

Patty Hearst gets maximum sentence

By DONALD B. THACKREY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter, at the request of the defense, today sentenced Patricia Hearst to a federal institution for 90 days of psychiatric study.

In order to do this, the judge imposed maximum sentence of 35 years, but said this sentence would be modified after he receives the psychiatric report.

Thus Miss Hearst will go to an institution to be designated by the attorney general of the United States and a later court date will be set, either at the end of the three-month period, or after a three-month extension.

The judge sentenced Miss Hearst "for the maximum period of law" which would be 25 years for bank robbery plus 10 years for use of a firearm in committing a felony. However, he spelled out, as he had before, that he has no intention of making the final sentences run consecutively but will at the final sentencing impose concurrent sentences for a possible maximum of 25 years.

Carter also indicated strongly that he has no intention of placing Miss Hearst on probation when she returns to court.

He read the applicable law to a packed courtroom, noting it gave him alternatives of granting probation, affirming the maximum sentence, or modifying the sentence. He said he had fully studied the presentence reports and the transcript, which were accompanied by a number of letters from friends who were "well-meaning people."

These friends, he said, asserted that because Miss Hearst was a victim of a kidnap, probation was appropriate.

"Most of these people are sincere on their part, but I must respectfully disagree," the judge said. "That is the very question that the jury debated. This was and has been decided by the jury."

Before the court appearance, at which Carter had been expected to impose the final sentence, Miss Hearst had expressed fear that if she were sentenced to prison she would be an easy target for revolutionary assassins behind bars.

"California prisons are known as hotbeds of revolutionary activity," defense attorney Albert Johnson said during the weekend. "They are full of radicals."

Miss Hearst, 22, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph Hearst, was convicted March 20 of being a member of a Symbionese Liberation Army holdup team which got $10,690 from a Hibernia Bank branch in San Francisco.

Maximum sentence for the bank robbery charge was 25 years and for a charge of using a firearm in the commission of the felony 10 years.

Johnson said that as a result of published reports his client would become an informer on radical activities she would be safer out of prison but "under controlled conditions of security, including bodyguards."

He said she often has expressed fears of terrorists' reprisals against herself and her family.

The seven-woman, five-man jury which convicted Miss Hearst told reporters they decided against her because of her refusal to discuss what occurred during most of her 17 months with the SLA and because she never attempted to flee from the terrorist group even though she had the opportunity.

Miss Hearst was abducted by the SLA from her apartment near the University of California campus Feb. 4, 1974. The bank robbery occurred two months later.

Federal probation officers, before making recommendations to Carter, interviewed Miss Hearst several times while she was in custody in San Mateo County Jail at nearby Redwood City.

A news report last week said she told authorities who participated in the robbery, at Carmichael, but that Steven Soliah, 27, was not involved.

Marathon rocker

Bill Dingus rocks through the 23rd hour of the 24-hour rock-a-thon at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church. Six high school students at the church began rocking at 10 a.m. Saturday to raise money to finance a retreat for the group and for other church funds. Each participant rocked at least 12 of the 24 hours. The rocking marathon contestants were given a five minute break each hour and could save up to 20 minutes break time. The students raised close to $500 during the 24-hour event.

Band may play for inauguration

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

If Gerald Ford is elected to serve four more years as President of the United States the Pride of Pampa very likely will be invited to take part in the inauguration festivities in Washington, D.C.

And if the Pride of Pampa goes to Ireland to perform in St. Patrick's Day festivities March 17 in Dublin, they very likely will perform a piece written especially for them and for the occasion by an internationally known composer.

These two items of good news were made known to the high school musicians today.

Ben Guill, a former U.S. Congressman and longtime friend of the President, spoke briefly to the Pride of Pampa at 8 a.m. today, after they played for him "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "Hail to the Chief."

"I saw Jerry Ford Saturday night and he said, 'I want you to tell those young people again how great they were,'" Guill told the musicians.

He said that he taught many of the grandparents of members of the band when he came to Pampa 43 years ago and taught classes in the old Pampa Junior High School building.

"If Ford is elected," Guill announced to the Pride, "I promise you Pampa High School will be represented in Washington at the inaugural next January."

Following Guill's announcement, Jeff Doughten, director, attempted to get the group to concentrate on the more immediate goal of preparing for University Interscholastic League contest on May 5.

Helping to put polish on contest numbers today is Claude T. Smith, director of a high school band in Chillicothe, Mo., who has had published many band compositions over the past decade.

Smith worked with the Pampa High School band from 8 to 9:30 a.m. today, the junior high school band from 10 a.m. until noon, back to the high school from 12:45 to 3:30 p.m., from 3:45 to 5:15 at the junior high school and finally, from 7 to 9 p.m. with the high school band.

Smith was asked if the recent rash of honor performances and promises of future honor performances interfere with their chances of developing their contest numbers to sweepstakes winning quality.

"It's a definite asset," he said. "I think we all have to have a carrot dangling out in front of our face. If we all have a goal, we tend to work harder."

Smith said the band is in "excellent shape."

He told The News today that if the Pride of Pampa is allowed to accept the invitation from the Irish Government to perform in St. Patrick's Day festivities in Dublin on March 17, 1977, he will compose for them a piece based on "Be Thou My Vision."

Smith said the old Irish hymn, as a theme, would be worked "a number of ways, trying to stay within the context of the original tune."

Doughten said that when published for distribution, the sheets of music will bear a line under the title saying something like, "This piece commissioned especially for Pampa High School Band, Pampa, Texas."

Lo-Vaca must use contract rate

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Railroad Commission voted 2-1 today to lower natural gas rates for 4 million Texans by ordering Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. and Coastal State Gas Producing Co. to sell fuel at rates set in the contracts the companies say will bankrupt them.

Commissioner Jim Langdon refused to sign the order saying it in effect, was a self-destruct move that could have disastrous effects on natural gas supplies across the entire state.

If Lo-Vaca and Coastal States' customers take advantage of the order, they can demand the pipeline companies furnish them natural gas at prices of 20 to 30 cents a thousand cubic feet — gas the company says it is having to pay $1.50 to $2 to buy.

Langdon said the three-man commission had been under intolerable pressure to rescind a 1973 order requiring Lo-Vaca and Coastal customers to pay higher prices than specified in their long-term contracts with the companies.

Lo-Vaca charged its customers $1.89 per mcf for March — an increase of more than 800 per cent from some contract prices.

The presidents of Lo-Vaca and Coastal States left the jammed meeting grim-faced. Both men declined to comment on how long the companies could continue operating under the order.

Langdon estimated the decision will cost the companies $2.56 million daily.

"I don't think even a billion dollar corporation could stand it for very long," Langdon said.

The commission's decision actually gives Lo-Vaca's 400 customers the option of voting to continue paying higher rates than specified in their contracts under a formula that would allow the companies to pass through only 85 per cent of their costs instead of the 100 per cent allowed under the 1973 order.

The vote by customers must be unanimous, however, and officials expressed doubts all 400 would agree.

"In effect, we're kind of like handing a gun to a child, handing a 45-pistol to a child and saying go out and play with it," Langdon said.

Commission Chairman Ben Ramsey and Commissioner Mack Wallace said the order will bring the customers most affected by rate increases into the decision of how much Lo-Vaca can charge.

"We're dealing with a serious situation," Wallace said. "If you've got compound fractures of both legs you can't cure it with aspirin."

Reporters and gas company executives jammed the commission's conference room for the emergency meeting.

In addition to requiring Lo-Vaca to sell gas at contract rates unless its customers agree to pay more within 30 days, the order prohibits the supply company from entering into any gas banking arrangements without approval of the commission.

Senate will debate $413 billion budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., wants to cut $500 million in defense spending from next year's budget and add $100 million for juvenile justice.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., wants to add $2.5 billion for jobs, health, meals for the elderly, community development and rural water and sewer projects.

Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., wants to slice $6.8 billion from funds for natural resources, community development, education, health and welfare.

Those were among the proposals being made today as the Senate debated a $412.6 billion 1977 federal budget recommended by the Senate Budget Committee. It is $17 billion more than President Ford requested.

This year for the first time Congress is voting on how national priorities should be divided among broad categories in the overall budget. Though its decisions will be targets only, they will carry much weight when specific appropriation bills come to the floor.

President Ford asked Congress to increase defense spending next year but to slow down the growth of many social welfare programs.

The Senate Budget Committee approved nearly all his defense request. It recommended social welfare spending higher than Ford proposed but still below the level of current programs plus inflation.

Bayh said the administration has used "misleading figures" attempting to show the Soviet Union is pulling ahead of the United States in military power.

The House last week bought the administration's interpretation, approving a $33.3 billion weapons bill including nine new ships the Navy didn't request. Bayh proposed cutting $500 million in 1977 defense spending and $2.6 billion in budget authority, some of which would not be spent until future years.

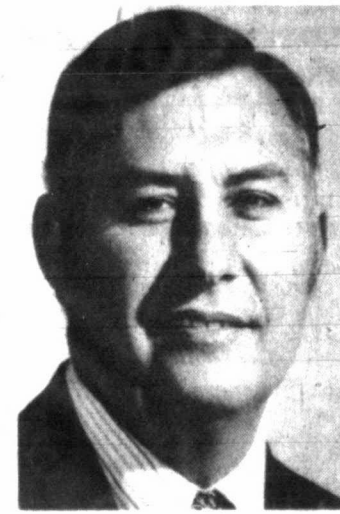

He said an Office of Management and Budget memo shows the administration padded its defense request with $3 billion "cut insurance." Despite a memo using that phrase, the administration denies any padding.

