

Snipers fire on non-cooperating truckers

By United Press International

Snipers preyed on nonstriking truckers today in the first nationwide teamsters strike in history. Negotiators gave up trying to end a strike at NBC television studios and a labor leader threatened to shut down San Francisco's waterfront and airport.

A flurry of walkouts from coast to coast affected a variety of things, from beer and bread to soap operas and buses.

The disputes — most of them primarily concerned with money — involved some 400,000 truckers, thousands of San Francisco's city workers, NBC-TV technicians and news writers, drivers who haul Anheuser-Busch beer and western truck mechanics.

New violence including gunfire broke out on highways in Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and California. Three trucks were hit by gunfire in Toledo, Ohio, in the worst outbreak, and one driver there was injured by flying glass when a bullet from a highpowered rifle smashed a window in his truck.

John F. Crowley, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO San Francisco Labor Council, said unless "meaningful negotiations" get under way to solve the three-day strike of city workers, pickets will begin marching at both the airport and the waterfront.

At San Diego, negotiators for both NBC and its striking employees packed up and went home today because talks had broken down. The network reported sabotage did $156,000 damage. The union denied strikers did it.

NBC was forced to rerun Tuesday's episode of the soap opera "Another World" on Wednesday because supervisors manning the operation "couldn't find" the Wednesday episode, a spokesman said.

More than 1,700 technicians and news writers — members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians — went on strike against the NBC Television Network. NBC continued operations with management personnel.

San Francisco city workers began picketing the public hospitals and tying up the transit system and other city facilities Thursday. Under a "gentlemen's understanding,"

Mayor George Moscone said enough workers were remaining at the city's hospitals to continue essential care of patients. Police and firemen remained on duty. The city water and sewage systems operated under emergency conditions. The walkout entered its third day today.

At Tampa, Fla., officials of the strikebound Anheuser-Busch brewery offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of persons who in two separate incidents shot at trucks hauling beer for the firm. Teamsters have been on strike at Anheuser-Busch plants across the nation.

A strike by some 400,000 other Teamsters — the first nationwide walkout by the union — entered its second day and already has been marked by gunfire and violence.

Two independent truckers reported they were fired upon in Ohio and truck drivers in Michigan and Indiana also said they were shot at but no one was injured. Rocks and debris were showered upon trucks still moving from overpasses in Michigan and Ohio.

Another trucker told police he was beaten by picketers at a loading dock in Detroit and two others were injured in a strike-triggered fistfight near Cincinnati.

Negotiators aimed at ending the walkout recessed early this morning and were to resume at 11 a.m. EST today.

The Transportation Department estimates a strike of any duration could idle a million workers and cost $300 million a week.

Some Teamsters continued work under interim agreements and Chicago Teamsters also remained on their jobs.

But truckers not on strike in the West could have trouble keeping their trucks rolling.

Some 3,000 truck mechanics went on strike in 13 Western states. The mechanics, represented by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, charged trucking firm employers had refused to bargain with them.

Marvin Kelso, a union business representative in Portland, Ore., said the dispute was over wages and other issues, including work rules.

The only striking truckers who could be found today in Pampa are three Teamster-member employees of Lee Way Motor Freight Inc.

Doyle Keeton, whose turn it was to carry the sign, said that "two drivers and an office girl" are on strike at Lee Way.

Keeton said that the three are the only Pampana members of the Teamsters. Their local is 577 in Amarillo, he said.

Bob Lemke, terminal manager at Lee Way, said the strike "won't make a great effect until Tuesday or Wednesday of next week."

By that time, he said, local big shippers, like Cabot and Celanese and others "who ship in truck load lots," may begin to feel effects of the strike.

For the city's average consumer, the strike will have little effect, Lemke predicted.

Claude Bigham, agent for Beaver Express, was asked if the strike has hurt his company's business.

"So far it hasn't," he said. "The only place it has affected us now is in Houston, but that's a wildcat strike. It doesn't look like the strike will affect us at the present time."

Troy Dunn, terminal manager for Merchant's Fast Motor Lines, said "It's going to hurt us on anything in or out of Texas. Shipments within the state won't hurt us."

Dunn said that Merchant's has eight drivers and all of them are working.

One local independent trucker, who preferred not to be named, said that if the strike continues for a long period of time, "later on there may be some independent runners in an out of the state."

The trucker said that "independents say they won't shut down for the Teamsters because the Teamsters wouldn't shut down for them."

The strike apparently will have little effect on oilfield trucking or on cattle hauling. Floyd Organ, dispatcher for E.M. Keller and Co. Inc., a firm that specializes in oil field, heavy hauling and machinery moving, said that "We're going to run our business like we always have."

He said that in a previous trucker strike — "When was that, about three years ago?" — Keller truck drivers were encouraged "to stay away from the big truck stops. We didn't have any trouble in that one," Organ said and he indicated he expected no trouble from this strike.

Butch Reynolds with Agri-Trucking Inc. said, "I don't look for the strike to have any effect on any independents," and he emphasized the fact that most local trucking is of an independent nature.

Pampa polls ready, waiting

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Pampa will be the scene of two school elections and one municipal election Saturday as voters go to the polls to pick three trustees for the Pampa Independent District school board, two Gray County School trustees and two city commissioners.

Greatest interest has centered on contests for three vacancies on the Pampa school board. One full 3-year term is to be filled and two unexpired terms are at stake.

Curt Beck, current president of the board seeking re-election to the 3-year term, is opposed by Foster Whaley, who retired recently as Gray County farm agent. Beck and Whaley are candidates in Place 5.

Mahunta Hills, the only women candidate, and O.F. Epperson, are contesting for the Place 7 unexpired term of Sam Anderson who resigned last November. Alfred J. Smith and Neal Stovall are candidates for the Place 4 vacancy left open by the resignation of Harold Comer who stepped down to run for district attorney.

Two vacancies are to be filled on the Gray County school board. W.A. Rankin is unopposed for re-election in Pct. 2 and Marvin M. Finney and C. Bailey Haney, current board member, face each other in the race for member-at-large.

Both school elections will be conducted Saturday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the Pampa High School Music Bldg.

Pampa's city election to name two commissioners will be conducted in four voting places.

Ward 2 commissioner Joe Curtis and Ward 4 commissioner Linden Shepherd are unopposed on the ballot.

The balloting will be city-wide in Ward 1, at City Hall; Ward 2, north fire station on E. 17th St.; Ward 3 at the Optimists Boys Club, 601 E. Craven and Ward 4, south fire station.

Voting places in the city election also will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

School officials were expecting an unusually heavy vote as the result of what has been active campaigning in all three of the school district races.

Another indication of a heavy school vote Saturday was seen in the 204 absentee ballots cast in the district races and 195 absentees in the county elections. On the other hand, there seemed to be very little interest in the municipal election where only 21 absentee ballots were cast. Reason for the apathy is due to the fact there are no contests on the city ballot.

