

Jackson calls victory 'great coalition'

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

Sen. Henry Jackson, opening his primary campaigns with a solid victory in Massachusetts, said today a liberal-conservative coalition, not right wing politics alone, gave him victory.

"Anyone who calls this a great conservative win is talking malarkey," Jackson said. "It was a great coalition."

The Washington state Democrat—short on charisma but long on professional know-how—led Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and five also-rans in the Massachusetts race, the biggest and most important of the young 1976 political season.

President Ford beat Ronald Reagan in both Massachusetts and Vermont, the latter a "beauty contest" with no delegates at stake.

Jackson viewed his strength in Massachusetts as critical in the campaign.

"If you're going to win the Democratic nomination and then win the election in November—and I see my situation moving that way—you have to win in the big industrial states like Massachusetts," Jackson said.

He said after winning Tuesday night that victory in such states requires a rebirth of the "grand coalition" that first brought the presidency to the Democrats in the 1930s—minorities, labor, farmers of both liberal and conservative persuasion.

Jackson said his Florida contest against Carter and Wallace will be "tough," but he projected a majority win in the delegate-rich New York primary April 6.

"In the meantime, I'll pick up a little charisma," he told supporters Tuesday night in a joking reference to persistent criticism of him as a dull candidate.

Jackson said although he will spend the week in Florida—as will former U.N. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan on his behalf—New York is his next major target. Only Jackson, Wallace and Carter are actively campaigning in Florida.

"Florida is a state that is a bit of the South and a bit of the North, but it's not a key state," Jackson said. "New York is I defeated Carter and Wallace here yesterday and I understand Florida is a three-way fight."

"It is going to be an inconclusive contest because it can't be used as a yardstick to what is going to happen in the rest of the country."

Carter led in last week's New Hampshire primary, and took a second New England victory in Vermont.

Jackson discounted a possible Carter labor coalition in Florida.

"After Massachusetts a lot of that will evaporate," Jackson said. "Working people, when the word gets out, will vote for the person with the labor record. I think you'll find that group move into our camp."

With returns virtually complete, and only scattered precincts still out, Udall was in firm command of second place with a constant 5,000 to 6,000 vote lead over Wallace. He had trailed the Alabamian throughout most of the counting, but edged into second place in the waning hours of the counting.

Jackson jubilantly called told his cheering supporters. "We brought America back together again in the state of Massachusetts and we'll do it for the rest of the 50 states."

Ford's campaign manager, Howard Callaway, also crowded over results.

"We won by more than we thought we would," he said. "A great deal was said about he's never won anywhere except Grand Rapids, and now he's won in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts."

Behind Jackson in Massachusetts was Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona who overtook Gov. George Wallace of Alabama for second place in the wee hours of the morning. Bringing up the rear were former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, 1972 vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack and Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania.

Bayh, crestfallen by his dismal showing, said he would spend today reassessing his campaign amid speculation he would quit.

In Vermont, Carter beat Shriver, Harris and McCormack in a "beauty contest" involving no delegates for the coming national conventions.

But Massachusetts was for real chips. The Democrats divided 104 delegates and the Republicans split 43.

At 8 a.m. EST Wednesday, with 2,013 or 94 per cent of the state's 2,187 precincts reporting, Jackson had 151,762 or 23 per cent, Udall 120,254 or 18 per cent, Wallace 115,506 or 17 per cent, Carter 96,031 or 14 per cent, Shriver 50,078 or 7 per cent, Harris 52,333 or 8 per cent, Bayh 32,915 or 5 per cent and Mrs. McCormack 23,406 or 4 per cent.

In the Republican delegate race, Ford had 26,274 or 84 per cent and Reagan 4,923 or 16 per cent.

2,011 or 94 per cent of the 2,187 precincts reporting, Ford had 105,587 or 62 per cent and Reagan 58,877 or 35 per cent.

In Vermont, with 260 or 97 per cent of the state's 267 precincts reporting, Carter had 16,111 or 46 per cent, Shriver 10,792 or 31 per cent, Harris 5,036 or 14 per cent and McCormack 3,319 or 9 per cent.

In the Republican race, with 260 or 97 per cent of the precincts reporting, Ford had 26,274 or 84 per cent and Reagan 4,923 or 16 per cent.

In the Massachusetts Democratic convention delegate race, Jackson took 30 delegates, Udall 21, Wallace 20, Carter 16, Shriver 8, Harris 6, and Bayh, Shapp and Mrs. McCormack 1 each. In the Republican delegate race, Ford won 27 delegates, and Reagan 15 delegates. One showed no preference.

In the Republican delegate race, Ford had 27 and Reagan 15. One showed no preference.

Pampa won't send delegate

City Manager Mack Wofford said today Pampa is not planning to send anyone to Washington to urge continuance and re-enactment of federal revenue sharing funds.

Municipal officials over the nation have been invited to the annual Congressional City conference in the nation's capital March 14-16.

Wofford's statement came on the heels of the announcement that Amarillo will send Mayor John Drummond and three city commissioners to the meeting to visit with area representatives in Congress and push for re-enactment of federal revenue sharing.

The Pampa city manager said local officials have been invited to attend the conference but so far the invitation had not been accepted.

Wofford stated Pampa has received approximately $1 million in revenue sharing money since the current five-year program was started back in 1970.

"We have been fortunate in not using any of the money for operating expenses," Wofford said. "We have spent it for capital improvements and not for budget items that recur annually."

While the city manager stated loss of revenue sharing would mean that a 30 per cent tax increase would be necessary to replace it with local funds, it still would not put the city in what he called an "immediate bind" financially.

Wofford indicated the loss of revenue sharing would not mean that Pampa would have to cut back immediately on any services—it would simply have to cut back on capital improvement purchases in the immediate future.

Pampa is eligible for another federal revenue sharing check before the program would expire and depending on whether it is continued by Congress beyond the 1976 expiration date.

Rep. Jack Hightower of Vernon announced Tuesday that he will support re-enactment of the program.

Hightower said if the federal sharing money is removed from cities and counties it would mean an eventual increase in local ad valorem taxes.

Hightower also went on record as being opposed to one proposal that would increase the share of federal revenue sharing to larger cities at the expense of smaller cities.

City Manager Wofford agreed with Amarillo City Manager John Stiff that federal revenue sharing probably is one of the least cumbersome government programs available.

"At least it doesn't require mountains of paper work in order for the city to qualify for it," Wofford said.

State court upholds malpractice judgment

The Texas Supreme Court at Austin today upheld a $21,644 medical malpractice judgment against Worley Hospital and Dr. C.F. Sparger of Pampa in what a local attorney called a "landmark decision."

The suit, filed in 31st District Court here on March 14, 1973, by Sylvia Caldwell, a Pampa resident, asked for damages resulting from a 16-inch square sponge left in her abdomen during surgery.

The state's high court ruled both Worley Hospital Inc., and Dr. Sparger are liable for damages to Mrs. Caldwell because of the incident.

A key issue in the appeal was whether the doctor or the hospital was responsible for the conduct of assisting nurse who made a sponge count before Ms. Caldwell's abdomen was closed during stomach surgery on May 5, 1972.

The lap sponge was later discovered by X-rays, and was about 16 inches square and consisted of five or six thicknesses of gauze. It formed a mass the size of a fist, court records indicate.

A 31st District Court jury in Pampa found the nurses negligent in not making a proper sponge count, and the court entered a judgment against the hospital, but awarded no damages against Dr. Sparger.

The hospital appealed and contended the doctor "as captain of the ship" was in charge of operating room and therefore was liable for conduct of the nurses during surgery.

Mrs. Caldwell, appealed through her attorney, Ross Buzzard of Pampa, also appealed asking that the doctor also be held liable for her injuries.

In November, the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo revised the 31st District trial court decision, and said both the doctor and the hospital were liable.

Buzzard said in referring to the "landmark decision" that "for the first time in Texas there is precedent that requires the hospital to share in the responsibility for the mistakes of surgical nurses."

"I am very pleased," Buzzard added today.

Dr. Sparger said he had no official comment.

Mrs. Caldwell discovered the mass in her abdomen about a month after the original decision, and Dr. Sparger and the same team of nurses performed the surgery on June 27, 1972, to remove the sponge.

Buzzard said a motion for a re-hearing may be filed with the high court, but is seldom granted.

In fact, the decision today is probably the final outcome of the case, court officials say.

Narcs convicted

HOUSTON (UPI)—A federal jury has convicted six former police narcotics officers on 17 of 22 charges of illegally wiretapping telephones, theft of money from suspects and income tax evasion.

An eight-man, four-woman jury Tuesday found all six officers guilty on wiretap and four guilty of stealing money from narcotics suspects. The panel deliberated more than 30 hours before returning the verdict.

The defendants, Jesse C. Smith, 33; Gilbert Gonzalez, 33; Bernard D. Jackson, 35; D.W. Albert, 38; Richard Y. Garcia, 47; and John J. Davis, 27, were transferred out of the narcotics division to clerical assignments following their indictment in 1974.

All denied any wrongdoing and produced 18 character witnesses, including chief B.G. "Pappy" Bond, who said he would take back the six as narcotics officers "if I could."

During the two week trial, government witnesses testified the six shared between $8,500 and $9,000 which a University of Michigan graduate student from Ann Arbor testified was stolen from him when he was arrested for marijuana possession in 1972.

The student, Charles Jacobs, 25, testified Jackson removed the money from his sport coat while he and a fellow student were beaten in a motel room. They were later booked and shown on official records to have only one cent on their person.

Gas-soaked bodies found

COLUMBIA, N.C. (UPI)—The gasoline-soaked bodies of five persons—two women and three young boys—were found smoldering in a shallow grave in a stand of reseeded pine trees, and officials said today other victims may be buried in the area.

All of the victims found to date apparently were members of the same family.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said that while no additional bodies had been discovered since Tuesday, authorities were proceeding on the assumption that there may be one or more additional victims.

Preliminary autopsy reports put the age of the women at 60 and 25. The boys appeared to be about 14, 10 and 6.

"That's not a normal mother-child age differentiation," Edmisten said, referring to the difference in the ages of the women. "I can only speculate that we could be talking about a grandmother situation and that possibly there could be a grandfather around."

Preliminary autopsies showed all but the older woman had been killed by blows to the head with a blunt instrument, and all had been dead no more than a day.

"I suspect we'll probably find they are all from the same family, there is enough resemblance," said State Medical Examiner Page Hudson.

A county forest ranger sent to the area to fight a brush fire discovered the grave Tuesday and summoned authorities.

Edmisten, reached by telephone in Raleigh, said officers speculated that the killer accidentally set fire to the area while pouring gasoline on the bodies and fled. A five-gallon gasoline can and a pitchfork were found at the scene.

"It could have been that the fire jumped up and burned the perpetrator," he said.

State Bureau of Investigation agents, sheriff's deputies and highway patrolmen roped off the area and worked until dark in an effort to locate clues and get a lead to "finding the actual crime scene."

"The burial scene had no indication of a struggle," Edmisten said.

Ronald Brickhouse, the forest ranger, had gone to the area, a reseeded stand of pine trees off North Carolina highway 94 about six miles south of town, after smoke was spotted from a fire tower a mile away.

"I had been by the fire to try and tell where to put the equipment when it arrived," he said. "On the way back out by the fire I saw a pile of dirt and walked over and there were two bodies lying in the hole."

Brickhouse said the fire had already spread over the grave—about 15 to 25 feet off the highway—when he spotted the two bodies lying one to two feet below the surface.

Files for trustee

Foster Whaley, retired Gray County Agricultural Extension Service agent, filed today for a three-year term on place 5 of the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees. A tech sergeant in World War II, Whaley served in four major European campaigns under Gen. Patton. He earned the Purple Heart and Bronze Star medals. A 1949 graduate of Texas A&M, he served 27 years in the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "I believe my 27 years in the field of adult and youth education with Texas A&M University, in addition to my past business experience, would be of value to the Pampa School Board in managing a multi-million dollar industry so vital to the education of our youth," Whaley said. He and his wife, Lois, a former grade school teacher and junior high basketball coach, have three children: Christie Ann, a junior at Texas A&M; Wayne Jay, a freshman at A&M; and Karlette Kay, a sophomore at Pampa High School.

Larry and Elaine Houston have two cute daughters, Michele and Renee. A while back, Michele was quizzing her mother about the family tree. Was she part Indian and part what else? She wanted to know. Renee, who is five, has been eating her lunch and appeared to be paying no attention to the conversation between her mother and her older sister. But suddenly she looked up and said matter-of-factly, "I'm part angel."

How do you feel about the Lockheed Aircraft situation—US taxpayers fork over 200 million to bail out the firm, firm caught paying out more than $22 million in kickbacks and bribes to stimulate sales of their planes around the world. Japanese officials cancel $1.3 billion Lockheed contract.

So if that makes you feel put upon, because your money was at least indirectly involved, and because it helped feed worldwide suspicion on other American transactions, and because it helped foster a distrust among the United States' friends...you have a right to feel that way.

Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman does not like to use his limousine telephone on important matters, reports UPI White House reporter Helen Thomas. He said there is some fear that it may be bugged by the Russians.

Presidential candidate Milton Shapp, who is Pennsylvania governor, has proposed a National Education Trust Fund which would eliminate the need for property tax to finance public schools.

