Protect yourself against identity theft

It's becoming all too common. Your neighbors are suddenly getting bills from places they have never been. Your relatives are denied credit or quit receiving their monthly credit card or bank statements. Collection agencies begin trying to collect debts that do not belong to you.

It's called identity theft and it is fast becoming one of the most prevalent and costly financial crimes in the country, affecting as many as 750,000 new victims each year and costing consumers, merchants and financial institutions billions of dollars.

Carelessness while doing business over the Internet can mean that your Social Security numbers, credit card or PIN numbers can be "borrowed" and used to establish credit for others using your identity to run up big bills or set up phony bank accounts that can ruin your good name and credit.

But, the Internet isn't the only place to exercise caution. Some thieves steal these vital numbers from your mailbox or by lurking over your shoulder while you use your ATM.

The Independent Bankers Association of Texas (IBAT) is working with its 40,000 banker members across the state to stop this menace. But, they need your help.

IBAT and its member ask that you take the following steps to protect yourself against Identity Theft:

- Never carry your Social Security number in your wallet or print it on your checks.
- Check your credit card statements carefully each month and immediately report unauthorized purchases.

Children may try to hide learning problems by acting up

The class clown or playground bully might need a trip to the doctor rather than the principal's office.

"Behavior problems are often the first sign of an underlying developmental problem," said Dr. Sherry Vinson, assistant professor of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine. "You can't be quick to blame it on behavior without checking out other possible concerns."

Children often will attempt to hide a learning deficit through disruptive behavior, she said. Often, once the developmental problem is identified, it can be specifically addressed and the behavioral problem lessens or disappears.

Some of the behaviors that are usually the first sign of a developmental problem are tantrums, aggression toward others, destructiveness, hyperactivity, food refusal and withdrawal. The child might also show self-aggression, inattention or immaturity.

"If a child is expected to do something she cannot do, a problem behavior may result," Vinson said. "For example, the child with delayed language development may act up to avoid language confrontation. Delayed children often seem as if they are not choosing to obey."

Preparing your child to go Back-to-school

Wow! It seems as though school was just getting out for the summer, and now we are starting back again! Getting off to a good start at the beginning of the school year can be difficult. You should give your child a boost and provide motivation to do the best he or she can during the school year. However, even with "experience," each new school year is an adjustment for all family members. Changes may include things like bedtimes, friendships, activity levels, expectations (academic, social, and athletic), activities (TV, homework, school meetings, and outside functions), and diet (hurried, unhealthy meals).

Many children will attend school for the first time and the whole experience is new. For other children, there may be new interests, new doubts, and new developmental changes. Changes at school can include new classrooms, teachers, and subjects. All of these and more mean that the child must redesign at least a few aspects of his or her life. This may come easier for some children than for others.

A child may adjust well one year, and struggle the next with noticeable changes in attitude, mood and social skills. Patience, understanding, and encouragement are attributes parents and family members should possess. In general, most children will adjust in a few weeks.

There are a variety of ways parents can make transitions easier for their children. Perhaps these can help you and your family adjust to the new school year.

- Encourage the love of learning. Tell your child about teachers who inspired you and the interesting things you did in school. Do not support negative stereo-types of teachers or of school.

- Treat school as a normal part of your family's activities, which is easy to do in Borden County! Answer questions, discuss issues, but don't force enthusiasm or unwanted conversation.
- Visit the school and bus stop with your child. For new students, you might consider walking to school or driving the bus route to help familiarize your child with how they will get to and from school. Meeting your child's teacher or teachers is also very important. This shows that you are interested in their education and the teacher is very appreciative of your interest as well.
- Adjust bedtime and wake-up schedules. Bedtimes vary and are less consistent during the summer. Getting your child in a routine will make it easier for them to get adequate rest and be ready for the next day of school. Having them set out the clothes they plan to wear the next day is helpful. Also, be sure to keep everything (papers, homework, etc.) near the door in a satchel for easy pick-up on the way out the door.
- Allow your child to be involved in making these new schedules, homework times, play and television limits, school lunches, and various rules. They are more apt to comply if they have a part in setting them. Also, discuss consequences of not following the new rules and schedules (i.e. being tired, not getting lessons finished, being grounded, etc.).

