Skellytown reports inch of hail

"The drought has broke,
At least for a while."
"Twas an old farmer who spoke
Through a big, wide smile.
"But I remember once, out by McLean,
A drought so bad it never did rain."

Rainfall amounts in Gray County Monday night and Tuesday morning ranged from half an inch to three-quarters of an inch with marble-size hail reported at Skellytown.
A tornado was cited Monday afternoon between U.S. 60 and State 152, three to five miles west of Pampa, according to Police Chief Richard Mills.

Sgt. Charles Morris said it came down and went back up. No damage was reported. Chief Mills said the department received a call from some people at Kingsmill who also saw it.
Total moisture for the year in Pampa now stands at 3.68 inches, "which is about the same amount recorded at the same time last year," according to Darrell Sehorn, official observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau in Pampa.

He said .75 of an inch had fallen at 9:45 a.m. today and the rain was continuing.
Nolan Cole, who farms a 1,000 acres and lives south of Prairie Village, reported about half an inch today.
"The wheat has made up for a lot of lost time... it seems like it has jumped up four or five inches in the last few days."
He said 2.5 inches has fallen in that area since Thursday.
Sehorn said 2.27 inches had been recorded in Pampa for April by early today.
Mrs. Jack Prather reported about one-half inch from the Leon Daugherty farm, north of Pampa, with rain still falling at 9 a.m.
Henry Urbanczyk, southwest of Pampa, reported about half an inch today with a total of 2.20 inches prior to the moisture which began falling Monday night.

He said farmers would have to wait about three weeks to know how tall the wheat may grow.
"If it doesn't get taller we'll have to use a vacuum cleaner to cut it," he said.
"Wheat has a lot of tricks..." he added.
Urbanczyk said about three years ago the wheat grew only six or eight inches tall.
"But I think it may get knee-high this year," he reported with optimism.
Fred Haiduk reported only .25 of an inch this morning, but expressed hope for more.
Curtis Schaffer, who lives 20 miles south said that area received very little today.

"But we had 3.5 inches last week," Mrs. Schaffer said. "It is wonderful."
Alvin Kalka of Skellytown reported .55 of an inch Monday night and today with a total of 2.10 inches since Thursday. He said the marble-size hail which fell about 5:30 p.m. Monday left no damage.
Paul Eakin, 14 miles southwest, reported only a light sprinkle this morning. However, that area has received over two inches since Thursday.
"Things will green up as soon as it warms up," Eakin said.
Charlie Jordan of Laketon reported .75 of an inch and still falling at 9 a.m.
Joe Van Zandt, Gray County extension agent, said the extra rain today "will give a big boost to the wheat crop — it will give us deeper moisture and carry us further into the spring."

"You know how it is. Suddenly it rains, then it clears off and doesn't rain any more for a while," Van Zandt said.
Earlier last week before the moisture began, Gray County Judge Don Cain asked Rex McAnelly when it was going to rain.
"Just before it is too late," McAnelly replied.
"And it looks like he was right," Judge Cain said this morning. The judge had been out of town during the Easter holidays, but called home and learned that rain was "reality" in Gray County.

'Rain, rain . . .'

While agribusinessmen welcomed moisture to the Panhandle, others secretly hoped it would ease up as rains threatened their activities. But Charles Kane and Bobby McKay, with the Citizens National Bank little league team, decided they would brave the weather for a short practice Monday afternoon. At right, substitute teacher Doug DuBose battles his way back to his car after class at Pampa High. A Pampa High baseball game against Amarillo Caprock scheduled for this afternoon was postponed. The weatherman says that the sun will reappear by Wednesday.

Twisters seen statewide

By United Press International
Powerful storms which triggered damaging tornadoes at Brownwood and Azle moved eastward across Texas during the night and produced more twisters, high winds, hail and heavy rain along the eastern edge of the state early today.
Flash floods from rain that totaled over 10 inches in some areas Monday drove people from their homes throughout the eastern half of the state.
The National Weather Service today reported tornadoes at Corpus Christi, Lufkin and Kingsville and issued a tornado watch for a large area of southeast Texas. There were no reports of further damage.
Flash flood and heavy thunderstorm warnings were posted for scattered areas of east Texas.
Tornadoes Monday destroyed two houses, two trailer homes and several airplanes and injured nine persons near Brownwood in western Texas and destroyed a mobile home at Azle near Fort Worth.

"We were watching a huge area of black clouds," said Mrs. Charles Brown of Azle, the owner of the mobile home. "It looked like a lot of streamers were coming down and there was a lot of debris flying. We opened the back door and headed for the closets and bathrooms."
About 20 persons were rescued by boat from high water in Kleberg and Seagoville. Some residents had been driven from their homes by the high water onto telephone poles, deputies said.
Brownwood Police Chief Vic Fowler said Monday only one person was seriously hurt by the tornado which hit about a mile north of the city of 20,000. He said there was no immediate damage estimate but anticipated the cost would run more than $1 million alone at the city's airport.
"It looks like a bomb hit," Fowler said. "We've got halves of airplanes, wings blown off. Some of the planes were twin-engine and probably cost up to $250,000."

"The tornado was about a quarter of a mile wide and seems to have gone through a little valley north of town. Five of the people were in one house — that's where most of the injuries were."
Fowler said the tornado came out of a line of thunderclouds which passed the city at 6 p.m., but there was no rain until 10 p.m.
"We were glad for the rain," he said. "We've been in a dry area here and we needed it."
In the Panhandle, northwest of Brownwood, four inches of hail fell in a little more than an hour, further damaging already drought-stricken winter wheat.
Twisters also were reported near Sunray, Spearman and Bernsten north of Amarillo near the Oklahoma border.
Early today a small tornado hit at Copperas Cove, damaging some buildings and knocking down power lines. No injuries were reported.

Heavy storms producing tornadoes, hail, heavy winds and flash floods have been reported throughout the state the past three days and have accounted for at least two deaths.
The bodies of 10-month-old twin boys were recovered near Goliad Monday. The infants, Francisco and Juan Saucedo, were swept away from their father, Richard Saucedo, as he attempted to get them out of his water-stalled car on U.S. 59 Sunday.
He put the children in an ice chest and tried to push them to safety but lost hold of the chest.
Rains in the Houston area Monday stranded hundreds at the Houston airport.
"It's got us like a bunch of rats out here," said Lt. J.A. Fairfield of the airport security police.
"They're running out of food and booze," one stranded traveler at an airport bar said. "It's crowded. It's jammed. Our plane circled for an hour before it could land."

West Virginia governor begins extortion trial

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A federal judge today began questioning 100 potential jurors in the extortion trial of Republican Gov. Arch Moore, the fourth governor in the nation's history to be indicted while in office.
District Court Judge Joseph Young of Baltimore told jurors the government must prove "beyond a reasonable doubt" that Moore and his former top aide were guilty of trying to extort $25,000 from the president of a now defunct loan company chain in return for a state bank charter.
One juror, Henry Clay Martin, said he was dean at Roosevelt Junior High School when Lucy

Moore, the governor's daughter, was attending the school.
"Okay," the judge replied, but did not immediately excuse Martin.
The trial of Moore, 53, and his co-defendant, former aide William Loy, 43, got underway just after 10 a.m.
Moore is the first governor in West Virginia's history to be indicted for a crime while in office. The trial is expected to last about two weeks.
The two defendants will be prosecuted by U.S. Attorney John Field III, whom the governor has charged with "attempting to destroy me as a human being and hand-pick the next governor of the state of West Virginia."

Young was expected to rule late today on a defense motion asking that jurors be sequestered to protect them from possible prejudicial news reporting.
Young has already indicated he will reject the motion, submitted Monday by Moore's attorney, Stanley Preiser.
"I have enough faith in the integrity of jurors that when told not to read something, they won't read them," Young said.
Moore, serving his eighth year as governor, is charged with extorting $25,000 from a four-state loan company, which since has collapsed.
The government charged Moore with receiving three cash payments from Theodore Price, former president of the Diversified Mountaineer Corp. in return for a state bank charter. The charter never was granted and DMC went bankrupt three months later.

Price, recently sentenced to three years in prison after plea bargaining over fraud and bribery charges in connection with DMC's collapse, was expected to be the government's key witness.
If convicted, each defendant could be sentenced to 20 years in prison and fined $10,000.

Arab schoolgirls attack

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Crowds of Arab schoolgirls attacked Israeli security forces today, injuring three soldiers in a rock-throwing, tire-burning demonstration in the walled city of Jerusalem.
In Nablus, UPI Photographer Hugh Alexander said club-swinging troops broke up a crowd of Arab children who had blocked roads with rocks and set fire to automobile tire barricades, enveloping the town in black smoke.
Soldiers in the main square of Nablus, the largest town on the occupied West Bank, beat up a young Arab boy involved in the demonstration, tossing him unconscious into the back of an army truck as women screamed in terror, Alexander said.

Troops also broke up a rock-throwing demonstration in Tulkerem, the fifth largest West Bank town, detaining dozens of protestors and placing the settlement under curfew.
The demonstrations marked the third consecutive day of unrest sparked by a march to Jericho by 20,000 Jews that ended Monday with leaders calling on the government to open the occupied territories to Israeli settlement.

Military sources said a soldier and two border patrol troops were injured at Jerusalem's Flower Gate, when security forces moved in to disperse some 200 high-schoolaged girls.
The girls, waving wreaths in memory of Arabs who died during West Bank disturbances prior to municipal elections there April 12, set fire to tires and pitched stones at soldiers for more than half an hour before authorities broke up the protest.
One of the demonstrators was injured, but police took some of the girls into custody.

Arab leaders protesting the march to Jericho sent cables to Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres and U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, saying they could not tolerate further such provocations.
The two-day "Land of Israel" march sponsored by the fiercely nationalist Gush Emunim — Band of Believers — movement stirred violent protest in Jericho and other towns in the region seized from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war.
Israeli troops shot and killed one Arab demonstrator Monday and wounded two more in a narrow alley in Nablus. A 16-year-old boy was wounded in Jenin.
The troops came under attack by rock-throwing crowds and fired warning shots to break them up, official spokesmen said.

Arab sources said the occupation forces charged into schools and beat up students. They said the troops pulled girls by the hair and hit boys at the Al Mahed Adini religious seminary, a school for blind students.
Hundreds of soldiers guarded the 28-mile march route and prevented any contact between the marchers and local Arabs.
"We hope the government will open its eyes and remove the barricades between the sections of the land of Israel," the Gush Emunim leader, Rabbi Moshe Levinger, told sweetly, singing marchers Monday.
"If it does not, we will call on you to join up in order to settle each and every spot in the land of Israel."
He said if the government doesn't open the area for settlement, "this healthy people will carry out the mission by itself."
A leader of the movement's "Jericho nucleus" said it would set up an illegal settlement in the area within a few weeks if it does not get government approval.
The marchers, carrying guns and guitars, stayed up all night around campfires, singing patriotic songs for the Passover holiday.

