulldogs are averaging 63.2 points per game, while Pampa is scoring at a 54.8 clip. In the last three games, the Harvesters have averaged 70.6, however.

Defensively, Pampa is yielding 48.2 points, having held 19 opponents to less than 50 points. Borger has the second-best defense in the conference, giving up 54.4 points.

The District 3 - AAAA representative will meet either Lubbock Coronado, Hereford or Plainview for the bi-district championship next week. Coronado, 22 - 7 overall, has clinched the District 4 - AAAA second-half title, while Hereford and Plainview tied for the first-half crown. Those two teams will meet in a one-game playoff to decide which will meet Coronado for the 4 - AAAA title.

Paul Sims

Both races have been surprising. Pampa, Borger, Coronado, Plainview and Hereford were predicted to finish down in the standings in pre-season coaches' polls. Amarillo Tascosa and Lubbock Monterey were supposed to meet in the bi-district contest.

Tascosa is 14 - 14 for the season, while Monterey is 15 - 15.

The Pampa junior varsity, in spite of last week's forfeit to Amarillo High, can still win the B - team district championship tonight since the Shockers and Borger are tied with 3 - 1 records in the second-half of conference play.

Pampa forfeited to Amarillo High (2 - 2 in the second half) Friday in Harvester Fieldhouse when official Bob Muncy of Pampa tagged Shocker Coach George Bailey with two technical fouls, then asked him to leave the gymnasium. Bailey refused, so it was Muncy who left the gymnasium — after he credited Amarillo with a 2 - 0 win.

Muncy should have asked a Pampa High official or head coach Robert McPherson to settle the matter of having Bailey ejected. It is an official's right to have a coach ejected at any time, not just after three technical fouls, when the ejection is automatic.

"I didn't know what had happened," said Amarillo JV coach Tom Leaser. "I thought that George had called time out. The official came over and said that the game was over because the Coach won't leave the floor. He said, 'Take your kids to the dressing room.'"

It's hard to figure whether Muncy showed courage by calling the game — something which hasn't been done in this district in years — or panicked.

No tickets remain on sale in Pampa for today's Borger - Pampa game. There were only a few adult tickets left in Borger early today; those went on sale at Bulldog Fieldhouse downtown at 9 a.m. and were expected to be gone by noon.

District Shootout Today

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

Pampa, with perhaps a little more offense than it had when the teams last met, visits Borger, which owns the league's highest-scoring offense, in a battle for the District 3 - AAAA second-half championship at 7:45 p.m. today in Bulldog Fieldhouse at Borger.

Pampa won the first half with a 5 - 0 record. The Harvesters and Borger are tied with 3 - 1 records going into today's final second-half game, so Pampa can win the district championship without a playoff by winning. Borger, should it win, would force a one-game playoff against the Harvesters Friday on a neutral court for the title.

Pampa, seeking its second consecutive conference title, is 25 - 5 for the season, while Borger, district champion in 1974, is 25 - 6. The Harvesters edged the Bulldogs, 53 - 51, in the first half.

In that game, 6 - 2 junior guard Brian Bailey, sank a 15 - foot jump shot with two seconds left in the game to give Pampa the win. The game was typical of Borger - Pampa meetings, known for going down to the wire and having much at stake.

"This game will be a typical Pampa - Borger game, too," Pampa Coach Robert McPherson said. "Borger is fundamentally sound and has a lot of basketball tradition, like we have. Their programs and our programs are very similar."

"That's why it's always a good ball game."

Pampa, in its last two games has topped the 70-point mark, even though it averaged a shade over 53 points per game prior to the contests — an 83 - 63 win over Amarillo Palo Duro and a 72 - 55 win over tough Amarillo High.

The Harvesters, thought of as a slowed-down, selective team, have suddenly turned to the fast break as their main scoring weapon.

"Our main thing is the fast break. We've always tried to fast break but we're just now beginning to do it well. Right now, we're getting the ball better to our guards than we used to earlier in the year — getting the outlet pass better to them," McPherson said.

"I think we're gonna run against Borger. We're playing better running. We're running a lot better. We never work on it in practice because the kids are doing a good job on it. We spent a lot of time on it in pre-season and we've kept emphasizing it."

Pampa, in the teams' first meeting of the season, ran in the first quarter, racked up a 23 - 16 first-quarter lead, then slowed down for the remainder of the contest. McPherson said that it probably would have been better had he decided to run for the entire contest.

