New Rent Guidelines Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission today announced a change in guidelines that could bring rent reductions for many tenants who recently signed one-year lease renewals increasing their rent more than 8 per cent.

Any tenant who had been on a lease of longer than one year, and who was allowed to renew for only a single year, will be given a chance to renegotiate the terms of that lease if the increase topped 8 per cent.

In such cases landlords must, starting for the month of July, give the tenant either two options:

—A one-year lease increasing rent 8 per cent. No refunds will be required for past rent charged over 8 per cent, but from July on it must be trimmed back to that level.

—A longer lease, covering the same period as the old lease, at whatever rent increase the landlord was able to justify under the Price Commission's rent regulations.

The two options, one year at 8 per cent or a longer lease at more than 8 per cent, must also be given for tenants on longer-than-one-year leases expiring in the future.

Price Commission regulations allow landlords to get big rent increases in cases where rents have been held steady by long-term leases while prices increased.

Landlords will be required to notify affected tenants of their rights.

Egypt Orders Reduction Of U.S. Mission Staff

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt has ordered the U.S. mission in Cairo and the Egyptian staff in Washington cut in half as a new expression of anger at American support for Israel. Each mission presently has 20 members.

The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said President Anwar Sadat ordered the cuts to protest the U.S. policy of "consolidating the continued Israeli aggression through the occupation of Arab territories."

American diplomats in Cairo confirmed the cuts had been ordered.

The State Department said it was not informed of the reasons for the Egyptian action, but "we will, of course, comply."

Before Egypt broke relations with the United States during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, 300 Americans worked at the U.S. Embassy in Cairo and agencies affiliated with it. After the break, a skeleton mission of four diplomats and six administrators moved into the Spanish Embassy.

The mission was expanded to 20 persons after Secretary of State William P. Rogers visited Cairo a year ago and the Egyptians got the idea the Nixon administration might pressure Israel into giving up the Sinai Desert in exchange for reopening of the Suez Canal. Now the mission goes back to four diplomats and six administrators.

There was speculation in Cairo that Egypt's latest move was intended to pressure President Nixon into being more favorable toward the Arabs in his discussions about the Middle East in Moscow next week.

Sadat said after his own visit to Moscow last month that he had assurances Moscow would make no deal with Washington without consulting Egypt first.

Since October, Sadat has denounced the United States for failing to persuade Israel either to comply with the U.N. resolution calling on it to withdraw from lands occupied in 1967, to respond favorably to U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring's request for information on how it proposes to implement the U.N. resolution, or to respond favorably to Sadat's offer in February 1971 to reopen the Suez Canal in exchange for Israeli withdrawal from part of the Sinai Desert.

Sadat has grown increasingly hostile toward the United States since President Nixon's decision in January to sell Israel more Phantom jets.

Antibusing Provisions Face Group Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of civil-rights liberals and antibusing forces in Congress is threatening to undo a hard-won compromise on an $18.5-billion higher-education bill.

Both groups object to antibusing provisions added to the bill by House and Senate conferees—one said, because it thinks they go too far and the other because it thinks they don't go far enough.

Whether there are enough votes in the middle to save the bill—the most sweeping higher-education bill ever considered in Congress—depends in large part on the Republicans.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, who holds the key to the GOP response, declined to commit himself Wednesday when the conference agreement was announced.

"There are many, many questions to be answered and until they are, I am going to reserve judgment," said Ford.

One unanswered question is what position the Nixon administration will take. A White House lobbyist in chatting with newsmen indicated the price of administration support will be congressional action on President Nixon's own antibusing proposals.

One of Nixon's bills would fix remedies the courts could apply in desegregation cases, permitting busing only as a last-resort, temporary measure. It also would provide extra funds for inner-city schools as an alternative to desegregating them.

The other Nixon bill would declare a moratorium until June 30, 1973, on any new court busing orders. The main compromise amendment approved by the conferees Wednesday would keep federal-court busing orders from going into effect until all appeals had been exhausted.

Extensive hearings have been held on both bills in the House Education and Judiciary committees, but most of the testimony has been in opposition to them and neither committee has shown an inclination to approve them.

The House and Senate conferees, who hammered out the higher education agreement at dawn Wednesday after an all-night session that climaxed nine weeks of meetings, expressed hope at a news conference that it would not be dragged down by the busing issue.

Corporations' Profit Growth Sets Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Profits of corporations rose $5.6 billion in the first three months of the year, the biggest increase in a year, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said the increase brought before-tax profits of companies to a record $91.6 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate.

The increase came despite curbs on profit margins established by the Nixon administration when the Phase 2 economic controls went into effect last November.

The rise was far short of the $11 billion increase in profits recorded in the first quarter of 1971, but the record may be better since profits at that time rebounded from the General Motors strike.

Discounting last year's artificial rise in profits, the increase was the largest quarterly step-up in profits since the first quarter of 1969.

The bulk of the profit rise was in manufacturing and was concentrated in businesses which make durable goods. Higher earnings were particularly evident in the automobile, machinery and metals industries.

The department also released a revised first-quarter report on Gross National Product, output of the nation's goods and services, and it showed that the economy fared slightly better than had first been reported a month ago.

GNP market value of the nation's goods and services rose 12 per cent at an annual rate instead of the originally announced 11.8 per cent.

Navy Not Ordered To Intercept Ships

ABOARD USS NEWPORT NEWS (AP) — American Navy ships patrolling the Tonkin Gulf have not been ordered to intercept shipping to North Vietnam, only to warn it of mines in the harbors, officers on patrol in the gulf said today.

"We would just make sure they are clearly warned that they proceed at their own risk," one officer said.

He added that he did not know of any ship that had tried to run one of the minefields laid by U.S. planes on May 9.

Earlier, aboard the cruiser Providence, Rear Adm. W. H. H. Rogers told newsmen: "We do not have a blockade, period. By placing the mines, we have taken certain actions and left other actions to individuals."

S. Viet Makes Advance In Its Counteroffensive

ANOTHER TRAGEDY is recalled by this picture of George Wallace, then governor of Alabama, welcoming President John F. Kennedy to the speaker's platform at Muscle Shoals, Ala. Six months later Kennedy was the victim of assassination.

Wallace Said In Good Spirits; Active Campaign Seen Unlikely

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — George C. Wallace is said to be in good spirits and politically enthusiastic amid indications he will be unable to resume his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Doctors say one of the .38-caliber slugs that ripped into his body may leave the Alabama governor a cripple.

Wallace, shot five times at close range Monday, was alert and vigorous Wednesday when visited by his family and a few friends, but doctors attending the 52-year-old governor were becoming increasingly pessimistic about his chances of walking again.

Dr. James Galbraith, a University of Alabama neurosurgeon called to Holy Cross Hospital to attend Wallace, said his chances of ever walking again are less than even.

And if he can, Galbraith said, it will probably be only with the aid of braces.

Galbraith said one of the bullets which cut Wallace down in a nearby Laurel, Md., shopping center is wedged between two vertebrae, jutting into the bony canal that shields the spinal cord.

The bullet didn't shatter any part of the spine, but the shock of its impact caused the present paralysis, Galbraith said.

The doctor told newsmen the shock might wear off, but the longer Wallace goes without feeling in his legs the worse are his chances for recovery.

He said surgery to remove the remaining slug will be performed in another week or 10 days and that it will be a full three months or more before Wallace can recover to whatever extent possible.

Galbraith said Wallace won't be able to get around, even in a wheelchair, for four to six more weeks. This probably will rule out any campaign appearances until shortly before the July 10 Democratic National Convention, if not altogether.

The pessimism was shared by Dr. Edgar Berman, a retired Baltimore surgeon who helped organize the team that performed the initial surgery Monday, said "the bulk of the indications" point to permanent paralysis.

Berman agreed with a third doctor's statement, however, that it will take the exploratory surgery to determine precisely the extent of the spinal injury.

Wallace, meanwhile, was reported eagerly reading newspaper reports of his twin victories Tuesday in the Maryland and Michigan primaries.

was amazing, and that Wallace had expressed hope "that his campaign would go on to Oregon, New Mexico and California."

Robert Lichtenstein, a New York real estate man and a cousin of Wallace's wife, Cornelia, said Wallace spotted him looking into the hospital room and beckoned him in. He said Wallace lay in bed with his upper torso elevated.

"I was amazed at him and his strength," Lichtenstein said.

Bobbie Jo Parsons, Wallace's oldest child, said the governor and the rest of the family are not bitter about the attempted assassination.

In a telephone interview from the hospital to an Associated Press writer in Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. Parsons said she believed her father is "very definitely looking forward to the future."

Wallace, she said, "talked the most this morning" during a family get-together in the hospital.

Meanwhile, Arthur H. Bremer, who is charged with shooting Wallace, remains in Baltimore County Jail in Towson, Md., with beefed-up security to guard against the possibility of an attempt on his life.

Bremer, 21, a Milwaukee photography student, was visited in jail by his father and brother. After the visit, William Bremer, 58, a truck driver, and Roger returned to the airport, apparently to fly back to Milwaukee.

Bremer is being held under $200,000 bond on federal charges of assaulting a candidate for public office and a federal officer, and on four Maryland charges of assault with intent to kill.

Security guards for Wallace denied reports that the governor would soon be moved to Walter Reed Army Hospital, President Nixon said Tuesday the hospital's extensive facilities are open to Wallace.

Oil Executive Foresees Difficulties In Negotiating With Mideast Firms

HOUSTON (AP) — The board chairman of the world's largest oil company said today negotiations over new demands by Middle East oil producing countries may be difficult but that there is no need for undue pessimism as to the outcome.

J.K. Jamieson, chief executive officer of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), said settlement of the problem, however, will have considerable impact on Jersey's future operations abroad.

Jamieson told the company's annual shareholders meeting producing countries bordering on the Persian Gulf now want a shareholding interest in the older, established producing operations that account for most of the oil produced in the Middle East.

as our partners in these producing operations. These government companies will be as interested as we are in the most efficient use of the petroleum resources. We have to be realistic and, along with the rest of the industry, accommodate ourselves to changed conditions. And this I believe we can do."

Jamieson said the concept of participation is not new in that in recent years virtually all exploration agreements signed in major oil producing countries have included some provision for a government share.

"What is new is the extension of this arrangement to agreements negotiated many years ago which do not contain any such provisions," he said.

M. M. Brisco, president, earlier had told the stockholders the participation demands follow sharp increases in tax and royalty payments.

"In the Middle East, last spring's Teheran agreement and subsequent agreements with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries added approximately 60 per cent to the tax and royalty payments we have to make to Middle Eastern countries and to Libya between 1970 and 1975."

Brisco said Venezuela also has had two separate tax increases on hydrocarbon exports within a year.

Brisco also said Jersey is projecting a five per cent increase in U.S. oil consumption this year, almost double the 1971 increase.

"We expect general business conditions will continue to improve in Europe and we are already seeing some firming of prices in European markets," he said.

Brisco said the company spent more than $200 million on measures to reduce environmental damage risks last year.

and has spent more than $1 billion on such programs the past six years.

Despite the industry's progress in developing safeguards, fears of environmental damage are blocking access to very large proved reserves of oil and gas," he said.

There is a danger that the national interest could be harmed by the trend to overstate environmental risks and not give adequate weight to energy needs.

What is new is the extension of this arrangement to agreements negotiated many years ago which do not contain any such provisions," he said.

M. M. Brisco, president, earlier had told the stockholders the participation demands follow sharp increases in tax and royalty payments.

Carrier Saratoga Joins War

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese relief column advanced to within 2½ miles of the besieged provincial capital of An Loc today, making its biggest advance in six weeks, field reports said.

The carrier Saratoga joined the battle to lift the six-week siege of the devastated town 60 miles north of Saigon. It was the carrier's first combat since she was commissioned in 1956.

Moving behind hundreds of bombs dropped by jets from the Saratoga and from U.S. B52 bombers, the South Vietnamese met no determined resistance from North Vietnamese forces, the field reports said.

The U.S. Command confirmed an earlier report from South Vietnamese headquarters that 300 North Vietnamese troops were killed by a B52 strike two days ago southwest of An Loc.

Despite no major opposition as the government infantrymen leaptfrogged by helicopter from point to point, South Vietnamese field commanders indicated they expected tough fighting ahead as they try to clear North Vietnamese troops from Highway 13.

The South Vietnamese field commanders were reported cautious because of heavy casualties already sustained in the bloody six-week drive to open Highway 13 and lift the siege of An Loc. The equivalent of three South Vietnamese divisions are committed to the drive.

Associated Press correspondent Lynn C. Newland said the strongest opposition is coming from the west side of Highway 13 where North Vietnamese forces are well entrenched to withstand air strikes.

The arrival of the 78,000-ton Saratoga from the Atlantic coast the 7th Fleet to six carriers for the first time in the war and increased the offshore American naval force to about 46,000 men aboard more than 60 ships.

While the Saratoga was operating off the coast of South Vietnam, three other carriers—the Kitty Hawk, Midway and Hancock—raided North Vietnam from battle stations in the Tonkin Gulf.

