By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The first two Concorde to fly commercially into the United States touched down at Dulles International Airport today after beating the sun across the Atlantic.

The supersonic jets, flown by British Airways and Air France, carried passengers at the speed of a bullet.

The first to land was the British plane, which left London at one minute past noon, London time, and arrived in Washington six minutes before noon EDT. There is four hours' time difference between the two cities.

The British plane was four minutes behind schedule. Nonetheless, its flight took three hours and 53 minutes, contrasted to seven hours and 20 minutes by subsonic flight.

The French airliner touched down less than a minute later. It had departed Paris five minutes after the British plane left London. The two jets streaked across the ocean at up to 1,350 miles an hour.

The British jet carried 76 passengers, the French 80. British Airways said 40 of its 76 passengers paid full fare. Air France said 70 of its 80 passengers paid full fare.

The Concorde has a capacity of 100 passengers, but both airlines said they are reducing loads for the first few months to determine how many persons can be carried safely while the planes maintain adequate fuel reserves.

Neither airline said it could tell exactly how many passengers paying full fare are needed on each flight to make a profit, but British Airways estimated it would need 65 or 66 to break even.

A crowd, estimated unofficially at between 2,000 and 3,000 persons, started gathering more than two hours before the arrival. Many in the crowd had binoculars and cameras. They ate hot dogs and cheeseburgers sold by vendors, who did a brisk business.

Inside the airport dignitaries dined on lobster at a buffet provided by the two airlines.

Among the British passengers was Edinburgh bus driver John Trotter, who applied 12 years ago for a ticket to take a 3,658-mile break from his habitual eight-mile routine.

American businessman Myron Karne, another passenger on British Airways' pioneer flight, said before boarding he had just signed a $444,000 contract in Britain.

"The marvel is," he said, "that I will be in Washington in time to sign another major contract there."

Boarding the French plane, Alfred Huete of Milwaukee, Wis., said, "It's the adventure I've aspired to fly this plane ever since it was on the drawing boards."

Al Piesik of McKeesport, Pa., said, "I'm excited about it but I don't know what to feel. It's a feeling of being part of history, I guess."

Piesik and his friend Bill Spears of Pittsburgh, Pa., flew to Paris especially for the flight and paid for it out of their own pockets. Spears, a businessman who frequently travels, said "I feel it's a better way for me. I will use the Concorde. Any advancement in aviation is a big factor for me."

The 3,658-mile crossing from London was scheduled to take 3 hours and 49 minutes, four hours less than subsonic flight. The round-trip fare of $1,300 is 30 per cent more than the normal first-class fare.

The passengers on the inaugural flight were to spend most of their flight time eating and drinking, judging by the menu on the British plane.

The menu: caviar or pate de foie gras, fresh salmon with asparagus and cucumber, steak, grilled lamb cutlets or quail in brandy and truffle sauce, mushrooms in cream sauce, french beans and potatoes, salad of fresh palm hearts from the Seychelles Islands, pineapple and fruit salad, cheese and coffee.

To drink: red Bordeaux, white Chablis and Dom Perignon 1969 champagne. "a very expensive vintage," said a British Airways spokesman.

The two captains, Brian Calvert on the British Concorde and Pierre Duval on the French, were to keep in touch with each other on the flight by radio. But they were to be several minutes apart in the air and would not sight each other until they landed, British Airways said.

The flights today launch a 16-month trial which the British and French governments hope will convince the major American airlines that they, too, must invest in the most expensive plane in airline history. The price now is $65 million to $70 million each, and the British government says that represents a loss of $13 million per plane.

British Airways plans two flights a week to Washington and back, while Air France plans three between Paris and the U.S. capital. But the key to the Concorde's success is service between Europe and New York, which the Port of New York Authority has blocked pending further studies of the effects of supersonic flights. The two airlines are trying to get the courts to lift the ban.

Saturday was a big night for the DiCosimo family with papa, Joe, specially honored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce for 21 years of band directing, and son, Vincent, picked as a recipient of the John Philip Sousa Award.

It was pointed out in the presentation to DiCosimo, the elder that his success in teaching junior high musicians is vital in providing material for the Pride of Pampa Band.

Jeff Doughten, director of the high school band, said that this year he could not narrow down to a single student from the many considered for the annual John Philip Sousa Award presented the outstanding band student.

The director named two of his students to receive the award and split the $100 scholarship that goes with the honor. DiCosimo, the younger, was one. Marsha Holland was the other honoree.

of banquet in the Coronado Inn to recap events of the past year and complete the presentation of all awards, letters, and the hand-made dolls and pen sets given each year to each graduating senior.

A recording of Paul Harvey's radio program when the commentator featured Pampa was played, and letters from President Gerald Ford and Governor Dolph Briscoe were read.

Phil Cates, Chamber of Commerce manager for Shamrock and state representative, spoke. He was responsible for the Pride of Pampa playing at the Shamrock St. Patrick's Day Celebration which resulted in invitations for the band to play at the state capitol in Austin and in Dublin, Ireland for the 1977 St. Patrick's Day Celebration.

Marsha Holland also was honored as Outstanding Girl for the year. The Outstanding Boy award went to Wesley Jones.

Bob McLane was named Outstanding Marcher for the Pride of Pampa marching band season.

In addition to presenting DiCosimo, the elder, with a plaque, Red Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, also presented a plaque of appreciation to the Pride of Pampa Band.

Thanks, Joe DiCosimo

Hostages, hijackers die as troops rush plane

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Filipino troops rushed a hijacked airliner with 93 persons aboard and opened fire only after the leader of the six young Moslem rebels holding the plane shot two women passengers at close range, the Philippine government claimed today.

Officials said 10 passengers and three of the hijackers were killed in the battle Sunday. The slain passengers were a 16-year-old Thai boy and nine Filipinos. Their bodies were being flown to Manila in a special cargo plane today, an airline spokesman said.

One of the dead rebels was described as the leader of the hijackers.

"He gave government troops no alternative but to rush the plane and save as many lives as possible," a government television commentator said of the battle Sunday at Zamboanga airport, about 600 miles south of Manila.

Twenty-two other persons were reported wounded in the fray which ended the hijacking after 48 hours and set the $4 million Philippine Airlines (PAL) jet afire. The airline said the plane, a British BAC111, was a total loss.

The TV commentator said a hijacker hurled a hand grenade after the women were shot. Some passengers said the government troops first fired a tear-gas grenade.

Rear Adm. Romulo Espaldon, the commander of military forces in the southern Philippines, said the pilot of the airliner, Capt. Jovencio Lagazo, gave the signal from inside the plane to start the attack.

Several hijackers tried to escape by mingling with the fleeing passengers, but the passengers pointed them out, and the soldiers shot them, sources said. The three surviving gunmen were taken away for questioning.

Officials said the bodies of 10 persons were found in the gutted fuselage. They included the leader of the hijackers, 22-year-old Pendutan Danansa, alias Zapata, and two of his confederates, Nasser Omar, 15, and Lomuntana Dimaronsing, the officials said.

Three Americans escaped the ordeal unharmed. John Mallett of Cleveland, Ohio, the manager of a banana plantation on Mindanao island, said a stewardess helped him smash a window and he crawled through it to safety.

The other two Americans were Andrew Macs, a lumber executive whose hometown was not known, and Martha Talton of Charleston, S.C. Mrs. Talton was released Saturday in a group of 14 women and children. Three others were released shortly before the shooting.

There were 104 passengers, including the six hijackers, and six crew members on board the plane when the young Moslems commandeered it Friday after it left Davao for Manila. The hijackers forced the pilot to land at Zamboanga.

The government said the hijackers were members of a new rebel organization called the Lanao Revolutionary Command in north central Mindanao. The government has been fighting a Moslem rebellion there for 3 1/2 years.

The hijackers demanded $375,000 and a DC8 to carry them to Libya, which has supported the secessionist movement in the southern Philippines. The government refused but offered them amnesty if they released the hostages.

Ford expects boost from NY

By RUSS PULLIAM
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — President Ford was expected to get a boost today in his campaign against challenger Ronald Reagan as leaders of New York's Republican organization met to decide whether to swing the uncommitted state delegation behind the President.

State Republican Chairman Richard Rosenbaum, who called the meeting of the state's delegation to the August GOP convention in Kansas City, said he would ask the 154 delegates to back Ford.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, who appointed Rosenbaum and still exerts major influence on the state's Republican politics, was one of the delegates scheduled to attend the meeting.

Ford was in California today, campaigning for that state's June 8 primary.

GOP leaders said they expected at least 100 of the New York delegates, and perhaps as many as 130, to follow Rosenbaum's lead. Rosenbaum predicted Sunday that "in excess of 100" delegates would do so.

When first disclosed last week, the impending New York move was expected to push Ford to a healthy lead over Reagan in the nationwide delegate count.

But Ford pulled ahead over the weekend without New York's help, picking up 55 delegates in state conventions to 14 for Reagan and getting the backing of 88 previously uncommitted Pennsylvania delegates. That gave Ford a 578-540 lead in committed delegates.

Ford could be trailing again by Wednesday without the swing by New York delegates. Rosenbaum said Sunday, Idaho, Oregon, Nevada, Tennessee, Kentucky and Arkansas hold primaries Tuesday, and Reagan is favored to pick up many of the 176 delegates at stake in those six states.

Backers of both Ford and Reagan predicted Sunday that the challenger probably will win four of the six primaries.

Sen. John Tower of Texas, a Ford supporter, said the President "will do well to win two of them." He said he feels Ford is safe in Oregon and has a chance in Tennessee, Idaho and Nevada.

Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, the chairman of Citizens for Reagan, said Ford is pushing Reagan only in Oregon and Tennessee.

There were 113 Democratic delegates selected in various state caucuses on Saturday. Forty-one were uncommitted.

but frontrunner Jimmy Carter picked up 27, giving him 741 delegates, almost half the 1,505 needed for the nomination.

Carter claims he will get more than 100 of the 191 Democratic delegates to be picked in Tuesday's primaries.

Before leaving Oregon Sunday evening to fight what is considered by both sides to be an uphill race in California, the President told reporters in Pendleton. "We had a good day yesterday. The momentum has turned our way and we hope to keep the bandwagon rolling toward a first ballot victory in Kansas City."

Reagan, in Eugene, Ore., Sunday, said he was not concerned about the shift in delegates in Pennsylvania. "Those are delegates we had always counted as in his corner. We'd never counted on them," he said.

In an interview in U.S. News & World Report, meanwhile, Reagan proposed a program to rebuild the Panama Canal, boosting the local economy by a billion dollars. Reagan has made retaining the canal a campaign issue.

Reagan said in the interview he would continue to insist that any negotiations aimed at giving up U.S. sovereignty over the canal be halted.

He did not provide details of the program, nor did he discuss financing.

Reagan got an unfriendly greeting at Oregon State University Sunday, and he heckler there forced him to spend several minutes explaining his position on the canal.

In other weekend developments:

—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said in an interview in the Boston Sunday Globe he thinks Carter should be the Democratic nominee if he is within 150 of the number of votes needed for nomination going to the national convention.

Kennedy told Time Magazine, meanwhile, that he has no intention of seeking the presidency at this time. "Of course, I'd like to be president, but it's just not going to happen in this period of my life," he said.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, a long-time associate of the Kennedy family, said he believes Kennedy would accept a genuine draft for the nomination.

—An Associated Press survey of about one-fourth of the delegates who will pick the Democratic presidential nominee showed Brown the top choice for the No. 2 spot on the ticket, with most of that backing coming from delegate; pledged to Carter.

'Big Foot' carried her off

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A search has been launched in the mountains near here for a 23-year-old woman who, according to a group of backpackers, was carried off by a "large, hairy animal," possibly the legendary ape-like creature called "Big Foot."

The Humboldt County sheriff's office and U.S. Forest Service sent posse into a wooded, mountainous area 40 miles north of here Sunday to search for Sherie Darvell of Modoc County.

Officers said about 50 persons would resume the search today.

The report was filed with authorities Saturday afternoon.

"We don't really know what we've got up there," said Sheriff's Sgt. Harold Reed. "A young lady is missing. Until we can definitely show it's an unfounded call, we handle it as if it's strictly legitimate."

Reed added, however, that Big Foot has "never, ever carried someone off before. But none of her family or friends, no one we've been able to contact will admit to knowing where she (Miss Darvell) is."

There have been many reported sightings in the last 20 years of a big, hairy creature in this area. But like the abominable snowman of the Himalayas, scientists have been unable to confirm the existence of the creature — dubbed Big Foot because of large footprints reportedly found in areas where it has been sighted.

The missing woman's four hiking companions — two men and two women — told authorities late Saturday they had been looking for Big Foot midway between the communities of Weitchpec and Orleans.

According to the story, Miss Darvell and Kathleen Bush, 18, were walking on a trail some distance from camp early Saturday when a hairy creature suddenly leaped from the underbrush, shoved Miss Darvell down and grabbed Miss Darvell. Miss Bush said she tumbled about 40 yds down the steep trail and did not get a good look at the creature.

The other members of the hiking party were identified as Terry Gaston and Ed Bush, both 45, and Jacqueline Bush, Sheriff's Sgt. Fred Dutton said he understood they were all from Modoc County.

It warrants imitation

The "no-fault" concept has spread from automobile insurance to divorce and now to consumer products. At least one company has tried it, anyway, and reports that it works.

Most companies guarantee their products with offers to repair or replace components that fail within a certain period of time. Three years ago, the Gast Manufacturing Corp. of Benton Harbor, Mich., introduced a novel "no-fault" warranty covering its air compressors, vacuum pumps and air motors for any reason — even deliberate abuse or neglect by the customer.

The company has discovered that while its warranty repair costs have been slightly higher, these have been more than offset by the elimination of lengthy correspondence and report writing by its service department.

"In addition," says Herman Robandt, Gast's director of marketing and sales, "our customers have never been more satisfied. Their buyers don't have to haggle with sales and service departments, trying to establish who's at fault when abuse or neglect are involved."

In the few cases where failure has occurred because of abuse or neglect, the customer receives a letter notifying him that his unit has been repaired at no charge. The letter also outlines the reason for the failure and points out that if the same unit is goofed up again, a charge will probably be made.

That seems fair enough. Every customer should be given one chance. The no-fault warranty sounds like an idea that deserves to be copied.

and against 'em

I took it pretty hard, back when Elvis Presley was buying all those fancy cars for all those folks in Colorado. I kept thinking that my name would crop up somehow and Old Swivelhips would roll one of those luxury sets of wheels my way. No luck.

Now I'm waiting to find my name on one of the Howard Hughes wills — the real one preferably. I have no idea how he (Howard) would have known about me or why he would have included me in a will, but maybe he appreciated the fact that I left him alone — never tried to call him; never tried to get a picture of him; and never made a fuss of him for building that big, awkward airplane.

At this writing there have been 17 wills promoted as being the real McCoy. A couple of fellows recently put classified ads in a Florida newspaper offering to draw up Hughes wills naming anybody with two bucks as sole beneficiary.

That would make any will sold by the industrious, honest forgers worth $2 more than the value that has been placed on any of the other 17.

The purported will that named Noah Dietrich as executor is thought by some experts to be a useless Hughes' list — a Noah count document, one could say. Other experts say that the will, which was discovered on a desk in Mormon church headquarters, is the genuine article.

But even if it is the real document, Noah's ship still is a long ways from coming in (maybe that should be Noah's ark). With as much money involved as there is and with all the mystery that surrounded Old Howard, it isn't likely that the courts will declare any document as legitimate any time soon.

The way to cash in on all the Hughes wills business would be to bet that regardless of who Howie named and regardless of how he wanted the dollars divided, Uncle Sam will come out as the biggest recipient.

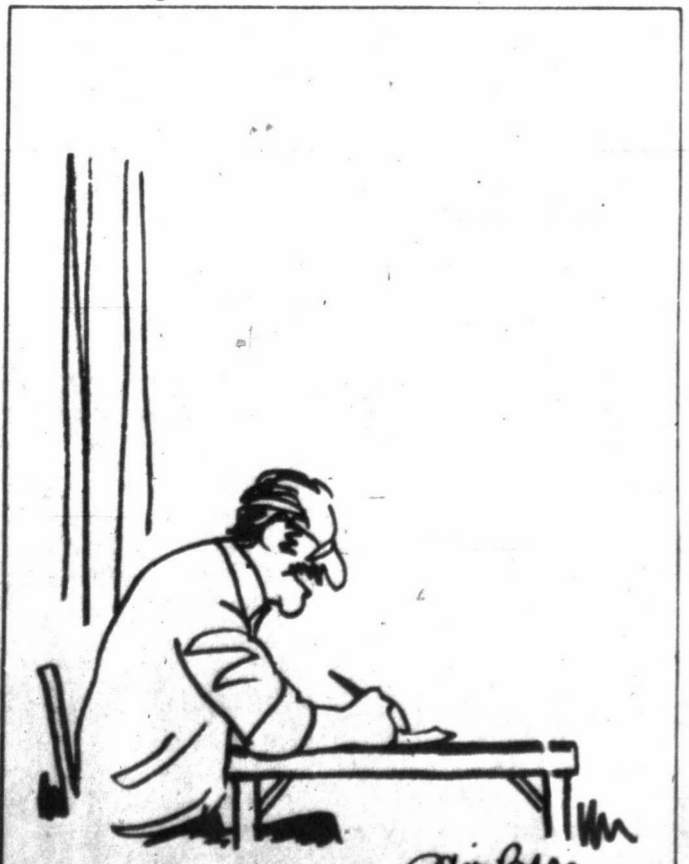

If nobody will bet against you on that, offer them odds and bet that Old Sam will be the one who winds up with the whole ball of wax. Think how long all that Hughes money could keep New York City from declaring bankruptcy. Think how many food stamps it could pay for printing. Think of all the welfare checks that could be written on the vast sum. Think of how much interest could be paid on the national debt.

By the way, I've got my own theory on those 17 wills. I figure they are all valid. And I think they will find many, many more genuine Hughes wills. Cause I figure that's how Howard spent all those years he was living in seclusion, just writing away at wills.

Meanwhile, I'm going to keep dreaming. Just dreaming, though. I'm not going to work at it the way some folks are. Interesting, isn't it, how much effort is being put into getting something for nothing — folks trying to forge ahead of one another.

It seldom works out. I'll bet that even if Elvis visits Texas and drops off a set of keys, I'll have to sell the car to pay the taxes on it. That's just the way my luck seems to be running.

Movers work

The college class of 1976 can expect a boost onto the career ladder if their new jobs require moving. There seems to be a trend in that direction, anyway, says Ticor Relocation Management Co., an employee relocation services firm.

Ticor recently queried its 200 corporate clients and reports that a number of them have decided to treat new employees and regular transferees the same.