As a result of that circumstance, election officials say a situation arises where there will be four voting places in various sections of the city to accommodate a total of probably less than 200 voters and just one voting place for perhaps 3,000 or more in the district and county school elections.

Meanwhile, President Ford asked the Advertising Council's help to convince 214 million Americans "they ought to get a shot in the arm."

While unprecedented in scope, the mass vaccination campaign has received widespread political and medical support during Congressional hearings this week.

Questions have been raised, however, about possible side effects, such as fever or convulsions, for children under 5; legal liability or possible anti-trust issues involving drug companies making the vaccine, and adequacy of funds for individual states.

The government's Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., is hosting a meeting of state health officers today to discuss such problems. The issues have been submerged by the bipartisan political support. Doctor organizations have promised to urge members to donate their services, and most Americans can expect to receive the single shot vaccinations free of charge.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Thursday proposed combining the flu shots with other vaccinations for children against measles and rubella, but health officials said it might be too risky.

Factions begin 10-day truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Warring militiamen cautiously put aside their guns today and a 10-day truce in the civil war took hold throughout Lebanon. But occasional shots and the lack of any authority on the streets kept weary citizens from any general celebration.

Scattered sniper shots and an occasional mortar shell marred the start of the 27th cease-fire in the 11-month-long conflict between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christians that claimed nearly 15,000 lives and left 33,000 wounded.

Gunmen stood their ground on all fronts, peeping cautiously from sandbagged emplacements in Beirut streets or from mountain vantage posts in the countryside. The worst violation was around Beirut port where both sides swapped machine gun and rocket fire and a building in right-wing territory burst into flames.

A wave of kidnappings added to the tension and Beirut remained generally deserted. With the nation's police force dispersed, and gunmen roaming the streets at will, citizens stayed indoors to see how the truce would develop. The start of truce brought temporary peace to a war-weary nation and real prospects for a final settlement between warring Christians and Moslems.

Leftist Moslems agreed to the temporary cease-fire Thursday to allow parliament time to select a successor to Franjeh, a Christian, and meet demands for a realignment of political power between the two religious communities.

The truce is the 27th since last April. Nearly 15,000 persons have died in 11 months of civil war. Clashes in Beirut Thursday

Unemployment rate continues to decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate continued its steady decline in March — dropping slightly to 7.5 per cent — while the total number of persons who held jobs hit an all-time high of 86.7 million, the Labor Department reported today.

The March drop of 0.1 per cent capped a steady five-month decline from 8.6 per cent last October — the longest sustained drop since 1962. It also brought unemployment to its lowest level in more than a year.

But the overall improvement of 1.4 per cent since the recession peak last May appeared weaker than in most previous economic recoveries.

A Bureau of Labor Statistics economist noted that while the recent 10-month decline was more dramatic than the recovery period in 1971, it compared unfavorably to economic recoveries in 1961, 1958 and 1954.

This rapid plunge prompted President Ford's economic advisers to predict that unemployment will dip below 7 per cent by the end of this year.

A total 7 million persons were added to factory payrolls in March, most of them in transportation and electrical equipment. Employment also increased in retail trade and government.

Since the March, 1975, recession low, employment has risen by 2.6 million persons — or 400,000 more than it dropped during the recession.

Unemployment also continued to decline among manufacturing workers and Vietnam veterans. Some 75,000 persons were added to factory payrolls in March, most of them in transportation and electrical equipment. Employment also increased in retail trade and government.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all be possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Amazing studies dept.

Somewhere in this wide and wondrously antic world of ours there must be a group of scholars whose principal (and only?) job is to sit around all day, sipping nectar and dreaming up topics for studies and surveys.

How else can a study of pedestrians to determine if life moves more slowly in small towns than in cities be explained?

The study, required two scientists who for two years closely observed pedestrians. They watched strollers in New York City, on Wenceslas Square in Prague, Rehov Yerushaim in Safed, Israel; and, for all we know, the corner of Foster and Cuyler in downtown Pampa.

They pinned down the fact that people in small towns move slower than people do in large cities. They did not, as far as we can ascertain, prove conclusively that small town people move more quickly when they are in large cities, or vice versa. (That has probably been reserved as the topic for a future study.)

The object of the study was to test the specific effects of population on the quality of everyday life — "To determine the relationship of the number of people to individual human behavior."

The two scientists conducted their research in 15 cities and towns in six countries. They measured off 50 feet and unobtrusively timed pedestrians covering that distance on mild and sunny days. (On rainy days it was apparently postulated, everyone walks faster.)

Okay, so what the scholars found was that the average walking time for city dwellers over 50 feet is 9.8 seconds, while hicks from the suburbs dawdle the same distance in an average of 13.4 seconds.

Conclusion: City life is carried on at an increased tempo. Further, crowded and busy cities tend to overload the capacity of the individual to react so he subconsciously adapts by increasing walking speed. He moves more rapidly through the environment and is consequently less affected by it.

It would seem, based on this conclusion, that cosmopolites are not as apt to suffer ill effects from pollution and other damaging influences in the environment as their small town compatriots.

Everyone knows that's not generally true.

Now that we have all this information — probably neatly assembled in a buckram-bound volume and printed on vellum paper in olde English type, what are we going to do with it?

Also, we wonder how much long-suffering taxpayers were assessed for this dandy little gem.

Warning on red trade

By H.C. GORDON

It was the classic observation of V.I. Lenin that "When the time comes to hang the capitalists they will compete with each other to sell us the rope."

Years later our own Will Rogers expressed the same sentiment a bit more colorfully when he said that the U.S. would recognize the Devil if we could sell him pitchforks.

Certainly the truth of both these statements has been amply demonstrated by the almost disgraceful eagerness with which a number of American businessmen have sought to trade with the Russians and the Red Chinese.

Undeterred by the fiasco of the recent U.S. - Soviet grain deal, and doubtless lured on by visions of vending machines in Red Square and hamburger stands along the Great Wall of China, some of our most prominent companies have been falling all over each other in their rush to put American products and know-how into the hands of those totalitarian superpowers which — detente or no — remain firmly committed to our ultimate destruction.

Fortunately, not all U.S. companies have acted in this manner. A great many have refused to sell equipment and know-how to the communists, recognizing that such sales would be contrary to the national interest. But there is the problem of a foolish, eager minority of sellers.

While it is probably useless to criticize such practices on moral grounds — particularly when our government is subsidizing many of these initiatives with our tax dollars in the name of "expanding trade relations with the East" — it might be effective to warn our intrepid entrepreneurs that if they're not careful they may very well end up losing their shirts to their would-be trading partners.

The grain fiasco affords an excellent case in point, and a recent article from the pages of the "Christian Science Monitor" offers another. According to this particular article, two Australian companies (at the close of a trade fair they had held in Peking) gave the Red Chinese $330,000 worth of livestock as a gesture of goodwill — and were promptly slapped with a bill for $15,000 to cover the costs of handling the animals and delivering them to a local commune.

