

Portuguese socialists win election

LISBON, PORTUGAL (UPI) — The Socialists came out on top today in Portugal's first free legislative election in 50 years but conservative and Communist gains stymied their hopes for a clear mandate to rule the country.

With 97 per cent of the votes in, the Socialists were the leading party with 35.2 per cent of ballots cast—an 11 per cent margin over their closest competitors, the left-of-center Popular Democrats.

The conservative Center Democratic Social party jumped from 7.6 per cent of the vote in last year's constitutional assembly elections to 15.7 per cent this year. Meanwhile, the Communists edged up from 12.5 per cent to 14.71 per cent, but were still squeezed out by the conservatives as the nation's third largest party.

Both the Socialists and Popular Democrats were trimmed slightly from last year's results.

The balloting left formation of a government after presidential elections June 27 a wide-open affair.

The indecisive results in elections threatened a new political crisis. Even as the results were pouring in, squabbling broke out among party leaders over the shape of Portugal's future government.

Socialist leader Mario Soares insisted his party would either rule alone as a minority government or go into opposition.

Francisco sa Carneiro, leader of the left-of-center Popular Democrats, demanded an immediate cabinet reshuffle and ouster of Communists from the current coalition.

Communist leader Alvaro

Cunhal said that would be unconstitutional.

The party leaders spoke at news conferences that lasted until dawn as early returns made it increasingly evident that the 6.5 million voters would pick no clear winner.

This pattern pleased none of the parties with the possible exception of the Communists, who gained extra bargaining power by improving on their 12.5 per cent showing in last year's constituent assembly elections.

In contrast, the Socialists and Popular Democrats lost votes.

The trend was particularly vexing for the Socialists who went into the election seeking to increase the 37 per cent vote of last year to 42 per cent. This would have given them a majority of legislative seats under Portugal's complex proportional system and the ability to govern alone.

The surge of the Social Democrats accounted for much of the Socialist setback.

Political analysts attributed the conservative showing to voter backlash against the economic and social chaos of the past two years that last fall carried Portugal to the brink of a pro-Communist takeover and civil war.

The results make the Center Democrats a force to be reckoned with, and they could conceivably play a swing role in setting up any coalition government.

The trend toward no clear-cut winner and squabbling among party leaders lessened hopes the balloting would bring government stability.

Socialist leader Mario Soares told a post-midnight news conference his party would stick to its position of ruling alone or going into opposition. "The Socialist party has a definite position," Soares said. "It won't make an alliance with either the Communist party or with the parties of the right."

But Popular Democratic leader Francisco sa Carneiro, who demanded an immediate cabinet reshuffle and the ouster of Communists from the government, held out the possibility of an alliance among the Socialists, Popular Democrats and Center Democratic Social party.

The legislative vote was the first in Portugal since 1926 and will be followed June 27 by presidential elections. Election officials said more than 80 per cent of Portugal's 6.5 million registered voters cast ballots.

Fourteen parties fielded 3,012 candidates for the race to select 263 delegates for the Assembly of the Republic.

In last year's constitutional assembly elections, the Socialists won 37 per cent of the votes, the Popular Democrats 26.4 per cent, the Communists 12.5 per cent and the Center Democratic Social party 7.6 per cent.

Wet checks recovered at lake

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Law enforcement personnel from Pampa and Borger recovered a money bag taken during an armed robbery in Pampa Wednesday night and located a cache of weapons at Greenbelt Lake in Donley County Sunday.

The money bag and weapons were recovered by divers, after police directed them to the site where the stolen items were hidden.

Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills said the search was made on a tip from a confidential informant.

The money bag was taken Wednesday from Gene Pruitt, assistant manager of the Perryton Parkway Gibson Discount Center as he left the building carrying the day's cash receipts.

George Wallace, assistant police chief, said the locked money bag had been cut open and the cash was missing. Wallace said the checks were still in the bag.

Bob Crippen, manager of the Gibson store, said this morning he would prefer not to reveal how much cash was missing. He added that he would go by First National Bank later today to inquire how the store will receive payment on the recovered checks since customers were asked to stop payment on any checks written to the store last Wednesday.

Paul Long, 26, of 1210 E. Francis, was arrested near the robbery site Wednesday and charges were filed Thursday.

A 45-caliber automatic pistol recovered about 20 feet from where Long was arrested was believed by Pampa police to be the one used in the robbery. The weapon was later identified as one taken from the Borger National Guard Armory last year.

