

Retiring from business office

Sue Van Sickle retired today after 26 years with the Pampa Independent School District. She has seen a lot of changes since especially in school finances and salaries. Her first pay was one dollar an hour — but she planned to work just long enough to pick up an extra cash. She will turn in her office keys at 4:00 p.m. to Dwain Walker, director of business services. (Pampa News photo by Michael Thompson)

Sue Van Sickle has seen business office boom

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

At 4:30 p.m. today Sue Van Sickle will turn in her keys after 26 years with the Pampa Independent School District business office.

"We're dealing with a lot more dollars today than we were in 1950," she said as she recalled when she took a part-time job in the business office just to pick up some extra cash.

The pay was one dollar an hour, eight dollars a day.

"I know we were always in the red back then," she commented in discussing the school's finances.

By the end of the year, Mrs. Van Sickle was working full time. She is now office manager.

An estimated 50 persons, including many of the school principals with whom she had worked, came by to wish her well on her retirement.

When told that she would be missed at the downtown office, she commented: "I hope they miss me a little bit anyway. At least they have been kind enough to say so."

A native of Wheeler, she moved to Pampa in 1937. She taught school at Kelton and at Alanreed before moving here. "I've never worked where I was covered by Social Security," she added.

She met her husband Herman Van Sickle of Longview while teaching at Alanreed.

"One of his cousins introduced us," she said. The two corresponded and visited occasionally during their year of courtship prior to marriage in 1935.

Her husband died two years ago.

When Mrs. Van Sickle assumed duties more than a quarter of a century ago, the business office was located in the basement of the city hall where four employees worked in one small room.

Mrs. Van Sickle has seen many changes in educational procedures during the past 30 years.

"I think they are all for the better — I wouldn't want to turn back the clock," she emphasized.

However, she added that teachers apparently lack the disciplinary authority they once had.

But the changes Mrs. Van Sickle has seen are not confined to schools alone. "Pampa has changed from an oil boom town to a metropolis. We have so many nice conveniences we didn't have when I came including the M.K. Brown auditorium."

She added that the high school was built after she moved here.

Mrs. Van Sickle has two sons, Dr. Herman R. Van Sickle of Longview, a physician, and Lt. Commander Kenneth L. Van Sickle of Virginia Beach, Va., and seven grandchildren.

Her son, Kenneth is in the Mediterranean now, but his mother plans to visit him when he returns to Virginia in July.

"But first on the agenda is to clean out the closets," she said.

Looking around the office, Mrs. Van Sickle said it is difficult to turn one's work over to another "when you've done it so long yourself."

She said she is leaving the office with mixed emotions.

"I'll miss the people with whom I work and the public — but I like to fish, to read and to work in the yard especially with flowers."

She added a friend told her if she ran out of anything to do she could always tiddle her thumbs.

"But I'm not expecting to have that much time," she said. "I plan to stay busy."

Castro relation plan against leaders probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, U.S. officials secretly studied the possibility that Fidel Castro might retaliate against American leaders for their attacks on Cuba, according to informed sources.

Existence of the study was kept secret from the Warren Commission, which investigated the possibility of a Cuban connection in the Kennedy slaying, and, until recently, from the Senate intelligence committee.

Committee investigators came across documents relating to the study in the course of their probe into the performance of the CIA and the FBI before and after the Kennedy assassination, the sources said Thursday.

The panel's findings are expected to be made public within two weeks.

In an article to be published today, the New Republic says the team which performed the study was created by then-Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy. But the two sources told The Associated Press that although the attorney general was in over-all command of U.S. operations in Cuba, there is no evidence that he played a role in the workings of the group known as the "Cuban Coordinating Committee."

One source identified a member of the group as Desmond Fitzgerald, a CIA officer involved in a plot to kill Castro that was in progress on the same day President Kennedy was killed.

A second source said other members of the "Cuban Coordinating Committee" included John H. Crimmins, then a State Department Caribbean specialist who now is the U.S. ambassador to Brazil, and representatives of the FBI and Defense Department.

