

Hearst trial delayed by influenza attack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Despite delays caused by Patricia Hearst's attack of influenza, the judge at her bank robbery trial hopes to wind things up next week.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter gave the jury the day off today so the newspaper heiress could recuperate at her suburban jail cell from an ailment diagnosed as "a strain of the flu."

But he told the panel of seven women and five men that they could still expect to receive the case sometime next Thursday or Friday.

In an effort to meet that timetable, Carter ordered attorneys into his chambers today for discussions on the legal guidelines he will give the jury before it starts deliberations.

He recessed the trial until Monday after Miss Hearst arrived at the federal courthouse Thursday running a temperature, suffering from chills and having difficulty with breathing.

Chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey said the defendant would not waive her right to be present in court during the testimony of Dr. Harry L. Kozol, a Bridgewater, Mass., psychiatrist with whom she had a dispute in January.

After a U.S. Public Health Service doctor examined Miss Hearst and reported she had an upper respiratory infection, Carter ordered her transported to a hospital for diagnosis and possible treatment.

Wearing a white surgical mask over her face, Miss Hearst was driven to the Public Health Service Hospital in San Francisco for 90 minutes of diagnostic tests.

Doctors determined she had "a strain of the flu," said defense attorney Albert Johnson, who added that there was still some concern about her contacting pneumonia.

After the examination, Miss Hearst, still wearing a surgical mask, was returned to her cell at San Mateo County Jail in suburban Redwood City. Her personal physician, Dr. Robert Regan, was allowed to prescribe treatment and medication.

Carter said the prosecution needs another day to complete the testimony of Kozol and three minor witnesses. Then the defense plans to spend a day or day and a half on its rebuttal, he said.

Bailey told reporters his rebuttal witnesses may include Miss Hearst's mother, Catherine, who would testify about the defendant's background and about a controversial conversation she had with prosecution psychiatric witness Dr. Joel Fort.

Hospital revenue sets records

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Patient revenue at Highland General and McLean General Hospitals was the highest in five years, according to reports submitted Thursday to the hospital board.

McLean's deficit was only $726.72 in February as compared with $6,000 to $8,000 losses in previous months. Hospital officials expect an even better month in March.

Robert Monogue, administrator, said part of the illness is due to the flu, but added that the hospital has also admitted many surgical patients.

Monogue called attention to the fact that the number of patient days at McLean almost tripled the figures during February 1975, when 106 patient days were recorded as compared with 287 this year.

Highland General records show 2,890 patient days in 1975 and only 2,150 during the same period in 1972.

The net patient revenue at Highland General was $331,828.82 with miscellaneous cash revenue totaling $5,483.45.

The net gain in February was $42,896.02 for Highland General. However cash loss was $84,309.20 due to delayed collections from Medicare and other insurance companies.

Dr. R.M. Bellamy asked how much of the revenue would be derived from Medicare patients where the hospitals make no profit. Monogue said at Highland General the percentage would be 55 to 60 per cent, while at McLean it would be about 80 per cent.

Monogue said January and February have been the biggest months in five years at both hospitals from "a patient days standpoint."

McLean Hospital had no more than one or two patients per day at times last summer. Monogue expects the average to be between 10 and 15 patients per day during March.

Statistics to date show that Highland General has recorded 5,799 patient days in January and February. During the first two months of 1976, McLean show 515 patient days.

Monogue said he expected to see a good cash flow within the next 45 days because of accounts payable monies to be received.

Astrodome seat plan-$25,000

HOUSTON (UPI) — The original engineers for the Astrodome estimate it may cost $5 million to add more seats for professional football games. Officials plan to spend $25,000 for a study to see if it can be done.

Walter P. Moore & Associates, the engineering firm, will conduct the one-to two-month study to determine how much it would cost to make the structural, mechanical and electrical changes needed to add the seats.

Moore gave the cost estimate to county and sports officials who are providing the money for the study. County revenue bonds would probably be used to finance the 8,000 to 10,000 seats, County Judge Jon Lindsay said. The proposed seats would go into the centerfield section and would replace part of the Astrodome's $2 million scoreboard.

K.S. "Bud" Adams, owner of the Oilers football team, who has not yet renewed his Astrodome lease, told Harris County commissioners Wednesday he continues to lose money on his team because of the current seating capacity.

Texans protest closing of Webb in Big Spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says citizens affected by Air Force cutbacks at bases nationwide should gather information on the importance of the installations in an attempt to keep them open.

