Lebanon premier resigns 'sinking ship'

BEIRUT (UPI) — Premier Rashid Karami resigned today and rebel army troops battled loyalist forces across the country, driving Lebanon toward another round of civil war.

Karami likened Lebanon to a sinking ship, announced he was quitting in a radio address to the nation late this afternoon.

It was the second time in seven weeks that he and his six-man cabinet had resigned from office. In January he withdrew his resignation after the Syrian sponsored cease-fire ended nearly 10 months of civil war.

Karami said he was in despair in the face of perplexing and rejectionist stands taken by warring Lebanese factions, which have made me take this decision.

Karami likened Lebanon to a sinking ship and said he knew that the captain, when he sees this, has to act in order to save the ship instead of leaving it to be tossed about by the wind, but I have remained steadfast until the last minute.

He referred to the "painful situation" of the revolt within the ranks of the army which was envisaged as the bulwark and the sword of the people.

The army rebellion by Moslems alleging pro-Christian bias in the military establishment precipitated Karami's resignation as all efforts to end the revolt failed.

Rebel troops of the Lebanese Arab Army battled their way into more garrisons in Tripoli today and shelled other posts still occupied by loyalist forces in the south.

Syria ordered its peace-keeping forces to seize rebel positions in a desperate attempt to avert another round of civil war.

Reports from police and witnesses in the north said a heavy field battle was underway between Tripoli, 50 miles north of Beirut, and the rightist stronghold of Zghorta, the fortress-like hometown of President Suleiman Franjeh.

The fighting spread to the outskirts of Tripoli itself when the rebel troops attacked three loyalist barracks, seizing the largest after a day-long battle, witnesses said.

The Kobbeh barracks fell to the rebels in the early afternoon after a fierce battle in which all types of weapons were used, according to police reports reaching Beirut. The Bahjat Ghanem and Hilavel barracks are still putting up a defense, the reports said.

In another incident, Christian militiamen opened fire on the car of the military commander of the northern district when the driver failed to stop at a roadblock on the Beirut-Tripoli highway, police sources said. They said the commander, Col. Abdel Majid Shehab, was killed.

Shehab was a Moslem and political observers feared the incident could have violent repercussions.

In what appeared to be the first such repercussion, Moslem gunmen in the Beirut suburb of Itas Naabeh opened fire on pedestrians, wounding at least 10 persons, police said. Shehab was from Itas Naabeh and police sources said it appeared the shooting was in reprisal for his death.

A week-long wave of kidnappings continued to plague the capital at roadblocks manned by rival militia factions.

The fighting spread to the outskirts of Tripoli itself, witnesses said, when loyalist army barracks — Bahjat Ghanem and Hilavel.

The fighting began at 9 a.m. (2 a.m. EST), one police source said. All types of weapons are being used.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, who helped arrange the cease-fire seven weeks ago, ordered the peace-keeping Palestine Liberation Army into south Lebanon to seize a strategic military garrison captured by Moslem rebel troops Wednesday and to prevent another one from falling to them.

In 48 hours of rapidly escalating developments, renegade army troops battled loyalists north and south of the capital Wednesday, two factions in the armed forces threatened a coup, and kidnappings and sporadic shootings flared again in Beirut.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halm Khaddam met with Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt in an effort to get him to withdraw his support of the rebel troops, government sources said, but he apparently failed.

"We are passing through our gravest period because Lebanese will not accept half solutions," Jumblatt said in a speech Wednesday. "We have no choice but to continue with the revolution to the end."

Lebanese army Commander Gen. Hanna Saad stepped into the crisis Wednesday night, issuing a general amnesty to the rebel troops in a last ditch effort to avert wide-scale fighting within the army.

The 18,000-man army has begun to split along Moslem-Christian lines, the same sides opposing each other in the 10-month civil war that ended in January with a Syrian-mediated truce.

The Air Force and a group of 250 army junior officers at the Ministry of Defense issued separate, strongly worded statements criticizing the government and hinting of possible intervention unless a series of demands were met.

The Air Force ultimatum, signed by Air Force Commander Brig. George Ghorayeb, demanded amnesty for the rebel troops to end the mutiny. The other ultimatum demanded the rebels be court-martialed, government sources said.

Although neither statement directly mentioned the possibility of a military coup, their wording left no doubt that this was the threat behind them, the sources said.

The renegade Moslem soldiers charge there is pro-Christian bias in the regular army and have formed their own "Lebanese Arab Army."

Panel drops bribes probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate panel investigating alleged payment of overseas bribes by the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has abruptly ended its inquiry into the sale of F104 Starfighters to West Germany because key witnesses have died and the truth cannot be determined, sources said today.

Meanwhile, a Securities and Exchange Commission official said the government has virtually no new information to provide Japan, Holland and other countries seeking facts on the alleged Lockheed payments.

We will provide whatever is necessary from our files, but we have very little information that has not been made public or is held by the Senate, SEC Enforcement Director Stanley Sporkin said in an interview. The source who discussed the Lockheed sale of Starfighters to West Germany said the inquiry was terminated because "many key people have died. Both Robert Gross and Courtland Gross, who were chairmen of Lockheed around the time of the sale have died."

There was some conflicting evidence. Nothing was proved or disproved, but now all we can do is to make the information available through official channels, the source said. One knowledgeable State Department official said several foreign governments, including Japan, have requested information. But unprecedented inter-agency consultations are needed to work out the exchanges.

We are moving to respond, the State Department official said, and we won't take any more time than necessary.

Sporkin also said he understood that Lockheed was near a settlement with the SEC that would forbid future payoffs by the aerospace company.

The Japanese government asked President Ford two weeks ago for Lockheed data that might implicate Japanese government officials. There have been allegations that Lockheed sales agents paid $8 million in bribes to Japanese officials to stimulate Lockheed aircraft sales.

Sporkin said the SEC has no objection to turning over data that it subpoenaed from Lockheed to law enforcement officials of another country.

He said that he was not aware of any arrangements that the White House or State Department made with any foreign governments seeking information. But a spokesman said the agency had received no communications from the State Department regarding the Japanese request.

Gas well blowout finally capped

A gas well blowout which occurred near Kelton at 11:30 a.m. Monday was finally capped at 9:20 a.m. today.

The James No. 1 lease on the Mills Ranch near Kelton was drilled by Chevron Company officials said the well was drilled to 24,400 feet and was producing from an area of close to 21,000 feet when the blowout occurred.

A team from Houston was brought in to cap the well. It was headed by R. Adair.

The blowout was believed the result of a malfunctioning automatic shut-off valve.

Chevron has been concerned about the situation, according to a company official, and several families were advised to leave their homes.

Weather conditions in the area

Monday included overcast skies and high humidity which caused the gas to disperse along the ground and create more of a hazard.

Bob Hink, school board member, said Kelton is a lowlying area and gas comes up the draw and hangs.

Kelton closed its school at 3 p.m. Wednesday. The school for grades kindergarten through eight is attended by 60 students. N. Dean Johnson, Kelton school superintendent, said classes will resume Friday.

One worker who returned from the site said he estimated it would be 90 to 100 days before the well is operational. The well reportedly is the deepest commercial well in the world.

Girls adopt Shelton

Girl Scout Troop No. 68 unanimously decided to adopt Pampa pioneer Joe Shelton and to include him in their activities during the bicentennial year. They recently talked with him about his life in early Gray County. The fifth graders from Travis and fourth graders from Austin, led by Carla Walter, Ann Loter and Dorothy Wilson, are working to complete requirements for a Blue Ribbon Troop Award. They have visited Satellite School for Retarded Children and earned the toymaker badge and pen pal badge.

Nixon blames Kissinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon says it was Henry Kissinger who chose the people whose phones would be tapped to try to trace security leaks in 1969.

Kissinger earlier said J. Edgar Hoover chose them.

It was Dr. Kissinger's responsibility to furnish to Mr. Hoover the names of individuals that he, Dr. Kissinger, felt might have had access to information or that might have had a tendency to be loose mouthed and have acquired the information without his knowledge and have put it out," Nixon said.

Nixon's statement came in testimony in a $3 million lawsuit by Morton Halperin against Kissinger, his former boss at the National Security Council.

Nixon, 63, testified for 6 1/2 hours at his San Clemente, Calif., home Jan. 15 and the testimony was made public Wednesday.

Halperin charges Kissinger gave the order to have his home phone tapped for 21 months in connection with leaks to newspapers from the NSC. At the time, Kissinger was Nixon's international security adviser and head of the NSC.

In a statement filed with the U.S. District Court Jan. 12, Kissinger said Hoover had identified four persons, including Halperin, as security risks to be wiretapped.

Halperin, at a Wednesday news conference, said Nixon's testimony showed discrepancies in Kissinger's views and that he hoped to get a new deposition from Kissinger soon.

Halperin said Nixon would be called as a witness, as would Kissinger, in the trial he hopes will get under way in a few months.

Nixon said he ordered the investigation because the early months of his administration had been wracked by 21 national security leaks at a time when the U.S. was deeply involved in the Vietnam war.

But he insisted he did not pick the victims — didn't even know Halperin — and did not specifically order wiretaps.

As a matter of fact, he said, I found that the highest number of wiretaps during the previous 20 years had been during the third year of the Kennedy administration. If

Livestock show to begin Monday

Everything was reported ready today for the biggest Top O' Texas Livestock Show in history at Pampa's Recreation Park next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Luther Robinson, chairman of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the annual event, said this morning 136 steers and 243 barrows are entered in the Junior Livestock Show.

Milton W. England, head of the agriculture department of Oklahoma A&M University at Goodwell, Okla., will begin judging the pigs at 8 a.m. Monday and the fat steers will be judged at 1 p.m.

The Top O' Texas Rodeo Association will host a dinner for all exhibitors in the enlarged sales arena at 6:30 p.m. Monday when awards and cash prizes totaling $1,170 will go to winners in the various divisions.

Tuesday will be devoted to the FFA Livestock Judging Contest at 9:30 a.m. and the judging of Hereford breeding cattle at 1 p.m. The awards dinner for the judging contest will be at 5 p.m. in the High School Cafeteria and the Hereford Breeders annual banquet is set for 7:30 p.m. in the Heritage Room at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Wednesday will be sales day with the junior livestock going on the auction block at 9:30 a.m. Prior to the sale a breakfast will be served for bidders in the Show Barn dining room.

Fifty-four registered Hereford bulls consigned to the Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders Association show will be auctioned Wednesday afternoon.

Col. Walter Britten of College Station, who has called the sale in every livestock show here since 1945, will again be the auctioneer for both the Junior Livestock and the Hereford Breeders sales.

Clyde Carruth, superintendent of the junior show, said today the current year's entry list is the biggest in the history of the local event.

Carruth added that the Show Barn and grounds are in excellent shape.

The public is invited to the three-day event, Carruth said, and we hope Pampans and area people will support the sales Wednesday when the livestock is sold at auction.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee today rejected any increase in Social Security taxes for fiscal 1977 thus killing President Ford's plan to hike the payroll taxes beginning in October.

The Senate Finance Committee earlier made the same decision.

The preliminary decision by the ways and means panel came during a preview of possible budget changes the committee might make for fiscal 1977. The review is required under the new congressional budget process.

I think we have to have enough courage to tell the people what we're going to do, said chairman of the House Social Security subcommittee.

Can man change weather Texas prof ponders

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — An airplane drops dry ice or various chemicals into clouds, and 30 minutes later it rains.

Did the seeding cause the rain, or would it have occurred anyhow? A Texas Tech University professor says there is no way to tell for sure.

Take a cloud and add 75 cents to it, give it 30 minutes and that's about all you need to squeeze enough rain out of the sky for one acre of land, Dr. Gerald Jurica said Tuesday.

But after all that you really can't prove that the rain was due to the modifications brought about in the weather. It might have occurred through the natural process without any modifications.

Jurica, an instructor in weather modification, says he has spent a large part of his career compiling information on weather experiments and their results. Still, he says more time and work is needed to decide if man really has succeeded in changing the weather.

We still have a long way to go in learning about weather modification, he said. "By using various sources, including satellites, we can possibly build a good theory. In fact, we are working on a research proposal that will make use of satellites to gather data about cloud formations.

