

US to use economic pressure in Rhodesia

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — The United States will use "unrelenting" economic pressure to force Rhodesia's white regime to accept black majority rule and "avoid a great tragedy," Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in a major policy speech prepared for delivery today.

The 10-point program stopped short of giving any direct military aid to black antiRhodesian liberation movements, but included an administration push to repeal the controversial Byrd amendment, which permits the United States to evade the United Nations' embargo on the import of Rhodesian chrome.

"A peaceful end to institutionalized inequality is in the interest of all South Africans," Kissinger said. "The United States will continue to encourage and work for peaceful change."

He said the world community insists on a rapid move toward black rule in Rhodesia and "it is the responsibility of those in Rhodesia who believe in peace to take steps necessary to avert a great tragedy."

The Kissinger plan, prepared for delivery at the Zambian State House, was aimed at isolating landlocked Rhodesia economically. It would give aid to the regime's opponents and discourage Americans from even traveling to Rhodesia until there is serious negotiation on the issue of black rule.

"The world community's concern with South Africa is not merely that racial discrimination exists there," Kissinger said. "What is unique is the extent to which racial discrimination has been institutionalized, enshrined in law and made all-pervasive."

Rhodesia's 59 million blacks outnumber whites 23 to 1.

Kissinger said his trip to Africa was intended to usher in a new era of American policy toward the African continent, but said he did not come to present a program "to be passively accepted by Africans."

In the 10-point program, Kissinger — Notified the Rhodesian regime directly that it faces "unrelenting U.S. opposition until a negotiated settlement is achieved."

— Said the administration would urge the Congress to repeal the Byrd amendment permitting the import of chrome from Rhodesia and will approach other industrial nations—notably France—to honor U.N. sanctions against the country. Senior U.S. officials quote congressional leaders as saying that they believe there are enough votes to repeal the amendment by "a narrow margin."

— Will advise American citizens not to travel to Rhodesia and will urge those Americans there to leave.

— Will undertake economic aid programs for countries neighboring Rhodesia which decided to enforce sanctions by closing their frontiers" and suffer economic hardship.

Rhodesia, led by Prime Minister Ian Smith, illegally broke away from Britain in 1965 rather than submit to a move toward black rule. The United Nations followed by imposing economic sanctions against the country.

Farewell kiss

Dona Cornutt, distributive education teacher at Pampa High School since 1969, will resign at the end of the current school year. She was recognized by the Pampa Area Vocational School and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce at the annual Employer - Employee Banquet Monday night. She receives a farewell kiss from Dudley Steele, representing the chamber of commerce.

Top DECA winner

Leanne Hall was named outstanding girl distributive education student during the annual Employer - Employee Banquet for working high school students Monday night. Pictures of other outstanding cooperative education students are on page 8 and more will appear in Wednesday's paper.

Celanese plant spends $38 million

The Pampa plant of Celanese Chemical Co. spent $38 million on the purchase of supplies and services in Texas during 1975, according to the announcement today by C.E. Steel, plant manager.

Of this amount more than $15 million — 83 per cent — was spent with a 50-mile radius of Pampa.

The figures represent an increase over 1974 when the plant spent $30.5 million for services and supplies in Texas with $26.2 million spent within a 50-mile radius of Pampa.

Steel said the local plant's 1975 payroll amounted to more than $6.3 million and the plant paid $638,000 in state and local taxes last year.

The 1974 payroll was $6.6 million and the state and local taxes for that year were $450,000.

Celanese Chemical Company, which has four production plants and a technical center in Texas spent more than $262.1 million for the purchase of supplies and service in the state during 1975 as compared with $165.6 million in 1974.

The company's consolidated payrolls at the five Texas locations in 1975 exceeded $39.2 million with state and local taxes for the five installations totaling $7.2 million.

Consolidated payrolls in 1974 were $42.2 million with state and local taxes totaling $5.7 million.

In addition to the Pampa plant, Celanese has chemical plants at Bishop, Bay City and Clear Lake and a Technical center at Corpus Christi.

Celanese is an operating division of Celanese Corporation, a world-wide producer of chemicals, fibers, plastics, paints and coatings.

Cash still missing from Gibson take

Cash taken during an armed robbery last week is still missing, though police are continuing their investigation into the crime according to Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills.

The cash was in a large, locked money bag with checks from the Perryton Parkway Gibson Discount Center. The bag was taken from assistant store manager Gene Pruitt Wednesday night as he left the store to take the cash receipts to the bank.

Pampa and Borger law enforcement officers and members of the Texas Rangers recovered the bag and the checks Sunday in Greenbelt Lake. The cash had been removed from the bag, Mills said.

Also recovered from the lake waters were weapons taken from the National Guard Armory in Borger during a Nov. 24 burglary.

The armed robbery suspect, Paul Long, was arrested within minutes of the Gibson robbery and police found a 45-caliber automatic pistol believed to have been used in the robbery near the arrest site.

A check of the weapon revealed it had been taken from the armory during the burglary, implicating Long in that crime.

Long has been formally charged with both the Borger burglary and the Gibson armed robbery and is being held under a total of $125,000 bond on the two charges.

Pampa detectives obtained a search warrant Thursday for Long's house at 1210 E. Francis and according to Mills "illegal weapons and parts of weapons" were found in the house.

Mills added that these weapons are not from the burglary of the National Guard Armory, but he said they have been sent to the state crime lab for ballistics testing.

Mills said the information which led officers to the cache of weapons and opened money bag in Greenbelt Lake was offered by a confidential source.

Vocational students honored

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Working students from Pampa High School were honored Monday night at the annual Employer - Employee Banquet in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Forty-five vocational students were named winners of 68 awards — many of them earned at local, district and state contests earlier in the school year.

Special recognition was also given to retiring distributive education teacher Dona Cornutt.

Mrs. Cornutt received roses and a plaque from the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and the Pampa Area Vocational School citing her for "excellence in leadership and service to the school and community as coordinator of distributive education, 1969-76."

Each of five vocational programs in Pampa High School selected cooperative students to receive honors as outstanding student for that program.

Students enrolled in the cooperative education classes spend part of each school day gaining on-the-job experience outside the classroom. There are 140 students employed by "about 75 different training sponsors" in the area, according to Don Nelson, vocational supervisor for Pampa schools.

Selections were made by employers, program coordinators and "other school personnel," Nelson said.

The distributive education curriculum recognized the largest number of winners, with 18 students mentioned for 30 honors.

Leanne Hall was selected outstanding girl student leader of the year in the Pampa program. She won the local contest for the title and was first runner-up in area competition. She is employed by Heard and Jones Rexall Drug Store.

The outstanding boy student leader of the year in Pampa and in the state is Gary Sanders, employed by C.R. Anthony.

Debbie Roth, a vocational office education student employed by Hawkins - Eddins Appliances, was one of two outstanding VOE cooperative students for 1975-76. She also was recognized for a merit award in bulletin boards at an area contest where she also placed second in information communications level 2 to compete in the state contest.

Second outstanding VOE cooperative student was Andy Lee, employed by Cabot Corp. He placed first in general clerical level 2 and submitted a perfect math paper to qualify for state competition.

Nine students in the industrial cooperative training curriculum qualified for 14 awards, with the outstanding ICT student honors going to Tim Epps, president of ICT-VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) chapter 1098. Epps, employed by D&S Suzuki Sales, placed third in the district skill contest and received a second with an exhibit.

Special recognition was given to Vic Laramore for showing an "outstanding amount of desire and determination... a student we are very proud of."

District, area and state contests will begin today for Pampa High School agriculture students with the Top O Texas District Record Book Check. Winners will compete in the Area 1 FFA Convention May 15 in Lubbock and the state contest is slated for June.

Ronald Haynes, outstanding vocational agriculture cooperative student, was selected for "enthusiasm, dedication, attitude, cooperation and willingness to excel, both on the job... and in the classroom." He has been employed by Bowers Farms during the 1975-76 school year.

Recipient of the DeKalb Agricultural Accomplishment Award was Kenneth Gage. The award is made to the top senior vocational agriculture student in each school in recognition for "scholarship, leadership in supervised programs in agriculture." He has been employed by the Gray County Veterinary Clinic.

Anita Cox was named outstanding student in the home economics cooperative education program. The group which selected her said, "This decision is always a hard one, especially with no contests to help decide... She is really an outstanding student."

Other students to receive mention were:

VOE: Briget Albus, Margaret Nabors, Debbie Pope, Marilyn Ballard, Frankie Watt, Jeanne Townsend, Brenda Steddum, Ginger Wilson, Kim Chisum, Regina Orr, Julie Watson and Tammy Eads.

ICT: Cathy Cone, Janna Braxton, Julie Cox, Lynn Reed, Kenneth Dougherty, David Chambless and Bobby Broadbent.

HECE: Cindy Hon.

Cooperative education instructors at Pampa High School are Dona Cornutt, distributive education; Wanda Doughten, vocational office education; Phil Earhart, industrial cooperative training; Randy Williams, agriculture cooperative training; and Esther Colville, home economics cooperative education.

Choir concert tonight

The combined choirs of Pampa High School will appear in concert at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

The men's choir will sing "Tarantella" with accompaniment by Debbie Lehnick. The women's concert choir will offer two selections from "Ceremony of Carols."

Light numbers will include "Ezekiel Saw De Wheel" and "You Do Something to Me" which will be performed with a soft-shoe routine.

The Mixed Choir will sing "Celebrate" and "The Way We Were" and sophomore girls will sing "I Wish You Love" and "Johnny Has Gone for a Soldier."