Bayh requested $100 million to help communities develop better systems of justice for youngsters.

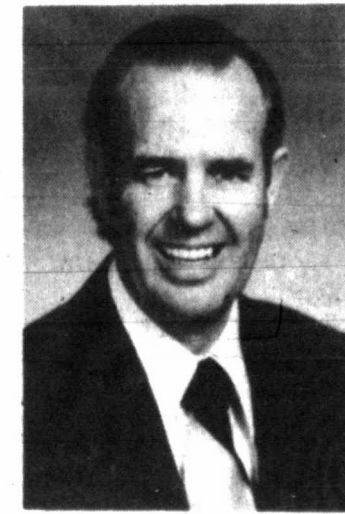

Buckley's amendment would roll back the federal deficit from $50.2 billion proposed by the budget committee to $43.4 billion, about the figure initially proposed by Ford.

Castro's Cuban 'paradise'

A revealing look at the way of life Fidel Castro is trying to export Cuba to Africa comes in two letters recently smuggled out of Cuba. Their recipient, Dr. Herminio Portell - Vila, a noted commentator on Latin American affairs and former professor at the University of Havana, released portions of the letters to the press. Dr. Portell now lives in WASHINGTON, D.C.

A woman in Havana, who is also a wife and mother of two, writes the following in a letter dated February 8: "I got up at 4:45 a.m. sharp. It is Sunday, and I hurry up to join the queue of the bread. It seems endless, but after six o'clock I finally got half a loaf of bread..."

"The market had received some supplies today. I got six pounds of rice, the ration for the month for the whole family; one cake of soap for the bathroom and another one for washing, to last one month; with seven ounces of detergent for 30 days, plus four pounds of sugar and one pound of lard. The report is that there will be a further rationing of sugar, and only one and one-half ounces of coffee every 15 days, and half a pound of lard during the same period, beginning in March.

"Why? Simply because they need to send food to the Cubans in Angola, and whatever will go to Angola will be less for the people here... Nobody expects anything better. But there is not a single protest because we are under a brutal repression, such a brutal one that nobody can imagine what it is."

A second letter, dated February 13 from a worker in Havana, says that "I can tell you, positively, the communism has not taken hold of the Cubans of the present generation and that they listen to what they learn at home from their parents and relatives.

"These youngsters are forcibly sent to work and to attend classes in the backwoods, sleeping in the 'tobacco curing houses' or the huts, without hygienic facilities, with foul food and putrid water. Most become sick. It is said that they have been successfully indoctrinated, but no matter the propaganda.

"They were able to compare their sufferings with what they had left at home and down there in their hearts they rejected communism. They realized that they were being exploited, but they could not revolt against regimented oppression, and in silence they opposed everything."

Such is the way of life these 17 years after Castro set about to build his "proletarian paradise." To Africa — and to Castro's friends on Capitol Hill: Are you listening?

FBI amendment to the Constitution

By Don Oakley

The Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated."

On at least 238 occasions between 1942 and 1966, however, the Federal Bureau of Investigation took it upon itself to amend that amendment to read, "... unless the FBI decides otherwise."

The Bureau has admitted to making that many illegal searches in the papers and effects of 14 "domestic subversive targets" in that period — what it calls "black bag" jobs, after the kits of burglar tools carried by its agents. Between 1960 and 1966, 92 of these break-ins, or about one every three weeks, were made without benefit of court-issued warrants against the New York City headquarters of the Socialist Workers Party.

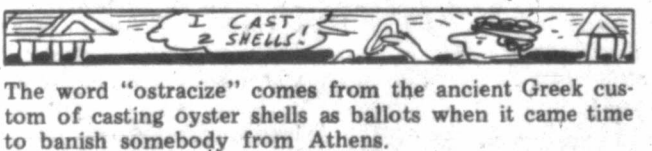

The disclosure has come as the result of a long-running suit brought by the party against the government. Previously, the Justice Department had denied that the party had ever been the target of burglaries by federal agents.

FBI director Clarence Kelley has now assured Americans that the FBI stopped this kind of monkey business in the late 1960s and says he doesn't know of any more such instances "lurking in the background." But as one spokesman for the Socialist Workers Party has pointed out, there is no way of knowing if this is true. No agent or official of the FBI, or no official of the New York police, which apparently co-operated with the feds, has ever been brought to account for this illegal activity.

So far as is known, the FBI was never able to find any evidence in the files of the Socialist Workers Party that it posed any threat to the security of the United States. What it did find and photograph, along with other harmless documents and correspondence, were the names of contributors to the party.

What kind of chilling effect this revelation will have on the free exercise of political rights by people who have supported this or other unpopular socialist-oriented splinter groups is impossible to say.

But it should certainly send a shiver — of disgust if not of fear — down the spine of every American who believes that the Constitution is supposed to mean what it says.

The word "ostracize" comes from the ancient Greek custom of casting oyster shells as ballots when it came time to banish somebody from Athens.

Food stamp abuses condemned

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In recent testimony before the U.S. House Agricultural Committee, a spokesman for the United States Industrial Council detailed the steady growth of the food stamp program, and pointed out that in ten years, the number of persons receiving the stamps has increased from fewer than one-half million to nearly 22 million.

James S. Metcalfe, of Nashville, Tennessee, spoke to the Committee on behalf of the USIC, an organization of American businesses which employ more than 3,000,000 people. The Council, which numbers corporate memberships in every state, is dedicated to the preservation of the free enterprise system in the U.S.

Metcalfe reminded the Committee that the explosive cost of food stamps has been previously documented before Congress. "The cost of the program has grown from some $36 million in 1965 to $5.2 billion this year," he added. "It is estimated that more than 57 million persons — one out of every four Americans — are now, or will be eligible for food stamps."

The abuses which have grown with the program was described by the USIC spokesman. He cited the eligibility of college students, workers on strike, and the voluntarily unemployed to receive food stamps as "shocking, and no longer funny."

"The hundreds of millions of dollars that pay for the food stamps given to able-bodied, underserving people come out of the pockets of our hard-working, productive citizens. They have watched their taxes rise because of the government's generosity in passing out their money to those who won't work, and those who lie and cheat to obtain food stamps — and they are fed up."

Metcalfe explained that the USIC recognizes the need to alleviate hunger and suffering among those unable to care for themselves. However, he maintained that the lax eligibility requirements for food stamps lead to abuses which create rebellion, resignation, and destruction of the incentive to work.

"We are spending in excess of $5 billion without knowing who is riding the gravy train," Metcalfe asserted. He said that in addition to students and strikers who are eligible, the so-called "outreach" program produced the ridiculous spectacle of government workers attempting to persuade people who are getting along without government handouts to apply for food stamps.

Metcalfe described the reforms advocated by the USIC, including tightening of eligibility requirements. "Eligibility should be based on gross income, and no one should be eligible whose income exceeds the poverty level established by the Office of Management and Budget." The USIC also urged the Committee to deny food stamps to college students, strikers, and those unwilling to work.

Some good has come out of the primaries. All those posters and flyers can be recycled into organic compost.

Tom Tiede

Will the grin become a leer?

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — In the future, as God gives Andy Warhol the right to see it, "everyone will be famous for 15 minutes." And in this regard Jimmy Carter may, to a degree, be an early illustration.

Unknown outside Georgia a year ago, only moderately recognizable as recently as February, the Democratic presidential candidate has become an instant notable, his I.D. factor having grown some 30 points in the last six weeks, alone, and so already there are the inevitable suggestions that he is in danger of becoming tiresome.

His smile, which was early on seen as warmly inviting, is now drawn by cartoonists as suspicious as the Cheshire Cat's. His pronouncements of love and Christian fellowship have been denounced by Gerald Ford's agents as, humph, "fundamentalist."

As for the personal contact he stresses in his wish to "get to know Americans," political observers note of late that if body language is to be believed, Carter's habit of crossing his arms during conversations is protectionist, a signal that he is not interested in close relationships.

The risk here for J. Carter may be serious. If a warm smile can become a leering grin in two months, a rising star can become a supernova before November. Public overexposure can be fatal. Carter supporters dismiss the possibility, believing that "Jimmy is publicized because that's what people want." But this optimism misses the point. The public is fickle and so is the press. Today's fascination may be tomorrow's bore; whatever happened to Wilbur Mills?

Beyond this it may be true that candidate Carter is in fact the victim of a rather nasty process over which he has no control. The media not only have a vested interest in the creation of celebrities, but in their eventual fall. Ups and downs make good copy. The further a man falls the better the copy. And why? H.L. Mencken said it: no journalist goes broke underestimating public taste.

The process is forever the same, particularly with presidents and near presidents. There is first a long period of what Eugene McCarthy calls "the personalization" of the men. Aggrandizement, really. The public was enthralled two years ago to learn that President Ford cooks his own breakfast. As for Jimmy Carter, the publicity photos show him in overalls on his peanut farm. Neither muffins nor goobers have the slightest thing to do with running America, but the public wants to know everything.

After the celebrity's personal side has been laid bare (Ford once considered a hair transplant, Carter talks with God for relaxation), family members are next. Betty Ford's views on extra marital relationships are eagerly sought. Daughter Susan becomes a spokesman for America's youth. Jimmy Carter has a shapely sister who is a faith healer, which makes her a sexy fundamentalist, and by dogs if that's not news the industry's in trouble.

Curiously, the process of personalization knows no depths. The public's right to know is responsible for miles of trivia about the most trivial of president or candidate hangers-on. Ford's staff photographer is promoted as a balding bon vivant. A White House dog keeper has written a book which the publisher says marks a milestone of sorts. Even Jack Kennedy's loose ladies have been popularized. One wonders what the taker of the presidential garbage is like.