All members of the group were aware of the U.S.-supported commando raids against Cuba, but apparently only Fitzgerald knew about the assassination plot against Castro, sources said.

Existence of the group was first revealed last November in the intelligence committee's report on U.S. attempts to assassinate Castro.

The report described the group as an inter-agency panel established after the 1962 Cuban missile crisis "with responsibility for developing covert action proposals." The report didn't say anything about the group studying the possibility that Castro would strike back.

Two sources said it was not clear what had triggered the study of possible Cuban retaliation, but one source said the timing was consistent with the appearance in September 1963 of an AP dispatch which quoted Castro as saying, "U.S. leaders should think that if they are aiding terrorist plans to eliminate Cuban leaders, they themselves will not be safe."

The AP article has been prominently mentioned in speculation surrounding Lee Harvey Oswald's motive in killing Kennedy. The article appeared in the New Orleans Times-Picayune at a time when Oswald, known to be an avid newspaper reader, was living there.

The Warren Commission concluded that there was no evidence that Oswald was part of a foreign conspiracy.

Moslem executions told

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Thirty-five persons were kidnapped, and unconfirmed reports said 11 Moslems were executed in Beirut today following the assassination of leftist Moslem leader Kamal Jumblatt's sister. Heavy fighting was reported in northern Lebanon near the Syrian border, around the Christian hill town of Andket, between Christian and Moslem armored troops of the disintegrated Lebanese army. There was sporadic shelling into Christian and Moslem quarters of Beirut, and a police spokesman said at least 48 persons were reported killed and 96 wounded on all fronts during the night.

Right-wing leaders charged that the murder of Jumblatt's sister, Linda al-Atrash, was part of a plan to undermine President-elect Elias Sarkis' efforts to launch peace talks between Lebanon's warring Christians and Moslems.

A band of gunmen burst into the 55-year-old woman's apartment Thursday, killed her and wounded her two daughters.

The daughters, Noha, 27, and Samar, 18, were reported in critical condition. A report Thursday from Jumblatt's office said Noha was dead, but the hospital said she was alive.

Mrs. al-Atrash's apartment was in an area controlled by the right-wing Christian Phalangist party, but Phalangist leaders denied that the killers were from their militia.

Two days earlier a moderate Christian political leader, Raymond Eddé, was wounded in an assassination attempt in another Phalangist area. The independent newspaper An Nahar commented today: "There seems to be a group within Lebanon which is determined to blow up any peaceful settlement whenever it appears within reach."

The killing postponed for the second time a meeting between Jumblatt and Sarkis to discuss the Christian president-elect's effort to arrange an armistice and a roundtable political conference of the leaders of all the warring factions.

A spokesman said Jumblatt would be unable to meet Sarkis for several days because he would be busy with his sister's funeral at the family home in Mokhtara, in the central Lebanon mountains.

Beirut Radio broadcast an appeal from the leftist leader to his followers for calm.

"Our brothers and colleagues must abide by the moral values we cherish even though others may not," he said. "My sister is a martyr to honor and confidence in others and belief in the possibility of coexistence in Lebanon."

New Hughes will 'coincidence'

HOUSTON (AP) — An envelope containing a purported will of Howard Hughes bears at least three postage meter numbers that correspond in sequence to the numbers on a meter registered to the Las Vegas hotel where Hughes lived, the Houston Post said it has learned.

The three-page handwritten document dated March 18, 1968, was found April 27 at Mormon church headquarters in Salt Lake City.

"This is quite a coincidence at the very least," the newspaper quoted Carol Moore, office manager of the San Diego, Calif., office of Pitney Bowes, as saying Thursday.

She told the Post that postage meter No. 841862 was registered to the Desert Inn at Las Vegas on June 1, 1967. This was the late mystery billionaire's home during the some four years he lived in Las Vegas.

The other three digits cannot be read without further examination of the envelope with chemicals or a microscope. Each meter has six digits.

The Post said the three readily visible numbers were identified under a microscope by Michael Kratz of Dektor Counter-intelligence of Springfield, Va. He said they correspond to the 4, the second 8 and the 6.

