

School board increases taxes

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

With one opposing vote, the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees passed a tax increase which will take an additional $1,088,950 out of the pockets of Pampa property tax payers to put into the school system.

The ratio of assessment was increased from 40 to 60 per cent, a hike which is estimated to increase taxes 35 per cent for property owners.

Bill Arrington voted against the 60 per cent ratio saying that he believed a 50 per cent ratio of assessment would suffice.

"It appears to me we are being premature," he said at the 6:30 p.m. meeting in Carver Center, 321 W. Albert.

"The board should never raise the level of assessment above what we absolutely have to. To be realistic we need to go from 40 to 50 per cent. I believe the legislature and schools will spend every cent they can collect. Whatever we have to cut from the budget to make that work I think that's what we ought to do," Arrington continued.

"If you can show us a plan, I'm for it," commented Al Smith who supported the tax increase. "I don't want to pay more taxes as much as the next guy."

"We put it off last year," David Crossman said about the hike. "So now we are in the hole $300,000 for this year. We can't operate on a deficit. Our business is to educate kids and we have to reach in our pocketbooks to do it or we might as well forget the whole thing."

The 60 per cent ratio of assessment with a tax rate of $1.50 per $100 of assessed value will raise the projected $5.3 million needed to operate the local system for the 1976-77 school year.

Also supporting the increase were Buddy Epperson and Paul Simmons. Curt Beck was not present.

The board, in a unanimous vote, decided to pick up the bill for a new insurance program for its employees. The program, the Texas Association of School Boards Group Insurance Trust, will cost the school district $17.88 per employee. The school pays only $1 per employee in the current insurance.

The benefits include $5,000 life insurance per employee, accidental death and dismemberment and comprehensive major medical which has dental and mental disorder coverage.

Cecil E. Rush, executive director of TASB, told the board that the program was close to "self-insurance" (an insurance program at cost).

Other moves by the board included:

1. Giving three weeks of vacation to custodial, maintenance and transportation personnel who work 12 months a year. The employees previously got two weeks of vacation.

2. Approving the extension of the building trades program from one year to two years. Giving the class two years to complete the house will increase the student's learning, according to Dr. Dan F. Long, school superintendent.

3. Establishing a loan from First National Bank in an amount not to exceed $35,000 at 4 per cent interest to construct the building trades home.

4. Purchasing a lot at 2230 Lea Street for $3,400 on which to build the house.

5. Approving the expenditure of $1 per student to participate in the Regional Education Service Center and Regional Media Service from which the school borrows films and other media.

Simmons, board president, presented Long with a plaque for his service to the school district. The Tuesday board meeting was Long's last in Pampa. In July he joins the Carrollton - Farmers Branch school district as superintendent.

Presentations also were made to James Thomas, Houston middle school principal; Jack Baily, Pampa Junior High principal; Mary Reeve, speech therapist at Mann and Travis; Ermalee Sanders, Travis; Oleta Marlin, Wilson; Arlene Steward, Pampa Junior High; and Wynema Little, Houston middle school.

Thomas and Baily are leaving Pampa to take other jobs. The others have retired.

Few persons ever serve on a jury.

According to Wanda Carter, Gray County clerk, less than one per cent of the county's 12,555 registered voters ever will serve on a county jury.

The percentage in district court might be slightly higher.

In each jury case, the judge has a list of instructions for members of the jury to follow to reach their verdict.

One, taken from records in the 31st Judicial District Court of Gray County, reads:

"You will not decide an issue by lot or by drawing straws or by any other method of chance."

Taxpayers, at least property owners in the Pampa Independent School District, will feel the squeeze from the newly passed homestead exemption act.

It was one reason that the school board had to raise the ratio of assessment from 40 to 60 per cent at its meeting Tuesday night.

Other reasons, according to school business manager Dr. Wain Walker, include requirements of Title IX which forces schools to make provisions for athletic programs for women; pay raises for teachers and other school employees; higher utility bills and other inflated expenses.

The homestead tax exemption this year was approved by county, city and school officials. It eases the tax burden for residents more than 65 years old.

The combined exemptions will save older property owners more than $1 million.

But the savings for them will mean more taxes for others or more belt cinching on the part of local governing bodies. (I have a feeling that little belt-cinching will be done.)

The school district expects to lose $64,800 due to the exemption; the county's estimated loss is $40,000; the city's $30,000.

Reporters once referred to officers in the Texas Highway Patrol as patrolmen. But like so many other so-called sexist terms, the name has been set aside in favor of "trooper," so that women could be members of the highway patrol.

Patrolmen is discrimination," a trooper explained to a Pampa News reporter recently.

The Top of Texas CB Club invited First Mamma, better known to others as Betty Ford to their recent jamboree.

Last week, Doris Robins received an answer from Mrs. Ford's appointment secretary sending the First Lady's regrets and best wishes.

Roy Keller of Levelland told a Pampa News reporter recently that gasoline was cheaper in Pampa in 1928 than anywhere else he drove.

"I just know it was," he said. "I paid 12 cents a gallon."

Wallace throws support to Carter

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Jimmy Carter picked up new political support from former opponents today, moving the frontrunner still closer to the Democratic presidential nomination.

Carter emerged from Tuesday's primaries with more than 1,100 of the 1,506 delegates needed for nomination. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who sought the nomination himself, said today he was throwing his support to Carter. "I feel that Gov. Carter will be the nominee," he said.

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley also announced his backing of the former Georgia governor and Carter said that Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a one-time candidate, had promised an endorsement. "I can announce without quoting him (Jackson) that I have no doubt about his support and as many delegates as he can talk to. He will have an announcement to make next week," Carter said.

He said the new endorsements give him "much more" than he needs for the nomination.

For the Republicans, the end of the primaries means a continuation of Ronald Reagan's challenge to President Ford. Carter won only in Ohio of the three big states that held primaries on Tuesday. But he picked up more than 200 delegates, and all his rivals but one seemed ready to concede him the nomination.

The one who said he won't quit chasing Carter is Jerry Brown, who won big in his home state of California and was joined with Hubert Humphrey as preferred candidates on an uncommitted delegate slate that won in New Jersey. "I will go forward," Brown said. "I think the nomination is still open."

Ford and Reagan, meanwhile, fought to a standoff that virtually guarantees a fight to the convention in Kansas City two months from now.

Reagan took the California primary and with it the 167 delegates that go to the winner there. But Ford won almost all of Ohio's 97 delegates and an uncommitted slate that swept New Jersey's 67 delegate spots is packed with the President's supporters.

Here is how the delegate count looks with the primaries over:

Carter, who picked up 218 delegates on Tuesday, now has 1,125 of the 1,506 needed for nomination. His closest pursuer is Rep. Morris K. Udall, who has 334.5. Brown, who won 200 in California, has 225 and a number in the uncommitted bloc of over 400 delegates.

Ford has a lead over Reagan of 892-868, with 1,130 needed to be the nominee. But Ford's edge is actually greater since no more than a handful of the nominally uncommitted 67-member New Jersey delegation backs Reagan.

As the votes were counted Tuesday and even before, it was clear it would be a day for jumping on the Carter bandwagon.

Carter himself told supporters in Atlanta: "I think I'm going to be the nominee."

And at a news conference, he said he had spoken by telephone during the day with three active rivals, Udall, Frank Church and George Wallace; one inactive rival, Humphrey, and Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who controls a bloc of 86 delegates nominally committed to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, a favorite son.

All of them, as a general group, agreed that I would be the nominee," Carter said.

And that was what just about all of them said, finally conceding defeat after a spring of seeing silver linings in cloudy results.

Udall, speaking to supporters in Cleveland after his ninth second-place finish, congratulated Carter on a "solid victory, and a brilliant campaign." He said Carter is now a heavy favorite for the nomination and said he wouldn't engage in a stop-Carter move. But he added that he would not release his delegates because they "cannot be delivered."

Church said of Carter: "He's coming very close to being able to claim the number of delegates necessary for a first-ballot victory." And he said of his telephone conversation with the former Georgia governor: "I told him I thought he had established an entitlement it would be difficult for the convention to deny."

Earlier in the day, it was Daley who indicated he was ready to jump on the bandwagon.

Daley said he was not making any endorsement just yet, but predicted that if Carter won Ohio, as he did, "he'll be the nominee." The mayor also said of what he called the religious tone of Carter's campaign: "that's something we need some of."

But Brown, who has won in Maryland, Nevada and California and been backed by parts of winning uncommitted slates in Rhode Island and New Jersey, wanted no part of that.

"Every state I have gone into, Jimmy Carter has lost," he said. "The 1,506 delegates are not accounted for. Today, was a very strong boost for my candidacy."

On the Republican side, things went just about as expected. Reagan won easily in California, Ford with little trouble in Ohio and the delegate slate headed by Sen. Clifford P. Case captured all the New Jersey slots over a slate that Reagan did not sanction and which carried the label "former California governor."

Both the Reagan and Ford camps predicted their candidates would win on the first ballot, as one of them would almost surely have to do if no other candidates enter the field. And both sides said, as they have been saying, that their man would have a better chance of beating the Democratic nominee.

Reagan did not discuss the Ohio results. But his backers there said they were happy because he got over 40 per cent of the vote. And John Sears, who heads Citizens for Reagan, said "we're very pleased with the results from Ohio."

Ford had no direct comment on the primaries although he called supporters in New Jersey and Ohio to thank them. He told Keith McNamara, his Ohio chairman: "We've got a long, hard way to go, but we've got the right programs, the right people and we'll stick together."

Presidential press secretary Ron Nessen described Ford as pleased.

Judge answers charges

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A motion to dismiss a suit lodged against Gray County Judge Don Cain in 31st District Court on May 19 was filed today by Ross Buzzard, a Pampa attorney who is representing the judge.

The suit stems from the judge's refusal to issue a wine and beer retailer's permit for an establishment that was to be located at 729 N. Hobart.

Guy Hardin, district attorney, filed the civil action in his private practice on behalf of Francis Lynn Stafford.

Cain said he denied the application after receiving some 500 signatures protesting the proposed establishment. He also heard testimony from Police Chief Richard Mills who said the proposed business would create a traffic problem.

In the petition Hardin said the judge denied it saying Pampa, in his opinion, has sufficient retail stores for the sale of beer and wine.

Buzzard said in his motion for dismissal that Stafford's petition filed April 9 is insufficient "to effect an appeal and to confer jurisdiction in this court."

"The petition of Francis Lynn Stafford is not an adversary pleading. It does not identify a defendant. Accordingly it is insufficient as a petition to effect an appeal to the court," Buzzard said.

Hardin's client is seeking a license for a store to be operated under the name of L&J Liquor. The request calls for off-premises consumption.

Buzzard said another reason for the dismissal request is that the suit was brought against the county judge instead of the Liquor Control Board.

In the June 1 meeting, the Gray County Commissioners

Court authorized Judge Cain to hire an attorney to represent him in the suit.

Buzzard noted in his petition that no transcript designation, transcript or other record of the case has been filed.

The findings of the county judge, he said, do not appear in any of the pleadings.

The written oppositions of the police chief and many other citizens of the community are omitted, Buzzard added.

In addition to filing a motion for dismissals Buzzard filed an answer on behalf of the judge to be considered "in the event only that such motion (for dismissal) be overruled."

In the judge's defense, Buzzard said Stafford's petition "is insufficient in law because it fails to allege that the ruling of which it complains was not reasonably supported by substantial evidence."

Judge Grainger McIlhenny has not scheduled a date for a hearing in the case.

High court to review Worley-Sparger case

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court decided today to review the "Captain of the Ship" doctrine in two medical malpractice suits.

Both suits — one from Gray County and the other from Taylor County — will be heard July 14.

They involve whether surgeons were responsible as "captains of the ship" for sponges that were left in patients during abdominal operations.

In the Gray County case, Sylvia Caldwell sued Dr. C. F.

