The Pride of Pampa Band has been selected as official band to greet President Ford when he reaches the Amarillo Air Terminal at 7 p.m. Saturday.

But director Jeff Doughten was worried that he couldn't find the band music to "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "Hail to the Chief" in time for special rehearsals.

A quick search of music stores in Oklahoma and Texas uncovered some arrangements and Doughten hopes they will arrive in today's mail.

"How many times do you get calls for 'Ruffles and Flourishes'?" Doughten laughed. It is the showy introduction music to "Hail to the Chief."

Doughten got the invitation at 10 a.m. Tuesday before Ford's visit was even confirmed. After the visit was assured, he gathered okays for the trip from school superintendent Dr. Dan Long and school board president Paul Simmons.

The entire award-winning band will make the trip to the Amarillo airport, he added.

The Pampa band and four Amarillo high school bands will present a concert before Ford arrives in Amarillo. But the Pampa students will be checked out by Secret Service agents before 4 p.m. rehearsals, the director said.

The band may be reviewed by the President and may play a feature number before his speech. "We could get some national exposure," he added.

Following a rally at the air terminal, Ford will go to the Hilton Inn for a brief meeting with his key campaign workers in the Panhandle, according to Ben Guill, Ford's Gray County coordinator.

He will probably arrive at the West Texas State fieldhouse in Canyon to speak at about 8:30 p.m., Guill said.

He added that Ford's district coordinator will be in Pampa at 7:30 p.m. today for a meeting at the Citizens Bank and Trust Co.

Additional information and details of the Ford visit are expected to be outlined during the Pampa meeting.

In March, Pampa high school and junior high school students brought back more than 50 first place metals from the University Interscholastic League solo and ensemble competition for Region 1 schools at West Texas State University.

Last fall, the band gained national recognition when it played for the Paul Harvey Show in Pampa. The following day, Harvey applauded the band on his national radio network program.

Recently, Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe were guests of honor at the St. Patrick's Day celebration Shamrock where the band entertained.

Gov. Briscoe said he wished the band could play in every Texas city.

"I've never heard a greater, more stirring performance. I'd like to extend an invitation to perform in the State Capitol in Austin," he said.

Mrs. Briscoe said she wished that her daughters could have had the opportunity to play in band like the Pride of Pampa.

Carter, Jackson, Ford victorious

By STEVE GERSTEL
United Press International

Jimmy Carter, Henry Jackson and President Ford scored important victories in Tuesday's Wisconsin and New York primaries. But Morris Udall, who claimed "sweet" victory too early in Wisconsin, may have been eliminated as a serious presidential contender by Carter's late surge.

Democrat Carter, the former Georgia governor who was almost unknown at the start of the political year, swept from behind early today to win his sixth primary by some 9,000 votes and leave liberal Udall without a victory to date.

Jackson, meanwhile, won New York's Democratic primary although Udall, Carter and Hubert Humphrey ganged up to deny him the clearcut majority of delegates he had predicted.

Ford defeated GOP challenger Ronald Reagan in Wisconsin and need only ask for a Rockefeller slate of delegates which won in New York. It was a solid rebound from the President's loss to Reagan in the North Carolina primary.

Carter noted that Udall—who claimed a "how sweet it is" Wisconsin victory Tuesday night and then had to swallow the bitter pill of defeat on a late surge of rural Carter votes—had campaigned in the state for months.

"Wisconsin people learned about me and about my stands on the issues the last 10 days," said Carter.

"Winning in New York carries a tremendous psychological impact," said Jackson. "I would say we're going to do very well in Pennsylvania. We're going to win it."

Rebounding from his only primary defeat, Ford whipped Ronald Reagan in the Wisconsin primary. In New York, an uncommitted slate of machine delegates—loyal to Vice President Nelson Rockefeller but Ford's for the asking in a showdown with Reagan—swept to victory.

Carter bucked the party machinery and liberal loyalists to narrowly edge Udall in Wisconsin and keep his bandwagon for the Democratic nomination on course.

Alabama's three-term governor, George Wallace, a surprising second in Wisconsin four years ago, finished a weak third and Jackson a dismal fourth.

In New York, Udall finished a surprisingly strong second. But the big surprise was the thirdplace finish of uncommitted delegates who belong to Humphrey—not an active candidate. Carter was fourth.

With just a handful of votes uncounted, it was:

Ford: 325,787 or 55 per cent and 45 delegates in Wisconsin for an overall delegate total of 251

Reagan: 261,352 or 45 per cent and no delegates in Wisconsin and three delegates in New York for an overall delegate total of 84

Carter: 269,919 or 37 per cent and 26

delegates in Wisconsin and 33 delegates in New York for an overall total of 235.

Udall: 262,881 or 36 per cent and 25 delegates in Wisconsin and 69 delegates in New York for an overall total of 118.

George Wallace: 92,258 or 13 per cent and 10 delegates in Wisconsin and no delegates in New York for an overall total of 104.

Jackson: 47,399 or 7 per cent and six delegates in Wisconsin and 107 delegates in New York for an overall total of 169.

The next stop on the primary trail for the Democrats is Pennsylvania on April 27 where Carter hopes to stop Jackson in the major test between the two main challengers for the nomination. Udall also is in the race.

President Ford sleeps at night and that worries me.

Helen Thomas, the first woman to head the United Press International White House Correspondence corps, was talking about the presidency. She has an opportunity to watch it closer than most.

"Being in the press, we have a roll in keeping a vigilant eye on the President who has life and death control over our lives," she said.

I talked to Miss Thomas at a recent journalism conference at the University of Missouri where she was speaking. She openly discussed the humor of the Kennedy White House, the jokes of LBJ, the hostile Nixon White House and the self-confident Ford era.

"It's not an exciting White House... never is heard an inspiring word," Miss Thomas said of the current administration. "But it is not a hostile or foreboding fortress. Even the secret service is more friendly (than in the Nixon White House).

She called Ford a likable, amiable but one dimensional man with no dream. She added that Betty Ford, a woman who is true to her self, has made her husband more aware of the world around him.

The journalist talked about Watergate.

Watergate has not made the Washington press smug, she said. "There is no joy in the fall from grace of a President."

"We are all to aware of our own imperfections," she added. "But we would rather be responsible for being fair, not loved."

The journalist was concerned because some have forgotten the importance and place of the press in a democracy.

Miss Thomas also talked about the personal side of the White House. Hospitality was at its best on the LBJ ranch, the rumors and gossip about John F. Kennedy's affairs.

We hadn't heard about the Woodward-Bernstein book about President Nixon's final traumatic days in the White House so she did not field questions on the subject.

Throughout all, Miss Thomas remained optimistic about the nation's form of government and about the American people.

"Politics can still be an honest profession, honor and power can be used for the good of the people," she said.

The Pampa High School band, indeed the Pride of Pampa, is about to tuck another honor under its belt.

It has already gained national attention and commendation from Paul Harvey who the musicians impressed this fall.

Saturday the musicians will officially greet President Ford when he arrives in Amarillo a quick campaign stop.

So, on three day's notice, band director Jeff Doughten has hustled up bank music for the presidential welcome music and set rehearsals to learn it.

Doughten has confidence in his students. He knows that they'll be great and that they'll impress even the President of the United States.

According to Doughten, the Presidential performance will be a first for a Pampa band.

At arts, crafts exhibit

Students from Pampa middle school toured the Pampa Art Club exhibit this morning in Lovett Memorial Library. The club's annual showing features bread dough art, paintings, macrame and many other forms of art.

The club members aim for an educational exhibit, according to president Robin Gantz. The show will close at 5 p.m. today.

Chinese head ousted

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Chinese Communist party today announced the dismissal of party Vice Chairman Teng Hsiao-ping "from all posts both inside and outside the party," Peking Radio said.

Teng's purge was proposed by 82-year-old party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, his chief antagonist in China's current power struggle, according to a resolution adopted by the ruling Central Committee. He was not stripped of his party membership.

It was the second time in 10 years that Teng had been purged from power.

Teng was a party vice chairman, a vice premier and acting chief of the general staff of the Chinese armed forces. He had been widely expected to succeed the late Premier Chou En-lai when Chou died last January.

But Hua Kuo-feng, the nation's top policeman was named acting premier in early February, and Teng, who has not appeared in public since January, came under heavy attack from wall posters and party organizations.

Radio Peking said Hua was named premier by the Central Committee in its meeting today. He also was elected as a party vice chairman, replacing the ousted Teng. This also was proposed by Mao.

Teng's ouster was a direct result of riots which erupted in Peking huge Ten An Men (Gate of Heavenly Peace) Square last Monday, the party resolution said.

Having discussed the counter-revolutionary incident which took place at Ten An Men Square and Teng Hsiao-ping's latest behaviors, the political bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist party of China holds that the nature of the Teng Hsiao-ping problem has turned into one of antagonistic contradiction," the resolution said.

A separate resolution broadcast by Peking Radio dealt with the elevation of Hua, a Mao protege who spent about 10 hours talking with former President Richard Nixon during Nixon's second visit to China last February.

FEA official wants help

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

AMARILLO — An official with the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) urged members of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association this morning to provide the government with feedback on policies affecting the industry.