The document's authenticity has been questioned and it and about 30 other purported wills—most of them grants—have been filed at the Clark County court house in Las Vegas.

The Post also quoted the Rev. Dan Newman, a Las Vegas Baptist minister, as saying he was once told by a Hughes lawyer that the billionaire recluse had written a will that was sure to cause controversy if it ever came to light. The former Hughes lawyer mentioned by Newman was Richard Gray of Houston.

Grand jury set today

The Gray County grand jury began meeting at 10 a.m. today with an estimated 30 criminal cases for consideration.

District Attorney Guy Hardin will present the cases. Indictments will be returned to district Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

Radiation carried over embassy phone

By BARTON REPERT
Associated Press Writer

The phone-wire radiation was discovered several weeks ago, the source said, by a team of Central Intelligence Agency technical specialists dispatched to Moscow to investigate microwave eavesdropping.

The CIA's tests showed radiation considerably higher than indicated by earlier tests by the State Department's bureau of security, the source said.

CIA personnel operate much of the Embassy's highly sophisticated communications equipment, housed in upper floors of the 10-story structure. Those same floors — which also contain the offices for Stoessel and other top U.S. diplomats — have been the main target of the searchlight-like microwave beams.

The reason for the Soviet microwave remains unclear. It also was unclear why Stoessel's telephone line was conducting radiation. There was, however, some suggestion that the radiation found on the telephone line was an unintended byproduct of the microwaves.

The microwaves aimed at the building are suspected of being used either to foil reputed U.S. electronic eavesdropping devices or to allow the Soviets somehow to eavesdrop on the Embassy.

The situation has sparked concern over possible effects of the radiation on health or behavior of U.S. embassy officers.

Since early February, aluminum screening has been installed on the Embassy's windows to help block out the radiation.

However, even after the screening was installed, the CIA found that Stoessel's outside telephone wire was "bringing the radiation right into his office on that line because of the exposure — the way the line is hooked up," the State Department source said.

The source noted that "these new tests that were made, with new equipment, picked it up where nobody had picked it up before."

Affair shows discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A women's political caucus says the Rep. Wayne Hays affair shows there is a feudal and discriminatory job situation in Congress, which always exempts itself from the civil rights and equal pay laws it imposes on others.

"This is still a very traditional, chauvinistic world where there are no rules" on employment of women, said Miriam Dorsey, coordinator of the 200-member Capitol Hill Women's Political Caucus.

"Congress is not covered under any civil rights laws or equal pay laws, so something like this can exist because each member has his own little fief-dom and what one member does with his employees is no other member's business," Ms. Dorsey said Thursday.

She said the revelation that Hays had an affair with Elizabeth Ray, who contends she was placed on the government payroll to be Hays' mistress, "really damages the image of women on Capitol Hill." Miss Ray says she was unable to do office work and couldn't even type.

Ms. Dorsey said, "An incident like this just perpetuates the myth that women are not here just for work."

Ms. Dorsey, a legislative aide for Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C., says she believes there is a "definite problem" of male bosses pressuring women employees for special favors at the Capitol.

"Mainly this is because the members are so enamored with their own power," she said. "People in their offices wait on them hand and foot, going to get their laundry or whatever. They just get carried away with their power. There are many young women who come to the Hill looking for a glamorous experience who don't realize what they're getting into in some cases."

Fishermen take about 220 million pounds of shrimp from the Gulf of Mexico each year.

Union for taxpayers?

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the United States celebrates its Bicentennial, an organization that ferrets out government waste is pushing for a second constitutional convention that would amend the Constitution to require balanced federal budgets.

The National Taxpayers Union says 12 states have approved the call for a new constitutional convention. The approval of 34 states is needed before such a convention can be created. It would be the first convention since the founders met in Philadelphia in 1787.

The seven-year-old NTU says that before it came along there was no one to look after the interests of the average American and the way was open for a "system of lots of special interests tugging at government to see who gets to divide up the booty."

