

Gas, steel up inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply higher prices for steel and gasoline pushed wholesale prices up four-tenths of a per cent in June, the government said today.

The increase compared with a rise of three-tenths of a per cent in May and was in line with relatively modest inflation rates so far this year at both the wholesale and retail level.

Farm and food price increases slowed last month but an acceleration in industrial prices, led by steel and gasoline, was largely responsible for the over-all wholesale price increase, the Labor Department said.

Fears of a new outburst of inflation were expressed by many economists after an eight-tenths of a per cent jump in wholesale prices in April, the biggest rise in six months. But the slow-down in May and June is expected to help dampen those fears.

The Ford administration forecast an inflation rate of about 6 per cent this year, high by historical standards but down from the 7 per cent rate in 1975 and far below the near record 12.2 per cent increase in 1974.

In June, the wholesale price index stood at 183.1, meaning it cost $183.10 to buy the same goods that sold for $100 in the 1967 base period.

Industrial prices rose five-tenths of a per cent last month with metal and fuel products accounting for more than half the increase, the government said.

Gasoline prices were up 3.7 per cent while metal products rose 1.1 per cent, largely as the result of previously announced increases in certain steel mill products.

Farm prices, which rose sharply in April and May, slowed to an increase of three-tenths of a per cent in June. Prices declined for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables, livestock, plant and animal fibers and milk.

Processed foods and feeds rose four-tenths of a per cent in June, following increases of 1.9 per cent in April and 1.3 per cent in May.

Sharp increases in prices for manufactured animal feeds were offset by lower prices for sugar and confectionery. Beef and veal prices continued to decline, although less than in May.

Wholesale prices are the prices which businesses charge other businesses. Changes in wholesale prices often are a forerunner of eventual changes in the prices consumers pay.

Over the past year, wholesale prices have risen 5.4 per cent. Industrial prices were up 6.2 per cent, while farm prices rose 5.5 per cent, and processed foods and feeds increased 1.2 per cent.

Even though wholesale prices increases are adjusted to account for regular seasonal variations, food prices tend to jump around more readily than industrial prices. As a result, economists look more carefully at industrial prices because they have a longer-lasting impact on the over-all price level.

The June increase in industrial prices was the largest since December when it rose six-tenths of a per cent.

Prices of consumer finished foods, the index closest to the items listed in the consumer price index, declined nine-tenths of a per cent last month.

Pat Nixon hospitalized; condition serious, stable

By LYNDIA FILLMORE
Associated Press Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Doctors kept an overnight vigil on former first lady Pat Nixon, partially paralyzed on her left side from a stroke and in "serious but stable condition."

Mrs. Nixon was reported resting comfortably after visits with her two daughters Thursday night, but neurologist Dr. John Mosier said she is far from being out of danger.

"If the stroke doesn't get any worse, she's not going to die. If it gets worse, well, people do die from strokes," Mosier said at a news briefing called after the 64-year-old wife of former President Richard M. Nixon was admitted to Memorial Hospital Medical Center.

The stroke caused "moderate paralysis" of Mrs. Nixon's left leg, arm and left side of her face, which in turn caused a "slight slurring" of speech, Mosier said.

"I think she will walk," he said, but added, "She may not walk normally." Pressures in her life "certainly could have been a contributing factor" toward her illness, Mosier added.

Doctors said Mrs. Nixon had apparently suffered a right cerebral infarct, or a blood clot on the right side of the brain. A stroke can be caused by a clot or hemorrhage and can cause paralysis and speech slurring, or in severe cases, death.

Secret Service agents called an ambulance for Mrs. Nixon, and she was accompanied during the 30-mile trip from the former Western White House by her husband and younger daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower.

Nixon slipped out of the hospital only an hour after her arrival and apparently returned to San Clemente.

The couple's other daughter, Tricia Cox, flew in from New York and she and Mrs. Eisenhower visited with their mother until about 9:15 p.m. before joining their father at San Clemente.

President Ford and his Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan, called Nixon at the hospital.

"It could be serious," a White House spokesman quoted Nixon as telling the President.

"They are very hopeful," Reagan quoted the former president as saying after Nixon was notified that her condition had stabilized.

"She had a stroke of maybe 35 to 50 per cent completeness," Mosier said Thursday. "We don't know if it will expand. At this point we don't know how permanent this may be." He said she was expected to remain hospitalized for at least 10 days.

Mrs. Nixon suffered the stroke Wednesday while reading, Mosier said. "She felt that she probably had a little stroke. She went up and went to bed. She didn't tell the other members of her family." But next morning the family "could tell when they saw her," and a doctor was summoned, he said.

An ambulance was called with instructions that there be no sirens.

Mrs. Nixon was being given no medication, hospital spokesmen said.

Nixon 'ignores' court disbarment hearing

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon has been disbarred from practicing law in New York State after a court proceeding which he chose to ignore.

A state appeals court found Thursday that Nixon had been guilty of the "most serious offense" of obstructing justice in the Watergate scandal, made more serious by the fact that he was not only a lawyer but also the holder of the highest public office in this country.

"We find," the court said, "that the evidence adduced in the case at bar warrants the imposition of the most severe sanction available to the court."

The 4-to-1 decision of the same court that admitted Nixon to the New York bar in 1963 marked the first time any official body had found the former president guilty of Watergate-connected charges.

The charges were originally brought by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, whose grievance committee began an investigation in September 1974, one month after Nixon resigned the presidency.

Nixon, who has said he never intends to practice law again, tried to resign from the New York bar as he did from the bar in California. But rules here do not permit resignation without an admission that the accused attorney is unable to defend himself against the charges.

A minority opinion filed by Justice Theodore Kupferman held that the former president should have been allowed to resign.

The court's opinion noted that Nixon refused to accept service of the charges last Jan. 21, and an attempt to have the papers served at his San Clemente, Calif., home a week later was unsuccessful. The court then authorized service by regular mail on Feb. 1, but Nixon made no reply to the charges.

The court, the Appellate Division of Manhattan Supreme Court, said that "no reason whatever has been shown why a respondent who has chosen to reject or ignore service may by stony silence postpone judgment indefinitely."

The court heard five charges against Nixon, and said each was substantiated by evidence from the White House tapes or testimony before congressional committees.

Hopes for Deana hinging on trip

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

It will be a year ago next Friday that Mrs. Tim Leshner of 937 Wilcox was told she had given birth to a "beautiful baby girl" at Highland General Hospital.

Apparently there were no problems. The infant, Deana, weighed 7 pounds 15 ounces. However, within a few hours the child developed what physicians termed a "brain hemorrhage."

She was rushed to the infant intensive care unit of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo where her condition was diagnosed as critical.

Mrs. Leshner said she was told at one time the child would not live through the night. She had been in a coma for several days, her mother explained.

"But as I stood looking at her she opened her eyes and I knew she would live," her mother said. But during the past year, Deana, although a picture of health, has continued to have seizures.

Pediatricians "had hoped she would grow out of them," her mother said. "But it hasn't worked that way."

Mrs. Leshner said through assistance from the Gray County Chapter of the March of Dimes, she will leave Wednesday to take Deana to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston for tests.

"I think perhaps there may be pinched nerve or something they can correct," the mother said. Although Deana will be a year old a week from today, her mother said she has developed to the "point of about a three-month old child."

"She can't turn over, or sit up, but she has begun to notice her toys," the mother explained optimistically.

The child is now under medication to prevent seizures which her mother said would occur "about every 10 minutes without it."

"She started the seizures in the hospital and would jerk all over and become lifeless," Mrs. Leshner explained.

As for progressing as "a normal child" Mrs. Leshner said her daughter "will kick just hard as she can, but will put no weight on her legs."

She is also beginning to notice her sister, Katrina, 5. The Leshners are expecting another child in October.

Physicians have told the Leshners the child will be slow, but add they really can't predict too much "at this time."

Deana now weighs about 20 pounds and the one thing she enjoys is her bottle, her mother said.

"Her medicine doesn't seem to bother her appetite," the mother said.

However, in the beginning, Deana lost to six pounds. Her mother received little sleep during the first three months of Deana's life.

"But she sleeps pretty well now," the mother added.

Mrs. Leshner contacted Howard Weatherly, immediate past president of the local chapter of the March of Dimes about a month ago.

"I was really seeking information. I thought they could help only if a child is crippled, but Mr. Weatherly said a child with a birth defect is eligible," she said.

Mrs. Leshner's husband is employed by National Auto Salvage.

The baby's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Leshner and Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Wright, all of Pampa.

Ford sweeps North Dakota

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for potentially greener pastures in Colorado today after suffering his worst setback in several weeks in his campaign for the Republican nomination for president.

President Ford gained 24 delegates Thursday and Reagan picked up three in delegate elections in North Dakota and commitments from previously uncommitted delegates in six other states and territories. That gave Ford 1,028 of the 1,130 delegates needed for the Republican nomination. Reagan, who had been steadily gaining in recent weeks, trails with 979 in The Associated Press' survey of GOP delegates.

