Cliburn's Concert Captivates Nearly 1,500 Music Lovers

By TRACY CARY
Chairman National Piano Guild
An Everest was reached in Pampa and Southwestern musical history was made last evening with all the muses smiling in benevolent delight.
A convocation of nearly 1,500 musical pilgrims gathered from as far away as Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Colorado and many Texas cities in exuberant anticipation for the dazzling premier performance in the new M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium by the six-foot-four-inch Merlin of the keyboard, Van Cliburn.

Cliburn is the only musician in living memory to completely captivate the imagination of the musical world with an impact unrivaled, perhaps, since Franz Liszt.
Cliburn's arrival in Pampa was delayed by his having been urgently summoned to Washington by the President and State Department to arrange a series of concert appearances in Russia in conjunction with President Nixon's forthcoming visit there. This made a last-minute tuning of the piano (a Cliburn priority) cause a seemingly interminable wait in the foyers for the first-nighter audience.

In opening ceremonies the Rev. Sam B. Hulsey introduced Mrs. Robert A. Johnson, president of the Pampa Fine Arts Association. The organization initiated the inaugural concert by Cliburn with half of the proceeds going toward the purchase of a Steinway Concert grand piano. The piano was formally presented to Mayor Milo B. Carlson, who accepted the gift in the name of the citizens of Pampa.

The artist was introduced by Dr. James Malone, Pampa superintendent of schools, formerly of Kilgore and a friend of the Cliburn family for some 30 years.

Following the tradition of pianists in international competitions, Cliburn opened this "musical night to remember" with a stirring rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner" played with patriotic intensity. A large part of the evening's enchantment was due to Cliburn's good taste in his choice of repertoire, leaning heavily on the Romantic period, this was "soul music" at its epitome.

The kaleidoscopic facets of the artist's technique mutually outdo each other and give evidence of the maturing of his virtuosity. The octave passages are electrifying, the thunderous chords of Beethoven's "Appassionata" (inspired by Shakespeare's "Tempest").

The brilliance and fire of the Two Brahms' Rhapsodies, the B Minor and the G Minor, obvious for its unique interpretation, were complemented by the contrasts and variety of tonal shading in the lyrical and moody "Nocturne in E Major, Op. 62 No. 2" of Chopin.

Cliburn's delicacy and mastery of dynamics and pedaling in the shimmering and effervescent Debussy "Preludes" make it easy to see why he has won every contest or competition he has ever entered.

On hearing the magnificent Chopin "Ballade in F Minor" and the grandeur and pageantry of the brilliant and demanding "Polonaise in A Flat," whose final encore chords brought the audience to its feet in a thundering standing ovation, we reflected that Chopin often enjoyed recalling that it was in the Paris mansion of Baron James Rothschild that his career got its decisive start. Several of his compositions are inscribed to various members of the Rothschild family. He had been led there by Prince Radziwill at a time his career was at so low an ebb he planned to emigrate to America.

It is curious to note that the land on which last night's concert took place was at one time owned by Baron James Rothschild's great-niece, Lady Hannah Rothschild Primrose, Countess of Rosebery and wife of Lord Archibald Philip, Earl of Rosebery and Prime Minister of England.

Rose Rosebery was the chief stockholder of the White Deer Lands, Montagu Kingsmill Brown, donor of the auditorium, was the nephew of Andrew Kingsmill, Lord Rosebery's London banker.

One thing is certain, Van Cliburn's audience would not hesitate to commission him to represent this country abroad or this world on other planets. If all our diplomats had practiced their piano as well as this 37-year-old Texas Ambassador of Musical-Good Will—perhaps world peace would be more than a dream. Additional comment on the concert will appear in Kadingo's Lingo column Sunday.

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes shot down seven enemy MIGs today while carrying out the deepest and heaviest air strikes inside North Vietnam in more than four years, the U.S. Command announced.

The downing of seven MIGs in one day is a record for the Vietnam war.

The U.S. aircraft attacked both Hanoi and Haiphong, while hitting at widespread areas of North Vietnam, the command said.

It made no mention of any U.S. air losses.

The aircraft streaked to within 60 miles of the Chinese border to attack North Vietnam's northwest rail link to China.

Radio Hanoi said 14 U.S. planes were shot down and "many pilots were captured alive."

U.S. disclosures of aircraft losses often are delayed if search and rescue operations are under way.

A 7th Fleet destroyer force also bombarded the Haiphong area.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said an armada of Air Force planes from bases in Thailand and Navy aircraft from three carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin attacked rail lines, bridges, repair shops, fuel depots, trucks, boats and supply distribution centers on orders from President Nixon.

The command said that "among the targets struck were rail and fuel storage sites in the vicinity of Hanoi and Haiphong."

A naval task force also bombarded North Vietnamese positions along the coastline, in addition to Haiphong, it was reported.

The announcement hinted that strikes would be kept up in the Hanoi and Haiphong areas.

"It is anticipated that air strikes and naval gunfire will continue to be used against military targets in North Vietnam to deny the enemy the weapons and supplies it needs to continue the attack."

This referred to the 42-day North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command refused to comment on the Hanoi claim and gave no details of the raids, saying only that air and naval strikes were continuing against North Vietnam. But it is the command's policy to withhold announcement of plane losses until the search for missing crewmen is completed.

The U.S. Command did announce the loss of four more aircraft since Sunday, including the crash 20 miles northeast of Saigon today of a big U.S. Army helicopter in which 32 Americans were killed. The command said the cause of that crash was not known but the helicopter was on an administrative noncombat mission.

A total of 36 American helicopters and 34 planes have been lost since the start of the North Vietnamese offensive March 30, the command said, with 64 Americans killed in the crashes, 62 missing and 18 wounded. This includes noncombat as well as combat losses.

Radio Hanoi claimed that nine American planes were shot down in the Hanoi area today, three in the Haiphong area, and two in Yen Bai, the province northwest of the capital through which the railway to China passes.

The broadcast charged that the raiders did great damage to hospitals, schools and residential areas in Hanoi and caused many casualties.

Informed sources in Saigon said as many as 200 strikes were flown today against North Vietnam. The sources said that for the first time since before the partial bombing halt on March 31, 1968.

The U.S. Command gave no details about the naval shelling in the Haiphong area; but other sources said it was part of President Nixon's campaign to cut off the movement of war materials into North Vietnamese ports and out of them to the Communist forces in South Vietnam.

Heavy Showers Provide Much Needed Moisture

As several tornadoes dipped across the Panhandle and South Plains last night, a much welcomed thunderstorm fell on Pampa and other parts of Gray County to bring relief to farmers in the area.

Rainfall reports in Pampa ranged from the official 1.3 inches to an unofficial 1.6 inches.

The storm, which had threatened several times during the evening, finally broke after 10 p.m., just as the Van Cliburn concert was ending at the M.K. Brown Memorial Civic Auditorium.

Last night's rain, which continued into the early morning hours, more than doubled the total amount of rainfall recorded for the year to date.

Before yesterday's storm, 1.04 inches of moisture had been reported since Jan. 1. With the new rainfall added on, the total now stands at 2.34 inches.

While noting that the rain is of tremendous value to area farmers, Foster Whaley, Gray County agriculture agent, said, "It was two months late to be of maximum value."

Whaley said it was still helpful to dry-land wheat that has not yet been cut, but it was especially helpful to farmers who irrigate their lands.

If the rain continues during the month, it could save farmers $300 to $325 this month on the gas bill for each well used in irrigation, Whaley said. There are about 180 wells in Gray County.

The storm provided the much needed moisture immediately, Whaley said, becoming a multi-thousand dollar value rain.

The forecast for today calls for decreasing cloudiness but with thunderstorms still predicted for the area. Probability of rain is 50 per cent today, 70 per cent tonight and 30 per cent Thursday.

In other parts of the area, a twister hit the western edge of Muleshoe during a dust storm which turned in to a hail-packed thunderstorm.

A lumber company building was destroyed, with part of the building falling across a power line and onto a car in which several persons had taken refuge from the storm. No injuries were reported.

Another torando was reported on the ground three miles north of Earth and several funnel clouds were noted three miles north of Canyon heading towards Amarillo. None of them apparently caused any damage.

Thunderstorms occurred throughout the Panhandle and South Plains area, with hail peppering a number of places. No major damages were reported.

Lightning reportedly knocked out three Southwestern Public Service transformers in the Pampa-Skellytown area, but officials reported that only minor problems resulted and they had no power troubles today.

The storms lingered in the area until early morning and were moving on into Central and South Texas.

Laird: Pullout Will Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the U.S. troop withdrawal program will go on at the same time President Nixon has taken new military action in Vietnam.

In a wide-ranging news conference, the Pentagon chief also denied again the American action is a blockade in the international legal sense.

But he made it clear we "will not permit the landing of supplies in North Vietnam."

Many of these supplies have been coming from Russia.

Red Vessels May Change Direction

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is some sign that Soviet ships heading for North Vietnam have changed direction since President Nixon ordered North Vietnamese harbors sealed off by mines, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today.

He also said there is no evidence the Soviets have tried to sweep the mines from the harbor entrances.

In noting "there is some evidence of some change of course" by Soviet ships, Laird said there is still a full period of daylight before the mines will be activated.

According to Laird, 36 ships are in the main North Vietnamese harbor of Haiphong—16 of them Soviet vessels, 5 belonging to China, four British and the others from various Communist nations.

Laird generally attempted to give an optimistic outlook on the current situation, which heated up Monday night when President Nixon ordered the mining of the harbor entrances and the interdiction of other Soviet and Chinese supply routes to North Vietnam.

He said the U.S. troop withdrawal program will continue as the American military effort at sea and in the air intensifies.

The U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton Abrams, "will meet or beat the 49,000 troop ceiling by July 1," the schedule set by the President.

Laird also criticized again the Soviet supplying of Hanoi, which he said had made the current invasion of the South possible.

He said the Soviet Union has not replied to the President's action and there is "no evidence" the Soviet's are trying to sweep mines from the harbor entrances.

Asked what the United States would do if Moscow should react, Laird answered:

"We will take all steps necessary to maintain a mining operation."

