

Flash floods strike northeast Texas

By United Press International

The Texas Department of Public Safety today said flash floods have struck New Boston in northeast Texas but that the extent of the damage was not known.

"There is some flash flooding presently in New Boston," the DPS in Austin said. "Radio communications are poor and telephone lines are out because of the high water, so we don't know the extent of the damage. As we understand it, flash flood warnings are still in effect and will remain in effect until later today.

"We don't know if there have been any injuries or the seriousness of the situation. We don't know yet how long the flooding have been occurring.

Rain showers and severe thunderstorms covered all of Texas today, producing other flash flood watches across the eastern and southern edge of the state but also providing "liquid gold" for drought-plagued farmers and ranchers.

Rain is being reported in most all areas of Texas," the NWS in Fort Worth said. "Most of it is in central and eastern Texas. We're not sure yet how much its going to help the drought areas, but it is bound to help quite a bit. We just don't know how much yet."

Texas Agriculture Secretary John C. White in Austin said rain and snow in the Panhandle was "too little and too late" for dryland wheat, but that the statewide showers would help other areas.

"Rain anywhere in the state today is like liquid gold to our farmers and ranchers," White said, "but we can sure use much more."

White said his office predicted losses exceeding $50 million from the parched dryland wheat in the High Plains.

"What little rain they had over the weekend has done nothing to change that," White said.

However, the rains in central and east Texas were a tremendous boost for the morale of farmers and ranchers. We've been hurting bad for soil moisture to get spring planting underway and most of our grassland has been in poor shape.

"Most of the rain has been just enough to keep the farmers' hopes alive. Cattle have been moved off many over-grazed pastures and to market because of dry weather. As the result, the price of cattle has been dropping as stockman culled their herds."

Snow mixed with rain fell across the Panhandle today, piling up an inch of snow in some places. Severe thunderstorms warnings were issued along the Texas Gulf Coast and in the Hill Country south of San Antonio.

The rain was expected to continue through the day, perhaps totalling enough to stop the drought.

"Up to now it's not enough to break the drought," said Jeff Brown, an NWS forecaster in Fort Worth.

"We're way below the normal and it will take a while to catch up. It's a step in the right direction."

"It is the heaviest rain we've had in Central Texas in several months."

The heavy, rain-laden clouds began rolling across Texas early Sunday and the showers intensified Sunday night as a warm front moved rapidly northward from South Texas and an upper level storm over New Mexico moved eastward into the state.

A flash flood watch was issued for portions of Southeast Texas where rains of an inch or more fell Sunday. The NWS said motorists should be alert for floods in normally dry areas.

Lufkin, in East Texas, reported 1.34 inches of rain for the 24-hour period ending at 6 p.m. Sunday. Dallas recorded .21 inches — almost one-fourth as much as reported so far this year.

Austin had .25 inches; Tyler, .30; Victoria, in the southeast, .54 and Wichita Falls, in the north, .64 inches.

Temperatures Sunday ranged generally in the 40s in the northern part of the state and in the 50s and 60s across the southern section. The high was a 75 at Brownsville and the low was a 30 at Dalhart.

Warmer readings were expected today with highs ranging from the upper 50s in the Panhandle to the middle 70s in extreme South Texas.

The NWS said the rain would end today.

Moisture delights farmers

By Pampa News Staff

The farmer's frown is upside down. The thirsty ground is wet.

Snow flurries end wheat growers' worries... Wanna make a bet?

Already Henry Urbanczyk, who lives 10 miles southwest of Pampa, is afraid the wheat will go down 26 cents a bushel.

And Leon Daughtery, who lives north of here, says hot winds may cause the grain to be smaller.

A lot of rain could cause weed problems later, he added.

But farmers, one and all, are delighted with the falling moisture today.

"Urbanczyk says anytime moisture falls in March and April, one can almost be assured it will bring the seed money back."

"We never know about farming. It is the biggest risk in the world. A farmer must have his heart in it," he added.

"That snow is bringing out the nitrogen. Snow accumulations varied throughout the county this morning, with Skellytown reporting 1.5 to 2 inches.

Daughtery says the moisture will make the wheat get up and grow. This whole country will green up if enough falls and the sun comes out. It sure is welcome.

Urbanczyk says the moisture has stopped the blowing and is "bringing out the nitrogen."

Curtis Schaffer, who lives 20 miles south, said the ground is covered with snow.

"The wheat is covered and it sure looks good," he added.

Mrs. Fred Haiduck of 18 miles southwest said the snow is quite a surprise.

"It is really nice. It had been dry so long." Alvin Kalka of Skellytown said the snow is wet and most welcome.

"It is just right. I'll take what I get. It'll help — not hurt." Paul Eakin of 14 miles southwest of Pampa said.

Mrs. Dean Burger, who lives 20 miles south, said a shower fell before the snow this morning.

"If the moisture will keep falling, the more the better," she said.

Charlie Jordan at Laketon said very little moisture had fallen in that area.

Joe Van Zandt, Gray County Extension Service Agent, termed the falling snow "wonderful."

"We haven't had enough to make a wheat crop on, but the situation has been turned around and hopes are brighter. There is hope," he said.

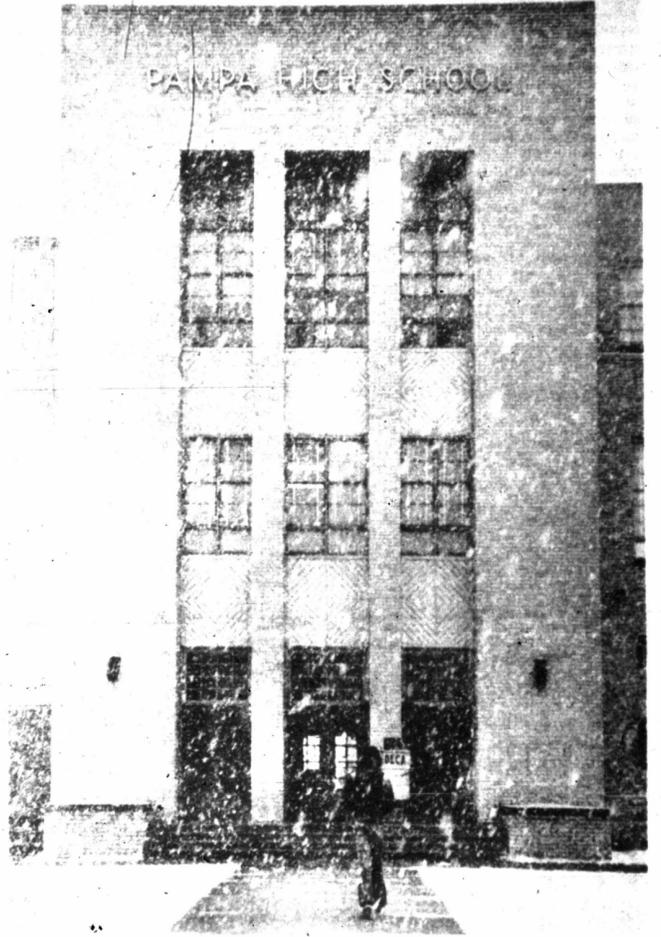

Officially in Pampa 19 of an inch of moisture fell from 6 a.m. Sunday to the same time Monday. The noon report is expected to be near the half inch mark or more.

In other parts of the nation flooding gave some Illinois school children a holiday today, but thousands of Wisconsin and Michigan residents suffered through another day with no power in the wake of an ice storm.

Rain dampened the south central states and snow fell in the East.

Michigan and Wisconsin power companies continued around-the-clock efforts to restore power failures caused by downed power lines in last week's ice storm.

In Wisconsin's Washington County, which was hardest hit in that state by the ice storm, National Guardsmen manned barricades to divert traffic from roads littered with tree branches and deadly wires felled by the storm.

Summer dreams postponed

Any problems area teachers have been having with daydreaming students on the recent springlike days have been solved — at least temporarily. It was snowing when students went to school this morning, it was snowing when they took their lunch break, and it was expected to be snowing when they went home from school.

Chamber to request Linkletter

By TEX DeWEESE

Pampa News Staff

A contract was approved by Chamber of Commerce directors at their March meeting this morning to bring Art Linkletter, radio and television star of "People are Funny" fame, to Pampa as speaker at the chamber's annual meeting in October.

It also was decided to conduct the annual meeting as a night of entertainment in the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium.

Linkletter's humorous address would be preceded by a musical program built along musical comedy lines. There will be no banquet, the directors decided.

The chamber board also approved a contract with the Burnett Fireworks Co. of Enid, Okla., for a July Fourth fireworks program to climax Pampa's three-day July 4 observance of the bicentennial year.

Norman Burnett, head of the fireworks company, appeared at the meeting and outlined a special bicentennial fireworks display of two dozen scenes with ground pieces including Paul Revere, George Washington, Liberty Bell, Covered Wagon, Texas Flag, Abraham Lincoln, Oil Derrick, Statue of Liberty, Battle of the Argonne, Battle of Midway, Spirit of 1776 and others along with flights of aerial shells between each of the narrated scenes.

Burnett said the fireworks show would run 45 minutes and the total cost of $2,500 will provide operators and $300,000 insurance. It will be staged at the rodeo grounds arena in Recreation Park.

Directors heard a report from chairman Kay Fancher of the Gray County Bicentennial Festivals Committee. Mrs. Otis Nace and Richard Thompson who currently working on details of the Gray County Bicentennial program to be available during bicentennial year and prior to the July Fourth celebration.

Mrs. Nace has written a story to be part of the 32-page program dealing with the various historical facets of Gray County and the area from 1876, the year the county was named.

Thompson is the program artist and is planning the layout. Proceeds from sale of the souvenir program will go to defray costs of the local observance including the fireworks display.

E.O. Wedgworth, chamber manager, announced that the monthly membership luncheon will honor past presidents of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce since the first one in 1925.

Travis Lively Sr., a longtime resident of Pampa and himself a past president of the chamber, will be the speaker at the luncheon Monday, March 29. Lively will review terms of the various presidents down through the years.

The chamber directors heard a financial report from finance director Arthur Aftergut and accepted the resignation of director Jerry Holmes who is moving from the city. President Boyd Taylor named a committee to select a successor to fill Holmes' unexpired term which runs until 1978.

50 Pampa students receive musical ones

Choir members from Pampa High School and Pampa Junior High School competed Saturday in the Region I Vocal Solo and Ensemble Contest on the West Texas State University campus in Canyon.

Pampa High School choir students, directed by John Woickowski and Louise Richardson, receiving Division I ratings at the regional competition were

Debbie Cochran, Keith Coffee, Irene Haesle, Jamie Hood, Debbie Lehnick, Traci Balcom, Carol Sparkman, Zindi Walberg, Karlette Whaley, Kim Kotara, Tammy Long, Jamie Hood, Debbie Lehnick, Sharon Lockhart, Elbert Hensley, Rody Spoonmore, Scott Malone, Pat O'Connor, Melody Scarbrough, Carol Sparkman.

Division II ratings were awarded to Leigh Barrett, Rody Spoonmore, Locke Carter, Martha Skoog, Ann Carmichael, Jane Spotts, Brenda Stout, Sandra Stout, Lee Watson, Carrie Comer, Nan Hammons, Maggie Lemons, Molly Lewis, Teresa McCabe, Kathryn Morgan, Melody Scarbrough, Molly Richards, Sharon Moultrie, Gail Wilkins, Stefan Hunnicutt, Billy Sullaway, Doug Eubanks, Barry Hedrick, Kim Kotara, Linda Cathey, Janet Smith, Susan Michael, Susan Cory.

In the High School Piano contest, a division I rating went to Susan Michael and Division II ratings were awarded to Kathy White, Carol Sparkman and Kathryn Morgan.

The Pampa Junior High School Choir, directed by Elena Ann Donald, had 31 members to receive Division I ratings. They were: Kayla Coffee, Kevin Gantz, Marvin Goad, Pam Homer, David Johnson, Gary Raulston, Shelly Thompson, Glenna Wilkins, Debbie Gattis, Diane Johnson, Diane McNeely, Angie Richardson, Karla Berry, Dietra Bradsher, Casey Carter, Martha Earhart, Kim Gattis, Julie Hampton, Rena Jenkins, Nickita Kadingo, Kathy Kite, Amy Lewis, Becky Ogden, Judy Rogers, Vonna Smith, Terri Strube, Pam Mills, Mary Skoog, Cathy Parr, Vaughn Roby, and Randy Tucker.

Division II winners were: Allison Craig, Kim Gattis, Julie Grayson, Terry Hair, Julie Hampton, Nickita Kadingo, Linda Lee, Cathy Parr, Mary Skoog, Vonna Smith, David Anderson, Tommy Bruce, Randy Carpenter, Kelly Caswell, Stacey Duengel, Kevin Hall, Lynne Holcomb, Lisa Hubbard, Pam Mills, Teresa Sims, Diane McNeely, Susan Lane, Kim Shepherd, Allison Craig, Lisa Hubbard, Sharon Carey, David Johnson, Scott Grayson, Marvin Goad, and Joe Martinez.

Piano soloists from Pampa Junior High School receiving Division I ratings were Marvin Goad, Kim Gattis, Debbie Gattis, and Becky Ogden. Division II recipients were Amy Lewis, Pam Homer, Cathy Parr, Susan Lane and Angie Richardson.