Jurica said rainmakers were probably the best known weather modifiers. But he said there were many others, including those who seed clouds to prevent hailstorms, attempt to break up tornadoes or hurricanes and those who try to control blizzards.

Weather modification experiments have met with different degrees of success, he said. "One major difficulty is they require a great deal of planning and monitoring."

And, the vagaries of the precipitation process are such that it is difficult to estimate the amount of artificial rainfall derived.

Jurica said there was no absolute method of predicting how much rain would fall in any given season if that information were available, he said, it would be possible to calculate the extent of artificial rain.

It's just too new at this time to really sit down and say you get so much rainfall, for example, for each dollar invested, Jurica said. "Eventually it is hoped this type of information will be available — but it is still some time off."

Space biologist has jitters

Target 206 million miles away

HOUSTON (UPI) — A safe landing on the cold, dry surface of Mars is one of the most important factors in the $1 billion Viking space mission scheduled for July 4, according to the project scientist.

Dr. Gerald A. Soffen, a space biologist, admits to some "landing jitters" when he thinks about the blind descent of the laboratory lander on a target selected from previous Mariner missions to the planet 206 million miles from Earth.

"All you have to do is land in a safe place, but we are not sure what constitutes safe," Soffen said Tuesday. "We have confidence we can land on the place (designated). The project scientist has landing jitters."

Soffen, of the Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., is responsible for all scientific investigations to be accomplished by Viking when it lands.

"We have radar near the area but not on the area," Soffen told reporters in a news briefing.

Viking mission planners have used data supplied from the Mariner flights to develop the mission which began in September, 1975, with the launch of two Titan Centaur rockets from Cape Canaveral.

The spacecraft go into orbit around Mars in mid June, 1976, and separate into two elements — a lander and an orbiter. Each lander containing its own scientific laboratory will descend to a 50x150 kilometer area on the Martian surface to conduct experiments and televise its surroundings.

Soffen said the instruments will transmit to Earth panoramic stereo color pictures, molecular organic and inorganic soil analyses, and atmospheric, meteorological, magnetic and seismic characteristics.

The entire lander system will be heat-sterilized before launch to assure Mars will not be contaminated by Earth microorganisms, said William J. Boyer of NASA.

We don't want to contaminate anything on Mars, he said. Soffen said if life exists on Mars, it is probably in the form of microorganisms.

He said scientists are anxious for data on the nature of other bodies in the galaxy which contains Earth and other celestial bodies. In telescopic observations man has been able to verify the basic chemicals of which Earth is composed are found throughout the universe.

Mars resembles the Earth much more than the moon, he said. "It's very active. Mars has very definite weather patterns. It is a planet that has been undergoing changes."

We would like to look at as many sites on the planet as we can.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

I want to give you a little of a physician's viewpoint who works in Highland General Hospital. I have had some patients in this hospital ever since it was first opened. It has been run by a board appointed by the County Judge and it seems that every board that we have had since the hospital opened has been inspired to work hard to try to help the manager of the hospital do a good job. I feel the present board that we have had this last five years has been among the best boards we have had. They have tended to business well, they have kept a low profile, and there has been no beating of their chests and claiming credit for what they have done.

We have had some bad publicity for our hospital in the paper and I know this is done under the guise of news, but I think it has been very bad for our hospital. I feel this all came about when the nurses' chairs were taken from them for a short period of time. This was done by the hospital management to keep nurses and nurses aides from loafing in the utility room. I personally feel that this was a mistake, as only about one to two percent of the nurses ever abused this privilege, and it would have been a lot easier to have just fired the two or three nurses who were abusing it instead of penalizing all the fine nurses who work in the hospital. Nevertheless, it must be realized that in running an institution such as this, there will be some mistakes made and I believe any mistakes made are made due to human error or misinformation that is unavoidable.

This is a service institution which is selling services to sick people and I think it has done and is doing a very marvelous job of it. There are errors made and there will continue to be errors made but they will be of a minor nature and will not effect the patients' care. After all, the administrator and all the people that work in the hospital are very human and can make errors; but 99 percent of the people employed at Highland General Hospital in any capacity are giving at least 100 percent effort to try to do a fine job there. If the hospital continues to work as near full capacity as it has so far this year, the hospital will provide $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 worth of services this year. To run such an establishment requires a good administrator, Mr. Monogue is not the answer to a public relation man's prayer, he is a good administrator. I also feel that a man who administers a service organization such as this is entitled to the salary he is getting. It is a good salary, but I think he should have a nice office and his office is nice but not elaborate; and, if you have bought any furniture recently, you will find the price that was paid for his furniture is not out of line. Mr. Monogue had the right to buy this furniture as administrator, as he buys all of the other supplies and it will have to be paid for, regardless of how long the County Commissioners and the County Judge fail to ok the bill, as he had the right to buy it. Turning down the bill certainly must have political purposes, as it is a just bill. I feel that we should keep the hospital being run by the board appointed and it should be kept out of politics of the county. I realize this is a county institution and they have to have some nominal control of it but none of them are experts in the running of a hospital or in the handling of a business such as hospital business.

In the last two months several of us have checked the resident addresses of the patients taken care of in the hospital and for January and February which I have just finished, a little over 60 percent of my patients came from out of Gray County which means that a lot of the support of this hospital is done by non-residents of the county and this brings considerable money to the county by the shopping, restaurant, and hotel trade.

The hospital has never, except for the original structure and the last addition, used any tax money for its operation and buying new equipment. The North wing of the hospital was paid for out of earnings. The equipment that is needed in this hospital is installed there. It is quality equipment and is being operated by well trained and conscientious personnel. I am sure we have some problems in the hospital now, we have always had some problems occur from time to time, and we will have problems again. Some of us doctors have disagreed violently with Mr. Monogue on some issues and we eventually get them settled but we do feel that our problems should be settled with the management and with the board and with the staff of the hospital rather than being done through the County Commissioners Court and the newspapers where sometimes the problems get completely out of focus.

The Pampa Daily News, during the more than 40 years I have been reading it, has always been a good influence in helping to build a better city and to keep it growing. We hope it can return to fulfilling this very needed service.

Yours very truly,
M.C. Overton, Jr., M.D.

Dear People:
With my subscription renewal, I want to commend those responsible for the disclosure and follow up upon the hospital mess. The only means of any knowledge of such is due to your paper. I sincerely appreciate your effort and approve of your policy.

As to how the new administrator arrived to his present position and his qualifications for such (and the one before this) is questionable. I am told:

...like most Americans, are fed up with government dishonesty and waste at all levels. My hat's off to you Mrs. Bob Rhoades

To the editor, management and staff of the Pampa News:
This is a word of sincere appreciation for the many long and trying, tireless hours of work you have put in to make The Pampa Daily News an excellent paper.

On behalf of this writer and many others, may we say "Thank you."

Just keep up the good work.
Sincerely,
Frances Perkins

Columist raps the E.R.A.

By WILLIAM RUSHER
LOS ANGELES — After eighteen years as a publisher, professional lecturer, and radio and TV debater, and nearly three as a syndicated columnist, I thought I had spoken out on almost every public question there is. Not until I was asked to debate the Equal Rights Amendment at Occidental College here did I realize what a glaring omission I was guilty of. I knew that most conservatives opposed ERA, but I didn't know exactly why. A hurried phone call to Phyllis Schlafly, the bright and beautiful dynamo who heads Stop ERA, brought prompt results: ammunition enough for half a dozen debates. Now at last I know the case against ERA, and it is simply overwhelming: this proposed constitutional amendment, which passed Congress in 1972 by huge margins and has subsequently been whittled through almost (but not quite) enough state legislatures to ratify it, sounds fetchingly simple, but in fact it is the craziest, most ill-considered can of worms that anybody has ever tried to engraft upon the Constitution of the United States.

I yield to no one in my enthusiasm for the right of women to equal opportunity under the law, and most particularly to equality in the fields of job openings and pay-

But I was astounded to learn that even its backers admit ERA does nothing whatever for women in the matter of employment.

The laws guaranteeing their rights in this field have been on the books for four years; ERA doesn't even touch the subject. It applies only to state and federal statutes, and as to these it states simply, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State on account of sex."

Sounds fair enough any way doesn't it? After all, what harm could it do?

Tons: In the space available, let me deal with just three areas:
1) If ERA is passed, any future military draft MUST take women as well as men, including mothers if it drafts fathers, and MUST use them in combat right beside the men. When I first heard this contention years ago, I thought ERA's opponents were kidding — but friends, they aren't kidding. ERA's supporters actually concede the point: the House Judiciary Committee's official Report on the original bill (No. 92-359) says flatly: "Not only would women, including mothers, be subject to the draft, but the military would be compelled to place them in combat units alongside of men."

2) ERA's prospective effect on the present Social Security system is more obscure, but sure to be profound. Present features of the system, such as basing a wife's payments on her husband's earnings, would of course collapse at once. But Sylvia Porter, the well-known writer on economic subjects (who supports ERA), has asserted that its passage would require every husband to pay a further Social Security tax (estimated as at least $1,000 a year), out of his own income, on the assumed value of his wife's services as a homemaker.

3) The whole series of legal presumptions which today favor divorced women over their former spouses will go by the board — in fact have already done so, under court rulings, where local ERA-type laws are in effect. This is true of the presumption favoring child custody by the mother (struck down by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia), the requirement that a divorced husband must support his minor children (overturned by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania), and of course alimony payments (declared unconstitutional by one Georgia court under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments, without even the support of an ERA-type statute).

Shady contributions spur public fury

By Don Oakley

Judging by a continuing parade of stories in the news, the ethics of the American business community are at a distressingly low level.

Some 14 major corporations have been convicted of illegal political contributions and nearly a dozen others are under investigation. The admission by Lockheed Corp. that it paid millions of dollars in bribes to foreign officials or influence-wielders may be only the worst example of what is a fairly general practice.

But the very fact that there is so much public indignation over recent exposures of unethical corporate behavior that has been tolerated for generations "offers hope that our system is actually taking a great leap forward," thinks one businessman.

There is no such thing as an ethical or unethical corporation, points out Frederick A. Collins Jr., president of the Sperry and Hutchinson Co. Corporations are wholly amoral. They are inanimate legal concepts, neither good nor bad. Nor do they act in an evil or corrupt way — only people do.

Having said that, however, he quickly adds that corporate managers cannot evade personal responsibility by claiming sanctuary within the corporate cloak.

"No amount of rationalization can shift elsewhere the consequence of avarice, unrestrained ambition or other personal weakness. There is no earthly way to defend bribery, kickbacks or attempts to buy votes."

While bribery, price-fixing, allocation of markets and the like may maximize short-term gains, they are neither inherent in the profit system nor do they, in the long run, contribute to profitability. Simply stated, "bad ethics is bad business."

A better educated and better informed public is demanding an increasingly higher standard of ethical conduct among business leaders, says Collins.

Voluntary compliance with the law, and beyond that, with ethical principles is essential to our democracy and our society, he says. If we do not insist on ethical conduct by all, including people in business, we will eventually lose that democracy and that society.

Is voting 'rite' really of that much importance

By JOHN A. SPARKS

R.C. Hoiles Fellow
Hillsdale (Mich.) College

Primary spring is here again. It will be followed by campaign summer, which will culminate in election autumn. Already one begins to hear what I call the "catechism of the voting booth" being recited. Question: What makes American government great? Answer: Voting.

As long as I can remember I've heard about that sacred duty, that all-important part of participatory democracy. It began with me, in an eighth grade civics class where the instructor lectured us about the "voice of the people" — the franchise. Years later, our entire high school of 900 students sat spell-bound in an assembly before a local politician who berated anyone who had reached the age of majority but was not voting regularly. We were genuinely awed when we learned that he had maintained a perfect voting record for over forty-five years.

Somehow, during my lifetime, voting became the equivalent of the American way. An Oscar Wilde play about the development of our voting preoccupation would probably be titled "The Importance of Being Registered."

Of course, we haven't been content to keep our voting predilections at home. We've thought it important to instruct the nations of the world about the virtues of the ballot. Consequently, our statesmen have found themselves defending the United Nations on the bizarre ground that it is a necessary "international plebiscite."