The fifth and six carriers assigned to the Vietnam war, the Coral Sea and Constellation, are on port leave. A seventh flat-top, the Ticonderoga, sailed from San Diego for Vietnam Wednesday. She is an anti-submarine warfare ship, so presumably the Navy thinks the Russians or the Chinese might use their submarines to retaliate for the mining of North Vietnamese ports.

On the northern front, South Vietnamese infantrymen extending their defenses around Hue clashed with about 100 North Vietnamese just north of Fire Base Bastogne. The Saigon command said 32 of the enemy were killed at a cost of 12 South Vietnamese wounded.

Highway 1, the main north-south highway, was reported reopened between Hue and Da Nang after repairs to a bridge that the North Vietnamese had blown on Wednesday.

The central highlands front was generally quiet.

The South Vietnamese Command said a "out 100 of its troops clashed with about 300 North Vietnamese near Duc Thanh, in the Mekong Delta 40 miles southeast of Saigon. The South Vietnamese claimed 97 of the enemy were killed, many of them by air and artillery strikes, and said their own losses were six killed and 13 wounded.

Show Man Changes Sex At 48

LONDON (AP) — Wally Stott, one of Britain's top band leaders and composers of popular music, put on his suit and tie for the last time today.

The 48-year-old television and recording maestro has had a sex change operation and now will be known as Angela Morley.

Wednesday night he went to a concert in a blonde woman's wig and flowing evening gown. But he put on men's clothes today to drive north with his wife to break the news to his parents.

He and his wife of 30 years plan to continue together at their country home near London. They have a grown son and daughter.

"Since my earliest memories, I have had this problem," said Stott.

"A specialist advised me to have a complete sex change operation. Now I hope to be able to live a happy and dignified life. Naturally, I wish to carry on my career—but as a woman."

Demo Runoff Candidates Step Up Their Campaign

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Democratic gubernatorial contender Frances Farenthold has charged state government largely ignores the problems of the young and the elderly. Her runoff opponent, Dolph Briscoe, pledged to "improve communications between state government and the people."

Briscoe, who Wednesday ignored pickets in McAllen demanding that he debate Mrs. Farenthold, claimed the greatest issue facing Texans in the Democratic runoff for governor is "which candidate can do the best job of pulling Texans together."

During his address before about 600 supporters from the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Briscoe was urged in signs carried by five long-haired pickets to debate Mrs. Farenthold. "Be a man—debate Sissy," read one of the signs. "Face Sissy," said another. Briscoe ignored the pickets. In his address, he pledged to keep closer tabs on state financing. He declared, "We have not had a proper attitude in state government over the nickles, dimes and quarters of the taxpayers' money."

"Too often, I am afraid, all the resources of government aren't fully utilized because of the simple failure of communications. We're going to improve communications between state government and the people."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Farenthold declared at a Stephenville rally that the state has ignored the problems of the elderly.

"I have heard the people of this state complain time and again about a government in Austin that does not care about

Fire Causes Minor Damage To PHS Room

A small fire was reported yesterday on the ceiling of one of the rooms at Pampa High School with only very minor damage occurring.

According to Pampa Fire Department officials, one of the pieces of an acoustical ceiling caught on fire.

Prior to the fire, some students had been shooting off fireworks. Officials believed a spark from the fireworks probably caught the ceiling spot on fire.

Local Supporters To Attend Dinner Honoring Briscoe

A delegation of Gray County supporters is expected to go to Amarillo Monday night for an appreciation dinner in honor of Dolph Briscoe, Democratic candidate for governor in the June 3 run-off primary.

A reception is scheduled at 7 p.m. and the dinner at 8 p.m. in the Amarillo Civic Center at Amarillo. Tickets for the affair are available locally from Rex McAnelly, Jimmy Thompson or Billie Davis.

them," she said. "A government that has turned people like yourselves into helpless victims."

"You are a victim if you are a taxpayer. You are a victim if you are a schoolchild. And you are certainly a victim if you are a senior citizen."

She said one of the goals of her tax program will be to create a new agency to equalize property assessment levels and eliminate "inequities in property valuation. As a result, she said, "private homeowners and industry will be paying taxes at the same rate."

Wayne Connally, Democratic runoff candidate for lieutenant governor, said in Austin that the "need for drastic reform of Texas voting laws was pointed up by this year's primary elections." He cited reports of voting irregularities in Dallas, San Antonio and Houston where, he said, "many voters gave up rather than stand in lines for two or three hours on the first primary day...It seems that the state should be able to work out a simpler approach to something as basic as our rights to vote."

Texas AFL-CIO president Roy Evans issued a statement saying Connally sought the endorsement of labor—"the same endorsement Connally now is criticizing Bill Hobby for accepting." Evans denied there was any "secret deal" made with Hobby for the support of the labor union's Committee on Political Education (COPE).

In the U.S. Senate race both Democratic candidates carried on their argument over vote counting last Saturday.

Ralph Yarborough claimed that the State Democratic Executive committee refused to consider vote total changes in several counties that would have given him the nomination without a runoff.

Barfoot Sanders said if vote reversions are allowed there would be a 1,000 vote switch in Harris county in his favor.

Arrests Of 189 Employees In El Paso Plant Ordered

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Warrants were issued Wednesday for 189 employees of the Farah Manufacturing Co. Gateway Plant in El Paso for violation of an ordinance prohibiting mass picketing, officers said.

Sheriff's deputies said that by late Wednesday 100 of the strikers had been booked voluntarily in city jail and bonded out of county jail. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union of America paid bond of $400 for each of the workers.

Sheriff Mike Sullivan said he expected more people to show up Thursday morning to be bonded out.

Officers delivered copies of the warrants issued by Justice of the Peace Bob Lewis to the union and contacted as many of the men and women who could be reached personally or by telephone.

The workers are picketing for recognition of their union. Those listed in the warrants, the sheriff said, came in during the day in groups of 20 to 30 at a time, some in buses, posted their bond and left.

"Regardless of the rechecks being made in the race, I'll be the Democratic nominee—make no mistake about it—we will win the race again."

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin, who lost to John Hill as the Democratic nominee, issued a statement saying he was "disappointed over the outcome" but thanked voters for supporting him during his 14 years in the Senate and three times as attorney general. "I am much too interested in the future and too thankful for the opportunity I have had to serve this great state to harbor any bitterness over my defeat," he said.

C-C Member Campaign To End Friday

The Chamber of Commerce annual membership drive today was within 15 per cent of reaching its $44,000 goal, according to Nevt Secrest, chamber finance director.

Secrest said the drive will close for contest purposes at the final check-in set for 11 a.m. Friday.

"Indications are that the goal will be met by that time," Secrest said, "but if it isn't a mop-up crew will work until it is reached."

Contest prizes will be awarded to the top teams including a weekend fishing trip or a Texas Rangers baseball game for team members with the most points.

Other prizes will include a sports blazer and tackle boxes for each member of the second and third place teams.

EXPENSE REPORTS SHOW Briscoe Spends $801,000 More Than Mrs. Farenthold In Race

AUSTIN (AP)—Dolph Briscoe spent $801,027 more than Frances Farenthold in the May 6 Democratic gubernatorial primary, official campaign expense reports showed Wednesday.

Briscoe and Mrs. Farenthold face each other in a runoff June 3.

In the first primary, Briscoe spent $1,126,692, and Mrs. Farenthold spent $325,665. Briscoe's report to the secretary of the state's office showed only $785,344 in gifts, so he apparently spent $341,343 of his own money.

Mrs. Farenthold received $37,792 in gifts. Ben Barnes received $933,691 in gifts and spent $933,815.

Without explanation, he reported debts of $139,000.

Preston Smith received $506,908 in gifts, an "undetermined," and owes $37,149. $557,275. He reported debts of $9,592.

In the Democratic race for lieutenant governor, Bill Hobby spent $765,037 to $254,570 for his runoff opponent, Wayne Connally.

Hobby reported gifts of $108,515, so he apparently spent $657,522 of his own money.

Connally received gifts totaling $289,945. Among other lieutenant governor candidates, Joe Christie spent $297,898 and Ralph Hall spent $199,231. Christie reported gifts of $141,221, loans of $73,324 and that he owes $325.

In the Republican gubernatorial primary, Henry Grover spent $268,490 to $274,662 for his runoff opponent, Albert Fay.

Grover said he received gifts of $184,611, loans of $67,568 and owes $51,005. Fay reported gifts of $55,804, loans of $217,711 and debts of $224,814.

In the Democratic race for attorney general, John Hill beat incumbent Crawford Martin although he spent only $184,873 to $184,873.

Hill reported gifts of $144,873 and debts of $40,000. He said he borrowed "things of value" worth $3,000. Martin's gifts totaled $186,977. He borrowed $41,000 and has debts of $116,329.

McGovern And Humphrey To Vie For Calif. Lead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sens. Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern today planned to concentrate their campaigns on delegate-rich California while the forces of Gov. George C. Wallace worked to piece together a stand-in campaign for their candidate.

McGovern resumes his campaign today in Los Angeles, then moves to Oregon.

Humphrey reopened his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday with appearances in Rhode Island and New Jersey. Both men had suspended their efforts after Wallace was shot five times by an assailant in a Maryland shopping center Monday.

Reports from Wallace's bedside in Holy Cross Hospital in a suburb of Washington found him alert and politically enthusiastic, but a report from physicians Wednesday lent special urgency to the search for stand-ins.

Alabama neurosurgeon Dr. James Galbraith, called in to attend Wallace, told newsmen the damage done by a bullet lodged in the governor's spine gave Wallace less than a 50-50 chance to walk again.

Chase Ends With Traffic, Drunk Charges

Edward Porter Billingsley, 47, Texola, Okla., was arrested for being drunk; Leburn Paul Horton 34, Canadian and Juanita P. Thrasher, 52, 716 Deane were cited for failure to stop at two traffic lights.

Two cars were stopped, according to the police report after they were observed to "run" the red lights at Browning and Ballard and Browning and Cuyler.

The Thrasher women said the males in the car behind her were chasing them. They were taken to the police station where the charges were sorted out. No charges were made against a passenger in the Thrasher vehicle.

Cyclist Is Cited For Recklessness

Rob Alfred Jackson, 24, 713 Magnolia, was stopped after his motorcycle was observed to veer toward youths walking and then proceed through the light at Kingsmill and Somerville without waiting for it to change.

According to the police report of the incident, Jackson told the officer he was a Pampa school teacher tired of "misfits" and was "trying to show the kids."

According to the reporting officer, Jackson was given a warning regarding the traffic light and told he would be "called in" for reckless driving.

TMA Launches Campaign To Reform State Budget

AMARILLO—An extensive public information campaign directed at the citizens of Texas and calling for sweeping changes in the Texas State budgeting system was announced Wednesday by the Texas Manufacturers Association, TMA, a group composed of over 6,000 businessmen and professionals.

TMA spokesman Dr. Ralph Wilson, chairman of the association as well as chief executive officer of the Texas-based Ralph Wilson Plastics Company, stated the 36 chapters of the TMA located throughout the state held simultaneous meetings to kick off the campaign.

Estimated attendance at the Kick off meetings was set at over 6,000 according to Dr. Wilson. Attending the locally-held meetings were members of virtually every civic and professional group in the state as well as key members of the media.

Citing the need for a new budgeting system, Wilson said, "There are five distinct problems relating to money management in Texas: budget office duplication of efforts, excessive and non-restrictive powers of the Free Conference Committee, earmarking of 80 per cent of our budget, non-price-tagging of proposed bills, and no provision for budget accountability."

Continuing, he stated that Texas' present budgeting system, adopted in 1949 when an annual budget of only $500 million existed, is totally incapable of efficiently handling today's annual budget of nearly $4 billion.

Dr. Wilson also stressed the need for a new budgeting system, adopted in 1949 when an annual budget of only $500 million existed, is totally incapable of efficiently handling today's annual budget of nearly $4 billion.

City Moves To Upgrade Its Plant

Sanitation specialists from the Dallas firm of Forrest & Cotton, consultant engineers, made a study of Pampa's sewage treatment plant yesterday.

Employed by the city, their report is expected to be ready soon for the Texas Water Quality Board.

The report, according to City Manager Mack Wofford, will deal with changes and a time schedule by which Pampa hopes to meet board requirements for compliance with new state standards for anti-pollution.

Wofford said the one major item which caused Pampa to be put on notice for compliance is being removed.

"We hope this will satisfy the Water Quality Board along with other changes being made to meet the new set of rules," the city manager added.

Driver Hits Tree, Flees

Police are searching for a yellow car, possibly a Ford Falcon, for a hit-and-run offense against a tree.

According to the report, the car jumped a curb and struck the tree on the east side of a residence at 427 Short St. The resident told officers the driver inspected damage to the vehicle and drove off.

Parts of headlights and parking lights and some paint samples were left at the scene.

Dr. Newberry, who practices dentistry in San Antonio, is a 1959 graduate of Pampa High School.

He attended Texas University at Austin and Texas Dental School in Houston.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Newberry, 2135 Dogwood.

A New Jamaica In The Making

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

KINGSTON, Jamaica—(NEA)—It is more than a speck in the blue Caribbean where the metal-winged birds bring the pale tourists in to get red from the sun and to pore through duty-free shops. It is home for almost two million proud people of mixed blood who were carted here on slave ships and mongrelized by plantation lords.

