

On Father's Day The News ran a story about how some of the folks in Pampa remember their fathers and what they had learned from them.

Like most others, I believe my father to be one of the best around and from him I learned two things that none of those interviewed for The News story mentioned.

1 The importance of a sense of humor

2 The idea that I could do anything I set my mind to

Now, that second idea has some built-in lessons which had to be learned with it, lessons such as realizing limitations.

So I'll never be able to match tennis skills with Crispe Everet or Jeanette Gikas, and I'll never be another John Cardy or Erma Bombeck. But watch out Neil Simon and Sally Quinn.

The July 3-4 weekend will climax many months of planning and working by the Gray County Bicentennial Committee and hundreds of volunteers from throughout the area.

"Windmill Country," the pageant which dramatizes Gray County history, is in rehearsal at Pampa High School. Performance by the cast of nearly 50 actors and musicians will be at 8 p.m. Saturday, July 3.

Director Gus Shaver and producer Vickie Moose still need a little help with such things as props and sets; plans for a cast party are already underway. Nancy Pool reports that barbecue tickets for July 4 in the park are going fast but there will be plenty for everyone who wants one in the next week or week and a half. Pat Rich says she'll accept exhibits for the Heritage Fair until Thursday.

The Chamber of Commerce fireworks display promises to be breathtaking. Not only will there be the traditional aerial fireworks, but the Chamber has bought some ground displays which will depict such things as battles and Paul Revere.

And the Pampa High School band and Sue Higdon will produce music by which to watch fireworks.

The addition to the White Deer Land Museum, a community-wide religious service, demonstrations and games from past and present Gray County, a salute to Gray County pioneers — the weekend will bustle with activities.

If you haven't played a part of making the weekend possible, help to insure its success. Be there; make the nation's bicentennial and the formation of the county's centennial personal.

The Pampa News is planning to be a part of the weekend extravaganza, too, by publishing a collectors' section about the county's history. The bicentennial special will be with the July 4 paper.

Other communities are baking birthday cakes for the United States.

The biggest one, according to the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, is a five-story, high chocolate cake which will be 42 feet across and weigh 49,000 pounds.

It will be baked and decorated by the Kitchens of Sara Lee and will be transported on a five-truck convoy. Final display will be in Philadelphia's Memorial Hall.

Decorations will include 120 historic scenes and seals of all US states and territories.

Brownsville, Tex., will have a bicentennial birthday cake made of 20 sheet cakes all decorated with scenes from American history. The cakes will be displayed as a patchwork quilt and served free on July 4.

The National Archives will cut its 36-inch base butter pound cake with an American sword from its collection.

Other communities will have birthday cake baking contests. Baltimore will float a 50 by 20 by 8 feet cake decorated with 200 electric candles on a barge to Ft. McHenry.

Teamsters indicted for murder

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New York Teamsters Union leader, Anthony Tony Provenzano, and three other men have been indicted on federal charges of kidnaping and conspiring to murder another New York Teamsters leader 15 years ago, the Justice Department announced today.

The four men were charged in the disappearance and death of Anthony Castellito, who was secretary treasurer of Teamsters Local 560 at the time of his death in 1961.

Provenzano, 59, now is secretary treasurer of the teamsters local. He also has been a focus of investigators' interest in connection with the disappearance and apparent death of former Teamsters president James R. Hoffa.

The sealed indictment was returned in U.S. District Court in New York on Tuesday and opened today. Provenzano and two of the other men also were indicted by a county grand jury for murdering Castellito.

The others indicted along with Provenzano are Salvatore Briguglio, 46, business agent for Local 560, Harold Konigsberg, 47, currently jailed at the Clinton Correctional Institution in Dannemora, N.Y., and George Vangelakos, 47, an employe of a Bayonne, N.J. trucking firm.

Provenzano, Briguglio and Konigsberg also were named defendants in the murder indictment returned in Ulster County, N.Y.

The department said Provenzano and Briguglio were arrested today by FBI agents. The indictment charged that the four men conspired from Jan. 1, 1961, to Sept. 30, 1961, to kidnap Castellito for the purpose of murdering him.

The defendants, along with two unindicted coconspirators, agreed to lure Castellito from New Jersey to his farm in Ulster County where he was murdered by Briguglio, Konigsberg and the unindicted coconspirators, the indictment said.

The unindicted coconspirators are Salvatore Sinno and Edward Skowron.

While Castellito was being killed Vangelakos dug a grave for the body, the indictment said. But the burial plan was changed and the body was taken back to New Jersey and buried there, the indictment said.

Provenzano arranged the scheme and paid Konigsberg $15,000 for his participation in the murder, the government charged.

Provenzano appointed Briguglio as business agent for the Teamsters local as his reward for joining in the scheme, the indictment said.

And Provenzano arranged to be in Florida during the time when Anthony Castellito was to be murdered.

The murder was committed on June 5, 1961, the indictment said.

Each of the two counts of the federal indictment carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Hoffa has been missing since July 30, 1975, but his body has never been discovered and no one has been charged in connection with the disappearance.

The federal investigation of Hoffa's disappearance focused on Provenzano who served prison time with Hoffa and reportedly opposed his attempt to regain the union presidency.

Law enforcement authorities in New Jersey have said Provenzano has had a long-time connection with organized crime.

Before his disappearance, Hoffa told his wife he was planning to meet Provenzano and Anthony Giacalone, a long time gangster in Detroit, at a restaurant in a Detroit suburb. Hoffa was last seen in the restaurant parking lot.

Provenzano has denied that he was supposed to meet Hoffa and has denied threatening Hoffa's life.

The investigation of Hoffa's disappearance also involved Briguglio, whom New Jersey authorities have described as Provenzano's right-hand man and also a figure in the Mafia.

White Deer won't allow rate hike

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

PANHANDLE — The White Deer City Council won't allow General Telephone Co. of the Southwest to raise its rates.

As a result the company has asked the 100th District Court here to issue an injunction prohibiting the city from interfering with the local exchange in "charging and collecting fair and reasonable rates."

Judge Robert Montgomery of Memphis has taken the case under advisement. He ordered attorneys for both sides to file briefs supporting their respective positions by last Friday.

Virgil James, mayor, said today the decision could be forthcoming anytime.

"We're waiting," he said. James said representatives of the telephone company first came to White Deer and presented a proposal to raise the rates an overall 29.5 per cent.

"It ended up that it was going to raise the rates for a private line 42 per cent. We declined," James said.

In the meantime, the phone company made a counter offer, which was also rejected by the City Council.

"They still think they deserve more money," James said.

Ernest Langley of Hereford, attorney for the city council, said the council believes it has the right to set the rates.

"They are fair and equitable rates, and if the telephone company gets a judgment it will charge whatever," Langley said.

Attorneys for the San Angelo-based telephone company contend that the current rates allow the company only a 4.97 per cent annual return on its investment, before payment of interest on borrowed money.

The gross revenues from General Telephone's White Deer exchange have been and are unreasonably and unlawfully low, and result in the illegal confiscation here complained of," according to Stephen W. Holt of San Angelo, attorney for the telephone exchange.

He added that because telephone rates may not be established retroactively, each day that company is required to charge the rates now in effect as set forth in the city ordinance results in "daily confiscation of plaintiff's property, which loss is irretrievable."

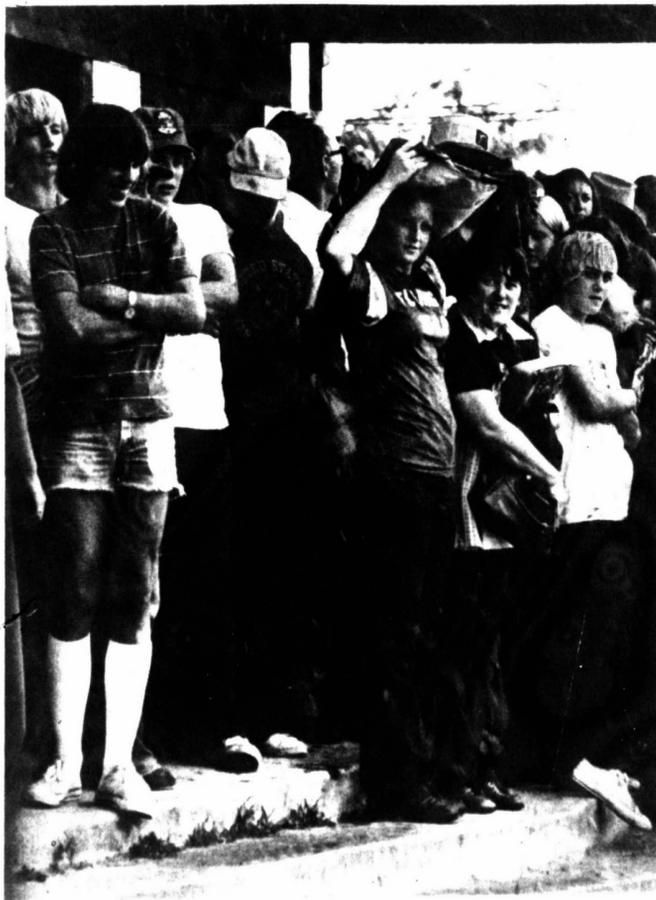

In a statement dated March 31, 1975, the telephone company shows $216,661 as fair value of its exchange property at White Deer with $10,904 or 4.97 per cent return on its investment.

The monthly rates which became effective on Sept. 7, 1974 show an individual line service for business at $15.20 plus $1.75 for an extension.

Under residence, an individual line service is $6.10; a two party line service, $5.15 with $1.25 for extensions.

Under semipublic classification individual line service for business is $15.20, and key lines are $19 with PBX-PABX trunks at $26.60.

Defendants in the suit are the City of White Deer, Virgil James, mayor, Dean Wyatt, Owen Lafferty, Cohen Gallegly and Harry Hughes, all members of the City Council.

Rain delay

Tuesday evening's rain shower postponed play in a Babe Ruth baseball contest at Optimist Park, sending fans and players scurrying for cover. The rain didn't last long, and play was resumed. While only small amounts of rainfall were reported near Pampa Tuesday, Layton Barton, assistant Gray County extension service officer, said it was sufficient to halt wheat harvest temporarily. Rainfall within the county ranged from .07 to about .25 with pea size hail falling in some parts of the city Tuesday night.

City notifies owners of abandoned buildings

By TEX DEWEES
Pampa News Staff

City Manager Mack Wofford said today letters will go out to owners of 26 abandoned buildings that have been on past public hearing lists for removal advising them to notify City Hall whether they plan to repair the structures or have them removed.

The city manager said he had sent letters to the owners before requesting a reply by June 8. Only two of them answered, Wofford stated.

He added that he hoped to get agreement from the mayor and city commissioners to set July 13 as the deadline for replies to his final letter.

If definite answers are not received, the city manager indicated the city will be forced to take action under an ordinance which labels dilapidated buildings dangerous to the public health and safety of the community.

City commissioners learned at their Tuesday meeting nothing has been done to 22 of the buildings on the abandoned structures list.

It was also reported that three of the buildings currently are occupied although no repairs have been made. Two are being torn down.

"We do not want to take residents out of a building that is useable under health and safety laws," Wofford said, "and we don't want to remove any building that the owner plans to repair. But we do expect to hear from the owners on just what their intentions are."

The city manager said the letters to be sent out within the next day or so will contain the final notice.

Notices, he stated, will go to owners of the following structures: 813 Campbell, 331-33 Sunset Dr., 509 Roberta, 800 and 804 Deane Dr., 1101 Huff, 228 and 231 W. Craven, 303 S. Russell, 515 Yeager, 412 Louisiana, 640 N. Christy, 1413 Ripley, 333 Roberta, 504 and 528 Doyle, 601 Roberta, 1816 W. Browning, 423 Davis, 320 N. Banks, 500 N. Christy, 630 Roberta, 910-12 S. Faulkner, 506 N. Cuyler and 804 E. Harvester.

Trustees okay payment before seeing bills

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

The Pampa Independent School District board of trustees authorized in a Tuesday meeting the payment of June bills without prior board approval.

The board normally studies and approves due bills and invoices before payment. The change in this procedure was authorized "for this one time," Paul Simmons, board president, said, because of a change in the meeting schedule in July.

Normally held on the first and third Mondays of each month, with bills approved at the second meeting, the July sessions will be held on the second and fourth Mondays to accommodate the schedule of the incoming superintendent.

Dwain Walker, PISD business manager, said the bills would not be ready by the second Monday meeting and if not approved until the fourth Monday session, payment would be "pretty late."

Walker said he expects to have the necessary budget information together by the July 12 meeting so that the board can set a tax rate.

"There's going to be a lot of sincere interest in these budget hearings," Trustee Bill Arrington predicted, "so I think it will be a lengthy meeting."

To which Walker replied, "We could arrange it in a series of not-so-drawn-out meetings... and it would work much better for our staff, too."

Walker explained that instead of considering the entire budget — including all the budget requests by school principals and department heads — he would prepare it so that the budget can be broken down and considered department by department.

In other business, Walker recommended that the fee paid to the auditing firm of Nerstiel and Doggett be increased for their services in auditing the 1975-76 financial records.

For auditing the 1974-75 records the firm was paid $2,500 plus $250 for completed CASFA (federally funded) projects. Walker recommended and the board approved a raise to $3,500, which will include the CASFA projects.

Walker said the raise is justified because of the additional time the firm will require to audit due to 1975-76 being the first year the school system has operated on a computerized system.

"In addition to that," Walker explained today, "the number of accounts involved has been expanded probably five times."

