

Labor endorses Carter for president

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The politically powerful AFL-CIO today endorsed Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and announced a campaign to help send him to the White House in January. The nation's biggest labor organization sat out the 1972 campaign.

A spokesman said the 35-member AFL-CIO Executive Council voted unanimously to back the Democratic ticket. The action stands as the official endorsement of the labor federation without need for approval by the 152-member General Board, the spokesman said. Originally the council was expected only to recommend that the board endorse Carter and his vice presidential running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale. But the spokesman said the council decided instead to make today's action a "flat-out endorsement." AFL-CIO President George Meany indicated earlier that support for Carter would be forthcoming but that he wanted the council to wait until after the Republicans met next month. However, labor sources said council members returning from last week's Democratic convention in New York pressured Meany to act now. "They want to get on the bandwagon," said one source. Some labor delegates at the convention criticized Meany both publicly and privately for his decision to sit out the primary elections this year, following his neutral stance four years ago. Meany skipped the Democratic convention that nominated Carter, but aides said it was personal business, not lack of enthusiasm, that kept him home. With the labor federation solidly behind Carter, it could call on an army of political workers from among 14 million unionists. That alone would represent millions of dollars worth of support. AFL-CIO endorsement of Carter also represents a return of the labor federation to the old coalition of blacks, liberals and the left that helped elect every Democratic president since

Franklin D. Roosevelt. In 1972, labor balked at the Democratic party's nomination of George McGovern and refused to work for the ticket. This caused some painful divisions within labor's ranks and added to the landslide reelection of Richard Nixon. Labor leaders, including Meany, who have been cool to Carter so far, now view him as a winner in November and will give him their all-out support. Carter's choice of Mondale, a favorite of labor, as his running mate is expected to add to their enthusiasm. "I have to believe there will be absolute, unified support for Carter and a very solid labor effort," said a top aide to Meany.

Flier serious after Saturday crash

Crash southwest of Pampa

The motor of this Cessna 177 Cardinal will be impounded by Federal Aviation Agency officials in an effort to determine the cause of a crash, 21 miles southwest of Pampa in which two Hereford pilots were injured. The injured are Joe Gary Davis, 31, formerly of Pampa and Clyde "Davey" Sorrells, also 31. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wheeley of Pampa watched the takeoff and saw the plane gain an altitude of 100 or more feet before it landed in a bar ditch with the tail in the fence. It tore down 75 to 100 feet of fence in the crash. FAA officials said the fence may have served as a buffer to slow down the aircraft before it hit the ground. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Two Hereford pilots, one formerly of Pampa, were seriously injured in a single engine plane crash Saturday afternoon 21 miles southwest of Pampa.

Joe Gary Davis, 31, a native of White Deer and formerly of Pampa, was listed in serious condition this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

His neighbor and friend, Clyde "Davey" Sorrells also 31, was in the Deaf Smith County Hospital in Hereford where his injuries reportedly were not as serious as those of Davis.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said the Cessna 177 four-place plane landed on a farm road just south of FM 2300 and taxied down to Mrs. Hubert Keahey's place where they met Joe Wheeley of Pampa.

Mrs. Wheeley had been visiting the Davises in Hereford and was with the two when they landed. Purpose of their visit here was to collect a sample of triticale grain and have it analyzed in the laboratory of Arrowhead Mills in Hereford.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeley said the pilots stayed but a short time before taking off for Hereford.

"It looked like a normal takeoff," Mrs. Wheeley said this morning. "They took off and turned to the right. They probably gained an altitude of about 100 to 150 feet before the plane came down skidded into a field and went into a bar ditch."

"After the crash my husband and I were there within five seconds. I jumped out of the car with the dust still blowing from the crash. Neither pilot lost consciousness, but both were very dazed," she added.

The crash occurred at 5 p.m. Saturday but the ambulance driver apparently lost directions and it was 6:45 p.m. before the injured were clocked into the emergency room of Highland General Hospital.

"It was one and one-half hours later before they were transferred to Amarillo. It was an ordeal," Mrs. Wheeley said. "It looked like they landed in a bar ditch with the tail in the fence. The ship tore down 75 to 100 feet of fence." Sheriff Jordan said. "No one knows what happened," he added, explaining that both men were licensed pilots. The plane was owned by Davis but was piloted by Sorrells, officials said.

A Federal Aviation Agency official from Lubbock told the Wheeleys this morning that the motor would be impounded in an attempt to determine the cause of the crash.

"It did not appear that the plane's propeller was moving when it hit the ground," the FAA official told the Wheeleys. He added that the fence probably served as a buffer to slow the plane down before it hit the ground — thus preventing more serious injuries.

The sheriff said officers remained with the plane Saturday night and Sunday. It was still at the crash site today.

Mrs. Sorrells said her husband probably will be confined for some time.

"We have a brand new baby — four weeks old," she added.

Mrs. Davis said her husband has now been removed from intensive care to intermediate care.

New clues uncovered in kidnappings

By PETER H. KING
Associated Press Writer
LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Investigators say they have compiled new clues which they believe will lead to the capture of three men who kidnaped 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver.

The 27 escaped unharmed about 28 hours later.

"We have a gut feeling that we are getting closer," Madera

County Sheriff Ed Bates said Sunday.

At the Alameda County sheriff's office, Lt. Ed Volpe said detectives had been given information by a man in Sonora, 65 miles northeast of the kidnap scene, that pinpoints where (the suspects) were on specific dates last year.

And Jack Baugh, criminal division chief for the Alameda sheriff's office, predicted authorities would be able to identify one or more of the abductors today or Tuesday.

"Right now we're optimistic that our investigative leads are developing toward some positive information that we think will take us to a suspect," said Baugh.

But despite "an astronomical amount of physical evidence," Baugh admitted that investigators still had not established a motive. "The only thing we have at this time is a kidnap," he said. "As to whether it was by terrorists or for ransom, I don't know."

The 26 children and their driver, on a homeward-bound run from summer school, were forced at gunpoint from their bus and herded into two small vans near the Madera County town of Chowchilla, a small farming community in the heart of the San Joaquin Valley.

Their captors drove them nearly 100 miles to a gravel quarry near Livermore in Alameda County in the southern San Francisco Bay area and forced them into an underground bunker constructed on an old truck bed. The captives dug their way out Friday night after the three masked men left.

Composite drawings of two suspects and detailed descriptions of all three men believed responsible for the kidnaping were released Sunday along with one complete and one partial license number of the two vans.

While investigators searched for three suspects, Bates would not rule out the possibility "four were involved." He declined to elaborate.