Every homeowner in America hates the property tax, as does every school district. There is no tax in America more unfair and no way to finance education by property taxes that can guarantee quality education in all districts.

He advocates a self-sustaining fund.

"The burden of paying for education would be shifted to the beneficiaries of the educational system—the students. When the student leaves the system at any level—high school, college, vocational school—and enters the work force, a small surcharge on his or her federal income tax will be repaid to the federal government to start repaying the cost of the education and training received. Thus the cost of education is lifted from the backs of property owners (where it does not belong) and shifted to the beneficiaries of the education and training (where it does belong)," he said.

According to a recent memo in the Wall Street Journal, Deputy Energy Administrator John Hill sends congressional energy committee members a poster reading, "If the opposite of pro is con, what is the opposite of progress?"

School board candidate

Majaunta Hills, 55, of Route 1, Pampa became the first woman to file for the 1976 Place 7 Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees. "I'm primarily wife then mother also registered nurse." She works parttime at Highland General Hospital. She and her husband, Forrest moved to Pampa in 1948. She is mother of nine children—seven who have graduated from Pampa schools. Two are now students in Pampa High School. "I am very interested in education for everyone, I'm very interested in Pampa school kids—and because I'm interested in them I must be concerned with teachers and their problems. I also know the graduate from this school system will some day rule our little city and big nation. Since I'll be one of those they will be ruling, I'd like to have a hand in shaping their values. How better than through education? I have had few years experience behind me as a parent."

Another bad scheme

Some union leaders suggested early this year that Congress celebrate the bicentennial by health insurance plan covering every man, woman and child in the United States. Since Congress now is searching for some justification for the bicentennial gift of a small tax cut, not an increase, a big plunge into national health insurance has gone deservedly to the back burner.

This has not kept the House Ways and Means subcommittee on health from conducting hearings on some less ambitious health insurance proposals — a $3.6 billion plan for the government to provide coverage for "catastrophic" medical expenses and a $5.3 billion plan to upgrade the benefits provided to the poor under the Medicaid program. Even with those relatively modest price tags, it is a mistake for Congress to be considering an expansion of government-sponsored health insurance.

That a relatively few Americans are without adequate health insurance, either from private sources or under a government program, is a problem that can hardly be addressed without coming to grips with a bigger problem. How are we going to put a rein on the costs of the health programs we already have?

Inflation has struck at every aspect of our lives, but only the term "superinflation" applies to what has happened to medical costs. Federal spending on health programs has jumped from $5.9 billion in 1966 to $35 billion this year. Since 1971 the number of beneficiaries covered by Medicare has increased by 29 per cent while the cost has leaped by 106 per cent. The surge in medical costs has had a similar impact on premiums paid by individuals and companies for group insurance, and our national health bill paid from public and private sources now stands at $118 billion.

While the quality of health care available in our country is the best in the world, we face the possibility of seeing its price exceed what a good many people can afford. For the government to intrude even further into the picture, in an effort to control costs, could destroy the quality which is the strong point of our private medical care system. Therein lies the dilemma.

A study prepared for the Social Security Administration suggests that health insurance itself is a major cause of superinflated costs. It has removed the link between the payment for a medical service and the person who receives it. "Because there is no link between what providers charge and what consumers are really willing to pay, there are no competitive pressures on providers to hold down costs," the report declares.

If that's the case, a venture into national health insurance would escalate medical costs even more, with a disastrous impact on future federal budgets. The link between insurance and spiraling costs must be better understood and some means found to cope with it. New or broadened government health care programs are unwise, in any case.

Danger lies in threat of judicial fascism'

By DR. MAX RAFFERTY

Q — "Your column (about the court-ordered firing of three Mississippi public school teachers because they preferred to send their own children to private schools) is very much to the heart of the nature of our social crisis. It is not difficult for even educated people to realize that the equalitarian philosophy of the past century has degenerated into a mere belief in "legalism." There has been a slow degeneration from a belief in function behavior to that of the acceptance of formulas. This was, of course, what happened with Christianity, and all other religions that matter.

As has happened in the history of humanity, it would appear that we are about to succumb once again isn't the great tragedy this time the fact that we do have the knowledge to prevent the decline, but there seems to be no way of getting it accepted by any group for discussion?" — E.S.F., Boynton Beach, Fla.

A — Oh, I suppose so. I don't know of many "groups" sufficiently high-powered and intellectual to discuss things like this. But I really don't think it's all that complicated. We are confronted not by a theory but a federal judiciary which, in Jefferson's words, is "working like gravity by day and by night, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, and advancing its noiseless step like a thief over the whole field of jurisdiction."

The danger is not philosophical legalism; it is the dire and imminent threat of judicial fascism.

Q — "In your column on 'quitters,' you blamed the public for saddling the schools with all kinds of non school duties and responsibilities. A careful check reveals that most of these responsibilities now delegated to the public schools were not requested by Mom and Pop, but demanded by the powerful public education bureaucracy here in Illinois. The people who have the authority and the power in the Illinois public school system are the state superintendent and the members of the state board of education, the state school boards association, the county superintendent, the district superintendents, the local school boards, the elementary and secondary principals' associations, conducting antidrug clinics, giving everybody shots for polio, diphtheria and so on or feeding the student body every day, for that matter.

CAPITOL COMEDY

Ford offered Reagan two cabinet jobs — Secretary of Housing (log cabins) and Secretary of Defense (the Alamo).

After the primary, New Hampshire residents feel like they hosted a country music festival without the music.

Reagan wants to show he is not on the extreme right. He started waving with his left hand.

Jimmy Carter likes to remind people he was a poor, barefoot boy who expects to be a shoe-in.

After China, Nixon expects to be invited to Russia. And Ford can't even get invited to congress.

They don't call Jackson "Scoop" for nothing. He keeps shoveling it in for the military.

By turning down two cabinet posts, Reagan gives people the impression he prefers a steady job.

Letter to Hightower

Dear Congressman: I strongly object to the continued attempts by members of the U.S. Congress to further restrict the private ownership, sale of, transfer of, or other restrictions on firearms — including pistols. The founding fathers of this country — in their wisdom — gave us the constitutional right to keep and bear arms. Perhaps they knew that in a mere 200 years it would become impractical and impossible, under our present system of laws and constitutional safeguards for the criminal, to depend upon the police community for defense of ourselves, homes and families. I know, for I am a veteran police officer.

Instead of the continued attacks upon the law-abiding citizen's right to keep and bear arms — including pistols — we again ask for mandatory severe jail or prison sentences for those persons convicted of violent crimes using firearms or other common weapons. No probation. No paroles. Just jail.

It is time for the Congress to get in tune with the people. Get the criminals off the street and leave law-abiding people alone. I would thank you in advance for your efforts in this direction.

Sincerely,
David E. Womack

FORUM...and against 'em

Expensive Words of Advice

Included in the total $1,021.66 paid the law firm of Warner, Finney and Marnocha in 1975 for legal advice to the county hospital, was a bill for $258.41 for legal services rendered, advice and consultation regarding research and rendering of legal opinion concerning authority of the board of managers of Highland General Hospital or the Gray County Commissioner's Court to sell or close McLean Hospital.

Following is the way the bill is itemized:

- (1) Research of applicable statutory law
  - (2) Research of the Texas Constitution
  - (3) Office conference with Wanda Carter, County Clerk
  - (4) Office conference with Jean Scott, County Treasurer
  - (5) Office conference with Robert E. Monogue
  - (6) Two telephone conferences with Mr. J.C. Davis of the County Affairs Division of the Attorney General's office in Austin, Texas
  - (7) Drafting of legal opinion Billable Time to Date: .5 hours Attorney's Fees...$250.00 Expenses:
  - (1) 10-14-75 Telephone call to Austin, Texas. $12.47-3131 — $4.67 plus 7 per cent tax...$5
  - (2) 10-17-75 Telephone call to Austin, Texas. $12.47-3131 — $3.19 plus 7 per cent tax...$3.41
  - TOTAL...$258.41
- Robert E. Monogue, the hospital administrator, requested the legal opinion. It was submitted to him on Oct. 22 by Robert L. Finney. There were four pages and the opinion closed with a summary:

"The Commissioners Court of Gray County, Texas, does not have either express or implied authority under the laws of the State of Texas or the Constitution to sell or close the McLean facility established pursuant to Article 4478, Vernon's Civil Statutes."

The Pampa News requested a copy of the legal opinion and it was provided by Monogue. In an accompanying letter he pointed out that "This opinion was obtained for informational purposes only."

A couple of months following that opinion — in December — Monogue sought to a bit more information concerning the McLean situation. At the hospital board meeting of that month the administrator requested and obtained authorization to retain counsel to determine the legality of using revenue from the Gray County — owned Highland General Hospital to offset the deficit at the Gray County — owned McLean General Hospital.

Evidently that opinion has not yet been completed as no further word on the matter has come up at a hospital board meeting.

Also unknown is the cost of the administrator — requested opinion. Presumably it is being prepared by the same law firm.

The hospitals, being county hospitals, fall under the jurisdiction of the county commissioners court. Judge Don Cain presiding. Anything that would affect the hospitals to the extent that it would close one of them or restructure its deficit financing, would affect the duties of the judge and commissioners.

Which, as I understand the situation, would mean that a legal opinion on such matters would be rendered in the course of the duties of a county attorney, without the $50 per hour charge.

That means that if the hospital administrator and his hospital board had first discussed the above-mentioned matters with the county commissioners and the county judge, the judge could have gotten the necessary legal information from the county attorney at no additional expense to the taxpayers.

And here's the kicker: The county attorney, John Warner, is the Warner portion of Warner, Finney and Marnocha — the same law firm that charged $250 for the five hours spent preparing the legal opinion requested by the hospital administrator.

Of course, whether or not rendering such a legal opinion falls in the line of duty for a county attorney is a matter dealt with in the laws of Texas. The laws appear to be a bit vague and Warner has said that he will obtain an attorney general's ruling that should help clear up the situation.

Whatever the state attorney general says about the situation, it appears that it would pay Gray County taxpayers to stay on their toes where the county hospitals are concerned. It appears that it would pay pretty good.

UPSTREAM

Fewer men of vision Needed in politics

By MADSEN PIRIE
R.C. HOILES FELLOW
Hillsdale (Mich.) College

It seems to be a fairly common cliché of this year's Presidential election campaign that we need more "men of vision" in politics. The media tell us that we are all disenchanted with politicians as a breed, and that we need a few more upward-looking idealists to restore our faith in the democratic process.

I disagree. I think we need less men of vision. As I see it, most of our troubles have been caused by idealists with their view of a better tomorrow. What we need now is a succession of practical, down-to-earth men and women who will keep their noses out of our business and their bureaucrats' hands out of our pockets.

Everyone has their dreams of a better world. I am sure there is not one person in America who does not cherish the idea of an improved society and of a more perfect existence. It is one of the attributes of human beings everywhere that they attempt to better their lot and to increase their opportunities for happiness and fulfillment. Our dreams play an important part in this, for they point out the road ahead and suggest courses of action to us. Dreaming about a better future leads us to work for a better future.

But this is the stuff of life; not of politics. Our dreams are equal; and I am as entitled to mine as you are to yours. While we can all work towards our own idea of improvement, we have no right to force other people to follow our dreams instead of their own. One of the purposes of government should be to prevent some men from imposing their decisions onto others. A just government should protect its citizens from being used as the building blocks of someone else's utopia.

I have no desire at all to force other men to become living instruments of my own fantasies, or to force them to live out my dreams in real life. More importantly, perhaps, I am equally determined not to act out someone else's vision of perfection. We all have to live according to our values, and respecting the right of others to do the same. You pursue your dreams, and I will follow mine.

The trouble with our political process is that it has become an arena for the competition of dreams. Instead of keeping the rules and allowing people to search for happiness in their own way, our government has become a battleground of wish-fulfillment. The power which is concentrated in government has been sought by those visionaries who are determined to make everyone conform to some particular ideal. Instead of bringing tolerance, moderation and wisdom to government, idealists have been touting their dreams in the public market-place, seeking only the power to bring them to reality.

Once it becomes accepted that the purpose of government is to make everyone conform to some dream of perfection, then the principle of self-determination is gone. Instead of being real people of independent worth, we are reduced to clay in the hands of our political masters, fit only to be shaped by their careful hands into a form which they find more attractive.

Dreaming is a private thing. A man's dream of betterment is a product of his character and his values. By allowing him to follow that dream, we allow him to shoulder responsibility and to acquire the moral growth which accompanies it. Most of all, we allow the world to gain from his example. Each of us has something to give. Each of us is a unique individual who will never be repeated in this universe. By living our own lives by our own standards, we can say something to the world about ourselves. This is something so precious that we should never allow some "man of vision" to force us, like sheep, into his own pen.

Charge His Batteries To Increase Frequency

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Mrs. Ready Kilowatt wrote to you complaining that at bedtime, all her electrician husband wanted to do was talk about his business, while she had other things in mind.

You should have advised that wife to learn the lingo of her electrician husband so they could make contact that would be satisfactory to both.

FULLY CHARGED

DEAR FULLY: Why talk? Non-verbal communication is sometimes much more effective. Assuming that the husband's batteries aren't dead, the proper action could lower his resistance and increase his frequency.