And Reagan, while still predicting a first-ballot victory next month in Kansas City, devoted a significant portion of his day Thursday to trying to head off second-ballot slippage if the convention gets to that point.

He held several private meetings with about a dozen Indiana delegates — who are legally bound to him only on the first ballot — to solidify their support.

The former California governor planned to meet today with state convention delegates in Colorado. The state meeting was scheduled to elect 25 national convention delegates today and Saturday.

Reagan, who spent most of Thursday courting delegates from Illinois and Missouri, as well as those from Indiana, in a marathon series of private meetings at a Chicago hotel, did not comment on the North Dakota loss.

A number of the delegates pledging themselves to Ford Thursday had been expected by both campaigns to go that way. But North Dakota, where Reagan campaigned in person, was a setback, although Lake claimed the opposite.

Reagan had said he hoped for a "rough split," and various aides had predicted winning six to nine of the North Dakota delegates. In voting Thursday, 18 legally uncommitted delegates were elected — 10 who declared for Ford, three for Reagan and five uncommitted.

Packerland under new management

Larry Coyle, 52, who formerly owned and operated his own packing plant in Omaha, has assumed duties as general manager of the Packerland Packing Co. of Texas Inc., Pampa plant.

Howard Frankenthal Jr., who assumed duties as manager when the plant opened here about three years ago, will be moving to the Packerland headquarters location in Green Bay, Wis., within the next two months, according to the announcement made today by Coyle.

The new manager said Frankenthal will assist his father in operations of the firm's four plants.

Coyle came to Pampa about two months ago from New York. He and his wife, Sharon, have two children: Larry, Jr., 5, and Kathy, 15. Although they have moved to Pampa they now live in an apartment. Their furniture is stored.

"We're in the process of finding a home," he said.

Packerland has an estimated 200 employees. Coyle said the new office manager is George Cook, formerly with Heaton Cattle Co.

The new manager said his outlook for the Pampa area is "most optimistic."

525 file for tax break

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Approximately 525 applications for the $3,000 residential homestead tax exemption for Pampa property owners 65 or over had been processed up to this morning in the tax office at City Hall.

Mrs. Grace Gibson, deputy tax collector, said the applications included eligible persons with last names beginning with A through L.

Starting Monday and running through Thursday morning applications will be taken from eligible persons with last names beginning with M, N, O, P, Q and R.

Applications from persons with names beginning with S, T, U, V, W, X, Y and Z will be processed July 19 through 22.

City tax assessor-collector Aubrey L. Jones said applications also are being taken from disabled veterans for city property tax exemptions. Approximately 75 have been processed so far.

Jones estimated a total of between 1150 and 1200 applications, including both homestead and veteran disability exemptions, will be filed in the city tax office. This would reduce city tax revenue probably around $35,000, it is anticipated.

Applications currently being filed do not become effective for the current tax year. They will take effect on the tax roll beginning Jan. 1, 1977.

Jones indicated that since the city heretofore has had no experience with the two major tax exemptions problems arise occasionally concerning eligibility.

He said the tax office is doing everything possible to ascertain eligibility including a study on legal procedures set up in an opinion received by the Texas Association of Assessing Officers in Austin.

"Often it becomes a gigantic problem to ascertain eligibility in both the homestead and veteran exemptions," Jones said.

The residential homestead exemption allows a $3,000 tax exemption for persons 65 or over on assessed value of the property in which they reside. The applicant also must be the head of a family, according to the TAAO guidelines.

Veterans receive a graduated tax exemption ranging from 10 to 70 per cent of their disability as established by the federal government.

A disabled veteran is entitled to a $1,500 tax exemption for 10 per cent disability and up to $3,000 exemption for 70 per cent disability, based on assessed property valuation.

In order for an exemption to be reflected on the tax roll the varied processes must be executed according to routine changes, according to tax officials.

Tree suit could halt $6 million business

HOUSTON (AP) — A U.S. Forest Service official says an environmental suit against "clearing" in the four national forests in Texas could eliminate virtually the entire annual sale of $6 million in timber from the forests.

Dave Oates, resources director for the National Forests in Texas, contended Thursday that the suit, if upheld, in effect would halt "just about all harvesting of timber."

The suit, filed in Tyler a week ago, asked a federal court to enforce the National Forest Organic Act of 1897 and prohibit the cutting of anything except "dead, mature timber or large trees" in the Texas national forests.

The suit parallels a successful court action which has suspended timber sales since last August in nine national forests in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The Tyler suit was filed by the Texas Committee on Natural Resources (TCNR). It accuses the Forest Service of failing to file environmental impact statements on timber sales, selling timber right up to the edge of streams and thereby causing erosion, and violating a multiple-use law on national forests.

"We just want to make them obey the law in the Texas national forests," said Edward C. Fritz, a Dallas lawyer and chairman of TCNR. "We are not blocking the selective harvesting of timber."

Oates said average annual sales from the Texas national forests run about 100 million board feet, with receipts of about $6 million expected in 1976.

Figures supplied by Oates indicated about 4,800 acres of the forests are clear-cut yearly. The four forests total about 600,000 acres.

Two closing school cases

"Public schooling is a constitutional right." Right? Wrong! A U.S. District Court has just ruled that it is not. So much for another myth; which, really, should not prove surprising since rights do not flow from words on paper and, moreover, schooling is not once mentioned in the document under consideration.

But let's delve a bit deeper into the subject of governmental schooling and its treatment by the courts of the land.

In Boston, where court-ordered busing of school children had caused a $17.5 million deficit in operating funds, city officials had attempted to close down the schools for the remainder of the year in an effort to economize and close the deficit gap. "No," ruled federal judge W. Arthur Garrity — the same judge who had ordered the busing in the first place. Boston schools will remain open, decreed the judge, who then proceeded to lecture Boston's City Fathers on how they should go about raising the $17.5 million.

That was in Boston. The scene shifts to New Jersey and quite a different court decree.

Piqued by the New Jersey Legislature's failure to enact tax laws meeting its approval, the state Supreme Court, Thursday, ordered the public school system in the entire state closed down further ordering that all spending for public schools be halted until the Legislature had adopted a new school financing method.

The order being appealed to the district court on the grounds that the schools could not be shut down "because public education is a constitutional right," the higher court rejected the appeal and ruled, by a nine to two majority, that no such constitutional right exists.

And we are governed, so we are told, by a government of laws, rather than by a government of men.

Governors advised to Trim bloat and cut taxes

(Wall Street Journal)

The governors of seven Northeastern states have combined to offer an ominous response to the "Sunbelt shift" of population and economic growth toward the South and West. While it is gratifying that they no longer take continued prosperity and growth for granted, the remedies they prescribed are inappropriate and even pernicious.

The governors have proposed to engage in "joint economic planning, a fuzzy concept singularly inconsistent with a market economy on the national level and equally useless at a sub-national level. How does "economic planning" in the Northeast prevent plants and offices from expanding in Tennessee or Texas?

Even more dubious is the proposal for an "economic development corporation" to raise capital for new industry. There are thousands of such entities already in existence as a nostrum for regional economic disparities and they have a long record of ineffectiveness and misdirection of resources.

But most troubling is the governors' vow to combine to lobby Washington for assistance. This is the first serious indication of an overt effort to employ political pressure to hobble the development of the south, West and other healthy parts of the national economy. This is economically wrong, and politically dangerous. The last thing we need is a return to the bad old days of regional conflict.

Rather than run to Washington for largess, the governors would be better advised to put their own houses in order. One reason that the Northeast has less growth is that it has been so influenced by the enemies of growth.

Businessmen are harassed by a mafia of state and local regulators. One problem cited by the governors was energy shortages. They might consider employing their leadership ability to tear down their states' barriers against deep-water oil ports and refineries and lobby in Washington for the deregulation which would guarantee their natural gas supplies. Instead of creating new bureaucracies for "joint economic planning" and "industrial development corporations" they might trim their bloated payrolls.

Drawing the Line The Mason-Dixon Line traditionally dividing the North from the South was in no way connected with the Civil War. The line was drawn much earlier to tend a colonial land dispute between the Calvert of Maryland and the Penns. Plotted out in a 1750 compromise in the English Court of Chancery, the line was fixed by two surveyors, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, between 1763 and 1767.

Humphrey Dumpty had a great fall ...

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Frustration hits Humphrey

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, July 9 — Sen. Hubert Humphrey appears headed for another frustrating disappointment.

The perpetually ambitious Minnesotan's quest for the post of Senate Democratic leader is showing no more signs of succeeding than his wily strategy to snag the presidential nomination.

That play never got off the ground, and his maneuvering to be top man in the Senate doesn't seem to be making much headway, either.