Sparger and Worley Hospital Inc., alleging that a four-inch square of gauze had been left in her abdomen in 1972.

The Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals awarded $21,644 in damages, holding Sparger and the hospital liable.

Sparger's lawyers contended that the "sponge count" was an administrative or clerical function and the surgeon was not liable.

In the Taylor County case, Gilbert Ramon alleged that Dr. Paul Mani overlooked a sponge during surgery at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in 1971.

The trial judge cut a jury judgement in half, awarding Ramon $21,150, on the grounds that the hospital was liable for an equal amount. Ramon contended that the surgeon was exclusively liable during surgery for the acts of all the operating room personnel.

The Eastland Court of Civil Appeals reversed the judgement. Ramon appealed to the Supreme Court that the court erred in reversing, but not rendering the full amount of damages awarded to Ramon by the jury.

Ad man talks about violence

'Viewers turn off tv, products'

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the nation's largest advertising agency says a survey conducted for his agency shows that many television viewers are turning off violent TV programs and may also be rejecting the products advertised on those programs.

Don Johnston, president of the J. Walter Thompson Co. said a poll conducted in March shows that 10 per cent of viewers apparently consider not buying products because they are advertised on programs they consider excessively violent.

Eight per cent reported "consciously not buying a product," he told the annual convention of the American Advertising Federation here Tuesday.

He said that even if subsequent polls show only 4 per cent of viewers reject products because they are advertised in connection with violence, "I cannot imagine any advertiser who would want to risk negative sales of these proportions."

Johnston said the survey, although preliminary, corroborates other indications "that public hostility to violent TV programming is growing."

He said the J. Walter Thompson agency is "counseling our clients to evaluate the potential negatives of placing commercials in programming perceived as violent." Opponents of TV violence are organizing, he said, and Johnston predicted their actions will be felt "more and more ... in letters of protest and in product boycotts."

Johnston also said he personally opposes excessive violence on TV, and so does the agency.

"We are questioning that part of TV programming that exploits violence," he said. "We believe it is socially and psychologically damaging to large sections of the population."

Johnston said the agency's poll was conducted among 200 adult TV viewers. He said the agency has decided to expand the survey "to verify the preliminary results."

Among these results, he said, is that two of every five persons said they avoid watching programs they consider too violent.

Also, one of every five men and one of every three women said they prevent their children from watching programs they thought were excessively violent, he added.

Johnston said the agency's analysis of existing scientific and social research on TV violence reveals the following areas where it believes "damage is caused."

— "If they (children) are constantly given models of violent behavior, their behavior will probably turn violent."

— "Incidents have been reported in which unstable adults have modeled crimes on television dramas."

— "Excessive doses of violence tend to desensitize even stable adults. They become indifferent to the suffering of others."

— "Heavy watching of TV violence contributes to the tide of paranoia that afflicts a major part of the population ... Caution is a useful emotion. Terror is not."

Ad front breakthrough

Advertising is at the very heart of competition. Without advertising to tell them who is offering what, where and at how much, consumers are strictly limited in their knowledge of who is competing with whom. Thus, laws which prohibit or restrict advertising have the effect of causing consumers to pay higher prices for products and services than they would otherwise pay.

This applies to prescription drugs as it applies to other market place commodities. Consequently, a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling overturning a Virginia law which prohibited the advertising of prescription drugs comes as good news to such medication users, many of whom are elderly and on fixed or low incomes. The ruling is particularly significant because Virginia is only one of more than 30 states which have laws either prohibiting or restricting the advertising of prescription drugs.

Know your rock

Those lucky people who found themselves the proud owners of a pet rock on Christmas morning may want to know more about the lovable things that have won their hearts with such tricks as rolling down a hill or playing dead.

Because we are as slaphappy as anybody else from the usual run of the news, we take this opportunity to pass along the announcement that geologists with the National Water Well Association will prepare a detailed genealogy for any pet rock sent to them.

Some pet rocks have been estimated to be more than two billion years old, says Dr. Jay Lehr, executive director of the association. "Many began as a molten mass hardening deep below the earth's surface. Millions of years later they were subjected to the forces of impact between colliding continents, contorted and compressed, and finally thrust thousands of feet above sea level.

"Tormented by millions of years of exposure to wind, rain, snow and heat, many of our poor little friends were taken from their original homes and carried away by massive glaciers. Finally, resting along a stream or on a beach or on the surface of a desert, these rocks were collected and sold to warm, friendly people who have given them a loving environment in which to spend the remaining millennia of their existence."

So, pet rock owners, send your rock, along with $1 for return postage and handling, to the Geological Division, National Water Well Association, 500 West Wilson Bridge Road, Worthington, Ohio 43085.

Besides a glowing history of your pet rock, the NWWA will send you back a vial of "precious underground water, similar to that which for millions of years carressed and gave life-giving moisture to your pet before it ever saw the light of day."

Instructions for proper use will, of course, be included.

The heaviest domestic cat known was named Gigi and weighed 42 pounds.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

The tax smear on Reagan

By WILLIAM RUSHER
The political Silly Season is officially under way, and we must of course be on our guard against the absurdities that always characterize it, but I confess to being more depressed than amused by the liberal media's current attempt to get a little mileage out of Ronald Reagan's tax payments. What depresses me is the fact that, for the success of this particular smear, the media are relying so heavily — and so serenely — on the ignorance and enviousness of the average voter.

Reagan's latest, would-be nemesis is Eileen Shanahan of the New York Times. Ms. Shanahan is the news hound who reported breathlessly, back in 1974, that Richard Nixon's tax accountant had deducted a total of $224 from Nixon's gross income in the four-year period 1969-1972 for California gasoline taxes, thereby saving the president nearly $19.63 a year in federal income taxes. Since Nixon was riding around in official cars most of the time during those years, Ms. Shanahan thought it possible that the deduction was "seriously inflated." This dazzling insight won her the 1974 Prize for Creative Microeconomics: one slightly better safety pin.

Recently Ms. Shanahan focused her fierce glare on Ronald Reagan. He had issued in February a consolidated summary of all the state and federal taxes he paid from 1970 to 1974 inclusive, plus a separate and more detailed statement for 1975, but La Shanahan was not satisfied. By nosing around in the California property tax records, she ascertained what taxes Reagan had paid during those years on his real estate holdings. Then she deducted the payment for 1970 from the total taxes Reagan has acknowledged paying for that year, and triumphantly concluded that it is possible (though admittedly not certain) that in 1970 Reagan paid no federal income tax at all.

Now, as any reasonable sophisticated person knows, there is nothing terribly unusual, let alone illegal, about a well-to-do person not paying any income tax in some particular year. In fact it is downright inevitable if his only income was from tax-exempt municipal bonds (i.e., if he kept his money tied up in municipal improvements); and it can also occur, as it may have in Reagan's case, simply as a by-product of how various costs and losses happen to be distributed, and what proportion they bore to his gross income for the year in question. (One well-known example of this is Nelson Rockefeller, who is a great deal richer than Ronald Reagan yet claimed that he owed no federal income tax whatever for 1970.) But just imagine what a really skilled journalist with murder in his or her heart can do with that sort of thing!

For starters, one can manage to generate a distinct odor of tax evasion (i.e., criminality) without ever actually alleging it. Ms. Shanahan's grand expose appeared on page 1 of the Times for Sunday, May 16. Her last sentence on that page, after five paragraphs of derogatory innuendo, began: "Analysis of the limited information that Mr. Reagan has so far made public indicates that — and then you had to turn to page 30 to read her gloomy conclusion: 'what he has done is within the law.'"

Then too: much can be achieved by ostentatiously comparing situations that are fundamentally different. Ms. Shanahan, for example, after noting Reagan's assertion that his 1971 income was about $87,000, ventured a guess that he paid that year a federal income tax equal to what "a typical married couple with an income of $16,000 would have paid." Sure — "would have paid" on an income, savings and investment history wildly different from anything that might conceivably be imagined for a Ronald Reagan.

But probably what matters most isn't what is actually proved — or whether anything is proved at all. Just let those big income figures roll around in the average voter's head for a while and you can pretty well count on the old Green-Eyed Monster to do the rest — eh, Eileen? (Copyright 1976)

HELP FROM BIG BROTHER

In the bank or up the chimney?

It's expensive and frustrating to keep up with the rising utility bills your house seems to "create." You're probably not sure whether you've got an overactive air conditioner or new holes around your windows, but something's got to give, according to the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Well, to help you figure out ways to attack the problem, HUD says it has a real "how to" publication. This new book gives you step-by-step illustrated instructions on all kinds of fix-up routines designed to keep the heat or the air conditioning inside where it will keep you comfortable. For your copy of "In the bank or up the chimney," send $1.70 to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 23, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Here's some advice HUD says will keep your cooling cost down:

Increasing the insulation in your house will do a lot to decrease your fuel bills. And putting insulation in the ceiling is something you can learn to do yourself. Among the kinds of insulation are batts, blankets blown in and foamed in place.

Batts or blankets of glass fiber or rock wool are used to insulate unfinished attic floors, unfinished attic rafters and the underside of floors. Batts are four or eight feet in length.

while blankets come in long rolls. Both are fire and moisture resistant. Although batts are easier to handle, you'll have more trimming waste than you would have with blankets.

Another place to turn your attention is your air conditioner. Be sure to clean or replace the air filters every 30 to 60 days. You'll save far more money in fuel than the cost of the filters. And clean the condenser coils of dust, grass, clippings, etc. (the condenser is the part of your air conditioner that sits outside your house.) It should be shaded — if your air conditioner has to work in the sun it wastes a lot of fuel. When you shade it, make sure you don't obstruct the flow of air out and around it.

The booklet also includes formulas to help you figure how much one you can actually save on your heating and cooling bills and takes you through the step-by-step process to the total figure.

EDITOR'S NOTE — HUD

says to remind readers that there is a charge of $1.70 for each copy of "In the Bank or Up the Chimney."

The first Europeans to visit what is now the state of Arkansas were Spanish and French — Hernando de Soto in 1541, Louis Joliet in 1673 and Sieur de la Salle in 1682. The first settlement was French, established at Arkansas Post in 1686 under Henri de Tonty. In 1762 the area was ceded by France to Spain, then back again in 1800. It became part of the United States in 1803 with the Louisiana Purchase.

RMN no albatross around Ford's neck

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — In their effort to put the best face on Gerald Ford's less than smashing impact on the early primary campaigning, the President's people are blaming that convenient villain, Richard M. Nixon. In this case the M stands for meddler.

Generously indignant, White House employees suggest that Nixon's trip to China has reminded voters of the recent Republican past and thereby interrupted Ford's attempt to convince the populace that he is brave, loyal, trustworthy, obedient and, don't forget, reverent.

It isn't the first time the Nixon name has been used to explain away the negatives of Jerry Ford's crusade for sainthood. From the beginning of his unselected administration, the President through his apologists has whispered that the Nixon legacy and the Nixon apparatus are at the bottom of the Decent One's most vexing troubles.

First there was the Nixon fallout to endure, then there were the Nixon holdovers, and through it all the Ford forces say there has been the Nixon-poisoned atmosphere in which the nurturing of effective leadership is all but impossible. The White House says Ford was blackened by Nixon in pardoning him and from then on the benefactor's ghost has been everywhere detrimental. "The greatest problem we have," said a Ford ally recently, "is trying to get rid of the totally false notion that this is a Ford-Nixon executive branch."

Forgetting for the moment that President Ford would still be Congressman Ford were it not for Dick Nixon, there is some truth in the Administration's insistence that the latter is the former's everlasting low blow. To the extent Ford is the chosen successor of and by the most denigrated President in American history, he suffers wrongly from associated guilt. Nonetheless, there are limits to this kind of cause and effect. Clearly, Ford's belief that a globetrotting Nixon is costing him votes is absurd, it is in fact an unworthy excuse.