The NTU was the brainchild of James Davidson, now 29 and its executive director. Davidson, in 1968 the youth director for the presidential campaign of George Romney, says it has grown to a staff of 20 people, mostly volunteers, with six full-time paid employees.

He counts its membership at about 25,000 persons across the country, each of whom has paid the $15 annual membership fee that helps raise the bulk of his year's $400,000 budget.

INTERNAL Revenue Service is going to keep secret some 11,000 special files, says Commissioner Donald C. Alexander. He says the files, which a congressional committee wants turned over to the individuals and organizations involved, are "outdated and useless" and best suited as fuel for the "biggest bonfire" in Washington.

Religion, politics not compatible

NEW YORK (AP) — Some political commentators, on the air and in print, are saying that religion has no place in politics. This is an old claim of some pietists who would restrict faith to the private sphere, but it's contrary to the teachings of the major historic churches.

Since Carter, a Southern Baptist, cites the late great Lutheran theologian Reinhold Niebuhr as his favorite theologian, Schlesinger says this is reassuring because Niebuhr insisted that simple "pietistic moralism" could not solve complex social problems, quoting Niebuhr as saying:

"American Christianity tends to be irrelevant to the problems of justice because it persists in presenting the law of love as a simple solution for every moral problem... Christian moralism has made meager contributions to the issues of justice in modern society."

What brought the issue to the forefront is the emergence of religious elements in the race for the U.S. presidential nomination, with various political commentators saying it shouldn't be there, implying that the religious character of a man shouldn't count or be mentioned.

"This, however, is precisely the lapse in Christian functioning early in this century that Niebuhr so scathingly assailed. It's the very pietism that he attacked," says Dr. Shriver.

"A man's religion, or lack thereof, is his own business," writes historian-political analyst Arthur Schlesinger Jr., contending that "religion should stay out of politics."

Both as a pastor in Detroit's early labor struggles and in his subsequent years of teaching and writing, Niebuhr stressed that Biblical faith involved more than simple private "moralisms," and had relevance to the whole of life, social and political.

Most complaints about it have been triggered by the candidly avowed Christian convictions of Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter, although other candidates also affirm their religious beliefs, albeit generally in less explicit terms.

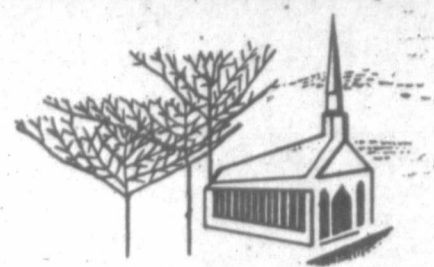

To Niebuhr, the great "danger to the church was its failure to involve itself in the contentious issues of American common life," writes Dr. Stone.

"It's almost as if a politician merely mentions the name of God, it's some kind of heresy," observes Dr. Shriver, a Presbyterian and specialist in Christian ethics. "But many people are interested in knowing the religious convictions of national leaders. It's a basic, motivating influence."

An investment in Your Future ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

God Bless...

God bless Mommie, Daddie, and all my friends at church...

"Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God."

God's word has a great deal to say about prayer, for prayer is our means to communicate with God. Through prayer we can give thanks, petition for our friends, and seek God's wisdom for our daily living.

Make prayer a daily practice in your life.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Local probation systems bogged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many convicts who return to crime while on probation stay out of jail because of overburdened state and local probation systems, a congressional report says.

The situation poses dangers to the public because of the tendency of persons on probation to commit more crimes, said the report issued Wednesday by the General Accounting Office.

But the congressional auditors concluded that probation can be an effective rehabilitation tool when adequate supervision and such services as job counseling and drug treatment are provided.

The report probably will fuel the current debate over whether any efforts at rehabilitating criminals, either through probation or prison programs, really work.

The GAO analyzed the records of 1,200 persons who have completed probationary terms and 200 others now on probation in Philadelphia, Seattle, Portland, Ore., and Phoenix, Ariz.

