

Stop Carter efforts continue today

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer
Rhode Island, South Dakota and Montana took their turns today in the 1976 presidential primary sweepstakes with the spotlight on the continuing effort to keep Jimmy Carter from the Democratic nomination.

light in Rhode Island and South Dakota election officials said. Polls opened later in Montana. The Republican race between President Ford and Ronald Reagan also continued in the three states, where the primaries provide a warmup for the big ones next week in California, Ohio and New Jersey. There were 56 Democratic delegates and 59 on the Republican side at stake today, compared to 540 and 320 next week. Ford and Reagan in particular toned down their campaigns over the Memorial Day weekend in preparation for a bigger effort for next week. But Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona all made substantial efforts to halt Carter, who went into today's contests with 883 of the 1,506 delegates needed for nomination. Udall, who is second, had 301 1/2.

Church and Brown concentrated on Rhode Island, which had 22 Democratic delegates at stake, although Brown could count only on write-in votes in the popular vote contest and uncommitted states in the separate delegate selection. Udall campaigned in South Dakota, which has 17 votes at the Democratic National Convention.

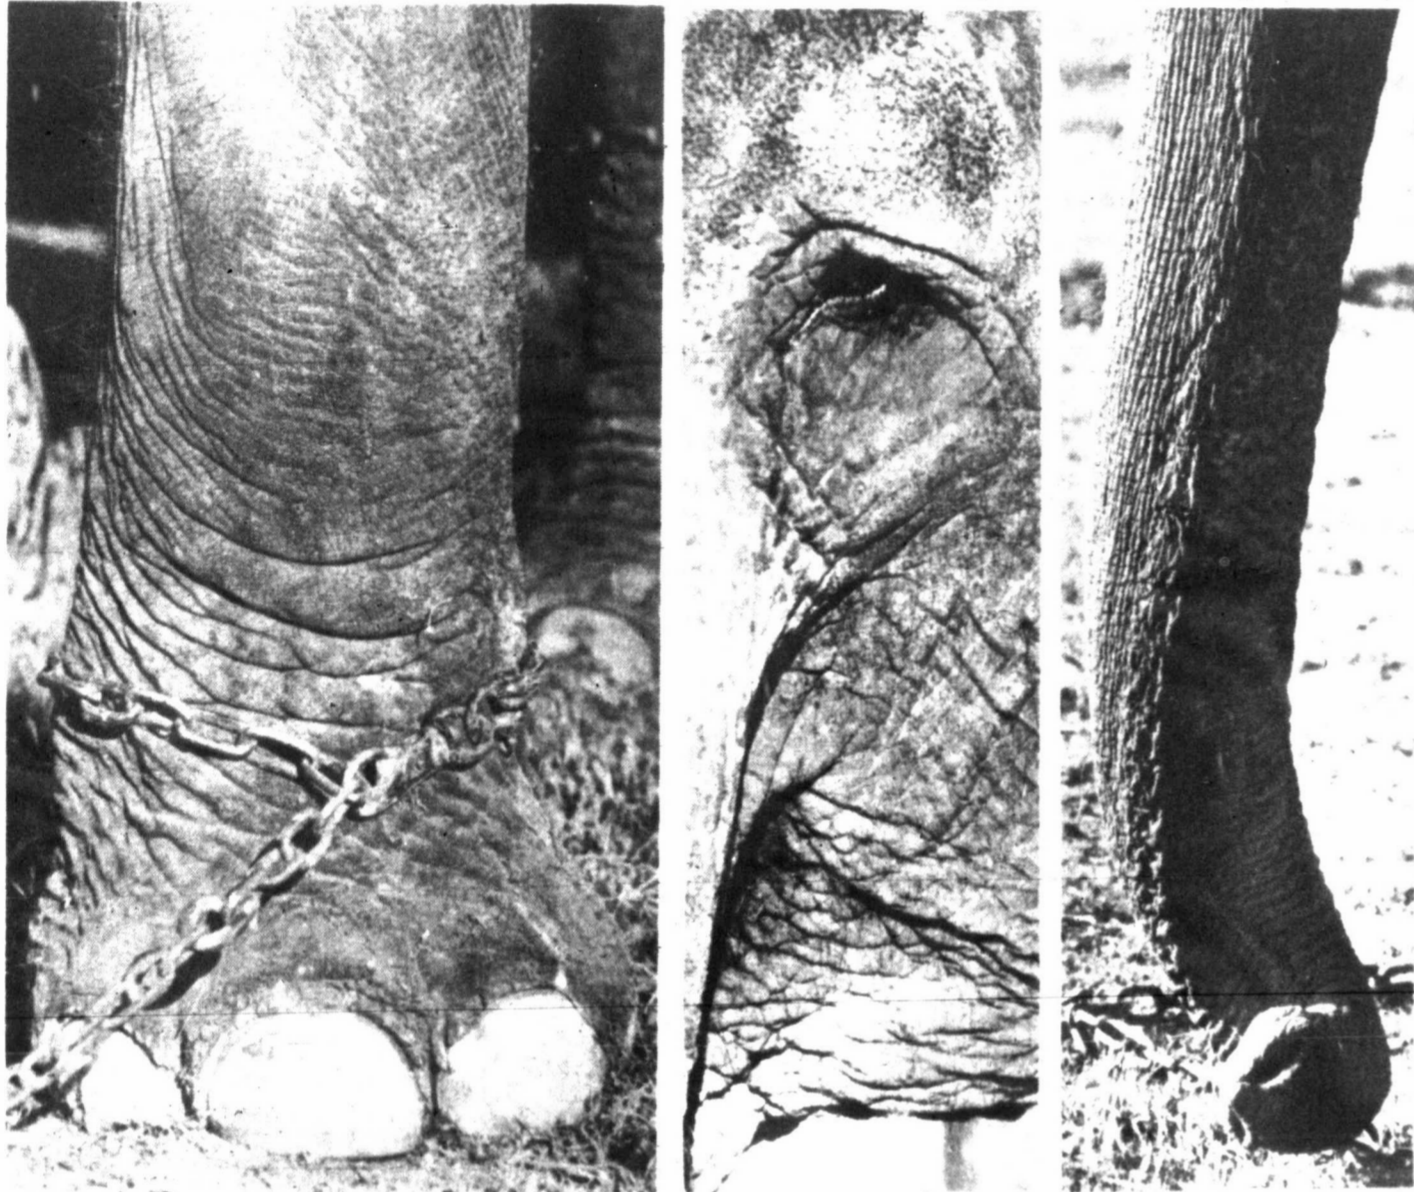

Church said he hoped to win in Rhode Island and added, "I feel a surge coming my way and I know I'm gaining strength." He said Carter's trip into the state was indicative of that.

Udall said much the same thing about the timing of the South Dakota primary, where he hoped to score his first clear-cut victory in a year that has seen him finish second seven times, most often to Carter. Udall was endorsed by both South Dakota senators, George McGovern and James Abourezk, and said, "If I win in South Dakota I'll have the momentum to win in Ohio, and if I win there, we'll have an open Democratic convention." Church, meanwhile, was expected to do well in Montana, next door to his home state of Idaho, where he won last week with over 80 per cent of the vote.

The Republicans award delegates according to a formula that rewards states that have voted for the party in the past, and smaller and more rural states often get bonuses from it. South Dakota and Montana have 20 delegates each and Rhode Island 19.

Neither Ford nor Reagan campaigned in any of the three. Reagan concentrating on his home state of California and Ford remaining in Washington after a trip to the West Coast last week.

What is an elephant?

There is a story about three blind men who felt an elephant and described him in three different ways: One felt a leg and said "an elephant is like the trunk of a tree." The second, feeling the side of the creature said, "not at all, an elephant is like a wall." The third, feeling the trunk, said, "You've both made a mistake; an elephant is some kind of snake." There are four elephants in the Jaycee - sponsored circus now in town. Performances at the rodeo grounds were set for 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. today.

Pachyderms pack 'em in

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

There are many different acts in the circus that the Pampa Jaycees have brought to town, but when it comes to attracting big audiences, nothing packs them in like the pachyderms. And there are four of the elephants out at the rodeo grounds who are scheduled to perform in 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. shows today.

An unshaven fellow that looked to be in his 40s and looked like he'd just finished a none-too-restful night, supplied some information about the elephants.

He said the four range in age from 20 to 33 years and could live to be 100.

He said he's worked with elephants "off and on" for 15 years, maybe.

He scratched the back of his thigh and said that elephants have a personality "mostly like a horse, but they can be temperamental."

There are several reasons why a temperamental elephant is tolerated.