Friday Pampa police obtained a search warrant for Long's house and found weapons taken during a Nov. 24 burglary of the National Guard Armory in Borger.

Long is being held in Pampa under $100,000 bond for the armed robbery charge and $25,000 bond for the burglary charge.

Mills said that the cache of weapons recovered at Greenbelt Lake had been taken during the Nov. 24 burglary.

He added that "about a half-dozen" police personnel were at the lake, including some Texas Rangers.

Mills said that investigation was continuing into the possibility of filing additional charges against Long and others.

Bob Prices raises more money

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The race between incumbent Jack Hightower and former congressman Bob Price has failed to generate a great deal of interest as yet — at least financially.

Both candidates, running unopposed in the May 1 primary, received only modest campaign funds in the first three months of 1976. Federal Election Commission (FEC) records show. While Price raised more money than Hightower in the period, most of the funds were earmarked to pay off his lingering 1974 campaign debt.

In that election, Democrat Hightower, then a state senator from Vernon, upset Republican

Price of Pampa.

Through March 31, Price has sliced his debt from the 1974 campaign from $70,000 to $32,000. During the three-month period, the former congressman had received $1,000 contributions — the maximum permitted under law — from G.B. Cree Jr., a Pampa oil man; J.W. Campbell, Pampa rancher and investor; Billy B. Davis, a Pampa rancher; Harold D. Courson, a Perryton oil man; J.W. Gordon Jr., a Pampa attorney; and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Garvey, Fort Worth grain elevator proprietors.

In the three-month period, Hightower raised $5,010 and spent $3,912. He had a balance of $8,611 as of March 31, and did not show any $1,000 contributions on his FEC reports.

Price raised and spent $1,200 — from his own money — for his 1976 campaign committee, records indicated.

Across the state, incumbents have maintained generally comfortable leads in raising funds for the May 1 primary. Eleven lawmakers face challengers in the May 1 runoff.

The race that has generated the most interest featured Rep. Richard White, D-El Paso, who faces three others in the 18th District primary. White's chief challenger is George McAlmon, a former chairman of the El Paso County Democratic Party.

McAlmon, a liberal, has raised $143,381, including a $116,000 loan from himself, in his race against White, a conservative.

Both candidates are drawing considerable money from special interest groups. White has received $5,000 each from the political committees of the Texas Medical Association (TEXPAC) and the American Medical Association (AMPAC) and the National Association of Life Underwriters. McAlmon, meanwhile, has raised about $6,000 from unions based across the country, according to March 31 FEC reports.

Through the latest reporting period, White had raised $50,608 and spent $22,212. McAlmon has spent nearly six times that much.

Other key Texas House primary races include:

— 1st District, where a dozen candidates are seeking the seat left vacant with the death of Rep. Wright Patman. Four candidates — all Democrats — have raised more than $25,000, according to FEC reports. Ten Democrats and two Republicans seek Patman's seat.

— 5th District, where three Democrats and one Republican are eyeing the seat occupied by Rep. Alan Steelman, the Dallas Republican who is running for the Senate. Top Democratic candidates appear to be Wes Wise, former Dallas mayor, and Jim Mattox, a liberal state representative. Mattox who has raised a total of $84,473, received $18,112 from the political committees of 18 unions and lobbying groups. Wise, who has raised $11,261, received $2,000 donations from TEXPAC and AMPAC and $1,000 from the political arm of the real estate industry.

Ford warns Texas Reagan delegates

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The President Ford Committee recently informed by mailgram the 96 Texas delegates for Ronald Reagan that their activities as "unauthorized delegates" may expose them to "possible criminal violations."

In the mailgram to Reagan delegates, the President Ford Committee (no individual names were signed) said "we advised Mr. Smith, counsel for Reagan that you and other Reagan delegates purportedly acting as unauthorized delegates may have become authorized."

"As such your activities raise serious questions under the law and may expose you and others involved to a possible criminal violation."

President Ford's campaign director in Texas, Beryl Milburn of Austin, told the Pampa News this morning "We don't want to file suit. We wanted to call it to their attention."

Ms. Milburn defined an authorized delegate as one who may raise or spend money on behalf of a presidential candidate through the candidates budget.

She said unauthorized delegates may spend money independently with no limitations, but there can be no direction nor guidance from the presidential candidate. Neither can there be co-mingling of monies or literatures, she added.