- Help your child identify people that they can call or look to if they have an emergency at school (they miss the bus, get sick, forget something at home, etc.) if they cannot reach you. This will help ease their mind and keep them from becoming panicked if an emergency does arise. It is also a good idea to leave a list in the school office, and with your child's teacher, of people to contact should you not be reachable.
- Try to get involved in your child's education and activities. Studies show that kids are more motivated to learn when they see their parents involved at school. Plan to be available to your child, especially the first few weeks of school. Keep the early weeks as free of outside activities so that you can pamper your child with home-cooked meals and special reading time with you.

This is a special time of year for your family. Let your

STOP—FOR SCHOOL BUS COOKIES

Your kids will smile and their eyes will light up when they get home from school and see these adorable cookies shaped like school buses! Kids will think that the bright yellow school bus cookies must taste lemony, right? And the wheels on the bus? Why, chocolate, of course! The culinary experts at Pioneer Brand developed this creative recipe with busy moms and dads in mind. It's quick and convenient to prepare because it starts with biscuit and baking mix.

Back-to-School "School Bus" Cookies are easy to create too. Once the dough is mixed together, just pack it into an empty butter box (the rectangular box the butter is packaged in) and chill it until it's firm. Peel the box away from the dough, and cut a chunk out of one corner. Slice the dough into 1/4-inch slices and place them on a baking sheet. With just a bit of rounding of the corners, you'll easily transform the shapes into buses.

Add a little cocoa to the remaining dough and shape it into rounds for the wheels. Let your kids help you decorate the buses with mini candies before baking; other decorations can be added after the cookies are baked. The culinary professionals at Pioneer Brand suggest you try the new decorating food coloring markers or "doodlers" available in many stores nationwide. Even cookie bakers with little food decorating experience can produce fun and fabulous cookies.

So STOP. Take time out of your busy schedule to make these Back-to-School "School Bus" Cookies for your children, and celebrate the beginning of another school year.

Back-to-School "School Bus" Cookies

- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened (do not use margarine; reserve butter box)
- 1 large egg
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel or vanilla
- 1/2 teaspoon yellow food coloring
- 2 1/2 cups buttermilk biscuit & baking mix* (such as Pioneer Brand)
- Mini candy-coated chocolate candies (such as mini M&M candies)
- 2 teaspoons cocoa
- Decorating icing (optional)

In large mixer bowl, beat sugar and butter until creamy. Add egg; beat until light and fluffy. Add lemon peel and food coloring; beat to combine. Add biscuit and baking mix, beating on low speed to combine. Shape dough into a ball. Pack dough firmly in empty butter box (coated with cooking spray), tapping box on counter to pack. Close box. Refrigerate for at least 2 hours or until dough is very firm. Carefully peel box away from dough. Cut a wedge, 1 1/2 inches long by 1 inch high, out of the top right corner; set wedge aside. Using a long, thin-bladed knife, slice dough lengthwise into ten 1/4-inch slices. Place about 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheet. Using your fingers, round off the corners to make each shape resemble a school bus. Decorate with candies as desired. Mix cocoa into the reserved dough. Shape dough into balls, using 1/2 teaspoon dough for each. Flatten slightly to resemble wheels; place 2 on each "bus." Bake at 350° for 10 to 12 minutes or until cookies just begin to brown. Cool on pan before removing to wire rack. Decorate with icing as desired. Makes 10 school bus cookies. *This recipe was developed for and tested with Pioneer Brand Buttermilk Biscuit & Baking Mix.

Decorating Icing: Choose from the new decorating icings on the market, such as Writing Icing or Food Coloring Markers.

Helpful Tip: When measuring biscuit and baking mix, gently spoon mix into nested (dry) measuring cups. Using a metal spatula or straight-edged knife, level off the top.

Hide learning problems

The subtleties of learning disabilities are difficult to distinguish, said Vinson, also a developmental pediatrician at Texas Children's Hospital and a former elementary and middle school teacher.

Developmental problems range from difficulty in one area, such as mathematics or reading, to attention deficit hyperactivity disorder or autism. The only way to determine the problem is through testing, she said.

Vinson said it is not unusual after testing to find that a child who has been barely passing each grade level is actual a gifted student who has a specific problem with one subject area.

"It also means that just because your child is making straight A's doesn't mean she doesn't have a learning disability," she said. "There are many types of problems that could be involved."

When behavioral problems appear, parents should see their pediatrician and arrange for psychoeducational testing. This testing can be done for children 3 years old and above through the local school district and for children under 3 through the Early Childhood Intervention Program, found at www.nectas.unc.edu.

"Determining the problem usually leads to the solution," Vinson said. "Parents often think their child is brilliant and the behavior problems are due to boredom. That happens sometimes, but it's more likely that a learning disability is involved."