It can't be overlooked here that Ford came by his excuse honestly. Perhaps not bright enough to create such complicated reasoning himself, he has been assisted by a popular sentiment which has been almost unanimous in opposing the Nixon China trip.

For weeks Washington observers have been seeing only mischief in the event, drawing preposterously ominous innuendos from it, i.e. Nixon would not hurt Ford in Peking, but U.S. foreign policy as well. In listing the risks of Nixon's visit, pundits have suggested every evil save the possibility he would bring home some new form of Asian flu.

Well, humbug, Nixon's journey was little more than an attempt by a defeated man to prove to the world he still has friends. Surely even his bitterest enemies can understand the pathos involved. Dishonor aside, he's only been discredited, not convicted, and he can't be fairly condemned for massaging his spirits. By the way, the alternative to his re-emergence into the daylight of reality is his continued isolation in San Clemente, which the pundits also condemn.

It is evident now that Richard Nixon is neither going to go away forever nor live among us as a properly confessed and remorseful sinner. He is going to march to his own drum, wherever it leads, hence the nation is going to have to come to terms with this inevitability.

He is going to travel, and has a right to it. He is going to make money with his memoirs, for that is the capitalist way. One day, like Herbert Hoover, he may even become a curiosity that transcends public bitterness, and we will have to accept him as sentimental Sunday supplement fare. To simply continue to hate him because God doesn't strike him down, or to go on reacting in heat whenever he displays his arrogant jowls would hurt him less than us. He did wrong, but he was brought down for it and then banished. Let him go.

Better we should concentrate on the wicked motives of the leaders still in power. Gerald Ford's, for example. One can forgive his ineptitude, even his overbearing piety, but not his perfidious alibis. The trouble with President Ford is President Ford, not Richard Nixon, and propaganda to the contrary should not again be raised in the election.

Capitol Comedy

Congress is worried that its reputation as a governing body has been exposed by a shapely body.

The administration wants to avoid publicity about Kissinger. It asked him to meditate the disputes in the capitol parking lot.

Ford's campaign advisers found a solution to his dull speaking voice. They will hire a ventriloquist.

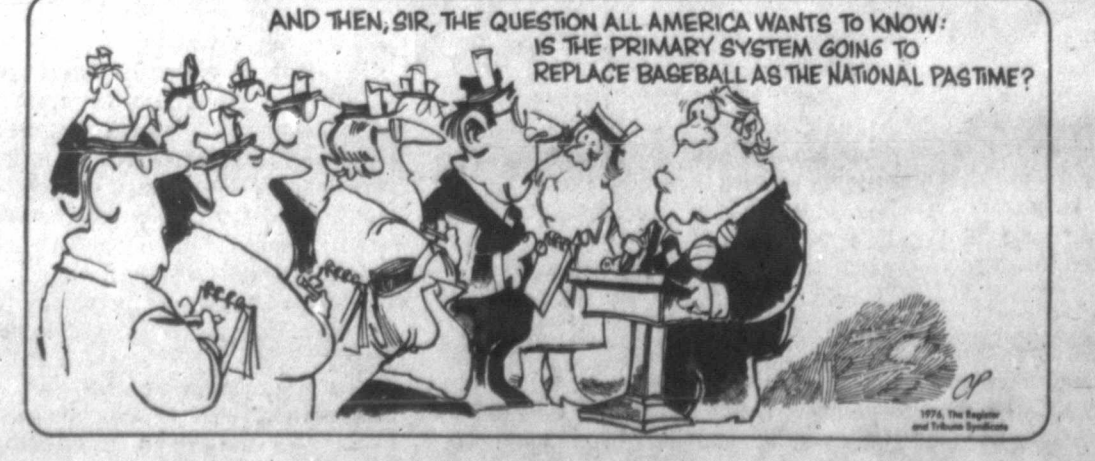

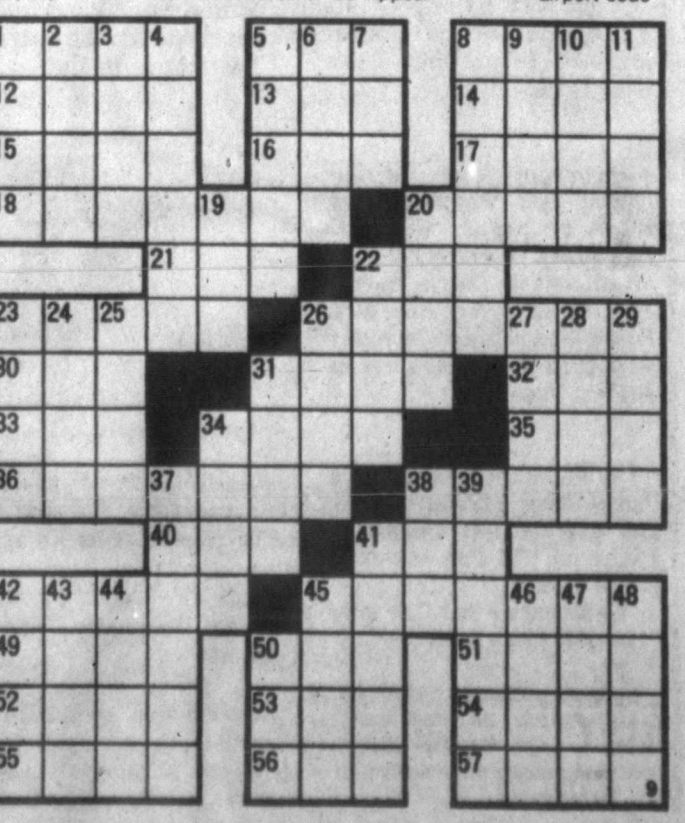

The Democrats are trying to block Carter with Humphrey and Kennedy. That's like sending up the Kitty Hawk to overtake the Concorde.

Because of the Hay's publicity, congress will no longer require its secretaries to get their training in massage parlors.

The way things now look for the GOP, they gear for the good old days of Watergate.

Calligraphy--the art of elegant penmanship

By TIM PALMER
Pampa News Staff

"Show me how to do that," the ancient peoples must have said to each other, thus preserving actual Roman handwriting. It is still practiced today.

More than thirty-five Pampans began a two-day study of it this week. Roman serif style was one of four handwriting styles taught in a course called "calligraphy," offered Tuesday afternoons and today at the Horace Mann school cafeteria.

According to the instructor, Mrs. Jerry Darby Carper of Lubbock, Roman serif dates from 200 B.C. It is the style of letter used for most newspaper and magazine type. "It is considered one of the most perfect styles of lettering. It has changed very little since 100 B.C.," she said.

Calligraphy, as she describes it, is the art of elegant penmanship. She teaches Roman serif; chancery cursive, "a 15th century italic"; copperplate, "a very elegant script from the 18th century"; and, "the most popular style, Old English, from the 12th century."

The two-day seminar sponsored by the Pampa Independent School District, credited participating teachers with nine hours of professional growth credit. Each student was equipped with paper, pens, ink, instructions and plenty of time to practice.

"The key is practice," Mrs. Carper explained. "This is an art anybody can use, anybody can learn. You don't have to be artistic; you don't even have to be talented. But through practice and patience a student can attain a pleasing degree of mastery of some or all of the styles."

"I'm self-taught," she continued. "That's the hardest way. But now I can teach my students in a short time what it took me 14 years to learn."

The collector of calligraphy books has written her own text, "Calligraphy: A Guide to Beautiful Lettering and Writing," because "no one book I found had all I wanted my students to know."

Everything she teaches her pupils is combined into 26 pages with examples of all four styles and instructions to the beginning calligrapher. Because it is more of an art than simple penmanship, each letter is drawn precisely, some requiring as many as eight separate pen strokes to complete.

Breathing plays an important part in successful calligraphy, Mrs. Carper said. "When you hold your breath, you have infinite control over your muscles. This helps eliminate jagged letters."

Mrs. Carper urges her students to practice so they can comfortably combine writing and breathing. "At an Odessa seminar," she recalled, "we almost lost a little lady. We were doing the word 'minimum' and by the time she got to the last 'm' she was blue in the face."

Once the art is mastered, however, the calligrapher can personally letter invitations, cards and announcements.

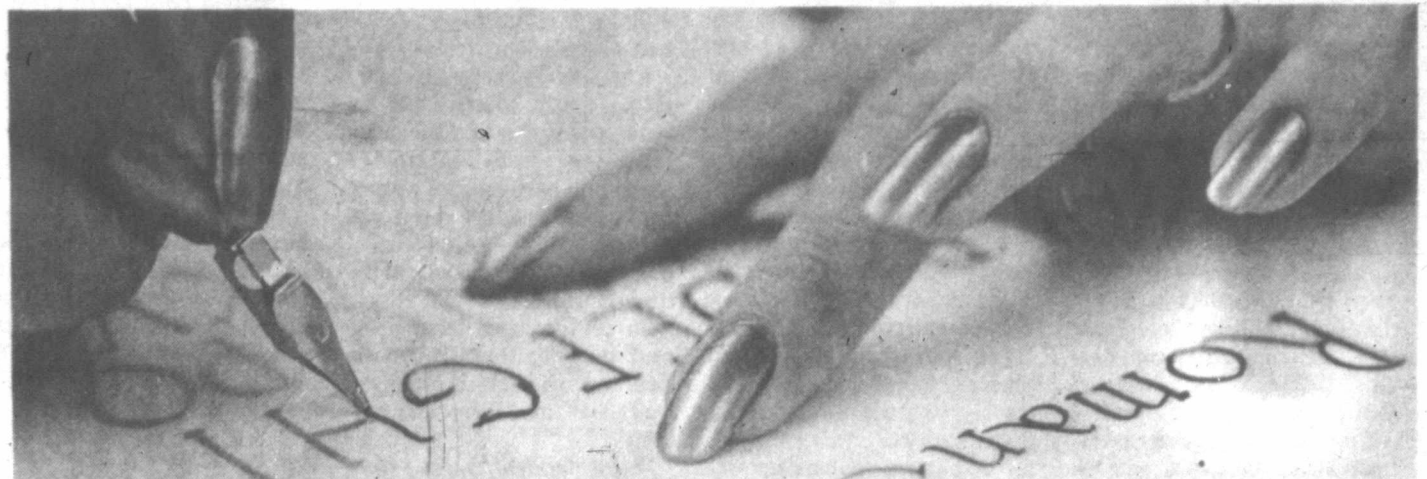

"There's something elegant about the handlettering," the instructor said. "People know that it takes longer and is something special, too. You're sending them a part of yourself. You could send something professionally printed, but it's like in art when you have an original and a print. You can't tell the difference, but there's something special about having the original."

Most of her students do continue and learn the styles, she said. Of 600 pupils she has known only two to quit.

"It's an addictive thing. It's like eating peanuts. You get so caught up in it you can't stop."

Currently, the United States is caught up in calligraphy. "There's been a great renaissance of this art," she said. "There's been a peak renaissance during the bicentennial year. People are very bicentennial conscious."

From Borger to Odessa, Mrs. Carper has been conducting calligraphy seminars for five years, because, she said, "so many people were saying, 'Show me how to do that!'"

City, tv agree on fee

Suggested amendments to Pampa Cable TV's franchise ordinance for compliance with Federal Communications Commission regulations will be submitted at the June 22 meeting of the City Commission.

That agreement was reached after a two-hour reconvened afternoon meeting of Tuesday's regular council session. City officials and representatives of American Cable Television, Inc., parent company of Pampa Cable TV, met in the afternoon session with Mayor R.D. Wilkerson, City Manager Mack Wofford, City Attorney Bob Gordon and City Secretary S.M. Chittenden. Representing the Cable System were James Monroe, franchise coordinator for ACT, Inc., Phoenix, Ariz. and Wayne Steddum, local cable television manager.