"I don't ask you to like it," Gorman Smith told the audience at the Hilton Inn here. "Hell, I don't like it. I will ask you to be patient and help us frame the regulations."

Smith, assistant administrator for operations, regulation and compliance, FEA, said he is in favor of de-regulation of government controls on the oil and gas industry.

"There is nothing like a year and a half of trying to regulate an industry like this to make a free market nut out of you," Smith said.

"Why do we write the regulations?" Because the law tells us to,"

About the writing of regulations Smith said, "It literally is a cancer. I'm one of the only guys up there that's trying to work himself out of a job. I believe in de-regulation."

Smith said that "I guess our objective is... to avoid doing any real, permanent damage.... My prime objective is not to make things any worse than they have to be."

Smith, the first speaker in the forum this morning at the 46th annual meeting of the TPROA, told his audience, "It's not easy for you. You've got to read that technical garbage."

Commenting on the energy bill now in effect, Smith said, "A lot of us wanted such and complete de-control... The bill we got is the best we were going to get out of this Congress. It does promise a phaseout of controls over a 40-month period. This bill is better than he (the President) would have gotten if he had vetoed the bill."

The second speaker on this morning's program was Gary Bushell, administrative assistant to U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

That makes it official

The Pride of Pampa band received an official invitation Tuesday to participate in the Dublin Ireland St. Patrick's Day Parade on March 17, 1977. The invitation stems from the band's performance at the St. Patrick's Day celebration this year in Shamrock where Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe and his wife were the special guests. Also in the audience, unbeknown to the performers, were a couple of representatives of the Irish government. One of them called Ireland and received permission to extend an invitation to the Pride of Pampa to participate in the 1977 event. A meeting has been set for Tuesday with the next year band students and parents to discuss the trip. Director Jeff Doughten said that unless he receives support from 96 per cent of the students and parents, plans for the trip will be dropped because of the costs.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP 'O TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Defensive driving week

Governor Dolph Briscoe proclaimed this week as Defensive Driving Week in Texas and called for personal participation by Texas drivers to help reduce traffic crashes in the State.

He called the loss of more than 3400 Texans in traffic deaths last year, and more than 138,000 personal injuries "an unconscionable burden of suffering and economic loss to the people of Texas."

Governor Briscoe's proclamation called attention to the Defensive Driving Course now available throughout Texas as a means of fostering positive driving attitudes to cut traffic crashes. The eight-hour National Safety Council training course is conducted by 600 training agencies in Texas coordinated by the Texas Safety Association.

In 1975, more than 100,000 Texans completed the Defensive Driving Course (DDC).

Calling on Texas drivers to drive defensively, Governor Briscoe said that the number of motor vehicles, drivers and miles traveled continue to increase and that the job of reducing traffic crashes "requires more personal responsibility, individual commitment and consistent practice of defensive driving techniques than ever before."

Hugh Scott, Houston, TSA President, cited the fact that Texans who complete the DDC training qualify for a 10 per cent reduction in automobile insurance as a direct personal benefit in the course. The popular training course also is available in a Spanish-language version, and also includes supplemental training in safe motorcycle riding.

So, how about it? Let's drive defensively in Gray County and Pampa — and everywhere else we drive.

Ruling hurts minorities

A recent five-to-three Supreme Court ruling is almost certain to make it more difficult for members of minority groups to obtain employment.

Imagine this situation. A member of a minority group makes application for employment with a certain company. His application is accepted but, for any number of reasons, he is not hired at that time. Three years later, he returns to the same company, applies for a job and, this time, is put on the payroll.

According to the high court ruling, as reported by the Wall Street Journal, if the failure of the company to hire the minority member at the time of the initial application was due to "racial reasons," the company can be forced to grant him seniority dating back to the original application. In other words, although having never worked for the company a day in his life, he is immediately jumped in seniority over all other workers hired by and actually working for the company during the intervening three years.

"Seniority affects promotion, liability to pay off and many other employment conditions," the court noted in defense of its ruling, "and without it a victim of discrimination can never be 'made whole'." The ruling involved an actual firm, the Bowman Transportation Company.

Human nature being what it is, with so much to gain, and with that kind of a court ruling working in his favor, a minority member would be strongly tempted to claim discrimination and himself as a job-bias victim. In which case, the company would be hard put to prove that the member was refused employment on initial application for some other reason. For, when you come right down to it, and as surely the Supreme Court Justices must know, it is virtually impossible for anyone to furnish concrete proof that they did not discriminate in any given situation.

Faced with that kind of a loaded deck, it would only be natural for employers to try to avoid being caught in such a squeeze play. Although their inclinations might be to hold minority job applications on file until such time as a job calling for their qualifications opened up, the possibility of becoming involved in a job-bias suit as a result of the court ruling would impel them to make sure that a minority job applicant, once refused employment, was not hired at some future date.

A job applicant on file, under such circumstances, would act to almost guarantee that a minority member would never be hired by that particular company.

Another case of meddling do-gooders trying to help people but, due to an abysmal ignorance of human nature, actually hurting them.

With "friends" like that at court, is it any wonder that members of minority groups are finding it increasingly more difficult to obtain employment?

INFLATION: "A fate worse than debt." Anon.

Equally guilty

A female person in Cleveland has filed a $450,000 suit against two of the city's men in blue — and one woman in blue. She charges that in the course of a hassle over a traffic violation, the lady cop beat her while one of the men held her. We've heard stories about police brutality before, but this is the first allegation involving policewoman brutality. Sexual equality marches on.

Nation's Press Evolution or trauma?

By STANLEY J. MODIC (Industry Week)

With the invention of the spinning jenny in the 1760s, the textile industry was transferred from cottages to factories. We look back on such developments as tremendous achievements; we tend to forget the economic and social disruption they created.

Instead of simply needing money for wages and supplies, weavers now needed capital to buy a machine. Hand weavers became obsolete, but some learned to run the power looms. Others perhaps took up the maintenance of the machines. There was a temporary disruption, but the country ended up stronger for the experience.

Today there is talk that we are standing at the threshold of another era, the automatic factory. We seem to be preoccupied with the question of whether it will materialize. Too many managers in industry see the emergence of the automatic factory centering on technical questions that they will have to face up to sometime in the future.

We are already well on our way to the automatic factory. The technology isn't going to be the main problem. Much of it is already here. Its evolution will depend on how well we cope with the social and economic problems.

Instead of worrying whether or not it will happen, we should face these questions: How will a firm be able to raise the capital to finance an automatic factory? What will happen to the displaced labor? Where will the skilled labor come from? Will the era of the automatic factory see the small factory go the way of the mom-and-pop store?

These questions are not new. We have lived with them through each step of the industrial revolution, and we have shown a remarkable ability to cope. The supermarket put the poorly lighted, limited stock, corner grocery out of business, but the enterprising moms and pops shifted their thinking — the way they operate — and are still in the grocery business as specialized convenience stores.

Each phase of our development brought new problems. This time, let's learn from our history. Let's zero in on the right question now, and perhaps the transition will be easier.

In the sixteenth century, Queen Catherine de Medici decreed that the standard waist measurement for ladies of the French court was 13 inches!

It is said that the first public library was founded in Athens in 540 B.C.

"...and D.O.T.'s going to charge the rest with expropriating public roads for personal campaign motorcades."

Conservative Advocate

Third convention is planned

By WILLIAM RUSHER CHICAGO — It is now definite that America's bicentennial year will boast not just two presidential nominating conventions, but three. The Democrats will forgo their New York in July; the Republicans assemble in Kansas City in August. Between these two conventions, in a city not yet selected, a third convention will be held in late July.

This third convention will consist of representatives of conservative parties now or soon to be on the ballot in all or almost all fifty states. A number of them are already loosely allied under the general name "American Independent Party." Another coalition, working cordially with the first, titles itself only slightly differently: "American Independence Party." Meeting here in Chicago recently, these two blocks set up a joint committee to pick a site and lay plans for their convention. Among other state organizations that will undoubtedly be invited to participate in that convention are the well-known and prestigious Conservative party of New York, plus conservative groups in various states which, without troubling to create an entire new party this year, will nonetheless have slates of presidential electors on the ballot in their states in November.

Many of the state parties participating in this third-line effort are direct descendants of the Wallace third-party presidential candidacy of 1968.

and hence are still basically Wallace-oriented. This is not universally true, however, and even the most vocally pro-Wallace organizations among them recognize that the drive to create a nationwide conservative alternative to the Republican and Democratic parties must be more than the lengthened shadow of a single man.

Unquestionably, though, the showings of Wallace (and Reagan) in the major-party primaries to date have simply whetted the interest of third-line activists in these two men. At the Chicago meeting, the talk in the corridors was about the combined voting strength of Wallace and Reagan in the Florida and Illinois primaries, when considered as one segment of a three-cornered contest. In Florida — one of the bellwether states of the politically potent Sun Belt — Wallace and Reagan together had 663,961 votes, compared with 927,087 for the rest of the Democratic field — and 450,812 for Ford.