The auditors found that 45 per cent of the 1,200 persons were convicted for new crimes while on probation. About half remained on probation despite the new conviction, the report said.

Of the 200 offenders now on probation, nearly half were arrested for 218 new crimes including robbery, assault, sex offenses, burglary, theft, and drug and alcohol violations. Some 74 were convicted of 126 new crimes, and all remained on probation, the report said.

In the four cities, 77 per cent of all convicted felons in 1974 were placed on probation rather than being sent to prison.

The agency initiated the study as part of its long-range effort to evaluate the effectiveness of federal law enforcement programs.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration should provide national leadership, more technical assistance and more money to help improve state and local probation systems, the auditors recommended.

But they said many problems must be solved locally, particularly by legislators who control the budgets for probation services.

Richard L. Fogel, an assistant GAO director, said the conclusions reached from the four-city study applied across the nation.

The report said the use of probation is increasing nationally because of overcrowded prisons, the lack of alternative penalties, and the fact that many judges and corrections officials believe probation offers a better chance of rehabilitation than prison.

But probation officers have such heavy caseloads that they often provide only minimal supervision and few if any services to probationers, the report continued.

38 judges removed in 1975

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Judicial Qualifications Commission removed 38 judges from the bench in 1975.

By law, the commission conducts secret investigations and hearings on judges who have difficulty doing their jobs. The voters established the commission as a constitutional body in 1965 to handle such problems as alcoholism and senility.

The Texas Judicial Council reported the dismissal figure in its 47th annual report Wednesday.

The report also revealed that 75 per cent of the justices of the peace and five per cent of the county judges in Texas failed to complete high school.

Only 14 per cent of the JPs graduated from college and only 43, or 7 per cent, are lawyers.

Snooping business booms

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Businessmen often object to government snooping into their affairs but they frequently hire snoops themselves.

The kind of snoops who provide confidential reports to companies on executive job candidates, competitors, prospective clients or merger prospects are enjoying a great boom, according to 75-year-old Bishop's Service of New York, an aristocrat of snooping.

There are a number of other such firms. Two of the largest are Proudfoot Reports, also of New York, and Equifax of Atlanta. Pinkerton's and William J. Burns, the large detective and security firms, also do commercial confidential reports.

But in general, the business is sharply differentiated from the detective world in that its efforts are strictly on behalf of business. The firms don't seek to solve thefts or embezzlements and the nearest they come to handling personal cases is seeking lost heirs — no gathering of information about matrimonial indiscretions, for example.

Government report requirements and generally tighter standards in commerce, finance and industrial organization are largely responsible for the mushrooming growth of the confidential report business.

Mason B. Starring III, Bishop's chairman, said it takes highly skilled research specialists to gather the kind of information needed.

Lawyers, bankers and accountants are bigger users than corporations of the services of firms like Bishop's, Proudfoot and Equifax.

"Lawyers use us to determine if the target of the prospective suit is solvent or judgment proof," to hunt for missing heirs, to determine the real ownership of real estate or other assets or to determine all the facts in an estate snarl or a disaster caused by insufficient insurance," Starring said.

Bankers employ Bishop's to investigate applicants for loans. Accountants usually want the firm to check on prospective new clients. Corporations more commonly ask for confidential reports on executive job candidates or merger partners. Bishop's sometimes has been able to prevent an unfriendly takeover.

Checking out the applicant for an executive job is necessary, Starring said, because almost 10 per cent of such applicants turn out not to be what they claim they are.

Insurance companies engage Bishop's to prevent frauds and to determine if the insured is using due diligence to prevent a fire or some other big casualty loss.

In the last year, Bishop's has WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The do-it-yourself crafts boom accounted for $400 million in retail sales last year for store-bought materials and kits. In addition, used items such as juice cans, milk cartons, hosiery "eggs" and other types of packaging were popular.

More than 20 consumer crafts magazines are available to assist the do-it-yourself enthusiast, according to Leggs Products Inc.

had a big increase in requests for confidential reports on pension fund employees and advisors in order to comply with provisions of the new federal pension law.