They want to do more than pick bananas from trees and play calypso.

Jamaica is an independent nation in the British dominion orbit trying to make it on its own and finding it tough.

It has recently had its first change of government since it gained autonomous rule 10 years ago. Michael Manley, descended from a line of distinguished Jamaican lawyers and political leaders, sometimes called the Pierre Trudeau of the West Indies for his flamboyant good looks and social life, brought the Peoples National Party to power. It was first organized back in 1938 by his father, the island's leading barrister. The PNP supplanted the Jamaica Labour Party, which had grown stuffy in office.

In the politically turbulent Caribbean, Jamaicans brag this is only the second peaceful turnover of government in modern times.

A spirit of friendly informality has come to the island, whose culture is derived from the British. Bush jackets are now even worn to sessions of Parliament.

Jamaica has been basically an enlightened land. The blacks secured their freedom from slavery from the British a full 30 years before the United States went through a Civil War to free its slaves. Before that, a group of fiercely independent blacks fled to the mountains to escape bondage and their descendants still remain there as the unique group called the Maroons.

Like other Caribbean islands, there have been rumblings of black power, but it's really academic in a country which already has it. Ninety-six per cent of the population is black and holds all the major political offices (although it still rangles that almost half the property and industry is controlled from the outside). Only 6 per cent of the permanent citizens are European in origin.

The big problem of Jamaica is self-sufficiency.

The vegetation is verdant; the fruit is plentiful. But an island rising out of the ocean like a ridged wart, seldom flattening out into plains, is not inherently rich enough for the pressures of the 20th-century world community. Its lee side at the eastern end of the island is quite arid, almost a wasteland. It doesn't raise enough food; it doesn't graze enough cattle; it doesn't have sufficient minerals. And so it's caught in an economic trap.

The largest supplier of bauxite in the world, Jamaica still has to import its finished aluminum products from places like Canada and England because they're where the skilled labor fashions the metal (the end product of bauxite).

There is, as a result, unrest. The Daily Gleaner, which is to Jamaica as The New York Times is to America, reflects the turmoil. Strikes of sugar cane workers and other symptoms of dissatisfaction fill its news columns.

Jamaica needs to maximize its main resource—people. They come in all hues and sizes. They are spirited and resourceful. But they are just now emerging, educationally, into the 20th century. There is a currently strong emphasis on schooling, which has become mandatory. The University of the West Indies here compares favorably with any in the Western Hemisphere in its professional schools, particularly medicine.

"Education," says a government spokesman, "will breed a generation of the knowledgeable young. They'll be dissatisfied, just as the American youth. They will seethe and foster dissent. And from that dissent will come eventually improvement for all Jamaica."

WORLD OF WORK

Answers to Employment Questions by Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson

Employment Service Aids Teen Summer Job Hunt

M. H. of Ithaca, N.Y., writes: We have just moved to this city and my 15-year-old daughter doesn't know what to do with herself this summer. She could use what she earns for school next year. Does the Labor Department know of any part-time jobs for teen-agers?

Dear M. H.: Every local Employment Service office across the country makes a special effort in the summer-time to help young people find jobs. For low-income families, we are offering nationally about 600,000 nine-week jobs through the Neighborhood Youth Corps. They pay about $1.60 an hour. The National Alliance of Businessmen has pledged to hire 175,000 additional low-income youth in 126 major metropolitan areas. For youth of all economic backgrounds, the Federal-State Employment Service expects to have about 160,000 jobs listed by private employers and 60,000 more by state, county and municipal agencies. So, although it is obvious that we cannot provide a job for all young people who want them, there will nevertheless be a lot of jobs from which to select. We hope that every one of these jobs will be filled by a young worker.

E. D. of Phoenix, Ariz., writes: I'm a carpenter employed on a federal construction job. Many of us work overtime every week but don't get paid time-and-a-half. Is this legal?

Dear M. F.: It is required now. There is a Federal Equal Pay Law, enacted in 1963, which is being enforced by the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor. This law prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex; in the payment of wages for equal work; on jobs that require equal skill, effort, and responsibility, and on jobs that are performed under similar working conditions. There have been some significant court cases in favor of women.

Further information on the federal law is available from the Wage and Hour Division, Employment Standards Administration, listed in your telephone directory under U.S. Government.

T. C. of Little Rock, Ark., writes: I heard that a Congress is going to raise the minimum wage. If it gets higher, employers may not be able to afford to hire workers. What is your view?

Dear T. C.: The government is also concerned with the effect of an increase in the $1.60 hourly minimum wage on employment. We want to increase buying power and improve living standards for low-wage workers without risking higher inflation or unemployment. To avoid large and rapid wage increases that could have a detrimental effect on the economy, we are supporting a bill in Congress to raise the minimum to $1.80 in early 1972 and to $2 in early 1974.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As memories of the Great Depression of the 1930s fade, Americans seem to be shedding almost all fears and inhibitions about personal debt.

Once, it may be recalled, the goal of millions of families was to pay off the bills. Only then, they felt, could they relax.

But in today's society it is entirely possible for a family to seek debt, to never be out of debt and to look forward to an entire life lived on credit. On graduating from college, in fact, thousands of young people are expected to pay off the loans their parents took out to finance their education.

Is this wrong? Financially? Morally? You'll receive differing views, but a widely held attitude is that the burden may look bigger than it really is.

Women's Lib, Cambodian Style

By TOM TIEDE

KAM PAUL, Cambodia—(NEA) — When 21-year-old Luy Neary was wounded high on the thigh during a recent battle, Cambodian medics cut away the trousers with more than the usual medical enthusiasm.

Luy Neary is a woman. And what a woman. A feminist of perhaps the ultimate degree, she practices equal rights with deeds instead of yak. At four feet, three inches, 61 pounds, she is a soldier in the Cambodian Army.

She doesn't like it. But she does it. Just like a man. Luy Neary is, actually, not a rarity here. Women have been "liberated" in Asian countries since before Betty Freidan was a seed—and that's some time ago. In Vietnam the girls operate the garbage trucks, in Laos they carry rocks in wicker baskets to build roads. In Cambodia, thousands of them, nobody seems to know exactly how many, are spending the war years in the olive drab wrappings of national defense.

The girls are not just military ornaments either. As part of Cambodia's national mobilization program (a mostly ignored plan to enlist the entire populace in the two-year-old war), some women are given the same kind of army duty as men—that is, hard-core combat.

Luy Neary, as example, is no garrison soldier. She's one of 3,000 elite Khmer paratroopers. To get her jump badge and jungle fatigues, she spent four months at some of the most rigorous physical training known to man (and, now, woman). Fifteen-hour days. Five-mile runs. Hand-to-hand combat preparation ("The men all try to get women recruits for this"). Just to toughen up, paratroopers here practice jumping from successively higher walls, 10, 20, 30 feet and up—"until you don't vomit when you hit ground."

Not everybody makes it through the training. But, say commanders, the women's failure rate is no higher than the men's. "That may surprise Americans," grins a paratrooper colonel, "but we Cambodians expect more from our women." And, to be sure, they get it.

Luy Neary is fully qualified on the M-16 and AK-47 rifles. She can field-strip a dirty machine gun and put it back together as if her life depends on it. She can survive in the jungle on worms, grubs and things that leave slime when they crawl. She can march 10 miles in 100-degree heat and then dig a foxhole to sleep in for the night. She has been taught to shrug off bomb concussions, snake bites, leeches and enemy tortures. And, most importantly, she can, and does, jump from airplanes, land in the middle of wars, and then do what has to be done—even kill—to carry out her mission orders.

Not long ago, while carrying out orders, and sagging under a combat pack that weighed almost as much as she (35 pounds), Luy Neary spotted a Khmer Rouge (Cambodian Communist) in a tree. Unfortunately, he saw her first. The guerrilla opened fire—and caught the girl in the thigh. "I didn't feel it at first," she says, and so fired back at the tree. "Then when I moved, I fell over." She stayed over, seriously wounded, for three months in a field hospital before being rated fit, and thus put back on the roster for more war.

For her sacrifices as a woman, Luy Neary has received no considerations other than a separate barracks to sleep in (sometimes). For her patriotism as a soldier, she has been treated with equal impartiality. That is to say, like most down-rank troopers in this blistered, impoverished country, she has received practically nothing.

She has been awarded one medal. She is paid $14 a month (50 cents daily), part of which is returned to the military for rations. As yet, after two years of service, she has not been given any rank; and she is expected to obey without question (on pain of death), work as long as required, and stay in uniform "until national security is assured."

Yet Luy Neary doesn't complain. Much. At least not publicly. Cambodian equal rights haven't yet progressed to the stage where male chauvinist pig sergeants will permit women in the ranks much more than equal work and equal suffering. "You can talk to her," says Luy Neary's dour company topk, "but I will have to listen too."

Still, like most common soldiers, the woman's deep thoughts about killing and privation and hardship are quite obvious. And she says as much, even with her sergeant listening near. Sitting on the running board of a truck, blowing the flies out of her eyes, smoothing her hair, she sighs: "I always want to be a mother. Now I am a soldier. As long as I am a soldier I cannot be a mother." The sergeant doesn't catch it, but it is a beautiful, unusual condemnation of war.

THE BARKING DUCK

CHICAGO (AP) — Mr. Duck is more than a duck around the Bob Brophy home. He has turned the tables on the family watch dog, Duffer, and guards the house from intruders.

The eight-pound web-footed bundle of white feathers has had no formal training in the art of home defending and thinks he is a dog.

A duck house was built in the backyard for Mr. Duck. When Mr. Duck took possession, Duffer moved in, too.

"I'm sure he thinks he is a dog," said Mrs. Brophy. "He quacks when strangers come into the yard and his quack is more like a bark than the sound other ducks make."

BOYLE'S COLUMN It Is Not The World That Limits Man But...

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no excuse for boredom in this world.

You hear of the man who wearies of it all because he has "been everywhere and done everything." No such a man exists.

No one man ever had or ever could encompass the endless variety of possibilities that life offers. It is not the world that limits man. It is man who limits his world.

So don't pine for lack of exciting or worthwhile or even curiosity-satisfying things to do. The chances are that—like this writer—you haven't yet even—

Runaway Girl Back In Home

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Mary Vecchio was always big for her age. A runaway at 14, the dark-haired girl from the Miami suburb of Opa Locka easily passed as an 18-year-old. "School was awful and I was fed up. I decided to run. I got to Atlanta and then hitchhiked north... not caring where I ended up. Somebody gave me a ride to Ohio."

That was 1970. A few days after reaching Ohio, she found herself marching with new-found pals in antiwar demonstrations at Kent State University.

The tense scene erupted into a campusfight between demonstrators and the National Guard. Shots rang out and victims began falling. One was Jeffrey Glenn Miller, a boy Mary had just met.

"Nobody would help him," she recalled. "He was lying there, bleeding. I screamed. It was horrible. I began crying because I knew he was dead."

'Old Secrets Never Die, They're Just Filed Away'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Old secrets never die. Congress has been told, they're just filed away.

The oldest is a World War I era secret, involving a so-called "contingency plan" for U.S. military action, keepers of America's historical records said.

"It would have to be a very rare bird indeed that would still have to be classified from World War I," said Archivist James B. Rhoads.

The World War I contingency plan is part of an estimated 470 million pages of classified documents, including World War II and Korean War material, currently kept in the archives, federal-record centers and various presidential libraries. Rhoads told the House government information subcommittee.

The documents are not totally unavailable to researchers, since agencies can give people clearance to see some of the old files, although there is a good deal of bothersome paperwork involved, Rhoads said.

However, he said, starting June 1, when President Nixon's new executive order on document classification takes effect, there will be an end to "the time-consuming delays which so annoy researchers."

Dear Abby

Single gal needs help fending off critics

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Is it a crime to be single? I am a woman in my 40s and I've never been married. Please tell me what to say to people who ask, "How come you're not married?"

I work in an office with a group of girls who are from 20 to 30 years old. Most are married and have been for a long time.

I have two sisters who are married, and two brothers, also married. This makes me look like an outcast. My nieces, who are 18 and up, talk about nothing except finding a guy and getting married.

I dread to go to work in the morning, and I even turn down invitations because I am always the odd one.

Dear Abby, please tell me what to say to these heartless people.

DAILY READER

DEAR READER: You need not apologize for your unmarried status. [Some are single by choice, and have better lives than their married friends.] Your problem is feeling self-conscious about it. Forget it.

Some legitimate reasons why a woman your age is single:

- A preference for variety.
- A satisfying arrangement with one who cannot marry her.
- Prefers to look after herself and nobody else.
- Hasn't met anyone for whom she'd trade her independence.

And if anyone has the nerve to ask you why you're not married, look right thru him as tho he were speaking a foreign language.

DEAR MISS VAN BUREN: I was intrigued by the letter from the woman concerned about privacy in the matter of marital status. I believe her purposes would be better served by using initials rather than the abbreviation "Ms." In the matter of correspondence, this ploy has the further advantage of giving no clues as to the sex of the writer.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that in the Soviet Union (frequently cited as a model for sexual equality by extremists in the feminine liberation movement) the Russian last name indicates the sex of an individual, thus negating this particular advantage of using initials.