Nor was this limit of Chinese ingenuity in soaking the capitalists. During the two weeks that the fair was in progress they charged their guests more than $3,000 to rent extra rooms for "technical briefings" — briefings at which the Chinese are notorious for pumping information out of Western experts while revealing as little as possible of their own technology. "We're paying to give our own blueprints away," one Australian businessman is said to have lamented.

The "Monitor" report concluded by citing the grim assessment of yet another Western trade envoy: "The Chinese will buy only what they cannot make for themselves — and only for as long as it takes them to learn our techniques and copy them."

Let us hope that those who want to sell to the communists will take notice of this bit of information. That way they will at least be forewarned when they attempt to bargain with the Red wheeler-dealers.

Hiss Proved Clearly Guilty

By WILLIAM RUSHER

There is nothing fundamentally inconsistent about (1) the fact that Alger Hiss was proved clearly guilty of perjury in denying he had been a Communist spy, and (2) the fact that the question of this guilt or innocence is now being treated in certain quarters as an open one. The seeming anomaly is merely a function of the passage of time. Nobody under 40 today can be expected to have any clear personal recollection of the events that sent Hiss to the penitentiary in 1951, and the atmosphere shift in national attitudes from cold war to detente naturally prompts the younger generation to want to make its own independent assessment of the whole dramatic and wildly controversial episode. The definitive revival of "My Fair Lady," which first thrilled New York audiences not long after Hill got out of Lewisburg, has just opened on Broadway — and is aimed just as squarely at the whole new generation that never saw either original show.

As for Hiss himself (who is still around, at 71) and the small band of liberal egotists who fell for his protestations of innocence in the first place and have never been able to admit that they were fooled, they obviously have nothing to lose by calling for reconsideration, fresh investigations, etc., ad nauseam. As matters stand, Alger Hiss is simply America's most notorious convicted liar; he has nowhere to go but up.

Still, I confess that I was a little exasperated a few years back when a Smith College professor named Allen Weinstein, invoking the new Freedom of Information Act, obtained from the then Attorney General Elliot Richardson access to some 15,000 pages of confidential FBI files on the Hiss case and declared his intention to review the whole controversy in the light of them. Who was Weinstein, after all, to assume that probity, objectivity and truth had delayed their arrival on earth until his blessed advent? As a former practicing attorney, I knew how easy it would be to find, among those 15,000 pages, some loose end or inconsistency or mistake that could be seized on as constituting an earthshaking breakthrough for the defense.

Professor Weinstein merely confirmed my suspicions concerning his real intentions when he wrote an article for "The American Scholar" in 1971, before seeing a single one of those 15,000 pages, in which he incautiously proclaimed his tentative "conclusion" that "there appears to be reasonable doubt that Alger Hiss was a member of the Communist party" when he knew Chambers, or "that Hiss stole government documents dating through April, 1938." Hiss himself must have sensed a friend in Weinstein, since Weinstein affirms that Hiss "generously" opened to him certain defense files not previously available for inspection.

But both Hiss and I appear to have leaped to a mistaken conclusion. For Professor Weinstein, after burrowing for over two years through those FBI records, as well as the defense files made available by Hiss, has at last come up for air, and he reports that "the whole fabric of evidence... seems to have gone the other way in terms of the position I began with" — or, to be blunt about it, that the new documents indicate that Hiss "has been lying about his relations" with the confessed Communist spy — courier Whitaker Chambers for nearly 30 years, and that people "who once believed in Alger Hiss may now be persuaded that he stole the documents in question" from the State Department and passed them to Chambers, precisely as Chambers testified under oath.

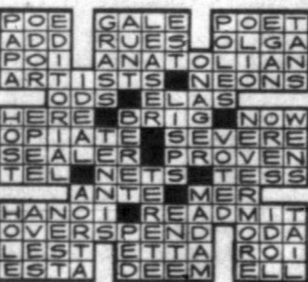

Weinstein is not the first determined sleuth to set out to reverse a legal verdict, only to have his "new evidence" merely confirm the jury's original conclusion. Some years ago Francis Russell succeeded in having modern ballistic tests conducted with the pilot of Nicola Sacco and the bullets that had killed a guard in the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti were executed in 1927. To Russell's considerable surprise, the tests revealed that the fatal bullets came from Sacco's pistol and could have come "from no other." The conclusions of history are far from infallible, but they are not always wrong.

April 3, 1976

The experiences of the past, both bitter and sweet, will give you the fortitude to pursue your ambitions this coming year. Your experiences were not in vain.

For Sunday, April 4, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's a day when you'll feel restless unless you have a lot to do, so don't be afraid to take on two or three projects.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't feel you're being selfish today if you're thinking of personal gain. Some days you have to get the best of the bargain!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When you make the scene today, things should really start happening. Your bubbling personality pumps pep into proceedings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you've known for a long time would deeply appreciate hearing from you today. If you can't visit, at least call her.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You won't be content today with people who think narrowly. Pal around with those who have a broad perspective. You'll be much happier.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're likely to be a shade or two better than the competition today. If you win, accept your laurels graciously.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have faith in yourself today, it'll be obvious to others and will serve as an inspiration to those of fainter heart.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can change things today. Even obstacles that seem insurmountable will fall if you really set your mind to overcoming them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Footloose and fancy-free though you usually are, you work much better today when teamed with one whom you respect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Though others may be looking for a cozy spot in the shade to take it easy today, you won't be happy if you're idle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you will be in a very gregarious mood. If you can't be near the folks you love, then love the folks you're near.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Family-oriented pleasures are dear to your heart today. It's fine to have friends around, but keep the action on the home court.

April 4, 1976

Frequent movement is in the offing for you this coming year. Your jaunts may not be long, but they will be keyed both in pleasure and profit.

President courts Connally's support

By LEWIS LORD
United Press International
 President Ford is courting John Connally's support in his bid for a full term, while big city mayors hope Hubert Humphrey will seek the Democratic nomination.

Ford, who is campaigning today and Saturday in Wisconsin, spent much of Thursday seeking Connally's help in the May 1 Texas primary.

The President posed beside the former Texas governor when he and 15 other persons were sworn in at the White House as members of the President's foreign intelligence advisory board.

The administration then had a portrait of Connally, a former treasury secretary, unveiled at the Treasury Department. Ford wrapped up the day by having Connally and his wife over for dinner.

Humphrey stole the show from Morris Udall, Jimmy Carter and Henry Jackson at the National Conference of Democratic Mayors in New York. Some of the mayors walked out as their colleagues quizzed the three candidates at a forum, but the audience jumped to its feet and cheered a speech by Humphrey.

Several mayors later said they wished Humphrey would run. "I'm not seeking the nomination," the 1968 nominee said with a grin that made it clear he would be tickled to have it.

Ronald Reagan's forces expressed delight with results of Wednesday night's network television address and said he will rely heavily on TV from now on.