At length, of course, when we all know all there is to know, reaction takes over. No longer a mystery, Henry Kissinger now wears an ax between the shoulders. As for Ford, many people have learned more than they ever wanted to, which, even in kindness, isn't much. All those who aren't at least a little sick of the duo, honk your horn.

Which brings us back to Jimmy Carter. Earnest, dedicated, tireless, pleasant, but already just a bit, well, too much? Wait until we find out more of his sister, or his wife, or his kids, or his nanny who always knew he'd be a great man. Whom the gods of the media would destroy, no doubt, they must first make worth the destruction.

Capitol Comedy

As the issues become clearer, Carter's accent gets thicker.

Ford discovered how to use pork barrel politics to put Reagan over one.

Since Nixon was so popular in China, Goldwater suggested raising funds to keep him there.

If politicians were traded like athletes, Washington could offer Butz for Terry Bradshaw and two future draft picks.

Ford is anxious for the baseball season to start. He wants to throw out the first Democratic jobs bill.

Foreigners can't understand all the fuss over government payoffs. It has a religious origin: Give unto others.

To bring integrity back into government Connally wants to square away the Oval Office.

Wallace now realizes he couldn't depend on those "pointy headed bureaucrats" to pin down the votes for him.

Ford hired a joke writer because congress has been getting all the laughs.

As an economy move, Kissinger will fly abroad only on charter package deals.

A tempting offer on a gas grill.

Right now, we're making you a tempting offer on gas grills with twin burners! Independently controlled twin burners never use more gas than you need. For big meals, use both burners. For smaller meals, save gas and money by using one burner and half the grill. A gas grill adds a new dimension to family meals and entertaining. It eliminates the fuss and bother of cooking outside while it keeps the flavor and the fun. And, because you take cooking heat out of the house and the burden off your air conditioning, you save energy, too.

Fighting dies down in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Fighting that raged through Beirut and its suburbs all night died down early today, giving hope the country's latest truce might again take hold. On the eastern front, Syrian armored columns were reportedly advancing through the Bekaa Valley.

The latest battles erupted Sunday despite a leftist agreement to extend the 10-day-old cease-fire until the end of the month.

Mortar, rocket and artillery duels between leftist and right-wing militia factions left at least 35 dead and 55 wounded in Beirut. The sounds of battle, which echoed across the city all night, finally died away in the worst suburban troublespots early this morning.

The fighting broke out almost immediately after left-wing parties meeting under socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt issued a statement accusing Syria of invading Lebanon and the United States with meddling where it was not wanted.

The left-wingers warned of further bloodshed unless the Syrians withdrew the 6,000 armor-backed troops they charged had entered north and southeast Lebanon since Friday.

But at the same time, the left-wing parties said they preferred a "constitutional political settlement" to war and they had agreed to extend the truce, scheduled to expire at noon (5 a.m. EST) today, until the end of April.

However, minutes later tension that had been building all day erupted into shelling across the checkerboard battle lines of the shattered city.

The fighting appeared to be a free-for-all among Christian right-wingers and Moslem left-wingers, rebel Lebanese army troops and Syrian forces and rival Palestinian guerrilla groups.

Mortar and artillery fire ricocheted across the eastern, western and central sectors and along the road to Beirut airport, witnesses said. The boom of artillery, the wail of sirens and the rattle of machinegun fire echoed through deserted streets.

In the Bekaa Valley region east of Beirut, left-wing Lebanese army troops skirmished with Syrian armored columns slowly advancing west and northwest from the border posts they captured Friday, according to Arab newsmen in the area.

Left-wing sources said they understood the Saiga guerrilla forces, whose ranks have been reinforced by Syria over the past few months, had arrested three key commanders of the rebel Lebanese Arab Army in southern and northern Lebanon. The report could not be confirmed.

In the southern port of Sidon, 30 miles from Beirut, Saiga units enforcing a supply blockade against the left-wingers shelled and sank a ship unloading weapons, left-wing sources said.

Healer's followers crush 21

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Police today sought a faith-healing preacher whose followers stampeded in their newly-inaugurated church, crushing 21 persons to death.

About 5,000 faithful jammed the pink and white church in a Rio suburb Sunday to hear David Miranda, a popular preacher and exorcist who claims to cure the sick by driving out the devil.

But a moment's panic turned the inaugural service into disaster. At the end 21 persons were dead, including five children and 11 women — most of them elderly and several seeking cure for diseases.

Witnesses disagreed on what set off the stampede. One woman said a female worshipper suddenly fell into a trance and the crowd backed away from her, knocking over their neighbors and spreading the panic.

Others said worshippers pushed forward when the fiery Miranda, who poses for promotional posters with mounds of discarded crutches, climbed to the church roof to speak because he could not reach the pulpit through the crowd.

Miranda, who has radio programs in the states of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, fled the scene shortly after the incident and is being sought by police of both states.

Press Corps angers Nessen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The smiles vanished from the faces of White House press secretary Ron Nessen and spokesman Peter Kaye of President Ford's national campaign organization.

They turned and fled from a pack of White House reporters bunched in the rear of the West Texas State University gymnasium in Canyon, Tex., where Ford spoke Saturday night to 4,000 persons.

Their dismay sprang from the press corps' reaction when Ford, on cue, said, "Any government big enough to give you everything you want is big enough to take away everything you have." Reporters clapped, whooped and cheered.

It was something like the 60th time Ford has used the line in his presidential primary campaign. Each time it has brought cheers from the audience. And to reporters who have heard it so often, familiarity has bred glee to relieve what otherwise might be boredom.

It is one of several off-repeated Ford phrases which the press corps regards as old if homely friends to be greeted with the cheers that give hives to Nessen and Kaye. Another is the maxim that a politician should "promise only what he can deliver and deliver all that he promises."

Ford is at home with such wording. The "any government that is big enough etc." line dates back to his vice presidency. Any foe with words appears to stem from prepared speeches written by other hands.

No one in the White House cares to remember the moment in North Carolina when Ford rose before thousands of teenage members of the Future Homemakers of America and said they should be proud to stand up anywhere in the world and say they are future American homemakers.

The line did not gain lustre when North Carolina became the only primary the president has lost to Ronald Reagan. None of the speechwriting team claimed credit.

That team has been shuffled more than any other office in the administration. A few weeks ago it again was changed, with at least four writers departing and Robert Orben becoming chief writer under Robert Hartmann, Ford's White House counselor and chief speech writer.

Now, White House officials say, Orben will depart after the November election to return to his New York publishing house which issues joke books for American comedians.

Tentatively picked to replace him as anonymous court jester is Don Penly, like Orben a former television comedy writer whose clients have included the Smothers Brothers.

Ford, however, does not always need a gag writer. He has his own style.

In Dallas Friday a White House secretary fell and broke an elbow. The President the next morning sought her out, extended his sympathies and joked about her having fallen down.

"You're stealing my material," Ford said.

No suspects in twin's death

LAWTON, Okla. (UPI) — Police said Sunday night they were without suspects or new leads in their investigation into the murder of a 3½-year-old girl and the beating of her twin sister, both of whom were found inside a blood-splattered refrigerator in an abandoned house.

"We are checking out some things," a department spokesman said. "We have no suspects and have made no arrests."

He said a 14-year-old boy questioned by officers Saturday night had been given a polygraph examination and released.

A dozen detectives of the emergency reaction team searched the dilapidated, unpainted vacant house where the girls were found and the surrounding neighborhood.

Augustine Lena "Tina" Carpitcher, the surviving sister, provided few clues to help police find the person who had put the girls in the refrigerator and shut the door.

Detectives said she told them her name was Tina and the dead child was her sister.

She also gave police what may be the first name of the attacker and a description District Attorney Don Beauchamp called "vague."

Mary Elizabeth Carpitcher had been dead a day and a half or two days when found by a 10-year-old boy who was playing in the area.

Tracy Claphan heard Tina screaming, rushed into the house, opened the refrigerator and found the girls, police said.

The surviving sister had air and some light because the refrigerator did not have an airtight seal, an officer said.

Police said the dead girl was wearing underwear and Tina wore only a dirty T-shirt.

Tina bore scratches and teeth marks and had been whipped on the back, investigators said.

The terrified, hysterical child was taken to Ft. Sill Indian Hospital for treatment, then taken home by her grandmother, Augustine Lena Williams, who had cared for the girls since their birth.

The decomposed body of the dead girl was taken to the state medical examiner's office in Oklahoma City for an autopsy.

Police said they could not determine whether she also had been beaten, although they said it appeared she had.

Detectives, operating from a special force headquarters established in a nearby church parking lot, talked with more than 100 residents of the area in where the girls were found and neighbors in the area where the twins disappeared Thursday while their grandmother was cleaning her house.

Teresa C. Reed of 806 E. Harvester reported that on April 3 a lawn mower was stolen from 428 N. Cuyler. Harold A. Muns of 2106 N. Sumner told police that during the night someone stole approximately five gallons of gasoline from his pickup.

A Victor 315 cutting torch was reportedly stolen from a vehicle belonging to Bruce Cowan of Canadian. Cowan told officers that the vehicle was parked in the 600 block of S. Cuyler when someone cut oxygen hoses on a welding rig and removed the torch valued at $75.

Ivan Ray Stone of 2205 N. Christy said someone had poured shoe polish on his Jeep's canvas top, damaging the top.