The session had been continued from Tuesday morning's regular council meeting. None of the city commissioners attended the afternoon discussion.

Differences between the cable company and the city had centered around what should be included in the city's 3 per cent franchise fee. The city originally had sought to collect on all gross receipts.

This finally was reduced not to include local advertising revenue and would only be assessed against gross subscriber receipts, as now established by FCC regulations. The city, however, reserved the right to negotiate for the 3 per cent fee on what is called "per program or per-channel costs" that would be charged to subscribers if and when the FCC permits cities to assess a use fee for such services.

The city also opposed a company request to issue an additional charge to the customer's bill each month for a copyright fee assessed the company on programs brought into Pampa from distant city independent television stations. The company agreed if legislation now in the mill requiring cable companies to pay the copyright fee is finally adopted, it would be passed on to the customer in one flat rate monthly charge and not as two separate charges—or what City Manager Wofford called "another pass-through charge."

Mayor Wilkerson said the new franchise amendments to the ordinance would be put into form and be ready for further discussion of the full commission at the June 22 meeting.

TV star rehabilitating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Louise Lasser, the wide-eyed actress who stars as TV's tension-prone "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," has been placed in a six-month drug rehabilitation program after her arrest on cocaine charges.

Beverly Hills Municipal Court Judge Leonard Wolf on Tuesday ordered Miss Lasser, 37, to continue visiting a psychiatrist and to stay away from known drug users and sellers. Wolf ordered the deadpan star of the soap opera spoof to return to court Dec. 1 for a progress report.

The program, known as a drug diversion program, allows first offenders such as Miss Lasser to bypass criminal proceedings.

The actress was taken into custody May 4 after the manager of a Beverly Hills boutique complained that she was creating a disturbance. Her store had refused to allow her to charge a purchase on a personal account.

Seepage cited in dam burst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Water seeping past concrete barriers that lined Idaho's Teton dam may have caused the dam's disastrous collapse last Saturday, a government spokesman says.

The collapse, as the earthen dam's reservoir was being filled for the first time, sent a flood racing down the Teton River, killing at least nine persons and destroying homes and farms.

With the disaster under investigation in Congress and by government scientists, a spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation said attention was centering on signs that water seepage first began eating a hole into the base of the downstream, "dry" side of the 307-foot-high dam, rather than the upstream side where its new 17-mile reservoir was half full and still rising.

But the spokesman said investigators did not know how the water might have reached that area on the face of the dam. The $55-million structure was completed last December after being authorized in 1964 for flood control and irrigation.

The spokesman said bureau experts speculated that once the seepage washed a channel through to the reservoir side, the high-pressure reservoir water began pouring through, rapidly enlarging the break until the dam burst.

The pressure of water at the base of a dam can be enormous: a water depth of 100 feet exerts a pressure of some 6,240 pounds — more than three tons — per square foot. Explaining the current theory of the dam's collapse, the bureau spokesman said engineers knew they could not build a successful earthen dam without protecting it against direct water seepage through its foundation and its anchor points in the canyon walls.

To prevent such seepage, he said, they dug trenches into the riverbed and into the canyon walls and lined them with concrete.

Water which might have flowed through natural channels across those areas then was blocked and forced to seep underground around the ends of those barricades, called "grouts." These grouts extended beyond each end of the dam to divert underground water away from the dam. He said this underground water was expected to reappear as seepage from canyon walls at a safe distance downstream. At first it did.

But then, he said, a much larger seepage recently appeared where it was not supposed to be — where the front of the dam itself met the canyon wall. Last Thursday, the local authorities began to get worried.

Their fears were confirmed, he said, when a whirlpool developed in the reservoir just behind the dam, evidence that water was flowing rapidly out through a new channel.

Finally, with a public evacuation already under way downstream, the dam burst open Saturday and sent its water smashing down the valley.

The spokesman said the Bureau of Reclamation did not know whether seeping water somehow got through the grouting that was supposed to stop it, or whether the grouting did its job of diverting the underground water which then found some hidden, unknown channel through the surrounding rock back to the face of the dam.

4,000 releases sought

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile's military government was under new pressure from the United States and some other American countries today to free the 4,000 political prisoners it is estimated to be holding or at least to respect their human rights.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned the ruling junta that U.S.-Chilean relations will remain cool unless it improves its performance on human rights. Venezuela and Jamaica called for a large-scale release of prisoners.

A Chilean representative said the demands for release of the prisoners was "demagogic and simplistic." The U.S. secretary of state told the annual general assembly of the Organization of American States Tuesday that the situation "has impaired our relationship with Chile and will continue to do so."

Kissinger cited the report on human rights in the hemisphere made to the meeting by the OAS Human Rights Commission. He said it showed there has been a drop in the number of cases of abuse of human rights in Chile.

"Nevertheless, the commission has asserted that violations continue to occur, and this is a matter of bilateral as well as international concern," Kissinger said. "In the United States, concern is widespread in the executive branch, in the press, and in the Congress."

Kissinger said the commission's report "confirms our worst fears of Cuban behavior." Informed sources said the report told of continuing repression, women prisoners being kept nude in overcrowded cells, prisoners being denied visitors and mail, and prisoners' meals being served deliberately at erratic hours.

U.S. officials said Kissinger also discussed the human rights issue at a meeting Tuesday with Gen. Augusto Pinochet, president of the Chilean junta. But there was no information on whether the secretary linked the issue to economic and financial support the junta gets from the United States and international lending agencies it controls. There also was no indication of what Pinochet told Kissinger.

Chilean delegate Sergio Diez told the OAS session his government is trying to improve the human rights situation "within the framework of the emergency situation in which we have been living." "Human rights should be respected, but the situation is not the same in a country where terrorism and subversion launch periodic attacks as in another country where things are more tranquil."

Gunshot victim improving

A five-year-old Pampa girl who was accidentally shot in the chest Monday afternoon while playing with her brother and cousin is scheduled to be moved from the intensive care unit of Highland General Hospital Thursday.

The child is Eva Jo Isbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Isbell, who live just east of the Pampa city limits.

Mrs. Isbell said she was preparing dinner when she heard the shot and thought something had fallen. Eva Jo was playing with her six-year-old brother and a three-year-old cousin.

"The kids were playing and climbed upon a chest of drawers and pulled some things out... it looked like they loaded the gun themselves and the trigger went off..." Mrs. Isbell said.

"We don't know which one did what," she added. Hospital attendants said the bullet from the .22 caliber pistol went in the child's chest and came out her back.

Mrs. Isbell said she was alone with the children at the time of the accident, and managed to get them in the car and went to the emergency room.

"I don't know how — but I did it," she said. Hospital attendants today listed the child's condition as good.

The mother explained that the children climbed pretty high to find the gun.

SWAT team rushes house

HOUSTON (AP) — Police sought a disabled war veteran on an assault to murder charge today after authorities failed to find him when they stormed his Northeast Houston home.

Special weapon and tactics (SWAT) officers surrounded the house of Horace Tolliver Jr.,

48, for six hours Tuesday, believing he was barricaded inside.

After about 18 rounds of tear gas were lobbed in the frame structure, officers moved in and found Tolliver was not there.

The special police unit was summoned after John Harris, 55, a neighbor of Tolliver, was shot in the back while walking down the street. Tolliver was charged with assault to murder Harris, who was listed in critical condition after surgery.

Officers said they had a report that a large supply of ammunition was in the house but they found only an empty rifle case.

Also proving false were reports that gas masks were inside the house and that an escape tunnel had been dug underneath it.

The tear gas was not used until about four hours after Harris had been hospitalized and the vigil continued another two hours before the assault order was issued.

Police records show Tolliver received a five-year prison sentence in 1951 for murder and a one year sentence in 1957 in Denver, Colo., on a charge of transporting firearms across a state line.

'Starsky, Hutch' rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A "Starsky and Hutch" repeat last week soared to the top of the A.C. Nielsen ratings. But a Jacques Cousteau underwater special on the same network sank to the bottom.

According to the Nielsen audience estimates, made public Tuesday, "Starsky and Hutch" was seen in more than 19.2 million homes last week.

The Cousteau special, the week's least-watched evening television show, was seen in slightly more than 4.4 million homes, trounced in its Sunday night time period by CBS' "60 Minutes."

The Nielsen estimates, for the week ending June 6, showed that the week's 20 most popular shows were "Starsky and Hutch" (ABC); "M.A.S.H." (CBS); "Happy Days" and "Baretta" (both ABC); "All in the Family" (CBS); "Laverne and Shirley" (ABC); "One Day at a Time" and "Maude" (both CBS); "Police Story" (NBC); "Bionic Woman" and "Sunday Movie" (both ABC); "Medical Center" (CBS); "Rockford Files" (NBC); "Switch" (CBS); "Mary Tyler Moore"; "Phyllis" and "Bob Newhart" (all all CBS); "Jigsaw John" (NBC); "Six Million Dollar Man" (ABC), and "Kojak" (CBS).

Fugate parole gets 4-1 board approval

YORK, Neb. (AP) — Caril Ann Fugate will be released from prison after serving 18 years for murder but her desire to settle down in obscurity and perhaps get married and raise children may be just a dream.

Her chances for anonymity on the outside were threatened Tuesday when the chairman of Nebraska's Parole Board, John Greenholtz, said Miss Fugate would report to a parole officer in St. Johns, Mich., after she is freed.

Greenholtz' revelation of Miss Fugate's parole address may have upset a plan to set Miss Fugate up with a "new identity."

His comment was the first indication of where Miss Fugate is going.

"I do not wish to give interviews today or in the future," said Miss Fugate as she appeared before the board.

"I'd like to just settle down, get married, have a couple kids — you know, dust the house, clean the toilet — you know, just an ordinary little dumpy housewife. That's all I want to be — wash the socks, you know, burn the toast."

The board's vote was 4-1 to grant Miss Fugate's request for parole. She will be released June 20, apparently for the new start in Michigan.

About 30 persons attended the hearing. The board's decision brought applause.

Now 32, Miss Fugate accompanied Charles Starkweather, the red-haired mass killer, on a rampage in 1958 that left 10 dead. Starkweather was the last man executed in Nebraska's electric chair — 17 years ago this month.

Miss Fugate said Starkweather forced her to go with him, but Starkweather swore that his companion, then 14, was a willing accomplice in as many as six of the murders. Starkweather's victims included Miss Fugate's mother, stepfather and 2-year-old half-sister.

She was convicted of first-degree murder in connection with her part in the death of one of Starkweather's victims, Richard Jensen.

During her prison years, Miss Fugate became a member of the Nazarene Church. She taught Bible classes, babysat for worshippers attending Sunday services and occasionally delivered sermons.

"I would just like to say thanks," said Miss Fugate before being led quickly from the room with tears in her eyes.

PIF studies center needs

The Pampa Industrial Foundation went on record Tuesday as recognizing the Pampa Day Care Center as a distinct community need, and named a committee to look into the center's current problems and determine if there is some way the Foundation can be of help.

The action came after Clyde Carruth, member of the Day Care Center board, met with foundation directors and explained the need for more room to accommodate children at the day care facility.

Bill Loving were named to the committee to study the center's problem.

PIF board members also discussed routine business and heard a preliminary report on consideration being given Pampa as the location for a new business.

Oklahoma solons rush work

By STELLA ROBERTS Associated Press Writer OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma legislators will try today to resolve an unexpected deadlock which developed Tuesday, threatening to end hope of meeting a midnight adjournment deadline.

Today is the 90th working day of the 1976 legislative session, the constitutional deadline for sine die adjournment.

Tuesday, legislative leaders thought they had cleared the major hurdles remaining in the path of sine die adjournment. But the House, after giving final approval to three controversial bills to raise judges' pay, unexpectedly rebelled and rejected a measure to increase the pay of State Industrial Court judges.

