

Board to keep hospital administrator

By PAMPA NEWSSTAFF

All I can say is that I feel that I serve here at the pleasure of the board and I recognize no authority of the Commissioners Court," Robert Monogue, administrator of Highland General Hospital announced Monday night before a standing room only crowd at the meeting of the board of managers of Gray County's two hospitals.

A week ago the Gray County Commissioners Court unanimously passed a resolution requesting the resignation of the administrator. The commissioners called upon the Hospital board to terminate Monogue's services "in the event he fails or refuses to resign.

The board voted five to one in favor of retaining Monogue. Mrs. Susie Wilkinson cast the only dissenting vote.

The Commissioners Court is expected to make its next move in the hospital controversy when it convenes at 10 a.m. Friday.

Fred Neslage, board chairman, looked around the conference room when the meeting began and said:

"Apparently there is something on the agenda to create a little interest."

Dr. R.M. Bellamy, board member, began the discussion on the issue of firing Monogue. He said he had received a letter from Judge Don Cain in reply to one Dr. Bellamy had written asking that the board's powers be clarified.

"The final legal responsibility for the operation of the hospitals rests with the commissioners' court," the judge wrote.

"It seems as if the board has power to hire, fire, buy equipment and all those only if it agrees with the court because they are the only ones who can pay for it," Dr. Bellamy commented.

Ed Patman of McLean said the opinion did not satisfy him.

"I still don't think we know where we stand... I wonder if the final legal obligation for the operation of this hospital rests with them," Patman said.

Bellamy said it seemed that the only thing the board could do is to continue to operate the hospital as in the past "as best we can — make our decisions and wait and see if they get vetoed."

"If we were to make a commitment, would we be responsible or would they?" Neslage asked.

"I would hope they would," Patman responded.

"I don't think you'll run into much complication," added Bill Tidwell.

It was at this point that Monogue made the announcement that he recognizes "no authority of the Commissioners Court."

Neslage said he had tried to get in touch with the court.

"The judge is not in town. I've known Judge Cain since he came to town. He is a reasonable man," Neslage said.

Bellamy said as far as he knew the board had received no direct communications from the court — only a copy of the resolution, which he read. However, Bellamy said he thought it would be well for the board to take some action on the resolution.

"I have been requested by the medical staff to express their feelings and by a stack of letters from various departments (within the hospital). All are unanimously in support of the present administrator," Dr. Bellamy said.

"I, too, have a copy of this resolution. I think this is a matter of grave importance — talking about a man's livelihood and a great institution which affects the lives of a great many people of Gray County," Neslage said.

At one point in Monday night's meeting, Monogue charged The Pampa News with quoting State Rep. Phil Cates "completely out of context" and he alleged that Cates so informed him in a recent telephone conversation.

"I didn't say that. That's not true," Cates said this morning when informed of Monogue's allegation.

Cates was reached in the Amarillo airport where he was waiting for a flight to Austin. He said that when he arrives in the state capital, he intends to visit the attorney general's office and check into the legalities involved in the hospital board county commission situation.

In commenting on Monogue's statement alleging that the state representative had told the hospital administrator the newspaper had misquoted him, Cates said:

"It would be better in this situation to have every man speak for himself rather than have anybody else speak for him."

The entire story, as it appeared in The News, was checked for accuracy with Cates prior to its printing. His prepared statement was referred to and quoted from throughout the article and Cates said that the treatment of his statement "was in the proper jurisdiction of a newspaper — as long as the meaning isn't changed or I am not misquoted," and he assured The News that no meanings were changed, nor was he misquoted.

Monogue said that in his telephone conversation with Cates, the representative said that when he had stated he would aid in requesting an investigation by the state attorney general's office into the management of Gray County's hospitals if he is asked to do so by "proper local authorities," the authorities include the hospital administrator and the board members.