Assault trial goes to jury

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
A 31st District Court jury began deliberations shortly before noon today in the case of Leo Samuels Jr., 19, charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon in which he allegedly fired a shot on Nov. 14, 1975 which left Oscar W. Nelson, 33, blind of life.
The shooting occurred outside Ruby's Lounge, according to testimony in the case.
Samuels, also called Bo-Peep, and Nelson are both black, and Samuels is allegedly a homosexual.
"If this man is found not guilty by a jury in Gray County, we shouldn't try anyone else for shooting anyone in Gray County," Guy Hardin, district attorney, told the jury.
The penalty, upon conviction, carries a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.
Both James Bowers, attorney for the defendant, and Hardin said it was the first either had tried a case of this type.
"It is the first time I've had an all white jury with a black defendant," Bowers added.
Bowers told the jury that his client fired the shot in self defense. He said Nelson had approached Samuels and Marian Wine at Ruby's and Nelson "put a sexual slur on the boy..." and followed with a remark that precipitated the event.

"Self defense is very apparent and very real to the defendant," Bowers said. "I say to you he had every right to protect himself and that girl."
Bowers added that he is sincerely sorry that "Mr. Nelson will be blind the rest of his life... but it was brought about by his own conduct."
Hardin told the jury that it is unfortunate that the defendant is a homosexual.
"But we are not trying him because he is homosexual nor because he is black. He has violated the law," Hardin said.
He told the jury that Bowers had done an excellent job in throwing "up what I call a smoke screen of self defense in this case."
"My theory is that a homosexual didn't pay," Hardin said.
Bowers objected since there was no evidence of that presented during the trial. Judge Grainger McIlhenny sustained Bowers objection.

18 apply to school board

Eighteen men have applied for the position of superintendent of the Pampa Independent School District, according to school board president Paul Simmons.
The board will meet in executive session at 6:30 p.m. today in Carver Center, 321 W. Albert, to narrow the field down to five applicants.
Next week the board will begin interviewing the five applicants in Pampa.

Simmons said the official announcement of a new superintendent is expected May 17.
Copies of the 18 applications have been distributed to each board member, Simmons said. He has asked them to study each.

Udall appeals to HHH backers

By United Press International
Democratic presidential hopeful Morris Udall appealed today for support from Hubert Humphrey backers, saying there must be three strong candidates at the party's national convention for Humphrey supporters to play a role in the nomination.
Waging a delegate battle against Jimmy Carter, the Arizona congressman told a breakfast gathering at the Albuquerque, N.M., Convention Center he was the "only progressive candidate remaining" in the race for the Democratic nomination.
If "progressive Democrats" did not support him now, Udall said, "they may find themselves at the Democratic convention in New York supporting a nominee who does not have the same long-standing dedication to progressive issues as Sen. Humphrey and myself."

Humphrey has not announced his candidacy but has indicated he would not reject a convention draft if a deadlock developed among other candidates, and there is a move in New Mexico to elect uncommitted delegates prepared to throw their support to Humphrey.
New Mexico Democrats begin their delegate selection process Thursday night with precinct and ward caucuses.
"Supporters of Humphrey must realize that the only way to assure their participation at the July convention is to keep three viable candidates in the race," Udall said.

"On this basis," he said, "I call for and welcome the support of those Democrats supporting any other progressive candidate in the caucuses on Thursday."
Udall's Albuquerque appearance ended a two-day visit to New Mexico.
Democratic presidential contender Henry Jackson said today rival Jimmy Carter is always finding a "scapegoat" to explain away primary losses in the industrial states Jackson has won.
Campaigning in Hartford, Conn., before returning to the immediate battle in Pennsylvania, Jackson said of Carter, "When he knows he's not going to win he finds a scapegoat."
He cited Carter backers for allegedly circulating rumors in Pennsylvania that Jackson labor support is soft and really for Hubert Humphrey and for blaming his New York and Massachusetts primary losses to Jackson on opposition from labor and political leaders.

On the Republican side of the Texas primary, former Gov. John Connally, a key figure in the race between President Ford and Ronald Reagan, predicted Monday night Reagan would win if the primary were held now although, "I think there could be as much as a 10 per cent change in the last 24 hours."
Ford says he never knew that the Texas lawyer he nominated for a federal judgeship was Connally's law partner.
"I didn't know that and I can honestly say that," Ford told some newspaper editors.

Hughes, the invention

By now the particulars of his life have been pretty well spread through the media: that, one of the world's richest men, he was a recluse, an "eccentric"; that he invented everything from bras to airplanes; that he directed movies, squired starlets and narrowly skirted political scandal. It is a curious paradox that one so widely described as a recluse lived a life so thoroughly and intimately known by so many people.

Howard Hughes' life, it could be said, was an open book. Indeed, two books: one the scattered legend and fact which, once collected, only needs to be inserted in binding; the other an astonishing fabrication which sent its fraudulent author, a Mr. Irving, to prison. Everywhere it is supposed that Hughes' life remained an unfathomable mystery; yet everywhere people profess to know all about that life. We are surfeited with Hughes memorabilia, and it is that pervasiveness — not whether he wore long hair and scratched his mustache with nine-inch fingernails — which remains the true puzzle.

Without Howard Hughes the social gazetteers and the political scandal-mongers would have had to invent him. The man was a necessary anachronism, possessing all the qualities our anti-capitalistic age professes to scorn. He had amassed his fortunes largely on his own genius and invention, which automatically guaranteed him a place among the most envied. Whereas his creativity and production generated tons more social usefulness than a thousand Congresses — by making global travel speedy and effortless; by providing an infatuation of jobs for American workers enough to make a Gus Hawkins green, and so on and so on — he nonetheless could not breathe without blowing down some bureaucratic regulation, or without being thwarted by it. Little wonder his notorious efforts to escape. Finally, exasperatingly, he was reduced to contributing money to the presidential aspirations of both Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey in the hope that the winner, whoever, would treat his enterprises gingerly.

Nowadays every government obstacle lies in front of an enterpriser who would build his fortune by serving others. An ounce of creative inspiration quickly becomes a ton of dolefulness once laid before the bureaucracy. Howard Hughes got the preponderance of his work done before the bureaucracy visited the land with its mountains of obstacles. To rise to Hughesian heights today a person has to master the science of political manipulation. Hughes knew some of that manipulation, but the science has since been refined infinitely.

In an anti-capitalistic age, Howard Hughes still satisfied the craving for gossip about the mighty. If we are to enjoy another, the bureaucracy will have to fashion some Huxleyan way to bear the monster, and some Orwellian way to publicize him (or her). The facts flashing across the telecreens, it will be the official repository of envy and disdain, the person with whom the political exalts will be locked perpetually in combat. There! — this is the One, dear socialized drones, you are all supposed to hate!

Even now the political government pounces on the carrion, imagining a million ways to divide it all up. We can imagine a new bureaucracy, the Federal Commission to Divest Howard Hughes' Fortune, to be sustained permanently by taxpayers, notwithstanding that fortune could pay off a huge chunk of the national debt. They don't pounce that way, those litigants and lawyers, because they love. The do it because they perceive the body as something useful.

They definitely need to create another Howard Hughes.

"Tsk, tsk! Such a fine army, and no (ahem!) general to follow."

By Don Oakley

Don Oakley A police case of sexual equality

When does sexual equality amount to rank discrimination? This is the question facing the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati in a case involving alleged unconstitutional discrimination against women candidates for the Columbus, Ohio, police department. The complaint is not that women are treated differently from men but that they are treated the same.

The department's physical tests require a candidate to run 440 yards in 100 seconds, scramble through an obstacle course and pull a revolver trigger so many times in one minute. Failing any of these tests eliminates the candidate.

"We question the nature of these tests and contend that they discriminate against women," an attorney for the National Organization for Women argued before the court the other day. "We are only asking that the tests be fair," he said, and by fair he means that the physical qualifications for women police officers should be less strenuous than for men.

A lawyer for the police department argued, however, that since all police academy graduates are immediately assigned the same jobs, both sexes should be trained alike. And no doubt there would be charges of discrimination if this were not true — if women were not given equal assignment opportunities, including that of beat patrolman, as well as equal pay.

But as one judge observed, chasing people is part of a police officer's job. So is firing a revolver. What happens in a perilous situation if a policeman is unable to give her fellow officers the support and assistance they would expect from a man?

This talk about sexual equality is all very well, but despite contentions by some women libbers to the contrary, there is no escaping the fact that there are certain fundamental differences between men and women that no law or rule or judicial decree can erase.

And what about the less-vigorous male who is unable to pass the physical tests but who might otherwise make a good officer — as good as any woman?

Some people believe that if you decide to go fishing and meet a pig on the way, you will not catch any fish!

Who's afraid of big, bad OPEC?

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — We are more dependent today on the oil cartel than we were in the 1973-74 petroleum crisis. It appears now that by 1985, the year we were to be independent from OPEC oil, we shall be importing 50 to 60 per cent of our needs, mostly from those same nations. A crisis in 1990 could push us to the ropes.

President Nixon's goal of approximate self-sufficiency in petroleum by the mid 1980s went by the boards long ago. President Ford's date is the year 2000.

That, too, is an illusion in the candid opinion of presidential advisers I've talked to in that area.

In a world worried over the dangers of nuclear energy, concern over the environmental effects of strip mining and offshore drilling, plagued by bureaucratic delays and a capital market and economy filled with uncertainties, it is clear the production of energy in this country will lag dramatically behind plans still on paper only.

Even reducing dependence on foreign oil by 10 per cent will not be easy.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller says in the face of rising consumption, it will require private investment of $600 billion to $800 billion the next 10 years to cut dependence from today's 40 per cent of our needs to 30 per cent.

At the same time, in those 10 years we shall spend between $350 billion to $500 billion for petroleum imports — a heavy drain on the supply of domestic capital needed to achieve this reduction in dependence.

Mr. Rockefeller talks of doubling coal production by 1985, increasing the production of domestic oil by 50 per cent and tripling the share of nuclear power in this country's electric power generation to 26 per cent.

Private industrial groups in those fields tell me these are pipe dreams. I have sat in on conferences in which some of the leading men in energy, invited here by the government, have wrestled with the practical problems of meeting those targets. These specialists end by shaking their heads in dismay. Even if the government's regulatory agencies disappeared overnight, and the necessary amounts of capital needed should miraculously appear, technicians and managers see insurmountable problems in assembling the numbers of specialists needed. Specialists at securing vast amounts of not-abundant materials, and able to solve organizational problems the like of which this country has never faced except in time of war.