Starring said the most satisfying incident in his company's history was a report Bishop's provided to a brokerage firm some years ago on Tony de Angelis, central figure in the celebrated New Jersey salad oil scandal. As a result of the report, the brokerage firm got out of the business in time.

Two other brokerage houses who were Bishop clients but did not ask for a confidential report on de Angelis suffered big losses.

GUESS WHO'S RUNNING for president now? His appetite for office whetted not so much by lust for power as by the promise of political banqueting with delectable desserts, the Cookie Monster from "Sesame Street" is throwing his chocolate chips into the ring. Demo convention extended to week

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Democrats' new-look two-day state convention June 18-19 in Houston has been expanded to include almost five days of political maneuvering, party officials said Wednesday.

Highlight of the meeting of almost 5,000 delegates, alternates and guests will be "last minute shootout" of presidential contenders at a June 17 pre-convention fund raising dinner.

State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest said Jimmy Carter, Jerry Brown, Frank Church, Hubert Humphrey and Morris Udall have all promised to be present at the dinner honoring National Democratic Chairman Bob Strauss of Dallas.

The presidential hopefuls are not on the official convention program but most are expected to be active behind the scenes.

Each candidate's supporters seem to be trying to outdo the other in a last-minute show of strength, possibly aimed at influencing the selection of the 32 additional delegates which will be named at our state convention," Guest told a news conference.

The other 98 delegates to the national convention July 12-15 were elected May 1 with Carter getting 96 and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., six. Bentsen later released his delegates with one switching to Carter and the other five uncommitted.

The Houston convention will start with the convention credentials committee beginning hearings Tuesday, June 15. Numerous protests over the election of delegates to the Houston convention are expected to be heard.

The State Democratic Executive Committee meets Thursday, June 17, at 2 p.m. to approve the temporary roll of the convention.

Guest said doors to the convention hall in downtown Houston would be opened to delegates at 4 p.m. Friday and the opening gavel will fall at 6 p.m. As delegates register they will give their presidential nominee preference with the totals to be used in selecting the other 32 delegates and 70 alternates to the New York session.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe will give the keynote speech Friday night, and the permanent convention chairman and other officers will be named.

"We hope we will be able to recess about 8 p.m.," Guest said, "so senatorial caucuses can be held that night."

The convention delegates will meet again at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 19, for the big duty of the convention—election of the 32 delegates and 70 alternates and to name seven party leaders to the national Democratic committee. The permanent chairman and vice chairman of the convention also will be members of the national committee.

POSTERS
NEW YORK (AP) — An exhibit of more than 250 posters called "Images Of An Era: The American Poster 1945-1975" will be at New York University's Grey Art Gallery and Study Center through July 8.

It is the "first museum exhibition to focus exclusively on the American poster of the postwar period."

DALLAS (AP) — Country music entertainer Ray Price showed up at the federal courthouse where a grand jury was investigating an illegal drug trafficking but it was not known if Price testified. Price and entertainer Willie Nelson were subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury but Nelson did not show up Wednesday. It was learned that his appearance has been postponed until June. Price and his son Cliff was in the courthouse throughout the day but managed to avoid reporters and photographers. Security for the grand jury session was very tight.

Food stamp program is getting shakedown

By BILL CHOYKE, Pampa News, Washington Bureau. WASHINGTON — Not too long ago an aide to Texas Rep. Jack Hightower was asked by a stranger outside a Washington grocery store if he wanted to buy some food stamps. With those coupons, the Hightower aide could have realized a considerable savings on his food purchase. All he had to do was buy the stamps from the stranger and present them to a clerk. No identification in cashing the stamps is required. "This," says Hightower, a Vernon Democrat, "points up to the need for reform in the food stamp program."

Thus, the first-term Texas congressman, who represents the largely rural Panhandle, has joined a growing number of lawmakers who have become disenchanted with the federal food stamp program. Hightower, for one, believes that major surgery is needed to reduce both food stamp fraud and limit eligibility. "Reform is needed and I think it should be of the highest priority," he said in an interview. "We have heard testimony about flagrant abuses costing taxpayers many millions of dollars. I think we jeopardize the worthwhile effects of the program if we don't move."