Joe Curtis of Pampa, Reagan's regional campaign chairman, who confirmed to the News that he received one of the mailgrams, said "I think it is a cheap, dirty political trick to make such nebulous accusations that can in no way be answered a week before the election."

In a mailgram from Reagan's three Texas co-chairmen, the delegates were told that the mailgram from the President Ford Committee "is an attempt to stop further campaign activities by you."

They added that Citizens for Reagan and Delegates for Reagan are separate campaigns that meet "both the spirit and the letter of the law."

Curtis said the Reagan delegates are unauthorized, and their candidacy here is financed through the 13th District Delegates for Reagan Committee.

Back to jackets

With brisk breezes popping the flags and lowering the chill factor of the 39 degrees measured on thermometers, students at Pampa Junior High School this morning came to classes dressed more like February than like late April. The weather forecast calls wind and a chance for thunderstorms tonight and tomorrow.

Health, hospitals cost more

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans spend about 10 per cent of their income for health care, and hospital treatment costs more than three times as much as it did 10 years ago, according to a new government report.

The White House Council on Wage and Price Stability said Sunday in a staff report entitled "The Problem of Rising Health Care Costs" that one reason costs are soaring is that the medical profession has monopoly-like control over services and fees.

Since 1965, it said, the cost of an average hospital stay has soared from $311 to $1,017 and the average fee for a doctor's office visit has jumped 53 per cent, from $12.80 to $19.55.

"Americans on the average now are spending about 10 per cent of their income for health care," the report said.

The 30-page study said U.S. doctors enjoy a noncompetitive status which allows them to diagnose the ailment, prescribe the treatment and set the price, while patients have little choice but to accept the decisions and the bills.

"The nature and extent of services provided is usually determined by the physician in a transaction in which the patient is often a passive participant," it said.

"The economic rewards for efficiency and cost-reducing innovation that are characteristic of our economic system seem to be lacking.

"Any attempts to mitigate the rapid rise of inflation in health care must take account of these institutional peculiarities."

For the nation as a whole, it said, health care costs rose $15 billion from $104 billion in 1974 to $119 billion in 1975 — the largest one-year increase in history.

Nearly 40 per cent of these costs were paid by the government through such programs as Social Security, Medicaid and Medicare. Nevertheless, said Council director Michael Moskow, every American has felt the squeeze of higher prices for medical services and drugs.

"The burden of these sizeable increases appears to be greatest on low and middle income families," he said.

The council made no recommendations on how to deal with rising health care costs, but called its study "the first step to improved dialogue and a better understanding of the problem."

Blacks in private schools for white? court to decide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the heels of its decision encouraging housing integration in the suburbs, the Supreme Court confronts the emotionally charged issue of admitting blacks to white private schools.

In arguments Monday two northern Virginia schools are urging the justices to reverse $5,500 damage judgments against them for refusing admittance to black children.

The ultimate decision, expected some time in June, is crucial for the private white academies which were organized following the Supreme Court's school desegregation decisions of the 1950's and 1960's.

The black parents invoked a civil rights law enacted after the Civil War to help wipe out the vestiges of slavery. The law gives blacks the right to buy and sell property and to make contracts.

U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. of Alexandria and the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said an arrangement between parents and a school is clearly a contract, and it cannot be denied on the basis of race alone.

The lower courts relied on a 1968 Supreme Court decision interpreting the property section of the law in blacks' favor.

But Bobbe's School in Arlington, a Washington suburb, argued: "Certainly no court can ever force a person to enter into a contract against his will..."

Bobbe's, operated by Russell L. and Katherine E. Runyon, was sued by Mr. and Mrs.

Raymond Gonzales and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis L. McCrary. The Gonzales couple also sued the Fairfax-Brewster School in Fairfax.

The decision will have wide consequence because the Southern Independent School Association (SISA), which represents more than 300 private schools, was allowed by Bryan to become a party to the case. The Association's member schools admittedly practice segregation.

However the Council for American Private Education, the National Association of Independent Schools and the Southern Association of Independent Schools (not to be confused with SISA) urged the court to affirm the decision.

They said most private schools feel the civil rights law should apply to them and welcome the rulings as another way of removing "the stain of racial discrimination" from American education.

Texans will cast votes for delegate not candidate

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The real choice in Texas Democratic primary Saturday is the slate of delegates who will determine the delegation to the Democratic National Convention, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White says.