We are worried — and rightly so — about the adequacy of our defense in view of the growing size and sophistication of Russian military forces. Most curiously, however, we seem relatively unconcerned about energy, which may be even more threatening to our security.

Witness the shift to larger cars, those gas guzzlers we were assured were on the way out after the 1973-74 scare and price booms.

Despite some well-advertised exceptions, the government has made no great shift to energy conservation in its buildings or daily operations.

The record in industry is spotty. Some large concerns have made major advances in energy saving. But the principal waste takes place in hundreds of thousands of smaller industrial firms which have neither the capital nor the research facilities to make the changes that would result in important energy savings. Despite elaborate government plans, little has been done to help these small companies, except "go, go, go" pep talks.

Meanwhile, domestic production muddles along and imports continue to rise.

The problem isn't a lack of plans and proposals. The Administration has a full full; the senator or congressman who hasn't introduced an energy bill is hard to find. The problem is there's no carry-through.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Major changes should not be made on the spur of the moment today. Stop to consider what the aftereffects could be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Agreements made in a hasty manner today are unlikely to survive. Both parties should take time to iron out the details.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions having a relationship to your work or career are apt to be somewhat unstable today. Be on your toes. Don't make wrong moves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be a bit forgetful today. Your mind will be on too many things. As a precaution, write down what's important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you have a pretty good handle on your resources, but today you could blow what you should be saving.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) To advance your interest today self-discipline will be required, or else you're likely to change direction just on the way.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rely upon your logic today rather than your hunches, particularly if you have to make a judgment on a matter of importance.

Your Birthday April 21, 1976 This coming year you may be exposed to several opportunities, but they will be of a fleeting nature. Don't rely upon Lady Luck to do a job you should do for yourself.

How About Government?

By STANLEY J. MODIC (Industry Week)

Bills are pending in Congress to break up the big petroleum companies. A federal agency has been talking for years of fragmenting General Motors. The theory is that biggest stifles competition and leads to higher prices.

If big is bad, then small must be good. Although the latter makes no sense, it is as valid as the former, for the critics of the petroleum industry, for instance, are basing their argument on size alone. We have yet to hear any detailed plan on how a broken-up petroleum industry would work, or see any evidence that it would in fact benefit the consumer.

Nevertheless the cries to break up big business are becoming a political campaign issue. We'd like to see the candidates start making an issue of big government, where reduction in size would certainly prove beneficial to the consumer-taxpayer.

There is much to take issue with. For instance, as a percentage of total national income, why did wages paid to government civilian employees jump from 10.1 in 1964 to 12.4 in 1974 while private sector wages and salaries remained almost static, rising from 52.3 to only 52.8?

Why did government employment soar 110 per cent from 6.7 million in 1964 to 14.1 million in 1974 while employment in the private sector rose only 52 per cent in the same period to 64.2 million?

Are the taxpayers getting their money's worth out of the 27 new major federal agencies that have been added since 1965?

It's interesting to note that with all of government's growth, the productivity of civilian workers at the federal government level, where measured, improved at an annual average of only 1.5 per cent in the last six years, a Committee for Economic Development study shows.

Productivity in the private sector has grown an average of 3 per cent since 1947.

It's also interesting to note that the United States may have big petroleum companies, but it also enjoys the lowest gasoline prices.

"Big" all by itself, may or may not be synonymous with "bad" when it comes to business. But if there is a case to be made against big business, it has already been made against big government. Why don't we start the crackdown there?

Sergeant shouted 'kill, kill' as men beat recruit to death

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Two former Marines say they helped fatally beat a mentally retarded Texas recruit, ignoring the recruit's screams for mercy, because a drill instructor egged them on with shouts of "kill, kill," according to a lawyer representing the dead Marine's parents.

Four or five recruits took turns beating Pvt. Lynn McClure as he tried to escape, shouting in terror. "God, no, please, what did I do?" the Marines told attorney John Gyorkos.

Gyorkos, representing McClure's family in a $3.5 million wrongful death claim against the Corps, played a tape recording for reporters Monday. He said it was an interview with two former Marines, since discharged, who said they took part in beating McClure at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego Dec. 6.

McClure, 20, of Lufkin, Tex., lapsed into a coma with massive brain damage. He never regained consciousness and died March 13 in a Houston Veterans Administration hospital.

McClure was injured while fighting with pugil sticks, padding-tipped poles. Pugil stick bouts are used to practice bayonet fighting and as a disciplinary measure.

One of the men interviewed said that he and McClure had been in a correctional custody platoon for being AWOL and had just been transferred to the "motivation platoon" for troublesome recruits when they were ordered into the pugil stick bouts.

The other said he was one of four or five recruits who took turns beating McClure, who stood 5-feet-6 and weighed 115 pounds, and said he struck the final blow that knocked out McClure.

"We were like animals," he said. "We got out there for blood with pugil sticks and just went crazy."

"I can't forget it. I start thinking about it and there's no going to sleep. All I can hear is his screaming, telling us to stop and asking us for the mercy of God."

"It was cruel the DI (drill instructor) didn't stop this."

McClure tried to run away but was dragged back by the platoon members to be beaten some more as the DI, a sergeant, encouraged them with shouts of "kill, kill," the voice said.

Gyorkos did not identify the two men, but said they were both recruits in McClure's unit who had since been discharged for failure to meet the standards of the Corps. They were interviewed in Washington and Oregon by a private detective working for him, Gyorkos said.

Gyorkos represents Hubert and Betty Calhoun of Lufkin, McClure's mother and stepfather.

A colonel, two captains and three sergeants were suspended from recruit training duties after McClure died and the results of a Marine Corps hearing are awaiting action by the base judge advocate and commanding officer.

The hearing was told that McClure was wearing a football helmet and body protection, as required, and was on his feet and fighting when the fatal blows were struck. A medical panel said his skull was caved in over a 4 by 5 inch area and his brain injuries were so severe there was "zero" possibility he could have lived.

The Justice Department, which also has jurisdiction on the post, directed the Marine Corps to turn over its files when it closes its own investigation.

McClure spent a period in a Texas mental hospital and was described by authorities in his home town as "retarded." He flunked the enlistment intelligence test in Lufkin, with a score of 6 out of 100, but was credited with a grade "in the 60s" when he took the exam again in Austin.

One of the former Marines who said he took part in the beating said the other recruits nicknamed McClure "Gomer Pyle" after the television character of a blundering recruit, because he tried hard to learn but did everything wrong.

"I never saw a guy try so hard," he said.

Court faces 'gag rule'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, faced with claims of absolute but conflicting rights for the press and criminal defendants, appears to be seeking some way to compromise.

The nine justices heard oral arguments Monday in an appeal by Nebraska news media. They contended a state court order barring publication of important facts heard in open court about a sensational murder case is an unconstitutional infringement on the 1st Amendment.

Nebraska countered that the first obligation of the courts is to insure a defendant his 8th Amendment right to a fair trial.

When publication or broadcast of a confession and other substantial evidence of guilt makes empanning an unbiased jury difficult, the rights of the media to publish facts must be limited the state argued.

Erwin Charles Simants, the defendant whose confession to killing six members of a Sutherland, Neb., family last fall was the main subject of the "gag" order being contested, was convicted of the killings last January.

But E. Barrett Prettyman Jr., a Washington lawyer representing the news media, said unless the high court holds court orders barring publication of facts unconstitutional, more such orders will be forthcoming from trial courts.

"It seems to me that after 200 years in which we have let our press print what it is able to get, to subject them now to prior restraint is to take away one of the great liberties we have," Prettyman said.

Lawyer Milton R. Larson, North Platte, Neb., replied in support of the gag order that "what we really are talking about is the ultimate power of the courts to insure that due process is met."

"Who shall have the ultimate authority to protect rights to a fair trial?" Larson asked. "Should it be the judge? Should it be the courts? Or should it be the editor?"

All justices except William J. Brennan Jr. asked questions, and most of them seemed to seek a middle ground. Prettyman suggested that instead of controlling the press, judges could change the location of a trial or delay it until publicity cools.

After 90 minutes of argument, the justices took the case under advisement. A decision is expected by July.

Union head urges gas probe

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The head of the Texas AFL-CIO says multinational corporations which control Texas natural gas operations should be investigated for possible price fixing.

"The fact that 70 per cent of the gas produced in Texas is owned and controlled by major oil companies creates an atmosphere for monopolistic pricing practices," said Harry Hubbard.

"When the fact that 22 per cent of the Texas gas is produced by one company, Exxon, is also considered, our suspicions increase."

Finally, when the fact that the 20 largest producers include many of the same multinational corporations which have admitted wholesale political corruption and bribery of foreign officials is added, we can no longer constrain ourselves."

In a letter Monday to Sen. Philip Hart, D-Ind., chairman of the subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly, Hubbard said pricing policies of Texas gas production led to increases in utility and gas bills.

"We would very much encourage your committee to begin an immediate investigation into the antitrust implications of the pricing practices in the gas industry," Hubbard said.

Hubbard said the wellhead price of natural gas produced and sold within Texas was not regulated, and Texas consumers used almost 20 per cent of the gas produced in the United States.

Because of the lack of regulation, Hubbard said, the weighted average of a thousand cubic feet of gas sold in Texas last month reached $1.94, while regulated interstate sales were a maximum of 53 cents.

Dogs track black guerrillas

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesian police sent helicopters and teams of tracker dogs into dense bush country today in a search for black nationalist guerrillas who shot and killed three white South African tourists.

Rhodesian security forces Monday issued a communique confirming the deaths Sunday of three motorcyclists on the 17-mile north-south highway running between Rhodesia's Fort Victoria and the South African border.

The communique also said guerrilla sappers blew up a section of the Rutenga Railway, Rhodesia's only direct rail link with South Africa. Officials said today the damage had been repaired.

Military sources said the twin attacks marked one of the deepest guerrilla penetrations ever made into Rhodesia. The insurgents, believed to be operating from neighboring Mozambique, are fighting to topple the white minority regime of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Police closed the main highway from Beitbridge, on the South African border, to Fort Victoria. Security teams helped by tracker dogs and helicopters scoured the southeastern bush country in search of the commandos.

The communique said the guerrillas opened fire on the South Africans near the town of Nuanetsi after the motorcyclists surprised the insurgents during the apparent holdup of three automobiles.

The guerrillas killed three men — one a reporter for the Johannesburg Financial Gazette — and shot their female companion in the arm. She was reported in satisfactory condition today at Fort Victoria Hospital.

The Nuanetsi attack, about 80 miles north of the South African border and 100 miles west of the Mozambique frontier, marked the latest in a series of guerrilla raids this year, most of them along the 700-mile Rhodesia-Mozambique border.