I find these absurd efforts to obliterate differences on the assumption that this will produce the miracle of equality one of the more entertaining phenomena of the present age.

Sincerely, T. P. RONDONANSKI

DEAR T. P.: Very interesting. To further illustrate your point, a Russian man would be "Romanov," and a woman, "Romanova."

DEAR ABBY: Once again, a letter in your column from a man complaining because his wife doesn't give him enough "affection." ["I just can't get her into the bedroom," he says.]

When a man says "affection," he means sex. Sex is great, but what most women really want is affection. The reassuring words, the warm embraces, the loving looks.

In my case, I can't show my husband the least bit of "affection" without his wanting to head for the bedroom, the clothes closet or any place that's handy.

He isn't the "affectionate" type. And he doesn't want to waste time with preliminaries.

Women are advised to fake orgasms in order to please their husbands. Will you please advise men to fake a little affection in order to please their wives? It could save their marriage.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

FRIDAY, MAY 19
 Your birthday today: Much this year depends on the value judgments you make, your selections of people to bring into or leave out of business and social activities. A need for time alone must be met. Today's natives possess latent personal magnetism, which is evoked by high motivation.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Concentrate on matters which only you can do, make a positive attempt to get thru them. Allow others to manage their affairs.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Letting well enough alone is a fine art. This is more favored as a day for thought. Home life may encounter tension which needn't amount to much.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: An old puzzle is clarified and you wonder if you really want to be clear of the mystery. Try it—and be willing to create a little at a time.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Going no further than the pressures of your work require, you can nonetheless get good progress out of today's activities.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Time for reflection and re-evaluation; pull back far enough for a major change of direction coming up. Late hours are for fun.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Let today be unburdened. Find time to count your blessings. There are preparations to be made for the coming week.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Today is more rewarding if you don't try to make so much of current developments. Treat them as phases of normal development process.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Temptations to launch sudden alterations should be resisted. Work out the implications, test for feasibility then choose a later time.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Use your head more than your manual dexterity; think what might be done to prepare for tomorrow. Do what is necessary instead of seeking replacements.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Contemplation is your main path to growth and future happiness. Take care of routines, leaving others free to do likewise.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Closer cooperation is practical, but you must let it develop spontaneously. Be a good listener; take what you learn seriously.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Do what you must to clear up the week; get rest and recreation as soon as you can. Give yourself a treat, see your favorite people.

Mr. and Mrs. Troy Lee, 1601 Williston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Troyla Kay, to Gary Don Gattis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gattis, 2319 Navajo. Vows will be exchanged at 7:30 p.m. May 27, in the chapel of the First United Methodist Church. The bride-elect, a 1970 graduate of Permian High School, Odessa, attended Odessa Junior College. Opening lead—♥K

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is the second hand of Culbertson's "Battle Royal." He was refereeing a match between two married couples and assessing fines up to $10 for mistakes.

Today we find the husband who made the bad opening lead yesterday sitting North. There was nothing wrong with his spade raise and his wife wound up in a normal four spade contract.

The other husband made his normal lead of the heart-king and continued the suit. South ruffed the third lead with the deuce of trumps. It would have been better technique to ruff with the jack but it made no difference.

She entered dummy with the jack of clubs and led the 10 of spades for a finesse. West took his king and led back a trump. South drew trumps; entered dummy with the club-king and led

♥+CARD Sense♦

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1♠	Dble	2♦	3♠
Pass	3♠	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♠	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
 ♠ 9 8 6 5 4 ♥ A Q 6 ♦ A 3 2 ♣ J 4

What do you do now?
 A—Just bid four hearts. If your partner holds only a four-card suit, he still may be able to struggle through.

TODAY'S QUESTION
 Instead of bidding four clubs, your partner has raised to four spades. What do you do now?

'Dirty 30' Endorses Candidates

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The "Dirty 30," expecting to double in size, endorsed House candidates Wednesday in 34 Democratic and six Republican run-off primaries.

Rep. Lane Denton of Waco, the group's spokesman, said he figured the coalition would be twice as big in the 1973 Legislature as it was last year.

The "Dirty 30," consisting mainly of Republicans and liberal Democrats, opposed ex-Speaker Gus Mutscher last year on legislation and pushed for an investigation of his stock transactions with Houston promoter Frank Sharp.

Since then, Mutscher has been convicted of conspiracy to accept a bribe and has resigned as speaker.

Denton predicted victories for 45 to 50 of the candidates endorsed by the "Dirty 30" plus 15 more candidates who were committed to the group's ideas of "reform" but did not seek endorsement.

"Frankly, I think we'll hold around 60," Denton said. Denton indicated the group will call itself the "Reform Caucus" next year—at least until someone thinks of a catchier name.

In the May 6 primaries, the "Dirty 30" endorsed 51 Democrats and 26 Republicans. Seventeen of the Democrats won and 10 more made the June 3 run-offs. Twenty-five of the Republicans won, but most were unopposed. Four Democrats on whom the coalition planned to suspend action until the run-offs won outright, and 12 more will be in the run-offs.

Denton said the group's first goal next year will be to "elect a speaker who is committed to reform." It also hopes to win approval of rule changes weakening the speaker's power and to force open certain closed government records.

Worry Clinic

By - George W. Crane, Ph. D., M. D.

Martin Gagie shows how newspapermen focus on the final effect instead of the mechanics of English. All great artists thus stress the picture they wish to produce; not minor details. Note the "ad test" below where one word troubled sales!

CASE T-582: Martin Gagie is one of America's topnotch editors. And I am not exaggerating, for note the following few sentences I have lifted from one of his editorials:

"The body count was 635.
"Old men were killed.
"Women.
"Children.
"Babies.
"Another My Lai?
"No, but a massacre all the same.
"But in how many newspapers did it rate the banner headline?
"How much time was devoted to the killings in Walter Cronkite's commentary?
"Killings? Yes.
"Americans killing Americans.
"It happened not in Vietnam but in the United States of America."

Then Mr. Gagie went on in the same terse, dramatic verbal style to explain that the terrific death toll was just the 3-day weekend casualties on our automobile highways.
Old-time English teachers would have given this editorial only a "C" grade. Why?

Because Mr. Gagie didn't employ complete sentences before he ended with a period.
For he set off a single word or phrase by itself!

Alas, this is the difference between the "psychology of writing" vs. mere slavish deference to classroom rules of punctuation.

Jesus was also criticized by the meticulous advocates of the letter of the law, for his Apostles once plucked the heads of ripe wheat and devoured the grains on a certain Sabbath afternoon.

"This is a violation of the sacred Sabbath," angrily protested the literal advocates of the ancient Hebrew code.
"The Sabbath was made for man; not man for the Sabbath," artly replied Jesus.

Which meant that Christ didn't piddle around with insignificant details but focussed on major goals.
Our Journalism Departments thus have practicalized the use of the English language to a far better degree than the typical English Departments.

They have done for Liberal Arts English courses what the M.D. has also done for "ivory tower" physiology research.

For the practicing physician has "applied" the laws of physiology to help us solve our everyday health problems.

Similarly, the newspaper reporter and editor, as well as the advertising copy writer, have learned to manipulate printed words to gain the maximum effect.

Look at these two book titles, used in successive years in full page newspaper campaigns, coast to coast.

"The Art of Courtship"
"The Art of Kissing"

One title produced 17,500 sales while the other sold 60,500, yet with the same amount advertising!

So send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Use these new rules in your church bulletins, ad copy, and printed messages everywhere!
(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg, Melot, Indiana, 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Lovers Of Texas History To Be In San Augustine

SAN AUGUSTINE, Tex. (AP) — Lovers of Texas history will gather here the first weekend in June to view the well-preserved homes and surrounding countryside of the oldest Anglo town in Texas.

The occasion will be the 25th birthday of the town founded on the Ayish Bayou, and San Augustine's 13th annual Tour of Homes and Antique Show and Sale on June 3-4.

San Augustine's chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas (DAR) will take visitors on a tour of medallion-homes and historic places and stage the seventh annual Antique Show.

Many of the historic San Augustine homes, most of them built in the 1830's, are still occupied by descendants of the owners. Granite monuments make many of the historic sites and history is written on plaques along the streets.

A total of 55 historical markers and building medallions have been placed in the city by the Texas Historical Survey Committee for historical preservation.

Headquarters for the tour will be the Cullen House, where members of the DRT chapter in elaborate costumes will welcome visitors and tell the story of San Augustine's rich heritage dating back to the establishment of the Mission Nuestra Senora de los Dolores de los Ais in 1717.

The name given the town, "San Augustine," is that of a saint of the 4th Century.

The town, laid out on either side of El Camino Real, the King's Highway, was bordered on the west by the Ayish Bayou and on the east by Carizzo Creek. Two lots near the center were reserved for a public square.

During the days of the Republic of Texas, 1836-1845, San Augustine was known as the "Athens of Texas." Sam Houston was a frequent visitor to the town, bringing his bride and maintaining a law office. It was in San Augustine that Sam Houston was first elected general of the Texas Army Oct. 6, 1835.

Because of its strategic location on the Texas-Louisiana border the city of San Augustine served as an important port of entry into the Republic of Texas and duties were collected on goods shipped overland through Louisiana.

San Augustine, because of its location on the main road into Texas, has many other "firsts."

Surgeon Believes Patients Should Be Own Blood Donors

HOUSTON (AP) — A Delaware surgeon believes patients should be their own blood donors when they have elective surgery.

Dr. Henry Cowell thinks most hospitals could find a way with adequate will and organization. Using a person's own blood for transfusion protects him from the risk of hepatitis, the sometimes fatal liver disease carried in some blood and from the severe and possibly fatal reaction that can occur when he is given the wrong type of blood by mistake.

Cowell, associate surgeon-in-chief at the Ulfred I. DuPont Institute of the Nemours Foundation in Wilmington, Del., says the main drawback to auto-transfusion is inconvenience: since surgery must be scheduled a month ahead.

"When you're dealing with a kid's life, inconvenience shouldn't bother you," he said at an orthopedic symposium here.

"We've done over 100 patients that have had their own blood drawn and used for surgery," he said.

He said his is the first group that has used the auto-transfusions exclusively on children.

The patients, aged 9 to 20, gave up to three units of blood in the three weeks before orthopedic surgery on the hip or spine.

They were given supplementary iron to make up for what was lost in the drawn blood. Other parts of the blood were replaced by the patient's own body soon after the blood was taken.

Some had feared the approach would lead to complications under anesthesia or problems with blood clotting but Cowell said the problems did not occur more than with donor blood and there was no hepatitis and no blood type reactions.

"Doing it this way is less expensive," he said. "There is no expense but drawing the blood. You eliminate the charges for paying donors and cross-matching."

Cowell said the percentage of people that get hepatitis following transfusions varies greatly, depending on whether voluntary or paid donors are used.

He said in large cities where commercial blood banks rely mostly on paid donors, the amount of hepatitis can go up to 30 per cent.

Child's Success Is More Important Than Being 'Average'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of many books on articles on exceptional children, Willard Abraham, Ph.D., is chairman of the Department of Special Education at Arizona State University. This is one of a series of articles written for Newspaper Enterprise Association and this newspaper.)

(Second in a Series)
By Dr. Willard Abraham

Do you want your child to be "average"? Some parents of bright youngsters say they do but you know they're usually kidding. More serious might be the parents of children with pronounced retarded, emotional, learning or other problems which they wish would just go away, so their offspring could move into the "average" range.

Dr. Willard Abraham

And that's an important factor—it is a range, a spread of abilities or performance rather than an exact point. For example, it might encompass a measured intelligence of about 90 to 110 I.Q., learning to walk any time between 9 and 18 months, and normal differences in height, weight, appearance, emotions, interests, capabilities and other developmental conditions.

There are several different ways to view the term "average" as it applies to children.

Some years ago McGraw-Hill produced educational films called "The Terrible Twos" and "The Trusting Threes" and "The Frustrating Fours" and "The Fascinating Fives." But if you have a child of one of those ages and the label doesn't fit, does that mean there's a reason for concern? Of course not. Children can't be compartmentalized like test tube chemicals. Efforts to force them into descriptive molds have been disconcerting for many conscientious parents.

For the past few generations they have often been misled by child experts who unconsciously guided them toward a concept of the average, "and if your child deviates, watch out." These professionals have frequently tossed out warnings, admonitions like "don't generalize on the basis of what I say" or "each child is different." Still, we've read their words of wisdom and worry if our kids vary even a little bit.

Spock, Gesell and, more recently, Ginott have stressed normal expectations. If we're realistic we recognize that deviations from the norm aren't necessarily a problem. Young mothers and fathers pore over published child development charts that tell them what to expect of their "normal" two (negativistic, possessive, solitary play), three (anxious to please, cooperative, conforming) or four-year-old (hell-raiser, talkative, imaginative, constant "Why?" asker). Many are sophisticated enough these days to realize that the broad range of the normal can accommodate most children.