DEAR ABBY: Last October you had a whole column on fire prevention and suggested having a hand fire extinguisher in every home. Well, that gave me an idea for my married son's Christmas present.

It should make you feel real good to know that gift turned out to be a lifesaver for my son, his wife, two small children and their home!

Words cannot express my gratitude to you, Abby! CANADIAN

DEAR CANADIAN: Thanks! Your letter made my day.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if you thought a grandmother should be expected to sit with grandchildren who were rude and disrespectful. She said she had two married sons who each had two little boys under 10. The sons of one family were a joy to sit with, so she often did, but the other two boys were mean and mouthy, so she refused to sit with them. Her problem was that she was being criticized for playing favorites. You told her to turn a deaf ear to the criticism.

Well, Abby, CRITICIZED made her first mistake when she didn't correct her disobedient grandchildren the first time they got out of line.

One grandson sassed me, so I told him that his Daddy didn't sass me when he was growing up and that I wasn't going to put up with it from him, either. Then I gave him a smack and set him down. He was so surprised he sassed me again, so I gave him another smack and set him down again. That was our first and last scene.

Later, I warned his younger sister, "You'd better mind Grandma or you'll get what your brother got."

Try to win their respect with love and firm discipline. If it doesn't work, refuse to babysit. Who needs frayed nerves and a headache?

NO NAME, PLEASE

Bailey tries to correct his mistake

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey, who successfully tore into a bank robbery eyewitness whose testimony branded Patricia Hearst a liar, is now trying to fix a mistake of his own.

Bailey conceded the error when he asked U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to hold a special hearing today on the admissibility of evidence seized at the last hideout of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Much of the material — including a damaging "Tania interview" and several weapons — already has been put before the jury at the newspaper heiress' bank robbery trial without a fight from the defense.

Carter excused the jury from the start of today's court session so he could hear legal arguments over the evidence, which was ruled inadmissible this week in state court proceedings against SLA members William and Emily Harris.

The Los Angeles Superior Court decision was based on the FBI's failure to obtain a search warrant even though it had the Harris' San Francisco apartment under surveillance for 30 hours prior to their arrest last September.

"We're taking care of Bailey's pretrial motions down here at a fraction of the cost," quipped the Harris' attorney, Leonard Weinglass.

Bailey told Carter he was unaware of the 30-hour surveillance by federal agents when he signed a stipulation allowing the evidence to be used by the prosecution at Miss Hearst's trial.

Prosecutor James L. Browning Jr. has already made heavy use of the "Tania interview," Miss Hearst's question-and-answer contribution to a history of the SLA. In it, she wrote revolutionary propaganda in her own hand and said she joined the bank robbery voluntarily.

Among the items the prosecutor still wants to introduce are a diagram of a bank in the town of Marysville, Calif., allegedly made in Miss Hearst's handwriting and a "bakery" list on how to rob a bank.

Bailey worked hard Tuesday at knocking down the testimony of TV repairman Zigurd Berzins, 32, San Francisco, who challenged the defendant's story that she joined the April 15, 1974, robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch without knowing whether her gun was loaded.

Berzins said he accidentally let a door swing shut on Miss Hearst as she entered the bank and he then saw her kneel down and pick up ammunition clips and bullets from the sidewalk.

Miss Hearst testified several times during her week on the stand that she did not know if the gun was loaded, had not checked it and was not carrying any ammunition in her pockets during the holdup.

Bailey put the witness under stinging cross-examination, winning admissions that all Berzins saw of the person in the doorway was the top of the head and the hands. The lawyer suggested the witness might not even have been able to tell whether it was a man or a woman.

Berzins insisted it was Miss Hearst, saying he picked her out of photographs of the robbery by a process of elimination — based on what he saw of her and on the type of weapon she was carrying.

But Bailey produced FBI reports in which the eyewitness once identified the person picking up the bullets as Nancy Ling Perry and another time as Patricia Soltysik, two women members of the SLA.

Mozambique calls for war

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Mozambique president Samora Machel closed his country's border with white-ruled Rhodesia today and placed the nation on a war footing to defend itself against what he called the Rhodesian aggressor.

In a national radio address monitored in Salisbury, Machel said "the fighters of the Mozambique Liberation Army will defeat the enemy and crush the aggressor who is violating the peace and massacring our people."

Machel said Rhodesian troops, aircraft and helicopters were attacking settlements near the border and issued orders for "all cities, villages, schools, factories and hospitals to construct air raid shelters.

"The agricultural and industrial sectors are placed on a war footing," Machel said. He said U.N. economic sanctions against Rhodesia would be fully applied.

"Today, to guarantee the defense of the national territory, the (ruling) Central Committee calls on the people of Mozambique to defend their attacked land," he said.

(According to news reports from South Africa, Russian advisers have arrived in the Mozambique port city of Maputo, fresh from their successful backing of the Marxist government in Angola and may be planning to give military support to Rhodesian guerrillas based in Mozambique.)

The militant faction of Rhodesia's African National Council, headed by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, has its headquarters in Maputo. Nationalist sources estimate some 3,000 black guerrilla troops are being trained in Mozambique for infiltration into Rhodesia.

He urged Mozambique residents to start building air raid shelters.

Last week Rhodesian security forces carried out a "hot pursuit" raid into Mozambique against black nationalist guerrillas who have increased incursions into Rhodesia since January.

One Rhodesian and 24 guerrillas died in the incident, security force headquarters said, but did not indicate where the clash occurred.

The government of Premier Ian Smith and black leaders have been holding constitutional talks to end Rhodesia's decade-long international isolation and introduce early majority rule for the country's 5.9 million blacks. There are 250,000 whites in Rhodesia.

Smith and Joshua Nkomo, leader of the moderate faction of the African National Council, met for two hours Monday in a continuation of talks that began three months ago.

Nkomo said the Rhodesian team, came up with "new and interesting" proposals that he would study before the next session, scheduled for sometime next week.

House burglarized

Tuesday's blotter at the Pampa Police Department included one burglary of a house, one criminal mischief complaint and two non-injury accidents.

Steven Nolte of 1000 Varnon told police that someone had broken into his father's house at 1045 S. Hobart between Friday and Tuesday. He reported several items taken from the house and added that foodstuffs had been poured over the kitchen floor.

The owner of a local lounge filed a criminal mischief complaint against Mary Laqueta Smith, saying she had thrown a bottle through the open door of the lounge Saturday. Ms. Smith was charged with disorderly conduct.

A parked car belonging to Charley Sisson of 1000 Darby was struck by an unknown vehicle near the intersection of Charles and Harvester. A second accident occurred in the 600 block of W. Kingsmill.

Communists set policy

MOSCOW (UPI) — East European Communist leaders have decided to take time out from the 25th Soviet party congress to hold a summit meeting on foreign and economic policy, according to Soviet sources.

The sources said the meeting probably also would include Cuba's Fidel Castro, one of several hundred foreign guests at the congress.

Although no precise time for the meeting was known, the sources said late today or sometime Thursday seemed the most convenient periods.

Romania's Nicolae Ceausescu was flying back from Bucharest for the meeting, they said. He left the congress last week after a speech in which he reaffirmed Romania's independent-minded policy line.

The meeting will coordinate foreign and economic policy of the East-bloc countries in light of the general congress consensus behind Soviet policies, the sources said. The last such meeting took place in Warsaw last December.

The sources said the East-bloc leaders would renew attempts to achieve a European Communist conference this year in order to underpin the unity of their movement.

Speeches at the congress by Italian, French and British delegates — and to a lesser extent by Ceausescu and the Yugoslav delegate — struck an independent line and were critical of certain Soviet policies. This turmoil within the movement had stalled the European conference until now.

The congress moved into its next-to-last day of speechmaking today. Soviet sources said preordained elections to the Central Committee and possibly the ruling Politburo would take place at the end of the congress, either late Thursday or Friday.

The other member of the threesome, President Nikolai Podgorny, was even more in the background at the congress. All the applause was for Brezhnev.

Sue calls husband disappointment

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — Actress Sue Lyon says her husband, a convicted murderer, disappointed a lot of people by escaping from the State Hospital.

"A lot of people invested a lot of time to help Gary, and now it looks like it was all for nothing," Miss Lyon said Tuesday.

She said she and other persons had expended a lot of effort to have Gary "Cotton" Adamson transferred from the State Penitentiary at Canon City to the hospital. Adamson, who was being treated for a drug habit allegedly developed in prison, walked away from the hospital Saturday morning.

Miss Lyon also said Adamson phoned her after his escape and she tried to persuade him to surrender.

"He called me Saturday and I tried to persuade him to turn himself in," she said. "He promised me he would, but it looks now like he won't."

Adamson, 35, was serving two 20-to-40-year sentences for second-degree murder and assault and a similar term for federal bank robbery charges when he and the actress were married at the prison Nov. 4, 1974.

Following her marriage Miss Lyon, who starred as a 14-year-old nymphet in the film

"Lolita," tried to arrange conjugal visits for herself and other women whose husbands were at the penitentiary. She was unsuccessful, however, and filed for divorce a year after the wedding. The filing later was withdrawn.

Miss Lyon, who worked as a cocktail waitress in Estes Park and Denver, said she planned to leave Friday for Hollywood to begin work on another movie.

George Levy, director of psychological services at the prison, described both Adamson and his wife as "complicated persons." He said their relationship may have been partially to blame for Adamson's escape.

"The guy had everything going for him," Levy said. "He was doing federal time with state time instead of doing it back-to-back. Everybody bent over backwards to help the guy... and he had a chance of getting out in the next three to five years."

Adamson, who met Miss Lyon in Los Angeles in 1972 while being held on an escape charge, began serving his term at Canon City in 1964. He pleaded guilty to robbing a Denver firm and was involved in a police chase and traffic accident in which a Littleton man was killed.

Army maintains expansion urgent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A citizen's group says landowners would have trouble finding new farms if they are forced to move because of the expansion of the Ft. Hood military reservation. But the Army says the expansion is necessary.

Two House subcommittees heard testimony on the proposed expansion Tuesday.

A spokesman for a citizen's group told the Armed Services Committee hearing that the Army had not properly studied the need for expansion into a 59,300 acre area west of the current reservation. Roy Barrett, a Waco attorney representing the landowners, told subcommittee chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., that 95 percent of the landowners opposed the expansion.

Barrett said the Texas House and Senate have passed resolutions opposing the proposed expansion, and also presented a petition he said was signed by 7,000 opponents.

The delegation of some 70 landowners sat quietly behind Barrett, many wearing red, white and blue badges with "Our Land, Our Lives" printed above their names.

Barrett emphasized it would be difficult for the landowners to find other farmland if forced off their property.

Lt. Gen. Robert Shoemaker, commanding general of the post, speaking before a House Appropriations subcommittee, said the expansion was necessary to allow the Army to maintain the "quality of readiness."

Shoemaker said it was important potential adversaries realize the U.S. Army is prepared and well-trained.

He said the Army would prefer not to disturb populated areas, but added: "Unfortunately, we must be prepared to fight again in Europe and Korea."

Shoemaker said the expansion area includes about 500 people, but said it was better than available alternative sites. The chief alternative, Shoemaker said, was 15,000 acres to the northeast which had twice as many homes, more cultivated land and a higher price per acre.

He said it was "clearly a most unsatisfactory alternative."

'Current Congress worst'

LONGVIEW, Tex. (UPI) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally says the current Congress is the worst he has ever seen because members put their political ambitions first.

Connally, a Democrat turned Republican, said Tuesday congressional members seeking the presidency should have resigned Jan. 1 rather than use their offices to advance their campaigns.

"Congress is willing to destroy this country in order to serve its personal political purposes," Connally told the local chamber of commerce. "There ought to be a prohibition against any member of Congress running for president unless he resigns on Jan. 1 before the primaries.

"Then we won't have them all acting like junior G-men."

Connally, who served as Secretary of the Treasury during the Nixon administration, said some congressmen tried to destroy the CIA and other intelligence organizations "when we need them most to counter the intrigues of the Soviet Union."

"This Congress is the most irresponsible, partisan Congress of my lifetime," he said. "It is as bad and irresponsible a Congress as I've ever seen."

Earlier in the day, Connally dismissed rumors the White House was trying to discourage national Republicans from attending a GOP meeting scheduled March 12 at his South Texas ranch.

Connally said the meeting was to encourage individual state party chairmen to broaden the party's base and work to elect Republicans to congressional, state and local offices.

"I take with a large grain of salt this talk of some unnamed person at the White House discouraging attendance at this meeting," he said. The announcement of the meeting was accompanied by speculation that Connally would use it to start a bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Connally also warned the country would be in trouble if it did not remedy its energy problems, concentrate on food production and promote research and development.

"This county is in danger," he said. "We're not any longer as superior as we once were and we're heading in the wrong direction."

Gov sets budget plan

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has scheduled a meeting with state agency heads to tell them of plans to control state spending so no tax increases will be needed in the 1978-79 fiscal years.

Briscoe said it was the first time in Texas history a governor had met with the heads of state agencies and institutions to discuss in detail the projected budget.

He invited board members, executive directors and fiscal officers of each state agency and educational institution to attend the conference scheduled for today.