The Senate refused a House request for further conference on the Industrial Court bill, and House Speaker Bill Willis indicated he was doubtful the deadlock could be broken today.

Gov. David Boren's prison construction bill completed its third journey through the legislature earlier Tuesday.

The House gave final approval to the big appropriation measure for colleges and universities and Willis said Senate-House budget conferees would work overnight to get other money measures out of conference for final passage on Wednesday.

Passed by the House before the Industrial Court bill came up were bills to raise Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals judges' salaries by $8,000, putting them at $38,000 annually; boost appeals court judges by $9,000 to $35,000, and hike district court judges by $7,000 to $32,000.

Willis had not been optimistic about passing those bills, but they went through and the Industrial Court bill, which would have raised the judges to $32,000, was the one that threatened to block adjournment.

The Senate cleared one major hurdle Tuesday, voting 37-8 to pass the $33 million Corrections Department bill, which includes $12.6 million to begin construction of two new medium security prisons, one at Hominy and the other at Lexington.

The bill now goes to Boren for his signature. Boren and legislative leaders had to push the prison program through the legislature three times because the first two versions contained some flaws.

The Senate debated nearly two hours before defeating a proposal by Sens. Phil Watson, R-Edmond, and John Young, D-Sapulpa, to reject the prison bill and build just one new prison.

Young warned that the new prisons will increase corrections spending so rapidly that the legislature "will have to cut down on programs or increase taxes" by 1978.

There were several additional problems facing the legislature late Tuesday, including the "pork barrel" bill and an Employment Security Commission bill remained unbroken.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged divorcee. For the last two years I've been dating a very attractive single man. We are not officially engaged, but since we've been seeing each other I haven't dated anyone else, and the only time he has been with one of his friends or relatives fixes him up with a "lovely lady" they think he should meet, or when he's asked as a favor to escort a lady somewhere.

I very much resent others casting my gentleman friend in the role of a single available man. When I tell him that I don't appreciate his accommodating others by escorting another lady, or agreeing to accept an arranged date, he tells me I'm being foolish.

How can I handle this annoying situation without appearing possessive and jealous?

NUMBER ONE LADY

DEAR LADY: You can't. Don't blame others for casting your gentleman friend "in the role" of an available man. He doesn't have to accept that role unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: Do they sell donkey blinders anymore? If so, I would like to buy a pair for my husband. He never looks at the road when he drives. Instead, he is busy gawking at the young women who are walking along the streets.

He slows down to about five miles an hour to be sure he doesn't miss anything. We've come within inches of having accidents more times than I can count.

How can I get this old coot to keep his eyes on the road? He's 62 and I'm 60.

GAWKER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Even donkey blinders would be useless for this breed of donkey. If you can't get him to keep his eyes on the road, take the wheel. And if he doesn't like it, let him trot!

DEAR ABBY: A friend of ours who is a married woman with children recently lost her mother.

My mother and I disagree on how the condolence card should be addressed.

I say condolences should be addressed to: "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and family."

My mother insists that the condolence card be addressed only to my friend whose mother died.

Is it proper to console only the party directly bereaved? Or shouldn't my friend's husband and children also receive condolences? After all, her husband lost his mother-in-law, and the children lost their grandmother.

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

DEAR FRIEND: I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: About LONG SUFFERING HUSBAND, whose wife would not permit smoking in the house: There is no point in my repeating the damage that smokers do to themselves, but they should realize the suffering they cause others and not expect nonsmokers to remain silent.

I would like to ask that clown this question: If his wife had hay fever, would he expect her to tolerate ragweed in the house?

C. B. WILLIAMS

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 25 years old. In March 1975 I had my first baby. I am only 5 feet 1 and weigh about 130 pounds. When I had my daughter I had to have a section. Because of the section my doctor told me that I couldn't do any exercise. So I just went on a diet and went from 140 to 115 pounds.

From my middle down I still looked as if I were about five and a half months pregnant. I got so depressed that I went back up to 130 pounds. I know I am overweight. I am back on the diet to lose weight but I need good exercises to flatten my tummy and rear and also slim down my hips and thighs.

I know now that dieting is not enough. If you can, please send me a booklet or something with the right kind of exercises for me. I went to the book stores around here and can only find books on dieting and none on exercise.

DEAR READER: It is discouraging to suddenly pass from a small woman to one who has to fight to keep the flab off. Small women really have more trouble because they don't have a lot of muscle mass to begin with, so they use a small amount of calories at rest, compared to larger women.

Immediately after a section I can see why your doctor would not want you to do too much exercising that would put a strain on the scar. However, if it is a good scar there is no reason why you can't do ordinary calisthenics now to strengthen your abdominal muscles. The exercises will not be as big a strain on the healed incision as another pregnancy will be and women commonly have additional pregnancies after the first section.

Obviously you do need to diet. You know how since you have been successful in this department before. I recommend that everyone who goes on a diet also use an exercise program even if it is just walking. The exercise will help keep you from losing vital body protein and muscle. Without it you will lose so much muscle that it is even harder to avoid obesity after the diet than it was before. That is what is wrong with those fad and crash diets, among other things.

You need exercises to strengthen your abdominal muscles. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding the Big Middle. Others who want this information can forward 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This will tell you how to do set ups and leg lifts that will tighten your abdominal muscles. Most people think that sit-ups will do the job, but they are just for the upper abdomen and will not help that lower pot.

A good daily walking program, built up to an hour a day if you have time, plus the abdominal exercises and weight reduction should do the trick for you. Men are too inhibited usually to use them, but bumps and grinds are very good for improving the strength of the seat and pelvic muscles. They might help in that department.

I also like to recommend swimming as a good exercise to lose weight. But you have to swim, not lie in the sun and gobble down snacks or cold drinks.

If the water is on the cool side it will help drain away heat, which means losing calories. The exercise doesn't strain your joints as your body weight is supported. It is a great exercise for many who have knee, ankle and foot problems and is a pleasant way to exercise in warm weather.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY: My sister-in-law and I are planning a 30th wedding anniversary party for our parents. The problem is we want to send them to Hawaii and that is so expensive. We are wondering if it would be socially acceptable to have a dinner dance and charge twenty dollars a couple. If not what would be the solution. We are stumped. —L.G.M.

DEAR L.G.M.: I am no Emily Post nor Amy Vanderbilt but I do know you should not proceed with plans for a dinner dance that would cost the guests to come. A cover charge might keep away many who would really want to come that your parents would like to see. I well understand your thoughtfulness in wanting your parents to have that great trip, but stick to a party and gift that you can afford. It is the getting together with relatives and old friends, in a festive atmosphere, that really counts. I am sure they would be thrilled if you could have some of the guests who were at their wedding or even some of the wedding party. —POLLY.

Pampa woman plays piccolo for Army band

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Joyce Davis, 20, of Pampa returned Sunday to Fort Hood after a brief leave from the 1st Cavalry Division at Ft. Hood where she is a piccolo player in the band.

She enlisted in the Women's Army Corps on Aug. 14, 1975, and her graduating class was featured on the national television program "60 Minutes."

Miss Davis said she enlisted because she thought she needed to grow up before attending college.

"I thought I knew everything — but the Army has taught me to respect those who know more," she said.

Her basic training was with Alpha Company, 18th Battalion, 5th Brigade at Fort Jackson, S.C. She graduated Oct. 8, 1975.

She then went to an Advanced Individual

Training unit for eight weeks before being assigned to Ft. Hood.

She attended Pampa High School.

"The Army is interesting. You never quit learning," she added.

"My bandmaster is retiring in August and I've learned so much from him."

Miss Davis enlisted for a three year term.

"What comes later I don't know. I want to go to college... it will work itself out."

She says her few short months with the Army has taught her to handle responsibilities.

She explained that after she enlisted she had no time to be homesick. Looking back to her first pass, she said it came sooner than expected — on Labor Day.

And we got a big kick out of going to the PX (Post Exchange) without our drill sergeants. They took the place of a mother and father. They were with us all the time," she explained.

"At first I didn't like drill sergeants. All they could do was scream — and then suddenly they screamed no more."

She said graduation was both happy and sad.

"We knew we would miss our drill sergeants."

She played in the band for the Bicentennial Olympics for Retarded and Mentally Ill Children of Texas.

"It kinda gave you a good feeling," she said.

She described Fort Hood as a "beautiful place — a town inside a town."

Miss Davis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Pierce of 2800 Rosewood.

Books about gypsies

Capsule reviews prepared by the American Library Assn.

By Beth Ames

When most Americans think of Gypsies, images immediately come to mind of the mysterious and exotic nomads who stole babies in folk tales.

Three recently published books, in very different ways, explore the history and life style of this unique, little-known, and often misunderstood group.

Peter Maas, author of "Serpico," "The Valachi Papers," and now "King of the Gypsies," relied on anecdotes told him by several Gypsies and particularly by Steve Tene (the king of the title) for his popular and highly readable study of American Gypsies.

Tene recalls his initiation, at the tender age of four, into the Gypsy art of conning the "gaje" or non-Gypsy. Accompanying his mother on one of her many jewelry shopping sprees, Tene was suddenly seized by her and forced to swallow a huge diamond while the jeweler's back was turned. Leaving in a huff when the jeweler accused her of stealing the gem, she rushed her son home and stuffed him with bread to insure the diamond's safe return.

Stories of fortune-telling rituals and other unethical, if not illegal, means of making money, are vividly told. The largest swindle ever recorded was the work of a Gypsy who bilked a New York woman out of $118,273 between 1956 and 1961. Although the case was brought to trial, none of the money was ever recovered.

The tales of Tene Bimbo, Steve's grandfather and

KING OF THE GYPSIES By Peter Maas (Viking, 171 pages, $7.95)
GYPSIES: THE HIDDEN AMERICANS By Anne Sutherland (Free Press, 330 pages, $13.95)
GYPSIES, By Josef Koudelka (Aperture, 65 pages, $22.50)

IN "GYPSIES," Josef Koudelka has caught extraordinary photos of a people persecuted through the centuries for their different ways.

overlord of all the Gypsy tribes, read like a combination of the escapades of Al Capone and Jesse James. Another deadly outlaw with a heart of gold, Bimbo was wanted in at least 10 states at the time of his death. The obese Bimbo had a knack for persuading his enemies to disappear. When that failed, he usually dragged them into court on some trumped-up charge. Like most Gypsies, Bimbo couldn't read, but was clever enough to use American law to his advantage.

Twenty-six-year-old Steve Tene's own life reflects a slowly changing attitude among a minority of Gypsies — a belief that they must assimilate to survive. Tene says that Gypsies must relinquish some of their old customs — their adamant refusal, for example, to attend school. His belief that his people need to learn to read and write so they can find steady employment is, not surprisingly, heartily rejected by the majority of Gypsies.

Maas' book is enthusiastically and without reservation recommended for the general reader. Anthropologist Anne Sutherland's "Gypsies: The Hidden Americans," a scholarly, in-depth study of one Gypsy community in Barvale, California, is recommended for the more serious student of Gypsy culture.

In one of the more interesting sections of her book, Sutherland points out that contrary to popular belief, India, not southern or eastern Europe, was the country of Gypsy origin. Leaving that part of the world around 1000 A.D., Gypsies spread north and west into Europe and then America. The name "Gypsy" itself represents the first of countless Gypsy cons on western Europeans, who believed these people to be refugees from Egypt.

In order to study their customs more closely, Sutherland learned the Romany language which the Gypsy or Rom speak among themselves. Since they are secretive and suspicious, they habitually lie to non-Gypsies. Sutherland's knowledge of their language enabled her to overhear conversations, adding interesting tidbits to this otherwise weighty volume.

Anyone reading Sutherland's or Maas' book should look at Josef Koudelka's extraordinary photographs of Gypsies from the eastern Slovakian area of Czechoslovakia.

