Second-best shout

Ronald Fields of Miami cups a hand to his mouth during the yearly calling of the cows competition, but the shout could not drown out that of the winner, Charles Clark, a previous champion, also from Miami. Fields was second to Clark in the men's division of the National Cow Calling Contest. Crowds filled Roberts Co. Park Saturday for the competition in the ladies', men's and grandmother divisions. Afterwards, Miss Claudia Bailey was selected Miss Miami 1976 in the finals of pageant competition.

"We raise a lot of loudmouths around here," one spectator remarked as 31 contestants stepped up to raised platform Saturday and strained their lungs in the National Cow Calling contest. The spectator was Mrs. Ruth Ann Litchfield of Tucumcari, N.M., whose mother, Mrs. Mildred Cunningham of Miami, had just won first prize in the Grandmother Division.

"I didn't practice," the loudest grandma said after her victory. "You just get up there and holler."

The event is not concerned with attracting cows; the loudest caller, not the most successful, wins.

Second place in the event was Mrs. Barbara Bates. The two won over a field of seven of other grandmothers in the second year of the division.

Winner in the ladies' division was Mrs. Jan Phillips, formerly of White Deer and now of Lubbock, the only contestant not from Miami to win.

Not an experienced cow caller, Mrs. Phillips admitted that "we talked about it about 10 minutes before the contest. Everybody said I had strong lungs."

Second place went to Mrs. Gayle Bean of Miami.

Winner of the men's division was Charles Clark of Miami, a previous champion in the event. Second place, the judges decided after a recall, went to Ronald Fields, and runner-up to Rex Johnson. Both are from Miami.

First place winners were given $50, and $25 went to the second place callers.

Crowds filled Roberts County Park for the contest and saw Miss Claudia Bailey crowned Miss Miami, '76. First runner-up was Miss Bonnie Ferrell and second runner-up was Miss Sharon Philpott, niece of Mrs. Cunningham. Miss Congeniality, chosen by the nine contestants, was Miss Beth Beard.

The award to the spectator traveling the longest distance was given to American Field Service student Yochio Karamana of Tokyo, Japan. Pioneers honored for living in the area the longest were Mrs. Gertrude Dial, who moved there in 1886, and Mrs. Lucille Maelf, 1888.

The National Cow - Calling Contest is about 28 years old, according to Wayne Maddox, president of the Miami Chamber of Commerce and emcee this year.

The story is that Gene Howe, former editor and columnist for the Amarillo Globe News said "Y'all oughta have a yearly celebration down here. How about cow calling?" The idea caught on and we've been adding to it all through the years."

Spectators crowded around the red, white and blue bicentennial platform, some getting more advantageous views from the surrounding trees.

The scene brought to life the lines in the poem, "It's Cow Calling Time Again" by Pampa poet Carl Cantrell: "In Miami, Texas, every year, people gather in from far and near."

Loudest lungs

Piercing the Miami air with the sound of "Whooooo-ee!" at the National Cow Calling Contest Saturday is Mrs. Jan Phillips of Lubbock, the only one of the six winners in the three-division contest who was not a Miami resident. Mrs. Phillips' three shouts were judged the loudest of the 10 entrants in the ladies' division. The out-of-breath victor accepted a $50 cash prize. Second-place and winner of $25 was Mrs. Gayle Bean of Miami.

Williams, Langley elected constables

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Jerry Dean Williams received 148 votes to his opponent's 143 in the race for constable at Lefors. His opponent was Billy McMinn. The race was the closest in the county with Bill Langley winning the Precinct 2 Pampa constable post with 406 votes to Jesse B. Goad's 241.

A total of 988 were cast Saturday in the Gray County Democratic primary runoff race.

In area races, Doyle Ramsey, Wheeler County deputy sheriff defeated George Hooten for the sheriff's post to be vacated Jan. 1 by Bus Dorman. Hooten is Shamrock police chief.

Dorman has held the position for the past 26 years and decided not to seek re-election. Ramsey is Dorman's chief deputy.

In Hutchinson County, Lon Blackmon will assume duties as sheriff on Jan. 1, succeeding a veteran law enforcement officer, Hugh Anderson, who did not file for re-election.

In state races, Jon Newton polled 671 Gray County votes to Jerry Sadler's 297. Newton was endorsed by Bob Wood of Pampa, a candidate for the post in the May 1 primary.

WT Phillips polled 515 votes in Gray County over Carl Dally's 349. They were seeking a court of criminal appeals judgeship. Wanda Carter, Gray County clerk, said the overall turnout was light. However, officials said the 286 votes cast at Lefors was considered a good turnout.

Only nine persons voted in Grandview and 35 ballots were cast at McLean. Neither precinct had a local race.

In Pampa, Precinct 2, a total of 589 votes were cast at the Gray County Courthouse.

In absentees, Langley polled 48 votes over Goad's 17, and Williams got two votes with McMinn receiving one. Those figures are included in the overall totals. A total of 69 absentee votes was recorded here.

Newton takes lead

By JIM BRIGANCE
Associated Press Writer

Jon Newton leaped to an early two-to-one vote lead over Jerry Sadler Saturday night in their race for a spot on the powerful Texas Railroad Commission.

In the race for a place on the Court of Criminal Appeals, W. T. Phillips showed a slight edge over his opponent, Carl Dally.

Sam Hall held a narrow margin over his opponent, Glen Jones, in the runoff to fill the First Congressional District seat formerly held by the late Wright Patman.

Texas Election Bureau returns at 9 p.m. from 195 of 254 counties, 157 complete. Sadler 125,228, Newton 253,255. Grim Appeals. Dally 153,085, Phillips 176,555. Dist. 1 returns from 18 of 23 counties, 12 complete. Hall 27,659, Jones 23,735.

Sadler is 68 years old. Newton is 34. Sadler's candidacy was regarded as controversial because of his past years in office during which he was the target of investigations. Newton was considered a younger, less experienced man out to purge old time, machine politicians from the state's petroleum regulatory agency, main function of the Railroad Commission.

In late campaigning, Newton had counter-attacked some of Sadler's claims as "just a tactic of Mr. Sadler to divert attention away from his own background. He hopes the voters will remember his name but forget why they remember it."

The pair locked horns during runoff campaigning over a $1-000 political contribution from a California oil firm. Sadler attacked Newton for accepting the contribution, then added that "what makes it worse is that it's not only money from California but it lists contributors in Illinois, Texas, Manila, Singapore, Japan, Hong Kong and Korea."

Campaign pledges showed Newton far ahead of Sadler. His report submitted earlier this week showed he had received $420,102 in donations while Sadler listed contributions of $3,117.

Dally badgered his opponent in the appeals court race as a man who has no judicial experience and who hasn't tried a felony case in 10 years.

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Carl Albert, twice propped to next-in-line for the presidency by Republican scandal, said Saturday he will retire from Congress at the end of the year.

Albert's decision means that three of the five ranking congressional leaders are retiring this year. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., are not seeking re-election.

In a written statement, the 68-year-old Democrat said, "During my early years in the House, I decided I should not serve beyond my 70th year. For my part, that is long enough."

Albert said.

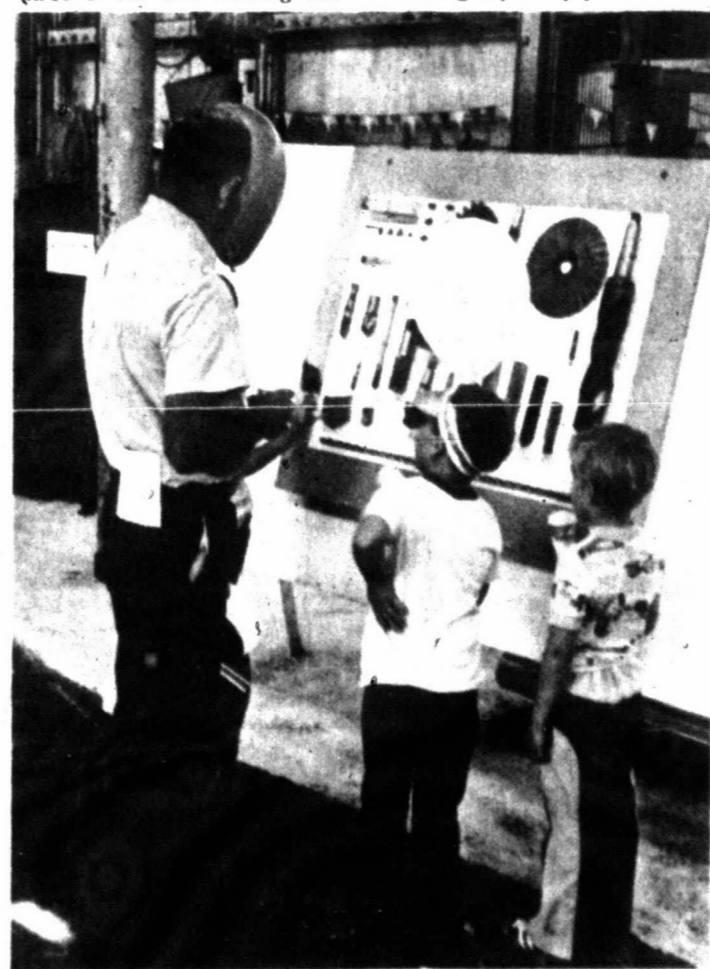

Albert, affectionately known as the "little giant" because of his 5-foot-4 inch height, replaced Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts as speaker in 1971.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., is expected to succeed Albert as speaker. House Minority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., also is running for re-election.

Albert, as speaker of the House, was second to the presidency when Spiro Agnew was forced to resign as vice president in 1973, and again when Richard M. Nixon stepped down as president during the Watergate crisis in 1974.

Speaker Albert will retire

Family day

Saturday was Family Day at the Machinery Division of Cabot west of Pampa. More than 1,800 visitors were expected by those preparing for the event, with hot dogs, cokes, cotton candy, balloons, and many other assorted gifts and favors available to the relatives of the employees of the Machinery Division. Dee Goodman's contribution to the event was to jump from an airplane with two parachuting friends. A tour of the work areas gave children a chance to see where their fathers ply their skills. Employees prepared exhibits that showed the many facets of work done at the plant. But young Clay Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Buchanan, couldn't take his eyes off the big helium-filled balloon tied to his stroller.

Dam breaks, threatens

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) - The newly constructed Teton Dam burst Saturday, sending a 15-foot high wave of muddy water roaring downstream, engulfing several communities, and forcing the evacuation of thousands of people.

From the air, at least 25 square miles of land appeared to be under water, including the small farming community of Sugar City and most of Rexburg. There were no reports of serious injuries.

Robert Wolz, a pilot who flew over the area, said the flood was seven miles wide near St. Anthony.

"Sugar City was completely underwater. The houses are sticking up and I guess there was about seven to eight feet of water average," he said.

Keith Wright, a St. Anthony resident, said he saw only a couple of hundred cattle escape as the water poured into a feedlot holding 6,000.

"You can't believe the debris.

Trees, houses and animals trying to get out of the water, dirty, dirty water," he said.

Ted Austin said he was standing at the dam when it burst, sending cars, bulldozers and earth movers down the river. He said workmen at the dam told him there was apparently a shift in the rock at the base that caused the hole.

An eyewitness to the dam's destruction said it started with a 10 foot hole at the base and grew until the whole side of the 3,000 foot long earthen dam was gone. A power and pumping station was destroyed, said Austin, a radio station operator.

By 4 p.m. MDT the muddy, debris-filled water had reached the Snake River. The $55 million dam, just completed last December, broke at around noon.

The Bureau of Reclamation dam is between St. Anthony and Teton, about 40 miles northeast of Idaho Falls. The 17-mile-long reservoir was nearly filled to its capacity, bureau officials said.

Patients at a hospital in Rexburg were evacuated by helicopter to other facilities because the building was on low ground. Several Rexburg residents were taken to Ricks College on high ground.