"The phones have been coming off the hook," said a spokesman in Reagan's Los Angeles headquarters following his appeal for funds. "Western Union said we jammed their computer."

Henry Kissinger disputed Reagan's televised claim that the secretary of state once said Soviet superiority forced him to negotiate "the most acceptable second-best position."

"It is a contemptible, irresponsible invention," Kissinger said of the Reagan claim.

Reagan will rely on a statewide TV address this weekend to seek votes in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary. His next campaign appearance will be Monday in Texas.

Democrat Frank Church, the late-starting senator from Idaho, took a cue from Reagan and asked the networks for 30 minutes. The networks haven't been anxious to provide prime time for candidates, and NBC sold Reagan his half-hour by noting his opponent was the incumbent.

Jackson and Carter campaigned today in upstate New York for Tuesday's primary. Udall, a former basketball player, bounced a ball a while with New York Knicks' star Bill Bradley Thursday, then returned to Wisconsin.

"I'm going to carry New York," Jackson told a cheering crowd of campaign workers in Niagara Falls. "I think it will be by a good margin." He was hissed at an hour later when he uttered the same line to Canisius College students in Buffalo.

Carter said his polls show him leading Jackson 2 to 1 in upstate New York and even with him in

New York City. That would mean victory, he said, if he hadn't been ruled off the ballot in 10 congressional districts.

"There are 7 million Democrats here who can't even vote for me if they want to," Carter said. "I don't know how I'm going to do."

In Milwaukee, George Wallace said, polls don't show him running as well in Wisconsin as he did in 1972 because the other candidates have adopted his positions. "We're all drinking out of the same well," he said.

Oberlin college in Ohio was the first in the United States to adopt coeducation.

Klan leader resigns

HOUSTON (UPI) — Scott Monroe Nelson joined the Ku Klux Klan when he was 18 and later formed a splinter organization known as the Texas Fiery Knights. He was outspoken in his white supremacist views and ran unsuccessfully for several political offices.

But now Nelson, 37, is burned out on the Klan.

He resigned Thursday as Imperial Wizard of the Texas Fiery Knights, saying the Klan's image has ruined his home life and kept him from getting a job.

"I've been blackballed myself and my family has and I've decided to resign due to the lack of loyalty and brotherhood and unification among the members in different Klans," said Nelson, who formed the Fiery Knights four years ago as a splinter group from the United Klans of America.

"I would suggest that other klansmen stay underground and not reveal themselves as klansmen because it would not do any good."

Nelson said he was fired from his job as a bill collector for a gas company late last year because of his comments on blacks and he's been forced to move from one job to another since then.

"Even klansmen have told me that due to my image they could not give me a job," he said. "I've been blackballed and it's hurt me and my family financially."

Nelson said his family life has been ruined and he and his wife have agreed to separate.

"Most people when you mention the KKK think of terrorism, night riding, burning and lynching and this affects the image of all klansmen," Nelson said. "It ruins a man's reputation and outlook in the community. It's just a terrible thing."

Nelson was briefly the vice presidential candidate for the Ku Klux Klan of America this year and has run for various other offices including the school board, city council and Texas Railroad Commission.

Bond set in gangland slaying

DENVER (UPI) — Bond has been set at $125,000 for a suspended New York City detective accused of being the trigger man in the gangland-style slaying of a Colorado businessman last fall.

Judge Robert Fullerton

Layne Clark invites you to a weekend revival April 2, 3, 4 at Hobart Baptist Church.

Thursday refused the requests of prosecutors, who wanted bond set at $500,000 for Robert B. Davis.

Davis is accused along with a former New York City detective and a New York gambler of first-degree murder in the Oct. 7, 1975, shooting death of Denver businessman Hal Levine.

The other two defendants, retired detective Michael Borrelli and gambler Annunzio Saccone, were free on $75,000 bond. Davis was still jailed in lieu of bond late Thursday.

Deputy District Attorney Michael Little said his office asked for the higher bond on Davis because "we believe him to have been the actual trigger man."

William, Danny and Dennis Holman invites you to a weekend revival April 2, 3, 4 at Hobart Baptist Church.

VOTE FOR FOSTER WHALEY for Pampa School Board Place 5

Politically Speaking
by Foster Whaley

"Selection of a Superintendent"

Over the years we have had some very unselfish people offer themselves for the often thankless task as school trustee.

We have had lawyers, doctors, engineers, business people, and people from just about all walks of life.

Most of them have children in school and are keenly interested in maintaining top quality education.

This excellent array of talent includes many resource people. — when legal questions come up a lawyer's opinion is available to the board.

I believe with my basic knowledge in agriculture acquired over some 27 years as a County Agricultural Agent could be a great asset in the problems now facing our school board.

A school board member would also serve as a liaison person between the board and the group with whom he is identified. He should be willing to defend the actions of the board to the general public and the business sector with whom he is identified.

Presently we have a fine lawyer in Harold Comer serving on our board. He is a very fair-minded person.

We also have another most democratic person in Dr. Robert Lyle, a dentist. I especially congratulate Dr. Lyle because of one of his motions made at the school board meeting. He proposed that a person be employed to look at the inequities in all segments of the tax base and not single out any particular industry. Even though his motion failed I highly regard his sense of fairness.

David Crossman loses much time from his engine parts business to serve on this task as school trustee.

Paul Simmons, another great guy, has probably donated more free public service time than you can imagine. Paul is a most democratic person.

Bill Arrington, a highly ethical businessman, whose main interest is oil and gas across several Panhandle counties is known for his integrity and sharp mind.

I regretted very much when it was announced that Sam Anderson, an employee of Cabot Corp. resigned from the board. How could you find a more ethical and fair-minded person.

I could not believe these fair minded members could possibly represent any special interest group to the detriment of our schools.

As a member of the school board I would attempt to maintain the same high standard of ethics.

I am very proud of all the industries with which these fellows are associated. I am especially proud of Cabot and Celanese who attract such high class workers, a high percentage of which have college degrees. There is no social or welfare problem with these employees.

We are also proud of Agriculture, another basic industry that has contributed much to the wealth of the community throughout the history of our school district. Agriculture, oil, gas, and other related industries have made it possible to finance the excellent Pampa School System over the years.

I am also proud of the fact all these industries have worked harmoniously together over the years to bring about this excellent Pampa School System.

As a member of the school board I would strive to keep harmonious relationships between all groups and continue our present excellence in our school system.

Advice

Dear Abby

Wife Perplexed About Yo-yo Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you in desperation. After six years of marriage my husband just walked off and left me. I feel like my whole world is falling apart.

One day three months ago I came home and discovered that he had moved out, lock, stock and barrel. I nearly went out of my mind.

Two weeks later he called to say that he was living out of town and was involved with another woman, but that he didn't want a divorce.

He comes in town once a week to see me. We go out together and he supports me. (He's a musician.) He says he still loves me but he doesn't want to live with me or stop seeing me.