"The big one'd weigh close to four ton," the elephant man said.

And they represent a pretty sizeable dollar investment.

Pointing to one of the big creatures chained to the wheel of the truck they travel in, the trainer said, "When he was about 2 years old they paid about four grand for him. Now he's fully grown, he's worth way on up there. A good full-grown, trained elephant will bring about $20,000 or more."

He bent his head down to scratch through the back of his uncombed hair and spotted a nickel on the ground. He picked it up.

He said that breaking an elephant to ride is not easy.

"You'd better believe they can shake you off," he said. "I broke that little one to ride and I'll tell you they can sure shake you off."

The elephant man said his wards will eat two bales of hay a day and in cold weather he feeds the four of them 100 pounds of grain every other day.

"It generates body heat," he explained. "It takes a lot of water to wash down two bales of hay."

"On a good hot day," the trainer said, "I expect they'd drink close to 50 gallons a day."

In the winter, when they aren't performing in circuses, the elephants quarter in Florida, the man said. They aren't kept tethered with chains all the time then, but are turned out to pasture.

"A fence won't really hold them," the man said. "You have to be with them. Then, if I see one of them pushing against a fence I can yell at him and stop him before he goes through it."

In the past 15 years, "off and on," he has taught elephants a lot. And he evidently has learned a lot from them.

The elephants, all four, wore a layer of Panhandle dirt they'd tossed on their broad backs with their trunks.

"Keeps the bugs off," the man said, "relieving his arm of an itch probably not caused by a bug bite."

City labors to avoid tax increase this year

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

What's in the offing for Pampa city taxpayers in fiscal 1976-77?

That question loomed today as City Manager Mack Wofford worked on a schedule to distribute forms for operating budget needs and setting up meetings - with department heads to discuss cost figures.

We expect to have the budget schedule completed by the end of this week or the first of next," Wofford said.

The city manager said all department heads will be handed the forms and given a summary of budget expenses for the current fiscal year. This, he stated, will give them an idea on which to base budget needs for the year ahead.

When the budget forms are submitted to him, Wofford stated, a schedule will be set up for meetings with each department head to discuss and review requests.

Pampa's operating budget for the current year is $3,031,954. That does not include debt services of $385,000 in general obligation bonds and $136,000 water and sewer revenue bonds.

The current operating budget figures does include $136,000 in Canadian River Dam payments to the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

Adding debt services, the current year's budget totals rises to $3,552,000.

What will the 1976-77 budget figure reach? Will the current city tax rate of $1.95 per $100 assessed property valuation have to be hiked? Will there be a sufficient increase in property valuations to meet needed cost increases?

Answers to these questions, City Manager Wofford said, will not be known until a definite determination on next year's operating budget are available.

"We hope we can hold the line," Wofford said, "but there is no way of knowing right now."

Salaries and wages alone account for $2,728,000, or 56 per cent of this year's budget, Wofford stated, and to that can be added approximately $300,000 in fringe benefits that go to city employees. These include health insurance, social security and Texas Municipal Retirement System payments. Not included in that total are overtime and longevity pay.

Wofford stated that so far this year, the city had been able to maintain an almost even keel on budget expenditures.

"Only in a few spots have we run over budget estimates a little," he said. "That would be in the area of motor fuel costs and utilities services. However, we anticipate no big problems."

The big question, Wofford added, "is where do we get all the money needed to maintain present services and take care of cost-of-living salary increases?"

The city manager pointed out that only $1.18 cents of the city's $1.95 tax rate is available for operating expenses. The other 77 cents goes to pay off what the city already owes.

"We're striving to avoid a city tax raise," the city manager said, "but we've got an awful lot of studying and figuring ahead of us."

Watershed gets approval

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The Gray County Commissioners Court this morning signed a supplementary Relocation and Assessment agreement with several state and government agencies, clearing the way for a study crew to begin on the $5 million McClellan Creek Watershed project by July 1.

The plan signed by commissioners agrees that the county will pay 35.33 per cent of any relocation costs associated with the project.

The U.S. Conservation Service will pay 64.67 per cent.

Conservation officials, however, assured the court that they anticipated no relocations.

County Judge Don Cain said 33 per cent of nothing "is the best news the court has heard."

Billy B. Davis, who has worked closely with the McClellan Creek project, said its recent passage in Congress climaxed 20 years of work.

The estimated cost in the beginning was $3 million, but estimates today run to $5 million.

In another agreement, the commissioners entered an operation and maintenance agreement with Red Deer Creek Watershed officials.

Doug Cunningham said the work will be started as soon as possible.

"We're planning on doubling up to catch up," he said.

"I gave up on this project some three years ago," Cunningham said. "But Billy Davis said it would come through. I'll never doubt him again."

Truman Gaskin of El Paso Natural Gas Co. said that to accommodate the McClellan Creek project, some of that firm's pipes must be relocated at a cost of about $2,700 to the county.

In other business the court authorized the county judge to hire an attorney to defend him in a lawsuit in which he denied an application for a wine and beer off-premises permit on Hobart street.

The appeal is filed in 31st District Court, and Judge Cain said he would hire Ross Buzzard, a Pampa attorney, to defend him.

Buzzard said he would file an answer on behalf of the judge very soon.

The court met with Clotilde Thompson, museum curator, to discuss biennial activities.

Wanda Carter, county clerk, said absentee balloting for the Saturday election closes at 5 p.m. today, and at noon 51 absentee ballots had been cast.

The revenue sharing planned use report due June 25 was scheduled to be approved by the court today.

Judge Cain said a copy will be made available to the press following its approval.

No hope for US mercenaries

KENSINGTON, Md. (AP) —

Daniel Gearhart, a 34-year-old Vietnam veteran, left his wife, four children and a mounting stack of bills last February to fight for pro-Western forces in Angola's civil war.

After less than a week in the war, Gearhart disappeared. His whereabouts were a mystery until April 1 when the victorious Soviet-backed revolutionary government of Angola announced he had been captured.

Gearhart and another captured American mercenary,

Gary Acker of Sacramento, Calif., are scheduled to stand trial June 8 before a "people's revolutionary tribunal" in Angola.

The State Department says there is "absolutely nothing the U.S. government can do" to bail them out.

Gearhart and Acker disappeared near the Zaire border while fighting for the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA).

In Kensington, a suburb of Washington, D.C., Sheila Gearhart waited in the three-bedroom home on a pleasant tree-lined street for word of her husband's fate. The money her husband had promised to send her never arrived, so she applied for welfare.

"I had almost accepted the fact that I would never see him again," Mrs. Gearhart said. "And then April 1, I saw your husband's been captured."

The new Angolan government said 13 captured mercenaries, including two Americans, would be tried by a 30-member "international free jury" composed of Angolans and their African and Cuban supporters.

Three weeks later, the Angolans said the trial would be conducted instead by an Angolan "people's revolutionary tribunal." They identified Gearhart and Acker as two of the defendants.

Gearhart's predicament has been extremely delicate for the U.S. government, which has no diplomatic relations with the Communist-backed government in Angola.

Bombs injure soldiers

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) —

Two bombs exploded at the headquarters of U.S. Army's V Corps in downtown Frankfurt today, injuring 16 persons, an Army spokesman said.

Most of the injured were American soldiers or dependents. Twelve were hospitalized at the Army's 97th General Hospital in Frankfurt, two of them in serious condition. Four persons were released after treatment, the spokesman said.

German and American authorities took two bombing suspects in custody at the scene, he said.

The bombs went off about 1:20 p.m. One exploded on the ground floor of the huge office building in a section housing a military laundry, post office and other shops for military dependents. The other went off in a stairwell off the lobby of the separate officer's club to the rear.

Witnesses reported windows and light fixtures along the corridors of the buildings were blasted out by the bombs.

Hundreds of occupants were evacuated as authorities searched for more possible bombs.

"I was lifted well off my chair when the explosion occurred, but the windows on our wing of the building remained undamaged," a U.S. Army spokeswoman said. "In fact I noticed no damage on the outside of the building. However, I didn't dare walk right around through all the parked cars."

American Forces Network (AFN) in Frankfurt said glass littered the first floor hallway of the sprawling office building, light fixtures were smashed in the ceilings and windows were blown out by the blast.

The building was placed under reinforced security after a bombing attack four years ago but an informed source said "security has tapered off since then."

The earlier attack, on May 11, 1972, was blamed on the anarchist Baader-Meinhof gang.

An American officer was killed and 13 persons were injured.

Ulrike Meinhof, a co-leader of the gang, hanged herself in a Stuttgart jail cell on May 10.