Lowland areas of Rexburg, population 8,000, were reported under five feet of water.

Telephone communication was out to most severely affected areas and roads were closed north of Idaho Falls and south of St. Anthony.

Idaho Falls and other areas downstream on the Snake River were also bracing for the rising waters.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said he was "overwhelmed by the size and scope of the disaster." He declared a state of "extreme emergency" in eastern Idaho, called out the National Guard and asked President Ford for federal assistance.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Private schools gaining

When a growing number of parents elect to pay twice for their children's schooling — once in taxes to support the government school system and a second time in tuition to the private school of their choice — one may be sure there are compelling reasons. Among the reasons why an increasing number of parents are choosing private schools in preference to "free" government schools cited in an article in the current issue of U.S. News and World Report are:

- Better teachers. The private schools attract a special breed of teacher, the headmaster of the Loomis - Chaffee School in Windsor, Conn., emphasized. Often disenfranchised with the "education courses" required of public school teachers, private school teachers, he said, are "typically looking for a position where they can know their students in and out of class really well." A science teacher at a private school in Nashville, although acknowledging that he could earn more at a public school, was quoted as saying: "My impression of public school administration is that they were happy if things in the office ran smoothly, but they didn't give a hang how smoothly they ran in the classroom."
- Children treated as individuals, rather than numbers. "This is where private education has its greatest fulfillment," noted a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., parent whose children graduated from the Pine Crest School there; "They were not another number, another body."

- Absence of teacher strikes, excessive red tape, and tenure. Few private schools are unionized, cost consciousness tends to eliminate red tape, and the absence of tenure puts teachers on notice that they have to offer quality instruction, the article explained.

- Stress on morality and attention to basic academic disciplines. "We don't make any bones about the fact that this is the heart of our program," the director of the University School of Nashville was quoted as proudly saying, adding that the school didn't have any "remedial" problems, either.

Of course, the article pointed out, the 23 per cent gain in private school attendance in just the last four years is partly explained by the desire of parents to bypass integrated public schools. But, "basically," explains National Association of Independent Schools president, Cary Porter, "parents are concerned with the response of the institution to their child as an individual. This is not only a matter of student - teacher ratio, but of the kid being known as an individual, and of his individual needs being met, as a member of a small community — 300 to 600 in size. The ties between kids and adults are strong." And, besides, the article went on to emphasize, the number of black children attending private schools has increased a dramatic 189 per cent since 1966.

Despite the financial handicaps under which they operate and the political obstacles put in their path, the article concluded, private schools are likely to keep on flourishing in the foreseeable future as market place alternatives to the coercively funded government schools.

We wish them well.

Nation's Press

Eroded independence

(Copley News Service) Michigan's Hillsdale College is one of a number of private institutions proud of their independence.

They have rejected federal handouts to remain free of federal regulation. Hillsdale President George Roche was understandably chagrined when the Department of Health, Education and Welfare insisted that the college must abide by HEW's Title IX regulations regarding equality of race, religion or sex — 18 pages of small type.

HEW conceded that Hillsdale's antidiscrimination record is well - recognized, but reiterated, because some of its students have obtained federally guaranteed loans or grants, the college must comply with HEW's rules.

The alternative, apparently, is to deny admission to affected students, undermining their right to the education they seek.

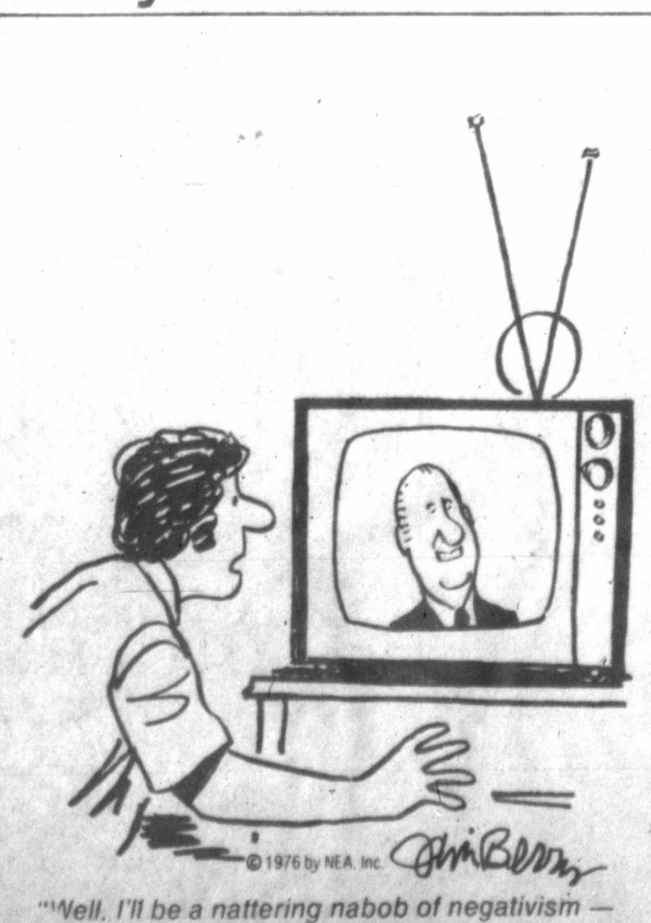

Some say that an effective remedy for many cases of hiccoughs is to breathe into a paper bag repeatedly until normal breathing rhythm is restored.

Pistols are so called from a small knife, made in Pistol, Italy.

Clever regret 'tricky'

By MAX RAFFERTY

Comes now before us — a gaunt and gibbering ghost from an almost forgotten past — the Strange Case of Eldridge Cleaver.

You remember Eldridge. He started out life as a rapist, served time in San Quentin, became a violent activist, wrote a dirty best - seller called "Soul On Ice," took off one jump ahead of the sheriff to avoid an attempted murder rap and wound up in some flea - bitten sheikdom in North Africa enjoying non - extradition and practicing togetherness with his fellow Muslims.

During the Sick Sixties, Eldridge was perhaps the sickest. He breathed fire. He exuded ferocity as a toad is legendarily reputed to sweat blood. He vilified the United States and called for its extirpation, root and branch. He doted on communism. In the jargon of the day, he was something else.

That was in 1968. Today — eight years later — Eldridge is back in his native habitat, the much - derided U.S. And lo! the years of sun - basking and camel - driving have wrought a transformation so wondrous, so downright miraculous, as to put to shame the metamorphoses of Ovid and the frog - into - fairy - prince routines of Hans Christian Andersen and the Brothers Grimm.

Get a load of a recent Cleaver interview, taped in a California jail:

"I'm a changed man. I've developed. I've matured."

How is one to be sure? Read on:

"The Marxist and Arab societies are harsh, manipulative and repressive. I didn't dig them. There was no possibility of me relating to them. Arab countries are among the most racist on earth."

What about the old gang back here?

"I realize my new outlook will wreak havoc among my old 'new left' friends and among a formidable array of blacks who are imbued with a knee - jerks Third World, skin - game ideology. On many points, the progressive movement in the U.S. is all wet, misdirected. The whole idea of setting political problems by terrorist activities is something that needs to be very seriously and actively combated."

And dear old Fidel, the magnet and the Mecca of the Molotov - cocktail tossers 10 years back?

"I found in Cuba a kind of racist government that was frankly hostile. I left Cuba completely disillusioned with Cuban communism."

Now that you're back with us, Eldridge, what would you like to do?

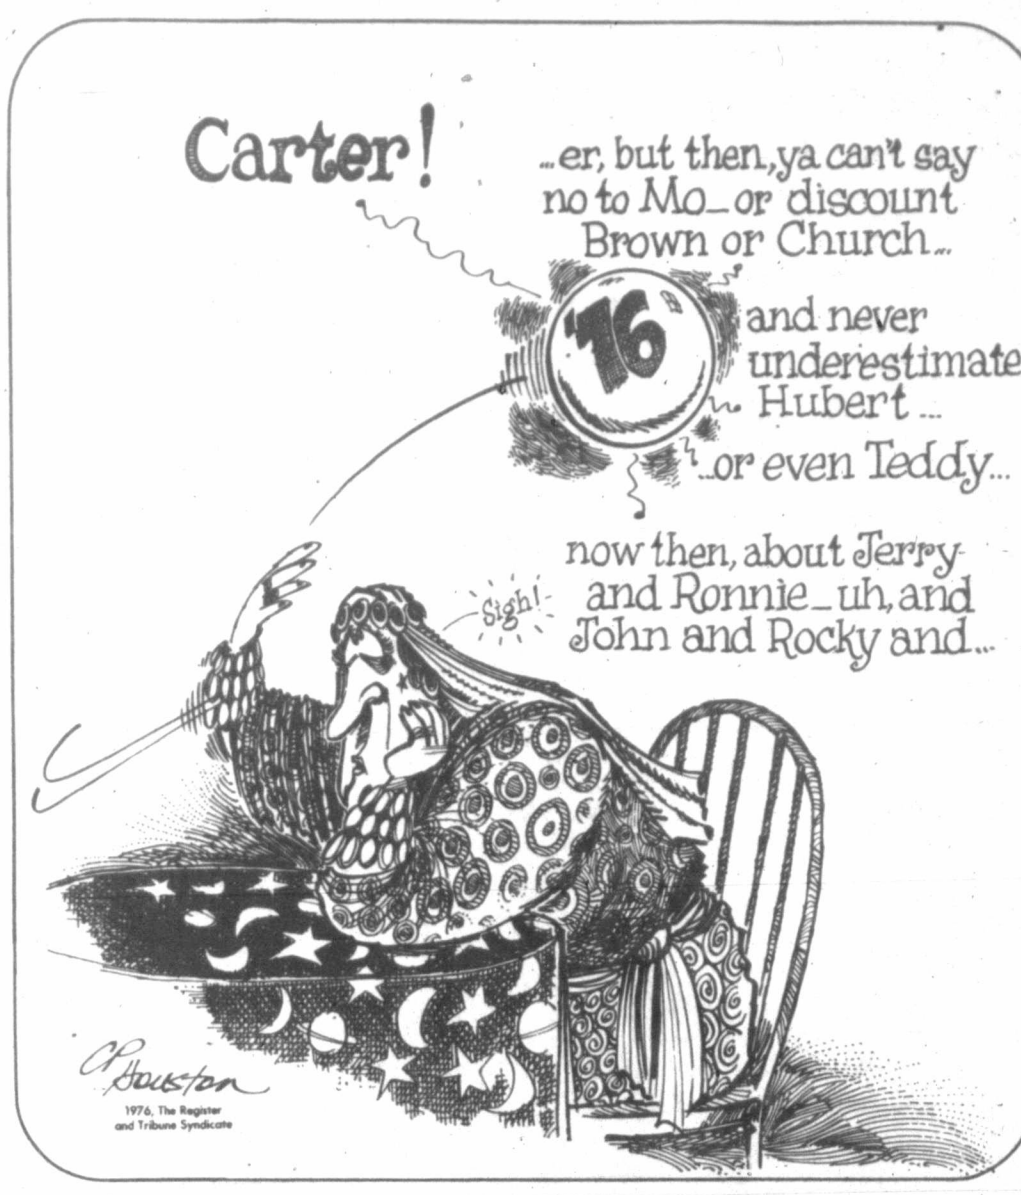

"I'm 40 years old now. I want to contribute to stability."

Yes, sir — stability. That's what the man says. The firebrand of the Sixties, the enemy of law and order, the assaulter of cobs wants now to contribute to stability.

The problem before the rest of us is clear. Is this character sincere, or is he subjecting us to a snob job?

After all, he's still facing what could be several years in the slammer for that 1968 shootout with the Oakland police. Maybe he's changed his pitchfork for a purely temporary halo in order to procure parole and to acquire amnesty.

But on the other hand, maybe he's really seen the light. St. Paul did, on the road to Damascus. Dr. Spock last year admitted he'd been all wrong about child permissiveness. Even Benedict Arnold repented on his deathbed. I'm inclined to give Eldridge the benefit of the doubt.