"This conference will be most important in establishing a basic policy framework from which we can proceed in analyzing both the need for governmental services and the ability of the taxpayer to bear the burden of supporting the expenses of those services," Briscoe said.

"I know of no other issue that will be of greater importance during the regular session of the 65th legislature than the funding needs and priorities of this state."

Rains rake West, Midwest

By United Press International
Spring and winter battled for dominion over the nation Tuesday but each appeared holding its ground. The only losers were residents of snow-clogged or rain-soaked battle-grounds.

Snow, ice storms and battering rains raked the West, the Midwest and portions of the Northeast while springlike weather set flowers into bloom south and east of the storm belt.

The violent clash of the seasons claimed at least ten lives.

Accidents on icy highways killed two persons in Minnesota, two in Wisconsin and one each in Michigan and New York. Four Union Pacific Railroad repairmen were killed Monday when a freight train rammed into the rear of a small, motorized crew car during a blinding blizzard near Montpelier, Idaho.

Powerful snows hog-tied much of the West, the Plains and the upper Midwest and another snowstorm plagued primary voters in much of Massachusetts and Vermont.

The town of Mount Holly, Vt., postponed voting until Friday after up to eight inches of snow bogged roads.

Up to four feet of snow clogged the California Sierra and 20 inches cluttered in Utah's high country. Rescue workers searched the Sierra for two Lake Tahoe youths missing since Sunday on a cross-country ski outing.

South Dakota and Nebraska also were hard hit.

Ten inches of snow belted portions of Michigan, stacking into five-foot drifts.

More than 20,000 Detroit homes and businesses were left without power for a time as freezing rain and high winds ripped down power lines.

Freezing rain laid down a treacherous carpet of ice from central Wisconsin and Michigan into southern New England.

Ice storm warnings were issued for portions of Michigan and New York.

Trees and power lines snapped under the weight of the clinging ice in Erie, Pa., and portions of central Michigan.

Potent thunderstorms buffeted eastern Missouri and Illinois and stretched into portions of Wisconsin, Indiana and lower Michigan.

Urban and lowland flooding was reported in northwest Indiana and officials were considering evacuations along the Muskegon River in lower Michigan.

But spring blossomed to the south and east.

Forsythia and japonica flowered in southern Illinois as temperatures hovered near 80 and flowering bulbs burst into bloom in Indianapolis. Teenagers, enjoying temperatures in the mid 60s, tossed frisbees through 60 degrees in Pittsburgh's Point State Park.

Explosion kills four in West Virginia jail

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va. (UPI) — Four persons were killed and 12 injured, three critically, Tuesday night by a bomb explosion in the Mason County Jail. Police said the bomb had been carried into the jail by a man whose wife was arrested for allegedly murdering her two-month-old daughter.

Authorities said Bruce and Harriet Sisk were killed instantly in the explosion in Mrs. Sisk's jail cell.

Also killed was Mason County Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Dale Love.

The other victim was not immediately identified.

Mrs. Sisk, 18, was held for the murder of her two-month-old daughter, whose body was found last weekend in a freshly dug grave near her rural home. Police had begun a search after they had been told the baby had been abducted.

According to West Virginia State Police, the husband, armed with a shotgun, strode into the jail, and demanded that he be allowed to spend the night in jail with his wife. Authorities said the Sisks were in her cell when the explosion occurred.

Sisk entered the jail, located in the basement of the three-story Mason County Court-house, shortly before midnight, police said. The blast knocked out windows in the building and tore a huge hole in the cell where the Sisks had been visiting.

The injured, including seven law enforcement officials and five prisoners, were taken to Pleasant Valley Hospital in this Ohio River community.

Mason County Sheriff Elvin Wedge and Deputy Sheriff Ernie Hesson were reported in critical condition with head and internal injuries.

Bruce Wallace, an off-duty Ohio State Highway Patrolman stationed at the Gallia County Outpost, also was listed in critical condition.

Grass fire calls keep firemen busy

The Pampa Fire Department answered eight calls during the first 60 hours of March and most were grass fires.

Several fires within the past week were caused by children, according to reports.

The first report in March was a storage house at 209 Faulkner owned by Ed Southard. The damage was light.

A grass fire was reported Monday at 1801 and 1805 N. Dwight. Firemen said children set the fires, but damages were light.

Another grass fire, set by children, was reported at 2220 Evergreen where the yard was burned and a fence damaged.

An automobile accident in the 1200 block of E. Frederic resulted in a hole in a gas tank and a fire. Heavy damage was reported to both vehicles.

Grass, cross ties and telephone poles were burned in a fire on East Starkweather. Firemen said that was set by children.

Heavy smoke and light fire damage was reported in a fire at Skeeter's Liquor-Store at 1008 1/2 W. Brown Tuesday.

Two fires were reported outside the city limits including one this morning on West Kentucky which was an oil slush pit.

Another fire was caused by a passing train. That blaze, firemen resulted in no damage.

Firemen said a grass fire on Feb. 28 at 848 W. Brown was caused by a power line on the ground.

Four receive probation here

Four persons were fined and granted probated sentences after they pleaded guilty to misdeamnor offenses Tuesday in Gray County Court.

Three men pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated and were fined $200 each and granted a six month probation term.

Rubin Fuentes, 20, of Denver, Colo. was also fined for escaping an arrest. He pleaded guilty to both driving while intoxicated and the escape charge. He was fined $200 and six months probation for DWI, and $100 and six months probation on the escape charge.

Mike Silva, 68, of Mobeetie, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated, and received a $200 fine and six months probation.

Gary Len Evans, 23, of Skellytown received the same penalty following a guilty plea for DWI.

Randy Carl Rubbert, 18, of North Dakota, was fined $50 and granted a three month probated term after he pleaded guilty to driving while license was suspended.

County Judge Don Cain imposed the sentences. The cases were presented by John W. Warner, county attorney.

Newborn baby found drowned in toilet

HOUSTON (UPI) — Murder charges have been filed against a teen-age mother who police say allowed her new born baby to drown in a toilet.

Doretta Ann Jones, 18, said because of an infection she did not know she was pregnant until the birth Feb. 21.

The county medical examiner's office said the woman carried the fetus nine months and the baby born alive.

The woman, who is the mother of a 1-year-old son, said in a statement to police she gave birth sitting on the toilet and when she looked down the five-pound baby was submerged in water.

The medical examiner said water was found in the baby's lungs.

Police held Mrs. Jones in lieu of $20,000 today.

Hope ends in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The parties meeting to draw up a constitution for violence-torn Northern Ireland have virtually ended hopes for a coalition government of Protestants and minority Roman Catholics.

"It looks as if direct rule (from London) will continue for some time to come," Northern Ireland Secretary Merlyn Rees said Tuesday.

The apparent failure of the Northern Ireland Constitutional Convention threatened to rekindle sectarian violence that has left 74 persons dead so far this year and 1,465 since August, 1969.

At today's meeting, the parties planned to vote on a proposal by the Protestant United Ulster Unionist Coalition that its original majority report be adopted, excluding power-sharing with the mainly Catholic Social Democratic and Labor party in any future government in the province.

The British Parliament already has rejected a return to majority rule. It was opposition to the same majority report issued last year that prompted Rees to recall the convention for a month to try to work out a new plan.

The final session was extended until today to give all representatives a chance to voice their position, but any chance for a power-sharing agreement ended in bitter debate Tuesday.

William Craig, whose Vanguard party split with the Protestant Coalition after he had proposed giving power-sharing a trial, made a final bid to solve the stalemate, calling for a referendum in Northern Ireland on the acceptability of an emergency coalition government.

Rees rejected this idea, saying a referendum already had been ruled out, and that direct rule was now the only option.

In related terrorist activity, police in Clapham south of London discovered another bomb factory Tuesday.

Republicans applaud Ford for two victories

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate and House Republican leaders gave President Ford two standing ovations today for his Massachusetts and Vermont primary victories over Ronald Reagan.

The Republicans came to the White House to discuss legislative affairs but rose and applauded when Ford joined them in the Cabinet Room.

During the meeting, Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, brought up Ford's twin primary victories Tuesday and once more the lawmakers rose and cheered.

According to White House aides, the Ford and the GOP congressional leaders discussed action on reconstituting the Federal Election Commission and passage of a $3.5 billion military aid bill dealing mainly in defense help for Israel and Arab nations.

Ford now has three New England primary victories under his belt and is looking to knock Reagan out of the race by gaining two more wins in Florida March 9 and Illinois March 16.

"If we win Florida and add to that Illinois, the Reagan campaign will no longer be credible," Ford campaign chairman Howard Callaway said Tuesday night as he celebrated what he called a "great victory" in the Massachusetts primary.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford "is pleased by the outcome" and added:

"Today's victories in Massachusetts and Vermont, and last week's victory in New Hampshire, indicate the momentum is swinging in the President's favor."

"We won by more than we thought we would," Callaway said of Massachusetts. "A great deal was said about he's never won anywhere except Grand Rapids, and now he's won in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts."

He dismissed Reagan campaign statements that 35 percent would be a good showing in the Bay State, saying: "There's no way you can win by losing."

Niehous family sources said Tuesday they have had no contact with the kidnapers.

An ultraleftist organization calling itself "Group of Revolutionary Commands" claimed responsibility for the kidnaping in a seven-page manifesto sent to a local newspaper.

"We herewith warn police authorities that if they apply repressive measures, this will lead to the summary execution of the foreign capitalist agent," the manifesto said.

But police said Tuesday they have arrested an estimated 100 leftists in a search for clues. Most of those detained later were released, they said.

Police said they anticipated the kidnapers might contact them about ransom now that the pre-Lenten holiday weekend has ended and banks will be open.

McLean loses gas, can't find leaks

The City of McLean is buying more natural gas than it has been selling to its residents and Mayor Sam Haynes said he and the members of the McLean City Council aren't sure why.

"We've assumed for a long time we've had some major leaks somewhere," he said.

But checks by El Paso Natural Gas Co., which sells McLean the gas, and also by an independent firm failed to find any major leaks.

"The independent firm said we had a lot of little leaks," the mayor said, "but nothing that would result in the kind of loss we've had...we're in a kind of a quandary, if you want to know the truth."

Haynes said that McLean's rates for natural gas are "less than $1 per mcf. Most places are higher than that. A large percentage of our population are elderly people and we've always tried to keep our first rates the same to try to protect these older people."

For more than a year, "we've been hunting for leaks and patching 'little' leaks," Haynes said. And all the time, "we've been buying more gas from El Paso than we've been selling."

It is going to be brought up at the city council meeting on Tuesday, the mayor said.

"We'll discuss it again, then," he said. "We're going to have to figure something out."

County Judge Don Cain imposed the sentences. The cases were presented by John W. Warner, county attorney.

22-year-old wins pancake race

LIBERAL, Kan. (UPI) — Pancake race champion Sheila Turner doesn't mind whether she runs in track shoes on a cinder course or in an apron with a skillet in hand on main street — it's still a race.

Mrs. Turner, 22, won the 27th annual Shrove Tuesday race for the second year in a row, beating the winner of the Olney, England competition by 1.3 seconds. Her time of 59.7 seconds over the S-shaped, 415-yard course compared with the world record she set last year of 58.5 seconds.

"I don't really think there is a secret. You just get out there and run as hard as you can," said the mother of one and wife of an oil field worker.

Sheila ran hurdles and relays on her high school and junior college track teams and said track is her favorite sport.

But pancakes are not her favorite food.

"My favorite food is probably Mexican food," she said, adding that she eats pancakes "every once in a while" but more often than she did a year ago when she said after the race, "I can take 'em or leave 'em."

Susan Hillier, 25-year-old wife of an antiquarian bookbinder, won the Olpey race in 61 seconds. Both winners received a traditional kiss of peace at the finish line.

Liberal kept the silver skillet traveling trophy and now leads the annual competition, 15-11. The 25th race was for friendship and didn't count.

About 2,000 spectators lined the race course at Liberal, including Gov. Robert F. Bennett and a mining prospector from New Mexico, who made authentic sourdough pancakes for the runners. The Liberal race was followed by a parade. After the Olney race, the hundreds of spectators crowded into the village church for a traditional service conducted by the vicar, the Rev. Ronald Collins.

According to legend, pancake racing began 500 years ago when a British housewife was fixing pancakes on Shrove Tuesday to use up animal fat before Lent. When she heard church bells calling townspeople to services, in her haste she ran to the church with skillet and pancake in hand. It became a tradition in Olney and the Liberal women proposed an international competition in 1950.

KPL ups rates for Panhandle gas

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Kansas Power & Light Co. Tuesday asked the Kansas Corporation Commission for a $13.9 million rate increase in order to pass on to the consumer the increased cost of natural gas from its major supplier.

KPL announced completion of a contract with Mesa Petroleum Co., Amarillo, Tex., to continue buying natural gas from Mesa holdings in the Hugoton Field. KPL Board Chairman Balfour Jeffrey said the amount specified in the contract should meet the needs of the utility's non-interruptible customers until 1999.

Gas company spokesman Hal Hudson said the increase would affect all the customers on the utility's main line, 106 communities and about 97,000 customers. If granted, the request would raise the average residential gas bill by about $2.57 per month.