It is perfectly true, of course, that such figures cannot be interpreted as flatly prophetic of the result if (say) a Reagan-Wallace ticket took the field in November against Ford and some centrist Democrat. For one thing, a good many Reagan Republicans would probably prefer to stick with their party in the clinch — thereby improving Ford's showing. Conversely, the number of Democrats ready to bolt their party would probably be higher than the Wallace figures suggest. Wallace himself has said that a good many of his supporters are apparently concerned about his health — a concern that would presumably diminish if he accepted the vice-presidential nomination on a third-party line. In addition, it is inconceivable that the strong showings by Carter and Jackson do not reflect a determination, on the part of many Democratic voters, to have done with the dominant liberal impulses of their party. If the Democratic convention labors and brings forth, for example, Hubert Humphrey (as it well may), the stage would be set for a three-way battle that might lead in unprecedented directions.

Of course, whether Reagan or Wallace would consent to participate in the November battle on those terms — or what political figures might be willing to do so if they are not — remain unanswered questions at this point. But the arithmetic of the primaries to date (and Reagan's upset victory over Ford in North Carolina simply reinforces the point) suggests that this summer's conservative third-line convention could have truly fateful consequences.

The only successful third-party presidential campaign in American history was in 1860 when Republican Abraham Lincoln defeated a Constitutional Union and two Democratic candidates. Since 1860, there have been only four presidential elections (1892, 1912, 1924 and 1968) in which all third parties together polled more than 10 per cent of the vote.

A large immigration to Louisiana occurred in the early 18th century after exaggerated stories of gold discoveries in the New World territory reached France. The stories were also responsible for the "Mississippi Bubble" when the comptroller of finance issued paper currency without security to back commercial development of Louisiana. The shares reached $4,000 before the scheme collapsed.

Moonlight boodle grab hidden in legislation

By ROBERT S. ALLEN WASHINGTON — You would have to go a long way to match the gross hypocrisy and crass boodling displayed in the Senate during the torturous deliberations on reconstituting the Federal Elections Campaign Act.

Buried in the legislation — and wholly unrelated to it — is a provision that repeals the $15,000 ceiling on congressional income from moonlighting activities.

Sponsors of this covert ripoff are the extraordinary team of Sens. George McGovern, radical Democrat, and Barry Goldwater, conservative Republican — both one-time presidential candidates, both leading moneymakers from lectures and other sources when there was no maximum on moonlighting and both under contract at $25,000 from a network to air their partisan views at the Republican and Democratic nominating conventions.

Equally paradoxical — the Senator who virtually single-handedly tried to block this arrant boodle grab is a conservative southern Democrat, James Allen of Alabama.

A brilliant parliamentarian and tenacious scrapper, the tall solon pulled no punches in deriding the McGovern-Goldwater proposal. Citing the sizable pay raise Congress voted itself last year with an automatic annual cost-of-living hike, Allen bluntly demanded:

"Why is it necessary at this time to lift the limit on honoraria that members of Congress might receive? It seems to me that a $15,000 outside income should be adequate."

Sensitive Nerve Instantly, he was sharply challenged on that — by Sen. James Abourezk, radical South Dakota colleague of McGovern and like him a leading moonlighter.

Before the ceiling was imposed, Abourezk averaged around $50,000.

Of Arab (Lebanese) descent, he is much sought after by Arab-Americans for meetings and other functions at handsome fees, as high as $2,500. But these juicy pickings, he frankly admitted to Allen, have sadly diminished. Complained Abourezk:

"I do not earn that much anymore. I did not come anywhere near that last year."

"I wonder," innocently inquired Allen, "if the Senator's use of the word 'anymore' has any significance."

"It does, indeed," conceded Abourezk dolefully. "At one time I made considerably more than $15,000."

"I am wondering," said Allen reflectively, "if the services of the distinguished Senator from South Dakota would be in such demand if he would not be a member of the U.S. Senate. It seems to me a limit ought to be placed on the ability to play upon one's official position."

But an overwhelming majority of the Alabamian's colleagues emphatically don't think so.

Imbedded in the federal election campaign bill as passed by the Senate is the McGovern-Goldwater "sleeper" repealing the $15,000 maximum on moonlighting income.

Top Spies
Whether this boodle grab will stay in the legislation is doubtful, for several reasons: First, the ceiling originated in the House following disclosures of the large sums being raked in by congressional moonlighters, most of them Senators. That and the House's traditional resentment of senatorial scuttling of House legislation will count against the repealer.

Second, the House has a tough-germane rule — and the McGovern-Goldwater provision is clearly not germane to the federal campaign act. It's certain to be challenged on that ground, and that will be the end of it. Only a few House members (Reps. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., and "Pete" McCloskey, a maverick California Republican) were big money makers on the lecture circuit, so rank-and-file Congressmen have no interest in repealing the $15,000 ceiling — especially in this election year.

In striking contrast the story is very different in the Senate where many made large moonlighting incomes, as follows:

McGovern, $147,000 (in a three-year period); Humphrey, $47,000; Muskie, $80,000; Dole, former Republican National Chairman, $33,000; Birch Bayh, short-lived presidential aspirant, $26,000; Mike Gravel, Alaska dove and "Pentagon Papers" grandstander, $23,000; Republican Floor Leader Hugh Scott, $21,000; Mark Hatfield, Oregon Republican, $22,000; and a number of other Senators with moonlighting takes ranging from $5,950 to $20,950.

For the year prior to the imposition of the $15,000 ceiling, more than 40 of the 100 Senators reported moonlighting incomes in excess of that maximum. Significant Silence It is no wonder therefore that not one of the Senate's loudly vocal bleeding hearts and do-gooders lifted a finger to help Sen. Allen in his lonely battle against the McGovern-Goldwater ripoff.

Hardly a day passes when these strident militants don't inveigh and declaim against corporations making under-the-table payments to foreign officials to promote sales. And they can always be counted on to fulminate about "profititeering," "price fixing," etc. etc.

But they were as silent as the tomb while Allen doggedly fought to retain the $15,000 ceiling on moonlighting boodling. Not only did they say nothing, but most of them carefully stayed away from the chamber.

McGovern, one of the co-sponsors of the ripoff, was notably missing.

Concluded Allen sardonically: "I would think it is a little beneath the dignity of a U.S. Senator to have an agent booking him into towns and to pander his services to people who might want to hear a Senator. I am told agents get one-third of honorariums. Maybe we ought to pass a sense-of-the-Senate resolution decrying the high rates of compensation of agents booking speeches by Senators."

"I guess every self-respecting Senator has a booking agent. I must not be very self-respecting because I don't have a booking agent."

But the doughty Alabamian did have the fortitude and forthrightness to call the turn on his "self-respecting" colleagues who do have booking agents lining up moonlighting payoffs for them.

Hughes to have Houston burial

By JAMES L. OVERTON
HOUSTON (UPI) — Billionaire Howard R. Hughes will be buried alongside his mother and father in private ceremonies reflecting the obsession with privacy that dominated the final two decades of his life.

Doctors said Tuesday an autopsy showed the industrialist, who parlayed an oil tool firm into one of the world's greatest fortunes, died of kidney failure.

The preliminary autopsy finding demonstrated that Mr. Hughes died of chronic renal disease," said Dr. Henry McIntosh, chief of internal medicine at Methodist Hospital.

Hughes, 70, died Monday during a flight from his final hideaway in Acapulco, Mexico to Houston for an examination by McIntosh.

McIntosh said the secrecy surrounding Hughes' body and the funeral services reflected the lifestyle of the wealthy hermit, who directed his financial empire from a series of hotel suites.

"We could do nothing more than continue what he would like," said McIntosh.

Harris County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk said the autopsy indicated Hughes had been bedridden but disproved bizarre tales of the

Details kept secret

HOUSTON (UPI) — The first name at the top of the funeral home bulletin board is Howard R. Hughes. But the space underneath to designate the time and the details of the services is blank.

Only the family and closest friends of the late, reclusive billionaire were told the details of the funeral service.

es' family plot is simply decorated. A semi-circle slab bears the names of Hughes mother and father.

The cemetery where Hughes will be buried is only three quarters of a mile west of downtown in an area filled with old houses and poorly kept garages and warehouses.

Hughes' aunt, Mrs. Frederick R. Lumms, arranged for the services and insisted on their secrecy.

"Howard Robard Hughes—Sept. 9, 1869-Jan. 14, 1924. Allene Ganu Hughes—July 14, 1883-March 29, 1922."

Mr. Hughes will not be cremated," said a spokesman for the George Lewis Funeral Home Tuesday. "The burial will be in the family plot. The casket that was chosen is very simple, but a very fine casket. It's not fancy or ornate."

The cemetery itself is perfectly kept with thick grass growing around moss laden maple, oak and pine trees. Gravesites date to the 1840s.

At the corner of the plot stands a brass stake which signifies the ground around the graves is to receive special care — meaning the grass should be cut at least once a week.

Hughes will be buried alongside his mother and father in tree-lined, century-old Glenwood Cemetery that lies in the shadows of downtown Houston.

Although ornate monuments dot the cemetery in memory of influential members of the Houston community, the Hughes' family plot is simply decorated.