The communique said Rhodesian security forces have killed three guerrillas and five of their civilian allies in border clashes since Friday. About 150 guerrillas and more than 20 Rhodesian troops have died in skirmishes this year.

Betty opens Texas fiesta

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford, riding on a musical barge which played San Antonio Rose, easily won the cheers and enthusiasm of the crowd at the Fiesta River Parade. Today, she begins the harder task of capturing votes for her husband in the May 1 Texas primary.

Mrs. Ford, wearing a peach-colored peasant's dress and carrying a spray of yellow roses, was applauded by thousands of San Antonians crowded along the damp, grassy river banks Monday night for the first parade of the 10-day fiesta.

Although the weatherman predicted a 50-50 chance of showers during the parade, a day-long drizzle subsidized allowing Mrs. Ford's barge to wind along the downtown river in excellent weather as she smiled, waved, threw kisses and exchanged "vivas" with the revelers.

Mrs. Ford's role as honorary grand marshal of the parade, during her first trip to Texas, was billed as non-political but today she begins campaign visits to seven Texas cities to corral delegates for her husband. The President has said he is the underdog in the primary against Ronald Reagan.

The first lady meets with Ford for President officials in San Antonio today and then flies to the Rio Grande Valley for more campaigning.

In brief remarks at the Arneson River Theater, the ebullient first lady said on her first trip to Texas she wanted to check out all the "tall stories" she has heard of the sprawling state.

"I've met a lot of Texans in my life and I've never met one I didn't like," she told the cheering crowd.

A brief lighting problem on her barge, one minor brush against another parade float and one picket sign saying, "We can't afford abortion," were the only departures from the enthusiastic welcome Mrs. Ford received in San Antonio.

Most of the crowd stood in waves and applauded and cheered as her barge — decorated with golden stars and eagles — approached.

One sign said "Viva Mrs. Ford" and another said, "Hi, First Mama," referring to her recent gift of a citizens band radio and a suggested CB nickname. One small child held

Fed files suit against Phillips

JOPLIN, Mo. (UPI) — The Labor Department has filed a multi-million dollar suit in federal court charging Phillips Petroleum Co. with practicing age discrimination.

The suit, filed for 400 sales and marketing division employees, was one of the largest actions taken under the federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act.

The suit seeks lost pay, damages, reinstatement and other benefits for employees who allegedly were forced to retire or reclassified during a personnel reduction at all Phillips' offices nationwide starting in 1971.

Courts can order housing funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 8 to 0 today that federal courts can order federal funding of low-income housing in the suburbs to relieve inner city segregation of public housing.

The court said if minorities are segregated in public housing in violation of their constitutional rights, the Department of Housing and Urban Development can be required to foster additional low-income housing in the suburbs.

The decision involved a lower court ruling which found that HUD had joined with the Chicago Housing Authority to knowingly limit funding of low-income housing to predominantly black areas, creating high-rise ghettos on the city's south and west sides.

Nearly two years ago, the Supreme Court barred cross-district busing of children to relieve segregation in Detroit's public schools. The court said there was no showing that constitutional rights had been violated in the case, and therefore suburbs could not be required to consolidate their schools with Detroit.

In today's housing case, Justice Potter Stewart said a constitutional violation was found by intentional housing discrimination involving the federal government, and that courts have a duty to use every available means to end the constitutional violation.

"Nothing in the (Detroit) decision suggests a per se rule that federal courts lack authority to order parties found to have violated the Constitution to undertake remedial efforts beyond the municipal boundaries of the city where the violation occurred," Stewart said.

No final plan has been approved for the Chicago case, and the court's ruling merely authorizes relief involving suburban housing if a violation of constitutional rights is found. Courts, under the ruling, are not required to hand down such an order.

After the Detroit case, many civil rights leaders expressed fear that the justices had made it nearly impossible to win metropolitan-wide relief from inner city segregation.

Answering HUD's assertion that the Detroit case barred an order involving areas outside Chicago, Stewart said "to foreclose such relief solely because HUD's constitutional violation took place within the city limits of Chicago would transform (Detroit's) principal limitation on the exercise of federal judicial authority into an arbitrary and mechanical shield for those found to have engaged in unconstitutional conduct.

Stewart emphasized that under current law, HUD subsidizes private housing developers and does not operate its own housing. No community would be forced to finance its own public housing, so the court order does not place the kind of heavy burden of consolidation and involvement on suburbs that school desegregation requires.

"An order directed solely to HUD would not force unwilling localities to apply for assistance under these programs," Stewart said. "but would merely reinforce the regulations guiding HUD's determination of which of the locally authorized projects to assist with federal funds."

"Use of the (HUD) program to expand low-income housing opportunities outside areas of minority concentration would not have a coercive effect on suburban municipalities.

"For under the program, the local governmental units retain the right to comment on specific assistance proposals, to reject certain proposals that are inconsistent with their approved housing assistance plans, and to require that zoning and other land use restrictions be adhered to by builders."

RESORT BOUGHT

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (UPI) — A group of Americans who own cottages at the plush Tryall Hotel and Cottage Colony here have bought the resort from the estate of Polard Simons, a Texan industrialist who died more than a year ago. The resort, considered one of the most exclusive in the Caribbean, has housed such vacationers as Gerald Ford, John Connally, Barry Goldwater, Billy Graham, Lyndon Johnson and Princess Margaret. The sale price was not disclosed.

SEOUL, Korea, (UPI) — Seoul city authorities, in a drive to save energy, have ordered that all sauna and Turkish baths at big hotels and elsewhere be closed.

Answers favor ecology

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — An environmental group says legislative candidates responding to its questionnaire are concerned with environmental issues and strongly favor development of a plan to improve and conserve the state's water resources.

The Texas Environmental Coalition said it sent a nine-question survey to 426 legislative candidates, with 127 responding. The coalition, comprised of 43 separate groups ranging from organized labor to garden clubs, said positive responses were received on all nine questions. The candidates strongly supported the proposed development of a new Texas Water Plan to import water to Texas from the Mississippi River.

"The public is greatly concerned about the economic and environmental costs of implementing the existing Texas Water Plan," Richard Tims, president of the coalition said. "The upcoming $400 million water development bond election in November puts the issue foremost in the minds of candidates and voters alike."

Former Sen. Don Kennard, a leader of the environmental coalition, conceded however many of the lawmakers who in the past have opposed environmental issues did not respond to the questionnaire. Another spokesman said answers did not always coincide with legislators' voting records.

"For example, Rep. Tony Dramberger of San Antonio answered eight of the nine questions 'yes,' yet Mr. Dramberger's votes have been almost unanimously against environmental issues in the past, so we do have some glaring discrepancies," she said.

Asked why the coalition based its survey on questions concerning future stands rather than on voting records of legislators, Kennard said, "We're looking to the future."

ANNIVERSARY RECIFE, Brazil (UPI) — The historic northeast city of Olinda, Pernambuco, the original Portuguese settlement of what is now the booming city of Recife, celebrates its 439th anniversary this year. Large historical renovations will be undertaken by the municipal government, and numerous public celebrations are planned.

The attorney said the newspaper heires has a "constant fear" of being assassinated.

Authorities said it was not known when she would be transferred to San Diego. Miss Hearst is being protected by guards because of telephone death threats, one of her attorneys said earlier.

"The railroad commission candidate says the commission intentionally blocked a pro-consumer settlement by revoking a three-year-old order preventing gas companies from raising rates.

Terrence O'Rourke, a Houston attorney, said Monday consumer lawyers and their contract-purchaser allies were nearing a settlement with Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. and Coastal States Gas Producing Co. that would have reduced consumer bills more than $100 million, when the commission intervened.

O'Rourke said the commission monitored the lengthy negotiations and was aware a pro-consumer settlement was imminent when it called a hasty meeting April 12 and allowed Lo-Vaca to force customers to pay higher than contract prices.

"In its April 12, 'final order' the commission smashed the consumers' court proceedings by reducing the alternatives to two cynical 'options' — superficially consumer-oriented but in truth carefully calculated to force a creditor liquidation of Lo-Vaca's assets and to produce a windfall to gas speculators and Lo-Vaca's big banks," O'Rourke said.

The agreement consumer attorneys had extracted in secret negotiations would have caused reorganization of Lo-Vaca under court control, forfeiture by Coastal States of its holdings in Lo-Vaca and payment to consumers of millions in damages, O'Rourke said.

"The railroad commission sabotage will cost Texas consumers more than $200 million a year," he said. "On May, 12, 1976 — when the commission's order goes into effect — $18 million per month in inflated utility bills will be added to the already overburdened consumer ratepayer."

O'Rourke said the agreement was complete except for final details of how the damages would be apportioned among Lo-Vaca's consumers.

"Immediate action by every branch of state government is needed to avert the disaster promised by the railroad commission's irresponsible and

A gasoline cap and one-half tank of gasoline was reported taken from a vehicle belonging to Don Fields of 1212 E. Kingsmill.

Herald and Jones Drug Store reported to police that some shoplifters were in the store. Police picked up three girls for questioning and they were later released.

A hit-and-run last weekend involving a vehicle belonging to Curtis M. Broadhead of Miami was cleared by Patrolman David Hodges, who located the vehicle which struck the Broadhead vehicle and left the scene. It was identified as belonging to Gary Don Cotton of Pampa.

Commission's decision cost public millions

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A Texas Railroad Commission decision says the commission intentionally blocked a pro-consumer settlement by revoking a three-year-old order preventing gas companies from raising rates.

Terrence O'Rourke, a Houston attorney, said Monday consumer lawyers and their contract-purchaser allies were nearing a settlement with Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. and Coastal States Gas Producing Co. that would have reduced consumer bills more than $100 million, when the commission intervened.

O'Rourke said the commission monitored the lengthy negotiations and was aware a pro-consumer settlement was imminent when it called a hasty meeting April 12 and allowed Lo-Vaca to force customers to pay higher than contract prices.

"In its April 12, 'final order' the commission smashed the consumers' court proceedings by reducing the alternatives to two cynical 'options' — superficially consumer-oriented but in truth carefully calculated to force a creditor liquidation of Lo-Vaca's assets and to produce a windfall to gas speculators and Lo-Vaca's big banks," O'Rourke said.

The agreement consumer attorneys had extracted in secret negotiations would have caused reorganization of Lo-Vaca under court control, forfeiture by Coastal States of its holdings in Lo-Vaca and payment to consumers of millions in damages, O'Rourke said.

"The railroad commission sabotage will cost Texas consumers more than $200 million a year," he said. "On May, 12, 1976 — when the commission's order goes into effect — $18 million per month in inflated utility bills will be added to the already overburdened consumer ratepayer."

O'Rourke said the agreement was complete except for final details of how the damages would be apportioned among Lo-Vaca's consumers.