Abby, I don't want a once-a-week husband, but I don't want to lose him. My friends tell me that I'm a fool and that as long as I give him his freedom to come and go, he'll never come back to me permanently.

Should I give him an ultimatum? I still love him. Please tell me what to do.

OUT OF MY MIND

DEAR OUT: Do nothing in haste. The worst mistake a woman can make is to give her husband an ultimatum if she isn't ready to accept the consequences. If you still love him, hang in there, and in time you will know what to do.

DEAR ABBY: My boss thinks he's perfect. I've worked for him for 11 years and have always automatically corrected his mistakes without calling them to his attention.

Lately, whenever I make a mistake and he catches it, he will call my attention to it with scorn and derision. I dislike this. After all, if I did my work exactly as he instructed me, there would be literally 20 times the mistakes.

Would you advise me to point out all of his mistakes so that he would realize how many he makes?

SECRETARY

DEAR SEC: No. Continue to correct his mistakes automatically and without comment—that's what you're being paid to do. However, do let him know that you resent the "scorn and derision."

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I both smoke. We have smoked for years and realize that we have set a bad example for our daughter, 14, but we can't quit now. We know for a fact that our daughter smokes, but we refuse to give her permission to smoke in our home.

To compound our problem, my mother-in-law (who also smokes) agrees with the child. She claims that we are wrong in making a "sneak" out of the child. She insists that we allow our daughter to smoke in front of us and has even given her cigarettes.

I disagree and am appalled by my mother-in-law's attitude. Is there a solution?

WITHHOLD OUR NAMES

DEAR WITHHOLD: Your mother-in-law would have made a perfect serpent in the garden of Eden. The obvious solution to your problem is for you and your wife to quit smoking. And for goodness' sake, as long as your daughter is a minor and you have anything to say about it, do not give her permission to smoke in your home—or out of it!

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I need some advice on the problem of chronic head pain. All on the left side for approximately two years. The pains are in the temple, around the eye, in back of the eye, in back of the ear and in back of the head (on the left side). The pains shift in location and vary in intensity and duration. There is no discernible pattern.

An eye doctor told me they were not caused by my eyes. An internist took X rays and indicated everything was negative. An ear, nose and throat specialist gave me an ambiguous answer and prescribed some pain pills which I am not interested in. My objective is some suitable corrective treatment.

Each doctor has told me "What it is not" but none have told me "what it is," and what I should be doing to correct the condition. I would not have been worse off if I had been living in a jungle a thousand miles away from the nearest doctor. I would appreciate your advice as to where I should go in order to have this problem diagnosed correctly, and where a suitable corrective treatment would be prescribed.

DEAR READER—You are not as bad off as you think. One of the first steps in resolving the problem of a headache is to eliminate a number of medical disorders that may cause headaches. This certainly includes disorders of the ear, nose and throat. Since your eyes, ears, nose and throat have all been examined and they are apparently not the cause of your headache and X rays presumably of your skull are negative, a lot of important medical conditions which could cause headaches have already been eliminated. Since your headaches have no persistent pattern and are in various locations they are probably muscular headaches, sometimes called tension headaches. The outer surface of the skull is covered with muscles. These can contract and cause pain like any muscle cramp.

Why do you have muscle spasm type headaches? The most common cause is the stress and strain of life. It's the way your psyche tells you that you are overtaxing it and not making an appropriate adjustment to your own environment. Review your own life's situation to see how much tension you have. Many such headaches are associated with mild forms of anxiety and depression. Pain relieving medicines or aspirins provide temporary relief but do not get at the basic problem which is you and your life situations. See a neurologist. If he also tells you that he doesn't find any cause for your headaches, ask him if some psychiatric counseling would help. If he agrees in reviewing your case that your stresses and strains and adjustments to them is the problem it could be that one of the medicines used as an anti-depressant (amitriptyline) would be useful.

Meanwhile, heat, relaxation and gentle massage of the muscular area involved at the time you have a headache may help you control them. Try to identify and eliminate or at least control the major stress factors in your life.

Headaches occur in about 90 per cent of the population. Those who want more information about them can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 2-9, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Hint from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Don't throw away suede desert boots if only the sole of the boot is worn out, yet the upper leather is still good.

They make great sew-on appliques for the ever popular jeans.

Just be sure to use a heavier needle in your sewing machine, or if sewing them on by hand, a heavier needle and coarser thread is easier to work with.

Larry Eubank

Dear Heloise: This is a hint for your readers who have babies who use pacifiers.

When going somewhere and you want to carry along an extra one, put it in one of those baby bottles that have the disposable liners.

The pacifier will remain sterile and an added advantage is that should you need an extra liner for a bottle, you will have an extra one with you!

True keeps eagle eye on birds

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Dan True raised Lucy; he helped her over the rough spots of growing up... and some of the spots were mighty rough for them both.

Lucy today is a full grown golden eagle living in Palo Duro Canyon. And Dan True is still eagle watching and eagle caring.

He talked about Lucy and his other eagle friends at a meeting this week of the Pampa Garden Club at Lovett Memorial Library. True, a former television weatherman, has been interested in eagles for nearly seven years. He has written a book on the subject and hopes to have it published this year. The book contains information he has gleaned about eagles, and pictures he has taken of them.

True lives in Palo Duro Canyon and continuously photographs the wildlife that lives around him.

Eagle watching takes courage—True rappels off steep cliffs to spy on nests; patience—he keeps a vigil by the nest he's watching from February to June, and skill—he uses knowledge of wildlife and of photography.

One of the cameras he poises on an eagle's nest is remotely triggered from a quarter mile away.

True is a pilot and he said this avocation led him to an interest in eagles. "Since I fly I can understand her problems aerodynamically," he said of Lucy.

The male eagle builds the nest, True explained about the division of labor between the male and female birds. The female "tells him which nest she wants by dropping a stick in it," she has a choice of several-nests in the territory which the pair have staked out for their own. But True noted that she never uses a nest more than once in three years.

The male bird fixes up the nest and guards the territory, usually a stretch of canyon three miles long. Each day he flies in a Z pattern over the territory and then spends the rest of the time watching the nest.

The female usually lays two eggs. The eggs are the size of goose eggs and will hatch in 43 days.

Four out of five times, the first eaglet hatched kills the second, smaller eaglet in what True called a Cain - Abel battle. Scientists don't know the reason for this, True said, but he connects it to the bird's natural territorial instincts.

When True sees this happening in a nest he removes the weaker eaglet. He has a federal permit to care for sick and injured birds.