Five choirs from Pampa Junior High School will compete Tuesday in the Region I UIL Choir Contest in the Amarillo Civic Center. Pampa High School will enter six choirs in the high school competition of the UIL Choral Contests Thursday in the Amarillo Civic Center.

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Strikes by hundreds of thousands of workers swept Spain's Basque country today in protest against the deaths of four demonstrators shot by police in street riots last week. Strikers and police clashed in a number of towns.

Nearly half a million workers struck in Bilbao, San Sebastian and other towns in northern Spain, labor sources said. Their strike was called by underground left-wing groups to press demands for a public trial of those responsible for the "brutal slaying" of the four workers in Vitoria last week during the worst street riots of the post-Franco era.

Four persons died and about 100 were injured in that Basque town last Wednesday when police opened fire on a rock-throwing, barricaded building mob protesting the government's failure to settle a local strike.

Spanish news agency reports said violence marked Monday's demonstrations in several towns.

The most serious incident was reported from Basauri, a suburb of Bilbao, where police tried to stop a march by 8,000 strikers. When the protesters hurled rocks at police, the paramilitary Civil Guards were called in.

In Renteria near San Sebastian, another demonstrator was critically injured. In Bilbao, striking workers attacked with iron bars when police tear-gassed them. In Vitoria, the strike was almost total, idling the town's industrial belt for the sixth day.

In Madrid, riot police broke up student meetings in the central campus and removed black flags and posters attacking King Juan Carlos and his government. The student unrest in several Spanish campuses was connected with the Vitoria events.

Spanish news agencies and labor sources said the strike was 80 per cent effective in Guipuzcoa province, idling more than 150,000 workers and closing schools and most shops in San Sebastian.

In Bilbao, the the strikes paralyzed the city's industrial belt, closing down the docks, shipyards, steel mills and the plants of such U.S.-owned multinationals as Westinghouse, General Electric and Dow Chemical.

In open defiance of a government warning that it will uphold public order with "utmost firmness," left-wing groups called on strikers to gather in Bilbao's central Gran Via street at 8 p.m.

In Bilbao, the stoppages paralyzed the city's industrial belt, closing down the docks, shipyards, the Altos Hornos de Vizcaya steel mills and the plants of such U.S.-owned multinationals as Westinghouse.

General Electric and Dow Chemical.

In Madrid, riot police broke up student assemblies in the central campus and removed black flags flowing from university buildings. The student unrest was connected with the Vitoria events.

In Vitoria, where police opened fire on a rock-throwing, barricaded-building mob Wednesday, killing four and injuring 100, 12,000 out of an industrial force of 50,000 were reported to have heeded the strike call. Additional thousands were on strike in the neighboring town of Pamplona.

In Bilbao, 20 persons entered the third day of their hunger strike in a church to protest the Vitoria events.

Left-wing protests were joined by the Circulos Jose Antonio, a splinter group of the right-wing Falange movement. It issued a note condemning police "repression" and demanding that the government adopt a pro-labor policy to stop "the shedding of innocent blood."

The strike in the four Basque provinces of Alava, Guipuzcoa, Vizcaya and Navarra — Spain's most industrialized region — was jointly called by underground socialist, Communist and labor groups to back demands for a trial of those responsible for what they called "the brutal slaying of the Vitoria workers."

Nine military officers went on trial at an army camp near Madrid on a charge of sedition. Their court-martial was expected to bring into the open recent political rumblings in the army.

The trial of the officers opened this morning at the army camp of Hoyo de Manzanares in the Guadarrama mountains north of Madrid. The reading of the 200-page indictment was expected to take up six hours.

Military police admitted relatives of the defendants and 10 reporters, but turned back an observer of Amnesty International, a human rights group.

The nine, a major and eight captains, were arrested last summer for alleged membership in the Military Democratic Union, a clandestine army group seeking far-reaching democratic changes in the regime established 37 years ago by the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The group is believed to have between 400 and 800 active members and thousands of sympathizers among middle-rank officers in the 386,000-man armed forces.

But their trial was overshadowed by unrest in the Basque region. Government sources said tension there had reached the highest level since Franco's death 3½ months ago.

Interior Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne visited Vitoria during the weekend and appealed to Spaniards to learn from "this sad lesson" by making a new effort to settle their differences peacefully.

The demonstrations in Vitoria, the most political violence in post-Franco Spain, grew from a two-month steel workers' strike.

Growing labor militancy has become one of the biggest problems for the new regime of King Juan Carlos.

A general strike has crippled the neighboring town of Pamplona and 50,000 workers in Bilbao walked out to protest the Vitoria violence. In the Mediterranean town of Tarragona, political violence claimed another life when one protester throwing rocks at police fell off a roof.

Kissinger: manipulator

Secretary of State Kissinger is nothing if he is not a master at the art of manipulating public opinion. Long famous for the practice of speaking out of both sides of his mouth to different audiences, Kissinger outdid himself on the subject of Angola just before leaving for Moscow to carry on his brand of detente with the Soviet Union.

The occasion was a closed door session between Kissinger and 37 African diplomats after it had become painfully evident that a earlier official optimism about Soviet willingness to withdraw its own and Cuban forces had no basis in fact and b) the U.S. supported FNLA forces in the north of Angola had been heavily defeated by the Communist supported MPLA armies. Since the Ford-Kissinger warnings about how Angola could damage detente had brought only a laugh from Brezhnev and new boostings of his military victories from Castro, how was Kissinger to justify his new pilgrimage to Moscow?

The answer came in leaks by "informed sources" about the meeting with the Africans. Kissinger expects an early termination of hostilities "was the word put out. Why? Because the defeat of the FNLA makes a "diplomatic solution" more feasible. Now the Russians will feel easier about desegregating and the opposition to the MPLA will have to accept whatever terms it can get. In fact, so went the story. Kissinger may already have in hand a Soviet commitment to withdraw, and a Soviet naval flotilla lying off Angola may really be there to pull out the Cuban troops. Thus, with such a happy ending in the works, there is no obstacle, really, to the Kissinger trip.

This, we submit, is an outrageous piece of dishonesty, intended merely to assuage public disapproval of yet more concessions to the Soviets in the face of their Angola intervention. In the first place, on the same day that hints of Soviet-Cuban withdrawal were put out by the State Department, the Pentagon was leaking the true story, which is that yet another ship loaded with Cuban troops was bound for Angola. In the second place, a "diplomatic solution" is not facilitated by anti-communist military defeats, unless Kissinger is thinking of the Vietnam result as his model.

If Congress is not willing to back even U.S. financial support for the pro-West Angola forces, so be it. Let Congress bear the responsibility for what will follow. But in that case, the proper course for President Ford would be for him to keep his Secretary of State at home, as a tangible indicator of U.S. protest. The manipulation of public opinion to make defeat in Angola look like something else is not in the national interest. It is, we fear, only a harbinger of what is to come when Kissinger sets out to con the public into accepting whatever he brings back in the way of a new strategic arms limitation agreement.

thom marshall's Forum and against 'em

Time marches on...to the tune of a different drummer.

Maybe they taught me about it back in the Dalhart Independent School District, but if they did I wasn't paying attention. And if they didn't it has taken me a few years to learn I was cheated of an important bit of information. I'm talking about leap year. Oh sure, they taught us something about the calendar — the number of days in each month (remember the little poem), the number of days in each year, and how every four years there is a leap year that is a day longer.

From what I had to go on, I assumed that for every 400 years there would be 100 leap years. But aren't there 97. Confusing? Maybe this will help clear it up.

The year 1800 was not a leap year even though 1796 and 1804 both were. The same goes for 1900. And the year 2000? Well, that will be a leap year. But 2100 won't.

You see, it's all because the length of the solar year is 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, and 46 seconds and the length of the lunar year is 354 days, 8 hours and 48 minutes. And solar and lunar reckonings must be harmonized.

Julius Caesar figured it out, or had some folks working for him to figure it out, so that 30 days had September, April, June and November, and all the rest had 31 except for February which had 28 three years in a row and 29 every fourth year. Sounds familiar, doesn't it?

Well, it didn't work out too well. Oh, it was fine in Julius' day, but the year was a mile too long and the hours added up so that by the 18th century the vernal equinox had been displaced from March 21 to March 11.

Therefore, Gregory XIII dropped 10 days in 1582 and at the same time declared that future years ending in hundreds wouldn't be leap years unless they could be divided by 400.

Thanks to old Greg's quick thinking, today actually is today and not a couple of weeks ago or yet to come. And the Ides of March, of which Shakespeare advised "Beware," will fall on the 15th of that month just like it is (they are?) supposed to.

What did those teachers mean, sending me out in the world knowing what day it was, but not why? What did they expect me to do when the year 2100 rolls around and I'm all set for a leap year and, Wham! there isn't one. Thank goodness I found out in time.

WASHINGTON WATCH

Scandals likely to spread

By CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — The federal government is in the ludicrous position of listening to Lockheed Aircraft Corporation argue that if it discloses pay-offs to foreign officials the corporation may default on government-insured loans.

And the General Accounting Office (GAO) has noted that if the firm is required to name those it bribed, it would endanger about $195 million in U.S. government-backed loans that President Nixon induced Congress to approve in 1971.

When Congress approved the $250 million loan for Lockheed in 1971, Rep. William Moorhead (D-Pa.) likened Lockheed to a pet dinosaur.

"I said Lockheed was like a 3,000-ton dinosaur that lives in your backyard and demands to be fed, saying, 'If you don't feed me I'll die, and what will you do with 3,000 tons of dead, stinking dinosaur?'" Moorhead said in the wake of the GAO report and the recent revelations of pay-offs in Japan, the Netherlands and Germany.

The Pennsylvania Democrat, one of the most active opponents of the emergency loan to Lockheed, said the "stinking dinosaur story" was applicable at that time, and "the more we feed it the bigger the problem when it collapses in our backyard, and it is now stinking up the whole neighborhood."

Rep. John D. Moss (D-Cal.), another opponent of the initial Lockheed bailout, commented that "it was bad business to provide government insurance for credit, because it meant the same inefficient management team was continued in power in Lockheed."

Moss said that then Treasury Secretary John Connally, in getting the U.S. to back the colossus of the defense industry, gave the government a stake in the continuing solvency of Lockheed.

The California Democrat declared that the government's relationship with Lockheed has "now reached the impossible stage where an arm of the government, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), is being asked to permit the firm to cover up the corruption and bribes it has used to develop and extend its overseas business."

"I see no reason why Lockheed should be permitted to hide this information of its corruption simply because it may lose business and default on its government-backed loans," Moss said.

"If Lockheed officials get by with this unjustified cover-up of the recipients of the pay-off money running into millions of dollars, I don't know where the end will be," Moss said.

"Using the same logic, almost any business could write off bribes to government officials in the United States if the bribery would result in the firm getting more government business."

The recent GAO report on the Lockheed loan guarantee stated that Lockheed had paid about $24.4 million in "kickbacks" to foreign officials since 1970.

Company officials have declined to furnish details of the foreign transactions — all of which have been well-kept secrets until June of 1975," the GAO report said.

"Neither the company's external auditors nor a number of Lockheed directors were aware of the procedures used for foreign sales promotion until mid-year 1975. Lockheed has taken the position that the foreign payments were in keeping with business practices in many foreign countries and were not illegal under the laws of the United States."

The GAO stated that Lockheed officials "believe that the company's ability to fully realize foreign sales, forecast at almost $4 billion for the five years 1975 through 1979, may be placed in considerable jeopardy if the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board take certain actions within their authority."

For instance, Lockheed believes that successful legal action by the commission (SEC), to force it to fully disclose the details of the company's payments to foreign officials may seriously reduce Lockheed's foreign market potential," the GAO said, adding that this in turn would jeopardize Lockheed's ability to repay its government-guaranteed borrowings estimated at $195 million.

Lockheed's contentions that its payments to foreign officials were in keeping with business practices in foreign countries was blasted apart by the political repercussions in Germany, the Netherlands, and Japan upon their revelations.

According to Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee sources the scandals are likely to spread to other nations.

The 50-star U.S. flag was raised for the first time officially at 12:01 a.m. on July 4, 1960, at Fort McHenry National Monument in Baltimore, Md.

The longest-lived U.S. presidents were John Adams and Herbert Hoover, each reaching 90.

The U.S. acquired Wake Island in the Pacific on July 4, 1898, when the flag was raised by Gen. F.V. Greene, commanding the 2nd Detachment, Philippine Expedition.

Credit and debits of Ford's money czar

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Candidate Gerald Ford has a secret weapon named Arthur Burns, known to most of us as the controversial, stubborn, some say "ornery," independent theoretician who runs the Federal Reserve Board with an iron hand.

On second thought, Burns could turn out to be Mr. Ford's nemesis — a stone about the candidate's neck — if this academic controller of the nation's money supply should take it in his head to clamp down on the number of dollars floating through the banking system.

Mr. Nixon blamed his 1960 defeat on the lagging economy, due in part to Federal Reserve Board stringency, when he was Vice President under General Eisenhower. Mr. Nixon made certain there was no such problem facing him in 1972. Some say we are still suffering from that overheating of the economy.