Despite progress, Bates was angered by the FBI's withdrawal from the case Saturday. "Their sudden and unexpected withdrawal in the middle of the investigation left a vacuum that was very difficult to fill and taxed the resources of the state and county and hindered our investigation," Bates said in a telegram Sunday to U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward Levi and President Ford.

The FBI said the case was not in its jurisdiction since no state lines were crossed or a ransom demanded.

Bates received three photographs from Alameda County which Baugh said were of "possible suspects." Baugh believed there was a "good possibility" one of the three was involved in the kidnaping.

Bates held off showing the three photos to any of the children, however, until more photographs of possible suspects from the Chowchilla area could be gathered.

City, county retail sales hit $52 million in quarter

Gross retail sales in Pampa and Gray County for the first quarter of 1976 totaled $52,102,593, according to a computer analysis report released by State Comptroller Bob Bullock in Austin.

The report shows Gray County has 606 sales tax reporting outlets. Gross taxable sales during the first quarter of the year amounted to $39,339,163. Deductions totaled to $21,324,156 along with use tax purchases of $407,958. Total amount of the county's gross sales subject to the state and city sales tax was $18,422,965.

The state comptroller's report was released along with a letter to the City of Pampa containing a check for $22,960,10 representing the July rebate of the one-cent city sales tax collected.

The computer analysis shows neighboring Hutchinson County (Borger) with 486 sales tax outlets and gross taxable sales of $45,787,595. That's $6,314,998 less than gross sales in Gray County for the first quarter of 1976.

Other area cities received July sales tax rebates as follows:

Borger $24,960; Plainview $22,056; Dalhart $6,387; Perryton $7,208; Shamrock $1,229; and Sunnett, $563.

State Comptroller Bullock said the computer analysis on first quarter gross sales in Texas shows the Texas retail economy is growing as fast as a Waller County watermelon.

The analysis shows there was a total of $28.3 billion in gross retail sales in Texas for the three-month period.

That is 13.8 higher than the 24.9 billion in gross sales during the same period of 1975 and a whopping 28.2 per cent higher than the $22.1 billion gross sales in the first quarter of 1974.

Bullock said city sales tax rebates also are running well ahead of 1975. The $158.8 million rebated so far in 1976 is nearly 13 per cent ahead of the $140.6 million rebated during the same period of 1975.

Viking to land on Mars Tuesday

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) —

Scientists "woke up" the unmanned Viking I landing craft today and found everything in working order for the craft's historic descent Tuesday to the face of Mars.

If all goes as planned, the Viking will touch down on the Martian surface at 7:53 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

But because of the 19 minutes required for the craft's radio signals to travel 240 million miles to earth at the speed of light, Viking officials will have no confirmation of the landing until 8:12 a.m.

Prospects for success appeared bright as a test of the craft's cameras and experimental equipment was completed Sunday.

"The test has gone by the book," said a spokesman at Jet Propulsion Laboratory here. "The first look (at the cameras and equipment) went as everyone had expected."

The cameras had not been turned on since last September.

The Viking Lander Biology Equipment, a box about the size of a car battery, is the most important of the experiments aboard the unmanned lander — the box contains miniature laboratories equipped to carry on sophisticated life-searching experiments while on Mars.

Dr. Harold Klein, who heads up the project's biology team, says some scientists think the little box is more complex than the entire mechanisms of some spacecraft.

During the wake-up process, the numerous valves in the biology experiment are shut tight to prevent dust and other materials kicked up during landing from obstructing any of the moving parts.

Scientists were also looking at the final pictures of the landing site, located on a huge slope on the edge of a basin called Chryse Planitia. The Viking team hopes that the area is a deposit basin where fast-flowing rivers may have deposited fine materials from the Martian highlands.

On Earth, such areas are often rich with minerals, such as gold, platinum and diamonds, and scientists have suggested that such minerals will be found on Mars, though they admit the odds are against it.

Not so funny 'FUN'

The conditions of "higher education" in America has long deserved to be parodied. A little more than a decade ago the universities madly recruited students, daily lowering their standards to the point where bestowing a doctorate along with every birth certificate would have been more sensible. As the state universities swelled, taxpayers soon found themselves financing extraneous curricula such as frisbee tossing and flycasting.

At the same time the concept of "open universities," some of it born of the anarchistic theorizings of the New Left, developed. "Alternative" curricula came along, with drop-out professors dilating on the themes of bad political tracts. With the de-intensification of politics in the 1970s, the brave new curricula added things like macramé classes. Then macramé began to earn credit in the regular universities. Then — you know what happened next — a western governor derided the colleges for teaching macramé.

It does deserve to be parodied. Voters increasingly are turning down bond issues requesting more taxes for the community campuses; the city father of New York, finally but reluctantly squaring their budget with reality, began reigning in the venerable city university. It's getting tough for tax-supported schooling, both higher and elementary.

Still there are pockets in the government's overcoat-like budget to sustain the silliness. Take the "University of Man" in Kansas, for example. A part of the "Free University Network," FUN for short, the University of Man offers courses in hitchhiking, how to plant a garden, how to type, and so on. No tuition. No credit. No grades, even.

The hitchhiking class, our favorite, touches on the essentials: how to do it; how to attract people; what to talk about when picked up; the best routes. You can do all that without FUN, of course, but the fun is to collect a 25-cent diploma by doing it though FUN.

Well, why not? Probably a FUN degree is just as meaningful and just as useful as a sheepskin from the state university system, what? We don't mean that lightly: studies have been made showing that university graduates, six months after graduation, retain a small fraction indeed of all the "knowledge" they accumulated in four university years. FUN directly enough brings out the absurdist dimension of it all. The university system deserves to be parodied, yes; but there is not the slightest hint that FUN is an intentional parody. The state masquerade of "higher education" needs to be lampooned, yes; but do they have to do it with out money?

FUN operates on federal grants and endowments from the "Kansas Committee for the Humanities," among other worthies tax-supported.

Judge gives no-strike law a meaningful bite

(San Francisco Chronicle) The public, which took a no-nonsense attitude and was strongly supportive of the city during the 36-day craft workers strike, has every reason to be pleased with the way legal and monetary ramifications of that affair are being thrashed out in the courts and before the Board of Supervisors.

Judge Clayton W. Horn took what would seem the only action possible in the case of five labor organizations and four labor leaders who failed to heed a court order to halt the strike: He simply found them in contempt of court and imposed jail sentences and fines.

These leaders had failed to obey an injunction holding the strike against the city illegal and Judge Horn's measured words on the law are worth pondering: "It is well settled that public employees have no right to strike the government employer. There is no right, constitutional or otherwise, to picket the facilities of the public employer in support of such and illegal strike ...

The supervisors, for their part, have voted to stand firm and keep in effect nearly $5.5 million crafts pay reductions, the issue that triggered the strike. This was certainly an act on behalf of the public, which had shown its backing for such a stand.