In other cultures, what is average is sometimes different from our view of the normal. When Margaret Mead wrote "Coming of Age in Samoa" many years ago, it came as a surprise for some people to hear that there are societies where teenage storm and stress are unknown. In "The Light in the Piazza," Elizabeth Spencer pointed out that in some places mental retardation is an acceptable factor in marriage.

Nearsightedness, lack of coordination that may keep a kid from becoming a Little League first baseman, a few fuzzy letters in oral speech, a desire to be alone more than most other children do—these may all be average development factors for particular youngsters. (To ward off the anger and anguish of ophthalmologists, perception trainers, speech people and psychologists, I'd better hurry to state that improvement may be both desirable and available in many of these instances.)

One place where average often can and should be questioned is in school. Two examples can help make the point: the teacher who insists on a normal curve so that when he or she faces any class, it automatically forms a pattern that requires most of the youngsters to fall into the undistinguished middle; the bright child bored to death with mediocrity, and his parents and teachers lulled into inactivity because his grades and performance are somewhere around the center.

YOUR SPECIAL CHILD

There is no child who's average in everything. It's what he can succeed in that we have to search for. What can make him special? What sports, studies, hobbies, talents, or skills can help him stand out even a little bit? What individual or group activities can give him the recognition he needs? How about Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, YWCA and so many others?

We want to take pride in what he does—and be sure he's comfortable with his own image. That's quite a task. To accomplish it means we continually have to seek and help develop any potential competencies he has.

90 Will Get Diplomas From NTHSN

AMARILLO—Ninety graduating seniors will receive diplomas from the Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing in ceremonies to be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the Civic Center Auditorium here.

The Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing, which opened in 1924, cooperates with 25 area colleges and universities in nursing education and is the largest diploma school of nursing in the Southwest. Enrollment has more than tripled in the past eight years, jumping from 98 students in 1964 to 348 in 1971.

The school is an operation of the Amarillo Hospital District and is affiliated with both the Amarillo College School of Biomedical Arts, for Associate Degree programs, and with West Texas State University for a Baccalaureate Degree program.

A charge to the students will be presented by Dr. Joe Frank Robberson during the program highlighting the ceremonies. Dr. Robberson is president of the Amarillo Hospital District Medical and Dental Staff. Dick Brooks, chairman of the Amarillo Hospital District Board of Managers, will present diplomas to the graduates after which David K. Ferguson, associate director of Regional Medical Programs of Texas will deliver the principal address.

On behalf of the School of Nursing, Mrs. Marilyn Dyer, school director, has extended an invitation to all interested parties, especially parents and families of students.

Profile Of Richard McCoy, The Accused Hijacker Of Jetliner

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

PROVO, Utah—(NEA)—

Shortly after midnight on Friday, April 9, young Peter Zimmerman dropped in to the Hi-Spot, a drive-in hamburger joint on Route 89 going through Springville seven miles south of Provo. You can't miss it—blaring sidewalk sign, "Super Burger with 16 oz. Coke keep the glass . . . 79¢."

"This man," said 16-year-old Peter, "just came up and started talking to me. I was having a drink. He asked if I'd give him a ride. He didn't have anything with him. I took him home. We talked about the weather mostly."

Peter's mother is a reporter for The Herald in Provo. He recognized his hitch-hiking passenger when "I saw the pictures in the paper."

The man was Richard Floyd McCoy Jr., who only one hour before showing up at the Hi-Spot allegedly had parachuted into the night from the back steps of a Boeing 727 jetliner. He carried a bag with $500,000, the largest ransom ever paid for hijacking a plane. And he left the money out in a field, to be picked up later when he drove his Volkswagen to the drop site.

Everybody here who ever knew Richard McCoy still can't believe it. Not the neighbors or his own relatives. Not his fellow students at Brigham Young University or his professors. Not his fellow Mormon churchgoers or his buddies in the National Guard.

The strange, aberrational odyssey of Richard McCoy began at 2:36 p.m. that Friday in Denver, when, disguised with mustache and black wig over his thinning, sandy hair and listed as passenger "T. Johnson," he boarded United Airlines Flight 855 for Los Angeles. It ended within 40 hours when FBI agents arrested him at 5:30 o'clock on Sunday morning and that afternoon recovered $499,970 in a box in his home.

There was nothing in the life of Richard McCoy, 29 years old, to indicate he would hold a grenade with the pin pulled and imperil the lives of 86 passengers plus six crew members on an erratic course which diverted the plane to San Francisco, where the ransom money was delivered, and finally led to his own front door in Provo.

The squat brick house at 360 South, 200 East blends dingly into the lower middle-class neighborhood. In tidy Utah, the cities block out their streets by the compass. The house which Richard McCoy rented for $125 a month is three blocks south of Center Street and two blocks east of University Avenue, the main arteries of Provo which intersect in the middle of town. From the front porch you look out at the majestic Wasatch mountain range.

The early fuss after Richard's arrest has calmed down. The curious, the reporters, the photographers, the surveillance agents have gone. The front door is unlocked and Chante, 5 years old, opens it. She is Richard McCoy's daughter, blonde and pretty and wide-eyed. (His son, Richard, 2, is staying with neighbors, the Terrys.) Yes, her grandmother is somewhere around, says Chante (shont-ee). And she runs around the back looking for "Nana."

Mrs. Myrtle H. McCoy is a woman in her late 40s in a print dress, sturdy, with wavy brown hair. She speaks with the distinctive accent of rural North Carolina. Richard is her older son, Russell, 19 months younger, is an Army officer who served two hitchhikes in Vietnam as a helicopter pilot and is now stationed in Missouri.

When Mrs. McCoy heard about Richard's arrest, she got in her car at Cove City, N.C., drove to Missouri to pick up Russell and then on to Provo—more'n 3,000 miles; we couldn't afford to fly.

"I am his mother," she says measuredly, "and I'm not ashamed of my son. I don't condone wrong doings. If my son did it, he went off the beam. He was not rational. He's innocent as far as I'm concerned. I'll know the truth when I sit in the courtroom and find out just like you."

"This is not Richard's style. He'd give you his shirt if you asked him for it. He's a very outgoing person. My son's not a murderer."

If convicted of air piracy, Richard McCoy could receive a minimum term of 20 years in prison . . . or the death sentence. The president of United Airlines has urged the death penalty for air pirates.

Every day, Mrs. McCoy drives the 40 miles north to Salt Lake City to visit Richard, where he's being held in the custody of the U.S. marshal, pending prosecution. The children have been able to visit him, too. Chante McCoy knows only that her daddy was taken away by the FBI.

There was nothing in the life of Richard McCoy to indicate he would hold a grenade with the pin pulled and imperil the lives of 86 passengers, plus six crew members . . .

In the front living room of the house, where Myrtle McCoy cares for Chante, there is a portable television set on top of an old TV console. There is a record changer and an amplifier. Visible on a table are LP's cut by Montovani and The Supremes: A dish with plastic flowers, three prints of Paris scenes on the inside wall, elk horns on the far wall, a carved wooden cuckoo clock, mahogany veneer chiffoniere—this was the decor of the young McCoy's.

The wife, Karen Burns McCoy, has been in the hospital, visited only by immediate family. She has just undergone an operation for a degenerating bone condition in her right wrist, a painful condition which she has suffered some time. The doctors shield her from visitors.

On an overstuffed couch under the front windows, Mrs. McCoy has brought out a trove of family pictures, some in albums, others loose, detailing the life of Richard McCoy from bare-bottom baby on a blanket to warrant officer who piloted a helicopter in Vietnam.

The rights to his life story and some of the pictures have already been peddled to Der Stern, a German magazine. "We have no support," says Mrs. McCoy. "We're not money people. We haven't had a soul come around to volunteer a thing. The house rent's due. We need groceries. Karen don't know if she'll have a job when she comes out of the hospital. The lawyers have told me not to tell too much about Richard. The magazine, you know."

But details pour out relentlessly as she shows the pictures and other mementoes the lawyers asked her to bring from North Carolina.

His father was in Patton's Army, with the 7th Armored Division, in World War II, retired as a master sergeant and has a job at North Carolina State in Raleigh. "War does funny things to people some times," he said after Richard was arrested.

Because of Army service, the family moved around. Grade schools in South River, N.J., Burlington, Vt., and North Carolina. The mother has charted his complete school record: Fourth and fifth grades—Cove City, N.C., 1953-54.

"His father was in Korea and we lived on the farm of his grandma, Willie Stroud McCoy. He had a pony, Patsy, rode her bareback with a barefoot, free-caring boy. He had an excellent record as a Boy Scout."

He graduated in 1961 from Broughton-Needham High School in Raleigh. He studied printing craft and played the trombone in the band. The McCoy's are Mormons. Richard enrolled that fall at Brigham Young University. He left after one semester to enlist in the Army and served in Vietnam from May 11 to Nov. 23, 1964, as a demolition specialist with the Special Forces (Green Berets). He received the Purple Heart for shrapnel wounds in his arm and legs.

He still carries some shrapnel.

"I have his Purple Heart," says Mrs. McCoy, fondling the ribbon, "it's mine and I'll always keep it."

He returned to Brigham Young in 1965 and met Karen Burns, a scholarship student from Canton, Ohio. They were married in a Raleigh chapel in June 1965. Richard wore a white tie and tails. He dropped out of school again and re-enlisted in the Army. On Feb. 14, 1967, he received his flying wings as a warrant officer at Fort Rucker, Ga., and volunteered for another Vietnam tour as a helicopter pilot.

On Aug. 12, 1967, he participated in a search and rescue operation near the village of Ap Bien Hoa. The following is from a citation for the Army Commendation Medal with "V" (for Valor) Device:

"A light observation helicopter plane was down due to engine trouble in hostile territory, and Warrant Officer McCoy's armed helicopter was providing security for an OH-236 helicopter that was assigned to rescue the downed aviator and passenger. Suddenly, the rescue aircraft lost power and crashed near the first aircraft, causing them both to erupt in flames. Despite the extreme danger caused by the burning aircraft plus the danger of enemy intrusion, Warrant Officer McCoy leaped from the aircraft and worked his way through the dense jungles to his comrades. He immediately located the two survivors and led them to his waiting helicopter."

Less than a month later, he joined Karen on R&R in Hawaii and they were remarried in the Mormon temple there on Sept. 8, 1967. The ceremony obliges him to wear the sacred undergarment of the church. When McCoy returned to Vietnam, he also engaged in missionary work for the church, and his parents received a letter of commendation from Marion D. Hanks, an assistant apostle of the Latter Day Saints, for Richard's efforts. The McCoy's later went to Germany for two years and he returned a third time to BYU in the spring of 1971 to study for a career in law enforcement.

His grandfather was a police officer in Hopewell, Va.

Richard F. McCoy, accused hijacker, has two overriding passions in life—flying and law enforcement. A four-page handwritten letter which he sent home from Vietnam in 1967 reads almost like a manual for flying a helicopter. Flying led him to the parallel activity of sky-diving as a recreational exercise. In Germany during his service days he had organized a parachuting club at Schwabebisch-Gmuend.

To Krezel (Krisa) Peters, a BYU student from LaJolla, Calif., who sat next to him in Law Enforcement 301, he was "an organized crime freak."

"He wanted to get to the Mafia," she says, "and he seemed very upset about it. He was a loner. When I heard about the hijack, I couldn't believe it. I didn't think he'd have the brains."

"Of course, in a law enforcement program, in the course of learning how to prevent a crime you could also learn to pull off a crime better than the average person."

Law Enforcement 301 in the School of Social Science at BYU is taught by Charles Fletcher. Fletcher is a taut man with wavy gray hair who was an FBI agent for 28 years until his retirement in 1967. He was also the faculty advisor for Richard McCoy. He last saw Richard in class on Wednesday night, April 7, two days before the hijacking of United Airlines flight 855. McCoy came to class with a walking cast on his right ankle from a skiing accident. The week before he had used crutches.

"If I were investigating," says Fletcher, "I would think, 'Was he setting up an alibi?' Yet after the hijack he left a trail a mile wide and not too careful. It was as if he put up a flare and said, 'Here I am. Come and get me.'"

As his advisor, Fletcher had two intensive talks with McCoy. "The main thing I recall," he says, "was that he set a goal to utilize his law enforcement education with his experience as a pilot. Anyone in our program has a good opportunity of getting placed. There was no indication he was planning anything like this. He was an above-average student. I was surprised when I found out because I wouldn't place him that role."

Because of his FBI training, Fletcher has refrained from being interviewed until now.

"My interest in this case," he says, "is for research. What made him tick? How did he figure he'd get away with it? On a personal level, I ask myself, 'Should you have done more counseling?' Maybe he needed more personal attention."

"I've had instances in dealing with criminals when I admired their ingenuity. McCoy did a phenomenal job—until he got back on the ground. It was almost like he wanted to get caught so he wouldn't have more problems."

At his arraignment after arrest, McCoy's only statement was, "I'm embarrassed. Let's face it."

"It's a statement he has used in class," remembers Fletcher, "after he asked a particular obvious question. I feel so sorry for this guy. He's my brother. Not that I condone what he's done."

After McCoy's arrest, when Law Enforcement 301 convened again, the class was strangely quiet. So Fletcher finally said to them, "I know you want to talk. Let's do it." And none of them had any concrete idea what motivated McCoy on his criminal adventure.