Monogue indicated that information was not included in the article in The News. But quoting Cates and The News article, Cates said he would be glad to furnish the proper procedure in contacting the attorney general's office if he is so requested by the proper local authorities, be they the hospital board, the hospital administrator, county commissioners court, county judge or county attorney.

Dr. Joe R. Donaldson, a staff physician, said he had a petition requesting the court to state in writing its reasons for the resignation request. The petition, he said, asks the court to rescind its motion if the commissioners refuse to give reasons. He said the petition had been circulated only a few days and had 190 signatures.

Warren Hasse of KPDR Radio said he had talked with the county judge and added: "I'd like to join in standing behind the hospital administrator. I would hope the hospital board would see fit to keep the present administrator."

He called attention to the "bottom line" which indicates the hospital is operating in the black.

"The bottom line is the important thing," he said.

Mary Still, who works in X-ray at the hospital, said she saw the Berger hospital "come to its knees. I'd hate to see our good hospital go down. I'd hate to see our good hospital ruined."

Dr. Donaldson again spoke, calling attention to the doctor shortage and he said the controversial hospital situation would not help get new industry into the county.

"If anyone knows what we need here, I do," Donaldson emphasized.

Bellamy said he did not think people realize "how desperately short of doctors we are."

Patman said he called Commissioner Ted Simmons and asked him to explain what the administrator was doing that was not in the best interest of the county. Patman said the commissioner did not answer the question to satisfaction.

"I think they need to look at the financial condition. I think the last six months alone shows the job Bob has been doing. Our revenues here are $100,000 more for the first six months than we projected," Patman said.

He also referred to the improved financial conditions at the McLean hospital and credited Monogue and the hospital administration for the increase in patient days and revenue over a year ago.

"As far as I am concerned we ought to retain Bob Monogue," Patman said. "If we take this action we make it a political job."

Neslage said he had been given no official reason to terminate the administrator.

"I think if there is something they (the commissioners) know it should be forthcoming. This isn't the American way of true justice," Neslage said.

"The most remarkable thing is that all through its life this hospital has been self-supporting, and, to the best of my knowledge, never has it been on the tax rolls for operating expenses," Neslage said. "I close by saying let's not lose it."

Dr. Royce Laycock said in order to keep controversy from recurring the board should have clarification of its duties.

Miss Vermell Meador, director of nursing, said: "I've been employed at this hospital for 22 years in September. I feel that our dissent is affecting the employes of our hospital. They are not able to function as they should. It is going to eventually and ultimately affect patient care. I think something should be done to determine who has jurisdiction of our hospital. They (employes) do not know who can make a decision. It may have to go to the President of the United States."