Koudelka's black and white photos of care-worn people, living in decrepit huts on a barren plain, relate a modern horror story intensified by the hardened looks in his subjects' eyes. Often persecuted through the centuries for their different ways, the Gypsies' life-style is shockingly recorded by Koudelka's unrelenting camera.

Although not pleasant to view, these photographs document a way of life which will be totally alien to most Americans. Familiar scenes of children at play or of a family at home only serve to further emphasize this culture's separateness. Koudelka's "Gypsies" is an absorbing and valuable book.

As the corners of the globe seem to converge and cultures overlap, the Gypsies' cultural uniqueness becomes an increasingly fascinating subject — as these three books so clearly show.

He teaches Circus 101

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a little unusual to find a young woman clown who is also a practicing electrician or another, a chemical engineering student, delivering a circus bally or spiel.

This is Circus Kirk, which bills itself as the only all-student tented circus, which plans more than 180 one-night performances in nine states this summer.

"It's as though I were giving a course in Circus 101 — freshman circus," says Charles W. Boas, the college professor who is its owner and manager.

"This is a gruelling pace, but we break it out gradually."

He said, "There's a daily challenge in which there are immediate goals and satisfactions. We do not have the caste system that exists in other circuses — here everybody has a job. We place a good deal of responsibility on the individual, and long about the second week things fall into place."

The performers are their own roustabouts — putting up the big top and other tents, assembling the bleachers, caring for the animals, hooking up the lights and public address systems and a host of other logistical chores.

When the evening performance is over the young people sleep in bunks in big trailer trucks and then start over early the next morning to do it all again.

Horse in a manhole

ENNIS, Tex. (AP) — It was just another routine day for Tommy Maness, a wire chief for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., until an anonymous caller told him a horse had fallen into a manhole five miles south of Ennis.

Maness was skeptical because the telephone company's manholes are only 54 inches in diameter and it would be mighty hard for horse to slip through.

To be on the safe side, Maness checked out the report and sure enough there was a 1100 pound quarterhorse at the bottom of the 14-foot deep manhole.

Bell contractors dug a 40-foot trench into the side of the manhole, broke through an 8-inch concrete wall with sledge hammers, and led the animal to safety.

Maness estimates the company spent $1,500-$1,600 to rescue the horse. The animal suffered a cut on the leg, nothing more.

Maness is still scratching his head on how the horse fell through a 27-inch hole.

Lebanon military outlook worries U.S.

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is increasingly apprehensive over the disintegrating military outlook in Lebanon and is worried that Syria will not be able to control the situation resulting from its invasion of the war-torn nation.

U.S. officials attribute the jump to the failure of the original contingent to restore order between warring Lebanese Christian and Moslem factions. However, a ranking State Department official says Syrian troops have had their noses bloodied by the Moslem leftists in the fighting over the past day or two in spite of the reinforcements and the use of tanks and air power.

They say they have no clear idea of what Syria is doing with its large-scale intervention, although one policy maker said he tends to believe that Assad means it when he asserts his troops will withdraw once a cease-fire is operational and political stability is achieved.

Other sources believe Assad has intervened in order to install a government in Beirut that will be friendly to him and offset radical Arab forces that he cannot control.

They deny that the United States ever approved Syria's intervention, either directly or tacitly. State Department spokesman Fred Z. Brown on Tuesday repeated that the United States opposes any partition of Lebanon and supports the territorial integrity and political sovereignty of Lebanon.

concerned Syria will put so many troops into Lebanon or will move forces into sections near Israel and thereby raise fears in Jerusalem.

Israel so far has refrained from intervening, but it has described an indefinite "Red Line" which Syria will not be allowed to cross. The line is not necessarily a physical boundary, but a combination of factors which Israel defines as the limit for protecting its national security.

Death toll, damage claims rise in Idaho

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — The death toll from the collapse of Idaho's Teton Dam and the flooding that followed rose to nine today and some damage estimates soared past the $1 billion mark.

Thirty persons still were listed as missing and Idaho Falls Hospital said Tuesday it had reports of 1,750 flood-related injuries, most of them minor and the result of cleanup work.

Only five of the reported deaths were drownings, officials said. Three were attributed to heart attacks and one was the accidental shooting of a man guarding his property to prevent looting, they said.

Damage from flooding was reported along 80 miles of the Teton and Snake rivers below the dam.

Constituents give election to Hays

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays, facing a showdown with House colleagues over a payroll-sex scandal, has won re-nomination to a 15th term in Congress.

returns were gratifying according to the circumstances and the pressure I have been under.

He planned to return to Washington today to join the House in action on key legislation which forced him to postpone until next week a decision on whether to step down temporarily as chairman of the House Administration Committee.

Earlier, the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee announced its staff also would investigate Saturday's collapse of the 307-foot high dam.

The 65-year-old Democrat won Tuesday's Democratic primary over Nick Karnick, a 56-year-old Steubenville court bailiff making his fifth run at Hays.

He is under investigation by the U.S. Justice Department, a federal grand jury and the House Ethics Committee. They are examining allegations of misuse of federal funds.

Two embassy employees were injured, neither seriously, and damage to the building seemed moderate.

Police said there were no suspects in the bombing, which blew out windows and damaged a side wall. In some previous bombings, Croatian nationalists were suspected, but no arrests were made.

Karnick's best previous showing against the incumbent was 20 per cent, but with 64 per cent of the vote counted, the challenger had 43 per cent of the total — Hays 20,175, Karnick 14,925.

Elizabeth Ray, a 33-year-old former member of Hays' staff, has charged he put her on the payroll as his mistress.

Calling the bombing a "repeated terrorist act," Yugoslav Ambassador Dimce Belovski complained that U.S. authorities have not solved any of the attacks.

Syrian advance slowed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese allies claimed they slowed the Syrian armored advance on Beirut today as foreign Arab leaders tried to arrange a cease-fire in the Lebanese war.

The new "Central Command" of leftist Lebanese Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas opposing the Syrian invaders claimed its forces stopped the advance of Syrian tanks on Beirut at the outskirts of the mountain resort of Bhamdoun, 12 miles to the east, for the second day.

on the scene said at least 11 Syrian tanks were destroyed.

Damage from flooding was reported along 80 miles of the Teton and Snake rivers below the dam.

The House Government Operations Committee announced in Washington it will investigate the collapse of the dam amid reports that predictions of danger were ignored.

There was no confirmation of the leftist claims because reporters were unable to reach the front.

The Central Command spokesman claimed a total of 24 Syrian tanks have been destroyed in Sidon and indicated that the invaders had penetrated the city again.

Earlier, the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee announced its staff also would investigate Saturday's collapse of the 307-foot high dam.

Proposition 15, a controversial measure placed on the primary ballot by environmentalists, went down to defeat by a 2-1 margin.

Advancing behind heavy artillery barrages, the Syrians punched into the city before dawn Tuesday. But they were pushed back in fierce fighting during the day, and reporters

Broadcasts from Damascus gave no information on the progress of the Syrian troops, but they also indicated that Sidon or part of it was back in Syrian hands.

Nuclear power approved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California voters, placing their faith in nuclear energy, have firmly rejected the nation's first ballot proposal to restrict the use of nuclear power rather than risk radiation disaster.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, who campaigned for Prop. 15, blamed the imbalance of funds for its defeat.

The Hep Cat club will hold its annual formal presentation dance from 8 p.m. to midnight Thursday in the Starlite Room of the Coronado Inn.

Proposition 15, a controversial measure placed on the primary ballot by environmentalists, went down to defeat by a 2-1 margin.

The voters responded to the overwhelming number of scientific, educational and political leaders who came out against Prop. 15.

The dance will be chaperoned by parents. Admission is $3 per couple, and $2 per person.

Pledges will select sweethearts from members and the best pledge will be announced.

In late results, with 54 per cent of precincts reporting, the vote was: yes, 1,086,650 or 35 per cent; no, 2,046,281, or 65 per cent.

He also cited the support of such figures as former Govs. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown and Ronald Reagan, and President Ford.

Girls to be presented include Lea Ann Dunn, Laura Johnson, Tammi Hunnicutt, Debbie Albin, Cynthia Fought, Kaylo Johnson, Angie Mojica, Charlene Thompson, Deanya Brobst, Vieta Morgan, Nicia Avery, Verna Caldwell and Glenna Wilkins.

Basically, the measure would have empowered legislators to impose stiff safety requirements for construction of new atomic power plants and for continued operation of existing nuclear reactors.

The vote in the nation's most populous state was seen as a bellwether of public opinion for at least 10 other states now considering similar proposals.

The "No on 15" group, supported largely by major utility companies, spent more than $3 million to defeat the initiative.

Olympic bug bites iron man

NEW YORK (AP) — At age 39 and out of competition for eight years, big Al Oerter is getting that Olympic fever again.

"There is something about the Olympics that gets in one's blood," the towering, muscled discus thrower said. "The assembling of all those people of various nationalities, all with the same purpose. The crowds, the training, the competition, the pressure."

"There is an idealism about it that makes it seem like another world. I know it sounds dumb, maybe it is dumb, but I can really get charged up in the Olympics.

"I have decided to go for my fifth gold medal in Moscow in 1980."

Oerter will be an "old man" of 43 when the Games go behind the Iron Curtain four years from now. The idea sounds ludicrous. But nobody—particularly any of his competitors—dares scoff.

Oerter was an underdog in 1956 in Melbourne, Australia, when as a strapping 20-year-old collegian out of the University of Kansas he upset world record-holder Fortune Gordien to win the discus with a record toss. No one thought he could do it when he won again in 1960 at Rome, 1964 at Tokyo and 1968 at Mexico City.

At Mexico City, Oerter was competing against a younger teammate, Jay Silvester, fresh from a world record toss of 225 feet, four inches. Silvester was jumpy as a worm on a hot skillet. "I'm afraid of the old man," he kept confiding to teammates.

On one of his early throws, Oerter unleashed a heave of 212 feet, 6½ inches—five feet farther than he had ever thrown the discus in his life—and dared Silvester and the rest of the world's strong men to beat it. None did.

"I don't know why, but something special always happens to me in the Olympics," Oerter said. "Now I hope it will happen one more time."

In winning at Mexico City, Oerter established himself as the all-time "Iron Man" of the Games, the only athlete in history to win gold medals in the same event in four consecutive Olympics.

"He's all heart and guts," Payton Jordan, the 1968 U.S. track and field coach, said at the time.

A communications engineer and father of two teenaged daughters—Christiana, 17, and Gabriel, 14—Oerter works with heartless computers for a major airplane manufacturer and lives the life of a country gentleman on a pleasant, tree-lined street in West Islip, N.Y.

He has maintained his athletic figure by boating, playing tennis, running several miles every day and, of late, reinstating his muscle-building program through weight-lifting exercises at the local gym and working outdoors at State University in nearby Farmingdale.

"I hadn't picked up a discus in eight years," Oerter explained. "The wood was flaking in the old ones I had stashed away and I had to order some new ones."

"People keep asking why, if I wanted to go after a fifth gold medal, I didn't do it at Munich or this year at Montreal. I will tell you. After Mexico City, I felt pressure and I simply didn't have any interest. The same attitude carried over to the period leading to this year's Games."

"I am funny. I have to feel an urge, a spark of interest. That spark has come back just in the past few months. I am serious about my plans for a comeback."

One of his first tasks is to build up his weight, then start refining his techniques. He never has had a personal coach. "I am just a big, strong dude who can throw things a far ways," he says.

He currently weighs 245 pounds, 10 above what he weighed in his debut in 1956 but well below his size in succeeding Games—250, 260 and at Mexico City a massive 295. He stands 6 feet, 3 inches tall.

"I intend to put on a few more pounds," he explained. "I have mapped out a program for myself. This year I will compete in two or three small meets in the East, probably throwing somewhere in the high 170s. When I get in the mid-190s, I'll start in some of the national championships. When I get above 200—and I think I can—then I will start competing internationally."