He said the expansion is due to the budget being broken down into campuses rather than having all schools included in a single budget. The process enables each principal, the board members and the administration to keep closer tabs on expenditures, Walker explained.

The board also approved a contract for data processing services for the 1976-77 school year. The contract with the Region XVI Education Service Center will cost the PISD a total of $11,428.

In backgrounding his proposal that the board approve the contract, Walker said:

"For several years now, the Pampa Independent School District has contracted with Region XVI Education Service Center to provide computer services in the areas of student scheduling, grade reporting, and attendance accounting at the high school. In January, 1975, the payroll was added to the contract. With the beginning of the 1975-76 school year, financial accounting and property inventory accounting were included in the computer services contract."

The business manager added that his opinion is that "... it is essential for the district to continue these additional services in order to provide the necessary control and data for administrative and board decision making."

Following a lengthy closed executive session, the board reconvened and acted in personnel matters.

The resignation of Ronnie White, High School baseball coach, was accepted.

Floyd Hood was re-assigned from teaching physical education in middle school to coaching and teaching history in the junior high school.

Otto Mangold, currently employed in the PISD tax office, was hired to replace Hood as physical education teacher in Middle School.

Boston public employes picket despite order

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Picketing was reported heavier today at most state facilities as the pay-dispute strike by public employes went into its third day despite a court order to end the walkout.

Howard Doyle, president of the coalition representing the state workers, said this morning he would not order strikers back to work despite the court order.

Striking workers at two sewage treatment plants did return to work to halt raw sewage from emptying into Boston Harbor and pickets were lifted at some state hospitals.

But police and union spokesmen said more people were picketing at most state office buildings, welfare offices, prisons, and other state facilities across the state.

The governor's office said about 20,000 of the state's 65,000 employes continued to stay out. Union officials said they do not know how many people are striking or honoring the picket lines.

The impact of the strike on average Massachusetts residents has ranged from inconvenience to major disruption.

—In some cases, welfare checks were delayed, causing hardships for those on public assistance.

—At the Registry of Motor Vehicle offices, issuance of new license plates and transfer of automobile registrations were postponed.

—Employes of private construction companies working on state contracts find they are out of work. There are no state inspectors to visit the construction sites.

—Some couples will have to revise their wedding plans. State public health officials said a state laboratory has stopped accepting blood samples for the premarital blood tests required by state law.

—Bathers swim at their own risk at state beaches where there are no lifeguards on duty.

However, in many cases, the average Massachusetts resident is not terribly concerned. An announcer on a Cape Cod radio station asked for call: Tuesday from residents affected by the walkout: "Not a single person called on the subject," he said.

Judge Thomas E. Morse, at a court hearing Tuesday, ordered union leaders back into court today to explain why they could not be held in contempt for continuing the strike by members of the Alliance, a coalition of unions representing some 50,000 state workers.

The walkout was called after more than three months of negotiations over wages ended in an impasse.

At the judge's urging, state and union negotiators finally agreed to the appointment of a mediator — Eric Schmertz of New York City — to enter the dispute. Morse ordered both sides to begin meeting with the mediator today.

The statewide strike by public employes — the first in Massachusetts history — is prohibited by law.

Auto exec. off base

For our money, Chrysler president, Eugene A. Cafiero, is strictly off base with his proposal that the wearing of auto seat belts be made mandatory by law.

Apparently the auto executive has forgotten, if he ever knew, the lesson he should have learned from Prohibition; i.e., that people — especially in this country with its tradition of individuals making such decisions for themselves — just don't take kindly to having other people's ideas forcibly imposed.

Prohibition, that ill-fated attempt to make everyone teetotalers by legislative decree, exploded in its proponents' faces. People who had never used alcohol before look to drinking just to show their defiance, the law was generally ignored, proved to be unenforceable, and was finally repealed. But only after attempts to enforce it had cost the taxpayers untold millions of dollars and the concept of law, itself, had suffered a loss of respect from which it has never recovered.

This is not to say that the use of seat belts is not wise; to the contrary, we, along with president Cafiero, believe that their use will save lives and reduce serious injuries in automobile accidents. As the Chrysler executive pointed out, ninety-five percent of cars in this country have some kind of belt system and, if only 80 percent of them were used, studies indicate that an additional 9,000 lives would be saved annually.

But to point out that an action is wise is one thing; to call for its forced adoption is quite another.

Eating in moderation and indulging in exercise are wise actions, too, the neglect of which probably causes far more deaths than failure to wear seat belts. Following Mr. Cafiero's method of reasoning, we can shortly expect a law limiting our daily calorie intake and requiring us to jog a specific distance each morning.

Cafiero said that the controversy between seat belts and air bag proponents has obscured the facts about seat belt effectiveness. "I think it's time," he was quoted by AP as saying, "for all of us to step back from the controversy, drop the acrimony, and simply take a hard look at the facts."

We agree. And one of those facts is, that auto purchasers have been required by law to pay for seat belts in their vehicles whether they wanted them, or had any intention of using them, or not. And, now that people have had the installation of seat belts jammed down their throats and are not using them to the degree Mr. Cafiero thinks they should be, we want to add one more totalitarian law to complete the cycle.

It is precisely such suggestions coming from private enterprise heads which are causing more and more people to believe, even though unjustly, that industry and government are in league against the consumers. Moreover, when the public reads of a business head proposing a law to force everyone into a conforming mould, little wonder that business gets little sympathy from the public when it comes under governmental attack.

Even Edison was wrong

Baltimore (Md.)
News-American

The attacks on nuclear energy have spawned the wry witicism that electricity itself would still be under attack if the electric chair had been invented ahead of the light bulb. Certainly the number of otherwise rational people who cannot separate in their minds the peaceful atom from the terrible mushroom cloud over Hiroshima is surprisingly large.

It is a little-remembered fact that electricity was widely assailed as an evil genie by the fearful when it was first introduced as a source of household lighting in the early 1880s. Critics charged that this mysterious and invisible "fluid" carried in copper wires would burn the cities down. Some insurance companies refused to supply fire insurance for any home wired for the outrageous cost.

Equally bitter was the controversy toward the end of the 1880s when the fledgling electric utility industry sought, for economy reasons, to replace low voltage direct current with the higher voltage alternating current that is universally used and taken for granted today. What is really remarkable is that the inventive giant Thomas Alva Edison threw his great reputation into the fight to ban commercial use of alternating current.

Edison was the unchallenged authority of the time on electricity. His invention of the incandescent light bulb and development of the central power station had ushered in the Electricity Era that has brought so much ease and richness to our lives.

Writing in the November 1889 issue of The North American Review he charged that alternating current was as dangerous and unreliable as well as dangerous and said, "There is no plea which will justify the use of high alternating current, either in a scientific or commercial sense... (such) systems should be prohibited."

It is hard to exaggerate the magnitude of Edison's influence at the time. For modern equivalent, it is as though the 34 leading American scientists, including 11 Nobel Prize winners, who last year joined in stating that nuclear power and coal offered the nation its only hope of energy salvation, had instead roundly condemned nuclear power.

Yet time rather quickly proved the great Edison to be utterly wrong.

We do not question the sincerity of those who today are trying to ban the generation of electricity in nuclear power plants and are expressing arguments reminiscent of Edison's opposition to alternating currents. Nor do we belittle the major problems associated with nuclear energy.

But we believe that those problems will be solved major problems to make electricity our household servant, and just as others tamed the high voltage alternating currents that Edison so honestly feared.

We suggest that the opponents of nuclear energy should have the humility to recognize that if the towering Edison could be wrong in a matter of great moment, so can they. If they are wrong, and prevail, they will have done their country a massive injury.

"Just how high ARE the levels of microwave radiation being beamed at our embassy here in Moscow?"

"Work here, do ya? Then how come I never seen ya around before?"

VIA MICROWAVE Soviets 'bombard' US embassy

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — The State Department's carefully worded comments on the Soviet Union's microwave radiation bombardment of the U.S. embassy in Moscow raise more questions than they answer.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's comments that "this is a matter of great delicacy which has many ramifications" has not satisfied critics, even though he has avoided a congressional investigation by having Deputy Undersecretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger give the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a secret briefing.

It was agreed that the senators present would not reveal the substance of Eagleburger's briefing on progress in negotiating an end of the microwave bombardment of U.S. personnel in Moscow.

Although Chairman John Sparkman (D-Ala.) and the committee are apparently satisfied, they have received only the most generalized assurance that the health and safety of U.S. personnel is "of overwhelming concern" to Kissinger.

Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.), a strong critic of the State Department's failure to show earlier concern, was a guest of the committee at the most recent Eagleburger briefing. Banned from commenting on Eagleburger's "secret" briefing explanation, he was asked if he was "satisfied" with what Kissinger and Eagleburger are doing.

"I guess I have to be satisfied, because I can't get any hard facts and the committee is accepting the explanations, at least for the moment," Dole said.

The Kansas Republican said he "couldn't see why they put a secrecy lid on the briefing because he didn't tell us anything that was classified."

Dole said that the briefing did not contradict the fact that for many years the Soviet government has been deliberately directing microwave radiation into the U.S. embassy in Moscow, and there was a sharp increase in the dosages last year.

It has been directed at the working areas in the embassy and the office of the ambassador.

Although the State Department had knowledge of the radiation for years, there is no evidence that any significant steps were taken to stop the practice until February, when embassy personnel complained and the problem became public.

In March, Dole expressed concern over what appeared to be a "flagrant" violation of basic decency by the Soviet Union and a weak-kneed response by the State Department.

Dole told the Senate, "I have been informed by sources which I respect of a pattern of illness in the sensitive areas of the embassy. These illnesses were not uniform, but there was a correlation between them and exposure to the irradiated area."

Dole said that it was his information that "the highest concentration of the microwave radiation is reported in the vicinity of the desk of our American ambassador, Walter Stoessel."

The State Department has confirmed that Ambassador Stoessel is suffering from a blood disease similar to leukemia.

Eagleburger assured the committee that Stoessel's illness was not caused, nor in any manner made worse, by the strong doses of radiation the Soviets played on his desk.

"It may be that there is no proof that the radiation caused the illness, but I am not willing to accept as final a general assurance that a bombardment of radiation has not had some impact on Ambassador Stoessel or others," Dole said.

Dole said it is of particular concern to him that the Soviets initially lied about the microwave radiation, and that when Kissinger first requested a cessation of the Russian ambassador, the Soviet response was to increase the dosage.

"At first the Russians lied about it and balm the radiation on natural phenomena," Dole said. "Later they admitted its existence but claimed that it was intended to interfere with our radio receivers on the embassy roof."

The Kansas Republican explained that the U.S. agreed to permit a joint U.S.-KGB team using Russian equipment to monitor the U.S. embassy for radiation "which had been conveniently turned off for the occasion."

"They (Eagleburger and Kissinger) insist that it is a sensitive situation, and that they must tread with care in the demands they make on the Soviets," Dole said.

"I can understand that this might be the case, but they are asking us to accept generalities and assurance that it is receiving a 'top priority' from Secretary Kissinger."

"I don't really know what top priority means at the State Department, and I'm going to remain skeptical about this until I hear some facts, and get some clear answers to the questions asked by me and by people in the Foreign Service."

Embassy employees have received a classified "secret" briefing on the conditions and assurances that the American Foreign Service Association (AFSA) and the AFSA Committee on Extraordinary Dangers will be kept apprised of all relevant facts.

This arrangement has been sharply criticized by AFSA President John Hemenway, who has been refused access to State Department records on the radiation.

Eagleburger says he has made material available to Harry Blaney, chairman of the AFSA Committee on Extraordinary Dangers, and Blaney has indicated acceptance of the State Department assurances. Hemenway charges "conflicts of interest" because Blaney is on the policy planning staff of the State Department, and is unlikely to object to Kissinger and Eagleburger policies.

While the State Department contends it was "working on" the radiation problem prior to February, it refuses to say what was being done or the date upon which those efforts were first made.

Has the Soviet Union stopped its radiation bombardment of the U.S. embassy in Moscow? Even that simple direct question receives a "no comment" from the State Department.

The odds on a coin falling heads 50 consecutive times are so great that it would take a million men tossing coins 10 times a minute and 40 hours a week — and then it would happen only once every nine centuries!

Crackdown on white collar crime

By Don Oakley

With so much in the news about corruption in business and government — from the short-weighting of grain shipments to the lavishing of goodies on officials to, most recently, the sale of inferior meat to the Army at outlandish prices — it is encouraging in a way to learn that the Soviets are not without similar scandals.

That they are not, after nearly six decades of totalitarian rule over the lives of the Russian people, suggests at least that the fault lies not in a country's political or economic system but in just plain old human nature.

According to "Literaturnaya Gazeta" (The Literary Gazette), 13 Soviet officials have been convicted of fleeing the state of some 365,000 rubles — about $500,000 — to build a "disgusting dolce vita" hideaway on the Volga, replete with frescos, marbles, plush carpets, free-running vodka and sexually compliant "hostesses."

The difference between this and most scandals in this country, however, is what the Soviets did about it: They rapped the officials with prison terms of up to 15 years.

The Soviets, of course, have always treated economic crimes — what we lump in the broad category of "white-collar" crimes — more harshly than crimes of violence. But there are signs that our tendency to view such things as embezzlement, fraud and illegal business practices as different from ordinary crimes, and to punish such offenders more leniently, may be changing.

According to a special report on "White-Collar Justice" by the Bureau of National Affairs, judges and prosecutors are placing new emphasis on white-collar crime — "a silent, pernicious class of crimes that robs the American public of an estimated $40 billion annually," or 200 times the amount stolen by all the bank robbers in this country in one year, says the bureau, a Washington, D.C.-based private organization.

