

Special privy - leges for farm workers?

Farmers flush proposal down drain

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

A federal proposal that would force farmers and ranchers to build bathrooms in their fields has resulted in some loud rumbles, grunts and groans from agribusinessmen all over the nation — including some from Pampa.

That sounds like it was thought up by some kid that majored in economics or management and has never done a damn thing in his life. Rex McAnelly of Moody Farms commented this morning.

He was referring to the proposal made in April by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) that calls for

1. Drinking water, toilet and handwashing facilities must be provided for all field workers

2. One toilet facility shall be provided for every 40 workers or fraction of that number. It shall be located within a five-minute walk of each employee's place in the field.

3. Drinking water must be dispensed either through the use of a drinking fountain or a gravity water tap.

4. For crews of fewer than five employees, field facilities are not necessary if the employer provides rides to facilities nearby.

5. Toilet paper on holders, disposable towels, soap, door latches and guide signs in as many languages as necessary must be provided.

Speaking of the toilet facilities, Henry Harnly, a Pampa area farmer, asked What's wrong with the way we're doing it now?

Asked what that is, he said, "Behind any bush where you can conceal yourself. What can be more sanitary than that. You never use a spot used by another human."

Harnly said that due to the size of the fields, he farms and the mobility of the worker. "That tractor moves from end to end, you'd have to have toilets scattered all over the field."

He said that he doesn't intend to put a single facility as described by OSHA on his farm.

"I don't think law officials can enforce it," he said. "You can't enforce a ridiculous law if it is impossible for citizens to comply with. What are they worrying about, anyway?" he asked about OSHA.

Looking on the other side of the coin, however, Harnly said that if farmers eventually are forced to yield to such rules,

"Now that we can't distinguish between sexes, we won't have to have his and hers."

And he saw a new business opportunity if area farmers opt for providing transportation to relief stations rather than constructing so many of them.

"We could open a limousine service here to carry these people to and from the toilets," he said.

"Oh, it's ridiculous," Congressman Jack Highower said this morning of the OSHA proposal when contacted by The News at his office in Vernon. "It's absolutely preposterous."

He said that due to reaction against the proposal, OSHA has withdrawn it.

They received an avalanche of protests," he said.

The congressman said, "We have been able to trim back their (OSHA's) authority," and he predicted that trend will continue.

McAnelly said of the proposal, "I'm surprised that anyone who knows anything about agriculture would even let something like that pass their desks."

He said that it looks like a case of someone being so incompetent that he is promoted so that he can be gotten out of the way and eventually, he is promoted until he's the head of the department. "I've seen that happen."

"You've got people calling the shots with so little sense as to let something like that even get to the printing press," McAnelly said.

"There are too many people sitting at government desks thinking up such things. Maybe that's a good place to start cutting some expenditures — getting rid of some of the offices like that," he said.

The feelings of the local agribusinessmen are shared by others across the country.

One irate Florida farmer said his workers must control their bowel movements when they are working so as not to reduce productivity.

Rhee Cummings of Greensboro, N.C. wrote OSHA. "Why are you trying to get us to 1964 before the clock does. Toilets, sinks and water fountains in the fields? Are you serious?"

A farmer in Brownfield wrote, "What else will you idiots in Washington come up with?"

Pampa to increase water, sewage rates

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa News Staff

City commissioners finalized Pampa's proposed operating budget for fiscal 1976-77 Thursday night at $3,243,875, an increase of $212,000 over the current year's budget.

City Manager Mack Wofford estimated revenue for the coming year at $3,141,441, leaving a deficit of $102,434.

Commissioners, after more than an hour of discussion, decided to erase the deficit and balance the budget by increasing all three of the city's utility rates.

They made one change in their Tuesday night proposal for a 7 per cent increase on all three city utilities — water, trash collection and sewer service.

The water and trash collection fees were left at the 7 per cent hike. But the sewer fee proposed increase was upped to 50 cents a month from the current minimum of $2.80 to $3.30 with an additional charge of 10 cents for each outlet over five.

The new water rate, if finally approved, will go up 30 cents a month from the present $4.50 minimum to $4.80 and the solid waste and trash collection charge also will advance 30 cents a month to $4.80 from the current $4.50 a month.

Commissioners decided there would be no increase in the $4.50 a month charge for the first 3,000 gallons of water used.

The estimated nearly $100,000 to be raised from the utility rate increases will be used to put back into the proposed budget $50,000 for street maintenance, $10,000 for maintenance of public buildings and $30,000 for the purchase of police patrol cars.

Action taken Thursday night by commissioners in boosting utility rates and setting the total proposed budget figure at $3.2 million was not final.

City Manager Wofford said the revised budget will now be put together for filing with the city secretary by Friday, Aug. 6, two weeks from today. At that time it will be open to the public for anyone who may wish to study it.

The next step then will be a public hearing scheduled for the regular semi-monthly meeting of the city commission Tuesday, Aug. 24.

The proposed budget includes a 6 per cent across-the-board pay increase for all city employees.

City manager Mack Wofford said salaries and wages account for 54.4 per cent of total operating expenses and the increase will up the city's annual payroll by an estimated $89,024.

The proposed operating budget does not include the city's bonded indebtedness of $385,000 in general obligation bonds and $136,000 water and sewer revenue bonds for a total bonded debt of $521,000.

Final action on budget and tax rate ordinances as well as an ordinance to increase the utility rates will not come until Sept. 14 and Sept. 28 when all necessary legislation to make them effective is scheduled for first and second readings at the regular city council meetings on those dates.

There is expected to be no change in the city tax rate of $1.95 per $100 of assessed property valuation.

If finally approved Sept. 28, the new budget would become effective two days later on Oct. 1, the beginning of the new 1976-77 fiscal year.

The utility rate increases, City Manager Wofford said, would become effective with the first billing period after Oct. 1.

Manhunt begins for kidnaping suspects

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (AP) — Three "armed and dangerous" men from wealthy California families are the target of a nationwide hunt today, sought for questioning in the mass kidnaping and imprisonment of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver.

Alameda and Madera county sheriffs said they would seek arrest warrants this morning for the three San Francisco Bay-area men.

An all-points bulletin named Frederick N. Woods, 24, James L. Schoenfeld, 24, and Richard A. Schoenfeld, 22. It described them as "armed and dangerous" and told officers to "arrest on probable cause."

Alameda County sheriff's deputies were reported to have obtained at least one search warrant early today to search a warehouse in eastern San Jose.

A San Jose police source said deputies hoped to find the pair of vans that transported the Chowchilla youngsters to the quarry where they were imprisoned for 18 hours.

Whether the deputies went into the warehouse, or found what they were looking for, could not be immediately determined.

Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins and Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates told a news conference Thursday night that ransom may have been the motive for snatching the youngsters and burying them alive inside a van in a Livermore rock quarry owned by Woods' father.

"I believe these three are involved in the kidnaping sufficiently enough so that we can arrest them," Bates said.

Houchins confirmed earlier reports that the younger Woods owned the moving van used to imprison the school children four feet underground. It took the youngsters and the driver 18 hours to tunnel out.

Sheriff's officers had searched the Woods' 100-acre suburban San Mateo County estate Thursday, discovering about 100 vehicles apparently accumulated by the younger Woods.

San Mateo County Sheriff John McDonald said officers had been looking for "vans, masks and guns."

He said new searches were underway in Sonora County and San Jose where Woods has some acreage, some warehouses and barns. They'll be looking for some more vehicles, more vans.

Two vans were used to transport the Chowchilla children after the kidnapers camouflaged the school bus from which the children and driver were taken.

Bates said one of the men being sought has not been seen since the incident and that officials expect to know today whether they are out of state and if they are we will ask the FBI to come in.

The Woods family is related to the wealthy California Newhall family, whose patriarch was Henry Mayo Newhall, an enterprising Sagus, Mass., businessman who arrived in San Francisco in 1850.

Woods and James Schoenfeld graduated within a year of each other at Woodside High School on the San Francisco Peninsula and had formed a loose partnership repairing old cars.

The Schoenfelds are sons of a prominent peninsula podiatrist.

The three young men being sought were involved in a previous scrape with the law on

Oct. 6, 1974. They were arrested in Downville, Calif., about 150 miles northeast of San Francisco, on a charge of felony joyriding.

They pleaded guilty to petty theft, but withdrew the plea

Later they pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of auto tampering, paid a $125 fine each and successfully completed a year's probation.

Judge says commissioners responsible for hospitals

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The final legal responsibility and authority for operation of the Gray County hospitals rests with the commissioners' court.

Gray County Judge Don Cain released that answer this morning to a question posed by the hospital board of managers on July 12.

The board asked, in the words of Fred Neslage, board chairman, "what our responsibilities are and are not."

The final draft of the request to the judge was written by Robert Monogue, administrator, and Dr. R.N. Bellamy, board member.

Cain released the answer to The News Thursday after notifying the board members, commissioners and county attorney.

"Reference your letter of July 13, 1976, the county attorney has informed me that he has advised you that while the county hospital statutes under which we are operating gives the board of managers the general supervision of the administration of the hospital, the final legal responsibility and authority rests with the County Commissioners' Court," Judge Cain wrote.

"The county attorney advised me that he had consulted with an assistant attorney general in this regard. I agree with this interpretation."

"We want to work with you in the best interests of the hospitals and the taxpayers of our county," the judge's letter concluded.

During the board meeting of July 12, considerable time was spent discussing the board's authority. References were made to recommendations for pay increases for certain employees, which were reduced by the Commissioners' Court.

Don Ritter, board member, said "if we have to get their county (county commissioners) approval on everything, what's the use of our being here?"

"They have lost confidence in us," Bellamy said of the county commissioners and county judge.

During the session, Neslage said the board had to have "some kind of delineation of what our duties are. In light of our past experience, you can't make any decision over $50 and know what's going to happen. There doesn't appear to be any need for a hospital board any longer because you have no authority."

Neslage did not define to what he referred with the $50 figure.

The county commissioners have never refused to pay any bill for hospital purchases and only once did they delay a payment — one amounting to $1,625.89, Cain noted.

The bill in question was from Elliott Office Supply Co. in Amarillo for a desk chair ($813.36), three side chairs and a table, all for the hospital administrator's office.

"We sent the furniture bill back for reconsideration," Judge Cain said, "but we paid it."

The judge pointed out that any delay in payment of the bill resulting from the commissioners' action was not as lengthy as the time that passed between the administrator's purchase of the furniture and his initial submission of the bill.

Records show the invoice for the furniture is dated in November 1975, but it did not come before the county commissioners for consideration until the February meeting.

There reportedly is a movement underway to call for an election to create a hospital district for Gray County which would remove the operations of the two county hospitals from the jurisdiction of the county court.

If approved, a hospital district would have taxing powers of up to 75 cents on a $100 valuation. The six directors on the hospital district board would be elected in April with the current board of managers serving until that time.

If a district is again defeated as it was in 1969, under the present structure the terms of Neslage, Dr. R.M. Bellamy, and Don Ritter will expire at the end of December.

Officials to solve Viking malfunction

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Viking officials believe they have diagnosed, and can easily solve, a malfunction on the Mars lander that caused its soil-scooping arm to jam.

If their theory of the failure is correct, Project Manager Jim Martin said Thursday night, the beginning of the Mars life search next Wednesday will not be affected.

Martin said the telescoping arm, which was designed to reach out for a handful of Martian soil and dump it in a small biology laboratory, jammed Thursday after being extended for a test.

It jammed while being retracted, he said, apparently because a locking pin that should have fallen free did not do so.

He said that was the "most probable cause" of the trouble. The cure, which will be tried Sunday, is to command the robot lander to extend the arm again until the pin falls to the ground.

If that was indeed the cause, said Martin, it is likely that there will be no effect on the mission "and we will be able to continue on our present timeline."

A special team of trouble shooters came up with the theory after duplicating the problem on an identical Viking lander that sits in a sandbox at Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

Don't trade unemployment for blatant socialism

Now that the Democratic National Convention is in the history books, it is a good time to take a hard look at a major plank of that party's platform that could be devastating if it becomes national policy. The plan calls for a reduction of the adult unemployment rate to 3 per cent within four years.

On its face, that goal is laudable enough. No one likes unemployment. The problem is that behind the mild-sounding Democratic plank lies a horrendous proposal called the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill, which has become a keystone measure on Capitol Hill among a wide swath of Democrats.

Humphrey-Hawkins (named for its sponsors, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins of California), in essence proposes to repeal the business cycle and limit unemployment to 3 per cent by making the government the employer of last resort. The bill's sponsors don't bother filling in the details — that little matter is left to the White House.

It is estimated that Humphrey-Hawkins could increase the federal budget by around $45 billion. Persons employed in the private sector, if not satisfied with their wages, under the bill could quit their jobs and demand that Uncle Sam hire them at the highest prevailing wage rates for their specialties.

A common figure on Capitol Hill is that an estimated 10 million workers now making less than the highest wages in private jobs would become unemployed so they could go to work for the government.

In a year when major political candidates have fallen by the wayside because of their close ties to Washington, it seems incredible that such a bill as Humphrey-Hawkins could be riding as high as it now is. The bill is a monument to the power of special interest groups at the expense of the public as a whole. In this case, the groups pushing Humphrey-Hawkins hardest are labor leaders and blacks — abetted by many Democrats. Jimmy Carter himself is on record favoring one recent version of the bill, which has been amended over and over.

Although the nation's unemployment rate rose in June for the first time since September, its general trend is still clearly downward. It would be a tragedy of major proportions — unleashing an inflation rate seldom if ever seen in this country — to about the current economic progress with anything akin to Humphrey-Hawkins.

Everyone wants a lower rate of unemployment. But no reasonable person wants to trade unemployment — especially an improving rate of unemployment — for blatant socialism.

Canada and the Olympics

The shameful demeanor of the Trudeau government in bowing before the arrogance of the Red dictatorship of mainland China must be a humiliating experience for the Canadian people.

And in so doing, Under-Secretary for External Affairs Andre Bissonette has broken his word, as well as the agreement of the Canadian government itself, to abide by the rules of the International Olympic Committee which has long recognized the legitimate claim of the people of free China to be known as "The Republic of China." After all, this nomenclature was freely chosen by them, while the unfortunate people in occupied China had no choice in the selection of the name of "The People's Republic of China," which was forced upon them by the Peking dictatorship. For years, the free people of the Republic of China have played an honorable role in the International Olympics. There was no logical, rational, or moral basis for Canada's action in barring the free Chinese from Canadian soil. Only one reason remains: it was not to the liking of the arrogant and hateful Communist dictatorship.

David Israel, veteran sports columnist with the Washington (DC) STAR branded the Canadian government conduct as "cowardly" and "deceitful."