Oerter credits his athletic longevity to two things—inherent and a casual approach to competition which disdains pressure.

"My dad was a terrific athlete," Oerter said. "He told me he captained nine sports teams in high school. Gee, I didn't know there were that many different teams in high school. He's in his 70s and is as active as ever."

Although he held world records in the discus six different times, Oerter was never the record-holder when he got to the Olympics. He entered all of the Games as an outsider, largely because he spurned a heavy schedule and competed in only five or six meets a year.

"I enjoyed being overlooked," he said. "Most of the other guys were tense. I never let myself give in to pressure. I followed a set pattern. I never tried to win on the first throw. I tried to throw well enough to establish a position. Then I would relax and work on my technique. I left the mental battle to the other guys."

Psychological warfare and gamesmanship were accepted practices among the rivals, Oerter said, with every man attempting to throw his opponent off his best effort with subtle suggestions or outright boasts.

Houston selects Lucas in 1st

NEW YORK (AP) — Can John Lucas find happiness on both the basketball and tennis courts?

Lucas, a college All-American in both tennis and basketball, was the No. 1 pick in Tuesday's National Basketball Association draft, by the Houston Rockets.

After quickly signing a five-year, no-cut contract for a reported $850,000 with the Rockets, the 6-foot-4 Lucas said he also was negotiating with a franchise in World Team Tennis and probably would sign with a WTT member — which he did not identify — next week.

"Eye-hand coordination is the most important factor in both sports," said Lucas, who reached the third round of the recent NCAA tennis tournament at Corpus Christi, Tex. "The footwork in tennis also helps me as a guard in basketball."

"But right now, my primary concern is playing basketball," added Lucas, who averaged 18.3 points a game in four years as a starter at Maryland. The Rockets, operating under new Coach Tom Nissalke, acquired the No. 1 draft on Monday by trading center Joe Mervin, guard Gus Bailey and their first-round pick to Atlanta for center Dwight Jones and the Hawks' top choice.

The Rockets and the other teams, meanwhile, chose 175 other players in the 10-round draft which lasted 2 hours, 5 minutes.

Four of them were from Indiana's national champions. All-American forward Scott May, the College Player of the Year, was the No. 2 pick, by the Chicago Bulls. Two others, guards Quinn Buckner and Bob Wilkerson, also were drafted on the first round. Buckner, like May a member of the U.S. Olympic team, was selected by the Milwaukee Bucks, and Wilkerson went to the Seattle SuperSonics.

Indiana forward Tom Abernethy was chosen on the third round, by the Los Angeles Lakers. The only starting member of Indiana's NCAA winners to avoid the draft was All-American center Kent Benson, a junior.

The other 1976 Associated Press All-Americans, forwards Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame and Phil Sellers of Rutgers, were high picks in the draft. Dantley, a junior who decided to pass up his last year of college eligibility for the pros, was taken by the Buffalo Braves in the first round. Sellers went to the Detroit Pistons in the third round.

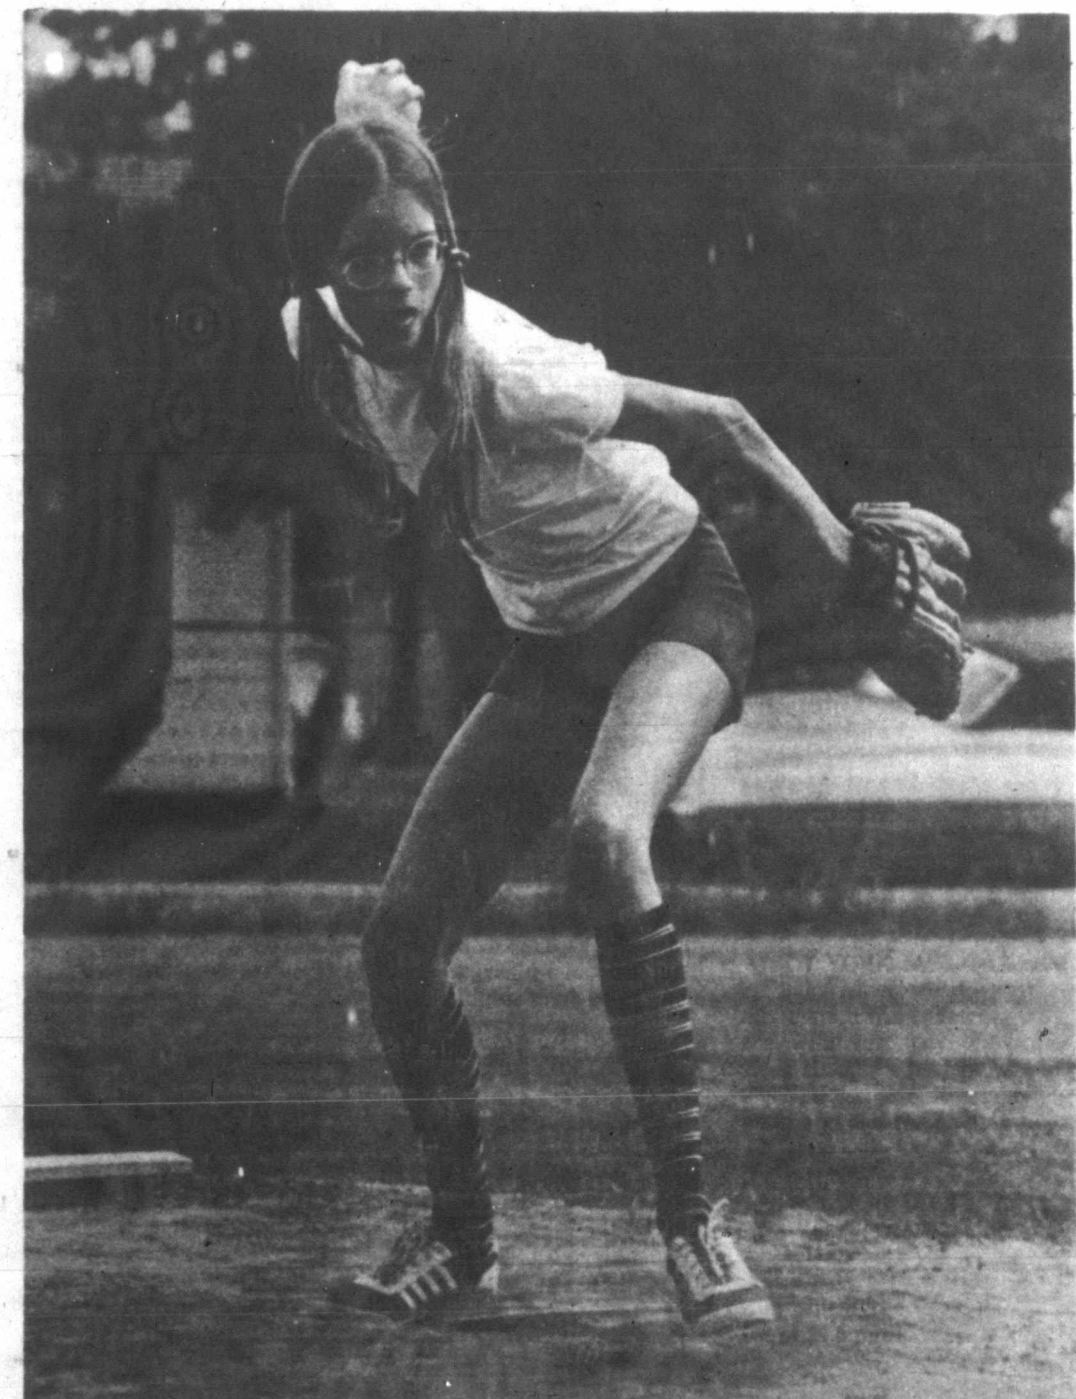

In addition to May, Buckner and Dantley, two members of the 15-man Olympic team were chosen. They were centers Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina, by Washington in the first round, and Scott Lloyd of Arizona State, by Milwaukee in round two.

Dantley also was one of seven college undergraduates or high school eligibles from a list of 16 to be chosen. The others were forward Richard Washington, by Kansas City; guard Larry Wright of Grambling, by Washington; forward Norm Cook of Kansas, by champion Boston; guard Johnny Davis of Dayton, by Portland; forward Lonnie Shelton of Oregon State, by New York, and forward Jacky Dorsey of Georgia, by New Orleans.

Washington, Wright and Cook were selected in the first round, the others in round two. Kansas City announced shortly after the draft that they had signed Washington. Terms were not disclosed.

Guard Marshall Rogers of Pan American, the major college scoring champion last season, was picked by Golden State in the second round, and backcourtman Archie Talley of Salem, W.Va., the college division scoring leader for 1975-76, was chosen by New York in round nine.

Ashe falls to Taroczy in French Open tourney

PARIS (AP) — It was the tournament Arthur Ashe really wanted, the one to finish off his page in the record books, and it got away from him — just the way he had feared, just the way he had expected.

After winning all of tennis' big tournaments and being proclaimed the sport's top player for the first time at 32, the French Open, the one he called the toughest competition in the world to win, turned out to be just that. Ashe was out of the tournament before it got to the quarter-finals, beaten by a 22-year-old Hungarian, Balazs Taroczy, in five sets.

"Well, maybe some other time," Ashe said afterward. "I would have like to play him

All the difficulties Ashe foresaw to block winning in Paris turned out as he envisioned. All the toughest clay court players in the world, 80 per cent of the global best, come out of the woodwork here, Ashe had said, and a big serve and volleyer like himself has sharply minimized chances compared to those in tournaments on grass or concrete.

Ashe got the hot weather here wanted to bake the red clay courts hard and give the tournament's low pressure balls some more bounce. But he admitted that dealing with the clay still confused him and that he had changed his game for Taroczy.

Pro baseball's draft continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The Atlanta Braves, winners of the Andy Messersmith free agency sweepstakes earlier this year, get to take the lid off today's secondary phase of the baseball draft and they've narrowed their choice to a pair of speedy Californians.

It will be either Gerald Price, an 18-year-old infielder with fast feet and a quick bat, or 19-year-old Ron Roenicke, a switch-hitting center fielder, who will lead off the draft for previously selected but unsigned players.

Both Price and Roenicke were selected before by Detroit but went back into the hopper because the figures the Tigers offered to sign were too small.

Price, whose brother Mike was selected by the St. Louis Cardinals in 1970 but got cut from their minor league system in 1972, is a freshman at Diablo Valley Junior College in Pleasant Hills, Calif. This season, Price, a second baseman, batted .400 and knocked in 24 runs in 24 games. Roenicke, whose brother Gary was promoted from the minors to the Montreal Expos this week, is a sophomore at Mt. San Antonio Junior College in Walnut, Calif. This season, he hit .356, setting a team record with 10 triples.

Houston apparently has whispered acceptable figures to prime prospect Floyd Bannister of Arizona State, who was selected by the Astros Tuesday as the No. 1 pick in the regular phase of the free agent draft.

The Astros had said they would not draft Bannister if they felt they could not sign him. But Tuesday they drafted him, and a Houston spokesman said, "We do expect to sign him."

The Astros said they would not approach Bannister about signing a contract until Arizona State finishes the College World Series in Omaha, Neb. The Sun Devils, 62-8 this season, are the No. 1-ranked team in the country and they face rival Arizona Saturday night in their opening game of the double elimination tournament.

Twice an All-American, Bannister has blazed his way to a 37-5 record in three varsity seasons at Arizona State. Employing three effective pitches, Bannister—who will be 21 Thursday when the draft is scheduled to end—has led the nation in strikeouts the past two years.

Bannister's teammate, Ken Landreaux, the sixth player chosen, was selected by the California Angels. A center fielder, he batted .413 with 14 home runs and 87 RBI this season.