Her death has sparked a rash of bombings and demonstrations in Germany and elsewhere in Europe. Other leaders of the gang are on trial.

Fewer forms-newer forms

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Some government agencies are reducing their public questionnaires in response to White House orders to cut such paperwork, but other agencies actually have increased the number of their forms.

Over-all, about 50 departments, independent agencies and other offices are involved in the White House campaign to reduce public paperwork 10 per cent by June 30.

Last Oct. 31, these units were regularly circulating 5,133 such forms. The goal is to reduce them to 4,637.

But a recent report by the Office of Management and Budget in the White House said that by March 31 the reports still totaled 5,012 or a reduction of only 2.7 per cent from last fall.

When Ford announced his campaign last fall to reduce the reports, he said that "American citizens are understandably exasperated by the complexity of reporting to the federal government." The President directed that agencies produce "prompt results" in reducing the volume of reports.

One reason that progress has been slow is that new reports keep cropping up. For example, the OMB analysis said that in March some 147 forms were abandoned by the federal bureaucracy. But between March 16 and April 15, 79 new ones were put in operation.

According to the OMB report, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare had the most questionnaires when the campaign began. And by March 31, HEW had increased its reports eight-tenths of 1 per cent to 966 from 958.

Other major agencies which also increased their reports during the five-month period included the Commerce Department, 574 to 577, the Justice Department, 166 to 167, and the State Department, 31 to 32.

The Department of Transportation was the only major agency that met or exceeded Ford's reduction goal by March 31, trimming its reports 11 per cent from 299 to 266, according to the review.

The Agriculture Department, which ranked second only to HEW in original volume, had cut its questionnaires about 5.1 per cent, from 794 to 754.

Some of the new government forms include a new USDA annual report to determine the progress of providing school meals to needy children in cities of 100,000 or more. The Interior Department started a new questionnaire to find out more about the use of helium, and in the Defense Department, officials started one for gathering information about scrap pa-

Canadian man faces hit, run charges

A Canadian man, involved in two hit and run accidents Monday night, is facing felony and misdemeanor charges in Roberts and Hemphill counties.

Ralph Berner of Canadian was driving a pickup which struck a car driven by Carolyn Davis of Amarillo on US 60 three miles east of Miami.

Highway Patrol Tooper Burl Pyles said the accident at 9:25 p.m. occurred when the Berner vehicle, driving left of center, forced the Davis car into the barrow ditch. Berner left the scene after hitting the Davis car.

Mrs. Davis' mother, Maurice Davis, was injured and was taken to Highland General Hospital where she was treated and released.

Berner was picked up about 30 minutes later in Canadian, after he was involved in another hit and run accident there.

His pickup hit a car driven by Hugh Purcell while the Purcell vehicle was stopped at an intersection. Berner again left the scene.

He is being held in Canadian for driving while intoxicated, driving while license suspended and a misdemeanor for failure to stop. He will be arraigned in Hemphill County sometime today.

Charges pending in Roberts County include driving while intoxicated, driving while licenses suspended and a failure charge on failure to stop and render aid.

Library sets puppet workshop

Ma. Winifred Crinklaw and Ms. Jana Davis will conduct a workshop in making and using puppets from 9 a.m. until noon Thursday in Lovett Memorial Library. There is no charge for the workshop and no preregistration is necessary. Participants are asked to bring pencil, paper and scissors. Ms. Crinklaw said that many varieties of puppets will be discussed, "all made of inexpensive materials from around the house." The two ladies learned about puppets at a recent workshop in Amarillo. They said the workshop would be of great use to "teachers, scout leaders, and anyone else who works with children."

Reach truce in cod war

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Iceland have agreed in principle on a six-month truce in their cod war over Iceland's prohibition against foreign fishermen within 200 miles of her coast. Norwegian sources report.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland was to meet in Oslo today with Iceland's Foreign Minister Einar Agustsson and Fisheries Minister Matthias Bjarnason. A spokesman for the British Foreign Office said there was "a good prospect for agreement."

The Norwegian sources said 24 British trawlers would be allowed to fish within 20 miles of the Icelandic coast in certain areas. The agreement would run until Nov. 30. Meanwhile, the two governments would negotiate for a longer-term agreement.

To improve the atmosphere for the meeting today, the British government ordered the six Royal Navy frigates and four civilian tugs that have been guarding British trawlers in the disputed waters to withdraw to just outside the 200-mile limit.

The British government also asked the 42 British trawlers in the area to stop fishing but told them to remain where they were.

British fishermen accused the government of selling them out, and left-wingers in the Icelandic parliament called for rejection of any agreement allowing any British fishing inside the 200-mile limit.

Some London papers pointed out that Britain is in a delicate position because of its own claim to the North Sea oil deposits off the east coast of Scotland.

Iceland unilaterally proclaimed the 200-mile limit last October, taking in waters where British trawlers have fished for generations. Iceland said the ban on foreign fishermen was necessary to preserve fish stocks vital for the island republic's economic survival.

Britain refused to recognize the new limit. Iceland broke off diplomatic relations in February after the British sent frigates to protect the trawlers from Icelandic gunboats cutting their nets.

Iceland also threatened to close the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's base at Keflavik.

MUSEUM GIFTS BOSTON (UPI) — Bicentennial gifts and souvenirs have been introduced at the Museum Shop of Boston's Museum of Fine Arts and in the museum's mail order catalog.

They include pewter blazer buttons modeled after a medalion of George Washington's head that was used originally on a shoe buckle attributed to silversmith Paul Revere.

The spring catalog is available for 50 cents from the Museum Shop, P.O. Box 367, Back Bay Station, Boston, Mass. 02117.

Until then, Iceland refused to talk while the frigates remained in the area, and the British refused to withdraw them until they got a guarantee the gunboats would not harass the trawlers.

Martha Mitchell died alone

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Martha Mitchell, who died alone and in debt in a New York hospital, will be buried Thursday in this Arkansas River town where she spent her youth as a Southern belle with never enough dances for the boys.

"When I was young you measured a girl's popularity by the number of times boys cut in for the next turn to dance with her," said James W. Leslie of Pine Bluff, a retired writer and historian who knew Mrs. Mitchell in her youth. "She was no wallflower, if you know what I mean."

But Mrs. Mitchell, the estranged wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, was alone except for her doctor when she died Monday of a rare form of bone cancer. Mitchell, their daughter and Mrs. Mitchell's son by a previous marriage, have told the mortuary they will attend the funeral. They are expected to arrive Wednesday.

The Mitchells were separated in 1973, and earlier this year Mrs. Mitchell went into court to force her husband to pay $36,000 in alimony.

"She loved the limelight," said her long-time friend and confidant, S. Ray West Jr. of Pine Bluff. Mrs. Mitchell, who was at the center of some of Washington's most turbulent incidents in recent years, was born Martha Elizabeth Beall and began her trek to the nation's capital from this southeast Arkansas community where she was born just over 57 years ago.

"She was a Southern belle and was raised with all the protection and benefits a well-to-do family can offer," West said in an interview.

Her family's wealth stemmed from her grandfather's success in the wholesale grocery business. Her father was a successful cotton broker and her mother a speech teacher.

Chicano leaders points to 'plague'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Leaders of the Chicano movement say racial discrimination and unfair treatment from educational, political and police institutions continue to plague the Mexican-American minority.

The National Chicano Forum in Salt Lake passed resolutions calling for less restrictions on immigration from Mexico, a better role for Chicano women and a national guild of Chicano artists, and supporting the United Farm Workers of America.

Three days of weekend workshops were closed to the public and news media.

Abelardo Delgado, conference co-chairman, said this was so discussion could be more open and because Chicanos do not trust the news media to report fairly on their activities. At a news conference after the final sessions, Delgado said Sunday the main accomplishment of the meetings was to bring Chicanos of different viewpoints together in a "call for unity."

He acknowledged some groups boycotted the forum, thinking it would be too radical. Raul Ruiz of Los Angeles, editor of LaRaza Magazine, said conference members were displeased with their reception in Salt Lake City.

He said some were called "foreigners" and asked to identify themselves at the Mormon church's Temple Square.

He said an incident one week earlier in which police arrested 16 Mexican-Americans following a dance led to rumors the conference would be raided.

Sex—immoral or illegal?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators are trying to draw a fine line between immorality and illegality in connection with allegations by Elizabeth Ray that other congressmen besides Wayne Hays were involved in sexual relations with House employees, a source close to the investigation says. "We have to weed out the personal and moral improprieties from those which involve violations of the law," the source said Monday, emphasizing: "We don't care who's sleeping with whom." Requiring an employee to provide sex as part of her job could violate a law against misuse of federal funds.