"Canada never could have hoped to make any money on the Olympics," he wrote: "it could only have hoped to establish some prestige for itself in the world. Now that is gone, too. For it matters not whether a compromise is reached. What matters is that by its stunning stupidity, miscalculation and unconscionable petulance, Canada has taken the joy out of the games and alienated a world that desperately wanted to discover some joy this summer."

"The Olympics used to be something for people to anticipate with optimism. Now they are irrevocably overrun by politics and paranoia it is enough to make you sick."

When Queen Elizabeth met Ford, he offered her the original colonies as a gift, but she refused to accept them.

SUPREME COURT:

WASHINGTON — The Fourth Amendment language protecting you from unreasonable searches and seizures is as timely as an language put in the Constitution by the Founding Fathers. The words aren't obsolete. They were inspired by the fear of state power — memories of British Red Coats invading colonial homes. Today, only the color of the uniform has changed.

The Supreme Court recently lost sight of that federally guaranteed right in a well-publicized, but probably little understood ruling. A Nixon-appointed majority ruled 6-3 that federal courts will no longer hear habeas corpus appeals from state courts where Fourth Amendment violations are involved. The court decided local prosecutors can encourage, and local judges can approve when police use search warrants with little excuse as long as the suspect is believed guilty.

Business school is back in business

By Don Oakley

Business, believe it or not, is now the most popular subject among both men and women college undergraduates, and nothing else is even close. A nationwide survey of current freshmen students by the American Council on Education found that nearly 19 per cent of them have chosen business as their probable major.

"Demand is going up across the country faster than tuition," says Dr. William Flewelling, dean of the University of Georgia's College of Business Administration and newly elected president of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB).

While the number of men starting college who are interested in business has been steadily rising — from 17.3 per cent in 1966 to 30.1 in 1975 — more and more women and minority students are also seeking a business education. In predominantly black colleges, 22.5 per cent of the freshmen students report that they want to study business.

The AACSB cites a number of reasons for these developments:

First, quite simply, is the economy. Most of the jobs available in today's labor market are in business, especially accounting.

Second, there are more opportunities in business for women and minorities today than there were five or 10 years ago.

A third reason is the declining demand in the professions. The number of teaching jobs available has decreased enormously over the last 10 years. Last spring, law schools graduated twice as many lawyers as there were new law jobs.

A fourth, and perhaps most interesting reason, is a changed attitude toward business and its future role. There is a noticeable decline in antibusiness sentiment on campuses.

"The antibusiness attitude has been superseded by a growing consensus that societal problems of greatest concern will not be solved unless private initiative and power are brought to bear on them," says Dr. Earl Cheit, dean of the School of Business Administration at the University of California in Berkeley.

This is reflected in the fact that the number of men and women who want to study business is rising even faster than the number who plan to make careers in the business world. The reason for this is given by the students themselves, who now see business training as the route to many fields in the nonprofit or public sector as well as the private sector. They are realizing that business management skills are as essential in running a welfare program or a hospital or an art museum as in running a company.

In a related development, reports Higher Education News Service, more than 50 of the nation's business schools have changed their names to schools of management during the past decade.

It was an outrageous decision of the end — justifies the — means variety. Justice Lewis Powell, who wrote the majority opinion, said state judges are competent to have the final word on search and seizure questions.

Powell and Chief Justice Warren Burger argued that too many guilty state prisoners were being freed by challenging search warrants in federal courts. Application of the so-called "exclusionary rule" — deflected the truthfinding process and often frees the guilty," Powell said. Guilt or innocence is vital almost to the exclusion of this constitutional protection, the court decided.

The high court apparently feels that the Fourth Amendment doesn't amount to much. Justice William Brennan countered in his minority opinion that a court majority may be ready to hold that the Fourth Amendment has "no substantive content whatsoever." He angrily called the Powell decision "a procedural ruse." And indeed, Chief Justice Burger has long said that federal dockets are too crowded with appeals.

This court is not free to curtail those Constitutional guarantees even to punish the most obviously guilty. What possible justification can there be for denying vindication of such rights on federal habeas when state courts do deny those rights at all," Brennan said.

The decision seems to reverse 15 years of decisions which reaffirmed the right to appeal to federal courts for protection against search warrants issued without "probable cause."

The high court didn't rule on the merits of the two cases which prompted their decision. Only Brennan went beyond the legal mechanics of whether or not to allow appeals. He derided a Nebraska Supreme Court decision which let a "clearly deficient" search warrant stand. In 1970, an Omaha, Neb. judge approved a search warrant for a suspect in a booby-trap slaying of a policeman.

The judge acted only on the knowledge that the suspect was a member of a militant black group which had threatened police in underground newspapers and on some vague hearsay collected by police.

Never questioning that the Nebraska warrant or others may be shockingly deficient, the Supreme Court decided that allowing federal appeals has freed some guilty prisoners — it didn't estimate how many. That "menace" is more important than protecting all Americans from overzealous police work, the courts said. Never mind the Fourth Amendment.

The Battle of Manhattan was a siege that began with the arrival of Howe's 32,000 professional soldiers on Staten Island in July, 1776. It continued through the summer and fall to the British capture of Forts Washington and Lee in November, and the retreat of the Continentals across the Hudson to New Jersey. Washington knew his untrained and undisciplined troops were no match for the British and Hessian soldiers. His only hope, The World Almanac notes, was to maneuver and avoid battle where possible, giving up New York City to the British.

Ghost town on the Potomac

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Now that the country is 200 years old the things that go bump in the night in this town may be other than Jerry Ford falling on his bean or callgirls entertaining the legislators.

Legend has it that historic figures normally make their reappearance on earth two centuries after their deaths, and so the nation generally and the capital specifically may be in for spooky futures. You know, like boo. Ben Franklin in bedsheet.

Silly? Not in superstitious Washington, where senators can be observed avoiding the 13th step to the Capitol and where the best-read features in the newspapers, other than the ads for massage parlors, are the astrology charts. Indeed, American politicians have been occupied with the supernatural from the beginning: There is evidence that many founding fathers were guided to some degree by the occult arts. George Washington, for one, was almost regularly being visited by visions, apparitions and other chilling interlopers.

So accustomed to the eerie has Washington become, actually, that the Bicentennial ghosts will hardly be noticed for the crowd of specters already here. G. Washington, for example, has already been seen numerous times, riding his mare across the lawn of Mount Vernon. Judge Advocate Joseph Hart, who sentenced the Lincoln assassins to death, takes regular strolls down First Street searching for public assurance that his decision was just. There is even a nude ghost, naturally: she is altogether in the altogether and employees at the Indonesian embassy say they can't wait to be scared by her again.

The Capitol building is a favorite of ghosts here. There is reportedly a Demon Cat who roams the corridors, particularly in the basement, and who has been seen so many times by so many truly frightened people that some employees refuse to walk the halls alone at night. It's rumored the demon caused one guard to die of a heart attack.

And then there is the spirit of the unfortunate stonemason, said to have been trapped in the Capitol walls when it was built; he can be seen walking about with his trowel in his hand, no doubt looking for back pay. Or he may be looking for the "chicken ghost," whose presence was revealed by former congressional doorkeeper William Miller, who swore he could hear the damned thing clucking at all hours.

There seems to be only one former member of Congress haunting the Capitol. He is William Taubee, who in the late 1800s was shot and killed during an argument with a reporter. Admittedly, that was carrying freedom of the press too far, and many believe that Taubee has made certain the scribes know it. There are stains on the steps leading to the House press room which are said to be the remains of Taubee's blood. They cannot be washed away nor scraped off by decades of wear. And every now and then some unseen force reaches out of the steps to knock a journalist on his duff.

But the most popular place for Washington's ghosts is the White House. There is said to be a British soldier (from the War of 1812) who wanders about with a torch trying to burn the place down again. Some visitors have sworn they could smell soap suds and wet clothes in the East Room, where Abigail Adams used to hang her laundry. And Lillian Rogers Park, a housekeeper for 30 years, says that once when she was sewing a bedspread in the Rose Room she felt an icy breeze and a hand on her chair; it was Andy Jackson, whose raucous laughter has been heard by others in the house as well.

Some say that Jackson is laughing at the naivete of those who believe in the notion of returning dead. Yet, some very sophisticated people have become believers in Washington. Teddy Roosevelt said he saw the ghost of Abe Lincoln, "many times." Winston Churchill was offered the Lincoln bed one evening, but decided to stay across the hall instead. Harry Truman believed in the ghosts so much he told his daughter that to lock the doors against them would be futile.

Only one thing troubled Harry about the spooks. Why, he wondered dryly, would any self-respecting spirit want to come back to Washington?

Unsatisfied judge lets baby beef grades stand

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge says he would not grade baby beef the way the Agriculture Department does, but yet has upheld the USDA's right to do grade as it wishes.

U.S. District Court Judge Patrick Higginbotham ruled Wednesday against the baby beef industry, refusing to knock down new gradings of meat set forth by the USDA.

"While the court would not have drawn the line (between good and standard grades) as it was drawn," U.S. District Court Judge Patrick Higginbotham said, "it cannot say the rules are without rational justification."

The baby beef industry, which brought the suit, had argued that the USDA had narrowed its good grade category "arbitrarily." It contended the new USDA rule, which takes much of baby beef out of the good grade and puts it into standard grade, would cost them $120 million a year.

The new grading went into effect in February. The USDA contended the good grade was changed to make the meat more marketable.

Ned Tyler, co-author of the standards, had told the court in a March hearing that there would be less "taste variability" under the new good grade.

Higginbotham said, "As one proceeds vertically on the meat scale, the meat changes. The setting of standards requires that lines must be drawn somewhere and, given the progressive nature of the changes in meat grades, much of the same attack as launched by the plaintiff (baby beef producers) here could in all likelihood have been launched as to the juncture point of each of the grades.

"The rub here is that much of the baby beef is aimed at the retail grocery outlet. The downgrading to standard effectively eliminates that meat from the grocery shelf.

But Higginbotham noted the baby beef industry focused their attack on a small segment of the new meat grades which affect their businesses, while the USDA had a much broader view.

Children tell story of hijacking

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — "At first I was a little scared to talk about it," admitted Jennifer Brown.

But then words starting spilling out of the 8-year-old girl's mouth as she and her brother described how they and 24 other school children were kidnaped from their bus last Thursday and buried alive in a dirt-covered moving van.

"We saw a van in the middle of the road. A guy got on. He had a gun. My brother thought it was a joke. He got up on his seat with his hands up and shouted, 'We didn't do it,'" Jennifer told the San Francisco Examiner Wednesday.

Her 10-year-old brother, Jeffrey, added, "Everybody laughed. I crack a lot of jokes in school. Then the guy said, 'Everyone get in back.' Everybody said, 'Really funny. Jeff.

"Then another guy came on. He put on white gloves and drove the bus. They all wore white gloves," Jeffrey said.

Jennifer continued, "As soon as we saw the guy's gun everybody got scared... he drove the bus down into the slough. There was a green van waiting for us.

"We thought they were going to take us and scare us, then take us home. We asked if they were going to hurt us. They said they weren't going to hurt us. We asked if they were going to take us home. They said, 'In a little while.' We were all crying. We screamed our heads off.

"The guns were all I looked at. Two guys were standing on the side with the guns," Jennifer added.

"They drove around. We were just sitting there singing. Everyone was still scared... I thought we were going to die at a young age."

Her brother picked up the tale with the vans stopping at the quarry in Livermore.

"When they backed up to the hole our van hit a tree... When I saw the hole I first thought it was a tent. They were going to lock us in it and zip it up. Then I found out it was a hole. I missed a couple of steps on the ladder and came down the hard way.

"We heard them shoveling out there, like they were putting dirt on top of the box. They were just shoveling us in."

The brother and sister said that bus driver Ed Ray and 14-year-old Mike Marshall then starting trying to get out of the buried van.

"We thought there might be two guys standing up there with shotguns looking down on us, saying, 'Ha, ha, ha. You're trying to get out,'" Jennifer said.

Jeffrey said one boy cried, "We're never going to see our folks again." I said, "Think of Christmas or something good."

"After a while I went up and helped dig dirt back. Then Robert stuck his fingers through a hole in the roof and pulled back. A crack opened."

Jennifer said, "He told us he could see mountains and trees."

"There wasn't enough room to get out," Jeffrey said. "Then Mike just pushed up through it. His hair was all dirty. His face was dirty..."

"Then Edward stayed inside. Mike and Robert stood just outside the hole and I stood on top of the dirt mounds around it and helped the girls out."

"When we got out we thought, 'Wow, we aren't in the Chowchilla slough.'"

The children and Ray discovered they were in a rock quarry near Livermore, 95 miles north of their small hometown.

Looking back on their ordeal, Jennifer and Jeffrey had different ideas of what should be done to their kidnapers.

Pampa man faces prison in New Mexico

ROSWELL (AP) — Jerry Vallejos of Pampa, Tex., faces a 7-15-year prison sentence after being convicted of manslaughter in the Jan. 10 shooting death of a Roswell youth.

A district court jury returned the guilty verdict late Wednesday. The jurors deliberated about seven hours Wednesday after hearing two days of testimony.

District Court Judge Paul Sneed sentenced Vallejos, 20, to 7-15 years in prison.

Vallejos, a former Roswell resident, had been charged with first-degree murder in the death of Israel Herrera, 18, who was shot with a .22-caliber weapon during an incident at a city park. The defense argued the shooting had been in self-defense.

Also charged with murder in the case was Ernest Jackson, who is to be tried later.

Iowa wants to make county out of Mars

By VAL CORLEY
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Officials from Iowa's 99 counties say they want to establish an ideal county government, free of state and federal interference. But they figure they have to go 200 million miles to do it.

In a unanimous vote Thursday, the State Association of Counties adopted a resolution to colonize Mars and make the Red Planet Iowa's 100th county.

"It's a not-too-lighthearted approach to just call attention to the problem that local government is being dominated by state government and the federal government," said executive director Don Cleveland. "We just need a little breathing room."

Ralph Juhl, president of the association, admitted that some details — such as transportation to the new colony — haven't been worked out yet.

Juhl said officials had agreed that the first item of business would be deciding where to put the courthouse.

"Naturally, we have to find a centralized location," Juhl said. Then he seemed to forget for a moment the new county's independent nature.

"Our site selection will be dependent upon the filing of an environmental impact statement," he said.

Cleveland had told the 427 county officials at a workshop here that Mars would be "a true independent colony, free to function without federal and state spending mandates."

Cleveland said he and Juhl decided to colonize Mars after hearing reports from the Viking 1 spacecraft.

"We decided that since county officials have all these problems dropped on their heads, we could take advantage to move county government to a setting where we wouldn't be hampered by state and federal strings," he said.

The resolution invites other county officials from throughout the United States and the world to join in the government of Mars County.

Congress sustains veto on military construction

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's veto of a $3.3-billion military construction bill has been sustained, but he lost his second round on a $3.95-billion public works-employment bill the Democratic majority in Congress considers a major campaign issue.