"Gen. (Creighton) Abrams will continue the troop withdrawal program," Laird said in a news conference, and "will meet or beat the 49,000 troop ceiling by July 1."

The Pentagon chief also said Nixon had offered a "forthright and generous peace offer" to the North Vietnamese, saying all U.S. troops will be pulled out four months after an internationally supervised cease-fire takes place and American prisoners are returned.

County Demos Canvass Votes Of Primaries

The Gray County Democratic Executive Committee met last night in the Gray County Annex and canvassed the returns from the Democratic election precincts of the county.

The canvass revealed only four minor errors in the tabulation of over 4500 votes cast in the Democratic primary Saturday.

Democratic County Chairman, Harold L. Comer, discussed the grouping of the smaller precincts into a unit to elect delegates to the state Democratic convention to be held in San Antonio on June 13.

The new party rules for the Democratic party provide that at the county convention, each precinct is entitled to elect one delegate to attend the state convention for every 300 votes cast at that precinct in the gubernatorial race during the last general elections.

Those precincts which did not cast at least 300 votes in the last governor's race are grouped into a larger unit for the purpose of electing delegates.

The payment of election clerks was also discussed. It was decided by the committee that a partial payment would be made now and the balance owed to the clerks would be paid after the state funds are received in full.

The committee decided to have one Democratic voting place for all Pampa precincts at the Gray County Court House for the Democratic runoff primary on June 3. Voting precincts outside the city limits will be at the same places as on Saturday. Those precincts are Lefors, McLean, Alanreed, Laketon, Hopkins and Grandview.

President's Move Sparks Antiwar Protests

Growing protests swirled on city streets and college campuses as antiwar demonstrators by the thousands denounced President Nixon's decision to mine North Vietnamese harbors.

It was the most turbulent outbreak since the 1970 protests over the U.S. invasion of Cambodia. Most of the demonstrations started peacefully Tuesday or early today but a number ended with violence and vandalism.

Police in Berkeley, Calif., fired putty bullets from squad cars in a running battle with window-smashing demonstrators near the University of California campus. Protesters on the University of California campus at Santa Barbara tried unsuccessfully to re-fire a bank burned down in the 1970 violence.

Two persons were wounded by buckshot when police broke up a demonstration in Albuquerque, N.M. There were 150 arrests in Gainesville, Fla., where the mayor requested the National Guard be alerted, and 50 arrested in Boulder, Colo.

In Albuquerque, Carolyn Babb Coburn, 22, a University of New Mexico law student, was hit in the abdomen while covering the demonstration for the student newspaper and was reported in serious condition today. The other victim was treated and released.

About 500 demonstrators had blocked Interstate 25 near downtown when police cleared the area with tear gas. The shootings followed but police said there was doubt as to whether police fired the shot.

In the political arena, critics termed the President's action "reckless," "a high crime" and brinkmanship while supporters praised "a bold move," "a courageous move," "a measured response."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told a Republican fundraising dinner Tuesday night at the Ohio Fairgrounds in Columbus that he was "particularly proud of Richard Nixon" for the harbor mining decision.

A crowd of about 350 demonstrators who marched from Ohio State University threw rocks and potatoes at the vice president's limousine as he arrived. The rear window was cracked but Agnew was unhurt.

In Berkeley more than 3,000 demonstrators broke up a City Council meeting where a peace resolution that included aid to a North Vietnamese hospital was narrowly defeated.

The council meeting came after a day of marching in which windows were broken in banks, parking meters damaged and trash fires set in many streets.

After the meeting the crowd surged back down Telegraph Avenue and police began using tear gas and putty bullets, which sting and bruise, to quell the window smashing.

By 2 a.m. police had made 30 arrests and dispersed the crowd.

On the campus at Santa Barbara there were peaceful protests by up to 3,000 demonstrators during the day. At one point they blockaded the runway of a nearby airport forcing officials to divert one flight.

In the evening an angry crowd of 300 tried three times to storm the ROTC building but were driven back by police using tear gas.

Later the demonstrators shoved a flaming metal trash container against the front door of the Bank of America branch that was burned down during the 1970 violence and later rebuilt.

The door held, the outdoor sprinkler system came on and firemen finished off the blaze. Five persons were arrested.

In Gainesville, the arrests came as riot-equipped police using dogs tried to disperse some 1,000 University of Florida students who had blocked streets during a 10-hour antiwar demonstration around the campus.

Pampa Sales Tax Figures Paint Good Business Sign

A report from the state comptroller's office on city sales tax collections in Texas for the quarter ending last Dec. 31 reflects Pampa business ahead of Texas cities of comparable size.

For instance, Pampa's sales tax collections from retail sales in October, November and December of 1971 totaled $96,294.36 compared to Borger's $74,580.52.

Other cities up and down across the state with sales tax collections for that quarter—all below Pampa—include: Athens, $49,583.71; Bay City, $67,603.34; Brenham, $51,388.24; Cleburne, $77,509.85; Freeport, $62,877.86; Gonzales, $27,031.38; Henderson, $59,584.31;

Jacksonville, $54,466.87; Kerrville, $53,277.25; Kilgore, $80,634.65; Marlin, $28,338.95; Mineral Wells, $62,799.43; Palestine, $83,870.71; and Sulphur Springs, $62,535.76.
Almost in the same category with Pampa were Greenville, $98,947.19; Orange, $100,221.83; Corsicana, $98,249.37 and Marshall, $106,945.30.

Lucie Is a Marriage Maverick

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—In recent months, all the young actors and actresses I've talked to seem to mention, almost casually, how they're living with somebody and how the idea of marriage has no interest to them.

I'd hate to own stock in a wedding ring company these days. The only rice that's been thrown around here lately was by an angry Chinese cook. When a kid nowadays says, "I do," it's usually in answer to the question, "Do you smoke pot?"

So it was nice to meet a new bride, Lucie Arnaz Vandervort, and find out why she decided to sail down the aisle and legally get married. Lucie and Phil were married last summer and the bloom was still on the peach—and she's a peach all right, tall and slim and lovely.

"I'm pro-marriage," Lucie says. These days, that's almost like saying, "I'm pro-kerosene lantern," but she is very definite about it.

"Marriage is right for me," she says. "I know a lot of kids who shouldn't get married, but it's right for me. I like the security of marriage and I like the feeling of permanence. I like the idea that when we have kids and we tell them how they should get married, we can point to ourselves and our own experience."

She says that she figures if things don't work out with Mr. and Mrs. Vandervort, then they'll get divorced. There's no stigma to divorce any more and it's become as easy in California as inhaling smog.

But she doesn't anticipate that happening. She says she thinks their marriage will last, "although nothing is ever sure." What makes her believe they have a good shot at a long marriage is that they knew each other pretty well before the ceremony.

They met when she was 16. Phil was an actor then—he's mostly into producing these days—and he came on The Lucy Show to do a bit. Lucie was on it, too. They knew each other for four years before their marriage.

"I think," Lucie says, "that knowing people a long time before marriage is essential. There's not much about Phil I didn't know by the time of our wedding."

Actually, that almost made Lucie pull out. She realized, at the last minute, that she really had no basis of comparison. She hadn't dated

Lucie Arnaz

"Knowing people a long time before marriage is essential. There's not much about Phil (Vandervort) I didn't know by the time of our wedding."

many other boys.

"I wondered," she says, "whether I really couldn't be sure. But if I wanted to make sure that meant that I'd have to stop dating Phil and play the field. And I didn't want to do that. So I decided to go through with it."

She's had the usual period of adjustment, trying to become a good housewife. Actually, there was a pre-marriage period when she was on her own, so she had a little experience with cooking and all that.

But still it wasn't easy.

There were cooking disasters. Like the time she set fire to the oven while trying to make bread. And the time she reached in to get something else and came out with the potholders on fire.

But she loves it. And she loves their house. For the first time in her life, she's getting interested in the garden. She says it's such fun to watch things grow and see how they flower.

And it's fun to watch Lucie Arnaz grow and flower, too. It's good to see a Mrs. who is under 30 again.

Television And Radio

NEW YORK (AP)—Original drama, particularly the drama of ideas, has become in the past few seasons just about the rarest sight on television. "Particular Men," the first of a series on the Public Broadcasting stations, reminded us Monday night of the void.

Moring Mandel's two-hour drama seemed to be a delayed emotional reaction to the horror of atomic power, the dilemma of the wartime scientists who created it and the almost hysterical fear of communism during the late 1940s. It was the story of an introspective, pipe-puffing scientist, whose personal life was as mixed up as were his emotions about the use of the killer-bomb he helped create.

The play made its point early and then wandered on for much too long, heaping flashback upon flashback, caricature upon caricature in confusing abundance. The acting, however, was great. Stacy Keach was utterly convincing as the remote and idealistic physicist confronted with an inquiry into his security clearance.

Mandel's script appeared to be more preachment than drama, more emotional than philosophical. It also had the advantages of more than two decades of hindsight.

Still for the serious-minded viewer, it was stimulating to be confronted with characters and ideas with which one could agree or disagree violently. Several more original dramas are coming along in the PBC summer schedule, a welcome interruption of the commercial networks' diet of reruns.

In ABC's half-hour special, "The Masks We Wear," Harry Reasoner and company took off on a light-hearted, optimistic investigation designed to explain the self-image of every individual—why middle-aged men are wearing their hair longer, why women like bikinis and why just about everybody is dieting.

The premise, using animation as well as film, was that our clothes, our manners and, to a lesser degree, our speech, are devices we use to present a face to the world that to some degree reflects the way we see ourselves.

Crux of the short program was contained in a witty bit of animation first showing a young executive sitting composedly at his desk—until his boss walked into the office. He dissolved into a small boy. Left some work, he shifted into a scowling man in a prisoner's stripes. Walking down the hall, he met a pretty girl and turned into a knight in armor. His advances rebuffed, he scurried away in the shape of an ass.

"Each of us," explained Reasoner, "plays many parts throughout the day."

People In The News

By Associated Press

The senator issued a statement through his office in Washington saying he hoped for reconciliation.

NEW YORK (AP)—Nina Van Pallandt, the Danish singer who testified in the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes affair, has been signed to costar in a film with Elliott Gould. It was announced Monday.