Police, investigating a domestic quarrel, picked up Michael Miller of 618 N. Gray in the 1200 block of N. Hobart for intoxication. Officers later inventoried Miller's vehicle and found a bag of suspected marijuana. A disorderly conduct charge also stemmed from the domestic quarrel.

A runaway was reported by Genesis House for Girls.

Hijacked jet lands

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — A Philippines Air Lines jetliner carrying a trio of Muslim hijackers and five hostages from Thailand landed at Karachi International Airport today.

Pakistani authorities, reversing an original decision, granted landing rights on "humanitarian and compassionate grounds," officials said. The airline touched down at dawn following a five-hour flight from Bangkok.

But the authorities said the plane must resume its long journey to Libya immediately after refueling.

Officials said airport authorities had received an S.O.S. message from the pilot. They refused to elaborate.

The gunmen, stranded for three days in the Thai capital, switched to a long-range DC3 jetliner for the trip here en route to the Middle East.

Crouching among hostages and airline officials to avoid being picked off by sharpshooters, the three hijackers moved today from a small jetliner they commandeered last Wednesday to a bigger Philippine Air Lines DC3.

On board the long-range jet were nine fresh crewmen, five of the original 12 hostages from the smaller BAC111 and the three hijackers, each armed with a pistol.

Among those still held by the gunmen were PAL Vice President Rafael Igoa and PAL captain Arnulfo Santos, pilot of the BAC111.

In return for the DC3, the hijackers left behind on the BAC111 grenades and a suitcase full of explosives, security officials said.

UPI correspondent Sumalee Phitayakorn said the hijackers demanded to be flown to Benghazi, Libya, where they hope to find asylum. They carried a $300,000 ransom paid for the safety of the original 70 passengers on the BAC111 released Thursday in Manila.

PAL President Benjamin Toda, who negotiated details of the plane switch, said the hijackers threatened at one point this morning to blow up themselves, their hostages and the BAC111 because the talks were going too slowly.

"These people have no political connections and at no time did they express any political views," Toda said. "They have given no motive for the hijacking other than saying they want to go to Libya."

Philippines ambassador to Thailand Manuel Yan said, "They are criminals. They are murderers." He said all have criminal records in the Philippines.

Toda said there was no flight plan beyond Karachi and there was no indication if Libya would allow the hijackers to land or give them amnesty.

SF strike continues

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Union negotiators, frustrated over a lack of progress in a 13-day strike by city craft workers, want Labor Secretary William Usery to mediate the dispute which has shut down public transportation.

The labor representatives said Sunday night after 11 hours of talks there was an impasse and they wanted Usery to direct further bargaining.

The Board of Supervisors — the city's ruling government body — called a meeting for today to consider the action.

Traffic congestion during morning rush hours was intensified by a strike by bus drivers for the Golden Gate Bridge District in a demand for higher pay.

District officials, to promote the use of car pools, eliminated bridge tolls for cars carrying three or more passengers.

The craft workers' strike shut down the Municipal Railway buses, streetcars and cable cars because drivers were honoring picket lines.

The dispute also forced the closing of the zoo, all municipal swimming pools, the de Young Museum and Hall of Flowers in Golden Gate Park and cancellation of performances by the San Francisco Symphony.

The city strike involved 1,700 plumbers, electricians, machinists, sheetmetal workers, glaziers, carpenters, street cleaners and gardeners. Some 14,000 other municipal employees were not honoring the picket lines.

Because of the walkout street garbage cans were overflowing, but private contractors were emptying some of them. All restrooms at San Francisco International Airport were closed because the toilets were sabotaged.

San Mateo County sheriff's deputies also reported a temporary halt in telephone service at the airport because someone pounded nails into trunk lines.

Arabs don't agree
 VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said today that lack of agreement among his Arab colleagues has so far prevented the reconvening of the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

Sadat, who arrived Saturday for a private visit, made the statement to reporters between talks with Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky on the Middle East situation.

"The United States, Russia and Egypt are in full agreement that the Geneva conference should be reconvened," Sadat said. "But some of my Arab colleagues have yet to take a clear stand. One day they say yes, next day the other say no."

Sadat said the Geneva conference could be resumed even without immediate Palestinian participation.

"We will do everything to bring the Palestinians to the Geneva conference right from the start," Sadat said. "But if this should not be possible, we think the conference could still be reconvened with the question of Palestinian participation as number one item on the agenda."

Sadat came to Austria on the final leg of his two-week European visit to West Germany, France, Italy and Yugoslavia.

Sadat said the United States has "certain obligations" to help solve the Middle East problem.

"I have always said that the cards in the Middle East are in the hands of the United States since they provide Israel with everything," Sadat said. "Therefore, the United States has certain obligations and responsibilities. They are the only country that can reach some results with Israel."

Riggs' son found dead
 MANOR HAVEN, N.Y. (UPI) — The unemployed son of Bobby Riggs, the flamboyant tennis hustler, has been found dead in a Long Island rooming house, authorities reported.

Nassau County police said James Riggs, 22, was found dead in his bed at a Long Island address by his roommate Saturday evening.

Police said a "narcotic implement" was found nearby the body. But they would not say if Riggs' death was caused by drug use. Homicide detectives said there was no indication Riggs was slain.

The spokesman for the county medical examiner's office said the body was identified Sunday by James' brother, John. An autopsy had been completed, the spokesman said, but the cause of death was "pending until toxicological and microscopic examinations could be made."

Amored car guards show in robbery
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Two armored car guards were shot to death early today by four masked gunmen who waited in ambush for them as they were making a cash pickup at a Times Square movie theater.

Guards William Cotter, 55, and John Clarke, 65, employed by the Purulor Security Inc. armored car company, died shortly before 11 a.m. of shotgun wounds.

Cotter died in the operating room of St. Clare's Hospital and Clarke in the hospital's intensive care unit, a spokesman said. One had been shot in the chest and the other in the stomach.

The gunmen escaped, but police believe without any money.

William Duggan, supervisor of Theater Corp., which owns the New Amsterdam Theater on west 42nd Street, said the holdupmen were hiding in the movie house when he arrived for work at 7:15 a.m.

"I got to work and walked into a sawed-off shotgun," Duggan

Chamber sets meeting to plan cleanup week
 Planning for Pampa's annual spring cleanup month, May 3-9, will begin at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Fire Prevention, Safety and Cleanup Committee at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the chamber conference room.

The annual campaign is a cooperative effort of the city and chamber, according to Police Chief Richard Mills, committee chairman.

Wednesday's meeting of the committee will be with city officials to arrange the pick-up schedule by city trucks. The cleanup is expected to be conducted for one week in each of Pampa's four wards.

Chamber officials sent out word to city residents to start early cleaning of premises for the annual cleanup program.

"We hope Pampans will make even a greater effort to make the city shine this biennial year," Chairman Mills said.

Sub-committee chairpersons also will be appointed at Wednesday's meeting to take care of various phases of the program.

 NORTH MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (UPI) — A fire which had already destroyed 25,000 acres shifted directions during the night, jumped containment lines and again burned out of control today.

The fire is burning in heavy vegetation, in a swampy sort of area, John M. Shirer, assistant state forester, said today. "It broke over our lines and is now burning out of control."

The fire moved in a southwesterly direction towards U.S. 901, the main road through the Grand Strand area and Conway. The heavily wooded area has no houses and most of the land belongs to International Paper Company.

There have been no reports of any injuries in the blaze, which

But Irving Richards, chief investigator for an attorney hired by the dead recruit's parents, said Sunday his investigation has established the Marine Corps "is not trying any coverup" of the circumstances surrounding the incident.

The family of Pvt. Lynn McClure, 26, Lufkin, Tex., filed a $3.5 million wrongful death claim against the Marine Corps after the recruit died in a Houston Veterans Administration hospital March 15. Their attorney, John Gyorkos, hired Richards to conduct a private investigation of the boy's death.

Richards said he conducted his interview with Perry at Camp Pendleton in a private room, provided by Marine officials and that Perry assured him he had not been intimidated prior to the meeting.

Richard said the Marine Corps also gave him the names of drill sergeants involved in the incident and permission to question them. He said he expects to conclude the investigation within 10 days.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY—Your reply to that wife who "pretied herself up" and laid down on the sofa with nothing on because her husband called and said he was bringing her a surprise was silly!

Why shouldn't a man be furious with his wife for pulling such a stupid stunt?

Husbands often bring home unexpected company. To find his wife stretched out on the sofa without a stitch on when he opens the door accompanied by two business associates would embarrass any man with an ounce of brains.

In recent years it seems that more people are obsessed with the idea of parading around naked. I guess maybe they don't realize that most folks look a lot better with something on.

Sure, I think the husband should forgive her, but maybe he has taught her a good lesson for being so vain and self-centered.

I'll bet if the situation had been reversed, and the wife came home with two of her lady friends to find her husband stretched out on the sofa naked as a jaybird, that wife would have been furious.

PUZZLED AT YOUR ANSWER

DEAR PUZZLED: You could be right, but my mail has been running 50 to one in favor of the wife. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A wife wrote that her husband had called, saying he was bringing home a "surprise" for her and asking her to fix a pitcher of martinis. She thought it was the diamond earrings she had wanted for Christmas, so she pretied herself up and stretched out (sans clothes) on the sofa as a "surprise" for him.

Abby, that husband must be crazy! How lucky can a man be to come home with two business associates to a pitcher of cold martinis and a wife stretched out naked on the sofa! He must be the envy of his entire company. I can't understand why he should be upset with her. SHE should be upset with him for putting her in that embarrassing situation. That husband should hotfoot it to his local jeweler for those diamond earrings.