These actions, taken both in the quiet of the courtroom and the bustle of the supervisors' chambers, back up a public stance that we want no New York here. This is not an anti-union town; it is, however, against outrageous grabs from the city till. And labor leaders must obey the same law everyone else does.

These are more than straws in the wind. They can be taken as warnings to be considered in the upcoming Muni wage talks, in Alameda County and as far away as Boston. San Francisco is becoming the national symbol of a city that knew where to draw the line.

ONE MORE TO GO GOP race looks like 'squeaker'

By WILLIAM RUSHER

WASHINGTON — Anybody who tells you he knows who the winner of the Republican presidential nomination will be is talking through his hat. This race is a real squeaker — the closest since Eisenhower and Taft slugged it out in Chicago in July, 1952.

Superficially it would seem impossible for the battle to do anything but end, as 1952's did, with a narrow, first-ballot victory for one or the other of the two rivals. With no other plausible contender in sight, the breaking point will probably come late on the first roll-call, when Ford or Reagan accumulates the critical number of votes — 1,130 — and goes over the top.

And yef, the count is so close that 20 or even a dozen well-placed abstentions or "favorite sons" votes on that first ballot might prevent either man from attaining the required absolute majority. And since a large number of both formal and informal voting commitments are traditionally confined to that first ballot, a second ballot is likely to be full of switches and ugly surprises. All in all, quite a horse race!

Bearing in mind, then, the central and currently unresolvable uncertainty, let us note a few sidebar points about which it is possible to be more confident:

(1) The major media will do their biased best to deliver the nomination to Ford. They have no great fondness for him, and if he is indeed nominated they will promptly and happily resume their habit of depicting him as a feeble stumblebum incapable of getting into a helicopter without bumping his head. But the managements of both major news magazines and all three television networks, as well as four out of every five political reporters assigned to cover the convention, are convinced anti-conservatives who detest everything Reagan stands for and dread his ability as a campaigner. Accordingly, what can be done by way of distortion, deception and outright misrepresentation to help Ford defeat him will most assuredly be done.

(2) The vaunted "power of the incumbency" will be used on Ford's behalf to the hilt. In its cruder forms, this is sure to be more effective than anything Reagan can bring to bear in the way of countervailing pressures — if only because threats or promises that can be acted on here and now are obviously more persuasive than pledges of benefits to be conferred in some hypothetical hereafter. Directly beneath that flower, however, lurks the deadliest serpent of them all: the very real danger that Ford or his agents may be caught in the act of wielding the presidential clout in some way delegates consider unfair. Attempts to use such muscle on credentials fights, and the like, therefore, run a grave risk of being fatally counterproductive.

(3) In the very nature of things, Ford's delegate count is bound to be less solid and dependable than Reagan's. Every announced delegate for Reagan has long since crossed his personal Rubicon and declared war on the incumbent president of his own party; few are likely to waffle now, with victory so near. In the Ford camp, however, there are many basically conservative delegates who were chosen when it was supposed that Reagan wouldn't even run, or who declared for Ford after the New Hampshire and Florida primaries when Reagan's goose seemed cooked. It is safe to bet that some of these have already quietly promised the Reagan managers that they will switch if their vote would make the difference. Plenty of others must be toying privately with the same idea.

(4) It didn't take Betty Ford's say-so, the other day, to persuade sophisticated observers that Ford will cheerfully accept Reagan as his running-mate if he even gets the slightest chance to do so. Whether Reagan, who could have had the same spot in 1968, and refused it, would feel different about it this year is perhaps debatable; Ford's attitude on the subject is not.

Intelligence by the numbers

By Don Oakley

An intriguing new element has been added to the old controversy over nature vs. nurture, or heredity vs. environment: Intelligence does not depend upon genetics or race or class or income but rather upon the number of children in a family and how closely or far apart they are spaced in age.

This is the theory of University of Michigan psychologist Robert B. Zajonc, who bases it chiefly on an analysis of the recent steady decline in Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores of high school seniors — a decline which has aroused so much concern and disputation among parents and educators.

Zajonc found that the drop in SAT scores, which began about 12 years ago, was a direct reflection of the baby boom of the 1950s, when people began having more children and having them closer together. Comparisons of birth rates and standard IQ scores in other countries revealed the same phenomenon.

According to Zajonc's theory, a child's rate of mental development is influenced by the amount of adult knowledge available to him and grows more rapidly when parental knowledge is not "diluted" by the presence of other children. For instance, using the figure of 30 as the intellectual level of each adult parent and zero for a new-born child, the mental quotient of the family is a total of 60 divided by three, or 20. But if a second child is born when the first child's level has reached, say, only about eight, the family's mental quotient drops to 17 (68 divided by four).

On the other hand, if a second child is not born until the first has reached near-adult level, the second child will benefit from a richer intellectual environment than an only child has. Zajonc's theory not only explains the decline in SAT scores but differences in the IQ scores of white and black children. The average white family has fewer children and tends to space them farther apart. Black families are more likely to have their children close together, and also more black families are headed by only one parent.

On the same evidence, Jewish children tend to score disproportionately well on intelligence tests because they are not only born from smaller families but ones where both parents are more likely to be present because of a low divorce rate.

The theory has engendered as much controversy as that over SAT scores, if only because it jars a lot of preconceptions and steps on a lot of vested educational and sociological interests. And as Zajonc himself admits, there are all kinds of exceptions, as well as other family values to consider. Benjamin Franklin, who was not exactly a dull boy, was the eighth of 10 children. There is also a certain arbitrariness in assigning each parent an equal intellectual level.

Nevertheless, the birth-rate-test-score evidence remains compelling, and on the basis of it Zajonc predicts that SAT scores will halt their decline by 1980 and begin climbing again as a result of the falling birth rate that began in the early 1960s. Already, tests in some states show that children born in 1963 and who are now in junior high school are scoring better than children from the larger families of the 1950s.

Even if Zajonc's prediction comes true, however, it will not prove the validity of his theory. Just as any number of reasons have been offered for the decline in SATs — from too much television to too much permissiveness, from bad teaching to crowded classrooms — we can be sure that everybody is going to get into the act to explain or take credit for the turnaround in SAT scores, if they do turn around.

"...and in such instances that a family should find itself with but one child, it shall be required that affirmative action be undertaken to correct this implicit sexual imbalance in said family structure by means of natural reproduction, adoption or any other means of procuring the absent balancing member of the opposite sex. Failure to do so shall result in fines and imprisonment not to exceed..."

The placebo of 'House' cleaning

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The major payoff for members of the House of Representatives is in the "perks" — the free airplane rides, hotel rooms, special entertainment, honorariums, inside information on money-making opportunities and a variety of assorted services — all from friendly people who hope the Congressman will vote the right way.