"If we play like we're capable of playing, we'll play much better than last time. I don't think we played like we were capable. We're playing so much better now than what we were then."

"Our guards — Brian and Rayford (Young) are playing better together. They're shooting better and playing more aggressively."

Bailey is averaging 13.8 points for the season and has been in a rampage in district games, scoring at a 17.7 clip. Young, a 6 - 0 junior, is averaging 9.3 points for the season.

Six - four junior post Donnie Hughes is averaging 12.8 points and 8.6 rebounds. Pampa's starting forwards are 6 - 1 seniors Richard Lane (8.3 points) and Jewel Landers (5.3 points, 8.3 rebounds).

Five - 10 senior guard Forrest Taylor (1.3 points), 5 - 11 junior guard Pee Wee Steele (1.9 points) and 6 - 6 junior post Winslow Ellis (3.7 points) may also see playing time against the Bulldogs.

Borger will counter with 6 - 6 junior post Jason Welch (17.7 points and 9.3 rebounds), 6 - 1 1/2 junior high post Mike Jackson (11.9 points), 5 - 10 1/2 junior guard Ricky Dickson (13.0 points), 6 - 1 senior guard Shawn Fraley (7.5 points) and 6 - 1 senior forward Mike Kaitcher (9.1 points).

Welch, who has a deadly turnaround jump shot and is virtually unstoppable from inside 10 feet, is the team's main offensive weapon. Jackson, Borger's answer to Bailey, has been on a tear in district games, averaging 13.6 points.

The addition of a healthy Fraley, who was slowed by a sore ankle Feb. 6 against Pampa, has made a difference in Borger's play in recent games, said Coach Duane Hunt.

"But, it's not just him," Hunt said. "We've had to get over other injuries. We feel like we're playing better now than we were then. Our players are in better condition now." Hunt said.

"Our timing's getting back to where we were before. I just hope we're ready; I think we are. I'm sure you know that whenever you play for a championship, both teams are up, ready to go."

Hunt knows that Borger's back is to the wall — the Bulldogs must win twice over Pampa to claim the district title.

"We'll just have to play them as they come."

The Pampa - Borger junior varsity game will start at 6 p.m., preceded by the sophomore contest at 4:30 p.m.

Pampa and Borger are tied in the second half JV standings with 3 - 1 records. The Shockers forfeited to Amarillo High Friday for their only loss of the half.

In that game, official Bob Muncy of Pampa forfeited the game to the Yannigans when Shocker Coach George Bailey refused to leave the gymnasium after he was ejected following two technical fouls.

To No Avail

Wichita State University Coach Harry Miller argues with the officials over a call on Monday night's 69 - 62 loss to West Texas State in Missouri Valley Conference action at the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum. Miller lost the argument. The win gives West Texas State a 7 - 2 Valley record, while the Wheatshockers are 8 - 2. (Pampa News photo by Paul Sims)

Buckner Leads Indiana To 101-11 Rout over Iowa

By United Press International

Although his Indiana teammates have hardly noticed, a mid-season slump by Quinn Buckner has rekindled some mid-criticism that the Hoosiers' backcourt ace should've stuck with football.

Buckner, however, avenged those criticisms Monday night by pumping in a season high 24 points in leading the No. 1-rated Hoosiers to their 24th victory without a loss, this season, a 101 - 81 rout of Iowa.

In shaking off a mid-season slump brought on by illness, Buckner, who gave up football to concentrate full time on his basketball skills, scored 18 points in the first half as the Hoosiers built up a 31-point lead before coasting home to their 54th consecutive regular season triumph.

"Buckner did a tremendous job," agreed Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "Especially by keeping himself out of foul trouble. He can contribute a lot to this team without scoring a lot."

Iowa coach Lute Olson agreed. "Buckner hadn't been hitting for them, but here he was bombing all his shots. We were going to give him the shot. I didn't know who else to give it to."

Kent Benson had 15 points for Indiana, which played its most aggressive game in recent weeks, while Scott May and Bobby Wilkerson added 14 apiece. Iowa (18-7) was led by Scott Thompson with 22.

Elsewhere in games involving nationally rated teams, 11-ranked Michigan, Indiana's closest rival in the Big Ten, downed Illinois, 90-75.