White said Texans should send an uncommitted delegation to the convention under the leadership of Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex.

Texas holds its first presidential primary Saturday. Bentsen's poor showing in the early caucuses and primaries prompted him to drop out as an active presidential candidate.

George C. Wallace and Jimmy Carter are the other top names on the Democratic presidential ballot. President Ford meets Ronald Reagan in a crucial primary fight for the Republican nomination.

"The real question on the ballot is which slate of delegates the voters want to exert a strong influence for Texas at the July convention in New York," White said Sunday at Victoria.

"There are too many issues at stake in the selection of delegates than just to regard it as a presidential preference primary."

White's spoke at a party honoring Carrin Patman of Ganado, Jamie Clements of Temple and Rep. John Wilson of La Grange who are running as delegates for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

"We have the best state-wide slate of 98 delegates running under the Bentsen banner who truly represent a cross-section of all Texans," said White. "The Bentsen delegates, unfettered by commitments to any candidate, can go to New York and work for the best interests of Texas in setting party policy and in the final selection of the Democratic nominee."

"With a strong slate of uncommitted delegates under the leadership of Sen. Bentsen, we can make ourselves heard. We must follow the example of other states such as Virginia, Oklahoma, Kansas and others which are sending strong contingents of uncommitted delegates so that the states can have a decisive voice on issues and candidates."

Phil Gramm, an economist from Texas A&M University, has challenged Bentsen, who is seeking his second term. Gramm said Bentsen refuses to meet him in televised debate.

"A debate is not for the benefit of the candidates — it is for the benefit of the voters," Gramm said. "I am not afraid of debate. Apparently Bentsen is."

Texas newsman throws cow chip furtherest

BEAVER, Okla. (UPI) — A Texas newsman defeated an Oklahoma politician in the VIP division of the World Championship Cow Chip Throwing Contest.

Tom Kolius of KFDA-TV at Amarillo, Tex., tossed a chunk of natural fertilizer 156 feet and was awarded a gold and red trophy displaying a six-inch, gold-painted cow chip.

Runnerup in the VIP division of the annual contest Saturday was Rep. Mark Bradshaw, D-Arnett, and Lyman Brown, Garden City, Kan.

Bob Turner, the Waynesville, Ohio, champion, could not match his back-home record 190-foot toss, despite a helpful north wind, and failed to place among the top tossers.

Harold Smith of Forgan, Okla., won the men's division. Randy Jones, Beaver, was second and Larry Atkingson, Beaver, third.

The women's division was won by Sheila Janty, Woodward, Okla., followed by Megan Leonard, Ft. Collins, Colo., and Sheila Warner, Liberal, Kan.

Striking drivers get edgy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The main impact of the 26-day city craft workers' strike has been the shutdown of the Municipal Railway, but now some of the drivers are getting edgy.

The 2,000 city bus, cable car and streetcar drivers are not on strike themselves, but are honoring the picket lines of the craft workers who are protesting pay cuts in the current city budget.

The Transport Workers Union of America Local 250A, AFL-CIO, called an executive board meeting today to decide on another election to determine whether the rank-and-file should maintain their no-work position.

Union members voted 5-1 two weeks ago to remain off the job. The vote was taken by having those in favor of the strike stand on one side of a hall and those against on the other.

Some dissident drivers said this type of balloting intimidated those who wanted to return to work. They said only about 100 members of Local 250A were ardent supporters of the craft workers.

The drivers have been unable to draw unemployment benefits or food stamps because the strike itself was declared illegal in the courts. However, union supporters of the strike said their contract would expire soon and, in the event they were on strike, they wanted the support of the craft unions.

Some 1,700 plumbers, electricians, gardeners, machinists, sheetmetal workers, laborers and street cleaners were on strike.

US won't interfere in Rhodesia

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conferred with President Julius Nyerere today and the Tanzanian leader said he had the impression the United States would not stand in the way of armed efforts to achieve black rule in Rhodesia.

Kissinger, who says majority rule in Africa can be achieved peacefully, and Nyerere, who advocates a military solution, met alone for an hour Sunday night.

But if they oppose it (the war) we will have a quarrel. Nyerere said he would like the United States to stop importing Rhodesian chrome. Kissinger said before departing U.S. policy on this subject would be spelled out in his policy speech.