If he expected a rush of supporters, it isn't developing. So far Humphrey's boom is right where it started — becalmed and going nowhere.

It is forcefully clear that, while he is personally generally respected and liked by his Democratic colleagues, they have pronounced misgivings about his temperament and qualifications to manage the complex legislative machinery of the Senate.

Significantly, some of the wariest skeptics are ultra-liberals who might be expected to favor Humphrey on ideological grounds.

Definitely that's a factor he counted on to rally backing. But it isn't working out that way.

After four years of the highly skilled, tireless and effective piloting of Democratic Whip Robert Byrd, ideology is carrying little weight in determining who will succeed retiring Floor Leader Mike Mansfield.

Still fresh is the memory of the Democrats' grating plight when Sen. "Ted" Kennedy was elected whip chiefly because of his name and activist reputation.

From start to finish he was a resounding flop because he wouldn't or couldn't fill the job. Particularly vexing was Kennedy's penchant for being away when needed.

That's the real reason Byrd, in a head-on challenge, licked him — although given only an outside chance by sundry pundits and crystal-gazers.

Hampering Hubert Unquestionably, the most potent influence operating for Byrd is his extraordinary finesse, reliability and durability in keeping the Senate functioning relatively smoothly and productively.

That takes masterly juggling with 100 prima donnas — acutely and augustly conscious they are members of the "most exclusive club in the world."

Not only is the astute and tireless West Virginian always briskly on hand, regardless of the earliness or lateness of the hour, but he is fully cognizant of what is under consideration and all other details of the order of business for that day.

Also equally important is Byrd's meticulous impartiality and courtly but firm civility. He makes no bones of his views and position, but is fair and square to all.

Not in many years has the Senate been as deftly and skillfully handled.

A private canvass of the chamber reveals widespread doubts about Humphrey's measuring up to this level. From these talks, four apprehensions regarding him emerged:

—Physical stamina. Sixty-five and admittedly undergoing treatment for a serious internal ailment, the Minnesotan, many feel, doesn't have the endurance required for this demanding job.

Among the most rigorous on Capitol Hill, it's highly questionable whether Humphrey can handle it as it should be.

—His marked penchant for moonlighting. A compulsive and interminable haranguer, Humphrey lectures at the drop of a hat. Before a $25,000 ceiling was imposed on outside earnings, Humphrey pocketed upwards of $50,000 a year on the lecture circuit. As floor leader, he would either have to give up the lucrative spouting or be absent — and it's bluntly feared he would do the latter. Patently, his colleagues know him all too well.

Second Choice This clearly annoyed Senator disclosed that announcing for floor leader actually was Humphrey's second choice.

He first tried to latch on to being president pro tem — with a salary of $60,000, chauffeured limousine and sundry other juicy perquisites and allowances.

Traditionally, the Senate's president pro tem (relatively comparable to Speaker of the House and with the same pay and allowances) goes to the majority member with the longest service. The post is now held by Sen. James Eastland, Miss., 72, serving his sixth term, who is also chairman of the powerful Judiciary Committee — which passes on all legal appointments.

Apparently, Humphrey who from 1965 to 1969 presided over the Senate as Vice President of the U.S., looked the field over as to what juicy plum he might best grab. When he found his prospects for unhorsing Eastland as president pro tem were nil, he then decided to go after floor leader.

Clearly, Humphrey counted on the militants and activists flocking to him. Not only have they not done so, but some have privately firmly promised their votes to Byrd.

When the West Virginian quietly claims he has 33 definitely committed supporters, that's not an empty boast. He's got them.

All you have to do is ask Sens. Edmund Muskie, Me., and Ernest Hollings, S.C., who also are aspiring — although no one knows why, including themselves. They don't consider Byrd's count idle talk.

IN CONGRESS

How to really clean house

By PETER GRUENSTEIN
News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Reacting with unusual alacrity to the Washington scandal — no doubt spurred by visions of voter retribution this fall — the Democratic caucus recently passed some reforms designed to clean up the House's act.

The reforms were designed to correct the abuses that proliferated under Rep. Wayne Hays' rule as chairman of the House Administration Committee. They included:

—eliminating the authority of the Administration Committee to approve increases in members' allowances without approval of the full House;

—rescinding the right of members to pocket (and use for their own personal purposes) funds in some accounts;

—requiring members to publicly detail the duties and pay of their staff members (this obviously a direct response to the allegations by Elizabeth Ray that she was hired by Hays, D-Ohio, to serve as his mistress);

—simplifying a number of the accounts that had been made purposely confusing and complex in order to hide their real cost from the public.

These and several other reforms passed by the House Democrats are useful. Such quick action, especially in an institution that has traditionally swept its dirt under the rug, is somewhat surprising.

But if our elected representatives are really interested in cleaning House, there is far more that needs to be done to prevent the Congressmen from abusing their perquisites and consuming public funds in the quest of their own personal interests.

For example, as the News' Washington bureau reported two years ago, some members have used the lavish House recording studio facilities not only to make self-serving electronic press releases, but to produce actual campaign advertisements (at a cost far less than their opponents pay).

Such clear misuse of a government facility is easily corrected. The House should pass a rule banning use of the recording studios for campaign spots.

Second, among the most flagrant abuses by incumbents over the years has been to utilize highly paid, professional staffers on the congressional payroll to run their campaigns.

Such practice is clearly subversive of the electoral process. Congress should pass a strict bar to such use of congressional aides, require members to sign a sworn statement that their staffers have not been working on their campaigns while on the congressional payroll, and mandate criminal penalties for violations.

Third, members use the privilege of the frank (free postage) to communicate with their constituents. Some members send out millions of pieces of mail a year.

Specifically, all members of Congress should be required to place on public file copies of all mass mailings they send out under the frank, as well as the quantity sent.

But perhaps the most useful reform the House could accomplish would be a crystal clear declaration that the public is entitled to find out from congressmen and their employees how Congress spends its funds — on secretaries, foreign junkets, carpets, gymnasiums, etc. It is time that Congress decreed that citizens are entitled to know as much about how Congress operates — and spends its money — as they are about the rest of the federal government.

Not having seen an agenda at the time of this writing, it is impossible to know what will come before the board of managers of Gray County's hospitals at their Monday night meeting in Highland General. But an obvious guess is that one of the items to be considered in the executive (closed) portion of the meeting will be the administrator situation.

Monogue, it seems, slipped off over to Spearman without telling any of the board members and he visited with the Hansford County folks about administering their little (28-bed) hospital.

In view of some of the things the board has allowed Monogue to get away with in the past, it is difficult to predict what will happen now. Will they continue to stand behind an administrator who is looking for another place to live and work, or will they finally determine enough is enough and request Monogue's resignation.

Sports fans who avidly follow the Highland General board meets can pretty well guess some of what might transpire if the question comes to a vote in the closed session.

Ed Patman, the McLean member of the board, probably will vote to keep Monogue. Last Tuesday, when asked for a comment about the Monogue-Spearman situation, Patman said, "I don't know what to say until I talk to Bob... I don't know how we could replace him."

Bill Tidwell probably will vote the other way. A recent comment from him on the subject was, "If a man's looking elsewhere, he can't do you a good job, can he?"

Another who probably will not vote for Monogue is Susie Wilkinson. She has been guarded in her comments on the administrator subject, but from exchanges with him in past meetings, the inference is that she would welcome the opportunity for a change in the hospital head slot.

I'm guessing Dr. R.M. Bellamy will side with Monogue. He evidently was one of the references Monogue gave the Spearman folks. Dr. Bellamy said he has been contacted by a Hansford County Hospital board member for information about the administrator.

That will make the count two to two. There are six members on the board but it is difficult to predict how the two remaining votes will be cast.

Maybe Don Ritter has had enough. Yes, I think he might vote to ask for a resignation since Monogue has indicated that he doesn't intend to stay around much longer. Ritter hasn't always been happy with the administrator's actions in the past, but he also hasn't appeared to be one who makes any hasty decisions in weighty matters. The time may have come.

Then there is the president of the board, Fred Neslage. He has never been one to confront unpleasant situations head-on when he could table them, gloss them over with a lengthy speech, or ignore them entirely. But this situation may be one for which there is no alternative to wrestling it out.

Neslage has a history of standing behind the administrator regardless of the situation. Based on that history, one might think he's a cinch to vote pro-Monogue.

However, Neslage also likes things to run smoothly and it appears now that the way to achieve smoothness in the hospital picture would be to request that the current administrator remove himself from it. So he may vote accordingly.

It may have occurred to you that since there are an even half dozen members on the board the vote could deadlock three to three. And what then, you might ask?

Well, then the matter will go to Gray County Judge Don Cain for a deciding vote. It is my assumption, and I think it a safe one, that in such an instance, Judge Cain will vote to request the resignation.