There are no reliable figures available but it is likely from studies I've seen that perhaps a fifth to a fourth of our Representatives take advantage of these extracurricular payoffs. With clear conscience, of course.

There was much talk on Capitol Hill after Watergate of a house cleaning. That talk withered.

The Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) scandal revived the talk with a vengeance. There was enough sex in the story to focus national attention on what Congressmen were doing with tax money. But it appears that this matter may well end, too, with the demotion of Hays, partial emasculating of the Administration Committee and a rechanneling of the route by which expense account funds reach Congressmen. For all the excitement over the Hays-Ray affair, this was peanuts compared with the influence peddling that determines how hundreds of millions, sometimes billions of tax dollars are spent.

There was hope for a time that the combination of Watergate and Hays-Ray might coerce Congress to pass some sort of meaningful bill to make public gifts of value to legislators by lobbyists; and a companion bill to require legislators to report special favors received —

Now it appears that one way or another, both of these bills may be stalled permanently in the House.

Surveys indicate that everyone — almost — is in favor of disclosure.

Then comes a push to introduce amendments which can emasculate disclosure bills past all understanding. It has been customary to describe opposition to lobbying disclosure bills as coming from big business — and only big business. In matter of fact, Ralph Nader's organization, The Public Citizen, the AFL-CIO, as well as the Chamber of Commerce and a myriad of liberal organizations, conservative and middle of the road, pro-business, anti-business and the rest, all have been in the forefront of the fight against full, detailed disclosure of where lobbying funds come from and where they go.

All wave the flag, except where their own organization is concerned. And all have silent cooperation from a wide range of Congressmen.

As one man working to push the law through put it: "It's hard to tell the white hats from the black hats."

"Our only hope is to somehow get these measures on the floor of the House where most members won't dare vote against for fear of what voters might do to them this November."

But the battle is not being fought on the House floor but rather in committee, where the maneuvering is fast and shifty. A seemingly innocuous amendment is offered here and another one there which, in analysis, would gut the proposals. This means more delays for reconsideration and new maneuvering.

The prospect is that the maneuvering will go on until adjournment. Then the fight will be over for this Congress. By next year, the Hays affair will have gathered dust. Members of the House will be peacefully able to pass cosmetic bills to impress their constituents.

Reagan, Ford try to out-woo uncommitted GOP delegates

By The Associated Press
President Ford plans to entertain still-uncommitted delegates at the White House this week, while challenger Ronald Reagan will be digging some post holes for fences at his California ranch and telephoning delegates to the Republican National Convention who still are on the "fence."

The Democratic team, presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and running mate Walter Mondale, relaxed during the weekend. Carter was at his home in Plains, Ga., and Mondale vacationed at a friend's cabin in Minnesota and went fishing.

With four weeks left before the convention in Kansas City, Ford took a day off from delegate-hunting Sunday, attending church in the morning and spending the afternoon on the golf course.

He invited delegations from New York and New Jersey to White House receptions this week as he personalized his efforts to win over the final delegates he needs.

Reagan today started what he said would be a two-week vacation at his 688-acre ranch in the coastal mountains near Santa Barbara.

"I think I've got some more fences to put up. I'll be digging some post holes, generally working around the place," he said after the last 55 of 2,259 delegates to the convention were elected Saturday in Utah and Connecticut.

The selection of delegates to the Aug. 16-19 convention ended Saturday with Ford sweeping all 35 in Connecticut and Reagan taking all 20 in Utah.

With all 2,259 delegates for the convention now selected, The Associated Press count of announced or mandated delegate votes shows 1,066 for Ford and 1,020 for Reagan, with 172 uncommitted and 1 for Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn. It takes 1,130 to win. The AP count does not include those merely leaning toward one or the other.

With Reagan trailing Ford by 46 votes, the nomination is in the hands of the 172 uncommitted delegates, many of whom have met or talked on the telephone with both Reagan and Ford in recent weeks.

The Washington Post reported today that some unnamed "top aides and supporters" of Reagan have said privately that he will be unable to win the GOP presidential nomination.

The newspaper said some of these aides feel Reagan's chances for success were lost 10 days ago when Ford captured a majority of North Dakota's 18 delegates.

However, Michael K. Deaver, the Reagan campaign's chief of staff, denied that North Dakota had been a setback, telling The Associated Press, "I believe we got in North Dakota exactly what we planned for."

Deaver said the campaign staff will prepare a daily memo with a list of uncommitted delegates for Reagan to telephone.

Neither Reagan nor any of his aides would say exactly how they expect to pull off their upset, how they are going to defy the numbers in the delegate count.

"I'm optimistic, but I don't think anyone will really know until the first ballot is counted," Reagan said in an interview on the flight home from Salt Lake City.

But Reagan and his aides listed seven states where they said they have especially good hopes of winning uncommitted delegates: Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

Deaver said he believes the remaining uncommitted delegates are people who find both Ford and Reagan acceptable, and that the issue in their minds is whether Ford or Reagan stands a better chance of beating Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter.

Extended recent interviews by The Associated Press with about one-third of the uncommitted delegates show that issues are generally taking a back seat and that these delegates are trying to figure out which candidate would be more likely to beat Carter in November.

The uncommitted list electability, the opinions of their constituents and what the candidates do during the next month as factors most likely to influence their ultimate choice between Ford and Reagan.

The arithmetic at this point seems definitely in Ford's favor, with the President needing 46 fewer votes than the uncommitted pool than Reagan in order to reach 1,130.

For Reagan to win, he must cut into Ford's Northeast strength, win almost every available uncommitted vote in the South and get the bulk of those who appear to be up for grabs in other states.

Hérons find Dallas home

DALLAS (AP) — A group of swooping, graceful herons, normally at home over a quiet foggy marsh or shimmering lake, have taken on man and his polluting automobiles, towering buildings and fanfare of urban living in a small section of North Dallas.

The long, sleek heron, the little blue heron, the yellow crowned night heron and the snowy egret return each spring to a small tract of woods sitting in one of the most densely developed areas of Dallas.

For 10 years now about 3,000 herons have come to this herony, or rookery, to nest and rear their young. In the early morning and late evening, they can be seen in the tops of the dense cedar, elm, hackberry and cottonwood trees.

Their nearest neighbor is the University of Texas Health Science Center, which continually threatens the rookery with its expansion of buildings, lighted jogging paths, tennis courts and a new road.

Ornithologists who have studied them say the herons apparently like the city life and are willing to put up with considerable discomfort to maintain their high-rise, inner-city neighborhood.

The attitude of the people around them varies. "A lot of people enjoy seeing the birds," says Mike Love, business manager for the nearby Callier Center for Communications Disorders, "and a lot of people would enjoy seeing them go."