Miss Van Pallandt will play in "The Long Goodbye," a United Artists movie to be filmed in Los Angeles starting in June. The film is based on a Raymond Chandler detective story and will be directed by Robert Altman.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ac-

ress Betty Grable is under treatment for a duodenal ulcer and has cancelled an appearance in "No. No Nanette" in Melbourne, Australia.

A spokesman for Miss Grable, 55, said she would be released from St. John's Hospital in nearby Santa Monica in a few days.

Cyd Charisse was named to replace Miss Grable in the Australian production. Miss Grable's manager said he thought she would be able to make the engagement in three or four months.

George Washington, when Washington visited New York in 1783, he predicted it might become the seat of a new empire.

Old West Was Place For Young Women To Find Adventure, Husband And Wealth

Associated Press Writer
If there ever was a time and place for a woman's personality to burst into full bloom it was in the Old West.

And bloom some women did, often to the aggravation of men, particularly sheriffs.

These rarely were the pioneer wives who rode covered wagons with their families hunting a new life and land, although some of them were not to be dealt with lightly, either.

The truly free spirits were the young women who headed West to find adventure, a husband and wealth—all three in one package if possible.

A short list of the more noted of these women would include Figa Quick, Ann Bassett Alis, Belle Starr, Dona Tules, Calamity Jane, Poker Alice Tubbs, Lola Montez, Maj. Pauline Cushman, and, in a somewhat different sub-culture, Molly Brown.

These women—you hesitate to call all of them ladies—are discussed in a new book, "Wily Women of the West," written by Grace E. Ray of Oklahoma (Naylor, San Antonio, $5.95).

These women are described as beautiful when they went

West—but then it took a real dog to draw any other kind of term in the early days.

They were less attractive in later years, but you can't blame that on debauchery and things like that. This decline in attractiveness can be attributed more to weather, lack of beauty parlors and absence of restraining undergarments.

Today's woman of the Golden West can stay beautiful forever. She steps from her air-conditioned and properly humidified home directly into her airconditioned car. About the only weather to harm her skin touches her when she is lying around the swimming pool. And then she soaks herself in suntan oil to preserve her epidermis.

There is nothing new about women being pretty when they want to be. The author notes that throughout history women singly and in groups have done considerable fighting.

She reports, for instance, that the coup de grace was given to the wounded survivors of Gen. George Custer's forces at Little Big Horn by the Indian women, not the warriors.

Perhaps the best known of the badwomen of the West was Myra Belle Shirley who went down in the history books as Belle Starr.

She was a very loving young woman who showed up in Scyene, Tex., a village near Dallas. Some of her more noted associates there were the Younger Brothers gang and the Jesse James crowd.

Later, the whole bunch ended up in Oklahoma Territory, where they created a refuge for criminals.

Belle was accused of many crimes including murder, but the only thing that can be authenticated even hazily is horse stealing. She was assassinated as she rode toward home—killed by a blast of buckshot in the back.

Friends buried her with her pearl-handled pistol in one hand. Her three husbands of record died by gunfire, too, at different times.

Poker Alice Tubbs, like many other wild characters in the West, came from the British Isles and turned professional gambler in Indian Territory and the mining regions.

Some of her contemporaries were Kitty the Schemer, Airship Annie, China Mary, Haltershanks Eva, Faro Nell, Prairie Rose and Iowa Bull. Only Poker Alice was successful in gambling. The others were too emotional for that profession, Poker Alice once remarked.

Prairie Rose is noted for a famous stroll. She made a bet that she would walk down the main street of a Kansas town—naked.

No one gave her any trouble. For she carried a pistol in each hand on her walk.

Maj. Pauline Cushman was a Union spy captured by the Confederates who vacillated between hanging her and letting her go.

When the war was over, she headed west as a lecturer and sometimes actress, then became an innkeeper.

Outside the ranching culture was a red haired girl named Maggie Tobin, who went West as a hash slinger and married Leadville Johnny Brown who became a multi-millionaire when he discovered gold.

They moved to Denver and built a mansion amid the homes of what was called the "Sacred Thirty-Six" of Denver society and wealth.

PERSONAL FINANCE

How to Say 'No Thanks'

By CARLTON SMITH

The "unorderd merchandise" flimflam continues to flourish, and some of the perpetrators get downright nasty when they start trying to harass you into paying for what you didn't order and don't want. There is one sure formula for avoiding trouble.

There are also several that invite trouble. Some states, for example, have passed laws making the delivery of unorderd merchandise a gift. In these states, the recipient is free to keep and use the merchandise. These few instances have been publicized to the extent that many consumers believe this is "the law" now, pertaining to unorderd merchandise. Not so.

State laws treat the subject in a variety of ways, and the promoters of these schemes use this lack of uniformity to their advantage. To cope with the problem, however, there's no need to do legal research or consult an attorney to determine precisely how the law treats un-ordered merchandise in your particular state. It's enough to understand the basic legal principle involved.

Most laymen, probably, think of a legal contract as a document containing many "whereases" and duly signed by the contracting parties. Actually, the law of contracts covers many buyer-seller relationships in which not even spoken words are exchanged, much less is there anything in writing.

A contract consists of an offer and an acceptance. If a merchant simply displays a card of ball point pens priced at 39 cents, that is legally an offer to sell. If you pick off a pen and hand him 39 cents, that is legally your acceptance of his offer, and the transaction is covered by the law of contracts.

In the case of unorderd merchandise, unless the law of your state specifically treats the matter otherwise, the delivery of the merchandise into your possession is probably construed, legally, as an offer to sell. Your continued possession of it, without protest that you don't want it, probably constitutes, legally, your acceptance.

The promoter then has the law of contracts on his side, and he can make a great deal of trouble for you. No matter what you may have read, or been told, you're not off the hook after 30 days, or a year, and it's no protection to just put the merchandise away unused.

What you must do is establish, legally, that there is no acceptance on your part.

Write the sender a letter, stating that you did not order the merchandise, and don't want it. Say that you will hold it for 30 days (you are NOT required to return it at your own expense), that if it is not called for within that time it will be sold for storage charges—and that your charge for storage is $1 per day.

Make a carbon or photocopy of the letter, mail it to yourself, and file the unopened letter away.

Jamaica: Hiding Away At $240 a Day

(One of a Series.)

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

PORT ANTONIO, Jamaica — (NEA) — I knew right away it wasn't an ordinary resort joint when there was a tap on the door in the late afternoon and the man in the white chef's hat announced himself.

"I am Mr. Simpson," he said, "— come to discuss your dinner order."

Just before that, Barrington McKie had come into the living room to introduce himself as the butler and to inquire if any liquid libations were desired. Uh, scotch? Promptly a bottle of Chivas Regal, 12 years old, was on the table.

The living room should be explained. It was a separate building of carved stone, with glass walls on three sides of a promontory in the rain jungle hanging over the azure Caribbean Sea. From the living room, you looked down on a gentle cove and palm-dotted beach. There was also a bedroom building and a dining room building, the three connected by a covered arcade.

This was just one unit among 18 in a complex called Frenchman's Cove, which has to be the spiffiest hideaway in the Western Hemisphere, or any other hemisphere. Also the most expensive.

The tariff per couple—children not especially wanted—is $240. That's a day! Not a week. The weekly tax is $1,680. The money is mentioned because right away the thought is, what do you get for it? Anything your little old heart desires.

There were, of course, the butler and the maid, Olive, who came up to the cottage

(sic) at 7:30 a.m. to fix breakfast. Lunch was at the beach, with linen and silverware, and Barrington in attendance at a sumptuous buffet washed down with Pouilly Fuisse or anything else in the wine cellar. Dinner was with music and candlelight at the Great House, a hilltop manor among the 40 acres of rain forest and manicured lawn, through which flows the Rio Grande into the sea.

All this at Frenchman's Cove is the brainchild of a lean, graying tycoon from San Antonio (Texas, that is) named Grainger Weston, who once served in the Royal Canadian Navy. The family's rich. So's Grainger, who's in charge of the biscuit-manufacturing division (Grandma's Cookies, et al). Father bought 64 acres on Frenchman's Cove more than a dozen years ago to build a private vacation retreat. The government told him that it wanted a revenue-producing hotel there. So father sent Grainger down to check it out.

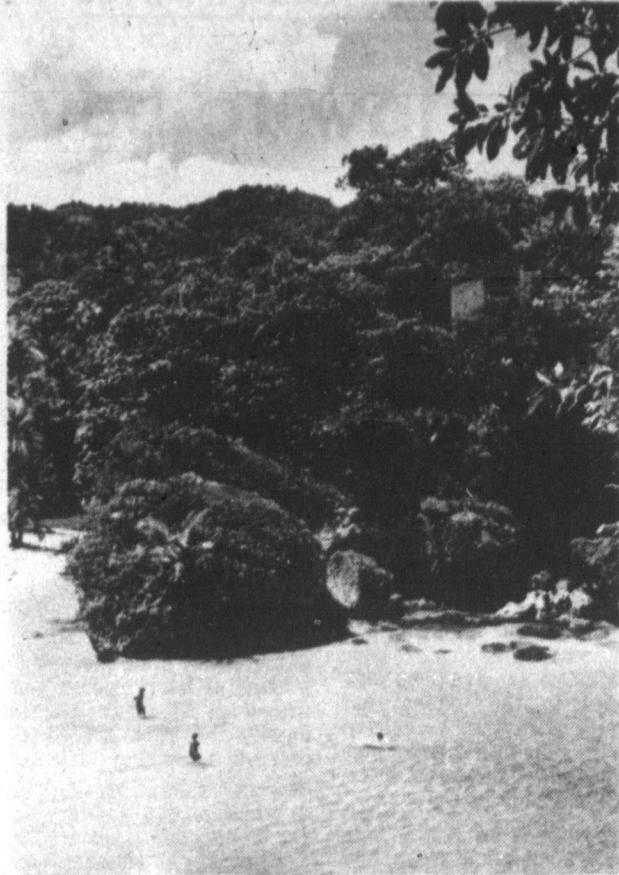

Now, sitting under a shady beach palm on one of his monthly visits, sipping a banana daiquiri, Weston said, "I didn't want to put a concrete block next to this beach. You know, a lot of rich people had homes in this area. But they had trouble with utilities and maintaining help. So we built a place which would appeal to them—they could get the conveniences of a private home without the bother."