"The title of the course," notes Fletcher, "is Criminal Procedure and Evidence. It has to do with what he's going through right now."

"One of the assignments is to participate in an actual court case."

The man who first mentioned to the FBI that Richard F. McCoy might be the hijacker of United Airlines Flight 855 is Robert Van Ieperen of the Utah State Highway Patrol. The phone number at his home in Salt Lake City has been disconnected because of too many crank calls to his wife. The only way to contact Patrolman Van Ieperen is at the graveyard shift, 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.

"I feel like hell about it," he says. "Sick. But I also feel some day somebody's going to blow the hell out of 95 people."

Van Ieperen and McCoy were friends. They flew helicopters in the National Guard together. They were recreational sky divers on weekends together. Van Ieperen and his wife had visited the McCoy's at home. Three weeks before the hijacking, McCoy had outlined to Van Ieperen how he'd go about pirating a plane, using his own parachute.

In the last five months there had been six ransom attempts involving parachuting from a plane.

Myrtle McCoy

Richard McCoy Sr.

"We were professional pilots and sky divers," says Van Ieperen, who is a year younger than McCoy. "It's a conversation piece. We talked about a lot of things concerned with law enforcement."

"I used to call him up in the afternoons just to rap. We talked about flying, our work, sky diving. We talked about hijacking particularly after a guy in Denver parachuted and broke his leg. When the first reports of Richard's hijacking came in, I didn't think it was him. I called him that night because I thought he might be interested in it."

Richard, of course, didn't answer the phone. His sister-in-law, Denise Burns did. Denise is a buxom blonde. She is Karen McCoy's younger sister. And she has been working as a waitress at the Village Inn in Provo after dropping out from Ricks College in Idaho. The newspapers first reported that she called Van Ieperen to tell him Richard had asked her to help in a hijacking attempt.

"The papers had it all wrong," she says. "He called me. Richard had talked to me about it, but I had no idea he'd do it. Richard is a very good person. He shouldn't be where he is. I've talked too much already. That's why I'm leaving. I'm going back home to Canton. The U.S. attorney says it's O.K. for me to leave. You see, I've pleaded the 5th Amendment."

Van Ieperen says if he hadn't pulled a 3-11 p.m. shift the night of the hijacking he probably wouldn't have connected McCoy to it. After the reports came in, he had to stay on duty to set up road blocks and was up till 6 a.m. Certain clues, plus the conversation with Denise, made him voice his suspicions to the FBI.

He'd already talked to them by the time he and McCoy reported to the National Guard for flight duty the morning after the hijacking. McCoy flew a photographer to Camp Williams, south of Salt Lake City, on the fringe of the search area. When he returned at 11:30 a.m., the FBI interrogated him, then released him.

"When they talked to him and let him go," recalls Van Ieperen, "I said to myself, 'You — — —, you've lost a friend.' But he wasn't revengeful when he saw me

"And I said, 'I hope I didn't fink on you. I hope you didn't do it.' I'm not sorry I said anything. If they arrested McCoy on what I told them, it's pretty thin. But it goes beyond friendship."

"I don't think you would ever hear a bad thing about Richard. He's one of the nicest fellows I've known. I've never seen Richard really get mad. I never heard him swear."

Van Ieperen has tried to see McCoy in the Salt Lake County Jail, where he is being held without bail on federal charges but has been refused permission. "I've probably lost his friendship," he says somberly. Then like everybody else connected with the case, he asks, "Why?" What would make cool, nice Richard McCoy go to the extreme of hijacking a jetliner?

"The only problem," muses Van Ieperen, "is his old lady (wife). She's authoritarian. I know he was hurting for money. Any guy with a family going to school on the GI bill has got to be . . ."

"Maybe he just wanted to get away from his wife."

Karen Burns McCoy, whose father died when she was 8, came to Brigham Young University from Canton, O., on a full scholarship. She was a substitute teacher in social science for the spring and fall semesters of 1971 at Provo Senior High School and until she entered the hospital after her husband's arrest for skyjacking she worked with mentally retarded children.

John L. Matthews knew that Richard McCoy was troubled. Crew cut, with glasses, Matthews is the principal of Dixon Junior High School in Provo. He is also Bishop of the First Ward, where the McCoy's lived. Last fall first Karen, then Richard, came to him to discuss some personal problems. Bishop Matthews will not, because they were privileged in nature, reveal them.

Serve Up an Election Year Stew With Democratic Caucus Cookbook

By RICH OPPEL
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Want to serve a good "political stew"? It'll be easy, with Myrna Shevin's new "Democratic Caucus Cookbook," which has recipes from political personalities such as Sens. Allen J. Ellender and Stuart Symington and others from wives of political figures such as Muriel Humphrey and Cornelia Wallace.

Mrs. Shevin, an opera singer, mother of three and the wife of Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin, said she hatched the cookbook idea last summer, and got the cooperation of the Democratic Women's Clubs of Florida.

"I sent out requests to about 700 persons — governors, senators, congressmen, mayors, state officials and party officials," she said. "We got about 200 recipes back."

The book goes to the printers in June, and Mrs. Shevin hopes to begin sales at the Democratic National Convention. About 250 pages long, it will sell for $5.50. It is illustrated with ink sketches of scenes from the Florida presidential primary by Fred Albert.

Mrs. Shevin said proceeds would be distributed among the Democratic women's organizations in Florida, with some going to the national committee.

Here are a few recipes from the same kitchens that serve George Wallace, Mayor John Lindsay and Sen. Edmund Muskie:

Cornelia Wallace's Southern Pecan Pie

1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
3 eggs
4 tablespoons melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecans, chopped
1 pie shell, uncooked

Cook sugar and syrup until mixture thickens at 228 degrees. Beat eggs well, add melted butter to syrup mixtures and add hot syrup slowly to beaten eggs. Add vanilla and nuts. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake in 450-degree oven for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 and bake for additional 35 minutes. Serves six.

Mary Lindsay's Brownies

2 eggs
2 squares bitter chocolate
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup light brown sugar
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1 pinch salt

Beat eggs; gradually add sugars. Melt butter and chocolate together and let cool. Add to egg mixture. Add vanilla, flour, salt and nuts. Place in a greased 9 by 9 inch square pan and bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 35 minutes. Let cool; cut into squares.

Jane Muskie's New England Dinner

4-5 lb corned brisket of beef
Cold water to cover
1/2 bay leaf
5 whole peppercorns
Basil, thyme and parsley
6 white or yellow turnips, peeled and sliced
8 medium carrots, scraped
4 parsnips, peeled if you like
2 small onions, peeled
8 medium potatoes, peeled
1 green cabbage, cored, cut in wedges

Place beef in kettle, cover pan, adding spices but no salt. Bring to a boil; skim off fat. Cover; simmer 3-4 hours. Add all vegetables but cabbage, cover pan. Cook 20 minutes. Add cabbage; cook until all vegetables are tender, about 25 minutes.

Place beef on hot platter, surrounded by vegetables.

Mushroom Marinade Is Tasty

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Mushrooms make a different and simple dish to prepare as an accompaniment for chicken, fish or meat. Serving them always impresses. Sautéed mushrooms are a meal in themselves when served on toast or with a green vegetable. Try a Mushroom Marinade, a sautéed dish with a bitey marinade and served hot.

MUSHROOM MARINADE

1 lb. fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 ounces each) sliced mushrooms, drained
4 tablespoons olive or salad oil
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon minced garlic
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/4 teaspoon oregano leaves

Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms and set aside. In a large skillet heat olive oil or salad oil. Add mushrooms along with lemon juice and minced garlic. Sauté 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend in chopped parsley, salt, pepper and oregano leaves. Serve hot. Makes 4 portions.

Low Carbohydrate Foods Keep Scale Needle Low

"Low Carbohydrate" is the new key phrase in keeping the needle on the scales in the proper range. The villain carbohydrate has been blamed by many doctors for those extra pounds. Today many experts are recommending a sensible diet with a careful watch on the number of carbohydrate grams rather than on the number of calories.

Most bread and cereal products contain a prohibitive amount of carbohydrates. But the Mexican staff of life, the tortilla, has fewer than other types of bread. With only about ten grams, the flat corn cakes can be used in a variety of ways to add zest to diet menus.

Make a sandwich with the tortilla (the Mexicans call it a "taco"). Try a spicy crepe (known as an "enchilada" in its native country). Or make your own enchilada casserole for a hearty and satisfying diet meal.

BEEF TACOS

6 canned tortillas
1 pound lean ground beef
2 Tablespoons cooking oil or shortening
1 medium-sized onion, chopped
1/2 cup canned enchilada sauce
Lettuce, shredded
Tomatoes, diced
Cheddar cheese, grated
Taco Sauce

To prepare taco shells, put enough shortening into skillet to fill it about 1/2 inch deep. Dip tortillas in heated shortening one at a time for a few seconds until soft. Fold tortilla in half and open slightly with tongs or two forks, leaving a space for the filling. Continue to fry over medium heat, turning often, until crisp. Drain on paper towels. (Taco shells may be prepared in advance and stored in an airtight container.)

Brown ground beef in skillet, adding cooking oil or shortening if needed. Add onion and cook until soft. Moisten with enchilada sauce. Simmer for ten minutes, stirring occasionally.

Fill taco shells with beef filling. Sprinkle lettuce, tomatoes and cheese over filling. Serve with taco sauce to be sprinkled on filling to taste. Makes 6 tacos.

ENCHILADA CASSEROLE

1 pound ground beef
1 (10 ounce) can enchilada sauce
Salt to taste
12 canned tortillas
Shortening or cooking oil
1 1/2 cups onion, chopped
1 1/2 cups cheese, grated
Brown ground beef in skillet. Add enchilada sauce and salt and cook over low heat for about fifteen minutes until blended and slightly thick. Dip tortillas quickly in hot shortening or oil. Place alternate layers of tortillas, onion, cheese and meat mixture in 8-inch casserole. Top with grated cheese. Heat in 375-degree oven for twenty minutes.

Pollution Discharge

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal Environmental Protection Agency and the Texas Water Quality Board have agreed to conduct a survey of pollution discharges along the Houston Ship Channel.

The federal-state agreement was issued jointly Wednesday by the two agencies following a meeting in Dallas.

"The object of the study is to obtain reliable data upon which abatement schedules for waste discharges can be based," the statement said. "It will benefit not only the state and federal governments, but also the industries and municipalities involved."

Gourmet Corner — Chefs Create Puerto Rican Menu

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

Chefs around the world like to show off their creative talent by whipping up unusual dishes for special occasions, and the masters of cuisine in New York City are no exception.

Two chefs at Manhattan's Commodore Hotel recently claimed a first when they developed a menu devoted solely to the native foods of Puerto Rico.

The occasion was a banquet given at the hotel for a group of Puerto Rican newspaper radio and television journalists. After days of planning and going over scores of recipes from the Caribbean area, chefs Jesus Cabasa and Rene La Cren came up with an interesting array of specialties highlighted by a succulent dumpling-like dish known as banana pasteles.

Many American tourists have acquired a fondness for the tangy foods of Puerto Rico which are a blend of the cuisines of the old world and the new. And many returning from a vacation on the island have complained that few restaurants on the U.S. mainland serve these delightful dishes.

Because of its historical background, Puerto Rico is a land of sharp contrasts, combining the best of Spanish and American cultures and culinary art.

Over the centuries, simple dishes originally prepared by the Indian inhabitants of the island have been enriched by the skills of the descendants of the early settlers and by the African slaves brought over to work in the sugar fields. The tasty flavorings and ingredients that have come from this transsition have resulted in a truly unique cuisine. One of the cooking specialties of Puerto Rico is sofrito, a combination of green peppers, sweet chili peppers, onions, garlic, tomatoes, oregano and fresh coriander. This combination is cooked in lard or vegetable oil and used as a seasoning for dishes.

There are other signs of departure from the customs of the old world. For instance, the Spanish use saffron to color their delightful paella, but in Puerto Rico the cooks use annatto seeds to give coloring to paella and a number of other dishes. Annatto seeds have little or no taste, but when heated they can be used as a vivid coloring.

Puerto Rican delicacies are legion. There is fresh ham cooked for nearly three hours in muscatel, or Pescado en Escabeche, a pickled fish cooked for only a few minutes in a mixture of vinegar olive oil and crushed garlic cloves. And there is Lechon de Mechar, a beef eye round stuffed with peppers and coriander and simmered in achicote oil.

But none of these dishes is more distinctive than the banana pasteles served by chefs Cabasa and La Cren. Here is their recipe: 2 lbs green bananas
1/2 lb diced pork, raw
1/2 lb diced potatoes, raw
1/2 pt. milk
12 pitted olives
1 tsp capers
1/2 lb crisco
3 oz paprika
1 pinch oregano
1 pinch chopped garlic
1 spanish sweet green pepper salt to taste
tabasco to taste

Zippy Beet Treat

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Beets often are overlooked when a different and colorful vegetable is sought to wake up family taste buds. Beets are good hot or cold and offer many essential vitamins and minerals needed in daily diets. A tasty recipe that may be served hot or cold uses grape juice and wine vinegar with a touch of ground clove for added zip.