In a three-month study, the bureau interviewed judges, prison inmates, prosecutors, penologists and other experts in seven cities and found that "throughout the nation, prosecutors are demanding — and judges are delivering — stiff prison terms for businessmen and executives who use a pen, instead of a gun, to rob the public."

In its fiscal 1975 report, for example, the FBI reported an increase of 25 per cent in investigations of white-collar crimes over fiscal 1971. There were 3,247 convictions in 1975, nearly 15 per cent more than the previous year. Even so, some prosecutors claim the FBI should be doing much more.

The stepped-up attack on white-collar crime has, in fact, underscored the problems facing prosecutors, including manpower shortages, allegedly soft-sentencing judges and the very complexity of consumer fraud and antitrust cases.

The bureau also found a great deal of disagreement among people in the justice system about what kind of punishment, and how much of it, should be meted out to white-collar offenders. "We really don't know," said one judge, "whether it's the length of the sentence that has the deterrent effect. I suspect a greater deterrent effect is the certainty of prison sentence, and the speed with which it's imposed, rather than its length."

While it is getting tougher to make a dishonest dollar, the report concludes, prosecutors and judges still face significant problems in their struggle against white-collar crime. They "must fight an invisible enemy on a battleground where dollars, not lives are lost" and where it is not always easy to distinguish friend from foe.

Not the least of these problems may be the attitude of some white-collar offenders themselves. The bureau quotes one of them, a former senior State Department official convicted of bribing a tax auditor, as saying, "I don't consider myself a criminal. I couldn't live with myself if I did."

Capitol Comedy

Crime is getting so bad in Washington, congressmen can't walk through the House without getting molested.

The administration would like to bus the Supreme Court to Boston to Celebrate the Tea Party.

The movies plan to ask congress for the use of the House to film "The Unhappy Hooker."

Politicians are so anxious to endorse Carter, he even got a pledge of support from Ford's cabinet.

Applicants for secretaries to congressmen will have a choice of working overtime or undercover. Partisan GOP voters won't support either Ford or Reagan. That leaves Nixon and Agnew.

Carter may choose Kissinger for his cabinet. He thinks a strange accent will make his seem normal.

Congressman Howe claims he was set up to proposition decoy prostitutes. He insists he was legislating a proposition.

"Rivals" were originally "persons dwelling on opposite sides of a river" from the Latin rivalis: a river man.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Signer of the Declaration of Independence Francis Hopkinson lived in Bordentown, N.J., and his home has an interesting legend connected to it. When the house was occupied by the British during the Revolutionary War, an officer decided to burn it down until he looked over Hopkinson's extensive library and could not bear to destroy it. The order was countermanded. The World Almanac notes that the officer did, however, carry off the signer's telescope!

The Pampa Council of Women's Clubs held its final meeting this week. Members voted to clear the bank account and give the money to the brochure fund of the Gray County Bicentennial Committee. Women's Clubs Council ends after 47 years

The final meeting of the Pampa Council of Women's Clubs, organized in 1929 when the present city hall was under consideration, was held this week. Members reminisced about the time when interested women here asked the commissioners to provide a meeting place in the new building for club women. However, it was not until Jan. 14, 1933, that the formal organizational meeting was held. At one time more than 30 clubs were members of the council which served as a clearing house for member organizations. When the council dissolved, only five members remained on the rolls. With the new Senior Citizens building available for meeting space, the five voted to liquidate Council assets. The furniture and accessories in the club rooms were given to the Senior Citizens Center. An appropriate memento of the council was to be given to the Gray County Museum. The final business included presentation of a check to the museum curator for the Gray County Bicentennial Committee's brochure fund.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Photos of the Martian site chosen for Viking 1's July 4 landing stream-d in from space to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, where scientists will study there closely to make sure the area is safe for the rocket's landing. The 58 photos were taken in about six minutes Tuesday by Viking's twin cameras from its newly established orbit. They came to earth late Tuesday and early today via radio transmission. "We've made a lot of estimates of the nature of the surface) from what little evidence we have, and the proof of the pudding is starting to come in today," said Dr. Harold Masursky. He is a member of the Viking orbiter photography team and is a U.S. Geological Survey scientist. The landing site is called Chryse. It's a basin area at the mouth of a huge valley where water may have flowed at one time. Pieced together in a photo mosaic, the pictures will be studied by geologists to determine what the surface is made of and whether boulders, potholes or soft sand pose any hazards for the three-legged Viking lander, which will separate from the mother ship. For the rest of June, the spacecraft will circle the planet -- and pass the landing area -- once a day. Mars is about half the size of earth but its day, called a "sol" by scientists, is slightly longer than earth's: 24.6 hours. Also on Tuesday, Viking studied infrared radiation emitted and reflected from the landing site. Such measurements tell geologists about the thermal properties of the surface and give clues to the composition of the rocks and soil. Another instrument examined the thin atmosphere of Mars for traces of water vapor. There have been encouraging signs that such vapor -- water in its gaseous form -- may be more abundant than had been calculated from earlier observations. Such findings could slightly improve the chances of finding life on Mars. Masursky said liquid water is not believed to exist on Mars because of the planet's low atmospheric pressure. But near Chryse and many other places on the planet are features that have the unmistakable look of dry channels that were carved by flowing water. If water was once abundant on Mars, he said, the atmosphere must once have been heavier -- providing enough pressure to keep water in its liquid form. "Something must have been different," he said, "and we'd like to find out what it was."

State black caucus chairman Sutton dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — State Rep. G.J. Sutton, chairman of the black caucus in the Texas House of Representatives, died Tuesday. He was 67. Sutton was pronounced dead on arrival about 1:30 p.m. at Brooke Army Medical Center. Officials said the cause of his death would be determined later.

In Austin, election officials said Gov. Dolph Briscoe could call a special legislative session to appoint a person to fill Sutton's unexpired term, but that Briscoe could well leave the post open until the next regular session in January. To place a Democratic candidate on the ballot for November for the new term starting in January, the Democratic Executive Committee for that House district, made up of precinct committeemen, will name a substitute nominee for the ballot. Sutton was serving his second two-year term as a representative from San Antonio. He had won the Democratic nomination for re-election to a third term and had no opposition in the November general election. In 1972, Sutton became the first black from San Antonio elected to the legislature since Reconstruction days after the Civil war. He had been active for many years in Democratic politics and last Saturday was selected as one of Texas' 130-member delegation to the National Democratic Convention in New York City next month. Sutton, a lifelong resident of San Antonio, was a mortician and owner of the Sutton & Sutton Funeral Home here. In explaining his personal goals for security government projects in poverty areas of his district, Sutton said last year: "I've been through all the stages (of civil rights)—the sit-ins, the picketing, the going to jail and the appearing before commissioners courts. I should take advantage of my experiences and that's what I've tried to do."

DC accounting 'a mess'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia may be heading into dire financial straits, but it's impossible to tell because the capital city's accounting is such a mess. Congress is being asked this week to spend $20 million for an accurate fiscal profile of the District. Sen. Thomas Eagleton, chairman of the Senate District Committee, says the funds would help correct deficiencies in city bookkeeping practices. A nine-volume audit of the city's finances found much to correct. The accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. said a comprehensive audit is impossible because city records are in such disarray. The firm said it could not even tell if the city is running a debt or a surplus. Eagleton, a Democrat from Missouri, said $20 million would pay to put the bookkeeping in adequate shape to gauge the District's financial condition. "I don't think Washington is on the imminent brink of financial catastrophe, but if we don't take the necessary corrective actions, the city might be in five years," Eagleton said. The Andersen report said the District is losing millions of dollars each year through inaccurate records and unsound fiscal practices. Here again, said Andersen, it was impossible to say how much money the District actually was losing in federal aid and revenue collections. The Andersen report noted the city's financial records contained "many inaccurate numbers and major omissions of financial data." Blame for the muddled bookkeeping was placed equally among Congress, the executive branch and the District government. The report said D.C. had $1.7 billion in unfunded liabilities in its pension program, and more than $100 million in delinquent accounts in its hospital billing systems. Two out of every three payments the city made to public assistance recipients were in error, the report said. The city has exercised little control over its federal grants, overspending some while underspending others, the audit said. And the report said that because of lax record-keeping it is impossible for the city to determine whether 120,000 water and sewer customers are being properly billed or which bills have been collected.

Three die in plane

CIUDAD ACUNA, Mexico (AP) — Three U.S. citizens died and a fourth was critically injured when a private plane flying here from the resort city of Puerto Vallarta crashed. The plane slammed into the ground Monday at the San Jorge Ranch near this border city across from Del Rio, Tex. Mexican authorities identified the dead as Eagle Pass, Tex., businessman Juan Manuel Salinas Gonzalez, 43, his secretary, Mrs. Alex Short, 37, and her sister Mrs. Beth Williams, 22, of Palo Alto, Calif. Mrs. Williams' husband, Paul, 24, was in critical condition Tuesday at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Montoya plea rejected

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Defense testimony was scheduled to begin today in the theft trial of Rep. Greg Montoya, D-Elsa, after State Dist. Court Judge Mace Thurman denied a defense motion for a directed verdict of not guilty Tuesday. Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, made the defense motion, arguing that evidence presented by the state was insufficient to convict Montoya. The state rested its case Tuesday afternoon. Olivia Silva, the state's star witness, testified that she worked two months for Montoya's auto supply house and received only a state check of $360 for her efforts. She said Montoya handed her the paycheck, told her to endorse it and then took it back in part payment of a $500 debt owed by Miss Silva and her brother for car parts. It was Miss Silva who first told authorities that Montoya had been using his legislative payroll to compensate personal employees. She said she quit on Oct. 7, 1974, because Mrs. Montoya, following an argument with her husband, demanded she pay the remainder of the debt immediately. Miss Silva said Mrs. Montoya told her "Mr. Montoya didn't care a damn if I ate or clothed myself, that he cared only for himself." The 26-year-old witness said that although her job application stated she was applying to be Montoya's legislative district secretary, she never did any work in that capacity. "Did you know there was a legislative office upstairs from the auto supply store?" she was asked. "No, sir," she said. "Did you do anything connected with the office?"

"No, sir." Earlier Miss Silva's brother said he was paid with a state warrant for making nine truck trips between Elsa and Austin for Montoya. Ships built in Maine have been famous for more than 300 years. The clipper Red Jacket, built in Rockland, set a speed record of 13 days, New York to Liverpool, England. The record was never broken by a sailing ship.

Agents trail dope plane

RICHARDSON, Tex. (AP) — A team of U.S. Customs agents trailed a light plane believed loaded with marijuana all the way from Alpine, in the Davis Mountains of West Texas, to a landing strip near this Dallas suburb Tuesday. All they got for their trouble was a long trip. When the agents' pilot applied the brakes on touchdown here after the suspect plane landed, the tires blew out. The agents watched helplessly as the other plane took off into the early morning darkness and later landed at nearby Dallas North Airport. By the time authorities tracked down the suspect craft, those aboard were nowhere to be found and the plane was empty. "We found a lot of marijuana debris in the aircraft—sticks, stems and seeds," said Customs spokesman Charles Conroy. "We theorized they threw the load out between the two airports."

Young Pampans read

Approximately 200 young Pampans are participating this year in the Summer Reading Club, cosponsored by the Texas State Library and Lovett Memorial Library. According to Mrs. Winifred Crinklaw, program coordinator, students must read 10 books by the first of August. The program provides red, white and blue reading logs to record the list of books.

Lovett Memorial Library has participated in the reading club for about 18 years. Mrs. Crinklaw said. This year's enrollment is a little below average. Students in grades one through six are eligible to take part in the club. A party for those having successfully completed the project will be held July 31.

Payroll practices scrutinized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressmen are expected to approve a series of changes in House payroll practices and to recommend that Rep. Frank Thompson take over as chairman of the House Administration Committee.

The 287-member Democratic caucus was meeting today for the first time since Elizabeth Ray charged that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, kept her on the committee staff as his mistress.

Hays resigned as chairman of the panel earlier this week in the wake of the House payroll scandal. He is at his Ohio farm recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills.

Nomination of Thompson, a Democrat from New Jersey, to replace Hays would require full House action, as would several other recommendations expected to emerge from the caucus.

The reforms were recommended by a three-man task force headed by Rep. David Obeys, D-Wis., and approved Tuesday by the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, made up of Democratic leaders.

One proposal would require monthly accounting of every House employee's pay and duties. Another proposal would strip the administration panel of power that Hays won in 1971 to increase House members' staff, travel and other allowances without a full House vote.

The House is almost sure to approve that proposal because House Republicans have already introduced a bill to do nearly the same thing.

Obeys said the proposals would give the House and the public a full accounting of how every member spends his office money, but he said they would not prevent such abuses as Miss Ray has charged.

"The only way you're going to get full accountability," Obeys told reporters, "is require every member as he leaves the House to be accompanied by a priest and a cop and I don't think that is possible."

The only recommendation that goes directly to the allegation against Hays is one that would require every House member, committee chairman and leader to certify each employee's pay and performance of duties.

Public release of the accounting would be required every three months.

The only proposal expected to draw significant opposition was one to make Democrats on the Administration Committee subject to appointment by the speaker so their conduct would be his responsibility.

Democratic Whip John McFall and caucus Chairman Phillip Burton, both of California, contended the move would concentrate too much power into the hands of the speaker. Obeys said administration of House funds should be under the speaker and his use of that power should be under the scrutiny of full public disclosure.

Police report
 Pampa police are investigating a possible residential burglary which occurred at 412 N. Somerville Tuesday night.