"She (Miss Ray) has named other congressmen" involved in sexual activities with female House employees, the source said Monday, "but the question remains: Did the taxpayer foot the bill?"

With Congress returning today, there was expected to be new pressure on Hays to resign as chairman of the House Administration Committee and the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill has said he will tell Hays that some members of Congress think his problems may have a direct impact on their efforts to win re-election.

Federal agencies fail to prohibit discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a legal mandate to wipe out discrimination in home loans, three of the four federal agencies that regulate mortgage lenders have never even issued antidiscrimination regulations, the Senate Banking Committee says.

Only the Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates savings and loan associations, has issued antidiscrimination rules, it said.

The board includes "a civil rights compliance review in its examinations, but even that review is largely a checklist that accepts the institution's own assessment of its performance," the panel said.

The four agencies regulate lending institutions that hold $125 billion worth of mortgages on homes built for one to four families.

Proxmire said that at the committee's urging, the agencies recently formed a joint task force with the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Justice Department to develop enforcement policy.

Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., called the agencies' record "a disgrace" and charged them with "eight years of outrageous inaction" since Congress passed the Fair Housing Act in 1968.

At hearings in March, the bank-regulatory agencies argued the 1968 act "did not require them to take affirmative action," the report said.

Proxmire charged, "As a consequence of the agencies' general nonenforcement policy, serious patterns of mortgage loan discrimination still exist. Surveys have shown that minority loan applicants with the same creditworthiness as other applicants are routinely rejected at much higher rates."

"The institutional integrity of the Congress is at stake," said Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W.Va. "The presumption of innocence.

And "despite evidence that discrimination is widespread," none of them has ever found a single institution guilty of discrimination, the panel reported Monday.

The Federal Reserve Board and the FDIC have a more limited similar review. The Comptroller of the Currency does nothing more than check to see whether the "Equal Lender" poster is displayed.

Police involved in 30-block chase

Pampa police chased a traffic violation suspect through northeast Pampa Monday night and stopped an attempted burglary at the Horace Mann Elementary School. Other police investigations included two burglaries, a theft, a report of criminal trespass, a dog bite and harassing telephone calls.

according to Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills. The car sustained $400 damage. The chase continued and police finally stopped the car in the 400 block of Perry. Police arrested the driver, Jimmy Doyle Salyer, 27, of Pampa and charged him with driving while intoxicated, evading and fleeing a police officer and several traffic violations.

of 312 N. Wells and Jo Beth Elliot, 19; Roy Thomas Haynes, 17; and David Charles Dirckson, 19, all of Pampa, reportedly told officers they were there to break in to the school. Entry was not gained.

garage door opener was reported by Hans R. Hanson of 1729 N. Chestnut. The device was taken from his car. Kathleen Lee Towles of 432 N. Ballard reported that a man had come to her house intoxicated and had kicked the door in. He tore screens from two windows and broke glass out. He reportedly was armed.

Officer Mark Rigler noticed a car swerving from lane to lane in the 1900 block of Alcock at 11:30 p.m. He attempted to stop the car and the driver fled the scene.

Two passengers in the car were also reportedly intoxicated and were taken to the police station. They were later released.

Floy Sutton Downer of 430 Carr told police an old chest, a boys bicycle and a red wagon were missing from a garage at 513 Davis.

Roy Wann Cook of 325 N. Sumner told officers someone has been making false alarms to police and ambulance services and using his address.

During the chase which covered over 30 city blocks, the suspect's car made a broadside turn and hit the police car. The police car was new and had just been in service since Friday.

Tower points to danger of 'immoral' government

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., has told the North Texas annual conference of the United Methodist Church that excessive, impotent and immoral government endangers the nation's future.

He said the church conference Monday night. "In a brief speech, Tower said the people also 'feel' intruded upon by a government that comes into their private lives, that increasingly prescribes their liberty."

He added that another concern of Americans is their fear of possible danger from external forces. "The senator stated that the country has the power 'to defend our own people and develop a climate of self-realization for their freedom loving people... power is not immoral, the question of morality comes when we use it."

Law consolidation bill dead for this session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill S.1, the massive attempt to overhaul and codify federal criminal law, is dead for this session of Congress because of a deadlock between liberals and conservatives over key issues.

They have had no response to indicate any agreement can be reached. McClellan and Hruska have not abandoned all hope for Senate passage of the bill this year, but they see no chance for House action before the adjournment of Congress.

ment secrecy, the death penalty, wiretapping and obscenity may have to be handled on a piece-meal basis.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield was joined by Scott on Feb. 9 in a memo to Judiciary Committee members urging a compromise.

This is the conclusion of the bill's chief sponsors, Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., and others closely involved in the long struggle over the measure.

Senate passage would enhance the possibility of final action in the next Congress, but there also is growing doubt that it is feasible to pass a bill of this magnitude.

The 799-page bill was approved last fall by the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on criminal laws chaired by McClellan. Hruska is the committee's ranking minority member. It has been stalled in

In response to this leadership appeal, a trio of committee liberals — Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and James Abourezk, D-S.D. — submitted a list of what they called essential changes in the bill.

Tornadoes ransack state

By Associated Press
Renewed rampages by vicious tornadoes and thunderstorms inflicted heavy property damage at two widely separated points in Texas today.

Four persons were taken to Starr County Memorial Hospital with injuries from the Rio Grande City storm. One was kept for observation and the others were treated and dismissed.

12 miles north of Nacogdoches in East Texas, while a fierce thunderstorm blocked streets in that city with downed power lines and trees. No injuries were reported. Water filled some county roads.

No damage was reported in the Houston area or from two other funnel clouds which authorities said touched ground, during the night — 10 miles northwest of Stephenville in West Central Texas and the same distance and direction from Johnson City near the middle of the state.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am going into the hospital for four or five days to have silicone breast implants. A good friend of mine who is also my neighbor has offered to look after my two children during the day in her home.

My problem is another neighbor who is in and out of my house several times a day. She is quite a busybody, and I don't want her to know where I am and why.

I've thought of telling her I'm going to visit my mother who lives out of the state, but then she's wonder why I wouldn't be taking my pre-schooler. I could also tell her I'm going to the hospital for a D and C.

Or I could just leave and not tell her anything, but she would see my husband taking my kids to my neighbor's house and back, and she'd be sure to ask him where I was.

The neighbor who is caring for my children knows the facts and can be trusted not to say anything, but I don't want Mrs. Busybody to know. What should I tell her?

WANTS PRIVACY

DEAR WANTS: Tell her you're going to the hospital for minor surgery. Period. (P.S. And if she presses for more information, tell her it's a personal matter.)

DEAR ABBY: In response to DISGUSTED IN CHICAGO, who complained about the service in a restaurant: Not Walking toward the door without paying will not do it.

Last year, my husband and I waited one-half hour for the bill in a fashionable Palm Springs restaurant. In desperation, my husband finally went to get the waitress himself. She said she'd be "right over."

We waited for another 15 minutes, and he again went looking for her and saw her through the kitchen window talking to the help. Finally, after waiting for another 15 minutes, we got up and stood by the exit door for five minutes. Everyone was looking at us and knew what we had in mind, but when the waitress still didn't come, we walked out without paying our bill for $26.

It was not even a busy evening. I hope she had to pay for our bill. What would you have done?

MADELEINE

DEAR MADELEINE: I'd have located the manager, paid my bill (sans tip) and told him why he shouldn't expect to see us again.

DEAR ABBY: A quote from your column, "Violence begets violence," calls to mind the words of the late Martin Luther King Jr. (from his book, "Stride Toward Freedom"): "To retaliate in kind would do nothing but intensify the existence of hate in the universe. Along the way of life, someone must have sense enough and morality enough to cut off the chain of hate."

Thanks for trying, Abby.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — This letter is from someone who needs help. I have a couple of problems that you can help me solve. To start with, about two years ago I started weight training and jogging. But now my legs are smaller than they should be and my chest is bigger. It just seems like whatever I do my waist on down does not grow.

On the other hand my chest and stomach have gotten fat. My stomach has a lot of fat hanging around the side. What can I do to get my legs bigger and my stomach and chest smaller?

DEAR READER — While you deserve an E for effort the problem is that you also need some knowledge about how to shape your body. The type of exercises a person does should be designed to help meet specific goals. You are a good case in point.

Jogging is wonderful exercise, when done properly. It helps develop the capacity of the heart and lungs. It also helps you burn off calories to prevent obesity. It does not help you develop large leg muscles. It is an endurance exercise. The muscles will develop to a size needed to support your body weight while jogging and no more.