Carter!

...er, but then, ya can't say no to Mo... or discount Brown or Church...

and never underestimate Hubert... or even Teddy...

now then, about Jerry and Ronnie... uh, and John and Rocky and...

WHAT BETTER way to wind up a vacation than to come back and find a scintillating letter from an old friend and former associate?

An old friend, incidentally, on whose manner of life we had no idea of having had any influence.

We're speaking of Archer Fullingim, former city editor of The Pampa News and recently retired publisher of The Kountze News at Kountze, Texas.

Having gained national acclaim in Time Magazine, the National Geographic along with other national publications and Texas recognition in a book written about him plus a full cover page and inside story in the Dallas News Sunday magazine, Fullingim has become legendary.

The sage of the Big Thicket country still has a spot in his heart for the Texas Panhandle. He hasn't forgotten the years he spent in Pampa between 1929 and 1942.

Fullingim continued as city editor when Freedom Newspapers acquired the Pampa News and we came on from California as editor in 1936. He is a good newspaperman and readers of his column were legion and loyal. The association with him, sports editor Harry Hoare and reporter Brownwood Emerson, both now deceased, marks one of the pleasant highlights of our newspaper career.

Six years with a newspaperman like Archer Fullingim are bound to be unforgettable.

AND THAT leads us to the opening paragraph of his letter, written from Kountze three weeks ago after he had just returned from his first visit to Pampa since leaving here in 1942.

Fullingim writes: "I meant to spend hours with you when I went back to Pampa for the first time in 34 years, but I did not stay but 48 hours. I wanted to tell you how much you mean to me and have meant all through the years. I wanted to tell you that you were a most compassionate boss and a wise one, and that you always did what you had to do. Your influence has stayed with me through the years."

There never had been any concept that our association with Fullingim would have influenced his life in any way. So, if an opening paragraph of a letter ever made anyone's day — that Paragraph One in Fullingim's letter of May 12 (it arrived just as we were starting on vacation) made that date Super Day in a personal almanac.

BUT LET'S read some more of his letter: "Going back to Pampa was like reading Thomas Wolfe's great book, 'You Can't Go Home Again.' All the people were old and they looked at me as if I were old. I managed to see a few people I wanted to see again!"

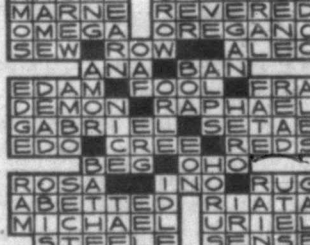

Those were the final words in A.F.'s letter — and to resurrect a worn - out phrase... you can say that again!

Roloff trial continues

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State efforts to put evangelist Lester Roloff in jail for keeping state welfare workers from investigating his three South Texas child care homes resume Monday.

The day and a half hearing on a contempt of court charge recessed Friday afternoon.

Roloff and his attorneys claimed it was "Biblical conviction," not contempt, that set his policy of turning back state welfare workers.

State's attorneys say the welfare workers were just following orders issued by an Austin district judge in enforcing a state child care licensing act.

Roloff said on the stand Friday that his employees still had the no-investigation orders.

"If there is a jail sentence I ought to serve it," the deep-voiced South Texas minister said.

After testimony is completed, probably Monday, State District Judge Charles B. Mathews will rule.

Administrator in Canadian has resigned

CANADIAN — Charles Morehead, administrator of Abraham Memorial Home, has submitted his resignation, effective immediately.

Officials said Jo Ann Wilson, licensed nursing home administrator from Perryton, will serve as administrator on an interim basis until another is hired.

Morehead is scheduled to work for a local business firm, officials said.

—Whether Roloff and the superintendents of two of his homes violated a May 27 order by District Judge Jim Meyers of Austin, to allow state welfare agents to inspect and investigate the three South Texas homes operated by Roloff.

—Whether Meyers' May 27 temporary restraining order will be extended into a temporary injunction.

Earlier in the day, Mathews made a preliminary ruling that upheld the validity of the child care licensing law passed by the 1975 Legislature. "I am not going to hold that the act is unconstitutional," Mathews told defense attorneys, who had claimed the licensing act violated constitutional rights for separation of church and state.

Mathews also warned Roloff's followers that he would not tolerate any threats against state witnesses. Two state welfare workers, Margaret May of Austin and Dixie Huffman, of Corpus Christi, said they were approached Thursday by an unidentified man who called them

"dirty liars" and said he was going "to pray God to strike you dead and he can do those kind of things."

On May 27, Roloff was sentenced to five days in jail and fined $850 on each of eight counts of contempt of a Corpus Christi court ordering him to allow inspection by the state welfare department under a 1973 law. Roloff was given until June 14 to start the sentence while he completed a revival meeting.

16 contestants enter Pageant

Sixteen entries, 10 from Pampa and six from out of town, already have been entered in the ninth annual Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant scheduled for the M.K. Brown Auditorium here Saturday night, Aug. 13.

Mrs. Bill Horton, pageant director, said any local business or organization may sponsor a contestant.

Any single girl between the ages of 16 and 21 with good reputation and character is eligible to enter the contest. Only one contestant will be permitted from each neighboring town or city.

The number of entries will be limited to 35, according to Mrs. Horton.

Richard Fatheree of Ada, Okla., a former Pampa resident, will emcee the 1976 beauty pageant.

This year's queen will be crowned by Tambre Payton of Borger, last year's queen.

Contestants will be judged by a group selected from outside the Top O' Texas area. Points will be awarded for beauty, personality, poise and figure and the girls will appear in formal attire and swim suits.

Pampa's highest ranking contestant will represent the city in the national Miss Wheatheart contest at Perryton in August. Miss Top O' Texas will receive $250 in cash, the first runner-up will receive $100 and $50 will go to the second runner-up.

Deadline for entries will be July 10. A recent photograph of each contestant in a swim suit and billfold size photo in either formal or sports wear are required with each entry blank. Mrs. Horton said each girl should also include a short synopsis of her life.

Entries received so far include one each sponsored by the chambers of commerce in Perryton, Miami, Borger, Hereford, Shamrock and Canadian.

Local entries to date are sponsored by Fatheree Insurance Co., First National Bank, Dunlaps, Kyle Shoes, Opti-Mrs. Club, Montgomery Ward, Celanese Corp., Gilberts, Behrmans and Cabot Corp.

4-Hers set jubilee

A night of "good, clean family fun," the Derby Town Jubilee will be sponsored by the Gray County 4-H clubs June 19 at 8 p.m. in the McLean High School Auditorium, according to George Terry, Director and master of ceremonies.

Admission is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children.

Proceeds from the jubilee will go to finance Gray County 4-H activities, including sending members to district and state contests and events.

"Anyone who is a country and western music fan will certainly enjoy visiting with us," Terry said.

Primary season ends Tuesday

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

The 15-week presidential primary season ends Tuesday and, like the finale of most long-running serials, it may finally provide answers to some long-standing questions.

Despite Jimmy Carter's recent problems, can anyone seriously challenge him for the Democratic nomination? Can Ronald Reagan catch President Ford even if he wins what he calls "the Big Casino"? Will Hubert Humphrey say yes (again)? Will Hubert Humphrey say no (again)?

California, New Jersey and Ohio hold primaries that will provide 540 delegate votes at the Democratic convention and 331 on the Republican side.

That's more than a third of the 1,565 delegates needed for the Democratic nomination and a little less than a third of the 1,130 needed to become the Republican nominee.

Despite the big numbers, the political equation is simple. If Ford upsets Reagan in California, he's virtually assured of nomination. If Carter can win close to half the Democratic delegates in the three states, he would be within 250 of what he needs and very difficult to stop.

Going into this weekend's caucuses and conventions, Ford had 805 delegates, 150 more than Reagan. To overcome that, Reagan needs to do two things: win in his home state of California, where all 167 delegates are awarded to the primary winner, and hold down Ford's margins in Ohio and New Jersey, where the President expects to get a sizeable majority of the delegates.

Reagan, who refers to the California contest as the "Big Casino," led Ford 56 to 32 per cent in the most recent Field California Poll. But if Ford were to win, he could go over the 1,130 mark on Tuesday or at least be close enough to do so easily with delegates yet to be selected from convention states and uncommitted.

The poll was taken before Reagan said he would be willing to send a token force of Americans to Rhodesia to help guarantee peace there between blacks and the ruling white minority. Reagan complained his remarks were distorted in news accounts and said: "Let's get one thing straight. I'm not talking about sending troops to Rhodesia."

In Ohio, Ford is assured of 24 of the 97 delegates because there are eight Congressional districts where Reagan slates either were not filed or were disqualified. The President has the entire Republican organization behind him in any case, although Reagan planned a weekend trip to the state to "show the flag."

In New Jersey, where there are 67 Republican delegates at stake, voting will be for delegate slates.

There is a GOP organization slate listed as uncommitted on the ballot but openly backing

Ford. It includes a disparate group that runs from liberal Sen. Clifford B. Case to former Rep. Charles W. Sandman, longtime spokesman for the state party's conservative wing. Opposing it is a slate of 40 candidates backing Reagan.

On the Democratic side, the cast of characters is the same as it has been for the past month: the field against Jimmy Carter.

Going into the weekend, Carter had 905 delegates, to 306.5 for Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, his closest pursuer. There's no way Carter can reach 1,565 on Tuesday.

But if he gets something more than 200 delegates on Tuesday, and that seems quite possible, Carter would probably enter the convention with more than 1,200. That would make it difficult to stop him no matter what the psychological impact of his recent losses to Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California.

Also of interest Tuesday are the Democratic and Republican Senate primaries in California, which could lead to a general election confrontation something akin to the student-establishment confrontations of the 1960s.

In the Democratic primary, Sen. John V. Tunney is being challenged by Tom Hayden, the former peace activist now married to actress Jane Fonda. Hayden has closed a large early deficit to within 13 points of Tunney in the latest poll.

The same poll gives the lead in the Republican race to S.I. Hayakawa, who as president of San Francisco State College was noted for his strong stand against radicals. Robert Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in the Nixon administration, is running second and Rep. Alphonzo Bell is third.

Also on the California ballot is a proposition which would ban future nuclear plant construction in the state and phase out existing plants unless the legislature decided by two-thirds vote that a plant was safe and that radioactive waste could be safely disposed of.

Egypt orders Syria to leave

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt, enraged at the burning of its diplomatic offices in Damascus, Syria, ordered Syria's diplomatic mission Saturday to get out of the country within 48 hours.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Egypt also would close its diplomatic mission in Damascus in a move that was the same as breaking diplomatic relations with its ally in the 1973 war against Israel.

A mob of Syrians invaded and set fire to the Egyptian mission's building Saturday morning to protest the Sinai disengagement pact signed last year between Israel and Egypt. It also was seen as retaliation for the three-hour occupation of the Syrian diplomatic offices in Cairo on Thursday by Arab students.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman charged that the attack on the Egyptian mission was led by Syrian intelligence agents who wounded several Egyptians with knives.

Syria and Egypt called their embassies in Cairo and Damascus "public relations offices" after they joined with Libya in January 1972 to form the Federation of Arab Republics. The federation was never fully established and now exists only on paper.

According to the Foreign Ministry spokesman the head of the Syrian mission was summoned to the ministry and told that he and his staff had to be out of Egypt within 48 hours.

About 300 Arab students on Thursday occupied the building used by the Syrian mission in Cairo to protest the movement of several thousand Syrian troops into Lebanon. A Syrian diplomat told reporters later that the students left the mission peacefully after three hours and did not damage anything.

The Egyptian Foreign Ministry spokesman said there was no comparison between the Thursday invasion of the Syrian mission and the attack on the Egyptian mission in Damascus.

Accidents claim three

Three separate accidents in the Panhandle area have resulted in death for as many people since Friday evening.

A 7-year-old girl died as the result of an accident in Palo Duro Canyon when her father drove over her.