CONCORD BEETS

1 can (1 pound) sliced or julienne beets, drained

Melt crisco and add paprika till it becomes red. Add pork. Sauté 1 minute adding garlic, oregano, tabasco, olives, capers, chopped sweet pepper, diced potatoes. Cook 10 minutes, strain and save fat.

For banana dough: peel and grind bananas, adding milk, salt and half fat from stuffing. Mix well into dough. Get wax paper — 12" x 12" and spread 1 lbs melted lard over center of paper. Then spread 3 tbs dough atop lard. In middle of dough place 3 tbs filling. Fold over completely covering filling and you have a pastele. Wrap with a second piece of wax paper. Repeat performance until all ingredients used. Put 2 pasteles together and tie with string. Repeat with the rest. After wrapping all the pasteles, place in boiling salted water and cook 1 hour. Any wax that melts from paper will float to top of water and can be skimmed off.

When you are unrolling a gelatin salad or dessert, dip the mold into warm, not hot, water, just to the depth of the salad or dessert. Remove quickly, shaking the mold gently to loosen.

MAGIC POTION

Rugged tight end Charlie Sanders of the Detroit Lions has a special recipe for lifting himself out of the doldrums: "Start with a couple of raw eggs. Then, add some honey, a bunch of bananas, some Karo syrup, some malted milk, some dry milk, some regular milk, and a couple of scoops of ice cream. Throw it all in a blender and goosh it up real good. Then, drink it." Sanders says he drinks two quarts of the stuff a day.

1/2 cup Concord grape juice
2 tablespoons wine vinegar
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
Dash salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine.

In a medium saucepan, combine all ingredients. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and simmer several minutes, stirring occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

Harvesters Ready For Spring Game

Pampa High's football team was divided into two squads Wednesday in anticipation of Friday's annual game which concludes spring training.

The two groups will work-out this afternoon to polish their plays and get ready for the contest.

The teams, the Green and Gold, were divided as equally as possible in order to provide for a fair and exciting game.

Coaches for the Green team are Jim White, Bob McAlister and Jim Cunningham. The Gold Squad will be led by Bob Sanders, Harold Moore and Scott Dunham.

PHS Gets 3 Coaches

Three athletic coaches have been hired by the Pampa Independent School District for the next school year. All will coach at the high school level.

James Kauffman has been hired as an assistant football coach. Currently at Tascosa High School in Amarillo, he has previously coached at Plainview, Corsicana and La Mesa. Kauffman is a graduate of West Texas State. He and his wife, Ruth Ann, have three children.

Scott Dunham has also been hired as an assistant football coach. Dunham comes to Pampa from Lefors where he coached two years in junior high and three in high school. Lefors won the district championship the last two of those three years.

Dunham played high school football in Lefors and college ball at Texas Western and Southwestern Okla. Married, he and his wife Janell have a daughter Lynn, three years old.

Allen Setliff has been hired as tennis coach. A native Texan, he played tennis for David Kent at West Texas State.

Haller Wins $19 From Bill

DETROIT (AP) — Tom Haller won $19 from Billy Martin Wednesday night.

Haller, veteran catcher, acquired in an off-season trade from Los Angeles, started his second game as a Tiger and drove in four runs—three on an eighth-inning homer—in Detroit's 6-1 victory over Baltimore.

It was his first American League hit.

"He won $19 from me tonight," Martin said smiling. "I give him $5 every time he advances a runner, and he gives me $1 when he doesn't. I told him I'd be happy to lose it."

Then the Tiger manager added: "I'll probably hear from the commissioner on this."

Little League Scores

In Little League farm team play Wednesday, Chase Oil beat UCT 15-7 in the first game. Terry Bunton was on the mound for the winners.

Dale Lanford pitched Malcolm Hinkle to a 13-12 win over Thompson Parts in the second contest.

Sports Critic Scott Gets Chance To Practice What He Preaches

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

BERKELEY, Calif. — (NEA)—The mail has been coming in to Jack Scott. He is the new director of athletics and chairman of the physical education department at little Oberlin College and will be taking office at the Ohio school this summer.

One of his first acts was to hire Tommie Smith as the track coach. Tommie is the Olympic gold medal sprinter who raised his right fist in a black power salute on the victory stand at Mexico City.

"To complete the job," wrote one lady to Scott, "why don't you hire Angela Davis to teach Americanism?"

Such diatribe is not foreign to Scott, a balding young man of 30 with a blond wisp of mustache, who has been creating waves in the sports establishment of America since he first brought forth a paperback book called "Athletics for Athletes" in 1969.

He followed it with a hard-back, "The Athletic Revolution," collaborated with football dropout Dave Meggysy on "Out of Their League," and identified himself with such other sport dissidents as George Sauer, Harry Edwards and Chip Oliver.

Among the majority of men who administer American sports, the mention of Scott is a dirty word. He is the "Commie radical" out to destroy competitive athletics with his revolutionary ideas that the athletes are more important than the coaches or the owners.

Actually, in 1964, Jack Scott voted for Barry Goldwater for president. ("I Goldwater at least was an honest man.")

He has by founding the Institute for the Study of Sport and Society in a little frame house just off the campus of the University of California, where he acquired a Ph.D. in sociology, attempted to study the spectrum of American athletics in relation to a changing society. And what has come out until now has been primarily on the critical side.

For example: "You can eliminate racism in sport without changing the structure of sports. If the sports structure wasn't so damn stupid and uptight, they would recognize that potentially the black athlete is an ally of the sports establishment, if they would only treat the black fairly, because the blacks are so desperate in our society that if you give them a fair shake, most of them will come over to your point of view."

Scott says he didn't hire Smith as track coach just because he's black or because he admired Smith's actions at Mexico City (which he did). He never met Tommie until four weeks before. Then he interviewed him thoroughly and was impressed with Smith's poise and dignity and desire to teach at a high academic level (Smith, unheralded, has been coaching many of the country's leading track and field stars). In a year, Jack plans to elevate Tommie to athletic director and concentrate his own efforts in the physical education department.

The significance of Scott's appointment at Oberlin is that for the first time it puts a leader of the radical ethic in sport in a position to put theory into practice. The criticism of Scott has been that his views were always negative, that he didn't offer positive alternatives.

"I felt it would be a cheap shot to say this is the way things should be done," he says. "Now, on a gut level, I enjoy this opportunity."

He will have under his wing a comprehensive program which fields teams in 14 different NCAA sports competitions, ranging from football and basketball to lacrosse and gymnastics. At his disposal is a plant which includes 18 football and soccer fields and two gymnasiums.

But Jack isn't abandoning his scrutiny of the sports establishment. A condition of his job is that he was permitted to transfer his Institute from Berkeley to Oberlin, where it will operate independently of the college, with Jack's wife Micki as the full-time adjutant, just as she has always been.

Jack and Micki Scott also keep their dedication to sport physical by running six miles a day. Jack is a former track star, was a 9.6 sprinter whose career was aborted by injury. His penchant for running has been frustrated by locked gyms and stadiums. He and Micki were once arrested for scaling the wall at Syracuse to take a spin around the track.

"Now," he says triumphantly, "I have the keys to the joint."

Rookies Qualify At Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Steve Krisloff and John Mahler, two of last year's most notable rookies, appeared today to be in range of a second shot at the big money at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Krisloff, 25, of Parisippa, N.J., driving one of Grant King's new Kingfish-Offys, was clocked at 182.113 miles per hour in practice Wednesday.

If he can turn that kind of speed in final qualifying Saturday and Sunday, he could be certain of a spot somewhere near the middle of the 33-car starting field for the May 27 500.

Mahler, 33, of Bettendorf, Iowa, became the speedway's fastest rookie qualifier ever when he posted 170.164 m.p.h. for the 1971 race. But he was bumped from the car by owner-driver Dick Simon and thus remains in the 1972 starting field.

The 6-foot-2 Mahler, a graduate of the road racing ranks, is driving a two-year-old Eagle owned by Vanguard racing.

Mahler had the car up to 181.378 m.p.h. Wednesday and at that rate could be a solid bet for a start, though hardly strong enough to endanger the dozen drivers who made the lineup last weekend.

Krisloff, a slender 145-pounder, started 27th in the 1971 race but was eliminated in a crash that also took out driving mate Mario Andretti. The accident was triggered when Krisloff's engine blew.

Mahler already is assured of rookie company. Sam Posey, Swede Savage and John Martin got into the lineup Sunday.

Posey put his Norris Eagle in the middle of the second row with a speed of 184.379. Savage posted 181.726 for the third row and Martin's 179.614 gave him a fourth row spot.

All three could be shuffled around a bit when such hot shots as A.J. Foyt, Al Unser, Mark Donohue, Roger McCluskey, Peter Revson and Mike Mosley go to the line Saturday.

Mosley, driving the Leader Card Watson Offy, loomed as a solid candidate for one of the 21 remaining berths when he recorded a lap at 192.020 Wednesday.

Meantime, Merle Bettenhausen completed his rookie test with a lap at 173.947. He is a brother of Gary Bettenhausen and second son of late speed way great Tony Bettenhausen.

Trevino, Sanders Tie At Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Lee Trevino and Doug Sanders shared individual honors with a pair of 68s in the Pro-Am competition Wednesday preceding the start of the Danny Thomas Memphis Open Golf Classic.

Trevino, the defending champion, and Sanders each won $462.50 for their Pro-Am efforts.

The 72-hole competition began today on the par 72 south course at the Colonial Country Club.

Jerry McGee and Labron Harris were next with 69s. Arnold Palmer and five others had 70s.

Quartets led by professionals Lou Graham and George Archer tied for the team title with 59s.

The NCAA golf championship will be held at Miami, Fla., June 19-24.

I've known him. He has been successful for so long mainly because his swing is so nice and long.

He takes a full shoulder turn—that's his secret. By stretching and using his muscles well for so many years he's been able to maintain a big swing.

People who start with short swings don't last because as they get older their swings get still shorter. Work on lengthening your swing now and you'll be rewarded in later years. Sam certainly has been.

Jim "Stinger" Ray Won't Rock Boat

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros star reliever Jim "Stinger" Ray doesn't want to rock the boat.

He doesn't want to be a starter. He already has all the comforts of a front-line star, including a 6-0 record—one of the best in the majors, a 2.11 earned run average and three saves, and he'll be pleased as long as he's helping the team.

"I'm real happy with what I'm doing," the husky Rock Hill, S.C., hurler said. "I want to be a starter two or three years ago. It took me a long time to get the confidence to be a reliever and go into crucial situations."

Being a top reliever for the Astros is nothing new for Ray. He has been putting out the fires on the past three seasons. But he has never had a start like this before and he can't explain it.

"It seems like everytime I go out there something good happens," Ray said after one of his best victories. "I guess you ave to have a little luck to get it."

He referred to his luck Tuesday night after he came in with the Astros trailing and emerged with his sixth victory.

"I sure got out of a bind in one," he said. "You can't do that every night and be in shape. Sometimes you are wump and still get hit. It takes a little luck."

But the real change in his mound prowess could be traced to Astru pitching coach Jim Owens, who changed Ray's

Memphis Open Begins Today

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "It's kind of like stacking up building blocks," Jerry Heard said.

"You have to have confidence to play well. The more confidence you have the better you play. The better you play, the more confidence you have. One builds on the other."

"It's like stacking one block on top of the next one."

Heard, a husky, boyishly-handsome 25-year-old who seems destined for superstar status on the pro tour, made the observation before teeing off today in the first round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

With Jack Nicklaus out, Australian Bruce Crampton taking a break and Lee Trevino still looking for the right formula the streaking Heard ranked as a top contender for the $37,500 first prize.

It's obvious the young man from California is playing very well indeed with finishes of seventh or better in six of his last seven starts. And he's exuding quiet confidence after his second victory of the season last week in the Colonial National Invitation at Fort Worth.

"I've got so much confidence right now I've got to watch it," Heard said. "I just can't wait to hit the ball and I'm rushing my shots if I'm not careful."

The relaxed and easy-going Heard pushed his bankroll for the year to $106,436 with his Colonial victory, second only to Nicklaus $154,273. And, in only his fourth year on the tour, he

NCAA Officials Investigate Illini

CHICAGO (AP) — Big Ten and NCAA officials have revealed they are investigating the University of Illinois for alleged athletic practice violations.

"A preliminary inquiry has been filed with Illinois" regarding an alleged violation of NCAA regulations, the NCAA said Wednesday in Kansas City.

Wayne Duke, Big Ten commissioner, added in a statement.

"As a result of allegations filed with the NCAA, this office and the NCAA are conducting a joint inquiry and review of University of Illinois athletic practices."

The Chicago Daily News reported Wednesday the probe was touched off by Alvin O'Neal, who was declared academically ineligible last summer at Illinois. O'Neal has transferred to Murray State in Kentucky.

Investigators reportedly asked the 6-foot-4 guard if Illini officials helped him on his entrance examinations and whether he was given a car while on a basketball scholarship, the newspaper said.

Kris Berymon, a former high school basketball standout who flunked at Illinois last year in his final freshman semester, was also questioned, the paper

Suddenly Competitors

If Union demands and Congress-created inflation keep on pricing American-made goods out of the market, it is possible that a Japanese, German or Italian will be doing the work from which you now earn your living?