"Immediate action by every branch of state government is needed to avert the disaster promised by the railroad commission's irresponsible and cynical sabotage," he said. Unless the order is rescinded, O'Rourke said utility bills in South and Central Texas will jump another $200 million a year and Lo-Vaca will be bankrupted.

O'Rourke said producers now under contract to Lo-Vaca at prices of 25 cents per thousand cubic feet of gas will be able to demand new contracts at current prices of $2 per thousand cubic feet.

Forty grain inspectors on duty in New Orleans inspection field office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in New Orleans.

The new inspectors included a woman, Alice Evans, of Vicksburg, Miss. An additional 80 staffers will be added by summer, raising to 225 the number of federal inspectors at work at grain export points across the nation.

"Putting 225 more supervisors in the field to watch over inspection of U.S. grain is not by itself going to solve the problems we face in policing the grain inspection system," said John A. Knebel, undersecretary of agriculture.

"However, it should give USDA more control over the situation and it is another indication of our commitment to assure that U.S. grain is accurately and honestly inspected."

Marijuana conviction overturned on appeal

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today reversed the marijuana conviction of a San Antonio man because prosecutors showed jurors a previous police mug shot of him during the trial.

The appellate court ruled the police photographed improperly introduced evidence Kevin Hargis Richardson had been accused of a different offense, and the juror should not have been given that information. The picture was presented by prosecutors to support their contentions Richardson wore shoulder length hair in 1972. His attorney contended he never had worn his hair that long.

Richardson was convicted of delivery of marijuana and sentenced to five years in prison, but the appellate court sent the case back to San Antonio today for a new trial.

Doctor says Patty stronger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's right lung is still partially collapsed but doctors say her general physical condition is improving while under care at a hospital.

Dr. John J. Prendergast, an internist, said Monday at Sequoia Hospital that her lung was now only eight per cent collapsed. He also said all tests except one show that her liver was functioning normally. Prendergast said a bilirubin test had shown a slight abnormality last week but continued testing has shown this was disappearing. This, he indicated, showed there probably was no liver ailment.

Miss Hearst's high protein diet is apparently having a rapid, beneficial effect in her malnutrition treatment, the physician added. Prendergast said Miss Hearst became undernourished because she was not eating well while in the San Mateo County Jail in nearby Redwood City. He said this was probably caused by anxiety.

Miss Hearst, 22, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, was admitted to the Redwood City hospital seven days ago because of the collapsed lung. When she recovers, she will be transferred to the Federal Metropolitan Correction Center at San Diego for a 90-day evaluation. U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter ordered the evaluation after her conviction on charges of being a member of a Symbionese Liberation Army bank robbery team.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think this is a stupid question, but I don't know who else to ask.

Is there some place that buys used dentures? I have six sets that are good as new. They belonged to members of my family who are now deceased. Three pair belonged to my grandmother, and she never wore any of them for more than three months.

It seems a shame to just throw them out if they could be of use to someone. I would even be glad to GIVE them away if you could tell me where to send them.

I called my own dentist and asked if he wanted to buy them, and he said, "My God, lady, I don't BUY dentures, I SELL them!"

Please answer this as I am serious.

TEETH ON MY HANDS

DEAR TEETH: There's undoubtedly a law (with teeth in it) prohibiting the sale of used dentures. And I wouldn't know to whom you could give them.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 31-year-old irate bachelor who always gets the "how-come-you're-not-married" routine when applying for employment prompts this letter:

I'm 45 and divorced many years with no intention of remarrying. Ten years ago I applied for a position with the Chamber of Commerce of one of Ohio's largest cities.

The interview went very well until the man in charge said, "I notice on your resume that you're not married." Then he said with a wink, "Not a 'homo' by any chance, are you?"

I just looked at him incredulously while he went on to sermonize on the virtues of marriage and explain that the Chamber wanted "a family man" whose wife could socialize with the wives of other chamber members and how a single man was usually "unstable" and just wouldn't fit in. He made it clear that a single man was "suspect" and didn't quite have the wholesome, highly moral image they required.

A week later, the same man called and asked me to meet him downtown for dinner that evening to "talk things over." Thinking that he had reconsidered hiring me, I gladly accepted.

When I got to the restaurant he had already had a few drinks, but he wasn't drunk. He was very friendly and told me what a handsome, sophisticated, cool young man I was, as he gripped my hand and slapped my thigh.

He went on to say that his wife and kids were at the lake for a week and he enjoyed being a bachelor for a while because he was trapped in a rotten marriage, etc.

"What about the job?" I asked.

"No. Too bad. They still prefer a stable, family-type man. But how about coming to the house and spending the weekend with me, because I'm not all that straight, and I really dig the gay life?"

I simply got up, shook his hand and walked out as he burst into tears and yelled, "Go to hell, you -----!"

ALL RIGHT IN OHIO

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WHY, WHY, WHY?": Seldom is one single crisis wholly responsible for an emotional collapse. It's the trigger of a gun that is already loaded. Don't feel guilty.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother at age 61, an intelligent, active woman, developed what was diagnosed as cerebral atrophy. Four years later she had gradually deteriorated to the point where she is a body without a mind, unable to speak or feed herself and apparently unable to recognize us. There is no family history of such an illness, so we assumed perhaps a head injury was behind it. However, another member of the family is now showing similar symptoms. Can you tell us what causes this condition?

DEAR READER — I understand thoroughly your distress. I wish there were some good answer to give you. Your mother's condition is the same as that which occurs in many older people. Whether it begins early or late the changes are approximately the same. I don't need to detail these because they are all too familiar in our society. In medical circles we call these dementia and sometimes senile dementia, although it must be stated that this condition can occur at a relatively young age, specifically in later middle age in some people. Women seem to be more susceptible to this disorder at an early age than are men.

Most of these disorders are associated with actual changes in the cells of the brain, and the condition can occur in individuals with brain injury as may be seen sometimes in boxers who had repeated excessive head injuries. The development of symptoms may be gradual or more rapid. One of the earliest signs is the diminished ability for problem solving. Individuals lose the ability to cope with new problems. Stated simply, they lose their previous capacity to learn even though they may still be able to handle old familiar tasks.

We do not know what causes this condition, but these disorders are usually included as part of the picture of aging. However, medicine has long had a tendency to classify disorders that are not well understood as aging, only to find later that they are true diseases. A good example here is the common heart attack. We now know that heart disease can begin in young men in their early twenties and thus is hardly a disease of aging.

Sometimes disease of the arteries to the brain contributes to this problem. In other instances, the degeneration of the brain cells seems to be independent of disease of the arteries.

What we really need is a better understanding of the fundamental process of aging and how to prevent it. The truth is, we are very close to being able to control biological aging. That statement may startle some people, but we already understand a great deal of the regeneration process, how cells are replaced, and even how to make duplicates of frogs from the nucleus of an intestinal cell (popularly called cloning). Those who want information on what we understand about aging can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging, Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — I am seventy-eight years old and walk with a cane. I wonder if bus companies realize how hard it is for the elderly to get on buses, as the first step is so high. I do wish they would have this first step lower since there are so many of us who find it difficult to get a foot on it. By so doing perhaps they would save some serious accidents. This matter certainly needs attention. —TILLIE.

DEAR POLLY — A recent hospital stay brought this Pointer to me very pointedly. A small calendar makes a greatly appreciated gift for a hospital patient. I had none and no one brought one so I finally made one on the bottom of my tissue box. This worked beautifully even though it made me feel like a condemned person as I counted off the days. I know that from now on I will always take a small calendar to any friend who is hospitalized for more than a few days. —GLADYS.

DEAR POLLY — Leg or knee warmers are very expensive so I improvised by making my own. I cut the sleeves out of an old sweater and use them for this purpose. They cover me from the ankles to well above the knees and are so comfy. —MRS.F.V.

DEAR POLLY — An upholstered lounge chair in my bedroom was worn out but the black frame was in excellent condition. I crocheted six inch squares with red and black yarn, using black around the seat and across the top, and sewed these squares on with an upholstery needle. I love the effect and others seem to, too. And because the crochet stretches, it was easy to fit the pieces to the contour of the chair. —ETTA.

Sunset years in a log cabin

By JAMES F. WIECK
SWAN, Mo. (UPI) — Journey's End.

That sign was on the front porch of an ancient log cabin nestled in the Ozark Mountains for years. Now it is nailed to a nearby tree.

For Paul and Lorene Mahnken the meaning is literal.

They have returned to Mrs. Mahnken's birthplace to live out their remaining years, enjoying the serene Ozarks lifestyle and reminiscing about a bygone era.

"I was born here and I came back to die here," said Mrs. Mahnken, who entered the world 73 years ago on a Jenny Lind bed in the cabin.

Mahnken, 71, retired six years ago from his job in a small Kansas City area battery shop.

"I've been thinking — I don't believe they allow it anymore — but I sure would like to be buried here," he said. "Isn't it beautiful?"

Journey's End was the name given the homestead where the square-hewn oak log cabin was built. It symbolizes the isolation of this tiny, little-known community among the small mountains known as Burger Ball, Ripley's Saddle and Long Ball. Nearby are such landmarks as Hodge Holler and Copper Flats.

The living room of the four-room, weathered gray cabin is stuffed with antique furniture and collections of glassware and dolls. Curios like Indian artifacts and a petrified tortoise shell line the front porch.

The community was named after nearby Swan Creek. It never had more than a handful of residents and most were Mrs. Mahnken's relatives.

Bishop Wright, who dedicated the Lone Star Church in 1903, was Journey's End most memorable visitor. He told Mrs. Mahnken's mother about his sons, Orville and Wilbur, "fooling with this contraption and trying to build a flying machine. I don't think it will ever get off the ground."

"Nobody knows how old (the house) is," said Mrs. Mahnken, a retired school teacher whose voice has lost all traces of her Ozarks background from years of city living. "As far back as I can remember, no one ever knew when it was built. The Taney County courthouse records burned in 1883, so there's no way of telling."

"I remember an old man here — old man Hinkle — about 20 to 25 years ago. He was 83 at the time and he said his people had the store when he was about 15. But, he didn't know when the store or the house was built. We know there was a raising for the barn (no longer standing) in 1849 and of course the houses were always built first.

"When I was a little girl there was just the store (run by her mother after her father's death in 1903) and our house and a blacksmith shop that stood under that elm."

A winding road, now paved, in front of the cabin turns into a treacherous gravel affair about a quarter mile from Journey's End and runs parallel — except at one spot through — a creek.

"We drew the trade from around here. It was five miles to Taneyville and 12 miles to Chadwick and over in this direction, people would come — sometimes only twice a year — and pick up supplies. Others living closer would come in weekly. Twice a week they (her family) went into Chadwick to pick up supplies by wagon for the store."