The old argument was that since most recent college graduates do not have such responsibilities as family, mortgage payments, etc., they are more likely to leave a company after receiving training and experience. The new attitude is that these same reasons make relocation assistance economically feasible, and is often a compelling extra incentive.

The typical college graduate does not have a house to sell, will not be in the market for one in his new location and the amount of household goods to be shipped is usually only a fraction of that of a homeowner. Thus it actually costs a company very little to extend full relocation benefits to newly hired college graduates.

The FBI found Howard Hughes' will by accident: They stopped searching roulette wheels and looked for a safe deposit box.

Sky pie now being served

The object of running for office is being elected. One does this in America in many ways, one of which is throwing pie into the sky and inviting the voters to eat.

From now until election day, presidential aspirants will plaster the voter with promises. One of those promises will be "full employment."

Full employment is a noble objective but the road to that objective can be straight and narrow or it can be crooked and wide. They are saying that the government ought to create jobs, that there ought to be a job for anyone who wants one.

Certainly anyone who wants to work should work, and under normal conditions anyone willing to work will find something to do. It might not be the job he wants, but he probably can find something to do to tide him over until the right opportunity rolls around.

The problem arises when candidates, such as California Governor Jerry Brown, voice some nice-sounding phrases that tend to snowball in the minds of the voters. Speaking before the Los Angeles Building Trades Council recently, Brown said:

"We need a decisive commitment that people are more important than profits, and full employment has to take the first priority."

A noble thesis but one basically with a weak foundation.

One only has to look to once-great, once-proud England to see that this philosophy failed miserably. This country has had 30 years of experimenting with putting people before production and profits. Without production and without profits, there can be no employment — no matter how hard a government might wish for it or try to legislate it.

At about the same time Brown was speaking, Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson was resigning, reviving the analysts' interest in the reasons for Britain's steady economic decline.

The Associated Press reported Wilson's own statement on jobs, profits and people:

"Britain's nationalized

Ray Cromley

Fast recovery of economy misleading

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Despite optimistic statements by the business community, there are signs of a paucity of confidence that threatens the pace of our economic recovery.

Statistically, the economic factors are favorable. A 60 per cent rise in average stock prices since the 1974 low makes it possible for companies to move into the market as they couldn't for some time and to raise the capital they need for expansion. In fact, business firms are dipping into this market at an unprecedented rate.

But though Federal Reserve Board czar Arthur Burns says "new capital appropriations of large manufacturing firms rose sharply during the final quarter of 1975, new orders for nondefense capital goods have now increased three months in a row. Production of business equipment has risen briskly during the past four or five months and the physical volume of total business investment in fixed capital has increased significantly in each of the past two quarters." The specialists, including Burns himself, note that expansion and modernization of critical U.S. industrial plants is moving at a pace too slow to meet our needs. Productivity is lagging. In some industries — specifically paper, aluminum, steel — the outlook is for production to be restricted by a shortage of capacity, which could mean a burgeoning of inflation with a surplus of buyers bidding prices higher for these scarce materials. Inflation in such basic commodities could spread widely through the economy.

With profits markedly up and financing available, it is chiefly a lack of confidence which holds back optimum modernization and expansion in such key fields.

It should be noted that the greatest expansion and efficiency-increase problems lie in the industries where environmental and other regulatory officials are giving industry fits — in many cases because of inequitable regulations, inequitable enforcement of regulations, delays, or on-again-off-again enforcement and haphazard shifts in rules. It's enough to shake the confidence of any company board of directors.

Consumer spending is up. But there are signs here, too, of a lack of confidence. Though home construction starts early this year were 50 per cent above early 1975, that industry is still depressed. That in the face of a growth in new families and despite available financing at rates considerably lower than in the recent past, though still high by historical standards.

A lack of confidence shows up in still other ways. Businessmen are engaged in what the Wall Street Journal calls anticipatory price increases — raising prices to meet the inflation they anticipate down the road. Labor, burned by past inflation, likewise shows little confidence that the problem is about to be licked. Unions are, therefore, naturally seeking gains sufficient to meet the cost of living boosts they see coming.

These trends tend to make inflation more likely and could mean Federal Reserve Board foot dragging which could slow recovery.

Coming from all sides, the hesitations and worrisome defects in confidence mentioned above take the gilt off of what would otherwise seem overpoweringly favorable economic news. Business profits have "recorded large gains." The incomes of workers — those not in the unemployed lines — have "increased substantially" in real terms. Though unemployment remains high, the number of men and women working is increasing steadily. Banks are beginning to work their way out of the burden of bad loans they made in the gilded real estate boom period.

Distorted reality of TV's heavy viewer

By Don Oakley

Instead of worrying that violence on television stimulates people to commit violent or aggressive acts, we should be more concerned about how it distorts our view of the real world.

This is the contention of two University of Pennsylvania researchers, who have conducted surveys over the past four years to find out how people are affected by watching television.

Heavy TV viewers "see the real world as more dangerous and frightening than those who watch very little," write George Gerbner and Larry Gross in an article entitled "The Scary World of TV's Heavy Viewer," in Psychology Today magazine.

They define heavy viewers as those who watch television four or more hours a day. About a third of all adult Americans fall into this category, they say. Nearly half the children 12 years of age watch six or more hours of television daily on the average.

When asked to estimate their own chances of being involved in some type of violence during any given week, heavy TV viewers were 33 per cent more likely than light viewers (those who watch two hours or less a day) to pick such fearful odds as 50-50 or one in 10, rather than the more accurate estimate of one in 100.

Heavy TV viewers also overestimated the percentage of Americans who hold professional or managerial jobs such as doctors, lawyers and executives, groups that are found twice as commonly on TV as in U.S. society at large.

Heavy viewers were also more likely than light viewers to overestimate the number of males employed in law enforcement, apparently due to the fact that about 20 per cent of those pictured on television are engaged in law enforcement compared to less than one per cent in the real world.

As an example of how we tend to look on television characters as representatives of the real world, the researchers cite a stunning 250,000 letters that poured in requesting medical advice of "Marcus Welby, M.D." during the first five years of his practice on TV.

Television, say Gerbner and Gross, offers "a universal curriculum that everyone can learn" — and therein lies its peril. The fact that most TV "action-adventure" dramas take place in urban settings may be contributing to the current flight of the middle class from our cities, they believe, and may also bring increasing demands for police protection and election of law-and-order politicians.

"Instead of threatening the social order," they conclude, "television may become our chief instrument of social control."

Still CARE-ing

It was on May 11, 1946 that the first CARE package arrived at Le Havre, France. In the 30 years since then, the agency that was born out of the desperate plight of postwar Europe has provided more than $1.9 billion worth of food, emergency relief, medical supplies and self-help services and training to people in 77 nations.

Some 42 million persons in the United States and Canada have given $318 million to CARE, either as individuals or through their organizations. These contributions have been vastly magnified by stretching them out with U.S. agricultural surpluses and local supplies and labor from the recipients themselves. Last year, for example, each dollar donated to CARE was translated into $5.13 worth of aid.

"On our 30th anniversary," says CARE executive director Frank L. Goffio, "we say a profound 'thank you' to all those who have supported our work and we pledge to continue to serve as a direct channel for people-to-people aid to relieve the suffering of the world's needy and to help them build resources for human progress."

Kissinger received a cable from Ford. It read "Wish you were here and I was there."

Udall once played basketball. But now it seems like the bottom of the net has been sewed up.

GOP leaders insist there's no fight in the party. Just a family squabble between Cain and Abel.

In order to deny Reagan the nomination, Rockefeller may buy Kansas City and claim it as a tax deduction.

Goldwater has a secret plan to delay the GOP nomination. He'll name Reagan as a closet cattle baron.

If Jerry Brown gets elected he may lay off congress and rent the Pentagon to Disney World.

WASHINGTON — Here are some items of interest to Texans from the nation's capital.

VETERAN SHOWDOWN: A first-term Pennsylvania congressman recently took on veteran Texas Reps. Olin Teague and Ray Roberts and has come out ahead — at least momentarily.

Democratic Rep. Robert Edgar, backed the two Texans both leaders of the House Veterans Committee, over giving some veterans currently enrolled in college another two years of aid. Roberts, the McKinney congressman who chairs the committee, and Teague, its former head, maintained that 1955-466 veterans who would be affected by the Edgar proposal have had long enough to exercise their educational assistance option.

The 10-year eligibility for this group of veterans ends June 1. At a projected cost of $610 million, Edgar believes that the deadline should be extended two years.

During recent floor debate, Edgar charged that his proposal never received adequate committee consideration because of the opposition of Roberts. His amendment passed the full House, over the objections of both the Budget Committee and Roberts, by a 218-188 vote.

The proposal, now winding through Congress' complex budgetary process, could still be changed.

It is not at all improbable, however, that Roberts and Teague will ultimately prevail. The Edgar amendment must still be approved by a House-Senate conference committee.

CONTINUED OPPOSITION — Sen. John Tower, vice chairman of the Special Senate Intelligence Committee that recently issued all those reports on the CIA and FBI, has continued his strong opposition to revamping congressional oversight of U.S. intelligence agencies.

The Texas Republican opposes the committee's recommendation to establish a single Senate panel to review the intelligence matters. The Senate is considering that proposal now.

Tower maintained that one committee would be an "inappropriate mechanism" because it would deny other committees information they need to perform their jobs properly. The senator also said a single panel would dangerously increase the likelihood of security leaks by giving too much information to one committee.

"To keep our enemies from penetrating our national defense, we must necessarily restrict the number of Americans — and that includes senators — having full knowledge of intelligence operations," Tower said.