Additional concerts during the 1975-76 school year will include programs for the Spearman High School Choir and Pampa Junior High School.

The vocalists will compete in the Mountain States Music Festival at Arizona State University, Tempe, Ariz., on Saturday. They will leave for the contest Thursday and will return to Pampa May 4.

A spring festival in the Harvester Field House will be May 21.

City dump violates rules vehicles used by individuals allow leakage of liquids and solids.

2. Gates are not kept locked when attendant is not on duty.

3. Scavenging is permitted.

All of these are in violation, Freeman stated, with a request that "the city within 30 days submit a status report to the regional office outlining corrective actions which have been fully implemented."

If there is delay in submitting the report, the letter stated further, reasons for the delay must be explained along with the estimated date the improvements will be completed.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson said at today's council meeting the changes to be made are going to require study and many people who haul their own debris to the landfill will be affected.

"I'm sure there will be a way to work it out," the mayor said, "and we will take the necessary corrective action."

In other business at today's meeting:

Commissioners heard a request from Pampa Cable TV for an amendment to their franchise ordinance permitting the company to carry advertising and show full length movies.

Dale Greenhouse and Wayne Steddum, appearing for the cable company, told commissioners several necessary changes were needed to comply with requirements and regulations of the Federal Communications Commission.

"There definitely is no rate increase to customers involved," Steddum said. "We are asking the franchise be updated to so we can give better service."

Commissioners agreed to consider the request and asked that a draft of the new franchise ordinance be prepared for further discussion at the next meeting on May 11.

Action on 17 abandoned properties on a public hearing list for possible removal or demolition was continued until the next council meeting in May.

Commissioners asked the city staff to study further requests of Bill Harris and Jerry Smith of the Men's Industrial Softball League for improvements at the East Field in Lions Club Park. The requests included additional lighting, permission to build a concession stand and a permanent fence around the field.

City Manager Mack Wofford reported on the acquisition of right-of-way for the widening of SH 273 south from the old underpass on S. Barnes to McCullough St.

Officers have been made to all property owners for 17 parcels of land needed for the 10-foot strip on each side of the street, he stated.

The city manager said the right-of-way purchases need to be completed by Aug. 1 and that there is a good chance the contract for the entire improvement from Brown St. south may be let this year.

The Rev. Phillip Craig was appointed to fill a vacancy on the Lovett Memorial Library board.

Pampa Chrysler - Dodge was awarded the low bid on the purchase of six police patrol cars in the total amount of $23,576.

Wilkerson was authorized to execute a joint use agreement with the State Highway Dept. on SH 273.

Partial payment of $1,710 was authorized to Merriman & Barber consultant engineers for service in regard to repair of the North Crest elevated water tower, along with payment of $5,149 to Parkhill, Smith & Cooper for inspection service at the waste water treatment plant construction site.

Red Deer watershed gets okay

The Red Deer Creek Watershed project has been approved by House Public Works Committee and apparently has overcome the last big hurdle before becoming a reality.

Word of the recent approval of the project came late Monday afternoon from Perry Grubhley, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service.

Doug Cunningham, area conservationist with the SCS, said this morning that the project involves a total of 20 structures in Gray, Roberts and Hemphill counties.

No cost estimate for either project has been reported.

Gray county payroll up $2 million from 1974

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

The City of Pampa has been called on the carpet for what the Texas Department of Health labels non-compliance with "Municipal Solid Waste Management Regulations" at the city's sanitary landfill at the junction of E. Browning and Loop 171.

City Manager Mack Wofford reported at today's City Commission meeting that the city had been notified in a letter dated April 21 from Ron Freeman, regional director of Environmental and Consumer Health Protection for Public Health Region I in Canyon, that at least three rules and regulations were being violated.

Freeman said that in an inspection made April 7 at the waste disposal site the following conditions of non-compliance were observed:

1. Solid waste transport employees — 96 more than during the same quarter in 1974.

Social Security payments in Gray County exceeded $10 million in 1975, and records show that 4,813 county residents received monthly Social Security checks. These figures are not part of the TEC report.

Ragdale said the new TEC report represents an increase in wholesale and retail trades resulting in 171 additional jobs over the same quarter of 1974. Oilfield work shows 92 fewer jobs than the previous year. Construction was up by 110 jobs, and manufacturing was down by 34 jobs.

Transportation (trucks, etc.) shows 11 more employees, while finance and real jobs decreased by 10.

While the food service industry is showing an increase in hiring today, the report shows the number of employees in that line of work was down by 65 over the 1974 figures.

The number of government employees, listed on the TEC rolls, remained exactly the same, Ragdale noted.

The figures released by Ragdale were derived through reports submitted by Gray County employers, whose employees are covered by unemployment insurance.

The reports were sent to the Austin TEC office where the figures were compiled.

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The Texas Employment Commission's tax report, received in the local office today, shows that the total Gray County payroll for the third quarter of 1975 was up by $1,733,552.51 as compared with same period in 1974.

The announcement was made by Bill Ragdale, manager of the Pampa TEC office, who noted that average salary is also up.

The report shows that the average monthly wage for Gray County employees increased from $731.98 to $796.04 during the same three month periods in comparison.

The annual payroll within Gray County, which includes only those employees covered by unemployment insurance, according to these figures, is estimated at $75,684,188.

This report does not include the Highland General and McLean General hospital salaries nor those who work for small businesses not covered by unemployment insurance. Agricultural and household workers are not included in the figures.

The total labor force in Gray County was estimated at 12,400 in December by Howard L. Weatherly, manager of the Pampa Social Security Office.

The TEC report shows Gray County 7,923

Sinking Britain's lesson

At times in the last generation the United States and Great Britain have seemed to be heading down the same path toward a "welfare state" — with the British several laps ahead. Britain plunged boldly into cradle-to-grave health and welfare programs that Americans have been embracing by degrees. The theory of Lord Keynes that government spending could stimulate economic growth in the same manner as private investment was embraced by the British more readily than by American political leaders.

The economic decline which has paralleled Britain's adventure in a "mixed" system of socialism and private enterprise has made the comparison with trends in the United States an ominous one. Does America face the same fate? The politicians and others in our country who try to avoid that question while following British footsteps in social and economic policies should pay heed to what is happening in Britain right now.

The Labor Party, architect of British socialism, is backing away from doctrines which have guided it — and British destiny — for most of the last 30 years. High unemployment, an inflation rate that hit 25 per cent last year, the alarming decline in the once-proud British pound, loss of export markets and a lag in economic growth have jolted the Labor government into a realization that something has to change, and change drastically.

Government spending is being frozen at current levels. The nationalized health service is being cut back. The Laborites, of all people, are telling trade unions to curb their wage demands. The government has embarked on a "new industrial strategy" aimed at beefing up investment in the neglected private sector of the economy. Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey is conceding that a "soak" the rich" tax policy has its limits.

Tax rates on salaries range up to 83 per cent in Britain and up to 98 percent on investment income. Even workers at the low end of the scale pay 35 per cent of their income in taxes. The London Economist estimates that 725,000 Britons emigrated last year looking for a better standard of living — most of them skilled workers the country needs.

Government spending accounts for 60 percent of Britain's gross national product. The presumption of Keynesian economists that this diversion of wealth to the public sector would not produce a drag on capital formation and economic growth is simply not borne out by the performance of the British economy.

The new tone emerging from Whitehall raises the hope that Britain can get back on its feet. In the United States, we are somewhat better off. Government spending has risen to 40 percent of our GNP and it is within our power to check its increase.

The question for Americans is whether we need to go as far down the Keynesian track as the British did before we recognize the trap that lies ahead.

Creditable gains

It's not just the professional or full-time working woman who is winning economic justice. Widows and divorced women, who once were politely shown the door if they applied for a loan, now have a much improved chance of getting or keeping credit, thanks to new legislation and enlightened lending policies.

While these women are subject to the same lending criteria as anybody else — income, employment, credit history, etc. — factors that are unique to them also now apply, advises the American Bankers Assn. (ABA).

For instance, alimony and child support payments, which used to be automatically discounted, are now a legal part of income if you can prove the payments are reliable. A copy of the court divorce order is one good proof.

Part-time work also now qualifies as a reliable source of income. Here, a letter from your employer verifying the stability of your job will help when applying for credit.

Or if you've been left in possession of a house, car, stocks or a bank account, says the ABA, you can use these as collateral for your initial loans.

A cozy Amtrak meeting

By PETER GRUENSTEIN
News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — By Capitol Hill's standards, the Committee hearing room was informal and cozy. There were no portraits of distinguished solons hanging on the plain white wall, no ornate woodwork or high ceilinged chandeliers common to the office buildings that ring the Capitol building.

And informal and cozy also described the substance of the House Transportation Subcommittee's work — to draft or "mark-up" legislation authorizing funds for Amtrak, the quasi-governmental, rail passenger corporation.

There were not many observers — only 30 to 35 — in the small hearing room as Chairman Rep. Fred Rooney, D-Pa., called the subcommittee to order at 2:30 p.m. But, with the exception of one reporter, there was probably nobody present who did not have a stake in the panel's work. And everyone seemed to know everyone else.

No sooner did Rooney turn to one subcommittee staffer and ask him to explain the legislation to the members than the aide turned to someone sitting directly behind him to help explain some of the subtleties of the measure.

That someone was Bruce Pike, Amtrak's vice-president for congressional affairs. Pike did such a good job, in fact, that during certain portions of the panel's deliberations he wound up answering more of the committee's queries than did the committee staff.