Weston said it cost $2 million. That was a dozen years ago. "We couldn't duplicate it now," he added. "All the good stone masons have left Amerigo Vespucci, sailed on his first voyage to the New World.

In 1775, Ethan Allen and a company of Vermont militiamen known as the Green Mountain Boys captured Ft. Ticonderoga, N.Y., from the British.

In 1865, during the Civil War, Union forces captured Confederate President Jefferson Davis at Irwinville, Ga.

THE VIEW FROM FRENCHMAN'S COVE: Spiffiest hideaway in any hemisphere?

the island for better pay elsewhere."

And even Frenchmen's Cove, despite the prices, has scaled down a bit. Originally, you could come in and telephone anywhere in the world, on the house. When Wall Street types started conducting their business offshore on chartered yachts, they had to limit calls to the island. Rumor has it one visitor had to be rushed to Kingston for an appendectomy, and that was taken care of by his bill, too.

But all is not lost. You still have your own gas-driven golf cart to roam the 40 acres of the premises. It is possible to get lost here. Marlon Brando once did it for two weeks, and nobody knew who he was until after he'd gone. A small boutique with native products is run by Patrice Wymore Flynn, widow of Errol.

The clientele is international, including the three ladies from Mexico, who, every night after brandy, took a wild ride on the golf cart.

WORLD OF WORK

Answers to Employment Questions by Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson

Are Child Labor Laws Too Stiff?

M. B. of Springfield, Ill., writes: Child labor laws seem to limit job openings for teen-agers. Why are they so stiff?

Dear M. B.: Child labor laws prohibit employment of minors under 16 during school hours and those under 18 in certain dangerous jobs to protect their educational opportunity and physical well being. Despite these protective standards, about 95 per cent of all jobs remain open to teen-agers between 16 and 18, and there are no restrictions for those over 18.

D. W. of Tyler, Tex., asks: Can I hire migrant children to work on my farm during school hours if they come from another district where schools have already closed for summer vacation?

Dear D. W.: Yes, but not until after May 15 and then only if the child shows evidence that he has completed his school work for the year at the school in his permanent home district. Otherwise, the migrant child may not work during the school hours of the district where he is living.

J. B. of Los Angeles,

Calif., writes: I am a member of a federal employees' union and believe I was denied my right to be a candidate for office in that union. How can I appeal?

Dear J. B.: You must first exhaust certain internal appeal procedures as provided by your union bylaws and constitution. If these are exhausted without result, you may then file a complaint with the Department of Labor and it will be investigated. If your complaint is found valid under the terms of Executive Order 11491, as amended, corrective action will be taken by the assistant secretary of labor for labor-management relations.

C. B. of San Diego, Calif., asks: Does the branch of service make any difference in connection with veterans' re-employment rights?

Dear C. B.: It makes none whatsoever. Job protection extends alike to members of all branches of services and to all kinds of military training.

M. C. of Chicago asks: Is a person required by the veterans' re-employment rights law to inform his employer about his military training plans?

Dear M. C.: Yes. He must request leave for the training period. No particular form is needed. When the reservist or guardsman is told of his training plans, he should tell his employer. In effect, he is requesting leave to participate in the training.

Editor's note: If you have a question regarding job training and placement, labor-management relations, job health and safety, equal employment opportunity, wages and hours, employment and unemployment, prices and earnings and other matters involving the U.S. Department of Labor, send it to:

NEGOTIATING

An Art in Search of Artists

By HANA UMLAUF

NEW YORK — (NEA) — People the world over have locked horns over the misconception that all controversy, whether in the kitchen or between labor and management, is not resolved unless one party is declared the uncontested winner.

"But there are other solutions," says Gerard Nierenberg, the author of "The Art of Negotiating" and more recently of "Creative Business Negotiating." "We must learn to find alternatives to the problems we face every day — to create situations which leave each side satisfied."

That's what the art of negotiation is all about. "Instead of creating unstable conditions characterized by frustration and demoralization," Nierenberg believes, "we should be studying human behavior and learning to deal with people as they really are and not as we think they should be."

Despite the centuries of diplomacy and problem-solving preceding us, Nierenberg's attempt to study negotiation as a means of resolving seemingly irreconcilable situations is pioneering work. When he became interested, the result of numerous negative experiences with negotiating, he discovered that research in the field was nonexistent. His subsequent work led him to found the Negotiation Institute which today welcomes top businessmen from all fields who are eager to listen and learn.

How does one become a successful negotiator? Can everyone learn?

Nierenberg believes that all who are willing to open their minds to a new way of thinking can learn to become a successful negotiator. "It's not a question of simple intuition or natural inclination, but a method which can be learned and applied to situations which confront you," Nierenberg argues.

One of his basic precepts is to create a supportive environment with your opponent. In a supportive situation people will begin to be creative and to search out alternatives.

Once you accept the idea that there are alternatives to the traditional approach to problems, you open yourself up to new techniques. "Understanding the use of questions can be crucial," Nierenberg explains. "If you know how to use certain questions and when to use them, you can often guide a negotiation, even close it out."

How does Nierenberg teach what the art of negotiating is all about?

His method is based on a chart or rather a cube of alternatives. It begins with the different attitudes you can assume — negotiating from your point of view; negotiating from your opponent's point of view; allowing him to negotiate for his needs; discussing mutual needs; working against your own needs; working against your opponent's needs; or both working against their own needs.

Then, once you have assumed your negotiating stance, Nierenberg offers words such as "persuade," "concede," "assure," and "urge" which create a plausible attitude from which to work. Another side of the cube offers seven basic human needs from which the negotiator may be working—psychological, safety and security, love and belonging, esteem, self-actualization, to know and understand, or aesthetic needs.

And then he offers 20 strategies for negotiation. Soon it becomes clear that there are many more ways of looking at a conflict situation than the simple "I'm right, you're wrong" attitude.

"Negotiating is not a contest in which each side tries to defeat the opponent. It is, instead a process in which the objective should be to achieve agreement. In a successful negotiation, everyone wins." Nierenberg emphasizes time and again. And whether it be on the level of international diplomacy or of interpersonal relationships, an open mind and practiced approach can help bring about solutions that one never realized could exist.

Rep. Farenthold Begins Governor Runoff Campaign

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Frances Farenthold opened her run-off campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor today by challenging Dolph Briscoe to three televised debates.

Mrs. Farenthold's campaign chairman, Creekmore Fath, wrote Briscoe's manager that Mrs. Farenthold suggests three one-hour debates a week apart, on May 17, 24 and 31.

Fath said most Texas television stations had indicated that "public service time might be available for one or more of these debates." But if the free time is not available, Fath said, Mrs. Farenthold's supporters will pay half the cost.

Your partner continues to five clubs. What do you do now?
Answer Tomorrow

By Oswald & James Jacoby

George Washington could not tell a lie and accordingly would never have been caught in the trap that expert West fell into.

West was looking right at those five diamonds in dummy. He hoped that his partner held three diamonds to the queen but if he only held queen-small in that key suit West wanted to try to protect that queen.

The early play started with South letting expert West hold the first one. Then South led a diamond to his ace and played back the nine. Expert West was ready with a standard false card. He played the three of diamonds on the first lead and dropped the ten next. He wanted South to believe that he had started with queen-ten-three, in which case the finesse would be the sure fire winning play.

So West played the ten and South called for dummy's king. East's queen dropped and South galloped away with four no-trump for a top score.

"Quite a play," said West patronizingly. "Do you always play queen over the jack?"

"Not at all," replied South. "I know the correct mathematical play was a finesse, but you look like the sort of man who would go out of his way to false card."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We, as a group, would appreciate your viewpoint on the following:

I belong to the establishment group, agewise. (I am 65.) A judge in Los Angeles recently addressed our group and stated that if we would communicate with the longhaired young people, and compliment them when they had it coming, it would help to bridge the generation gap.

Last week I did just that. We were dining out, and at the table next to ours sat three young men with long hair. They were well-scrubbed, quiet and courteous, yet their attire was typically mod.

On leaving I stopped at their table and complimented them on their neat, scrubbed appearance and said I hoped that they were furthering their education to become useful citizens in the world. They smiled and thanked me and I left.

Question: Was I wrong? On relating the incident to other young people, I was criticized for my actions.

I would appreciate your opinion. LEISURE WORLDER

DEAR WORLDER: You can bridge the gap better with unprejudiced, common sense evaluation of other people than by impulsive, contrived compliments. I'm sure you meant well, but the kids may have thought you were bending too far backwards.

DEAR ABBY: Is my husband crazy, or am I? He has worn glasses for years, and says when he takes his glasses off, he can't HEAR? Do you think he should have his head examined? ABE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Not necessarily. But it wouldn't hurt to have his EARS examined.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to "Stay-At-Home Wife" whose husband had been seeing a widow he had known 40 years before: At that time the woman turned him down because he was going to have his foot amputated and she "couldn't bear the thought of marrying a man who couldn't dance."

In 1948 I married a man who had lost a leg in World War II. Although he is a fine dancer (Widow has a lot to learn about amputees), there were days when he couldn't dance. Since one dream of my life was a good husband, not merely a dancing partner, I didn't think this disqualified him.

Six years later an accident ended MY dancing days, and left me permanently operating from a wheelchair. Since one dream of my husband's life had been a good wife, not merely a dancing partner, we coped with this, too, the way we surely an unpredictable "worse" of the "better or worse" of our wedding vows.

With dancing partners separating all around us, we are still happily together. "He who refuses understanding burns the bridge over which he may some day need to pass."

I would like to ask Widow where she thinks I would be today if, 17 years ago my husband "couldn't bear the thought of being married to a woman who couldn't dance."

A surprise birthday party was given for Mrs. Katie Barnett on her 64th birthday recently at the Lefors Civic Center.

Music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Sims and Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Duckworth.