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce poses a question similar to that, but a little more simply stated: The chamber asks, could foreign competition take your job?

And it answers with equal forthrightness: "Yes, that's possible."

Then the Chamber brought up certain other points for the American worker's consideration.

First, that domestic competition may get your job, too.

Second, that the job you now have you may actually owe to foreign trade.

Third, that it is to the interest of the American workman that he finds out where he stands. In other words, do you get your job from foreign trade, or not?

The Chamber went on to point out that American sales abroad amount to $45 billion a year. These exports provide more than three million jobs a year directly, and others indirectly.

For example, if you drive a truck you may be hauling foreign products or you may be hauling made-in-America products for shipment abroad.

The car you drive may be a foreign make, but who sold it to you? If you bought it in this country, chances are an American did.

Perhaps the company you work for does not compete for foreign sales, but many firms in this category supply the American companies which do export. Does yours?

By way of an example a major American exporter of construction machinery estimates that one-third of the supplies it buys from its American suppliers depends on its foreign sales. This is true because one-third of its total business comes from foreign customers. Without buyers abroad, this company would be one-third smaller. That means it would employ 17,000 fewer American workers and would buy one-third less in the American market.

Now, if we pass laws prohibiting or limiting sales of foreign-made products here, other countries would pass similar laws against our products. That type of retaliation is a loser before it's ever begun. Yet we still are stuck with the fact that some U.S. industries are shrinking because of foreign competition. So what are we going to do about it? The Chamber offers a suggestion, and we believe it is a good one.

First, we should accept the fact that, when foreigners can make a product more economically than we can, U.S. production of the product may gradually decline. That's life and that's what competition is all about. On the other hand, Americans—given industrial tranquility and relative monetary stability—can outproduce foreigners in thousands of lines; provided, however, that the U.S. worker is willing.

The plain truth is that we've had it easy for many years after War II, because no other countries had the ability to compete with us. Everyone else was number seven, compared to us, and they tried harder. We got fat and soft. Suddenly we face some very rugged, capable competitors.

As the chamber puts it: "We can get in condition, compete and enjoy the benefits of trade. Or we can run away from the fight, hide behind the wall of tariffs and quotas, and pay more for fewer goods and services. The choice is up to us." Amen to that.

It Used To Be Worse

Saying this is a topsy-turvy world is more than a figure of speech. At one time, North America was literally upside down. Or maybe it was rightside up and is now upside down.

Anyway, several scientists recently analyzed the evidence of the continent's early magnetic orientation locked in ancient rocks in Colorado, Arizona and Wyoming. Then they drew curves through all the data points and came up with this conclusion:

About three billion years ago, North America was below the equator and was upside down in relation to its present position.

It then moved in a wide arc, undergoing first clockwise and then counterclockwise rotation. Other continents moved in similar paths, say scientists.

There are times in a man's life when, regardless of the attitude of the body, the soul is on its knees in prayer.—Victor Hugo, novelist.

This is what I found out about religion: It gives you courage to make the decision you must make in a crisis and the confidence to lead the results to a higher Power. Only by trust in God can a man carrying responsibility find repose.—Dwight D. Eisenhower.

'Doubletalk' On Inflation Is Charged

The Southern States Industrial Council (SSIC) declares the high cost of government is the single most important cause of inflation and has charged the federal government with "doubletalk" on the inflation issue.

Winding up a three-day meeting in Sea Island, Ga., the SSIC board of directors issued a statement in the name of the council asserting that despite the continuing seriousness of the inflation threat, no determined, meaningful effort is being made to bring it under control.

It is shocking, the council directors said, that the federal government planned a deficit of $23 billion for fiscal 1973, now expected to exceed that estimate by $2 billion to $3 billion, on top of a deficit of nearly $39 billion for fiscal 1972. Furthermore, the SSIC said, the excessive government spending is fueling the ambition of labor unions to make inflationary demands that cannot be met by industry in a time of declining productivity.

Allen Nixon, president of E.C. Barton & Company of Jonesboro, Ark., was elected President of the SSIC for the coming year, succeeding A.W. Stewart, President of the Gary Aircraft Corp. of San Antonio, Tex. During the meeting the Council was addressed by U.S. Rep. Floyd Spence of South Carolina and U.S. Rep. Sam Steiger of Arizona.

The council directors viewed the year ahead as one of the most fateful in the country's history. "As a result of the introduction of economic controls, the country is in danger of being saddled with a regimented economy," their statement said. "Our national defenses are approaching the critical state. We have all but abandoned the policy of containing communism which undergirded our liberty in the post-World War II period."

A special tribute was paid by the SSIC to the late J. Edgar Hoover. Insistence on maintenance of law and order has long been a key point in the organization's policy, and it strongly backed the work of the late FBI chief in strict law enforcement and tracking down subversive elements.

A new Declaration of Policy to guide the Council's activities during the coming year was adopted. In it the SSIC was placed on record as opposing the Administration's proposed value added tax (VAT), which was termed a "gimmick tax."

VAT amounts to a national sales tax on manufactured goods—the policy declaration stated. The suggestion has been made that such a tax would be a substitute for the local property tax in supporting the public schools. Experience indicates that Americans would simply have another layer of taxation.

The SSIC's opposition to revenue sharing was reaffirmed. "No need exists for tax revenues to pass through the hands of the Washington bureaucracy before being returned—in part—to the states and local communities," the Council said. "The only meaningful stimulus to state and local governments would be a reduction in federal tax demands."

SSIC positions on other issues in its Declaration of Policy included the following: "The condition of the U.S. Armed Forces is cause for the most serious concern. They need to be re-equipped and refashioned in many respects if the security of the U.S. is to be assured."

"Taking note of the current speculation that the U.S. may recognize the Castro regime in Cuba, the Council considers it would be disastrous because it would legitimize a regime that exists through its use of terror against the Cuban people."

"The SSIC believes that the interests of the United States are best served by support of the free Chinese on Taiwan and not by making military and political concessions to the regime in Peking."

"Though the U.S. postal system was overhauled we have not noted any significant improvement in service. The SSIC believes the only way to make a marked improvement in postal service is to end the government corporation's monopoly of postal service and to allow private corporations to compete freely in carrying all types of mail and packages."

"The SSIC is opposed to unionization of public employees and farm workers and believes strikes and compulsory unionism should be outlawed in the public sector."

RAY CROMLEY Nixon Aim: Boom By Election Day

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—It is not generally realized just how very determined President Nixon is to have a booming economy by Nov. 7, 1972.

But his urgency in speeding economic recovery is leading him into actions which could boomerang greatly in the next several years.

At the Pentagon, at Health Education and Welfare, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and other large-budget agencies, the bureaucrats who oversee what is bought, and when, have been given orders to manage their spending so that a maximum amount of money is pumped into the economy in the months just ahead.

The plan is, further, that some considerable spending which would normally take place in November, December and January will be moved forward where possible to hit the early fall.

Where earlier spending is not feasible, attempts are being made to signal future contracts and future spending in ways that are sufficiently concrete to encourage industry to gear up before November, expanding employment and facilities and increasing inventories.

Behind the scenes, all stops are out in the White House effort to convince the stubbornly independent Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board that the supply of money must be regularly increased at a pace great enough to sustain strong economic growth in the months ahead.

The budget deficit for fiscal 1972 and that projected for fiscal 1973 are at levels which almost insure unsettling inflationary pressures of the same type created by President Johnson's unbalanced war budgets. These pressures, economic analysts now say, brought on the inflation of the present and past several years.

Neither President Nixon nor the Congress apparently have the strength of will to decide on what is not urgently essential in the current budgets and determinedly chop out the deadwood.

The distortions of these policies are already appearing. Despite the overly high unemployment rate, there are indications that employers have been taking on men and women at a faster rate than their business justifies—in anticipation. This could mean slower-than-normal increases in employment at later stages in the recovery.

A money supply arbitrarily increased at a too-rapid pace—combined with heavy federal spending and other artificial stimulants—could effectively destroy the most stringent attempts at price control.

If the inflation pressures increase in the manner outlined above, the price controllers can get as tough as they please, but prices will have a way of rising nevertheless.

This reporter has talked at length with economists who believe that under the best of circumstances we are boxed in permanently at best with an inflation rate of three to four per cent a year. Pressures of the type outlined above could drive those rates up well above that range for the years just ahead.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Reader Exercises A Winking Eye

Dear Dr. Lamb—I reverently read your column and agree with most everything you say, except exercise. I am 17 years old and have ever taken after adolescence was winking at the gals which I do today. No athlete ever lived to age 100 and Jim Thorpe, the greatest, died at a mature but early age. A lot of other athletes as they have gotten older are certainly in poor shape. When an athlete trains he strains his physique and injures his body increasing his chances of heart trouble.

My grandfather drank a quart of whisky daily, not counting cider, and he lived to 101. My relatives all live long. They have good jobs but they don't try to impress their neighbors with trying to be the best dressed or the best smelling. Taking life slowly and a good normal exercise like walking and stretching, with a rule requiring a few days a month outside the automobile would do more good than all the doctor's advice. A cure for heart disease in the future is relaxation in the present.

Dear Reader—I am a firm supporter of walking and if you have read my column as regularly as you have said you know that I have repeatedly emphasized it as the most important form of regular exercise. Certainly a person should be able to demonstrate that he can walk an hour without difficulty before doing anything more strenuous.

I am afraid that a lot of our athletes who have died early in age haven't always continued to stay in top physical condition. This means they have neglected their exercise program, eaten too much and in some instances they have used too much alcohol. Not all of them, including Jim Thorpe, tolerated this unhealthy change in their living habits as well as your grandfather.

Occasionally there are young people who die at an early age from heart disease who are active in athletics, particularly football. Football is not the most ideal form of exercise in developing the heart and blood vessels to top condition, particularly when a lot of emphasis is placed on maintaining a heavy body weight.

There are a lot of records which suggest that athletes live a relatively long time, including the reports on the Harvard rowing teams which have been studied through a number of years. So, I don't think you should equate the benefits of exercise with the medical history of people who have quit exercising.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

To The Graduates (Part II)

Neither be afraid of change, nor for change for change's sake. The only thing that's sure in this world is change. And goodness knows, there's plenty that needs changing. The "American Way of Life" has never been equalled. Be sure you have something better before you agree to a change. Some of the "progressive" ideas such as socialism to replace capitalism, "humanism" or "modernism" to replace Christianity, would set us back almost 2,000 years. For it was that long ago that socialism, humanism and modernism were first proven failures.

My generation—the generation your parents belong to—has done a lousy job for you. We sacrificed great hunks of the individual freedoms your forefathers fought and died for. We swapped them for government-guaranteed womb-to-tomb "security." We ate up not only our seed corn, but part of yours. In the Welfare State, the politicians and bureaucrats get well and you pay the fare.

If we ever want freedom from responsibility more than we want freedom of opportunity, we will cease to be a free people. Prisoners have "security." Life-terms really "have it made!" You can't have freedom and security.

As you begin your serious bargain with life, never forget that the only security you can ever have is the security within yourself. Security, like happiness, can neither be bought nor given. Each of us has to earn our own. Government can give you nothing which it does not first take from someone else. For government is essentially a parasite. It creates nothing. It lives off of the creations of others. Generally speaking, government is your enemy, not your friend, because it's like a predatory male. It'll go as far as the female will let it. If you want government to be your slave and not your master, you must understand it, participate in it, distrust it, control it. For the bigger it is, the littler you are.

Self Respect
Make all of life's bargains on top of the table, not under it. The best payola you can get is your own self-respect. Be a sovereign individual, not just a member of the mob. The great things of the world are accomplished by a relatively few individuals, not by the mass.

Don't go along with the crowd when the crowd is headed toward the precipice. Going along with the crowd is taking the easy, cowardly way. Is that what Jesus did? Or Moses, Christopher Columbus.

Patrick Henry, Robert E. Lee, General MacArthur, or Senator Taft? No. Pontius Pilate went along with the crowd, he decayed morals, more and more Pilates, politicians, publishers, disc jockeys, businessmen, hippies, and editors seem to be taking the easy way. In the end, somehow and somewhere, they'll pay the price.

Like an easy woman, some day they'll find that the easiest are soonest left unloved. Some day they'll learn that you can't lie with the hounds without getting up with fleas. Some day it'll burst upon their consciousness, if not their conscience, that a people who lack the morality to stand on their feet and say "no" will some day have to say "yes" on their knees.

Once a father took his little son with him to steal some corn. As the man prepared to put the corn into the bag, he anxiously looked around to see if anyone was watching. "Son, open the bag quickly," he said. The little boy replied, "Daddy, you didn't look in one direction."

Frightened lest the boy had spotted an observer, the father whispered, "Where? Where?" His son answered simply, "Daddy, you didn't look up."
Character is what you do when nobody but God is looking. The older you get the more you will realize that the things which really count in life are effort, service and character.

Each of us, rich and poor, educated and uneducated, capable and incapable, has a sacred obligation on this earth: to do the best we can; and to make the land we live on, the land we live in, and the world we live with, a better place because we were here.—Copyright 1972, The American Way Features