During one of the recesses, while the subcommittee members scuttled to the House floor for a vote, Pike jokingly told a committee aide that he longed for the old days of "executive" (closed) committee sessions. (Within the last several years, Congress has passed reforms which require almost all committee sessions to be open to the public.)

"I'd rather be standing out in the hall with apprehension," Pike told the staffer, "than sitting in here answering their frigg questions."

"The other day I was at an Appropriations committee session and they had me sitting at the table with them," Pike continued. "Their questions were so bad I couldn't even answer them because I didn't know what they were talking about."

Fulton County, Ga., was named for Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat, but no steamboats have ever been seen in the county.

Humphrey's crafty 'campaign'

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, APRIL 27 —

The odds are still against Hubert Humphrey winning up as the Democratic presidential nominee, but he has already scored one eventful distinction.

It's waging the craftiest, canniest and most innovative campaign of all.

While adroitly eschewing the exhausting and costly scrambling and hassling of the numerous state primaries, staying benignly aloof from the increasingly torrid squabbling and name calling of the battles, and not spending a dime, the veteran Minnesotan is right up there with the frontrunners — and clearly slated to continue to be all the way to the July convention.

As Carter, Jackson, Udall and Wallace vie furiously for top honors in popular votes, Humphrey is quietly concentrating on collecting convention delegates in any guise he can get them — committed, uncommitted, second choice, etc.

It's smooth and slick, and so far very productive.

Says Sen. Jackson: "We know that a number of those on our delegate list in Pennsylvania prefer Humphrey. They make no bones about it. But they are on our slate of delegates because they won't support Carter, Udall or Wallace on the basis of their labor records. We are not requiring a 'loyalty oath' from these union men because we'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Pretty much the same situation prevails in every one of the seven state primaries so far. In every instance of uncommitted delegates, a considerable number are avowedly or otherwise for Humphrey. And the same goes for those nominally committed to declared candidates.

It's no secret every list of such delegates contains covert Humphrey backers.

The moment their candidate falters, they can be expected to scamper for the Humphrey bandwagon — if he can lure them on, and he'll be right there piper with his inimitable guile and finesse.

Keystone of Humphrey's wily strategy is playing all sides to the middle.

As circumstances dictate, he deftly gives a hand to one frontrunner in one state and another in another state.

And, noticeably, he doesn't berate, badger or derogate any of them. Outwardly, Humphrey is benignly friendly to all. On the record, he's on good terms across the board — while astutely playing his own game in the wings.

Graphically illustrative — the last two state primaries, New York and Wisconsin on April 6.

In Wisconsin, where Jackson made no organized effort and the race was between Carter, Udall and Wallace, Humphrey quietly threw his weight to Udall. The Minnesotan didn't hustle the hustings for Udall, but let it be known he favored the gangling Arizona "Progressive."

In other words, Humphrey played Udall off against Carter and Wallace.

While this artful play didn't pay off for Udall, with Carter narrowly carrying the state, it nevertheless won potentially valuable favor for Humphrey in Udall's camp.

In New York, the story was the same — with one difference. There, with the second largest number of convention delegates (234) at stake, Humphrey blandly sided with Jackson — who made a major effort with extensive organizing and considerable spending.

Jackson was certain of a strong showing, so Humphrey quietly put in some licks for him. How much they helped no one knows; surely they didn't hurt.

So Humphrey neatly chalked up credits with Jackson which could very well pay off a few months hence. In fact, backstage Humphrey has a hefty headstart on that in the sizable list of uncommitted New York delegates.

Insiders credit at least 75 per cent of them in Humphrey's column.

Volunteers
In this crafty Humphrey strategy, he is getting quite a bit of help from McGovernites, balck activists and other militants.

Whether they are volunteer allies, or pitching in to vent personal vendettas or to hopefully push ideological and other aims is unclear. But they're putting in licks to Humphrey's advantage.

In Wisconsin, McGovern himself took the stump for Udall in carefully selected areas, such as Madison, noted for its leftists and dissidents. Also Rep. Les Aspin, rancorous pacifist and Pentagon - biter, did his utmost to boost Udall.

Interestingly, Udall managers were distinctly uneasy about Aspin's support — fearing it would do more harm than good.

Too Early
In pursuing this canny course in the state primaries, Humphrey is also imposing the same tactics on his followers.

He has firmly stalled a plan to launch a draft movement for him.

Reps. Paul Simon, Chicago radical, and Bob Bergland, Minnesota leftist, were all set to unleash a grandiose draft drive when Humphrey vigorously called a halt.

In effect, he told them, "Hold your horses. The time isn't ripe yet."

When they impatiently asked, "When will it be ripe?" Humphrey snapped, "I'll let you know. In the meanwhile, play it smart and don't rock the boat."

Humphrey indicated his nod may be forthcoming after the April 27 Pennsylvania primary. If that turns out to be inconclusive, as he considers likely, he may decide to allow the launching of a draft committee.

Significantly, favoring that are two top House leaders — Reps. Thomas O'Neill, Mass., and John McFall, Calif., Democratic floor leader and whip. They were consulted by Simon and Bergland on their draft plan, and were strongly urged to go ahead with it.

Tom Tiede Candidate Udall misses the bus

By Tom Tiede

PHILADELPHIA — (NEA) — Presidential candidate Morris Udall was sidewalk campaigning when it happened, moving from hand to hand along Chestnut Street near Center City. Suddenly his entourage engulfed the unexpected, a man in a wheelchair begging with a tin cup. Unable to avoid him, not with the TV cameras watching, Udall stopped.

The man was a spastic, his hands curled inward, his knees flopped out of control, spit leaked in threads from his twisted mouth. Awkwardly, Udall bent down to talk. And that proved to be illustrative of sorts. It was the kind of moment many politicians dread, one that called for something besides a political response; and in effect candidate Udall was lowering himself to the occasion.

Udall tried to make small talk. But the beggar could hardly speak, small or otherwise. Each of his words was tortured. He did try to talk, and eventually would have talked, but for Udall there was no moment to listen. There was a schedule to keep, more hands to shake, more children of the voters to pat on the head. A political campaign must move, move! There is no time for individuals.

Ah, well, uh — Udall mumbled for his exit line. The spastic was forming a sentence. Fine, fine, Udall nodded, and, um, if I'm elected president I'd like to pry loose some more federal funds for all handicapped people.

And then he was gone; and with him his entourage, his aides with their posters and their buttons, his press with their deadlines, his guards, hangers on, and awe struck public. Swoosh! One could almost see the departing draft pick up paper from the street and deposit it like cold flakes about the now lonely wheelchair beggar.

The man, actually, was still trying to speak. He very much wanted to say something. He put his tin cup between his knees and looked at a reporter who had stayed behind. "I — caaan," he said, "I — caaan," he repeated, eventually getting it all out: "I can walk if I'm helped." And that's what he wanted to tell Mo Udall, because as it happens it is to him important for others to know.

Why? Because for Charles Homiller, spastic beggar, the world is more complicated than for most of the rest of us. And it is not federal aid he needs so much as it is people who will listen. He said for example that if the Philadelphia transit authority knew that he could walk with assistance, it might encourage its drivers to help him on and off city busses. As it is now, Homiller must rely on benevolent citizens for such, and they are hard to find during the rush hours. As a result, he said, if one cared to listen, he often is passed up by many busses before he can board one.

There are other things Charles Homiller would have liked to have told Mo Udall. Such as the times his cup money has been robbed by ruffians, or the fact that during noon time traffic on Chestnut Street, people crowd so close he has been knocked into the street. He would also have said that the city is full of the kind of patriots who drop notes in his cup advising him to "Love Thy Neighbor, but don't get caught" — that being one of the milder suggestions.

But Udall could not afford to hear it. He was too busy trying to become president, an officer whose ears have never been significant. And so on the day Udall promised the spastic more federal aid to the handicapped, he almost promised a carpenter he would "turn this country around" to get the construction industry going again. He promised a woman's liberationist that he would not support the "Right to life" amendment, he promised a student audience he would try to decriminalize marijuana, and he promised a homosexual that he would not change his libertarian view of people under the sheets. And, oh, he promised some transit riders he thought free rides were a must for the future.

Morris Udall is a fine man. Mostly decent. But one must wonder about officials in pin stripe suits who promise more than they listen. Charles Homiller can walk, Mo, do you hear that, walk! Keep your damn federal funds. What he needs is help getting on the bus.

Area unemployment rate drops US Supreme Court agrees to hear appeal for family

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
The unemployment rate in the five-county area served by the Texas Employment Commission's Pampa Office is expected to show a slight drop — from three per cent in February to just under three per cent for March.

The estimate was made by Bill Ragsdale, office manager for the local TEC office, who added that 114 persons were placed on jobs through orders from that office during March. A total of 307 placements was recorded by the Pampa office during the first three months of 1976.

A total of 307 placements was recorded by the Pampa office during the first three months of 1976.

In comparison, the Texas unemployment rate took a drop of three-tenths of one per cent in March, according to TEC Chairman Harold K. Dudley. The March rate of 5.1 per cent is one of the lowest in the nation," Dudley declared, adding that some 30,000 workers in Texas found jobs. The state's February rate was 5.4 per cent.

Ragsdale said the lower rate in the five county area, which includes an estimated 50,000 population, is attributed to an increase in construction and additional hiring in the food service industry as well as other factors.

The unemployment claims are showing a gradual downward trend," he added. Ragsdale said he is sure the rains will help the employment picture.

"We have received more orders for April than in March," he emphasized.