If the judge should get to decide the matter it is safe to assume that it won't set well with Monogue. Patman, Neslage, and possibly another or two of the board members. They have indicated in the past that they do not appreciate the county commissioners court getting involved in the running of the hospital.

Most recently the commission decreased the size of several raises that Monogue had recommended and the hospital board had approved for hospital personnel.

But, after all, it is a county hospital and the county judge and county commissioners are responsible for it to the taxpayers who own it, and the voters who elect them. If they find that the hospital board members they appoint are giving too much rein to an administrator, they have no choice but to step in and tighten it up.

The next step should have been for the hospital board members to take the cue and continue to hold a tight rein on the administrator. And if that administrator has become too accustomed to running unchecked and he balks at the pressure on the bit, maybe it's time for the board to look for a new administrator.

That hasn't happened... yet. It may be that Monogue will submit his resignation Monday without being asked for it. That certainly would simplify matters.

Flu shot snags more than expected

By ANN COOPER
Pampa News

WASHINGTON — Vaccinating every American man, woman and child to prevent a swine flu pandemic next winter, sounded like an idea headed for plenty of snags when President Ford first suggested it but few guessed just how many obstacles would pop up.

Two recent bills introduced in Congress are the result of two of those snags. One, written by the American Medical Association (AMA), and submitted by Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., ranking Republican on the House Health and Environment subcommittee, would protect physicians, hospitals and other health care personnel and facilities from most legal liabilities for their participation in the massive vaccination program.

The AMA proposal would make the health care professionals and facilities responsible only for damages resulting from their "gross negligence." The federal government would be responsible for legal claims brought against doctors, nurses or hospitals as long as gross negligence isn't involved.

Carter, a doctor himself, said he doesn't fully support the bill as written by the AMA. The Kentuckian said if the bill comes up in the House Health and Environment subcommittee, he'll move to strike the work "gross" from it.

But it's not clear now whether the subcommittee will look at the bill. For in a second bill, manufacturers of the vaccine asked the panel for similar legal protection. But after lengthy debate last week, the subcommittee turned thumbs down on their proposal.

Congress is now adjourned for the Democratic convention, so the subject of legal protection for health personnel and facilities can't be formally discussed until after the legislators return July 19. Some congressional aides wonder whether the panel, unable to agree on legislation for the manufacturers, can come up with a consensus on legal protection for doctors and hospitals.

But an AMA spokesman said the defeat for the manufacturers would not deter his group's efforts to get a bill.

Physicians and hospitals who want to volunteer for the program say they need the protection because their insurance companies are warning that their regular malpractice insurance won't cover their participation in the swine flu program. California hospitals, for instance, have been told they'll have to pay $1.76 per patient to get insured for giving the shots, which are supposed to be administered to every American beginning this fall.

The AMA spokesman said the legislation would protect physicians who can't afford to pay for the extra insurance. It would also protect the growing number of doctors who are practicing without malpractice insurance rather than paying the increasingly high rates doctors are being charged for coverage.

"Wouldn't you feel a lot more secure knowing that, as long as there's no gross negligence involved, you could get damages from the federal government if you have an adverse reaction?" the AMA official asked.

But one health subcommittee aide said doctors may not have to worry about their bill if the manufacturers don't come up with the kind of legal protection they want. When the subcommittee turned them down last week, it told them to try to work out the problem with HEW and the insurance companies.

The vaccine makers have told HEW — which is testing the vaccine and giving the companies specific directions for making, storing and handling it — that they're not interested in signing contracts with HEW unless they get some legal protection. "If the manufacturers don't make the vaccine, then the doctors don't have to worry," said the aide, who would not predict the chances that the companies will get what they want.

The manufacturers, who say they can't get anyone to insure them for the program, are concerned about two court decisions which held the makers of Sabin polio vaccine liable for damages to plaintiffs who didn't receive proper warning about hazards before being inoculated in public clinics. The court ruled the company was liable, even though the plaintiffs didn't show negligence by the manufacturers in the production or handling of the vaccine.

HEW isn't convinced that the manufacturers' liability worries are valid, since the federal government is taking responsibility for a number of tasks that manufacturers or physicians are normally required to perform — such as determining dosages and warning patients about risks. But the department backed up the manufacturers' request for a bill.

Some subcommittee members thought it was a pretty good idea, too. Carter, for instance, said he supported the intent of the bill because, "We're requiring the companies to do this. But there's no doubt in my mind the manufacturers of this vaccine should be liable for its purity and efficacy." Some language written into one version of the bill wouldn't necessarily assure that liability, Carter pointed out.

Others didn't like it at all. "This is a red herring," Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., said, after being told by HEW that even without the bill a company that is successfully sued for damages resulting from a government mistake could turn around and file suit against the government.

"The offensive part of this thing is the insurance companies are walking away from liability that is virtually nil," said Florio.

Carter and others tried to come up with changes in the bill that would meet some of the criticism raised, but new suggestions led to new questions and no agreement.

Congressional aides have adopted a wait-and-see attitude about whether the bill to provide legal protection for health care personnel will meet the same fate.

Meanwhile, one backer of the AMA bill worried last week about the outcome. He said if no bill is passed, some consideration is being given to putting up signs in clinics and hospitals, asking those who come in for swine flu vaccinations to donate a dollar or so to defray the cost of the additional malpractice insurance.

Dallasite files suit over bank

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A Dallas businessman has filed a $1.4 million lawsuit stemming from the takeover of Union State Bank of Carrizo Springs. The suit in 131st District Court here by Charles Gary of Dallas names as defendants Eagle Pass businessman Enrique Salinas and Gross National Bank of San Antonio. Salinas bought Union State in May and Gross National Bank owned by South Texas rancher-banker Clinton Manges, financed part of the purchase, the suit says.

al for another loan. The suit also claims Salinas failed to pay $280,744 owed to Gary and associates for the stock. Gary claims Gross National shouldn't have released the Union State stock to Salinas.

The suit is the latest challenge to Salinas' banking monopoly in Carrizo Springs. On Wednesday, Salinas' attorneys failed to save his Citizens State Bank of Carrizo Springs.

Citizens State was closed June 28 by the Texas Banking Commissioner. Union State is the town's only other bank.

Bank examiners found that Citizens State had written off some $2.8 million in bad loans and that the bank's books were $15,000 out of balance.

Recent examinations, however, have shown Union State to be in good financial condition.

State Banking Commissioner Robert E. Stewart took possession of Citizen State's assets and turned them over to the federal deposit insurance corp. (FDIC).

By Thursday morning, FDIC officials were paying Citizens State depositors up to the $40,000 per individual account limit. An FDIC spokesman said 1,405 bank customers picked up $3,049,656 in checks on Thursday.

Gary's suit arises from a complex sequence of transactions in which Salinas arranged to purchase controlling stock in Union State from Gary and nine other businessmen. The bank had about $7 million in deposits at the time of the agreement.

According to the suit, Gary was trustee for some of the Union State stock, which Salinas then put up as collateral for a loan from Gross National Bank.

Gary claims part of the money from the Gross National loan was to pay him for the stock. Gary claims he never received payment and that Gross went ahead and released the stock to Salinas. Salinas then used the stock for another loan at First National Bank of San Antonio.

Congress cuts GI Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is nearing passage of legislation halting most advance payments to veterans attending school under the GI bill. It is an effort to halt overpayments that have totaled more than $800 million in the past year.

The proposal, which would not take effect until next year, is designed to eliminate all advance payments except in hardship cases.

With 11 months of the past fiscal year tabulated, overpayments in the program totaled $813 million, nearly double the $446 million of the year before. Part of the increase was attributed by Veterans Administration officials to publicity that brought to light numerous unknown overpayments.

At this point, $410 million is owed the government, compared with $60 million uncollected in 1973, according to VA officials.

The overpayments result from veterans dropping out of school or reducing their study load without notifying the VA to cease or reduce payments. The VA says it is recovering 76 percent of all overpayments.

The Bering Strait, barely 40 miles wide, is the Arctic Ocean's only opening into the Pacific Ocean.

Hurricane whims computerized

By GARY GARRISON Associated Press Writer KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The next time a hurricane's howling winds, driving rain and surging storm tides head for the Texas coast, oil company executives will look to a Texas A&I University professor and his computerized hurricane predicting system for guidance. If the system works as it has in the past, the oil companies will be able to shut down their offshore drilling rigs and ferry their crews to safety on the mainland with more certainty.

Pampa ISD board plans PHS meeting

The Board of Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District will meet Monday at 4 p.m. at the Pampa High School library, 111 E. Harvester.

The school board will consider the appointment of an official representative to the joint council of PESO Education Service Center; approval of a crime prevention and drug education program; an appointment change in Title IX; a request for an increase in rentals; and a request for use of Travis Elementary School cafeteria and two classrooms.

An executive session concerning personnel may be called.

Dr. Marcus M. Truitt, chairman of the civil and mechanical engineering department at the South Texas university, has developed a hurricane landfall probabilities system called HULAP.