Aggies Seek 2nd Straight Title

By MIKE RABUN UPI Sports Writer

Texas A&M goes after its second straight undisputed Southwest Conference basketball title tonight and since the last obstacle in the Aggies path is Rice, it appears the championship is as good as won.

The Aggies have already claimed no worse than a share of the crown and they will have a 10-day rest as well following tonight's game since they own a bye into the finals of the SWC post-season tournament.

But during that rest period comes another joust with conference officials, one that could again lead to the suspension of freshmen Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams from the Aggie squad.

The players, along with their attorney Hugh Smith, will be given a court-ordered hearing next Thursday in Houston, after which league officials will announce a final decision concerning Godine's and Williams' eligibility for the remainder of this season and all of next season as well.

Tonight, however, Godine and Williams will certainly be available. They might not be needed all that much since the Rice Owls have won but one conference game in 14 tries.

A win would close out the Aggies' regular season with a 14-2 mark, leaving them at least a full game ahead of second-place Texas Tech.

In other games tonight Arkansas and Baylor (both 8-7) collide in Fayetteville. SMU (10-5) visits Houston (6-8) and TCU (5-10) hosts Texas (4-11).

Those games will help determine which team will meet which next Saturday in the first round of the tournament. The only sure pairing for the opening round will find Rice visiting Texas Tech.

Miller Says Decision To Postpone 'Nonsense'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association today labeled the clubowners' postponement of the start of spring training as "nonsense" and predicted that "saner heads" will prevail.

Marvin Miller, the players' spokesman, said the owners' action was purposely intended to mislead the public into believing the Players Association is holding up of its demands on the reserve clause issue.

American League President Lee MacPhail and National League President Charles Feeney announced jointly Monday that the clubowners would not open spring training until a new basic agreement can be reached with the Players Association.

"We feel this is the quickest, surest way to reach an agreement," MacPhail said. "We want to get this out of the way first. And then start playing baseball."

"I think it is comical," said Miller. "For the first time in history, an industry that is not threatened by a strike action from its employees is shutting itself down of its own volition."

"The fact is that the Players Association has made no demands in the reserve rule area," Miller continued. "The dispute is caused by the owners' demand that we agree to strip from the players present rights, which they have in their contracts. That's something that cannot be stripped away."

Maloney To Trial?

TORONTO (UPI) — An Ontario Provincial Court judge rules today whether Detroit Red Wings forward Dan Maloney goes to trial for assaulting Toronto's Brian Glennie in a National Hockey League Game here last Nov. 5.

Judge Aaron Brown, who reserved decision after a two-day preliminary hearing Feb. 2-3, will announce his decision today in open court (at 10 a.m. EST.)

In postponing his ruling after the preliminary hearing, Brown said he wanted to further deliberate the charge — assault causing bodily harm — as it applies to this case.

WTSU Coach Ron Ekker blamed poor field-goal shooting and lack of good execution on the Shocker rally.

"I was pleased with the way we took the lead and built the lead through the second half," Ekker said. "Even though we did let the lead dwindle, we didn't let it dwindle too much."

"We were not able to connect on our end of the floor and we were not moving and executing as well as we had been."

"I really thought that our kids were ready for this ball game. They realized that this ball game was a have - to ball game."

Miller said that the comeback attempt "was the only thing we did right."

He added, "We didn't give up. They just won it in every aspect of the game."