The Pampa office serves Gray, Roberts, Hemphill, Lipscomb and Wheeler counties. The state trend in unemployment drop was attributed to four major factors: settlement of labor-management disputes, increase in agricultural employment, construction starts triggering increases in allied industries, and seasonal activity in tax-return preparation.

"The picture for March is an indication of the healthy economy of the state," Dudley commented. "I believe that the state will continue to have one of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation, and that the Texas economy will continue to expand."

He added that the rate will continue to drop, "generally at a slow rate."

Amarillo's March jobless rate was 3.4 per cent. Lubbock recorded a 3.5 per cent with Abilene at 3.1. The lowest unemployment rate was in Midland where a 2.5 per cent rate was shown. San Angelo had 3.0 per cent.

Major labor areas exceeding the state average were Beaumont - Port Arthur - Orange, 5.8 per cent; Brownsville - Harlingen - San Benito, 9.4 per cent; Corpus Christi, 6.6 per cent; El Paso, 8.7; Laredo, 15.6 and Sherman - Denison, 8.5.

During the first three months of 1976, TEC employees found 96,000 jobs for workers throughout the state. This was a gain of nearly 20 per cent over the same time last year, Dudley said.

EAST CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — "If there's any justice and if what America is based on means anything, then I shouldn't lose the case," the 62-year-old grandmother threatened with jail for keeping her grandchildren in her home said.

Mrs. Inez J. Moore of East Cleveland was fined $25 and sentenced to jail because her two sons and their two sons are living with her in violation of a city housing ordinance. The U.S. Supreme Court agreed Monday to hear her appeal next fall.

So far she has not gone to jail over her defiance of an ordinance that bars anyone residing in an area zone for families from housing more than one dependent married or unmarried child, who has children of his or her own.

She maintains the ordinance amounts to an attack on the traditional family unit and violates her constitutional rights.

"Throughout the United States ever since I was born, everyone has talked about the family living together, staying together and praying together," she said. "That's what I'm trying to do."

Her sons Dale and John and their sons, Dale Jr., 5, and John Jr., 9, have been living with her in a three-bedroom house because they cannot afford homes of their own. Mrs. Moore says her daughter, Carol, and her child moved out when the city Housing Department notified her of the violation.

"They came when I wasn't home," Mrs. Moore said. "I think they kind of scared her because she told me she didn't want to make any trouble for me and she moved out."

Mrs. Moore says her trouble started when she tried to enter her grandchildren in the elementary school across the street and the school insisted she would either have to become their guardian or the children would have to live in a home of their own with their parents. She says the school system referred the matter to the housing authorities.

"The whole thing is just a lot of nonsense," said Mrs. Moore, a widow who lost her husband when the oldest of their seven children was 15. "I've never broken any law."

"I think what I'm doing is a humanitarian thing of trying to raise some children," she added. "I don't know how they think these children are going to survive without a woman to supervise them."

She said she was "really pleased" that the Supreme Court has decided to hear her case.

"Whatever the final verdict is I'll have to accept it," she said. "If it goes against me I'll have to move. I don't intend to live alone at 62."

"If I become anybody's responsibility I'll be my children's. As long as we can make it together, togetherness is what we need."

WOMAN'S WORLD
NEW YORK (UPI) — More and more women are taking over various chores in the once exclusively male automobile industry, according to the Automotive Information Council. It points out that women run transmission shops, wholesale parts businesses, and car dealerships. Figures supplied in the latest federal census show that more than 20,000 women list their occupation as truck driver.

Grechko dies

MOSCOW (UPI) — Defense Minister Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, credited with giving the Soviet Union military parity with the United States, died suddenly today at age 72.

The government, which made the announcement, listed no cause for his death.

Grechko commanded the world's biggest standing army — 3.5 million men.

There was no immediate indication who his successor would be. There are three deputy defense ministers and diplomats said the likelihood is one of them would be promoted and eventually elevated to the ruling Politburo.

Grechko's death reduced the number of Politburo members to 15.

Grechko, tall and burly, had been defense minister since 1967 and a member of the ruling Politburo since 1973.

His death was announced by Tass, the official news agency.

CIA surgery recommended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recommending major surgery for the intelligence agencies to excise ills extending back more than 25 years and prevent their recurrence, the Senate Intelligence Committee proposes 87 changes headed by strong congressional oversight.

The recommendations came in a massive, 851-page report on U.S. foreign and military intelligence issued Monday, by the panel, winding up 15 months of investigations of the spy agencies.

Another 97 recommendations are due Wednesday when the committee releases its final report on domestic activities carried out by the FBI, CIA and the National Security Agency.

Just before the report was released, CIA Director George Bush succeeded in keeping a lid on publication of the full annual budget of all U.S. intelligence agencies — said to range from $6 billion to $10 billion worldwide.

But after he left, the committee voted 6-5 to let the Senate decide whether to reveal the budget for the first time.

Monday's report was designed to deal mainly with the organization and operational aspects of U.S. intelligence, both civilian and military.

Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the committee and now a Democratic presidential candidate, said the investigation was a major one and historic, but could not possibly cover all aspects because of lack of time and reluctance of the concerned agencies — and the White House — to provide full access to material.

Vice Chairman Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said the committee had gone too far already and the avalanche of recommendations "not only exceed the number and scope of documented abuses, but represent over-reaction" which "could endanger America's security."

He refused to sign the final document as did Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who said "this is a report that probably never should have been written."

The report, which acknowledged that the CIA is "not out of control," passed blame for many of the abuses to the executive.

The abuses were covered in previous reports and open hearings: abortive assassination plots against foreign leaders; U.S. secret intervention in Chile in the 1970's and recently in Angola; CIA and Army subjection of unwitting subjects to drug experiments; stockpiling of lethal toxins and bacteriological substances despite a presidential ban.

Key recommendations, certain to run into objections from the administration and also from a Congress no longer belligerent against the CIA, included:

- Congressional power to authorize the intelligence budget.
- Prior notice to Congress of significant covert actions. Approval by the intelligence oversight committees of paramilitary assistance programs and approval by Congress of the use of U.S. combatants in them. Stringent standards for the conduct of covert actions.

— Appropriate congressional committees to be kept informed of domestic aspects of foreign activities.

— Establishment of a permanent Senate oversight committee with access to all secrets and, with specified procedures, power to release information it judges the Congress and American people should have even over presidential objections.

Carter battles apathy

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jimmy Carter today battled traditional voter apathy and wintry Pennsylvania weather, hoping to bury the presidential dreams of Henry Jackson and Morris Udall in this state's crucial primary.

Early reports showed light voter turnouts among Pennsylvania's nearly 2.8 million registered Democrats. Temperatures ranged from the low 30s with occasional snow flurries in the Pittsburgh area to the mid-40s under cloudy skies in Philadelphia.

Carter—the Democratic presidential frontrunner and winner of six primaries to date—said he needed a big turnout to counter Jackson's endorsement by labor and the state's political machine. That support was partly designed to preserve noncandidate Hubert Humphrey's chances in event of a deadlocked convention.

Election officials in the industrialized Monongahela River Valley in western Pennsylvania said a few hours after the polls opened at 7 a.m. EDT that the turnout was the lightest in memory.

"This is the slowest I ever saw it," said one veteran poll worker on the fringe of Pittsburgh's business area. "Usually the Democrats and the Republicans have signs plastered all over the walls outside, but today there is not a one."

Officials earlier had predicted a turnout of slightly over 50 percent before the polls close at 8 p.m.

Carter was the slight favorite in balloting that could go a long way toward determining whether the former Georgia governor — surprise of the Bicentennial election year — can maintain the momentum needed to capture the party's nomination in July at Madison Square Garden.

President Ford was unopposed for the 84 Republican convention delegates to be selected, with 19 to be chosen later.

The nominally uncommitted delegates, along with a similar group from New York, will be in Ford's corner in any showdown with Ronald Reagan at the convention.

At stake on the Democratic side are 134 delegates, with 44 to be apportioned later. In addition there is a statewide "beauty contest," the popular vote that probably will overshadow the delegate selection since the complicated ballot may not yield delegate winners for a day or two.

Carter predicted he would win the popular vote, while Jackson was expected to get a majority of the convention delegates. Udall backers said they would consider second place in the popular vote a victory.

George Wallace, who finished second here four years ago, all but resigned himself to fourth place, and did little campaigning. There are five others on the Democratic ballot, who either are far back in the field or no longer active candidates.

Carter campaigned in Connecticut today and Udall in Maryland, while Jackson was back in Washington. All three were to return to Philadelphia later to watch election returns.

The three criss-crossed the state Monday in last-minute handshaking tours, and Udall spent $10,000 from his badly depleted campaign treasury on a five-minute, nationwide television appeal for financial support.

"Give me your hand, your heart, your help," Udall asked viewers in a spot that is to run again Thursday on a different network.

In the Republican Senate race, Rep. H. John Heinz III tried to stave off a late challenge by Arlen Specter, former Philadelphia district attorney who, in the waning days of the race, charged Heinz unfit to serve because of allegations of past illegal campaign contributions.

The winner is expected to face Democrat Rep. William J. Green, a heavy favorite over state Rep. Jeannette Reisman.

Reagan leads Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The large block of uncommitted delegates selected at party caucuses holds the key to Missouri's 49 votes at the Republican National Convention.

Basically, President Ford captured the metropolitan areas and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan won the rural parts of the state last week.

The latest count showed 355 delegates pledged to Reagan, 125 for Ford and 300 uncommitted for the district meetings in May and the June 12 state convention.

A spokesman for John Powell of Rolla, Reagan coordinator in Missouri, expressed satisfaction.