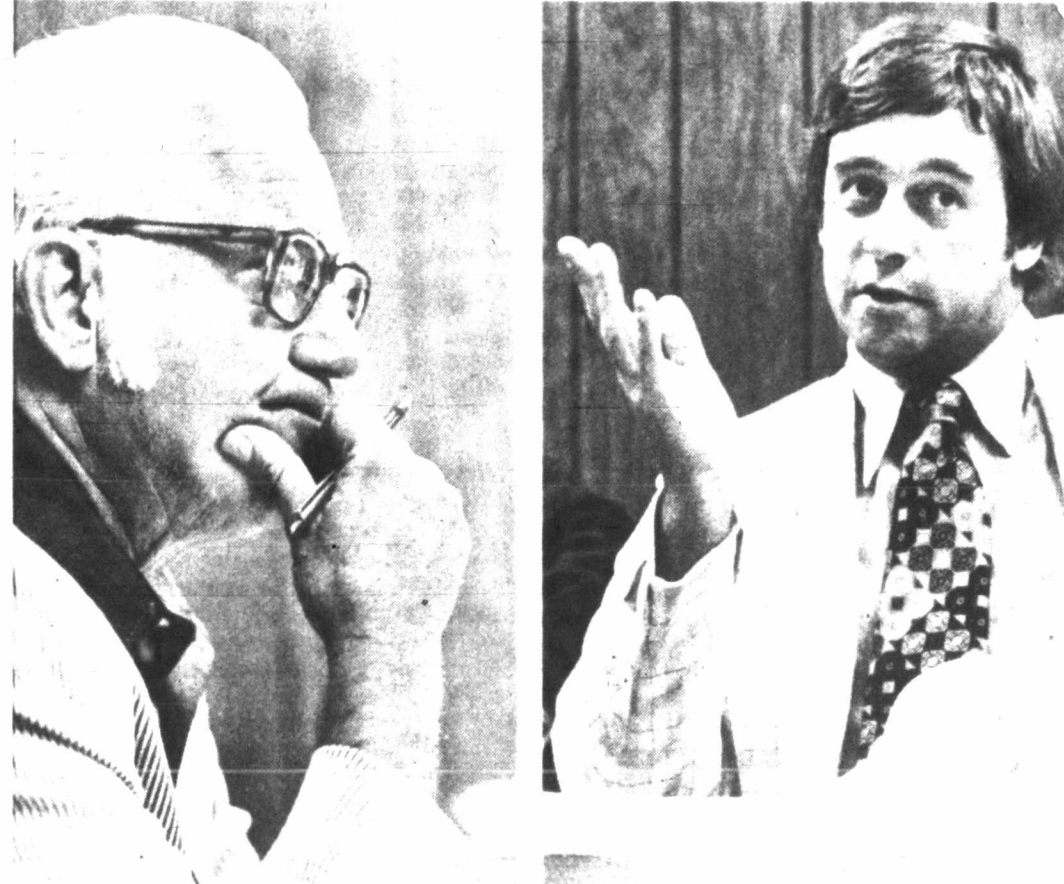

Neslage said he did not think anything could be solved until the board and commissioners meet.

Following the discussion, the board went into executive session.

The board approved several grade raises for employes and J.J. Roach purchasing agent, was approved for a $100 per month raise. His present salary is $950 monthly.

"Nobody is increased (in salary) just because of time and grade. All are evaluated," Monogue said.

He also recommended that Miss Meador and Virginia Mitten of the medical records department be allowed expenses to attend the American Hospital Association meeting in Dallas in September.

City delays request for ambulance increase

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

City commissioners decided this morning to delay action on Metropolitan Ambulance Company's request for a rate increase on ambulance service in Pampa.

Currently the Amarillo-based company is under contract with both the City of Pampa and Gray County.

Each pays the company a flat subsidy of $1,400 a month plus $30 per daytime ambulance call and $35 per night calls.

Metropolitan is asking that the monthly subsidy be increased to $1,600 a month and the day and night calls be hiked to $40 and $45 respectively.

Lewayne Ginnerich, president of Metropolitan, appeared before the commission and presented a financial statement which showed the company's net profit in Pampa for the first six months of 1976 was $44,822.

Total gross profit for the six months ending June was $13,789.61 and total expenses for the same period was $13,744.79, according to Ginnerich.

Since the City is in a four-way arrangement with the ambulance company Gray County and Highland General Hospital, Mayor R.D. Wilkerson suggested the city make no final decision on the rate increase request until the matter had been studied further with the Gray County Commissioners Court.

Considerable time was taken up at today's meeting with the proposed park improvement and intersection design at Browning and N. Cuyler Sts.

Most of the discussion concerned traffic flow problems at the intersection and on Cuyler St. when the First National Bank's drive-in facilities open on the old Junior High School property entrances and exits involving Francis, Cuyler and Browning Sts.

Commissioners decided to ask assistance of the City Traffic Commission in deciding the best design for traffic flow at the intersection.

Completion of plans for the project are expected to be made at the Sept. 14 meeting of the commission.

Pernell Scoggin was named by the commission to fill the job of Traffic Commission chairman, a post vacated by the resignation of Gary Baker.

Approved on second and final reading was an ordinance granting a special use permit to a 7-11 convenience store for the sale of beer and wine for off-premise consumption. The action was taken pending granting of a state license to sell beer and wine.