SETTING UP SHOP — In his first five weeks in the House, Texas' newest congressman, Rep. Ron Paul, has quickly established himself as one of the most conservative members of Congress.

The Houston Republican, who won a special April 3 election to fill former Rep. Robert Casey's 22nd District seat, has hired Ron Dear, past executive director of the American Conservative Union, as his top aide. Dear previously served as the executive director of the Ronald Reagan presidential campaign in Texas.

On the House floor, Paul has consistently voted against federal spending measures. He recently was one of only three congressmen — the others were ultra-conservatives Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois and Rep. Larry McDonald of Georgia — to vote against an uncontroversial vocational education bill.

"I'm convinced my votes are totally consistent with the platform I ran on," said Paul, a Reagan supporter. "I don't believe federal funds should be involved in education period. Philosophically, constitutionally and morally the government should not be involved in education."

The conservative Republican added that he has voted against most spending programs because "there is no cash. Every penny you spend has to be really, really justified."

NEW SUPPORTERS — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, having scored an impressive victory in the Texas primary, is gaining some new support from Texas congressmen.

Denton will back Sadler

By The Associated Press

Rep. Lane Denton, the third-place finisher in the Democratic primary race for the Texas Railroad Commission May 1, said Saturday he will vote for Jerry Sadler in the runoff.

Sadler led in the first primary and is matched against Rep. Jon Newton, D-Beeville, in the June 5 runoff.

Denton said Newton, "both by his sworn financial statements and his public statements, shows himself to be the adopted son of the big oil and gas companies."

Denton, D-Waco, added in a statement, "The election of Jon Newton will continue the control of the railroad commission by the oil and gas industries."

Newton, 34, admitted spending more than $225,000 in the first primary, including heavy infusions of oil money.

Sadler, 68, making his 10th statewide race since 1938, spent some $2,000 — and half of that was for the filing fee to get on the ballot.

Sadler led the eight-man race with 364,984 votes. Newton trailed with 339,876. Denton was third with 246,093.

The fifth-place finisher, Robert Wood of Pampa, who got 110,652 votes, has endorsed Newton.

"No one who voted in the Republican primary can vote in our runoff," said Sadler.

Henry tries to heal wounds

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Prime Minister Olof Palme met for three hours Monday in an effort to restore the friendly relations between the Swedish and American governments that went sour over the Indochina war.

The secretary of state's ar-ival from West Germany Sunday was preceded by one of the biggest demonstrations in Swedish history against a foreign visitor. About 12,000 people marched to the gates of the U.S. Embassy shouting "Kissinger is a war criminal" and "Crush imperialism."

After their meeting, Kissinger and Palme talked briefly with newsmen and reported "a good exchange of views."

Kissinger acknowledged that some differences of opinion exist, particularly concerning East-West relations. He added that "There are many areas of convergence ... and there are many areas on which we should exchange views."

"Our perspectives are not identical in many areas," Kissinger said. This was an apparent reference to his often-voiced concern over the threat of communism in Western Europe. Palme also asked many questions about the so-called Sonnenfeldt doctrine.

This involves a statement by Helmut Sonnenfeldt, the State Department counselor on the stability of relations between the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

The secretary said African and Latin-American questions were also covered in his talks with Palme, which began with a two-hour session Sunday night.

Palme praised as "highly remarkable" Kissinger's statement earlier this month favoring black majority rule in southern Africa.

The Swedish prime minister stressed to reporters that the important thing is that despite differences of opinion the United States understands the basic Swedish foreign policy of neutrality.

Palme had been one of the most vocal non-Communist critics of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia during the Nixon administration. Relations deteriorated to the point where the two governments called their ambassadors home for an extended period. The ambassadors have returned to their posts and during his recent visit to the United States King Carl XVI Gustaf invited Kissinger to lunch.

Sunday's demonstration was organized by about 50 leftist groups, including the Communist party.

Kissinger was described as not wanting anything from the Swedes and having no proposals to make. No concrete issues are outstanding between the two countries, the official said.

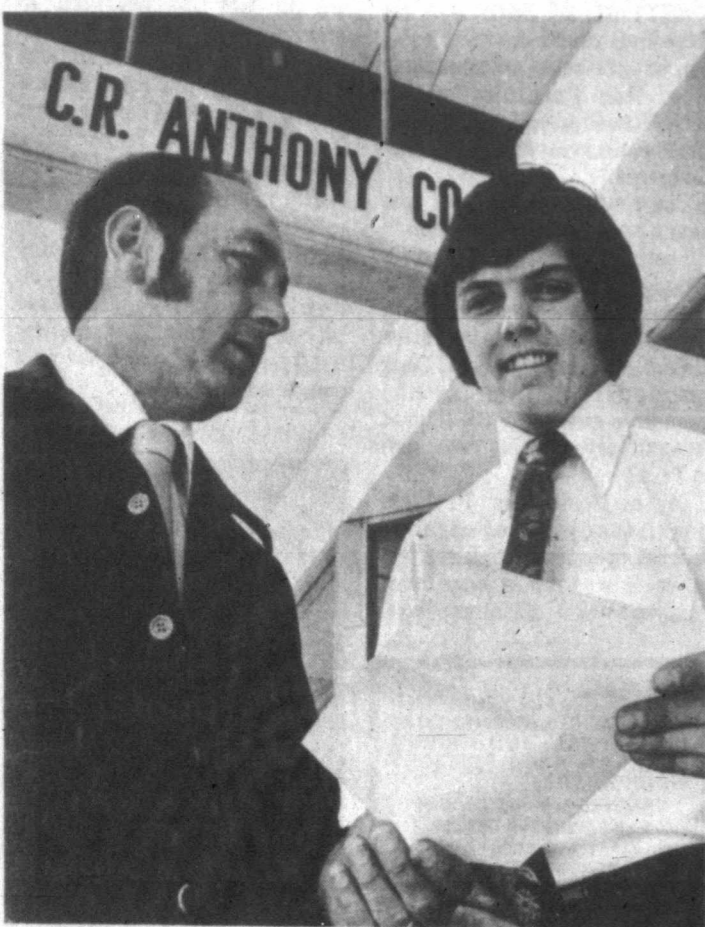

In a brief statement at the Stockholm airport, Kissinger said: "We understand the Swedish policy of neutrality. We, on the other hand, have a responsibility for the security of free peoples, even those not allied to us.

"We will never forget this country's devotion to the democratic principles uniting our two countries."

Recalling that some members of his family fled from Nazi Germany to Sweden, Kissinger added: "I have a personal reason to thank the Swedish people for giving refuge to members of my family when they left a totalitarian system."

The secretary planned to visit one of these relatives, his 75-year-old uncle, Arno Kissinger, who has lived in Stockholm since 1936. He may also visit the grave of his grandfather, David Kissinger, who died here in 1948.

Hays cancels trip to face accusations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wayne L. Hays canceled a planned trip to England to receive the Magna Carta as moves got under way for a possible congressional investigation into accusations that he kept a mistress on the House payroll.

The accusation against Hays, 64, chairman of the House Administration Committee, was made by the woman who claimed she had been his mistress, Elizabeth Ray, 27.

"The woman is a former mental patient," Hays said Sunday during a speech at a Memorial Day observance in Hanoverton, Ohio. "I deny vehemently any of the charges."

A congressional delegation which was to have included Hays flew to England without him Sunday to receive a lent copy of the Magna Carta, the original charter of English liberties, for the U.S. Bicentennial.

Hays said he was remaining in Washington to discuss with his attorneys the possibility of a lawsuit in connection with the allegations.

Miss Ray said she was paid $14,000 a year in House funds to serve as Hays' mistress. After Miss Ray's accusations, Hays said he was going to fire her from her post on a subcommittee staff.

She described a luxuriously appointed office in the House Longworth Building where, she said, she spent a few hours a week but did no office work. Hays visited her apartment once or twice a week through-out the past two years for sexual relations, she said.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-

N.J., chairman of the accounts subcommittee of Hays' own House Administration Committee, said he would call his panel together to consider an investigation of Hays' and Miss Ray's relationship.

Thompson said he will convene the subcommittee as soon as possible after he returns from a European trip in mid-June. The panel may seek testimony from Hays, who routinely submits the committee's budget from which Miss Ray was paid, Thompson added.

As chairman of the Administration Committee, Hays exercises enormous power over House members controlling the allocation of offices, staffing, travel, payrolls, parking and police. Last year Hays survived an attempt to replace him as committee chairman with Thompson.

White Deer man arraigned today

A White Deer man was arraigned this morning on burglary charges after he was apprehended inside the Ideal Food Store at 431 N. Ballard.

Keith Dupuy, 20, was found by officers in the store's pharmacy when they went to investigate a burglary alarm.

Justice of the Peace E.L. Anderson set Dupuy's bond at $10,000.

Other weekend burglaries investigated by the police included reports from Hamlin Car Wash at 524 W. Foster and Wilson Elementary School.

A door to the storage building at the car wash was broken in a 1/4-inch Black and Decker drill, a tool and die set, and two and one half cases of soft drinks were taken. Losses were $50.

Several windows at the Wilson School had been broken and entry gained. Blood was found near the broken glass and nothing was reported missing. Damage was estimated at $20.

E.B. Wight was driving his car under some railroad tracks in the 100 block of S. Barnes when he heard two loud noises and noticed two holes in his windshield. A rock was found on the hood of the car. Police questioned three boys about the incident.