Bentsen, meeting with a group of Big Spring, Tex., residents Thursday, said the only way they could keep Webb AFB at full strength was to convince the Air Force the base was necessary for the city's economy and the nation's security.

"We must prepare a strong case for keeping Webb open that we can present at public hearings slated for late spring," Bentsen said. "We must convince the Air Force that closing Webb will be detrimental not only to the community of Big Spring, but to our entire domestic military system."

The Big Spring delegation, headed by Mayor Wade Choate, told Bentsen closing the base would mean a loss of $35 million to $40 million a year to the city's economy.

Bentsen and Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said they would do whatever possible to keep the base from closing.

Tower has said he would "vigorously oppose" the Pentagon's plan to close the base, which was used to train both U.S. Air Force pilots and pilots from other countries.

The Pentagon also had announced plans to remove 109 military personnel and five civilian employees from Sheppard AFB near Wichita Falls.

Lt. Col Glenn Robertson, commander of Detachment 2, Strategic Bomb Wing, at Sheppard, said the unit would move by November, leaving the base intact but to be used mostly for combat exercises.

The equipment and personnel would be based at Carswell AFB near Fort Worth.

During the Washington meeting, Bentsen asked the Big Spring delegation to help provide information on the impact-closing would have on the city and general area.

The delegation also was scheduled to meet today with Air Force Secretary Thomas Reed. The meeting was requested by members of the Texas congressional delegation.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe also has offered to help Big Spring keep Webb open. Briscoe asked the Texas Industrial Commission to work with city officials to compile information on the economic impact of the closing. He said commission members would meet with city officials March 23.

In addition to the mayor, the delegation meeting with Bentsen included J. Tom Grimm, publisher of the Big Spring Herald; Winston Winkle of station KBST; Ralph Brooks, a Big Spring businessman; Mayor Ernest Angelo of Midland and Mayor Ben Hemphill of Odessa.

Customs men From Mexico are arrested

MATAMOROS, Mexico (UPI) — Authorities have arrested top customs men across the Mexican border from Brownsville, Tex., in a cleanup of alleged corruption.

Fiscal Chief Administrator Humberto Rodriguez Ortega was jailed in Mexico City. Four of his closest assistants also are under arrest, officials said.

No charges had been filed. Sources said Rodriguez Ortega had apparently flown to the Mexican capital in a private plane shortly before arresting officers arrived in Matamoros.

The capital's afternoon Press said Thursday more than 60 officials would be charged with such offenses as theft, fraud and extortion.

Newspaper reports said some officials organized their own air fleet to carry tons of black market goods between the United States and Mexico.

Rodriguez Ortega has been noted for campaigning against air-transported contraband.

"We won't rest until we have scrupulously honest customs officials working," said Jorge Carrillo Olea, subsecretary of Fiscal Investigations and Execution.

She recalls first Texas lady sheriff

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
Gray County's law enforcement became a part of Violet Pipes' life when her future husband, a desk sergeant with the Pampa Police Department, investigated a bicycle theft at Montgomery Ward in 1931.

Charlie Pipes asked for a date that day. "I told him I was dated up three weeks ahead," she said. "I know that's not right," Charlie responded, so she consented to allow him to take her home from her job at Wards on a Saturday night. Six dates later she married Charlie, son of the late Sheriff Tiny and Fannie Pipes. Violet's mother-in-law gained national fame as Texas' first lady sheriff. She was commissioned by the state's only and only lady governor, Ma Ferguson. Memories of law enforcement here are vivid in the mind of Mrs. Charlie Pipes, whose husband died Dec. 9, 1972. His father, Tiny Pipes, was Gray County Sheriff from 1933 to March 15, 1934. He died in office. Prior to his death Tiny Pipes was described by the Associated Press as "the biggest sheriff in the southwest." "Pipes took office weighing 375 pounds, and is six foot two inches tall. His girth measurement is 56 inches. Pipes, who is proud of his weight and girth, boasts of being a real he-man sheriff worthy of the West Texas County he serves," the Associated Press wrote.

However, Tiny Pipes died suddenly from a "flu attack" after 15 months in office. News accounts of his death said he succumbed to the illness of flu and pneumonia while sitting in a chair "at his rooms in the courthouse with Mrs. Pipes." He had already announced plans to seek re-election to the post and no opponent was in sight. Following his death, his wife, Fannie, served as sheriff for nine months.