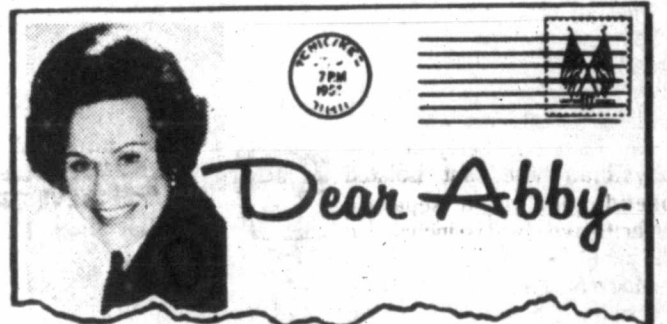

Most recently our American advisors taught the South Vietnamese how to duplicate our stable political institutions. The answer, learned the locals, was to conduct regular elections in the hamlets. Never mind the occasional interruptions of election-day by blasts of enemy fire. Please disregard the disturbing fact that the candidates on the ballot were several semi-feudal province-chiefs. Moreover, while that weary nation endured communist rocket attacks American politicians openly pouted to the world when "general elections" were not held by various Vietnamese governments. After all, how would democracy ever "take-root and grow" without the steady "watering" of elections.

If you think we have not gone berserk over lever-pulling and "x" marking then just review the most common bit of ballot-box wisdom: "It doesn't matter who you vote for, just vote." For sheer nonsense in glib words, it can't be matched. Think for a minute what the sentence means. For whom or for what you vote is a minor matter; the voting itself is what counts.

As far as I can tell, and here is where I utter a modern heresy, voting has very little to do with what is most important and most worth preserving about American government. We ought not to marvel in what can be voted upon, but, in what cannot. The stability of our commonwealth has not come from the constant and furious use of the polls. Our strength has been derived from a written constitution which restrained legislators and citizens alike from daring to put certain chartered rights to a vote at all. There is our uniquely American contribution to the government of man.

Voting ought to be put in its proper place again. However, "get-out-the-vote" campaigns, voter registration endeavors, and other vote-exalting efforts will undoubtedly maintain the franchise-phrenia. And when I'm "rest-home" age, a local volunteer from the League of Women Voters will insist that I accept the absentee ballot which she has delivered to me so that I can exercise my political will to the very end.

One Unwed Mother Who Wants Her Baby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, a 21-year-old working girl, is pregnant. She isn't going with anyone steady and doesn't want to get married right now. But she is thrilled because she really wants a baby. My husband and I are also thrilled because this will be our first grandchild.

We will do everything we can for her and the baby. We'll even adopt it if she wants us to.

She wants to keep the baby and take care of it herself. She doesn't want to tell the baby's father about her condition because although he's single, he isn't ready to settle down yet. She doesn't see him anymore.

What should she tell people who ask who the father is? If he doesn't pay anything toward the delivery and support, he doesn't get any visiting rights, does he?

Our daughter will be getting help from welfare. Does that mean she has to tell them who the father is? She would rather not. Also, does she have to put the father's name on the baby's birth certificate?

GRANNY-TO-BE

DEAR GRANNY: Since the laws differ from state to state, have your daughter ask her case worker to answer her questions. And tell her to ignore the people who ask who the baby's father is. That's her business. And her secret.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 42 years, and two years ago my husband told me that he wanted to have his left ear pierced so that he could wear a little gold earring in it. I asked why. No answer. Then I told him that his wedding ring was enough rings for a man. Still no answer. Soon I noticed that he had his left ear pierced and was wearing a tiny gold earring in it. We haven't had a happy day since.

I am 59 and he is 63. When friends ask me why my husband wears that earring, I don't know what to tell them. Even our priest has asked me.

If you or any of your readers has a clue, please let me know.

STUMPED IN MONTANA

DEAR STUMPED: The only person who can answer your question is your husband. If wearing a tiny gold earring in his left ear has special significance for him, ask him what it is. And if he tells you, please tell me.

DEAR ABBY: My husband grew up in a family of kissers. They were constantly giving each other (and everybody else) long, enthusiastic kisses on the mouth whenever the occasion arose.

I have asked my husband not to kiss our preteen daughters this way, and he thinks I am strange for feeling as I do. Abby, I have absolutely no objection to kissing friends and relatives on the cheek, but I save my mouth-to-mouth kisses for my husband.

When he kissed a young woman friend of mine on the lips last evening as a friendly greeting, she looked embarrassed. When I mentioned it to him later, he said, "Nonsense! It's time you shook your Victorian morals and joined the modern world."

Where do you stand, Abby?

STIFF UPPER LIP

DEAR STIFF: With you. The mouth is an erogenous zone, reserved for one's lover—or for mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Flu shots may be used on epidemic

ATLANTA (UPI) — Authorities at the National Center for Disease Control may recommend that the federal government make a flu vaccine available to the public free of charge to protect the nation from a possible major epidemic next fall.

Dr. David Sencer, CDC director, said the agency was concerned that the A-Swine virus would strike a large part of the population during the next flu season because people would have no natural protection against it.

The CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices held a special meeting Wednesday to make immunization recommendations for the 1976-77 flu season.

Sencer said the committee had reached no decisions about its recommendations, however, and that the free vaccine idea was only a possibility.

Concerning this season, Sencer said the nationwide epidemic of influenza is showing signs of easing for the first time in nearly six weeks.

The CDC said state health departments, polled nationwide by telephone, reported 499 deaths attributed to the current epidemic of A-Victoria influenza last week. The week before, the flu outbreak took 656 lives throughout the country.

"In my opinion, the current outbreak of influenza is on the decline," said Dr. Michael Gregg, head of the CDC's influenza surveillance unit.

The CDC said 20 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico reported epidemic levels of flu last week. 21 states reported regional outbreaks and nine listed isolated cases.

Sencer said there still was no evidence of human transmission of A-Swine flu other than five confined cases originally discovered at Ft. Dix, N.J., last month.

It was this lack of evidence that the A-Swine flu was spreading that delayed a decision on manufacture of the vaccine. Sencer said a decision, however, would have to be made in a few weeks in order to have the vaccine in sufficient amounts by next fall.

Husband must split lottery

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A Texas woman has won a suit that requires her former husband, Maryland's fourth million dollar lottery winner, to split half his prize money with her.

Superior Court Judge Shirley B. Jones ruled Wednesday that Robert S. Bronson must give half his remaining $900,000 to his former wife, Betty Elizabeth Bronson of Greenville, Texas.

Bronson won the lottery in 1974 and receives annual checks of $50,000 as his prize.

Dallas plan displeases most

DALLAS (UPI) — When federal Judge William Taylor released the city's school desegregation plan, he said not everybody would be happy with it. In fact, he said probably nobody would be entirely satisfied.

He was right. "I can tell from the happy look on so many faces the black community has been shafted again," said black activist Alfred Lipscomb after Taylor's lengthy explanation of the plan Wednesday.

"Who is going to be bused? Nobody knows yet because the school district decides student assignment plans."

In dissenting from the plan, Lipscomb was joined by Ola Mae Rabon, a community worker in one of the city's black districts.

"The judge has failed us," she said. "The case is still in court. The schools still are segregated."

more segregated than they were before the plan.

"We must appeal."

Taylor's plan was drafted at the end of six weeks of hearings and six years of controversy over how to integrate the nation's eighth largest school district. The plan calls for busing 20,000 students, but may lead to retention of a large number of single race schools.

Overall, the plan calls for the city to be divided into five, pie shaped subdistricts. Four of the subdistricts have racial mixes of approximately 46 per cent white, 44 per cent black and the rest Mexican-American. The fifth would be about 98 per cent black.

The plan says students in kindergarten, first, second and third grades would not be bused, thus leaving those schools with high, one-race majorities.

Students in grades 4 through 8 would be bused within their district, no more than 3 1/2 miles for any student, thus making those schools multi-racial.

High school students also would not be bused, thus possibly leaving those schools primarily one race.

To aid desegregation at the high school level, however, Taylor ordered construction of a "magnet" school in each district — better equipped schools which theoretically would provide higher quality education than other high schools.

High school students would be given the option of enrolling in schools within their communities, or being bused to the closest magnet school.

"If anyone thinks this has been an easy task, let him think again," Taylor said. "If anyone thinks I have not lost sleep over this, let him think again."

The judge said he realized not all parents, students or parties to the desegregation were satisfied with the ruling.

Secret pledge given

BOSTON (UPI) — President Ford has given a "secret pledge" to China to cut the American military presence on Taiwan in half during the next year. The Boston Globe said today.

The Globe, in a copyrighted story by William Beecher, said it was told by "well-placed administration officials" Ford made the promise to Vice Premier Teng Haiao-Ping during a visit to mainland China in December.

"Word of the prospective force reduction was meant not only to continue the trend set in motion by Richard Nixon four years ago, but also to reassure China's leaders that the United States was determined to further the process of normalized relations even if it wasn't quite ready to break formal diplomatic ties with Nationalist China and establish them with Communist China," the article said.

Carter predicts showdown

By LEWIS LORD
United Press International
Jimmy Carter says next Tuesday's Illinois primary will be another showdown between him and George Wallace and will show that "Florida wasn't an accident."

Two surveys of Florida voters showed today many Wallace supporters said they deserted the Alabama governor because of his health problem and that Carter drew large support from almost all categories of voters.

President Ford, also fresh off a primary win in Florida flies to Illinois for a two-day campaign and a visit Saturday to North Carolina, while Ronald Reagan, playing down the importance of the Illinois voting, campaigned in Wisconsin.

Also in Wisconsin, whose primary is April 6, was Democrat Fred Harris, who was announcing a major campaign strategy shift. A Harris spokesman said the campaign would narrow its focus and concentrate on electing delegates, instead of trying to win popular votes, and that Harris will campaign heavily in Illinois, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania, virtually ignoring North Carolina and New York.

Both Carter and Wallace were in Illinois today, and Carter said upon arrival Wednesday Wallace is his main opponent, though Harris and Sargent Shriver are also on the ballot.

"Illinois is my most important state in the nation," Carter said. "It will show that Florida wasn't an accident."

A Miami Herald analysis of an NBC survey of Florida primary voters showed Wallace lost Florida because only half the people who said they agreed with him actually voted for him. The biggest factor in desertion of Wallace voters, according to both the Herald and a similar Washington Post survey, was his paralysis.

The Post survey showed Carter's appeal was "exceptionally broad based" and cut across almost all interest lines and ideologies.

Reagan, campaigning in Illinois Wednesday night, didn't attach much importance to beating Ford in Illinois. His main objective, he insisted, was "to establish the fact that we can make a good showing."

"Getting 49 per cent of the vote in New Hampshire and 47 per cent in Florida," Reagan said, "does not mean that you fold your tent and silently steal away."

Ford said he assumes Reagan "will be in the ball game" until the GOP convention in August, although a Chicago Sun-Times poll showed the President ahead in Illinois by a margin of 53 per cent to 32 per cent.

Wallace agrees there are similarities between the Florida and Illinois contests.

"The Democratic party asked the liberals to stay out of Florida so they could defeat me there," Wallace told reporters at Champaign, Ill. "So I think I did very good in Florida. I think they mostly are doing the same in Illinois but I am going to do well here."

Carter said he would consider another Arab oil embargo "a declaration of economic war" to be met with a ban on U.S. sales of food and arms to Arab nations, and that he would offer a job to the 10 per cent welfare recipients who are capable of working full time and deny them benefits if they refuse it.

"The other 90 per cent ought to be treated with love, affection, decency and respect," he added.

Henry Jackson, who won the Massachusetts primary but finished third in Florida, said Carter's Florida win had only "Southern significance."

Bailey questions man

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — After two days of cross examining the most damaging witness against Patricia Hearst with only limited success, defense attorney F. Lee Bailey suggested he could use some help from the CIA.

When that failed, Bailey made one last attempt to discredit Dr. Joel Fort by producing critical letters written 18 years ago by colleagues who called Fort hostile and inept.

Fort, a physician and criminologist, completed five days on the stand Wednesday without modifying his testimony that the newspaper heiress joined the Symbionese Liberation Army just a few weeks after her kidnapping and willingly participated in the bank robbery for which she is standing trial.