The windshield of Linda Marie Ford's car was broken when some boys threw water-filled balloons at the car in the 800 block of W. Foster. Parents were contacted and will pay for the damage. Ms. Ford lives at 1200 Bond.

Mirrors on a pickup belonging to Bill Kidwell of 600 Bradley were broken while the vehicle was parked outside the residence.

Earl Culver of 2121 Williston reported the theft of two trash cans filled with beer cans collected for the Boy Scouts. The cans were located in a stock trailer at Hendrick Animal Clinic and on the Bowers City highway.

Home Goodman of 2201 Dogwood told police someone took a 20-inch boys bicycle from his garage. A tape player and three tapes were reported missing from a car belonging to R.D. Hawkins of 1700 N. Evergreen.

Foy Barrett of 516 Hazel told police his unlocked pickup was parked outside a church on Mary Ellen and a $100 23 channel CB radio was taken.

State Liquor Control agents and Pampa police officers, acting on several weeks of investigation, made two arrests for liquor violations.

Charlie Walker, 29, of 630 S. Somerville was charged with selling beer on Sunday at a local Lounge. Municipal Judge Don Lane set his bond at $52.50.

Martha Gumm of 220 N. Houston was charged with selling liquor without a permit. Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford set bond at $500 and she was released.

Officers confiscated several bottles of liquor, wine and beer. Police also investigated four non-injury accidents.

By The Associated Press

Severe thunderstorms with a few tornadoes, heavy rains, high winds and large hail menaced Texas from the Panhandle to the southeast Sunday night but most of the turbulent weather dissipated by today.

Severe thunderstorm warnings went up early this morning in Angelina, Polk, Tyler, Cherokee and Houston counties in Southeast Texas. But clear to partly cloudy skies domed the rest of the state.

Funnel clouds were sighted Sunday night near Rockwall and Bryson in North Texas and in Llano and Mason counties of Central Texas. No major damage was reported.

Marble-size and golf ball-size hail covered the ground at Haskell, Albany, Plainview and Tulia. Several businesses at Plainview sustained minor damage.

Severe thunderstorms were centered around Austin and over a broad area from Dallas-Fort Worth to Southeast Texas. The Texas Rangers-California Angels baseball game was called after Arlington Stadium was covered by hail and menaced by lightning.

Home plate umpire Nestor Chylak, a veteran of 23 years in the big leagues, said the sudden storm was the worst he had ever seen.

"I've seen hail at games before but I never saw golf ball-size hail that fell and still was on the field an hour later," he said.

Quinlans, doctors remaining silent

DENVILLE, N.J. (AP) — A spokesman for St. Clare's Hospital here and the attorney for Karen Anne Quinlan's parents refuse to confirm or deny news reports that the comatose woman is breathing on her own now without assistance from a respirator.

NBC News and the Morris County Record said Sunday that Miss Quinlan has been successfully weaned from the respirator that has kept her alive for more than a year.

The woman's parents won permission from the state Supreme Court on March 31 to disconnect the machine and allow her to die if a hospital ethics board certified her condition as hopeless.

Neither the hospital nor the attorney would confirm the newspaper's report that Miss Quinlan, 22, was moved from the intensive care unit to a private room on Saturday.

The hospital would say only that her condition remains critical.

NBC said weaning Miss Quinlan from the respirator was a way of bypassing the requirement for an ethics board decision, necessary before she could be allowed to die.

In a trial last October, physicians testified that it was possible for Miss Quinlan to live without the machine but that previous attempts at weaning had failed.

Weaning is a common medical procedure for comatose patients.

The network said Miss Quinlan's removal from the respirator did not necessarily mean her condition has improved.

Paul Armstrong, the family attorney, said the news reports were "ill-informed" and based on "thoughtless speculation," but he would not say if they were substantially correct.

"Information about Miss Quinlan's medical condition remains within the sacred realm of the family," he said. "That fact is immutable."

However, Armstrong specifically denied the newspaper's report that the parents had asked the hospital to stop Miss Quinlan's intravenous feeding and to stop using medication against infections.

The newspaper said the Quinlans and their attorneys have reached an impasse with their daughter's physicians and hospital officials over what now constitutes "ordinary medical practice."

The agency said it could not predict yet whether the typhoon would approach Honshu, Japan's main island, but it was likely huge waves and heavy rains would begin lashing Honshu's Pacific coast by Wednesday.

The typhoon struck Guam on Friday, killing five people and damaging 70 per cent of the structures on the island. Guam was declared a disaster area Saturday.

Typhoon Olga was downgraded to the force of a tropical storm but lingered over La-when she was trapped in the debris of a wrecked mobile home, and damage of several hundred thousand dollars was reported from the storm.

Other thunderstorms, scattered from the lower half of the Mississippi valley into the eastern Plains, produced more severe weather, hail, locally heavy rains and gusty winds over the center of the nation.

Texas had most of the severe weather with two tornadoes near Dallas, wind gusts to nearly 60 miles per hour and hail up to three inches in diameter.

A flash flood watch also was in effect for southeast Kansas as thunderstorms continued to bring rain into an area already soaked by locally heavy downpours.

Rain and occasional thunder-showers continued into the early morning over the northern and central Rockies, and a few showers remained in New England.

Once again, a frost warning was posted over the lower peninsula of Michigan as temperatures dropped under clear skies.

Skies were clear this morning over the Southwest, along the Great Lakes, into the Ohio valley and along the North Atlantic Coast.

Temperature over the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 81 degrees at Needles, Calif., to 35 degrees at both Duluth, Minn., and Philipsburg, Pa.

Killer typhoon takes aim on Iwo Jima, Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Pamela headed toward Japan today with undiminished power after battering Guam with multimillion-dollar destruction, the meteorological agency said.

Pamela was 180 miles southwest of Iwo Jima and about 700 miles south of Japan, with top winds of 110 miles an hour and moving north at 12 miles an hour, the agency said. It had a 400-mile storm radius.

The newspaper said the Quinlans and their attorneys have reached an impasse with their daughter's physicians and hospital officials over what now constitutes "ordinary medical practice."

The agency said it could not predict yet whether the typhoon would approach Honshu, Japan's main island, but it was likely huge waves and heavy rains would begin lashing Honshu's Pacific coast by Wednesday.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You are an ignorant woman for giving your approval to a traditional church wedding for a 23-year-old "bride" who was being married for the first time and who admitted to having had an illegitimate child. She said it was her "heart's desire," and even asked if her illegitimate child could be her flower girl, and you said yes to that, which was also ridiculous.

I have no doubt that you would also approve of a traditional church wedding for a girl who was only six-months pregnant simply because it was her "heart's desire."

What about the standards set up by a conventional society?

STILL LAUGHING

DEAR LAUGHING: Enjoy your laugh, but I weep for one who values the opinion of a "conventional society" above the feelings of a bride who would harm no one by realizing her heart's desire.

DEAR ABBY: I am a junior high school teacher. Yesterday I found a crumpled note written by one of my students. It read,

Hi, Tina:

Yesterday Nancy and I skipped school. We went to her house and watched television. Her mother works which makes it nice. When I went home at 4 o'clock my mother told me that the school had telephoned to find out why I was absent. Lucky for me, my mom said that I was home sick.

Abby, a child skipped school, and her mother lied to protect her. This type of thing is very discouraging. What is happening to the integrity of people today?

UPSET TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: There have always been mothers who would lie to cover up for their children, and there always will be. But I believe they are in the minority. Most mothers would have told the truth and let their child suffer the consequences.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago my best friend asked me to be her maid of honor, and of course I was delighted. I live in Iowa and the wedding will take place in California, which is where she lives.

Nothing was mentioned about who would pay my plane fare, so I guess I am expected to pay it. We are both working girls, and I doubt if her parents can foot the bill for my transportation, although they are putting on the wedding and the plans are quite lavish.

Should I write and mention my plane fare? Or do you think I should just assume that I'm expected to pay it myself? When she asked me to be her maid of honor she said that her parents were buying the gowns for the girls in the wedding party, but we would have to buy our own shoes. Hurry your reply.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Since nothing was mentioned about your plane fare, it's safe to assume that you are expected to pay your own way. If she sends you a ticket, it will be a pleasant surprise.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column some time ago about the problem of lactose in milk and how many people were unable to drink milk or use milk products. Although we have a dairy farm I have this problem. It really upsets me to have gas, cramps and diarrhea everytime I try to drink a glass of milk. At first my doctor thought it was just nerves but I found out about the lactose problem from reading your column and stopped using milk and all milk products. Miracles of miracles, nerves and all, I got well. I wonder how many other people with gas, diarrhea and indigestion don't know that milk may be their problem.

My question is, your column indicated that there might be a way to split the double sugar with an enzyme. Is there any way people like me can get the enzyme? I'd dearly love to be able to use milk again. Besides my husband would be happier if the market for milk could actually be improved.

DEAR READER — Yes, there is a way to split the double sugar, lactose, found in milk and milk products. And I am happy to tell you that it is now available in some parts of the country. The product is made from a special type of yeast and the small packets of it are marketed as Lact-Aid. You can put one packet of powder into one quart of fresh milk and let it stand in the refrigerator for 24 hours or longer and it will convert about 75 per cent of the lactose double sugar into single sugars. I have tried it and it works.

You can get the packets from SugarLo Company, P.O. Box 1017, Atlantic City, N.J. 08404. Hopefully, as knowledge of the product is more widespread it will become available in local supermarkets across the country. It is already available in parts of Canada. Alan Kligerman of SugarLo plans to make the process available to dairies so they can produce low lactose milk and market it to the public. Your husband will be happy to hear that. Other people who want their dairy to provide such a product can tell their local dairy to contact SugarLo about the process.