Love said the Callier Center maintenance crew daily has to clean up bird droppings from the children's playground.

The herons also leave their mark on the green asphalt UT tennis courts.

Occasionally they are noisy, and if the wind is right and the temperature high, parts of the sprawling medical complex smell like the bottom of a bird cage.

As the UT Science Center, begun in 1971, slowly expands, a number of environmentalists have been concerned the expansion would force the birds away.

"If your community wishes for the birds to remain," Texas A&M Ornithologist Ray C. Telfair II wrote the administration of the health science center, "and, if indeed, it is not already too late because of the incursions made by the building program, I suggest that all activity be stopped near and especially in the rookery and that people and machines be kept away from that area from early spring through the entire breeding season until the birds begin their fall migration."

To be fair, the medical complex should not be looked upon completely as a villain.

Health science center officials did delay construction of an access through the area until late last summer after the birds had hatched their young.

The birds are also protected by the campus security men who keep away youngsters and their BB guns.

"They are the only birds with their own police force," says the center's information director Bob Fenley. He is among those on campus who love the herons. There are blown-up photographs of them all over his office.

Stolen securities recovered

FORT WORTH (AP) — Authorities have recovered an estimated $2 million worth of securities stolen in 1968 from the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Officers from four intelligence agencies took two men into custody Saturday night at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport and seized a briefcase full of the securities. One of the men was later released.

The recovered securities were part of a shipment which disappeared between New York and Chicago in 1968, said Timothy R. James, agent in charge of the Texas attorney general's organized crime division.

Members of the state attorney general's office, the D-FW airport's police intelligence division, and officials of the Tarrant and Dallas Counties specialized crimes units worked on the probe, which they said had been underway for two months.

Authorities said the scheme was part of a highly sophisticated, major organized crime operation extending across the Southeast.

The men, both from Miami, were stopped as they boarded a Miami-bound flight in the Braniff terminal.

David Pimberton, 39, appeared Sunday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Floyd Gray in Fort Worth and was charged with possession of a forged instrument. Bond was set at $100,000 and Pimberton was remanded to the Tarrant County jail.

Authorities said the scheme allegedly operated by the men was part of a highly sophisicated organized crime operation extending across the southeastern United States.

The FBI had been involved in chasing the stolen securities for eight years, James said. He said small numbers of securities started showing up on the market several years after they disappeared.

Securities have been seized in Miami, New York, Cleveland, Los Angeles and Chicago.

Officials said Pimberton was carrying a black briefcase containing 1,385 common stock certificates, each made out for 75 shares.

The certificates, blank when stolen, had been filled out as if authorized, officials said.

They said such certificates would be used for collateral for obtaining money from lending institutions.

AP survey shows Ford leading by 46 votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates list electability, the opinions of their constituents and what the candidates do during the next month as factors most likely to influence their ultimate choice between President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

With all 2,259 delegates for the Kansas city convention now selected, The Associated Press count of announced or mandated delegate votes shows 1,066 for Ford and 1,020 for Reagan, with 172 uncommitted and 1 for Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn. It takes 1,130 to win. The AP count does not include those merely leaning toward one or the other.

The selection of delegates ended Saturday with Ford winning all 35 in Connecticut and Reagan sweeping all 20 in Utah. Between now and the Aug. 16-19 convention, they'll be concentrating on wooing the uncommitted.

Extended recent interviews with about one-third of the uncommitted show that issues are generally taking a back seat and that these delegates are trying to figure out which candidate would be more likely to beat Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter in November.

Edward Byrne, an uncommitted Pennsylvanian, says he's polling Republican committee meetings to help him reach a decision.

"It's split right down the middle," he said. "Truly it surprises me."

Byrne, however, said his decision also "will depend on who I think can win in November. Too many people can put too many feet in their mouths between now and the convention."

H. Davison Osgood, the only uncommitted delegate in Maine, said he "may not reach a decision until some time in Kansas City." He said he's still uncommitted "because every day brings a new development and I'm still watching the whole scenario unfold."

From Missouri, Marlene Zinsel said, "I feel like I want to vote for whomever is the most electable and one of these guys might make a big mistake and blow the whole thing. I just want to wait until all the facts are in."

The arithmetic at this point seems definitely in Ford's favor. Ford needs 46 fewer votes than the uncommitted pool than does Reagan in order to reach 1,130. And there seem to be more delegates likely to tip toward Ford than toward Reagan.

In Pennsylvania, 25 delegates still say they are uncommitted. There are 20 more in New York. Evaluations of party leaders indicate the bulk of those are likely to go to Ford, however, and his campaign already claims 17 of those in Pennsylvania and eight of those from New York.

Hawaii, where 13 delegates say they're uncommitted, also seems likely to deliver 12 of those to Ford, based on past indicators.

For Reagan to win, he must cut into Ford's Northeast strength, win almost all the uncommitted vote in the South and get the bulk of those who appear to be up for grabs in other states.

Airlines asks to add five cities to roster

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Aeronautics Commission begins taking testimony today on a request by Southwest Airlines Co. to extend its air service to five more Texas cities.

TAC examiner John Soule will preside over the hearings, which may last several weeks.

Southwest is now authorized to serve Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and Harlingen. It is seeking permission to fly passengers and cargo to El Paso, Austin, Corpus Christi, Lubbock and Midland-Odessa.

Braniff and Texas International airlines, as well as Fort Worth, oppose the application.

Midland-Odessa, which had filed a motion to dismiss Southwest's application, has withdrawn its opposition, according to a staff spokesman.

The cities' lawyer, Robert Beckman, objected at an April hearing that allowing Southwest to fly into Midland-Odessa could thwart their efforts to hook up with Braniff for direct flights to the east coast.

City Atty. S.G. Johndroe Jr. of Fort Worth reportedly will argue that Southwest, which is based at Dallas Love Field, would undercut the financial stability of the Dallas-Fort Worth regional airport by increasing its Love Field operation.

This, he claims, could force Dallas and Fort Worth property owners to pay a tax to subsidize the regional airport.

He reportedly is preparing for a court appeal if the commission grants the Southwest application.

US leaves millions behind

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thailand, which ordered American military forces to leave, is getting $300 million worth of U.S.-built bases and base improvements for free.

On the eve of the July 20 deadline imposed by Thailand for departure of virtually all U.S. military personnel, Pentagon officials said no attempt has been or will be made to get the Thai government to pay anything for the facilities that will be left behind.

Pentagon officials take the position that the bases were built to support U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and that, as one senior official put it, "We got what we wanted out of them."

Among major capital improvements, the U.S. departure leaves Thailand with a significant port at Sattahip on the Gulf of Thailand and a big airport with an 11,500-foot runway at Utapao.