For now, Burns, though it's clear he is dominated by economic formulas and not politics, is doing well by Mr. Ford. He's expanding the money supply at a relatively rapid pace, considering everything — and prosperity seems around the corner. The rate of inflation is sliding down, somewhat erratically, to be sure, but down. Employment is inching up, having risen 2 million since last March. The decline in unemployment, however, has been unsatisfactory, down only to 7 and three-quarters per cent from 9, leaving seven million unemployed and an average unemployment period of nearly 17 weeks at a time when many have exhausted their benefits.

Promising for the months ahead, however, is the fact that industrial output rose almost 1 per cent in December and another 0.7 per cent in January, and that man hours worked in private nonfarm industries increased at an annual rate of more than 8 per cent those same two months. More work for those already on the job is usually a prelude to increased hirings in the months that follow.

Overall, since last April, the combined output of factories, mines and power plants has increased at an annual rate of 11.5 per cent.

Exports are on an upswing and expected to continue to improve as the economies of Japan and other industrial nations move out of the doldrums.

On the home front, mortgage money is available and rates are edging down.

Burns is still talking a worry game. But Burns always worries. He is happiest when he's fretting. And he's always threatening to clamp down on the money supply to prevent runaway inflation.

He seems to fall into a new school of economics — protagonists of the Keynesians — who hold that a too liberal supply of money leads to inflation, causes consumers to tighten their belts and spend less, even though they have more money.

Right now, says Burns, however, consumers are loosening their pocketbooks in anticipation of better days. His goal is to keep just enough funds in our pockets to keep us all optimistic and spending, and panting for more, but not enough so that we overspend, drive prices up, then retreat in panic and caution, causing the economy to stumble.

If Burns is successful in this tightrope walking between too much and too little money, and few Federal Reserve Board chairmen have proven themselves adept at this juggling, then, polls or no polls, primaries or no primaries, the past relationships between presidential elections and the anticipation of prosperity certainly would favor Mr. Ford providing he keeps his nose clean and makes no outrageous blunders.

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a woman whose husband drinks enough beer to become very drunk, but who insists that as long as he drinks "only" beer, he's not an alcoholic. This is a common misconception.

I thought your readers would be interested in knowing that a "shot" of whiskey (one and a half ounces), a glass of table wine (five ounces) and a pint of beer (16 ounces) all are an equivalent amount (three-fourths of an ounce) of ethyl alcohol. The alcoholic becomes addicted to the ethyl alcohol, no matter which beverage he consumes.

Alcoholism is one of the major health problems in this country. However, it is a treatable illness that can be controlled if identified and treated.

The following quiz is distributed by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism:

DO YOU HAVE A DRINKING PROBLEM?

1. Do you ever drink "doubles"?
2. Do you drink more now than you used to?
3. Do you sometimes gulp drinks instead of sipping them?
4. Do you think you need a drink to help you to relax? (Or to give you a lift?)
5. Do you drink when you are alone?
6. Do you sometimes forget what happened while you were drinking?
7. Do you keep a bottle hidden somewhere—at home or at work—for quick pick-me-ups?
8. Do you need a drink to have a good time?
9. Do you ever have a drink or two before going where you know drinks will be served?
10. Do you drink in the morning to relieve a hangover?

If you have four or more "yes" answers, you have a serious drinking problem.

For information and help, check your Yellow Pages under Alcoholism for the number of councils on alcoholism, the A.A., Al-Anon, and specialized treatment facilities.

HELPFUL IN HOUSTON

DEAR HELPFUL: Thanks. Your quiz is indeed helpful to those who are fond of saying, "I can take it or leave it alone," but who usually take it.

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago a friend who is a kindergarten teacher asked me if I would assist her with her class. I was glad to help her without pay.

At the end of the day, I saw that my purse was open and all the money from my wallet was gone. (It amounted to about $10.)

I told my friend about it, and she kept trying to give me $10 to make up for it, but I wouldn't accept it.

Then she mailed me a check for $10, urging me to please cash it. I really want to, but I don't feel right about it. What should I do?

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: Consider HER feelings and cash the check. Otherwise she will continue to feel guilty about your loss.

BSA alters emphasis to attract city youths

By Don Oakley

Like any other organization that wants to stay in business, the Boy Scouts of America has had to change with the times. The current Scouting Handbook is a drastic departure from the one that generations of older Americans knew, with less emphasis on wilderness lore and more on the problems of modern, everyday living.

In an effort to reach youngsters from low-income families, especially in the inner cities, the BSA is also developing a series of lively booklets geared toward "skill" awards that have nothing to do with tying knots or reading semaphore signals.

In the "Family Living Skill Book," for example, Scouts are shown how to inspect their home for such hazards as unlit oven pilot lights, trash and garbage wrongly stored, rats and roaches, poisons and drugs.

The list of merit badges also reflects the changing times. Among 10 new badges available to Scouts last year was one called "Consumer Buying."

The traditional goal of Scouting, however, remains what it has always been — to mold character and build useful citizens.

American Indians believed that jade could cure snakebite.

Corporate bribe problem still unsolved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite President Ford's recent call for tougher administration action against corporations that pay bribes, federal enforcement sources say no strong initiatives have begun.

The Securities and Exchange Commission and the Watergate special prosecution force are the only federal agencies doing anything, said one enforcement official who described himself as "frustrated."

"I think the White House is hoping the problem will go away," another enforcement lawyer said.

More than 50 corporations have been charged with or have admitted making hundreds of millions of dollars in questionable payments in the United States and overseas. Another 24 are in private discussions with the SEC.

The firms range from multinational giants such as Exxon and Gulf to a clothing manufacturer.

The Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Trade Commission have been "reviewing" alleged wrongdoing since 1973. None has filed any formal complaints.

The only charges and punishments for wrongdoing have been meted out by the Watergate prosecutor, which is phasing out operations, and the SEC. The prosecutor and the SEC enforcement division combined have fewer lawyers than a single major corporation.

IRS Director Donald Alexander told a House international affairs subcommittee last summer the activities of 110 corporations, including 50 of the nation's largest, have been under investigation since early 1975.

But IRS sources told UPI no cases are ready for settlement or have been referred to the Justice Department for prosecution.

The FTC tabled its inquiries into corporate bribery in December and has not reopened them.

The CAB has taken no public action against at least eight airlines that allegedly maintained slush funds for questionable domestic and overseas payments. Last August the CAB said inquiries that would "bear fruit" were in progress.

The State Department announced Friday it is working on an international agreement to condemn bribery and other questionable payoffs by multinational corporations. But deputy Secretary Robert Ingersoll conceded at a congressional hearing that it will take years to develop such a policy.

Such gestures reflect more than concern for the woman's place in Soviet society. Official planners have tried for years to encourage Russian women to have more children.

The concern, largely unheeded, was underlined last week by Premier Alexei Kosygin, who told the congress that labor productivity increases are the only hope of industrial expansion because the work force is not expanding.

On the surface, women receive equal treatment in employment, composing more than half the work force. But few are given top administrative posts and the recently elected Communist party central committee contained less than 5 per cent women despite their majority in the population as a whole.

US, Soviet equivalent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld says the United States has a "rough equivalence" with the Soviet Union's military power, but could slip to No. 2 if present trends continue.

In a week-end interview, Rumsfeld contradicted the argument of some — including Ronald Reagan, who is opposing President Ford for the GOP nomination — that the United States already has slipped behind the Russians.

"That is not true," he said. "The United States has today what we can accurately describe as 'rough equivalence.' I know of no significant disagreement with that fact."

However, he warned, as he has done repeatedly, that if the present trends are continued the United States would slip to No. 2, with dangerous implications for international stability.

He said that the United States is helping the stability of the Middle East by selling arms there.

"The nature of our world is that there are a great number of weapons systems and a great number of countries which can supply weapons. The United States is one of these and it has a strong sense of designing our activities towards assuring peace and stability, rather than instability."

Arabia to take oil company there

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (UPI) — The four U.S. partners in the Arabian American Oil Co. could agree this week to a final takeover of the petroleum production giant by Saudi Arabia, according to one source.

Talks between some 50 executives and aides of Exxon, Texaco, Standard Oil of California and Mobil and Sheikh Ahmed Yamani, Saudi oil minister, were under way amid tight security precautions.

One source confirmed negotiations were being conducted at the meeting and that "there could be a signing" of a Saudi takeover. He said the meeting could go on for as long as four days.

Saudi Arabia owns 60 per cent of Aramco and the four oil companies own the other 40 per cent.

Negotiations for the purchase of the companies' remaining interest in Aramco have been under way for several years. One report said Saudi Arabia agreed in December, 1974, to pay the four firms between $1.5 billion and $2 billion for their share of the company, which pumps most of Saudi Arabia's oil.

It is believed the major roadblock to a final agreement has been the insistence of the four American firms that they be assured continued access to Saudi oil at equitable prices.

An Aramco spokesman in New York refused comment on the talks.

The meeting is not related to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The negotiations were being held at the Bay Point resort on the Gulf of Mexico, 10 miles west of Panama City. Reporters were barred from the resort by 50 shotgun-carrying uniformed and plainclothes security guards backed by police and federal agents.

The security was inspired by the presence of Yamani, one of 10 oil ministers kidnapped by terrorists during December's OPEC meeting in Vienna. Three persons were killed during that incident.

Yamani arrived Saturday night with his family aboard an executive jet at nearby Tyndall Air Force Base and was taken to Bay Point by helicopter. Officials of the four oil companies arrived earlier Saturday.

Soliah wants to tell

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Housepainter Steven Soliah, whose bank robbery trial starts Tuesday, wants to tell the jury about his connection with Patricia Hearst.

If he testifies, the stocky former college athlete may shed light on Miss Hearst's "lost year" as a fugitive with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

"My hope is that I will be able to testify in court, if my lawyers feel I should, and I will talk about what my part is in this whole thing," Soliah, 27, said in an interview when asked about Miss Hearst.

Soliah shared his San Francisco apartment with the newspaper heiress at the time of her capture last September.

He is accused of taking part in an April 21, 1975, SLA-linked robbery in which $15,247 was taken from a Crocker National Bank branch in Carmichael.

Many shops did a brisk business in perfume, flowers and other gifts in advance of the holiday, known as International Women's Day but observed mostly in socialist countries.

Economic guidelines published by the Communist party newspaper Pravda said mothers would be given the chance to work shorter hours, fewer days and possibly work at home.

Pravda did not disclose details. Parttime jobs are rarer in the Soviet Union than in many Western countries and the practice of "working on the side" has not been approved previously.

The economic plans, adopted at last week's Communist party congress, also indicated mothers would receive better treatment on maternity leave.

Women now receive two months paid leave but lose their salary and sometimes their job when they stay away longer. The new plan calls for partial pay up to one year and rehiring guarantees.

Soviet women already benefit from a wide system of children's day care that frees them during working hours.

Such gestures reflect more than concern for the woman's place in Soviet society. Official planners have tried for years to encourage Russian women to have more children.

The concern, largely unheeded, was underlined last week by Premier Alexei Kosygin, who told the congress that labor productivity increases are the only hope of industrial expansion because the work force is not expanding.

On the surface, women receive equal treatment in employment, composing more than half the work force. But few are given top administrative posts and the recently elected Communist party central committee contained less than 5 per cent women despite their majority in the population as a whole.

Mozambique steps up border attacks

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Mozambique has stepped up armed attacks on its border with Rhodesia, firing on a police border post and at Rhodesian aircraft in the past four days, according to a military communique.

The defense force communique Sunday said Mozambique soldiers shot at Rhodesian planes on three occasions in different areas along their 700-mile frontier.

The Mozambique troops did not enter Rhodesia but the communique said the planes were "well within Rhodesian airspace." No other details were given.

There was no report of injuries in an attack on the police post at Vila Salazar, on the Mozambique border in southeastern Rhodesia.

Since March 3, Rhodesian security forces have killed six nationalist insurgents in border clashes and guerrillas killed five civilians, the communique said.

The incidents followed Mozambique President Samora Machel's announcement Wednesday his country would close its border with Rhodesia, cutting off its landlocked neighbor's vital trade links to the sea.

In the past three years, the guerrilla campaign against the white supremacist government of Premier Ian Smith was confined largely to the northeastern border region.

However, since January it has spread southward, led by the militant external wing of the African National Council, Rhodesia's nationalist movement.

It is headed by Bishop Abel Muzorewa from his base in the Mozambique capital of Maputo, formerly Lourenco Marques.

Defense Minister Pieter van der Byl said last week about 5,000 guerrillas were training in Mozambique. But nationalist sources in Salisbury estimated the figure at more than 13,000.

Smith was scheduled to meet again this week with Joshua Nkomo, leader of the council's moderate faction. The two men have been negotiating for about three months over a timetable for self rule for Rhodesia's 5.9 million blacks.

Nkomo wants a majority government within two years at most. Smith, representing about 250,000 whites, wants a gradual handover taking up to 20 years.

The council's militant faction repeatedly has described the talks as "a waste of time."

History book of Miami goes on sale

MIAMI — A 461-page history of Miami and Roberts County has gone on sale at the Roberts County Clerk's office.

The books, result of three years research by a volunteer committee, are selling now for $25 each. Advance sale prices were $20 each. Mailing charges are an additional $1.25.

Committee members searched old court records, school records and conducted personal interviews to compile the history volume which includes pictures, memorials and personal reminiscences of Miami and Roberts County events.

Approximately 700 of the books have been sold, most by advance orders.

Fire kills groom, horses

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A racetrack groom was killed and 50 horses died early today in a fire in a barn at Louisville Downs harness racing track.