The second and last prosecution psychiatric witness, Dr. Harry L. Kozol, director of a center for criminally dangerous sex offenders at Bridgewater, Mass., followed Fort into the witness box.

County stock show readies for Saturday

Exhibitors, judges and sponsors are ready for the start of the largest County Junior Livestock Show in the show's history at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Clyde Carruth Pavilion.

The show, sponsored by the Noon Lions Club of Pampa, has attracted 47 steers and 99 barrows entered by Gray County 4-Hers and FFA students from Pampa and McLean.

Joe Wheeley, agriculture chairman of the Noon Lions Club and show superintendent, said the group sponsors the annual show to "give Gray County 4-H and FFA youth a chance to exhibit their steer and pig projects."

Judges at the one-day show will be Larry Schickedanz, head of the agriculture department at Frank Phillips Junior College, and Jerry Hawkins, agriculture department head at Clarendon Junior College. Schickedanz will judge steers and Hawkins will place entries in the swine division.

"These are two of the top judges from this area," Wheeley said.

Animals will be tied through six places, he added.

The County Junior Livestock Show is a non-profit project of the Noon Lions Club and is a warm-up for area youngsters who will compete in the seven-county area Top 10 Texas Junior Livestock Show on Monday.

"We're expecting this year's show to be the best ever and we urge everyone to come out to the Clyde Carruth Pavilion. There is no admission charge," Wheeley said.

Did House reject Queen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House — as predicted — is having second thoughts about its rejection of Queen Elizabeth's invitation to a 25-member congressional delegation to go to London to pick up the Magna Carta for the Bicentennial.

The proposal was turned down 219 to 167 Tuesday when the House leadership offered it as a routine resolution requiring unanimous consent. Some members called the trip an unnecessary junket that would cost taxpayers $50,000.

In a 13-0 vote Wednesday, however, the House Rules Committee agreed to send the resolution to the floor for another vote, and the full House is expected to take it up — and probably pass it — next week.

The Parliament asked that 25 members of Congress go to London in May to take part in three days of ceremonies with the Queen, government officials and Parliament, during which one of the four original copies of the Magna Carta would be loaned to the United States for a year of display in the rotunda of the Capitol to mark the Bicentennial.

Speaker Carl Albert, outraged by the House's rejection of the request said at the time he would reverse the outcome "if it takes my life."

Rep. Lindy Boggs, D-La., chairman of the Joint Congressional Bicentennial Committee, told the rules committee Wednesday: "I certainly think there has been a great misunderstanding. I certainly don't think members of Congress are unappreciative of the gift."

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., agreed that 25 congressmen and senators, as requested by Britain, should go to London.

"If just two or three people from Congress went over for the ceremonies in Westminster Hall, it would look like we don't appreciate it," he said.

Baker recorders stolen

Three thefts, two accidents, a reported hit and run and the recovery of a stolen vehicle were recorded on the Pampa Police Department blotter Wednesday.

Floyd Sackett, principal of Baker Elementary School, said three Toshiba cassette tape recorders, one other cassette tape recorder, one bottle of Phenobarbital and one bottle of unknown tranquilizers had been taken from the school.

The Western Hotel at 821 E. Frederic also reported a theft. Emory Crockett of the motel said someone had taken a hair dryer, a stove, a blue styling brush, a pocket knife and some change.

Sixteen concrete forms made of plywood were reported missing from Atlas Tanks at 200 W. Thut. Tom Claterbaugh told police the forms were valued at $160.

A 1976 Nova parked near Marie Foundations was checked through the National Crime

Information Center and the Texas Crime Information Center which said the car was reported stolen in December.

The hit and run accident occurred in the 300 block of N. Perry. A parked car belonging to Elizabeth Houdashell was hit and the other vehicle left the scene.

A non-injury accident was reported at Lefors and Kingsmill and Richard Lynn McElliott of 1522 N. Faulkner was driving in the 1400 block of W. 23rd when six-year-old Michelle Lynn Baker swerved in front of him on a bicycle. She was treated and released at Highland General Hospital. No citation was issued.

Two arrested for burglary

The Pampa Police Department detectives arrested Gary Lyn Bolch, 17, and a juvenile in connection with the Feb. 12 burglary of the Budweiser Beer Warehouse at 321 W. Atchison.

Detective J.J. Ryzman said the pair reported they had taken the two 15 1/2-gallon stainless steel kegs of beer to have a party. The kegs were valued at $35 each.

Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford set bond at $1,000 on Bolch.

NEW FAVORITES

NEW YORK (UPI) — A market research organization says many consumers are bypassing old drink favorites to sample and switch to newly developed beverages. Frost and Sullivan's survey indicates vodka will continue to sell well, but rum, brandy, cordials, tequila and Canadian whiskey will continue to gain larger shares of the market. Research showed that Scotch whiskey consumption has leveled off, while Canadian is gaining consistently.

Playground death ruled homicide

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The death of a 12-year-old girl who was struck in the head with a rock thrown by a playmate was ruled homicide Wednesday.

Justice of the Peace Jon Wisser ruled homicide in the death of Kathy Drake, who died Saturday of a brain hemorrhage in Brackenridge Hospital. Funeral services were held for the girl Thursday.

Police homicide Sgt. Doyle Bailey said the girl was struck in the right temple with a ping-pong ball-sized stone March 3. The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Drake, were in Laredo where Mrs. Drake was to see a doctor.

Bailey said a 13-year-old girl threw the stone that allegedly caused the girl's death.

He said he will confer with the district attorney's office to determine what action should be taken against the youngster.

The girl's aunt, Sylvia Martinez, rushed Kathy to the hospital where x-rays indicated her skull was not fractured. Mrs. Martinez remained at the facility with the girl overnight during observation.

"I told her she wouldn't die because that's what the doctors told me," Mrs. Martinez said.

The girl was released from the hospital last Thursday. When she returned for examination Friday, she was readmitted.

'She tried to tie bib around my neck'

Lobster-delight from bib to burp

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

It's all in your point of view. To some folks the 12-pound Maine lobster that served as a centerpiece for Saturday's seafood buffet dinner at Pampa Country Club looked like an ugly monster from the deep.

But to those who enjoy donning a bib and plying the claw crackles to the flavorsome red crustaceans, it looked like a dozen pounds of sheer ecstasy.

None of the places I frequented, when growing up in the Texas Panhandle or attending West Texas State University in Canyon, carried lobster on the menus. I first was exposed to the lobster eating experience in a Boston restaurant, name of Jimmy's Harborside.

I felt a little out of place in the establishment. There wasn't a single set of polished steer horns hanging in the place. No telling what they'd have served if a fellow had ordered a chicken-fried steak.

In lieu of the horns I suppose, they had a sizeable fishing boat decorating one of the walls in the rather large dining room.

To add to my discomfort, shortly after taking the order, the waitress tied a bib around my neck.

And it was pretty awkward figuring out how to utilize the utensils one must pry apart the lobster's covering.

But when the first morsel of tender white delight, dripping with drawn butter, exploded with flavor in my mouth, everything else was forgotten.

Lobster is an experience, from bib to burp, that is difficult to equal and may well be impossible to surpass.

But then I am fond of sea food. I like shrimp, fried or boiled, and most any kind of conventional looking fish prepared most any way, conventional or otherwise. A pail of steamed clams is a treat and oysters on the half shell ("You mean RAW?") are good, even considering the way they feel in the mouth.

Perhaps one reason many Panhandle sea food lovers love sea food is that it reminds them of vacations to areas where it is as common as barbecue is in this region.

I seldom eat fish without pleasant memories of an old restaurant in Lima, Peru — Trece Monedas — where we dined on a fish called corvina which had been cooked in a superb wine sauce.

We admired the speed and efficiency displayed by a waiter who was serving baked Alaska to a party at an adjoining table. He served the dozen or so portions while we watched attentively, then said something to an assistant who hurried away and returned with more plates, then he dished out two more servings and placed them before us. The baked Alaska in Peru is superb, at least in that particular restaurant.

The Chinese food we had in that city wasn't bad either, but that's another story.

Chef Scott Greene at the Country Club has three favorite sea food dishes, each featuring a different main ingredient. He likes Sautéed Crabmeat, Greek Shrimp, and the Lobster Omelet.

Chef Greene agreed to share his recipes with The News:

Sautéed Crabmeat

6 ounces crabmeat per person
2 tablespoons dry sherry
1 tablespoon butter or olive oil

Put butter or olive oil in heavy frying pan on low heat. When butter or oil is hot, add crabmeat and cook for 6 minutes, stirring all the time so the crabmeat will not burn. After 5 minutes has passed add the sherry for the final minute's cooking.

Chef Greene serves this easy to prepare dish with rice, scrambled eggs, or on toast, English muffins or dumplings.

Greek Shrimp

2 pounds raw shrimp
2 lemons
1 teaspoon dry sherry
1 cup tomato puree
2 cloves garlic, chopped
1/2 cup butter or substitute
3 cups water, cold
Season to taste.

Wash and peel shrimp. Put butter in heavy pan and heat. Add shrimp and cook for 5 minutes, stirring so shrimp does not burn. Add the garlic and cook 5 more minutes on low heat. Add rest of ingredients and cook for 10 minutes on low heat.