"The cotton farmers from northern Arkansas would come through with their bales on the way to Chadwick to ship them out. Chadwick was wild and woolly back then. That was the days of the Bald Knobbers (a loose-knit gang of night-riding outlaws)."

The old family store, a dilapidated structure which still stands near the house, served more as a trading post for travelers.

"They'd bring in eggs, and they had geese and butter," Mrs. Mahnken recalled. "Then in the winter we'd buy furs and rabbits. If they brought more than they spent, they got a due bill that they could spend later."

"People would come in from Virginia and Kentucky and Tennessee and build a little one-room with a lean-to. They'd spend a few years and then move on."

Although most residents were poor, she said there were three distinct classes.

"The bottomland farmers were rich. Some had slaves. The next class, the middle class, would have a small farm and grow corn to feed horses and they'd have a couple of cows. Then, to make money, they'd hack out a few (railroad) ties to take to Chadwick."

"This other class were mostly hunters. They'd sell furs and they'd live off wild game. They were the poor people."

Only a handful of people now live in the area known as Swan and the road in front of Journey's End carries little traffic. Occasionally, someone will drop by for a tour of the cabin.

The Mahnkens enjoy the beauty and serenity of the Ozarks and their retirement home makes it easy to remember back when.

"In my lifetime," said Mrs. Mahnken. "I can remember the oxen team and I've lived to see the flight to the moon. That's something."

Pampa's Betsy Ross

A handmade crocheted American flag will be presented to the Pampa Moose Lodge Wednesday night by Mrs. Lynne Scanlon of 1813 N. Wells. Her husband, Mr. Bill Scanlon a lodge member, died Jan. 7, 1973. Mrs. Scanlon said the presentation will be in appreciation of the lodge and "the help and consideration you extended to my husband and me ..."

John Geer, new lodge governor, is scheduled to accept the gift on behalf of the membership. Mrs. Scanlon said she did not know how many hours she spent working on the flag. "It took almost a month," she said.

Pregnancy doesn't have to ruin woman's figure

"Eating for two" during pregnancy doesn't have to ruin a woman's figure for years afterward," Mrs. Mary Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist, says.

"It's the nutritional quality — not just quantity — of food eaten that makes a healthy baby and mother," she added.

Mrs. Sweeten is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"A pregnant woman needs approximately 2000 calories each day to provide enough energy to build new tissue in the developing fetus and to support her own increased metabolism. This is about 300 calories a day more than the normal diet provides."

"The most desirable weight gain is usually 22 - 27 pounds over the nine - month period. Physicians usually recommend a gradual weight gain — from 1.5 pounds per month during the first three months and 0.8 per week during the last six months," the specialist said.

Good nutrition does have a positive effect on the growth and development of the fetus and on the health of the mother during pregnancy and lactation, she added.

"To obtain best balance of nutrient needs during pregnancy, eat a variety of ordinary foods from the daily four food groups — milk group, meat group, fruit and vegetable group, and bread and cereal group."

"Pregnant women should drink three or more cups of milk group foods, eat two or more servings of at least six ounces of protein - containing meat group foods, and four or more one-half cup servings of fruits and vegetables."

"Also necessary are four or more servings of whole grain or enriched breads or cereals. But the high - calorie foods in the other group — fats and sweets — should be eaten only sparingly during pregnancy to prevent excessive weight gain," she explained.

Turning to specific nutrient needs in the maternal diet, the specialist said that protein is most important for development of the baby's tissues and the enlargement of the mother's body tissues.

"If enough of the energy nutrients, fat and carbohydrates, are not present in the mother's diet, then protein will be used for energy instead of for building body proteins. In fact, during pregnancy, about 30 grams more than the normal 46-gram daily requirement is needed, which means mother should get about 76 grams of protein each day," she explained.

Another important nutrient is calcium — to insure normal formation of the baby's bones and teeth.

"And most physicians prescribe iron pills during pregnancy because it's almost impossible for the iron requirement to be met entirely through food during this time."

"Additional folic acid during pregnancy is recommended to protect the mother and fetus from the risk of anemia," she said.

Sodium is another mineral of major concern in the pregnant woman's diet. This is a chemical found in many substances such as ordinary table salt.

The average diet contains from five to ten grams of sodium. Many women have been advised to reduce their salt, or sodium, intake to prevent excessive weight gain and accumulation of body fluids, she explained.

MRS. SADAT ON SEX

NEW YORK (UPI) — Egypt's first lady, considered an outspoken advocate of women's rights in a male-dominated Arab world, says unlike Betty Ford she could never condone sex before marriage for her teenage daughter.

Asked the same question put recently to Mrs. Ford — what her reaction would be if her teen-aged daughter announced she was having an affair — Mrs. Jehan Sadat said:

"My daughter can't come and tell me that at all. I wouldn't put her in this position from the beginning."

Mrs. Sadat, interviewed on the CBS television program "60 Minutes," said Sunday her daughter, also named Jehan, was already engaged and allowed to go on dates with her fiancée, "but not more than that."

GORSHIN HURT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Frank Gorshin, known principally as an impressionist, really wasn't imitating anybody when he injured himself skiing.

The 46-year-old entertainer pulled some leg ligaments and damaged a cartilage in his left knee on a ski run at Park City, Utah, Friday.

He underwent surgery at Century City Hospital in Los Angeles Saturday and was reported in good condition and in good spirits.

"That's the last time I'll do an impression of (Olympic skier) Jean-Claude Killy," he said.

KING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO (UPI) — King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden, recovering from a sore throat, attended Easter services Sunday in the heart of a Swedish community on the city's north side.

Some 400 persons lined the street to watch the king walk to the Ebenezer Lutheran Church.

Later, the king visited the office of a Swedish newspaper, Svenska Amerikanaren Tribuna, and the Swedish Memorabilia Museum, which opened for the first time Sunday.

OSMONDS INJURED

NEPHI, Utah (UPI) — Singer Marie Osmond, 16, and her mother, Olive, suffered minor injuries when their car rammed the back of a tractor-trailer during the weekend.

Miss Osmond was treated at a hospital for cuts and an eye injury before being released. Her mother was admitted to the hospital for a chest injury, but her condition was listed as good.

The accident occurred as the Osmond family was returning from an outing. Miss Osmond and her singing brothers live in Orem, Utah.

BARKER VIEWS FILM

MIAMI (UPI) — Convicted Watergate burglar Bernard Barker went to the movie last week to see "All the President's Men" — the film based on the break-in he helped carry out.

Barker, now a city sanitation inspector, said he was impressed with the actor who portrayed him.

"That guy looked so much like me that I looked around to see if anybody recognized me," he said.

NOISE ABATEMENT

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — A noise abatement program initiated at Frankfurt Airport is paying off for both airlines as well as city residents. One of the world's busiest, the airport also may be the quietest.

The plan works on a point system based on the size of the plane and the amount of noise it makes on takeoff and landing. Landing fees are then graded according to the result — the less noise, the lower the fee. The German National Tourist Office estimates that Lufthansa, Pan American and other airlines saved more than $1 million in landing fees since the plan went into effect a year ago. Other major West German airports plan to inaugurate similar programs this year.

Erving sparks Nets to 3-2 series lead

By United Press International
Julius Erving had 32 points, 10 rebounds and six assists Monday night but it was a spectacular blocked shot with four seconds left that gave the New York Nets a 110-108 victory over the San Antonio Spurs and a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven ABA semifinal playoff series.

San Antonio opened up with a 12-2 burst in three minutes and it took nine points by Erving in the second period to help the Nets catch up at halftime.

"I got a chance to rest a little in the third quarter then I just got my juices going and asserted myself more in the last period," Erving said. He asserted himself by scoring five points in the first minute of the period and leading the Nets on a 13-6 tear that gave them a comfortable 98-89 edge with eight minutes left.

The Nets seemed to have the game won, but the stubborn Spurs closed to within two points. The Nets had the ball but Kim Hughes missed a forced shot. San Antonio took possession and, with a chance to tie or win on a three-point shot, called time out. Inbounding with nine seconds left, the Spurs gave the ball to Mike Gale 20 feet from the basket.

"I was supposed to take the ball around an outside pick and drive to the basket," Gale said. "If they sagged off, I had (George) Gervin to pass to. I wasn't going to shoot it but I thought I was free and I had been shooting well." Gale, who had scored 20 points on 10-of-16 shots, mostly from the outside, started his drive, held up and fired a short jumper with four seconds to go. Al Skinner, guarding Gale, was picked off but Erving left his man to help out.

"I don't know how high I got up but it was high enough," Erving said of the leap that seemed to put him several feet over everyone's head. His long arm reached out and, as he said, "I hit the ball with a full hand, just smashed it back to the floor. It felt good."

Gervin scooped up the loose ball for a desperation shot but missed. Time ran out as the ball was peppered near the basket like a volleyball.

Erving was the only Net to exceed 20 points but six Nets, led by Skinner's 15, reached double figures. Four players, led by Larry Kenon's 27 points and Gervin's 25, had 20 or more for San Antonio but the other six players managed only 16 points combined.

In the other semifinal series Monday night, Kentucky defeated Denver, 126-114, to take a 2-1 lead in games. Bird Averitt riddled Denver for 18 of his 40 points in the last quarter to pace the Colonels, who host the fourth game Wednesday night.

Artis Gilmore added 36 points in the Colonels' two-southpaw attack. Kentucky took full command early in the last quarter when Averitt broke an 88-88 tie with a pair of baskets.

Chuck Williams got into early foul trouble trying to contain the little Kentucky guard and Averitt had things all his way throughout the last half. The Colonels never trailed in the final period after Averitt's two baskets lifted them into a 92-88 lead with 10:37 remaining.

Averitt, who also had seven assists, connected on 17-of-28 shots and Gilmore hit 15-of-20. David Thompson paced Denver with 29 points and Ralph Simpson added 28.

There are no ABA playoff games scheduled tonight. In the National Basketball Association playoffs, Seattle is at Phoenix and Detroit at Golden State.

Feeney claims NL to expand

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The announcement from National League President Charles S. "Chub" Feeney was short and like most baseball announcements, it was left to the public to decide what it meant.

"We are meeting in Chicago next Monday to discuss expansion and Commissioner (Bowie) Kuhn's directive about our plans," Feeney said Monday. Left unsaid was which cities would be considered for expansion franchises and what would happen to Kuhn.

Since the National league covets Toronto, a city that already has been granted an expansion franchise by the American League despite Kuhn's insistence that the AL go to Washington, D.C. instead, obviously that city will be considered. As for Washington, D.C., that's another story.

When Washington lost the Senators-Rangers franchise four years ago, Kuhn made a private promise to a congressional committee that the nation's capital would be given the next expansion club, be it American or National League.

Right now, neither league wants to be in Washington, especially the American because the Baltimore Orioles are only 30 miles down the road in what already is a crowded sports market.