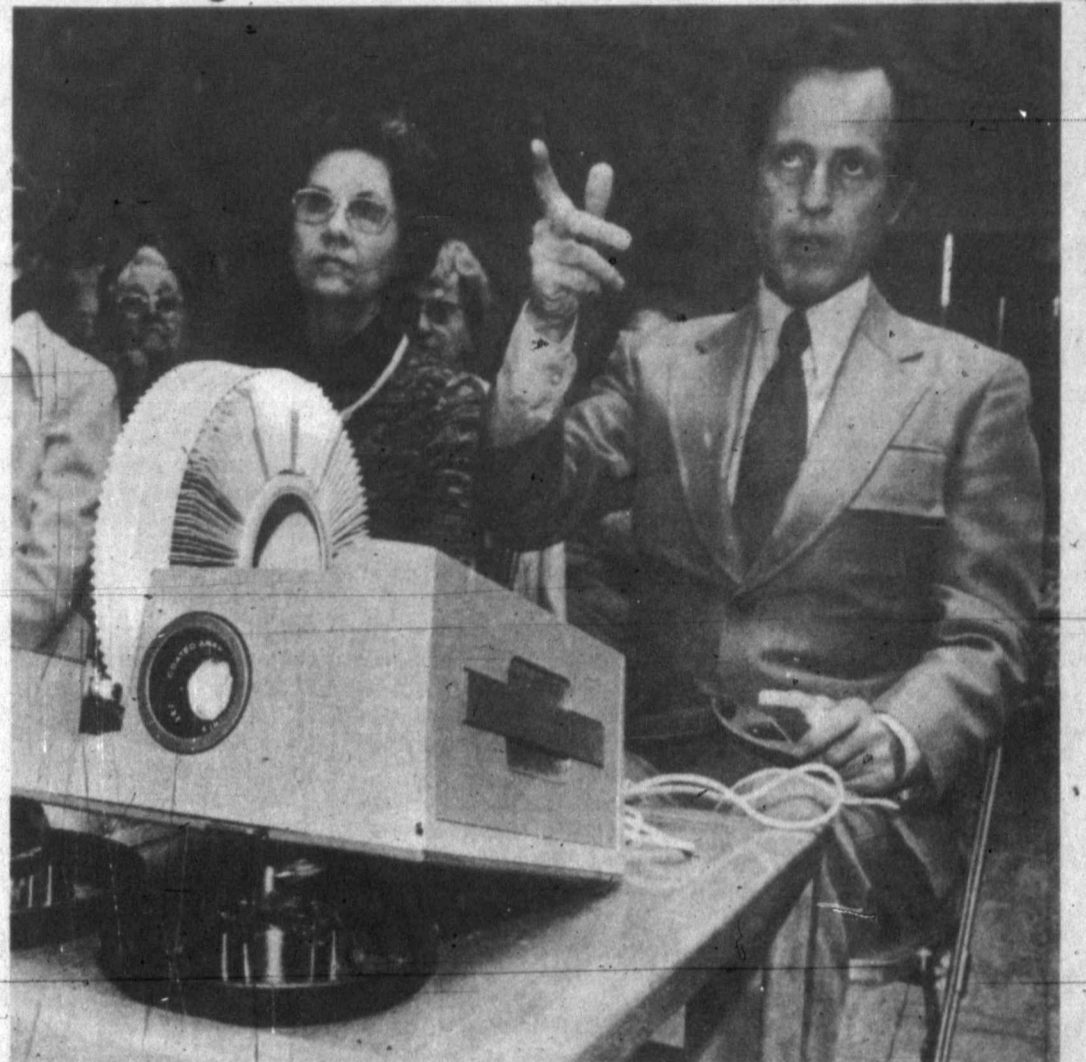

He has had no success with raising birds from eaglet stage. But he admits that survival is harsh even in the wild. "I'd say one in 10 in the wild make it to one year old," he said.

During their first weeks, eaglets are fed by the parent birds who can carry up to three pounds of food, usually in the form of a rabbit or cat, to the nest. The mother eagle then carries the animal carcass away and drops it into the canyon, True said.

The female tries to keep the nest area clean so the smell of dead animals will not attract predators, True explained. But by the time the eaglet leaves home in June, the nest smells pretty foul, he said.

Eagles fledge in 9 to 12 weeks, True said. And they learn to fly by just taking off. Most have more trouble landing than flying, he added.

True continues his vigil of eagle watching. "I have another eagle nest working," he said, but he keeps nest locations a closely guarded secret to protect the birds.

Eagle watching

Dan True, former television weatherman and a current student of eagles, shows his collection of eagle pictures to the Pampa Garden Club members and guests. His slide collection has been called one of the best on golden eagles. Among those attending in Lovett Memorial Library was Thelma Bray, left.

Barry Hedrick invites you to a weekend revival April 2, 3, 4 at Hobart Baptist Church.

Dr. Stephen Nissenbaum, a University of Massachusetts at Amherst history professor, said Wednesday he is "skeptical" about a theory that girls in Salem Village hallucinated by eating bread made from rye contaminated with a fungus called ergot.

The trials resulted in the execution of 20 persons after the girls accused other people of putting them under spells.

In the latest edition of Science Magazine, a University of California psychology graduate student suggested the ergot

Loaf plan begins

Families of the Zion Lutheran Church, 1200 Duncan, will participate in a month-long hunger project designed to "fight against this problem in a tangible way," according to the Rev. Timothy Koenig, pastor.

Rev. Koenig said his church's congregation has mobilized to combat world hunger which claims 10,000 lives a day.

Christians all over are concerned about the world hunger problem," Rev. Koenig said, explaining that the Zion Lutheran Church will contribute money through a "Love Loaf" program.

Small coin containers, shaped like miniature loaves of bread, will be distributed to families of the church, Rev. Koenig said. During the month-long drive, church youth will participate in a 30-hour fast to focus on the physical and spiritual needs of the world's hungry, Rev. Koenig said. After 30 days, the Love Loaves will be turned in and proceeds will be distributed to Lutheran World Relief and World Vision International, founders of the Love Loaf program.

Rev. Koenig added that a portion of the money collected will be used for local hunger and welfare needs.

An investment in Your Future
...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

The jolly roger, the ancient flag of the pirates, threw fear into every ship that sailed the high seas. These armed robbers sought to raid every ship they came across. None was safe when they were near.

The Bible teaches that there is a devil called Satan who is a robber and a thief, who "goes about like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour." (1 Peter 5:8) But when the pirate threatens, we need not be afraid. We are encouraged by Romans 8:38 & 39: "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come; nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Our faith in Christ can overcome Satan's fiery darts. Through Him we can overcome all. We invite you to attend the Church of our Lord this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

ABC announces fall TV schedule

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC, which guessed very right this year and presented a serious challenge to CBS as No. 1 in the Nielsen ratings, next fall will downgrade law and order in favor of comedy and variety.

The network has announced its new schedule, dropping nine shows and replacing them with four comedies, two variety shows, one cop and one private eye show, and a dramatic series, which may or may not be "Rich Man, Poor Man."

Some top entertainers will join the schedule, including Bill Cosby, Nancy Walker, Tony Randall and Robert Stack.

Nine shows have been scratched — "Marcus Welby," "Harry O," "Swiss Family Robinson," "On The Rocks," "The Rookies," "S.W.A.T.," "God Heavens," "Almost Anything Goes" and "D'Angelo Superstar."