The House Agriculture Committee, on which Hightower sits, is now drafting legislation to redesign a program that has grown a hundred fold over the past dozen years. In its first year, 1964, 424,000 persons used food stamps at a government cost of $36 million. Today, 19 million — many of whom were previously on nutritionally inadequate diets before — are on the food stamp rolls at a yearly cost of $5.8 billion. The Senate has already approved a bill, generally considered a mild reform measure. The legislation would trim benefits for higher income brackets while at the same time allowing more poor persons who can't afford the minimum necessary cash payments to join the program. In its first week of deliberations, the House Committee decided to reject a proposal by Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Waco, which would have radically cut the present food stamp program in half and also made states pick up part of the cost of food stamp coupons. Hightower supported the Poage plan. The federal government now pays for all of the costs of the food stamp coupons as well as 50 per cent of the administrative costs. However, distribution is a state function. Sitting in his office and speaking in his usual low-tones, Hightower said he supported moves which would make it more difficult for strikers and students to receive food stamps. However, he adopted a somewhat moderate position in endorsing use of "net income" as the eligibility base. Some conservatives argue that gross income — an individual's wages before deductions — should be used to determine eligibility. Because of allowable deductions — such as taxes, union dues, medical and housing costs — some heads of households who make more than $10,000 annually are now eligible for food stamps. Hightower thinks "expendable income" should be the basis for eligibility. However, he said the new bill should not permit some current deductions, such as

Hightower loses on food stamp amendment

By BILL CHOYKE, Pampa News, Washington Bureau. WASHINGTON — Is cake coloring a food product needed for an adequate diet? Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, doesn't think it is. So the first-term congressman attempted to add language to a food stamp bill which could have led to further restrictions on what food stamps can be used for. Shortly after the House Agriculture Committee began deliberations on new food stamp legislation, Hightower proposed that recipients not be allowed to use stamps to buy food products that are "inappropriate for inclusion in a low-cost nutritional" and adequate diet. He said cake coloring would be such a product. Under the Hightower plan, the Secretary of Agriculture would certify in consultation with the National Research Council of Skellytown raised money. Skellytown raised $67,000 in the May drive benefitting the Texas Association for Mental Health. Bellringer workers collected house-to-house during May, Mental Health Month. Mrs. Richard Mills and the Bellringer workers in Skellytown raised the money.

the National Academy of Sciences what class of foods or food products have low nutritional value. These food products would be added to the present bans on alcohol and tobacco, which are currently the only food items which may not be purchased with food stamps. Hightower's proposal lost by a 22-16 vote. WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has no intention of letting the government default on Social Security payments, lawmakers studying the system's financial problems insist. Three members of the House-Senate Economic Committee made the comments Wednesday after Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell testified that a fund to cover deficits in the program could go broke as early as 1981. The panel was to continue hearings today with testimony from the Congressional Budget Office, which contends the fund, instead of being depleted, should stabilize at around $28 billion in 1980 or 1981. The fund now stands at about $44 billion, but is being steadily eroded because Social Security pays out more than it receives.

'SS won't go broke'

Committee Chairman Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said there "isn't any doubt" Congress would act to cover any deficit that threatens to stop Social Security payments. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said there is "no way, no way" Congress would let the system go broke. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., agreed, calling it "inconceivable that we could fail as a government to honor the commitment we have made." He said a default in paying Social Security benefits was no more likely than a government failure to pay off on savings bonds. More than 32 million Americans receive Social Security cash benefits totalling about $6 billion per month. Humphrey said the joint committee hopes to get the truth of

No more federal pencils

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the No. 2 pencil available at the corner drug store is good enough for the American public, it should be good enough for the massive federal bureaucracy, the government has decided. Pencils and many other items, especially made for the government may become relics of the past under a new federal procurement policy. While the new policy won't result in soldiers reporting for duty in street clothes, it may put an end to such things as pencils and pens stamped "Property of the U.S. Government."