Mr. and Mrs. John Keife, of Spring, Tex., near Houston, let the children out of their car-trailer rig as Keife backed into a campsite.

Investigators reported that the trailer began to jackknife and Keife pulled forward, running over his daughter, Lisa. Sue Sheffield, 31, of Borger, died Saturday when her car struck a parked truck off Texas 13 near Borger. Department of Public Safety officers reported.

Officers said the truck drove away after the accident and the driver was being sought.

Police report

Police Chief Richard Mills said Friday that a man who was wanted on a felony theft of service charge in Pampa was scheduled to be arrested this weekend by Oklahoma authorities.

The chief said Lt. J. J. Ryzman obtained a warrant for the arrest, and the name will be released after the suspect is returned to Pampa.

The chief said the computer service now available through the National Crime Information Center paid off for the police department last week.

Officers ran a report on a gun which had been found in Pampa and discovered that it was reported stolen in a Kansas burglary. Police in Austin, he added, located two citizens band radios which had been stolen in Pampa.

The radios were recovered and names of suspects have been obtained.

The chief reminded Pampans that the animal control section has been given orders to enforce the stray animal ordinance and that dogs and cats in violation will be picked up.

KILLER DISEASES

NEW YORK (AP) — The Institute of Life Insurance says heart and blood vessel diseases cause more than a million deaths a year in the United States.

It says a quarter of those deaths occurred among persons under 65.

TEXAS TALK
By Doug Howard

Real farm production doesn't stop with providing food and fiber but has gone beyond that to be the number one industry for providing new off-the-farm jobs. Now a key word here is "new." New jobs because of the production increases during the past few years. Number one because of the rate of the increase.

According to the people who do the counting, 53,000 jobs are created for every billion dollars worth of agricultural products exported. In 1969 these exports were under 6 billion... accounting for 318 thousand jobs off the farm. Not too bad. Last year's tally made the big difference... 22 billion in farm exports. In case you don't have a calculator handy, that works out to 1,166,000 jobs... new jobs... created in 1975. It is not too surprising the economy just "happened" to make a recovery at about the same time. Seems the admonition, "keep on truckin'" ought to be "keep on plowin'".

Great train robber to leave prison

Master of theology

After four years of graduate work in Biblical languages, theology, missions and evangelism, Frank W. Kelley Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Kelley of 1715 Christine, received a Master of Theology degree from Dallas Theological Seminary on May 7 at the 54th commencement for the school. One of 150 graduates, Frank was a member of one of the largest classes in the school's history. Founded in 1924, Dallas Theological Seminary is one of the largest independent seminaries in the world.

LONDON (AP) — Bobby Welch, one of the gang that pulled off Britain's $7.2 million Great Train Robbery 13 years ago, walks out of London's Wormwood Scrubs Prison sometime this month.

The Home Office won't specify a date, but when Welch leaves, he will have a discreet shadow — a Scotland Yard detective — just as the other 10 gang members had after they were released on parole. The detective will be looking for a clue that might help solve the riddle of Britain's biggest robbery: What happened to most of the money?

Detectives recovered only 300,000 pounds—then worth $840,000—after the gang staged a commando-style raid on a Glasgow-London train on Aug. 8, 1963. The rest of the money vanished.

"We've never had a whiff of the missing money," a Scotland Yard spokesman said. "And that sticks in our craw." He added that investigators can't close their books on the robbery until they find out what happened to the money.

Police express a belief that it is unlikely anyone will ever find bundles of loot hidden somewhere. They think the money was spent or converted into other assets. But whatever is left, in whatever form, they want to find it. If anyone else was involved, they want to find that out too.

The original stolen bills are now worthless because Britain changed the size and color of pound notes in 1971 when it switched to the decimal system.

Trailing Welch when he returns to his north London haunts is a long shot. Surveillance of the other released robbers shed no light on the mystery.

But keeping an eye on Welch and the others is about all the Yard can do. There's still a 250,000-pound—now worth $450,000—reward posted for the recovery of the money, enough to tempt any London crook to turn informer. But none has.

Yard officers estimate that the cost of the 13-year saga in tracking down the robbers around the world, putting them on trial and keeping them in maximum security prisons is as much as the gang took from the mail train.

Police arrested 15 men in the five-year worldwide manhunt that followed the pre-dawn holdup in the quiet Buckinghamshire countryside northwest of London. Only two escaped.

Some police and underworld informants believe that after the gang split up the loot, most of the money was smuggled abroad and then reinvested in Britain and other countries.

There are still whispers in London's underworld that most of the haul went to a mysterious "Mr. Big" who masterminded the holdup.

There are suspicions that at least three men involved in the planning and execution of the robbery were never brought to justice," a yard officer said.

The robbers did provide some clues about where some of the loot went.

Ronald "Buster" Edwards, a one-time London club owner who police believe was one of the brains behind the robbery, gave himself up in November 1966 after two years on the run. He told detectives he was bled dry by other criminals who had threatened to give him away.

Edwards, the leader of one of the two South London gangs that teamed up to pull the 1963 robbery, claimed he got only 10,000 pounds (then worth $28,000) of the loot. But the Yard at the time said it reckoned his cut was 10 times that.

Only two of the robbers got away with it — Charlie Wilson and Ronald Biggs. The Yard claimed both meticulously planned breakouts were the work of underworld specialists.

Wilson, a South London bookie with a police record, was sprung from Birmingham's top security Winson Green Prison in 1964 by a black-cloaked gang only four months after he was sentenced to a 30-year stretch.

He was on the run for 3½ years before he was finally captured in the small Quebec farming town of Gigaud near the U.S.-Canadian border. He was flown back to Britain under heavy guard. He's still behind bars.

Informed sources claimed that Wilson cached or invested money in Britain and received regular payments of at least 100 pounds—then worth $240—a week from London, while he was on the dodge.

Biggs escaped from London's Wandsworth Prison in 1965 and fled to Australia. When the law closed in there four years later he got out one jump ahead of the posse and went to Brazil.

Photographers to judge

A jury panel of well-known photographers will be in Amarillo June 16 for judging of entries to the second annual Focus '76 contest and exhibition set for Amarillo Civic Center July 23-25.

For the first time this year, judging of entries will be open to the public. Tickets will be $1 and selection will begin at 10 a.m. on June 16 in Concert Hall Theatre on Amarillo College campus.

The exhibition, sponsored by Top of Texas Branch, National League of American Pen Women will show approximately 200 black and white and color photographs representing the work of artists from 20 states and the Canal Zone.

Chairing the panel of judges will be Angus McDougall, noted photojournalist from University of Missouri, and co-author of "Visual Impact in Print."

Also on the panel will be Dr. John W. Hardwick of the Fine Arts Dept., SMU in Dallas, black and white and color film making; Dick Kent of Albuquerque, master

David Sutton of Petersen's Photographic Magazine, writes a column entitled, "Where The Action Is." As a result of his controversial comments in the May and June issues, concerning photographic contests, the Executive Board of

Top of Texas Branch, NLPW, has decided to delete the paragraph Publications, in their Focus '76 brochure which establishes retention of entries to become part of a Permanent Traveling Collection. The deadline for entries has been extended to June 10.

Tickets for the judging and for attendance at the show ($1 each), are available in books of ten or 25 and are tax deductible. They may be ordered by addressing Focus '76, Box 3482, Amarillo 79106.

Spankings allowed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—New state regulations for day care centers will allow employees to spank youngsters that misbehave.

The state welfare board's amended rules, however, allow only children who are five or older to be spanked, and then only with written permission from parents.

A child can be struck only on the bottom with the open hand. Previously issued regulations met heavy and concentrated criticism from day care center operators, who claimed they would be put out of business by the tight standards for staff and facilities.

The new ones that were adopted Thursday and take effect June 29 make these changes: —The number of children per staff member was increased.

Mexican law guides land use

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Write
MEXICO CITY (AP) — A law that opponents said was More diseases added to MD service program

Twelve more muscle diseases have been added to the list of neuromuscular disorders covered by the patient and community service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, according to Mrs. Naida Yost, president of MDA's Greater Plains Chapter.

"This brings to 35 the number of disorders for which our association now provides free medical, recreation, education and transportation services," she said. "This expansion of MDA service coverage was made possible by increased volunteer support of the association and the generous public response to our fund raising efforts."

The diseases are broadly described as metabolic disorders affecting muscle. Patients suffering from any of these disorders are now fully eligible to receive diagnostic examinations and follow up medical treatment at any of the MDA's 161 hospital-affiliated clinic visits and recreational programs, Mrs. Yost said.

part of a government plan to put homeless peasants in the spare bedrooms of the rich takes effect this month, paving the way for Mexico's first national land-use policy.

The Human Settlements Law doesn't set policy. It is a guide for future regulations to check uncontrolled growth of urban centers, regulate the real estate market, provide basic services and reduce "sectoral and geographical imbalances."

One government leader noted that the law for the first time inserts the word "planning" in land-use policy in a nation where masses of poor crowd around the capital city without mass transit, water systems and other public services.

The new statute creates the machinery for national, state and municipal government controls on the use of land. The national government is to coordinate the program, but the state governments are empowered to do the planning and pass the laws to carry it out. However, each state plan must be approved by the national government before it can be put into operation.

When President Luis Echeverria first proposed the legislation, there was a storm of protest from private enterprise, especially city landlords and land speculators.

The final version approved by Congress removed much of the sting for those opponents.

Their complaints centered on the prospect of land expropriation and the president's proposal to give municipal officials authority to regulate land use. The critics said this would permit city hall to punish landholding political enemies and could encourage landlords to use bribery in the pursuit of quick profits.

Some private business groups were reported sending survey teams, posing as government agents, to tell homeowners they would be forced to provide room in their houses for peasants.

Echeverria accused opponents of the legislation of holding clandestine meetings in Monterrey, Mexico's second largest city and the traditional center of business opposition to the government.

The Monterrey businessmen admitted they had met, but they denied they did so in secret. They said they were only exercising their constitutional right to assemble and criticize the government.

The Congress transferred regulatory powers from municipal to state governments.

Language was added stating the law was not an attack on private property itself, and machinery was set up providing property owners the right of appeal.

The law as approved even includes a paragraph specifically stating that peasants won't be lodged in the homes of the rich.

The Congress approved an Interior and Housing Commission report attached to the bill saying expropriations will be authorized only through existing constitutional amendments.

After the House of Deputies and the Senate removed some of the most controversial parts of the legislation, it breezed through a special legislative session. Echeverria signed it last month, and it becomes law June 24.

Mexico City and other major urban centers are growing at breakneck speed with little or no coordinated planning of the expansion. Factories are built beside residences. Suburbanites ration water. Major sections of the city are without mass transportation. Squatters are settled in dry gulches on the edge of the metropolis without water, lights and other services.

An estimated 10,000 cows infected with tuberculosis are tethered beside shanties inside the city limits.

Echeverria told the U.N. Human Settlements Conference in Vancouver this week the new law seeks "a more just distribution of wealth, balanced development of the country, harmonizing relations between cities and the countryside."

Robin Gantz agrees 'Pampa is people'

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

After a recent week's worth of hospitality provided by David and Robin Gantz, a visitor sent them a poem he wrote, instead of the usual "thank you" note.

"And he said in it that 'Pampa is people — people who really care about people and people who really listen to people.'" Mrs. Gantz said.

She agrees. And she knows and appreciates many of Pampa's people. She has met many of them through her work with the Pampa Art Club — she's a past president. And for the past couple of years she has served as co-chairman of the Pampa Fine Arts Festival.

"Pampa is a supportive community," she said. "We have amateur art shown at the hospital and exhibited in restaurants and over at the Coronado Inn. It's a community that supports people's beginning efforts instead of criticizing them. It's the kind of community that will support any budding artist."

Both the supporters and painters of Pampa art tend toward Southwestern themes in works they buy and produce.

"They paint what is here," Mrs. Gantz said, "and that is our heritage. But in the process of painting, you also hear the stories of the past."