The Republican President said after the votes were over that he was "keenly disappointed" at the overriding of his veto of the jobs bill, which now becomes law.

Creation of any of the 200,000 new jobs supporters say the measure will produce depends upon Congress getting appropriations for them into law, too, however.

On the military construction bill, the House voted 270 to 131, two more than two-thirds of those voting, the margin needed to override a veto. But in the Senate later, the vote was 51 to 42 — 11 shy of two-thirds.

On the jobs bill, a replacement for a $6-billion measure Ford vetoed earlier as "election-year pork barrel," the House voted 310 to 96 — 39 more than required in the "aye" column.

The Senate had voted 73 to 24 on Wednesday to override.

Ford responded that Congress "would rather create $4 billion worth of temporary, government-funded jobs than let those same dollars go to work in the private sector to produce real, rewarding, lasting jobs."

Jacksonville, Fla., Mayor Hans G. Tanzler Jr., president of the National League of Cities, urged the administration and Congress to move quickly, nonetheless, to fund the program and put it into effect.

The enactment of the jobs bill marked the ninth time Congress has overridden a Ford veto. But Ford, who has vetoed 53 measures since taking office 23 months ago, has been sustained 15 times. In the other 29 cases, Congress had either already adjourned or its leadership had decided against trying to override.

The President had objected to the military construction measure because of a provision that would have required him to give members of Congress a year's notice before moving to close a base in their districts, another by political action for anyone in office.

Just before the vote, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld had urged the Senate to prove its stated commitment to reduce wasteful military spending by sustaining the veto.

Sixteen of the 59 Democrats voting accepted the challenge, killing the bill.

But in the House on the jobs bill, 57 Republicans defected to the majority, many citing sustained unemployment in their home districts.

That argument was cited in the Senate the day before, even by such close Ford associates as assistant GOP leader Robert Griffin of Michigan, making the difference.

The jobs legislation authorizes $2 billion in grants to states and local governments for public works that can start within 90 days, $700 million for waste-water treatment plants and $1.25 billion in grants to areas of high unemployment to maintain essential public services and avoid layoffs. In addition to producing jobs, supporters said, 90,000 jobs would be protected by the measure.

Arab terrorist reported at Montreal Olympics

MONTREAL (AP) — A spokesman said today that the Royal Canadian Mounted Police "regarded with great seriousness" a report from London that an Arab terrorist leader had slipped into Montreal. But he said nothing had been discovered to indicate the terrorist was in Canada.

The RCMP spokesman, Jean-Louis Gagnon, said, "There is an investigation going forward on this matter."

Other police sources indicated that RCMP security and intelligence officials had been up all night trying to pin down the report.

Gagnon said the investigation originated with a call from a reporter from the London Daily Telegraph saying that it had information from Middle East sources that Abdel Wahab Said al Kiali, secretary-general of the Arab Liberation Front, had slipped into Montreal using an Iraqi diplomatic passport.

"This name means something to us as does the name of the organization," said Gagnon.

It was the first reported security threat to surface since the Games opened last Saturday under tight police control.

The memory of the 1972 Munich massacre in which Israeli athletes were slain by Arab terrorists has been one of the determining forces in the planning and the running of the Olympics here.

Gambling group suggests winnings be tax exempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national gambling commission suggested today that Congress might want to exempt gambling winnings from federal income taxes as long as gamblers are placing their bets with legal gaming operations.

In its second interim report, the commission said there is reason to believe that taxes on legal gambling winnings deter some large bettors from using legal betting facilities.

The commission recommended that Congress enact a statute to insure the states' continued power to regulate gambling.

The Commission on the Review of the National Policy Toward Gambling, the 15-member panel's official name, has been studying wagering in the United States for the past 2½ years after being created under the 1970 Organized Crime Control Act.

The commission's final report to the President and Congress will be submitted in October. The interim report was designed to generate public response before final recommendations are made.

The commission found no overriding national reason to prohibit gambling activities, nor did it determine that it was in the national interest to encourage wagering through the establishment of federally operated establishments or games.

for determining what forms of gambling may legally take place within their borders.

The only bases for federal involvement, the commission concluded, are the protection of the national interest and the prevention of interference by one state with the gambling policies of another.

With jurors absent, the defense summoned several experts late Thursday in an effort to show that the two-year-old Symbionese Liberation Army tape is inadmissible. Prosecution experts were to take the stand today.

"In other tapes I have examined, I have never found clicks of this sort — other than in the Watergate tapes," said McKnight.

Defense attorney Mark Melzer asked, "Would you expect to find them on an unaltered tape?"

"No," answered McKnight, an employee of Magnetic Reference Laboratories of Mountain View, Calif.

The tape, delivered to a Los Angeles radio station while the Harrises and Miss Hearst were fugitives, is a crucial piece of prosecution evidence in the Harrises' kidnapping, assault and robbery trial. Miss Hearst faces the same charges, but her case was severed from the Harrises.

The tape contains angry speeches laced with obscenities in which the three defendants eulogize slain SLA members and confess to various crimes charged in their indictment.

Howe trial goes to jury

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The prosecution and defense were to give closing arguments today in the misdemeanor sex trial of Rep. Allan T. Howe, D-Utah, after the defense rested without calling any witnesses to the stand.

The attorney for the freshman congressman said the decision not to put Howe on the stand was "completely consistent with my judgment that he is not going to get a fair trial."

After two lengthy recesses in which lawyers conferred in Judge Raymond S. Uno's chambers, Howe's attorney rose and told the court:

"At this time, your honor, the defense rests."

But the lawyer, Dean Mitchell, said later, "By no means am I giving up."

Asked by reporters if Howe was happy with the decision that he not testify, Mitchell said, "He's relying on my judgment." He said he had planned for a long time not to put Howe on the stand.

The development came shortly after two police decoy prostitutes, Kathleen Taylor and Margaret Hamblin, testified that Howe approached them the night of June 12, asked for specific sex acts and offered to pay $20.

Howe's wife, Marlene, was sitting behind him in the courtroom when the women pointed to him as the man they arrested June 12.

Mrs. Taylor acknowledged under cross-examination that Mrs. Hamblin mentioned money first in the conversation with Howe, but she said Howe mentioned the $20 price.

"Is it right the first mention of money was made by an officer of the Salt Lake City police department?" Mitchell asked Mrs. Taylor. She replied, "Yes."

Mrs. Hamblin, a divorcee, said she had thought that Howe's face was familiar when he drove up next to the car the two decoys were sitting in. She said his name crossed her mind, but she had thought Howe would not be in that red light area.

Postage review

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Seven states have asked for a court review of the U.S. Postal Service's decision to make the 13-cent first class mail rate permanent, Maine Atty. Joseph Brennan says.

Brennan said Thursday he is asking the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to review the move, made by the Postal Service's Board of Governors earlier this month.

Brennan's office said the suit was mailed to the court Tuesday. A check with the court Thursday showed it had yet to arrive in Washington.

Maine was joined in the suit by attorneys general from Massachusetts, New Jersey, Florida, Indiana, New Mexico and Texas, Brennan said.

The 13 cents rate for the first ounce of first class mail took effect on a temporary basis last

Christians broaden assault

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Christians broadened their campaign to clear eastern Beirut of Moslem fighters with an assault on the Moslem Nabaa slum quarter today after a 48-hour mortar and artillery barrage.

"Savage fighting is raging," said a spokesman from the leftist Palestinian-Lebanese Moslem command. "Our forces are repulsing one attack after another."

"The attack to purge Nabaa of Communists and Palestinian guerrillas is progressing satisfactorily," said the radio of the right-wing Phalange party, which has the largest militia fighting on the Christian side in the civil war.

Hospitals and security sources estimated that about 50 persons were killed in the attack. They said more than 50 others had been killed elsewhere in the last 24 hours.

Nabaa and the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp a mile to the north are the last Moslem pockets in east Beirut.

Tal Zaatar, which overlooks the highway to the 500-square-mile Christian enclave north of the city, has been neutralized by a Christian siege now going into its second month. Beirut resounded with the explosions of the bombardment of the shrinking Palestinian defenses of the camp today, but the defenders were still holding out.

Representatives of Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat were holding reconciliation talks in Damascus with Syrian officials. The Syrian government radio broke a two-day silence on the talks to report that Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam said they were "frank, fraternal and positive."

Christians broaden assault

But a Palestinian spokesman in Beirut said Syrian rockets pounded the Palestinian refugee camp of Nahr el Bared, on the outskirts of Tripoli, all night despite the meeting in Damascus.

The communiqué was tantamount to a rejection of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's call Thursday for withdrawal of the 13,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon.

Kamal Jumblat, the leader of Lebanon's leftist Moslems, announced that he is forming a government for the areas of the country controlled by his forces and their Palestinian allies.

Jumblat, a Socialist who has eclipsed Premier Rashid Karami and other moderate Moslem leaders of the defunct Lebanese government, said Thursday the new "central political council" would be a counterpart to the provisional government set up in the Christian enclave north of Beirut by the leftists' foes in the 15-month-old civil war.

Meanwhile, the civil war continued, and the U.S. Embassy said it was still planning an evacuation convoy to Damascus when the fighting lets up. An American mechanic was checking out 15 old school buses parked near the embassy for use in the convoy.

Sergeant says he is victim

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — An Army sergeant court-martialed for adultery says he was singled out for punishment for an outdated offense that is common among servicemen.

Last January, Sgt. Michael London of Portland was convicted by a military court in Schweinfurt, Germany, of having sexual relations with the wife of another sergeant while on duty.

London, 34, does not deny the charge. But he says "the sole victim" of the incident was his wife, who had no desire to press charges. "It is her job to bring adultery charges, not the Army's," he said in an interview.

London, who has been shipped back from Europe with orders to report to Ft. Dix, N.J., says he faces involuntary discharge next February because his conviction stalled the promotion he needs to remain in the Army.

His wife and mother have written letters supporting his position to President Ford, Maine's senators and congressmen, and the Pentagon.

A spokesman in the Army judge advocate general's office said that adultery, a crime under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, is "not the common type of offense that's prosecuted."

Police report

A 54-year-old Wheeler woman was arrested by Pampa police Thursday after she allegedly attempted to pass a forged prescription at the Ideal Food Store pharmacy at 312 E. Brown.

Annie Ruth Blanton was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford who set bond at $2,500.

Police also picked up a 15-year-old Pampa youth in connection with the hit and run accident which hospitalized two boys Wednesday.

David Mullen, 13, and Jerry Don Mullen, 13, were riding a bicycle which was struck by a motorcycle. The boys, sons of Charlie Mullen of 1080 Varmon Dr., were dismissed from

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our neighbors are among the nicest people we've ever met, but within the last few months, they have made subtle but persistent attempts to bring missionaries of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormons) into our home—to show us the "right" religion.

They have told us that it is their "duty" to the Lord to show us how happy they are and how happy we would be with the Mormon church.

We have told them that we are quite satisfied with our religion and do not feel the need to change, but they keep trying.

How do we let them know without antagonizing them that we enjoy their friendship but aren't interested in their religion?

THE NEIGHBORS

DEAR NEIGHBORS: You seem able to communicate very well in a letter. If you've told them verbally and they aren't getting the message, write a letter. (Of course, after this hits print, you may not have to.)

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that a husband should not confess his infidelity to his wife. I've always felt that in this regard, ignorance was bliss, but my husband had other ideas.

Several years ago, the company my husband works for sent him to Europe for three weeks. Knowing that the flesh is sometimes weak, before he left, I told him: "I don't believe you will ever be untrue to me, but if you should, please DON'T tell me! Even if I have my doubts, convince me that I'm wrong."

Well, he went, and he was untrue, and he couldn't wait to tell me about it. I forgave him, of course, but the hurt will always be there—plus the fear of a repeat performance. (As long as he strayed once, what's one more time?)

I agree with you, Abby. If you must confess an infidelity, confess it to your pastor, or ask the Lord to forgive you through your prayers, but spare your spouse the pain if possible.

HURT APLENTY

DEAR HURT: Confession to the spouse may be good for the soul, but my mail tells me it's bad for the marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I have a big problem. My husband sits in front of the television hour after hour, day after day, whenever he's home. He hardly ever talks to me anymore.

He even eats his meals in front of the TV! I could take them clothes off and stand in front of the TV stark naked, and he would ask me to move so he could see the TV.

We have no children, and I'm afraid we won't ever have any as long as we have a TV set. It sure is a good method of birth control, but I would really like children.

What should I do? Dismantle the TV, or go out and get myself another man?

I am getting very lonely.

TV WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: How old is your husband? And how old are you? How long have you been married? Is this alleged sexual indifference in favor of the TV something new? Or has it been going on for a long time? Fill me in on the facts, and I'll tell you which to dismantle—the TV or your man.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MARYLAND MOM: When your son starts telling you that he prefers blonde babysitters, he doesn't need one.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to know something about the 4-in-1 vitamin, containing lecithin, kelp, vitamin B-6 and cider vinegar. Does this in anyway help in dieting? If so, how and how much should you take? I read that you should take two tablets after every meal. That's six a day or 42 tablets a week. Isn't that a lot to take?

DEAR READER: I wish people had as much interest in learning about a sensible diet that would give them a balanced diet and reverse or prevent obesity as they do in every new diet fraud — oops fad — that comes along. Lecithin contains choline which is important to your nutrition. You can get plenty of it from lean meat which should be part of your sensible diet. Lecithin that you take as tablets or in food serves no other useful purpose. The choline in a well balanced diet is used by your liver to manufacture your own lecithin.

You will get all the vitamin B-6 you need in a well balanced diet. Taking an excess amount will not cause your body to miraculously start shedding pounds of energy (fat is stored energy).

Kelp is a seaweed that contains iodine, which you can also get from iodized salt. It also provides some bulk in its natural state when used as a major component of the diet as it is in Japan. The additional iodine will not help. The excess will be eliminated. Those who are sensitive to iodine may develop an iodine reaction. Those who have small thyroid glands, because of surgical removal or because part of the thyroid has been destroyed by an infection, may have further damage to the thyroid and develop an advanced state of a low or absent thyroid function called myxedema.

People lose weight because the body uses more calories than they consume. It is that simple. Your body uses energy to maintain itself, heat itself and cool itself as well as in many complex chemical reactions. It also uses energy for physical activity at work or play. When this total exceeds the number of calories you are taking in you will lose weight. Sickness will cause you to lose fat because the illness causes the body to use far more calories. So the only benefit you get out of that diet you are talking about is an associated decrease in calorie intake that goes with the pills.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, to give you the basis for building your own balanced weight control diet. The trick to losing fat and staying slender is to learn how to eat properly. That is what a reducing diet should teach you. With that knowledge you can then stay on the kind of program that fits your life style and keeps you healthy as well as slim and beautiful.

People on crash diets end up failing, or slipping back to the old patterns that caused the obesity in the first place.