You may need to encourage some dairies to do this. I would suggest that all of you who have gas, diarrhea problems and problems with milk tolerance get busy and write to Dr. Richard Farrar, United Dairy Industry Association, 6300 North River Road, Rosemont, Illinois 60018. Tell him that you want the dairy industry to provide a milk product that is low in lactose.

Dairy farmers who want the market of those millions of Americans who would like to use milk but can't unless it is converted to low lactose products should also push Dr. Farrar a little bit to encourage national distribution of low lactose dairy products. Since more than 80 per cent of blacks and other minorities and about 10 per cent of whites have this problem it is a huge market awaiting the time the dairy industry provides low lactose products nation wide. It will help both the dairy farmer and the people with poor lactose tolerance.

I think this is an exciting prospect to really do something about the lactose problem millions have. Of course the dairies will have to use low lactose milk to make low lactose cottage cheese, yogurt and other milk products. Current commercial methods of making these products does not eliminate the lactose problem and these commercial products still cause people to get sick. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — I am all for recycling anything I can and one of the best things is bread bags. I use them to freeze bulk meat such as hamburger in useable quantities, as well as for freezing fresh vegetables from our garden. The bread bags are much sturdier than sandwich type bags. They are also obviously much cheaper for me than freezer bags, and they can be put to various sizes as needed. I will never buy another freezer bag. —MRS. G.S.

DEAR POLLY — I have an energy and time saver for the other readers. Our old style gas range has a pilot light, so I keep a tea kettle of water over the pilot light when I am not cooking. I find the water will reach 120 degrees when left there over night, which is quite a jump when you consider that tap water is from 42-48 degrees F. It then takes less time to boil water, thereby using less gas. By doing this we make use of otherwise lost heat from the pilot light. Also a bit of water vapor is added to the house during the long dry heating season. The credit for this goes to my husband who is one smart cookie. —SANDRA.

Save your money, buy a home

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures

These days bridal gift money often sends many a young couple on the road to owning a house. The word is passed to parents "cash preferred" and everybody cooperates.

But some young newlyweds may get sidetracked, and at least one couple advises, "sock it away and don't touch it."

They had the right idea and they planned to let the money draw interest while they lived on earnings.

"But we began to borrow from it even before we had it," says the bride of one year. "We hadn't planned to take an expensive honeymoon, but we decided to live it up, just this once. Then we used some of the money for a used car and even for entertainment..."

A year later they've spent almost $4,000 "and a house seems a long way off."

What were the mistakes? Well, they rented an apartment that was too expensive, and they also began buying furnishings that were not needed immediately for their lifestyle.

"Now our parents are asking when we are going to get a house and we really don't know what to say," says the bridegroom, 26.

It really isn't too late to start again, he says. He has just had a $20 weekly raise "that will go right into the bank," he has promised himself. But he caught himself saying, "When the sofa is paid off..."

They have learned a lot in this year of money mistakes, and in some respects it may have been a good lesson. They feel equipped to pass on this advice to other young people:

—Put your wedding cash into an account so you will not be tempted to touch it. Pretend you don't have it. If one person is more frugal and thrifty put it in one name. (Savings bonds, they say, may be a better idea because it takes a little effort to convert them into cash.)

—Acquire only those luxuries you really can afford. (But they insist every young couple should save a little money for a nice honeymoon, even for only a few days—something to remember.)

—Have a real goal about the house you want so you don't lose sight of the idea. Save for it at once. Go to see houses occasionally. Occupy some of your time deciding what you want in a house. Decide how much you can comfortably pay for a house. (If you dismiss the idea, even temporarily, it may get too far behind you.)

—It is easy to live frugally the first year if you have a great goal. Buy inexpensive furnishings at garage sales and old furniture stores. Refurnish they should be useful later in a den or some other room of the house-to-be.

—Tap parents and friends for some things instead of trying to purchase every little thing.

Small amounts add up. Many parents on the point of retirement may be willing to part with an extra set of dishes, pots, culinary things.

This couple has begun to take its own advice and is making an adventure out of refurbishing cast-offs. Lace insertion has gone into some old family draperies, a can of yellow paint has changed the look of a dinette set and new marble has gone to the top of a coffee table.

"If we continue our present trend, saving my wife's salary, my new raise, and whatever else we can get, we may be able to begin house-hunting in a year. Our entire goal now is directed to that. And we aren't going to look for a fancy house or a dream house. We don't want to get in over our heads. We want a starter house that we can parlay into a better house in a few years, so we aren't going to worry about needing a big down payment."

The important thing is to get started in the best house we can afford," he said.

Ford promises century of security

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — President Ford, campaigning to upset rival Ronald Reagan in Reagan's home state of California, said today he seeks "a century of security" to follow the Bicentennial. In remarks prepared for a convention here of the California Peace Officers Association, Ford said that "Americans must be secure — in their homes and on their streets — in their jobs and in a peaceful world. It must be a century of security for all Americans."

After campaigning in Oregon and Southern California, Ford had another full schedule today taking him from California to Las Vegas and back.

In politically conservative Orange County, Calif., where former President Richard M. Nixon ground and they hope his California tour, which ends Wednesday, will help.

Ford also seemed optimistic, declaring at his final Oregon stop. "I think the momentum has turned very directly on our side and I hope we can keep the bandwagon rolling so we can have a first-ballot victory in Kansas City." The Republican convention meets there in August.

The President's current five-day campaign trip, his longest of the year, is the final electioneering effort currently scheduled for California. However, aides say Ford could make a return trip if he became convinced that a last-minute appeal could tip the outcome.

Study critical of study

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special government panel is sharply critical of Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt's probe of charges that the FDA harassed staff scientists who opposed approval of new drugs. The panel, in a 524-page study issued Sunday, called for a new $100,000 investigation of the charges, which were made nearly two years ago and which the government has already spent over $336,000 to probe. Six of the panel's seven members charged that Schmidt's 906-page report left unresolved "a significant number of important allegations." They criticized Schmidt for internally investigating the charges, which 11 FDA scientists and three outside consultants made at a Senate health subcommittee hearing in 1974. The 14 charged that the FDA officials always accepted staff recommendations to approve new drugs, but harassed and transferred staff members who recommended disapproval.

Schmidt, in his report, said he "found no industry domination of the Bureau of Drugs, or industry protection by the bureau or agency." The special panel appointed by the secretary of health, education and welfare noted that the alleged incidents took place before Schmidt became commissioner in July 1973. It also said Schmidt has improved FDA's procedures for licensing new drugs.

But the majority said, "For the public to retain confidence in the integrity of its governmental institutions, important allegations of agency impropriety and mismanagement require fair and prompt resolution."

The panel has concluded that many such allegations respecting the performance of the FDA were not answered satisfactorily by the commissioner's report, and consequently must be considered open questions.

The panel's chairman, Dr. Thomas C. Chalmers, wrote a sharp dissent to the majority report. Chalmers, dean of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City, argued against a third investigation and accused the majority of taking a prosecutorial approach to Schmidt's reports and exaggerating its flaws.

However, Ford aides claim their candidate is picking up ground and they hope his California tour, which ends Wednesday, will help.

Secret Service spied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service spied on more than 1,200 persons attending the 1971 national convention of the Young Socialist Alliance, according to government documents disclosed today. Secret Service agents covertly photographed the speakers and tape-recorded the convention in Houston and sent the material to the agency's intelligence division in Washington, the documents said. The YSA is the youth affiliate of the Socialist Workers party, a Trotskyite group which says it hopes to achieve a socialist revolution in the United States by working through the system and fielding candidates for public office, including the presidency. The party obtained the documents through a lawsuit — against the FBI, the Secret Service and other agencies — seeking more than $27 million in damages for allegedly illegal harassment of political activities.

A tempting offer on a gas grill.

Right now, we're making you a tempting offer on gas grills with twin burners! Independently controlled twin burners never use more gas than you need. For big meals, use both burners. For smaller meals, save gas and money by using one burner and half the grill. A gas grill adds a new dimension to family meals and entertaining. It eliminates the fuss and bother of cooking outside while it keeps the flavor and the fun. And, because you take cooking heat out of the house and the burden off your air conditioning, you save energy, too.

'Is It Possible?'

Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams of Massachusetts: "Is it possible that he whom no moral obligations bind, can have any real goodwill towards man? Can he be a patriot who by an openly vicious conduct is undermining the very bonds of society, corrupting the morals of youth, and, by his bad example, injuring that very country he professes to patronize?"

Sun may power mariner lamp

By DAVID POWELL, Associated Press Writer
CARYSPORT LIGHT, Fla. (AP) — The sunshine that by day toasts mariners plying the Florida Straits soon will aid them at night, powering lights that warn them of 200 miles of coral reefs between Miami and Key West.

Atop this 110-foot light seven miles into the Atlantic off Key Largo, the Coast Guard is refining a system that converts sunlight into electricity — fueling a lamp mariners can see for 15 miles.

"This is about as simple a system as we're going to come by," said George Matrigali, a civilian Coast Guard engineer who built the solar unit from similar devices used on offshore oil rigs.

While local Coast Guard officials say the project is not unique — similar devices power small buoys off Massachusetts and the West Coast — it is part of a growing trend to use natural energy in Coast Guard operations.

Matrigali's system gathers sunlight through a bank of solar collection cells that transform the energy into electricity. The electric charge then is funneled into batteries which, in turn, power the lamp.