Close call

Two persons received minor injuries in a tractor-trailer and automobile collision about 4 p.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Price Road and Alcock. Driver of the truck was James Murrah, 42, of Pampa. The automobile was driven by Stanley Frank, 21. Both were treated and released from Highland General Hospital. Murrah's wife, Barbara, said she came upon the scene just after it occurred and breathed a sigh of relief when she saw her husband standing. The Pampa Fire Department stood by in case of a blaze. Gray County Sheriff's deputies, the Texas Highway Patrol and Pampa Police Department officers were at the scene where traffic was directed around the wreckage for several minutes.

Arlo Guthrie politics in Oklahoma for Harris

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma dustbowl balladeer Woody Guthrie once was hated in his native state because of his politics. His son, folksinger Arlo Guthrie, now is bringing his own politics to Oklahoma.

"I like his stands on the issues more than I like anybody else's stands," Guthrie said of the former Oklahoma senator — although he no longer considers Harris a serious candidate for the presidency.

"I've been wrong on every bet I've made on who was going to be president," he said.

"The important thing, Guthrie said, is Harris is making a contribution by bringing issues into the campaign.

"I'm not picking and choosing. I thought Nixon was going to stay in."

"He is being as realistic as he can be," Guthrie said.

"Guthrie's father was a native of Okemah, Okla., and once was reviled in his home state because of his controversial stands. The younger Guthrie said that, although he never lived in Oklahoma, he felt more comfortable coming to the state now than in the past.

"I'm feeling better and better the more I come back," he said.

"I haven't done this kind of thing before," Guthrie said he did not know who he would support for the Democratic presidential nomination should Harris drop out.

"Mostly, I'm just pickin' and singin' and drivin' down the road in a big bus," he said.

Guthrie, whose own career skyrocketed in the late 1960s with his talk-and-song ballad, "Alice's Restaurant," and the movie based on the song, said the nationwide fund-raising tour is now in the black.

"Everything we make is gravy from this point," he said.

Fed proposes chloroform ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government proposes to ban the use of chloroform in more than 2,000 drug products from toothpaste to cough medicine and liniment because of new evidence it could cause cancer.

and reckless" because it will allow consumers to use up existing chloroform-containing products on store shelves before then, instead of forcing a recall.

significant campaign contributions from the producers of these products in order to dare such an irresponsible proposal," he said.

The ban — also covering cosmetics and some food packages — would take effect July 8.

"We estimate more than $20 million worth of chloroform-containing products will be sold and ingested by the American public because of FDA's failure to take immediate action," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of the group.

Dr. Alexander Schmidt, FDA commissioner, discounted the danger and said the animal tests which prompted the ban "by no means prove that chloroform induces cancer in humans."

More than 80 per cent of the use of chloroform in drug products is in cough medicines, the FDA said.

But Ralph Nader's Health Research Group attacked Tuesday's Food and Drug Administration decision as "lawless the Republican primary.

"The amount fed to the test animals exceeds by far the amount to which any person could be exposed with present products."

Chloroform originally was added to drugs because of the belief it had medicinal properties.

Chip Carter wants to watch Dad fire Butz

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter made a campaign promise to his son, Chip, and Chip, 26, says that one promise is one of the big reasons he's campaigning for his father.

the Texas ballot in all 31 districts, although Fred Harris, Ellen McCormack and uncommitted slates were listed in some selected districts.

"I think there's a new majority of Republicans, Democrats and Americans who want to change what's been going on in Washington," he told a airport crowd of several thousand Tuesday.

"Dad has promised me as a reward for campaigning I can be with him the first hour he's in the White House when he fires Earl Butz. Then I'll go back to farming," said the younger Carter.

The younger Carter spoke only briefly of Wallace and Bentsen, saying he did not believe either had a chance to win the Democratic nomination.

"I don't have anything against Sen. Bentsen at all," he said.

Chip, campaigning in Texas Tuesday, said he was an apprentice peanut farmer who lived two trailers down from the post office in Plains, Ga. He campaigned in Austin, San Antonio and Houston and said other relatives would also campaign in Texas.

"I don't think there is any way he can get the nomination or have any great influence on the nomination."

Reagan said he was satisfied with the returns from the Wisconsin and New York primaries.

"Ford's people were predicting at least two thirds of the vote and we would be happy with 30 per cent. Right now, they show us with somewhere in the 40s which we consider a victory. We're delighted."

Reagan spent two days appealing to Texas voters before leaving the state. He made stops in Wichita Falls, Abilene and Dallas before heading for Lubbock. At each stop he attacked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for being weak in dealings with the Soviet Union and Cuba.

Reagan said although he did not anticipate doing well in either Wisconsin or New York, he did expect a strong finish in the Texas presidential primary May 1.

"If we were No. 1 in military strength in the world we would know that Mr. Ford's branding Castro an 'international outlaw' and Dr. Kissinger's warnings to the Cubans to forego further African adventures would be more than just words," Reagan said.

Reagan supporters already have said Reagan would defeat the President in Texas.

"In fact, we would have seen them backed by actions by now."

"I just had pancakes in Abilene with 7,000 supporters and now this tonight," he said.

"It certainly makes a fellow feel good."

Prisoners released at hijackers' demand

MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) — Authorities today released two prisoners and collected $300,000 in ransom money to meet the demands of three hijackers who threatened to kill 76 hostages aboard a Philippine Airlines jet.

passengers if the demands were not met within two hours. The deadline passed, but authorities said they would meet the demands.

It was not immediately clear whether the two spoke by radio to the hijackers, but a source monitoring the conversations quoted one of the hijackers as warning: "If you harm the detainees, something will happen to the passengers."

"We cannot compromise the passengers' lives, we are raising the money right now," said Philippine Airlines Vice President Rafael Igoa.

Igoa said the 70 passengers and six crew members aboard the plane were given hot food and were generally "comfortable and fine."

An American, Embassy representative arrived at the airport to check on the identity of a foreign passenger listed as F. Schroeder, believed to be an American.

One of the passengers was believed to be an American.

Military spokesman Lt. Col. Pablo Gonzales told reporters the hijackers were "the toughest yet" and had not fallen for any police ploys that would reveal what weapons they were carrying, their names, or their intended destination.

The hijackers kept his face hidden by a handkerchief.

The blue-jean clad hijackers, described as "the toughest yet," commandeered the twin-engine jet today during a flight from Manila to Cagayan de Oro, about 500 miles south.

Igoa said an airline employee, who took the food aboard, reported all three were wearing jeans. The spokesmen for the hijackers kept his face hidden by a handkerchief.

The two prisoners brought to the airport operations center were identified as Emilio Abarca, who surrendered to authorities after a similar hijacking in 1975, and Ali Haapar, an ex-police lieutenant accused of desertion and treason.

The plane returned to Manila International Airport where the hijackers, communicating by radio, demanded the release of four prisoners, $300,000 and a flight "westwards."

Twin's dad still wanted

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Police said today they have few leads in the search for Willie Cates, the alleged father of Siamese twins, who is wanted for the murder of a 19-year-old man.

he took one of the twins, Millie Lula, from St. Joseph Hospital in February following surgery to separate her from her sister, Anna Marie.

A police spokesman said the search for the 21-year-old suspect was extended to Oklahoma, where he has relatives, but "there's nothing new."

Authorities said the 5-month-old girl has been in Cates' care since he sped from the hospital with her. Her sister is in a foster home pending outcome of a custody trial.

Police said witnesses identified Cates as the man who shot Michael E. Fair with a sawed-off shotgun Monday in a parking lot east of the downtown area.

A juvenile court judge ordered a blood test for Cates Friday to determine if he is the natural father. The mother, Ruth Ann Montano, who is married to another man, moved to Colorado after the twins' birth Nov. 7.

Ivory Joe Revels, 21, Wichita, was charged with aiding the suspect. Police said Revels and two women accompanied Cates in a car to a street near the shooting scene.

The girls were joined at the abdomen and shared a liver. A surgical team separated them about five weeks after their birth.

Override vote to be close

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The vote could be close if congressional leaders try to override President Ford's veto of a bill authorizing $125 million to help states meet new federal standards for day care centers.

Senate vote was closer — 65 to 34, with 11 not voting. It takes 67 votes to override a veto in the Senate if all members vote.

Congress has until May 4 to vote on overriding or let the veto stand.

Ford said he vetoed the bill because it would be too expensive and cause "unwarranted federal interference" in states' rights.

The death of the bill would subject states to the old deadline and penalties would be retroactive to those dates.

Backers of the bill claimed the penalties would force laying off former welfare mothers employed at the centers as well as forcing a cut in the number of children served, which would mean some working women would have to quit their jobs to take care of their children.

Crime increases in rural localities

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Heavily populated rural areas near major cities have the fastest rising crime rate in Texas, according to the Department of Public Safety.

compared to 14.6 per cent for urban areas. The increase in rural crime was attributed primarily to burglaries and auto thefts, Speir said.

FBI find may be robbery weapon

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — An FBI agent says a pistol found in Patricia Hearst's San Francisco apartment resembled one carried by a bandit in a bank robbery in Sacramento.

Emily Harris. Keys said an expert would testify the ammunition and cartridges were made by the same machine. The cartridges were found on the floor of the Crocker National Bank branch in suburban Carmichael after the April 21, 1975 robbery.