Jeffrey said the contract is valid only if the KCC approves the pass-on of increased costs — 21 cents per thousand cubic feet for all customers.

The increased cost of the natural gas was a result of negotiations between KPL and Mesa, which had intended to construct a plant to strip liquid hydrocarbons from natural gas from the Hugoton Field. The process would have reduced the gas available to KPL by 22 per cent.

The gas company contested Mesa's right to build the plant and reduce KPL's supply. However, Mesa filed suit in Grant County district court and won a court order establishing its right to build.

Mesa agreed not to build the plant while KPL agreed to pay higher gas prices for the 22 per cent it would have lost in the stripping process. KPL initially will pay $1.52 per thousand cubic feet, with a two-cent per thousand cubic feet annual price increase.

The remaining 78 per cent of the gas sold to KPL by Mesa will remain at the current price.

The corporation commission late last year denied KPL requests for a pass-on of $17.2 million to pay for the Mesa gas. The KCC said it would be premature for it to grant the increase at that time because the Grant County case had not been settled.

Moynihan eyes Kissinger job after election

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Daniel P. Moynihan told a Yale University audience Monday night he might become secretary of state if Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., is elected President.

"He's the best candidate in the Democratic Party because he's my best friend in the Democratic Party," Moynihan said of Jackson.

Moynihan, who resigned last month as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said he supports Jackson's candidacy because Jackson opposes the diminishment of American power.

Moynihan said he would not rule out the possibility of returning to government service.

When asked during a student questioning period whether he would serve as secretary of state if Jackson became president, he replied, "What man or woman would pass up such an opportunity?"

Police say CB radios used by drug runners

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — New Mexico State Police say citizen band radios, a handy tool for motorists trying to avoid speeding tickets, are also popular equipment for drug runners.

"It's become just another tool for individuals transporting contraband," said Sgt. Neil Curran, a state police narcotics officer.

State police have mixed reactions about the rapidly expanding use of citizen band radio. Although they can be used to assist law enforcement, their prime use seems to be by speeding motorists trying to avoid policemen.

Since a large amount of drugs is smuggled through New Mexico on its highways, the CB radio is helping drug runners avoid police for a different reason.

Curran estimates 75 per cent of all state police seizures of more than 100 pounds of drugs — particularly marijuana — have involved the use of a CB radio in some form.

"About 90 per cent of the traffic on the CB radios is to find out where 'Smoker' (a police officer) is at, and you don't know whether the person wants to know that because he's speeding or because he's carrying a load of grass across the state," Curran said. "The drug runners are getting the smokey reports just like they would if they were someone who was speeding."

Curran said some drug running across the state involves "convoys," several vehicles that are in constant communication by CB radio.

"They may have someone running the 'front door' (the term used for the lead vehicle in the convoy) to try to locate where the police are so that two or three other vehicles carrying the drug won't be stopped," he said.

Curran also said CB radios are used in drug smuggling operations by air.

"The ground units and the aircraft can be equipped with CB radios to help them locate any police in the area," he said.

But Curran and Capt. M. K. Alexander say there are advantages for police officers in the growing use of CB radios.

Alexander said 115 of the state police cruisers are now equipped with CB radios, roughly half of the black and white units on the force.

"I think it actually assists law enforcement more than it harms it," said Curran.

Life continues as usual for quarantined commune

VIOLA, W.Va. (UPI) — Life continues as usual in a Hare Krishna commune slapped by a quarantine following the death of a college professor who had visited the hepatitis-stricken camp.

Dr. Kenneth M. Plummer, a West Virginia Wesleyan College professor, died Sunday. He had taken seven students to the commune, and one of the girls is seriously ill but is expected to recover.

"The quarantine has not disrupted activities of the commune because members of the community seldom leave the site," said Advdita Das, a male member of the commune.

The commune had been waiting for a Marshall County

Health Department recommendation on building a lagoon for sewage disposal. Das said. There are no septic tanks or sanitary sewage lines at the rural 1,000-acre site.

The quarantine was announced Tuesday by Gov. Arch Moore, the first in West Virginia strictly for health reasons in at least 30 years. The order forbids anyone to enter or leave the commune, located south of Wheeling, W.Va.

Adding to concern was a pint of blood donated Feb. 7 to the Red Cross by the ailing female student, whose identity was not revealed.

"This blood could be a means of distributing the hepatitis," West Virginia Department of Health Director N. H. Dyer said. "I just don't know if we will be able to identify the blood which belonged to the girl."

State officials ordered the quarantine after they were notified of the hepatitis outbreak by the U. S. Communicable Disease Control Center in Atlanta. The federal agency had traced four hepatitis cases in New York City to the commune in West Virginia's Northern Panhandle.

Committee kills bill for tough gun control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee has killed a tough gun control bill that would have banned cheap, easily concealable handguns, after what one supporter called "one of the most blatantly crass lobbying campaigns ever."

"This kills gun control legislation for this year," declared Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., one of the bill's chief supporters.

The committee unexpectedly voted 17 to 16 Tuesday to send the gun control measure back to its crime subcommittee. The motion was made by Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill.

While the bill was intended to ban the sale and manufacture of new handguns, it would not have affected the more than 40 million existing handguns presently in circulation.

The bill's supporters complained of an intense lobbying campaign against the bill by the National Rifle Association.

Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, said, "This was one of the most blatantly crass lobbying campaigns ever."

Gun control supporters said the measure would have curbed the proliferation of the small, cheap handguns most used by criminals. Opponents said it would have banned many handgun models used primarily by sportsmen and made it more difficult for law-abiding citizens to obtain firearms for self-protection.

Other key features in the bill included:

— Mandatory sentence for anyone using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

— Higher license fees and stricter licensing procedures for gun dealers.

— Tougher laws to prevent illicit firearm traffic by making it a felony to knowingly sell a gun to a person with a criminal record.

— Limit any person to only one handgun purchase a month.

— Require a 21-day waiting period for anyone wishing to buy a handgun.

Put windmill here

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Kansas State University researchers are working to develop a practical wind energy meter to tell a farmer the best location for a windmill.

Dr. Gary L. Johnson, professor of electrical engineering, said he will try combining an anemometer, which measures wind speed, with a microprocessor, a type of small computer, to measure the amount of energy in the wind.

Johnson and Steve Bootman, a graduate student assistant on the project, hope to have the meter erected at K-State's wind energy laboratory by the end of the summer. Preliminary tests will take at least a year.

If the meter works, the next step would be to install wind energy meters at weather stations across the state. Johnson said after data has been collected during an extended period, the cost per kilowatt hour of the wind energy could be figured to tell how practical a windmill investment would be. "We hope to design a device which would be relatively inexpensive — not more than a few hundred dollars — and which could be erected and taken down easily," Johnson said.

Trio charged after men's clothing theft

HOUSTON (UPI) — Police today charged three Providence, R.I., men with stealing $10,800 worth of men's clothes from a department store.

A search continued for a fourth suspect who escaped police in the parking lot of a Joske's store in the Galleria shopping center minutes after the four men allegedly stole the clothes.

Charged with theft of more than $10,000 were Andrew F. Merola, 40, Anthony H. Ostiguy, 42, and James F. McCahey, 42.

Police, acting on a tip, followed the men Monday and then watched during the alleged robbery. Burglary Lt. J. B. Bradley said 45 suits and 42 shirts were recovered in the suspects' car and at a motel where two of the men were apprehended.

Bradley said one or two of the suspects would keep the sales personnel busy, a third suspect would take the clothes off the racks and lay them on the floor, and a fourth would sack up the clothes in large paper bags.

Canvas slashed last year

Restoration saving Rembrandt

By WILLEM VUUR
AMSTERDAM (UPI) — A Rembrandt masterpiece slashed by a knife-wielding maniac is coming back to life.

Seven Rijksmuseum experts have been painstakingly restoring "The Night Watch," considered one of the 17th Century master's finest paintings, since the quiet Sunday last September when a mentally deranged visitor suddenly plunged a bread knife into its canvas.

After six months of work on a dozen serious cuts and scratches, the huge, (41 feet 9 inches by 14 feet 4 inches) painting will be back on display by the end of March "at its full splendor," Rijksmuseum Director Simon H. Levie said.

"The Night Watch" is one of the world's five topplers of the plastic arts," Levie said. "Rembrandt never used his supreme effects of light and darkness on such a scale. It's just impossible to estimate its value."

"The Night Watch" depicts a turnout of Capt. Frans Banning Cocq's company of Amsterdam volunteer guards in 1639. Visitors will only be able to see it from behind a glass wall for the first eight to 12 months. Direct contact with viewer's breath could cover the still-drying varnish with a blue film, Levie said.

The glass wall will give museum officials extra time to ponder how better to protect Holland's most valued piece of art, which is viewed annually by 1.4 million people.

"It is a difficult issue. We can't take measures that would alienate the art lovers. A permanent wall of glass or even showing a copy wouldn't do. People have a right to the heritage of the past," Levie said.

The drama of restoring "The Night Watch" to its splendor began the day after the attack when the museum's team of renovators assembled to survey the damage. With the painting still hanging in its usual place parallel to the wall, they covered the largest cuts from behind with cellophane tape to prevent the canvas from stretching. A triangular piece 11 inches long and 2 1/2 inches wide which had been cut right out of the painting was fixed back into place, also with cellophane tape.

The seven experts carefully cleaned the front of the painting and, again to prevent it from stretching out of shape, covered the slashed section with Japanese rice paper. This completed the first aid.

A wall with windows and curtains sealed the restorers off from the public but allowed visitors to see the project's progress when work was not actually going on. Carpenters built a wooden platform with a framework to hold the huge canvas horizontal and allow restorers to work on one side from above and the other from below.

Two weeks after the attack, the restorers removed the 333-year-old painting from its frame and lowered it face down onto the wooden framework. After exhaustive tests, they carefully patched the cuts with tiny fibers similar to the original, 17th Century fabric.

Then with a block and tackle, they hoisted the painting up and turned it over. The rice paper was removed from the paint — and the repairs were found to be a complete success.

Once again they hauled up the canvas and set it down on its face, and a new lining canvas, thinner but stronger than the old 1947 liner, was lowered onto the back. The restoring team covered the liner with a mixture of beeswax and resin and, with the aid of old-fashioned electric irons, stuck it solidly on.

Chief restorer Luïsen Kuiper reserved the project's final phase, repainting the damaged spots "dot-for-dot," entirely for himself. Kuiper said restorers once tried to duplicate chemically the pigments used in the original artist's era, but no longer resort to that method.

Restorers now use modern paints, which are eminently suitable, as has been demonstrated here in Holland and abroad," he said.

After Kuiper's painstaking "dotting" is completed, a simple repainting finishes a job which is costing the museum $40,000 to $60,000 plus the seven restorers' salaries, Levie said.

Clinic's statistics show abortion profile

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A federal judge and four defense attorneys from Texas teamed Saturday to diagram a system they said shortens criminal trials by having both sides lay out all their evidence beforehand.

Judge Adrian Spears told reporters gathered in Reno for a three-day conference on the courts he has used the Omnibus system in his west Texas district for nine years. He said the idea is to have the attorneys on both sides give each other complete access to their files, thereby avoiding what he called, "trial by ambush, the sporting theory of justice and the courtroom as a battle of wits."

Spears said the prosecutor shows the defense everything against the defendant and diagrams how it intends to use the evidence. Then the defense shows everything it has and how it intends to exonerate its client.

Panel member Roy Barrera said the system saves money for poor defendants and allows them access to an attorney they would otherwise not be able to afford. He was joined by San Antonio attorney Jack Leon who said it is a big advantage to a defendant without a lot of money to have access to the comprehensive investigative file prepared at taxpayer expense. Attorney Reese Harrison agreed with Judge Spears that the Omnibus system speeds cases to trial and makes for shorter trials, thus helping to relieve much of the pressure on the courts.

Spears said the cooperation between defense and prosecution increases the number of defendants who plead guilty after seeing that the case against them is conclusive. He said occasionally the Omnibus system results in a case being dismissed because of the defense evidence.

Panel members said it generally enables the judicial system to return to the "search for truth" that is its purpose to be.

Reporters representing many major news organizations gathered for the conference at the National College of the State Judiciary in Reno. The three-day conference was sponsored by the American Bar Association and the college for reporters. It continues through Sunday.

Larry Semenza, U.S. Attorney for Nevada, said from the audience the system was tried in one section of Nevada, but failed. He said the system depends heavily on the personality of the judge. Omnibus was tried two years ago in Las Vegas.

Grief's symptoms, stages may be emotional, physical

Grief is as natural as breathing. Problems such as changing residences, job stresses or losing possessions can trigger the same reactions, only on a smaller scale, as death, divorce or other major tragedies.

Studies show people generally experience several stages and symptoms of grief when tragedy strikes. The Texas Medical Association says these natural, common feelings often are necessary for a person to healthily emerge from grief.

The first stage is shock. The mind can put up natural defenses that keep people from feeling the pain of grief at first. Every person reacts differently to grief so this stage can last from a few minutes to a few days. If it continues for weeks, unhealthy grief is probably present and professional help should be sought.

The second stage often is emotional release. It can be very difficult for men in our society to express emotion, especially by crying. But it is often vital for grieving people to express the mental pain they feel. Unreleased grief can boil up inside and release itself unhealthily.