She gets my vote for being an ideal wife, and if you won't tell MY wife, I'll make her those earrings myself!

PENNSYLVANIA JEWELER

DEAR ABBY: I'm with you! That husband who came home to the wife who wanted to surprise him because he said he was bringing HER a surprise had no right to be furious with her.

He owes her not only the earrings, but also a matching necklace, finger rings and a Mediterranean cruise!

R.S.M. IN COLUMBUS

CONFIDENTIAL TO LUCY: It's not always better to have love and lost than never to have loved at all. It depends upon what you've lost.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have had complete heart block since 1971 and my pulse rate is between 41 and 44. I am 59 years old and my general health is excellent. In 1971 my doctor consulted with the hospital internist and they decided not to use a pacemaker for another 10 years. I was told not to do anything too physical and to avoid becoming over tired.

Trying to take care of my home is practically impossible since my vitality is very low. My understanding of the reason for not giving me a pacemaker is that I would be relying on something mechanical with the chance of a malfunction. In my opinion I would rather take the chance of a malfunction if the pacemaker would help me become more normal. I respect my doctor's opinion but do not fully understand it. Is the prognosis in such cases bad? Is the care of a pacemaker too demanding? These questions are unanswered, in my mind and I would appreciate any information you can give me.

DEAR READER—Ask your doctor to send you to a cardiac clinic at a nearby medical center or medical university. The decision on whether to use a pacemaker or not would be influenced by the overall condition of your heart, but if there are no other unusual characteristics to your heart and your low heart rate is causing you to have limited vitality then it certainly should be considered.

Implanting cardiac pacemakers is no longer difficult and they are very reliable. Perhaps one of the best known public figures with a cardiac pacemaker is former Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court. He had used one for years before he developed his later illnesses.

Hint from Heloise

Dear Heloise: A hint on organizing your purse!

Many women, I'm sure, have trouble finding things in their purses. I'm always stabbing myself on pencils or combs while digging for keys.

I tried using a couple of clear plastic packets made to hold pencils, etc. in ring notebooks. They are like a large envelope with a plastic zipper.

One contains my checkbook, pencils, pens and coupons. The other contains my lipsticks, comb, etc. Housekeys are attached to one with a ring through the notebook ring hole. Out of the way yet easy to find.

These packets have many advantages. You can see at a glance if you have the right item. The zippers have no teeth to snag items or hurt knuckles and it is easy to transfer items into another purse.

Immunization program may get shot in the arm

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

"Are you allergic to eggs?" This is the only question applicants for free immunizations administered monthly at Carver Center by the Texas Department of Health Resources are required to answer.

That program may soon get its own shot in the arm — a medical office on wheels — staffed with physicians and nurses — traveling into every area of the 25-county Texas Panhandle Region.

The prospects of the mobile becoming reality in the near future were related by Berlinda Leyba, R.N., immunization nurse with the state's health resources agency, during a meeting here Thursday.

She told mothers and expectant mothers at a meeting in the Planned Parenthood building in Pampa that the free immunizations are offered the second Thursday of each month from 1 to 4 p.m. at Carver Center, 321 W. Albert.

Anyone is eligible for the shots, she said, regardless of economic status.

The question of whether one is allergic to eggs is necessary because measles and rubella vaccines are prepared in egg embryo.

Ms. Leyba said about 25 children usually register for the free immunizations.

"The biggest problems we have is locating those who need them," she added.

"Let's not wait until they start to school," she emphasized.

Health officials say a larger number of young mothers are taking advantage of the program than older mothers.

"We see a lot more mothers bring their babies in who are less than a year old than those who were born earlier than 1975," she said. "A lot of children five or six years old have never had an immunization. Many mothers think their children have had shots — but they have no dates."

Ms. Leyba and Teresa Gerham were here to assist with the April immunization program.

They told mothers that rubella vaccines will not be given to anyone over 12 years of age. Diphtheria may have some of the same symptoms as a cold — "but the throat closes and the child suffocates," they said.

Health officials said the most exciting advantage of the prospective mobile unit would be dental facilities. "If a child is crippled and needs braces on a leg there is a Crippled Children's Hospital — but if he or she needs braces for the teeth there is no immediate referral available," officials said.

However, they added if there is an emergency like "a child dying with a toothache the

"But it's gonna hurt..."

Reactions of children to immunizations range from tears to smiles. The Texas Health Department of Resources administers from 25 to 200 immunizations monthly here. At left Kristie Murrah, 1, daughter of

Bobbie Murrah isn't the least bit concerned with the injections, while Johnny Pacheco, 2½ years of age, lets health officials know he thinks it's going to hurt. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson) county will always take care of that."

Ms. Leyba said the mobile unit will be especially advantageous in small towns where there are no doctors.

She added that the mobile unit, now an only goal, would be salvation for millions of children with bad teeth.

Majorie Penn, health coordinator for the Pampa Independent School District, said "no child in Pampa is left without care, but it may take awhile."

At the Carver Center Thursday, immunization business was somewhat lighter than it had been in March when at least 75 shots were given. Officials said about 25 were administered Thursday. They came prepared for 200 immunizations.

And as usual some of the children shed "nary a tear," while others screamed frantically. However, the sting of the shot is gone in moments, and the children leave with a goodbye kiss or a wave.

Ms. Leyba said occasionally a mother will instruct the child to say "thank you" and equally as often the child will respond with "no."

Talking softly to each child as she administers the immunization Leyba also instructs the mothers what to do in case certain problems arise.

Children frequently see Leyba downtown and recognize her as "the lady who gave me the shot."

The Texas Department of Health Resources wants to make sure that every child receives immunizations, officials stressed.

And officials have made it simple to qualify. They hope that all parents will become aware of the program and see that their children are immunized.

Backstairs at White House

Betty decides she likes White House

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: Three years ago Betty Ford extracted a promise from her husband to quit politics after 27 years in Congress.

But her two years in the White House have turned her around and now she's campaigning to keep him there.

White House aides say that Mrs. Ford now enjoys campaigning solo where she can set her own pace and star in her own show.

She also makes some appearances with the President and often gets more applause than he does.

The First Lady will hit Texas next. So far she has been spending about two days in every primary state. She also has found that her popularity is growing on the campaign trail.

When David Eisenhower was a young boy and spending a lot of time at the White House he had an experience which his grandfather, Dwight D. Eisenhower, often used to recall.

Eisenhower used to tell the story of David running into the Oval Office one day, holding out his hand and saying, "Granddad, Granddad, I have just shaken hands with the vice president."

It was Richard M. Nixon.

United States Treasurer Mary Brooks is expected to resign her high position soon.

One of the administration's top women appointees, Mrs. Brooks has not been well for many months.

Her friends say that they do not expect her to return to her job where she initiated many new programs in the coin-department and in refurbishing of the mints to their old historic beauty.

Cornelia Wallace, wife of the Alabama governor has one big ambition, she says. She wants to be the first woman to land on the moon.

She quips that if her husband becomes President she would "nag him" until he sent her to the moon.

In interviews in connection with her new book, Mrs. Wallace has said that she expects her husband to remain in the race until the Democratic National Convention in New York this summer.

Mrs. Wallace and the governor both say they bear no strong grudges against Arthur Bremer, who fired the bullets which paralyzed Wallace during the 1972 presidential campaign.

But they do still wonder, she says, where Bremer got the money to travel around stalking Wallace and how he knew that Wallace would be in Laurel Maryland on the day of the shooting. Mrs. Wallace says that even their pilot did not know until that morning that they were to go to Maryland.

Ron Nessen has been trying to diet but he finds it hard to do so when there is a primary victory to celebrate.

Last Tuesday night, Nessen, who has been abstaining from alcohol, got a telephone call from President Ford who invited him up to the family quarters to celebrate Ford's triumph over Ronald Reagan.

The Press Secretary told reporters that he is finding it hard to say no on occasions like that.

The Smithsonian Institution is expecting 10 million visitors during the Bicentennial year — and most of the tourists are also dropping by the White House. Even the longer hours for public visitors have not been able to meet the problem of the long lines and tiring wait to see the mansion.

Betty Ford does not believe in buying new Easter outfits. Unlike other First Ladies, she has abandoned that tradition. Her Press Secretary, Sheila Weidenfeld, says that Mrs. Ford will wear what she has on hand, depending on the weather.

Winners of the beef gift certificates given at the recent style show were announced: They are Hazel Poole, Mrs. Greg Boggs, Mrs. Mary Finsterwald, Mrs. John L. Stephens, Mrs. C.P. Maples, Mrs. Rosemary Tinsley and Mrs. Evelyn Metcalf.

Andy tried 'to help'

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Andy Messersmith, baseball's newest million-dollar pitcher, threw 15 minutes of batting practice for the Atlanta Braves Sunday and then reflected on what it was all about.

The 30-year-old right-hander, a 19-game winner for the Los Angeles Dodgers last season who had never been known as an agitator, startled baseball when he announced through his agent he would test baseball's reserve clause by seeking free agent status.

Last Dec. 23, he won it. Charges began flying that baseball was ruined — that owners were now at the mercy of players would begin playing out their options en masse to become free agents and negotiate with the club of their choice.

"I honestly feel that owners have nothing to fear in this regard," said the curly-haired Messersmith, who surrendered his free agency Saturday by signing a virtual "lifetime" contract with the Braves that made him baseball's second highest paid pitcher.

"There will be some players in the 'superstar' category who may do so, but they are very much in the minority. I took my action to help those players who would be regulars, but are held back by the superstars such as Johnny Bench and thus their careers are hampered."