"She was so sweet and gracious," said her daughter-in-law. "I lived in the house with her 26 years and we never had a cross word." Mrs. Charlie Pipes said her son, the Rev. Charles Ernest Pipes, 42, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was born while she lived in the courthouse. He was born at the old Pampa hospital, and Mrs. Pipes rode down on the courthouse elevator to go to the hospital. The son is now a Presbyterian minister and a chaplain for Valencia Retired Center, a private home for older persons. Violet Pipes said she came to Pampa with her parents, who established the Church of the Brethren here in 1929. The Halletts were sent here by the Mission Board from Fairview, Mo., when Violet was 19 years old.

replying to her future husband's request. The father was especially concerned about Violet since she was stricken with polio at the age of nine months and wore braces until she was 13 years of age. "They called it infantile paralysis then," she said. Violet was born in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. Asked about her health today, a friend who was visiting, Renee M. Steele, commented that Mrs. Pipes is never ill. "I've known her for 15 years and she is just never sick," Mrs. Steele said. Violet explained that since she was so ill with typhoid, polio, scarlet fever, malaria and other diseases she probably became immune to everything else. She said she had been hospitalized twice in her life and each time it was for the delivery of a child. Her daughter, Debra Douglas, works for Taylor Publishing Co. in Dallas. She was born Dec. 17, 1951. Violet's memories of crime here include the bank robberies of the First National Bank in Pampa and one at the Mobeetie bank. Her father-in-law apprehended the Triplett boys on the Borger highway where they held some people hostage, she said. "I think they were involved in the Mobeetie bank robbery," she added. Violet said her husband was a guard for the first oil well that came in here. It was the Combs well, she said. "He was a teenage boy. They would bring him groceries down there and it came a big blizzard and he killed rabbits for food. I can imagine what they tasted like. Charlie never could cook," she said. In another newspaper clipping, Mrs. Pipes has the story of Texas hospitality in Pampa. "One reason why Judge W.R. Ewing of the 31st District Court likes Pampa is because people are so friendly. The judge's latest invitation was received yesterday morning shortly after he woke up. The invitation was so insistent that the judge accepted, but did not have time to do anything until 5 p.m. in the afternoon. The invitation was from the City of Pampa and was signed by Charlie Pipes, night officer. The cause of the invitation was the parking of the judge's car on the pavement between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m., which is not

She remembers that Charlie announced on their first date that he was going "to marry me." And after the sixth date and after church one day, she heard her father talking with someone. It was Charlie. He told his prospective father-in-law that he and Violet had decided to get married and asked if the father had any objections. "All I ask is that anyone who marries one of my daughters be as good to them as I have tried to be," Violet quoted her father as

Hints from Heloise

Dear Gang: Know what I did? I got a blip of red fingernail polish on my brand new jeans. What a bummer. With the price of blue jeans today, I was about to have a cat! I did what I always do when I mess something up. I called my mother. That really isn't unusual, but my mother is Heloise. I have never thought much of it before, but I really am lucky. If something goes wrong, I just pick up the phone and ask Mom. It's kinda like "Dial-a-hint." Once when I was in college, I even called home long-distance to ask how to get wax out of the carpet. (Now I know how.) It does work both ways, too. Many times I have had to try something, or found out later that I was an experiment for some hint SHE was trying! Back to the original problem. Called Mom and said, "Help!" "Never fear, your mother is here." The answer was simple and cost me nil. Acetone! You can buy it at a drug store. I paid $1.35 for a pint. You sponge the stain with acetone and the nailpolish will come out. Now listen and listen well. Use amyl acetate, also found in drugstores, on acetate, Arnel, Dynel and Verel fabrics, and use acetone on others. Be sure to test these solutions on a hidden spot of your garment to be certain it won't harm the fabric. H. M. Angyal

Hormones increase risk

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Women who take female hormones to relieve menopause symptoms run a "marked increase" in the risk of cancer of the womb, according to the Food and Drug Administration. The agency warned doctors that women should be given the lowest possible dose for the shortest possible time. The FDA also took the unusual step of naming the manufacturers of the estrogen drug Premarin. Ayerst Laboratories, and describing them as "irresponsible" for sending doctors a letter which did not refer to the studies but instead had the effect of "clouding the issues and ... recommending 'business as usual'."