I'd like to emphasize again that crash diets may cause you to lose muscle mass. After the diet is over you will have to eat less every day than you should because you have lost vital muscle mass.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY: A pleat down the front of my little girl's 50 per cent cotton and 50 per cent polyester dress was held together with a piece of clear plastic tape. When I removed the tape the adhesive remained on the dress and I do not know how to remove it. Any advice would be appreciated. — MARY.

DEAR POLLY: My little girls have colored shirts with rubberized numbers on them. When first washed, parts of the numbers peeled off so they look terrible. I have tried to remove the remaining numbers but failed, so I would like to have some ideas on how this could be done. — BRENDA.

DEAR MARY and BRENDA: You both might try the following but do be sure to first test anything for its effect on the fabric and color of your clothing. Sponge with water and then with white vinegar. Rinse well and wash. Washable fabrics might be soaked in warm water. Lighter fluid is also a possibility but handle with care. Lacquer thinner will often do this job but again be careful to be away from a flame. — POLLY.

Nadiamania

Tiny gymnast captures crown

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MONTREAL (AP) — Little Nadia Comaneci stood on the victory stand, smiling, her arms held high like an empress acknowledging the fealty of her loyal subjects.

In the wings, Olga Korbut wiped away a tear. It was the end of a storybook chapter in ladies' gymnastics. At 21, Olga, the onetime wonder child from the Soviet Union, was over the hill. In her place, wearing an Olympic gold medal instead of a tiara, stood Nadia, 14, just a twig of a girl out of Romania, the new queen of the uneven bars and balance beam.

Could Nadia, in her moment of glory, be looking at the distressed Olga and wondering what might be waiting for her in Moscow in 1980? Somewhere — in Leipzig, Louisville or Liverpool — some 10-year-old tyke must be swinging on a bar and coveting Nadia's medal.

"I think 10 years is the limit for a gymnast," the tiny Romanian said only last Tuesday. She has been in the sport seven years already. She will have served her sentence a year before Moscow.

Today, however, she is on top of the gymnastic world — hailed across continents and oceans — and Olga, who won three gold medals and a silver four years ago to send the sport into unprecedented popularity, is left only with memories.

It was a day for celebrating and a day for weeping Wednesday at Montreal's Forum. The nerveless tyke from Romania whisked through her four demanding routines — the horse vault, uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercises — with such daring and precision that she swept easily to the ladies' individual all-around championship.

Ludmila Tourischeva, the USSR's defending titleholder, a poised veteran of 23, finished third behind a spectacular young teammate, Nelli Kim, 19, and announced her retirement. Olga Korbut scored a poor 9.5 on the balance beam, where Nadia scored her fifth perfect 10, and finished in fifth place.

Larissa Latynina, Olga's coach, was livid over the seemingly unjustified low score for her once star pupil. Olga herself plunked herself into a chair and broke into tears. She couldn't believe it herself.

Miss Latynina, in full view of the Forum's 16,000 sellout house, strode to the officials' box to make a protest.

"They told me," Miss Latynina explained afterward, "that Olga had exceeded her time limit on the balance beam and had been penalized two tenths of a point."

It was a silly copout for the judges — an ugly, unnecessary gesture in the case of a young girl who had them all mesmerized four years ago. At Munich, little Olga could have stayed on the beam all day if she had chosen. She was untouchable.

So go the judges in the Olympic Games. Like the thousands of spectators and millions of TV viewers, they were caught up in the wave of "Nadiamania."

Manufacturers expect enough canning lids

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Government officials, manufacturers and consumers alike are keeping their fingers crossed and hoping that there won't be another shortage of canning lids this year. So far, however, no one is willing to predict what will happen.

Previous shortages, caused by lack of materials, a failure of manufacturers to anticipate the demand and hoarding by some Americans, prompted investigations by Congress and the Federal Trade Commission.

None of the probes turned up any evidence of wrongdoing on the part of the industry. Neither did they provide any clues on how to stop the problem from recurring.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says manufacturers are expected to turn out more than four billion replacement lids this year. Bill Kerr of the Kerr Glass Co. of Los Angeles, a major manufacturer, said he did not know whether four billion would be enough.

"I'd have to ask you what the demand will be," he said, noting that no one anticipated the sharp jump in the number of people who started growing their own fruits and vegetables to try to beat inflation and later turned to home canning to store their produce.

(Note: Canning jars are reusable; lids aren't. Each new jar comes with a lid and there were claims that manufacturers were deliberately withholding replacement lids so that home canners would have to buy the jars even if they didn't need them. The claims were never proved.)

The crunch if it is there — will come later in the summer when people actually start canning. The advance situation varies from state to state.

"We anticipate no shortage," said a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, interviewed early in the summer.

In contrast, a spokesman for the California Department of Consumer Affairs said he had surveyed stores and found, "There's definitely a shortage. Not as bad as last year, but definitely a shortage."

Several factors may ease the problem. Inflation has abated and people have found that it is not always cheaper to grow and can your own food.

The number of companies manufacturing canning lids has increased, meanwhile, although a recent study showed that some of the new varieties are less efficient than the old standards.

The USDA has several suggestions for avoiding problems with home canning. Among them: —Use jars made especially for home canning. Do not try to substitute containers such as mayonnaise jars.

—Do not use overripe food and do not pack the jars too full.

—Do not use canned foods showing any signs of spoilage. If the food smells funny, looks moldy or has some other unusual characteristic, throw it out. Don't taste it.

—Boil home canned vegetables for at least 10 minutes before serving.

The Statue of Liberty, a gift from France in 1884, arrived dismantled in New York. The sections were packed in 214 crates aboard a steamship.

Nova cut for fall-winter

The nova cut, a short tailored haircut, is the important hairfashion statement for fall and winter, according to the 64,000-member National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association. The nova cut is named after nova stars, which suddenly increase with great intensity for a period of months to years. The short cut features exposed ears and a tapered neckline with some extra volume on either the front or back areas of the head. The nova cut is adaptable for different facial structures, because it emphasizes options of some extra fullness in the front area over the forehead or in the back area above the nape. Choice of emphasis depends on the particular facial structure and the individual personality of the women involved. Additional versatility is available through perming. A curled nova cut still provides a tailored effect that accents facial lines. The hair can be permed before or after the cut, depending on the length of hair. The mid-length style features over-the-brow emphasis to balance extra, sweeping volume at the back of the head. The extra volume in the back is easily maintained on both the short nova cut and the mid-length cut as a result of professional, long-holding body perms.

Mini-series are hit on tv

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mini-series based on hit novels may be the rage in TV now. But consider the situation comedy. The 1974 season began with 15 of them. Next fall, 26 are scheduled.

And the networks now even have vice presidents specializing in laughter's future. All working to develop new comedy ideas for TV.

Andy Siegel of CBS is one of them. He estimates he gets 75 comedy ideas offered him each week for consideration. All that considering about comedy can make a guy pretty grim, can't it?

"Well, no," he grinned. "There is pressure, but it's a tremendous amount of fun. I'm lucky ... this is an area where the whole idea is to find a special kind of lunacy that'll appeal to a lot of people."

CBS, the network most emphasizing situation comedy in recent years, had eight sitcoms on the air in the fall of 1974. It had 12 on last fall and when September comes it'll be airing 14 of the rascals.

The sitcom growth indicates a wide appeal, of course. But television's sanitized "family viewing" hour, pushed by CBS and adopted by all three networks last fall to counter gripes about violence or plots involving sex on TV early at night, raises a question.

Does Siegel look for two kinds of situation comedy — one strictly for "family viewing" time, the other with bolder, more adult themes for after the family hour, when kids theoretically are abed?

"No," said the 34-year-old executive. "I screen comedies on the basis of what I think has the best chance to get on the schedule."

"A lot of people do that, say. We're doing a mature comedy. I think that writers and producers sometimes have the wrong idea. They think you do bubblegum before nine and chewing tobacco after nine."

"Not so. I think the criteria is: Is it a good comedy, are there good characters, will they make people laugh?"

This fall, eight of 14 CBS sitcoms will be doing that.

Justice Powell delays death order

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court justice is delaying an order that would have allowed three states to begin executing death row convicts, a move that could also delay executions of more than 600 persons across the country.

Justice Lewis F. Powell is issued an order Thursday staying the imposition of death sentences in Georgia, Florida and Texas until the Supreme Court, which is now in recess, can consider a rehearing of the cases of three men who sought the delay.

The high court does not meet again until Oct. 4.

While Powell's stay deals only with the cases of three men in the three states, court spokesmen said it is expected that all states will delay any planned executions until the cases are decided.

David E. Kendall of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund said it was expected that state courts would block executions in their states, at least through September, because of the Powell stay.

A survey earlier this month by The Associated Press showed 630 persons on death rows across the nation.

Powell's order stays the effect of a Supreme Court decision July 2 in which all three states were told that their capital punishment laws are constitutional. In the same decision, the court struck down mandatory death penalties in North Carolina and Louisiana.

The justice acted on requests from the NAACP fund and lawyers for the defendants in the three states.

Powell had voted with the 7 to 2 majority in upholding the Georgia, Florida and Texas capital punishment laws and in his order Thursday he said the stay should not suggest his feelings on the merits of the petitions seeking Supreme Court review of the decision.

The court ruled in 1972 that the death penalty as generally applied throughout the country gave too much leeway to judges and juries in sentencing convicted criminals to death. But the justices decided July 2 that the death penalty statutes in the three states met early court objections because they gave judges and juries guidelines on which to base their decisions.

There are seldom situations where the high court reconsiders a case, but Powell noted that only the entire court can make that decision.

If the executions in these cases were carried out before the petitions for rehearing could be acted on by the court, the harm to petitioners obviously would be irreparable," the justice wrote.

None of the states involved opposed the request for a stay of the court's July 2 order.

The cases in Thursday's order involved:

—Charles William Profit, 30, of Tampa Fla., convicted of the stabbing death of a high school wrestling coach.

—Jerry Lane Jurek, 27, sentenced to die for strangling a 10-year-old girl and throwing her body into a river at Cuero, Tex.

—Troy Leo Gregg, 27, sentenced to death for the fatal shooting of two men who picked him up as he hitchhiked along a Georgia highway.

Connally says he's available

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally says he still isn't running for anything but indicates he might be available for the Republican vice presidential nomination under the right terms.

"I am a reluctant prospect for anything and will not be a prospect unless I can be convinced that my presence on the ticket would contribute substantially to the chances of success in the election," Connally said Thursday.

Connally also said he would have to feel that "I could make a substantial contribution after the election."

The former Democrat who became a Republican during the Nixon administration is vacationing at his ranch near Floresville southeast of San Antonio. He commented in a telephone interview.

He said he is not impressed by a survey which showed him the top choice for Vice President among Republican national convention delegates who named a candidate.

Connally noted that more than 60 per cent of the delegates surveyed by The Associated Press expressed no choice for vice president.

Connally has expressed no preference in the battle between President Ford and Ronald Reagan for the GOP ballot's top spot. And he said again Thursday he won't make any endorsement before next month's convention in Kansas City.

Reagan won all of Texas' GOP delegates in a May 1 primary.

Connally's presence on a Republican ticket is viewed favorably by some GOP observers who contend he could help the party in the South, where Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter is considered very strong.

Other GOP watchers, however, are unsure what effect Connally would have on the ticket because of his past connections with the scandal-scarred Nixon administration.

Meanwhile, Connally is preparing for a "social party" at his ranch Saturday evening. He said over 300 guests have been invited to the affair, which he described as non-political.

"It's just a bunch of friends and Texans and we are not going to have any political implications to it at all," Connally said.

Extension service charged with sex discrimination

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be required to hire, assign, promote, classify and transfer employees without regard to race, sex or national origin, under a consent decree signed in federal court.

The Justice Department, who announced the action Thursday in Washington, said the extension service also agreed to pay $302,000 to 250 black and female victims of job discrimination.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi said the Justice Department intervened in a private suit July 16.

The suit charged that the exension service discriminated against blacks, Spanish-surnamed Americans and women in employment practices.

The consent order requires the extension service to adopt a revised salary schedule to correct inequities between male and female employees.

Payments to individuals, the Justice Department said, will range from $1 to $1,572.

All former county agents and home demonstration agents will be reclassified as associate county agents. Those still employed will be given priority consideration for all future vacancies for county extension agents, the order states.

And it also requires that when vacancies occur in the role of county chairman or program leader, all black former county agents and home demonstration agents will be given priority consideration for designation as county chairmen and program leaders.

Estate goes to probate

HOUSTON (AP) — Probate proceedings were scheduled before Judge Pat Gregory today concerning the estate of the late billionaire Howard Hughes.

Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill said he expected to be at the hearing.

Hill says Texas could collect more than $300 million in inheritance taxes from the estate. In addition, the University of Texas and Rice University are named in a hand-written will found April 27 in the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah.

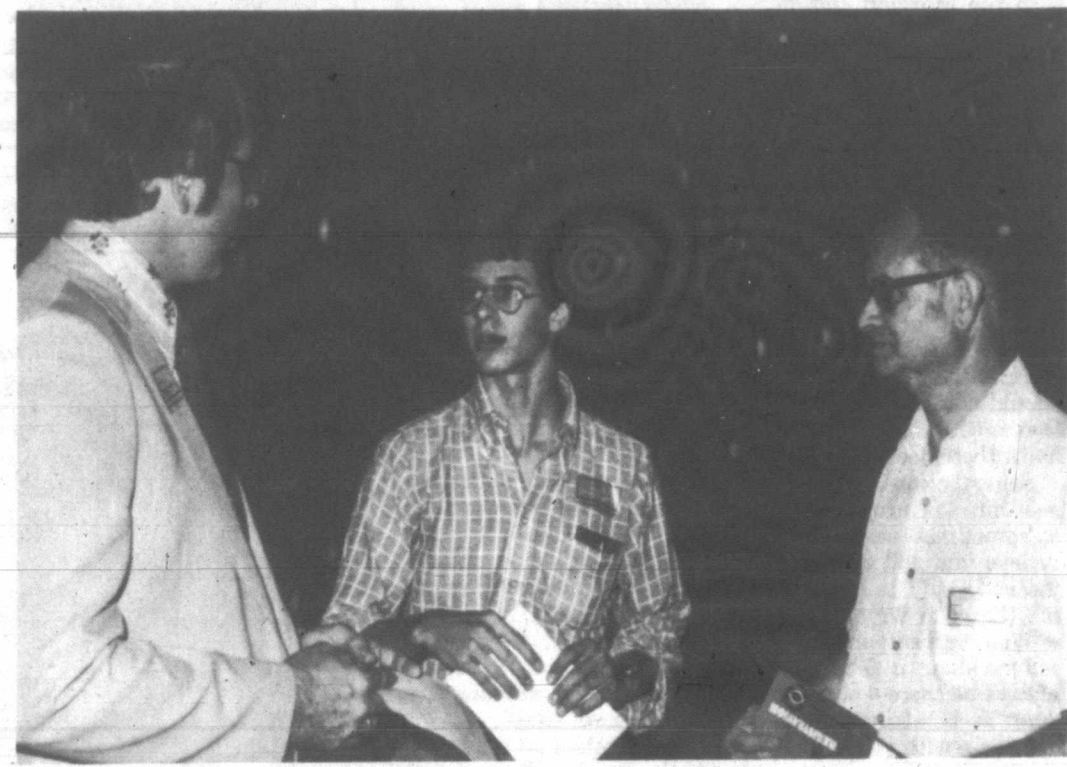

The will names former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich as executor. However, until the will's authenticity can be determined, two Hughes relatives have been named Texas executors.