Messersmith, who may get his first start with the Braves next Sunday when they meet the Dodgers in Los Angeles, said when the chips finally fell, it was the people involved — and not the money — that led him to sign with Atlanta.

And in particular, it was a comment by San Diego Padres owner Ray Kroc, the McDonald's hamburger chain baron, that convinced him.

"I wouldn't take the guy now at any price," Kroc said after Messersmith rejected the Padres' $1.1 million offer — which did not contain a no-cut provision — early last week. "He can work in a car wash... it was the most amazing display of arrogance I've ever seen."

"It would have been difficult for me to play in San Diego after the things Kroc said about me," Messersmith said. "Some things were said about me in the press that were not complimentary and it upset me."

"Ted (Turner, 30-year-old Braves' owner) is an honorable and decent man and he was the first person to contact me when I got my free agency."

"My agent and I have had nothing but friendly and courteous chats during this period. When Ted called to reopen talks, it took me just 10 minutes to make up my mind I was going to sign with Atlanta."

"He'll never be traded," Turner said. "He'll be a Brave as long as I am... It's for life or until death or old age us do part."

Messersmith rejoins four of his former Dodger teammates—Jimmy Wynn, Tom Paciorek, Jerry Royster and Lee Lacy.

"We have four players that are good friends of Andy's and they are all tickled to death," Turner said. "They said there's not a better player, and that's good enough for me."

Only Jim "Catfish" Hunter of the Yankees is paid more than Messersmith. Hunter signed with New York prior to the 1975 season for an estimated $3 million.

Ties tourney record Floyd cruises to Masters win

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Ray Floyd knew he had the Masters won, but he wanted to wrap it all up in a neat, tidy package.

"I knew the tournament was mine Saturday night," said Floyd after his runaway eight-stroke victory Sunday. "I didn't believe anyone else could catch me. But, I didn't want to do it sloppily."

He didn't.

Floyd had a steady 2-under-par 70 in the final round, good enough for a four-day total of 17-under-par 271 that tied the Masters record Jack Nicklaus set in 1965.

"I honestly wasn't thinking about the record at first," he said. "But I did start thinking about it when I went 17 under with my birdie at the 15th hole."

"I knew I had the tournament won, providing I didn't break a leg or something, so I figured why not go for the record?"

Floyd parred the last three holes and thus missed setting a new 72-hole mark.

He set 36-(131) and 54-hole (201) records and his 14 under-par showing for the par fives at Augusta National was a stroke better than Jimmy Demaret's next-best showing back in 1950.

"My play on the par fives was the secret of my success this week," said Floyd. "I figured the way the course was playing that if I hit the ball well I'd have a chance to birdie all of them."

He did better than that the first three days, getting 11 birdies and an eagle in 12 chances, but birdied only one of the four par-fives Sunday.

Floyd, who raised his earnings for the year to nearly $55,000 by picking up $40,000 in the Masters, had three birdies and a bogey in Sunday's round.

The bogey came at the par-three fourth hole where he missed the green. He got that shot back on the fifth hole by placing a three-iron shot three feet from the pin; ran home a 30-footer at No. 12; then sank a 15-footer at No. 15.

Young Ben Crenshaw, winner of two back-to-back tournaments earlier this year, had a 67 Sunday, the best score in the final round, for a 9-under-par 279 that earned him $25,000 second-place money.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, favored to win his sixth Masters championship, had his second straight 73 Sunday and wound up tied for third, at 282, with Larry Ziegler.

Former U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, former Masters champ Charles Coody and Tom Kite all had 285s and former Masters champ Billy Casper had a 287 as only eight golfers from the original Masters field of 72 were able to beat par for the full four rounds.

Sonics 2nd in Pacific

By United Press International
The Seattle Sonics will be just where they want to be when the National Basketball Association playoffs open this week — at home.

The Sonics overcame a determined Portland effort in their regular season finale Sunday 132-131 to finish in second place in the Pacific Division and earn the home court advantage in their best-of-seven quarterfinal showdown with the Phoenix Suns.

The Sonics will thus shoot for their 17th consecutive home court win Tuesday in their opening confrontation with the Suns. The Sonics, who own a 31-10 home record compared with a 12-29 road mark, were last defeated here by the Suns on Feb. 8.

Slick Watts, along with backcourt mate Fred Brown, ignited a fourth quarter rally which saw the Sonics erase an 11-point Blazer lead in the final seven minutes. Brown, who equaled Bill Walton's game-high 33 points, scored 12 in the fourth period and Watts added 15.

Walton staked the Blazers to a 34-26 first quarter lead with 15 points, five rebounds and four assists. But with Walton sidelined with three fouls in the second quarter, the Sonics struck for 40 points and a 66-61 halftime lead.

Walton added 12 points in the third quarter as the Blazers went back in front 94-92 and overall hit 14-of-17 shots, grabbed 14 rebounds and added six assists before fouling out in the final minute.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston edged Washington 103-99, Buffalo nipped Kansas City 99-98, Chicago trounced Milwaukee 111-77, Houston topped Atlanta 122-111, New York drubbed Cleveland 103-78 and New Orleans beat Detroit 112-105.

Celtics 103, Bulls 99
John Havlicek scored a season-high 38 points in Boston's last regular season contest to break a four-game losing streak. Elvin Hayes led Washington with 24.

Braves 99, Kings 98
Bob McAdoo garnered his third straight scoring crown, scoring 34 points to complete the season with a 31.1 average. McAdoo also grabbed 12 rebounds while Ken Charles added 20 points and John Shumate 17 points and 15 rebounds. Nate Archibald topped Kansas City with 27 points and Scott Wedman had 22. The Braves' playoff opener is in Philadelphia Thursday.

Bulls 111, Bucks 77
Tom Boerwinkle, Mickey Johnson and Cliff Ponderer combined for 75 Chicago points to end a three-game losing streak. Midwest Division champion Milwaukee meets Detroit in its first playoff game Tuesday.

Rockets 122, Hawks 111
Joe Mauerweaver scored 25 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 24 for Houston in a battle of two non-playoff teams. Dean Meminger had 24 for Atlanta.

Knicks 103, Cavs 78
Butch Beard led a balanced

New York attack with 16 points. Dick Snyder led Cleveland, which meets Washington Tuesday in its first playoff contest, with 13 points.

Jazz 112, Pistons 105
Pete Maravich scored 31 points and added nine assists to carry New Orleans past Detroit.

From time to time I like to review some of the basics which make better bowling possible. If we can just get a few of these in our heads we can apply them automatically as we bowl. I want to review the four-step delivery.

The ball is held in line with the right shoulder, the shoulder is in line with the second dot right of center on the approach and the wrist is fairly straight. The bowling elbow is close to the hip.

Step 1: The ball is pushed forward a moderate distance as the right foot moves forward.

Step 2: Weight of the ball straightens the elbow as the left arm is extended for balance.

Step 3: The ball is allowed to swing to the height of the backswing, somewhere from the waist to the shoulder.

Step 4: The ball and foot arrive at the foul line at approximately the same time.

A good knee bend as the ball is released is essential. Eyes are focused on the target. With proper release the ball automatically will be lifted over the foul line.

The follow through is correct as the arm swings straight through the target line.

Floating atomic plant gets environmental okay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff has decided there are no major environmental reasons to block construction of the world's first floating atomic power plant in the Atlantic Ocean off the New Jersey coast, an NRC spokesman said Saturday.

The staff's draft environmental impact statement appeared certain to draw heavy criticism. It must be submitted for comment to federal, state and local officials and is subject to revision before a final statement is issued.

The book-length draft statement was based on a two-year study of pioneering plans by the Public Service Electric and Gas Co. of Newark to put a floating nuclear power plant 2.8 miles out in the Atlantic just north of Atlantic City.

It said the risk of a lethal release of radioactivity through the air or water was "very low" and concluded there was little likelihood the tourist economy of the New Jersey shore would be damaged by the presence of the plant.

"The staff concludes that from an environmental impact point of view the plant should be constructed," the spokesman said.

In December, the NRC Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards issued a report tentatively approving the grant of a license to Offshore Power Systems, a Westinghouse subsidiary, to manufacture up to eight floating atomic power plants at Jacksonville, Fla.

The draft statement said experience in New York and Arkansas has shown there should be little or no dent in tourism caused by fear about the plant. It said the installation would greatly reduce East Coast reliance on foreign oil.

Breakwater and transmission line dredging will stir up 127 acres of sea floor, the statement said, creating potentially heavy siltation. It said burying the transmission lines will scar 43 acres of marsh and forest land, although much digging can be done in an existing road rather than in surrounding wetlands.

The NRC spokesman said the draft environmental statement was only "one small step" in the process of getting approval for the floating power plant, as was the reactor safeguards committee's preliminary report.

"We're a long way from approval," he said.

Candidate staffs include no women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women have been virtually excluded from top decision-making jobs on the staffs of the 1976 presidential candidates, according to a survey by the Capitol Hill Women's Political Caucus.

The survey, which the caucus promised to detail today, found that 69 of more than 400 paid campaign jobs existing in March were positions of power. Yet, it said, no more than 10 women — both paid and volunteer — wield any significant influence in these campaigns.

The study also found that women hold a greater share of the middle-level and support positions in the presidential campaigns.

"The doors to the inner councils of political decision-making are closed to women on almost every staff in the 1976 presidential campaign," the study concluded.

The caucus based its study on interviews and salary information submitted to the Federal Election Commission. As few as three and as many as four staff members were interviewed on each campaign staff, it said.