A tenant reported to the manager that he had seen a man enter one of the apartments through the window. The manager checked and found a man leaving with a portable television and other items. The suspect told the manager that the owner of the property owed him some money and he was trying to collect.

When the manager said he was going to call the police, the suspect told him he would return the items. Further action in the case is pending, police said.

There was also one non-injury accident reported to police Tuesday.

Ford names ambassador

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — President Ford announced here today that Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Talcott Seelye will temporarily take charge of the U.S. Embassy in Lebanon following the murder of Ambassador Francis E. Meloy.

Ford designated Seelye as his special representative and said the former ambassador to Tunisia would take charge of the embassy in Beirut on a temporary basis.

The White House press office issued a statement that said: "In view of the present situation in Lebanon, the President and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger consider it essential to have as their representative a senior man with long experience."

Seelye, who recently became deputy assistant secretary for African affairs, once served in the Beirut embassy and formerly directed the State Department office handling relations with Lebanon and nearby Arab countries.

Wealthy to pay taxes in spite of loopholes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan to require wealthy Americans to pay some income tax no matter how many tax loopholes they use is nearing approval in the Senate.

The plan, approved earlier by the Senate Finance Committee, would cost the wealthy $1 billion a year. A bloc of liberal senators is seeking to raise that figure by $200 million and apply the tougher provisions to corporations as well as individuals.

Strengthening this "minimum tax" is a key element of the big tax bill being debated by the Senate.

The minimum tax was enacted in 1969 in an effort to assure that persons using such shelters would pay some income tax. Despite this, it was disclosed earlier this year that 244 Americans earning more than $200,000 paid no income tax in 1974 because of large deductions.

Making the minimum tax even tougher than the committee wants is the most important part of a package of tax amendments offered by the liberals. They were beaten Tuesday in most efforts to eliminate tax shelters for high-income investors.

On a 53-40 vote, the Senate indicated it prefers the milder tax-shelter crackdown approved by the Finance Committee, which would raise investors' taxes by $165 million in 1977, a figure that would drop gradually to $126 million by 1981.

The plan advocated by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and other liberals would have meant a $200-million increase in taxes in 1977 and gradual increases over the next five years.

Kennedy's proposal would have wiped out tax shelters gained through investment in farming, commercial real estate, equipment leasing and movies. The restrictions would have applied only to investments in obvious tax-avoidance schemes, not to those persons already involved in those businesses.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., called the Kennedy plan a massive overkill that would "turn the tax system inside out in order to stop abuses by a relatively few rich investors."

The liberals pulled a mild surprise later in the day when, on a 48-44 vote, they won approval of an amendment that would raise taxes on investors by $50 million a year by restricting the tax advantages of investing in a limited partnership.

Fuel adjustment costs okayed by Texas court

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today upheld the San Antonio City Public Service Board's right to add fuel adjustment costs to electric and gas bills without specific city council action each time the costs change.

It also said the 14 per cent of utility bills that goes into the city's general treasury does not amount to an unconstitutional tax on 12 school districts, Bexar County and the county hospital district.

The court acted with unusual speed in the case, which was first decided against the city by a San Antonio district court Dec. 29, 1975.

The school districts that brought the case, later joined by the county and the hospital district, contended that city council approval was needed each time the fuel adjustment factor was changed. Allowing the city public service board to make the adjustments automatically each month is an unlawful delegation of the council's authority, the districts argued.

They sought repayment of their fuel adjustment costs for the past four years as well as the 14 per cent general revenue component of their utility bills.

While not writing a new opinion of its own, the high court said it found no reversible error in the El Paso Court of Civil Appeals decision that upheld the city's position.

"We conclude that the fuel adjustment escalator clauses are a legitimate and valid procedure in the operation of a public utility. Such clauses greatly reduce the necessity for expensive and time consuming public hearings at which the rate must be set high enough to meet future inflationary cost, and yet they protect the consumer when costs are reduced," the El Paso court held.

It noted that natural gas costs paid by the utility to its supplier, the Lo-Yaca Gathering Co., were fixed by the Texas Railroad Commission. The public service board had no authority to change the formula used in setting fuel adjustment costs and was not performing a legislative function vested in the city, the opinion said.

As for the 14 per cent general revenue component of the utility rates, the court said this was not barred by the Texas Constitution's prohibition against one governmental unit taxing the property of another.

It said, "The entire charge made by the city for utility services was a charge for services rendered and did not constitute an attempt to provide a tax in lieu of ad valorem taxes, nor an attempt to reimburse one taxing authority from another taxing authority solely for the loss of a tax base."

Bribery bill passes test

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill making overseas bribery by U.S. corporations illegal passed its first Senate test but remains under a constitutional cloud.

The bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Banking Committee was prompted by recent disclosures that U.S. corporations such as the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. have paid out millions of dollars in bribes to foreign officials and political parties to win sales.

By making it a U.S. crime for a corporation to bribe an official or foreign political party to stimulate or increase business, the bill would go far beyond a White House proposal that would require American companies to report such bribes to an U.S. government agency.

Under the White House proposal, there would be no U.S. criminal action as a result of reporting a bribe. However, the U.S. government might share the information with the foreign government involved or make the information public.

U.S. laws now make it illegal for American corporations to bribe American officials. But there are no U.S. laws covering bribes of foreign officials.

The bill, written by Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., sets the penalty for conviction at a two-year jail sentence, a $10,000 fine or both.

The bill is not intended to apply to small payments made to expedite service or to persuade government officials to cut red tape. It is intended to apply only to payments to stimulate or increase business.

President Ford recently said a flat prohibition on overseas bribery was unenforceable. The theory of the White House proposal is that a company wouldn't pay bribes that it would later have to disclose.

The issue involving the Senate measure is whether an American citizen can be prosecuted for a crime that takes place entirely outside the legal jurisdiction of the United States.

The constitutionality of Proxmire's approach was questioned by Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C. Proxmire conceded his bill probably could not apply to an U.S. corporation that offered a bribe if that offer was conceived and executed by the firm's overseas officials with no knowledge or participation by U.S.-based officers.

He said the bill would cover corporate officers in the United States who directed or condoned payment of such a bribe.

Proxmire asked for more study on the bill's constitutionality. The bill is expected to come to the Senate floor for a vote sometime after Congress returns from its convention recess on July 19.

Fighting isolates Beirut

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies reported widespread Christian attacks in Beirut through the night and today. They claimed their forces repulsed the attacks and inflicted heavy losses.

Telephone and telex communications between the Lebanese capital and foreign countries were cut again. But the Moslem-controlled Beirut Radio reported fierce fighting at Palestinian refugee camps on the northeast side of Beirut, around Moslem enclaves in the Christian sector of Beirut, in suburbs on the south side of the city and between the Moslem and Christian sectors.

Christian broadcasts accused the Palestinians of "provocative attacks" on unarmed civilians and said "our forces were forced to counter the aggression."

The Christians' Radio Armit said the fighting caused an electricity blackout. Apparently this closed down telephone and telex service.

Beirut Radio claimed early today that 94 Christians had been killed or wounded by the artillery and mortars of the Palestinians and their allies. Security officials in Beirut reported more than 80 persons killed Tuesday, but this did not include casualties Tuesday night.

Libyan Premier Abdel Salem Jalloud, who arranged a truce three days ago between the Syrian forces that invaded Lebanon on June 1 and the Palestinian-Moslem Lebanese alliance, met with the leftists in an attempt to keep the fighting from spreading.

The cease-fire was reported holding along the Syrian invaders' fronts. Syrian and Libyan troops of the new pan-Arab peace force took over the Beirut airport from the pro-Syrian Saiga Palestinian guerrillas and members of the Syrian invasion force who had kept it closed for more than two weeks.

For the most part, this meant one set of Syrian troops replaced another, since the Libyans were greatly outnumbered. But the trucks and equipment of the new Syrian troops were marked Arab Security Force.

Beirut Radio said the airport would reopen today for the start of an airlift of 5,000 peace-keeping troops from Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Libya, Algeria and Syria. The 1,000-man Libyan-Syrian vanguard of the force arrived by road from Damascus Monday and in addition to the airport took up positions on the south side of Beirut and along the highway toward Sidon, 25 miles to the south.

Homestead exemption schedule announced

Applications for the $3,000 residence homestead tax exemption by city property owners who will be 65 years of age or older Jan. 1, 1977, will be taken at the tax office on the second floor of City Hall starting Monday, June 28, it was announced today by Grace Gibson, deputy city tax collector.

Four periods have been set aside during which applications will be taken in alphabetical order.

The schedules follow:
 June 28 through July 1 — Eligible persons with last names beginning with A B C D E and F.
 July 6 through 9 — Last names beginning with G H I J K and L.

July 12 through 15 — Last names beginning with M N O P Q and R.
 July 19 through 22 — Last names beginning with S T U V W X Y and Z.

It was pointed out by the deputy tax collector the applications must be for residence homestead exemption only. Business property is not applicable.

According to regulations set by law, applicants must present proof of birth date, deed to property with owner's name and legal description, Mrs. Gibson stated.

"Persons who cannot find the deed to their property should bring the last tax receipt," she said.

The tax official also stated the person applying must reside in the property presented for exemption.

The city tax office is the only place application for the homestead exemption can be made.

Special office personnel will be assigned to handle the applications, according to Mrs. Gibson, and every effort will be made to expedite handling of applications.

Any eligible person who is ill or unable to come to the tax office should call and someone will be sent to take care of the application," Mrs. Gibson added.

Communists score wins

ROME (AP) — "Rome is red and Italy will be," thousands of Communists chanted Tuesday night as they celebrated their victory in Rome's municipal elections.

Tens of thousands marched from the party headquarters to the city hall a block away on the Capitoline Hill. Holding hands, they danced around the square Michelangelo designed. Some climbed up on the equestrian statue of Emperor Marcus Aurelius to decorate it with hammer-and-sickle stickers and red flags.

Elections for a new city council in the center of Roman Catholicism and in about 100 other municipalities were held Sunday and Monday along with the national parliamentary elections. The Christian Democrats came in first nationally despite strong Communist gains, but in Rome the Communists won 30 of the municipal council's 80 seats to 27 for the Christian Democrats.

The vote was 676,618 or 35.5 per cent for the Communists, 630,776 or 33.1 per cent for the Christian Democrats, and more than 600,000 for seven other parties. The Christian Democrats were the largest party in 1971 with 28 per cent.

No party has won a majority in Rome since World War II, but the Christian Democrats have always led the voting and controlled the city government by forming coalitions with other non-Communist parties. The Communists said now they would try to form the coalition and take over, as they already have in Turin, Milan, Venice, Genoa, Bologna, Florence and Naples — every other major city on the Italian mainland.

The Roman vote was another pointed rebuff to Pope Paul VI, for the Pope is the Bishop of Rome, and local parish priests and Catholic groups were mobilized to try contain the Communist advance.

At a recent auction in New York, collectors paid $800 for a 20-shilling note printed by New Hampshire in 1775 and $380 for a $2 bill issued by Virginia in 1781. During the Revolutionary War, these notes were worthless.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old boy who was able to graduate from high school early because I passed the required tests. My problem is I need a summer job, but nobody will hire me because I have had no experience. Abby, how can a person get experience if nobody will hire him?

I am a responsible, hard-working boy who has never been in any kind of trouble, and I'm willing to do anything—run errands, wait on tables, sweep the floors, answer the phone, box groceries—you name it. And if I don't know how to do it, I will learn.

So far I have applied for 22 jobs, but nothing has materialized.

Abby, how can a person without pull or connections get a job? I'm beginning to think it's impossible.

DISCOURAGED

DEAR DISCOURAGED: Go back to some of the places you've applied and tell them that you are honest, dependable, hard-working and so eager to prove your worth that you'll work for one week with no obligation on their part, and if they feel you don't qualify, they owe you nothing.

You may not be hired instantly, but I'll bet your name goes to the top of the list. Try it and let me know how you come out.

DEAR ABBY: Last weekend my husband's 24-year-old brother (I'll call him "Bill") came to town and stayed with us.

We planned to dine out with another couple and had engaged a 13-year-old neighbor girl to sit with our two little ones.

Bill was going out with his friends that evening and was waiting for us to finish dressing before he showered and shaved. He said he'd do that after we left and while the sitter was here.

I put my foot down and insisted that Bill shower quickly and leave the house with us. I didn't think it would be right for him to be alone in the house with a 13-year-old girl, even though he is a very nice young man. I knew that the sitter's mother would be horrified to learn that we left her daughter alone with a 24-year-old man, and I felt the girl herself might feel ill at ease.

Bill was furious with me, and my husband thought I was crazy to think there would be anything wrong in leaving Bill with the sitter. Was I wrong to feel that way?

TAKING NO CHANCES

DEAR TAKING: Yes. You owe Bill an apology.

DEAR ABBY: I am to be married in the fall and need your opinion about something that has caused considerable conversation in our family.

I have asked my favorite aunt to be one of my bridesmaids. She is 44 and very young-looking. She refused, saying, "Everyone would say I looked foolish with all those young girls, and it would spoil your day." (The other bridesmaids are from 17 to 26.)

I need your advice.

BALTIMORE BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: I can't possibly know what "everyone" would say, and neither can your aunt. She's obviously more concerned with her own image than eager to participate in your wedding. Don't coax her.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a vegetarian. I've read that even the best of vegetarian diets lack vitamin B-12, but other books say that there is nothing lacking. Would you set the record straight and let us vegetarians know if we're getting all the vitamins and nutrients we need?