Pirates blank Giants behind 6-7 Candelaria

By FRED DOWN
 UPI Sports Writer

The "Candy Man" looks just dandy to the Pittsburgh Pirates again.

The "Candy Man" is John Candelaria, the 6-foot 7-inch left-hander who pitched brilliantly for the Pirates during the second half of the 1975 season and is being counted upon to be a 15-to-20 game winner this season.

As usual, the Pirates know they have the bats. They think they also have the arms necessary to win the National League's Eastern Division title and the pennant. But one of those arms almost has to belong to Candelaria.

That's why manager Danny Murtaugh and the Pirates exulted Sunday when the 22-year-old Candelaria pitched a two-hitter in a 3-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants. It was Candelaria's first win of the season and broke a four-game Pirates losing streak.

Most important, of course, was that it was a game the Pirates didn't win with their bats.

"He showed the world that in last year's playoffs," added Murtaugh, referring to Candelaria's 14-strikeout performance in a losing effort against the Cincinnati Reds. "This young man is a good one and everyone in the league knows it."

The Pirates scored all their runs in the fifth inning when Willie Stargell homered and Dave Parker, Richie Hebner, Taveras, Candelaria and Renie Stennett singled.

"I don't think this game was anything special," commented the unflappable Candelaria, "except that it helped us snap a four-game losing streak."

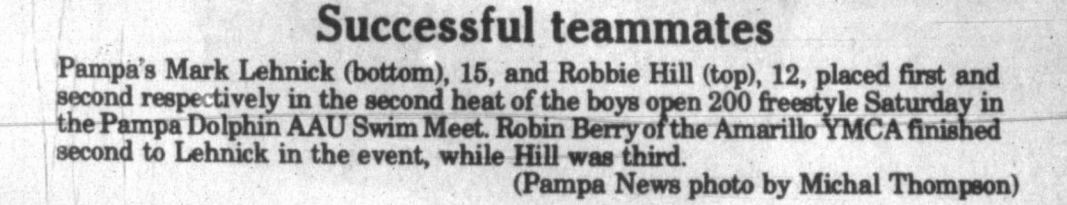

The Cincinnati Reds defeated the Montreal Expos 7-0, the Atlanta Braves beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2, the New York Mets topped the Houston Astros 4-2, the St. Louis Cardinals downed the San Diego Padres 3-1, and the Los Angeles Dodgers scored a 5-4, 10-inning triumph over the Chicago Cubs in their National League games.

The Oakland A's defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-1, and the Minnesota Twins beat the Baltimore Orioles 7-2 in American League games. Texas at Detroit, Kansas City at New York, Boston at Chicago and California at Milwaukee were postponed because of rain.

Reds 7, Expos 0
 Dave Concepcion hit a two-run homer and Johnny Bench and Ken Griffey also drove in two runs each for the Reds.

Braves 3, Phillies 2
 Dave May's two-run homer in the sixth inning stood up as the winning blow after the Phillies rallied for two runs in the bottom of the eighth to draw within one run.

Mets 4, Astros 2
 Jon Matlack allowed three hits and two runs in six innings and Ken Sanders shut out the Astros the rest of the way to pick up the win. The Mets scored the tie-breaking run on a wild pitch by Joe Niekro in the eighth inning.

Successful teammates

Pampa's Mark Lehnick (bottom), 15, and Robbie Hill (top), 12, placed first and second respectively in the second heat of the boys open 200 freestyle Saturday in the Pampa Dolphin AAU Swim Meet. Robin Berry of the Amarillo YMCA finished second to Lehnick in the event, while Hill was third.

Ronald Reagan wins 'sun belt' delegates

By ELIZABETH WHARTON
United Press International
It was Ronald Reagan's weekend.
In line with his "sun belt" strategy he won most of the GOP national convention delegates in South Carolina and Arizona; most of the uncommitted delegates who won in Nevada and Kentucky favor him; and he lost only in Minnesota, where preliminary results of district caucuses favored President Ford.

However, those uncommitted delegates in Nevada and Kentucky, no matter who they favor, will be bound for the early convention ballots to the winner of state primaries later, and that winner may be Ford.

At any rate, those gains and more will be wiped out in Pennsylvania where Reagan is not even contesting Ford in Tuesday's primary.

So Texas remains crucial to the former California governor's effort. Reagan has vowed to remain in the contest until the convention in August, but if he loses Texas — where he started out a heavy favorite — his campaign will have little meaning.