Hermanson presents program on Sweden

Peter Hermanson, American Field Service student from Sweden, presented a slide show on his native country during a recent meeting of the Twentieth Century Forum. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Glen Larsen with Mrs. Cranz Nichols as co-hostess. Background on the American Field Service program was given by Mrs. Ellis Locke. She said the program is designed to promote international understanding. Under terms of the program, more than 2,600 students from over 60 countries live in another country for a year. Pampa has hosted at least 20 AFS students, one each year for the past two decades. Peter lives with the Doug Coffee family. He is from Visby on the island of Gotland, about 150 miles from the Mainland of Sweden. Visby is of medieval origin and the only walled city in Northern Europe. It has an estimated 20,000 population today. Peter described the educational system and its curriculum. Soccer is the main sport, he said. Agriculture and electronics are the main industries there. During the business session Mrs. Robert Williams was elected president for 1976-77. Other newly elected officers include Mrs. John Warner, vice president; Mrs. Victor Raymond, secretary; Mrs. Steve Hall, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Kelley, reporter, and Mrs. Glen Larsen, parliamentarian. Members answered roll call with interesting facts about their family trees.

according to strong epidemiological evidence that has emerged within the last several months," the FDA said. Cancer of the endometrium is a form of uterine cancer that attacks the organ's lining. "While further information is needed, these findings clearly alter the benefit-risk relationship of estrogen therapy for many women," the FDA said. The least hazardous way to prescribe estrogens would appear to be the "lowest effective dose for the shortest possible time with appropriate monitoring for endometrial cancer," the FDA said. Enough estrogen is now prescribed in the course of a year to treat 6 million women, the FDA said. Women take the drugs to alleviate physical symptoms "and because of a common belief that estrogens promote a feeling of well being and a youthful appearance."

Price visited hunting lodge

By BILL CHOYKE

Pampa News' Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — While a member of the House subcommittee which reviewed National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) matters, former Texas congressman Robert Price received hospitalities from Rockwell International, a major NASA contractor.

The Pampa Republican, who is seeking to regain his House seat, was among a number of congressmen and high-level government employes who visited Rockwell's Maryland hunting lodge during the past several years. Price, who worked for NASA after his 1974 election defeat, said he believed there was nothing wrong with accepting the Rockwell hospitalities.

NEGRIL, Jamaica (UPI) — Sports divers vacationing at this seven-mile beach can now take underwater pictures of their snorkel or scuba trips, have them processed on the spot and return home with the completed photos.

The new service offered by Indepth Studio at Aquaworld Ltd. is unique in the Caribbean. Aquaworld will rent underwater camera equipment and instruct divers on picture-taking techniques as well as develop their black-and-white or color shots.

He added that he has been to the firm's hunting lodge only once.

"I just think it is not improper," said Price, who faces incumbent Rep. Jack Hightower in the 13th District congressional race. "It's an awful thing to say of a congressman that he is unethical because of his association with a contractor."

Besides his visit to the Maryland hunting lodge, Price said the only other time he was entertained by Rockwell officials was at a Pennsylvania party several years ago. He said the occasion was a birthday party for a company official.

Noting that his friendship with Rockwell officials dates back more than a decade, Price said he was not influenced in any of his decisions as a congressman by his relationship with either the firm or its officials.

The cozy relationship between key congressmen, senators, Capitol Hill aides, Defense Department officials and major defense contractors has been a matter of controversy for the past several months.

While there are federal directives prohibiting government employees from receiving gratuities and entertainment from government contractors, there is nothing which bars a lawmaker from receiving hospitalities from such firms.

Many congressmen and senators proudly point to their friendships with officials of firms having government contracts. Recently, Sen. John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, said he was personal friends with Willard Rockwell, Jr., president of Rockwell International, and acknowledged that he had received hospitalities from the company.

Price, also, takes pride in saying he is friends with the Rockwells. He was quoted in a recent issue of Federal Times, a paper which primarily serves government employes, as saying: "If I have to give up my friendship with the Rockwells or give up Congress, I'll give up Congress."

The Pampa rancher, who served eight years in the House before his 1974 defeat, acknowledged that the quote was accurate. However, he added that it was said somewhat in jest.

Before resigning from his position to run for Congress, Price served as a special assistant for aeronautics and space technology at NASA. He earned a $37,800 annual salary.

Rockwell International does more business with NASA than any other company. In Fiscal Year 1975, the firm had $682 million in NASA contracts, while in FY 1974 its total NASA business was $486 million.

During his congressional tenure, Price was a member of the House Space Sciences and Applications subcommittee. The panel reviewed all NASA operations, including Rockwell contracts.

Price also said that he had visited Rockwell's fishing resort in the Bahamas, but at his own expense. He said he frequently goes deep-sea fishing in that area and on occasion visited the firm's resort there.

However, Price declined to discuss all details of his visits to the Bahamas. When asked who went fishing with him, he replied: "This isn't confession week."