DEAR READER: Vitamin B-12 is found in animal products. Strict vegetarians who use no animal protein at all in their diet are consuming a vitamin B-12 deficient diet. Micro-organisms do live in the nodules of legumes that synthesize coenzyme B-12 and that delays the manifestations of B-12 deficiency. The strict vegetarians also get plenty of folic acid from leafy vegetables. The folic acid may help to prevent part of the problems of B-12 deficiency but not some of the vital ones.

Vegetarians who use milk, cottage cheese and dry milk powder will get some B-12 from these products. Also, there is an adequate amount of B-12 in egg yolks. But if these items are not in the diet then you should seriously consider adding some B-12 to your daily nutrient intake. I'd recommend that such individuals just take an ordinary daily all-purpose vitamin pill and that will meet the daily needs for B-12.

You can get sufficient amounts of protein in a vegetarian diet that includes plenty of beans, particularly soybeans, plus some wheat in the diet. However, for growing children who need greater amounts of some of the amino acids I think it is wise to also include milk and milk products in the diet.

To give you more information on daily dietary needs I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY: My Pet Peeve is with the length of women's pants. They always seem to have to be altered. Men's pants are either sold in different lengths or without the hems being put in. They seem to automatically assume that a woman can, has the time or wants to alter hers. Sometimes shortening ruins the shape of the leg. Why not make women's pants in certain waist and leg lengths as they do for men.

LINDA G.

DEAR POLLY: Those with arthritic fingers have trouble opening a can of sardines, anchovies, etc. I insert the prong of a long-pronged fork in the end of the key and find it then turns very easily.

DEAR POLLY: Emergency candles to have ready for a possible power blackout can be made by filling a one-pound coffee can with candle stubs, reserving the longest one for the wick. Set the can in a pan of water so the water comes half way up the can. Place over a low flame, and let candles melt. Remove from fire and when partially congealed set the reserved candle in the center.

Liza Doolittle in reverse

She may become prime minister

EDITOR'S NOTE: Margaret Thatcher is taking stock now, waiting for the right omen to begin her sales campaign for prime minister. That moment might be soon.

By HUGH A. MILLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — She was only a shopkeeper's daughter, but she took elocution lessons to banish her north country accent, got to Oxford and dreamed of someday making something of herself.

Now that she stands tiptoe in sensible shoes on the threshold of becoming Britain's first woman Prime Minister, Margaret Thatcher is out to convince the voters she still is, at heart, only a shopkeeper's daughter.

Like Liza Doolittle in reverse, the charismatic Conservative party leader has discernibly lowered her voice a key, abandoned the garden party hats and revamped her true-blue Tory hair, do to get across to "the common sense majority" her philosophy of thrift, hard work and "less but better" government.

The opinion polls and the 2,000 letters a week falling into her mail slot at the House of Commons indicate that Mrs. Thatcher's appeals to the shopkeepers, the small homeowners, the suburbanites yearning to be free of the taxman and the leveling social planners.

"I like your America phrase: the silent majority," she said in an interview at the House of Commons. "It sums it up beautifully. I'm not talking class warfare. I mean the ordinary common sense people in all walks of our society."

Big Ben's mellow bong sounded 11 o'clock through the tall Gothic windows of the opposition leader's office.

"I'm tired of being regarded as a phenomenon," she said, settling her straight back into a straight back chair and adjusting the pastel skirt over her knee. "I had a cabinet post before the term women's lib became trendy. Since becoming party leader, I have not been conscious of being patronized as a woman. We just get on with the job."

She accused a generation of Labor governments of "chipping away one by one the rights of ordinary people: the right to choose your own school, your own doctor, your own union." Socialism's high taxes and high welfare payments, she stressed, destroyed the incentive to work.

The crisp, no nonsense manner, accompanied by a sympathetic, housewifely smile and a tinkling voice capable of great parliamentary invective, has enabled Margaret Thatcher in 16 months as Tory boss to establish her authority in the Commons and restore the morale of a party that had lost two general elections in a row.

With Labor Prime Minister James Callaghan clutching a minority of three in the House, there is growing excitement among even the most phlegmatic of the citizenry at the prospect of the 50-year-old challenger carrying out the New Year's resolution she made on the BBC: "I want to be Prime Minister. Of course, I do. And 1976 would be a good year for it."

Certainly, she is well enough known. No figure in public life here in recent memory has been called as many names.

"Thatcher, Thatcher, Milk Snatcher," well-rehearsed playground urchins chanted when, as education minister, she provoked her first jury by doing away with free school milk.

"The Female Philistine from Finchley" — an attack on her education policies with reference to the London suburb she represents.

"The Dresden Shepherdess" — after the porcelain figurines she collects.

"The Tory Glamour Girl" or "The Blue Rinsed Bitch" — views from the opposing back benches of her trim figure, English rose complexion and neatly coiffured light blonde tresses.

"Ted Heath in Drag" — blasted Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, a brawler in debate, likening her icy obstinacy to that of former Prime Minister Edward Heath. His 10-year rule over the Conservative party she brought to a close in February 1975, after the Conservatives lost two general elections in 1974.

The shopkeeper's daughter uses, over-the-counter words to criticize nationalized industries:

"When you take into public ownership a profitable industry, the profits soon disappear. The goose that laid the golden egg goes broody. State geese are not great layers."

Mrs. Thatcher was born Margaret Hilda Roberts in a cold water flat above a corner grocery in the provincial market town of Grantham in Lincolnshire. Her mother was a seamstress; her father a bootmaker's son who dreamed of becoming a schoolmaster, but had to drop out of school to go to work. He transferred his dreams and love of learning to his ambitious second daughter. They were an affectionate, hard working, church going family, the sort of roots from which prime ministers are sprung. Labor prime ministers. Margaret set her sights on Oxford and her father encouraged her with speech lessons that refined the flat accent.

Her ambition was to become a lawyer, but girls from the provinces found it difficult getting admitted to the Inns of Court, so she settled for chemistry. She made her mark in campus politics as the second female ever to head the Oxford Conservative Club.

While working as a research chemist, she was adopted as the Tory candidate for Dartford, a safe Labor seat. On the campaign trail she met Denis Thatcher, manager of a paint firm and 10 years her senior. It was not love at first sight. "There were two elections to fight first," she lost them both.

Two months after her twins were born, she qualified as a barrister, specializing in taxes and patents. When she finally reached the Commons in 1959, her background qualified her for a succession of government and opposition posts.

As party leader, she has demonstrated the necessary ruthlessness to rid the cabinet and the party central office of all the old Heath supporters, but she has yet to show the resourcefulness and tact needed to pull the party together again.

Some observers see Mrs. Thatcher as the spirited leader of a still dispirited party. Her own shadow cabinet choices have not been conspicuously exciting or imaginative. The Conservatives so far have not produced a coherent package of policies aimed at reversing the collectivist slide of a generation.

Palo Duro becomes landmark

SANTA FE, N.M. — Palo Duro Canyon State Park in Randall and Armstrong Counties, Tex., has been added to the National Registry of Natural Landmarks. Secretary of the Interior Thomas S. Kleppe announced.

The National Registry of Natural Landmarks, administered by Interior's National Park Service, recognizes sites which illustrate the nation's natural history. Since the program began in 1963, 433 areas have been recognized as natural landmarks.

Landmark designation is intended to encourage owners to preserve nationally significant natural values. Areas are eligible regardless of ownership, providing they meet national significance standards.

This 16,465-acre state park is a colorful erosion of the Prairie Dog Fork of Red River and its tributaries. The canyon is spectacular with its 800 feet of relief which contrasts sharply with the monotonous level surface of the Southern High Plains to the west.

The canyon provides a cross-sectional view of four different geological periods — the Permian, Triassic, Tertiary and Quaternary, according to Dr. Keith Yarborough, natural landmark specialist for the National Park Service's Southwest Region and David H. Riskind, head of the resource management section, Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept., which administers the area.

Yarborough said significant fossil finds have been made in the canyon and many are on display at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum at West Texas State University in nearby Canyon.

Yarborough said the vegetation of the park consists of short to midgrass prairie on most uplands, deciduous chaparral on the dry slopes, juniper woodlands on the mesic slopes and riparian woodlands in the canyon bottoms. He said the greatest significance, however, is the fact that it is a superb example of a landform created by running water.

The site is managed to preserve its natural and scenic resources while still providing various recreational opportunities. Riskind said it is located 22 miles south-southeast of Amarillo.

Names make news

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Character actor Andy Devine suffered a setback at a hospital where he was undergoing kidney dialysis and was listed in serious condition.

The man who portrayed "Jingles" on television's Wild Bill Hickock show entered Sonoma County Hospital last Wednesday after developing kidney problems. He had been vacationing at the nearby Bohemian Grove resort.

Dr. David J. Shapiro, Devine's physician, did not elaborate Monday on the condition of his patient, who has a history of leukemia and was hospitalized late last year for pneumonia.

Devine, 70, lives in Newport Beach, Calif., with his wife, Dorothy.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Pearl Bailey appeared before President Ford in the Oval Office — not to sing and dance, but to discuss world affairs.

Miss Bailey, a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, was reporting Monday on her recent tour of the Middle East for the State Department.

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Ford and Rosalynn Carter support the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution. Nancy Reagan is opposed to the amendment.

The three were quoted in interviews with the wives of presidential candidates published Monday in the July issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

"I'm for the ER — I'm not for the A," said Mrs. Reagan, wife of President Ford's Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan. "Everyone should have equal pay, equal opportunity, equal rights. But I don't think the best way to go about giving it to people is the amendment process."

Both Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Carter, wife of likely Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter, said they support of the amendment, designed to assure women equal treatment. It has been approved by 34 states, four short of the number needed for ratification.

Marines gave free hit

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Two Marine privates say their drill instructor let young recruits take "free blows" to the head while trying to goad Lynn McClure to take part in a pugil-stick training fight.

Pfc. Joseph Gelinus and Danny Bondiek testified Monday at the general court martial of S. Sgt. Harold Bronson, on trial for the death of the 20-year-old McClure.

Gelinus, Bondiek and McClure all were members of the motivation platoon, a training unit for castoff recruits headed by Bronson.

Before an eight-man trial board, they told of near-desperate attempts by the DI and fellow recruits to induce McClure to join in the close-combat bouts instead of constantly running away.

They confirmed prosecution testimony from other platoon members that Bronson let McClure pick his own opponent. But he still refused to fight, they said. It was then that the "free hits" began.

"I asked S. Sgt. Bronson to let McClure give me three free blows," said Bondiek, 18. "I held my stick down and he hit me hard three times."

But when the bout began, he still drove McClure before him as will as the Luftkin, Tex., youth made no effort to fight back, he said.

"He could've fought hard if he wanted to try," said Bondiek. Gelinus also testified that McClure showed no signs of physical exhaustion during his pugil stick bouts.

In McClure's final bout against recruit Robert Evans,

Bronson let Evans drop his stick in the dirt and told McClure he could hit Evans as many times as he wished until Evans picked up his stick, said Bondiek. McClure got in one hard blow, then fell back in terror as Evans counterattacked, he said.

When the final blow came, Bondiek said, McClure had dropped his stick and held his hands to his face in a futile effort to ward off the fatal head blow.

"He was whimpering and whining. Why are you all picking on me? I didn't do nothing to you all," he said.

Prosecution testimony last week said the practice of allowing "free blows" was ended last October when a recruit suffered brain damage.

Both Bondiek and Gelinus said that Bronson never appeared to lose control of the bouts and that they never saw McClure knocked down or struck while on the ground.

The defense won a victory earlier Monday when the trial judge, Lt. Col. William Draper, allowed into evidence testimony from Capt. Wayman Bishop, who said he drew up special lesson plans allowing a recruit in the motivation platoon to be hit while defenseless if the man refused to fight.

The plan was needed because "about a third of the recruits were avoiding taking part in the pugil stickbouts and they were becoming a waste of time," Bishop told the court.

Viking finds water vapor

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Evidence of low-lying water vapor on Mars in greater abundance than expected has encouraged scientists to look for life as the Viking 1 spacecraft begins a 10-day study of the planet.

In low areas of Mars it appears that water in the form of frost becomes water vapor during the warmest part of the day and freezes again at night, Dr. C. Barney Farmer said Monday.

This information gathered by the Viking in recent days fits a new theory that the water might temporarily exist as a liquid during the transition from frost to vapor. It had generally been thought that water did not exist as a liquid on Mars.

Scientists on the Viking team that will search for Martian life by means of an automated Viking lander were intrigued by Farmer's report.

If his theory is true, said one scientist, low-lying Chryse, the planned landing site, "could be one of the wettest places around." And the wetter the area, the greater the chance that some kind of life could exist there.

But by earth standards, it would scarcely be wet at all.

Farmer said the water vapor mapping instrument aboard Viking has found some low areas in the planet's northern hemisphere where the abundance of water vapor was "many times" the average for the hemisphere's 10 to 12 precipitable microns.

The term refers to the amount of water that could be squeezed out of a given abundance of water vapor. In the above example, the water vapor present could be condensed into a layer around the entire planet only 10 to 12 microns thick. A micron is a tiny unit — one millionth of a meter — invisible to the naked eye.

Beginning today, Viking's water vapor mapper, heat detector and powerful television cameras were to be trained on the area where the lander is to touch down July 4.

On orders from Jet Propulsion Laboratory beamed through space, Viking was put into a new orbit Monday to prepare for the survey. A three-minute rocket burn fixed the probe into a circuit that will carry it over the landing site once a day.

Project officials for Viking, which was launched last Aug. 20, are to make a decision about the site by July 1.