Officials say the ultimate goals of the system are to save money and to increase the reliability of the reef lights, six towering beacons which point the way for ships steaming the passage between the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico.

The lights were built in the 19th century to mark the shallow, vividly colorful reefs along the Keys. The resident operators who once tended the lights are gone now, but marine life still gathers around them.

Sometime this summer, 50 small buoys in Florida waters will be equipped with solar units. And officials say plans are on the boards to build a complete Coast Guard base in Fort Myers which will use solar energy for everything from heating water to running the air-conditioners.

But solar power is not the only natural energy with which the Coast Guard is experimenting. Matrigali devised a wind-powered system for the reef light on Fowey Rocks, off Miami.

The godfather of the solar and wind systems is Lt. Cmdr. John R. Wells, head of the civil engineering branch in Miami for the Coast Guard district stretching from Charleston, S.C., to Florida.

"We plan to put solar panels on our major lights this summer because it appears to be a simpler, longer-lasting installation with less maintenance requirements and less trouble," he said.

Welles said the solar unit costs about $3,000 for sunlight collector cells, long-life nickel-cadmium batteries, a regulator to control the flow of electricity from the cells into the batteries and a car headlight-sized lamp which is magnified by a giant lens.

The batteries are the key to the system and its expected economy; they have a life of 15 to 20 years.

About 1 1/2 million adults are currently registered as adult leaders with the Boy Scouts of America.

four miles, etc. But what about the investigation of Arkansas' recruitment of former Dallas schoolboy Roderic Gerald which required the services of two investigative firms?

Get the picture? The SWC would not admit there had even been a case for review concerning Arkansas!

Of course, the SWC has private schools in Rice, SMU, Baylor or TCU. Question: Do not supporters of those schools, some who contribute large amounts of money to the athletic departments, have a right to know?

Obviously, the SWC will continue operating its business meetings in cloak-and-dagger atmosphere as long as it pleases unless there is a public backlash, moving state legislators to get curious about what's going on.

Joe Jeffers, Ford's Body Shop pitcher, bats in Jimmy Jeffrey in the first inning on a Babe Ruth baseball game against Cree Companies last week. Ford's whipped Cree, 10-4, to become 5-3 for the season. ## Texas decisions Baylor for SWC track crown WACO, Tex. (AP) — Baylor's spunky Bears didn't take the Southwest Conference outdoor track title away from perennial champion Texas Saturday, but they bagged a sackful of first place medals and respect.

Hart dreamed could happen. "We produced above our maximum...I had us figured for 90 points and we got 106," said Hart.

"I felt we were in the driver's seat but they won the sprint relay and put us in the rumble seat in a hurry," said Price.

McGuire sparks Buffaloes to 3rd

CANYON — Rich McGuire of Pampa played an instrumental role in West Texas State's best-ever finish in the Missouri Valley Conference Track and Field championships Friday and Saturday at the WTSU track.

West Texas tallied 96 points to place third behind Southern Illinois (202 points) and Wichita State (143).

There were just three new SWC records established by Baylor in the mile relay and Arkansas distance runners Niall O'Shaughnessy in the mile and Randy Melancon in the three mile.

Lubbock nets regional berth

LUBBOCK — Lubbock High scored twice in the first inning and held on for a 2-1 win over Amarillo High in the third and deciding game of the Class AAAA bi-district baseball series Saturday.

Lubbock, on the brink of disaster after losing 5-0 to the Sandies in the opening game last week, won two straight to capture the title. The Westerners won the second game, 10-5.

Lubbock will meet El Paso Burges in the first round of the regional playoffs Tuesday in Lubbock.

Jimmy Don Osbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Osbin of 407 Lefors, enlisted in the Navy on March 11 through the local recruiting office, 115 N. Cuyler. He is a 1974 graduate of Pampa High School who enlisted through the Navy's School Guarantee program. He is home on 14-day leave after completion of nine weeks basic training in San Diego, Calif. He will report to the Navy's machinist mate school where he will go to the Navy Class A school. While there he will receive training on diesel engine repair, gas engine repair, air conditioning and refrigerating, pump valves repair, steam plant repair and operation.

Settlement of LoVaca problem 'long way off'

HOUSTON (AP) — The fate of troubled LoVaca GATHERING Co. depends on the solution of a dispute between the firm's major customers, including several South Texas cities, and the company's parent firm, Coastal States Gas Corp.

Failure to reach an accord could force LoVaca into a reorganization under the National Bankruptcy Act. LoVaca president and chief executive officer William E. Greehey says.

"But I think the customers recognize that bankruptcy proceedings are not in their best interest," Greehey said Friday amidst reports that a settlement of the dispute may be a long way off.

The dispute — which has generated a large amount of animosity — involves Coastal State and the LoVaca municipal customers which feel that Coastal's management of LoVaca is responsible for the Houston-based firm's failure to live up to its contractual commitment three years ago.

LoVaca was forced to curtail natural gas deliveries to San Antonio and Houston and to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) three years ago when it revealed that it did not have enough reserves to back up commitments made in long-term contracts.

The company obtained permission from the Texas Railroad Commission to pass on to consumers the added cost of the new gas supplies it was forced to buy to fulfill its contract. It explained that new gas cost the company three to four times more than it was charging customers under the old contracts.

As a result LoVaca saw more than $1.4 billion in breach-of-contract suits filed against it. LCRA was awarded $26 million in the first suit that went to trial.

The wrath of the customers has been aimed mostly at Coastal States and its management.

Representatives of the major customers last week drafted a proposal for a settlement that is now being studied by Coastal States' management and by utilities commissions and city councils in the cities that are LoVaca customers.

Already there are reports that the proposed settlement may run into problems because of the customers' demands.

Greehey said the customers want to separate LoVaca from Coastal States and set it up as an independent outfit.

"They probably want some sort of representation on the board of directors of the company," he said.

Although he declined to discuss specifics of the proposed settlement, he explained that customers are willing to give LoVaca a reasonable rate of return — which would mean paying higher prices for gas — in order to keep the company alive and secure their steady supply of gas.

Harry L. Blomquist, president of LoVaca, said Friday that talks of a settlement are premature and added the proposal, in its present form, contains provisions unacceptable to Coastal States.

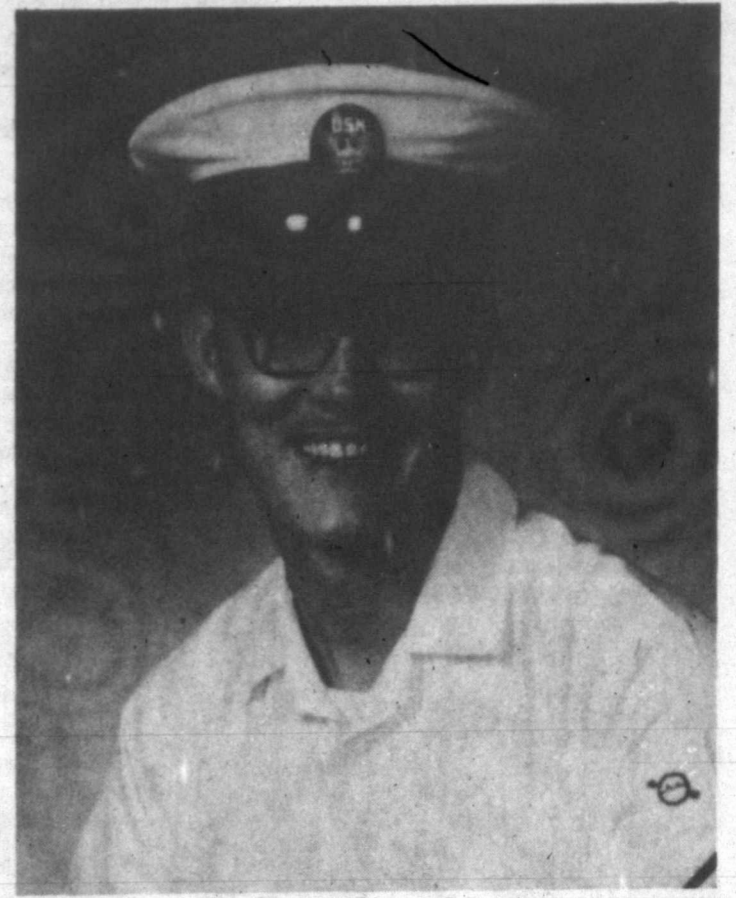

Austin Mayor Jeff Friedman told newsman Friday, "I can assure you that we are not as close to a settlement as some people have been telling us we are."

Austin is suing LoVaca for $30 million.

In San Antonio, where Coastal States has been the target of harsh criticism by public officials, Eloy Centeno, a trustee of the city-owned utilities agency, said the proposed settlement was a "rip-off."

The board of trustees of the city agency scheduled a Monday afternoon meeting to discuss the proposal.

The city council would have to approve any action by the city agency. San Antonio has a $200 million suit pending against LoVaca.

Enlisted in Navy

Mark F. Preston, son of Mr. and Mrs. F.M. Preston, 1133 S. Dwight, who enlisted in the Navy on Oct. 16, 1975, attended nine weeks of basic training at the Naval Training Center at Orlando, Fla. Upon graduation, he returned to Pampa for a 14-day vacation before starting his technical training at the Naval Station Great Lakes School of Ocean Systems Technician. He is now serving on board the USS Gray, a fast frigate. The USS Gray is now touring various countries in the Far East.

20 die in Texas traffic

By The Associated Press

A five-car pileup that killed two persons pushed traffic fatalities into double figures in Texas over the weekend.