Research and development of the system has been supported by about $14,000 in grants from the Dow Chemical Co. Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., Trunkline Gas Pipeline Co., Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Co. and the State of Texas.

Last year, when Hurricane Caroline was rambling through the Gulf of Mexico southeast of Brownsville, Dr. Truitt said, the system was able to predict accurately its landfall in northern Mexico despite earlier beliefs that the hurricane might strike South Texas.

Dr. Truitt said the system has proved to be of sufficient value that the four supporting companies rely substantially on the information provided by the system.

"Trunkline has taken the HULAP computer program and incorporated it into its own computer system," Dr. Truitt said.

"During a hurricane threat, Trunkline will run its own program and then check our program to confirm results," he said, adding that the other companies maintain an open line to Texas A&I to keep track of the hurricane.

The system uses the computerized records of 1,000 past storms and their similarities, he said. When a hurricane develops, information about the storm is fed into the computer. These similar storms are then placed at the location of the hurricane being tracked and set at the same heading and then let go," Dr. Truitt explained.

As the past storms run their course on the computer program, mathematical probabilities are determined about the present storm's probable course, he added.

The computer runs, which last about one hour, are run every six hours to keep a running prediction of the storm until it makes landfall, dies out or turns out into the Gulf of Mexico.

While Dr. Truitt is pleased with the program so far, he wants to improve the system's efficiency. "An hour's run is too long a run for a computer program," he explained.

Sometime this summer, HULAP may get more than a dry run as the National Weather Service has noted that the Texas coast, particularly the Houston-Galveston area, is overdue for a severe storm.

Democrats to ask for money on tube

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The television commercial interruptions of the Democratic National Convention next week will include advertisements of the Democrats, by the Democrats, for the Democrats.

The message: Send money. The Democratic National Committee has bought eight television spots, two each on two networks, Monday and Wednesday night.

"We'll have primarily a Democratic audience," S. Lee Kling, the party finance chairman, said in an interview Thursday. "What better time to say to them, 'We'd like you to support us with small contributions.'"

The Democrats have raised money previously by staging telethons, but this will be the first time they've joined soap and deodorants to appeal for the dollar.

The commercials will cost in the neighborhood of $120,000, Kling said, and will star party chairman Robert S. Strauss and others not yet selected.

Officials wanted to have the contributions sent to Box 1976, in keeping with the year, but alas, someone else already has the magic number.

The federal government, through the dollar income-tax checkoff, is picking up the $2-182,000 convention cost. With no convention costs to worry about, the Democrats are concentrating on raising $10 million for the campaign ahead.

The law allows individual contributions of no more than $1,000 to the candidate, but individual donations of up to $20,000 can be made to the party.

"The fat cat this year will really be the person who gives us $20,000," Kling says. The campaigns after the conventions also will be financed by the taxpayer to the tune of $21,820,000 each if the candidate does no fundraising on his own, but the parties can spend money in his behalf.

The Democrats want to help out their man with $3.5 million. Kling says if the $10 million goal is realized, the DNC will spend $2.5 million for voter registration, $1.5 million for a get-out-the-vote campaign and $1 million for training campaign workers, polling and such.

"We will have $2 million for the first time to put into several congressional races," says Kling. "We never really had funds for congressional candidates before."

Judge nixes indictment in rare coin theft case

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A state court judge here has dismissed an indictment against one of three men charged with a theft of rare coins in 1975.

Dist. Court Judge Temple Driver said he dismissed Thursday an indictment naming Barry Donnell and placed the Wichita Falls businessman on non-judicial probation. Donnell had been charged with theft over $10,000.

Driver said the dismissal took place at Driver's home with only Donnell and his lawyer, Elmer H. Parish, present.

The judge said the proceeding occurred at his home because he is recuperating from back surgery and is under doctor's orders not to spend more than an hour or two a day at the courthouse.

The dismissal was recommended by Dist. Atty. Jim Eysen. Driver said Eysen refused to comment.

Donnell was indicted June 26 with James F. LeBus, a former Wichita Falls resident now living in Dallas, and Adam S. Nacol, a Wichita Falls jeweler.

LeBus was billed on one count of theft over $10,000, two counts of burglary of a habitation and one count of burglary of a building. Nacol was charged in one count of theft over $10,000 and one count of theft over $200. Their trial is scheduled for the week of July 26.

The indictments centered around a theft of rare coins from the home of Helen Rust at Possum Kingdom Lake in the spring of 1975.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune & N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: While in church, I saw a woman put a $5 bill in the collection plate and take back $4. Is that considered proper etiquette?

CURIOS

DEAR CURIOS: Why not? God knows she put in five.

DEAR ABBY: This is an old story, but I need any help I can get. I fell in love with a married man. I'm married, too. There was no good reason for this, as I have a very nice husband, but nonetheless it is a fact.

I can't respond to my husband sexually, and it is hurting him. Things seem to be completely out of control. I have tried keeping busy and active, but to no avail. I still wake up at 3 in the morning and toss and turn for hours. Taking an interest in other people is a real challenge. My children are the ones who are suffering most.

It's not necessary to tell me not to see the other man because there is no contact between us now, but I think of him constantly. Also, please don't tell me there must have been something missing in my marriage for this to have happened. I already know that, and it doesn't help.

What I want from your readers is any suggestion that has worked for them.

LOVESICK

DEAR LOVESICK: Lovesickness is a "mental disease." It doesn't respond to logic, and what has worked for one may not work for another. You can't kill love: it has to die by itself.

Talking to a therapist is your best bet. Try it. Also forcing thoughts of "him" out of your mind by replacing them with other thoughts helps. And so does time!

DEAR ABBY: I often eat out with friends who seem to gobble their food down. Unfortunately, I wear dentures and must eat more slowly.

Is it considered bad manners to continue eating after the guests and hostess have finished their meal?

PLAIN DUMB

DEAR PLAIN: Please don't label yourself "dumb" because yours is a very intelligent question. Take all the time you need to enjoy your meal, and don't worry about those who have gobbled down their food hastily. They are lacking in good manners—not you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: From time to time I have read in your column about the dangers of coffee. Recently I heard Walter Cronkite say on the evening news that it had been proved that coffee does not cause heart attacks. He quoted a recent study in a medical journal. What do you have to say about that?

DEAR READER: Everybody makes mistakes, including Walter Cronkite. I had just finished reading the article in the New England Journal of Medicine that you are referring to, and with the facts fresh in my mind I was startled at the way they were presented. The study was done by faculty members from Harvard School of Public Health and it did not conclude that there was no risk of heart attacks from drinking coffee, despite Walter Cronkite's broadcast.

The study was a retrospective study, meaning after the fact, of men who had died from heart attacks. It is a good study, but the authors themselves are careful to point out that their conclusions are limited to men with low or moderate risk of heart disease, not the high risk people walking around. Also, in their own words, "We believe the most logical interpretation of our data to be that the effect of coffee drinking on risk of death from coronary heart disease is of the order of magnitude of a 10 per cent increase." Whoever wrote Cronkite's story must not have gotten to the last page of the article. The coffee article authors go on to say that because of the nature of the data the risk could be from eight to 16 per cent greater for coffee drinkers.

So what can you conclude? Coffee may well be a risk factor, even though a small risk factor, in increasing deaths from heart disease. Most likely the person with a low risk of having a heart attack—the man who keeps his weight down, doesn't smoke, doesn't have high blood pressure or a high cholesterol—or at least these measurements are not excessively high, can drink a moderate amount of coffee without greatly increasing his risk of dying from a heart attack, but it is dead wrong to tell people there is no risk.

In addition, I would like to emphasize that drinking large amounts of coffee increases the tendency to have irregularities of the heart which can be very disagreeable, and coffee can be very irritating to the digestive system of many sensitive people. The study in no way negates the long observed clinical information that people with acid indigestion and colon problems are better off without coffee of any type.

If a person takes tranquilizers for any reason he should not be drinking coffee since its caffeine has just the opposite effects of most tranquilizers and people can develop an agitated or nervous state from excess consumption of coffee. Patients taking tranquilizers for high blood pressure should avoid all caffeine containing drinks including coffee, tea, colas and even chocolate.

To give you more information on coffee I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY: One of my Pet Peeves starts from the fact that I am diabetic and concerns the fact that it is so difficult to buy sugarless soft drinks at refreshment stands and dispensers. I am sure there are many like me as well as weight watchers who find this annoying.

Also, I have always wondered why engineers build bridges with a rail at just the line of vision of the occupant of a car. Often a beautiful view is spoiled. Few such rails seem to be at the right height. —RUTH K.

DEAR POLLY and Beverly: I remove polyester goop from my iron by first heating it, then spread salt on newspapers and rub the iron back and forth on the salt as if ironing. Do this until it is clean and shines. —MRS. J.S.