Preliminary reports from the heat-detecting experiment Monday found surface temperatures ranging from 30 degrees below zero in the southern hemisphere to 187 below zero in the south polar region.

Ex-addict gives advice

By JOSEPH NOCERA
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Pete Kambouris is your basic "Mod Squad" type; once one of the "bad guys," he's since switched sides.

Kambouris is a reformed heroin addict who used to make his living breaking into people's houses. Now he works for the Baltimore County Police Department telling people how to keep their homes from being burglarized.

"People underestimate the intelligence of the burglar," he told the National Observer, "even these young kids know an easy mark when they see one. I've walked into places that were wide open, just asking to be ripped off."

According to a survey conducted by the American Association of Retired Persons, burglars enter homes without using force in nearly a third of city burglaries. A study in Sioux Falls, S.D., showed that 60 per cent of burglaries there involved no forced entry; in a similar study in Pocatello, Idaho, the figure was 67 per cent.

"If it wasn't easy," says

Kambouris, "I wouldn't have done it. People leave notes, signs that they're gone. They leave keys under mats. They have cheap locks. Some have good locks and don't use them. A burglar can figure this out."

He says that burglars aren't afraid to work in the daytime, nor are they afraid of making noise. "People (the neighbors)," he says "will not react."

So how does a person go about making his house burglar-proof? Kambouris has a lot of suggestions, but basically they amount to this: make a house look lived in. Stop newspaper deliveries when you're away. Keep some lights on, or better yet, get a timer that turns different lights on at different times.

By taking preventive measure, a homeowner stands a good chance, says Kambouris of thwarting at least the amateur burglars who are responsible for most of the break-ins these days.

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission said in its annual report to Congress last week that it was starting an investigation into cigarette advertising.

The reason: smokers consumed 603 billion cigarettes in 1975, a jump of 2 billion over 1974. The FTC noted that more women and young people were taking up the habit. The agency said it wants to focus on recent cigarette ads to determine whether the companies are making blatant appeals to teenagers.

Also in the report was an FTC recommendation that Congress strengthen the cigarette warning label to read: "Cigarette Smoking Is a Major Health Hazard and May Result in Your Death."

There's nothing too secure about social security, and the Ford Administration is pushing Congress to bolster the depleted program's coffers with an increase in the Social Security payroll tax.

The giant trust funds will be exhausted early in the next decade without the tax increase, according to a 1976 report by the system's trustees.

Ben Franklin said, "There is much difference between imitating a man, and counterfeiting him."

Disaster offices set

HOUSTON (AP) — Two special offices for processing claims from victims of last week's rain-prompted flood in southern and southeastern Harris County were to have their first full day of operations today.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration opened the offices Monday afternoon in carrying out President Ford's Saturday declaration making the county a disaster area.

Shortly after the offices were opened, the Insurance Information Institute reported the 10 to 13 inches of rain that fell over a widespread area last Tuesday caused an estimated $18,930,000 in damages, including $5,550,000 for automobiles. It was the first estimate of overall damages although officials of the Texas Medical Center had said damages at that complex alone exceeded $10 million and could reach $20 million.

Officials of the federal disaster agency estimated from 1,200 to 1,400 families would seek federal and state financial aid.

"The immediate need here is for temporary housing assistance to the homeless and quick processing of federal funds to begin the rebuilding programs," said Joe D. Winkle, the agency's regional director.

The two offices were offering assistance from the Small Business Administration, Department of Labor, Internal Revenue Service, Community Services Administration, and the Federal Insurance Administration.

Also available were representatives of the American Red Cross, Salvation Army, and the American Insurance Association.

Raymond W. Vowell, state welfare commissioner from Austin, also announced he had requested the Department of Agriculture to issue emergency food stamps to families in need.

There are more than 200 geysers in Yellowstone National Park.

Man says wife shot by 'nut'

CHICAGO (AP) — Leo Anderson, a white man whose wife was fatally shot as they drove through a rain-flooded underpass in a black neighborhood, says the gunman "was probably an isolated nut."

Anderson, 51, said he feels no racial prejudice but was angered by the group of youths who demanded $10 to allow him to go through the underpass.

Wounded in the June 13 incident, he previously had refused to be interviewed. He called Chicago Daily News columnist Mike Royko to his hospital room Sunday.

Anderson, editor of an industrial magazine, said the family had been returning to suburban Buffalo Grove from a party at the home of a relative when the incident took place. A rainstorm forced them and many others to leave the Dan Ryan Expressway and drive into a nearby black neighborhood.

Besides Anderson and his wife, Phyllis, their children — Michael, 13, Elizabeth, 16, and Janet, 15 — were in the car.

They were young punks in sharp clothes. This guy, he had a clean look about him. He was kind of chunky. He had on jeans with a gray top and a red thing around his face.

"He had a gun and he aimed it at me. He had the most determined look I've ever seen."

"He hit me twice. Then he shot deliberately at her. One shot. She just collapsed. And that was the end of it."

It was 30 minutes before help arrived. Many motorists passed, Anderson said, some shouting that they would call police, others merely going by with "a glazed look in their eyes."

"That struck me — the completely impassive look in most of the people's faces as they went by this godawful mess. My three kids running frantically all over the place. Glass. Blood. All over. And they just went by. I was walking around with blood running out of me, trying to find somebody to help."

Although his attackers were black, Anderson said, he has "no racial prejudice now. What's the point? It was a set of rotten circumstances. A set of rotten people who were there at the time."

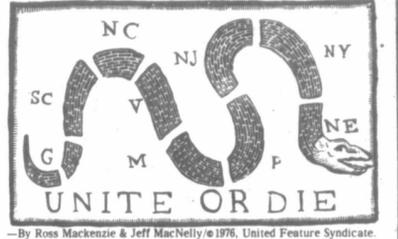

"They happened to be black. There are rotten whites, too."

A slang expression for a fussy old woman who likes to gossip is "hen."

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

Spring, 1776:

Following the examples of New Hampshire and South Carolina, in January and March respectively, most of the other colonies are taking various steps towards independence. In April, North Carolina instructs its delegates to the Continental Congress to vote for independence; Virginia follows suit in May, Connecticut in June. Also in April, Georgia instructs its delegates to vote in whatever manner they deem best for the common good. Rhode Island declares its independence on May 4. During May and June, New Jersey and Virginia prepare state constitutions. In New York, Delaware, Maryland, and — particularly — Massachusetts, sentiment for independence runs high. These independence moves culminate in Philadelphia on July 2 and 4.

Saving the trees

Elm leaf beetles infest many of the elms on tree-lined streets like Mary Ellen. Bill Toland took advantage of recent good weather to combat the pests with spray. Joe VanZandt, Gray County agent, recommended diazinon, Sevin R or toxaphene pesticides and added that extermination may require several applications. Adults lay eggs on the undersides of elm leaves and the larvae hatch in one week and begin to skelatonize the leaves. Several generations may infest trees each year.

Trend is shorter hair

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

"Cut it over the ears. I'm going for a job interview," the red-haired student told the barber as he eased into the chair at a shop a half-block from the University of California at Berkeley.

The shorn student is by no means alone. The Associated Press found, in a series of interviews conducted across the nation, that the trend among college men is not only toward shorter hair but toward more neatness in general.

That does not mean a return to the crewcut, or that the ubiquitous blue jean is fading from the scene.

It does mean busier barbers and clothing stores as students turn to trimmer hair and to fancier jeans, corduroy slacks or — Leaping Levis! — an occasional suit.

"People who were in school back in the '60s would still find clothing styles a shock, but less so than before," was the way Roger Howard, assistant dean of students at the University of Wisconsin, saw the campus scene.

"The olive drab stuff and overalls are not nearly as predominant as they were a few years ago," he added.

What's replacing olive drab, according to clothing stores near colleges, are stylized jeans that fit tight, wool, cotton or corduroy slacks and nylon sports shirts, sometimes worn with beads or other kinds of necklaces.

David Graff, manager of a men's store near the Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., said neck jewelry "took off" after students returned from spring vacations with pendants and other jewelry they bought in Florida.

Graff, other clothiers and campus officials noted that blue denim is — and probably always will be — popular campus wear. The reason, they say, is that blue jeans are easy to take care of.

"Students now tend to be practical," Graff said.

Practicality also enters into the purchase of suits — for job interviews — but they are also worn for parties occasionally.

"You used to hear students say, 'I don't even own a suit,' but you won't today," noted Kay W. McHenry, associate director of student activities at the University of Miami.

While she agreed that blue jeans and T-shirts remain popular, she said there was one difference from the jeans of five years ago: "They are clean."

And barber Virgil Meuth, whose shop is near the University of Texas, says the same thing about hair, and he says it very succinctly: "Cleaner, seems like."

Barbers, students and college officials all said that hair was generally shorter, though still longer than pre-1960s haircuts.

There are several reasons for the new neatness, in clothes and hair. One, of course, is that given by the Berkeley students sitting in the barber chair: the need for a job and the fear that employers will be more particular in today's tighter economy.

Roberts vaults 18-8 1/4

Diving tag

Pampa Hardware catcher Jeff McDougall dives at Keenan Henderson to tag the Ford's Body Shop shortstop out at home in the Babe Ruth Junior Division championship game Tuesday night before 200 fans at Optimist Park. Ford's clipped Hardware, 8-6, to claim the league championship and earn coaches Walden Haynes and Melvin Davis the right to head the Babe Ruth all-star team, which opens district play July 5 in Pampa. Ford's finished the season with a 12-3 record, which included 10 straight wins after getting a slow start. Hardware, which won its first nine games, finished at 11-4, the best record in the team's history. Hardware coaches Paul Sims and A.C. Thompson will pilot the 13-year-old all-stars, who open district play July 12 at Hooker, Okla. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Dave Roberts regained the world pole vault record with a mark of 18 feet 8 1/4 inches and promptly declared it "will take at least the same height or better to win" an Olympic gold medal. But the 24-year-old medical student's record-shattering vault was only one of the highlights of a big day at the U.S. Olympic track and field trials Tuesday. —Marathon champion Frank Shorter, Craig Virgin and Gary Bjorklund finished 1-2-3 in a 10,000-meter final that produced four of the fastest times ever in the U.S. —Millard Hampton, a powerfully built 19-year-old headed for UCLA next fall, won the 200-meter dash as the top three finishers ran the fastest races of their lives.

—Jane Frederick, a top prospect for a medal at Montreal, won the women's pentathlon and missed her American record by only 110 points. —Madeline Manning Jackson, 28, earned a third trip to the Olympics, becoming the first American woman to run 800 meters in less than two minutes. Roberts borrowed a pole from Arkansas State's Earl Bell, the man who took the world record from him in late May, after breaking his own pole on his first try at 18-8 1/4. He was given three attempts at that height, clearing it on the final try. "I touched the bar going up, but I didn't touch it very hard," Roberts, a second-year student at the University of Florida Medical School, said of his record vault. Bell loaned his pole to Roberts after missing twice at 18-8 1/4. He and Terry Porter, a 24-year-old Texan, both cleared 18-0 1/4 to grab the other Olympic berths. Shorter, who won the 1972 Olympic gold medal in the marathon, will double again at Montreal. The 28-year-old lawyer, who runs for the Florida Track Club, won a tight, four-way race in the 10,000. Shorter, fifth in the 10,000 at Munich, broke away from Virgin, of Illinois, with three-fourths of a lap to go, winning in 27 minutes 55.45 seconds. Shorter will be accompanied to Montreal by Virgin, who was second in 27:59.43, and Bjorklund, who won the Chicago Track Club. Bjorklund, who won the NCAA six-mile championship while at Minnesota in 1971, lost a shoe halfway through the race. He came from about 30 meters behind after the final curve to overtake Bill Rodgers of the Greater Boston Track Club.

Cyndy Poor of the San Jose Cindergals and Kathy Weston of Will's Spikettes were next in 2:00.55 and 2:00.73, respectively, and made the U.S. team. Today is an off day at the trials, which are following the format of the Montreal Olympics. In other events Tuesday: Joni Huntley of Sheridan, Ore., who holds the American record of 6-2 1/4 in the high jump, easily cleared the qualifying height of 5-7 and advanced to Thursday's finals. In the 110-meter hurdles, 1972 bronze medalist Tom Hill of Army won both of his heats and advanced to the semifinals Thursday. Also moving on was three-time Olympian Willie Davenport, the 1968 gold medalist. A Amateur Athletic Union champion Maxie Parks and Benny Brown, both formerly of UCLA, and National Collegiate Athletic Association winner Ken Randle of Southern California advanced to the semifinals of the 400-meter dash.

Jones ties NL no-walk mark in win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Randy Jones would give his left arm to take one pitch back. "As soon as I let it go, I knew it was a ball," he said. With the slip of that pitch, the San Diego left-hander let a National League record fall out of his grasp — Christy Mathewson's monumental no-walk record established 63 years ago. The free pass to Marc Hill leading off the eighth inning of Tuesday night's 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants stopped Jones' streak at 68 walkless innings. A few moments before, he had pulled into a tie with the great Mathewson of the New York Giants by striking out Darrell Evans to close out the seventh inning. But the streak had been weighing heavily on his broad shoulders. "I fought off the pressure for a long time but about the fifth inning it caught up with me," said Jones. "Subconsciously I'm sure it affected me. It's kind of disappointing to go that long and then end up walking the guy."