The Associated Press counted at least 20 persons dead from violent causes, including 11 in traffic mishaps. Four persons were shot to death, three drowned, one died in a train derailment and one in an industrial accident.

The tabulation included deaths that occurred between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

Two Fort Worth women were killed and two other persons injured in a five-car accident on Interstate 20 nine miles east of Weatherford Saturday. Police said Marcy C. Marcias, 20, and Kathleen A. Pruitt, 47, were killed when their car was crushed by another vehicle which went out of control, crossed the median, overturned and landed on their car.

Mrs. Meck Allen Edwards, 31, of San Augustine was killed and three passengers in her car injured early Sunday when their vehicle collided with a cow on State Highway 103. Police said the accident occurred about five miles east of Lufkin. The car hit the cow and then skidded about 200 feet and overturned.

Two Houston men died in separate boating accidents in the Houston area over the weekend. The body of Grady Alton Brown, 27, was recovered Sunday near the U.S. 59 crossing of the San Jacinto River near Lake Houston following an accident Saturday. The body of Davie Wesley Luckett, 29, was located in a sand pit lake in Harris County.

Danny R. Liles, 29, of Liberty died Sunday when the motorcycle he was riding went out of control on a curve, hit an embankment and threw him against a pine tree.

Texas man backs Rhodesia recruit

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A group calling itself "American Aid for Rhodesia" is trying to raise $1 million and recruit 1,000 volunteers to help the white minority government of Southern Rhodesia, the San Antonio Light has reported.

A San Antonio mechanic, Mike Gonzalez, told the Light that the group is backed by an El Paso man who he refused to identify.

Gonzalez, 29, said in an interview in the newspaper's Sunday edition that the recruiting effort has been under way for three months in several southwestern cities including Houston, San Antonio, El Paso, Phoenix and Los Angeles. He said the group has collected "very little so far" but has received pledges of support from more than 400 persons.

"We hope to be able to send 1,000 people over to Rhodesia sometime this summer. So we're talking about $1 million dollars," Gonzalez said. But he did not say exactly what the group will do in Rhodesia, and could not be reached for further comment Sunday.

"We are not a mercenary group," Gonzalez told the Light. But he added that people with "military background" as well as machinists, mechanics and paramedics are being recruited.

"We will not be taking any arms or ammunition, just medical supplies and food and things like that," Gonzalez said. "We'll fight only as a last resort and then only to protect ourselves."

Joseph Chacon Jr., a San Antonio lawyer, said late Sunday he had been approached Friday by Gonzalez about setting up a nonprofit corporation to receive funds for humanitarian efforts in Rhodesia.

Chacon said Gonzalez "made it quite clear I would not be involved in any type of mercenary activity or expeditionary force activity."

Earthquake activity normal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five big earthquakes have rattled the earth so far this month, falsely giving some people the impression there were more quakes than usual lately. U.S. Geological Survey scientists say.

"Everyone is trying to say there is unusual earthquake activity, but there is not," said Waverly Persons, a geophysicist with the USGS National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo.

"We've had normal activity for the first half of the year," Persons said in an interview. "Actually, if you look at the average predicted earthquakes for a year, we are slightly behind."

Persons said there have been 17 quakes classified as major or significant so far this year. People are paying more attention to them recently because several have occurred in populated rather than remote areas, he said.

"People are looking at where there has been damage and loss of life," he continued. "This stays in their minds more than a non-destructive quake."

Hundreds of lives were lost in the May 6 quake that struck northeastern Italy and an under-terminated number of lives also were lost in the destructive May 16 shock in Soviet central Asia.

A USGS spokesman said that almost 1,000 deaths worldwide could be attributed to earthquakes this year.

There have been five earthquakes classified as "major" and 12 called "significant" this year, Persons said. A major one has a magnitude of 7 or greater on the Richter Scale, and a quake is classified significant if it either measures 6.5 or stronger or causes extensive damage and death.

In the Richter scale, every increase of one number, such as from 6.5 to 7.5, means the ground motion is 10 times greater.

In populated areas, an earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter Scale can cause slight local damage. 4 can cause moderate damage. 5 considerable damage and 6 can be severe. A 7 reading is a "major" quake capable of heavy damage and an 8 is a "great" earthquake capable of tremendous widespread damage.

The Italian quake measured 6.5 and the Soviet shock registered 7.2 on the Richter Scale, a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs.

Persons said about 16 to 18 quakes in the major category are expected each year, but for the last three years only about 12 were recorded annually. With only half of 1976 gone, only five "majors" have registered since January, he added.

Persons said approximately 6,000 quakes of various magnitudes register each year on existing equipment and "thousands more go unlocated because they are very small."

'Super slurper' wins citation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of government scientists is getting one of the Agriculture Department's highest citations for developing a chemical "super slurper" which can help dry up dripping baby diapers, soggy kitty litter and football coaches' crying towels.

The chemical is a starch-based product developed by the department's eight-member Absorbent Polymer Research Group at Peoria, Ill., headed by Dr. William N. Doane.

The super-slurper is not sold in stores but is added to other materials in the manufacturing stage so they can sop up liquids more readily. It can absorb up to 1,400 times its weight in water.

"Super slurper can be mixed with or coated on all kinds of materials, including, for example, sand, straw, sawdust, seeds and roots, natural or synthetic fibers, and flour gelatin and starch," the department said Saturday. "It can hold water in soils, animal bedding and kitty litter, toweling and diapers, bandages, surgical pads, and dental absorbents."

The department said the Peoria scientists will be among 10 other recipients, including one group and nine individuals, who will get distinguished service awards at ceremonies Tuesday.

Officials said that the new generation of super slurpers, which have been under development for more than a decade, shows promise of reducing costs of absorbent material around the home, in hospitals and wherever else they are used.

Currently, super slurper is made commercially by General Mills, Minneapolis, Minn., on a limited basis. But a number of other companies have applied to manufacture it under the government's patent rights, a spokesman said. The slurper can be produced in a variety of forms, as powder, granules or film.

Briscoe will host candidates

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — At least four active candidates for the Democratic nomination for president and one possible candidate will attend the pre-convention dinner June 17 in Houston. Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Saturday.

Briscoe said confirmed guests include Jerry Brown, Jimmy Carter, Frank Church, Morris Udall and Hubert Humphrey.

The dinner, called "A Salute to Bob Strauss," will be at the Summit, downtown hotel and sports events center.

"Never before in history will so many national contenders have attended a single event in Texas," Briscoe said in a statement. "It is a tribute to Bob Strauss and the job he has done as national chairman and will offer a unique opportunity for Texas Democrats to meet all of these candidates, our state officials and a host of other celebrities face to face."

Toot 'n' Totum No. 44

The first of four convenience Toot 'n' Totum stores to open in Pampa was store number 44 at 500 N. Duncan.

A trio of gold-jacketed members of Top o' Texas made an official greeting visit to the store recently to welcome store manager Margie Sadler to the Pampa business community.

Ms. Sadler said that three persons, in addition to herself, are employed in the store which is open from 6:30 to 11 p.m. seven days a week.

"Toot 'n' Totum, she added, carries a variety of grocery items, in addition to beer, wine, soft drinks, ice cream and hot sandwiches. Store 44 also has self-service gasoline pumps.

The store opened late last January and has since been followed by stores on Frederick, Brown and Alcock and Hobart. The Frederick and Alcock-Hobart stores are open 24 hours, Ms. Sadler said.

The chain owns each store, Ms. Sadler said and no franchises are involved. They operate approximately 40 stores in Amarillo in addition to the four in Pampa and the chain "is expanding" Ms. Sadler said.

Constable Milford favorite for years

LADONIA, Tex. (AP) — People here and in nearby Bug Tussle and Wolfe City apparently like a man of maturity for their constable. In H.H. "Mutt" Milford they've got it — 85 years worth.

Milford has been pinning on his six-star badge, serving court papers and warrants and cruising this area of Northeast Texas since the 1950s.

In the recent Democratic primary Milford faced his first opponent for the office of constable. The voters went two-to-one for Milford over a much younger opponent. There is no Republican candidate for the November general election.

"I didn't want to run this time, but Sheriff Raymond Taylor wanted me to run," Milford said. "I'm getting too darn old."

Milford's police cruiser is his 1962 pickup.

"I don't do a regular patrol," the six-foot-three Milford said. "But the local police often call him when they need him. And when they call him at night,

Milford said, "that's the hell of it."

Things are quiet now around Ladonia. But they weren't always that way around this town of 757, Milford said.

Once, he said, the town had 3,500 inhabitants.

"Gradually, people just went away," Milford said. "I couldn't explain it."

Law enforcement activities quieted down even more when the sale of alcoholic beverages became legal.

"There was bootlegging before that," Milford said. "Corn squeezings came down from Oklahoma. Sometimes we'd catch them on the road. Sometimes we'd catch them at home. Sometimes they were my friends."

Today Milford's biggest headaches are caused by vandalism, break-ins and burglaries.

"There's just more meanness today," he said.

Milford said he's never had to shoot at anyone. "Never had anybody to shoot at me that I know of," he said.

OLD TREE BISHOP, Calif. (AP) — Methuselah is still alive, and well, and living 12 miles east of here. "Methuselah" is a 4,600-year-old bristlecone pine tree, and according to Rand McNally's "National Forest Guide," the oldest known living thing on earth. The publication says Methuselah and a nearby companion, a tree named "Patriarch," which is the largest of the bristlecones, can be visited in the Ancient Bristlecone Pine Forest, located near California's famous John Muir Wilderness.