"I'm pretty content with the result," Shannon Cave said. "We have areas where we feel safe and some where we don't have much of a chance, but that big middle ground will hold the balance of the votes in the state."

Cave said the 4th, 6th and 8th districts are question marks in the Reagan camp because of the large number of uncommitted delegates selected.

"The uncommitted seem to be waiting to see what is happening nationally," Cave said. "If we get the breaks this week in Texas, we'll get a lot of the uncommitted voters coming to our side."

He said basically the metropolitan areas went for Ford, while outstate stood strong for Reagan. He said it was expected the President would be strong in the cities, particularly with St. Louis County Supervisor Gene McNary heading his campaign in Missouri.

Cave said Ford was also helped by the support of Gov. Christopher S. Bond and Attorney General John C. Danforth.

"It had a considerable influence," Cave said, "since Bond sent out letters for Ford. In a lot of cases, he kind of put his name on the line and pushed his people into the Ford campaign, even when some personally preferred Reagan."

GREEK TOURISTS
ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — More than 90,000 Greeks popped across the border into Bulgaria for their holidays in 1975 and considerably more are expected to do so this year.

The influx came after Bulgaria said Greeks could enter the country without a visa, the Bulgarian Embassy said.

Many holiday makers went on organized tours by Greek tourist companies, while more than 20,000 went by bus, private cars and other transportation.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and so is Todd. Everytime we are alone, he tries to touch me in places I don't want him to. The only thing is that part of me wants him to, but the other part of me stops him.

I have been going with Todd for about five months, and I have never felt this way about any other boy. I wouldn't say that I am "in love" with him, but I sure do like him a lot.

I hope I don't lose him because I really enjoy his company. When he tries to touch me, and I make him stop, he doesn't put up a fight. He stops. But the first time he gets the chance, he tries again.

Please don't tell me to quit seeing Todd because I don't want to. And don't tell me I am too young to feel this way because if I feel this way I must not be too young.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: You are a very bright young woman, so listen carefully. Obviously you have normal sexual feelings, which is nothing to be ashamed of, but you are not yet sufficiently mature emotionally to handle a physical relationship. The word from here is: Tell Todd to knock off the hand bit. And if he doesn't—YOU do!

DEAR ABBY: As my high school graduation draws near, I am becoming more concerned about this problem. My parents are divorced, and my mother married a man my father absolutely detests. The feeling is mutual, and if they meet each other face to face, there is sure to be a fight.

I have sent invitations to my mother and father. My mother insists on having her husband attend with her. I am just terrified of what is going to happen when my father and stepfather meet at my graduation. And there is no way they can avoid seeing each other.

My graduation is a very important event in my life, and I want everything to go right. My father says he won't start anything, but if my stepfather takes a poke at him, he will defend himself.

I get tied up in knots just thinking about it. I've even considered not showing up myself. If there's a fight, I'll be disgraced.

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Don't borrow trouble. There may not be a fight. And if there is, remember, you are not responsible for the behavior of your father or your stepfather. They can disgrace only themselves.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been recently approved to be adoptive parents. In making a list of friends to whom we want to send announcements, we've come up against a problem.

Seven years ago a friend of mine had a baby out of wedlock, and she gave the child up for adoption. It was a very difficult decision for her, and to this day she talks about it.

I see this friend about once a year. Knowing how deeply she feels about the decision she made, I wonder if it would be appropriate to send her an announcement about our adopted child.

We have many friends in common, and I know that soon after the announcements are sent she will hear about it. If so, she might feel that I purposely overlooked her.

Can you help me?

SOON-TO-BE MOTHER

DEAR SOON: If you aren't sure how she would react to a printed announcement, phone her and tell her the news at the same time the others will be learning of it.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: What's the difference between a heart attack and an embolus? When a person is put on Coumadin does this mean that he has had a heart attack?

How can a blood clot go through the heart, enter the lungs and not be called a heart attack? I am talking about the case of my son. I am very worried about him. No one knows where the embolus came from. Can you guess? His legs were minutely examined, and it was stated that many clots originate in the legs but yet there is no sign of them on an examination.

My son has a job and travels in his own car or in airplanes. He has been instructed to exercise every 45 minutes. I presume to get the circulation going in his legs.

He was told that he only needed to take Coumadin for three months and that period is almost up. Yet a friend of his has been on Coumadin for the past 10 years: is that possible?

I lost my dear wife from a heart-attack even though she had been taking the same medicine for blood thinning. The doctors restricted my wife's activity very severely, yet the doctors encourage my son to do things such as going out to drive golf balls. Any light you can shed on this would certainly be appreciated.

DEAR READER: Used in the sense of your son's problem, an embolus means a blood clot. It's clear from the rest of your letter that the doctors think that the blood clot or blood clots went to the lungs. Most blood clots of that type do form in the veins in the legs. Your son's doctors are perfectly correct in saying that they can examine the legs and not be able to detect the presence of a clot within one of the deep veins.

The clot that breaks loose from any location follows that blood stream just like a log going down a river. It rides with the blood stream through the right side of the heart. The blood comes out of the heart and goes to the lungs. The clots lodge in the lungs and never get back to the heart.

A heart attack is entirely different. Your wife had an obstruction in one of the arteries to her heart muscle.

The similarity is that both can cause chest pains. Since it is important to keep the blood thinned in both cases, it is common to use anti-clotting medicines such as Coumadin in the treatment of both conditions. A clot from the vein in the leg can pass through the right heart into the lungs without causing any damage to the heart at all.

It's wise not to compress the leg veins by prolonged sitting as might occur with prolonged car rides or prolonged airplane rides. That also applies to people who do not have any blood clot formation as yet. Get up and shake those legs around to keep the circulation moving. It helps prevent all kinds of problems.

Obesity also appears to increase the chances of blood clots. For more information on effects of obesity send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 2-7. Obesity: The high Cost of Fat. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY: Recently I was in California. While there, I was quite impressed with an idea in a friend's bathroom. She had cut a plywood board to fit over the top of her tub like a cover or lid. She covered this with the plush material that was used on the floor and then had put throw pillows to lean against the wall to hide the faucets. This gave the appearance of a sofa and made the room look so rich. —MRS. M.C.

DEAR MRS. M.C.: This must be an idea indigenous to California. Once, one of my children bought a house there that had this same idea in a first floor bathroom that also served as a powder room. I had never seen or heard of one before and have not since. We could never figure out how one could take a bath in the tub since dismantling would be a problem, and few bathrooms would have the space to stand it against the wall when the tub was used. We concluded that it was used to camouflage the tub, as the bath was mainly used as a powder room. My children discarded the cover as not being too practical. Some things may be nice to look at but do not prove to be very feasible for every day living. —POLLY.

DEAR POLLY: When your rubber kitchen scraper wears out save the handle. It is great for turning belts inside out when making dresses, or just belts. —GLADYS.

(Second in a series)

We'd like you to think of marriage counseling as a marketplace. The marketplace was once a small one with only a few products.

But look at the marketplace now. A couple hoping to find a cure for an ailing marriage may not even know the name brands — Gestalt, Transactional Analysis, Bioenergetics, Psychodrama, Behavior Modification, Encounter Groups, Family Therapy, Sex Clinics, Pastoral Counseling, Marriage Encounter, Feminist Therapy — to name a few.

The best way to make your way through the maze of therapies is to learn — by asking questions, reading, talking to people who have therapeutic experience — what a particular approach aims to do. Remember, too, never submit yourself to anything (no matter what it is called) that seems humiliating to you.

In this article, we focus on three therapies in which husband and wife may participate as a couple.

Gestalt therapy Robert Saltmarsh, a gestalt-trained marriage counselor, explains, "One of the objects of Gestalt Therapy is to reactivate a sense of responsibility for one's existence." The therapy focuses on the surface pattern of one's life — whether it involves fatness, marital hostility or sexual dysfunction. The Gestaltist only deals with the past in a present-oriented way.

A woman may, for instance, want to discuss her mother because she thinks her mother is profoundly affecting her marriage — even though her mother died four years ago. The Gestaltist doesn't want to hear her childhood stories. He wants her to discuss her relationship with her mother only as it affects the present context.

A Gestalt technique for dealing with a disapproving mother sitting on a woman's shoulder might be this: "We're going to put your mother over there in that chair. Now you imagine her there and tell her what she's been doing to you for 25 years."

The upshot of this exercise might be the woman saying, "Mother, what I am letting you do to me right now is to prevent me from enjoying sex with my husband, making me hate and berate him because he is fun-loving, which is one of the reasons I married him, although you disapproved."

"Mother, we no longer have the relationship that we did when I was your child 25 years ago. This is to say good-bye to that part of you."

Saltmarsh describes this as a classic Gestalt event — saying good-bye to distorted events that have been influencing you from the past. At that moment of breakthrough — a sudden grasping of the whole — the empty chair may seem magical.

But, if you are the woman in question, you must integrate

The marriage savers

No therapy right for all

the awareness into a new way of relating to your husband.

Do you have the desire and resources for change? Can the therapist follow up the breakthrough with helpful observations? You should keep such questions in mind when you interview a Gestalt therapist.

Encounter Groups

Encounter groups can be helpful. They can also be very harmful. One man we interviewed described the emotional euphoria he had experienced at a series of encounter sessions. In a moment of enthusiasm he followed the suggestion of his "guru" that he and his wife cultivate sexual relationships with others. The result was a divorce — and an embittered, disillusioned couple.

Still it is possible for couples to profit from shared experiences.