Jackson had an early lead there, and if he wins the situation remains virtually unchanged from the present. Jimmy Carter is still strong and could survive a Pennsylvania defeat, but Morris Udall would be crippled by anything but a win or a very strong second.

George Wallace also is on the ballot in Pennsylvania, but he has campaigned only briefly there and is not considered a major factor.
Those four candidates plus Frank Church, who has been mostly working the West since his late entry into the primary picture, appeared on a panel interview on television (ABC's Issues and Answers) Sunday from Philadelphia.

fighting not only the declared candidates but persistent rumors that he is a stalking horse for Hubert Humphrey — the shadow in the Democratic wings.
But all agreed that President Ford should announce he will sign the bill reconstituting the Federal Election Commission so matching campaign funds will again become available.

There was good news for both Carter and Humphrey in the Gallup poll published Sunday. It showed both of them leading Ford in head to head pairings: Carter by 49 to 43 per cent, and Humphrey by 48 to 46 per cent.

Kills self after shooting spree

JACKSON, Ga. (UPI) — The shooting started in a used car lot in Florida. When it was over, three persons were slain, 14 wounded and the gunman dead by his own hand as police closed in.
Moses Pearson Jr., a black ex-convict who said "white people have all the big houses and big cars," began his shooting rampage Saturday night, killing two people in Jacksonville, Fla., wounding seven others and fleeing with three young women hostages who later escaped.

He fled northward along Interstate 75 into Georgia, robbing service stations and truck stops and wounding seven more persons and killing one.
Pearson shot L. Dale Janda, a Bay Village, Ohio, accountant and left him for dead along the roadside near Macon, Ga., seizing Janda's car with his wife and two daughters inside. Janda suffered only a minor wound.

Pearson, recently released from prison in Springfield, Mo., was boxed in by police about 40 miles south of Atlanta as he pointed a pistol at the head of Janda's wife, Dolores. He pulled the trigger, narrowly missing Mrs. Janda, and then turned the gun on himself.
The water in Utah's Great Salt Lake is four to five times saltier than any ocean.

Israel initiates austerity program

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The Israeli government went ahead with plans for a controversial economic austerity program today in defiance of a job slowdown by tens of thousands of civil servants.
The confrontation with the civil servants raised a new challenge for the Israeli government which has been troubled by months of Arab unrest, soaring inflation and an aid dispute with the United States.

The Israeli cabinet voted Sunday night to abolish special allowances for one-third of the nation's civil servants over two years, but the move was immediately criticized by both supporters and critics of the benefits.
The 40,000 "have-not" civil servants without allowances launched a three-day slowdown Sunday, demanding the elimination of the special increments in six months instead of two years.

The 20,000 government workers who have received the special benefits for the past

NEW AIRLINER
HONG KONG (UPI) — China Airlines of Taiwan has become the first air carrier in Asia to purchase the new long-range Boeing 747SP airliner.
An announcement said the 747SP — the SP stands for Special Performance — is scheduled for delivery in April, 1977.

three years were expected to launch a strike later in the week to protest the loss of their benefits.
The $3 million a year in allowances, criticized by authorities as a way to bypass government wage freezes, include "foot increments" for weary postmen and "shame increments" for tax collectors berated by the public.

The slowdown crippled train services in the nation of 3 million and closed visa, passport, auto licensing and land registration offices to the public.
Israel's semi-official national radio said the slowdown disrupted government offices but "there does not appear to be a drastic reduction of services."

In other developments, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon postponed plans to visit the United States next week, saying he was needed in Israel to take part in government talks on the future of Jewish settlements on the West Bank.

Rightwing nationalists have been pressuring the government to permit the mass settlement of the West Bank, captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War, despite the outspoken opposition of the area's 650,000 Arab residents.

A march by tens of thousands of Jewish nationalists across the West Bank a week ago has touched off an outbreak of daily anti-Israel protests by Arabs in leading West Bank towns.

Mayor wants more fed spending

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Cutting down the size of the federal bureaucracy is a common political issue in 1976, but a speaker at a regional Democratic Party hearing said a greater role for government.
There was a call for more federal government — more jobs programs, bigger spending, new farm policies, and strengthened regulations.

The weekend hearing was the third of four being held around the country in preliminary work on the party's 1976 platform.
Detroit Mayor Coleman Young advocated more federal spending to combat high unemployment in the cities and criticized efforts of Democrats in Congress to hold down the budget for the next fiscal year.
But House Budget Committee Chairman Brock Adams, D-Wash., defended the move toward a balanced federal budget.