The government's new policy will be to purchase commercial, "off-the-shelf" products, whenever feasible, instead of products designed to meet sometimes complicated federal specifications, the Office of Federal Procurement Policy announced Wednesday. Daniel S. Wilson, head of a committee that will put the policy into effect, said it should result in "significant savings in procurement costs, which are expected to total $66 billion in fiscal 1976. Using commercially available electronic test equipment, for example, could save up to $80 million annually, the procurement office said. In addition to reducing the cost of some merchandise, the policy should also cut the time and expense of developing government specifications, permit smaller inventories and pare government warehouse operations, it said in a report. While government specifications are necessary in some instances to enable the government to carry out a particular function, sometimes they "merely add embellishments to commercial products" that serve little useful purpose, it added. The government also will use commercial distribution channels, wherever possible, to distribute the goods through its bureaucracy. However, Wilson indicated it may take years to fully implement the policy. New purchasing procedures must be devised, and such effects as the impact on small business need further study, he said. Right now it's not even known exactly how much the government buys commercially, he admitted. But eventually, Wilson said, an ordinary "No. 2" pencil may replace the specially branded government pencil now used in nearly every U.S. government office.

After the Pampa Band was named best in class, the hotel congratulated them with a marquis message. The sign faced an interstate highway and the Atlanta International Airport.

Director Jeff Doughten and his performers apply some last minute polish at the Royal Coach Inn in Atlanta just before competition at the Six Flags Over Georgia contest.

Band visits Atlanta

The big trip this year for the Pride of Pampa High School Band was to Atlanta, Ga., where they performed in the Six Flags Over Georgia contest and were named best in their class.

But it wasn't all hard work and performing, the students, sponsors and directors all had time to do some touring of the historical areas and other locations of interest in and near Atlanta.

Bill Surface, assistant director of the band, after only five minutes of instruction and one practice roll of film, became a correspondent photographer for The News. Shown on this page are some of his many photos. He liked taking pictures so much that he used the three big rolls The News sent on the trip and purchased three other rolls. He also talked The News into selling him the camera he had borrowed.

Photos by Bill Surface, assistant director

Jeff Doughten, left, director of the Pride of Pampa Band, and the students and sponsors listen as their stay comes to an end to Wayne McAteer, general manager of the Sheraton Inn, compliment the band members on their superlative conduct in the hotel.

Sponsors, directors get a chance to relax in the Lobby of the Sheraton.

Band members rode the tramway to the top of Stone Mountain.

Band members relax at the Country Store at the plantation site in Stone Mountain Park.

Students visit monument in gazebo at Six Flags Over Georgia Park.

Pat Surface, wife of Assistant Director Bill Surface and teacher of music at Austin Elementary School, plays a pre Civil War flute in the living room of the main house at the plantation. The flute was made in 1830 in France.

House refuses pay raises

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma House refused to approve $5,000-a-year pay raises for members of the State Corporation Commission Thursday.

And, as a result, Senate President Pro Tempore Gene Howard said later the Senate will back away from its position of attempting to boost the commissioners' pay.

Howard said he still believes the pay increases would be legal, despite a constitutional ban on salary increases for elected officials during their current terms of office.

The Senate leader said also that House Speaker Bill Willis, a number of other legislative leaders and Gov. David Boren had agreed to the Corporation Commission increases.

The House, however, voted 65-27 against the Senate-approved appropriation bill containing the pay raises.

Rep. Vernon Dunn, D-Logo, who led opposition to the pay raises, said "there's no honest way to raise their pay $5,000 while they're in office."

Rep. John Miskelly, D-Choctaw, argued for the increases, saying the Corporation Commission "means more to the state than anyone else" and that presidents of some colleges make more than commission members.

In other action Thursday, the Senate completed legislation on a bill to beef up the State Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The bill, which now goes to the governor, calls for an appropriation to the bureau of $467,643. It contains funds to match a $307,000 federal grant to pay for additional agents during the next 18 months.