Another legacy of the U.S. presence is a two-lane, all-weather highway reaching from the Gulf of Thailand into the interior.

In addition to these improvements, the Thais are getting a ready-made U.S.-built communications system to link bases in Thailand. The United States will rent to the Thais about $2 million in related equipment to help operate the system.

The Thais are expected to pay about $45 million for 15,000 tons of U.S. ammunition. There will be no cut-price sale, officials said.

Last fall, the United States quietly gave the Thais 23 military planes and helicopters flown to what were then U.S. bases by fleeing South Vietnamese and Cambodian pilots. Those aircraft were old or of little use to the United States, Pentagon officials said.

But the United States refused Thai demands for 82 other former South Vietnamese and Cambodian planes. And the United States has removed from Thailand about 20,000 tons of bombs and other ammunition and "all the things we could use," a Pentagon official said.

Under the new arrangement, the Thais are permitting the United States to refuel planes at Onne base, Takhlhi, while those planes are en route between the Pacific area and the Indian Ocean region.

Also, the Thais have agreed to furnish the United States information from a seismic station at Chiang Mai in northern Thailand. The United States is training Thai technicians to operate this former U.S. station, which monitors underground nuclear tests in central Russia.

But the Thais rejected U.S. appeals for continued American operation of an intelligence-gathering station at Ramasun in northern Thailand.

"This is an intelligence loss that we can't entirely replace," said a senior Pentagon official. Ramasun was used to electronic spying on radio communications in China and North Vietnam.

The last time the United States used Thailand for a major operation was May 1975 when Marines staged from there the rescue of the crew of the merchant ship Mayaguez, being held by the Cambodian navy.

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee is holding hearings in its quest for an answer to the $150,000 question: Who leaked the House intelligence committee report to the news media?

Congress also will be wrestling this week with a timetable for extending individual tax cuts as it returns to work after a two-week recess for the Fourth of July and Democratic National Convention.

The ethics panel opens two weeks of hearings today on the leaked report, which delved into abuses by U.S. intelligence agencies. CBS newsman Daniel Schorr has admitted he had a copy, which he gave to a New York weekly, The Village Voice, for publication last February.

Committee chairman John J. Flynt Jr., D-Ga., originally asked for $350,000 for the probe, but the House cut his request to $150,000.

The panel hired ex-FBI agents who interviewed 400 witnesses. Schorr, who has been suspended by CBS pending the outcome of the investigation, and other reporters who reported details of the secret report have not been subpoenaed, but could be called later.

Members of the disbanded intelligence committee, its staff and aides are expected to testify, some under subpoena.

Flynt told reporters recently that investigators do not know who leaked the report and the hearings may not provide an answer.

The House, heeding a request from President Ford, voted in January to keep the report secret. It included details on Navy spying on Soviet missile tests and information on CIA support for factions in Angola, for Italian politicians and for Kurdish rebels in Iraq.

The Senate votes Tuesday on whether last year's $15 billion individual tax cuts should be extended for 12 or 15 months. Congress already has extended the tax cut through Sept. 1.

The vote is on an amendment by Budget Committee Chairman Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, to extend the full tax cut through Sept. 30, 1977.

Muskie says when Congress approved a $13.6 billion spending limit for the fiscal year ending on that date, it committed itself to extending the tax cut for that full period. But the bill before the Senate would only extend part of the cut through June 30, 1977, on grounds the next president should decide whether to extend it longer.

The tax cut saves a single person earning $10,000 a year some $151 in taxes; a married couple earning $10,000 saves $204. For a family of four earning $15,000 it is worth $180, and for a family of four earning $6,000, the cut saves $445.

The Senate also takes up this week a proposed "Watergate Reorganization and Reform Act." It would create a special Justice department division to deal with official abuses like those that occurred during the administration of former President Richard M. Nixon.

The House also plans to act this week on a bill to extend federal-state unemployment compensation to 8.9 million workers, leaving uncovered only about one million persons, most of them farm workers.

The House also will consider a Senate-passed "sunshine" bill requiring federal agency meetings to be public unless they deal with topics such as national security and personnel matters.

Auto Workers, GM meet over list of demands

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, armed with a list of demands that begins with job security, met with General Motors today to kick off the 1976 contract talks with the nation's auto industry.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock and GM's top negotiator, Vice President George B. Morris Jr., reached across the bargaining table at GM headquarters to shake hands while nearly 100 other union and company bargainers looked on.

After a brief picture-taking session, negotiators began a closed meeting.

Meanwhile, several hundred UAW members, most of them retirees from Flint, Mich., locals, demonstrated outside, demanding cost of living increases for pensions and a 32-hour work week for 40 hours' pay.

The UAW opens its triennial negotiations with other car makers later this week as it begins the task of reaching new three-year accords covering 600,000 U.S. and Canadian workers.

The talks — replacing current pacts which expire in mid-September — will affect more workers than any other industry agreements still to be negotiated this year.

Meetings similar to today's will be held Tuesday at Ford Motor Co., Wednesday at Chrysler Corp. and Thursday at American Motors Corp.

The start of formal talks this year has been preceded by un-sally optimistic predictions from both sides that peaceful settlements can be reached without a national strike for the first time since 1964.

The issue of jobs — how to create them and preserve them — is the union's chief demand this year as it seeks to provide workers better protection from another disastrous industry slump.

More than 200,000 workers were left jobless in 1974 and 1975, when the energy crisis and subsequent recession sent Detroit tumbling into its worst downturn since the 1930s.

The industry has staged a strong recovery this year, however. Car sales are strong, profits have returned to near record levels and indefinite layoffs have declined to less than 30,000.

And both the UAW and the companies forecast continued health through 1980, an outlook which both sides say should promote a spirit of harmony and cooperation at the bargaining table.

The UAW will seek increased job security with demands for a reduction in working time without a cut in pay to create more jobs. It has not made any specific proposals yet. Some militant unionists have called for a 32-hour, four-day week, but union leaders say that goal is unattainable this year.

The industry's chief demand is for a restructuring of health care benefits — now paid by the companies — to ease skyrocketing cost increases. The makers hint they would like to

A tempting offer on a gas grill.

Right now, we're making you a tempting offer on gas grills with twin burners! Independently controlled twin burners never use more gas than you need. For big meals, use both burners. For smaller meals, save gas and money by using one burner and half the grill. A gas grill adds a new dimension to family meals and entertaining. It eliminates the fuss and bother of cooking outside while it keeps the flavor and the fun. And, because you take cooking heat out of the house and the burden off your air conditioning, you save energy, too.