Strong feelings of depression and isolation characterize another stage of grief, one of the darkest periods in the grief experience. Grief also can express itself in physical symptoms. A doctor certainly should check out any physical complaints to determine the cause and treatment. People in physical pain solely because of grief need help to progress through the stage they are stuck in or they may have continued physical trouble.

Often grieving people lose the ability to concentrate. They begin to worry about their mental health and become panicky. But people who know how grief acts on the body and mind are less likely to panic.

Guilt also can plague people in grief. Guilt is natural but can be dangerous when it is prolonged or out of proportion to the actual incident involved.

As people move out of guilt and depression they often become angry and resentful. These emotions do the most harm when family, friends and the grieving person do not understand these feelings are a natural part of the grief experience. Denying hostile feelings, letting them boil inside until they explode or letting them dominate one's life are the main dangers of this stage.

Many times after grief's deep pain passes, people are unable to return to normal activities. Often people carry such a heavy burden of grief alone that, in effect, it drains all the energy normally used in everyday life.

As the grief process continues, people often begin to feel some hope. Then they begin to struggle to accept reality and start anew. Being open to new situations and relationships is difficult by necessity. As in many of grief's stages, concerned friends and relatives can help the grieving person by being available to listen and handle any activities the grieving person cannot carry out. However, it often helps the person in grief to keep fairly busy and continue as many daily activities as possible.

No one follows this grief pattern exactly. Nor does everyone need outside aid when grief strikes. But most people need the warmth and assurance concerned friends can give. Talking about their troubles, especially guilt and resentment, can be the healthiest way for people to handle the dark grasp of grief.

Junk bothers Michener

DENVER (UPI) — Author James Michener says the Bicentennial has become a "national tragedy" because businessmen are taking advantage of the event by selling items ranging from minutemen salt and pepper shakers to flag emblazoned cars.

"Junk, junk and more junk," said Michener, a former writer for the American Bicentennial Commission. "It is a national tragedy that the Bicentennial could not be celebrated properly. Things fell into cheap political hands and everything went down the drain."

Michener, author of the best selling book, "Centennial" about Colorado's 100th birthday, blamed Congress for the failure of the Bicentennial celebration to reach its full potential. He said when the Bicentennial commission was formed by former President Lyndon Johnson plans were made for a fair devoted to the history of the United States; similar to Disneyland and the sprucing up of national landmarks and other projects.

'Miscellaneous' yields real savings in taxes

By Ray De Crane
(Last in a Series)

While there may be a wealth of tax-saving opportunities in the miscellaneous deduction section of your tax return, the many opportunities are frequently overlooked.

Alimony paid to a divorced wife is deductible here if she is required to report it as income on her return. But don't confuse child support payments with alimony. Child support is not deductible, but it may make you eligible to claim the child as a dependent.

Dues and assessments paid to a labor union are deductible here. So, too, are dues paid to a Chamber of Commerce or a professional organization.

Do not include as union dues that portion of an assessment that provides for a death benefit. Child and dependent care expenses are claimed here. They could be worth as much as $400 a month.

Here are other possibilities: Employment agency fees paid to obtain a job.

Unreimbursed work expense, such as the purchase and laundering of required uniforms and special work clothes not readily adaptable to regular street wear; purchase of rubber and asbestos gloves used in certain occupations; safety equipment, such as special steel-tipped shoes, safety glasses and a hard hat, if purchased by you rather than being supplied by the employer.

Small tools and other supplies used in your work which have a life expectancy of less than a year. This could include T-squares, saws, blades, drills used by a carpenter, for example.

Business entertainment required by the nature of your work to the extent it was not reimbursed by your employer.

The cost of professional journals used in your work. Financial publications and the cost of professional investment counseling if you are a stock market investor.

The fee paid for a safety deposit box if it is used to store securities and records for income-producing property.

The cost of tax publications used in the preparation of your own tax return, or the fee paid to a tax counsellor for preparing your return.

Educational expenses, if the training was to maintain or improve skills required on the job or to meet your employer's specific job requirements or if required by law or regulation to maintain your status.

While commuting expenses in driving to and from work are never allowed, a special allowance has been made for construction workers who haul heavy tools.

If you otherwise would not have used your vehicle in going to and from work but for the business necessity of hauling tools or instruments, these transportation costs are deductible.

Anyone who holds two jobs on the one day has a clear-cut opportunity to charge a transportation expense for the distance between the first and the second job. Claim your transportation expenses at the rate of 15 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles, 10 cents a mile thereafter.

WHICH CAMP? NEW YORK (UPI) — Before choosing a summer camp for children, study their needs as well as the camps' emphasis, philosophy, program and methods.

The New York section of the American Camping Association recommends, among other things, asking your child how he or she feels about the camp program you are considering. In its 1976 directory, "Choosing a Camp (the right camp) for Your Child," the regional ACA office also suggests parents find out on what basis, if any, campers are accepted or restricted.

Will exercise help the feet of adults?

A military surgeon secured volunteers from among flat-footed soldiers for an experiment - marching barefoot on the hot sands of a California desert. The 'before and after' pictures showed astounding results.

In the 'before' picture, the volunteers were literally standing on their ankles. After the exercises, the feet appeared perfectly normal with strong, high arches.

Lacking hot desert sand, we could sew a button under the arch of an old pair of socks. The game is to walk without stepping on the button. It really works to strengthen the arches, but naturally should not be overdone.

Reactor alternatives explored

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Current emphasis on speeding the fast breeder nuclear reactor program as a solution to the U.S. energy problem brings up the question of alternatives.

These are not encouraging over the short term.

Nuclear fusion, the alternative that could be the ultimate solution, is "50 to 75 years away" according to Ralph A. Webb, an executive of the Babcock & Wilcox nuclear complex at Lynchburg, Va.

Opposition to giving higher priority to the fast breeder reactor program in the United States often is based on the view that the reactor that breeds plutonium is only an expensive interim step, so why not go directly to nuclear fusion or, better still, make use of the boundless energy of the Sun?

Teams of American and Russian scientists soon may start exchanging information about their work on fusion, according to Bill Gough, a program director of the Electric Power Research Institute at Palo Alto, Calif. But the Russians and the Americans are proceeding along quite different lines and according to an article in the Scientific American for January by H.A. Bethe, Cornell's Nobel laureate in physics, nobody knows yet whether the energy of nuclear fusion ever can be released in a controlled manner on earth.

Nuclear fusion is what produces the energy of the stars and the explosive power of the hydrogen bomb. Since the United States has known for a quarter of a century how to make hydrogen bombs, many persons don't understand why we can't just proceed to use nuclear fusion to make electricity. But just as nitroglycerine could not be controlled until Nobel thought of putting it in finely divided clay to make dynamite, we don't yet know how to control the nuclear fusion process.

Fusion is created by bringing a mixture of heavy gases of hydrogen, the earth's most plentiful energy source (two thirds of all water is hydrogen), to a temperature of about 100 million degrees centigrade and keeping it there. This heat must be maintained long enough for energy-producing reactions between the hydrogen nuclei to take place at a high rate.

Most efforts so far have been to meet this condition by magnetic confinement, so studies by physicists in many countries have centered on many intricate magnetic field configurations for this purpose. But none has been really successful. The work now revolves around a Russian conceived device called the Tokamak, which at least offers promise.

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration has appropriated $200 million for a huge Tokamak device to be built at Princeton University.

The Mexican state of Yucatan produces about half the world's sisal.

Crane problem delays

Once again the oil and gas industry has bowed to majestic and stately whooping cranes, an endangered species, wintering along the Gulf Coast of Texas.

The latest case involves a potential gas well under test after being drilled to total depth by four companies. Mitchell Energy is the operator with Clark Oil Producing Co., Southern Union Production Co., and Sun Oil Co. as participants.

The well is located on a state lease in Mesquite Bay, just south of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge. Before testing could be completed last October the first whooping cranes began to arrive for their winter feeding season. Even though the well was not inside the refuge boundary, operations were ceased immediately and the drill barge was moved away. This action incurs considerable additional expense because the barge, or a substitute, must be returned to the site later to complete the testing.

This temporary abandonment will continue until mid-April following the whoopers' return to their traditional nesting grounds 2,500 miles to the north at Wood Buffalo National Park near Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories of Canada.

The well had been drilled in an effort to determine the size of a gas reservoir discovered by another well currently shut in and owned by the four-company group. The reservoir must be proven large enough to warrant the cost of laying a pipeline to these wells.

Putting the welfare of the whooping crane on a high priority is nothing new for the oil and gas industry. It has cooperated with the Department of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service in protecting the endangered species for many years.

Groups join in anti-theft effort

Three oil industry associations have announced plans for a joint effort to curtail thefts of drilling and servicing tools and equipment, estimated to have cost the industry nearly $1 million in 1975.

The anti-theft program will be a combined effort to attack the common problem facing members of the Association of Oilwell Servicing Contractors, the International Association of Drilling Contractors and the Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association.

Presidents of the three groups, whose total membership represents nearly all of the companies supplying equipment and contact services for drilling and production, made the joint announcement. L.S. Stafford, AOSC; Spencer Taylor, IADC; and J.C. Bergin, PESA, explained that losses of drilling and servicing equipment increase costs of the industry's energy recovery effort not only because of the need to replace the equipment, but also because of unrecoverable time loss in crew and other related equipment.

A theft registry has been created by the three groups to list equipment reported stolen. This registry with detailed descriptions of stolen equipment will be updated periodically and distributed to law enforcement agencies and the combined membership of the three associations.

A joint committee of the three groups will monitor public auctions of used oil field equipment. Items to be auctioned will be inspected, and authorities notified in the event stolen equipment is discovered.

The AOSC head operates Stafford Well Service, Inc., at Buffalo, Wyo.; Taylor is from Dallas and is president of SEDCO, Inc.; and Bergin is vice president of Republic Supply Company at Oklahoma City.

Coronado nudges Pampa

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Lubbock Coronado outscored Pampa, 5-2, in the overtime period, sinking five of six free throws, as the Mustangs edged Pampa, 59-56, in the area Class AAAA bi-district basketball contest Tuesday before a crowd of 2,000 in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

The loss ends Pampa's season with a 26-6 record and wrecks the team's hopes of erasing last year's 57-52 bi-district loss to Lubbock Monterey. Coronado, 25-7 for the season, will play Wichita Falls, a 78-72 double overtime winner over Abilene Tuesday in a bi-district encounter, in the regional playoffs Saturday morning at Abilene Christian College.

Coronado, down by 14, 24-10, with a minute left in the first quarter, rallied to pull within two, 34-32, at halftime. Pampa, able to run in the first quarter and manage five layups, led 24-12 at the end of the period but was outscored by Coronado, 20-10 in the second.

The Mustangs, with a physical 1-2 inside punch in 6-5 Bryan Smith and 6-3 Walter Storrs and a hot hand by reserve Robert Nash, overcame the absence of starting guard Vic Henry and forward Wayne Nash who drew their third personal fouls in the second quarter and were out of the game until early in the third period.

Both Coronado players received their fourth personals in the third quarter and sat out much of the second half. Still, Coronado went ahead of Pampa, 48-46, at the end of the third period. The teams were tied, 54-54, at the end of regulation time.

Pampa post Donnie Hughes missed an eight-foot shot at the buzzer, as the game went into overtime.

Storrs sank a pair of free throws at 2:30 in overtime to give the Mustangs a 56-54 advantage. Henry hit another with 2:23 left to give Coronado a 57-54 lead.

Hughes connected on a 10-foot jump shot with 16 seconds left as the Harvesters pulled to within one. Coronado called time out with 11 seconds remaining, used up five seconds of the clock, then (with six seconds left) gave Pampa an opportunity to go ahead when Henry fouled Forrest Taylor.

Taylor missed the first shot of the one-and-one, and Robert Nash rebounded. Wayne Nash, Robert's twin brother, sank a pair of free throws with two seconds left to ice the game for the Mustangs.

Storrs scored 15 points to lead Coronado, while Robert Nash and Smith added 14 and 13, respectively. Smith, leading a rugged Coronado defense pulled down 14 rebounds, while Storrs grabbed nine.

Henry, usually an effective outside shooter, scored only seven points, as the Mustangs relied mainly on their physical inside game.

Richard Lane led Pampa with 17 points, eight in the team's torrid first period. Brian Bailey and Hughes scored 15 and 12 points, respectively. Hughes and Jewel Landers led the losers on the boards with eight and six caroms.

Coronado outrebounded Pampa, 34-26. The Mustangs, who turned the ball over seven times in the first period, had 16 turnovers for the game, while Pampa finished with 12.

Coronado shot 43 per cent from the floor (22 of 51) and downed 15 of 19 free throws. Pampa shot 49 per cent (24 of 49). The Harvesters managed eight of 13 free throws.

"They hurt us on the offensive boards," said a dejected Pampa Coach Robert McPherson after the game. "They hurt us on our defensive boards. This is what I was afraid would happen."

"I thought that the only place they could beat us was inside, and that's what happened."

McPherson praised Coronado, then said, "We took shots off our offense that we shouldn't have and we hurried our offense." Pampa, several times in the game, went into its four-corner offense to slow down the pace of the game and play for the easy shot.