So the artist and whoever ends up with the painting become influenced by and educated by and appreciative of the history of the area, she said.

Mrs. Gantz has observed another way in which Pampa's history is kept alive:

"Pampa doesn't have that many distractions that they have lost this touch with the past generations," she said. "There are not, socially and culturally, this many activities going on in Pampa, where you're constantly leaving the home and seeking entertainment. "Pampa is a small enough town that a lot of our entertainment is home centered. And when you get home - centered entertainment, then you get into a lot of family involvement and then comes the story telling."

Mrs. Gantz said that the women's liberation movement of recent years has had little effect on art in Pampa.

"When you look back on Southwestern art and Western art, it's all men. They are the ones who got on the saddles and rode out and they sketched what they saw."

"Women's art was more in the functional or decorative arts. They came out here and had to leave their furniture out in the East or wherever they came from. They left their good, fine things and they had to make do with what they had here. So the woman's creativity developed in designing the furniture and how she painted it or in decoupage or in tole painting. They were trying to improve the beauty of their homes."

If women's lib has increased any awareness in Pampa, it is the men who have profited most, Mrs. Gantz said.

"Maybe women's lib has effected, in our area, art by virtue of the fact that men have been allowed to explore areas of art they haven't before. Men in the Southwestern areas have been delegated to 'manly' positions and now they're free to try some of these other areas," she said.

"They can do tole painting, maybe decoupage, and they're not doing women's things. But I think the woman's had the opportunity to be creative all along — it was a necessity if she wanted beautiful things."

Mrs. Gantz expresses much interest in the past and present of art in Pampa, but she also is concerned about the direction of art in the future.

"I think the next step would be for Pampa to open itself up to other areas of art. In order to appreciate an area of art, you have to know another. The next logical step is to begin to bring in exhibits of contemporary art and have classes in abstract expressionism," she said.

"And then we can meld the past heritage with new ways of expressing ourselves and then really come up with something new."

Artistically speaking, Pampa is a strong community, Mrs. Gantz said. One example of the strength is the number of classes being conducted.

"There are watercolor classes, oil painting classes; we have a lady coming in who teaches tole painting classes. I think Pampa has a tremendous interest in the arts by the fact they are supporting so many classes."

"I think that Pampa's interest in the arts is reflected in that we have three hobby shops that are supported by our community," Mrs. Gantz not only is active in local art organizations, she is an art teacher. She conducts classes for children. And she teaches them that art is more than producing something to be sold or exhibited.

"I think Pampa needs to grow in that area. We do a lot of painting to hang a picture on the wall, to improve our homes. We need to develop an attitude where you can paint and throw it away or stick it under the bed. But you can just express yourself for the sheer joy of expressing yourself and not have to show it to anybody."

"We need to open ourselves up and know that painting is an experience for an individual's pleasure. You can paint and throw it away and you haven't wasted your canvass or your materials."

Sculptor's knife brings Hopi culture to life

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Self-taught sculptor Carl Jaynes once told a friend that carving Hopi kachina dolls was the "last thing I wanted to do."

Since then he has carved, painted and costumed 24 of the figures which bear religious significance to the Hopi.

Kachinas, Jaynes explained, are spirit figures similar to Christian saints except that some have decidedly evil natures.

During various religious ceremonies and dances, Hopi men will wear costumes of different kachinas and each ritual has specific kachinas which participate. Part of the Indian belief is that the dancer, once attired, actually loses his own identity and assumes the character of the kachina.

Jaynes said while he was visiting a friend in Albuquerque last July, he was asked to carve the bodies for kachina dolls. He turned down the offer, but when his wife, Alma, heard of it her own interest in kachinas was rekindled.

Mrs. Jaynes said she has always liked dolls but was never able to afford kachina dolls when her husband was a planner - estimator for the Bureau of Indian Affairs at Crown Point, N.M.

An authentic 12-inch kachina doll sells for about $400 and prices may range up to $1,000 for larger dolls in New Mexico and Arizona.

Authentic dolls must be hand carved out of cottonwood root, but Jaynes said he also uses other types of wood.

Construction of each doll takes between three weeks and one month and Jaynes' work is more time-consuming because for every sculpture he makes for his home at 120 N. Sumner, he makes identical copies for a son in New Mexico and a daughter in Oklahoma City.

His kachina doll collection now includes seven finished sculptures and one in construction. He has made 24 of the dolls to date.

The Hopi Indians have more than 260 kachinas and Mrs. Jaynes said she wants them all. Zuni Indians also have kachina dolls, but theirs differ from Hopi kachinas in basic construction.

While Zuni dolls are carved entirely from a single block of wood, Hopi kachina bodies are carved from a block of wood and arms are later attached with wooden dowel pins and glue.

Jaynes, who has been sculpting since about 1955, has had no formal training and works both in wood and alabaster.

He said he prefers to work with alabaster, but his emphysema has curtailed his stone-cutting activities.

He sculpts only for himself and his children and his work is not for sale. He estimates that in over 20 years, he has turned out more than 200 sculptures.

Jaynes' kachina dolls will be on display at Lovett Memorial Library, 111 N. Houston, through June 27.

It will be the first time in several years that Jaynes has exhibited any of his art. Setting up exhibits, he said, is "quite a lot of work."

Jaynes uses a child's coloring book on kachina dolls as models for many of his replicas.

Drawings in the book help Jaynes make sure everything is to scale. He also has several books on kachinas with detailed descriptions of the spirit figures.

His wife buys Indian prints for part of the costuming needs. Where fabric is not used, Jaynes paints the figures with acrylic paints and adds feathers and other accessories.

Saints and ogres

Carl Jaynes began carving Hopi kachina dolls in July 1975 and the self-taught sculptor has made 24 of the Indian spirit dolls since then. His collection of seven kachinas will be on display at the Lovett Memorial Library through June 27. The exhibit will be set up Monday. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Baker sixth graders author storybooks

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Second graders at Baker Elementary School will enjoy reading lessons a bit more when school reconvenes in the fall because of the efforts of about three dozen sixth grade authors this year.

Students in Mrs. Diana Baccus' language arts class wrote and illustrated books, made a half-dozen copies of each of them and presented them to the second grade just before school dismissed for the summer.

Titles of the works include "The Cow that Could Not Moo," "The Birthday Mouse," "A Lesson on Telling the Truth," "Grady Grasshopper," "Little Pig in the Mud," "The Clown that Went to Town," and "The Dress in the Dimestore Window."

The last book of those mentioned, written by Tracy Phillips, is about a poor girl who wanted a dress she saw in a dimstore window. She got a job delivering papers and saved her money to buy the dress.

But that's not all. The story continues and the plot thickens. "One day, Anna was walking home from school in her new dress and fell in a mud puddle," the young author wrote.

The little girl in the story was afraid that she was going to be in trouble with her mother for getting the new dress muddy. But there is a happy ending:

"Anna washed her dress before her mother got home. Anna did not get into trouble. Her new dress was pretty again."

Russell Douglas entitled his book, "This Is the World," and on each page he added to his story and illustrations until he had "horses, on the horse, in the stalls, in the barn, on the farm, in Pampa, in Gray County, in Texas, in the United States, on the world."

Several of the young authors wrote alphabet books. Raymon A. Mendosa called his, "The Mixed Alphabet."

To illustrate the letter "Q" he drew a queen, "that rules the people." And when he got to X — no, he didn't use "xylophone."

"X is for King Xlok, who rules with the queen."

Teresa Brown approached the "X" problem a bit differently in her alphabet book:

"X is for 'X' like in the alphabet," she wrote, and she illustrated it by printing the entire alphabet and circling the X.

Elena Young's work, "The Book of Rhymes," includes poems like, "Butterfly, butterfly, where do you go? Where the sun shines, and the flowers grow."

And a bit of free verse: "Ladybug, ladybug, fly away, your house is on fire, your children will burn."

Many books were dedicated to particular second graders — younger brothers or sisters or friends of the authors: Laurietta Jernigan wrote hers especially "for Gary Jernigan," Phyllis Meeks for Jamie Meeks, Patricia Portillo for Hermalinda Portillo, Erma Sue Gardner for Robert Paul Gardner, Valerie Pangle for Sherrie Brock, Tammy Rogers for Julie Rogers and Raymon A. Mendosa for Sandra Mendosa.

Others dedicated their books to "all the second graders." Apryl Roan's book, "I Want to be a Clown" was dedicated to "all the children who enjoy being a clown."

Mrs. Baccus had several of the neater students laminate the construction paper covers of the books and apply heavy tape to bind the spines.

She said that the program did not originate in Baker. Mrs. Baccus visited a Tulsa elementary school and observed a similar program before developing the one she used at Baker.

She said she was pleased with the results and her students profited from applying their skills to achieve a specific goal.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died recently. We had only two years together, but ours was a perfect marriage. Never a cross word. He was a saint. We both had been married before, raised our children and lost our spouses through no fault of our own.

At my husband's funeral, I was shoved over on the bench behind the organ where I wasn't even able to see the casket. To add insult to injury, the minister preached a whole service, referring only to my husband's ex-wife. (She was a member of the church and I wasn't.)

The final insult came afterward, when the minister sat holding the hand of my beloved husband's ex-wife. I was so angry and hurt I could hardly bear it.

If I had it in my power, I would dig my husband up and bury him in a private cemetery with a private service. I know he is not at peace where he now lies. He loved me too much to have me hurt this way.

Please print this so that ministers will give more consideration to widows instead of ex-wives.

CRUSHED IN MADISON

DEAR CRUSHED: The privilege (and responsibility) of making the funeral arrangements for your deceased husband was yours, not his ex-wife's. (She apparently got to the minister first.) Unless you failed to assert yourself as you should have, the minister deserves to be severely censured for having handled the service as he did.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to pass on some very valuable experience to women who might find themselves in the situation that I was in 10 years ago.

As an attractive 55-year-old widow, I was wined and dined and courted by a very desirable widower in his early 60s. He proposed marriage to me on the condition that his children approved of me. (He had two sons and two daughters—all married.)

Well, I passed their inspection with flying colors, but I wish I hadn't. When he was well, his children came first. Now he is sick, and he's all mine.

STUCK WITH AN A.K.

DEAR STUCK: Nobody gets a lifetime guarantee of good health. YOU could have become sick and been all HIS.

DEAR ABBY: First, some joker wants to sue his parents for $100,000 for having circumcised him when he was an infant and unable to defend himself.

Then someone writes in and suggests that his mother sue the idiot for "womb rent."

If she does, she might as well try to get "carrying charges," too. Just a suggestion.

DALE P. SCOBEE: HOOD RIVER, ORE.

DEAR DALE: It seems only fair since the mother was stuck with the delivery charges.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it true that vitamin C tablets not only lose their potency but also develop some sort of a poison with age, that is if they are kept a long period of time?

About four years ago a doctor recommended I get natural vitamin C and I bought two jars of 400 tablets. I used one and the other got mislaid in moving two or three times. Now I have found it. Can I safely take them?

DEAR READER — Throw them away. It is true that vitamin C tablets, natural or synthetic, lose their potency with time. Even if the tablets are stored in a refrigerator they will lose about half of their potency in a year's time.

Recent studies show that vitamin C is converted to oxalic acid. This substance has been implicated in triggering diabetes, kidney stones and urinary tract infections. These problems are more likely to occur in the person who takes very large doses of old vitamin C.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-3, Vitamin C (Ascorbic Acid) to give you a better idea of what you can and cannot expect from taking vitamin C. Others can obtain this information by forwarding 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Certainly vitamin C is an important and essential vitamin for health.

Your best source of it is in good wholesome foods found in a balanced diet, specifically fruits and vegetables.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 19, in great physical condition, and lift weights three days a week. I would like to know how much milk is too much for me. I have been drinking a gallon a day for its protein content but have heard that much is harmful to the bones and also makes the face break out. Is this true?