Buy one of these grills before August 1, 1976, and save.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I married a divorced man whose sons came to live with us because their "real" mother thought they would be better off with their father. (They were then 11 and 13.)

I love these boys and think they feel some affection for me, yet on Mother's Day they always remember their biological mother with flowers, and I don't even get a card.

In six years I've done a ton of laundry, mended their clothes, cooked for them, shopped for them and spent hundreds of hours chauffeuring them around. I've nursed them when they were sick and listened to their troubles. I lectured them about sex and drugs, instilling in them decent moral values. I couldn't have done more had they been my biological children.

Their "real" mother has had very little time for them. She never took them on a trip or asked them to spend a holiday with her. (She phones occasionally and makes plans to be with them, but if something better comes along, she cancels.)

I think stepmothers deserve a little recognition on Mother's Day. Just because we didn't bear the children doesn't mean we don't feel like "real" mothers. It would be a kindness to all stepmothers if you would print this.

HURT ON MOTHER'S DAY

DEAR HURT: I have long held the view that giving birth to a child doesn't make a woman a mother any more than owning a piano makes a person a musician. But the woman who takes a child into her home because she wants to and raises that child with love and understanding is, in every sense of the word, a "real" mother.

DEAR ABBY: I have a severe hearing loss. Six years ago I bought a hearing aid and experimented with it for a long time. I finally gave it up because it magnified background noises I had not heard for years and was more annoying than not hearing at all.

My family criticized me for not wearing my hearing aid, but I've trained myself to read lips and find it much more to my liking.

I do miss a lot at social gatherings as I can listen to only one person at a time, but I've learned to live with that, too. Sometimes I feel that I'm better off if I don't hear everything that goes on.

DOING ALL RIGHT

DEAR DOING: Hooray for you! Not everyone who has a hearing loss feels severely handicapped.

DEAR ABBY: We are a young couple expecting our first child in two weeks. Our best friends had their first child (a boy) and they named him the very name we had chosen for our baby! We know they got the idea from us because when we told them the name we liked for a boy, they both agreed it was a great name.

We felt obvious resentment when we found out they used our name.

Our question: The other couple will probably feel obvious resentment now if we name ours what we had planned to, but would we be showing poor taste toward our friends in doing so?

NAMELESS IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NAMELESS: Go ahead and use the name you like. Surely the world is big enough for two boys with the same name. And there's always the chance that yours will be a girl.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband has high blood pressure. He takes medicine for it, which necessitates the intake of extra potassium. He gets this through medicine, oranges and bananas. He seems content with this arrangement, but I keep wondering if it is really necessary to continue this way the rest of his life. Is there no way to bring down blood pressure? And as long as he continues to take medicine how can they know if his blood pressure is still high without it? He is 37 years old, 5 feet 6, and weighs 182 to 190 pounds. Also are there other ways of getting potassium than a banana a day? He hates them!

DEAR READER: You didn't say how high your husband's blood pressure really is. Usually it is necessary for a person who really needs medicine to keep the blood pressure down to continue to take it. The exception would be the person who alters his life style in some manner, such as weight reduction, that helps solve the blood pressure problem.

I suspect your husband could help lower his blood pressure. Unless he is very muscular he is far too heavy. I have always been impressed with what adequate weight reduction can do to lower high blood pressure in many people. I would think your husband may be 40 to 50 pounds overweight, maybe more. He might not need to take so much medicine, or the potassium because of the medicine, if the basic weight problem were under control. Anyone who has any evidence of fat deposits around the waist or small of the back and also has high blood pressure should lose weight until he is really lean, regardless of how many pounds that means he has to lose.

I am sending you The

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY: When any of my towels start to get thin in the center, but are still good otherwise, I cut them into napkin size pieces to use when on a picnic or having a cookout. They wash easily and when dampened are ideal for finger style eating. Very handy around the barbecue, too. —D.A.R.

DEAR POLLY: Perhaps other new mothers have discovered that diaper liners are great but expensive. I cut them in half and then have two boxes for the price of one.

Also, I fold cloth diapers together into squares and sew them together to make great "burp" pads. They are also wonderful to use under baby when changing diapers, wiping chins and spills or for dusting and even waxing the car. —LINDA L.

DEAR POLLY: I cut the tops off of old socks and crochet around the edges and use these pieces to make blankets. I use odd colors of yarn I happen to have. —KAY.

Fall fashion look-- layered, tailored, individual

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The fashion route Seventh Avenue has mapped out for fall '76, goes in basically three directions:

(1) layered, in a country manner;

(2) man-tailored (3) and so far removed from reality your friends and relatives will exchange concerned looks about you when you don the creations.

First, on the morning you decide you want a "shall we lunch at the inn?" look, plan on getting up an hour earlier. There's a lot to get into.

Start with a cowl-neck sweater. Not a conservative, mildly cowed neck, mind you — a COWL neck.

Now, before you tuck the sweater inside a wrapped turtan kilt or a straight or dirndl plaid skirt, button a shirt over it.

Next comes a weskit, or perhaps a tabard or tunic, even a bolero in a matching plaid or one that's complementary.

Before we continue, if you've a taste for luxury, you'll be pleased to know the sweater probably will be cashmere, the shirt silk and the vest or tabard suede. (Colors include lots of soft neutrals as well as brights.)

All right, now you've got on the sweater, shirt, skirt, vest... just a second. If you don't want to wear a skirt, you can just as well pull on a pair of knickers. That's right, knickers, or jodhpurs, or a pair of gaucho pants.

Don't worry about your hose, no matter what your bottom choice is. Kneesocks are on the march, hand in hand, so to speak, with flats, short boots and those stacked walking shoes with the little fringed tongue.

Okay, we had on the sweater, shirt, skirt or pants, and the vest, so we're ready for the blazer, the hunting or hacking jacket.

Where are you going? You're not ready to leave just yet.

Take the cowl neck sweater and slip the neckline up over your head like a hood. (From the back, of course. If you pull it up from the front, you won't be able to see.) On top of that, you're going to plant a little beret or peaked sporting cap.

If you like you can put the beret or cap on first and then pull the sweater over it. It doesn't matter which; the important thing is to achieve a sheltered, turtle appearance.

There's just one more item to go and then you're set. Over all these plateaus and layers of material, you are now going to fling a blanket, solid or plaid, possibly fringed. If it has a hood, and some do, then you may have to forego the beret lest your head become too heavy. But you can get a note from your doctor explaining the deletion.

There are, of course, other outerwear options: ponchos, duffel coats, lumberjackets and shawls. Almost all are hooded, except, of course, the shawls.

In any case, if it's still daylight, toss a scarf around what's left of your neck and have a friend propel you to the door.

Is it classic, no-nonsense tailoring you'll be wanting the next day? Well, sleep a little later, it won't require as much work.