Four persons, including track personnel and firemen battling the 3 a.m. EST blaze, suffered minor injuries.

Track officials identified the victim as William Domier, 26, of Evansville, Ind., brother-in-law of driver-owner Mike Arnold, who lost his entire stable of 26 trotters and pacers in the blaze.

A total of 685 harness horses are stabled at the track during the current season but only one barn, Barn C, burned. Six horses were rescued from the blazing structure.

Joan Ausnow, the track secretary, said, "It's the kind of thing you never dream of happening and then it does and it just leaves you stunned. We have no idea at the moment how it started but we're investigating."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Kissinger: manipulator

Secretary of State Kissinger is nothing if he is not a master at the art of manipulating public opinion. Long famous for the practice of speaking out of both sides of his mouth to different audiences, Kissinger outdid himself on the subject of Angola just before leaving for Moscow to carry on his brand of detente with the Soviet Union.

The occasion was a closed door session between Kissinger and 37 African diplomats after it had become painfully evident that an earlier official optimism about Soviet willingness to withdraw its own and Cuban forces had no basis in fact and b) the U.S. supported FNLA forces in the north of Angola had been heavily defeated by the Communist supported MPLA armies. Since the Ford-Kissinger warnings about how Angola could damage detente had brought only a laugh from Brezhnev and new boostings of his military victories from Castro, how was Kissinger to justify his new pilgrimage to Moscow?

The answer came in leaks by "informed sources" about the meeting with the Africans. "Kissinger expects an early termination of hostilities" was the word put out. Why? Because the defeat of the FNLA makes a "diplomatic solution" more feasible. Now the Russians will feel easier about desengaging and the opposition to the MPLA will have to accept whatever terms it can get. In fact, so went the story, Kissinger may already have in hand a Soviet commitment to withdraw, and a Soviet naval flotilla lying off Angola may really be there to pull out the Cuban troops. Thus, with such a happy ending in the works, there is no obstacle, really, to the Kissinger trip.

This, we submit, is an outrageous piece of dishonesty, intended merely to assuage public disapproval of yet more concessions to the Soviets in the face of their Angola intervention. In the first place, on the same day that hints of Soviet-Cuban withdrawal were put out by the State Department, the Pentagon was leaking the true story, which is that yet another ship loaded with Cuban troops was bound for Angola. In the second place, a "diplomatic solution" is not facilitated by anti-Communist military defeats, unless Kissinger is thinking of the Vietnam result as his model.

If Congress is not willing to back even U.S. financial support for the pro-West Angola forces, so be it. Let Congress bear the responsibility for what will follow. But in that case, the proper course for President Ford would be for him to keep his Secretary of State at home, as a tangible indicator of U.S. protest. The manipulation of public opinion to make defeat in Angola look like something else is not in the national interest. It is, we fear, only a harbinger of what is to come when Kissinger sets out to con the public into accepting whatever he brings back in the way of a new strategic arms limitation agreement.

thom marshall's Forum and against 'em

Time marches on... to the tune of a different drummer. Maybe they taught me about it back in the Dalhart Independent School District, but if they did I wasn't paying attention. And if they didn't it has taken me a few years to learn I was cheated of an important bit of information.

I'm talking about leap year. Oh sure, they taught us something about the calendar—the number of days in each month (remember the little poem), the number of days in each year, and how every four years there is a leap year that is a day longer.

From what I had to go on, I assumed that for every 400 years there would be 100 leap years. But there aren't. There are 97. Confusing? Maybe this will help clear it up:

The year 1800 was not a leap year even though 1796 and 1804 both were. The same goes for 1900. And the year 2000? Well, that will be a leap year. But 2100 won't.

You see, it's all because the length of the solar year is 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, and 46 seconds and the length of the lunar year is 354 days, 8 hours and 48 minutes. And solar and lunar reckonings must be harmonized.

Julius Caesar figured it out, or had some folks working for him to figure it out, so that 30 days had September, April, June and November, and all the rest had 31 except for February which had 28 three years in a row and 29 every fourth year: Sounds familiar, doesn't it?

Well, it didn't work out too well. Oh, it was fine in Julius' day, but the year was a mite too long and the hours added up so that by the 18th century the vernal equinox had been displaced from March 21 to March 11.

Therefore, Gregory XIII dropped 10 days in 1582 and at the same time declared that future years ending in hundreds wouldn't be leap years unless they could be divided by 400.

Thanks to old Greg's quick thinking, today actually is today and not a couple of weeks ago or yet to come. And the Ides of March, of which Shakespeare advised 'Beware,' will fall on the 15th of that month just like it is (they are?) supposed to.

What did those teachers mean, sending me out in the world knowing what day it was, but not why? What did they expect me to do when the year 2100 rolls around and I'm all set for a leap year and Wham! there isn't one. Thank goodness I found out in time.

WASHINGTON WATCH

Scandals likely to spread

By CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — The federal government is in the ludicrous position of listening to Lockheed Aircraft Corporation argue that if it discloses pay-offs to foreign officials the corporation may default on government-insured loans.

And the General Accounting Office (GAO) has noted that if the firm is required to name those it bribed, it would endanger about $195 million in U.S. government-backed loans that President Nixon induced Congress to approve in 1971.

When Congress approved the $250 million loan for Lockheed in 1971, Rep. William Moorhead (D-Pa.) likened Lockheed to a pet dinosaur.

"I said Lockheed was like a 3,000-ton dinosaur that lives in your back yard and demands to be fed, saying: 'If you don't feed me I'll die, and what will you do with 3,000 tons of dead, stinking dinosaur?'" Moorhead said in the wake of the GAO report and the recent revelations of pay-offs in Japan, the Netherlands and Germany.

The Pennsylvania Democrat, one of the most active opponents of the emergency loan to Lockheed, said the "stinking dinosaur story" was applicable at that time, and "the more we feed it the bigger the problem when it collapses in our backyard, and it is now stinking up the whole neighborhood."

Rep. John D. Moss (D-Cal.), another opponent of the initial Lockheed bailout, commented that "it was bad business to provide government insurance for credit, because it meant the same inefficient management team was continued in power in Lockheed."

Moss said that then Treasury Secretary John Connally, in getting the U.S. to back the colossus of the defense industry, gave the government a stake in the continuing solvency of Lockheed.

The California Democrat declared that the government's relationship with Lockheed has "now reached the impossible stage where an arm of the government, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), is being asked to permit the firm to cover up the corruption and bribes it has used to develop and extend its overseas business."

"I see no reason why Lockheed should be permitted to hide this information of its corruption simply because it may lose business and default on its government-backed loans," Moss said.

"If Lockheed officials get by with this unjustified cover-up of the recipients of the pay-off money running into millions of dollars, I don't know where the end will be," Moss said.

"Using the same logic, almost any business could write off bribes to government officials in the United States if the bribery would result in the firm getting more government business."

The recent GAO report on the Lockheed loan guarantee stated that Lockheed had paid about $24.4 million in "kickbacks" to foreign officials since 1970.

Company officials have declined to furnish details of the foreign transactions — all of which have been well-kept secrets until June of 1975," the GAO report said.

"Neither the company's external auditors nor a number of Lockheed directors were aware of the procedures used for foreign sales promotion until mid-year 1975. Lockheed has taken the position that the foreign payments were in keeping with business practices in many foreign countries and were not illegal under the laws of the United States."

The GAO stated that Lockheed officials "believe that the company's ability to fully realize foreign sales, forecast at almost $4 billion for the five years 1975 through 1979, may be placed in considerable jeopardy if the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board take certain actions within their authority."

"For instance, Lockheed believes that successful legal action by the commission (SEC) to force it to fully disclose the details of the company's payments to foreign officials may seriously reduce Lockheed's foreign market potential," the GAO said, adding that this in turn would jeopardize Lockheed's ability to repay its government-guaranteed borrowings estimated at $195 million.

Lockheed's contentions that its payments to foreign officials were in keeping with business practices in foreign countries was blasted apart by the political repercussions in Germany, the Netherlands, and Japan upon their revelations.

According to Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee sources the scandals are likely to spread to other nations.

The 50-star U.S. flag was raised for the first time officially at 12:01 a.m. on July 4, 1960, at Fort McHenry National Monument in Baltimore, Md.

The longest-lived U.S. presidents were John Adams and Herbert Hoover, each reaching 90.

The U.S. acquired Wake Island in the Pacific on July 4, 1898, when the flag was raised by Gen. F.V. Greene, commanding the 2nd Detachment, Philippine Expedition.

Credit and debits of Ford's money czar

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Candidate Gerald Ford has a secret weapon named Arthur Burns, known to most of us as the controversial, stubborn, some say "ornery," independent theoretician who runs the Federal Reserve Board with an iron hand.

On second thought, Burns could turn out to be Mr. Ford's nemesis — a stone about the candidate's neck — if this academic controller of the nation's money supply should take it in his head to clamp down on the number of dollars floating through the banking system.

Mr. Nixon blamed his 1960 defeat on the lagging economy, due in part to Federal Reserve Board stringency, when he was Vice President under General Eisenhower. Mr. Nixon made certain there was no such problem facing him in 1972. Some say we are still suffering from that overheating of the economy.

For now, Burns, though it's clear he is dominated by economic formulas and not politics, is doing well by Mr. Ford. He's expanding the money supply at a relatively rapid pace, considering everything — and prosperity seems around the corner. The rate of inflation is sliding down, somewhat erratically to be sure, but down. Employment is inching up, having risen 2 million since last March. The decline in unemployment, however, has been unsatisfactory, down only to 7 and three-quarters per cent from 9, leaving seven million unemployed and an average unemployment period of nearly 17 weeks at a time when many have exhausted their benefits.

Promising for the months ahead, however, is the fact that industrial output rose almost 1 per cent in December and another 0.7 per cent in January, and that man hours worked in private nonfarm industries increased at an annual rate of more than 8 per cent those same two months. More work for those already on the job is usually a prelude to increased hirings in the months that follow.

Overall, since last April, the combined output of factories, mines and power plants has increased at an annual rate of 11.5 per cent.

Exports are on an upswing and expected to continue to improve as the economies of Japan and other industrial nations move out of the doldrums.

On the home front, mortgage money is available and rates are edging down.

Burns is still talking a worry game. But Burns always worries. He is happy when he's fretting. And he's always threatening to clamp down on the money supply to prevent runaway inflation.

He seems to fall into a new school of economics — protagonists of the Keynesians — who hold that a too liberal supply of money leads to inflation, causes consumers to tighten their belts and spend less, even though they have more money.

Right now, says Burns, however, consumers are loosening their pocketbooks in anticipation of better days. His goal is to keep just enough funds in our pockets to keep us all optimistic and spending, and panting for more, but not enough so that we overspend, drive prices up, then retreat in panic and caution, causing the economy to stumble.

If Burns is successful in this tightrope walking between too much and too little money, and few Federal Reserve Board chairmen have proven themselves adept at this juggling, then, polls or no polls, primaries or no primaries, the past relationships between presidential elections and the anticipation of prosperity certainly would favor Mr. Ford providing he keeps his nose clean and makes no outrageous blunders.

A Drinking Test for Could-be Alcoholics

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a woman whose husband drinks enough beer to become very drunk, but who insists that as long as he drinks "only" beer, he's not an alcoholic. This is a common misconception.

I thought your readers would be interested in knowing that a "shot" of whiskey (one and a half ounces), a glass of table wine (five ounces) and a pint of beer (16 ounces) all are an equivalent amount (three-fourths of an ounce) of ethyl alcohol. The alcoholic becomes addicted to the ethyl alcohol, no matter which beverage he consumes.

Alcoholism is one of the major health problems in this country. However, it is a treatable illness that can be controlled if identified and treated.

The following quiz is distributed by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism:

- DO YOU HAVE A DRINKING PROBLEM?
1. Do you ever drink "doubles"?
  2. Do you drink more now than you used to?
  3. Do you sometimes gulp drinks instead of sipping them?
  4. Do you think you need a drink to help you to relax? (Or to give you a lift?)
  5. Do you drink when you are alone?
  6. Do you sometimes forget what happened while you were drinking?
  7. Do you keep a bottle hidden somewhere—at home or at work—for quick pick-me-ups?
  8. Do you need a drink to have a good time?
  9. Do you ever have a drink or two before going where you know drinks will be served?
  10. Do you drink in the morning to relieve a hangover?
- If you have four or more "yes" answers, you have a serious drinking problem.
- For information and help, check your Yellow Pages under Alcoholism for the number of councils on alcoholism, the A.A., Al-Anon, and specialized treatment facilities.
- HELPFUL IN HOUSTON

DEAR HELPFUL: Thanks. Your quiz is indeed helpful to those who are fond of saying, "I can take it or leave it alone," but who usually take it.

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago a friend who is a kindergarten teacher asked me if I would assist her with her class. I was glad to help her without pay.

At the end of the day, I saw that my purse was open and all the money from my wallet was gone. (It amounted to about $10.)

I told my friend about it, and she kept trying to give me $10 to make up for it, but I wouldn't accept it. Then she mailed me a check for $10, urging me to please cash it. I really want to, but I don't feel right about it. What should I do?

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: Consider HER feelings and cash the check. Otherwise she will continue to feel guilty about your loss.