DEAR READER — Milk is a good source of both protein and calcium. You don't need that much protein though to build a good muscular body. A gallon of milk will give you 136 grams of protein. You won't need more than 100 grams of protein from milk, meat and all sources combined to give you enough for muscle building. A pound of lean muscle will contain only 100 grams of protein.

The problem is that a gallon of milk also gives you 440 milligrams of cholesterol and the daily recommended limit is about 300. You will need part of that allotment in eating meat, fish, chicken and other important foods that also contain cholesterol. Milk is also high in fat. Whole milk contains 34 grams of fat a quart or about 300 calories of fat. Nearly half of the calories in whole milk are from fat. It is properly classified as a high fat food. You can eliminate the dangers of a high fat cholesterol intake by using fortified skim milk or buttermilk.

The calcium is not a problem. If you take in more than you need it will simply be eliminated from the body, either through the urine or it will be absorbed in the first place. The milk will not cause your face to break out unless you have some form of allergy which is most unlikely.

I would recommend that you have a quart of fortified skim milk daily and balance your diet with adequate amounts of poultry, fish and lean meats.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — My "Pet Peeve" concerns the price of clothing in half-sizes. They invariably cost a few dollars more. I think prices on say a size 16 and a 16½ should be the same unless one gets into extra large sizes. — BEATRICE.

DEAR POLLY — When making pudding of any kind I always stir it with a plastic pancake turner. This keeps the pudding from burning on the bottom and it is always smooth and lump free.

Also my husband always waxes our refrigerator with regular car wax. He applies it just as he does on his car and takes it off with a soft cloth. It stays shiny, rust free and splatters and grease marks wipe right off. — MARY ANN.

DEAR POLLY — I clean the greasy filter to my stove's hood by taking the filter to the car wash and washing it with the car. That hot soapy water and the force behind it work like magic for removing the grease. Also we clean our furnace filter the same way. (Polly's note: I feel sure this must be done at one of those car washes where you more or less do it yourself.) — KAY.

DEAR POLLY — I found a good way to hang a large cork bulletin board on my daughter's bedroom wall. I used needles (three across the top and at each lower corner) and pushed them in with the hammer. When she wanted to move the board to another wall, all we had to do was pull the board from the wall and the needles passed through the board. The needles sticking from the wall were then broken off, and the wall left smooth. The small holes were not noticeable. — BETTY D.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

Bold Forbes gallops to Belmont crown

By EDWARD SCHUYLER, JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky Derby winner Bold Forbes took the lead at the start and held it by fighting off a furious closing rush by McKenzie Bridge Saturday to win the $195,000 Belmont Stakes.

The question had been: could Bold Forbes carry his speed over 1 1/2 miles? The answer was: "Yes"—but barely.

Great Contractor moved up on the turn to challenge Bold Forbes as Best Laid Plans, who has been second most of the way, faded. Then McKenzie Bridge sailed down the middle of the stretch to pass Great Contractor and just missed getting Bold Forbes.

The time for the 1 1/2 miles was 2:29 flat as Bold Forbes cut out fractions of 234-5 for the quarter, 47 for the half, 1:11 for the three quarters and 2:04-5 for the mile and a quarter. The three-quarter time was a full two seconds slower than in the Preakness, when Bold Forbes burned himself out and fell prey to the stretch runs of Elocutionist and Play the Red.

Bold Forbes finished a neck in front of McKenzie Bridge, who has never won a stakes. McKenzie Bridge was another neck in front of Great Contractor, who in turn was eight lengths to the good of Majestic Light.

Completing the order of finish were Aeronaut, Play the Red, Mullineaux, Best Laid Plans, Close to Noon and Quick Card.

The victory by Bold Forbes, owned by Esteban Rodriguez Tizol and ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., marked the third time in 15 years a Derby winner who lost in the Preakness has come back to win the Belmont. Chateaugay did it in 1963 and Riva Ridge in 1972.

Bold Forbes paid $3.80, $3.40 and $2.80. McKenzie Bridge, owned by Mrs. Douglas Carver, returned $5 and $3.80. Great Contractor, owned by Howard P. Wilson, returned $3.80.

It was a top riding performance by Cordero, who helped Bold Forbes save enough of himself for the stretch, when McKenzie Bridge, ridden by Darrel McHargue, came thundering up from seventh place with one-quarter of a mile to go.

A few more yards and McKenzie Bridge would have been the winner—but in the Belmont, they pay off on who is in front at the end of a mile and a half.

Immediately after the race, Cordero said he told the horse, "Get me to the eighth pole (an eighth of a mile from the finish) and I'll take it from there, baby!"

Cordero broke the colt he calls his Puerto Rican Rolls-Royce on top and, after the first quarter of a mile, led Best Laid Plans by two lengths. The margin was up to six lengths after another quarter but was down to 1 1/2 after a mile.

Best Laid Plans managed to stay in the runner-up position for another quarter but was six lengths back and had it as Great Contractor was moving on the outside into third place. At that point, McKenzie Bridge was seventh.

Then, as Great Contractor, ridden by Jacinto Vasquez, closed on Bold Forbes, McHargue brought McKenzie Bridge on like a streak. He shot past Great Contractor about midstretch and, as a crowd of 57,519 at Belmont Park roared, he chopped away at Bold Forbes' margin with every stride until he was just a neck away.

But then, there was the finish line and the 106-year-old Belmont had its first start-to-finish winner since Riva Ridge did it four years ago.

Bold Forbes might not be a Triple Crown champion, but he certainly is the leader of the 3-year-old division. Two of his top rivals, Preakness winner Elocutionist and Honest Pleasure, the beaten favorite in both the Derby and Preakness, were absent Saturday—Elocutionist because of an injury, Honest Pleasure for a rest.

In providing the first Belmont triumphs for Rodriguez, who was starting a horse in the race for the first time; for Cordero, who was riding in his fifth Belmont, and for trainer Laz Barrera, who was saddling his second Belmont starter, Bold Forbes recorded his 12th win in 16 starts in a career which also includes a second and three thirds.

The Kentucky-bred colt who ran his first five races last year in Puerto Rico, Rodriguez' home, earned $117,000 and boosted his earnings for 1976 to $435,890.

Borg advances in French Open

PARIS (AP) — Bjorn Borg, seeking to win this tournament for the third year in a row, sputtered briefly but quickly regained control to move into the fourth round of the French Open Saturday, the day before his 20th birthday.

Borg, the No. 1 seed, defeated Antonio Zugarelli of Italy 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 in the first sunny weather in Paris in a week, which brought out a record crowd of 12,596 to Roland Garros Stadium.

There were no upsets, but Sherwood Stewart of Goose Creek, Tex., came closest to pulling off a surprise, winning the first two sets from Jaime Fillol of Chile, seeded ninth, before losing the last three.

Eddie Dibbs of Miami became the first American to advance into the fourth round, beating Victor Amaya of Holland, Mich., in a four-set match in which both Americans insulted the French officials.

The big crowd also had a shock when Spain's Jose Higueras fell to the red clay of the center court writing in pain with a broken arm in the fifth set of his match with the French ninth seed, Francois Jauffret. Higueras forfeited the match and was taken to a hospital. The score at the time was 7-5, 2-6, 6-7, 6-4, 1-2.

Borg's problems came both in the second and third sets when he fell behind 1-3. Winning 4-3 in the third set, Zugarelli had two break points, but lobbed long and double faulted. Borg broke through on a deep cross-court backhand that the crowd screamed was out.

The other top seed to play, Manuel Orantes of Spain, No. 3, won easily over Julian Ganzabon of Argentina 6-0, 6-3, 6-4.

In the third round of women's singles, fifth seeded Fiorella Bonicelli of Uruguay was eliminated by Renate Marsikova of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 2-6, 6-4. The third seed, Marita Redondo of National City, Calif., beat Beth Norton, Fairfield, Conn., 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, and the top seed, Sue Barker of Britain, defeated Carmen Perera of Spain 7-5, 7-6.

Borg's next opponent is Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia, whom he has never played before. Franulovic advanced Saturday by beating Barry Philip-Moore of Australia 3-6, 7-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Dibbs beat Amaya 7-5, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, but neither player was pleased with the officiating. Amaya, a 6-foot-6 power server, shouted obscenities and roared "Are you blind? Are you an idiot? I'll get you on the street later," when the umpire reversed a call in the first set which he appeared to have won.

Mercyhurst

wins in NAIA

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kari Pesonen of Mercyhurst, Pa., College whipped Rick Cleveland, Huntington, Ala., College, 6-2, 6-1 to take NAIA singles tennis title Saturday as the Mercyhurst crew won the team crown.

Mercyhurst compiled 39 points to become the first school outside of Texas or California to win the NAIA tennis championship. The defending champions, the University of Redlands, Calif., which had won the title nine of the last 10 years, was second with 27.

Phoenix down but not out yet

PHOENIX (AP) — The clock is winding down, but the Phoenix Suns still are hoping to become a National Basketball Association Cinderella in a championship showdown with the Boston Celtics.

The Suns, a wild card team in the playoffs and trailing Boston 3-2 in the best-of-seven championship series, have been battling the Celtics to a near standstill.

"It's going to be another war just like this one," Boston captain John Havlicek said as the two teams headed for Phoenix and Game 6 Sunday afternoon.

Havlicek, a 14-year veteran seeking to lead the Celtics to an unprecedented 13th NBA title, shook off a painful foot injury and helped Boston to a dramatic 128-126 victory over the Suns in the fifth game Friday night

Purtzer tied with 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie Tom Purtzer, apparently on the verge of collapse after a double bogey, responded with a hole in one on the next swing of the club, but dropped back to a five-way tie for the lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Bicentennial Golf Classic.

The 24-year-old Purtzer, the leader through the first two rounds, had a wildy erratic 72 and drifted into a tie for the top with veteran Ken Still, Larry Nelson, rookie Jerry Pate and Jerry McGee. All are at 208, six under par for three trips over the tight little 6,687-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

playoff in history. However, the Suns, to a man, talked confidently, fully expecting a trip back to Boston for a seventh and deciding game next Wednesday would be necessary.

"People thought we were just a bunch of people from the West that didn't belong here," Phoenix Coach John MacLeod said. "Anyone who thinks that now can go jump."

Rookie guard Ricky Sobers sounded the Suns' war hoop, declaring "we're not going to back down."

"We're not going to give up, no matter what," Sobers said. "The Suns certainly proved a lot to many basketball fans throughout the country."

Worley, Buckingham lead Club Partnership

Buck Worley and Howard Buckingham combined for a 128 total, including handicap, to take the first-round lead in the Club Partnership Golf Tournament Saturday at the Pampa Country Club.

Their total was three strokes better than runners-up Jimmy Cox and Don Hudson at 131. Joe Cree and Chuck Leonard were next at 132, along with Bill Hawkins and Ralph Brock.

Other teams in contention for the team title are George Casey and Dr. Julian Keye 133, Jack Edwards and Ricky Clark 133.

Don Forsha and Tom Price 134, Bush Jordan and Ralph Collingsworth 134, DeWey Cudney and Bill Winborn 134, Paul Howard and Jay Hollingsworth 135 and Shorty Hudson and Chuck Polk 135.

Defending champions Jerry Larson and Roy Milliron are back in the pack at 144.

Fifteen teams will receive prizes in the tournament, which resumes at 8:30 a.m. today. Entrants will play 18 holes of low ball, less handicap.

First place is worth approximately $200 (gift certificate).

Boston edges Suns in thriller

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Tommy Heinsohn felt ill and begged off the usual post-game interview. Jo Jo White slumped in a chair and asked no one in particular: "Would you believe we've got another game in Phoenix Sunday?"

That was the atmosphere in the Boston Celtics' dressing room early today, 3 hours and 8 minutes after they had tapped off in a pivotal game with the Phoenix Suns Friday night at the Garden.

The Celtics, bidding for an unprecedented 13th National Basketball Association championship, blew a 22-point first-half lead and then edged the Cinderella Suns from Phoenix 128-126 in triple overtime for a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven showdown.