"It is crucial to the success of this platform that we stop automatically increasing overall domestic spending by holding current domestic programs at or below the current levels of government activities and services by rearranging our domestic spending priorities," Adams said.
United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock supported Young's assertion that unemployment is the nation's No. 1 problem.

"Fiscal policy must be consistent with the goal of achieving and sustaining full employment," Woodcock said.
The "more government" thread ran through several other witnesses' comments.
—Feminist writer Gloria Steinem criticized the philosophy that "bigness is better in business but is inefficient in government." She advocated public control of natural resources and said a big government is needed to stop "the corporate glacier which is slowly crushing us."

—Spokesmen for such industries as the Air Transport Association of America and the American Trucking Association said they supported their federal controls.
—The National Education Association said the federal government "must assume a far greater portion of the costs of public education."

Pa. primary crucial

United Press International
Henry Jackson, Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall mounted an election-eve handshaking and TV advertising blitz to capture Tuesday's crucial Pennsylvania primary.
Carter and Jackson were thought to be in a dead-heat for the statewide popularity vote while the Washington State Senator was expected to capture a majority of the 134 delegates at stake. Udall mounted an intensive drive in an effort to finish at least second in the preferential vote.
Alabama Gov. George Wallace is the fourth Democratic candidate but has done little campaigning in the state and is expected to finish fourth. President Ford is the lone entry in the Republican primary.
Jackson, noting that imports have cut deeply into Keystone

State industries, proposed eliminating some tax breaks given American businesses which operate from abroad.
He toured the Harrisburg Steel Co. and said if elected he would eliminate tax deferrals on foreign income of U.S. businesses and modify the foreign tax credit to change the dollar-for-dollar credit to a simple deduction for foreign taxes paid.
"The tax laws that deal with multinational corporations encourage our corporations to send American jobs abroad," he said, citing a cutback at the Harrisburg plant from 800 jobs to 400 "chiefly because of severe competition from imports."
Jackson said an independent study commissioned by the State Department "concluded that multinational corporations exported over 1 million American jobs between 1966 and 1973."

Carter, meantime, scheduled a speech at the Liberty Bell before traveling to visit a plant in Allentown and make a speech at the University of Scranton.
Udall was handshaking on street corners in Philadelphia, Erie and Johnstown before an evening Democratic rally in Pittsburgh and a scheduled fundraising appeal on national television (ABC) tonight. He scheduled another five-minute appeal for Thursday night (CBS) but a poor showing in Tuesday's primary could reduce the value of that one.
All four candidates, plus Sen. Frank Church of Idaho who is not entered in the Pennsylvania primary, during a televised interview (ABC's Issues and Answers) broadcast Sunday from Philadelphia blamed the lack of federal matching funds for crippling their campaign efforts.

Udall and Jackson particularly criticized President Ford for his threat to veto a restructured campaign reform bill that is expected to clear Congress and go to the White House by the end of this week.

Millionaire wins bitter race for Dallas Mayor

DALLAS (UPI) — Bob Folsom slipped to a narrow runoff victory in a costly, bitter race for mayor of the nation's eighth largest city and says he will work for unity in the community. His opponent said he would ask for a recount.
Folsom, a millionaire developer and former president of the school board, defeated former councilman Garry Weber by 1,412 votes in a record turnout of more than 100,000 in Saturday's runoff.
Weber said he left the decision whether to ask for a recount to his supporters because "they campaigned hard and feel it's important." Weber must send a letter over his signature to City Secretary Harold Shank asking for the recount and pay the recount price of $10 per precinct, or about $2,000.

The final hours of the campaign were marked by Folsom campaign literature appealing "to all the white voters in Dallas" to support him against the expected large Black support for Weber.
"I am sorry that it (the campaign) went that way," Folsom said.
"But I know that the citizens of Dallas are good people and they are ready to work together now."

Folsom, 49, won the $50 a month post for one year. He replaced Wes Wise, who resigned to run a Democratic nomination for Congress.
Folsom polled 55,932 votes to 54,520 for Weber, a millionaire stockbroker. Total expenditures in the campaign were expected to exceed $600,000.
One Folsom campaign worker told UPI 12 hours before the election Folsom was advised by a sophisticated opinion sampling he was being "outdirtied" and could lose the race unless he acted dramatically.