Pancel taking entries

Entries for the Pancel Open Golf Tournament June 19-20 at the Celanese course are now being accepted, according to Jack Edwards, tournament director.

Entry fee is $25.00 and should be paid as soon as possible said Edwards to insure a spot in a flight.

Each of the five flights will pay $200 for first place, $100 for second and $75 for third. Other prizes include a gift certificate to the player closest to the hole on No. 8 (par three) and a dozen golf balls to the person with the highest score.

Persons interested in playing should contact either Edwards or Don Stafford.

Ken Bailey of Amarillo won the championship flight title a year ago. Buddy Lamberson of Pampa was first-flight champion.

Mabuza 2nd in Marathon

Fultz slow but wins

BOSTON (UPI) — The hares fell out early, leaving an unknown tortoise to win the hottest Boston Marathon ever with a slow but steady pace.

Georgetown University student Jack Fultz, a 27-year-old Coast Guard veteran, came out of his shell at the 19-mile mark to pass fast-starting Richard Mabuza of Swaziland in the 90-degree heat. "I passed him just as we came to the hills and he really looked like he had had it," said Fultz after winning the 80th annual race in the slow time of 2:20:19.

"I decided I couldn't show him how tired I was so I ran a little faster."

"Once I took the lead I had to concentrate to keep the same pace. If I ran too fast, I might have made my leg cramps worse and not be able to finish and, if I went too slow, someone might have caught me."

No one came close. Mexico's Mario Cuevas was second in 2:21:13, which was 54 seconds behind Fultz. Puerto Rico's Jose DeJesus was third in 2:22:10 to lead the Sanblas "A" squad to its second straight team title.

The winning time was more than 11 minutes slower than the 2:09:55 record set in 1975 by Bill Rodgers of suburban Melrose, Rodgers, who passed up the event to run May 22 in the U.S. Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore., said Fultz ran a great race.

"When I saw how hot it was in Hopkinton (the suburb where the race began), I thought the winning time would be about 2:25," Rodgers said.

Another astounding effort came in the women's division. Sockless Kim Merritt of the University of Wisconsin-Parkside defeated 77 other female competitors in a blistering 2:47:10, then had to be treated at a local hospital for raw and swollen feet. Miki Gorman of Los Angeles, the 1974 winner, was second in 2:52:27 while Dorothy Doolittle of Austin, Tex., was third in 2:56:26.

All the runners benefited from the drinks provided by fans along the route and from hoses and sprinklers aimed their way. A number of runners were treated for heat exhaustion and other ailments but no one was seriously injured.

A field of 1,899 marathoners started the 26-mile, 385-yard run in temperatures that soared above 100 degrees in the sun of Hopkinton Green. At the race's end, closer to the seacoast, the thermometer read 68 degrees.

Despite the heat, 413 runners finished in under three hours. Johnny Kelley the elder, a two-time winner whose son has also completed, finished his 45th run in 3:30.

"It was a great race," said 1975 winner Rodgers, who watched the marathon from the press box. "But I'm sure glad I didn't have to run in it."

Dr. J. named most valuable

NEW YORK (UPI) — The legend of "Dr. J." continues to grow.

Erving, an exciting combination of power and finesse who "keeps people in the arena until the 48th minute," Monday received the ABA's most prized individual honor for the third year in a row when he was named Most Valuable Player by a near unanimous vote.

In a balloting of 35 members of the media—five from each of the seven ABA cities—Erving received 32 first-place votes while Bobby Jones and David Thompson, the starting forwards on the Denver Nuggets, and James Silas of San Antonio each received one vote.

Erving, the first player in ABA history ever to win the MVP three times, joins former National Basketball Association stars Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics and Wilt Chamberlain of the Philadelphia 76ers as the only players ever to win three consecutive MVP trophies in pro basketball.

The inimitable Erving captured his third scoring title in the last four years this past season with a 29.3 points per game average. He also finished fifth in rebounding with 11.0 per game, eighth in two-point field goal percentage (.517), seventh in three-point field goal percentage (.330), seventh in assists (5.0), seventh in blocked shots (1.9) and third in steals (2.5).

McGoldrick receives Spring Athlete honor

DALLAS (UPI) — Texas strongman Jim McGoldrick has been named Southwest Conference Spring Athlete of the Week based on his discus effort of 208-9—fifth best ever by a collegian—in winning the event at the Kansas Relays last weekend.

McGoldrick's toss was a shade less than four feet better than his previous season's best and five feet short of the alltime collegiate best, a 213-9 heave turned in by Texas A&M's Randy Matson in 1967.

Others nominated for the weekly honor included Houston tennis player Ross Walker, Arkansas distance runner Niall O'Shaughnessy, SMU golfer Joe Hager, Baylor quarter-miler Tim Son, A&M discus man Steve Stewart and Rice miler Jeff Wells.

Set for Lubbock

The Pampa sprint-relay team of Cindy Young, Sherry Kimbell, Sharon Moultrie and Barbara Faggins will compete in the Region I Track Meet Friday and Saturday at Lubbock. The quartet qualified in the District 3-AAAA meet two weeks ago by placing second.

HOMER NO HOMER
CLEVELAND (UPI) — Homer Summa, an outfielder who played for Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Philadelphia during a 10-year major league career that ended in 1930, had a lifetime average of .302 but never quite lived up to his name. He hit only 18 homers in 3001 at bats.

LOSER WINS
DETROIT (UPI) — Roger Crozier won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most valuable player in the Stanley Cup playoffs in 1966, the first player from a losing team ever to win the award. Crozier's Detroit Red Wings lost in the finals to the Montreal Canadiens, four games to two.

Baseball roundup

BoSox blank Minnesota

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer

When will baseball's big money pitchers begin to pay off? That's a fair question roughly 10 days into the season with the Big Five of the newly enriched—Jim Palmer of Baltimore, Ferguson Jenkins of Boston, Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, Jim Hunter of the New York Yankees and Andy Messersmith of Atlanta—showing a composite record of five victories and six losses.

Jenkins returned the first dividend on his super contract Monday when he pitched a five-hitter to give the Red Sox a 2-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins but Seaver went to no decision in the New York Mets' 4-3, 17-inning triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. Palmer, Hunter and Messersmith didn't see action Monday.

The California Angels defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 9-4, and the Oakland A's beat the Detroit Tigers, 6-5, in 10 innings, in the other American League games. The Houston Astros topped the Los Angeles Dodgers, 8-3, and the Montreal Expos edged the Chicago Cubs, 4-3, in other National League games.

Jenkins, displaying the control which is his trademark, walked only one and struck out three in winning his first AL game for Boston and scoring his 38th career shutout. Ricco Petrocelli singled in the first Boston run and Fred Lynn drove in the second with a sacrifice fly. Joe Decker was the loser.

Seaver allowed three runs and seven hits in eight innings and left the Met-Cardinal game with the score tied at 3-3. The teams were scoreless from the eighth—when the Cardinals tied the game on a double by pinch-hitter Ron Fairly—until Del Unser homered for the Mets in the top of the 17th. Bob Apodaca allowed one hit in three innings to pick up the win while Mike Wallace suffered the defeat.

Angels 8, Orioles 4:

Frank Tanana, last season's major league strikeout king, pitched a five-hitter and struck out 12 for the Angels, who broke open the game in the seventh inning on Dave Chalk's bases-filled triple. Bruce Bochte had three hits, including two doubles, and Bill Melton hit a two-run double for the Angels. Mike Cuellar was tagged for eight hits in 2 1/3 innings and suffered his second loss in as many decisions for the Orioles.

A's 6, Tigers 5:
Phil Garner singled home the winning run for the A's after John Hiller walked Ken McMillen and Bert Campaneris with one out in the 10th. The A's tied the score in the ninth on Joe Rudi's third hit and second double of the game after Willie Horton's run-scoring double gave the Tigers a 5-4 lead in the top of the inning. Alex Johnson homered for the Tigers.

Astros 8, Dodgers 3:
Jose Cruz's three-run first-inning triple was the big blow of the Astros' win over the Dodgers. Larry Dierker allowed four hits in seven innings to win his second game while Dodger ace Don Sutton was tagged with his third straight loss. Cesar Cedeno had a double and a single for the Astros.

Expos 4, Cubs 1:
Pete Mackanin's two-run homer in the fourth inning paced the Expos to their win over the Cubs and enabled Steve Rogers, who went 8 1/3 innings, to win his first game of the season. Bill Bonham suffered his first loss as the Cubs dropped their fourth straight game. Jose Morales homered for Chicago.

Connally shuns Ford cabinet

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former Gov. John Connally says he does not want any position in the Ford Administration and repeated his predictions Ronald Reagan will defeat the President in the Texas primary.

Connally's support in the state's first presidential primary has been sought by both Ford and Reagan, but he says he will remain neutral.

He said Monday he wanted to end speculation he might be offered the vice presidency or the position of secretary of state. "I want to lay to rest the rumors that I'm going to take off's job or that job," Connally said at a news conference in between meetings with GOP supporters.

"You should take those rumors with a big teaspoon of salt. There's not a word of truth in them. There's not anything I want and not anything I'm seeking and these rumors don't make Secretary of State Henry) Kissinger's job any easier. I don't know who started the rumors, but it certainly wasn't a friend."

Connally, who was secretary of the Navy under the Democrats and secretary of the treasury under the Republicans, was asked if he wanted to be vice president.

"That's a job no one seeks," Connally replied. "I'm not going to make a general declaration, but you'll never see me running for that job."

Connally hinted he might disclose his reason for remaining neutral before he May 1 primary.

"There are a number of reasons (for neutrality), one of which I'm not at liberty to tell you. I hope to be able to tell you in about 10 days. It's one I've been working on for about 5 months," Connally said.

Connally said Reagan appeared the favorite in Texas but the situation could change quickly.

"My view hasn't changed. From the best reading I can get, Gov. Reagan is going to carry Texas. It may change by May 1. I think there could be as much as a 10 per cent change in the last 24 hours, but in my opinion, if the election were held tomorrow, I think Gov. Reagan would win," Connally said.

Connally was in Austin for a $100 a person reception and a $50 a plate dinner sponsored by the Travis County Republican Party.

A point from WT

Warren Hasse, who introduced the speaker, listens carefully to the discussion.

US ends Hunt prosecution

DALLAS (UPI) — Prosecutors dropped obstruction of justice charges against two sons of the late oil millionaire H.L. Hunt and allowed them to plead no contest to contempt of court.

Through a series of complicated legal motions Monday, the government ended its prosecution of W. Herbert and Nelson Bunker Hunt for alleged crimes relating to their admitted wiretapping of Hunt Oil Co. employees.

Obstruction of justice charges were also dropped against two other persons involved in the case — Charles Tessmer and B.H. Timmins Jr.