BSA alters emphasis to attract city youths

By Don Oakley

Like any other organization that wants to stay in business, the Boy Scouts of America has had to change with the times. The current Scouting Handbook is a drastic departure from the one that generations of older Americans knew, with less emphasis on wilderness lore and more on the problems of modern, everyday living.

In an effort to reach youngsters from low-income families, especially in the inner cities, the BSA is also developing a series of lively booklets geared toward "skill" awards that have nothing to do with tying knots or reading semaphore signals.

In the "Family Living Skill Book," for example, Scouts are shown how to inspect their home for such hazards as unlit oven pilot lights, trash and garbage wrongly stored, rats and roaches, poisons and drugs.

The list of merit badges also reflects the changing times. Among 10 new badges available to Scouts last year was one called "Consumer Buying."

The traditional goal of Scouting, however, remains what it has always been — to mold character and build useful citizens.

American Indians believed that jade could cure snakebite.

The average depth of the Pacific Ocean is 13,739 feet.

William Bradford III made the Pennsylvania Journal a strong voice of the Patriots in the then-capital city of Philadelphia. His "Tombstone issue" of 1785 typified the way in which newspaper publishers protested the British tax on paper. It was in the Journal that Tom Paine's "Crisis" paper appeared, a few days before Bradford had to flee Philadelphia to escape British troops. The World Almanac relates.

Corporate bribe problem still unsolved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite President Ford's recent call for tougher administration action against corporations that pay bribes, federal enforcement sources say no strong initiatives have begun.

"The Securities and Exchange Commission and the Watergate special prosecution force are the only federal agencies doing anything," said one enforcement official who described himself as "frustrated."

"I think the White House is hoping the problem will go away," another enforcement lawyer said.

More than 50 corporations have been charged with or have admitted making hundreds of millions of dollars in questionable payments in the United States and overseas. Another 24 are in private discussions with the SEC.

The firms range from multinational giants such as Exxon and Gulf to a clothing manufacturer.

The Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Federal Trade Commission have been "reviewing" alleged wrongdoing since 1973. None has filed any formal complaints.

The only charges and punishments for wrongdoing have been meted out by the Watergate prosecutor, which is phasing out operations, and the SEC. The prosecutor and the SEC enforcement division combined have fewer lawyers than a single major corporation.

IRS Director Donald Alexander told a House international affairs subcommittee last summer the activities of 110 corporations, including 50 of the nation's largest, have been under investigation since early 1975.

But IRS sources told UPI no cases are ready for settlement or have been referred to the Justice Department for prosecution.

The FTC tabled its inquiries into corporate bribery in December and has not reopened them.

The CAB has taken no public action against at least eight airlines that allegedly maintained slush funds for questionable domestic and overseas payments. Last August the CAB said inquiries that would "bear fruit" were in progress.

The State Department announced Friday it is working on an international agreement to condemn bribery and other questionable payoffs by multinational corporations. But deputy Secretary Robert Ingersoll conceded at a congressional hearing that it will take years to develop such a policy.

US, Soviet equivalent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld says the United States has a "rough equivalence" with the Soviet Union's military power, but could slip to No. 2 if present trends continue.

In a week-end interview, Rumsfeld contradicted the argument of some — including Ronald Reagan, who is opposing President Ford for the GOP nomination — that the United States already has slipped behind the Russians.

"That is not true," he said. "The United States has today what we can accurately describe as 'rough equivalence.' I know of no significant disagreement with that fact."

However, he warned, as he has done repeatedly, that if the present trends are continued the United States would slip to No. 2, with dangerous implications for international stability.

He said that the United States is helping the stability of the Middle East by selling arms there.

"The nature of our world is that there are a great number of weapons systems and a great number of countries which can supply weapons. The United States is one of these and ... it has a strong sense of designing our activities towards assuring peace and stability, rather than instability."

Mozambique steps up border attacks

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Mozambique has stepped up armed attacks on its border with Rhodesia, firing on a police border post and at Rhodesian aircraft in the past four days, according to a military communique.

In the past three years, the guerrilla campaign against the white supremacist government of Premier Ian Smith was confined largely to the northeastern border region.

The defense force communique Sunday said Mozambique soldiers shot at Rhodesian planes on three occasions in different areas along their 700-mile frontier.

The Mozambique troops did not enter Rhodesia but the communique said the planes were "well within Rhodesian airspace." No other details were given.

However, since January it has spread southward, led by the militant external wing of the African National Council, Rhodesia's nationalist movement.

There was no report of injuries in an attack on the police post at Vila Salazar, on the Mozambique border in southeastern Rhodesia.

Since March 3, Rhodesian security forces have killed six nationalist insurgents in border clashes and guerrillas killed five civilians, the communique said.

The incidents followed Mozambique President Samora Machel's announcement Wednesday his country would close its border with Rhodesia, cutting off its landlocked neighbor's vital trade links to the sea.

It is headed by Bishop Abel Muzorewa from his base in the Mozambique capital of Maputo, formerly Lourenco Marques.

Defense Minister Pieter van der Byl said last week about 5,000 guerrillas were training in Mozambique. But nationalist sources in Salisbury estimated the figure at more than 13,000.

Smith was scheduled to meet again this week with Joshua Nkomo, leader of the council's moderate faction. The two men have been negotiating for about three months over a timetable for sale rule for Rhodesia's 5.9 million blacks.

Nkomo wants a majority government within two years at most. Smith, representing about 250,000 whites, wants a gradual handover taking up to 20 years.

The council's militant faction repeatedly has described the talks as "a waste of time."

Arabia to take oil company there

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (UPI) — The four U.S. partners in the Arabian American Oil Co. could agree this week to a final takeover of the petroleum production giant by Saudi Arabia, according to one source.

Talks between some 50 executives and aides of Exxon, Texaco, Standard Oil of California and Mobil and Sheikh Ahmed Yamani, Saudi oil minister, were under way amid tight security precautions.

four American firms that they be assured continued access to Saudi oil at equitable prices.

An Aramco spokesman in New York refused comment on the talks.

The meeting is not related to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The negotiations were being held at the Bay Point resort on the Gulf of Mexico, 10 miles west of Panama City. Reporters were barred from the resort by 50 shotgun-carrying uniformed and plainclothes security guards backed by police and federal agents.

One source confirmed negotiations were being conducted at the meeting and that "there could be a signing" of a Saudi takeover. He said the meeting could go on for as long as four days.

Saudi Arabia owns 60 per cent of Aramco and the four oil companies own the other 40 per cent.

Negotiations for the purchase of the companies' remaining interest in Aramco have been under way for several years. One report said Saudi Arabia agreed in December, 1974, to pay the four firms between $1.5 billion and $2 billion for their share of the company, which pumps most of Saudi Arabia's oil.

The security was inspired by the presence of Yamani, one of 10 oil ministers kidnaped by terrorists during December's OPEC meeting in Vienna. Three persons were killed during that incident.

Yamani arrived Saturday night with his family aboard an executive jet at nearby Tyndall Air Force Base and was taken to Bay Point by helicopter. Officials of the four oil companies arrived earlier Saturday.

History book of Miami goes on sale

MIAMI — A 461-page history of Miami and Roberts County has gone on sale at the Roberts County Clerk's office.

The books, result of three years research by a volunteer committee, are selling now for $25 each. Advance-sale prices were $20 each. Mailing charges are an additional $1.25.

Committee members searched old court records, school records and conducted personal interviews to compile the history volume which includes pictures, memorials and personal reminiscences of Miami and Roberts County events.

Approximately 700 of the books have been sold, most by advance orders.

Fire kills groom, horses

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A racetrack groom was killed and 50 horses died early today in a fire in a barn at Louisville Downs harness racing track.

Four persons, including track personnel and firemen battling the 3 a.m. EST blaze, suffered minor injuries.

Track officials identified the victim as William Domier, 26, of Evansville, Ind., brother-in-law of driver-owner Mike Arnold, who lost his entire stable of 26 trotters and pacers in the blaze.

A total of 685 harness horses are stabled at the track during the current season but only one barn, Barn C, burned. Six horses were rescued from the blazing structure.

Joan Ausnow, the track secretary, said, "It's the kind of thing you never dream of happening and then it does and it just leaves you stunned. We have no idea at the moment how it started but we're investigating."

Soviet women honored

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union marked a national holiday in honor of women today with a promise to make life easier for working mothers.

In a nation of nearly universal working couples, husbands were bound by tradition to ease their wives' burdens by doing the laundry, food shopping and child rearing.

Many shops did a brisk business in perfume, flowers and other gifts in advance of the holiday, known as International Women's Day but observed mostly in socialist countries.

Economic guidelines published by the Communist party newspaper Pravda said mothers would be given the chance to work shorter hours, fewer days and possibly work at home.

Pravda did not disclose details. Parttime jobs are rarer in the Soviet Union than in many Western countries and the practice of "working on the side" has not been approved previously.

The economic plans, adopted at last week's Communist party congress, also indicated mothers would receive better treatment on maternity leave.

Such gestures reflect more than concern for the woman's place in Soviet society. Official planners have tried for years to encourage Russian women to have more children.

The concern, largely unheeded, was underlined last week by Premier Alexei Kosygin, who told the congress that labor productivity increases are the only hope of industrial expansion because the work force is not expanding.

On the surface, women receive equal treatment in employment, composing more than half the work force. But few are given top administrative posts and the recently elected Communist party central committee contained less than 5 per cent women despite their majority in the population as a whole.

Soliah wants to tell

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Housepainter Steven Soliah, whose bank robbery trial starts Tuesday, wants to tell the jury about his connection with Patricia Hearst.

If he testifies, the stocky former college athlete may shed light on Miss Hearst's "lost year" as a fugitive with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

"My hope is that I will be able to testify in court, if my lawyers feel I should, and I will talk about what my part is in this whole thing," Soliah, 27, said in an interview when asked about Miss Hearst.

Calif. Customer Myrna Lee Opsahl, 42, a mother of four, was killed by a shotgun blast while making a deposit for her church.

Soliah could be sentenced to life if convicted. He is free on $100,000 bond.

Defense attorneys Sheldon Otis and Stephan Imhoff said they have not decided whether Soliah will take the stand. If he does testify, Otis said, "a lot of people will be surprised by the truth."

Miss Hearst, on trial in San Francisco on a separate bank robbery charge, has refused in court to answer questions about the 12 months before her Sept. 18 arrest — dubbed her "lost year."

Some of the questions to which Miss Hearst invoked 5th Amendment protection against self-incrimination concerned evidence which might link her to the Carmichael robbery.

Kille gets top award

Pampa High School drama student Jimmie Kille was awarded an excellent rating following competition in the 22nd Annual Eastern New Mexico - West Texas Drama Festival.

Kille received the rating for his performance of Randolph in the theatre production of "Applesseed." He competed with over 150 drama students from 10

New Mexico high schools and four West Texas high schools during the three day contest.

The festival was a Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

Kille first portrayed Randolph at a local performance of "Applesseed" Jan. 31. Drama teacher at Pampa High School is Rochelle Lacy.

Candidates fill Florida

By ELIZABETH WHARTON
United Press International

On the eve of the Florida primary President Ford was on the telephone, Ronald Reagan was on television, and Democrats Henry Jackson, George Wallace and Jimmy Carter were on each others' backs.

Ford said he would make personal phone calls to campaign workers today urging them to get Ford voters to the polls Tuesday.

On Sunday, Ford invited more than two dozen Florida radio reporters to interview him in the Oval Office and predicted he would defeat Reagan in his opponent's "strongest southern state."

Reagan said the improvement in the economy could collapse after the elections. He said it is based on emergency measures similar to those taken by the Nixon administration in advance of the 1972 campaign.

In an interview on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," Reagan—who badly needs a victory—predicted the Florida results will be "a horse race... a close race."

Wallace, on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," said Carter promised to support him at the 1972 Democratic national convention if Wallace stayed out of the Georgia caucuses and came into the convention with at least 350 delegates. Wallace said he stayed out of Georgia and had 400 delegates but Carter supported Jackson.

Rex Granum, spokesman for the Carter campaign in Atlanta, denied the charge.

Carter told a crowd in Tampa that Jackson had been in Congress 35 years and done little but get re-elected, and that Wallace "is wasting his time because he knows he can't be elected."

Jackson said, "Mr. Carter and Mr. Wallace must prove they can win big industrial states like New York. They have to win and win decisively as I won in those areas."

Morris Udall, who is not campaigning in Florida, said Sunday he will pass up the March 23 North Carolina primary to concentrate on Wisconsin April 6.

His brother and campaign manager, Stewart Udall, said tentative plans to mount a limited North Carolina effort have been abandoned because of the Democratic National Committee's action in restoring the Wisconsin primary to full delegate selection status.

Postmaster warns of vicious spiral

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar said today the Postal Service is caught in a "vicious" economic spiral which will destroy it unless the public is willing to accept cuts in mail service.

Bailar said, "We're heading for a potential disaster which can be described in four short steps:

1. Costs continue to rise;
2. The public demands traditional services;
3. Costs are loaded on fewer and fewer mailers;
- 4.

These mailers turn to cheaper alternatives.

"And this, of course, is a vicious spiral which will destroy the postal system," Bailar said in a speech prepared for delivery at the Economic Club of Detroit and released in advance by the Postal Service.

He said the basic problem would remain even if the Postal Service could wipe out a big deficit already caused by inflation and by mail volume declines which followed recent rate increases.