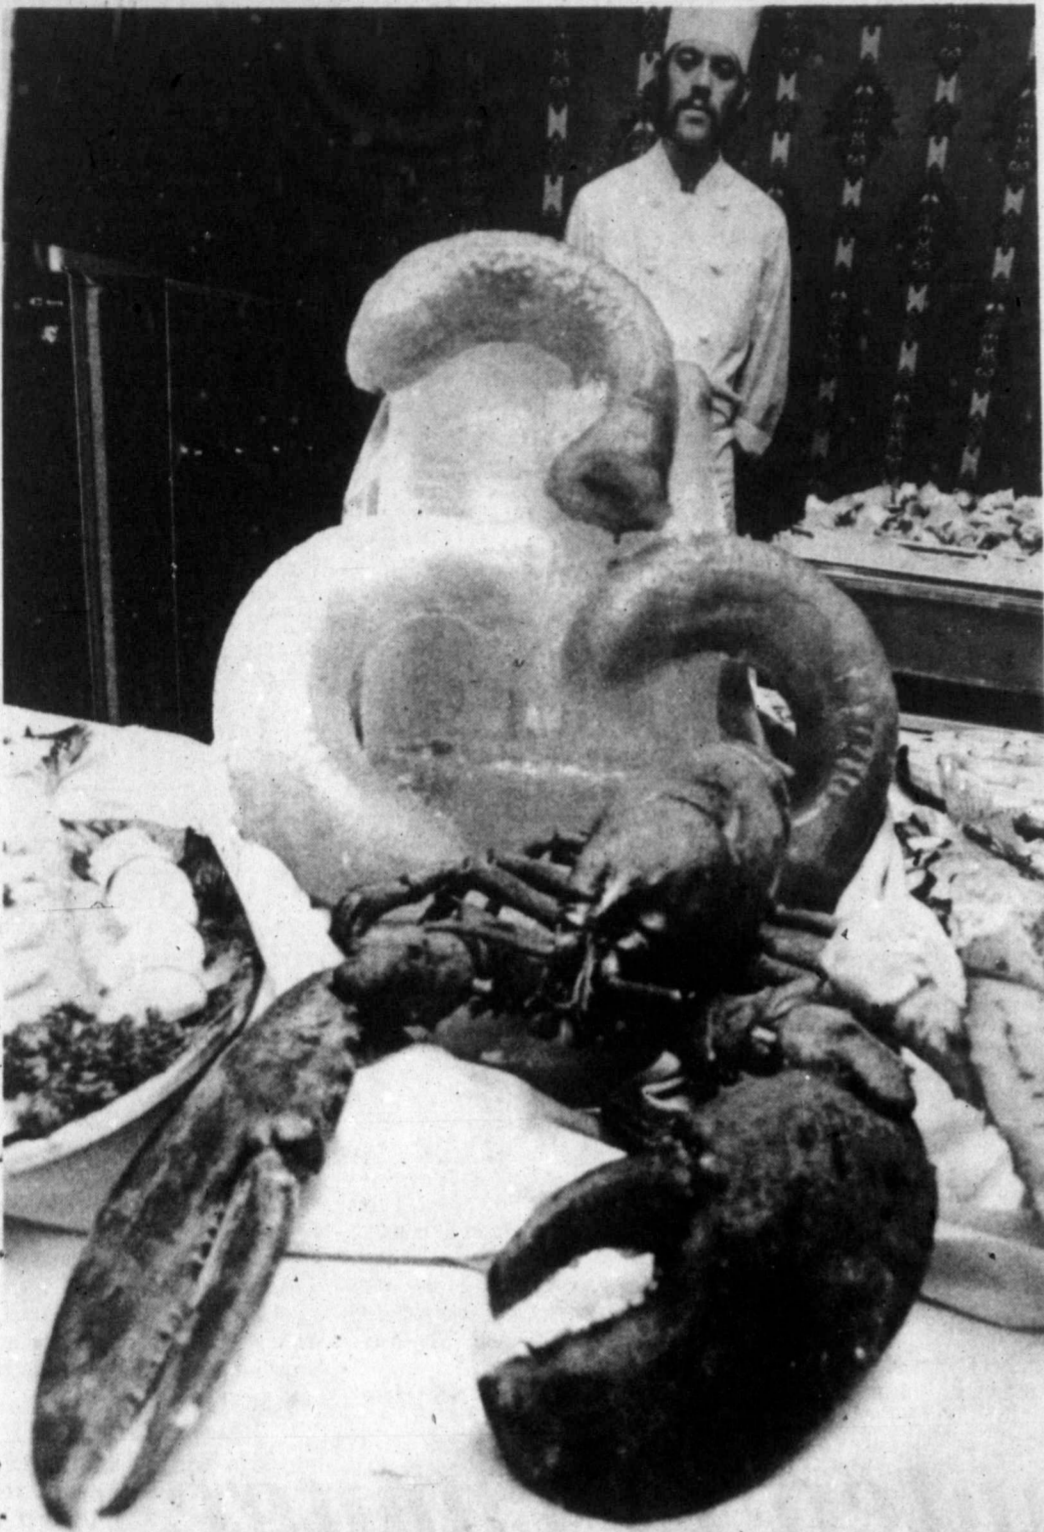

It will serve four to six persons and Chef Greene serves it on rice, chow mein noodles or butter noodles.

Lobster Omelet

2 tablespoons butter
1 cup chopped lobster
4 eggs
one-third cup milk
Season to taste.

Put butter in heavy pan on low heat and when butter is hot add the lobster. Cook until lobster is done. Remove lobster but keep pan and butter hot. Beat eggs and milk together with seasoning and pour in pan. Allow the egg mixture to set then add lobster. Fold sides together and when done, remove from pan and place on plate.

It serves four persons and any seafood may be substituted for the lobster, Chef Greene said.

A dozen pounds of denizen

The delectable denizen of the deep that adorned the table at the Pampa Country Club seafood buffet dinner Saturday weighed 12 pounds. Chef Scott Greene used the monster lobster with an ice carving to create his centerpiece.

Research points to seed protein

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Nuts and seeds may become strong competition in the marketplace for milk, eggs and fresh meat, the Cadillacs of the food protein line, says Dr. Carl Cater, a researcher at Texas A and M University in College Station.

Cater heads the Oilseed Products Division of the Food Protein and Development Center, which is developing protein products to use in food for humans. The research focuses on peanuts, cottonseeds, sunflower seeds and soybeans, which Cater said are especially important sources of protein for foreign countries.

"What we're trying to do here is devise new products and new food processing technology and make these available to industry," he added in an interview.

This year, farmers in West Texas grew thousands of acres of sunflowers, whose seeds yield a protein-rich cooking oil.

A manufacturing plant in Waco in Central Texas is processing glandless cottonseed kernels to use as nut substitutes in confections and bakery products.

"All they're waiting for is approval from the Food and Drug Administration to use it in the food trade," Cater said. "Food products from the nuts definitely could help solve the world hunger problem. Cater said, because protein probably is the No. 1 shortage in most diets."

"For the developing countries of the world, this could be of tremendous importance," Cater said. "To overcome the problems of malnutrition they very badly need the technology to produce low-cost proteins."

At the request of the federal government, the center developed a process for producing food materials from coconuts. Samples of the products were sent to the Philippines, the world's largest supplier of coconuts.

"They were so impressed that they got the funds for building a processing plant in the Philippines and requested personnel from here to supervise construction of the pilot plant," Cater said.

Materials produced by the plant will be evaluated by the Philippine food industry.

"The government is sufficiently enthused by this product that they requested enough of it to be used in their school lunch program next April," Cater said.

Cater said the country could not only help its citizens' overall diet "because they are a protein-low nation," but also could boost its economic situation.

The market for oilseed products, mostly flours and oils, probably will broaden, he said.

Cater said some developing nations have seed products readily available, but are not using them as a source of protein for people.

"The sort of technology we're developing can help feed their people," Cater said. "We're not in the business to develop final food products to put on the marketplace."

Information and technology developed at the center is available to the food industry.

"For instance, there's the opportunity to produce better overall diets by the use of oilseed proteins along with meat proteins," Cater said. "Consumers are beginning to become more sophisticated in their appreciation of nutritional values."

Oilseeds offer one advantage over meats as protein sources: the seeds do not contain cholesterol.

"I think we will see an increase in the use of oilseed proteins, particularly in institutional feeding," Cater said.

Pork Hocks and Lima Bean Stew

Put 6 fresh pork hocks and 2 quarts in a large kettle. Add 2 teaspoons salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 2 crushed garlic cloves, one bay leaf, 8 whole cloves and one medium size onion pared and quartered. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 1 1/2 hours. Meanwhile, rinse 1 pound dry lima beans. Put them and five cups water in large saucepan and boil for two minutes. Remove from heat, cover and let soak one hour. Drain. Add beans to hocks and continue to simmer 30 minutes. Add 1 pound carrots, pared and cut into chunks. Simmer 30 minutes more, or until meat and vegetables are tender. Discard bay leaf, skin hocks with a sharp knife. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Amid downtown bustle, some good home cooking

By RONALD L. LITTLEPAGE

HOUSTON (UPI) — People at Glatzmaier Seafood Market and Restaurant smile a lot, even those waiting in a lunch line that stretches around the corner.

Doctors, lawyers, judges, policemen, secretaries — people of all kinds — are attracted there by the aroma of fish, shrimp and oysters frying in deep vats of crackling cooking oil.

The smiles are caused by the anticipated meal, the jazz clarinet player who serves as a happy piper on Fridays at noon and the greetings from Johanna "Momma" Piazza and her two sons and daughter.

"I'm never too busy for my customers. I'm everybody's momma that comes through the line — young and old," Mrs. Piazza explained after dishing out oyster and shrimp poorboys and seafood platters to a lunchtime crowd with a smile on her face that looks like it's accustomed to being there.

"We cook here just like we cook at home," she said. "We want it to be like one big family."

And it is. Glatzmaier's began in 1907 as a seafood market on Market Square, the site once intended for the state capitol. Now it's located in a row of buildings a block away from the old square in the shadow of the futuristic structures of Houston.

The Piazzas want to keep the atmosphere of the market originated by friends of their grandparents. And it is still a market, selling fresh seafood both wholesale and retail, as well as a lunch counter.

The inside walls are dotted with mementos of the sea — an old whaler's harpoon, oars and a swordfish bill. Up to 50 customers at a time sit at long tables covered with red checkered cloths, antique wooden ceiling fans stirring the air.

They're there because Momma Piazza began cooking meals for her family and workers at the market on a tiny stove in the back. The poignant smells lured people to her stove. More and more came with requests for lunch until a restaurant began, the first customers standing around wooden olive barrels.

Lobster combines with chicken

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Many food treats from around the world are now possible to make in North America because the basic ingredients are shipped regularly from their source. A classic example is the South African rock lobster which is available nationally. It makes the base for a pleasing Spanish dish that also includes chicken. The chicken helps stretch the amount of lobster needed and the whole marriage comes about via a smoothing tomato-mushroom sauce.

CHICKEN AND ROCK LOBSTER COSTA BRAVA

16 ounces of frozen South African rock lobster tails
4 whole chicken breasts, split salt and pepper
1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
2 tablespoons dry sherry
1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced

Chocolate Chip Steamed Pudding

1 1/2 cups semi-sweet chocolate chips
1/2 cup water
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate chips with 1/2 cup water in top of double boiler over simmering water; stir to blend well.

Beat eggs until foamy on medium speed of mixer, gradually add sugar. Blend in chocolate mixture and vanilla. Combine flour, salt, baking soda and cream of tartar. On low speed of mixer add dry ingredients alternately with 3/4 cup water, beating just until combined. Pour into a generously greased and sugared (granulated) 5 or 6-cup mold or heat-proof bowl, filling about 3/4 full. Cover mold loosely with waxed paper or aluminum foil and tie securely around edge with string. Place a rack in a large kettle or saucepan; pour water into kettle to top of rack. Bring water to boil; place mold on rack. Cover kettle and steam over simmering water about 2 hours and 15 minutes. (Additional water may be needed.) Remove from heat, cool 10 minutes, remove cover and unmold onto a serving tray. Cut into wedges, serve warm with whipped cream and cherry sauce.

1/4 cup flour
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
2 tablespoons tomato paste
2 tablespoons chopped chives
3 tomatoes, each cut into 6 wedges

Parboil frozen South African rock lobster tails by dropping into boiling salted water. When water reboils, drain immediately and drench with cold water. With scissors, remove underside membrane and pull meat out in one piece. Cut each tail into one-half inch thick crosswise slices.

Sprinkle chicken breasts on all sides with salt and pepper. Brush chicken with melted butter or margarine. Place in a large skillet. Sprinkle sherry over chicken. Cover skillet tightly and poach chicken in its own juices for 30 to 35 minutes or until chicken is cooked. Remove pieces of chicken to a platter and keep warm. Add mushrooms to pan juices and simmer for 5 minutes.

In a bowl mix flour and chicken broth until smooth. Stir this mixture into mushrooms. Stir in tomato paste and chives. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Add rock lobster to sauce, along with tomato wedges. Simmer 2 minutes until rock lobster meat is opaque and heated through, seasoning sauce to taste with salt and pepper. Pour sauce over chicken breasts. Serve hot, with rice pilaf. Makes 8 servings.

Lions club to present Spirit of '76

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

The Pampa Noon Lions Club will present their 37th annual variety show, this edition entitled "The Spirit of '76," at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Funds raised by the event go to support the many civic projects of the Lions — eyeglasses for children, the crippled children's camp, the High Plains Eye Bank, and others. Last year the net proceeds totalled almost $4,000. It is a traditionally successful event. Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan will not sing in the program this year. "I just don't have the time this year," he said. "I've been in 26 of them in a row — 19 and 50 was the first one." The master of ceremonies for the show will again be Pinky Schultz. He has served in that capacity for the past 11 years, he said. "This is the second show in M.K. Brown," he said. "It is great." "Everybody seems to have a little ham in them and it comes out in these shows," Sheriff Jordan explained. Bill Hite, president of the Noon Lions Club, said, "This show will be, I guarantee, good, clean, family entertainment. The specialty numbers are the best I've ever seen since I've been in the shows." The backdrop for the show was designed and painted by Ray Williams on a piece of canvas 51 feet by 18 feet. He spent about 90 hours on the project, he said. Williams was responsible for the backdrop at the Paul Harvey show and said he did five backdrops for shows in M.K. Brown last year.

Hite said that the show will feature audience participation during intermission. "We're going to have 'Lion's Make a Deal,' he said, "with host G. Howie Smells (J.A. Martindale)." The show will open with a medley by the band and chorus. Randy Cantrell will follow with "Oh! Susanna." Rochelle Lacy will perform "Can't Help Loving That Man," and next will be Max Presnell with something listed as "a surprise." Tim Hoiles will sing "Ole Man River," followed by the end men with "Butter Beans." The first half of the show will conclude with the band and chorus performing "Dixie." Following intermission the band and chorus will open the second half with "Strike Up the Band" and "Happy Days Are Here Again." Karen and Sandra Anderson will perform "G.I. Jive," and will be followed with "Join Hands" by The Spirit of '76, a group of eight Pampa High School singers. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "Grand Old Flag" will be rendered by the band and chorus. Cheryl McGeahy will perform "Stardust," Jimmy Ledbetter,

"Jive Time," Brenda Wheat, "This Is My Heritage," and Wanetta Hill, who is also the director of the show, will sing "I Write the Song" and "The Way We Were." The performance will close with the entire cast performing a patriotic medley. Tickets at $2 each are available at Montgomery Ward, Whites Auto, Heard and Jones Drug, or from any Noon Lions Club member.