Firm's holdings seized

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The government has taken over the $25 million Venezuelan holdings of Owens Illinois, saying the American company offended the dignity of Venezuela by bowing to the demands of leftist guerrillas holding a company executive.

The government took the unprecedented action Tuesday after the charges were published in New York and London newspapers.

Interior Minister Octavio Lepage said in a communique the publication of the charges "offends the dignity of the country, propitiates the subversion of constitutional order and ignores the legitimacy of national institutions."

The guerrillas had threatened to kill William Niehaus, 45, unless Owens Illinois printed charges the glass company had engaged in "political and economic espionage" and bribery of Venezuelan government officials and congressmen.

Cadets probed for cheating

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — More than 100 West Point cadets are under investigation for "collaboration" on a barracks study assignment in what may be the latest cheating scandal to shake the U.S. Military Academy.

Garigan made the statement after The New York Times said it learned of the inquiry in a telephone call from a person identifying himself as a cadet.

Other West Point officials said the number of cadets actually involved was expected to be fewer than the 114 cadets which the telephone caller said were involved.

Expulsion from the academy could result, if recommended by the academy superintendent and approved by the Secretary of the Army.

SF workers strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Organized labor has vowed to bring San Francisco business to a "grinding halt" through a call for a general strike by all city unions unless wage demands of the 1,710 striking crafts workers are met.

The Board of Supervisors and Mayor George Moscone expressed doubt that rank-and-file union members would support such an action—which hasn't occurred since a general strike called by dockworkers in 1934 turned the city into a labor stronghold.

pace, with labor leaders Tuesday night presenting a four-part proposal to the city, including a demand for an "impartial" city negotiator, an obvious reference to union disagreements with Patrick Mahler, the supervisors' choice.

Food stamp compromise near

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A coalition of liberal senators have decided to compromise on their effort to provide free food stamps for the needy.

The compromise, endorsed by Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., would lower the cost of the stamps from 27.5 per cent to 25 per cent of net income. The administration had proposed to charge eligible persons 30 per cent of net income for the coupons.

requirement, making the stamps free for all who qualify. But they abandoned those plans in exchange for Talmadge's support of other changes that substantially lessen the projected savings but still close loopholes to reduce abuses that have brought the program under fire.

Talmadge said he agreed to the other changes because he feared the free stamp amendment would be adopted and President Ford "surely would veto" the bill as a result.

He called free stamps the first step to a guaranteed income. The compromise authorizes a $20 million pilot program to try eliminating the cash requirements in selected counties to determine its feasibility.

At present, a household must pay a certain amount of cash before it receives additional free, or "bonus," stamps. Several senators, led by George McGovern, D-S.D., and Robert Dole, R-Kan., had intended to fight to eliminate the purchase

School board meeting today

The Pampa Independent School District will convene at 4 p.m. today for a called session in the conference room of Carver Educational Service Center.

Debate on the compromise was set for today when the Senate resumes debate on a food stamp reform bill. The $5.8 billion program helps feed 19 million persons.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Sunday School teacher. One of my pupils' mothers told me that a few years ago you had something in your column in reply to a child who had lost his baby brother. She said your answer explained death beautifully on a child's level. If you recall such a letter, I would appreciate your printing it again.

LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES CHILDREN: I do recall such a letter because of the many requests I had from clergymen requesting permission to reprint it in their church bulletins. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My Sunday School teacher says that God is everywhere. Please put this letter in the paper and maybe he will see it:

Dear God: Why did you let my brother die? When he was hit by the car my mother prayed to you to let him live but you wouldn't. My little brother was only 2 years old, and he couldn't have sinned so bad that you had to punish him that way. Everyone says you are good and can do anything you want to do. You could have saved my little brother, but you let him die. You broke my mother's heart. How can I love you?

PETER

DEAR PETER: Your question is one that has troubled religious men for thousands of years. One great thinker wrote a book about it. It is called "Job" and is part of the Bible. It says that the suffering of innocent people is something we cannot understand.

But this much is sure: Death is not a punishment. It is one of life's mysteries. Speak to your minister, Peter. Communicate with God by praying, and He will help you in your search for wisdom and goodness, and make your Mommy happy again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband plays cards with the boys one night a week. Whenever I ask him how he came out, he says, "Oh, I broke even."

Abby, it's not possible to break even every time. Do you think he keeps his losses a secret because he's ashamed or because he thinks I'll try to keep him from playing if he loses too much? On the other hand, could he keep his winnings a secret because he's afraid I'll ask him for part of his winnings?

FAYE

DEAR FAYE: Both

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me why I change my handwriting from day to day? It's beginning to bother me.

One day I'll slant my writing to the left, and the next day I'll slant it to the right. Some days it's straight up and down.

Then there are days when I feel like spreading the letters out, and other days I write with the letters all crunched up close together. It's to the point where I can't identify my own handwriting.

I'm a legal secretary for a reputable law firm, and I've been asked lately, "Is this your handwriting?"

WORRIED OUT EAST

DEAR WORRIED: Graphologists tell us that one's handwriting reflects one's personality and character, and possibly the state of one's mind. If I were you I'd consult a psychiatrist.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently there has been quite a controversy among my friends about yogurt. They know how fond I am of it and that I eat it daily. Several mentioned it causes cataracts. They stated it had something to do with the preparation. I hope we don't have to worry about that too.

DEAR READER — There is some experimental evidence that rats on a yogurt diet develop cataracts. The rats studied, however, ate essentially nothing but yogurt and I presume that your diet does include other things.

The theory advanced was that the double sugar, lactose, found in milk and milk products was responsible for the development of cataracts in rats.

The scientists reporting the study stated that they thought commercial yogurt was more likely to do that than natural or homemade yogurt. They pointed out that commercial yogurt is made by adding dry milk powder to the yogurt to thicken it. This "enriched" yogurt preparation then contains far more lactose than ordinary milk and milk products.

There is no evidence that human beings eating even a large amount of yogurt develop cataracts on that basis. It is a very, very big jump from rats on a strictly yogurt diet to human beings eating yogurt as part of their diet. In view of the meager evidence available I am content to tell you that you need not worry about the problem of cataracts from this source.

For more information on double sugars and milk send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mail.

Hint from Heloise

Dear Heloise: I am trying to decide if I should put carpet in my kitchen. With all the spills that take place, is kitchen carpet practical?

Mrs. Peggy Parks

Dear Peggy: The experts at the Carpet and Rug Institute told me that kitchen carpet was being used in more and more homes.

They said at one time many people shared your fear of spills but, after they had their carpet installed, spills had not been a problem.

"Most spills can be wiped up if worked on immediately by blotting with paper towels and then flushing the remainder with water. You will find many spills don't even take place as a glass jar dropped on the soft carpet is not as apt to break.

"Also, you will like that wonderful softness underfoot as it will keep your legs from getting as tired as you stand at the sink. (Betcha you'll find yourself ironing there, too. That is, if you still iron.)

"The kitchen will be a quieter place to work as well, as the carpet will help to absorb some of the noise from the pots and pans, etc."

I think you'll find a kitchen carpet not only beautiful, but practical as well, as it will give you years of service.

Soviet fashion barriers down

MOSCOW (UPI) — Blue jeans in the West are a symbol of the restless, carefree young — the great levellers that make all men and women sartorially equal.

But in the Soviet Union a pair of blue "dzhinsy" is often prized as a status symbol by the few — and unavailable to the many. For years, it signaled someone if not Western in outlook at least having access to the forbidden fruits of capitalism.

Jeans and long hair used to be regularly assaulted in the press as being representative of capitalist decadence, but the ideological objections are fading.

The Soviet Union even makes its own jeans nowadays, although in insufficient quantity to satisfy demand.

But jeans are slowly becoming more generally available, thanks to imports from East European countries, and India.

Buyers prefer the imports because Soviet jeans look too much like jeans were originally supposed to look — like functional work pants. Two-tone, bell-bottomed Polish jeans are much more popular. An Indian brand called "vaquero," which has a made-in-America look, is very popular but hard to find.

The real thing from the United States still has definite snob value. A pair of authentic brass-riveted, leather-labeled denims from America is so sought after that people will pay up to 50 rubles ($65) on the black market for a San Francisco label rather than 12 rubles ($15.60) for a Bulgarian substitute in the Tsum Tsum department store.

Genuine Levis seem to be de rigueur among the sons and daughters of the ruling, military and police elite, whose fathers can travel abroad or have access to Western goods through special stores closed to the public. Jewish dissidents who get parcels from abroad also tend to sport them.

The West's tattered, frayed and patched jeans are seen here less frequently. Since dzhinsy are more expensive and hard to get, they tend to be worn more as an article of fashion than of protest. Jeans suits are particularly prized, and are as likely to be the smartly pressed garb of a middle executive or scientist as the uniform of the wealthier college generation.

Dzhinsy are still a phenomenon of the big cities, where stores are better stocked than in the provinces.

Outside the major population centers, people must take what's available. The uniform for provincial Russians still seems to be black serge suits and plastic sandals for men and print dresses for women.

The fad of super-tight jeans may never catch on here, if only because Russians usually prefer comfort to fashion.

And though fashion barriers are coming down, there is still some residual official wariness about jeans and other western modes.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda last year warned its readers that bourgeois propaganda "under the slogan of 'modern style' tries to instill ways which are morally hostile to our socialist way of life." Jeans? It could have been.