Pick a pair of waist-pleated trousers or a straight skirt, pin-striped, tweed or solid, with matching vest or argyle sweater-vest and shrug a single or double breasted blazer on top.

Put a flower in your lapel, an ascot that matches your shirt around your neck, or one of your husband's ties, and then beat the guy next door to a seat on the bus. If you want to make sure he doesn't give you any trouble, pull an Al Capone hat over your eyes and hang a long, slim coat on your shoulders and watch the waves part for you.

Now we come to what Seventh Avenue refers to as fantasy dressing. Actually, it's more a case of couturiers stepping onto the boards trod by costume designers.

How about going to the PTA meeting in a medieval monk's outfit? Long black skirt, blouse and tabard, a flat brimmed hat with knitted covering for the throat, and a long-chained cross around your neck. You'll have to carry a candle as you go — at least that's what the models we saw did — so make some accommodation for dripping wax.

Perhaps you're more inclined to the Slavic look. The kind of thing Latvian potato peasants would wear if they had the money. Satin bouffant skirts and blouses in vivid patterns, topped with boleros and babushkas, and finished with black Cossack boots.

But if you really want to turn heads, turn up in a pair of Turkish pantaloons in shocking pink or green, paired with a see-through, embroidered black top.

Don't worry about shoes with this last getup. You go barefoot.

And chances are you won't go too far.

MASCULINE LOOK and layering combine in two Calvin Klein combos for fall and winter. At left model wears winter white flannel sport jacket, white cable knit vest, camel check shirt and camel herringbone trousers topped with a herringbone coat. At right outfit consists of whiskey alpaca reefer, camel herringbone trousers, white cashmere cardigan vest and camel check shirt.

CLASSIC day-to-evening outfit appears in the guise of a slim, dark, textured coat dress. Designed by Shannon Rodgers for Jerry Silverman with self belt and matching hat.

COMPLETE peasant look is interpreted for Jerry Silverman for fall. It is done in Italian rayon-crepe de chine border print with rope belt and matching scarf in green-yellow-brown.

Homemaker news

By ELAINE HOUSTON, County Extension Agent

Drying Foods Still Good Home Preservation Technique

Consumer interest in home food preservation by drying is reviving due to the cost of other preservation methods and a previous shortage of jar lids. Basically, drying preserves food by removing sufficient moisture to prevent decay, since moisture is necessary for bacterial growth.

Drying causes some nutritional changes. Although bulk and energy are not affected, there is some mineral and vitamin loss.

Foods that can be dried include most fruits and vegetables and some meats and fish.

In hot climates, foods can be sun-dried sufficiently for preservation in a few days. In any climate, however, satisfactory drying conditions can be created at a moderate cost by using artificial heat and circulating air over the food.

Some special equipment is needed for home drying of food. To dry in a kitchen oven, items needed are drying trays, an oven thermometer and a small fan. Or, a portable food dehydrator may be used.

Most foods are dried at about 140 degrees F. in an oven or portable dehydrator.

For sun drying, trays and cheesecloth are needed. For sun drying, temperatures of over 98 degrees F. and relatively low humidity are needed.

Since drying does not improve the quality of foods, only top quality foods should be used. Vegetables in prime condition should be selected and prepared for drying on the day they are harvested. Only fully-ripe fruits should be used. If fruit is not suitable for eating fresh, it is not suitable for drying.

All foods need some preparation or pretreatment before drying.

Vegetables may be blanched with hot water or steam. This inactivates enzymes in the food that otherwise would cause deterioration of color and flavor during drying and storage.

Blanching causes some loss of nutrients though leaching. To keep leaching at a minimum, blanch only as long as required.

However, underblanching will not inactivate enzymes, and the dried food will be of inferior quality. Prepare only the amount of food that can be dried at one time.

Although fruits may be blanched before drying, sulfuring effectively maintains the quality and nutrients of the food during drying and storage. However, oven drying is not preferred for sulphured fruits because of the objectionable odor of the sulphur fumes. Sulphuring should be done outdoors away from close contact with plants, trees and shrubs.

Fruits and vegetables are dried, packaged and stored in a similar manner. Fruits and vegetable pieces are distributed on trays in single layers. The total amount of food being dried at one time with artificial heat should not exceed that recommended by reliable instructions.

Do not use galvanized screen on drying trays. There is an acid reaction that darkens food and may cause a dangerous reaction. Also do not use fiberglass, vinyl or copper screening. Wood slates are excellent. They may be covered with cheesecloth.

Drying times vary according to the types of food, size of pieces and load on the tray. While tables giving approximate drying times can serve as a guide to judge proper dryness, experience is usually the best teacher. Some foods should be dried to the brittle stage, while others should be pliable or leathery.

Dried foods should be packaged as soon as they are cool in dry, sealed, insect and rodent-proof containers. Dehydrated foods are free from insect infestation when removed from the dehydrator or oven.

However, despite precautions, sun-dried foods may be contaminated and should be packaged and placed in the home freezer for 48 hours to kill any possible insects or their eggs.

Motive mystery but methods planned

By PETER H. KING
Associated Press Writer
CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — The motive is still a mystery. But the methods used by three silent, masked men who kidnaped 26 children and their bus driver make one thing clear — it was a crime planned out to the fullest, months in advance.

town where everyone seems to know everyone else, and then frustrate extensive search efforts by FBI, state and local law officers for more than 24 hours, testifies to their thorough preparation.

When the plan was hatched is unknown. As far back as November 1975, however, one of the suspects is known to have bought three government surplus vans, one of which authorities have traced to the kidnaping. He paid with cash.

Two of the three he bought were never registered. The other was registered two days before the crime in Los Gatos, near San Jose. Because of that, investigators said they had to search for records of the van by hand since the information hadn't been filed in the Department of Motor Vehicles computer.

The name and San Jose address the van was registered under turned out to be phony, according to Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates.

The vans were well equipped for a flight from the scene of the crime. They carried: —CB radios, ideal for monitoring police activity, but made even more useful by the gabby "CB volunteers" who blasted out from Chowchilla nearly every tidbit of information known about the investigation.

—Painted windows, so no one could see out — or in — and a tent-like tarp made the roundabout route to the gravel pits 100 miles away a mystery to those inside.

—A good supply of extra gasoline which kept the kidnapers from having to pull into a service station and taking the risk of an attendant being tipped off.

California Highway Patrolmen had quickly alerted gas stations on the major routes in the San Joaquin Valley about the kidnaping and had told them to report any suspicious looking vans.

The nearby creekbed where the bus was taken made an ideal hiding spot. Authorities said they could not see the bus at all from the road during daylight hours. It took a hastily organized air search to spot the big yellow bus in a thicket — and just before dark.