How can a couple decide whether an encounter weekend will offer danger or support? Dr. Morton Lieberman, who has studied encounter groups more thoroughly than anyone else in the country, recommends that a potential encounter group member question his or her own motives. "Do you feel an encounter group can 'save' you and change your life? If you expect salvation, major upheavals in your life and personality, by all means avoid encounter groups. Your risk of serious psychological damage is high."

Encounter groups should provide a supportive setting for practicing new or different behavior. They can also turn into pressure groups, coercing people into actions they will later regret.

Even if your motives are sound, you must carefully scrutinize the leader. "Charismatic encounter leaders are dangerous. If a leader is described to you as inspiring, visionary, dramatic with a sense of mission — you are probably hearing about a charismatic leader to be avoided at all costs," Lieberman emphasizes.

Finally, while encounter groups can allow us to express feelings that we don't express in our normal lives, too many group leaders believe that expressing feelings is in itself, a solution to a problem.

Because of the many limitations and pitfalls of encounter groups, we tend to feel that couples with serious marital problems should steer clear of them unless the weekend is part of a more personalized, ongoing counseling program.

Transactional Analysis

There are now over 10,000 TA practitioners treating people today. Millions of individuals mouth the terms "parent," "child," "adult," "strokes" — terms first conceived by the late Dr. Eric Berne, founder of transactional analysis.

Claude Steiner, Berne's collaborator, notes this popularization of TA with dismay. He fears a takeover of TA by profit seekers who have no regard for the scientific integrity of Berne's original ideas.

Steiner reiterates two ideas which set TA apart from the mainstream of psychiatry: 1) People are born okay. Taking the position "I'm okay, you're okay" is the minimum requirement for psychiatric and lasting emotional well-being; 2) People in emotional difficulties are, nevertheless, full, intelligent human beings. They must be involved in the healing process if they are to solve their own difficulties.

Three major elements of the TA perspective include seeing behavior as transactions between the "parent or adult or child" within a person, the notion of "games," and the concept of the "script."

"People who have a destructive life script will tend to choose partners who engage with them in destructive games. Ralph was an alcoholic who chose as his partner Dorothy, who also drank heavily. They both wanted to quit, but played a "If you quit, I'll quit" game.

Finally Ralph contacted Steiner, who agreed to see him if he would consent to a "contract" — in this case, if he agreed not to drink for one year.

The contract, an integral part of TA treatment, is a clear expression of what kind of cure or help is being requested — and an equally clear statement by the therapist of what he can (and cannot) render.

As soon as Ralph agreed to pull out of the game, Dorothy followed with amazing speed. There were three important reasons Ralph was able to keep his contract to stop drinking: 1) his therapist would not play "rescuer"; 2) he no longer had a partner who would play the patsy; 3) he himself, could no longer play either Persecutor or "It" — a person-a-lush.

As Ralph put it, "I don't have anybody to play with anymore, so I snap out of the game rather than staying in it. It's been good for me because it makes me more independent. I'd better take care of myself."

Wagons bounce onward

SELIGMAN, Mo. (UPI) — Wagons trains, some built with old carriages, milk wagons and the gears of small cars, are rolling and bouncing toward Jefferson City, Mo., on a bicentennial trek.

Two wagon trains with a total of 55 wagons started the journey during the weekend from southwest Missouri. In Jefferson City they meet a national bicentennial wagon train which will be traveling on barges down the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

One of the two Missouri trains, dubbed the Wilderness Road Wagon Train with 18 wagons, started at Blue Eye in Stone County Saturday. The lead vehicle was a covered wagon pulled by four Belgian horses.

The Butterfield Overland Wagon Train left Seligman in neighboring Barry County Sunday with 37 wagons and 137 persons. The two trains are to team up at Republic and head together to meet the national bicentennial train.

The national train starts its river journey at St. Joseph May 3 and will stop at Kansas City and Independence, May 5-7; Lexington, Waverly and Glasgow May 9; Booneville May 10; Jefferson City May 11; Herman May 12; St. Charles May 13; St.

Louis May 14; St. Genevieve May 15 and Cape Girardeau May 16.

Bill Kimmons, publicist for the Missouri Horse and Mule Council which is sponsoring the Missouri wagon trains, said there will be 21 trains traveling to meet the national train at its stops.

One of those trains, the Jefferson Trail Wagon Train, set out today from South West City in McDonald County and will travel parallel to U.S. 71 toward Independence. There it joins the national train to participate in ceremonies May 7 to dedicate a statue of Harry S. Truman.

Second-place qualifiers

Two Pampanys by virtue of second-place finishes, qualified for this weekend's regional track and field meet. Above, Paul Sloan, right, qualified in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles by placing second in 41.0 seconds, his fastest time of the season. Alton Scales of Amarillo Palo Duro won in 40.7 seconds. Right, Barry Lemmons, left, earned second in the 440 in 51.1 seconds, his fastest time also this season. The open quarter winner was Cleveland Winston of Palo Duro, who ran 50.9 seconds. Harvesters who qualified by winning at the district meet were the sprint-relay team of Steve Hancock, Lemmons, Sloan and David Caldwell; Caldwell in the shot and 100, and David Henthorn in the 880. Caldwell also qualified in the 220 by placing second.

Pistons knot semifinals

By NEIL HERSHBERG
UPI Sports Writer

The Golden State Warriors perhaps took themselves a bit too seriously and the Detroit Pistons a bit too lightly as they prepared for the quarter-finals of the NBA playoffs. But the defending NBA champions are suddenly finding themselves locked in a series with a team playing with more determination than talent.

The Warriors expected an easy time of it when they learned the Pistons would be their opponents in the quarter-finals. After all, they had the best league record and Detroit had the worst regular season record of any team in the playoffs, 36-46, finishing with a sub .500 record in the weak Midwest Division.

In a series that was expected to go no more than four or five games, the Pistons managed to tie the Warriors at two games apiece with a 106-102 victory Monday night as Howard Porter hit two free throws with seven seconds left to ice the victory.

"It narrows down to two out of three," Coach Al Attles of the Warriors said. "We lost there the last time, so we'll just have to wait and see (if the home court is an advantage)."

"The home court advantage was worth 10 points to us Monday night," said Detroit Coach Herb Brown. "The reason is that the fans were with us all the way. They didn't die on us once."

Bob Lanier rebounded from a poor third game with a 30-point performance that included 11 points and a vital deflection in the fourth quarter.

Forwards George Trapp (17), Curtis Rowe (15) and Porter (16) joined Lanier as the Pistons completely outplayed the Warriors on the inside.

Forward Elvin Hayes scored 28 points, including a key three-point play in overtime, to lead the Washington Bullets to a 102-98 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers, tying their NBA quarter-final series at three games each. The seventh and deciding game will be played Thursday night at Richfield, Ohio.

Hayes, the Bullets' most prolific scorer during the playoffs, also had 13 rebounds and tied a club record with eight blocked shots as the Bullets saw a fourth-quarter lead disappear before rallying to win in overtime.

Phil Chenier added 24 points for Washington, while Nick Weatherpoon had 19. Wes Unseld scored only six points but had 17 rebounds and eight assists.

Austin Carr led the Cavaliers with 27 points while Jim Chones and Campy Russell had 16 each.

Seattle travels to Phoenix to face the Suns tonight as the Sonics attempt to battle back from a 3-2 disadvantage in the best-of-seven series. There are no ABA playoff games scheduled.

Cage hall inducts 4

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI)

The occasion was the Basketball Hall of Fame enshrinement. The purpose, though, was to salute all those who have helped glorify the game invented in this western Massachusetts city 85 years ago.

Talk of the day at Monday's festivities concerned the four inductees: Bill Sharman "the pure shooter"; Tom Gola, the great collegiate player with a knack for making the big play in the pros; Harry Litwak, a great coach of less than great players; and Edward "Moose" Krause, the prototype pivot man.

Several hundred Hall of Fame visitors ambled through the three floors of basketball memorabilia stopping to chat with former stars like Dolph Schayes. The Syracuse Nationals' forward talked for a while while standing next to a headless mannequin wearing his No. 4 jersey.

Schayes cast an imaginary spell, in the method of Dancing Harry as he walked past Sharman.

"I'll tell you why I did that," said the Syracuse Hall of Famer. "One year Sharman had hit (a record) 56 free throws in a row and I had made 50 straight. I went to the Celtics and I went to the foul line.

"I can swear Sharman had instructed (Celtics teammate Frank) Ramsey to give me the whammy just as I shot. I saw his hands move and I missed the free throw," Schayes laughed.

Eddie Gottlieb, founder of the Philadelphia Warriors and an NBA forefather, called Sharman "one of the greatest pure shooters I've ever seen. He was uncanny" with a two-handed set shot "from 20 feet in."

Gottlieb also remembers Gola, who played 10 years for the Warriors.

"We had a .500 year in Philadelphia in 1954-55 but everyone still picked us to win the championship the next year because we got Gola as a rookie."

The predictors were correct as Gola led the Warriors to the NBA title in his first season.

Of the inductees, Litwak maintained the lowest profile throughout the ceremonies. The little man, who won 373 games as Temple coach, stayed with his wife, children and grandchildren.

When asked to speak, he talked of "the privilege of being inducted into the Hall of Fame and becoming associated with the history made by these great players."

Krause, a three time All America in both football and basketball, was the first high-scoring center.

Bulldogs visit Harvesters today

Pampa, desperately fighting for at least a share of the second-half crown in 3-AAAA, and Borger, fighting for its pride, meet in a district baseball contest, weather permitting, at 4 p.m. today at Optimist Park.