Sept. 28 was set for a public hearing on the proposed removal of abandoned buildings at 729 N. Banks, 1622 Alcock, 868 S. Faulkner, 1108 W. Wilks, 945 S. Wilcox, 717 Brunow, 807 Scott, 837 Denver, 1000 E. Denver, 829 Gordon, 815 and 909 Campbell.

The request of the state comptroller to have the Texas attorney general to represent the city in collection of delinquent sales taxes was approved.

Better bakers

Four 4-Hers prepare for Saturday's Better Bake Show. Penny Miller, 11, and Shelly Cochran, 9, make gingerbread men; Shelly and Melinda Monty, 9, press out the patterns; and Linda Lee, 14, puts them in the oven. 4-H members ages 9 to 19 will compete in the bake show beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Clyde Carruth Livestock

Pavilion. Entries will be scored on their gingerbread men and yeast coffee cakes, and the winners will be crowned bake show king and queen. The show is in conjunction with the 4-H Fair at the pavilion. (Pampa News photos by Michal Thompson)

NY bails out after Belle

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York metropolitan area cleaned up and bailed out today from its first major hurricane in more than a decade as the storm, downgraded in strength, carried its heavy winds and heavy rains north through New England.

Flash flooding in the wake of Hurricane Belle, now a tropical storm, posed serious problems for Vermont and other parts of New England.

"There are just too many to list them. We're in real trouble," said Earl Osgood, operations director of Civil Defense for Vermont when he was asked about flooded roads and washed out bridges.

The impact of Belle, which made its first landfall on suburban Long Island early in the morning, was not so severe as had been expected in the metropolitan area. But it was bad enough to flood basements, snarl traffic and leave hundreds of thousands of people without electricity after fallen trees snapped power lines.

God was with us," said Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso this morning.

Forecasters said the worst of the storm, which had packed winds of up to 110 miles an hour during its three-day journey up the Atlantic Coast, would be over by noon.

But the danger of flooding from heavy rains remained and flash flood watches were posted in parts of Connecticut, Massachusetts and northern New England. Five to eight inches of rain were expected in Connecticut, up to six inches was predicted for Vermont.

Osgood said almost all the towns from the Massachusetts line to Shrewsbury, Vt., about 12 miles south of Rutland, were threatened by severe flooding. The National Weather Service advised that the storm — although no longer as strong as it had been — would not abate as much as expected, before moving northward out of the area.

storm was near Springfield, Mass., already weakened.

"It's lost its punch," said Tony Gregory, a weather service forecaster in Boston. "It will weaken quite rapidly as it moves over the land, but it still has lots of rain left in it."

Only one fatality was directly attributed to the storm, the first major hurricane to hit New York since Donna killed 36 persons in 1960. A 19-year-old Long Island woman, out to see the storm, was hit by a falling tree.

During the morning, Belle moved north up the Connecticut River valley, already drenched by four days of rain associated with another weather system.

Seventy flights were canceled at Boston's Logan International Airport, many of them because the planes had been ferried to other airports for safekeeping. Many morning flights at the Albany, N.Y., Airport also were canceled.

Censorship on CBS-TV

Sometimes it would almost seem to appear that the executive heads of CBS-TV are absolutely determined to prove that their cynical critics are right.

The latest episode revolves around the Advertising Council's public service campaign to educate Americans about our country's economic system. The public service "spots" offer a free 24-page educational booklet entitled, "The American Economic System... And Your Part In It."

It is illustrated by Charles Schulz, creator of the "Peanuts" comic strip. But CBS has refused to run the spots on the grounds that the announcements themselves and the booklet are "controversial."

In other words, CBS is reserving the right not only to censor speech which appears on television, but also to extend that right to advertising matter as well.

According to a CBS official Gene Mater, who is listed as a CBS Vice President and assistant to an unnamed CBS executive, "The booklet plus the spot and the way it's presented, we look at as a discussion of one side of a controversial issue."