DEAR POLLY: I can sympathize with Beverly. I thought I had ruined my new iron when it was too hot for a polyester dress and not only made a hole in the dress but left a residue on the iron. Nothing helped until a friend suggested I take a single edge razor blade to scrape it from the cool iron. It lifted right off. After wiping off, it is as good as new. Needless to say I was very happy. —PATTY.

DEAR POLLY: I use a lot of dusting powder and have found that if I lean over my bed while applying this powder the bed always smells fresh and flowery. Nothing to wipe off the floor either. —BARBARA.

DEAR POLLY: To clean the beaters on my mixer I have cut a half inch slit in the end of a rubber spatula and slide the blades of the beater through the slit for easy cleaning. When cleaning messy paint brushes put brushes and paint solvent in a plastic bag, close tightly and knead the bristles. Not so messy. —MARY L.

DEAR POLLY: I use an old toothbrush or vegetable brush for scrubbing dried soap out of my bathroom soap dish. There is enough soap in the brush to scrub the sink and bar soap seems very effective for cleaning soap scum out of sinks and tubs. —NORMA.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Pevee or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

They're making those runs without Darnell

By ANNA BURCHELL

Pampa News Staff
Elmer Darnell of 2201 N. Wells watched a million dollars and more in property go up in flames during his 28 years with the Pampa Fire Department.

"But the saddest of all was the five lives lost when the old Pampa Hospital burned within the past 18 years," he said.

The hospital had been converted to an apartment house.

"The call came in as a routine fire call — but all three fire stations and probably 30 firemen answered," he said.

During his almost three decades with the fire department here, Darnell has seen many families left homeless.

"That's always sad," he said. He began his fireman's career on Sept. 1, 1948 at Central Fire Station when the town had only one station. Since that time, fire fighting procedures have become more sophisticated and complicated — but more effective, he said.

In 1948, Darnell went to work for $180 monthly. Ten firemen were on the payroll.

"That $180 went just about as far as today's salaries," he said. Darnell was a captain when he retired.

The Fire Department honored him with a reception and his entire family, including a son from Bombay, India attended. He was given an engraved wrist watch in appreciation of his service.

Darnell and his family moved to Pampa in 1943 from Leedy, Okla.

"I came out to work at the Air Base here, but never got on," he said. Instead, he worked at the Jones-Everett Machine Shop for five years before he joined the fire department.

He is a native of Oklahoma — Roston.

"But there isn't even a town there now," he said.

He worked 15 years from the MK&T Railroad, beginning when he was 14 years old for 11 cents an hour. When he quit the railroad his salary had climbed to 26½ cents per hour.

"The railroad company is still in business — but there is no railroad where I once worked," he explained.

He and his wife met in Hammon, Okla., in 1937 through mutual friends. They were married in 1938 in Sayre, Okla. They have five children, Darlene Courtney and Mariene Shaw, both of Pampa; Rayna Darnell of Tulsa; Larry Darnell of Dallas, and Geary Darnell of Bombay, India.

Now that Darnell has retired, he says that each time the siren sounds, he may be inclined to run.

He and his wife plan to travel and take time to reminisce through the past years of his life when he worked at two jobs to support his wife and five children.

"But I know I'll miss the firemen," he emphasized.

Chain store's time running out?

By MIKE COCHRAN

Associated Press Writer
WILLS POINT, Tex. (AP) — It was not yet daybreak on May 12, and T. J. Boyd lingered over a second cup of coffee at a downtown cafe before reporting to work.

"I got all the time in the world," Boyd smiled as Jo Munns poured him another cup.

"It was about that time that we heard it," Mrs. Munns recalls. "I never heard anything like that. There was a deep double thud, kind of scary."

She and Boyd looked out the plate glass window and spotted flames shooting from the roof of the Brookshire supermarket, down and across the highway.

"You know what?" Boyd said calmly. "You could have saved my life." He was the store's produce manager.

Someone had rigged twin gasoline drums to a detonating device and propelled them via a stolen pickup truck through the front door of the store.

The explosion splashed flaming gasoline in all directions, engulfing the store in flames. It was leveled almost before firemen could react.

The bombing was the third and most devastating assault on a Brookshire store in less than a month, triggering widespread alarm among the 50 facilities of the Tyler-based food company.

Competitive sabotage? A private vendetta by a disgruntled employee? A shoplifter, angered by his apprehension?

"It could be anything," said Charles Cooper, security chief of the grocery chain. Puffing on a cigarette in his Tyler office, Cooper told a visitor recently:

"At this point it's definitely still a mystery. We have no educated speculation. Federal agents say it's surprising that we haven't had a letter bragging about the incident."

"We thought there might even be an extortion attempt. But nothing. We can find no reason whatsoever behind the incident."

Even as Treasury agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms launched a full-scale probe, company officials stationed guards at their Texas stores.

An apparent failure to turn up clues and leads prompted the company in mid-June to offer an $8,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bomber.

"We feel like the reward is capable of producing something, but it hasn't yet," Cooper sighed. "The Treasury people do have some leads they're pursuing."

Last August, fire heavily damaged the Brookshire store in Terrell, but fire officials attributed the blaze to "an arc in an electrical conduit."

Last April 15, a bomb ripped a 3½-foot gash in a wall at the Wills Point store. On May 9, a bomb was tossed on the roof of the reopened Terrell store, causing minor damage.

And then at 5:38 a.m. May 12 the Wills Point bombing occurred.

The late model pickup used in the latter incident had been stolen the previous night from Dresser Industries in Tyler. With the gasoline drums secured, the vehicle was aimed at the building, placed in gear and sent crashing through the doors.

The timing device adds a serious element to the case, said Wills Point Police Chief Carter Hendley, who believes the bomber was a hired professional.

"If someone had seen the pickup crash into the store and run to check on the driver, he would have been killed," Hendley said. "It could have been a kid, or anybody."

TSTI offering trucking course

Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo will offer an evening course in professional truck operations July 13.

Tuition for the program is $30, with registration set for 6:30 p.m. July 13 in the Adult Continuing Education Office of the Technology Building.

The course will be Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 10. Topics to be covered include laws, rules, regulations, preventive maintenance and preliminary practice driving.

Persons wanting further information may call the Adult Education Department, 335-2316, Ext. 251.

Pamper nails
Metal nail files used regularly may cause a nail to shred. Emery boards are a better idea.

The bombing, he said, stunned this small East Texas town of 3,000.

"We never had anything like this before," he said.

A bigger and better replacement Brookshire store is in the works.

But still whispered through this foggy mystery is the question: will it happen again?

More Americans joining churches, figures show

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Membership is rising again in America's religious bodies. Attendance is steady. Outlays for new buildings are up. Financial contributions are at a peak. But they haven't kept up with inflation.

These are key points from recent compilations of the 1975 statistics on the religious situation in this country.

Over-all, membership in U.S. churches and synagogues began climbing again, after registering slight losses in recent years. It rose by 1 million last year to a total of 132,287,450 or 62.3 per cent of the population. The percentage had been 61.9 per cent the year before, a ratio that had been slipping ever since a 1967 peak of 64.4 per cent, but which now seemed headed back up.

A breakdown shows there are approximately 73 million Protestants, 49 million Roman Catholics, 3 million Eastern Orthodox, 6 million Jews and 1 million others.

Nevertheless, it's still a "period of slow growth" for the churches, says Constant Jaquet, editor of the new Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches 1976, compiled by the National Council of Churches.

The value of new church construction rose to $947 million last year, compared with $814 million the year before — still off from the peak $1.2 billion in 1965.

Attendance held steady with 40 per cent of U.S. adults attending church or synagogue in an average week, according to a Gallup poll. That proportion has remained constant from 1971 through 1975, after edging down from a 1958 peak of 49 per cent, mostly because of a drop in Roman Catholic attendance.

Meanwhile, the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, Inc., reported that giving to religious institutions climbed to a record $11.68 billion in 1975, an increase of 7.6 per cent over the $10.8 billion given the year before.

Individual donations supplied all but a fraction of it. The increase didn't keep pace with the 9.2 per cent inflation last year, but it came at a time of high unemployment and troubled conditions about economic conditions.

The Franco-Monegasque treaty which guaranteed Monaco's independence was signed in 1861.

An investment in Your Future
...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."

The bible, God's word, has often been compared to a light, for it penetrates the darkness and reveals God to man. It is the light that leads man down life's pathway. For those who study it, it reveals not only the past, but also the future.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding..."

Attend church and hear God's leaders expound on His word.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Israeli commandos 'could do it again'

BY FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) —
We could do it again, if it happened again, in a couple of days or a couple of weeks," said Israel's chief of staff in a review of the commando rescue of 102 hostages from Uganda. From the moment the hijacked French jetliner landed at Entebbe airport on June 28, the Israeli military began planning the rescue. Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur told a news conference Thursday.