San Diego had tied the game in the sixth when Dave Winfield singled, was sacrificed to second, went to third on Ted Kubiak's grounder to first and then scored when John D'Acquisto was called for a balk. Pirates 10, Cubs 7
Rennie Stennett smashed five hits and Al Oliver and Richie Zisk each had three, leading Pittsburgh over Chicago. With the Pirates trailing 5-0 going into the fifth inning, Stennett singled home two runs. The Pirates then took the lead with four runs in the seventh and added four more in the eighth. Expos 8, Phillies 3
Gary Roenicke's two-run double and solo home runs by Mike Jorgenson and Pat Scanlon helped Montreal beat Philadelphia. Right-hander Clay Kirby, who pitched hitless ball for 5 1-3 innings, earned his first victory of the season against five losses with the aid of three hitless relief innings by Dale Murray. They combined on a three-hitter. Reds 6, Dodgers 0 Cincinnati's Fred Norman handuffed Los Angeles for four hits to extend his career record at Riverfront Stadium to 28-6. The triumph gave the front-running Reds their widest margin of the year over the Dodgers in the National League West, 5 1/2 games. Normen, 5-1, got support from the bottom half of the Reds' lineup as hot-hitting Doug Flynn drove in three runs. Norman drove in one run with a sacrifice fly. Cardinals 3, Mets 0

St. Louis right-hander John Denny continued his mastery over New York, pitching a three-hitter over the Mets. Denny, 3-4, registered his fourth career triumph over the Mets with a loss in two seasons. He struck out four batters without issuing a walk. A four-hit first inning ignited by Bake McBride's single gave the Cardinals a 2-0 lead and all the offense they needed. Lou Brock and Ted Simmons drove in the runs. Astros 9, Braves 7
Bob Watson keyed a four-run rally with a two-run double in the eighth inning, leading Houston over Atlanta. Atlanta's reer triumph over the Mets with a loss in two seasons. He struck out four batters without issuing a walk. A four-hit first inning ignited by Bake McBride's single gave the Cardinals a 2-0 lead and all the offense they needed. Lou Brock and Ted Simmons drove in the runs. Astros 9, Braves 7

Bob Watson keyed a four-run rally with a two-run double in the eighth inning, leading Houston over Atlanta. Atlanta's ton over Atlanta. Atlanta's Roland Office extended his hitting streak to 27 games with a run-scoring double in the sixth. Walks by Ken Boswell and Greg Gross off Frank LaCorte, 0-1, got the Houston rally started in the eighth Cesar Cedeno drove in Boswell with a single before Watson's double scored Gross and Cedeno. Watson later scored on Enos Cabell's hit.

Tennis seeds advance

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Can a computer really predict who is going to win Wimbledon, the most prestigious tennis tournament in the world? Arthur Ashe, the defending champion and No. 1 seed, says the talent of the 128 players who began fighting for the men's singles title is evenly divided and almost any player can beat any other player at any time.

But after the first two days' play in this year's $280,000 Wimbledon championships, all 16 of the men's seeds were safely through the first round and those who played second round matches also were winners.

Tuesday following his second-round victory. "For a grass court tournament, I think I'm seeded too high. It is almost impossible for any player to win the Italian and French, and then adapt to the different surface and win Wimbledon, too." Ashe, 32, from Miami, Fla., struggled against Australian Allan Stone in his second-round clash, before winning 7-5, 8-9, 9-7, 7-5.

Midland, Amarillo split

By The Associated Press
Midland and Amarillo traded sparkling pitching performances Tuesday night as they split a twin bill in Texas League action. Midland winning the opener, 1-0, and Amarillo rebounding for an 8-0 romp in the second contest. In other Texas League action, Lafayette dropped Shreveport, 5-1, and Arkansas beat Jackson, 7-4. San Antonio did not play its scheduled game at El Paso because of a light failure. Chuck Rogers fashioned a two-hitter to pace Midland to its win over Amarillo, running his record to 6-8. Pinch runner Jose Ortiz scampared home from second base on an infield single by Earl Chew to give Rogers all the offensive support he needed. The run was unearned, coming after a throwing error. Mike Allen lost the heart-breaker and suffered his second loss against three wins. Rusty Gerhardt turned in a two-hitter for Amarillo in the second game, getting plenty of scoring early as the winners plated five runs in the second inning. Gerhardt is now 3-0 on the season. Loser Bernie Beckman, 4-8, lasted only 1-3 innings. Arkansas pounded out two home runs and 14 hits in ripping Jackson. Ken Overfelt belted both homers for the winners. Lafayette jumped on loser Mike Gonzalez for three runs in the first inning, with RBIs from Reggie Walton, Tony Pepper and John Andrews. Walton added a solo home run to put it away for Lafayette. Jay Dillard got the win and upped his record to 7-2. El Paso and San Antonio will make up their blacked-out game with a doubleheader tonight at El Paso. Other games on the schedule are Midland at Amarillo, Jacksonville at Little Rock and Shreveport at Lafayette. Pizza Hut trips WD-S

BORGER — Pampa Pizza Hut led the entire game and clipped White Deer - Skellytown, 10-8, in the semifinals of the Babe Ruth Senior Division Baseball Tournament Tuesday at Optimist Park. Winning pitcher was Gary Bolch, who went the route. Pizza Hut meets Pampa Hood Pharmacy at 7 p.m. today in the finals of the tournament. Thursday, the Babe Ruth League opens a week-long tournament in Pampa. Pampa E.M. # Carter back on trail to fill empty coffers

By The Associated Press
Jimmy Carter, the Democrats' probable nominee for president, headed for New York and Washington today to enrich his campaign coffers, talk about foreign policy and confer with congressional leaders.
Carter, who spent much of last week at home in Plains, Ga., returned Tuesday to the scene of his earliest primary election defeat and dismissed his fourth-place showing in Massachusetts as an error in strategy.
Carter, at a public fund-raiser, apologized "for not having spent enough time to do better in Massachusetts" in the state's primary March 2.

"I have always been well received in Massachusetts and the fact that I did not come in first here... was not the fault of this state but of campaign strategy," the candidate said.
He said at the time he considered it more important to do well in early tests in Iowa and New Hampshire and in the first Southern primary election in Florida.
In Boston, Carter was questioned about President Ford's announcement Tuesday that he would submit to Congress legislation to limit mandatory busing of school children.
The President, speaking at the national Jaycees convention in Indianapolis, did not detail his plans for busing legislation. But he said his proposal "will minimize court-ordered busing and will provide a means and a method to help local authorities in trying to handle the problem at the local level."
Carter reiterated his advocacy of voluntary busing, adding,

"I do not believe it would be feasible to put a three-or five-year limit on a court ruling."
He referred to Atty. Gen. Edward Levi's statement that the administration may seek legislation imposing such limits on court-ordered busing in communities which are trying to desegregate public schools.
Carter also said he would not make public his choice of a running mate until after he has been nominated. He has 1,469 of the 1,505 Democratic delegates needed for the party's nomination.
Ford, meantime, leads challenger Ronald Reagan in their race for Republican nominating delegates, 1,009 to 931, with 1,130 needed for the nomination.
Reagan planned to visit Mississippi Thursday, where 30 delegates remain uncommitted, while First Lady Betty Ford prepared for a trip to Minnesota on Friday to stand in for her husband. State Republicans there pick 18 delegates.
Mrs. Ford was on the dais in New York City Tuesday evening for a dinner sponsored by the Jewish National Fund of America when a prominent Zionist leader, Dr. Maurice S. Sage, collapsed. Mrs. Ford led the 2,500 guests in prayer for Sage, who died less than an hour later.

In other political developments Tuesday:
—Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, who was among the candidates for the Democratic nomination, made public his 1975 income tax returns showing earnings of $71,656.32 and federal taxes totaling $18,648.40.
—A group of 48 House Democrats announced a drive to get the party's vice presidential nomination for Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr. of New Jersey.
Rodino was chairman of the House Judiciary Committee during the televised impeachment proceedings against former President Richard M. Nixon.
—The United Transportation Union, the nation's biggest railroad workers' union, endorsed Carter.

QUOTH THE RAVEN
NEW YORK (AP) — When the ancient Norse explorers set out to sea they often carried a cage full of ravens in their long boats.
According to "Navigation" (Time-Life Books), the Vikings did this because they lacked a compass and "at periodic intervals when they felt they might be near land a bird would be released and the direction of its flight would guide the Norsemen west to discover Iceland and, in succeeding generations, to Greenland and North America.

Zoo birds receive measured amounts of diet supplements because many exotic birds, when fed the same fruits they were accustomed to eating in their natural environment, became ill and died. Researchers found cultivated fruits sometimes lack certain minerals and vitamins found in wild fruit.

More minorities predicted

DALLAS (AP) — At least 79 per cent of the youths enrolled in Dallas schools in 1982 will be either black or Mexican-American, a Dallas Independent School District survey shows.
Enrollment was predicted to drop from the current 128,838 to 122,173 by the same date. The study, done by the district's research and evaluation department, also pointed to a decline in scholastic achievement in the areas of reading, language and mathematics.
The report, which has not been made public, said within the next seven years the racial makeup of Dallas elementary and high schools would be 60 per cent black, 20 per cent Anglo, 19 per cent Mexican-American and one per cent "other."

Figures for this year show 44 per cent black, 41 per cent Anglo and 13 per cent Mexican-American.
For the past several years there has been a steady decline in school enrollment, but not as drastic as that predicted within the next seven years.
Researchers are still puzzled as to where the Anglo students are going. Since 1970 more than 34,000 white students have left the school system. Some of the drop, they said, may be attributed to a move to the suburbs, but the shift from inner-city living accounts for only a fraction of the missing pupils.
The study revealed that test scores for youths in grades two, four, six, eight, nine and 12 were falling in the areas of reading, grammar and math. The decline was greater in the higher grades than at the elementary level and minority pupils registered the sharpest downward trend.

Dr. William Webster, research and evaluation director, said there was nothing to be alarmed about because "we have a downward trend nationally."
Webster said the fact that math scores are not as high as reading and language raises "some legitimate questions, including how well the new math is working and whether computation should be stressed as much as it has in past years."

Escaped trio still free

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — A search continued today for three fugitives from the state prison here.
Four others have been recaptured since the seven escaped through a utility tunnel late Saturday night.

Meanwhile, the top civilian plumber at the prison said Tuesday that escapee G. Rex Brinlee Jr., who remains free, had the run of the prison under the orders of Warden Richard Crisp.
Jay Riggs, who has resigned effective June 30, told the news director of KTUL-TV in Tulsa, Jeff Rosser, that Crisp gave orders that Brinlee was to get just about anything he wanted.
In explaining why Crisp gave Brinlee freedom ordinarily denied other convicts, Riggs said, "Brinlee did what he does best with the warden. He coned him. It's as simple as that."
Riggs said Crisp ordered him to let Brinlee work on the plumbing in the prison without any supervision, and to check out any tools he wanted.

He said Brinlee spent weeks working in the escape tunnel without any prison personnel with him.
Crisp is on vacation and could not be reached for comment.
A controversy over when prison officials notified law enforcement agencies about the escape also took a new twist Tuesday with City Manager Gene Walker saying someone from the prison telephoned police with the news of the break at 7:30 p.m.

The (police) officer telephoned the Oklahoma Highway Patrol and the patrol headquarters said it had no information as to an escape and the matter was dropped as a rumor, Walker said in a letter to Corrections Director Ned Benton.
Prison authorities have said they discovered the men missing at a 10 p.m. head count, conducted a thorough search of the prison and then notified police at 11:30 p.m.
"At 11:30 p.m. the teletype message was received and at 12:05 a.m. Sunday the penitentiary telephoned the escape report to the McAlester police department," Walker wrote Benton.
"By this time two vehicles had been stolen in McAlester."
Benton could not be reached for comment, but Melvin Tyler, security chief at the prison, said he was "very upset" at the report.
"If an employee did such a thing, I can tell you that he is in serious trouble," Tyler said. "This is something we will not tolerate. I am upset and I intend to get to the bottom of it."

However, John Grider, a top assistant to Benton, arrived here late Tuesday night and immediately branded Walker's charges "completely ridiculous."
Grider said Brinlee and William Morris, who had been on a kitchen work detail, approached guard Capt. A. K. Davis and Lt. C. M. Morris and requested they be permitted to take a shower in F Cell House.
"Our records clearly reflect that the two inmates were seen by two guard officers at 8:45 p.m., and there is no way that we could have been searching for them at the earlier hour that Mr. Walker claims," Grider said.
Grider said that until someone identified the prison employee who reportedly called police headquarters, "how do we know that even such a report was made?"

African talks begin

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster begin talks today that Kissinger says he hopes will help avert a racial war in southern Africa.
Kissinger flew from Paris to Fuerstenfeldbruck air base outside Munich, then boarded a helicopter for a flight to the Bavarian Forest and his afternoon session with Vorster. The South African leader reached the resort town of Bodenmais earlier.
Kissinger will try to enlist Vorster's help in steering the white-minority government of Rhodesia into negotiations to transfer control to the country's 6.1 million blacks within two years.

Although the two-day meeting in the forests of Bavaria was originally planned to advance the Ford administration's new campaign against the white regime in Rhodesia, the black uprising in South Africa in the past week has focused public interest much more on what Kissinger says to Vorster about his rejection of majority rule in his own country.
At a news conference Tuesday in Paris, Kissinger denied that the meeting was an expression of U.S. sympathy toward South Africa's white minority.

He said he was seeing Vorster at the unanimous suggestion of 40 black African countries.
"It is in this spirit and not in any sense of an endorsement of anything that is going on in South Africa — quite the contrary — that I am meeting the South African prime minister," Kissinger declared.
He criticized Vorster's government for its "violent" response to the black rioting in which at least 140 persons were killed and more than 1,100 injured.