The game was a heart-stopper as the Suns fought back throughout regulation, forcing Boston captain John Havlicek to sink one of two free throws to send the game into the first overtime.

White, a veteran sharpshooter, saved his best for the overtime periods, hitting for 15 of his game-high 33 in that stretch. He got plenty of help from young Glenn McDonald and Jim Ard, pressed into action after Dave Cowens and Paul Silas fouled out.

McDonald came off the bench after Silas fouled out in the third overtime of the longest championship round playoff game in NBA history. He sank two pressure free throws.

Ard, who spends most of the time on the bench as Cowens' understudy, said he had lost track of the number of fouls on Boston's veteran center.

Havlicek missed a corner jumper as the first overtime ended 101-101. Then he appeared to give the Celtics a 111-110 victory by banking a running shot as the buzzer sounded for what apparently was the end of the second overtime.

Many of the Celtics hurried to the dressing room. Fans swarmed onto the court as Phoenix Coach John MacLeod desperately tried to get the attention of the officials. He finally did. The Celtics had to return to the floor. MacLeod then called a time out, with one second left.

The Suns already were over the limit on times out, so the Celtics were awarded a technical foul. White making the free throw. Then, taking the ball in at midcourt, the Suns set up Gar Heard, who hit on a game-winning jump shot from the key, forcing still a third overtime.

Boston spurred to a 126-120 lead and was in front 128-122 with just 31 seconds left. Then the Celtics had to survive a pair of baskets by former teammate Paul Westphal and a near steal in the closing seconds.

"It's going to be another war just like this one was," Havlicek said in looking ahead to Sunday's game. "That's what playoff basketball is all about. I think the situation that exists is going to create basketball interest in June which has never been seen before."

Stones, an Olympic bronze medalist with his sights on a gold in Montreal this summer, set the old mark of 7-6 1/2 in 1973 while competing for the Pacific Coast Club.

The cocky Stones predicted he would set a world mark at the NCAAs because he felt he wouldn't reach it in the Olympic Games this summer at Montreal. Stones described the Olympics as a drag.

His effort Saturday, anything but a drag, marked the ninth hole, the first extra hole of sudden-death overtime.

Siderowf, who captured the title in 1973, won the 35th hole to square the match. On the 36th hole, he narrowly missed a 10-foot putt that would have won the match in regulation. The hole was halved and the marathon duel went on to the 37th.

Davies had won the 34th hole to go one up with two to play, putting the pressure on Siderowf. 38, from Westport, Conn. It was the first time the Englishman had been ahead since the sixth hole in the morning. But it didn't last long.

After seven hours of play, it came down to the 37th hole. There, Siderowf sank a putt of six feet and Davies missed one from four feet. Siderowf won the hole with a four to Davies' five.

McPhillips' bird earns top honors Margaret McPhillips captured top honors with a dark check cock flying 164.53 yards per minute in Friday and Saturday's Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon Club Houston - to Pampa race.

The birds were released at 7:25 a.m. Friday in Houston. Nine lofts entered a total of 80 pigeons.

US cage team chosen

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Scott May, college basketball's Player of the Year, and Indiana teammate Quinn Buckner headed the 15-man list of players selected today for the United States Olympic basketball team.

The squad, which reports to head Coach Dean Smith at Chapel Hill, N.C., next Wednesday, includes four of Smith's North Carolina Tar Heel players—4-foot-10 center Mitch Kupchak and Tommy LaGarde, 6-5 forward Walt Davis and 6-2 guard Phil Ford.

The 10-man selection committee also chose 6-10 Scott Lloyd and 6-8 Mark Landsberger, teammates at Arizona State.

The other forwards besides the 6-7 May are 6-7 Kenny Carr of North Carolina State, 6-5 Allan American Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, 6-6 Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee, 6-7 Phil Hubbard of Michigan and 6-6 Steve Sheppard of Maryland.

Besides Ford and the 6-3 Buckner, the guards selected were 6-4 Otis Birdsong of Houston and 6-3 Tate Armstrong of Duke.

The team was announced by Ben Lewis, secretary of the U.S. Olympic Basketball Committee, and Smith, who conducted the week-long tryout camp.

In the five weeks between the time the team reports to Chapel Hill and its first game in Montreal, three players will be cut, leaving 12 to compete in the Summer Olympic Tournament.

"This was not my team of 15," said Smith. "Everybody had his own team, the 10 members of the selection committee, the 14 coaches, even the newspaper men. But you have to appreciate the caliber that we have here."

Smith said the 15-man team selected differed in three places from the squad he had in mind, "but I won't say where."

Of the 15 chosen, three—LaGarde, Grunfeld and Birdsong—were members of the United States team at the Pan-American Games last fall.

Foyt glad May's over, prepares for Texas 500

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — A.J. Foyt, holding court for the first time since losing the rain-soaked, disputed Indianapolis 500 to fellow Texan Johnny Rutherford last Sunday, says he's just glad the month of May is finally over, regardless of the outcome of the race.

A's 7, Yankees 6 NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland's Don Baylor stole second base and went all the way home on a wild throw by New York catcher Thurman Munson in the ninth inning Saturday, giving the A's a 7-6 victory over the Yankees.

Baylor beat out an infield single with two outs in the ninth inning and stole second base on the first pitch to Sal Bando. When Munson's throw sailed into center field, Baylor scored to break a 6-6 tie.

Tribe 5, Sox 3 CHICAGO (AP) — John Lowenstein, a defensive replacement, tripled, home the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning and then scored on a passed ball Saturday in leading the Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Foyt, humorous, feisty, talkative like he usually is away from Indianapolis where he is generally cold, impatient and short tempered, said the Indianapolis 500 this year was about to drive him crazy before the whole thing was over.

"Any longer and I would have sent myself to a psychiatrist," Foyt explained in a lively interview as he prepared for today's Texas 500 stock car race at Texas World Speedway. "The problems in qualifying, in practice, the Janet Guthrie thing, the pressure—all month seemed like a nightmare."

"Then the race gets rained on again. I'll tell you, it was maddening."

Foyt, 42, who says he entertains no notions of retiring, feels nothing much was decided in the race, which ended after only 255 miles. Foyt still believes Rutherford illegally made up at least nine seconds on him during a caution period, but he is most upset that officials refused to restart the race after the initial rainstorm "although they obviously could have."

"Everybody knows they were stalling. Anybody else would have gotten the whole show in, or at least most of it. There was at least 45 minutes more we could have raced. Tom Binford is a nice guy, but he has no business being chief steward in a $1 million race." Foyt snorted.

The winner of nearly $3 million in prize money over a career spanning more than two decades again defended his plan of running only one car—even though he entered four. "I felt we had to concentrate 100 per cent on winning," he said.

About his backup car, a tantalizing, super-car capable of running everything else—including Foyt's front line Coyote—off the track, Foyt explained, "I would only have run it for two people—Mario Andretti or Lloyd Ruby—if they would have needed a ride."

Orioles 5, Twins 1 BALTIMORE (AP) — Ken Holtzman pitched a five-hitter and Doug DeCinces drove in the tie-breaking run with a sixth-inning single as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins 5-1 Saturday.

Stones goes 7-7, snaps world high jump record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dwight Stones of Long Beach State, making a promise he could keep, broke his own world high jump record with a leap of 7 feet, 7 inches Saturday at the 55th annual National Collegiate Track and Field Championships.

Stones, an Olympic bronze medalist with his sights on a gold in Montreal this summer, set the old mark of 7-6 1/2 in 1973 while competing for the Pacific Coast Club.

The cocky Stones predicted he would set a world mark at the NCAAs because he felt he wouldn't reach it in the Olympic Games this summer at Montreal. Stones described the Olympics as a drag.

His effort Saturday, anything but a drag, marked the ninth hole, the first extra hole of sudden-death overtime.

time he set a world record in the high jump and the 19th time he has gone over 7-5.

Stones said the high jump at the Olympic Games takes five hours and is nerve wracking. He predicted high jumpers at the Games will not be able to keep their muscles loose for so long a period.

The 22-year-old Stones was at Munich in 1972, finishing third and suffering from a lack of experience.

But he went back to Munich in 1973 in a dual meet against West Germany and jumped 7-6 1/2, then a world record.

The NCAA record was 7-4, set by Rey Brown of California Poly at San Luis Obispo and Tom Woods of Oregon, both in 1973.

The other prime prospect for setting a world record here was Arkansas State's Earl Bell, who last week set a pole vault world mark of 18 feet, 7 1/2 inches.

Bell won his speciality Saturday but did not really approach his record, scaling the height 18-1 1/2, which was a meet record. The old mark was 18-1, set by Bell and Dan Ripley of San Jose State, last year at Provo, Utah. Long Beach State's Don Baird, was second at 17-7. Bell tried at 18-7 but failed.

Meanwhile, Texas-El Paso's James Munyala ran away from the field in the final 1500 yards to win the 3,000 meter steeplechase and Villanova's Eamonn Coghlan took the 1,500-meter run with a strong stretch kick, both runners setting meet records and defending their titles.

Munyala, the durable Kenyan, kicked away from Brigham Young's Henry Marsh and Tennessee's Ron Addison to win the steeplechase in 8:24.86. He broke the NCAA meet record of 8:28.1, set by Doug Brown of Tennessee in 1973. Marsh was timed in 8:27.8, also breaking the old record.

Coghlan, who had won three straight NCAA titles and nine ICA crowns during his spectacular years at Villanova, burst into the lead at the top of the stretch and went on to edge Wilson Waigwa of Texas-El Paso by two yards in 3:37.1, the equivalent of a 3:54.6 mile.

Waigwa, who ran last most of the race, edged Oregon's Matt Centrowitz, both running under the old mark, Waigwa in 3:37.26 and Centrowitz in 3:37.29.

The NCAA 1,500-meter record, 3:39.7, was held by Dave Wottle of Bowling Green. He set it in 1972.

IRS may investigate Unification Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service would have to start from scratch in any investigation into the finances of Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church because the organization has been exempt from filing federal income tax returns.

The church receives millions of dollars in income — including at least $12 million in 1975 — but does not need to report its income to the IRS because the tax laws exempt religious organizations.

But the IRS appears to have decided it wants to learn a little more about Moon's church, in part because of complaints it has received.

Parents of some of Moon's young American followers have complained that their children have been "brainwashed."

The church is known formally as the Holy Spirit Association for the Unification of World Christianity, Inc., and was established in the United States in 1959. The self-ordained Moon, who says he was inspired at the age of 16 by a vision, founded his church in 1954 in South Korea. He was drummed out of the Presbyterian Church.

An IRS spokesman said the agency will take "appropriate action" on complaints and other information it has received, although he noted that "in some cases 'appropriate action' means no action."

The spokesman said religious groups have been subjected to audits in the past. Audits of religious institutions require permission of an IRS official with at least the rank of a regional commissioner.

WANTS FOR MASTER
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Duke, an aging mix-breed dog, is maintaining a long vigil at an animal hospital-motel here, apparently awaiting the return of his master.

In recent months, four persons from different parts of the city adopted Duke but each time the dog found his way back, according to Dr. Hiram Pritchett, a veterinarian and the owner of the establishment.

Dr. Pritchett said Duke's owner began boarding the dog at his place two years ago. He came regularly every week. One day, however, he stopped coming and Duke was put up for adoption.

"This time I'll keep him until he dies," said Dr. Pritchett when the dog came back from his fourth adopter. "He's a fixture around here, and he likes it."

If there is a challenge to the tax-exempt status of the organization, it probably will center on reports that the Unification Church has engaged in political lobbying.

People make news

NEWTON, N.J. (AP) — Carl H. "Doc" Severinsen, the flashy band director on NBC's Tonight Show, has been granted a divorce in return for his promise to give his ex-wife $75,000 a year alimony, a rural horse ranch, a Cadillac and a Bentley.

an assailant who still remains unknown.