"Our basic difficulty lies in providing a service that may become less and less economically justifiable and could become obsolete," Bailar said.

"If the public elects to continue the postal system in its present form it will have to pay a steep price," he said. "It may find the first class stamp becoming a luxury item in the next decade..."

Skull found in Kenya

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anthropologist Richard Leakey today reported the discovery of a complete skull of an early representative of true man who lived in northern Kenya 1.5 million years ago.

Leakey said the skull represents the genus Homo and is almost identical to "Peking Man" fossils in China that have been dated at only a half million years old.

Malfunction causes three fire runs

The Pampa Fire Department made three runs to Pampa Nursing Center over the weekend due to a malfunction in the alarm system.

Two grass and trash fires were reported, but no damages resulted from either.

Firemen said this morning that activity was light over the weekend and they expected the snow to help eliminate grass fires which were numerous over the past several days.

Lawyers fight testimony

By DONALD B. THACKREY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's attorneys are vigorously opposing prosecution efforts to enter into her trial the testimony of a doctor who said she was a willing participant in a Symbionese Liberation Army bank robbery.

Dr. Joel Fort, a physician and criminologist with extensive psychiatric training, told the jury in Miss Hearst's trial

Friday she was not mentally ill at the time of the robbery. He also said she was not acting out of fear.

F. Lee Bailey, Miss Hearst's chief defense counsel, objected. "For this man to pass on that point, which is all the jury has to decide, is grossly improper," Bailey said. "What he is being asked to answer is, 'is she guilty?'"

U.S. District Judge Oliver

Carter said he would rule today on Fort's testimony.

The trial was entering its seventh week. Both the prosecution and defense were expected to wrap up rebuttal presentations before Friday. The case then could go to the jury.

Miss Hearst, 22, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph Hearst, is accused of being a member of an SLA team which invaded a neighborhood bank and took some $10,000 in April, 1974—two months after her abduction by the terrorist group.

The defense contention was Miss Hearst was a brainwash victim and participated in the robbery because the SLA had threatened her life.

Gordon, Saltzman attend meeting in Austin

Monty Gordon, deputy city tax assessor-collector, and Milton Saltzman, city personnel director, were in Austin today attending a three-day professional development seminar for local government administrators scheduled to run through Wednesday.

The seminar is being conducted at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, University of Texas at Austin.

Purpose of the seminar, according to City Manager Mack Wofford, is to serve needs of department heads in development of municipal government operations.

Instructors include well-known practicing professionals in local government and schools of business administration and public affairs faculty members.

Office skills judged

Vocational office education students at Pampa High School competed in area contests Friday and Saturday on the Texas Tech University campus in Lubbock.

Wanda Doughten, teacher, said five of the Pampa students qualified to attend the state competition in Houston next month.

The five are Andy Lee, general clerical level two; Regina Orr, information communication level one; Debbie Roth, information communication level two; Julie Watson, records management clerk, and Tammy Eads, job interview.

Tammy Eads was also selected secretary of the Office Education Association, area 4.

and Andy Lee received recognition for a perfect business math paper.

Merit winners in the Lubbock competition were Brigit Albus and Margaret Nabors, accounting level one; Debbie Pope, office duplication master preparation; Marilyn Ballard, information communication level two; Frankie Watt, stenography level one; Jeannie Townsend, extemporaneous verbal communication; Brenda Steddam, and Ginger Wilson, prepared verbal communication; Debbie Roth, bulletin board display and Kim Chisum, talent search dance.

The area contest in Lubbock included schools in the Texas Panhandle north of Lubbock.

Auto theft reported

The Pampa Police Department weekend blotter showed one auto theft, one auto burglary, six criminal mischief complaints, one runaway, three accidents and two thefts.

George Cowan of 1001 Campbell told police that his juvenile nephew stole his 1973 Ford which was parked outside a restaurant on E. Frederic Saturday.

A Risger 357 caliber pistol and a Westernfield 243 rifle were stolen reported from a vehicle belonging to Dennis Duncan of 911 S. Banks.

Auto theft reported

The criminal mischief complaints were received from Walter J. Fletcher, F.T. Pepper, Thomas Paterson, Darell Luster, and Mary McBride who said windows had been broken out of their cars with what appeared to be a sling shot. Lloyd Samuel McCann Jr., of 332 N. Sumner said someone had shot a window in his home three times with a BB gun.

A 15-year-old girl was reported as a runaway by her mother.

The three non-injury accidents all occurred Sunday, on Francis Street.

A theft over five dollars complaint was received by Clyde Trusty, night manager of the Snappy Shopper, who said a car had left without paying for $7.50 of gasoline. Wanda Thompson told officers that someone had stolen a billfold from her purse when she was in a local lounge.

Judge Lewis M. Goodrich

Judge meditated over cases involving child custody

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

SHAMROCK — Judge Lewis M. Goodrich, who held the 31st District judgeship here for 20 years, said this week "child custody cases drove me off the bench."
"You couldn't please anyone. It was hard to do the right thing," he added.
Judge Goodrich, who retired in 1966, he never attended law school, but was district attorney and district judge.
"I took a correspondence course from La Salle Extension University and they gave me a degree. I have it sticking up in my office — and it looks as pretty as any," he commented.
He worked in law offices in Shamrock until he passed the bar examination, he explained.
"I took that four times. They got so tired of looking at me they passed me," he said. His law degree was issued in 1928.
Judge Goodrich served in the Navy during World War II. After receiving a law degree he opened his office in Shamrock, and when Judge W.R. Ewing who had been on the bench for 30 years said he was going to retire, Judge Goodrich decided he wanted the post.
Former U.S. Congressman Walter Rogers of Pampa was his opponent, but Goodrich won that race. However Rogers and Goodrich were opponents another time when Goodrich ran for U.S. Congress and Rogers won.
However that isn't the only political race that Judge Goodrich ever lost. He ran for attorney general of Texas in the 1940s — placed fifth in a six candidate race.
"But I carried all of the Panhandle strong, but that's as far as I got. There were counties in Texas where I didn't get a vote," he added.
Residents here who watched Judge Goodrich in action recall times when he left the bench to go into his chambers and meditate.

"Yes, that's true," he said. "Those were the times when I had to decide a child custody case."
In other cases, he said he usually had his mind made up by the time all the evidence was in.
"But on child custody cases you had to meditate," he emphasized.
"The last case I tried was a rape case. He got the death penalty, but the court of criminal appeals reversed it, and the defendant was tried over and got only 20 years. I sure hated to see it reversed because that old boy deserved the death penalty," the judge said explaining that it was a jury trial.
Judge Goodrich served as district attorney for the 31st district from 1932-1938 — a post now held by Guy Hardin of Shamrock. Hardin has two opponents in the upcoming election.
Judge Goodrich is watching that election with interest. He didn't say who he is supporting.
However, he quickly tells one he has been a Democrat all his life.
"I wouldn't vote for a Republican on a bet," he said. "I feel sure the Democrats will gain the presidential seat in November. We've got to get rid of Ford and Nixon," the judge said commenting that Nixon's influence is still apparent in Washington.
Asked if he has seen much change during his years in the judicial system, the judge replied: "Not a lot."
"We have always had jury service and we've always had a democracy, and we sure want to keep it," he continued.
A native Texan, Goodrich was born in Comanche County near DeLeon.
His father moved from Comanche County to Oklahoma in 1900 and stayed there until 1906 when he came here in a covered wagon. He had two or three covered wagons and three surreys," he said.

"Grandfather and Grandmother Goodrich were with us then. Both grandparents died at the age of 89."
Tracing his career before he went into the legal profession, Judge Goodrich said in the 1920s he took a job driving a truck for Red Star Co. and moved to Amarillo.
"I built a home and lived there two or three years," he said.
And then one day a friend, Tom Lively, father of Travis Lively of Pampa, "started out selling insurance and took me along."
"I don't know what he thought I could do. Anyway we went through Tulsa and that's where I met my wife, the former Lora Griffin. Her father owned dry goods and grocery store...she spied me and corralled me," he commented.
They were married in 1923, and celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Dec. 19, 1973.
Mrs. Goodrich is now in a Lubbock hospital recuperating from a fall where she broke her left hip on Easter Sunday 1975.
"She has been in and out of the hospital ever since," he added.
The judge and Mrs. Goodrich have one daughter, Louise Mayon Neel of Menard, Tex. They have two grandsons, Benjamin Kingston Neel Jr., now a lawyer in Menard, and Gregory Lee Neel who lives in Houston.
Judge Goodrich in discussing the need for moisture said he remembered the worst day as one Sunday when the dust blew in and 30 minutes later "it was as black as black daylight."
"Things got pretty rough," he said.
"Maybe we can get a Democrat in and stop another depression," he said.

Rumors on marriage of Snowdons revived

LONDON (UPI) — Just days before the Earl of Snowdon's 46th birthday, the British press has revived rumors he and Princess Margaret are not happy together. The Daily Mirror even suggested divorce as a way out.
The only trouble with the speculation in that tabloid and in the Daily Express is that what "evidently worries journalistic commentators appears to have worked reasonably well in practice, at least up to now."
A long time ago, Lord Snowdon — whose birthday is Sunday — and the sister of Queen Elizabeth decided their tastes were so conflicting they ought to follow their own pursuits some of the time, and "join up on things they liked to do together."
Friends called it a "special relationship." And while no one considered it an ideal form of marriage, there has not been any dramatic threat to the union since a series of serious quarrels in 1967.

That does not mean they will stay together forever. But a friend of Lord Snowdon's said none of his circle could imagine a breakup in the next few years, if only because both dote on their "quite remarkable" children, Viscount Linley, 14, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 11.
"For years," said the Daily Mirror headline, "divorce has been an ugly word in the royal family. Is it time for a change?"
Under this in bigger type: "Margaret, Tony and the Queen's Great Dilemma."
The "dilemma" is that the Queen is head of the Church of England, which does not accept divorce.
Said the Daily Mirror writer: "If after 16 years of marriage Tony and Margaret are not really happy together, why should they not be allowed to divorce like any other subject of the Queen?"

"I do not believe any member of the British public would bat an eyelid if the Snowdon's marriage broke up on the grounds of mutual incompatibility. Frankly I think we would all be somewhat relieved."
The Daily Express suggested recent flashes of temper by Lord Snowdon might have stemmed from the publicity given the fact his 45-year-old wife spent a vacation "on a tropical and comparatively deserted island with a handsome young man" — Roddy Llewellyn, 27, who has been her escort on a number of occasions.
Friends said Snowdon had indeed been "grouchy" lately, but they attributed this to irritation at the gossip items in newspapers and magazines and the long-lens photographs taken on the West Indian island of Mustique where the princess has a holiday home.
"He has business in Australia and is going there soon," a friend said. "Undoubtedly this will inspire more gossip."

Severe shortage may drive coffee price up

NEW YORK (UPI) — A severe shortage of green coffee beans throughout the world could drive retail coffee prices as high as $2 per pound this year, according to coffee merchants.
Traders also said consumers could expect no relief from high coffee prices for at least two years. "We are not going to have a normal supply of coffee in the world until July, 1978," said one.
In supermarkets today, most regular grind coffee brands are selling for $1.55 to $1.80 per pound and premium blends for $1.70 to $1.80 per pound, although store-brands and "specials" are cheaper.
"It's no secret what happened," said George Boecklin, president of the National Coffee Association. "The world coffee market was subjected to a devastating frost in Brazil last July, which almost wiped out the 1976-77 crop. Add to that the civil war in Angola and disturbances in other African countries and bad weather in other coffee producing areas. It all resulted in a major increase in green coffee prices to manufacturers."

Since July, he said, coffee bean prices have risen 70 percent.
In the final game of the 1976 basketball tournament Malcolm Hinkle of Pampa defeated Damron Jewelers of Amarillo 48-43. This was for the consolation title. David Edwards pumped in 15 pts. for the winners and Ellis Stewart had 26 pts. for the losers. Other champions were first place Berger Fish Construction, second place

Volleyball practice times set at Center

Holtman Trucks of Pampa, and third place Hereford.
All volleyball teams are reminded of the organizational meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Youth Center. Teams that are going to enter the mens, womens or mixed leagues should have representatives present. Schedules and playing dates will be decided upon and drawn up for the Spring season. Entry fee is $25 per team.

The practice time for all the volleyball teams at the Youth Center has been set for this week. Teams may call in and reserve the court on an hourly basis from 4 until 10 p.m. It is best that two teams try to practice together so that you can scrimmage each other.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you do us, and many other people with the same problem, a service by writing about bad breath.
I know there are many causes for it other than teeth, but so many people are affected and too embarrassed to ask.
With people who wear dentures as we do, I do not feel that just brushing the dentures or soaking them as some products call for does the whole job. I feel the mouth should be cleansed also, but how? We use a mouthwash and gargle it to help, but wonder if that is enough. When away from home are candy type breath pleasers any help?
DEAR READER — You're asking about a common problem and one that is most noticeable only to those who do not have bad breath. Bad breath odors are a part of life. The teeth can be the cause and of course the point here is as much cleanliness as possible. For those who still have all their teeth that means cleaning all of the bases of the teeth and between the teeth.
Most soakings and cleanings of dentures by recommended commercial procedures are quite adequate. The odor that remains is usually not from the dentures but from the mouth cavity. A grossly neglected area is the tongue. Brush the surface of it at the same time you are brushing your teeth. Ordinary dentifrice is quite satisfactory for this purpose. Infected tonsils and infections around the throat are contribute to mouth odors. Chronically infected sinuses with air being drawn in through the nasal passages and breathed back out imparts an unpleasant odor to the breath.
Beyond the mouth and nose, the lungs may cause bad breath. As air is exchanged in the lungs, bad odors from the blood stream itself are imparted to the breath. The alcoholic breath that you smell on a person isn't because of retained alcohol around the teeth surfaces or ing alcohol vapors from the blood stream into the exhaled air. This is the basis for the breath test for whether a person is drunk or not.