With all the talk about bringing back the Western, and with two ballyhooed pilots in "Young Pioneers" and "The Macahans" (with James Arness in a version of "How The West Was Won"), no cowboys and Indians found a home on the ABC fall range.

Most of the new schedule is straight replacement, except that "Starsky and Hutch" will move to 9 p.m. Eastern time, on Saturday nights, which traditionally is disaster night for ABC.

Here's a rundown on the new slots in the ABC fall schedule:
Sunday, 7-8 p.m. Eastern time: The Bill Cosby Show, with Cosby in an audience-oriented variety show calculated to draw the youngsters away from "Disney" on NBC.

Monday, 8-9 p.m. Eastern time: Captain and Tennille, a husband-and-wife team, who will combine music and comedy, including comments from the couple's pet bulldog.

Tuesday, 9-9:30 p.m. Eastern time: The Nancy Walker Show, starring Miss Walker in a Norman Lear-developed comedy series about a woman trying to fill three roles — as professional talent agent, as mother to a prodigiously precreating daughter... and as wife of a recently retired naval officer.

Tuesday, 9:30-10 p.m. Eastern time: The Tony Randall Show, with talented Tony as a judge muddling through domestically in what sounds like "Father DOESN'T Know Best."

Tuesday, 10-11 p.m. Eastern time: ABC will continue either "Rich Man, Poor Man" or "Family." Since "Family" rated only respectably in the Nielsen, while "Rich Man" won big, the network must have hit a snag here. If "Rich Man" gets the nod, the network says it "would be set in the early 1970s with continuing characters from the initial episodes... but also focusing on the next generation of Jordaches and their absorbing lives."

Wednesday, 10-11 p.m. Eastern time: "Charlie's Angels," the detective show about three female private eyes, shown earlier this year as a pilot. One of the trio is Farrah Fawcett-Majors; wife of Lee Majors, the "Six Million Dollar Man."

Thursday, 10-11 p.m. Eastern time: "Most Wanted," another pilot that survived, starring Robert Stack as a homicide detective.

Saturday, 8-8:30 p.m. Eastern time: "Holmes and Yoyo," a comedy about a police officer and his partner, a robot.

Saturday, 8:30-9 p.m. Eastern time: "Mr. T and Tina," a comedy about a widowed Japanese businessman living in inscrutable Chicago with a scatterbrained American governess for his children.

Saturday, 10-11 p.m. Eastern time: "Feather and Father," with Harold Gould as a one-time conman, who uses his dubious talents to help his daughter, gorgeous Stefanie Powers, a defense attorney.

The University of Georgia is the oldest chartered state university in the United States, having been established in 1785.

Solons take money, run...for office

By ALWN BERLOW
Pampa News
Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — On Sept. 8, 1890, a resolution was introduced in the House of Representatives calling for the arrest of lawmakers who were absent and who were thus preventing the House from conducting its legislative business due to the lack of a quorum. But the resolution was quashed when a point of order raised by Rep. C.R. Bukkalew, D. Pa., was sustained on the grounds that the House could not pass a resolution in the absence of a quorum.

A similar "catch - 22" is operating in relation to congressional absences this election year because House and Senate officers charged with withholding the pay of congressmen "absent without leave" say they can't enforce a federal statute unless the legislators tell them to.

What this means for four congressmen seeking the presidency, as well as 17 running for the Senate, is that they will continue to be paid their congressional salaries while they are away from Washington campaigning.

The 1890 resolution calling for the arrest of absent lawmakers was based on two now obscure precedents, which appear to apply to congressmen who are out pressing flesh while the House and Senate deliberate.

A federal statute (2 USC 3:39) predating the Civil War states that the Secretary of the Senate and the Sergeant at Arms of the House shall deduct from the monthly payments of each member...the amount of salary for each day that he has been absent from the Senate of House... unless such member... assigns as the reason for such absence the sickness of himself or of some member of his family." And House Rule Eight says representatives must "be present within the Hall of the House during its sittings, unless excused or necessarily prevented."

But although they are still on the books, the House Sergeant at Arms and the Senate Secretary offices report they have no intention of enforcing either the federal statute or House rule without being directed to do so by Congress — an eventuality both considered highly improbable.

Officers of six candidates contacted by The News' Washington bureau, including four presidential and two senatorial candidates, have indicated they have no plans to request that the Senate and House officers reduce their salaries.

House Sergeant at Arms Kenneth Harding acknowledged that the statute "hasn't been as strictly interpreted as some people would like." But, Harding said, "I can assure you, I wouldn't exercise that prerogative (to withhold salaries) myself." He added that such an action would be looked on unfavorably by most House lawmakers.

Harding also defended the loose interpretation of the statute. "The business of being a congressman is not confined to Washington," he said, noting that congressmen are frequently out of town on official business. "A member of Congress never really gets away from being a congressman wherever he is."

An aide to the Secretary of the Senate said that office has not withheld salaries because "the Senate has not directed us to."

But he and Harding both acknowledged they did not think campaigning could be construed as an excusable absence under the statute. However, the Senate aide added that he doesn't "know what the senators are doing" when they're away from Washington, and, thus, has no basis on which to decide if the absences are excusable.

Another Senate aide said the reason the statute isn't enforced is that it was enacted in 1856 for reasons unrelated to campaigning. The aide said the statute was designed to compel attendance of congressmen who were dissatisfied with the national legislative process just before the Civil War and who were impeding the process of government by their continued absence.

Nevertheless, during the 53rd Congress (1893 - 95) the House Judiciary Committee determined that the statute was still in effect.

House officials were, however, aware of only one case in which a congressman's salary was withheld for a campaign-related reason. That was in 1971 when then - Rep. Edwin Edwards, D, was campaigning for Governor of Louisiana.

Contacted in Baton Rouge, Edwards, who is now Governor, said he asked the House Clerk and Parliamentarian to withhold his salary because, "I didn't think it was fair to get paid since I could not be a fulltime congressman... It wouldn't have been appropriate."

Edwards said it took the House four weeks from the time he made his request to make a decision because there had been no precedent for withholding a member's salary under similar circumstances. He was eventually docked six months pay.

But while the statute has not been enforced against campaigning congressmen, it was not always treated so blithely.

In 1894 it was enforced against Rep. Champ Clark of Missouri when he went to Virginia to deliver two speeches and was absent from the House. Clark and five other lawmakers signed vouchers acknowledging that they were not present at a House session and were responsible for the House failing to have a quorum. The salary deduction led Rep. Thomas Reed of Maine, who later became speaker, to call the statute "a police court regulation."

On another occasion, in February 1881, House Speaker Warren Keifer of Ohio ruled that a congressman who had been arrested by the Sergeant at Arms could be excused on the condition that he pay a fine. The arrested lawmaker, Rep. Leopold Morse of Massachusetts, was fined five cents.

Current candidates cited various arguments against application of the salary withholding provisions.