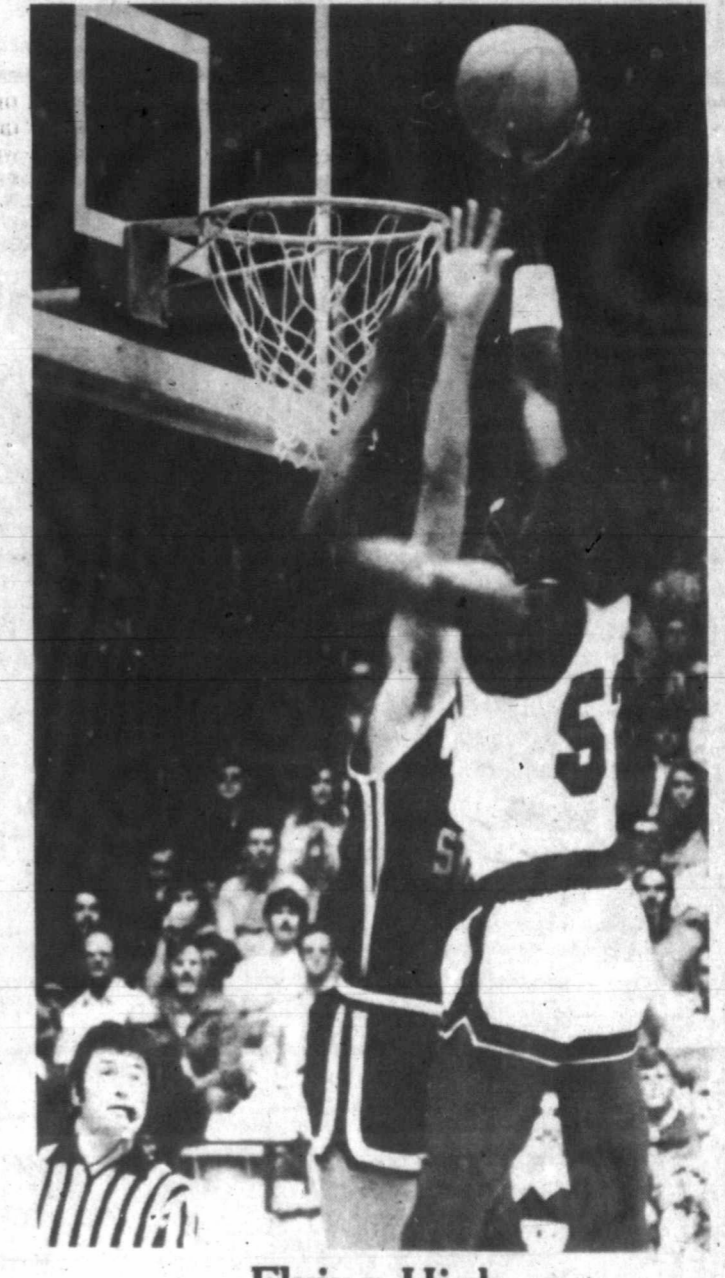

West Texas State shot 48 percent from the floor, canning 29 of 61 field goal attempts, and 61 percent from the charity stripe, hitting 11 of 18 free throw tries. The visitors hit 40 percent

Flying High — West Texas State's 6 - 10 post, Dallas Smith, goes up high for a basket in the Buffaloes' 69 - 62 Missouri Valley Conference victory over Wichita State Monday in Amarillo. Buffaloes Trip Wheatshockers, 69-62

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Junior guard Melvin Jones scored 18 points and pulled down eight rebounds to spark West Texas State to an impressive 69 - 62 win over Wichita State in a critical Missouri Valley Conference showdown before 4,950 fans Monday night in the Civic Center Coliseum here.

West Texas State never trailed in the contest enroute to its seventh MVC win against two losses (17 - 4 for the season). Wichita State, with one conference game left, is 8 - 2 in Valley play and 14 - 9 overall. The Shockers carried a three-game winning streak into the game.

"We were happy to get out of here with our equipment. I thought they were going to pick our pockets and take our numbers away," said Wichita State Coach Harry Miller, whose Wheatshockers were victimized by crucial turnovers West Texas State steals at inopportune times.

Guard Maurice Checks stole the ball twice in the first period and scored easy layups on both Shocker turnovers, then finished the first half with 11 points as WT rolled to a 35 - 27 halftime advantage.

The Buffs' biggest lead in the half was 10 points, which came when forward Reggie Ramey scored on a six-foot jumper to make it 35 - 25 at 1:07.

West Texas State's lead increased to 20 points in the second half before the visitors were able to rally and cut the deficit to seven. The Buffs outscored the Wheatshockers, 17 - 6, in one stretch midway through the second half to grab a 61 - 41 lead with 9:30 left in the game.

WTSU, notorious for blowing big leads all season by committing costly turnovers, lived up to its reputation late in the game. Wichita State outscored the Buffaloes, 13 - 1, over the next four minutes and pulled to within seven, 62 - 55, on from the floor (25 of 62) and 60 percent from the line (12 of 20).

The hosts committed 20 turnovers, compared to 14 for the Shockers. Six of the WSU turnovers came on Buffalo steals.

A big factor in the game was WT's ability to make the big pass — the Buffs had 18 assists, seven by Jones.

WTSU plays its final MVC road game Thursday at Tulsa, Okla., then hosts Drake Saturday. Wichita State hosts Louisville in a non-league encounter Saturday.