Mrs. Barnett was escorted to the party by her son, Steven W. Wooten, and son-in-law, Sid Laughlin. They presented her with a corsage of white and orchid carnations.

Her children attending were Mrs. Glenn Fisher and sons of Copper Cove, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Steven W. Wooten and children. Mr. and Mrs. S.A. Laughlin and children, all of Pampa.

Guests attending were her mother, Mrs. Maggie Head of Stroud, Okla., her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Head of Oklahoma City; three sisters and two brothers-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Howell of Pampa, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Smith of Dumas and Mrs. Ruth Litterall of Borger; a nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Gates of Pampa and many friends.

Hostesses for the party were Mrs. Yevetta Wooten and Mrs. Oma Lee Laughlin.

Art Center Membership Campaign Slated Here

Mrs. Raymond Harrah
...art council member

Mrs. Raymond Harrah of Pampa, member of the Amarillo Art Center regional council, held a meeting for membership drive captains recently, with Mrs. Guyon Saunders, regional membership chairman, and Mrs. Tom Marsh, both of Amarillo, speaking on the art center and drive goals.

An annual operating budget of $12,000 is required to maintain the new art center facility and to bring in quality exhibits which will fill the galleries in a continuously changing program, according to Mrs. Saunders. She further stated broad and diverse educational programs are being developed which will have a tremendous impact on the lives of everyone in the region.

L. P. (Petes) Gilvin, co-chairman of the regional campaign, has explained that sustaining members are essential to the achievement of the annual budget to enable the art center to provide a complete program of fine art services to all Panhandle communities.

Among programs envisioned for the art center are touring exhibitions to be taken to towns throughout the Panhandle and illustrated lecture series to be presented throughout the area, according to Thomas P. Matthews, art center director.

Already developed at the art center is a docent program to provide at least 20 trained mentors to conduct tours of works on exhibit and to visit area schools to present programs of slides, illustrations, posters, and programmed tapes, Matthews said.

A pilot program of art instruction for children between the ages of five and 15 has been enthusiastically received in Tulia, Dumas, and Canyon, according to Mrs. Marsh, president of the Amarillo Art Center Association.

Members of the Regional Council are Dr. Edward Thomas, Paul Engler, Mrs. Hugh Gilmore, Mrs. Bud Smith, Max Sherman, Mrs. George Wyatt, all of Amarillo; Mrs. Louis Seliger of Borger; Malouf Abraham of Canadian; Mrs. Ned Burson of Channing; Mrs. and Mrs. Fred Chamberlain of Clarendon; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wooldridge of Claude; Ray Koehler of Dalhart; Mrs. Raymond Harrah and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Johnson, all of Pampa; Mrs. Ralph Randel of Panhandle; and Mrs. L.D. Butler of Tulia.

The eight classifications for memberships will be student, $5; single, $10; family, $25; subscriber, $50; friend or participating, $100; associate or supporting, $250; fellow or sustaining, $500; contributing or sponsor, $1,000; and benefactor or patron, $5,000.

Benefits for the student, single and family memberships include free copies of the monthly calendar, free

Close Together

At its most western point, the Alaskan mainland is only 51 miles from Russia. Alaska's Little Diomed Island, in the Bering Strait, is about 2 1/2 miles from Russia's Big Diomed Island. No other part of North America lies so close to Asia.

Inaugural dedication of the Art Center has been set for Sept. 29 and '30, but informal introduction to the center began last month.

Located on the Amarillo College campus, the Art Center joins a music building and a concert hall-theater to form a 66,000-square-foot fine arts complex.

Designed by Edward Durrell Stone, architect for the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., the Art Center includes a laboratory for painting, sculpture, ceramics, and welding as well as galleries.

Outside the Art Center building are paved ramps, grassed ramps, an amphitheater and an open plaza, for use in multiple-type exhibitions.

The educational philosophy permits the Art Center to utilize and develop the widest range of instructional facilities. The Center is working with other art centers and museums in order to develop a comprehensive program to help develop the quality of life so much demanded by the people of this area.

Other programs of the Art Center will include film showings—such as the "Civilization" series, which began last month, films on art and artists and films presenting cinematography as an art medium itself.

A series of illustrated lectures by outstanding and nationally known artists, collectors, and museum curators will also be presented.

An art reference library will be open to the public and will include initially 5,000 slide photographs as well as books and periodicals. Plans are being formulated for a lending service for area educators.

Governing the Art Center is a Board of Trustees composed of four members from the Amarillo College board of regents, seven members from the Art Center Association Board, two members from the Junior League, and two civic leaders. Future plans include having area representation on the Art Center board.

Art Center operation hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday, with no admission charge on any day.

admission to exhibits and some film programs, use of the reference library, a five per cent discount on class fees and holiday programs for families.

The subscriber classification includes those benefits with the class fee discount set at ten per cent. The $100 membership includes the same privileges plus a special bulletin, invitations to previews and free tickets to lectures.

The $250 membership includes the privileges mentioned, with the class fee discount set at 25 per cent, plus a discount on art books.

The $500 membership includes the other privileges with membership in the Fellow Club and attendance at selected programs.

The $1,000 and $5,000 memberships include all the privileges plus a special lending program of original works of art.

THURSDAY, MAY 11

Your birthday today; A few months of preparation are needed for the projects you can launch later this year. Most of them are personal and most of them promise rather good material gains on reasonably short notice. Today's natives have the latent possibility of sudden recognition, having quietly developed special abilities.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: If you can sense and put modern ideas to use, the future is insured for you. Changes come fast now and for some weeks ahead.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Observe and learn quietly; the time isn't ripe for overt moves toward your most cherished goals. Side issues are useful to see where people stand.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: If you discuss your plans someone almost certainly disagrees or does not understand; therefore, use discretion and try to mend any past discord.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: Local, short-term movement is indicated, with temporary solutions lasting a little longer than planned. Your judgment improves.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: It is unlikely that you can stick to routine or old habits; moderation in your experiments is advised, particularly when changing home arrangements.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Take advantage of any chance to improve your financial security. Family and personal involvements brighten with very little special attention.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Let old scores settle themselves in forgiveness. Loved ones deserve special attention this evening, may not show much of deeper feeling.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Stop to reflect on your progress and position; resolve to better both. Suggestions from friends may be difficult to take, worthy of thought.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: The written record turns out important. Take time to make one this busy day. Bring home a welcome surprise for your loved ones.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Ease past tensions into present harmony. Much of what happens becomes interesting legend later, as people of different experience come forward.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Aside from rearrangements in home and working place, you should try to revise your emotional and mental approach to daily living.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Correspondence, comparison of notes, catching up on family and community news are favored today, being mainly on the constructive, informative side.

Lee Trevino Favored At Colonial Invitational

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Lee Trevino, back in action after a rare week away from the tour, breezed into Fort Worth Tuesday and immediately was installed as the man to beat in the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

"Spring training is over. I'm ready to go," said Trevino, who has yet to win this season.

"I usually start pretty slow," he said, "but my big problem has been that I haven't had time to practice. With my swing—I kind of block it out—my timing has to be just perfect. And that takes practice."

Trevino, athlete of the year and author of an unprecedented sweep of the American, Canadian and British Open titles last year, has been in position to win a couple of times this season but faltered in the final round each time.

He's easily the top gate attraction at this prestigious event that now is the only invitation tournament, other than the Masters, on the tour schedule.

A select field of about 100 has been assembled for the 72-hole test that begins Thursday on the demanding Colonial Country Club course, a wooded 7,142-yard par 70 layout laced by the meandering Trinity River. It is one of the toughest courses the touring pros play all season.

Last year Gene Littler won it with a three-over-par 283, the only time on the tour all season that a winning total was over 280.

Profit Statements Meaningless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two economists said Tuesday it was impossible to determine how much profit a professional basketball team is making without more detailed information on the club owner.

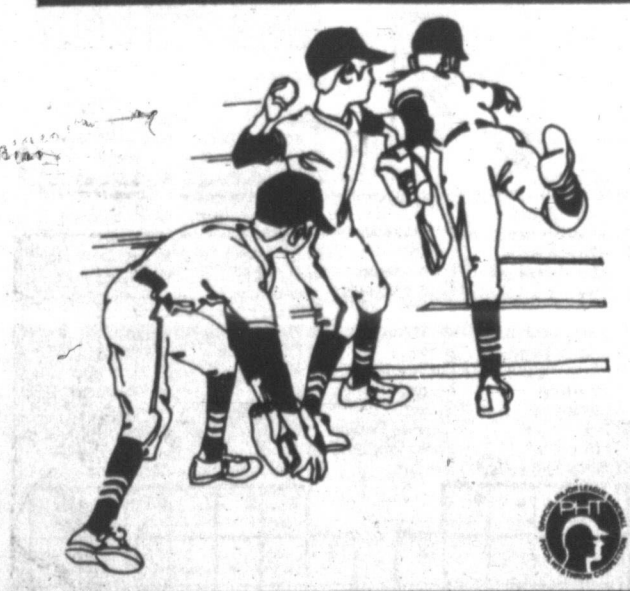

"Because of the differences in practice among teams in how the owners take their profits, and because of the difficulties with the data, the stated book profit figures are virtually meaningless," Roger Noll and Benjamin Okner told the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee.

Appearing briefly to answer questions on testimony given last week, the economists, on leave from the Brookings Institution, said an owner's salary and the use of an automobile, if provided by the club, should be looked on as part of a team's profits.

They said most of the teams in the American Basketball Association and the National Basketball Association are making money, and only "a handful of teams" in the ABA are in danger of going under. But these teams, they said, couldn't make money if the players played for free because of a lack of attendance combined with high overhead.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the subcommittee, holding hearings on a bill that would allow the two leagues to merge, said the subcommittee would adjourn subject to recall by the chairman.

Baseball Tips

4—Throwing

(Fourth of 10 Parts.)

Practice as often as you can. The more you throw, the stronger your arm will get. Every time you throw, grip the ball across the seams where the seams are the widest. This will help to keep the ball from sailing.

Throw the ball straight overhead; that way you can throw harder and more accurately. Work on accuracy first, then on speed. When throwing to another player, try to hit him chest-high.