"If we hadn't worked so hard for this game, it wouldn't feel so bad. Our kids tried so hard tonight."

Jimmy Fullerton, Coronado's young, personable head coach, was worried early in the game when Pampa threatened to make it a runaway.

"I was having my doubts. Pampa did a heckuva job early. We pressed and they were well prepared for that," Fullerton said.

"I debated very seriously before the game whether to press Pampa because of their speed and ball savvy. I felt like our press did all right and we were able to get the momentum turned around in the first half."

"If we wouldn't have, it would have been a long night."

UT, Houston deny reports of violations

DALLAS (UPI) — Athletics officials at Houston and Texas have denied violating Southwest Conference regulations in attempting to recruit Jarvis Williams and Karl Godine.

Williams and Godine have been suspended by the SWC for allegedly accepting illegal recruiting inducements. The two now say Houston, Texas and Baylor also made illegal offers.

Texas assistant Skip Adams said he would be willing to take a polygraph test to prove he made no illicit offers to the former Houston schoolboys.

"They were not offered a car by anybody on our basketball staff," said Longhorn assistant Skip Adams, who attempted to recruit Williams and Godine when they graduated from Houston Kashmere High School. "They never came out and said 'we want a car.' You always picked up a feeling, a lot of things don't have to be said, but they never came out and asked for one, it was never discussed. Nothing like that was discussed."

Adams said he was prepared to take a polygraph test to support his denial. He also said he was not surprised by the accusations.

"No, of course we expected that," Adams said. "Texas, Houston and Baylor ironically are the three other conference schools they visited, so it doesn't surprise me..."

Houston athletic director Harry Fouke said he felt the Aggies were bitter about their suspensions and were trying to get others schools in trouble.

"I had a feeling A&M would try to involve a few other people," Fouke said. "I've not been contacted by the conference on this, but if there's some sort of investigation, we'll welcome it."

Years haven't dulled Sharkey

NEW YORK (UPI) — The years have been compassionate with Jack Sharkey. They have inflicted some of the aches and pains that normally go with age but they haven't fogged his mind.

He's 73 and still sharp enough so that nobody had better mess with him. He doesn't go around hearing bells in his head as so many other ex-fighters do.

Three weeks ago, the old heavyweight champ cracked a few ribs when he took a tumble varnishing the floor of his Epping, N.H., home. He isn't ready to go out dancing yet, but he's up and around again, staying abreast of everything that's going on.

Jack Sharkey got on the subject of Joe Frazier. He talked about Frazier's decision to keep on fighting and what a mistake he thought it was.

Jack Sharkey was talking from experience. He made the same mistake. He knew he should've quit after he lost his world heavyweight title to Primo Carnera in 1933 when he was 31, but he didn't. He kept fighting, hoping to win his title back. He never did.

He got back to Joe Frazier though. "He's a pretty smart fella," said the former champ. "He has a good aspect on life and I'm sure he's well taken care of financially. He's got the recognition, the money and everything else, so what can he gain fighting any more? I know what he's thinking. Just one more. That 'one more' could be the one to do the damage. If I were him, I'd call a press conference and announce my retirement."

Jack Sharkey remembers how he felt when Carnera knocked him out in six rounds to take his title. He told his manager, the late Johnny Buckley, he didn't want to fight any more.

"I was morose after Carnera beat me," Sharkey said, remembering. "I had lost the championship to a character. I told my manager I wanted to quit. I said to him it was getting tougher for me to get in shape. I had a wonderful wife, three lovely children, a beautiful home and all the money I wanted, and he said to me, 'Ah-h-h, you're talkin' crazy. You still got a few years left...'

Sharkey won the heavyweight title by outpointing Max Schmeling in 1932. He had beaten Carnera the year before and before fighting him again, he had told Buckley he intended to retire after this bout. Buckley said nothing about that, but while Sharkey was training for his title defense against Carnera, Buckley made two future matches with King Levinsky and Tommy Loughran for later in the year. So after he lost to Carnera, Sharkey still had to go through with those two bouts.

"I remember going to Comiskey Park; I remember coming out of the dugout; I remember being introduced in the ring," Sharkey said. "That's all I remember. Next thing I knew I was in my hotel room. I said to Buckley, you ready? 'C'mon let's go to the fight...'

Buckley told Sharkey to relax, the fight was all over. "Did I get knocked out?" Sharkey wanted to know.

"No, but you were up and down four or five times and you lost the decision," Buckley informed him. Nine days later, Sharkey met Loughran in Philadelphia. Four years before, Sharkey had flattened Loughran in three rounds, but this time he lost to him in 15. Sharkey remembers his annoyance with Buckley on the train back to Boston.

Loyola holds Vegas but loses game by 21

By United Press International
Loyola of California can at least say it held fifth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas to under its average of 110.8 points per game.

The Rebels ended their regular season with a 28-1 record Tuesday night by easily defeating Loyola of the West Coast Athletic Conference, 90-69. UNLV's only defeat of the season came at the hands of Pepperdine of the WCAC.

Eddie Owens led the Rebels with 29 points and senior Boyd Batts added 16, all but two in the second half.

Loyola, playing slowdown most of the way, took only 17 shots in the first half and hit on 11. The Rebels still managed to lead at halftime, 45-28.

Nevada-Las Vegas now must await word as to where it will play in the NCAA regional playoffs.

Loyola of Illinois was a lot more successful, riding a 27-point effort by Tad Dufelmeier to an 87-71 upset of 18th-ranked Cincinnati. Loyola held Cincinnati scoreless for five minutes of the second half to insure the victory, only the ninth against 16 losses for the Ramblers. Cincinnati fell to 22-5.

In other major games, Temple dumped Rider, 85-69, and Hofstra stopped Bucknell, 77-58, in the East Coast Conference playoffs. Connecticut edged Fairfield, 72-70. Dartmouth shaded Harvard, 66-64, in overtime.

Mobeetie whips Quail

SHAMROCK — Gary May scored 18 points, while Roy Stribling and Ron Gudgel combined for another 30, as Mobeetie whipped Quail, 60-49, for the area Class B bi-district basketball championship Tuesday night here.

Mobeetie, for the first time in the school's history, will advance to the regional playoffs. The Hornets, 28-9 for the season, will play Greenwood (a 60-54 winner over Miles) at 4 p.m. Friday in South Plains College's Texan Dome.

May led all scorers with 18 points. Stribling and Gudgel added 17 and 13, respectively. Gary Wischkaemper led the losers with 14 points. Harvey Outman added 12.

Quail ends its season with a 31-4 record.

Longhorn ex-coach refuses involvement

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Leon Black started the investigation that led to the suspension of Texas A&M basketball players Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams.

But the former Texas coach wants to remain uninvolved with the latest allegations that other Southwest Conference schools also made illegal offers to Godine and Williams.

The suspended Texas A&M basketball players filed affidavits Tuesday alleging Baylor, Houston and Texas offered to buy them automobiles. Black, who resigned as Texas' head basketball coach last Saturday, wants no part of the affair.

"What do you say to allegations like that? How do you have a reaction?" Black asked. "I guess you could say I don't have a reaction. I'd just rather stay out and not talk about it. It's been drug over so many times and no matter what I say, somebody will take offense."

SWC officials revealed it was Black's Sept. 29 letter that initiated the investigation that resulted in Godine and Williams being suspended for the remainder of this season and next for recruiting violations. Black said the bad publicity damaged his recruiting and he felt a change was needed within the UT program with the Longhorns moving to a new 17,000 seat arena in 1977.

"I didn't feel the program had advanced enough under me for the new facility and I felt someone else could do better," Black said.

Ryun announces track retirement

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Distance runner Jim Ryun, who came back home to get in shape for another professional track season, has decided to retire from competition.

Ryun and Coach Bob Timmons scheduled a news conference today to announce Ryun's retirement.

"For the only time in my life, I'd rather not say anything yet," Ryun said when contacted about reports he was retiring. "We are going to have a news conference and I will make a major announcement at that time."

Ryun, who ran under Timmons at Wichita, Kan., East High School and again at Kansas University, reportedly returned to Lawrence to work under Timmons' direction and just a couple of weeks ago, promoters of the professional International Track Association said they expected him to be running near world record times on this year's ITA circuit.

But expectations of others have long been problems for Ryun.

For Thursday, March 4, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In dealing with others today keep all you do out in the open. You'll not be very successful in trying to cover up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Hurst feelings will result if an old friend feels you're showing greater concern for a new acquaintance. Treat everyone equally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's possible you could be an easy mark for a sharp salesman today. You could be sold something you'd be better off without.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) To avoid unnecessary disappointment today, be realistic about your aims. Shoot neither over nor under your mark.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) You may be caught off-guard a bit today if you're refused a request by someone whom you'd do the same thing for if the roles were reversed.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22) A business involvement today could be rather tricky. Study the matter in detail. Think each move through.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23) Not much will be accomplished if you select only the avenues of least resistance. Effort wins rewards today.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22) Try not to overtax your energies and resources today in being of service to others. There's only so much you can do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21) There's a good chance you could be both a slow starter and a slow finisher today. Neglected duties will still have to be attended to.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19) Though what you may do today will be done for the good of all concerned, it's not likely your methods will win their approval.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19) This is not a good day to bring a proposal to the attention of your friends if it will cost them money.

PISCES (Feb 20-March 20) Treat your resources with prudent respect today. Don't let others draw upon them as if they were their own. Avoid extravagance yourself.

your birthday

March 4, 1976

This coming year you may become involved in several small situations that could help contribute to your material security. Be enterprising. The returns are there.

ROSWELL, Ga. (UPI) — A Citizens Band radio installed in your car on Monday probably will be stolen by Friday in Atlanta, according to police statistics there. If the theft occurs in this North Fulton County suburb, the recovery rate can be less than three hours.

"We've started something unique in Georgia," said J.M. Thorn, director of the Roswell Crime Prevention Bureau, "and I suppose one of the first in the nation: CB registration."

"We know this will work because we've already caught some guys with stolen CB's we had marked. There was one case recently where we had two boys in custody, and the CB returned to the owner, identifying him through our registration files, before he even knew it was gone."

Since 1970, Roswell's population has more than tripled as the upper middle class moved north to escape Atlanta's rising crime rate. Crime followed affluence. The statistical picture is common, but the response of a youthful police department is changing it.

Newly appointed Police Chief Terry Joyner, 29, returned from a seminar at the University of Louisville National Crime Institute with a plan to engrave the valuable personal belongings of the city's nearly 20,000 residents. He appointed Thorn, a 36-year-old patrolman, to head the project.

Atlanta has had a similar program for the past year. "As far as I know, none of those showing our Project ID stickers have been robbed, although we do know places on either side of our locations have been robbed, so it is a good deterrent," said Atlanta police Sgt. H.L. Johnson of THOR (Target Hardening Opportunity Reduction). "Our figures indicate a 14 per cent decrease in burglaries in Atlanta (during 1975), and we feel we had to have something to do with that."

Thorn said some residents of his quiet rural community did not believe a crime problem existed. The feeling was shared by affluent newcomers who work in Atlanta, but who fled to the suburbs to escape crime. Recent increases in household insurance rates raised Roswell and other metropolitan area communities to the same rates charged in Atlanta. "The insurance companies were getting killed," Thorn said. "They were really too slow to react to the increased population and crime out here."

Thorn enlisted 15 high school students as teen-age volunteers to go door-to-door with electric engraving pens. This, incidentally, improved relations between the city's youth and the police.

"Our goal is to hit 100 per cent of our homes," he said. "I figure by May we will have completed the city."

Thorn says he will continue trying new and sometimes even more radical approaches. He plans to set up CPB booths in shopping centers, to patrol the parking lots and remove keys left in car ignitions. Officers will lock the cars and leave notes to the owners to pick up their keys at the booth. There they also will get a lecture and literature on car thefts.

"I don't know how it will go over, and I guess we could get killed on it, but I'm certainly going to give it a try," Thorn said. "That's the way most cars are stolen, with the keys left in the ignition, and something has to be done."

In Lincoln's pockets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the night he was killed Abraham Lincoln's pockets contained what any president might carry — spectacles, a handkerchief, several press clippings — and one surprising item, a Confederate $5 bill.

The Library of Congress recently opened up a dusty package, wrapped in brown paper and tied with tape, which had lain in a safe there since 1937.

It was about the size of a shoebox, and the label said it contained articles taken from Lincoln's pockets the night of his assassination April 14, 1865.

The items are believed to have been in possession of the President's son, Robert Todd Lincoln. Robert Todd's daughter, Mrs. Charles Isham of Washington, gave them to the library in 1937. They were put away and apparently forgotten.

Daniel J. Boorstin, who became Librarian of Congress in November, found them and decided to have a public opening.

Inside the brown paper he found a leather box with a key attached. The key worked. Inside the leather box was a blue cardboard box. Inside that were:

— A small leather billfold with a purple, silk lining and a little pencil that fitted into it.

— Inside the billfold, a Confederate $5 bill. A library official said that wasn't "too surprising." The war was over. Lincoln had recently been to Richmond. It might have been a souvenir.

— A small, ivory handled penknife. The blade still opens.

— A very large, white handkerchief, embroidered in neat, small, red letters: "A Lincoln."