But at the same time it said old people should not try to impose their habits "with regard to the fashion and appearance of our youth."

It told young people, on the other hand, not to impoverish themselves "by reducing all the problems of life to the question of your own appearance."

As an indication of the developing freedom in fashion, the young Communists newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda recently published letters from readers complaining about the shortages of fashionable clothing — and above all, jeans.

But the way the consumer goods industry works here, it could take years before supply catches up with demand, by which time jeans may be out of fashion anyway.

One young lady wrote to Komsomolskaya Pravda that "after seeing foreign films, we often discuss how people dress and come to the conclusion that we will never get clothes like that."

As fashionable clothes do become more generally available, one demeaning aspect of Soviet life appears to be on the wane — the practice of trying to buy clothes off the backs of tourists.

To anyone receiving an offer they can't refuse for their jeans — or anything else — the best word of advice is "don't." Soviet sources say secret police still make black market offers as a way of framing foreigners.

Laurent shakes up Paris by showing full skirts

PARIS (UPI) — Designer Yves Saint Laurent shook up the Paris fashion scene today by bringing back full skirts in a winter ready-to-wear collection that resembled a Russian-Mongolian folk tale.

The long Saint Laurent show of more than 200 models upset the narrow look of recent years with billowing mid-calf skirts and full sleeved peasant blouses that must have burned up more fabric than the combined other fashion collections in the two-week shows.

The collection presented at the Palais de Congress convention hall could have suited Moscow's Moiseyev folk dance troupe. It was a combination of Russian, Mongolian and Tadzhikistan with a touch of Morocco thrown in.

Thousands of press and buyers cheered until Saint Laurent himself came out for a bow. Some applauding viewers gasped. "Yves is the most incredible talent in Paris."

But will women want to look like a Volga peasant in cartwheel skirt, braided bolero, full-sleeved peasant blouse, fringed shawl, Mongolian fur cap, pigtail and tassel belt?

A fashion critic from the Paris prestigious newspaper Le Figaro exclaimed, "Beautiful costumes. But a woman could not wear them more than once."

However, buyers from the Sakowitz department store of Texas said, "Women first of all are ready for a change to full skirts after years of the narrow look. And the beautiful folklore will sell."

The show started with the radical full skirts teamed with huge fringed shawl wraps or swirling Moroccan caftans with tassels hanging from the hoods.

The full-sleeved peasant blouses came in different prints — sometimes two — and the Russian babushka scarves tied over the head were still in other prints of vivid blues and purples of oranges and yellows.

Cocktail dresses were peasant outfits on brilliant silk prints with glittering colored lame knotted turbans on the mannequin's heads.

Farmers arthritis victims

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Physical labor and bad working conditions make farmers likely candidates for arthritis, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

Farmers are frequent victims of osteoarthritis, a degenerative form of the disease associated with aging. Dr. Bruce Bartholomew, rheumatologist for the Texas Tech University medical school and an Arthritis Foundation official, said Monday.

"Farmers' joints are frequently under stress because of tough physical labor, keeping them in a state of trauma which increases degenerative tendencies," Bartholomew said. "The hard work and the conditions under which they do it cause them to be high risk candidates for the disease."

Officials said the prevalence of arthritis among farmers contributes to the high number of persons afflicted in agricultural West Texas, estimated at 125,000.

Matt Malouf and Jody Eirhart, co-chairman of the West

Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, Plains Division, said arthritis victims were robbed of over $485 million last year alone on so-called quack cures and remedies.

"Over $31,038,250 was spent by victims in West Texas," Mrs. Eirhart said.

Malouf said arthritis is not just an old person's disease.

"It affects young adults and children every year," Malouf said. "There are 2,187 arthritis sufferers disabled by the disease in West Texas."

Pampa crushes PD

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Pampa scored 10 runs in the first inning, including four on suicide squeeze bunts, and waited to a 13-3 win over Amarillo Palo Duro in a District 3-AAAA baseball contest Tuesday at Optimist Park.

The win snaps a three-game Harvester losing streak and gives Pampa a 9-8 season record. Palo Duro is now 6-7 overall.

David Edwards, Brian Bailey, Bobby Taylor and Bobby Chance all bunted in runs in Pampa's half of the first inning.

The Harvesters, now 1-3 in the first half of district play, collected eight hits in the inning.

Palo Duro got one of the runs back in the top of the fourth as Mark Gilley knocked in Curtis Sinclair with a base hit. The Dons added another run in the fifth as Bill McElduff tripled, then scored on a single by Perry Sanders.

A three-run homerun by Mike Martin in the bottom of the fifth gave the hosts a 13-2 lead. Palo Duro rounded out the scoring with a run in the sixth.

"We needed to win," Pampa Coach Ronnie White said. "We needed to hit the ball and we did. We'd gone two games with not too many hits."

Pampa managed a total of 12 hits off starter McElduff and Oran Rogers, who relieved in the bottom of the sixth. McElduff, who gave up 10 of the hits, dropped to 1-5 on the season.

Winning pitcher was Edwards (3-1), who gave up eight hits and two walks and struck out seven.

White was happy with his team's ability to bunt, which was part of a game plan.

"The whole idea behind it when I started this line of thinking Thursday was that we hadn't been scoring runs. We'd been within a base hit of winning it or putting the pitcher on the ropes.

"So we decided we'd bunt and gamble and try to score. If it works, it looks great and if it doesn't, I look like the goat of the world. It worked this time."

Pampa hosts red-hot Amarillo High Friday. The Sandies won their 13th game in a row in a 12-3 rout over Amarillo Tascosa Tuesday. In Tuesday's only other district action, Borger upset Amarillo Caprock, 13-3.

Scoring position

Keith Fisher (12) and Dave Edwards advance to third and second base, respectively, on a fielder's choice. Both runners eventually scored in Pampa's 10-run first inning against Palo Duro.

3-AAAA girls hold meet

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Blessed with more relay talent than you can shake a baton at and owning scoring threats in every event, depth-laden Amarillo High looms as the team favorite in the District 3-AAAA Girls Track Meet, which began at 10 a.m. today in Bivins Stadium.

Running event preliminaries and finals in the field events were held early today. Running event finals will begin at 3:30 p.m.

Defending champion Amarillo High, which owns the three fasta relay times based on spring performances, is the team to beat, but Sandie Coach Diane Ellis expects pressure from Amarillo Tascosa and Pampa.

"Tascosa and Pampa will have very strong individual people. We don't have real strong individual people but we've got a lot of depth on the team. I would hope that we can get some points in everything," Mrs. Ellis said.

Unless disaster strikes in the form of a disqualification or dropped baton, Amarillo High will likely finish high in all three relay events. The Sandies own the three-fastest times of teams entered — 50.1 in the 440, 1:46.4 in the 880 and 4:09.9 in the mile.

Sprint — strong Tascosa should press the Sandies in the 440- and 880-yard relays. The Rebels have run 50.4 and 1:56.5.

Tascosa's sprinters includes Vickie Welch, the favorite in the 60 (7.0) and a threat in the 100 (11.0). Amarillo Palo Duro's Falecia Freeman is the favorite in the latter event (10.8) and the 220 (25.1).

In the long jump Freeman (17-6 1/4), Welch (17-6), Tascosa's Karen Cooley (17-4) and Pampa's Barbara Faggins (16-6 1/4) are the top contenders, while in the triple jump Cooley (36-0 1/4), Amarillo's Frances Watson (35-2 1/4) and Freeman lead the field.

Discus and shot put favorites are Tascosa's Debra Rogers (116-11) and Amarillo's Donna Neal (35-8 1/4), respectively.

Kristi Knapp is Amarillo Caprock's top individual, having high jumped 5-4 1/4, the best pre-meet mark. She has also run 11.4 in the 80-yard hurdles.

Pampa's Sherry Kimbell is the hurdle favorite with a 10.8 this year. Her biggest challengers are Knapp and Borger's Barb Dawson (11.3).

Sue Smith of Pampa has the fastest 880 time — a 2:25.4, which set a meet record in Friday's Amarillo Relays preliminaries. Joanna Fuhrback of Amarillo (2:31.2) and Tascosa's Patricia Sutton (2:32.4) should be Smith's fastest competition.

Julie Currey and Lorie Scott give the Sandies two threats in the 440, having run 59.5 and 60.7, respectively.

"I hope both of them can qualify for regional (by finishing either first or second). I'm also thinking that unless we get disqualified all three of my relay teams should qualify," Mrs. Ellis said.

"I'm hoping France Watson will win in the triple jump. I'm depending on points and depth, though, and not necessarily winning first or second place in every event. We just don't have a lot of real strong individuals."

Tascosa Coach Jo Meaker predicts that her team will take Amarillo down to the wire going into the mile relay.

"We do have a good chance. We're strong in the field events and we have a few individuals in the running events that ought to do well," Miss Meaker said.

Pampa Coach Betty Chamberlain isn't so optimistic.

"We've got to make the finals in everything to have a chance. Our best chances are in the hurdles and 880."

Pampa's Cindy Young (7.2 and 11.5) should be a threat in the 60 and 100.