The Harvesters, 10-10 overall and 1-1 in the second half, cannot afford to lose. Amarillo High, first-half champion, is 2-0 in the second half having won its last 16 games. The Sandies can clinch the title outright by winning their next two games.

Borger, 5-10 overall and 0-2 in the second half, upset Pampa, 2-1, in the first half. Mickey Robertson, a curve-balling left hander, who is expected to start for the Bulldogs today, won that contest.

Pampa will counter with either Mike Knutson (3-1, 1.42 earned-run average) or David Edwards (4-1, 4.09) on the mound.

In other 3-AAAA games today, Amarillo High is at Amarillo Palo Duro and Amarillo Tascosa is at Amarillo Caprock.

Schmidt ties HR mark

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Mike Schmidt's teammates believe there is no limit to the Philadelphia Phillies slugger's home-run potential provided he can handle the pressure of superstardom.

The 26-year-old Schmidt, who led the majors with 38 homers last season, equaled the big league record of 11 homers in the month of April Monday night with two in the Phils' 10-9 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Schmidt has now hit 10 homers in his last eight games and shares the April mark with Willie Stargell and Graig Nettles.

"I'm not ready to become a scout yet but anyone can see he's a natural talent," said Tug McGraw. "There is no limit to what he can do."

The two homers by Schmidt paced the Phillies to a 6-1 lead after four innings but the Reds battled back to take a 9-7 lead. Pete Rose singled home two runs to highlight a five-run sixth inning and doubled home two more runs when the Reds scored three in the seventh to take the lead.

Tolan's two-run homer in the seventh tied the score for the Phillies, who scored the winning run in the eighth, when Cash singled and took second on an error, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on Bench's passed ball.

The New York Mets defeated Atlanta, 3-1. St. Louis beat San Francisco, 15-7. Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh, 7-1, and San Diego downed the Chicago Cubs, 6-2, in other National League games. Houston at Montreal was rained out. Milwaukee edged California, 10, in the only American League game.

Mets 3, Braves 1: Mickey Lolich won his first NL game after three losses when he pitched a five-hitter with nine strikeouts for the Mets, who dealt Atlanta's Dick Ruthven his first defeat after three wins. Ron Hodges' two-run single gave the Mets the lead in the second and they added another run in the third as Ed Kranepool hit into a double play.

Cardinals 15, Giants 7: Ron Fairly had four hits and drove in three runs and Lou Brock, Don Kessinger and Bake McBride each drove in two runs in St. Louis' 16-hit attack. Ken Reitz hit a three-run homer for San Francisco. The Giants scored seven runs in the first inning for a 7-1 lead but the Cardinals tied the score in the fifth and went ahead for good in the sixth.

Dodgers 7, Pirates 1: Tommy John, who has been suffering with an arm ailment since July, 1974, went seven innings, yielding eight hits and one run, to win his first game for

Los Angeles in nearly two years. Ron Cey hit a two-run homer, Bill Buckner had three hits and Steve Garvey and Bill Russell two each in the Dodgers' 12-hit attack. Doc Medich was the loser for Pittsburgh.

Padres, 6 Cubs 2: Jerry Turner's two-run triple capped a three-run fifth-inning rally, which sent San Diego on its way to victory.

McPhillipses' win bird races

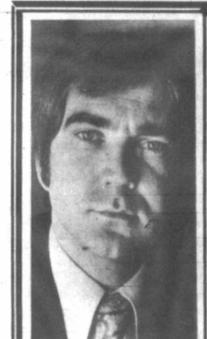

R. W. McPhillips won the "A" Race from Henrietta to Pampa, while his wife, Margaret, captured the "B" top honors Saturday in the Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon Club's weekly competition.

NL votes not to expand

CHICAGO (UPI) — The path was cleared today for the American League to add franchises in Toronto and Seattle, expanding to 14 teams, in 1977 by a National League decision not to expand and to remain a 12-team circuit next season.

The National League decided by a 7-5 vote not to expand in 1977 and also voted to rescind a resolution asking Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to intervene in the American League decision, made previously, to add Toronto and Seattle.

"There's nothing to stop the American League from expanding to Toronto," National League President Chub Feeney said.

"Our vote closes the subject of expansion in 1977 as far as the National League is concerned."

The National League met to conform to a request from Kuhn that they "implement" an expansion plan before next week, or leave the way open for the American League to take in Toronto.

Kuhn's interest in the National League expansion was the hope that it would add Washington as the 14th team in the NL to make good on what the commissioner called "a long-standing promise" to return baseball to the national capital.

The National League had asked the commissioner to intervene after a previous vote to expand to Toronto and Washington failed to carry, although 10 of the 12 owners approved. National League rules require a unanimous vote for expansion.

Feeney said he could not explain why only seven owners favored expansion Monday except that "people thought it over and decided in the best interest of the league to remain the way we were."

Philadelphia and Cincinnati were the two teams that objected previously to the proposal to expand to Toronto and Washington and it was believed that St. Louis, San Francisco and Atlanta joined them Monday to account for the 7-5 vote.

It was a peace-making decision by the National League since the American League earlier had said it would defy Kuhn and continue its plans to add Toronto in 1977 regardless of any National League action or action by Kuhn.

"It certainly was not a vote of no confidence in the commissioner," Feeney said.

Feeney said he hoped that the American League would reconsider a plan to play a number of games in Washington, but added, "that's up to them." There had been a proposal earlier that Baltimore would play as many as 13 games in Washington and that each of the other league members would play at least one and possibly two games in Washington. The project still could be activated since the American League has the way open for its expansion.

Honest Pleasure gets Derby's favorite role

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A cold snap hit the Blue Grass state Monday morning and, after the initial early morning shock gave way to the warmth of the sun, trainer LeRoy Jolley watched with satisfaction as Honest Pleasure took a brisk gallop around the Churchill Downs track.

Honest Pleasure, who probably will go to the post Saturday as an odds-on favorite in the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby, seemed to respond to the 40-degree weather and was full of energy, working easily under John Nazareth.

Jolley won last year's Kentucky Derby with Foolish Pleasure and can become only the fourth trainer to win in successive years, joining H. J. "Derby Dick" Thompson, Ben Jones and Jones' son, Jimmy.

Ridden by Braulio Baeza, Honest Pleasure has raced four times as a 3-year-old and included among his victories are the Flamingo, the Florida Derby and Blue Grass Stakes, scoring off most of the 252 horses nominated for the 102nd running of the Kentucky Derby.

Judging from past performances, the only colt in Honest Pleasure's class is E. Rodriguez Tizol's Bold Forbes, winner of the Wood Memorial. Included among Bold Forbes' opposition in that 4 1/2-length victory were four Kentucky Derby starters—Balmak Stable's On The Sly, Entremont's Cojak and Elmendorf's Play The Red.

Trainer Laz Barrera also is thinking of entering Harbor View Farm's Life's Hope, currently scheduled to run in Saturday's Illinois Derby. Barrera will travel to Sportsman's Park in Chicago today to see how Life's Hope handles the turns on the track, which was deluged by rain Saturday.

'The Squirrel' to try for world boxing title

NEW CARROLLTON, Md. (UPI) — Jimmy Young, dubbed "The Squirrel" by Muhammad Ali, will "crack" the champ in their title fight Friday night, according to one of Young's managers.

"If he (Ali) is depending on this tiger to run out of gas, he's sadly mistaken," said Ray Kelly. "Last year, I wouldn't have taken this fight, but right now, Ali is right to be taken."

"I predict victory—in 15 rounds or less. We might stop him on cuts or a knockout before the end of the fight. This isn't a dream. Young isn't any Jean Pierre-Coopman (a recent Ali knockout victim)."

Ali, at age 34, is "working desperately" to get in shape for his 27-year-old challenger, according to Kelly.

"He took us lightly when he got here but after he watched our workout Easter Sunday, he went out and boxed 10 rounds without stopping. We didn't come to talk, we came to fight."

Both fighters did plenty of talking Monday during and after their workouts. At one point Young, in jest, grabbed a chair and threatened the champion, causing one observer to crack: "That's the only way he could beat him."

Ali once playfully told Young to leave his workout "or my boys will beat your butt," but later recanted, saying: "It's important that you check me out. If you win, you can move out of the ghetto."

The champion also silenced hecklers with lines like: "I get paid for being crazy, what's your excuse?" When one pressed for a prediction on the fight, he replied: "I'm predicting you can't afford a ringside seat."

Texas congressmen surveyed

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Congressional delegation is composed of one Washington's most respected lawmakers and a Capitol Hill joke, while others fall in the "fair-to-middlin'" category, according to a magazine survey.

Texas Monthly senior editors Griffin Smith Jr. and Paul Burka conducted a three-month study, interviewing congressmen and Washington reporters in ranking the Texas' 22-member delegation.

The magazine said Rep. George Mahon, a Democrat from Lubbock, senior member of the House and head of the powerful appropriations committee, is "one of the half dozen most powerful men on the Hill and he does his job with a fairness and integrity as well as it can be done."

Conservative Rep. Dale Milford was at the other end of the stick. The Grand Prairie

Democrat was described as "spending an inordinate amount of effort trying to convince people to take him seriously."

Mahon, a 21-term veteran, was considered "honest, straightforward, a gentleman, never an obstructionist, reasonable and shrewd."

"As chairman of the House's largest committee — Appropriations — he has kept his power and effectiveness when others around him were losing theirs," the magazine said.

Texas Monthly said Mahon, 75, also had one of the best constituent services in the Texas delegation, but always played by the rules.

"When a patronage job comes his way, it goes to the first qualified person who applies," the report said.