Plans were considered and rejected. Intelligence sources constantly provided new information. The commandos were assembled on Thursday, and the raid was rehearsed on Friday, apparently on a replica of the Entebbe airport.

Gur said he went before the cabinet Saturday and told it, "This time I'm showing you an implementable plan."

"When we told the troops it was actually going to happen, they couldn't believe their ears," he said.

Gur said he talked to "the four pilots and their navigators," in effect confirming that a fourth plane was used in addition to the three previously reported. A report from Kenya on Thursday said the fourth plane was a flying hospital that waited at Nairobi for the return of the hostages.

Lewd charges change image

DALLAS (AP) — Retired Army Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker says a recent arrest on charges of public lewdness here will result "in at least a change of image."

Court records revealed Thursday show that Walker was arrested June 23 for allegedly making a sexual advance to a plainclothes park patrol officer in the men's room at Dallas Cole Park.

He was released the next day after posting a $200 bond set by Municipal Judge George Martinez. The case will be tried by Judge F. Harold Entz. No trial date has been set.

The charge is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine up to $2,000. It also carries a possible one-year jail term.

Asked about the charges, Walker, 66, said, "I am free, independent and unattached to suit myself and no one else."

Walker, whose ultra-con-him in the center of many controversies, resigned as a major general in 1961.

His resignation came not long after he was relieved of his command of the 24th Division in Germany following complaints that he was indoctrinating his troops in John Birch Society-type doctrine.

Following his resignation, Walker, a 1931 graduate of the servative views have placed U.S. Military Academy, became involved in supporting conservative political candidates and issues.

In the 1962 race for governor of Texas, Walker finished fifth in a field of six candidates.

Although he has been less active politically recently, Walker still makes available to phone callers a tape recorded message with an ultra conservative theme.

Vice empire exposed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A former federal prosecutor and eight other persons have been indicted in an alleged scheme to bring prostitution and gambling to workmen along the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The indictment returned Thursday in U.S. District Court here outlined an alleged conspiracy to set up a multimillion dollar sex and gambling racket with operations near several construction work camps at Valdez, the pipeline's southern terminus.

Among those indicted were Richard L. McVeigh of Anchorage — a former U.S. attorney and one-time state legislator in Alaska — and Alexander Miller of Fairbanks — an executive with Alaskan International Airlines, an ex-Democratic national committeeman and once a legislative assistant to former Alaska Gov. William A. Egan.

The indictment followed a lengthy investigation that began with reports of widespread corruption aimed at tapping the high wages being paid pipeline workers.

The seven-count indictment includes charges of conspiracy, using interstate facilities in the aid of racketeering and interstate transportation of women for the purpose of prostitution.

The San Francisco indictment said several meetings were held here as part of a plan to supply the pipeline workers with prostitutes from Northern California. The proposed venture was supposed to net the defendants from $80,000 a month to $1 million in six months, the indictment said.

An attorney for McVeigh and Miller, William Brockett of San Francisco, said Thursday, "We are going to enter pleas of not guilty because they are not guilty. We're looking forward to a jury trial."

Others named in the indictment were not available for comment. Brockett said McVeigh, 43, had done nothing but help the proprietors of a Valdez bar called the Acres get a liquor license. And two of the co-owners were undercover FBI agents," he said.

Miller made an introduction but did nothing more," he said, declining to be specific.

Also indicted was Charles "The Blade" Tourine, 69, of Miami, also known as Charles White. Testimony before a U.S. Senate committee in 1973 described him as a Cosa Nostra associate since the mid-1940s and linked him with numbers gambling in the New York-New Jersey area.

The indictment said the alleged conspiracy began about January 1974 and continued to the present, and included plans to approach local law enforcement officers to arrange payoffs to avoid interference with the operations.

During the two-year investigation two FBI agents from the San Francisco office infiltrated the group of alleged conspirators and met some of them in Las Vegas, Valdez, Anchorage and San Francisco, authorities said.

More aliens were naturalized in 1944 than at any time, the Census Bureau's "Historical Statistics of the United States" reports. During that World War II year, 442,000 people were naturalized, including naturalizations in U.S.-occupied territories, as compared to 8,000 in 1907.

Ancient kings required that those attending court wear special garb, such as robes of elaborate design and in expensive fabrics, according to the American Formalwear Association.

American Indian tribal councils are responsible for a total of 120 Cub Scout packs, Boy Scout troops and Explorer posts.

Castroville marshal facing 10-year term

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — A state district court jury recommended the maximum 10-year prison sentence Thursday for former Castroville City Marshal Frank Hayes, who was earlier found guilty of aggravated assault in the 1975 shotgun slaying of Richard Morales, 29.

Morales died of a shotgun wound in 1975 while allegedly in Hayes' custody.

Hayes had been charged with murder, but in his charge to the jury Judge Earl Smith said Hayes could be found guilty of murder, murder while committing a felony, aggravated assault or criminally negligent homicide.

The guilty verdict came during the early evening, and the jury elected to continue with the punishment phase.

Hayes took the stand Thursday to testify in his own defense. He said he never intended to kill Morales.

The former law officer gave his version of the incident during testimony, saying the fatal shotgun shooting was accidental and occurred during a struggle.

"He (Morales) started coming closer and I had to push him back with my hand and the shotgun. I pushed him with the butt of the shotgun and possibly with the barrel," Hayes testified. "I absolutely did not punch him with the shotgun."

The 1975 slaying occurred after an arrest warrant was served on Morales by Medina County Sheriff's Deputy Donald McCall.

"I advised McCall to turn him loose and take the handcuffs off," Hayes said. "I never said I would kill him. I've never killed anyone intentionally." The shooting happened at an isolated road shortly after Morales' arrest at his home.

Morales' body was found in a shallow grave on an East Texas farm by a Texas Ranger.

Hayes' testimony came after the defense paraded 30 character witnesses into the courtroom along with other witnesses.

Two doctors from the Air Force's Wilford Hall Hospital in San Antonio testified they treated Hayes for gunshot wounds in 1973, and that he had been taking medication since that time.

Ballesteros, 19, leads British Open with 138

SOUTHPOBT, England (AP) — Although no longer a surprise, the world's best golfers are finding that strange things can happen when they hit a golf ball in Britain.

The type of golf being seen at Royal Birkdale in the 105th British Open this week is not the kind seen in the United States.

The thick, bushy rough that guards every fairway, the deep bunkers, the weird bounces off humpy terrain and the unpredictable breezes make every swing an adventure. Nothing is routine.

It has provided quite a bit of devilish entertainment for record crowds of British fans, and a fairway full of frustration for the golfers.

Only Severiano Ballesteros, a

19-year-old Spaniard, who is one of the top players in Europe, managed to escape most of the pitfalls with a second 69 Thursday for a 138 total and a two-stroke lead over American Johnny Miller after two rounds. Ballesteros did it by hitting the ball to the center of the fairways, then directly to the green.

Just seven other golfers managed to break the two-round par of 144 on the 7,001-yard course that softened to lower scores slightly on the second day as the field of 155 was cut to 82 with a score of 152 the cutoff.

American Hubie Green managed a 142 and Ray Floyd, another American, with a 67, was in at 143.

Pampa earns semifinals

The curvballing Davis walked three and struck out five in his first start of the tourney. Losing pitcher Danny Roberts gave up all 13 runs — eight earned — on 14 hits and three walks. He struck out one.

Pampa scored two runs in the first and three in the fifth, getting five hits in that inning. The hosts added four runs in both the fourth and sixth.

Rick Dougherty doubled twice in the game and drove in three runs. Greg Koch went three for two at the plate with two runs batted in. Also leading Pampa in the 14-hit attack were Jeff Copeland, three for four, and Jim Jeffrey, two for five.

The Panhandle Okies lost to Dumas, 10-1, Wednesday. The loser of tonight's game will be eliminated from the tourney.

THE AUTHORITY OF CHRIST

Just before His ascension, Jesus said, "All authority has been given unto me in heaven and on earth." (Matt. 28:18) By His resurrection from the dead, he had proved himself to be the Son of God. (Rom. 1:4) We should then, be concerned with His law. How can we know what Christ would have us do today or how can we know we are doing that which pleases him? While Jesus was on earth, he selected some men whom he taught. They came to be called apostles. Jesus promised these men that after he had gone away from them, he would send the Holy Spirit to guide them into all truth. (John 16:13) The Spirit would also bring to their remembrance the things he had taught them. This promise was fulfilled. When the Holy Spirit came upon these men, they began to speak in many languages, revealing the things that Jesus taught. (Acts 2) These apostles did not write and teach what THEY thought or what they wanted to say. They revealed the will of God in the very words the Holy Spirit selected for that purpose. (1 Cor. 2:13) By the Holy Spirit, they revealed the gospel of Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. (Rom. 1:16) This gospel is also called the perfect law of liberty. (James 1:25) Peter says the things they revealed provides men with all things that pertain unto life and godliness. (2 Peter 1:3) God speaks to us today through His Son. (Heb. 1:2) The apostles revealed the things Jesus taught or wanted men to know, guided in so doing by the Holy Spirit. These things are called the New Testament. If one wants to know what he must do to please Christ, he must go to the New Testament. There is no other true source of authority on the earth. Man must obey the will of God as it is found there. Since we cannot obey men and please God (Ga. 1:10), we must submit to the authority of Christ as it is revealed to us in the New Testament. Only by abiding in it can one obtain the eternal salvation Jesus came to provide for lost mankind. (Heb. 5:8-9)

Jones notches 16th win for SD

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer Randy Jones has the drop on National League batters. "His sinker falls four to eight inches," says San Diego pitching coach Roger Craig. "It's unlike anyone's I've ever seen in baseball."