B-teams from the six district schools will compete in a separate division.

Green hottest in field

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Hubert Green isn't all that thrilled by the fan recognition that goes with winning three golf tournaments in a row.

"There are a few freaks who stop me in the street," said the outspoken Green. "But most are politer than that."

"Anyway," he continued, "the big thing to me is not the recognition I get from the fans, but the recognition I get from the other guys out here on the tour. They're the ones who know what it's all about."

Green came to the 1976 Masters, which begins its four-day run Thursday over the famed Augusta National, as the hottest golfer around.

He won the Doral Open, the Greater Jacksonville Open and the Heritage Classic on successive weekends, earning a record $118,000 in that span, then skipped last week's Greater Greensboro Open to get in some early practice here.

Green said earlier another reason for skipping Greensboro was to allow time to adjust his game for play on the Augusta National, a course that favors golfers like five-time champ Jack Nicklaus, who hits the ball far, high and from left to right. "That's a lot of bank," said Tom Weiskopf, who has been second in the Masters four times in the past seven years.

Nicklaus returned Tuesday after spending the weekend at home in Florida and complained he didn't play as well as he would have liked during practice sessions here last week.

"There are some things that I am not particularly pleased with," said the Masters' defending champion. "But I like to feel that I relearn the things I need to know to win each year when I come here."

San Francisco says game must go on

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants say they will open the National League season as scheduled Friday against the Los Angeles Dodgers even if the strike by city workers continues at Candlestick Park.

The Giants, with owner Bob Lurie doing most of the talking, are seeking a three-day moratorium from the striking union so that the club can provide full services for a three-game weekend series with the Dodgers that is expected to draw over 100,000 fans.

"That would really be in the public interest," said Lurie of his proposed three-day moratorium. "I think the strikers would gain a lot of support from the public at large with a gesture like that."

Pickets outside of Candlestick Park, a city-owned facility, said Tuesday they were in favor of a moratorium if their leadership agrees.

"I don't think there is one man among us who would disagree," said one picket. "We know how hard Mr. Lurie worked to keep the Giants in San Francisco and I think the team deserves all the help it can get, even from us."

But, Lurie said, he will open the park for baseball on Friday no matter what.

Giants' fans are rallying behind a battle cry—"Back the Giants, Sack the Dodgers." Dodger fans have their cry—"We're happy you're staying in San Francisco. We plan to celebrate by blowing out your candles starting April 9."

It's almost like the "good old days" when the two clubs were based in Brooklyn and Manhattan and their fans were the most dedicated in all of baseball.

Exhibition roundup Boston trims team roster

By BILL MADDEN
UPI Sports Writer

The pitcher Boston Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson entrusted with preserving a ninth-inning 3-3 tie against the Cincinnati Reds in the seventh game of the 1975 World Series, today finds himself back in the minor leagues.

Jim Burton, the rookie southpaw, who gave up the decisive run in last fall's dramatic World Series, was among four players cut Tuesday as the American League champions got down to the 25-man, opening-day player limit.

Along with Burton, who was sent to Pawtucket of the International League, the Red Sox cut catcher Tim Blackwell and outfielder John Balaz, while veteran right-handed reliever Diego Segui was released unconditionally.

The roster cuts enabled the Red Sox to retain designated hitter Deron Johnson. Because of a rule technicality, they were forced to sell Johnson to the Chicago White Sox a year ago and the 36-year-old veteran responded with 72 runs-batted-in before being re-acquired by Boston in September.

Elsewhere around the spring training circuit:

Back-to-back homers by Mike Ivie and Hector Torres off Jim Colborn enabled the San Diego Padres to topple the Milwaukee Brewers, 7-1. Manny Sanguilen, Fran Taveras and Al Oliver pounded eighth-inning homers off relief ace Al Hrabosky as the Pittsburgh Pirates routed the St. Louis Cardinals, 10-6. Steve Garvey banged out a double and two singles and Mike Marshall hurried three shutout innings of relief to spark a 6-2 victory by the Los Angeles Dodgers over the Oakland A's.

Kemp to speak

The Bob Price Campaign headquarters in Pampa announced today that Congressman Jack Kemp of college and professional football fame will be the featured speaker for a Republican fund raising dinner honoring former Congressman Bob Price who is seeking re-election to the post he lost in 1974. The event will be April 22 at the Amarillo Villa Hotel Convention Center on I-40. The evening will start with a reception at 6:30 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m., and the program at 8:15 p.m. Congressman Kemp of New York is serving his third term in the U.S. House of Representatives. He won his first term in November 1970 in his bid for public office at the age of 35.

Kite flying could be hazardous to health

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kite flying could be hazardous to your health. The Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Monday that more than 30,000 aluminum-coated kites are being recalled because their tails, if they touch power lines, could pose a severe shock hazard. The kites, coated with aluminum or aluminum stripes, had tails which were 25 feet or more long. The commission issued a notice last fall saying the kites posed two types of "severe" potential injury — shocks to persons touching the tail itself after it came into contact with a power line, or power surges and short circuiting to household appliances from kites snared in high voltage lines. No injuries have been reported but at least two power blackouts were blamed on kites tangling with high wires.

Lifeline goes off air

DALLAS (UPI) — The voice came over the radio as it had thousands of times in the past 17 years:

"This is Lifeline. Melvin Munn with Freedom Talk Number 94. Today's talk entitled: 'Farewell But Never Goodbye.'"

Only this time the subject was different. The subject was the end of the daily talks on "the conservative point of view" which liberals decried as ill-informed right-wingism and supporters like the late oil titan H. L. Hunt considered the voice of patriotism piercing America's ever-accumulating leftist gloom.

"I told them I was going off the air but still would be working and fighting wherever I was," said Munn, 60, who has been the sole commentator on the Lifeline opinion broadcast since 1965.

Freedom Talk Number 94, Munn's last broadcast, was heard over Lifeline stations April 3-4.

The broadcasts began in 1958. At the peak of its popularity in 1971, the show went out to more than 500 radio stations across the country. Munn estimates he was reaching 8 to 11 million people.

But in the last few years, that audience had declined to 2 to 3 million over 120 stations. Munn moved his operations from a downtown Dallas studio to his home.

"We strove to maintain high moral dignity and decency and honor in life," Munn said. "Lifeline was the conservative point of view, if you please, brought into modern life. We did not want to go backwards, but forwards with the standards that made us great in the first place."

Munn says that way of thinking was necessary to counter the "liberal activists" who control the media.

"I think the liberal point of view has a stranglehold on the mass media. There's no real conservative voice in the media — no alternative to the liberal viewpoint... no matter how irresponsible theirs may be."

Munn says liberals always attacked him by emphasizing the program's sponsorship by H.L.H. Foods, owned by billionaire Hunt, as the pervasive conservative influence behind the show.

"Hunt was the biggest booster, but he never tried to influence the script," Munn said. "He believed in what we were doing and he was on our board, but he never went on the air. There was nobody between me and the microphone. "Yet the press had no interest in the program except for Hunt."

Typical of the liberal press misrepresentation, Munn said, was a CBS "Sixty Minutes" feature on Hunt in which commentator Mike Wallace mentioned that Hunt had absolute control over Lifeline.

"I answered him in a talk entitled 'Come Now Mike Wallace' in which I said he was grossly inaccurate and indecent," Munn said. "I said,

'You knew better, Mike. I said, 'Mike, you're under the control of CBS executives while I have no one — Mr. Hunt included — looking over my shoulder.' "This is just the type of thing they (the liberal media) have always done to us."

In the end it was not the liberals, but postal increases that forced the show off the air.

"We printed copies of our broadcast and had phonograph records, books and tapes — all patriotic in nature. The mail order sales kept us in the black, but the postal increases last year were the last straw."

And Munn sees no conservative opinion broadcast filling the void.

Town of Terlingua sold for $45,000

ALPINE, Tex. (UPI) — The crumbling ghost town of Terlingua, Tex., site of the annual World Champion Chili Cookoff and a favorite haunt of buzzards, coyotes and rattlesnakes, has been sold for $45,000.

"We don't intend to develop it," said Bill McNair of Terramar Corp., a Corpus Christi, Tex., land development firm, which purchased the ghost town Tuesday in a deal finalized on the steps of the Brewster County Courthouse.

"We'll try to resell it and we'd like to see someone restore it," Terlingua was founded in the early 1920s as a mercury mining town. At its height, the town had 2,500 residents, a church, school and company store. But the bottom fell out of the mercury market after World War II and the town was abandoned. There are still 40-50 buildings in various stages of ruin.

The 600 acres of ghost town and adjoining land in Texas' arid Big Bend has been the site for nine years of the chili cookoff. More than 15,000

She won't settle suit against UT out of court

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A woman who has filed suit against the University of Texas says she will not accept a $27,500 out-of-court settlement of her sex discrimination complaint.

Attorneys representing Janet Berry said Monday, however, they were uncertain what impact her refusal would have in preventing the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from settling.

"Promotion is the issue here," said Ms. Berry's attorney, Bobbie Nelson. "Not being promoted is going to affect Janet wherever she goes. We will not agree to it."

HEW attorneys began a hearing Monday to compel UT to comply with guidelines against sex discrimination. If HEW is successful, UT could lose $20 million in federal contracts.