Weight lifting or any strength exercises, including calisthenics load the muscles and the muscles will enlarge enough to be strong enough to lift your body, or physical weight. These are strength exercises used to increase the size of the muscles.

There is a right and wrong way to do strength exercises to help your muscles grow. For more details on this I am sending you The Health Letter number 54, Weight Training For Energy and Weight Control. Others who want this information can send in 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. You do need to do enormous numbers of weight lifts or calisthenics to gradually develop muscles.

Women can profit from such exercises too. A woman is less inclined to develop big bulging muscles because she is born with fewer muscle fibers. The strength exercises cause the individual fibers in the muscles to enlarge. Since men are born with more fibers they develop large strong muscles easier than women. The muscle mass you develop helps to prevent the obesity problem you are complaining about.

You may need to go to an exercise facility to use equipment to work your leg muscles. Half-knee bends (full knee-bends may strain the knee) may help you develop the thigh muscles. Raising up on your toes, one foot at a time, may help develop the calf muscles. Machines that help load the leg muscles will help you develop larger stronger leg muscles. Many professional athletes use such training methods.

You have fat over the upper part of your body because you are consuming more calories than you use. Most people do not need to add large amounts of protein supplements to their diet or consume half and half cream to build strong muscles. These measures lead to developing fat inside the muscle and if you want to get your body ready for the fat stock show they are all right. But if you want to develop a healthy, strong body relatively free of fat you want to avoid these gimmicks.

For years, frankfurter manufacturers have been turning out five-inch hot dogs. Bakers, meanwhile, have been turning out six-inch rolls. No one is sure why. Swift & Co. has decided to change all that. It's producing a premium-priced, seven-inch hot dog. Now the meat can stick out from the roll. "The first mouthful and the last mouthful is going to be meat," said a spokesman, explaining that children seem to like it that way.

There will be eight of the seven-inch hot dogs in a one-pound package — another move to match the bakers who usually put eight rolls in their packages while the meat processors have been marketing 10 frankos to the pound.

A pound of long hot dogs, displayed at a recent convention of the Super Market Institute in Dallas, will cost about 10 cents more than a pound of short hot dogs. That's because of improved packaging and a "different formulation," said a Swift spokesman.

The content of both varieties will be basically the same — beef and pork — but the longer hot dog will have a "mild flavor" more popular with children, said the Swift spokesman. Some people, of course, prefer their hot dogs on regular bread and there's another new product just for them. It's a kitchen utensil that slices a hot dog so it curls into a circle during cooking. You can put the finished product on a round bun or a square slice.

Also on display at the supermarket meeting was a hot dog made from turkey meat, billed as "the leaner wiener." It will sell for less than regular frankfurters and joins chicken and fish hot dogs already on the market.

There is nothing to prevent manufacturers from making hot dogs from just about any meat they want. There are restrictions, however, on what they can call their products and different names mean very different things.

As a result of a 1971 court ruling, manufacturers cannot refer to hot dogs as "pure," "100 per cent," or "all" if there are any additives, including seasoning. Starting July 1, the standard applies to other meat and poultry products as well.

U.S. Department of Agriculture regulations require that frankfurters contain no more than 30 per cent fat, 10 per cent added water and 2 per cent corn syrup by weight.

In addition, frankfurters which contain by-products such as lips, tongue and snout, must be clearly labeled as "frankfurter with by-products or variety meat" and may not include more than 15 per cent poultry meat. Other additions such as soy protein or dried milk also must be listed on the label.

The men behind the comics

Doodling leads to funnies

By R. Terrance Roskin
(Second of Series)

If Roger Bollen believes the old saw about "laugh and the world laughs with you," he must be picking up titters all the way from Hong Kong. Roger has plenty to be happy about.

He's young, good looking and he owns a beautiful, tailor-made home-nestled in the woods at the outskirts of a sublime Cleveland suburb named Chagrin Falls. He is surrounded by playthings such as a billiards loft overhanging the living room and a piano overlooking the co-op tennis court which is a short jog from the private lake. It is at least consistent, if not a little unfair, that his wife and daughter are also lovely and charming. And, oh yes, he has three successful comic features.

That last fact should hit with the impact of having your weatherman be right three days in a row.

In the competitive world of comics, having three strips — or in Roger's case two strips and the NEA Funny Business panel — is a very rare and rewarding circumstance. In addition to Funny Business, Bollen's original cartoon feature, he also collaborates with writer Gary Peterman on Catfish and writes and draws Animal Crackers.

Q: When did cartooning enter your life?

A: I was one of those kids who couldn't leave a pencil alone. I think I was constantly doodling. But in high school I was a sleeper. A close friend of mine was considered the 'class cartoonist' which left no room for me, so I was a closet cartoonist through high school.

I did some cartooning in college. I once was given my own page in a campus magazine called The Obese Toad. It was supposed to be the campus humor magazine but it only came out once. In that one issue they ran my name in big letters — B-O-L-L-E-N — over my cartoons. But they forgot to run the captions. I could see people reading my page on the day it came out. They'd look at the drawings without the gags and say "I don't get it." It was really embarrassing.

Q: What came between college and professional cartooning?

A: I was an illustrator, worked in advertising art and design. I still enjoy doing a little advertising art now, and then. But all along, I think I knew I wanted to be a comic artist. Eventually I worked up a strip called Ripple Falls and submitted it to NEA. They, and everyone else I submitted it to, rejected it. But I got a lot of encouragement from quite a few different people.

Then one day I was called in by NEA — along with three or four other cartoonists — to take a crack at doing a business page comic. They told me they already had their title, Funny Business, and would select the best submission. I was a little ill at ease over the whole thing because I didn't know very much about business. I was afraid it would have to be a daily stock market joke. They calmed me down and told me it simply had to relate to business or a profession in some way. That's how it started out. Now it's expanded to where I can do a gag about nearly anything. The guy on the job can be an organ grinder or a balloon salesman or whatever. It's now more an entertainment strip than anything closely tied to business. I think I've done only three stock market jokes in the more than 10 years I've been doing it.

Q: In the old one-column, two-panel format and often in the new two-column Funny Business size, your cartoons have a straightman-punchline structure. Is that easier or harder than a typical humor strip?

A: At first the one-two shot was a little difficult, but now that I'm used to working that way I find it's a real clean way to deliver a gag. In a strip, there's often an element of the throwaway, a block that's really unnecessary in setting up the joke. With Funny Business you could analyze most of the cartoons this way: Here's the problem — bam! Here's the answer. The 'bam!' may be a surprise ending or an abrupt thought, something to resolve the gag.

Q: How do you get your ideas?

A: I think most cartoonists have to draw inspiration for cartoons from people around them. I find that many times people will literally do my work for me unwittingly. They might as well have a cartoon speech balloon floating over their heads. When people talk about themselves and particularly about their jobs, they tend to exaggerate. They either make things worse than they are or better, with the exaggeration providing the humor. Unfortunately, though, that only covers some gags. Most of the ideas come from just plain straining.

Q: Is the drawing easier than the writing?

A: Definitely. I'm sometimes difficult to live with when I'm thinking up gags. But when I'm drawing, the house could fall in and I wouldn't notice. I've been known to be a problem while I'm writing — complaining to my wife that she's ironing too loud. But the writing is as important as it can be difficult, it makes or breaks a comic strip or panel. Of course, the drawing has to have some style to it, but it is more the inflection for the dialog.

Q: What are your feelings about being a comic artist?

A: I feel both proud and privileged to be a comic artist. With all the stark realities around today, too many people feel as though they have no voice, no chance to state their opinion.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

I wanted to switch the wardrobe in my husband's closet from winter to summer last week, but he was wearing it.

To look in his closet you'd think he had a change for all seasons. But as the kids said one day, "You are now landing in Daddy's closet. Please turn your watches back 20 years."

As I picked my way through the rack of clothes I had to admit it was like a Bicentennial salute to the history of men's clothes. He had a necktie that dated back to the Hoover administration.

There was one suit that had come in style, gone out again, and was coming in again.

Then I did a thing I had not done in our entire married life. I cleaned out his closet.

Out went the Hans Brinker pants that remained standing when he sat down.

Out went the gold coat sweater that he held together by hooking a moth hole over the button. Out went the ankle-length winter coat that made him look like a rabbit out of "Fiddler on the Roof."

Out went the belt that fit him when he and his waist were both 28.

Out went the X-rated bathing suit that used to be if PG.

Out went the sports coat with the Ruptured Duck Discharge pin still on the lapel.

Out went the loafers with the original pennies on them.

Out went the sweatshirt that read, "KILROY WAS HERE!"