Milford, 50, a former Dallas television weatherman in his second term, refers to himself as a scientist in speeches before aviation committees, although he holds no college degree, Texas Monthly said. He stresses his reputation as a consultant in aviation and his work with the American Meteorological Society.

"People in Washington may not like the Texas delegation; they may resent it; they may envy it; but they don't laugh at it," the magazine said. "With one exception: they laugh at Dale Milford."

Listed in the "best" category by Texas Monthly were Houston liberal Democrat Bob Eckhardt, Fort Worth Democrat Jim Wright, Houston liberal Democrat Barbara Jordan, Austin Democrat J.J. "Jake" Pickle and Dallas Republican Alan W. Steelman.

Listed by Texas Monthly as the "worst" Texas congressmen were El Paso Democrat Richard C. White, Mission

Democrat Eligio "Kiki" de la Garza, Dallas Republican Jim Collins, McKinney Democrat Ray Roberts and Milford.

The "fair-to-middlin'" group included Lufkin Democrat Charles Wilson, College Station Democrat Olin "Tiger" Teague, New Braunfels Democrat Robert Krueger, Houston Republican W. R. Archer, Beaumont Democrat Jack Brooks, Vernon Democrat Jack Hightower, San Antonio Democrat Henry B. Gonzalez, Corpus Christi Democrat John Young, Anson Democrat Omar Burleson, Waco Democrat W.R. Poage and Laredo Democrat Abraham Kazen Jr.

Hearst moved back to jail

PLEASANTON, Calif. (UPI) — Federal authorities Monday abruptly removed Patricia Hearst from a hospital, where she was being treated for a collapsed lung and malnutrition, despite the convicted bank robber's "guarded" condition, her doctors said.

"Her general condition at discharge was guarded — in effect, borderline," Dr. Arthur Faro, the hospital's administrator, said. "She could go either way. She could continue to improve or regress."

He said Miss Hearst's doctors were surprised by the sudden decision by federal authorities to remove her from the hospital and transfer her to a correctional facility south of Oakland.

Miss Hearst, 22, was taken from Sequoia Hospital across San Francisco Bay in Redwood City Monday and transported under heavy security to the federal youth center to await a 90-day psychiatric evaluation. Doctors had expected to continue treating Miss Hearst for at least another five days. She also had been under care for malnutrition. But, hospital officials said, federal authorities decided on the immediate transfer because of the good progress in the treatment of her lung.

Federal officials said her stay at the minimum-security center, which opened two years ago and has a population of 200 inmates, would be brief. They would not disclose when she would be transferred to the Federal Metropolitan Center in San Diego for the psychiatric evaluation.

U.S. District Court Judge

Oliver J. Carter ordered the examination after sentencing Miss Hearst to 35 years in prison on bank robbery and weapons charges. He said he would reduce the sentence after studying the prison report on Miss Hearst.

There was speculation Miss Hearst might be taken to Sacramento, Calif., to appear before a grand jury. Steven Soliah, 27, who was living with her when she was arrested in September in San Francisco, is on trial there for a bank robbery.

Miss Hearst has reportedly been telling federal investigators about Symbionese Liberation Army activities in Sacramento.

Texas welcome impressive sight

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Presidential press secretary Ron Nessen admitted Washington was never like this.

A 10-piece mariachi band played Mexican music while a jazz musician named "Bongo Joe" hammered out tunes on oil barrels Monday at an informal press conference on the steps of President Ford's state campaign headquarters, housed in an office ironically named Chevy Chase.

Chevy Chase is the name of television comedian known for his bumbling portrayal of Ford. Nessen appeared on television with Chase, reportedly displeasing some White House officials.

Bongo Joe and the mariachi band, complete with large straw sombreros, will tour the state this week as part of Ford's campaign effort for Saturday's primary. Nessen will accompany Ford on his Texas tour, which begins today at Tyler.

As Nessen discussed campaign issues with reporters balloons popped in the crowd, startling both Nessen and reporters.

"We don't have anything like this in Washington," Nessen said as he watched Bongo Joe tug on his brown suspenders and begin another tune on the barrels. "Maybe we should."

Nessen said Congress, not Ford, is responsible for delayed distribution of federal matching campaign funds since the Federal Elections Commission has not been reconstituted.

"It's a pretty shabby record by Congress," he said. "Those gentlemen are completely wrong if they said the President was the one who delayed reconstitution of the election commission."

Nessen admitted Ford trailed Ronald Reagan in Texas, but said he anticipates Ford might overtake Reagan by Saturday.

Nessen gave reporters advance notice of Ford's Monday afternoon request for $324 million appropriation to maintain production of Minuteman III missiles.

"This is to give us all the options we need in the SALT talks," Nessen said.

Pen to charge pair

LANSING, Kan. (UPI) — Officials at the Kansas Penitentiary Monday said charges would be filed against two inmates who seized six hostages in a demand for changes in the treatment of American Indian prisoners.

The three men and women hostages, all prison employees, escaped unharmed an hour after they were seized at knife-point by inmates Jimmy Puckee, 25, and Francis Jessepe, 23.

The two prisoners, who were placed in solitary confinement, face possible state charges of kidnapping, assault and robbery for the incident.

The one-hour ordeal began at 10:55 a.m. Monday when the inmates went to see Deputy Prison Director Robert Atkins Sr., about complaints in prison procedures concerning Indians.

Corrections Secretary Robert Raines said the prisoners, of American Indian ancestry, were upset because authorities had reduced from 25 to 15 the number of outside persons allowed to attend Indian cultural meetings inside the prison.

Raines said they also complained that authorities would not let them buy and cook their own ethnic food. The corrections secretary said they rejected an offer to have the food prepared for them by prison employees.

Prison authorities said Puckee and Jessepe seized the hostages in a basement office area of the education building near Atkins' office.

Around noon, the pair stepped outside the room where the hostages were being held when Prison Director Raymond Maynard came down the basement steps to meet with them. One of the hostages quickly shut the wooden door, locking the inmates outside.

Maynard said the inmates then threw down their hand-sharpened table knives and surrendered quietly.

Prison officials searched for money reportedly stolen from the hostages and hidden by the inmates, including $80 in cash from one hostage alone.

The hostages were identified as Atkins; Sidney Zuburg, a unit team supervisor; Joseph McGuire, a psychologist; Christine Zuschek, a social worker; Virginia Moyer, a secretary, and Peggy Ragland, a clerk typist.

The inmates both were convicted in Shawnee County, Jessepe is serving a 10-year term for burglary and theft. Puckee is serving a 10-to-21-year term for burglary, robbery and assault with intent to kill.

Thomas Benton Delashaw III, 30, who also resides in Los Angeles, was scheduled to be sentenced June 21.

Delashaw pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy for masterminding a scheme to counterfeit and dispose of $5,275,000 in certificates of deposit between Aug. 1, 1973, and June 9, 1975.

A grand jury indictment charged Delashaw with issuing certificates of deposit without authority, mail and wire fraud, interstate transportation of forged and counterfeit securities and conspiracy.

The indictment traced six separate transactions involving the phony certificates.

Delashaw tried to buy the Sheraton Inn in March, 1975, when he traveled to Houston with a counterfeit certificate of deposit with a face value of $500,000 it was charged.

He allegedly deposited the certificate in the Bank of the Southwest in Houston while negotiating to buy the hotel on behalf of the U.S. Finance and Guarantee Corp., a Nevada business for which he served as president.

The indictment said Delashaw also allegedly hired a printer to counterfeit bank certificates of deposit and instructed other persons to impersonate bank officials.

Private schools have right to exclude some

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The future of private schools — the last stronghold of all-white education — is at stake in two northern Virginia cases being studied by the Supreme Court.

In a hearing Monday, lawyers argued that private schools, like individuals, have rights of privacy and association and should be able to choose students on the basis of race if they wish.

Counsel for black parents contended that Congress has a right to tell parents they must send their children to the kind of school "found most appropriate in a democratic society."

The federal government sided with the blacks by filing a brief but did not argue. The justices' opinion is expected before summer adjournment in late June.

The arguments centered on what Congress meant in 1866 when it passed a law giving blacks the right to make and enforce contracts.

Other Supreme Court decisions on discrimination in education have dealt with public schools and whether state laws pass muster under the Constitution. The contracts' statute is being used to challenge discrimination by private individuals, which the Constitution does not reach.

Attorney George S. Leonard of Washington, who represents the Southern Independent School Association, said the real issue is whether a child of any color may attend a school of his choice, whether a boy may attend a girls' school or a Jew a Catholic school.

"Just how far do the options of a parent go in determining what kind of education his child should have?" he said.

Attorney Allison W. Brown Jr. of Washington, who represented complaining black parents, said it doesn't matter what particular kinds of contracts the 1866 lawmakers were thinking about and there is no evidence as to what they had in mind. But he insisted that the law deals only with race and not religion or sex.

He said the schools in question — Bobbe's School in Arlington and Fairfax-Brewster School in Fairfax — advertised in the yellow pages, have open enrollments and solicit students. He said arrangements between parent and school are a contract and the law applies to them.

Since lower federal courts decided the cases in favor of blacks, the schools have admitted some. But this did not alter the schools' argument that they should have the right of exclusion by race if they wish to exercise it.

Yippie papers revoked
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri House wants revocation of Republican National Convention press credentials for a Yippie who allegedly spat on Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and mocked Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace before the Wisconsin primary.

Rep. Paul J. Rojas, D-Kansas City, introduced the resolution Monday. He said he learned a Yippie, identified as Bennett Masel, 21, had obtained press credentials to the Aug. 16-19