Newspaper accounts reported that Mater further said that "in his network's view," the spots not only violate the FCC's "fairness doctrine" requiring television to air both sides of a "controversy," but also "our own policy (relative to) controversial issues."

Great! Every time CBS carries anything that might be construed as being favorable to the United States or the Free Enterprise system, the network must give equal time to socialist critics! Or to put it another way, why does the fairness doctrine filter operate in only one direction?

It is incredible to us that CBS doesn't recognize that the alternative to Free Enterprise is socialism or communism, and that under the latter systems there is no freedom of expression.

For that matter where does the fairness doctrine or the Constitution declare that free enterprise is controversial?

'Free speech' in Russia

Apologists for and sympathizers of the soviet dictatorship have for years played upon the boast that "American novels are published in Russia" for the captive people to read. That story always did sound a little fishy, and at long last we know why.

The cat in the bag was neatly uncovered by an Israeli journalist, writing in the British publication "Encounter," and reported by Washington columnist George F. Will.

It seems that the Soviet dictators and censors have been playing games with our American writers and American novels. The game is called "snipology," a term used to describe the Communist practice of "sanitizing" the novels before they are printed and distributed to the people.

And if your friend is still confused, tell him or her to try taking into Russia a dozen or so Russian-language Bibles, and to report back to you what happens.

italized words were "snipped" — censored. Never can it be said the USSR that a Communist was a "fanatic" or "lacked respect for life" or executed men summarily.

In no less than 17 sections of Hemingway's novel did the communists apply the censor's scissors.

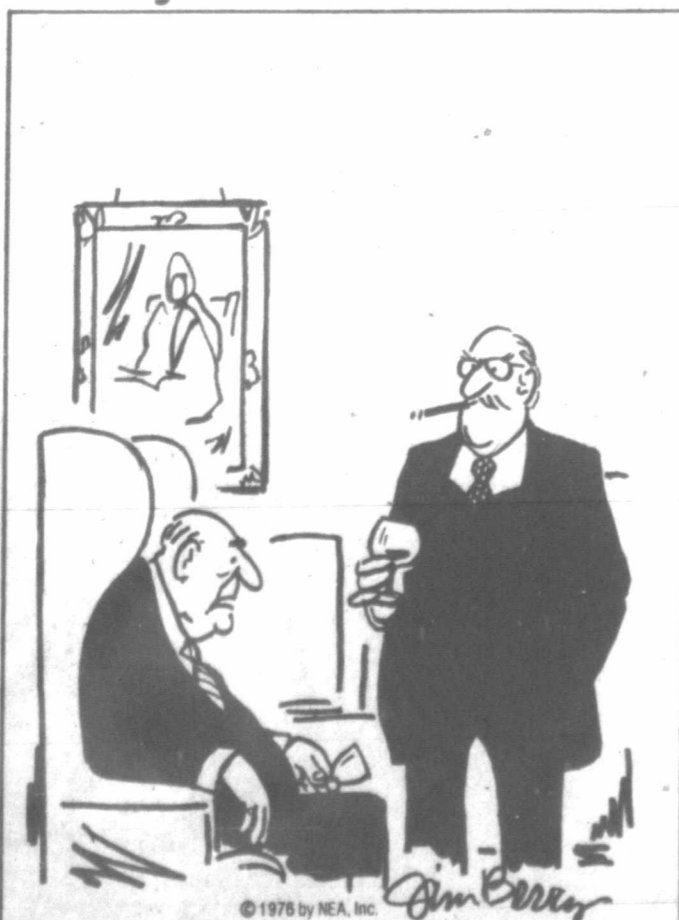

So, the next time someone tries to tell you that the USSR demonstrates "freedom of speech" in publishing Hemingway, you be sure to reply: "Bunk! The Communists have never allowed the Russian people to read Hemingway. What they are allowed to read is a laundered version, tailored to fit the Communist system of totalitarianism and denial of free speech.