Out went the seersucker bathrobe with a copy of Boy's Life in the pocket.

Out went the wading boots with the hole in the toe.

I knew he had discovered my "surprise" when he raged into the kitchen shouting, "What happened to all my clothes? There's nothing in my closet except two shirts, a card table, and a carton of cancelled checks. What did you do with them?"

"They are in a big truck on their way to the Salvation Army."

"Well that's just great. I don't go on your side of the closet and clean house. From here on in — STAY OUT OF MY CLOTHES!"

Such a big deal over nothing. Today, the truck brought his clothes back. I figured they would.

New twist in hot dogs tries to lure consumer

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Manufacturers trying to tempt consumers with new foods and fads have come up with some unusual twists on familiar favorites.

Take the hot dog, for example. According to the American Meat Institute, manufacturers produced 1.6 billion pounds of federally inspected frankos and wieners in 1975. On a per capita basis, assuming 10 hot dogs to the pound, that works out to 76 frankos and wieners for every man, woman and child in the country.

For years, frankfurter manufacturers have been turning out five-inch hot dogs. Bakers, meanwhile, have been turning out six-inch rolls. No one is sure why.

Swift & Co. has decided to change all that. It's producing a premium-priced, seven-inch hot dog. Now the meat can stick out from the roll. "The first mouthful and the last mouthful is going to be meat," said a spokesman, explaining that children seem to like it that way.

There will be eight of the seven-inch hot dogs in a one-pound package — another move to match the bakers who usually put eight rolls in their packages while the meat processors have been marketing 10 frankos to the pound.

A pound of long hot dogs, displayed at a recent convention of the Super Market Institute in Dallas, will cost about 10 cents more than a pound of short hot dogs. That's because of improved packaging and a "different formulation," said a Swift spokesman.

The content of both varieties will be basically the same — beef and pork — but the longer hot dog will have a "mild flavor" more popular with children, said the Swift spokesman.

Some people, of course, prefer their hot dogs on regular bread and there's another new product just for them. It's a kitchen utensil that slices a hot dog so it curls into a circle during cooking. You can put the finished product on a round bun or a square slice.

Also on display at the supermarket meeting was a hot dog made from turkey meat, billed as "the leaner wiener." It will sell for less than regular frankfurters and joins chicken and fish hot dogs already on the market.

There is nothing to prevent manufacturers from making hot dogs from just about any meat they want. There are restrictions, however, on what they can call their products and different names mean very different things.

As a result of a 1971 court ruling, manufacturers cannot refer to hot dogs as "pure," "100 per cent," or "all" if there are any additives, including seasoning. Starting July 1, the standard applies to other meat and poultry products as well.

U.S. Department of Agriculture regulations require that frankfurters contain no more than 30 per cent fat, 10 per cent added water and 2 per cent corn syrup by weight.

In addition, frankfurters which contain by-products such as lips, tongue and snout, must be clearly labeled as "frankfurter with by-products or variety meat" and may not include more than 15 per cent poultry meat. Other additions such as soy protein or dried milk also must be listed on the label.

Weathermen changed Indy forecast

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500 race day forecast calls for partly sunny skies and temperatures in the mid 70s.

That forecast, with little variation, has been the official National Weather Service statement on race day weather since at least 1973. But at that time, it has managed to rain somehow every race day.

That was the forecast for Sunday's rain-washed, short-stever Indianapolis 500, won by Johnny Rutherford, right up until 30 minutes before the race, when most of the estimated 400,000 people were already inside Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

A.J. Foyt, unsuccessfully seeking his fourth Indy victory for the ninth consecutive year, finished second, 15 seconds behind Rutherford and 1:30 in front of Gordon Johncock.

What is becoming known as the "Chamber of Commerce Weather Forecast" was defended Monday by the weather service as a legitimate forecast gone sour for the fourth year in a row.

"We changed the forecast about 10:30 a.m. yesterday to a 60 per cent chance of rain," said a weather service spokesman, who agreed to discuss the forecast Monday only after being assured the conversation would not be tape recorded.

"It was just one of those things," he said. "There was a lot of thunderstorm activity in Missouri and Illinois when I came on duty yesterday at 7 a.m. The activity hadn't shown any westward movement at all, but about that time, an extensive batch of it started moving eastward."

"That's about when we changed the forecast," the spokesman also said he was in constant contact with officials at the speedway and warned them of the front.

"I kept telling them their first batch was gonna come in and then we would have just about two hours before the next batch of fairly heavy activity would come through," the spokesman said.

However, after the initial short shower that stopped the race after 255 miles, it was announced over the public address system that "Clear skies are on the way. We expect to be racing again shortly."

A press box bulletin from the track advised, "Rain is reported as having stopped as near as Brownsburg, 20 miles to the west. Radar shows nothing farther west, according to the weather bureau at 1:20 p.m."

That, of course, was completely different from what the weather bureau claims it said.

When the race was finally called after a second, heavier shower hit at 3:05 p.m., just after the field of cars had been ordered assembled for a restart, it was announced on the public address system, "There is heavy rain all over the area, and we have been advised there is no way to continue the race today. Therefore your 1976 Indianapolis 500 champion is Johnny Rutherford."

Following Johncock in the order of finish were Wally Dallenbach, Pancho Carter, Tom Sneva, Al Unser, Mario Andretti, Salt Walther, Bobby Unser and Lloyd Ruby.

Jim Gilmore, sponsor of Foyt's car, said he felt officials were dallying in restarting the race, perhaps waiting on another batch of bad weather they knew was coming.

"My personal opinion is that they could have started sooner. I thought it was a much longer delay than necessary. The track seemed dry and everything appeared ready to go. Our team felt an obligation to the fans, and I'd say the same thing if we had been in fifth place or 10th place," Gilmore said. "It's unfair to say we would have caught Johnny, but we would have tried our damndest."

There was widespread opinion that at least 45 minutes of racing could have been squeezed in — another 50 laps or so — before the second rainstorm hit.

Maltbie wishes 'Open was now'

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — "I wish the U.S. Open was now," said Roger Maltbie, the care-free bachelor whose golf game is at its peak.

"I've finally dazzled myself. I may have to re-evaluate. I didn't think I was this good of a player," said Maltbie of his third triumph in 16 tour months, Jack Nicklaus' inaugural $200,000 Memorial event.

"This is my 45th pro tournament and it's the first time I've beaten Nicklaus. I did it on his own course. I like that," said the 25-year-old Californian, cracking a big smile.

Maltbie says his four-hole playoff victory over 1974 U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin at Muirfield Village Sunday was no accident. He birdied the 437-yard 18th to pick up $40,000.

"I grew up on a course — the San Jose Country Club — where you have to walk single file down the fairway. It was 6,200 yards, but really tight. Straightness is the best feature of my game," said the tour's 1975 Rookie of the Year.

"I'm not ashamed of my four rounds here. I hit a pole to win. But I'm not ashamed," said Maltbie.

His four-iron approach shot struck a gallery post to the left of the 430-yard 17th, the third extra hole with Irwin. The ball shot back on the green, 20 feet away, Maltbie then matched Irwin's par four.

"It was luckier than what Hale said. It was destiny," Maltbie still faces a 36-hole sectional qualifier at Charlotte, N.C., next week before he can even think about the Open. "To say this bolstered my confidence going into it would be an understatement. I'm driving the ball so well," he said.

While Maltbie's game rates at its top, Irwin isn't so sure of his.

"I don't feel I'm playing the game the way I should. I don't have that feeling it takes," said Irwin, still less than $2,000 behind No. 1 money-winner Hubert Green.

Irwin's fourth-round comeback — he was seven shots in arrears of Maltbie before Sunday — was the biggest of 1976.

Bertie's bye-bye wave a lit obscene

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Bert Blyleven may have waved goodbye to jeering Minnesota fans Monday night. It was anything but a fond farewell.

Amid reports that he was bound for the Texas Rangers, the Twins' ace pitcher dropped a 3-2 decision to the California Angels and, as he left the mound, made a well-known obscene gesture to the crowd, which had taunted him earlier with choruses of "Bye, Bye, Bertie."

In other American League action, the Chicago White Sox won a foggy 9-4 decision over the Texas Rangers, the New York Yankees took a rousing 8-3 verdict from the Boston Red Sox, the Cleveland Indians swept a doubleheader from the Baltimore Orioles 4-1 and 4-3, the Oakland A's thumped the Kansas City Royals 10-1 and the Detroit Tigers edged the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 in 11 innings.

Blyleven's money hassle with the Twins has been well-publicized and he reportedly will be dealt to Texas as soon as the two clubs can agree on which pitcher or pitchers the Twins will acquire from the Rangers along with infielder Roy Smalley.