They are Hughes' aunt, Annette Gano Lummis and her son, William Lummis, both of Houston.

About two dozen handwriting experts have been consulted concerning the will found at Salt Lake City.

Experts hired by Rice, and the universities of Texas, California and Nevada have said they don't believe the will was written by the same person who wrote the exemplars used for comparison.

California to audit H. Ross Perot company

Local convention delegate

Bennie L. Holland attended the 31st annual meeting of the American Cancer Society at the Hilton Inn in Dallas July 8 and 9. Incoming president of the Gray Roberts unit of the society, Holland was the elected delegate from this area to the convention. He attended workshops which stressed public information and education concerning cancer, and elected with the other delegates new officers and directors for the society.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The state of California will begin a full-scale audit in Dallas next week of millionaire H. Ross Perot's Electronic Data Systems (EDS).

State Auditor General John Williams said Thursday the purpose of the audit is to determine whether the taxpayer-borne charges of an EDS subsidiary which processes state Medi-Cal claims "are reasonable."

Medi-Cal is the state's version of Medicaid.

Williams said four accountants of the San Francisco-based firm of Arthur Anderson & Co. will take up residence in Dallas.

The state expects to spend $42 million in the next 12 months for processing Medi-Cal claims. The EDS subsidiary, EDS Federal, is expected to get about one-third of it. The subsidiary reportedly earned more than $1 million a month from state business last year.

EDS Federal is a subcontractor to California Blue Cross and Blue Shield, which has the state claims processing contract.

Although competitive bidding is generally required, state officials say EDS Federal never bid in competition. It has been doing the job since 1969.

The Blue Shield and Blue Cross partnership is called Medi-Cal Intermediary Operations. It signed a no-profit, no-loss contract in 1965, but since the expiration of that contract has been performing on month-to-month extensions.

EDS Federal has no no-profit.

no-loss restrictions.

An official of the state Department of Health said the EDS Federal contract "provides a less than adequate incentive for cost containment on the part of the contractor."

Perot doesn't report profits. He testified in a 1973 New York state investigation of an EDS contract for similar work. "It is not clear why profits are relevant to any inquiry in connection with a state system."

"Assuming there is more than one bidder, without collusion, and assuming that the state always has the option to take over the system and run it on its own at its own cost, the sole relevant question would be whether or not EDS compares favorably with the state's cost and/or that of the other bidders," Perot added.

"Any profit made by EDS would be by reason of its superior ability to accomplish the job at lower cost — a traditional award in a capitalist society."

The California Department of Health said in 1974 that the taxpayers were paying about $1.13 per Medi-Cal claim for processing, compared to 88 cents for about the same services in Michigan, 50 cents in Ohio, and 64 cents in New York City.

Williams said Arthur Anderson & Co. has a $55,000 contract for the job. He said he and other state auditors would go to Dallas from time to time to supervise. He hoped to finish the audit by October.

Williams' office is an arm of the legislature. It was directed to make the audit by the Assembly Health Committee and the Senate Health and Welfare Committee.

Until Congress changed the law last year, officials say the state had no authority to look at the books of a firm which subcontracts to Blue Cross-Blue Shield organizations.

Williams said preliminary arrangements have already been made at EDS headquarters.

"So far, the cooperation (from EDS) has been very good," he said.

TRICENTENNIAL LIFE FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — What will life be like 100 years from now? According to writer Isaac Asimov, as he looks ahead to "July 4, 2076," the title of his article in a recent issue of Connecticut Magazine, here's some of what the future has in store:

—Childbearing will be governed by a birth code and children may not be born without a permit.

—Space colonies, circling the earth, will be the dwelling places for 50,000 earthlings.

—The three most important professions will be education, entertainment and computer operation.

—Chief energy sources will be nuclear fusion and solar energy.

Hightower voted yes on public works bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Jack Hightower announced Thursday afternoon that he voted to override the president's veto of Public Works Employment bill for two basic reasons.

"I cannot turn my back on the needs of the 13th District and the State of Texas," the congressman said.

Funds provided by this bill will help some cities and towns in the district to proceed with construction of urgently needed sewage treatment facilities, and will help the Texas Water Quality Board begin funding more than $7 million in pending construction projects.

Hightower said the Texas Water Quality Board officials told him Thursday that although the projects throughout the state had been planned and the need proven, they did not have a dime to proceed.

"I believe that it is better to pay people for doing something constructive rather than for doing nothing," he said.

"Work — not welfare — is the answer," Hightower emphasized.

On Tuesday of this week Hightower said he voted against enlarging and extending unemployment compensation benefits "because I believe that most people want jobs rather than a handout."

The jobs bill, he added, was overridden overwhelmingly in bipartisan vote and will help provide jobs.

Hightower said unemployment levels are low in the 13th District, but in some parts of the nation is as high as 15 per cent.

"Most of the funds made available by this bill will be spent by private industry, and will give people who have been living off the dole for many months — an opportunity to re-establish themselves as taxpaying citizens," he said.

The bill was passed by a vote of 310 to 96.

Hearing to determine fate of Texas forest

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — The practice of clear cutting forests, the alleged endangering of a rare bird species and eradication of a forest pest were the focal points of controversy in a marathon federal court hearing.

The controversy figured in a hearing Wednesday on a proposed permanent injunction prohibiting tree cutting and sale of timber from Sam Houston National Forest in East Texas.

The case was recessed until 2 p.m. Friday after more than 12 hours of testimony Wednesday.

A string of witnesses testified on behalf of the Texas Committee on Natural Resources, which seeks the injunction, the U.S. Forestry Service, the defendant, the Texas Forestry Service and individual timber and sawmill operators.

The session lasted well into the night.

U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice said the night session was due to "inexorable time pressures." The courtroom remained crowded with observers despite the late hour.

Dallas lawyer Edward Fritz, who heads the conservation organization, attacked the federal agency's practice of clear cutting forests and the pine beetle control program.

Fritz also alleged foresters failed to file an environmental impact statement before logging and accused the forest service of leaving inadequate cover to sustain colonies of rare red cockaded woodpeckers.

However, John Courtenay, supervisor of the four national forests in Texas, countered Fritz's charges, calling the practice of clear cutting sound forestry and contending that the rare woodpecker is adequately protected.

Clear cutting involves cutting all of the "merchantable" timber, clearing the land with a bulldozer and replanting it with a new crop of pines.

Fritz also testified about several letters he had sent to Courtenay asking that they abandon clear cutting.

Courtenay replied in one letter, which Fritz read in court, that the forest service was continuing normal harvesting of trees, including some that were ruled illegal to cut in a U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals decision affecting a Virginia case.

That decision said only "dead, physiologically mature or large" trees could be cut.

Justice issued a temporary injunction July 2 when the conservation group filed suit naming Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, U.S. Forest Service Chief John McGuire and Courtenay.

The temporary injunction affects 21 timber purchasers in the area and the sale of 35.5 million board feet of timber valued at $2 million.

Gordon Robinson, a consulting forester from Tiberon, Calif., testified earlier that clear cutting results in "decidedly harmful effects" for a forest.

"There is an increased fire hazard by eliminating the canopy of the forest," said Robinson. "There is also a greater danger from insects and disease where a monoculture is practiced."

A monoculture is a section of forest in which only one type of tree grows.

Defense lawyer Houston Abel, in his opening statement, said the plaintiffs are calling for "extremely extreme measures" in asking that all cutting and selling of timber be halted.

The defense added that the forest service is protecting the rare woodpecker by leaving 200-foot strips around a woodpecker colony trees and at least 40 acres of trees on a contiguous side of the next area.

Don Gardner, an arborist and free lance writer who lives in the Sam Houston National Forest, had testified previously he saw trees marked for cutting that were in the midst of red cockaded woodpecker colonies.

Gardner also testified that the forest service often "does not replant clear-cut areas" and that clear cutting "damages all the top soil and they (Forest Service personnel) push all the vegetation into windrows and burn it."

Dog sniffs for drugs

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The shepherd Schnaps should start sniffing in September.

Schnaps is a drug-sniffing German Shepherd that will be roaming the halls of Greenville's junior and senior high schools this fall in search of illicit drugs.

And if Hunt County commissioners give their approval, the unusual drug-detection program, initiated by a group of 80 Greenville parents, may be extended to any of the county's school districts.

The three-year-old dog was given to the Hunt County Sheriff's Department by the Dallas Police Department. Schnaps, along with Capt. W.T. Wallen of the sheriff's department, is undergoing a 17-week training course in Dallas.

"Our main goal is to remove drugs from and around our schools," said Ina Herlocker, organizer of the parent group calling itself Control of Drug Elements (CODE).

"Our dog can already sniff out marijuana," she added, "and we're training it now for the rest of the drugs."

Mrs. Herlocker said Schnaps will be checking the lockers, the grounds and parking lot, where most of the drug traffic occurs.

"What we really think will happen is just the presence of the dog team will discourage students from bringing drugs to school," she said.

At a recent meeting, the Hunt County commissioners delayed endorsing the concept until more information on legal, financial and procedural problems can be obtained.

Mrs. Herlocker said that with the commissioners' permission, Schnaps could be used in those school districts requesting its service.

The organization, generated during a Parent-Teacher Association meeting, already has built a dog run and a dog house equipped with "very sophisticated" protection devices, she explained.

Although there is "little" money, she said when the need for food and veterinary services arises, someone "passes the hat" at a corporation meeting.

CHICAGO (AP) — The first flag to fly in North America was the Viking flag of Leif Ericson, according to "World Book Encyclopedia." It featured the black silhouette of a bird, with wings outstretched, mounted on a white rectangular background. It is believed to have flown over American soil in the 11th century.

Baffles could have prevented truck wreck

HOUSTON (AP) — Baffles placed inside tanker trucks to prevent lateral surge of liquid cargo might have prevented the crash of an ammonia-filled truck at a busy Houston intersection May 11 that killed six persons.

The testimony came Wednesday during the second day of hearings by the National Transportation Safety Board into the causes of the crash and explosion of a tanker owned by Transport Co. of Texas.

"Lateral surge is a well known problem," said Benjamin Swan, a marine safety engineer with the safety board. "It's well understood."

Swan said the mathematics of the problem are the same for trucks and ships. He said a contributing factor to the accident appeared to be the shifting of the ammonia to the right as the driver tried to make the left-hand curve on the elevated freeway ramp.

Tanks such as the ill-fated Transport Co. tanker are equipped with baffles to minimize the forward shift of liquid cargo during the breaking process.

Charles Hoffman, a member of the board's technical staff, said the board may recommend that longitudinal baffles also be installed on the interior of tanks.

The hearing was scheduled to continue today.

Washington watch

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Here are some items of interest to Texans from the nation's capital.

NEWEST MEMBER: A conservative Democrat of the old school who voted for former President Richard Nixon in 1972 is the state's newest congressman.

In late June, Rep. Sam Hall, whose only previous public office was on a school board, officially filled the First District seat left vacant when 82-year-old Wright Patman died last March. Hall won a special election June 19 by about 5,000 votes.

A 52-year-old lawyer from Marshall, Hall says he supports former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter for the presidency, opposes busing, gun control, defense cuts, oil company divestiture and a constitutional amendment to prohibit abortions. He says his top priorities are to attract industry to Northeast Texas and guarantee funds for local public works projects in his district.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING: Four Texas congressmen are pushing a House resolution to eliminate the taxpayer subsidy of all restaurants and cafeterias in the House — a subsidy that a House Administration spokesman says ended five years ago.

Reps. William Archer, R-Houston; Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin; Robert Krueger, D-New Braunfels; and Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, have joined approximately 20 other members in sponsoring the resolution. It would require the Administration Committee, which now manages House food services operations, to contract with private food service suppliers to manage House facilities on a self-sustaining basis.

There's no reason whatsoever for the American taxpayer to have to subsidize meals consumed by congressmen, their staffs and visitors to the Capitol, said Archer, the resolution's chief architect.

However, a spokesman for the committee said the subsidy ended in 1971, and House food services are on a self-sustaining basis now.

There is no subsidy for the operation of their restaurant and there has not been one since 1971, said Robert McGuire, an assistant auditor for the committee.

However, Archer's office isn't convinced. A spokesman for the conservative Republican said the congressman has had a difficult time getting the committee to turn over cost figures for the food facilities. He also said the taxpayer-paid salaries of committee staff hired to oversee restaurant facilities are considered in determining whether food operations are subsidized.

No action on the resolution is expected this year.

LOUD VOICE: Congressman Paul, the Houston area conservative who won a special election earlier this year, is continuing to raise loud objections to many congressional maneuverings.

The leaders of the House Commerce Committee, hoping to expedite legislation recently, asked for unanimous consent to approve a bill extending the life of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) for 30 days. Usually such a bill gets the unanimous endorsement of Republicans and Democrats, mainly because it is merely a procedural move.

But Paul, saying that the House "Does not and will not act responsibly in passing legislation," objected.

The objection merely delayed action, as the House by a two-to-one vote passed the FEA 30-day extension about 24 hours later.

BURNING PROBLEM: The folks at the Happy Hereford Ranch in Happy, Texas, have a problem that they want the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to resolve.