When fielding a ball, always charge it if you can.

par. Littler still is recovering from major surgery and will not defend his title.

Also among the missing are Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Gary Player and Tony Jacklin. Nicklaus and Palmer are taking time off. Casper is on a tour of Europe and North Africa. Player and Jacklin have returned to their homes in South Africa and England.

Frank Beard, who has a hand injury; and Tommy Aaron, who finished second in last week's Houston Open, withdrew.

The field still includes most of the leading money winners, however, with big George Archer topping the list. Archer, coming off a two-week rest, is second only to Nicklaus in money winnings this season. He has more than $100,000 and has won two tournaments and lost one in a playoff.

Other leading challengers for the $25,000 first prize include Chi Chi Rodriguez, winner of the Byron Nelson Classic two weeks ago, Houston Open winner Bruce Devlin of Australia, young Jerry Heard, rookie Larry Wadkins and former Colonial winners Homero Blancas and Australian Bruce Crampton.

Willie Mays On The Block?

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays apparently won't be coming to New York after all—at least not in a New York Mets uniform.

The Mets said Tuesday that the San Francisco Giants' asking price was simply too high.

"They want players, not money," said M. Donald Grant, the Mets' board chairman. "I told them it was improbable the Mets could provide the personnel they need."

Thus the rumored prospective deal for one of baseball's superstars was cooled in a day.

The Giants reportedly asked for infielder Ted Martinez and one of two pitchers, either John Matlack or Jim McAndrew. The Mets wanted to give the Giants money instead of players.

Grant, however, did not completely close the door on a possible trade.

"I asked Giant owner Horace Stoneham to set up a meeting with Mays, himself, and our people," Grant said. "He promised to do so. He said he will call me as soon as he reaches Mays. So, I won't know anything until Wednesday."

Grant said that he "wanted to make sure that Mays wants to come here. The most important thing to be developed before any further talks are Willie's reaction to coming to the Mets and the conditions attached to such a move."

Mays said he wouldn't mind closing out his playing career in New York, but was annoyed at the way the situation has been handled.

"I don't want to embarrass the Giants," the 41-year-old center fielder said in Montreal, where he was with the team for a game. "But it seems that they feel differently about it. I think I deserve a lot more respect from them than someone else. That's how I feel. I don't know how other people feel."

Some other standouts include Doug Sanders, who tied for second last week, Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, amateur Ben Crenshaw and Miller Barber.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Michigan State football teams have scored 395 victories against 212 losses and 35 ties in 75 years.

Ray Murphy Can't Forget

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Ray Murphy can't forget April 11, 1970.

The former Oklahoma State wrestling star, then a graduate student, was competing in an independent wrestling tournament.

"I got picked up and put down on the side of my head," Murphy recalls.

He has spent the last two years in bed—paralyzed from the neck down—because of the accident.

"I was never unconscious. After they got me to the hospital, they doped me up pretty good, but I remember pretty much what went on."

Murphy fought hard to get onto the wrestling team at OSU and wound up his collegiate career with a second-place finish in the 145-pound weight division of the NCAA Tournament in 1969.

But he's battling a bigger fight now.

"A lot of things that didn't seem important before do now," he says.

Like walking. "Anything," he said with a smile. "Just breathing."

He can breathe by himself for only two hours at a time. The rest of his time is spent with a respirator machine.

But even that's progress. "That started from nothing," Ray Murphy Sr., his father, noted.

"They said the longest anyone had lived with the breathing machine was 12 months. Then they started talking about 18 months, then 24 months."

"He has broken all the known records for breathing. So maybe he'll break the others."

Many who never heard of Ray before have joined his fight. Somewhere in the neighborhood of $50,000 has been raised to defray Ray's medical expenses—thought to be around $100,000 so far.

"We don't know how much money has been raised. We have no personal involvement in that," his father says.

"I do know that hundreds, maybe thousands of people have donated. The situation is probably not unheard of, but it's probably unequalled."

"I do think it's unusual to keep this much interest going for more than two years."

"But Ray has so much will-power and faith, it has flowed over and touched a lot of people."

"He still has it."

Baseball Roundup

By Associated Press

AMERICAN LEAGUE
The baseball strike has been over less than a month but here comes Cleveland's Dick Tidrow starting work earlier so he can stick around longer.

That may violate the basic rules of unionism but Tidrow won't complain if his prescribed earlier warm-ups enable him to pitch better ... and longer. Tuesday night, the rookie right-hander came within one out of his first complete game in the major leagues as the Indians shaded the Kansas City Royals 2-1.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit downed the Chicago White Sox 5-2. Minnesota beat the New York Yankees 4-2. Oakland swept a twin-nighter from Milwaukee 10-2 and 3-0 and Boston edged California 4-3. Texas and Baltimore were rained out.

Tidrow, a 6-foot-4, 210-pounder who will be 24 on Sunday, began warming up 10 minutes earlier than usual Tuesday night.

"His problem was the first or second inning," explained manager Ken Aspromonte. "He never had that trouble before. It had to be in his warm-ups. So we started early. Spahn (pitching coach Warren Spahn) stayed right with him and he threw hard for 25 minutes and we brought him right into the game. Maybe that's the secret. I hope so."

Tidrow couldn't have pitched much better. He had a two-hit shutout with two out in the ninth when Lou Piniella homered for Kansas City. After a walk and a single, Steve Mingo came on to get the last out.

Tidrow also delivered a two-out single in the eighth inning and Del Unser followed with a homer for the Cleveland runs. Piniella's home run ended a string of 34 scoreless innings by the Cleveland pitching staff.

The White Sox also ended a skein of 34 scoreless innings ... by their pious hitters, not their pitchers. The two runs they scored in the ninth inning were too little and too late to prevent their third consecutive setback.

Ed Brinkman's run-scoring single and pitcher Joe Coleman's suicide squeeze bunt gave the Tigers a 2-0 lead in the seventh inning. They added a run in the eighth on Norm Cash's RBI single and two in the ninth on a single by Aurelio Rodriguez and Bill Freehan's infield out.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Juan Marichal never has had a losing season since joining the San Francisco Giants in 1960. Starting this season, he had the best winning percentage among active National League pitchers with more than one year of service, compiling a .670 mark on 221 victories and 109 losses.

He had pitched 50 shutouts, tops among all active pitchers. He had the third best earned run average in major league history, a 2.94 mark, behind Walter Johnson's 2.37 and Grover Alexander's 2.56.

Now, Marichal is headed for his first losing season. After shutting out Houston 5-0 in the Giants' opening game, he has lost five in a row, including a 7-1 decision to Montreal Tuesday night.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago trounced Cincinnati 7-1. Pittsburgh trimmed Atlanta 5-2. St. Louis edged Houston 2-1, and Los Angeles at New York and San Diego at Philadelphia were rained out.

A complete collapse by the Giants' defense in the sixth inning helped saddle Marichal with his fifth consecutive setback.

The Expos had nicked Marichal for a run in the third on John Boccabella's triple and Tim Foli's sacrifice fly and another in the fourth on Boots Day's RBI single, before scoring four times in the sixth with the help of four San Francisco errors.

Bob Bailey opened the sixth with a single and went to third when Marichal fielded Mike Jorgensen's bunt and threw the

N.Y. Nets Beat Pacers On Indiana's Home Court

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The home court advantage doesn't seem to mean much to the New York Nets and the Indiana Pacers.

Both teams won upset victories on their opponent's courts to move into the American Basketball Association championship playoff, now tied at one game apiece.

The Nets tied it here Tuesday night with a 117-115 victory over the Pacers. The victory came despite a scorching rally in which Indiana scored 16 straight points.

Now the series moves to New York for the third game Friday night and the fourth Monday night. However, neither coach feels the home court advantage will be any more for New York than it was for Indiana.

Pacer coach Bob Leonard said, "We're going to have to go out there and win a ball game or two. It's a five-game series."

He added, "Somebody's going to have to win three out of five."

Lou Carnesecca, Nets coach, said, "It's all even now, and I don't see where going home is going to be any big advantage to us. When you play Indiana and you get this far, it's just how you play the game, each game."

Both coaches said the key to Tuesday night's New York victory was the play of the Nets' guards, particularly Bill Melchioni.

Melchioni, who missed more than a month of the regular season with a broken bone in the leg, hit 10 of 18 shots from the field and six of eight from the free throw line to total 26 points.

He scored 17 in the second half. Rookie John Roche hit eight of 15 field goal attempts, including a three-pointer and wound up with 18 points.

Rick Barry was the game's high scorer with 29 points, including 10 in the final period. His basket with 25 seconds remaining won the game. He added a free throw with three seconds left.

Center Bill Paulitz chipped in 18 points and 15 rebounds for the winners.

The Pacers were led by Roger Brown and George McGinnis with 22 each and Freddie Lewis with 21. McGinnis, who had 11 rebounds, got in foul trouble early in the fourth period and sat out the last 10 minutes of the game.

Coach Hank Stram of the Kansas City Chiefs has a 10-year contract.

Sports Picnic Last Night

Winners of the Most Valuable Player awards in spring sports were announced last night at the annual spring sports picnic.

Jeff Hogan was named for the second year in baseball. Bobby Owen in track, Doug White in golf, Debbie Fletcher in tennis and Cathy Collinsworth in volleyball were the other recipients.

The picnic is sponsored by the Pampa Booster Club to honor the athletes who participate in the spring.

Hammond Signs

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist's versatile Gary Hammond, drafted by the New York Jets of the National Football League, has signed to play for the West in the Coaches All-America Football Game June 24th in Jones Stadium.

Hammond played split end, tailback and quarterback at SMU. He was drafted third by the Jets.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

29—Putting vs. Chipping

On the subject of little shots around the green, the question often comes up: Should you chip or putt from the fringe?