Any chemistry imbalance of the body may impart an odor to the breath. A liver disease may give a particular fruity odor to the breath. A diabetic in acidosis will have an acetone odor.
Spices impart odors to the breath by being absorbed into the circulation and then perfuming the air as it is ventilated in the lungs. Emotional upsets that affect digestion and body chemistry can sometimes influence the breath.
Those fad diets result in acidosis (ketosis) and impart an unpleasant odor to the breath exactly the same as that noted in impending diabetic coma.
Any breath odor then can come from basic disturbances in the body far removed from the lungs, mouth or teeth area. This is why a simple mouthwash of any type isn't going to solve the problem. The same can be said for those breath pleasing mints that you speak of. You can't clean the blood stream and alter the body chemistry by swishing around a flavorful mouthwash or chewing a mint.
People who have bad breath should have a good dental checkup. If that's not the problem they should have an evaluation of the sinuses and an examination for basic body disturbances.

For Tuesday, March 9, 1976
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your positive, friendly approach will make a favorable, lasting impression on all you come in contact with today.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects should be brighter than usual today. Scout around a bit. There may be something profitable to be found.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Worthwhile achievements are within your reach today. Concentrate on important projects needing your personal touch.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things should work out rather pleasantly for you today if you let events run their course. Play everything cool.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're at your best today in dealing with groups or large organizations. Valuable contacts can be made if you mix with the right people.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you could see yourself through the eyes of others today, you would be pleased by the image you project.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It should be very difficult for others to turn you down today, particularly if you turn on your charm.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should fare rather fortunately today in involvements with persons you love. They'll try very hard to please you.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be fun to be around today, so don't hide your cheer under a bushel. Do something pleasurable with a few select pals.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions that have an effect upon your work or career look quite beneficial today. Be alert for opportunity.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Although you should be popular with everyone today, it's likely to be members of the opposite sex who find you the most appealing.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your over-all prospects look much more encouraging today than they did yesterday. Something you were doubtful about may turn out happily.

The yield you've been hoping for could be coming this year from seeds you've sown in the past. What you should receive will be proportionate to your efforts.

Virginia upsets NC in ACC meet finals

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

The NCAA tournament field is complete as far as numbers but maybe not in terms of overall talent.

The 32-team tourney was filled over the weekend, but it's doubtful if the NCAA selection committee was pleased at the outcome of certain conference playoffs which has left the tournament with an overabundance of talent in the Midwest Regional and with slim pickings in the East.

As a result of post-season tournament play around the country last weekend, the NCAA got Hofstra, Connecticut, Virginia, Texas Tech and Memphis State instead of Louisville, Maryland, Texas A&M, Providence and Lafayette—all of whom had better records than the teams which beat them.

The staggering number of upsets caused the NCAA selection committee to switch around some of its pairings and now the tournament appears to be unbalanced in certain regions. Virginia's 67-62 upset of third-ranked North Carolina in the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference forced the committee to send the Tar Heels to the Midwest Regional.

That puts the nation's top three rated clubs in the Midwest Regional, with No. 1 ranked Indiana and No. 2 ranked Marquette having previously been placed in that regional. The NCAA obviously was hoping that North Carolina would win the ACC tournament and eighth-ranked Maryland finish second. Then North Carolina would have been in the East and Maryland in the Midwest. But the Terps spoiled things first by getting knocked off by Clemson in the semifinals then Virginia pulled off its surprise.

Hofstra and Connecticut also were not expected to win their playoffs. Hofstra turned back Lafayette, which had won 19 games this season, in the semifinals Friday night and defeated Temple 79-72 Saturday while Connecticut, the fourth seed in the ECAC New England regional, pulled off back-to-back upsets over Massachusetts and tourney favorite Providence.

That leaves the NCAA East Regional with only two nationally-ranked teams, Rutgers and either Tennessee or Alabama. The fourth-ranked Scarlet Knights won their 28th game in a row Saturday, defeating St. John's 70-67 to win the ECAC New Jersey-New York metropolitan regional.

Seventh-ranked Alabama, upset by Kentucky 90-85 on national television Saturday, can clinch the Southeastern Conference with a victory over Vanderbilt tonight. Should the Crimson Tide lose, however, they would tie 13th-ranked Tennessee for the conference and they would either have a one game playoff or toss a coin to determine the champion.

The winner of the conference might turn out to be a loser in the end, however, since it would be placed in the Midwest Regional, which is already stacked with powerhouses. Besides Indiana, Marquette and North Carolina, the Midwest regional also includes 19th-ranked Western Michigan and Virginia Tech, one of the nation's leading independents.

Top O' Texas action

Dave Charest of Hereford, left, won the 220, in 22.4 seconds Saturday in the Top O' Texas Invitational Track Meet at Pampa's Randy Matson Track. Charest edged David Caldwell of Pampa (not pictured) by six-tenths of a second. Leslie Brown of Tascosa (not pictured; also to far left) was third in 23.1, while Steve Hancock, right, was fourth in 23.7. Garland McPherson of Pampa (in right picture) was second in the pole vault with 13-3 leap. The Harvesters next compete in Sunray's Bobcat Relays Saturday.

DePaul earns berth in NCAA tournament

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — DePaul finished its regular basketball season a week ago but the Blue Demons got their biggest victory of the year Sunday—the final berth in the 32-team NCAA Basketball Championships.

The NCAA Selection Committee, in a conference call, decided on DePaul over a Big Eight Conference runnerup Kansas State and Western Athletic Conference runnerup Arizona State on the basis of its schedule. DePaul meets Atlantic Coast Conference champion Virginia in the first round of the East Regionals.

The committee, acting on the recommendation of Metro Six Commissioner Larry Albus, also replaced Louisville as the second team from that conference with Memphis State. Memphis, which beat 17th-ranked Louisville 87-76 in the Metro Six tournament semifinals, plays West Coast Athletic Association champ Pepperdine in the opening game of the West Regionals at Tempe, Ariz.

When the initial invitations were extended on Thursday, the selection committee said it would wait until this weekend's action was over before inviting the final team. Chairman Stan Watts, athletic director at Brigham Young, had given the impression that Utah and Kansas State were the leading candidates while DePaul, which had already finished 19-8, was a safety valve.

Tech Stuns A&M 74-72

DALLAS (UPI) — Gerald Myers and his Texas Tech Red Raiders will not only be representing the Southwest Conference when they go against Syracuse next Saturday in the first round of the NCAA tournament — but they will be representing the entire state as well.

Six major college teams in the state finished with at least 18 victories this season, but Tech was the only one to win its way into the 32-team tournament that opens on eight fronts this week.

"We are going to try to go in and do our best to represent this league," said Myers, whose Red Raiders moved into the playoffs last Saturday night with a 74-72 decision over Texas A&M in the finals of the first SWC tournament.

"I really hope we can go in there and do something. We know the stigma our area has in basketball and we want to do what we can to erase it."

A Southwest Conference team has not won an NCAA tournament game in the last three seasons and has won only one in the last six years. Texas Tech last appeared in the NCAA event in 1973 and fell in the opening round that season to South Carolina, 78-70.

"Tech is going to represent our conference very well," said A&M coach Shelby Metcalf, who saw his club lose on a 15-foot jump shot by Mike Russell with only two seconds remaining.

"We have had a senior class in this league this year that could play with anybody and it's a shame they have not received more recognition than they have."

One of those stars is Rick Bullock, the conference's leading career scorer who hit 100 points in the three straight nights of tournament play. And when Tech had completed its three rugged contests (which included an 80-69 win over Houston and a 70-63 decision over Arkansas), Myers indicated his club was due for a rest.

"Our conditioning was a big question mark in my mind coming into the tournament," Myers said. "But when you have come this far and a championship is riding on the outcome you tend to reach down and get a little something extra."

Texas A&M had won the regular season SWC title and had downed Tech twice during the year, but the Aggies have undergone nothing but difficulty in the past month with the prime culprit being the suspension of freshmen Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams through all of last year.

The Aggies had only seven regulars ready for Tech and A&M had also had a 10-day layoff before playing the tournament-hardened Raiders. But Metcalf refused to make excuses.

"I'm satisfied with everything," Metcalf said. "Why does there have to be something wrong? We had only six turnovers. We might not have shot as well as we could have but we played a good basketball team and had a great game."

Tech will take a 24-5 record into the playoffs while Texas A&M finished at 21-6.

Irwin, Zarley battle in Citrus sudden death

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The Citrus Open golf tournament has already gone two holes further than it ever went before and it still doesn't have a winner.

Hale Irwin and Kermit Zarley teed off at 9:30 a.m. EST today on the third hole of a sudden-death playoff that was suspended Sunday when it became too dark to read the breaks in the greens.

Zarley, leading by three strokes at the start of Sunday's supposedly final round, needed two long, pressure-packed birdie putts on the final two holes of regulation play to catch Irwin, who seeks his second victory in three weeks.

Both wound up at 18-under-par 270 to finish three strokes ahead of third-place J.C. Snead. But Irwin, winner of the Los Angeles Open and trying to become the first $100,000-plus money winner of 1976, got there with a 6-under 66 while Zarley had a 69.

"I was having a wild time out there," said Zarley. "I didn't play very well on that front nine when Hale overtook me."

Swimmers set marks, still fail to qualify

ODESSA — Pampa High swimmers Friday and Saturday in the regional meet proved that the best is not always good enough.

Five Pampa High school records were broken in the meet, but no Harvester was able to qualify for state competition by finishing either first or second in any event.

Ted Brown, who placed third in both the 500 and 200 freestyle, set a school record in the latter by swimming a 1:52.4.

Other records were set by Ronnie Gibson in the 100 breaststroke, 1:09.8; Julie Harkrider in the 100 butterfly, 1:18.1, and the 100 backstroke, 1:16.8, and the boys 200 medley relay team of Brown, Cary Smith, Gibson and Benny Fallon, 1:54.3.

Bowling tourney ends following big turnout

By GIL WUEST
Harvester Lanes

We wish to thank the tournament directors for the nice turnout in the Top O' Texas Invitational and to pass along the final standings.

In winning top place in the team event, Dowlen Excavating rolled some beautiful scores. This team was comprised of some Amarillo and Panhandle bowlers. Paul Carr had a 202-214-222-635, Hayden Dowlen 209-218-222-649 and Larry Uhrich 225-182-196-603. Roy Rutherford and Ron Davis also contributed to the good series.

Doubles found Doug Barron and Allan Hawley of Amarillo on top with 277-220-277-774 and 194-206-242-642 for a nice 1427. That's some shooting!

Singles was won by George Stepeck from Amarillo. He had 215-203-257-675. Plus his handicap he came out with a 711.

Scratch All Events honors go to Doug Barron, Amarillo 2029.

Handicap All Events goes to Paul Carr, Panhandle, 2107.

Brainwashing—Korea to Patty Mills wanted to run but votes weren't there

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oft-abused term of "brainwashing" has moved from the political indoctrination programs of the Korean War to the bank robbery trial of Patricia Hearst in a San Francisco courtroom.

But what does "brainwashing" really mean? To some, it is advertising that persuades someone to switch brands of toothpaste. To George Romney, who said he had been brainwashed about the Vietnam War, it meant the end of presidential aspirations. To others it means the hold some religious zealots have over young followers.

Miami voters to cast ballots for city, school

MIAMI — Voters here will decide April 3 who will fill three vacant City Council slots and four Miami School Board positions.

In the running for the expiring City Council terms of Jim Bean, Larry Kaul and Charles Byrum are J.W. Thompson, businessman, C.E. Haynes, editor, and local rancher Randall Gill. None of the three incumbents has filed for re-election.

R.A. Flowers has filed for re-election to the Miami School Board and other candidates are for three-year terms are Dr.

religious beliefs and attitudes and to accept contrasting regimented ideas.

"What is commonly seen in brainwashing is an intensive manipulation of a captive such that the victim is altered either in his or her behavior or beliefs of both," said Dr. Julius Segal, a clinical psychologist at the National Institute of Mental Health who studied Korean War prisoners of the Army.

"One thing that I believe is absolutely, a prerequisite is captivity," he said in an interview. "I think it is essential for me as a brainwashing victim to be under the physical control of my captor."

Segal, who declined to discuss the Hearst case, said captives released from long imprisonment often are depressed, listless, subject to bursts of anger, nightmares and difficulties in interpersonal relationships.

William W. Breeding, Vernon Cook, Muri Bengel, Mrs. Dixie Topper, Windell Hinton, Phillip McCullough, Charles D. Clark, Elroy Williams and Charles Byrum.

The terms of school board members Levy McCauley and Harry Kelley are expiring and they will not seek re-election.

Terry Gill and Wiley Bailey have filed for the unexpired term of Ron Beard, school board member who resigned.

Election officials have said this slate of candidates is one of the largest to ever appear on a Miami School Board ballot.