Elliot Mintz, a radio personality who says he was Mineo's best friend for 13 years, said he has been pursuing his own "course of action" to unearth the slayer. He said he had consulted several psychiatrists.

"I sought them out because Sal was a believer in that kind of phenomena, as I am," he said. So far, he said, the psychiatrists had not provided any leads to the killer.

GRASSE, France (AP) — Pablo Picasso's artistic legacy has been valued at $253.3 million, with his real estate, bank accounts and other assets expected to yield another $750 million.

The figure became public Thursday at a court hearing on a petition by the artist's 24-year-old granddaughter Marina to replace the executor of his estate. She claims the way the executor divided it between the six heirs was "altogether inapplicable and unacceptable."

The six heirs have been on strained terms since long before Picasso died in April 1973. The artist left no will and under French law his inheritance must be shared in fixed proportions among his legitimate and illegitimate offspring.

The heirs are Picasso's widow Jacqueline, who gets the biggest share; Picasso's three illegitimate children, Claude, Paloma and Maya; and the two surviving children of Picasso's son Paulo. Marina and Bernard Paulo died a year ago.

The divorce agreement allows Severinsen to renegotiate the settlement if his income drops below $300,000 a year.

Evonne Severinsen, who married the band director and trumpet player in 1973 when the Tonight Show moved from New York to California. She remained on the Harmony Ranch with five children, all from previous marriages.

Having raised all his children he apparently determined to put me out to pasture," Mrs. Severinsen said in an affidavit. She had also alleged Severinsen was earning $500,000 a year and living in North Hollywood, Calif., with another woman.

The divorce agreement was reached Wednesday in Sussex County Court.

Sudan, US relations begin to ease

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — President Jaafar el-Numairi said Saturday he will discuss with President Ford and other U.S. officials this week a number of African and Middle East problems, among them Lebanon and Ethiopia.

An estrangement in relations between the United States and Sudan. The estrangement began in March 1973 with the slaying of two American envoys by eight Palestinian guerrillas who burst in on a diplomatic party in Khartoum. A Sudanese court sentenced them to life imprisonment, but for religious and other reasons Numairi commuted the sentence and turned the prisoners over to the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

Their whereabouts never were officially disclosed. Numairi spoke in an interview Saturday with The Associated Press of his impending two-week U.S. trip after visiting Ethiopia where he attempted to mediate a fight by Eritrean rebels for independence. "I'd like a dialogue to start and the war to stop but it is up to the Eritreans to try to convince the Ethiopians they should be independent or the Ethiopians to convince the Eritreans they should accept an offer of autonomy, but at least let's start talking," he said.

Numairi played a major role in securing the release over the past year of nine Americans kidnaped by Eritrean rebels. The last one was freed Thursday. According to sources here Numairi, leader of the largest country in Africa and the Middle East, will be seeking development aid and investment from the United States to help turn Sudan, which is about 3 1/2 times the size of Texas, into a food basket for oil-rich Arabs.

Some sources said he also would ask for U.S. military aid for his armed forces, equipped until a few years ago by the Soviet Union. Asked about this in the interview, Numairi said: "We already have some assistance from the United States because we send our officers to your training schools. Up to now we haven't thought about weapons assistance because what we have now is enough for our needs, but in the future maybe we can arrange something."

Q. Don't you have the same problem the Egyptians do regarding spare parts from the Soviet Union?
A. We use to but we have solved part of it. We don't have all the equipment the Egyptians do but we have been changing our Russian armored cars for West German ones. Numairi will confer Thursday with President Ford, meet with Senate and House committees specializing in foreign affairs and discuss Sudan's agricultural potential with American business leaders. The trip, described by officials here as a working visit as opposed to a state visit, also will take Numairi to Arizona, Kansas, Nebraska, New York, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas and Wisconsin.

Numairi refrained in the interview from criticizing Syria's intervention in Lebanon, but he expressed opposition to the use of French troops as a peace-keeping force, as proposed by President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France.

"Religion is a radiant light and an impregnable stronghold."

Drug force, Dallas police battle over informant

DALLAS (AP) — A Drug Enforcement Administration official says an informant who claims court testimony endangered his life actually betrayed and jeopardized the lives of federal agents for whom he was working. The statement by DEA supervisor Jim Crenshaw was included in a letter he sent Friday to Sen. John Tower, R-Tex. It was the latest development in an apparent struggle between the agency and police officials in the Dallas area. The rift became public last week when Rep. Dale Milford, D-Tex., taking the side of police officials, announced he was calling for an investigation of the federal agency's Dallas operations. Highland Park Police Chief Henry Gardner had called on Milford accusing the DEA of shortcomings and pointing out the case of informant Clay Simmons, a pilot who allegedly provided information that led to the arrest of members of a marijuana smuggling ring.

Simmons claimed his life was endangered when he was forced to testify in public and his name was revealed. Crenshaw, however, said in his letter that Simmons tipped the smugglers, that they were under federal surveillance and warned them "to arm themselves with fully automatic weapons" at the clandestine landing strip shortly before the arrival of federal agents. Crenshaw added that the information on Simmons' actions came from statements made by two ring members who pleaded guilty to the drug charges.

The federal official said also that "on numerous occasions," Simmons lied to special agents. Crenshaw said he sent the letter because he feared that the investigation into the Simmons matter might damage the federal agency. He stated that "lies by such persons as Mr. Simmons" have been the sources of attacks on the DEA and in Congress.

Tax assessor continues to give vet exemptions

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Tax Assessor-Collector Carl S. Smith, in a break with City of Houston's position, says he will continue to give exemptions to disabled veterans on the assessed value of their property. "I was taught that a law was considered constitutional until held otherwise," Smith said. Smith said several thousand disabled veterans have received exemptions on their county taxes, but he had no ready figures on how much those exemptions have cost the county. Earlier this week, the City of Houston said it would not allow the tax exemption, claiming the new state law under which the exemptions were claimed was unconstitutional. The exemption legislation was passed by the last legislative session. In a related action, a Veterans of Foreign War (VFW) official criticized the City of Houston's exemption denial as an injustice, saying he knew of no other city that has taken such a stance. Andrew Suchina, District 4 VFW commander, said if the law granting the exemption is unconstitutional, then it should be corrected by the next session of the legislature. About 1,500 veterans who applied for the exemption from the city received letters last week from city Tax assessor-Collector Gary Webb advising them they could not receive the exemption.

break up a ring bringing marijuana from Mexico to the United States. Sources said that at one time it was planned to have a DEA pilot go with Simmons to avoid having him testify later, but Simmons told the agents he could not take the undercover agent along. When the arrests were made, officials said, Simmons was allowed to escape as part of his protection. Three persons were taken into custody. Simmons later was told he would have to testify and he agreed to it, DEA officials said. Milford said last week a preliminary investigation by his staff "shows distinct lack of cooperation and coordination on the part of this agency (DEA) in dealing with local law enforcement people. Failing to maintain that cooperation means they've failed in their job."

Jack Slater, regional director of the DEA, called the charges "ludicrous," and added, "we would welcome any investigation because we stand on our record."

Contradicts testimony

HOUSTON (AP) — Donald B. Yarbrough has contradicted virtually all testimony by previous witnesses who claimed he defrauded two Houston businessmen of $117,500 in connection with a 1974 bank purchase plan. Yarbrough, unopposed candidate for the state Supreme Court, is a defendant in 16 civil suits. He also denied he financed the down payment for his purchase of the Commercial Bank of Victoria with a $200,000 loan he got indirectly from the same bank. Yarbrough's testimony came before a seven-man, five-woman jury in the court of State Dist. Judge William N. Blanton Jr. Plaintiffs Grant Cook and Douglas Ford have accused Yarbrough of involving them in an alleged scheme to use their money for Yarbrough's benefit. Cooper and Ford contend they gave Yarbrough $117,500 to buy control shares of the Fairfield Bank but have nothing to show for it. They claim Yarbrough proposed a plan whereby he would use their money to buy gold coins, put the coins up as collateral for a loan and use the loan money to buy the bank. Yarbrough denied the alleged proposal and said in his testimony that he did not purchase the Commercial Bank of Victoria with the money in question and said Cooper and Ford were aware he bought that bank and proposed to him that he sell them shares. Testimony in the trial continues Monday.

1,163 killed in traffic
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Traffic accidents have killed 1,163 persons in Texas this year, down 9 per cent from a year ago, the Department of Public Safety said Saturday. The deaths occurred in 1,009 fatal accidents, an 8 per cent drop from the comparable period of 1975.

Texas supports stamp changes

DALLAS (AP) — The State of Texas has filed an affidavit supporting 27 other states which are trying to stop changes in regulations for the national food program. Texas is not a plaintiff in the suit. Fred Biel, an attorney for the state's Department of Public Welfare, said, but it filed the affidavit indicating the impact the new regulations would have on the state. Biel said this week that as many as 10,000 families (35,000 persons) who are on food stamps, but not on welfare, would be deleted from the rolls throughout the state under the new regulations.

Additionally, about 120,000 families would have their stamp subsidies cut making participation more costly. The cutbacks were to go into effect June 1, but a temporary restraining order granted by U.S. District Judge Howard F. Corcoran in Washington delayed the reforms until June 15. The suit was brought by 73 food stamp families, 53 unions, 22 religious groups and 27 states, the U.S. Conference of Mayors and several civil rights groups. Named as defendants were Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz and other administration officials. The reforms were to have cut

1.7 million families and $5.7 billion out of the stamp program. Under the program, many of those on fixed incomes would benefit by paying less for stamps because of a new standard deduction for persons over 65. John Igo, director of the program in the Dallas area, said he favored the standard deduction and the lower gross income eligibility criteria "which limit the program to the real poverty level."

Pampa students attend convention

Two student leaders from Pampa High School have been selected to attend a national conference and convention in Portland, Ore., this summer. Don Hughes, president of the student body, and Matt Hudson, vice president, will go to the 40th Annual National Conference of the National Association of Student Councils and Student Activity Advisers June 20-24. Delegates to the conference represent every state and United States territory and several foreign countries. The two PHS seniors will participate in sessions on educational, leadership and social issues revolving around the conference theme, Students with a Purpose. The student activity associations are sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, a 35,000-member professional association of school administrators. Hughes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hughes, 1207 Christine. Hudson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Ray Hudson, 940 S. Hobart.

4-Hers win at Roundup

A two-member team of Gray County 4-Hers took second place in the cooperative demonstration competition during the 1976 4-H Roundup Tuesday and Wednesday in College Station. The pair, Chris Skaggs and Hank Jordan, were coached by Layton Barton, assistant Gray County agriculture agent, and Bob Skaggs, vocational agriculture teacher at Pampa High School. Thirty-four contests were conducted during the two-day gathering of 4-Hers and adult advisors from across the state. Five 4-H members from Gray County attended the convention to compete in state contests. Others from Gray county were Diane VanZandt, clothing education activity; Elaine Webb, home environment educational activity; and Frank Morrison, horse demonstration. They were accompanied to College Station by Marilyn Shirley and Barton, assistant Gray County extension agents.

Bentsen attacks terrorists

Texas Senator Lloyd Bentsen Thursday introduced bills to make acts of terrorism a federal crime, with a mandatory death penalty when someone is killed, and to withhold foreign aid from countries that harbor terrorists. Under one of the two bills introduced by Bentsen, crimes of terrorist organizations — such as kidnaping, sabotage, destruction of federal property — would be punishable by the normal sentence for the offense in question plus an additional two- to ten-year sentence. Two years additional would be the minimum with no possibility of probation or parole. If the terrorist act results in someone's death, the offense would carry a mandatory death sentence. Under the Bentsen anti-terrorism bill the President is required to suspend foreign aid, loans and trade preferences to any country which wilfully aids and abets international terrorism. "No form of lawlessness is more senseless or vicious than an act of violent terrorism," Bentsen said in Senate remarks. "The time has come for laws that state clearly and decisively that violent crimes to further a political viewpoint will not be tolerated."