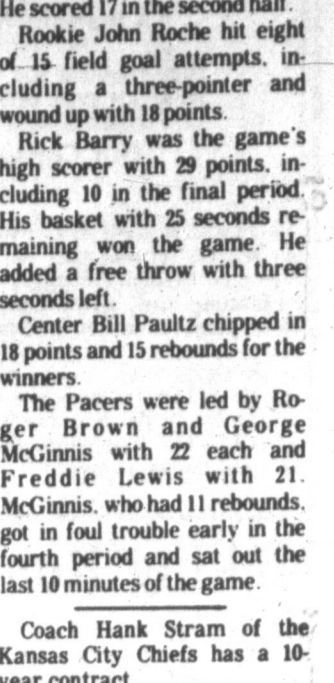

Most average players are inclined to chip the ball from the short grass around the green. I am inclined to putt it, and I think you should be, too.

Generally, the sooner you can get the ball rolling the better off you are, because the ball behaves more predictably on the ground than in the air.

For most players, a bad putt from off the green will turn out about as well as a good chip. Your objective should be to get the ball in the hole in three and be sure you don't take four. Your chances of doing that are usually better with a putter. When in doubt, putt.

Making Roads Safer

New cars manufactured since the first of the year have sensors located under the front seat cushions. If the driver or passenger side is occupied and the car is put into gear without the seat belts being fastened, a loud buzzer sounds and a light flashes on the dashboard.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety reports that a spot check it made of 11 new-car dealers in the Washington area found that salesmen at nine of the agencies were willing to show prospective buyers how the required warning devices could be circumvented or disconnected.

Only two salesmen encouraged seat belt usage, but both also offered to help buyers who wanted to defeat the system.

Granted that the seat belt buzzer is a minor safety feature and may be nothing more than an annoyance to those who refuse to wear seat belts. But the fact that some people will actually go so far as to disconnect the device rather than simply buckle up and shut it off does underscore in a small way a point made by Franklin M. Kreml at the recent annual meeting of the Traffic Safety Association of Detroit.

The nation cannot rely on vehicle improvements alone to reduce highway accident losses, he said.

As a young man Kreml worked his way through law school as a traffic policeman. He joined Northwestern University in the 1930s and eventually established its Transportation center. In 1970, he served as chairman of the President's Task Force on Highway Safety, which last year made its report to the nation under the title, "Mobility Without Mayhem." He is now president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Kreml argues that in addition to required vehicle regulations, a broad-based, balanced safety program must be carried on at the state and local level where the legal responsibility, authority and manpower are.

Among other things, he calls for greater emphasis on improved driver licensing to realistically test the true competence of applicants under real driving conditions, improvement of substandard roads and more uniform traffic laws and more uniform traffic laws and controls.

But how far, he asks, are the people willing to go in support of safety programs that might lead to widely restricted licensing? Are they willing to be stopped on the highway to submit to chemical breath tests for alcoholic intoxication? How much self-discipline are they willing and able to exercise? He credits highway safety programs, supported by both the public and private sectors, with cutting the number of traffic deaths per 100 million miles of vehicle travel from more than 16 in 1936 to the present level of about five.

He notes, however, that it has taken more than 10 years to reduce the rate from six to five and that the number of highway deaths in the same period has risen from an annual level of 40,000 to 55,000.

If the fatality rate is not substantially reduced and if the number of vehicles and miles driven increase as projected, he warns, more than 70,000 people will be killed annually by 1975 and 80,000 annually by 1980.

Vietnam offers greater survivability from a given injury than do large areas of the United States," he says. There is a dire need, particularly in nonurban areas, for adequate systems of aid, transport and medical care for the injured.

The time is at hand for implementing "Mobility Without Mayhem," declares Kreml, and this can only be done by focusing equal attention and resources in all elements of traffic accidents.

Quick Quiz

Q—Where did the muskrat get its name?

A—From its unpleasant musklike odor.

Q—What country was the first to use postage stamps?

A—Great Britain in 1840.

Q—Who is the youngest player ever elected to the National Baseball Hall of Fame?

A—Sandy Koufax, age 36. With 344, he received the highest number of votes ever.

A—Men. More than four of every 100 men are color blind, compared to one of every 200 women.

Q—For how long does a date tree bear fruit?

A—A single tree produces from 100 to 600 pounds of fruit a year, and may bear for 100 years.

Crossroads Report

Dear Editor:

Over several centuries some wise man's saying that "birds of a feather flock together" has been widely accepted as a sort of Law of Nature. But this law has been ruled Unconstitutional by U.S. courts, and Nature might as well accommodate herself to being overruled. It will take some doing but our courts and our bus factories are equal to it, and bird families such as robins may soon have to get used to having their offspring bussed every day over to, say, a cardinal family training session, and vice versa.

I see where federal judges have outlawed some school financing systems because they don't provide all schools with an equal amount of money to spend. Which sets up the dollar as an absolute measure of quality under law. Hereafter, I suppose, all men paying the same price for a marriage license will be guaranteed an equal quality wife, and all lottery tickets costing the same will be of the same value. And it will be Unconstitutional for a $5 cat to be smarter than a $50 dog.

A lot has been said and written here lately about the deplorable living conditions in our jails and penitentiaries, especially by people who are stored in these places. But my pragmatic neighbor doesn't see why it is necessary to improve the accommodations offered at these lock-ins because they are already getting all of the business they can handle. In fact, he says, if prices and taxes don't quit going up it won't be long until the only overprivileged people left in the country will be the jailbirds.

The standard excuse given by the politicians for hog-wild government spending these days is that the people demand same. And it is easy to understand how a pension-hungry political parasite finds it hard to resist the demands of handout-hungry voters. What is not so understandable is how come our great leaders' resistance is so low in this case and so high when it comes to resisting the demands of worker-type voters demanding a bigger take-home slice of what they earn.

I see where a computer is being built which can talk to humans. Being a device which is powered by electricity, it may have one feature which nature neglected to install on human speakers—an "off" button. Also, the conversing computer will have it all over most human talkers with its 1000-word vocabulary. Judging from samples on TV and radio these days, many of our prominent people speakers are really familiar with only two words—pronounced as one—"y'know."

To some unorganized and consequently subcitize types, a labor strike looks like a gang hijacking similar to a congressional pay-raising. Except when it breaks the employer and eliminates their jobs, the strikers usually find one of these unemployment-pay-subsidized and government-sanctified stick-ups to be profitable. But other folks, getting inconvenience, higher prices and higher taxes but no pay increase out of a strike, may feel like victims of hijackers, aided and comforted by the taxjackers.

LAW AND ORDER

Primary election campaigns in scattered parts of the country have brought to the fore political discussions in school busing, civil rights, defense spending, the national budget in general and other matters that ought to be aired. And there have even been some whispers about enforcing the law. It is ironic that in this great Republic of ours the issue of law enforcement should have to be brought into public political discussion. Men who are elected to office are sworn to uphold the constitution and the laws of the land, but alas, they haven't all done it in recent years. We have seen our law enforcement structure crack under fear and intimidation, brought about mostly by far-out decisions of higher courts and by the permissive attitude of men in high political position.

The officer on the beat has been left almost naked as far as the badge is concerned. He has become afraid to arrest the criminal and if he does he must spend time reading to the criminal his "bill of rights" laid down by the decisions of the higher courts. It seems the courts forget to provide a bill of rights for the law-abiding citizen. And so the officer, the man we count on for protection, gropes for the answer, hoping he will do the right thing.

We ought to demand that those men seeking public office declare themselves for our officer on the beat and the citizens he is sworn to protect. We ought to start with our demands this very spring and summer. Let's hammer on it in the primaries and then really make our voices heard in the general election campaign. Permission of crime has gone too far. It's time to halt crime and start protecting society.

VIEWPOINT

JESSE HELMS

Let's Bus The Busers Out Of Office

Good cheer is not the most abundant of commodities in these days of travail, but it is beginning to appear that this new year may offer a measure of hope to frustrated parents and children who have been tormented by the dictatorial forced busing schemes of their federal race-mixing masters.

Along the Potomac, the politicians are looking to the future—specifically to November when the voters will be going to the polls to decide who shall hold public office in the coming years. And there is no way that any of them, from the President on down, can evade and avoid the issue of forced busing of school children. For once, the people are demanding relief; they are demanding that the President and the Congress do more than give lip service to the issue that has angered millions of Americans. In short, the Honorables, in this year 1972, will have to put up or shut up.

Even Congressman Emanuel Celler of New York is getting the message. Mr. Celler, who will be 84 next May, has been in Congress so long, and has been so consistently devoted to leftwing causes, that he now operates as the flagship of the ultra-liberal armada in the House of Representatives. By reason of seniority, he long ago moved into the chairmanship of the House Judiciary Committee, a vantage point from which he has constantly blasted American liberties out of the water. He wields awesome power, and has throttled countless efforts over the years to restore a measure of sanity to the country.

But, as we say, even Congressman Celler is getting the message. As a result, there were reports from Washington early last month that he will, at long last, bow to public demand and allow hearings to begin on a proposed constitutional amendment which would outlaw forced busing.

But it is not a matter of the Congressman's having acknowledged that forced busing is wrong, and that it is destroying the quality of public education throughout the land. It is, rather, a matter of the people having—once—protested long enough, loud enough, to get the attention of a sufficient number of politicians to strike terror in their hearts in an election year.

At last count, some 70 Congressmen had introduced resolutions calling for a constitutional amendment to outlaw forced busing. Several North Carolina Congressmen have either introduced such resolutions, or co-sponsored resolutions introduced by others. But, ironically, the resolution receiving the most attention was introduced by one of Congressman Celler's fellow New Yorkers, Congressman Norman Lent. At last count, nearly 150 Congressmen had not only joined in Congressman Lent's effort; they had also signed a petition to take the legislation out of the tight fist of Emanuel Celler and bring it out to the floor of the House of Representatives. Under such procedure, no hearings would even be necessary; the House of Representatives would have to approve it or reject it. And, in an election year, what Congressman—even the most liberal—would dare to vote against a proposition so dear to the hearts of millions of Americans?

So Congressman Celler, who personally would like to continue forced busing of children, is in the position of having to choose the lesser of evils—as he sees them. If he continues to refuse to let the constitutional amendment proposal be heard, then there will shortly be the necessary 218 Congressmen demanding that the legislation be taken away from the control of Congressman Celler and his committee.