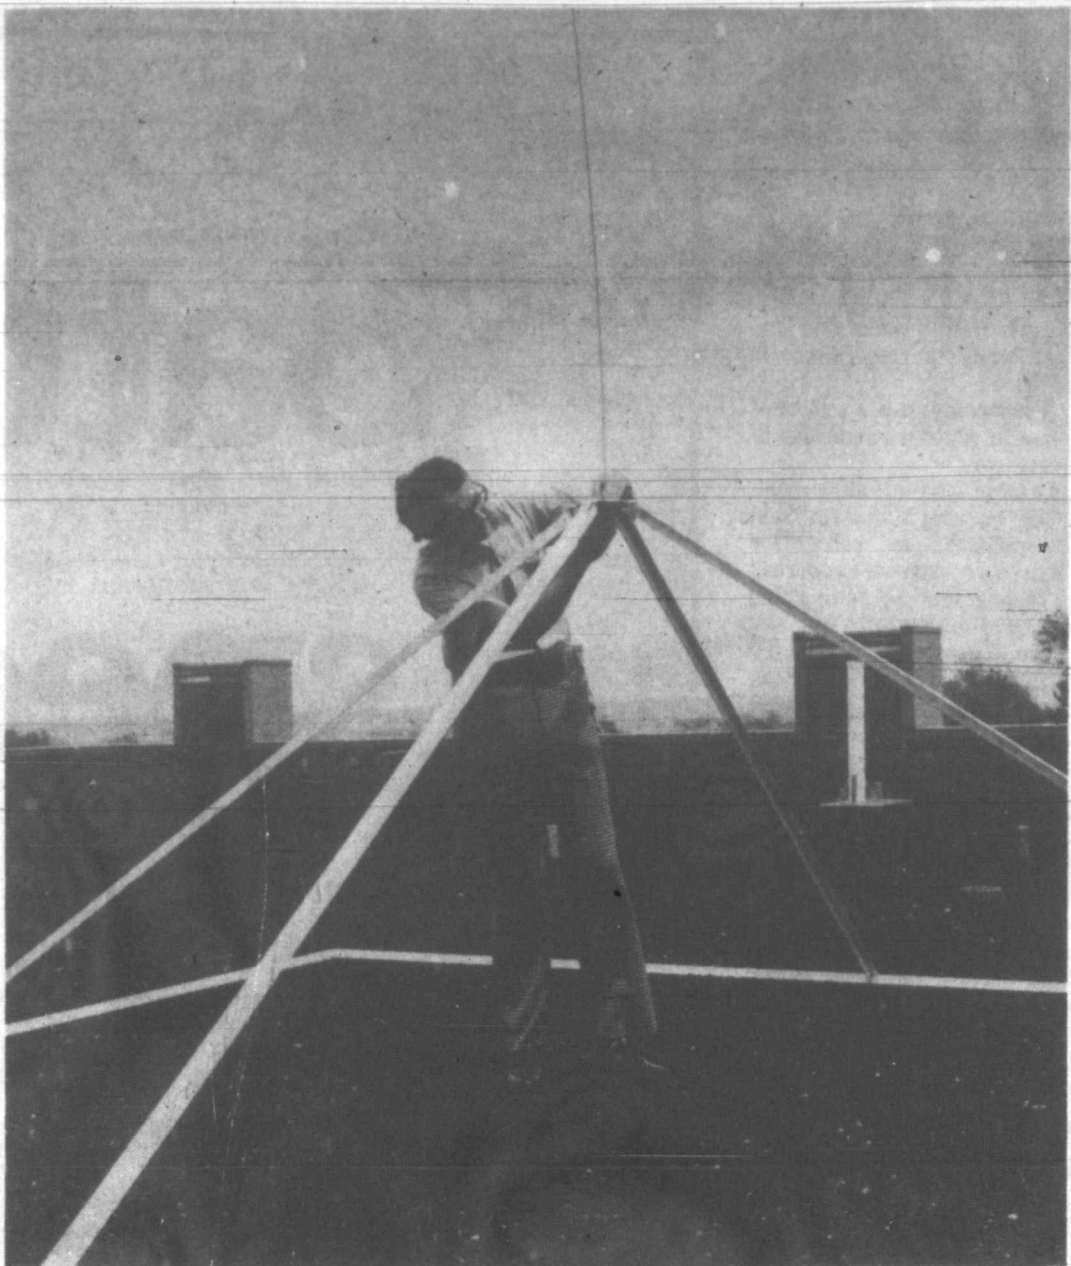

For the past 76 years, the ranch has used an S on the left jaw as its registered brand on cattle. There wasn't any problem until about three years ago when USDA decided to brand an S on the left jaw of cattle of having brucellosis.

"Changing our brand at this time would not solve the problem," Nolan Henson, assistant ranch manager, told a House Agriculture subcommittee recently, "since it would only designate those animals still quite young. Even re-branding older animals will not substantially help, for that could only feasibly be done in this herd."

Instead, Henson said USDA should change its designation for brucellosis, a disease which infects both cattle and humans. The Ranch got a morale boost from Rep. Eligio de la Garza, D-Mission, who told Henson: "I don't know what can be done, but I can assure you whatever can be done I'll be on your side."

STEEL OUTLOOK
CLEVE AND (AP) — The steel service center industry, which handles 20 per cent of the industrial steel mill products sold in America, will experience continued growth over the next five years, according to Robert G. Welch, president of the Steel Service Center Institute.

According to Welch, the volume of industrial steel mill products handled by service centers will rise to 25 per cent of the total sold in the United States.

George Hale works with tornado detectors.

WTSU tracks tornadoes

WTSU — Tornado detection research underway at West Texas State University needs the help of the Panhandle's citizens in reporting funnel formations in the region.

George Hale, WTSU physics instructor, is monitoring storm noise emissions in hopes of identifying characteristics that would lead to early detection of tornadoes.

"During the coming season we will process the storm emission data to find correlations between the formation of tornado funnels and the changes in the kinds of storm noise we receive and record on our equipment," Hale says. "If a tornado funnel forms but is not reported, this would lead to errors in our conclusions."

A National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration weather teletype will be placed in the Science Center for WTSU students to watch so they may alert Hale to storms within a 125-mile radius of Canyon.

"Keeping informed of storms within the region of study, but not obviously in sight from Canyon, will be one of our bigger problems," Hale says.

The researcher will also receive National Weather Service data for this storm season, but with a delay of up to three months.

The WT instructor and his assistants, Jamie Martin of Canyon and Darryl Maddox of Borger, need information on the exact time the funnel forms, its duration, location, direction, appearance, amount of damage and whether any lightning or hail is associated with it. A written report should be mailed within a day of the funnel sighting.

"This is particularly important with regard to storms that occur in rural areas where there are likely to be few observers," Hale says.

"The public might have the mistaken impression that all tornadoes are identified by weather radar," he continues. "However, Bill Frank, meteorologist in charge at the National Weather Service Office in Amarillo, has informed me that only about 15 per cent of tornadoes are represented on radar by a characteristic 'hook echo.'"

Hale will be looking in very low, high and very high frequency ranges for some kind of "fingerprint" or characteristic radiation of a tornado. His station is directly beneath the roof of the WTSU Science Center, and only a short distance from the equipment's antennae.

"One piece of equipment, called a 'tornado detector,' identifies about 75 per cent of the tornadoes in its range but also has a false alarm rate of 75 per cent," Hale notes.

It monitors high frequencies, and counts electrical pulses of certain strength and duration. If the detector counts more than 20 impulses a minute, a yellow light flashes, indicating a tornado is near.

Hale is still working on a design for a very low frequency monitor. With it, he hopes to gather data on the observation that in very low frequencies the storm noise will go quiet when a tornado forms.

"The practical goal of this study is to acquire data and knowledge that will lead to a more reliable detection and warning system for tornadoes," Hale says. "I want to emphasize that an understanding of what causes a storm or of what is happening during the storm is not synonymous with an intention to try to modify weather systems to prevent tornadoes."

"Tornadoes may have beneficial aspects that are not apparent when we think only in terms of loss of property or loss of life."

Sunday School 'Action'

Oklahoma City minister the Rev. Jay Kennedy will present a Sunday School and church growth program to Sunday School workers, Deacons and spouses of the Central Baptist Church at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the church's Fellowship Hall. The program 'Action,' will be followed by video tapes of the plan at work. The screening, in the church's sanctuary, are open to the public. The Rev. Ted Savage, pastor, will preach on "Chosen by Jesus" with text from John 15 at the morning worship Sunday. The 7 p.m. worship will be on the 144,000 mentioned in Revelations.

Revival kicks off

An eight-day revival at the First Baptist Church will begin at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, according to the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor. Leading the revival will be Angel Martinez, Southern Baptist evangelist. He has preached for 41 years and has averaged better than one sermon per day in that time. A native of Ft. Smith, Ark., he is a graduate of Baylor University, the Southern Baptist Seminary and is author of several books. He will address the congregation at 12:15 p.m. Tuesday - Friday and at 7:30 p.m. Monday - Friday. Luncheon will be served at 11:30 a.m. before the services. Jimmy Snellen, song evangelist from Dallas, has participated in over 850 revivals in 21 years and he will provide gospel music during the revival. Other services Sunday will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Beliefs under study

"Saving Knowledge: Putting Belief to Work" will be the sermon topic at the 10:45 a.m. worship service at the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray Sunday. The sermon, delivered by the Rev. Norman D. Dow Jr., pastor, will include text from James 2:18 and will deal with the problems of putting Christian beliefs to work. William J. Chambliss, elder, will assist in the pulpit. Sandra Vance will perform "The Holy City" accompanied by Susan Michael. Organist will be Mrs. Dow. A showing of Chrismos made by children four - years - old through sixth grade will follow the service in the West Room.

'Circuit Peddlers' visiting

A pair of bicycling evangelists - Steve Eager and Erwin Hillman - will lead the congregation of the Bethel Assembly of God in special services Sunday, according to the Rev. E. Paul DeWolfe, pastor. The "Circuit Peddlers" are traveling to Dallas from Colorado on 10-speed bicycles, stopping at churches along way to preach and perform Gospel music. Rev. DeWolfe said the service will be open to the public.

Mormons plan picnic

Members of the Pampa Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) will picnic at 6 p.m. Saturday in Hobart Street Park in celebration of Pioneer Day. The celebration commemorates July 24, 1847 when Mormon wagons first entered Salt Lake Valley in Utah. The early Mormon settlers, fleeing religious persecution, had traveled 1,032 miles from an Iowa settlement. Local members of the church invite the public to participate in the picnic, as well as various games and contests and to wear pioneer dress. The Black Prince's Ruby, believed worn by Henry V in his helmet at the Battle of Agincourt, reputedly deflected a nearby fatal sword blow. It now adorns Britain's Imperial State Crown.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

It is our sincere conviction that we have something of great value to offer to our fellow beings. We offer you the TRUTH. If we did not feel that we have something better than anything else, we would not make this effort to present it and ask you to consider what we have to say. It is not necessary to sacrifice one TRUTH to become a member of the church of Christ. We ask you to accept ONLY the Bible which is TRUTH. (John 17:17) We urge you to investigate the church of Christ for the following reasons:

1. The church of Christ was built by Christ. (Matt. 16:18) He was speaking and promised to build a church. Which one was it? To whom did it belong? He kept that promise. He did build his church. It yet exists in the world.

2. The church of Christ recognizes Christ as its ONLY head and authority. "And he is the head of the body, the church..." (Col. 1:18) To look elsewhere for authority is to rebel against the authority of Christ.

3. The church of Christ occupies the ONLY ground for religious unity. Many people feel that religious division should cease to exist. We agree. But this will never come to pass until all agree to accept the Bible as the ONLY standard of religious authority. This would require the rejection of all man made doctrines.

4. The church of Christ is scriptural in name. The names we wear religiously are not of man's dividing, but come from God. "The churches of Christ salute you." (Rom. 16:16) "The disciples were called Christians..." (Acts 11:26)

5. We teach nothing in becoming a member (Christian) that isn't clearly demanded in the Bible. It teaches and we believe that the sinner must BELIEVE (John 8:24); REPENT (Luke 13:3); CONFESS FAITH IN CHRIST (Rom. 10:10); BE BAPTIZED FOR THE REMISSION OF SINS (Acts 2:38)

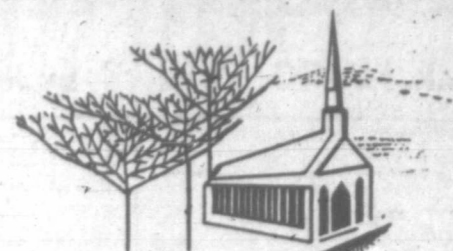

We again urge you to consider these things. We believe they can be of great value to you.

STOP-CAUTION-GO

Protection

The signal light is man's guide to safer travel. However, they protect only as they are obeyed.

The Bible is God's Signal Light and guide for man's path through life.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."

Through study of God's word, we learn His will for our life, and He will lead in paths of righteousness. ATTEND CHURCH

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Soviet diving 'fix' probed

By JOHN VINOCCO
Associated Press Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — The Soviet Union has piroquetted around possible disciplinary action for what appeared to be a pull-out from Olympic water polo. And international officials say "further explanations must be made" for them to investigate an accusation of an attempted Soviet fix in diving.

The world water sports governing body let the Soviet water polo team off the disciplinary hook Thursday night after it forfeited a game against Cuba. The Russians promised they would continue in a tournament they already consider lost.

The Federation Internationale de Natation Amateur (FINA) also discussed the report of a statement made by Tom Gompf, the U.S. diving team manager, that Soviet officials tried — and failed — to enlist him into a scheme to fix the Olympic springboard diving events.

The group said its members "feel that further explanations must be made by the individual who made the statement because the information is insufficient at this time." It added: "The bureau has set up procedures to check on their judges to safeguard against prejudicial judging."

Thursday night, Gompf said he was "slightly misquoted" by The Associated Press when it reported him saying that the Russians proposed a deal to him last March in Minsk through which the Soviets would have gotten voting support for their women's springboard diver, Irina Kalinina, in exchange for a promise to have Russian judges back Phil Boggs of the United States in the men's event. Gompf, a diving judge at the Munich Olympics, said he clearly rejected the offer which was made to him. He indicated he was approached because he felt the Russians believed he would be a judge again at Montreal.

The Associated Press stood by its report and said it refrained, at Gompf's request, from naming one of the Russians involved in the offer, and from using characterizations of other judges at Montreal made by the American manager.

Gompf said rumors of a fix were so strong, possibly involving a Russian overture to either Swedes or Italians, that he believed FINA's International Diving Commission carefully chose to keep American, Soviet, Italian and Swedish judges off the panel that scored the springboard event, won by Jennie Chandler of the United States.

The decision to permit the Soviet to continue in water polo came after Dr. Harold Henning, president of FINA, said the Soviet team was withdrawing, apparently because it decided it could no longer win a medal.

Pre-tourney practice

An unidentified golfer takes a few last-minute practice swings at the Pampa Country Club before the opening of the Senior Golf Association Tournament next week. Registration is set for Sunday and Monday at the Country Club, with competition in the 42nd annual tournament beginning on Tuesday. The event attracts golfers from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma; 175 are expected to enter this year. To qualify for the Senior Golf Association Tournament, a player must be at least 55 years old. Tournament champion will be decided in the finals Friday. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

OU bucking NCAA rule

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — University of Oklahoma regents voted Thursday to file suit to keep the National Collegiate Athletic Association from enforcing a rule prohibiting colleges from employing more than eight assistant football coaches.

Oklahoma officials said they would meet soon to plan details of their lawsuit opposing the NCAA rules, which are scheduled to go into effect Aug. 1. The regents vote followed the NCAA's refusal to exempt OU from the rule, which would require the Sooners to trim their staff.

If the planned lawsuit fails, four assistant coaches would have to leave or be re-assigned to non-coaching jobs, according to Dr. Wade Walker, OU athletic director.