Jones' bag of pitching tricks is so complete that even his sinkers have different character. Usually, all you do is wind up beating the ball into the dirt — which is what the Cubs did against the ultra-successful San Diego left-hander Thursday while losing 6-3.

Jones' sinker ball was in such rare form against the Cubs that the Padres only made five outfield putouts all day.

Not incidentally, San Diego's bread-winner captured his 16th victory of the season — a National League record before All-Star competition. He thinks the accomplishment has earned him a start in the inter-league competition next Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

"I think 16 wins is enough work for half a season," Jones said after fashioning his seventh-hitter against the Cubs. "Now I'd like to start the All-Star game."

In the other National League games Thursday night, the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves 5-2 and the Houston Astros tripped the Montreal Expos 7-6. In the American League, the Baltimore Orioles outscored the Oakland A's 9-6; the Boston Red Sox turned back the Minnesota Twins 8-4; the New York Yankees blanked the Chicago White Sox 6-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 5-4 in 13 innings.

Thursday's victory was the fourth straight for Jones and the 11th in his last 12 decisions. He struck out six batters and walked two. He was aided by two balks and one wild pitch by Chicago pitchers, who contributed to two San Diego runs.

The way we were ... and still are

EDITOR'S NOTE—Texans are a singularly unique breed, forged in fires at the Alamo mission, and on a great savannah at San Jacinto 140 years ago. Here is a glimpse of the way we are—not really so different from the way we were:

By STEVE BLOW
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
MARBLE FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A "cedar chopper" is a no-count, shiftless rascal who works sporadically, drinks religiously, fights regularly and worries rarely.

W. C. Bell is a cedar chopper. While the definition of "cedar chopper" is a generic one, Bell would never deny that it is accurate—even if it isn't.

It is a reputation earned over a century of cutting cedar posts by day and raising hell by night. And it's a reputation today's more civilized choppers wear with unspoken pride.

Bell, his wife, three of his five children and anyone else who might need a home at the moment live in a trailer house on the outskirts of Marble Falls in the Texas Hill Country.

He didn't even finish the first grade before joining his father, grandfather and uncles in the cedar brakes near Austin.

His children all quit school before junior high to join their father, uncles and cousins in the cedar brakes.

But Bell, his children and their fellow choppers are facing a problem: previous generations of choppers never thought possible. The once abundant cedars of Central Texas are rapidly disappearing.

People are less concerned with clearing their land these days, and those who do just call in a bulldozer.

The cedar choppers don't worry about the depletion of their livelihood. They wouldn't be cedar choppers if they did.

The only effect Bell's nephew could see of the cedar being gone is "there won't be any more cedar."

Bell's 18-year-old son Dennis (and his most faithful helper) said, "If it's gone, it's gone."

And Bell says, "I just don't worry about it. Like the Good Lord said, 'Let each day provide for itself.'"

Bell has been letting each day provide for itself for 46 years now. He has been chopping cedar fulltime since he was 13 years old.

He has seen the cedar hacking business go from tent cities in the brakes, double bit axes and mule-drawn sleds to today's chain saws and flatbed trucks.

"Cedar chopper" is sometimes used synonymously with "white trash" or "redneck," but that doesn't bother Bell.

"They're just like everybody else. Some of them get a little rough sometimes. But they're all good people—just like everybody else," he says.

"They're the happiest bunch of people in the world. I know I am," he adds. His manner is convincing.

And all those tales about choppers' meanness? "Yeah, they get reckless at times. I'll tell you for sure," he says, fishing his easy, mischievous grin. "I spent a night in jail one time over one stick of cedar."

Bell is a small, wiry guy who looks as gristly as a piece of cheap steak. He moves slow and easy, but it's easy to imagine him fighting like an irate hornet.

The cedar chopper works for a man but himself, and there lies the charm of the business.

He works with a cedar yard operator, who leases the cedar brake from the landowner and buys the posts cut by the choppers. But there is nothing binding the chopper in any way.

Bell and his crew are cutting on the Goodrich Ranch north of Burnet now, the same place he has been cutting cedar off and on ever since he began.

Bell's son Dennis, his 20-year-old daughter and a neighbor make up his three-man crew. They leave home at 5 a.m. every day in his flatbed for the hour drive up to the ranch and the two-hour drive across the ranch's rugged terrain to the cedar brake along the Colorado River.

Bell and his son cut the posts while his daughter and neighbor carry them back to the truck and stack them.

About 1 p.m. they leave the brake for the cedar yard, where the operator pays them a certain price for each post, depending upon its length, diameter and quality.

The average load will bring somewhere between $100 and $150. Bell pays each of his helpers $20.

All payments are made on the spot since there is no commitment that the chopper will ever return to that cedar yard again or the helpers will ever work with that chopper again.

Bell and his crew will be back in Marble Falls by 6 p.m.

His daughter will go home to fix supper for her husband. His son will clean up and go out on the town. Bell will eat a supper of fried fish, watch a little television and fall asleep.

"It's the only work I've ever done that I like," Bell says. "You are your own boss. If you want to sit down and drink a cup of coffee, you can. There's nobody over you telling you what you can and can't do."

"We'd be cutting cedar and take a notion we wanted to pick cotton, so off we went to South Texas. One time we were cutting cedar near Leakey when we took a notion we wanted to go to California, and off we went."

Bell is smiling with the memory. "We picked grapes and vegetables. We lived in one of those—what you call it?—migratory camps."

Even if he never does it again, it clearly brings great satisfaction to Bell to know he could leave for California today "if he took a notion."

And until he takes that notion, life's not so bad anyway. "We eat and we're happy. That's the main thing."

Parents using kids as donors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adult donors to political campaigns can use their children to circumvent legal limits on presidential campaign gifts, the Wall Street Journal said Thursday.

The newspaper conducted a random telephone poll of Democratic and Republican campaign donors and said it found that a few of them are as young as five years old.

There was no indication how many child donors there are.

Parents say the giving is legal because their children's donations come from the youngsters' own money and that the children are asked whether they want to contribute, the newspaper said.

Still, political giving in the name of children could easily become a subterfuge, the Journal said.

Federal law prohibits an individual from giving more than $1,000 per campaign to any one federal candidate. It also prohibits individuals from making donations in the name of another person.

David Fiske, a spokesman for the Federal Election Commission, told the Journal regulations are being drafted to prevent using children to evade donor limits. Fiske said the commission intends to require that gifts by donors under 18 must be made knowingly and voluntarily from a fund owned or controlled by the minor.

Judging from the telephone poll, Democrat Jimmy Carter "appears to have by far the biggest kiddie corps" of donors, the Journal said.

It said Francis Hertzog Jr., identified as an ophthalmologist from Long Beach, Calif., and an old Carter friend, had given the legal limit of $1,000 to Carter more than a year ago. Seven of Hertzog's children also were listed for donations totaling $6,000 more, including $785 from Kate, 5, and another $785 from Lars, 7, the newspaper said.

The paper quoted Hertzog as saying all the children's donations came from trust funds established for them years earlier. "They were all asked whether they wanted to contribute," he was quoted as saying. "It's all the kids' own money, not mine."

The newspaper said Carter's campaign treasurer, R.J. Lipshutz, has six children who have all given money to Carter, "but their father emphasizes that they have given their own money."

On the Republican side, the newspaper said it found that one $1,000 donation to Ronald Reagan came from 16-year-old Joe Bennett of Harlan, Ky.

"What? Me? Political contributions?" the newspaper quoted young Bennett as saying. "You'll have to ask my dad about that. He handles all that stuff for me."

The father, Clyde Bennett, was quoted as saying, "All my family has their own money." The newspaper said that elder Bennett arranged a total of 10 gifts to the Reagan campaign of $1,000 each from his sons, daughters, in-laws and others.

GLIKES NAMED NEW YORK (AP) — Erwin A. Glikos has been named publisher of the Harper & Row trade department.

Glikos has been president and publisher of Basic Books Inc., a Harper & Row subsidiary.