Ms. Berry, 41, filed a complaint in 1971 alleging she was not promoted because of her sex. She said sex discrimination had cost her $51,000 since she joined the university in 1964. UT said it required associate professors to have a doctorate degree and Ms. Berry was not promoted because she had not completed her Ph.D.

Attorneys said, however, a male teacher was promoted in the UT art department without a doctorate.

Ms. Berry indicated she would not accept a settlement without a promotion.

"Staying at assistant professor forever would be a real financial hazard," she said. "One of the things that's going is that they are trying to get me to drop a federal suit. That would be signing away my legal rights. They can't make me do it."

In addition to the discrimination complaint, Ms. Berry's attorneys are suing the school and HEW for failing to protect her rights.

The suit claims Ms. Berry was intimidated and ostracized and her husband fired from his university job because of her complaint.

Shakespearean director dies

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Shakespearean director B. Iden Payne directed the Broadway debuts of Helen Hayes and John Barrymore, but he decided he preferred educational theater.

"I find it much more pleasurable to work with student performers," Payne told an interviewer. "Older actors are so set in their ways." He disliked calling student actors amateurs, however, preferring to call them apprentices.

Payne, professor emeritus of drama at the University of Texas, died Tuesday. A memorial service for Payne, 94, is planned later in the week.

He is survived by his widow, Barbara; three children, and two grandchildren.

News about people

By United Press International
BUENDORF SURPRISED
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Larry Buendorf, the Secret Service agent who thwarted Lynette Fromme's attempt to shoot President Ford in September, says he was surprised to receive the Treasury Department's Meritorious Service Award.

"I'm amazed," the 39-year-old agent said Monday. "I wasn't expecting this."

In a ceremony before other agents and Treasury officials, Treasury Secretary William Simon presented him with an award for "outstanding bravery and unusually competent action."

Simon also read a letter from Ford thanking Buendorf for saving his life.

HAMILTON TO DIVORCE
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor George Hamilton said Monday he will divorce his wife, Alana, this week.

Hamilton and the former model were married Oct. 19, 1971. They are parents of a 20-month-old son, Ashley. It was the first marriage for both.

"Alana wants a career," Hamilton said. "And I want a home, family and a full-time wife. There is no bitterness or hard feeling. It's just that we seek different life styles."

THOMAS INJURED
CONWAY, Ark. (UPI) — Actor Richard Thomas, filming a movie about the day actor James Dean was killed in an auto accident, broke his ankle in a traffic injury Monday.

Thomas, best known as "John Boy" in the television series "The Waltons," was injured in a motorcycle accident during filming of the Universal motion picture "9-30-55."

HUSSEIN SPEAKS
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — King Hussein's speech to a foreign affairs group today was billed as a "major policy address."

The Jordanian monarch, accompanied by Queen Alia, their two children and Prime Minister Zeid Rifai, has been in California since last week.

Hussein was to speak to the Los Angeles World Affairs Council at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

DALITZ CANT SUE
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Moe Dalitz, once described by a congressional committee as a racketeer with organized crime connections, cannot sue Penthouse magazine for libel, Superior Court Judge Thomas La Sage ruled Monday.

Dalitz, 76, and Allan Roen, once convicted in connection with a stock swindle, were dismissed as plaintiffs in a libel suit against Penthouse for an article that described the Rancho La Costa Country Club as "a gathering place of thieves and hoods."

The judge ruled they were "clearly public figures" under prevailing libel laws. But he ruled the club itself and two of its officers, Mervyn Adelson and Irwin Molasky, could press on with the $540 million suit against Penthouse and the writers of the article.

SOCIAL POLICY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Methodist Church's Board for Church and Society has reaffirmed a proposal to change the denomination's statement of social policy, giving the church a more open stance toward homosexuals, but refused to endorse a statement calling for equal rights for homosexuals because it might open the way to ordination of gays.

DOG SHOWS
CHICAGO (UPI) — More than 600,000 children 4 to 14 years old are expected to take part in the second annual Kids Dog Show program this year, compared with more than 400,000 youngsters last year. The April-December program is sponsored jointly by the National Recreation and Park Association and a dog food manufacturer.

A survey shows that 43 per cent of this year's home gardeners also gardened last year.

Narrow bridges hold dangers

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The possibility of cars tumbling from collapsed bridges exists in Texas, but a former highway engineer warns the traveler's greatest risk is meeting a truck headon in the middle of a narrow span.

Road Information Program president J.C. Dingwall, a former state highway engineer, said Monday Texas had 5,346 structurally deficient or obsolete bridges in use and many others were deteriorating rapidly.

"The most serious category of deficiency involves 54 bridges that are too weak structurally to handle the maximum vehicle weights and traffic volume on connecting roads," said Dingwall, recommending all 54 be replaced.

But he said the greatest danger was from 1,600 bridges which were no more than 20 feet wide.

"When you meet a large vehicle on a 20-foot bridge going 50 miles an hour, you really have to grab the steering wheel hard," he said. "There is much more danger in narrow bridges than in structurally deficient bridges."

Dingwall said the state needed to spend $1 billion to rebuild its bridge system and prevent the risk of a major bridge accident.

He said the state had 54,555 road bridges and almost 10 per cent were deficient. He said the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation was running out of money to rebuild the structures, and after 1980 may have money sufficient only to maintain existing roads and bridges.

Dingwall said most Texas bridges were built before 1940, and were expected to last 50 years.

"As we go on down the road in the next 15 to 20 years, those bridges are going to get progressively worse," he said. "That doesn't mean they're going to fall down tomorrow. But most bridges simply wear out from fatigue."

He said a study conducted by the Road Information Program estimated it would cost $845.7 million to restore the 2,618 most seriously deficient bridges. The estimated cost was based on 1974 bridge replacement costs, however, and Dingwall said construction costs escalated 15 per cent per year from 1970 to 1975.

Says RR commission stalls

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A railroad commission candidate says the commission is costing consumers millions of dollars by holding hearings on Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.'s gas "banking" practices.

"It is time for the railroad commission to make a decision instead of sending a commission employe to stall for more time," said Houston attorney Terence O'Rourke.

"This is just a puppet show. It's a delaying tactic and every day they delay, the gas banking deal continues."

The commission hearings are to decide if Lo-Vaca should be permanently barred from charging South Texas consumers for losses it sustained in gas banking deals with Amaco Oil, Dow Chemical and Kerr-McGee Oil companies.

"While the railroad commission fails to act, the multi-million dollar gas 'banking' giveaway continues, and for two years, the commission's failure to regulate in the public interest has betrayed the Texas consumer," O'Rourke said.

The agreements between Lo-Vaca and the three companies were made in effect since the late 1960s. According to those agreements, Lo-Vaca purchased natural gas for about 20 cents per thousand cubic feet and resold it to the industries for the same price.

Although the price of natural gas has now risen to about $2 per thousand cubic feet, the agreements still force Lo-Vaca to resell the gas at 20 cents to the industries.

To make up for the $1.80 loss per unit, Lo-Vaca has pushed up the rates to other customers, including utilities which pass the additional cost on to the consumers.

On March 25, the railroad commission ordered Lo-Vaca to stop using the gas banking losses in calculating gas costs for other customers.

O'Rourke, one of eight Democrats seeking a seat on the commission, introduced a motion for an immediate $50 million rebate to consumers who he said were victimized by the arrangements.

Commission workers holding the hearings said they would continue until all evidence was presented.

Attorney Don Butler, representing the city of Austin, said he was glad the commission was conducting the hearings, but said he was not satisfied with the commission or legislative proposals reducing gas costs.

"We need uniformity to provide some incentive to cut down fuel costs," Butler said. "Otherwise, there's no way of stopping it — from producers to consumers. Any one who really wants to reduce gas costs will need to regulate the price at the wellhead and establish a set rate."

The coyote litter is the largest coyote social group; when mature, the coyote lives alone or in pairs.

Cable tv 'unrealistic'

DALLAS (UPI) — The chairman of the Federal Communications Commission has called for a "more realistic perspective" of the growing cable television industry.

Richard Wiley told the National Cable Television Association's 25th annual convention new policies adopted last week by the FCC will better organize cable television and relax current requirements for viewer access to channels.

The new standards will eliminate public access requirements for all cable systems with less than 3,500 subscribers, Wiley said. Larger systems are required to provide only one designated channel for access. Previously, four had been required.

Wiley said systems will no longer be required to build two-way channel capacity into systems with less than 3,500 subscribers. Larger systems have until 1986 to build in the two-way capacity.

Wiley also called for a "reasonable copyright payment" law, streamlining the certifying and recertifying process for stations and greater involvement of minorities and women in communications.

Cable television was oversold by enthusiastic promoters in the 1960s, Wiley said, and the concept of a nation wired together by cable television is years away, if it occurs at all.

"Cable was oversold as the solution to everything from ballots to burglar alarms to electronic babysitting," Wiley said. "It's now time to do it right — and from a more realistic perspective. 'I would like to see such things as shopping at home and other two-way services, electronic mail and newspaper delivery."

"But the 'wired nation', in all honesty, is not just around the corner. These things will and should develop only when the public really wants them."