The NCAA bylaw, passed at its convention last August, restricts the number of assistant coaches except for those who have tenure at the university.

Another exception concerned those coaches who were hired before Aug. 15, 1975, who are allowed to work out their full contract.

Olympics: playing the watching game

By BOB GREEN
AP Sports Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Officials kept a wary watch on the Russians. The queen watched the princess. And most of the rest of the world watched Nadia.

It was the farewell performance in the XXI Olympic Games by the little girl who has won the hearts of the world, and 14-year-old Nadia Comaneci made it a beauty, so outstanding it even overshadowed a couple of major rows centering around the troubled Russians.

With perhaps one billion people watching on television, the little 88-pounder, ponytail in place, racked up her sixth and seventh perfect scores — the perfect 10 that, before these Games, never had been awarded — and collected two more gold medals.

Out of the gymnasium, she remained as stoic as ever. "I am not surprised. I knew if I persevered I would do well," the Romanian schoolgirl said before leaving for a Black Sea vacation with a haul of three gold medals — women's all-around, balance beam, uneven parallel bars — a silver for the team and a bronze in the floor exercise.

Nelli Kim of Russia, who collected golds in the floor exercise and vault, along with her second perfect score of the Games, was a little more outgoing and giggly.

"I haven't quite realized it yet," she said. "Maybe tomorrow or the next day it will come to me. I'm slow about these things sometimes."

They evenly divided the golds in last night's final events in women's gymnastics, but Korielia Ender of East Germany and the American men swimmers continued to grab them all.

Miss Ender won the women's 100 meter butterfly in world record time of 1:00.13 then headed for the dressing room.

"I changed my suit and there I was," she said. She was back on the starting block again. And again she won in world record time, 1:59.26 in the 200 meter freestyle. The triumph came only 25 minutes apart and gave her four golds and the amazing East Germans' victories in all but one of the women's swimming events held.

Brian Goodell, a 17-year-old from Mission Viejo, Calif., and an American relay team also set world records in winning the 400 meter freestyle and the 400 meter medley relay, remaining unbeaten in these Games. The American men now have won all nine swimming events, set world records in eight of them, collected six more silver medals and three bronze.

Overall, the United States now has a leading collection of 13 gold, 10 silver and five bronze. Russia is next with 9-12-7. East Germany has 9-7-6 and Romania, primarily on the verge and fire and grace of Nadia, has 3-2-2.

The Russians, who already had a modern pentathlon competitor kicked out of the Games for cheating, swept the medals in individual saber but continue to be embroiled in controversy.

Tom Gompf, manager of the American diving team, told The Associated Press he had been approached by Russians earlier this year who proposed a deal to him through which the Soviets would have received judges' voting support for their female springboard diver, Irina Kalinina, in exchange for a promise to have Russian judges back Phil Boggs of the United States in the men's event.

Gompf said the Russians came to him because he had been a judge in the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich. He said he made it clear the deal was not accepted.

Gompf later said he was misquoted, but The Associated Press stuck by its report and said it refrained, at Gompf's request, from naming the Russians involved.

The international swimming federation, governing body for Olympic aquatic events, said its members feel "further explanations must be made by the individual who made the statement because the information is insufficient at this time."

And it added: "The bureau has set up checks on their judges to guard against prejudicial judging."

The swimming federation, through its president, Dr. Harold Henning, earlier in the day had threatened disciplinary action against the Russians, who wanted to pull out their water polo team because it had no chance to win the gold medal. Dr. Henning called it "poor sportsmanship."

The Russians later changed their minds and decided the water polo team will continue to compete.

In the men's diving, Capt. Boggs, the favorite from the Air Force Academy, survived some gamesmanship being played by the American and Russian judges and won the men's three meter springboard diving with 619.0 points, followed by Franco Kagnoto of Italy and Aleksandr Kosenkov of Russia.

Through many of the dives, the Russian consistently scored Boggs lower than the American judge and the American judge scored Kosenkov lower than the Russian judge.

In some other major activity, Princess Anne of Great Britain made her Olympic debut as a member of the equestrian team, another American boxer advanced over a Russian opponent and the American women's basketball team kept their medal hopes alive with an 85-75 victory over Canada.

Princess Anne, with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip looking on, had a spotty ride on a fiery, hard-to-handle horse in the first day of the dressage competition, which is based on harmony between horse and rider. She was judged seventh in a field of 24.

Sugar Ray Leonard, a 140-pound boxer from Palmer

Park, Md., scored a lopsided decision over European champion Valery Limasov and became the second American to reach the round of 16.

Still, the Americans' chief medal producers remained the matchless men swimmers.

Goodell's time of 3:51.93 was a world record in the 400 meter freestyle, and he had to have it to hold off teammate Tim Shaw, Long Beach, Calif., who finished second.

The relay team knocked more than five seconds off the world record set in the morning by a different quartet. With John Naber, Menlo Park, Calif., swimming the backstroke, John Hencken, Santa Clara, Calif., the breaststroke, Matt Vogel, Fort Wayne, Ind., the butterfly and Jim Montgomery, Madison, Wis. the freestyle, the Americans rang up an incredible time of 3:42.22.

Shirley Babashoff, Fountain Valley, Calif., collected her third silver medal of the Games when she finished second to Miss Ender in the 200 meter freestyle.

Sports in brief

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Armin "Pete" Riesen has resigned as head football coach at Heidelberg College to become backfield coach at Bowling Green State University.

During his five season at the Heidelberg helm, Riesen had a 33-17 record, including an 11-0 season in 1972 when the team won the Ohio Conference championship and the Stag Bowl.

Riesen also has served as the school's wrestling coach for nine years.

It was the season opener for both teams.

WINNIPEG (AP) — Quarterback Chuck Ealey piloted the Toronto Argonauts to a 22-16 victory over his former teammates, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, as the Canadian Football League season opened for both clubs Thursday night.

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons went through a 20-minute scrimmage Thursday, highlighted by Steve Bartkowski's 65-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jim Mitchell.

"We worked hard on the basics and I was pleased with the way everything went," Coach Marion Campbell said after the workout.

Eastern Panhandle to play ball Monday

Eastern Panhandle little league all-stars, champions of Area 3, will compete in the district tournament Monday in Berger.

Eastern Panhandle will meet the champion from Area 4, according to Bill Allison, coach from Lefors.

Four area champions will be entered, and the two winners after the opening games will meet for the district title.

Eastern Panhandle, all-stars from Wheeler, Lefors, Mobeetie, McLean and Kelton, won the Area 3 tournament last week in Spearman over two opposing teams.

The team defeated Spearman, 19-3, in the first game. Winning pitcher was Mike Butolph of McLean. Cody Allison, Lefors, scored two homers and got four hits for four times at bat. Also hitting four-for-four were Dudley Reynolds of McLean and Jody Waldo of Kelton.

In the championship game, Eastern Panhandle defeated Canadian, 7-0. Reynolds was the winning pitcher in the no-hitter, managing 11 strike-outs. Butolph hit one homerun.

Plutonium stockpiles 'should be controlled'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's arms control director said today that growing world stockpiles of reprocessed plutonium and other nuclear material pose a clear danger of a proliferation of atomic bombs.

Though proposing new American controls, Fred Ikle also registered his opposition to legislation that would block shipments of U.S. technology and reactors to countries that have not signed the international nonproliferation treaty.

Ikle, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said the bill before the Senate would force the United States to cut off contracts with friendly countries and make it more difficult to persuade them to accept controls. Besides, he said, they could still turn to other suppliers.

While nearly 100 countries are parties to the treaty, a number of nations believed to have the potential to acquire nuclear weapons have not signed the pact. These include India, which conducted a nuclear explosion in 1974, Israel, South Africa, Pakistan, Brazil, Argentina and Spain. Also, France and China, both nuclear-weapons countries, have not signed.

Ikle told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the most promising solution to the problem of accumulation of reprocessed plutonium is for the United States to require countries to return the irradiated fuel that is used to power American reactors sold abroad.

He said this is especially true in the case of India, which U.S. officials have said used American technology and a possibly crucial chemical ingredient for its atomic explosion. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission currently is considering an Indian application for enriched uranium, for its power station at Tarapur.

Opponents of exporting U.S. uranium to India said such shipments would help India add to its stockpile of plutonium, a byproduct that India can use to fashion nuclear weapons.

Rep. Clarence Long, R-Md., this week accused India of "bad faith" in using peaceful nuclear aid for weapons development.

The chairman of the Mississippi Republican party, angered by the tactics of President Ford's partisans, says their efforts to woo delegates in the state may have backfired and reduced support for Ford.

Criticizing the efforts on Ford's behalf, Clarke Reed said Thursday that Ford may have less support in the delegation today than he did just two days ago.

Reed said pressure from Ford backers included suggestions that Ronald Reagan would settle for a vice presidential nomination.

Mississippi holds the largest single bloc of uncommitted delegates available in the Ford-Reagan race for the GOP presidential nomination. Sixty Mississippi delegates and alternates will meet in Jackson Sunday, but plans to seek a preference vote to determine who will receive the 30 delegate votes have been set aside.

Reagan telephoned Ford campaigner Gil Carmichael of Meridian, Miss., on Thursday and told him to stop telling delegates that Reagan is considering a vice presidential position.

Carmichael said that in four days of heavy telephone lobbying he and other Ford supporters told delegates only that they believed a Ford-Reagan ticket was possible. But Reed said Carmichael had been telling delegates a Ford-Reagan ticket was sanctioned by Reagan.

"That tactic itself has worked against Ford," Reed said. "Ford may have less support now than he had two days ago."

Reed, Carmichael and Reagan supporters in Mississippi had said this week that Ford's support was rising. But Reed said the first unofficial poll of delegates taken Thursday by the party's organization indicates Reagan nearly has a majority and leads Ford.

After Carmichael said he would not ask for a vote during a meeting of delegates Sunday as he had said he might do, Reed said Ford supporters may be backing off.

Reagan told Carmichael that he would not consider a Ford-

Reagan ticket "under any circumstances," according to the Mississippi.

Meanwhile, a Ford spokesman said Thursday that the President has directed that no "consideration, favor or reward" be offered to any delegate in return for support at the GOP convention next month.

Jimmy Carter, who once advocated eliminating tax incentives which encourage American firms to manufacture products abroad, is assuring business leaders that he intends to retain one of the major tax advantages they have when investing overseas.

At a luncheon in New York, the Democratic presidential candidate told 52 executives from some of the country's largest corporations that he favored retaining the foreign tax credit that allows American companies a U.S. tax credit for income taxes paid to foreign companies.

The credit avoids double taxation by the United States and the foreign country, Carter said.

He said he believes the loss of jobs in the United States caused by U.S. companies locating overseas is offset by the creation of jobs when foreign companies invest in the United States.

In his speech to the corporate officials, Carter proclaimed Thursday, "I will be a friend to business."

His message to reporters had a different emphasis. At a news conference earlier, Carter said he favors complete tax reform, consumerism and the "elimination of special privileges for people who have been economically or politically powerful."

Those positions are not incompatible, he maintained later, saying it would be possible for him to act both as a champion of big business and the consumer if elected president.

He told the business leaders he plans a total income tax overhaul if elected president, but said it would be a slow and cautious process.

He returned to Plains, Ga., Thursday night and planned to spend today quietly at home, continuing his study of issues and strategy for the fall campaign.

Democratic vice-presidential nominee Walter Mondale will campaign in the deep South this weekend in the first test of his appeal in Carter's home territory. The Minnesota senator is traveling to Hilton Head, S.C., today to begin campaign strategy meetings.

Mrs. Nixon released

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Richard Nixon was to be released today from Long Beach Memorial Hospital where she has been recovering from a partially paralyzing stroke, her doctors say.

The physicians said she will continue a rehabilitation program at home.

Former President Richard M. Nixon and the couple's daughters, Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox, are expected to be at the hospital at 10 a.m. PDT when Mrs. Nixon is to be released.

Mrs. Nixon, 64, was hospitalized July 8 after suffering a stroke the previous afternoon while reading on the patio of the Nixon's San Clemente estate, Casa Pacifica.

The stroke weakened her left side and impaired her speech. Within a few days of her hospitalization, however, Mrs. Nixon had begun physical therapy.

Hospital spokeswoman Karen Krantz said Thursday that Mrs. Nixon can now walk up stairs, comb her hair and perform other daily tasks.

Wanted for questioning in abduction

Millionaire's son grew up loner

PORTOLA VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Millionaire's son Fred Newhall Woods IV grew up a loner, building a restlessness that authorities believe may have led to a bizarre mass kidnapping.

Woods, 25, was described Thursday as "armed and dangerous" in an all-points bulletin which said he and two friends are wanted for questioning in the abduction of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver a week ago.

On his father's 100-acre estate which has a "keep out" sign on the front gate, Woods lived alone in a servant's cottage and collected old cars. All kinds of vehicles — cars, trucks, a 1928 Pierce Arrow, even a fire engine — dotted the estate.

"He just never said anything about girl friends," said Steve Ortega, a Portola Valley fireman who shared some school classes with Woods. "Only cars. Cars were his life. All he did was drive around those old clunkers.

As a senior at Woodside High School in nearby Redwood City, Woods carried pictures of cars around in his wallet. He had no sweethearts, acquaintances say.

"He was always quiet and withdrawn," said Clay Hood, 23, a service station attendant and classmate.

But he had at least two close friends — the Schoenfeld brothers, James, 25, and Richard, 23, who shared his interest in cars. The brothers are sons of Dr. John Schoenfeld, an Atherton podiatrist with offices in Menlo Park.

The two Schoenfeld brothers were also named in the nationwide all-points bulletin.

Woods and James Schoenfeld graduated within a year of each other at Woodside High and had worked together repairing old cars. City and county records, however, indicate they had no business license.

The three friends had one scrape with the law. On Oct. 6, 1974, they were arrested in the tiny community of Downieville about 150 miles northeast of San Francisco on a charge of felony joyriding.

They pleaded guilty to petty theft, but withdrew the plea before their January 1975 trial began. Later, they pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of auto tampering, were fined $125 each and sentenced to a year's probation.

Attorney Richard Campbell of Nevada City, who defended the trio in the Downieville case, said the youths had "found what they presumed to be an abandoned car and they were taking parts off the car and someone turned them in. It was a derelict vehicle."

Campbell described them as "very clean cut, nice kids... these guys definitely weren't criminal types." He called Woods "a real auto buff."

Secret grand jury probes Hays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yesterday's blaring headline is today's plodding investigation. Rep. Wayne Hays' world has quieted somewhat, while a House committee and a federal grand jury continue to investigate payroll-sex charges against him.

The grand jury meets in secret, and there is no word when its investigation will reach a conclusion. The House ethics committee will not start its hearings on the Hays matter before late August.

Committee investigators have interviewed witnesses in the Hays case, including Elizabeth Ray, whose charge began the probe, sources say.