An aide to Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington said making deductions from the salaries of lawmakers who are campaigning would allow only wealthy congressmen to seek higher office. He said the Democratic presidential candidate has missed about 20 percent of the Senate votes this year.

Aides to other Democratic presidential candidates — including Rep. Morris Udall of Ariz., Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana — said voting attendance is not the only criterion by which to judge whether a congressman is doing his job.

Aides to Jackson and Udall said their bosses continue to perform congressional duties while out campaigning.

Rep. William Green, D - Pa., who is seeking the Senate seat being vacated by Minority Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said through an aide that the Sergeant at Arms should enforce the House rule on absenteeism "across the board for all members." However, the aide said this did not necessarily mean the congressman would voluntarily reimburse the government for part of his salary.

Green's chief Republican opponent for the Pennsylvania Senate seat, Rep. John Heinz, agreed that, "The public should not pay for the time anyone is out campaigning." But he said he is "still a full - time congressman," that he works "around 50 hours a week," and that he is "giving taxpayers their money's worth." Heinz said he limits 90 percent of his campaigning to evenings, weekends and when Congress is not in session. He said he works "more than my fair share as a congressman."

Heinz missed 22 percent of 93 roll - call votes cast between Jan. 1 and March 4, while Green missed 11 percent.

Longet's diary may be evidence

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Singer Claudine Longet's diary could become an "interesting piece of evidence" in the shooting death of her lover — former world skiing champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich, according to prosecutors.

District Attorney Frank Tucker said Thursday he had been briefed on the contents of the diary, in which Miss Longet reportedly wrote her relationship with Sabich had cooled recently.

"I haven't personally seen the diary," said Tucker. "I have been briefed on the diary and I understand it is an interesting piece of evidence."

Sabich was shot to death March 21 at his $250,000 home in the subdivision of Starwood, where he and Miss Longet had lived for two years. An autopsy determined Sabich was shot once in the stomach and died of internal hemorrhaging.

The day after the shooting, Miss Longet appeared before a Pitkin County, Colo., judge and was advised of her rights. Officials said she probably would be charged with criminally negligent homicide.

Tucker said the former wife of singer Andy Williams will face criminal charges next Thursday, in the incident. Meanwhile, Miss Longet is out of state on $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

Earlier this week a Glenwood, Colo., newspaper reported Miss Longet wrote in the diary her relationship with Sabich was deteriorating. But a business associate and friend of Sabich said the skier never told him of any tensions in the relationship.

Sabich, the only two-time world professional skiing champion, had been hampered by injuries the past two seasons and was attempting a comeback.

Lewis said Sabich may have felt the relationship with Miss Longet "was requiring too much time that he could have spent skiing."

"He needed to ski more and get back into form," said Lewis.

10,000 vehicles register

An estimated 10,000 motor vehicle registrations may have been sold through the Gray County tax-assessor collector's office during the last three days of March, according to Jack Back.

Back, county tax-assessor collector, said the records show that 18,376 vehicles had been registered through March 28.

"We will not know the final figures until another report is made," he added. "And that will take several days."

However, during 1975 approximately 28,000 vehicles were registered here and that was all time high.

Back said this morning that the office had taken in $465,109.68 through last Friday.

The dollar figure will far exceed the half million dollar mark when the final tabulations are made.

During the final three days of registrations lines formed in front of every deputy ranging from 30 to 100 at a time during all hours of the day.

However, Back said he understands that in some offices in other cities automobile owners waited in lines a block or more from the headquarters.

One Gray County resident said she stood in line here more than an hour before obtaining a license registration sticker.

Frayed cable blamed for deaths

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — A preliminary investigation, monitored closely by the Secret Service, has determined a frayed cable was responsible for derailing two gondola cars and killing four persons at the ski resort where President Ford spends his winter vacations.

George Tourtilot, a Forest Service investigator, said the first of two gondola cars became jammed and fell at a lift tower 1,000 feet beyond the frayed cable. The second car fell after it collided with a third car.

Three women were killed instantly and a Massachusetts teenager died two days later. Eight others injured in the accident survived.

Ford spends his winter vacations at the Rocky Mountain ski resort and he rode the gondola with his guards as recently as last December. Secret Service officials in Washington said they were watching the federal investigation closely in the interest of Ford's safety.

It will be three or four weeks before a full report on the accident is available because of the "complexity of the situation and the quantity of data requiring analysis."

But Tourtilot said preliminary studies showed the frayed cable apparently partially derailed the first car, which "became jammed at tower No. 5, thus initiating the accident sequence."

The gondola has been closed for the remainder of Vail's ski season, scheduled to end April 25.

Two survivors of the accident were released from a Denver hospital Thursday. One of them, Gene Reese of Custer, S.D., was the husband of the one of the women killed.

He said his four children missed the accident by oversleeping, but his wife was in the car because he had bought her a new pair of ski boots the day before.

"If she hadn't had the boots, she wouldn't have gone," Reese said as he was helped onto a private airplane to be flown home to his wife's funeral.

Police gave 620 traffic tickets here

Absences caused by illness, schools and vacations resulted in the Pampa Police Department operating 3.5 employees short during March, according to Richard Mills, police chief.

The department answered 839 calls and issued 620 traffic tickets, 82 warning tickets and 20 parking tickets.

Eighty-three jail arrests were made during March and 72 accidents were investigated. Officers drove 21,011 miles on patrol.

German artist Max Ernst dies Thursday

PARIS (UPI) — German surrealist artist and sculptor Max Ernst, a giant in 20th-century modern art, died Thursday on the eve of his 83rd birthday.

Ernst, whose career began in the artistic milieu of Paris and Cologne following World War I, had suffered from a lengthy illness before his death. He was unable to attend a mammoth exhibition of his work in Paris last summer.

Born April 2, 1891 in Bruhl, near Cologne in the German Rhineland, Ernst was a wanderer, who lived in several European capitals as well as the United States for 12 years.

Ernst's paintings, sculpture and other works were in the forefront of artistic endeavor for more than half a century. They were noted for their imaginative use of materials and for their power to startle and provoke the viewer.

He helped launch the Dada movement in Cologne in 1920 and later was a prominent figure in Surrealism, two art forms that have come to dominate much of 20th-century art.

An early student of Sigmund Freud, Ernst studied abnormal psychology at the University of Bonn and once said paintings were "a landscape of the mind."

FPC opens meetings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission has decided to open its meetings to the public for the first time.

"We feel very strongly that in this day and age, it is very important for the public to understand the way the decision-making process is carried out," Chairman Richard L. Dunham said Thursday.

The public will be allowed to sit in on FPC meetings beginning April 21.

The FPC will continue to close meetings dealing with matters classified by law or executive order, personnel rules, and personal privacy matters.

The commission also announced it will streamline procedures to reduce "regulatory lag" and trim the amount of paperwork required from industries.

Dunham said the 7,200 matters filed before the commission in 1972 have grown to 15,315 in 1975, and something needed to be done to stem the tide.