He said it appears persons with strong convictions or pride may be less vulnerable to brainwashing.

Miss Hearst's attorney, F. Lee Bailey, does not claim the 22-year-old newspaper heiress was brainwashed by the Symbionese Liberation Army members who kidnapped her.

"We're saying they tried," Bailey told UPI. "Thought reform is an end objective that's seldom achieved. Compliant behavior is very easy to achieve when you have physical custody."

Defense psychiatrists called it "coercive persuasion" and their testimony appears to be a cornerstone of Miss Hearst's defense. She is accused of helping rob a bank with her captors.

In dealing with returned Korean War prisoners who signed "confessions" while captives of the Communists, military courts ruled brainwashing does not free a person from the responsibility of his actions.

Some lawyers fear successful use of brainwashing as a defense in a civilian trial would muddy the distinction between guilt and innocence.

The general analysis of three psychiatrists who testified for her defense was that 57 days in tiny closets and repeated threats of death converted Miss Hearst into a completely dependent "child" eager to please her kidnapers.

Man saved from ledge

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A police officer and a radio newsman distracted a 22-year-old man sitting on a slippery 17th-floor ledge and another officer grabbed the man and led him to safety Sunday.

About 200 persons gathered in the street below the City National Bank building during the 30 to 35 minutes officers and newsman Mike Boettcher of station KTKO attempted to coax the man back inside the building.

"I don't want to die. I don't want to jump," the man, identified only as Earl, told officers.

"That's what we are talking to you for," officers said. "We don't want you to jump."

While Boettcher and a policeman talked to the man another officer, secured with a rope, worked his way close enough to the man to grab him.

He was helped inside, then taken to the police station, where officers said he would be held overnight.

Boettcher said light rain fell throughout the episode and police were afraid the man might slip from the ledge accidentally.

The man said he did not have a job and Boettcher said he was extremely despondent.

Boettcher said the police asked him to talk with the

'Oil industry mislead public'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A citizen's group charged Saturday the oil industry tried to mislead the public with a report that said a 23.6 per cent drop in earnings of the top 25 petroleum firms during 1975 threatens U.S. energy independence.

Energy Action, which has launched a concerted attack against the oil giants in recent months, said a more accurate picture of the industry's economic health is shown by the 71 per cent increase in profits for the top 25 companies from 1972 to 1975.

James F. Flug, director of Energy Action, made his charges in response to an American Petroleum Institute report that earnings of the top 25 firms fell from $13 billion in 1974 to $9.9 billion in 1975.

API President Frank Ikard warned in the report: "The continued erosion of the industry's ability to generate and reinvest earnings—due as much to governmental action as natural market forces—poses a grave danger to its efforts to provide the capital needed to make the country more independent of foreign energy sources."

Flug said the oil companies were "trying to mislead everyone into believing they are suddenly facing hard times." He predicted the API report would only increase pressure for the big companies to be broken up.

An API spokesman said Flug's accusations ignore the relationship between the amount oil companies earn and the capital they have for such things as plant expansion and exploration for new oil reserves—both vital to U.S. energy independence. He said such investments far outstripped earnings in 1975.

Despite the decreased profits from 1974 to 1975, the API said, 19 companies reported capital and exploration expenditures totaling $22.7 billion—a 10.5 per cent increase over the $20 billion spent in 1974. Capital and exploration spending climbed by an even sharper 27.7 per cent from 1973 to 1974, when profits increased 40 per cent rather than declining, the association said.

Mills wanted to run but votes weren't there

By ROBERT CAREY
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., one of the most powerful men in Congress for many years, finally decided against seeking a 20th term because he felt the votes were just not there.

Mills, who was forced out of his position as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee after his sometimes bizarre relationship with stripper Fanne Foxe became public, announced officially Friday he would not seek a 20th term.

Mills, who announced following the 1974 Fanne Foxe episode that he was an alcoholic, said Friday his decision not to seek re-election "had nothing to do with anything that has occurred in my life in the past two years."

He said simply that he had been in Congress long enough and it was time for a man who will be 67 years old this spring to "stand aside."

"I have been leaning toward retirement, as a matter of fact, for the past six years," Mills said. "While I am once again in good health, I am tired and I have not regained all of the energy I possessed in the years when I was chairman of the Ways and Means Committee."

"Many of my friends have been urging me to run again. But I have resolved that the time has come for me to stand aside," he said.

True, many friends, especially those with money to spend for campaigning, had wanted him to try again, but a flood of entrants into the Democratic primary — more than the combined number in 19 previous campaigns — told Mills what he already knew: he was politically vulnerable.

Politically dead, some said, but that was not true. No, he had too many IOU's to call in after 37 years in office.

Polls taken in the past six months showed Mills running third and fourth against prospective opponents. But the most recent one, taken on behalf of a candidate not yet announced, showed Mills running second to that candidate. The poll also showed the issue in doubt.

And after months away from the public eye, including alcoholism treatment at a Florida clinic, Mills in recent weeks had become active, his local office again releasing statements from the congressman on various public questions.

The indications were that he was cranking up one more time.

But what Mills wanted was some show of groundswell, some outpouring of support, a willingness by a substantial number of voters and political workers to stay with him once again.

It never came despite ploys by Mills to induce it.

Less than two weeks ago Mills apparently told one reporter he had decided not to run. But two days after talking to that reporter he told another one he was still undecided.

The story by the first reporter ran locally last Sunday. Praise from Democratic leaders was effusive on his apparent announced retirement. But none urged him to change his mind.

Monday, Mills said the first reporter's story had been too strong and that he was still undecided. However, there were again no voices calling on him to run again.

So Mills, a realist, decided another campaign was not in the cards.

He said he will work in alcoholic rehabilitation programs when he steps down from Congress, helping others to conquer the disease that almost destroyed him. Mills, a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, says he has not had a drink in a year.

Thus ended the political career of a man who had been confident to presidents and who had, at one point, dreamed of being president himself.

General Telephone found $2.2 million in payments

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Improper payments amounting to $12.9 million have been made during the last five years by a General Telephone & Electronic subsidiary, according to an internal investigation.

A committee of the firm's directors discovered $2.2 million in "unlawful payments to domestic or foreign officials," and $10.7 million in payments made "with awareness of the possibility" they may have gone to officials.

The company said its GTE International, Inc., subsidiary made 98 per cent of the payments. The division comprises 8.7 per cent of the company assets and 2.7 per cent of its income between 1971-75.

The company declined Saturday to name the countries in which payments were made, or comment further, because it said the Securities and Exchange Commission has been given the information and is discussing it with the firm.

According to a company statement, four officers and directors of the Stamford-based international electronics firm knew about some of the payments.

Agents working on sales to foreign governments received $5.6 million of the doubtful payments, while $5.1 went to agents working with private companies, the company said.

"It is far from certain that all or any part of this amount ultimately was paid to any foreign officials," it said.

But the investigating committee found it was "a permissible inference" that part of the money was used for bribes.

The payments were the result of the "autonomy of GTE International, Inc., the failure of its senior management officials to appreciate the legal problems created by the foreign payments and their resulting failure to bring these problems to the attention of senior management."

None of the firm's outside directors knew of the payments, the statement said, but four inside directors—both directors and company officers—knew of commission payments to stockholders of a private foreign customer.

Free enterprise must be tough on corporate abuse

DALLAS (UPI) — Supporters of the free enterprise system must be as tough on corporate abuses as they are on abuses of big government and big labor, a candidate for the U.S. Senate said Saturday.

Rep. Alan Steelman, R-Tex., told the Texas Young Adult Republicans Convention Congress is in the clutches of big government, big labor and big business.

Steeleman, who is seeking the Republican nomination for the Senate, said the free enterprise system is threatened equally by excesses in all three areas.

He cited as examples Gulf Oil bribes, Lockheed Aircraft Co.'s admitted bribes to foreign officials and New York banks seeking federal financial aid to bail the city out of its monetary problems.

"What we should defend is the businessman who wants to take his risks in the marketplace — and rise and fall on his own efforts — rather than go running to Washington for a bailout," Steelman said.

J & J Feed and Supply

Jerry and Jo Hayes combined new careers with a new home when they moved to Pampa about seven months ago.

The couple, originally from Arizona and New Mexico, had purchased the Purina dealership in Pampa. Later they were able to purchase the Acco dealership and they combined the two into one business five months ago.

J & J Feed and Supply is located at 518 S. Cuyler and Hayes said the family-operated business will be open six days a week, from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. throughout the summer months and will go to a five and one-half day week during the winter.

The store includes a lawn and garden center with selections of potted plants and insecticides and also carries a wide selection of patent animal health needs. Hayes said they also have some prescription animal serums also available are horse care items and tack, including Bona Allen saddles.

J & J Feed and Supply is equipped to make bulk deliveries of feed to area farmers and ranchers and, Hayes said, they do a lot of small sales trade — selling feed by the sack.

At the present time, Hayes estimates the store handles an average of 1,000 customers per week.

The official grand opening of the business on S. Cuyler was Friday and Saturday.

Major SALT missile tests successfully

WHITE SANDS, N.M. (UPI) — A missile which is playing a major role in the SALT talks with the Soviet Union was successfully tested Friday at the White Sands Missile Range in southern New Mexico.

The air-launched cruise missile, or ACLM, was fired from a B-52 bomber and flew successfully downrange. Air Force officials announced the test was a success.

The cruise missile has become a major topic at the SALT talks because of its ability to penetrate enemy defenses with a minimum of detection. The missile, which resembles a small airplane with its 14-foot length, is capable of carrying a nuclear warhead or high explosives.

The missile was launched at an altitude of 10,000 feet and was in flight for 11 minutes.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has said the cruise missile and the backfire bomber being developed by the Soviet Union are complicating the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

The United States fears the backfire bomber can be used by the Soviets for one-way trips with nuclear weapons and the Russians are concerned the cruise missile can be fired in great numbers to diminish Soviet air defense installations.

Former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger has termed the cruise missile "a revolution in warfare," noting it can be launched from a plane, ship, submarine or truck.

Relatively inexpensive, each missile costing about $300,000, the weapon missile is capable of flying low and is difficult to detect by radar. It is designed to break down enemy defenses and thus make it easier for manned bombers to hit targets.

A decision on full scale engineering and development of the cruise is expected in early 1977.

Interstate Battle

In 1886 Robert Love Taylor, a Democrat, defeated his brother, Alfred Alexander Taylor, Republican, for the governorship of Tennessee in one of the most remarkable political contests ever conducted in any state. The campaign was called "The War of the Roses" because the candidates traveled over the state together, Bob wearing a red rose and Alf a white rose so their followers could tell them apart.

Will pocket calculators make math weaklings?

By PATRICIA Mc CORMACK
UPI Education Editor

By pressing buttons on handheld calculators millions of boys and girls today solve arithmetic problems with no sweat.

That is, down in the elementary grades. In upper grades calculators help students get through sophisticated mathematical problems more quickly — reducing time spent figuring.

Parents wonder: will reliance on the mini-calculators make mathematical weaklings of their children?

Learning long division, multiplication and such the old-fashioned way was thought to help discipline the mind — every problem being a mental gymnastic.

The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics endorses the hand-held calculators as a valuable instructional aid for mathematics education.

With the price of the basic mini-calculator dropping below $10 and estimates of 77 million in circulation by 1980, it's safe to say the era of the mini-calculator is here — and there's no turning back.

Prof. E. Glenadine Gibb, president of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, says many schools already are using mini-calculators.

Reporting in "Today's Education," Prof. Gibb, of the University of Texas at Austin, makes these points:

— The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics supports the position that handheld calculators can be effectively and creatively used as instructional aids in stimulating students' thinking.

— There is not, however, a unified position among teachers with respect to benefits gained or problems created by use of mini-calculators.

— Research to date on the educational benefits of using them in the classroom is inconclusive. But there is some evidence that students who use them are more motivated and exhibit higher achievement than those who do not. Subjective observations support use of these instruments in the schools.

The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics board of directors has approved a report on the calculators prepared by its Instructional Affairs Committee. The report identified the following ways in which mini-calculators can be used in class — To encourage students to be inquisitive and creative as they experiment with mathematical ideas.

— To assist the individual to become a wiser consumer.

— To reinforce learning of basic number facts and properties in addition, subtraction, multiplication and division.

— To serve as a flexible "answer key" to verify results of computation.

— To promote student independence in problem solving.

— To solve problems that previously have been too time-consuming or impractical to be done with paper and pencil.

— To formulate generalizations from patterns of numbers that are displayed.

— To decrease time needed to solve difficult computations.

Through its journals, "The Mathematics Teacher" and "The Arithmetic Teacher," the Council shares teachers' reports of imaginative ways of working with the calculators in the classroom.

In an interview, Prof. Gibb cautioned against situations in which some children are without calculators — while children all around are using them.

Prof. Gibb says a few hundred dollars can buy a fair number of machines that can be shared by students and classes.

It is good, if sharing is necessary, to have no more than two students using a calculator at one time, Prof. Gibb said.

She said calculators for beginners should have:

— A display of at least six or preferably eight digits.

— Easily accessible springloaded click keys.

— Four functions: plus, minus, multiplication and division.

— Floating decimal.

— Two clearing keys (clear entry and clear).

— No key with dual purpose.

— Rechargeable unit or AC adapter.

— Algebraic logic.