She wanted to change injustice through courts

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A childhood ambition to change injustice through the courts prompted Sue Ray, 28, of Post to become a lawyer. Tuesday, she became the first female attorney to try a case in 31st District Court here in many years. She represented a father in a termination of parental rights suit. The father's rights were severed; since he had paid no child support for his 10-year old son since his divorce was granted in 1967. The mother was given custody of the boy.

A court order said he was to pay $50 monthly beginning on Sept. 15, 1967, until the child reached 18 years of age. "The child support delinquent payments now exceed $5,000," said Harold Comer, Pampa attorney who represented the mother. Ms. Ray told the court her client was not denying the allegations that he paid no child support. However, she said he was led to believe that the support would not be accepted. She was referring to alleged statements by child's maternal grandfather, now deceased. "If termination is the result of today's proceedings it will never erase these people from the child's mind," she emphasized. She was speaking of the father and paternal grandparents. Rowdy Bowers, Pampa attorney, who listened to the evidence on the child's behalf, recommended that termination be granted. "I think it is an insult to the court's intelligence to say that because he (the father) had a quarrel with his ex-wife's father he did not pay child support. He should be held in contempt of court," Bowers said.

He added that a total stranger has probably done more for the child than his real father. Comer said under the Family Code which became effective in 1974 that parental rights may be severed if no child support is paid according to one's ability within a year and if it is in the best interest of the child. Comer in his statements to the court said the child's father was in the Armed Services from 1969 to 1971 and took a Class Q allotment for the child, who never received the money. Judge Grainger Melhoney ruled that severing the father's parental rights would be in the child's best interest.

Mosquito plague feared

HOUSTON (UPI) — The mosquito Aedes aegypti originated in the African jungles but evolved into an urban creature that could live no where else. It left its native home aboard the water barrels of early sailing ships and made its breeding grounds man's trash, choosing in modern times discarded automobile tires.

The pesky insect became the carrier of yellow fever, a disease that's been effectively controlled in the United States since the early 1900's with a vaccine developed by the Rockefeller Foundation. But the Aedes aegypti can also transmit dengue, a disease characterized by high fever and severe joint pain.

Republican women begin membership drive here

Global grain exports will increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American grain sales to Russia which currently stand at 13.3 million tons since last July 1 may rise by another 5 to 6 million tons before Sept. 30.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Bell, summarizing the current trade outlook at a briefing, said that despite a drought which has cut deeply into 1976 winter wheat prospects in the Southern Plains, global grain exports can continue through 1977 at this year's record pace without threatening to spur food inflation for American consumers. Bell's briefing, following several weeks of reports that Soviet buyers will soon be back in the American market for the first new orders placed since last November, reaffirmed those prospects and added some fresh details.

Bell said he thinks Soviet officials are likely to buy another 2-3 million tons of corn before long, although he does not know when orders may be placed. This purchase would bring combined Soviet wheat and corn orders from the record 1975 American harvests to 15.3-16.3 million tons.

Agriculture experts said they doubted Russia will buy any significant further amount of American 1975 crop wheat in the marketing season which ends for that crop on June 30. But Bell said he thinks the Soviets will order 2-3 million tons of 1976 American wheat between July 1, when the new wheat season starts, and Oct. 1 when a previously-negotiated five year Soviet-American grain deal takes effect.

The combined 5-6 million tons in new corn and wheat sales through Sept. 30 would lift the 15 month total from last July 1 through Sept. 30 to as high as 19.3 million tons. But Bell pointed out the U.S. earlier had notified the Soviets they could feel free to buy, without further consultation, a total of 21 million tons in the 15-month period. The 21 million ton figure included 17 million tons of 1975 crop corn and wheat plus 4 million tons of 1976 wheat shipped before Oct. 1.

Beginning Oct. 1, the Soviet-American long term deal allows the Russians to buy up to 8 million tons of grain a year initially and to get more if they first consult the U.S. government. Bell said he believes sales in the first year of the new agreement will top the 8 million ton mark.

GOP group won't comply

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A private Republican organization has refused to comply with a compromise resolution adopted by the state party's executive committee in hopes of avoiding further fund raising squabbles.

The resolution, proposed by State Republican Executive Committee member Ray Barnhart of Pasadena, asked the Associated Republicans of Texas to comply with party guidelines in fund raising efforts.

But the head of the ART said Wednesday the SREC had inefficiently handled its own fund raising affairs, and should not try to control private groups. "You have stated our program should be brought under control of the SREC," said ART chairman Julian Zimmerman in comments directed at SREC head Rep. Ray Hutchison, R-Dallas. "You have implied we have used deceptive practices, among many derogatory remarks you made. In assessing carefully the budgets of our respective organizations, I find that your charges against ART must have been made from frustration and failure since your debt structure suggests that you will be unable to support candidates this year."

Court to rule on savings, loans

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The state Supreme Court says it will decide if Savings and Loan Commission rules are flexible, or should be applied to the letter of the law.

The court agreed Wednesday to hear arguments April 14 in a case to determine if commissioner W. Sadle Lewis acted too late in approving charters for institutions in Jacksonville and Nacogdoches.

The commission rules say new applications must be either accepted or rejected within 45 days of their hearing, but in approving Cherokee Savings and Loan Association's charter in Jacksonville Lewis waited 123 days.

In approving Nacogdoches' Timberline Savings and Loan Association's charter Lewis waited 114 days. Savings and loan companies already located in the two cities filed suit against the competitors and the commission, saying the charters were void because of the delay. At the same time Cherokee Savings asked permission to

Wilson fails to win okay on spending cut

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government has failed to win approval of its plan to slash $10 billion in public spending, touching off an opposition call for an immediate vote of confidence.

The vote in Parliament on the motion to trim the budgets of the national health system and other social services was voted down Wednesday night 284 to 256.

It was the first major defeat for the Wilson government since winning the last general election in October, 1974. The challenge to the government was immediate. As the vote was announced, opposition Conservative members began shouting, "Out, out, out."

"The government has been decisively defeated and discredited on a matter central to its whole economic policy," said Margaret Thatcher, leader of the Conservatives. She called the defeat "unprecedented in modern times" and said the government should either resign or seek a vote of confidence on the issue. The

Comet visible over Pampa area

The Comet West, named for Richard M. West who discovered it in Nov. 1975, has been visible for several days in the Pampa area. Called "the milkman comet," it is best seen, if skies are clear, an hour before sunrise in the eastern skies. It appears low on the horizon with its tail sticking up because it is racing away from the sun.

Dr. Brian Marsden of the Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., said that observers using small telescopes or binoculars should be able to see the comet for the remainder of March. He said that it is not visible in daylight hours because the sky is too light by comparison and it also is difficult to see near cities. By a half hour before sunrise the sky becomes too light to see the comet, the scientist said.

Duval going broke

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Duval County, which has had numerous former officials either indicted, impeached or imprisoned, won't have enough money by Aug. 1 to pay its employees unless the state helps. State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Wednesday said his auditors discovered the county's financial plight in a routine check.

"But as anyone who can read the newspaper can imagine, there's nothing routine about Duval County," he said. "I've asked these auditors to write a full report on what they've found. I want to know how public funds could be systematically looted and what this office can do to discourage it in the future." Bullock said Duval would be able to cover its debts, preventing default. But he said more than half the county's revenue was being used to pay

Secret Service agents guarded Bentsen

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Here are some news items from the nation's capital of interest to Texans.

BON VOYAGE — While top White House aides are reportedly grumbling about former President Richard Nixon's planned trip to China, the state's Republican senator has little to say on the matter. "It doesn't bother me any," Sen. John Tower, R - Wichita Falls, said of Nixon's planned journey. Tower was more irked at the comments of Democratic National Committee Chairman Robert Strauss than he was at the Nixon trip. Strauss said recently on national television that the Nixon trip was ill-planned.

"I would suggest the President might very well make clear that (Nixon) is a man who has no standing in this country — that he is a man who forfeited his right to influence this country," said Strauss, a Texan. "It's an outrage this thing's being carried on." Upon learning of Strauss' comments, Tower responded. "He whacks at an outrageous drop of a hat. I'd rate that as a partisan comment and leave it at that."

COSTLY CAMPAIGN — Although Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D - Houston, received $511,000 in federal matching funds in his aborted attempt at the presidency, the total cost of his presidential campaign to the taxpayers might never be known.

For approximately four months, Bentsen was guarded by Secret Service agents, who trailed the senator wherever he went around the country. But it appears the public will never know how much Bentsen's Secret Service protection cost the American taxpayers.

"The Service never discloses the cost of protective details," or the number of agents, said George Cosper, a spokesman for the Secret Service. "We want to keep the number of our players secret."

An aide to Bentsen said that the senator was usually tailed by one agent while in Washington. However, when traveling, his protective contingent was generally six.

CONSERVATIVE LEANINGS — Republican Reps. James Collins of Dallas and William Archer of Houston

ported the most conservative voting records last year among the 24 - member Texas House delegation.

Receiving the lowest marks in the conservative Americans for Constitutional Action (ACA) survey of 28 House votes was Houston Democrat Robert Eckhardt and Barbara Jordan. Eckhardt voted with the ACA only 5 per cent of the time while Jordan sided with the group at a 6 per cent clip.

Archer voted with ACA 98 per cent of the time. Collins sported a 93 per cent rating. Sen. John Tower, R - Wichita Falls, received a 92 per cent rating from the conservative group based on 28 Senate votes. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D - Houston, got a 40 per cent mark.

Rep. Alan Steelman, R - Dallas, who barring any upsets in the May primary will challenge Bentsen next November for his Senate seat, received a 74 per cent rating from the ACA.

Utah, nearly three-fourths Mormon, has the lowest cancer death rate of any state: 27 per cent lower for men and 26 per cent lower for women. Mormons abstain from alcohol, tobacco, tea and coffee.

'Why don't you speak English?'

PORT ISABEL, Tx. (UPI) — More than 190 Vietnamese refugees who settled in this Gulf Coast fishing village are getting early exposure to American democracy — South Texas style.

They have found themselves in the center of a school board controversy some say was starting before the refugees arrived last summer to take jobs in the shrimp fishing fleet.

"Most of this is actually political," said Lupe Moreno, manager of a shrimping firm that employs most of the Vietnamese men. "It's just a small group (causing the dissension). They want to control the school board.

"If it wasn't the Vietnamese, it would be something else."

The Texas Education Agency began an investigation of alleged improprieties by some school board members.

The controversy involves alleged favorable treatment afforded more than 100 Vietnamese children involved in a special program funded by a stipend from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in the Port Isabel school system.

The protagonists are Mexican-American residents whose ethnic group only in recent years won bilingual programs for the Spanish speaking students in South Texas.

"This is utterly ridiculous," said Greta Latham, wife of the district's superintendent and head of the Vietnamese program. "It seems to me it's discrimination in reverse."

The school board voted not to renew the contracts of Mrs.

Latham and five other teachers, but last week had to rescind the action on a technicality. At the meeting a group of Mexican-Americans exhorted the Vietnamese:

"This is America, why don't you speak English."

Similar epithets were hurled at Spanish-speaking groups when they pressed for bilingual programs in past years.

One administrator said the removals were prompted by school board opposition to Dr. James Latham, the superintendent, but his wife said she viewed it as being directed against the Vietnamese.

Several Vietnamese parents and students have petitioned the school board to rehire the teachers. Presumably action on the matter will come up at the next school board meeting on March 16.

Mrs. Latham said the Vietnamese program received good marks from the governor's office, State Department and HEW. She denied allegations by the dissenting group that the Vietnamese children received free tickets to a Charro Days celebration, free football tickets, threw food in the cafeteria and forced local children to be moved into barracks to make room for the refugees.

Both Mrs. Latham and Moreno said most of the predominantly Mexican-American community had welcomed the refugees: They said several Spanish-speaking groups offered assistance to them and the dissenters represented a "small minority."