So when this year ends, it may be that the American people will be well on the way to regaining one of the freedoms that they have lost at the hands of federal judges and federal bureaucrats. It will be a victory of the people, by the people and for the people—a victory they were able to win because they persisted in their fight. Other lost freedoms could be regained the same way—with the same effort. Politicians are consistent in at least one thing: They are mindful of election returns.—The American Way Features

Question Box

QUESTION: Are not the conventions, held supposedly for the selection of the presidential candidates, purely a farce to deceive the public? For example, it is a foregone conclusion that Nixon will be chosen by the delegates to the Republican convention. Also, it was probably decided months ago whom the delegates to the Democratic convention will pick, regardless of the primary elections.

—R.J.

ANSWER: Until the presidency of Chester A. Arthur, a change in the national administration was accompanied by a general housecleaning of federal job holders. Following the assassination of James A. Garfield in the midst of a bitter patronage battle, President Arthur in 1883 signed a civil service bill that established life-tenured bureaucracy. The consequence was to convert the American government from a three-branch system, comprised of the legislative, executive and judicial—to a one-branch system comprised of permanent office holders.

Thereafter elective offices were reduced in on-going importance. Their effect on the course of government from that point on was transient, whereas the effect of the bureaucracy was to be continuous and persistent.

Today, elective offices on the federal level are little more than the vestigial remains of the original republic. They attract some attention. There is an occasional flurry of momentary effectiveness, but the main function of government today is conducted by and through the permanent office holders established by the various civil service acts.

One continuing use of the election appendage is to create the propaganda illusion—the electioneering hoopla—that causes the majority of individuals to suppose that they control the collective destiny because they are exercising a choice at the polls. That choice has about as much bearing on future U.S. policy as the outcome of the world series.

The presidency itself has not been entirely eclipsed by civil service. The thousands and thousands of federal employees, all with a vested interest in their paychecks, constitute a powerful influence on whoever shall occupy that position. It is simply a larger edition of the fact that city hall names the city council.

Operating from outside the government and through both the bureaucracy and the elective offices are the twin influences of Big Money and Big Union. The principal consideration of these influences is not the name of the person who occupies the White House, but rather that any person—who ever he is—does not become an obstacle to their objectives.

There is, in our belief, a pre-selection of "safe" candidates long before the national conventions ever come to pass.

You will find, as you look back upon your life, that the moments that stand out are the moments when you have done things for others.—Henry Drummond, Scottish author.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The World Almanac recalls that prior to his election in 1860 Abraham Lincoln received a letter from Grace Bell, 11, suggesting that he grow whiskers, because "All the ladies like whiskers and they would tease their husbands to vote for you..." Lincoln started his beard after his election; he became the first U.S. president to have one.

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles might head for Harvard's Business School after he finishes the three years of Navy duty that he began last fall, the Daily Mail says.

The newspaper said the future king's parents recently discussed his future with him and his uncle, Earl Mountbatten, an influential figure behind the prince's education.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman for the Brooke Army Medical Center says former President Lyndon B. Johnson plans to enter the hospital briefly within the next few days.

Johnson's physician said Monday the visit will be for a followup examination related to his recent heart attack. The doctor stressed that the examination is routine.

The former president was stricken April 7 while visiting his daughter and son-in-law in Charlottesville, Va. He was hospitalized in Virginia and later at Brooke before he returned to his ranch 65 miles north of San Antonio.

The view at Phu Bai—garbage of war

Where Did All the Money Go?

By TOM TIEDE

PHU BAI, Vietnam — (NEA) — By spring of 1972, it had cost the United States about $120 billion to wage the war in this country, and some of that price is clearly visible here — rotting away in a gigantic refuse dump.

As far, almost, as the eye can see:

Hundreds of typewriters. Sprawling dunes of abandoned artillery canisters. Huge containers of hammers and saws and drills and screwdrivers and wrenches. Plumbing fixtures buried in the dirt. Air-conditioning units. Old gas stoves. Layer upon layer of tires. Refrigerators. Foot lockers. And melting batteries.

It is an arresting sight. Thirty, perhaps 40 thousand tons of trash.

The leftovers of an agonizing era.

This is the Phu Bai Army property disposal dump, one of seven in South Vietnam. It is a mountain range of taxpayer's generosity and GI sweat. Shot-apart helicopter engines. Bullet-pocked generators. Flak vests filled with flak. A village of Conex containers.

It litters, this junk, for thousands of yards over a series of hills just below the battles of the spring offensive. Even now troops rush to and from the action on a nearby highway known as "La Rue Sans Jois," the street without joy. Even now, closer in, Vietnamese kids with helmets too big practice bayonet drill, in cadet training, for battles yet to come. But here on this hill the war is over. This is the leavings of an army retreating from the fight.

Boxes of IBM cards. Adding machines rusting in puddles. Olive drab water heaters. Old ammunition belts. Spindles of rusty wire.

The cost of the rubbish is not known. Millions, no doubt. But in this war, that is hardly a wink of a Pentagon eye. The $120 billion mentioned earlier is merely a guess at the Vietnam price tag. It is used because the exact cost has never been computed. Inflation is responsible for some of it, yet it is twice the expense of Korea ($54 billion), four times that of World War II ($26 billion) and 40 times that of the Civil War (about $3 billion).

Moreover, the $120 billion figure is not the end of it. A University of Utah economist has calculated that the veterans benefits for Vietnam will amount to $220 billion over the years, which, counting interest, will make the war's total cost nearer $360 billion.

But the $120 billion is a good working figure. It's about $600 for every U.S. citizen, about $150,000 for every enemy dead, about $2 million for each of the 55,000 dead GIs.

Where did all the money go? Up in smoke, at least some of it. Seven billion worth of aircraft (more than 8,125 planes and helicopters) have been destroyed. During the peak years of the war, the United States spent more than $2 billion a year on air fire and nearly $3 billion annually on ground ammunition. Each time a jet fighter goes on a mission here, it expends from $10,000 to $30,000 worth of fuel and munitions. Every time a large

Pampa High School Student Presented Slide Of Rules

Jerry Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Kelly, 305 Roberta, has been named as the Texas Chemical Council winner of a slide rule.

A senior at Pampa High School ranking in the top 10 of his class, Kelly is one of 147 seniors in Texas being awarded slide rules for excellence in chemistry, science and math.

Kelly plans to attend Texas Tech University and major in physical chemistry.

artillery shell is fired it is at least a $50 bang.

Then there have been the salaries for the 2.5 million GIs who've served here, the incalculable costs of transportation (a helicopter is worth about $250 an hour in the air), the boggling billions for logistics—and, it is no secret, the sad economics of utter waste.

Which brings us back to the Phu Bai property disposal dump.

The site is closed now. Most of the U.S. forces have left this area. And it has been signed over to the Vietnamese. Officials say that bids have been let for metal salvaging operations, which means the United States may still get a few dollars a ton for the scrap.

Meanwhile, the Vietnamese are doing some salvaging on the sly. The few armed guards here are regularly bribed by scavengers. The "Yung Cam" (Keep Out) signs have been beaten down by trampling feet. From a vacuum and high voltage apparatus.

Texas Chemical Council President R. Henry Featherston of Corpus Christi said the intent of the Council is to encourage the state's outstanding high school students to pursue a chemical career or to continue studies in the science field.

In addition to receiving the slide rules, the award winners have been invited to participate in an essay contest with the winning writer and his school splitting equally $1000 in cash awards.

distance the peasants can be seen crawling over the piles like insects. Up close, they disappear, into the brush, inside a container, behind a tractor tire, beneath a tent.

And so, up close, there is no sound at this dump, except the wind. A butterfly sits on the iron bed. A rat moves from a lamp to a field radio. A guard sits on a truck fender, smoking.

Hard Truths About Easy Money

By CARLTON SMITH

It is pleasant to make money without having to sweat for it. Almost everyone shares this view of easy money, but there are two different ways of seeking the golden fleece. This tends to divide the world into two kinds of people.

There are those who seek to lay up riches by devising easy-money schemes for the others . . . and there are the others. The latter are the ones who get fleeced.

We need to be reminded frequently that almost no easy-money scheme ever improves the financial position of anyone except the promoter of the scheme, and there have been several such reminders in recent weeks:

• One of the costliest of fur coats is provided by a cunning little animal, the chinchilla. It might be reasonable to believe, then, that if you acquired a couple of affectionate chinchillas and arranged for them to have numerous offspring, you'd have a small gold mine going in the basement, or garage or wherever.

It seemed reasonable to the hundreds of victims, spread over 20 states, who were swindled out of more than $2 million before postal inspectors broke up the caper with mail fraud convictions in Des Moines not long ago. The plot called for buying your breeding stock from the promoters—who promised to buy back, in turn, all the furry offspring that mama and papa chinchilla could produce.

The catch was, said the postal inspectors, that the breeding stock was sold "at inflated prices of $400 per animal," and the buy-back promise was a fraud.

You may wonder why the victims didn't ask themselves one question—or ask it of the promoters: "If there's all that money in breeding chinchillas, why aren't you raising them?" It's a hard-to-answer question of the kind that will often expose the fallacy of an easy-money promotion. Try it, if you're ever tempted by some plausible-sounding scheme.

• By paying the required fee, you could have become a "field correspondent" for a Mineola, N.Y., organization engaged, it said, in new-product testing. You'd get free merchandise to use in your home, and up to $100 per report for your opinion of its consumer appeal and marketability.

A federal grand jury recently returned a 57-count indictment against the two individuals who'd been collecting all the fees — and neglecting, said the postal inspectors, to do anything else for their "field correspondents" except pocket their fees.

Question: Why should consumers doing product-testing for a legitimate operation be required to pay a fee? Your suspicions should be thoroughly aroused by any easy-money scheme which has, as its first proposition, your paying a fee.

• The fee turns up again in another mail-fraud conviction in Laguna Beach, Cal. First, you were offered an opportunity to make money addressing envelopes at home. But since you'd got in on the ground floor, you were to be relieved of that drudgery. You could—for a fee—become an "agent" of the company, and make money by recruiting other people to address envelopes.

So it goes. Remember, when the easy-money opportunity comes your way, that there are two kinds of people in the world. There are those who devise the schemes . . . and the others.