Blyleven, who allowed six hits and fanned nine, passed the 1,700-inning mark and also recorded his 1,400th career strikeout but failed to notch his 100th triumph. California's Frank Tanana struck out 12 and scattered seven hits in out-pitching him.

Bruce Bochte, who doubled and scored the Angels' first run on Bill Melton's single in the second inning, drove in the final run with an eighth-inning single. Andy Etchebarren tripled the other California run across in the seventh.

White Sox 9, Rangers 4
Chet Lemon's three-run, lost-in-the-fog triple and Jorge Orta's fifth home run of the season paced Chicago's victory. Lemon's bases-loaded triple with two out in the first inning was a routine pop fly which fell between shortstop Toby Harrah and left fielder Tom Grieve because of the dense fog.

Jim Spencer led Chicago's 15-hit attack with four singles while Lemon and Orta collected three hits apiece.

Yankees 8, Red Sox 3
Chris Chambliss and Oscar Gamble collected three hits apiece and Catfish Hunter struggled to his sixth victory as the Yankees padded their American League East to five games over Baltimore. The defending champion Red Sox are seven games back.

Thurman Munson drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and his seventh home while Carlos May also had two RBIs with a double and a sacrifice fly. Hunter surrendered 10 hits, including Fred Lynn's third homer.

The game drew 35,939 spectators, largest Fenway Park crowd in 20 years. Play was stopped several times as the Yankees complained about firecrackers and other debris being thrown from the center field bleachers and the umpires warned of a possible forfeit. A recent meeting between the two long-time rivals in New York included a bench-clearing brawl.

Indians 4-4, Orioles 2-3
Larvell Blanks capped a three-run seventh-inning rally with a two-run homer in the nightcap after driving in two runs with a triple in the opener. Trailing 2-0, the Indians got moving in the seventh inning of the nightcap as Charlie Spikes doubled, went to third on a single by Alan Ashby and scored on Duane Kuiper's fore-throw. Blanks followed with his second home run of the year.

Besides Blanks' two-run triple in the opener, Rick Manning hit a solo homer.

A's 10, Royals 1
Designated hitter Billy Williams drove in five runs, three with a first-inning homer, while Mike Torrez went the distance, scattering eight hits and allowing only one unearned run. Loser Paul Spittorff walked three batters in the first inning. Bert Campaneris was caught stealing but the other two were aboard when Williams connected for his sixth homer of the season. The 37-year old Williams, on a hot streak, has three homers in his last three games and 11 RBIs in six games.

Tigers 5, Brewers 4
The Tigers rallied for two runs in the bottom of the 11th on a sacrifice fly by Ron LeFlore and a two-out single by Tom Verzyr. Earlier, they rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth on Ben Oglivie's double and RBI singles by pinch hitter Mickey Stanley and Rusty Staub to tie the contest.

Rookie Mark Fidrych went all the way for Detroit. He scattered 11 hits, including a three-run homer by Don Money.

Reagan outspends Ford in California

By WALTER MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Ford's campaign team is playing catch-up against Ronald Reagan in California — with the added handicaps of a money shortage and an absent candidate.

Reagan claims a lead in the state that twice elected him governor.

Ford strategists say they are behind but not out of range.

"It would take either a big miracle or several small ones," one Ford campaign aide said.

However, it usually takes money and the candidate's time to fashion an upset. In California, Reagan is campaigning hard, outspending the President, and Ford is not scheduled to return to the state before the voting on June 8.

California's presidential primary election offers 167 nominating votes to the Republican winner, dwarfing the block of delegates at stake in the three states that held their primaries today. Among them, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Montana have 59 delegates to offer.

Ford advisers expect a near standoff in the delegates that emerge from those primaries; Reagan's head-counters forecast a narrow gain for the challenger.

Along with California, Ohio and New Jersey are voting next Tuesday on the last day of primary competition.

But only California could settle the Republican presidential contest and then only if Ford upset Reagan in his home state.

"It all does hinge on California," said Reagan, who resumed his personal hunt for votes today.

A victory at home is essential to the former governor; his strategists affirm that and say they expect to win. Ford managers have said that the president can win the nomination without California in his column.

Ford now has 777 delegates, Reagan 643, with 1,130 needed to make one of them the GOP nominee for the White House.

The most recent California Poll, conducted by Mervin D. Field three weeks ago, gives Reagan a 10-point lead with 12 per cent of the Republican vote undecided.

"I have always felt it was very possible to beat the governor out here," said David Liggett, Ford's California campaign director. "We've always had to consider ourselves underdogs...."

"We've out-organized the hell out of Reagan," said Liggett. "Reagan may have a lot more troops, but they're walking around bumping into each other."

But across Wilshire Boulevard at Reagan headquarters, Lyn Nofziger, running the challenger's campaign, claims his organization is just fine, with volunteers to spare. He said the telephone banks are at work but the big push in the last days of the campaign will be in television and radio advertising, by far the largest item in a campaign budget of up to $800,000.

Liggett said the Ford budget in California will total about $600,000 from May 1 through election day, with $250,000 to $300,000 spent for broadcast advertising.

That is about half what Nofziger said Reagan will put into television and radio, and Liggett expressed surprise at the figure.

Liggett said the Ford campaign has mounted an intensive telephone effort from 21 outposts around the state with volunteers calling 20,000 to 22,000 Republicans daily.

"Organizational, we've got the mechanism to turn out our supporters," he said. "I think what has to take is the media message."

Reagan is spending eight days campaigning in California. Ford hunted votes for three days last week but has no announced plan to return. His wife Betty, son Jack, Secretary of Commerce Elliot L. Richardson and other stand-ins are coming in for final campaign rounds.

"If in truth Ford stays out, it will mean he's given up," Nofziger claimed. Liggett denied that, although he acknowledged he has been trying without success to get the President back.

"I keep pushing, but it doesn't look like it's in the cards," he said. "It's a matter of budget. He is nearing that national spending limit."

Federal law limits the spending by a candidate for presidential nomination to $10.9 million for campaigning. Another Ford campaigner said the President would have to dip into $500,000 earmarked for national convention campaign expenses to finance any return to California.

Nofziger said his task is to make sure "we hold what we have" in California strength. He said he sees no sign of erosion.

Reagan won a million-vote 58-per-cent victory in his first election as governor a decade ago. He was re-elected in 1970 with 53 per cent and a 500,000-vote margin. He has the campaign blueprints and the roster of volunteers assembled in those two campaigns.

"The size of the victory I don't think is important," Reagan said. "It's winner take all, and I'll settle for 50 per cent plus one."

Syrians move tanks across Lebanon border

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Four thousand more Syrian troops have crossed into Lebanon with 85 tanks to stop Muslim attacks on three besieged Christian towns, Beirut newspapers reported today.

Radio Damascus confirmed that Syrian intervention halted the attack on Qiyat and Andket in the Akkar region of northern Lebanon. The broadcast made no mention of Syrian troop movements, but it said the Christians agreed to Moslem occupation of the Lebanese army garrison at Andket.

The newspaper reports said a regiment of 2,000 Syrians with 60 Soviet T62 and T54 tanks rolled into the Akkar area Monday night to lift the siege on Qiyat and Andket. The papers said another Syrian regiment with 25 tanks advanced into the eastern Bekaa valley and broke a two-month Moslem blockade around Zahleh, the region's largest Christian town 35 miles east of Beirut.

Beirut Radio, now held by the Moslems, also reported the ar-ival of the troops in Akkar and called it "the most important development so far in the civil war."

"The forces moved in during the night, and Damascus has assured Lebanon the intervention is designed only to help President-elect Elias Sarkis assume the reins of power under conditions of re-established security," the Beirut broadcast added.

Radio Damascus said the Syrians intervened in Akkar in response to pleas to "rescue the Christian towns of Andket and Qiyat from four days of savage bombardment" by Moslem deserters from the Lebanese army.

"Now the Syrian assistance has been extended to the Akkar region and order has been imposed," the broadcast reported.

"All forms of fighting have stopped in Akkar."

A later Damascus broadcast said Syrian representatives convened a conference of the warring Moslem and Christian officers in the area and worked out a cease-fire agreement.

The Moslem attack was led by Maj. Ahmed Maameiry, who announced Monday that he agreed to a Syrian request to hold his fire. He said then that if the two towns did not surrender unconditionally to him, he would renew the attack.