Mrs. Latham accused one school board member of illegally taking files of some teachers, aides and teachers in the controversy, barging into a classroom and cursing in front of the children. She said teachers aides were called before the board to answer "unfounded" questions and accusations.

Loretta Perez, 22, a school trustee and leader of the effort to oust Mrs. Latham, conceded the Vietnamese program was the reason for her dismissal but she said the other contracts were not renewed because of regular personnel matters.

"We're not against the Vietnamese at all," Miss Perez said. "I feel the Vietnamese are being led by the administration to believe the people and the board are against this system. This is not so. Our minutes reflect immediately after their arrival here we took action to offer our services."

Water for food, fiber to be meeting topic

"Water for Food and Fiber Production" is the theme for the Texas A&M University Centennial Year Water for Texas Conference, Mar. 25-26.

This conference should provide valuable information for both urban and rural residents alike, and be of particular interest for people concerned with water's future use for food and fiber production," said Dr. Jack R. Hunkles, director of the Texas Water Resources Institute and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station professor.

Among major subjects for discussion, Hunkles said, are the role of irrigation agriculture in relation to the U.S. supply of food and fiber, cycles of climate and food production, impact of energy costs, and the U.S. position in the world food and fiber situation.

Sessions will be in A&M's Rudder Conference Center.

Dr. Jarvis E. Miller, director of the Experiment Station, the state's agricultural research agency, will preside at the opening session. Dr. Jack K. Williams, president of the Texas A&M University System, will welcome participants, and Dr. H.O. Kunkel, A&M dean of agriculture and acting director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will discuss "Food and Fiber Production: Technology and Resource Base."

Dr. E.O. Heady, economics professor at Iowa State University, will speak on the "U.S. Supply Situation for Food and Fiber and the Role of Irrigation Agriculture."

Hunkles said afternoon speakers will include Dr. Ray E. Jensen, director of the National Weather Service Environmental Studies Service Center at A&M, who will discuss "Cycles of Climate and Food Production," and Dr. Ronald D. Lacey, Experiment Station associate professor in resource economics, who will describe the impact of energy costs on production.

Other afternoon speakers will be Don Anderson of the Anderson Farms at Crosbyton, who will discuss "Critical Water Issues Facing High Plains Crop Producers," and Emery Castle, vice president, Resources for the Future, Washington, D.C., who will provide a summary and reaction.

Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton will address the annual banquet at 6:30 p.m. Mar. 25 in Room 225, Memorial Student Center. Bill J. Waddle, general manager, Texas Water Conservation Association, will preside.

Lead-off speaker on Mar. 26 will be Quentin West, administrator, Economic Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, who subject will be "The World Food and Fiber Situation and U.S. Position."

State Sen. A.R. Schwartz of Galveston will speak on "Impact of Bays and Estuaries on Food Demand in the State and Nation." W.D. Parish of Mercedes, general manager for Hidalgo-Cameron Counties Water Conservation Improvement District, will discuss "Irrigation Agriculture with Environmental Constraints."

A panel discussion on "Competition for Water" will close the program. Joe D. Carter, chairman of the Texas Water Rights Commission, will chair the panel.

Representing the oil and gas industry will be Mack Wallace, railroad commissioner. Bob Huston, Austin consulting engineer, will represent the power industry, while Henry Graesser, director of Water Utilities at Dallas, will represent the municipal segment. Sen. Schwartz will speak on the outlook for bays and estuaries.

New land, price to determine

If the call goes out to the nation's farmers for increased food production, they will likely respond as they have in the past —full speed ahead. But that will hinge on two key factors — new land will have to be brought into production, and prices for agricultural products will have to increase so that farmers will have an economic incentive.

Of course, improved management practices applied to existing cropland along with good weather would provide for some increase in total agricultural output.

As far as available land for agricultural production is concerned, about 266 million acres of forests and rangelands could be converted," said Dr. W.E. Black, an economist in marketing for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Citing figures by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, he said that some 361 million acres were tilled for crops last year.

"Of the forests and rangelands that could be converted to crop production, this expansion would likely start in three main areas of the country — the Northern and Southern Plains (primarily in Texas and Oklahoma) and the Corn Belt," said the Texas A&M University System specialist.

"Despite the fact that additional land exists for food production, farmers must have some incentive to produce," Black said. "This means that prices for agricultural products will have to increase from current levels and remain at these levels over a period of years for farmers to invest heavily and make the necessary capital expenditures to make more land usable."

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS

Several people have called the Water Conservation District Office during the past week concerning tail water recovery pits. One of the callers wanted to know why we described the irrigation run-off water as tail water. I am not sure who originated the use of the term in West Texas, but if the lay of the land is such that the water that enters the middles between the rows at one end and flows to the other end of the rows, we then speak of the "other end" of the rows as the tail end of the rows.

We use the term "surface-water recovery pump" to describe any type of irrigation water system other than irrigation wells. When a farmer digs a pit at the lowest place on a plot of farm land where the unused water will drain into, we call the excavation a "tail water" pit. Ordinarily he uses a pump that is sometimes referred to as a "sump pump" to move the recovered water to another area, needing water or to return it to the beginning point of the plot of land.

In West Texas the average tail water recovery pit will be dug about 80 feet wide, 220 feet long and about 8 feet deep at the deepest point. Most of the tail water pumps in use in our area are centrifugal, turbine or portable single tow lake pumps. Most water-use authorities estimate that an average of about 15 per cent of the total water pumped by an irrigation well will escape from the "tail end" of the rows and become waste water if the water is not diverted to a tail water recovery pit and re-used.

Foster Whaley has installed an excellent tail water recovery system on a farm operated in partnership with Rex McAnelly. Accurate records have been kept of the gallons of water moved by the tail water pump and also the number of gallons of rain water moved by the pump. A record has been kept of the fuel cost for the recovered irrigation tail water and for the recovered rain water. The test results have been compiled and will be published. James B. McCray of Panhandle has also installed equipment on one of his irrigated farms to keep an accurate record of the amount of water recovered and of the cost.

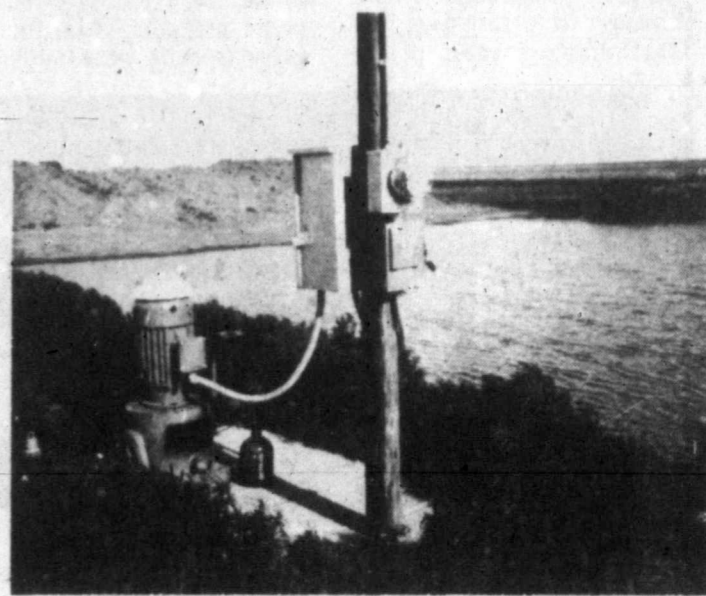

Tom Anderwald, on the Gray-Carson County line about four miles south of Kingsmill, operates two eight-inch irrigation wells and recovers all of the run-off water. He has an agreement with an adjoining farmer to the west for the run-off tail water from that farm. The repair bill on the Anderwald tail water sump pump is negligible. It operates at about 1300 revolutions per minute and moves water at the rate of 1200 gallons per minute. His irrigation wells lift water about 365 feet and operate at about 1790 revolutions per minute.

To lower the cost of fuel, some farmers are experimenting by irrigating every other row of winter wheat. One farmer told me that he will try to cut his use of water by 50 per cent.

Texas A&M University will hold its annual Texas Water Institute March 25-26 at College Station. Water For Food and Fiber Production will be the theme this year. One of the speakers will be Don Anderson of Crosbyton who owns and operates grain elevators and irrigation farms. He will discuss the critical issues facing the High Plains crop producers.

DRY HE WAS KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, is credited with bringing usquebaugh (whiskey) to the Emerald Isle. But, according to Hallmark historian Sally Hopkins, St. Patrick himself was an abstainer.

County Agent comments

More Corn Expected

By JOE VANZANDT

I understand that corn acreage should increase a lot in the county this year. Farmers who may be growing corn for the first time this year are invited to come by the office and visit about cultural and management practices for corn.

Producing a good crop of corn requires a lot of close management. Practices need to be accomplished on schedule. Land preparation needs to be accomplished so that you can plant between April 10 and April 25, depending on weather conditions. Soil temperature needs to be in the 55-degree range for several days.

The recent moisture should help a lot of things, especially the dryland wheat crop. A lot of people are beginning to get the garden and lawn working bugs as we enjoy some of these warm spring days.

We have two publications on lawns available at the office. Lawn Care, L-1372, outlines some of the major things to do in caring for a lawn. The Home Lawns, MP-1180, is more detailed on everything from establishing a lawn to caring for one already established. Call the office, 669-7429, if you would like a copy of either bulletin.

We have had a lot of fruit trees blooming before this last cold weather. I haven't checked any trees to see if we had any fruit that made it through the freezing weather.

If you have fruit that made it through the freezing weather and you want to keep the worms out of the fruit, spray with Malathion according to the following schedule. Also if you want to reduce the brown rot on your fruit you can add Captan or Wettable Sulphur to the insect spray.

The first spray should be at the pink bud stage, the second spray at the petal fall stage and then three additional cover sprays every 10 to 14 days after petal fall.

We have a fact sheet, L-1140, which outlines this spray program for fruit trees. If you want a copy call the office. If you want insect and disease free fruit next summer, now is the time to start working on your fruit crop, providing it didn't get frozen.

If you have had nematodes in your garden area, you need to start making plans on controlling these soil pests that are microscopic in size. I have just received some new information on controlling garden nematodes and you are invited to come by the office at the Courthouse Annex and discuss your nematode problem.

ISU joins Valley

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Indiana State University joined the Missouri Valley Conference Wednesday, but will not be able to compete for the MVC basketball title until 1977-78 and will have to wait even longer to compete for the football crown.

Commissioner Mickey Holmes and Dr. Richard G. Landini, Indiana State president, announced the addition of Indiana State to the conference, which was organized in 1907.

Holmes also announced the conference has restructured its requirements for competing for the football championship and revised its criteria for future consideration of applicants for conference membership.

Holmes said Indiana State's intercollegiate athletic program includes cross country, swimming, wrestling, gymnastics, indoor track, outdoor track, baseball, tennis and golf as well as football and basketball.

He said Indiana State will compete for championships in all sports, except football and basketball, beginning with the 1976-77 academic year. It will begin competing for the basketball championship in 1977-78 and will begin competing in football as soon as scheduling requirements are achieved.

Indiana State joins Bradley University, Drake University, New Mexico State University, Southern Illinois University, the University of Tulsa, West Texas State University and Wichita State University in the MVC.

The change in the eligibility requirements for the football championships were prompted, in part, by impending NCAA reorganization of Division I teams, Holmes said. He said future requirements will include playing five games against conference foes if seven or more teams are competing for the title. He also said participation in football will no longer be a requirement for membership in the MVC.

Holmes also announced:

— The conference athletic directors have approved plans for the implementation of a post-season basketball tournament to begin in March, 1977. The tournament will be used to determine the league's automatic qualifying entry into the NCAA basketball championships.

— The conference has suspended the baseball championships for one year. The championships will be reinstated in 1977.

— The MVC faculty representatives have denied an appeal by Bradley University for an additional semester of basketball eligibility for Mike Davis. Holmes previously had ruled Davis had completed his three seasons of allowed eligibility, even though he had played only the second semester of the 1973-74 season. Davis was the scoring leader this season with a 20.2 average.