A Folsom campaign flyer contained an appeal "to all white voters in Dallas" to "override the huge black bloc vote expected" in the runoff.
Folsom charged Weber with conducting a "black campaign" which could not fulfill its promises to minority residents.
"But — the black voters of Dallas will vote as a block in huge numbers and they will elect Garry Weber unless you vote for Bob Folsom for mayor," the literature said.
Folsom denied his campaign material was racist. Weber said he was appalled at the appeal.

Monty Python comes on live in New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Monty Python's Flying Circus is nearly as funny on stage as on late-night television, which should come as no surprise, since the material is all taken from the TV shows.

"Monty Python Live" at City Center April 14-May 2, presents the five British zany and their captive American animator in their first — and probably last, since the team has announced it is breaking up — live U.S. appearance. The show was a big hit in London. The format is familiar to PBS addicts: some numbers live, some filmed, some animated. The live skits come across least well, possibly because of the necessity for stage timing, but the young opening night audience, almost as dedicated as Humphrey Bogart fans, welcomed each number as an old friend.

All six members of the Circus had their moments: John Cleese in his Ministry of Silly Walks, Eric Nudge-Nudge, Wink-Wink, Idle as The Lumberjack, Graham Chapman as the instructor in a pie-throwing school, Terry Jones as a transvestite judge, and American Terry Gilliam in a variety of roles but invaluable for his highly original animation sequences.

If you're a fan already there's little new apart from seeing your anti-heroes in the flesh (and the program notes: "Terrific, fantastic, wonderful, great!" — Roget's Thesaurus). If you're not, best watch them on TV first to make sure your system can stand it.

The Phoenix Theatre has dug back to the 1890s for William Gillette's "Secret Service" and to the 1930s for Samuel and Bella Spewack's "Boy Meets Girl" for the second half of its repertory season at The Playhouse. "Secret Service" opened April 12 and "Boy Meets Girl" the following night. They will play in repertory through June 6.

"Boy Meets Girl" comes off best, possibly because today's audiences can react more readily to farce than to really bad melodrama. John Lithgow directs the Spewack spoof on Hollywood with a nice sense of period and style which are beautifully underlined by James Tilton's sets. The acting, however, is more a straight copy of films of the time than burlesque, and the actors at times seem embarrassed by the clowning they have to do.

A revival of "Secret Service" might have been historically valuable in this Bicentennial year as an unusual sample of the old-time melodrama. But the edge on the novelty has been taken off by the recent Broadway production of Gillette's "Sherlock Holmes," and it must be presumed "Secret Service" is being presented on its own merits.

Director Daniel Freudenberg obviously has done his homework, and presents the play much as it must have been given 80 years ago. But even more than with "Boy Meets Girl" you have the feeling that the style has been imposed upon the actors, who go through the exaggerated, playing-to-the-gallery motions without much conviction.

On balance, the first half of the season — Sidney Howard's "They Knew What They Wanted," Tennessee Williams' "27 Wagons Full of Cotton" and Arthur Miller's "A Memory of Two Mondays" — was far more substantial fare, with less of the "Bicentennial revival" aftertaste.

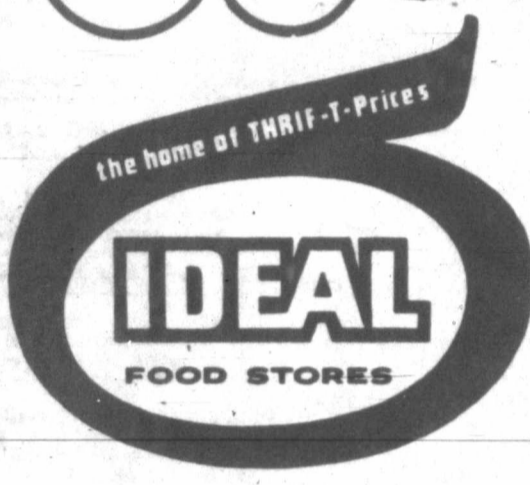

UPI's Patricia McCormack went to New Haven, Conn., to view a new dramatization of "House of Mirth," Edith Wharton's first major novel, at the Long Wharf Theatre. Her report follows: Edith Wharton's bitter feminist turn-of-the-century view of high society — as using and then discarding human beings as playthings — still can strike a responsive chord today. "House of Mirth" runs through May 7.