Lamaz— an alternative for expectant fathers

By MICHAL THOMPSON
 Pampa News Staff

Billy Hawkins did not want to accept the time worn role of expectant father, anxious and helpless in the hospital waiting room, while his wife suffered through her first experience of childbirth. And she did not want to suffer any more than necessary.

Instead they have become the most recent of more than 70 Panhandle area couples to have shared their child's birth through the Lamaze method of childbirth. Their first child, Emily Ann, was delivered at 7:17 a.m., April 6, at Highland General Hospital, and Hawkins helped considerably.

The Lamaze method of childbirth as promoted by the Panhandle Prepared Childbirth Association since 1973 trains couples in an eight-week course covering a series of exercises and breathing techniques designed to minimize the discomfort of childbirth. The method also enables both parents to actively participate in the delivery through a team concept developed among the doctor, nurses and the couple in the delivery room.

"We heard about Lamaze from friends who had decided to enroll in the program," HAWKINS SAID. "They told us about the exercises they did, the funny parts and the hard parts."

"We thought it would be safer for the baby," Mrs. Hawkins explained. "much more healthy."

"I personally didn't realize that the father would have such an active role until the last class," Billy reflected over the eight-week course taken along with three other couples. "In the last class they gave us fake contractions. That's when I knew what it was really going to be like and what my role would be. I realized that with the strain that Cynthia would be under she really had to learn to listen to my voice."

The Lamaze method is based on the theory of conditioned response. The husband coaches his wife through her contractions and delivery in carefully rehearsed "first, second and third gear" breathing exercises, according to the strength and nature of the contractions.

"We discussed earlier whether we even knew what a contraction was," recalled the newfather. "but sure enough, you find out real fast."

Monday evening at supper, April 5, Mrs. Hawkins announced that she thought she was having contractions.

"At 7:21 p.m. I started timing them," her husband said, "and they were eight to ten minutes apart and about 30 seconds in length. We went to bed at ten o'clock, but she woke me at midnight and we timed them again. They were three and four minutes apart, so we got to the hospital."

"She had hard contractions from 3:30 to 6 a.m., and about six o'clock it was the really gritty part where we went to third gear breathing with the panting and blowing to offset her urge to push."

Hawkins was not separated from his wife except when she was actually prepared for delivery and he had to put on his surgical gown. Throughout the delivery he was at his wife's side coaxing and consoling.

"The tremendous part," Hawkins exclaimed, "was watching the doctor bring out the baby. He immediately laid her down on Cynthia's stomach.

He took a kind of eye dropper and stuck it in Emily's mouth. She hadn't moved. She hadn't breathed, flailed her arms or anything. He got the liquid out of her mouth. Then he lifted her up by her feet and he just tapped her right on the butt. It was just like they put batteries in her and turned her on, because she just went... waaaaa."

Hawkins admitted his only apprehension about being a participant in his first child's delivery was his own emotional control.

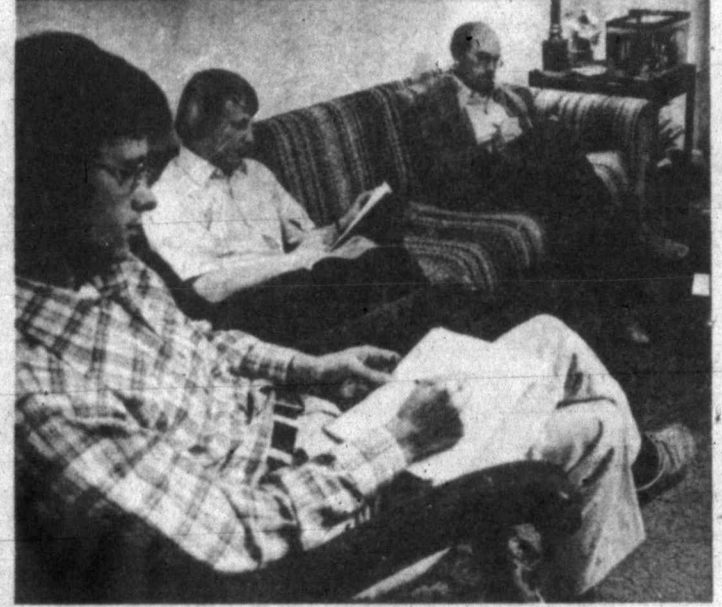

"I was afraid I was going to cry in the delivery room," he said. "I was really sweating that, but as early as three o'clock that morning I started crying while we were doing the second gear breathing. I don't cry easily. Right after Emily was born, I had my mask on, but it was just a solid wall of tears. I immediately hit the phone and made about eight calls."

"It's probably much more emotional for the father than it is for the mother," offered Mrs. Hawkins, "because the mother is so physically involved with the birth."

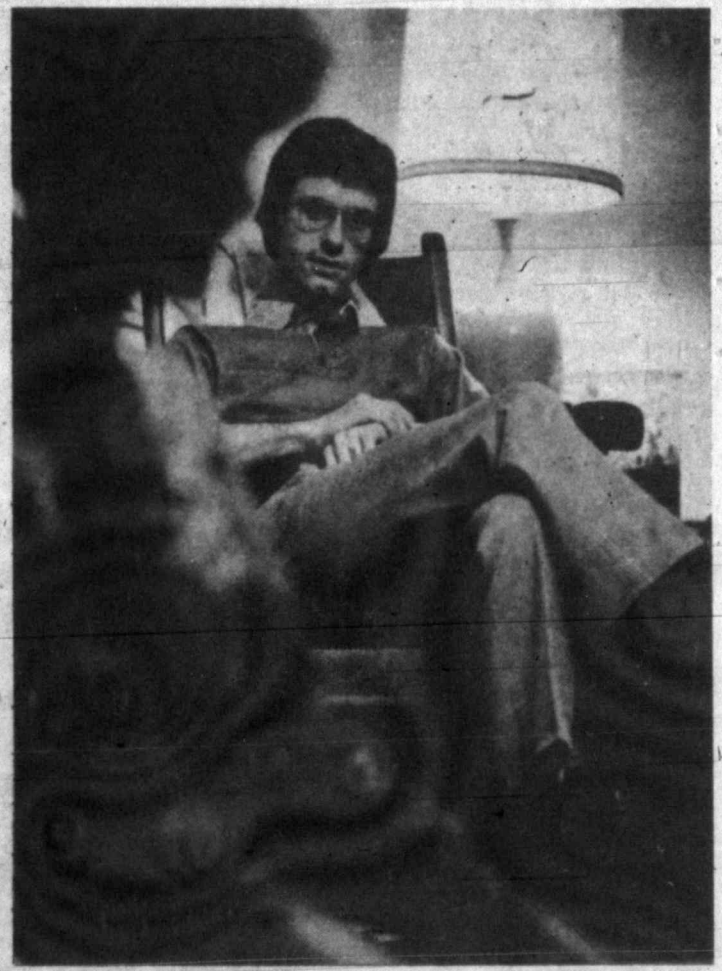

"When you're having a baby," Hawkins exclaimed, "especially your first child, you feel like you're the only ones in the world having a baby."

Billy Hawkins' chief role was to act as coach throughout Cynthia's labor and delivery. The most critical exercise to be practiced through the eight-week course is the pushing exercise, below.

Childbirth meeting tonight

Couples wishing to learn more about the Lamaze method of child delivery may attend the quarterly meeting of the Panhandle Prepared Childbirth Association at 8 p.m. today in the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

In addition of offering a program of pre-natal information, exercises and breathing techniques, the eight-week course primarily instructs couples in the Lamaze method of child delivery.

There is a charge of $25 for the course.

Wanetta Hill, one of three current instructors, stressed that Lamaze is not the popularly regarded "natural" childbirth, but emphasizes preparation on the part of the expectant couple. She underlined the need for both husband and wife to attend.

"Some wives have had to practically drag their husbands to this introductory meeting," Mrs. Hill remarked, "but by the end of the meeting it's usually the husbands who are most enthusiastic."

Hospitals that accommodate Lamaze deliveries are located in Pampa, Amarillo (High Plains Baptist), Perryton, Canadian and Shamrock.

Floating atomic plant gets environmental okay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff has decided there are no major environmental reasons to block construction of the world's first floating atomic power plant in the Atlantic Ocean off the New Jersey coast, an NRC spokesman said Saturday.

The staff's draft environmental impact statement appeared certain to draw heavy criticism. It must be submitted for comment to federal, state and local officials and is subject to revision before a final statement is issued.

The book-length draft statement was based on a two-year study of pioneering plans by the Public Service Electric and Gas Co. of Newark to put a floating nuclear power plant 2.8 miles out in the Atlantic just north of Atlantic City.

It said the risk of a lethal release of radioactivity through the air or water was "very low" and concluded there was little likelihood the tourist economy of the New Jersey shore would be damaged by the presence of the plant.

"The staff concludes that from an environmental impact point of view the plant should be constructed," the spokesman said.

In December, the NRC Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards issued a report tentatively approving the grant of a license to Offshore Power Systems, a Westinghouse subsidiary, to manufacture up to eight floating atomic power plants at Jacksonville, Fla.

Candidate staffs include no women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women have been virtually excluded from top decision-making jobs on the staffs of the 1976 presidential candidates, according to a survey by the Capitol Hill Women's Political Caucus.

The survey, which the caucus promised to detail today, found that 69 of more than 400 paid campaign jobs existing in March were positions of power.

Yet, it said, no more than 10

women — both paid and volunteer — wield any significant influence in these campaigns.

The study also found that women hold a greater share of the middle-level and support positions in the presidential campaigns.