Following the formal dismissal of charges, Bunker Hunt, Tessmer and Timmins were recharged with contempt of court, each pleaded no contest and each was fined $1,000.

The plea did not affect three other co-defendants — nationally known defense attorney Percy Foreman and Edward Hudson, both of Houston, and Ralph Shank of Dallas. They were granted separate trials.

Hudson is a retired engineering company president and Shank is an attorney for the Hunt family.

In September a Lubbock jury acquitted the Hunts of authorizing three Houston men to illegally tap the phones of six Hunt Oil Co. employees. The Hunts admitted ordering the taps, but said the wiretaps were necessary in the investigation of an embezzlement scheme in the company.

The obstruction of justice charges claimed the Hunts, Timmins and Tessmer conspired with the other defendants to impede government and grand jury investigations.

The indictments said the Hunts, through their attorneys, offered bribes to the men who conducted the wiretaps — Jon Joseph Kelly, W.J. Everett and Patrick McCann.

The charges said the Hunts and Tessmer offered Kelly $1,250 for every month he spent in prison; that the Hunts and Shank offered McCann $1,250 for every month he spent in prison and that the Hunts and Timmins offered Everett $800 per month prison time.

Texas University leader dies

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Harry Hurt Ransom directed the vast University of Texas system for 10 years but officials say his most lasting contribution will be the development of UT's Humanities Research Center, considered one of the best in the nation.

Hurt, 67, died Monday while visiting his wife's parents at Drippings Springs, Tex. Private funeral services were scheduled for today with burial at Austin Memorial Park.

Ransom spent 36 years with the UT system, beginning as a part-time professor and retired as chancellor in 1971.

UT officials consider the HRC, which bears Hurt's name, to be his most lasting contribution. The library, based on its collections of literature, history of science, theater arts, cartography and photography in the center, was listed among the top 32 museums in North America and western Europe. Only five United States libraries were on the list.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe praised Hurt's efforts in education and called him a "great educator and a great Texan."

"His life was dedicated to educating our young people and providing them with the finest educational opportunities," Briscoe said. "As chancellor of the University of Texas System, he worked tirelessly to improve the programs of higher education in our state."

"His passing is a great loss to the State of Texas, but his many contributions to our educational system will continue to influence the lives of our students for years to come."

He is survived by his widow, Hazel.

Texan convicted of kidnaping

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — A federal court jury has convicted a Texas woman of kidnaping an Albuquerque infant, despite the contention she was not mentally responsible for her actions.

Eileen Lowe, 30, Muleshoe, Tex., who had sobbed uncontrollably while testifying in her own defense, collapsed when the guilty verdict was read and was carried from the court room.

She was returned to Albuquerque to await sentencing May 5 by U.S. District Judge Howard Bratto.

Mrs. Lowe admitted kidnaping the week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lowe of Albuquerque last Jan. 30.

However, the defense, with supporting testimony from psychologists, contended the woman was mentally unstable and was obsessed with getting a baby to please her estranged husband and save her fourth marriage.

But assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Sandoval argued the defendant was in control of her actions and "methodically" planned the kidnaping.

Defense lawyer William Deaton said no decision on appealing the case would be

Watkins says universities forgot about students

Watkins says universities forgot about students

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa News Staff

Teaching, research and public service or awareness, focused on students, is the basic prescription for educational excellence and significance, Dr. Lloyd Watkins, president of West Texas State University at Canyon, told a chamber of commerce membership luncheon Monday in Coronado Inn.

In his introduction of Dr. Watkins, Warren Hasse of WTSU, said he wished to correct an impression abroad in some areas that the college president was anti-sports.

"That is not true," Hasse said. "His concern was about the financial condition of WTSU sports. He was looking at the bottom line and the cost."

At the conclusion of his address, Dr. Watkins referred briefly to the athletic program at the university.

"We need your help to save our athletic program," he said. "We still are $25,000 short of the $125,000 goal. It is your university and we need your support."

Pointing out his contention that significance of a university cannot be measured by size, Dr. Watkins addressed his remarks in that respect to "those who measure by 'bigness' or similarity to another institution or by its comparative economic largess."

"Of course, we do want to grow and we should learn from others what we might do better, and we must strive for economic recognition for work well done,"

Dr. Watkins said.

"Nevertheless, none of these things go to the heart of the significance we seek."

The speaker went on to point out his belief that colleges and universities must have a real mission of concern that focuses on the student.

"Throughout America," he said, "too many colleges and universities — both large and small — and too many men and women working at those institutions in the last two decades forgot that students were the focus of our mission."

"Our mission is to involve them in the transmission and in the creation of knowledge," he continued, "to leave them better able to cope economically and better able to contribute as citizens."

"Too many of us became mesmerized with our sudden importance as consultants, celebrities and critics of society. We were astonished to find that we, the academics, were front and center upon the national stage."

"And for a time, the glamour of it all, the TV appearances, the national and international meetings, made us forget that the true mission lay in the classroom."

Dr. Watkins said the present enrollment at West Texas State is around 7,000 and the hope is that it eventually will go to at least 9,500.

"My philosophy is," he said, "that an awful lot of meaningful research can find its best publication in the classroom ... that is to say, if the research doesn't have feedback into the classroom and into the enrichment of the individual students, then we're talking about a system of education that benefits the instructor, while the primary purpose of higher education is to focus on the students."

Dr. Watkins said he could not foresee just how large West Texas State University will become nor predict how closely WTSU will emulate the universities from which advanced degrees were garnered.

"Perhaps WTSU will never be a 'rich' university in a financial sense, but I do know it is a student-centered university and that it is a caring university — and I believe that it is the type of university which will be considered significant in the decades ahead."

"We at West Texas care and because of this, I feel confident society will care for us."

Gene Parker, placement director at WTSU, accompanied Dr. Watkins to Pampa. Parker declared that due to the thoroughness of preparation of WTSU graduates it currently is possible to make 100 per cent placement on jobs if the graduates are willing to go where the jobs are available.

Chamber president Boyd Taylor presided at the luncheon. Entertainment was by soloist Debbie Lehnick, accompanied by Elbert Hensley, pianist, both members of the all-state high school choir. The invocation was by the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor of First Baptist Church.

Alamogordo honors Ragsdale

Van Bob Ragsdale, band director at Alamogordo (New Mexico) High School was honored recently when the city proclaimed "Van Ragsdale Day" in conjunction with the Southwestern District Band Festival at the school.

Ragsdale is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.B. Ragsdale of 801 N. Dwight and a Pampa high graduate. He played trombone with the Pride of Pampa band.

Under Ragsdale's direction, more students have won places in the All-State Band than ever said officials when honoring him.

The proclamation read: "No event could be more deserving of recognition than the request by the music students that a time be set aside for them to show their gratitude and respect for Van Ragsdale."

"... the city calls upon our citizens to join in saluting Van Ragsdale and in expressing our grateful appreciation for his dedication to our community..." it continued.

"Ragsdale apparently has won the hearts of the students," said an official at the surprise proclamation ceremony which interrupted a band program at the school.

Ragsdale received a standing ovation and cheers from the band.

Hostages describe hijacker

DENVER (UPI) — A hijacker shot to death by FBI agents while trying to commandeer a jet to Mexico was a self-admitted alcoholic intent on committing suicide, according to one of his hostages.

Robert Lentz, 31, of Marquette, Neb., was shot at least six times Monday as he boarded a private Convair 990 at Stapleton International Airport with two hostages.

He had used a .410 shotgun and a .22 caliber pistol to seize a Piper Apache airplane at the Hall County Airport in Grand Island, Neb., nine hours earlier and was transferring to the larger jet for a flight to Mexico when he was killed.

"You know FBI agents are in that plane," hostage Robert Blair quoted Lentz as saying, shortly before they boarded the fatal jet. "I'll never go back to jail. I'll die first."

Lentz, a recently promoted grain elevator foreman, had a criminal record that included convictions for embezzlement, larceny, obstruction of justice and drunken driving.

Authorities said he also faced charges of vehicular homicide in Nebraska and pleaded guilty

Texas news briefs

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Department of Public Safety says traffic deaths in Texas this year are running 8 per cent below 1975. Through noon Friday, there had been 764 persons killed in traffic accidents on Texas highways, compared with 828 deaths to the same date last year.

The number of accidents involving fatalities was also down 8 per cent — from 724 to 664. Deaths were down 10 per cent in cities and down 18 per cent on U.S. and state numbered highways, but showed a 20 per cent increase in towns under 5,000 population.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Former Texas governor John Connally says he has made no deal to support President Ford's reelection effort in return for replacing Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in a new cabinet.

"It is totally untrue," Connally said of a report published by the Los Angeles Times. Connally, who switched from the Democratic party to the GOP in 1973, has said he will support neither Ronald Reagan nor Ford in Texas' May 1 primary. The Times' report was based on an unidentified source described as being "close to Connally."

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. E.B. Blackburn Jr., dean of Lamar University's graduate school, died Sunday of a heart attack. He was 56. Blackburn died in St. Elizabeth's Hospital at 3:15 a.m. He had been dean at Lamar since 1969.

Study shows morale deteriorated in troops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It takes "courageous, motivated, prepared and willing" people to decide battles, says a Pentagon study which proposes steps to boost morale of U.S. troops.

The Defense Department's Manpower Commission prepared the study at the request of Congress two years ago. Published Sunday, it suggests some deterioration of U.S. troop morale — partly because top military leaders tend to view service men and women as impersonal statistics.

"People have always decided battles," the 500-page study said. "There is no substitute for people who are courageous, motivated, prepared and willing."

"The overwhelming lesson of this report is that human considerations now have become primary in planning for the nation's defense. It is for that reason that we believe without hesitation that defense manpower is the keystone of our national defense."

The commission noted "ser-

Prominent rancher missing

DEMING, N.M. (UPI) — The disappearance of a prominent southwestern New Mexico rancher is puzzling authorities who can't find any clues in the case.

"In these cases, you will have something — however minute," Luna County Sheriff Jim Krigger said Sunday. "But we have nothing, I can't understand it."

The missing man, Claud McDonald, was last seen Tuesday when he left an insurance office in Deming

SELF-CRITICISM
BURMA (UPI) — Burma is blaming itself for a decrease in tourism during 1975.

The official government party newspaper said "the tourist industry has not proved to be a good foreign exchange earner," noting that the number of tourists during 1975 was only 341 more than 1974's total of 17,312.

The newspaper said "the main reasons for the slow progress of tourism in Burma are the short periods of visas granted tourists, inconvenience caused by the lack of prompt transportation" and visitors complaints of sub-standard food.

GREECE REPORTS
ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Greece earned $621.7 million from foreign tourism in 1975, a 42.6 per cent increase over the previous year, the National Tourist Organization said Wednesday.