He also reiterated the Ford administration's distaste for apartheid, the South African government policy of racial separation and black repression.
"The U.S. government is attempting to move matters to a solution through negotiations rather than through violence," Kissinger said, "and it will attempt to do what it can to avoid outside intervention and to permit a solution in which African problems are solved by African nations."

Summer inoculations set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enough swine flu vaccine will be ready this summer to begin inoculating millions of adults shortly after Labor Day, U.S. health officials say. But vaccination of younger Americans will likely be delayed pending further studies of side effects.

Dr. Saul Krugman of New York University said Tuesday that dose and composition standards for the adult vaccines should be ready within two weeks so manufacturers can go into full production.

"We know now that in the age group of 25 or so and above it will be possible to recommend a dose that can be well tolerated," said Krugman, member of a Center for Disease Control advisory committee.
Federal health advisory committees recommended Tuesday that the $135-million vaccination program move ahead to immunize the nation's adults as soon as possible, but they advised delaying shots for children and young people until more studies are made.
Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the U.S. Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, said vaccination of the young should begin by late fall or early winter following studies of what type of vaccine at what doses should be used.

The bodies recommending a go-ahead with the adult part of the program were the Advisory Committee on Influenza Protection to the CDC, and the Panel on Viral and Rickettsial Diseases of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Biologics.
Both committees' recommendations will go to Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Cooper can order implementation of the vaccination program after it is set up.

Hill probing last months for Hughes

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post says Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill will send two investigators to Mexico as part of a probe into the final months of billionaire Howard Hughes' life.
"We have some information about what went on and some of it conflicts," the Post quoted Hill as saying Tuesday. "We want to determine what the facts are and then we'll act accordingly."
Hughes was on his way from Acapulco to Houston's Methodist Hospital when he died on a chartered jet.
An autopsy revealed Hughes died of a liver disease. A Mexican doctor was quoted as saying he felt the mystery millionaire had not received sufficient medical treatment in Mexico.
Hill was quoted as saying he will send the two investigators to the Acapulco area to interview persons there.

Hill said he also would rely on his contacts among Mexican authorities as a means of verifying and locating information about the circumstances under which Hughes lived during the weeks prior to his death April 5.
"Part of our investigation also will deal with some of the time he spent in Las Vegas," Hill said.
Hill has filed a petition asking a Houston probate court to declare Hughes a legal Texas resident and to probate a purported handwritten will here. Others want the document probated in Nevada because that state has no inheritance tax while Texas does.

Price says voters want problem solver

Bob Price of Pampa, Republican candidate for U.S. Congressman, said Tuesday that he believes that "the people of this district want a representative who has experience in business, capable of deriving solutions to problems and providing innovative ideas."
He was speaking Tuesday night before a group of Collingsworth County supporters in Wellington.
"The present Congressman has filed to exert any leadership," Price said referring to Congressman Jack Hightower of Vernon, a Democrat.

"He has not introduced any proposals to solve problems, nor has he presented any constructive approaches to deal with district or national concerns."
Price told the group that the present congressman does not "possess the necessary experience to adequately address the needs of the district."
He added that "$45,000 a year is a pretty high price to pay for on the job training."

Connally suggested burning Nixon tapes

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally says the White House taping system of former President Nixon was "an invasion of privacy that never should have happened."
Connally acknowledged at a news conference Tuesday that he urged former Nixon chief of staff H.R. Haldeman to recommend to Nixon that the tapes be destroyed.
"They never should have been made in the first place. They should have been destroyed. They should still be destroyed," the former Treasury Secretary said.
Connally said, however, he told Haldeman that "under no circumstances" should any subpoenaed tapes be destroyed.
The tapes were a key factor in the Watergate scandal investigation that eventually led to Nixon's resignation from office in August 1974.

Connally said he told Haldeman that Nixon should gather up the tapes, call the press and burn the tapes in the White House rose garden "so there would be no secret about it."
At the news conference, Connally also reiterated he is not seeking any public office, including the Republican vice presidential nomination.
He said he has no intention of announcing his support for either President Ford or GOP presidential challenger Ronald Reagan before the Republican National Convention.
Connally was in San Antonio for an address to the annual convention of the Texas Restaurant Association.

ted from another official a decorated Bible from Israel.
As Sage slumped to the floor, Secret Service agents guarding the First Lady rushed to his side and began efforts to revive him. He was later taken by ambulance to the hospital.
Mrs. Ford turned pale and took her seat when Sage collapsed. Moments later, she stood, stepped to the microphone and led the prayer.
She then left the ballroom at the New York Hilton Hotel, her planned speech undelivered.
Sage was the son of a former chief rabbi of Paris and fled France during World War II.
He began his chemical and pharmaceutical firm in 1944 and later operated a brokerage business. But his real love was Zionism, and at one time he served as president of the Religious Zionists of America.
Survivors include Mrs. Ford, Lillian, two sons and a daughter.

Zone rule may stall land use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's ruling that a community can require a citizen's referendum on all proposed zoning changes could be a severe setback to land use planning, according to spokesmen for real estate developers and the construction industry.

In a 6-10-3 decision Monday, the court upheld an Eastlake, Ohio, ordinance assuring community control over residential growth by requiring a 55 per cent majority at the polls before any change in the permitted use of a piece of land could go into effect.

Developers said the added step of clearing a public referendum to win a zoning change violated a property holder's right to due process of law. The court disagreed.

"A referendum cannot be characterized as a delegation of power," Chief Justice Warren

Burger said for the court. "Under our constitutional assumptions, all power derives from the people, who can delegate it to representative instruments which they create."

Duane Searles, associate counsel of the National Association of Home Builders, predicted that in the approximately 20 states in which voters have the power of referendum "we may see many communities requiring that rezoning be submitted to a referendum vote.

"The decision has the potential of destroying the land use planning and comprehensive zoning process," he said.

In other actions, the court: —Voted 5 to 4 to uphold a Maryland law making annual grants of state money* to private colleges, including those with church connections, to be spent for nonsectarian purposes.

The court indicated that the "impressionable age" of younger children increased the dangers of religious indoctrination at precollege educational levels.

—Agreed to review a federal court decision striking down a New Hampshire law under which an auto owner was jailed for putting tape over the state motto, "Live Free or Die," on his license plates.

Flu shot snags unforeseen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The basic vaccines for the national effort to guard against swine flu came through their initial human tests with promising results and few side effects.

Scientists reported Monday that tests with 5,186 persons indicate one standard vaccine won't do the whole job. There could be several different vaccines or combinations used to inoculate all 215 million Americans if the federal plan is completed.

"The results show it's remarkably easy to immunize people above 24 years of age," said Dr. Harry Meyer, of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Biologics.

"However, the results reinforce the attitude that children have to be dealt with more cautiously concerning influenza than adults."

He noted that persons 24 years or older make up two-thirds of the population.

The apprehension about inoculating children arose when test results with hundreds of youngsters 3 years and older showed that the kind of vaccine that stimulated the best reaction against flu virus also caused the most severe side effects.

Dr. David Karzon of Vanderbilt University, summarizing the tests on children, cited uncomfortable side effects such as mild fever, headache and general malaise. None of the side effects was life-threatening, he said.

"We had no dangerous reactions occur at all," Karzon stressed, "and the general acceptance of all products was good."

While saying there were no more side effects with children than with other flu vaccines, researchers said they wanted better than this average performance because of the numbers that are to be inoculated this time.

With reduced doses of the more effective vaccine or a double dose of the other, Karzon said he was "optimistic" that a good vaccine regimen for children would be developed before flu season next winter.

Scientists found that people 53 years old or more tended to have pre-existing antibodies against swine flu-like virus, probably from prior exposure to similar kinds of influenza.

The older the person, the more pre-existing antibodies there were and the more effective the vaccines appeared to be, they said.

Adverse reactions in adults for the most part were mild, even with doses of vaccine much higher than normally would be used, the studies showed.

Bombing suspect held for murder

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — John Adamson, accused of killing Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles, has been ordered to stand trial for murder.

The order came after a 13-hour preliminary hearing Monday, during which a business partner, Robert Lettiere, testified that Adamson told him he was comforted by the support of co-conspirators who paid him $10,000 for the killing.

"It is apparent to this court that probable cause has been established and you will be held to answer in Superior Court," Justice of the Peace Marion Reno told Adamson, 32, at the conclusion of the hearing.

Reno scheduled arraignment for July 5 and ordered Adamson held without bond.

The hearing ended after two surprise witnesses told of events leading up to the bombing of Bolles' car in a midtown parking lot on June 2. The session was held under tight security.

Adamson stalked the newspaper's parking lot in search of Bolles' car after claiming he was to get $10,000 to "blow up a car," Lettiere, a partner of Adamson's in a dog-raising venture, testified.

A woman friend, Gail Owens, testified earlier she accompanied Adamson to San Diego, where he allegedly purchased a remote control device similar to the one police said was used to explode the bomb under Bolles' car.

Lettiere said Adamson told him that the payment for the job would be $10,000 but that future jobs would be worth $25,000 each.

Delaware was the first state to ratify the Constitution.

Area 'hams' to display skills over weekend

Amateur radio operators in the Pampa area will join operators throughout the United States and Canada this weekend in the 40th Field Day, sponsored by the American Radio Relay League.

The Pampa Amateur Radio Club will participate from 1 p.m. Saturday to 1 p.m. Sunday on the Bill Davis ranch, three miles southeast of Lefors. The public is invited.

The 24-hour Field Day is designed to perfect operating skills for use when normal channels of communication are destroyed by natural disaster.

Congress hears pros, cons of Daylight Savings Time

By MICK ROOD
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The first congressional hearings on Daylight Savings Time for next year indicate Americans will have to adjust their clocks for either six or seven months of DST in 1977.

Following a lightly attended two days of testimony last week before the House Commerce Transportation Subcommittee, Chairman Rep. Fred Rooney, D-Pa., said he still favors two bills he introduced among the 16 DST proposals being considered.

Rooney's six-month DST bill would start the first Sunday in April and end the last Sunday in September next year; his seven-month bill would start the third Sunday in March and end the third Sunday in October.

Rooney hopes to initiate "a permanent and uniform" solution to the DST controversy which started when daylight hours were first extended into the evening during World War I. The bill will be drafted for the full Commerce Committee in several weeks. Final approval is not expected in the House or the Senate, which passed an unheeded eight-month DST bill this session, until early next year.

Though DST legislation doesn't require Congress to appropriate a dime, it usually generates the excitement of a billion-dollar bill from lawmakers' constituents who want more, less or nothing from DST.

Rooney, who doesn't get much constituent mail on daylight savings, continued to unabashedly take his cues from the airline and tourism industries at last week's hearings.

Wednesday, the subcommittee heard mostly from the Air Transport Association of America and the Discover America Travel Organization. Like Rooney, the two groups were not decided on how long DST should last next year. Rather the groups recommended a minimum of 60 days notice and a uniform DST system to alleviate scheduling complexities.

Rooney spoke to Discover America conventions both this year and last year for $1,000 fees. In addition, he assured the Air Transport Association at an informal luncheon Feb. 13 that there would be no "hurry-up bill" this year.

Rooney said he leaned heavily on airline and tourism industry advice because of the "transportation industry is more affected than anyone else by DST." As he told Discover America President William Toohy Wednesday, "I'm well aware of the Discover America Association and its concerns with daylight savings. Your points are the interest of this committee."

There is no assurance the subcommittee can achieve Rooney's goals of uniformity and permanency with the new bill. Congress has experimented with everything from six months to year-round (1974) DST since 1918. In addition, states and localities hardest hit by dark early morning hours and other time complications have annually carved out local exceptions to national DST.

Rooney and his subcommittee staff want to propose the least controversial DST period and make it permanent. Subcommittee counsel Betsy Harrison pointed out that the more Congress toys with the length of DST, the more localities "fall away" from a uniform national system.

Harrison and subcommittee witnesses said the basic problem is the time variance within existing Standard Time Zones. At least 34 million Americans live at least a half an hour west of Standard Meridians, meaning DST only worsens their late sunrise gripes.

Rooney's subcommittee also heard from a beginning trickle of special interests who will be heard increasingly as the DST bill progresses through Congress this year.

At Wednesday's session, they included a Vermont travel service executive who asked that DST extend through October for Vermont's tourism "fall foliage season"; an Illinois broadcast official who urged that DST be eased so "daytime-only" radio stations can reach their audiences in the early morning; a City of Los Angeles lobbyist who said Southern Californians wanted year-round DST, but would settle for eight months.

Tuesday, the subcommittee heard from the Department of Transportation (DOT) and the National Bureau of Standards (NBS), both of which have studied DST effects.

On the basis of a 1973-74 study, DOT is recommending eight months of DST. But Robert Binder, DOT assistant secretary for policy and planning, called the proposal an "experiment" and conceded DOT proof of DST energy saving or traffic fatality effects are not conclusive.

NBS Director Dr. Ernest Ambler testified that even DOT's limited conclusions were faulty. DOT has projected a one per cent energy savings nationally, but NBS challenged DOT statistics as incomplete. Rooney had asked NBS to review the DOT study earlier this year.

Daylight savings will end this year on Oct. 30.

The first census in 1790 recorded the American population at 3,929,213.

Includes 4-ply polyester cord tires on warranted to give you 40,000 miles of treadwear in normal passenger car use on the same car. If they don't, take your guarantee to any Firestone Store or participating dealer. We'll replace the tire with a new one and give you credit for the mileage difference based on the tire's current adjustment price (approximate national average selling price) plus Federal Excise tax. A small service charge may be added.