Rep. John Young, D-Tex.,

was in and out of the payroll-sex news in a hurry. Even though he told reporters he would seek an ethics committee investigation of a former aide's charge that he paid her a premium salary for sex, he never did ask for that investigation.

Hays did formally request an investigation of his case, along with a number of other House members.

Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, is nearing the end of his trial in Salt Lake City on charges that he offered two police decoy-prostitutes $20 for sex, Howe did not take the stand in his own defense, which rested Thursday without calling a single witness.

Hays, D-Ohio, returned to Washington this week after recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills. He told reporters he still favors the ethics panel investigation, which he believes will vindicate him.

Rep. John Flynt, D-Ga., chairman of the ethics panel, said the committee could not start hearings until after the Republican national convention in August because of other business, including current hearings into who leaked the House intelligence committee report to CBS newsman Daniel Schorr.

Miss Ray charged that Hays kept her on his House Administration Committee payroll at $14,000 a year to be his mis-ress. Hays told the House he did have a personal relationship with the 33-year-old blonde but that she did office work for her pay.

Various kinds of sex allegations were made last month against eight congressmen, including Young and Howe. But those against Hays are the only ones now being investigated by the ethics committee.

More recently, the Washington Post reported that Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., had an affair with Suzi Thomson, 45, a Korean-born aide to House Speaker Carl Albert. The newspaper said the Justice Department is investigating allegations that Leggett may have been bribed to do favors for the Korean government.

Leggett denied the bribery charge. He did not say whether he had had an affair with Miss Thomson.

NOT AN OLYMPICS EVENT, but participants in the World Custard Pie Championships still manage to whip up a lot of enthusiasm. In the finals at Coxheath, England, the Magnificent Seven from Dagenham, at right, oversplattered the Barking Drummers to take the title. The teams threw their way through about 1,000 pies.

Lo-Vaca proposal reviewed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Major customers of Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. reviewed a proposed settlement of Lo-Vaca's court problems today that a power company spokesman says seems to be the best way to handle $1.4 billion in damage suits.

H. K. Howard of Central Power & Light Co. of Corpus Christi told a railroad commission hearing Thursday a "settlement is possible, and there are only minor difficulties yet to be resolved."

The proposal—which would create a new company that would be totally independent of Lo-Vaca's parent firm, Coastal States Gas Corp.—"is a great step forward as to the other alternatives that could possibly be considered," Howard said.

A lawyer for United Texas Transmission Co. of Houston, which filed the first suit against Lo-Vaca, said he will recommend that his client accept an out-of-court settlement. He indicated that other Lo-Vaca customers should do the same.

"We must all float together or we certainly shall sink together," said Stan McLelland.

Coastal States, Lo-Vaca and the major customers have worked on the plan for more than a year.

Howard said the proposed settlement certainly could mean lower electric bills for more than 100 CP&L customers in 44 counties. He said he was particularly interested in a proposal for Coastal States to carry on a $230 million gas search program over 15 years.

McLelland said if all claims for damages were filed against Coastal and Lo-Vaca, the suits would total perhaps "several times" $1.4 billion, and even if the suits were won, "no one would get but a small fraction."

McLelland said the proposed settlement "offers all (Lo-Vaca) customers and ratepayers the maximum total benefit which can be realized."

The plan should provide at least $200 million and maybe as much as $800 million in benefits to Lo-Vaca's customers, he said.

He said representatives of customers who take 42 per cent of Lo-Vaca's gas deliveries have decided to recommend that the customers accept the settlement.

Spokesmen for San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi said the cities are reviewing the plan.

M.D. Sampels of Texas Utilities Fuel Co. (TUFCO) of Dallas said, however, that TUFCO "cannot and does not" support a settlement as long as a United Texas suit against Lo-Vaca is pending in Houston. The 1973 suit was the first filed.

The hurricane season, as defined by the National Weather Service, begins June 1 and ends Nov. 30.

The diameter of Saturn's ring system is about 170,000 miles but the rings are estimated to be no thicker than 10 miles.

by Lo-Vaca customers, when United Texas was Pennzoil Pipeline Co.

The proposed settlement calls for Coastal States to assume existing debts of about $108 million and to insure unsecured promissory notes of an estimated $120 million during the next 15 years.

The new company would issue $115 million in preferred stock to be placed in trust for Lo-Vaca customers.

Plutonium stockpiles 'should be controlled'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's arms control director said today that growing world stockpiles of reprocessed plutonium and other nuclear material pose a clear danger of a proliferation of atomic bombs. Though opposing new American controls, Fred Ikle also registered his opposition to legislation that would block shipments of U.S. technology and reactors to countries that have not signed the international nonproliferation treaty. Ikle, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said the bill before the Senate would force the United States to cut off contracts with friendly countries and make it more difficult to persuade them to accept controls. Besides, he said, they could still turn to other suppliers.

While nearly 100 countries are parties to the treaty, a number of nations believed to have the potential to acquire nuclear weapons have not signed the pact. These include India, which conducted a nuclear explosion in 1974, Israel, South Africa, Pakistan, Brazil, Argentina and Spain. Also, France and China, both nuclear-weapons countries, have not signed.

Ikle told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the most promising solution to the problem of accumulation of reprocessed plutonium is for the United States to require countries to return the irradiated fuel that is used to power American reactors sold abroad.

He said this is especially true in the case of India, which U.S. officials have said used American technology and a possibly crucial chemical ingredient for its atomic explosion. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission currently is considering an Indian application for enriched uranium for its power station at Tarapur.

Opponents of exporting U.S. uranium to India said such shipments would help India add to its stockpile of plutonium, a byproduct that India can use to fashion nuclear weapons.

Rep. Clarence Long, R-Md., this week accused India of "bad faith" in using peaceful nuclear aid for weapons development.

Secret grand jury probes Hays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yesterday's blaring headline is today's plodding investigation. Rep. Wayne Hays' world has quieted somewhat, while a House committee and a federal grand jury continue to investigate payroll-sex charges against him.

The grand jury meets in secret, and there is no word when its investigation will reach an conclusion. The House ethics committee will not start its hearings on the Hays matter before late August.

Committee investigators have interviewed witnesses in the Hays case, including Elizabeth Ray, whose charge before the probe, sources say.

Rep. John Young, D-Tex., was in, and out of the payroll-sex news in a hurry. Even though he told reporters he would seek an ethics committee investigation of a former aide's charge that he paid her a premium salary for sex, he never did ask for that investigation.

Hays did formally request an investigation of his case, along with a number of other House members.

Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, is nearing the end of his trial in Salt Lake City on charges that he did not take the stand in his own defense, which rested Thursday without calling a single witness.

Hays, D-Ohio, returned to Washington this week after recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills. He told reporters he still favors the ethics panel investigation, which he believes will vindicate him.

Rep. John Flynt, D-Ga., chairman of the ethics panel, said the committee could not start hearings until after the Republican national convention in August because of other business, including current hearings into who leaked the House intelligence committee report to CBS newsmen Daniel Schorr.

Miss Ray charged that Hays kept her on his House Administration Committee payroll at $14,000 a year to be his mistress. Hays told the House he did have a personal relationship with the 33-year-old blonde but that she did office work for her pay.

Various kinds of sex allegations were made last month against eight congressmen, including Young and Howe. But those against Hays are the only ones now being investigated by the ethics committee.

More recently, the Washington Post reported that Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., had an affair with Suzi Thomson, 45, a Korean-born aide to House Speaker Carl Albert. The newspaper said the Justice Department is investigating allegations that Leggett may have been bribed to do favors for the Korean government.

Leggett denied the bribery charge. He did not say whether he had had an affair with Miss Thomson.

Wanted for questioning in abduction

Millionaire's son grew up loner

PORTOLA VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Millionaire's son Fred Newhall Woods IV grew up a loner, building a restlessness that authorities believe may have led to a bizarre mass kidnaping.

Woods, 25, was described Thursday as "armed and dangerous" in an all-points bulletin which said he and two friends are wanted for questioning in the abduction of 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver a week ago.

On his father's 100-acre estate which has a "keep out" sign on the front gate, Woods lived alone in a servant's cottage and collected old cars. All kinds of vehicles — cars, trucks, a 1928 Pierce Arrow, even a fire engine — dotted the estate.

"He just never said anything about girl friends," said Steve Ortega, a Portola Valley fireman who shared some school classes with Woods. "Only cars. Cars were his life. All he did was drive around those old clunkers. As a senior at Woodside High School in nearby Redwood City, Woods carried pictures of cars around in his wallet. He had no sweethearts, acquaintances say.

"He was always quiet and withdrawn," said Clay Hood, 23, a service station attendant and classmate. But he had at least two close friends — the Schoenfeld brothers, James, 25, and Richard, 23, who shared his interest in cars. The brothers are sons of Dr. John Schoenfeld, an Atherton podiatrist with offices in Menlo Park.

The two Schoenfeld brothers were also named in the nationwide all-points bulletin. Woods and James Schoenfeld graduated within a year of each other at Woodside High and had worked together repairing old cars. City and county records, however, indicate they had no business license.

The three friends had one scrape with the law. On Oct. 6, 1974, they were arrested in the tiny community of Downville about 150 miles northeast of San Francisco on a charge of felony joyriding.

They pleaded guilty to petty theft, but withdrew the plea before their January 1975 trial began. Later, they pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of auto tampering, were fined $125 each and sentenced to a year's probation.

Attorney Richard Campbell of Nevada City, who defended the trio in the Downville case, said the youths had "found what they presumed to be an abandoned car and they were taking parts off the car and someone turned them in. It was a derelict vehicle."

Campbell described them as "very clean cut, nice kids... these guys definitely weren't criminal types." He called Woods "a real auto buff."

Ford tactics anger delegates

By JONATHAN WOLMAN Associated Press Writer

The chairman of the Mississippi Republican party, angered by the tactics of President Ford's partisans, says their efforts to woo delegates in the state may have backfired and reduced support for Ford.

Criticizing the efforts on Ford's behalf, Clarke Reed said Thursday that Ford may have less support in the delegation today than he did just two days ago.

Reed said pressure from Ford backers included suggestions that Ronald Reagan would settle for a vice presidential nomination.

Mississippi holds the largest single bloc of uncommitted delegates available in the Ford-Reagan race for the GOP presidential nomination. Sixty Mississippi delegates and alternates will meet in Jackson Sunday, but plans to seek a preference vote to determine who will receive the 30 delegate votes have been set aside.

Reagan telephoned Ford campaigner Gil Carmichael of Meridian, Miss., on Thursday and told him to stop telling delegates that Reagan is considering a vice presidential position. Carmichael said that in four days of heavy telephone lobbying he and other Ford supporters told delegates only that they believed a Ford-Reagan ticket was possible. But Reed said Carmichael had been telling delegates a Ford-Reagan ticket was sanctioned by Reagan.

"That tactic itself has worked against Ford," Reed said. "Ford may have less support now than he had two days ago."

Reed, Carmichael and Reagan supporters in Mississippi had said this week that Ford's support was rising. But Reed said the first unofficial poll of delegates taken Thursday by the party's organization indicates Reagan nearly has a majority and leads Ford.

After Carmichael said he would not ask for a vote during a meeting of delegates Sunday as he had said he might do, Reed said Ford supporters may be backing off.

Reagan told Carmichael that he would not consider a Ford-

Reagan ticket "under any circumstances," according to the Mississippiian.

Meanwhile, a Ford spokesman said Thursday that the President has directed that no "consideration, favor or reward" be offered to any delegate in return for support at the GOP convention next month.

Jimmy Carter, who once advocated eliminating tax incentives which encourage American firms to manufacture products abroad, is assuring business leaders that he intends to retain one of the major tax advantages they have when investing overseas.

At a luncheon in New York, the Democratic presidential candidate told 52 executives from some of the country's largest corporations that he favored retaining the foreign tax credit that allows American companies a U.S. tax credit for income taxes paid to foreign countries.

The credit avoids double taxation by the United States and the foreign country, Carter said.

He said he believes the loss of jobs in the United States caused by U.S. companies locating overseas is offset by the creation of jobs when foreign companies invest in the United States. In his speech to the corporate officials, Carter proclaimed Thursday, "I will be a friend to business."

His message to reporters had a different emphasis. At a news conference earlier, Carter said he favors complete tax reform, consumerism and the "elimination of special privileges for people who have been economically or politically powerful."

Those positions are not incompatible, he maintained later, saying it would be possible for him to act both as a champion of big business and the consumer if elected president.

He told the business leaders he plans a total income tax overhaul if elected president, but said it would be a slow and cautious process.

He returned to Plains, Ga., Thursday night and planned to spend today quietly at home, continuing his study of issues and strategy for the fall campaign.

Democratic vice-presidential nominee Walter Mondale will campaign in the Deep South this weekend in the first test of his appeal in Carter's home territory. The Minnesota senator is traveling to Hilton Head, S.C., today to begin campaign strategy meetings.

No leads to bombers

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish police say they have no leads to the killers of British Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs, despite the arrest of 13 suspected members of the Irish Republican Army.

Nobody has claimed responsibility for the bombing Wednesday that killed Ewart-Biggs and a woman secretary and wounded British official Brian Cubbon and an Irish driver. But "we have no doubt it was the IRA," one government official said.

"We've made no substantial progress so far," said a police spokesman as 4,000 policemen and troops pressed a nationwide dragnet.

The search turned up 3½ tons of IRA explosives and ammunition in a forest outside Kilkenny, south of Dublin. It was one of the biggest IRA dumps found in the Irish republic, but police sources said there was no indication the 200 pounds of ammunition that blew up the am-

Lo-Vaca proposal reviewed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Major customers of Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. reviewed a proposed settlement of Lo-Vaca's court problems today that a power company spokesman says seems to be the best way to handle $1.4 billion in damage suits.

H. K. Howard of Central Power & Light Co. of Corpus Christi told a railroad commission hearing Thursday a "settlement is possible, and there are only minor difficulties yet to be resolved."

The proposal—which would create a new company that would be totally independent of Lo-Vaca's parent firm, Coastal States Gas Corp.—"is a great step forward as to the other alternatives that could possibly be considered," Howard said.

A lawyer for United Texas Transmission Co. of Houston, which filed the first suit against Lo-Vaca, said he will recommend that his client accept an out-of-court settlement. He indicated that other Lo-Vaca customers should do the same.

"We must all float together or we certainly shall all sink together," said Stan McLelland.

Coastal States, Lo-Vaca and the major customers have worked on the plan for more than a year.

Howard said the proposed settlement "certainly could mean lower electric bills for more than 100 CP&L customers in 44 counties. He said he was particularly interested in a proposal for Coastal States to carry on a $230 million gas search program over 15 years.

McLelland said if all claims for damages were filed against Coastal and Lo-Vaca, the suits would total perhaps "several times" $1.4 billion, and even if the suits were won, "no one would get but a small fraction."