The Damascus broadcast said in exchange for the Andket garrison, Maameiry pledged to safeguard "fraternal, peaceful coexistence" between Moslems and Christians in Akkar. It added that both he and the Christian leaders declared sup-

Hagaman team comes in first

The Chamber of Commerce Membership Roundup contest came to a close at 11 a.m. Friday with the final check-in at the Chamber office.

Team no. 2, headed by Verl Hagaman, came in first with a total of 1,631 points. Others members of the team were Bill Adams, Jimmy McCune and Jim Ward.

Second place was won by team no. 3, captained by Bill Hite, with a total of 915 points.

Members of Hite's team were Henry Gruben, Bill Horton and David McDaniel.

Third place team, headed by Dr. Dan Long, compiled 870 points. Members of Long's team were Don Nelson, Floyd Sackett and James Trusty.

Fourth place was won by team no. 7 arranged by J.C. Roberts, who has been in the hospital in Temple for the past few days. The team mustered 854 points for fourth place. Members of the team were John Gikas, Melvin Kunkel, Luther Robinson and Jerry Sims.

Jim Ward of team no. 2 was declared the top salesman for the campaign with a total of 1,234 points.

Hays can go home

BANNOCK, Ohio (AP) — It was a scene repeated in hundreds of small towns across the country on Memorial Day. Speeches from a decorated stand: a congressman there to shake hands with the home-folks.

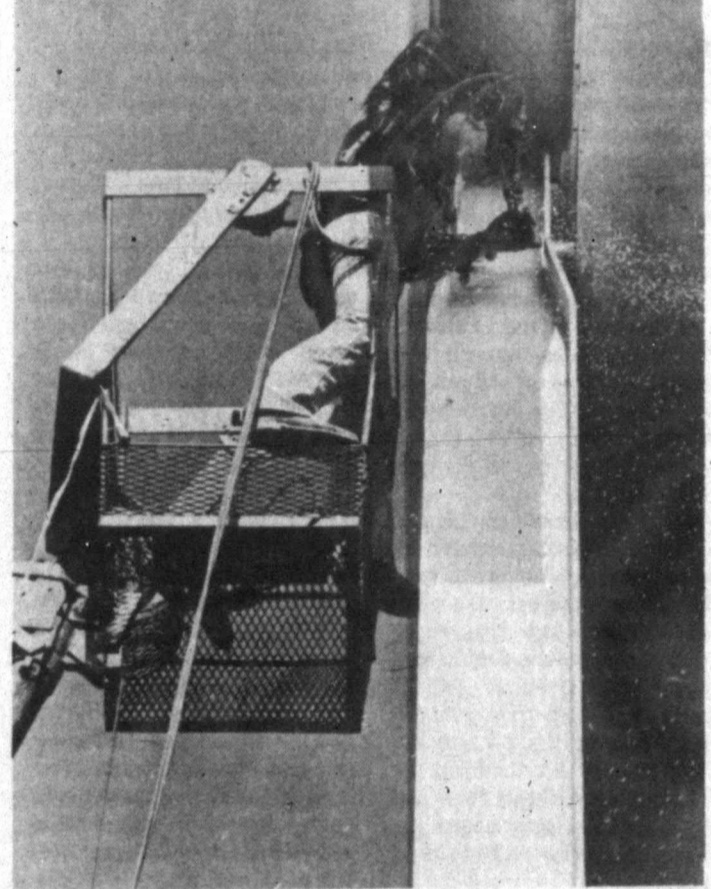

But in this town of 350 in eastern Ohio the congressman was Wayne Hays. The 65-year-old congressman enveloped in scandal was there with his 35-year-old bride, Pat, telling residents how he looks forward each weekend to his return home. It was as if Hays were on the stand to disprove the theme of Thomas Wolfe's novel, "You Can't Go Home Again."

The Ohio Democrat got warm greetings from constituents Monday when he returned to dedicate a war memorial.

Hays spoke of his birthplace just across the bridge, of how he and boyhood chums swam in the little creek there, how they grew up and went to war, how some of them died, and how his youngest brother, Jack, a combat pilot in World War II, came home safely but committed suicide 12 years later.

"I come back to these hills every weekend of my life unless I'm overseas," he said. "No matter that it's a 300-mile drive. And I've done it for 28 years because this is where I get my strength, this is where I get my feeling and this is where I get my belief. And I have no criticism of my fellow members of Congress."

On May 8, 1902, Mt. Pelee on the island of Martinique blew apart and killed all 40,000 inhabitants of the city of St. Pierre.

Leaving Pampa

The 86-foot sign outside the Gibson Discount Center on Perryton Parkway is leaving the Pampa location after eight years. A spokesman said the sign was being removed because of difficulties with the wind. The sign has sustained "lots of damage" over the years, he said, and the store is unable to insure it. The sign will be used at a new Gibson store in Cameron.

Women's hospital opens in Houston

HOUSTON (A.P.) — The Women's Hospital of Texas, a 194-bed institution designed solely for women, officially opens today.

The women's hospital, the first such specialty facility of its type in the South, is on a 9.7 acre tract near the Texas Medical Center. It is owned by 34 Houston physicians who specialize in the medical care of women.

The four-story, 102,000 square-foot building cost $5.7 million to construct.

The facility will provide a broad range of medical care, including obstetrics, gynecology, endocrine-infertility, female urology and plastic surgery, said administrator James E. Pears.

There are four operating rooms, a minor surgery room and recovery rooms and a special area for cystoscopic procedures that are equipped with electronic monitoring machines to evaluate patients' vital signs and heart tracings before and after surgery.

Pears said an ultrasound scanner that projects moving images of the fetus from the mother's womb as well as the fetal heart movements will be widely used for pregnant women. He said this procedure is relatively new to obstetrics and the equipment at the hospital will provide real-time data rather than the standard still pictures.

There are eight labor and three delivery rooms and a post delivery room all equipped with monitoring systems for both mother and baby. Arrangements can be made for fathers to be in the labor and delivery areas as well as for rooming-in privileges for mothers to have their infants nearby.

The nursery area is divided into four sections with a 12-bed intensive care unit staffed by a neonatologist and a pediatrician.

The hospital contains an 11-bed out-patient surgery unit where minor procedures can be performed.

All physicians affiliated with the Women's Hospital are on the clinical teaching faculty of Baylor College of Medicine.

Hurricanes spell death

By The Associated Press

Anna, Belle, Candice, Dottie, Emmy, Francis, etc.

Lovely names that could spell misery and even death for Texans if the still unborn hurricanes for which they are designed ever reach the Texas coast between today—the start of the hurricane season—and November.

Texas hurricane trackers, however, do not expect to go through the entire list of alphabetical names already selected for the hurricanes. Only about eight to ten tropical storms develop into hurricanes every year in the Caribbean.

The word hurricane comes from the names the Spaniards heard the Carib Indians use to describe the storms and winds in the area.

The Texas Gulf Coast seems to see its worst storms later in the season, in August and September. The most recent hurricane to hit the Texas Coast was Fern which slammed into the coastal bend area in September, 1971. Three persons were killed and damages were estimated at $30 million.

Last autumn hurricane Caroline brought some rough weather to the lower Texas Coast before hitting a sparsely populated area in northeastern Mexico.

The worst natural disaster in U.S. history was the great hurricane that struck Galveston in September 1900 when at least 6,000 persons were killed as storm tides of 15 feet or more inundated the island.

Disaster experts have warned that in spite of modern warning weather systems, loss of life could be very heavy in Texas should a major hurricane strike.

This, they said, is because of increased coastal population, housing that was not built to withstand such storms and land subsidence in Southeast Texas that has made coastal residents vulnerable to high tides and flooding.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are more than 100 members of the anchovy family, according to the National Geographic Society.

Most species of the small, silver-colored fishes, it says, are only about five inches long, though some grow to nearly twice that. They are found in most of the world's temperate and tropical seas.

The Pacific anchovy is found from Baja, Calif., to British Columbia. It is fished commercially but much of the catch is used for bait, particularly by tuna fishermen.

Cow calling contest set for Saturday

The annual National Cow Calling Contest is set to begin at 1 p.m. Saturday in Miami with other events making up the celebration both before and after.

At 7:30 p.m. Friday the presentation of the Frontier Follies will begin in the Miami High School Auditorium and the program will include the preliminaries of the Miss Miami Beauty Contest.

Saturday's activities begin at 9 a.m. with registration for the Pioneer Roundup in the Miami Community Center.

A barbecue is set to begin at noon in the Miami - Roberts County Park. Finals and crowning of Miss Miami will be at 2 p.m.

Team roping is set for 3 p.m. and a western dance will begin at 9 p.m. in the Roberts County Barn with John D. and the Cadillac Cowboys playing.