"The doors to the inner councils of political decision-making are closed to women on almost every staff in the 1976 presidential campaign," the study concluded.

The draft statement said experience in New York and Arkansas has shown there should be little or no dent in tourism caused by fear about the plant. It said the installation would greatly reduce East Coast reliance on foreign oil.

Breakwater and transmission line dredging will stir up 127 acres of sea floor, the statement said, creating potentially heavy siltation. It said burying the transmission lines will scar 43 acres of marsh and forest land, although much digging can be done in an existing road rather than in surrounding wetlands.

214 N. Cuyler 665-2263

The caucus based its study on interviews and salary information submitted to the Federal Election Commission. As few as three and as many as four staff members were interviewed on each campaign staff, it said.

The NRC spokesman said the draft environmental statement was only "one small step" in the process of getting approval for the floating power plant, as was the reactor safeguards committee's preliminary report.

"We're a long way from approval," he said.

Lamaz— an alternative for expectant fathers

By MICHAL THOMPSON
Pampa News Staff

Billy Hawkins did not want to accept the time worn role of expectant father, anxious and helpless in the hospital waiting room, while his wife suffered through her first experience of childbirth. And she did not want to suffer any more than necessary.

Instead they have become the most recent of more than 70 Panhandle area couples to have shared their child's birth through the Lamaze method of childbirth. Their first child, Emily Ann, was delivered at 7:17 a.m., April 6, at Highland General Hospital, and Hawkins helped considerably.

The Lamaze method of childbirth as promoted by the Panhandle Prepared Childbirth Association since 1973 trains couples in an eight-week course covering a series of exercises and breathing techniques designed to minimize the discomfort of childbirth. The method also enables both parents to actively participate in the delivery through a team concept developed among the doctor, nurses and the couple in the delivery room.

"We heard about Lamaze from friends who had decided to enroll in the program," HAWKINS SAID. "They told us about the exercises they did, the funny parts and the hard parts."

"We thought it would be safer for the baby," Mrs. Hawkins explained. "much more healthy."

"I personally didn't realize that the father would have such an active role until the last class," Billy reflected over the eight-week course taken along with three other couples. "In the last class they gave us fake contractions. That's when I knew what it was really going to be like and what my role would be. I realized that with the strain that Cynthia would be under she really had to learn to listen to my voice."

The Lamaze method is based on the theory of conditioned response. The husband coaches his wife through her contractions and delivery in carefully rehearsed "first, second and third gear" breathing exercises, according to the strength and nature of the contractions.

"We discussed earlier whether we even knew what a contraction was," recalled the new father, "but sure enough, you find out real fast."

Monday evening at supper, April 5, Mrs. Hawkins announced that she thought she was having contractions.

"At 7:21 p.m. I started timing them," her husband said, "and they were eight to ten minutes apart and about 30 seconds in length. We went to bed at ten o'clock, but she woke me at midnight and we timed them again. They were three and four minutes apart, so we got to the hospital."

"She had hard contractions from 3:30 to 6 a.m., and about six o'clock it was the really gritty part where we went to third gear breathing with the panting and blowing to offset her urge to push."

Hawkins was not separated from his wife except when she was actually prepared for delivery and he had to put on his surgical gown. Throughout the delivery he was at his wife's side coaxing and consoling.

"The tremendous part," Hawkins exclaimed, "was watching the doctor bring out the baby. He immediately laid her down on Cynthia's stomach.

He took a kind of eye dropper and stuck it in Emily's mouth. She hadn't moved. She hadn't breathed, flailed her arms or anything. He got the liquid out of her mouth. Then he lifted her up by her feet and he just tapped her right on the butt. It was just like they put batteries in her and turned her on, because she just went... waaaaa."

Hawkins admitted his only apprehension about being a participant in his first child's delivery was his own emotional control.

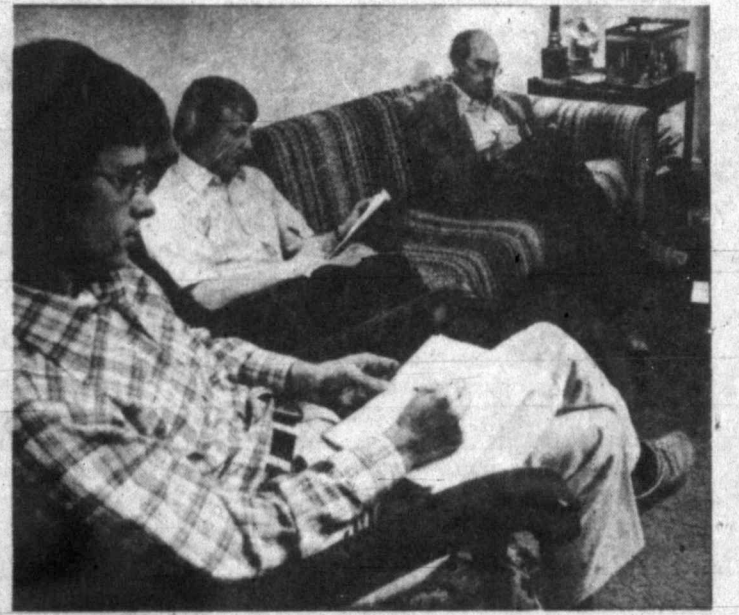

"I was afraid I was going to cry in the delivery room," he said. "I was really sweating that, but as early as three o'clock that morning I started crying while we were doing the second gear breathing. I don't cry easily. Right after Emily was born, I had my mask on, but it was just a solid wall of tears. I immediately hit the phone and made about eight calls."

"It's probably much more emotional for the father than it is for the mother," offered Mrs. Hawkins. "because the mother is so physically involved with the birth."

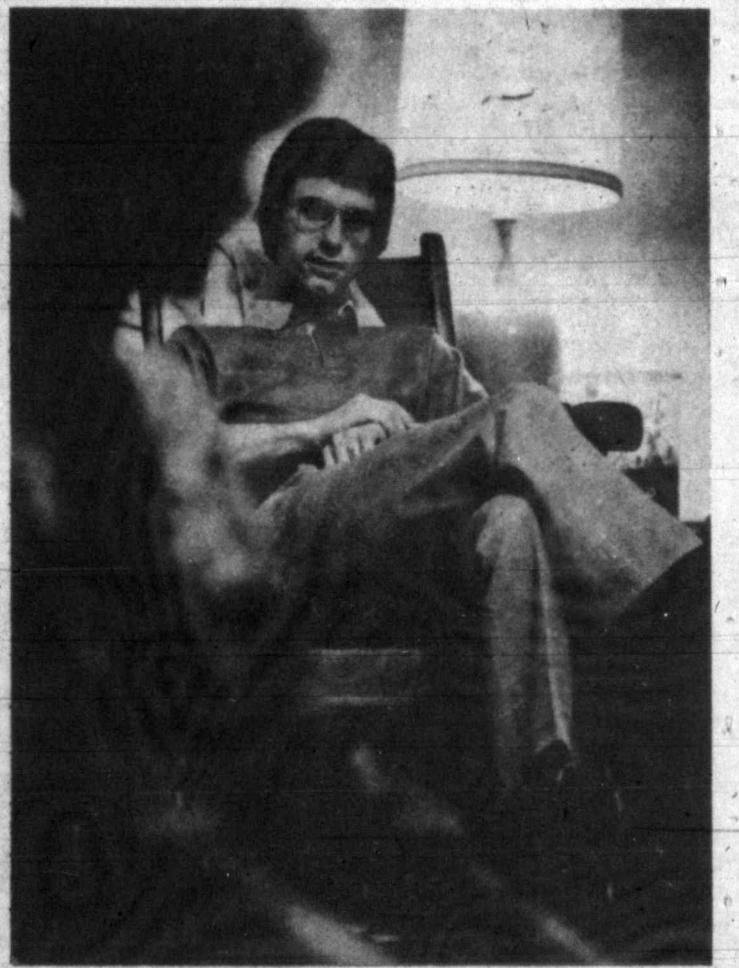

"When you're having a baby," Hawkins exclaimed, "especially your first child, you feel like you're the only ones in the world having a baby."

Cynthia Hawkins above, applies a light massage during her first gear breathing while her husband monitors her breathing rhythm. Billy Hawkins' chief role was to act as coach throughout Cynthia's labor and delivery. The most critical exercise to be practiced through the eight-week course is the pushing exercise, below.

Billy Hawkins takes notes along with other Lamaze fathers, Dr. Fred Simmons and Scott Epperson, during classes on prepared childbirth.

Emily Ann Hawkins gazes up at her father.

"I love your new home-wish we could afford a place of our own."

Childbirth meeting tonight

Couples wishing to learn more about the Lamaze method of child delivery may attend the quarterly meeting of the Panhandle Prepared Childbirth Association at 8 p.m. today in the Pioneer Natural Gas-Flame Room.

In addition of offering a program of pre-natal information, exercises and breathing techniques, the eight-week course primarily instructs couples in the Lamaze method of child delivery.

There is a charge of $25 for the course.

Wanetta Hill, one of three current instructors, stressed that Lamaze is not the popularly regarded "natural" childbirth, but emphasizes preparation on the part of the expectant couple. She underlined the need for both husband and wife to attend.

"Some wives have had to practically drag their husbands to this introductory meeting," Mrs. Hill remarked, "but by the end of the meeting it's usually the husbands who are most enthusiastic."

Hospitals that accommodate Lamaze deliveries are located in Pampa, Amarillo (High Plains Baptist), Perryton, Canadian and Shamrock.