The 24 major league clubs spent most of Tuesday attempting to fix their pitching staffs. On the first round alone, 14 pitchers were taken, including Pat Underwood, who was chosen by the Tigers, who had the second pick of the draft. Underwood's brother, Tom, pitches for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Builders fight zoning, home codes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's home builders are organizing to fight zoning and code requirements which they say are unnecessary and add 10 per cent or more to the already spiraling cost of a new house.

The builders say the added costs are part of the reason why the price-tag on housing is so high that many Americans cannot afford to buy a new home. Others say that land costs are more directly to blame.

Still others say the cost of financing over the past 10 years has added much more to the price of housing than have building costs; and these costs, responsible for a widening gap between average worker income and new home prices, have priced more and more of the population out of the market altogether.

The builders' answer to this problem recently has been the "no frill" house—an effort up to now largely unsuccessful, which is one reason for seeking reconsideration of regulations such as those requiring wide streets, outdoor electrical outlets and smoke detectors.

The median price of new homes sold in the United States during April was $48,600, an increase of $4,100 from April 1975. The 9.2 per cent jump compares to a 6.1 per cent jump in all consumer prices.

Zoning ordinances, building codes, environmental regulations and federal construction standards add to the cost of a new home, but there is disagreement about which items are among those the Florida Home Builders Association calls "nice, but not necessary." In its listing, the Florida group finds 64 stipulations it considers unnecessary in local, state or federal laws.

"There are a lot of things we've had to add that provide a benefit. But in view of all the people we are putting out of the market, is it reasonable to have all these rules and regulations?" asks John Crossland, a North Carolina builder who heads the newly formed National Association of Home Builders panel coordinating the nationwide deregulation effort.

However, Robert W. Buskirk, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regional director in Florida, says, "They are beating the wrong horse. The builders should approach the problem of land costs. They have not been, innovative in trying to meet this situation."

The builders say land is not a commodity they produce and they thus have little control over it. They also say the increases in home prices come despite their best efforts to hold their own costs in check.

Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders, says that in 1970 a developed lot accounted for 20.3 per cent of the cost of the $24,500 median-priced new home.

By 1974 a 61.6 per cent jump in land costs had outpaced the over-all increase of 53.3 per cent for the median home and land and development costs now account for 25 per cent of the cost of a new home. Even so, lots are generally smaller.

Military probes black recruiting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The four major military services discriminate against potential black recruits to keep the armed forces from attracting more blacks than commanding generals believed the officers could handle, a military manpower specialist says.

The specialist, Edward Scarborough, said information about these practices was gathered in a recent study by the Defense Manpower Commission but was not published in the commission's report.

A commission staff paper written by Kenneth J. Coffey and Frederick J. Reeg had concluded that the recruiting policies were "racially motivated," Scarborough said in an interview.

Asked if the seven-member citizens' commission had rejected a staff recommendation that discriminatory practices of the services be detailed in the April report, Scarborough said, "It did not appear in the final document in the kind of detail our staff study showed."

He said the report mentions discriminatory practices generally but doesn't specify which services employ them or the extent of their use.

Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr., (ret.), currently director of the Defense Manpower Commission, was quoted by the Washington Post as saying the commissioners decided it would be "wrong to kick the services in the teeth" by detailing alleged discriminatory practices.

The staff paper claims the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps all have adopted policies which help control the flow of black enlistments — even though control is not the "stated objective."

"During fiscal 1975 the Army redistributed its recruiting force," transferring many recruiters from black to white areas, "with a stated objective of achieving better geographical representation among recruits," the commission paper said.

"This move," said the commission paper, reduced black enlistments "although the impact on black enlistments was not a stated goal of the redistribution program."

Scarborough said the shift was discriminatory against many blacks because it denied them "equal access" to joining the military.

"Policies which directly limited the enlistment of blacks have been in effect in both the Navy and Marine Corps," the paper said. It added that the Navy program is still in operation while the Marines stopped theirs last year.

Scarborough said Navy leaders felt they could ease discipline problems that flared up on the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk and other ships if the black-white ratio were changed.

James W. Abellera, a commission staffer and former Air Force officer, said some of the Air Force testing discriminates against blacks.

Gatun Lake, through which ships using the Panama Canal travel for 23.5 miles, is one of the largest artificial bodies of water in the world. It covers 163.38 square miles.

Texans sponsor 'sunset' bill

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Four Texas congressmen are supporting two different measures designed to control wasteful federal spending, curb regulatory control and kill ineffective programs.

The major bill, which has gathered the support of 107 House members, including three Texans, is known as the Government Economy and Spending Reform Act — or simply the sunset bill. Under the legislation all federal programs, starting in 1979, would be examined every four years to see if they are accomplishing their stated goals. No program could continue beyond four years unless reauthorized by Congress.

A second proposal, offered by Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, would abolish all federal regulatory agencies at the end of a five-year period. The agencies could then be renewed for seven years by congressional action and Presidential approval.

Jerry Lowrey, an aide to Hightower, said there were no estimates as to how much the bill could either cost or save the taxpayers.

The sunset bill, sponsored by Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Me., and James Blanchard, D-Mich., is receiving bipartisan support from Texans in the House.

One cosponsor, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, said if nothing else, the bill would "serve to make (federal) agencies more responsive to public opinion."

"It could serve a constructive purpose," Wilson added, explaining the bill's provision calling for reexamination of programs every four years should make some federal bureaucrats more accountable to both Congress and the public.

Senate hopeful Rep. Alan Steelman, R-Dallas, and Rep. Dale Milford, D-Grand Prairie, are also cosponsoring the bill. Steelman faces Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Houston, in next fall's senatorial race.

Bentsen himself is a cosponsor of the Senate bill. An aide to Sen. John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, said that while the senator endorses the concept, he is not sure as to what the bill specifically should contain.

The bill also provides for zero-based budgeting, under which Congress evaluates an agency's budget request from scratch each time and does not scrutinize only the additional amount over the previous year's level, as is generally the case at present.

Muskie, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, says the bill "is a critical starting point for the Congress to begin exercising greater control over the way the federal government spends the American taxpayers' money."

The bill is supported by such unlikely allies as Common Cause, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and both conservatives and liberals in the House and Senate.

Despite the widespread support for the sunset bill, the legislation might still run into trouble.

Some congressmen, protective of many of their pet projects back in the district, might view the legislation as a threat to continuation of these programs.

Special interest lobbyists, who work to protect programs of use to them, are also expected to oppose some aspects of the bill.

Furthermore, the Ford Administration is not too enthusiastic about the legislation. The White House says its requirements for a sweeping review of all programs is inflexible, mechanical and impractical.

Reporter still critical

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The condition of Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles, critically injured last week when a bomb demolished his small foreign car, has worsened, hospital officials said today.

The change in Bolles' condition came hours after police said they had developed three or four possible motives in the attempted killing.

Bolles, 47, was critically injured Wednesday when a bomb exploded under his car in a mid-town hotel parking lot.

A medical team, headed by Dr. William Dozer, battled late Monday to halt an infection in Bolles' right arm, which was torn by the blast. He was returned to surgery where doctors probed the shattered arm and used strong antibiotics against the infection, hospital officials said.

He was readmitted to the hospital's intensive care unit, he said.

Police Detective Capt. Don Lozier said Monday that at least one motive involves "big-name political figures," but he said John Adamson, 32, remains a "focal point of the investigation."

Bolles told paramedics who treated him at the blast scene that he was lured to the hotel by a man named John Adamson.

Colleagues said Bolles had gone to the hotel to meet a man named Adamson who said he had information concerning a land deal involving several prominent persons, including Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz.

Steiger said he believes his name and those of other prominent persons were used simply to lure Bolles to the hotel.

Lozier declined to detail the motives. Nor would he identify the politicians as elected officials or party executives.

Lozier did say the politicians were primarily local, but added the Federal Bureau of Investigation is conducting background checks and interviews with persons outside Arizona.

Red Cross sends money to Guam

The Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross board of directors has voted to send $200 to assist the 13,200 families in Guam following the Typhoon Pamela.

The national Red Cross had obligated itself to send $5 million to the Guam disaster.

Each chapter was assessed a certain amount, and those wishing to contribute may call the local office in Pampa.

Special 4-H award

Marilyn Shirley, assistant Gray County extension agent, accepted a special award recently on behalf of Jane and Thom Marshall, co-editors of The Pampa News. The News was recognized with the award during the 1976 State 4-H Roundup June 1-2 at Texas A&M University for support of 4-H programs. Presenting the award to Ms. Shirley were Bib Hillery of Wichita Falls, and T. Louis Austin of Dallas, officials of the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation.

RR commission can cancel price hike

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A House subcommittee has voted to give the railroad commission power to cancel price increases in most natural gas contracts rather than to freeze gas prices for three years.

Frank Stubbs, president of the Wharton County Electric Co-op, proposed the price freeze on higher prices, which never was voted on.

The subcommittee decided it had "no firm recommendation" to make on possible state regulation of wellhead gas prices, and chairman Ed Mayes said there was "no support" for legislation to establish flat rates for utilities.

Rep. Mayes, D-Granbury, said the public utilities commission already had the authority to establish flat rates.

A proposal adopted 7-0 specifies that if the railroad commission determines that a gas price has been determined through a "favored nations" clause and "is not in the public interest," it may abolish the "redetermined price."

The commission also may require that the "redetermined price be based on the current market in the area."

The proposal will be submitted to the House State Affairs Committee next week.

The sponsor, K.B. Watson, president of Pioneer Natural Gas Co., estimated there are 10,000 natural gas contracts in Texas, most of which have a clause for redetermining prices before the contract has expired.

Under a "favored nations" clause, he said, the seller often can fix the new "redetermined price" at the highest price that gas is bringing anywhere in the state.

Watson's proposal was approved after the subcommittee voted 5-1 to eliminate a provision that would allow a seller to back out of a contract if the commission negotiated a price "determined or redetermined under a favored nations clause."

Stubbs wanted to freeze gas contract prices for three years if the contract called for a gas price of $1.50 per thousand cubic feet (mcf) or higher.

Contract prices set after the effective date of the act, however, could be at "whatever the market would bear," Stubbs said. Once the price was set—if it was $1.50 per mcf or higher—it, too, would be frozen for three years.

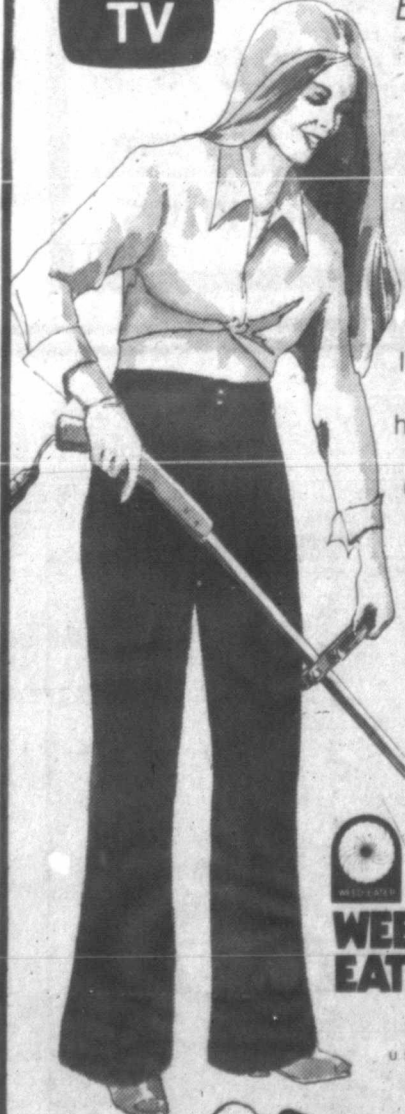

"This is an absolute minimum that the legislature ought to come up with to give some kind of relief to the consumer," Stubbs said.

But he sided with the legislator subcommittee members on Watson's proposal and thanked the House members for their efforts.