— Nine press clippings. The Library hasn't identified what newspapers they came from. Some were favorable to Lincoln. "There is nothing of the swell about 'Old Abe,'" one said. Another defended Lincoln against "hundreds of furious journalists." One contained a letter calling Confederate President Jefferson Davis the "bastard president of a political abortion."

— Two sets of spectacles.

Since the only money found was the Confederate bill, it isn't clear what Lincoln used for spending money. Librarians said the items in the box were apparently not the entire contents of his pockets on the fatal night. His watch, for example, was kept separately and is at the Smithsonian in Washington.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I read about putting a little vanilla in the pancake batter. Now, why didn't I think of that? Necessity being the mother of invention, and being used to pouring on big dollops of syrup on my pancakes, then hearing the doctor say, "No more" — well, I had to think of something.

So I used fruit — diced, sliced, mashed or blended as a topping on my pancakes. Fresh fruit when in season. Add a drop or two of sweetener if needed.

Blend an apple into sauce. Add a little frozen orange juice. It's yummy!

If you don't use it all, seal it tightly and refrigerate to finish at the next meal. It doesn't keep too long.

Happy pancake topping to you!

Erma Howard

I've tried putting fruit into the pancake batter, but never used it as a topping. Marvelous idea! And not as many calories as the syrup.

Heloise

I couldn't get moss to line my big hanging baskets so I lined them with brown nylon net to hold the dirt.

The baskets are large and beautiful! And no mess!

Corinne Ware Burton

Dear Heloise:

For various repairs that need to be done on your typewriter, keep a list taped to the side of your machine.

When the repairman arrives, or you take the typewriter to the shop, you are prepared with information on its performance.

Mary McDermott

I'd like to pass along another way to keep those high-topped boots from crumpling over.

I grab an empty egg carton (plastic is the nicest) and push it down inside the boot opening. This is easy to get hold of to pull out and the air circulates around the egg depressions very nicely.

Egg cartons are an easy thing to find and really serve the purpose!

Lois Suskie

I don't have a dishwasher and I like to let my dishes drain dry, but I find that my drain board gets coated with lime from our hard water.

I put paper towels down and pour vinegar over them until they are saturated.

After awhile or even overnight, the sediment comes off easily.

Clean, shiny drain boards!

Who'll pay for firemen?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Republican city council members say the federal government will have to pay for elaborate fire protection measures for officials at the GOP National Convention if Secret Service demands are to be met.

"Fire protection for government officials can be paid for by the feds," said city councilman Arthur Asel, also chairman of the local Republican convention steering committee.

"The city just can't afford it, even if it is required by the Secret Service. We are not going to exceed our $500,000 spending limit."

Asel's comments were made Monday in response to the fire department's request for city funds to provide 24-hour fire guard service for President Ford, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, all presidential candidates and other officials, including the secretary of state.

The Secret Service also told fire officials the fire guards, made up of at least six firemen, would have to be provided round-the-clock dignitaries' families.

The city has pledged to Republicans it will spend $500,000 on the convention, and local officials say the limit is inflexible.

"The city can't afford to pay for this and won't," Asel said. "Any fire guards the Secret Service requires for presidential candidates, can be paid for by the candidates."

City fire director Frank Spink

asked the city for the funds, but Asel, Mayor Pro Tem Richard Berkley and councilman Victor Swyden all said Spink should have made it clear to the Secret Service such security would have to be at federal expense.

It was estimated the fire protection costs would total at least $10,000. Extensive fire protection has been demanded for Kemper Arena, the convention site, but the city council's criticism was limited only to the special guards for the dignitaries.

Three charged in fraud

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Three men have been charged in a federal indictment with defrauding a Southeast Missouri mother of $30,000 by telling her they could have her son released from a Mexican jail when they actually knew the son was dead.

The indictment, returned by a federal grand jury in St. Louis, charges the men with conspiracy to defraud and with defrauding the mother.

Hooks Boy Rests Feet After Lengthy Search

By THOM MARSHALL

Pampa News Staff
Richard Hooks saw the status searching for him Sunday, and once he tried to stand and wave to a helicopter.

In the show a boy had become separated from his father in some wilderness area and when night fell and temperatures dropped, he kept from freezing by covering himself with leaves. That's what Richard Hooks did. He remembered someone had said to him, "If you're lost, cover yourself with leaves." So he did. He was found by a helicopter Sunday. He was taken to a hospital and is now recovering from his ordeal.

City and county officials were being flooded with telephone calls today protesting an application for a new liquor license to be located at 2281 Perryton Parkway.

Notice of the application is in accordance with provisions of the state law known as the Texas Liquor Control Act.

Officials were asking permission to the Texas Liquor Control Board, the night spot will be known as the Ace of Aces.

School To Tax Cars, Trucks, Boats

By THOM MARSHALL

Pampa News Staff
In order to help finance the increasing price of Pampa's public education system, the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees voted Thursday night — the Thursday night — to tax automobiles, trucks, boats, recreational vehicles and the like.

required several hours and many quarts of coffee to complete. Consideration of a tax equalization program was moved from the far end to the near end of the agenda and that because of a new state finance bill (House Bill 1128) Pampa schools

"I don't see any way that we can operate next year without some kind of change," Long said.

Texas Can't Get Abortions

By PAUL GRIMES

Pampa News Staff
Some in the state's medical facilities. Planned Parenthood estimated between 60,000 and 80,000 women were able to have these operations 1972 and 1973. In 1974, the number of abortions in Texas, the study shows, has been approximately 150,000. The study also shows that in 1974, there were 153 public Texas hospitals providing for abortions while 150 private hospitals provided for abortions.

Planned Parenthood's national program provides abortion services and birth control information to 100,000 women a year. According to the report, the organization does not advocate abortion means to birth control.

Back Tax Total Almost $1 Million

By TEX DEWESE

Pampa News Staff
Local tax entities are putting additional back into efforts to collect as much as $1 million of the nearly $1 million dollars in delinquent taxes owed to the City of Pampa, Gray County and the Pampa Independent School District.

had been authorized by school trustees to step up lawsuits against delinquent taxpayers. Currently he has on file ten suits, three on real estate and seven on personal property back tax claims.

City Attorney Bob Gordon said he files approximately 35 or 40 cases a year to collect delinquent city taxes.

Lane, working on the school delinquent taxes, explained that the tax entities "are not interested in putting widows and old folks out of their homes" in the drive to collect delinquent taxes.

Tax officials say property owners fall into the delinquent tax category for a number of reasons. These include going out of business, leaving the city, bankruptcy on personal property, death, inheritance and estate liquidation and non-resident owners on real property.

Wrestling on The Move-But Not Locally

By PAUL GRIMES

Pampa News Staff
High school wrestling isn't following the University Interscholastic League but programs in increasing with wrestling being held in Pampa and other schools.

"In five years in the state of Texas it's gone from maybe 100,000 to 100,000. That's a big increase for a sport that's been around for a long time. The state's schools would have to have a way of sponsoring the sport."

Amorillo schools have a type of wrestling program, competing annually against each other and three times a month. The state championship is determined by the state meet.

LAB REPORT
NEW YORK (UPI) — The trace element selenium found in some drinking waters may have anticarcinogenic properties, according to a report soon to be published.

"Latest work which has been performed in a number of laboratories does indeed show that reasonably physiological levels of selenium will reduce the incidence and severity of experimental tumors," Dr. Walter Mertz told the International Water Quality Symposium, whose proceedings will be published early in 1976.

Dr. Mertz is a special lecturer at George Washington School of Medicine and chairman of the Nutrition Institute, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

HEALTHFUL DRINK
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Sheldon Margen says a glass or two of wine with holiday meals can help dieters eat less and better.

Margen, a physician and faculty member at the University of California, told a symposium there that research by the Department of Nutritional Science at U.C. showed that a little wine taken with meals helps the body use significant human nutrients. He said wine with meals also helps eaters feel more satisfied without stuffing themselves.

The symposium was sponsored by the U.S. Malnutrition Panel, U.C., and the governments of the United States and Japan.

People in the news

NATIONAL TRAGEDY
DENVER (UPI) — Author James Michener says the Bicentennial has become a "national tragedy" because businessmen are taking advantage of the event by selling items ranging from Minutemen salt and pepper shakers to flag-embazoned cars.

"Junk, junk and more junk," said Michener, a former writer for the American Bicentennial Commission. "It is a national tragedy that the Bicentennial could not be celebrated properly. Things fell into cheap political hands and everything went down the drain."

HENRY AND KIRK
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and his wife Nancy stayed over an extra day at the desert home of their host, actor Kirk Douglas, but got no extra sunshine.

Cold rain fell throughout the day Monday on the usually warm and sunny desert resort.

Kissinger flew to Palm Springs Friday following his nine-day tour of Latin America to join his wife, who has been recuperating from stomach surgery at Douglas' home.

LEARY DENIED
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Timothy Leary, the "turn on, tune in, drop out" LSD guru of the 60s, must spend at least the next two years in prison, the federal parole board has ruled.

Leary, 55, who once escaped from a federal prison camp at Lompoc, Calif., and spent months at large in Africa, Europe and Asia, is serving a term for a 1970 drug smuggling conviction at the Metropolitan Correctional Center.

STAR SIDELINED
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Russian ballet star Valery Panov will be sidelined for a minimum of three to five weeks because of a probable torn calf muscle, the San Francisco Ballet said Monday night.

Panov was injured Thursday night while dancing in his new ballet "Heart of the Mountains." The ballet said Fernando Bujones and Paolo Bortoluzzi would replace Panov in the first six dates of the company's 11-city California tour this week and next.

PRICE COMES DOWN
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — That 11th-hour campaign for write-in votes for John Connally of Texas in New Hampshire's Feb. 24 primary cost $200 a vote — not the nearly $1,000 first estimated.

Complete official returns reported Monday by Secretary of State Robert Stark showed Connally received 91 Republican and 84 Democratic votes, a return of one vote for each $200 spent. Adding in 40 Democratic votes for vice president could reduce the cost per vote to $162.79.

HEIR SUES
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Rudolph Valentino's nephew, who says he is the silent screen lover's only heir, filed suit Monday against a restaurant, charging the owner wrongfully uses his uncle's name and likeness.

Jean Guglielmi, 61, also known as Jean Valentino, sued the Restaurant Valentino.

Miss Lyons whereabouts have not been known in recent months, although she once lived in Estes Park and Denver while working as a cocktail waitress in 1974.

Adamson and Miss Lyon were married during a double ring ceremony at the prison in November 1973. A year later, the star of the motion picture "Lolita," said she would dissolve the marriage but changed her mind, saying she would rather continue working as a cocktail waitress than submit to Hollywood pressures.

Briscoe opposes Ford

By BILL CHOYKE

Pampa News' Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has joined Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, in opposing the Ford Administration plan to extend federal revenue sharing for nearly six years.

Speaking before the National Governors' Conference here, Brooks said revenue sharing "tends to prep up antiquated governmental structures rather than requiring them to reform as is needed."

At the same time, Brooks, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, which is considering legislation extending revenue sharing, pledged that he would not impede consideration of the program, which expires at the end of this year.

Instead of enacting the Ford plan to continue revenue sharing at a cost of $40.0 billion over almost six years, Brooks said Congress should appropriate money on a yearly basis. Congress could then slowly reduce the funds flowing from Washington to states, cities and townships across the country, he said.

Brooks told the governors that his opposition to federal revenue sharing, was in part, based on the growing federal deficit, estimated this year at $74 billion. He also said the federal government should keep close watch on how the dollars are spent at the local level.

"I think public officials should be held accountable for the expenditure of public funds," Brooks said. "No expenditures without accountability."

The Beaumont Democrat added that revenue sharing is "now in its infancy and kind of like a snake—you ought to kill it when it's little."

Brooks also recommended that the funding formula in revenue sharing be changed in order to funnel more money into areas where it is "most needed and which are most deserving." As chairman of the House

Government Operations Committee, Brooks is expected to have a strong say as to what type of revenue sharing program his committee recommends. He predicted that the House committee would act before the law expires.

In opposing the Ford Administration plan, Governor

Briscoe broke from the overwhelming majority of state governors here who support renewal of the present revenue sharing program. Unlike the other governors, Briscoe said he was not here "lobbying for extension of revenue sharing."

"It's up to Congress," was all he said then.

Man leaves hospital

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — A statewide alert was in effect today for the husband of actress Sue Lyon, who walked away from an open ward at the Colorado State Hospital where he was being treated for a drug problem.

Hospital officials Monday said Gary "Cotton" Adamson, 35, was reported missing early Saturday.

Adamson was transferred from the state prison at Canon City to the hospital last November. He was serving a 20-year term for aggravated robbery and second degree murder and would have been eligible for parole in six months, a prison spokesman said.

Adamson and Miss Lyon were married during a double ring ceremony at the prison in November 1973. A year later, the star of the motion picture "Lolita," said she would dissolve the marriage but changed her mind, saying she would rather continue working as a cocktail waitress than submit to Hollywood pressures.

"All my life Hollywood's been telling me how to live," Miss Lyon said of attempts by producers to get her to seek a divorce. "Getting a divorce wasn't something I ever wanted to do. You don't get married to get a divorce."

Miss Lyons whereabouts have not been known in recent months, although she once lived in Estes Park and Denver while working as a cocktail waitress in 1974.