Dual match standouts

Two of the area's top tennis players — Canadian's Tresea Williams and Pampa's Don Hughes — were among those competing in a dual match between their schools Wednesday afternoon at the Pampa High tennis courts. Williams, who won the Class A state title last year, whipped Pampa's Stacy Douglass, 6-1, 6-0, while Hughes teamed with Kenny Barrett in doubles to whip Canadian's Scott Fitzgerald and Richard Reeves.

Doral Open to begin

MIAMI (UPI) — J.C. Snead will admit Jack Nicklaus is the favorite to win the Doral Open golf tournament but don't suggest to him that the Golden Bear's presence means the rest of the field will be playing for second place.

Loop golfers meet Friday in district play

Pampa High's girls golf team will try to get a good start in District 3 - AAAA play Friday at Amarillo's Ross Rogers Golf Course, while the Harvesters boys will just try to hang onto the slim lead that they managed last week over Amarillo High and Borger.

The Pampa girls, along with Amarillo High, Amarillo Tascosa, Amarillo Palo Duro, Amarillo Caprock and Borger, open 3 - AAAA play Friday morning at the Amarillo course.

Amarillo High and Tascosa are expected to take the lead after the first of four district rounds.

Pampa's girls hosted an invitational tournament last week in which Amarillo High won by 30 strokes over runner-up Borger. Pampa finished seventh.

The Pampa boys team shot 307 last week in the first district round to take a two shot lead over Amarillo High and Borger.

Pampa's Wiley McIntire leads in the running for medalist honors after carding a two-under-par 70 in the first rounds.

The district boys teams will play a total of six rounds. First and second place teams and players will qualify for the regional tournament.

Smith's, Brogdon selected to East

AMARILLO — Canadian's Sherry Smith, Groom's Sandra Smith and Miami's Pam Brogdon are among the area players selected for the sixth annual Golden Spread High School Girls All-Star Game, scheduled for March 20 at the Civic Center Coliseum here.

Sherry Smith, a senior guard, averaged six rebounds and 3.2 steals for Canadian, runner-up in District 1 - A to Stratford. She was named to the all-district team the last two seasons.

Sandra Smith, a senior all-district selection in 3 - B, led Groom to the conference championship from her guard position, averaging seven rebounds and three steals.

Brogdon, also a senior guard, averaged 6.1 rebounds and 2.3 steals while making the District 3 - B all-district team.

The three girls will play for the East all-stars against the West.

"If we thought Nicklaus would win every week, we'd just give him the prize money and go home," Snead said before today's first round of the $200,000 event over Doral's famed "Blue Monster" course.

"I get tired of everybody writing that we're playing for second money when he's in a tournament," the Virginia golfer said. "If you bet on him every week, you'd end up losing. There are too many great players."

If recent performance is any indication, Snead would have to be considered as a threat to Nicklaus, the 1975 Doral champion who did not compete in last week's Citrus Open in Orlando.

Snead has a win in the San Diego Open plus a second and a third in the last four weeks to rank third on the money list. He is off to one of his best starts ever despite the fact that he loses 30 yards in length on every hole in which he uses his driver.

"The courses haven't been that long and the rest of my game is making up for my short driving," he said.

Williams tops Douglass in dual tennis match

Tresea Williams of Canadian showed that she must again be reckoned with in the Class A state tournament this year, as she whipped a AAAA competitor — Stacy Douglass of Pampa — during a dual tennis match between the Harvesters and Canadian Wednesday afternoon at the Pampa High courts.

Williams downed Douglass, 6-1, 6-0. The Canadian senior won the Class A state girls singles championship last season.

Douglass is Pampa's top-seeded girls player.

Pampa won the match, 13-4, as the Harvesters won eight of nine boys matches and five of six girls matches.

The Harvesters will compete in the Hereford Invitational Team Tennis Tournament Friday and Saturday. The tournament field will include several West Texas high schools, which will compete in one division and play for the team championship, instead of individual titles.

Pampa boys who will make the trip to Hereford are Curtis Henry, Kent Jones, Amado Meza, Kenny Barrett, Don Hughes and either Wayne Williams or John Grady. Girls who will play are Douglass, Donna Coufal, Karen Hampton, Anne Henderson, Deanna Davis, Traci Balcom and Linda Bowman.

The tournament will start at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

"I hope we can do well," Pampa Coach Kent King said. "I've been pleased with our last three matches. The competition hasn't necessarily been all that rough but we could have lost.

'Little guys' win in NAIA meet

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — There won't be many more upsets in the 39th annual NAIA Basketball Tournament.

As the 32-team tournament enters the quarterfinals today, only three of the top 14 teams — No. 4 Marymount (Kan.), sixth-seeded Henderson State (Ark.) and ninth-seeded Coppin State (Md.) — remain in the field.

"This is good for the tournament," said Neild Gordon, coach of 15th-seeded Newberry College (S.C.). "It is good for the top-seeded guys to get knocked off and leave a few of us little guys around."

Newberry was one of the giant-killers in Wednesday's second round of the tournament, beating second-seeded, defending champion Grand Canyon (Ariz.) 65-58, just hours after 16th-seeded Texas Southern handed No. 1 Fairmont State (W.Va.) its first loss of the season, 82-75.

In other games Wednesday, Marymount beat 13th-seeded Central Washington, 83-72; Henderson edged No. 11 Illinois Wesleyan, 68-66; Coppin beat eighth-seeded Wisconsin-Parkside 68-67; Lincoln Memorial (Tenn.) routed 10th-seeded California Baptist 107-78; Lake Superior State (Mich.) beat 14th-seeded Edinboro State (Pa.) 76-73 and Alabama-Huntsville knocked off Doane College (Neb.) 70-59.

In the quarterfinals, Texas Southern meets Coppin, Alabama-Huntsville plays Marymount, Laker Superior State plays Henderson State and Lincoln Memorial faces Newberry.

Third-seeded Alcorn State (Miss.), fifth-seeded Pikeville (Ky.), seventh-seeded Guilford (N.C.) and 12th-seeded Norfolk State (Va.) were upset in the first round.

Newberry used only one man to defend against Canyon's two-time NAIA All-America center Bayard Forrest.

"I knew from watching Grand Canyon play that teams would slack men on him when he would fake a jump shot and then he would hit the open man," said Gordon. "We decided to single-cover him and protect the perimeter."

While Forrest finished with 19 points and 18 rebounds, the 6-10 senior hit only hit nine of 20 shots and was ineffective in the closing 2:42 when Newberry was hitting 15 free throws and turning a 51-50 lead into a comfortable win.

"Rankings are one thing but you have to play games on the court and they are no help out there," said Texas Southern coach Robert Moreland.

Golden Gloves boxing tourney starts today

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — The next major step for Olympic hopefuls starts tonight with the opening round of action in the annual Texas Golden Gloves state tournament.

Eight defending or former champions will compete in the ten weight classes.

And on the court, Moreland's team had excellent defense. The Tigers forced 24 turnovers, didn't allow Fairmont to run a fastbreak and held the Falcon starting guards to just six field goals in 22 attempts.

"It was one of our worst games offensively but I was happy with our defense," said Moreland.

Nazis 'were humans'

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (UPI) — Albert Speer, the man who organized German industrial production for Adolf Hitler's war, says he thinks it's important for the world to know that even the most murderous Nazis had human traits.

Speer, 71, also said in an interview Tuesday he wants the world to learn from an insider how easy it is to become accustomed to cruelty and to look the other way.

"I knew," Speer said of the Nazi extermination policy toward Europe's Jewish population, but he simply pushed the knowledge aside, a "cowardice" he now regrets.

Forty-six years after he first saw and heard Adolf Hitler, 10 years after his release from the prison in which he served 20 years for his role in Nazi Germany, Speer talked of the second volume of his memoirs — "Spandau, The Secret Diaries" — published last year in Germany and last month in the United States.

Speer drafted the memoirs while in Berlin's Spandau prison. Friendly guards smuggled his notes — written on toilet paper, bits of cardboard and calendar pages — to his family who stored them until his release in 1966.

Some reviewers complain that Speer attempts to gloss over or avoid his own responsibility, and object to the favorable light in which he sometimes shows Hitler and his cohorts.

"But a person like Hitler had so many contradictory traits that it is necessary to say that he was like that, that he could be sympathetic in the same way he was very cruel, even to his closest friends, and the whole makes the picture," Speer said.

"My line is to show that Hitler and all of those who were doing jobs for him, executing his orders, have had very human traits.

"I am saying, for instance, and shocking many people, too, that Ernst Kaltenbrunner, (chief of the Gestapo), who was one of the most evil, had very good-looking warm eyes, and was sympathetic in some ways

(as was) Oswald Pohl, who was in charge of the concentration camps."

The show will include paintings, sculpture, jewelry and crafts.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please tell me something to do for hives. My doctor can't find the cause so the only thing he gave me was tranquilizers to take so I can sleep when they get real bad. The tranquilizers do not help sometimes. One night last week I was a solid mass of hives over most of my body and couldn't sleep till after 2 a.m. They come and go so I had no more till last night when I had a few and more this morning. Is there a cure for them when the cause is not known? It seems after I have had a real bad attack they don't return for about a week. I have had them off and on for a month now. Please help me if you can.

DEAR READER — Recurrent, chronic type hives are difficult to treat, particularly if the cause can't be established.

Hives are an allergic reaction. The red, swollen area is caused by release of chemicals within the body that act on the tiny capillaries and let fluid leak out of the circulation and produce irritations.

Perhaps the most common cause of hives is food allergy. Finding out which foods cause the allergy is another matter. One can also have hives from things inhaled or from contact with things one is allergic to, such as animal dander or as a generalized response to bites from various insects. Hives also occur as part of the picture in certain infections such as virus diseases or in response to intestinal parasites. I hasten to add that I doubt that's your problem.

The allergic-type hives response can occur as a peculiar sensitivity to cold, heat or sun rays. They also develop as a result of certain drugs.

Since you have been having recurring hives fairly regularly for a month I would think that you fall into the group of chronic hives.

The usual treatment for hives is to give antihistamines because they reduce the allergic response. They will also make you sleepy. In more severe cases that don't respond to antihistamines, four days or more of Prednisone, one of the cortisone hormones, is used.

It may be necessary to put you on what doctors call an elimination diet which literally will remove all food that might possibly be inducing an allergic response and then gradually adding foods by groups. All spices, of course, are eliminated as well. The elimination diet technique may never tell you exactly which foods you were allergic to but it might stop your problem. Of course if you do identify which foods you are allergic to that may enable you to avoid these entirely and thereby avoid hives. In the event that you inadvertently consume any of these, taking one of the antihistamines immediately may help avoid developing hives.

If you should be having hives because of exposure to cold the only possible solution is to avoid it.

For information on the causes of colds send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 3-1, The Cold, Flu Group. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Loans for farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Wednesday passed a bill to provide federal loans to farmers and ranchers who suffer losses as a result of chemical contamination of their harvest or livestock.

The measure, sent to the House by voice vote, would provide loans for losses incurred on or after Jan. 1, 1973 at low interest rates.

The assistance would go to agricultural producers who sustain losses when their commodities or livestock is quarantined or condemned because they have been found to contain toxic chemicals dangerous to public health.

Denison, Tex., gave birth to the foam cream soda in 1873 when a soda jerk accidentally squirted carbonated water over a dish of ice cream. Hoping to salvage what seemed a disaster, he added some chocolate syrup and the ice cream soda was born.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a way of making light of serious problems today that is disarming. Go to it — those under strain will be appreciative.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone in your family could have a problem today. Your help and that of others should erase it at the source if you stay close to the home front.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're a very creative person. Something you're interested in today could provide a breakthrough and incite the admiration of others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Involved in any kind of commercial dealings today? Don't be "bashful" about seeking your price. Chances are you'll get a better deal.

Texasans Can't Get Abortions

By TEX DEWESSE
Pampa News Staff

Planned Parenthood, a national organization that provides reproductive health services, has reported that it is unable to provide abortion services in Texas. The organization has cited the state's strict abortion laws as the primary reason for this. In Texas, abortion is only permitted in cases of medical emergency, rape, or incest. This has led to a significant number of women traveling out of state to obtain the procedure. Planned Parenthood has expressed its commitment to providing comprehensive reproductive health care and has called for more liberal abortion laws in Texas.