And if your friend is still confused, tell him or her to try taking into Russia a dozen or so Russian-language Bibles, and to report back to you what happens.

Marshall Plan

The famed post-World War II Marshall Plan originated in a June 5, 1947 proposal by Secretary of State George C. Marshall to extend U.S. financial aid to all European countries "willing to assist in the task of recovery." During the next 3.5 years, Congress authorized the spending of some $12 billion on Marshall Plan aid, which was credited with restoring economic health to Western Europe.

CONNALLY FOR V.P.?

Do assets outweigh 'flaws'?

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Handsome, silver-haired John B. Connally has turned a reputation as a Texas wheeler-dealer into a political asset in his quest for the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

His political champions in the Senate and House who are promoting him for President Ford's running mate admit to "the flaws" or "the problems" in Connally's background, like his indictment on charges of bribery and perjury in connection with milk price support increases in the Nixon administration.

But, they chortle about the manner in which Connally won his acquittal, making him the only "certified" innocent man in the Watergate scandals.

While they note that even standing trial on such charges would usually represent an unsurmountable barrier in seeking elective office, "Connally has been able to overcome it."

Even members of the press corps, usually contemptuous of anyone involved even in the fringe of scandal, find Connally "enchanting" and have a sneaking admiration for the man who bamboozles them with displays of fierce injured innocence or jocular put-offs when questions about his record are raised.

"I think most American people think it (the indictment) was a bum rap to begin with," Connally says. "I sure think that's so, and therefore I don't think it hurts."

Because Connally is dynamic and articulate there are many Republicans who feel that the handsome Texan would be "the best attacker" against the Carter-Mondale ticket on issues involving financial policy.

"Connally is the most dynamic speaker we have," says Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.). He adds that in his opinion Connally knows more about American business, politics and foreign affairs than any other active political figure today.

"He was acquitted," is the brief dismissal by Connally's supporters of the bribery and perjury charges that were lodged against Connally by the special prosecutor's office.

While not eliminating Connally from the list of potential candidates for vice-president, Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.) has generally noted that the former Texas Democrat has "some problems" in his record that have to be given the most serious consideration.

The dynamism of fast traveling Connally has been able to stimulate enthusiasm among business groups and conservatives from coast to coast, including Sen. John Tower (R-Texas).

Tower, a former Connally foe, now takes the initiative to name Connally as his choice for the Republican vice-presidential slot.

While Tower admits Connally's indictment "will be a problem," he asserts that in his view "his assets far outweigh his liabilities" to the Republican ticket.

However, there are a few Republicans with some political punch who are actively opposed to Connally as Ford's running mate. Michigan Gov. William Milliken has urged President Ford not to select Connally, and a similar message has been relayed by Michigan Republican Chairman William McLaughlin.

While Assistant Senate Minority Leader Robert Griffin, a Ford intimate, has offered no critical comment of Connally publicly, there is no doubt among those who know him best that he would register opposition to Connally if Ford should consult him privately.

The same can be said for former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, who is another Ford intimate who was not consulted prior to the controversial pardoning of Richard Nixon.

But, while other Republicans are finding ways of dodging the Connally issue, Rep. Tom Railsback (R-Ill.) is doing the necessary chores to assure that President Ford and the White House advisors are aware of all of the evidence available on Connally in the House Judiciary Committee record.

Railsback, a member of the House Judiciary Committee and one of the Republicans voting for impeachment of Nixon on the first committee vote, is having that record combed for all evidence that would reflect unfavorably on Connally.

Rep. Railsback feels that President Ford has enough vulnerable points on Watergate and the Nixon pardon without taking on Connally as a running mate.

While most of the Connally opponents, awed by his reputation and aware of Ford's high regard for him, have been discreet in their comments and actions because of the possibility that the former Texas Democrat might be on a Ford ticket, the liberal Republican Ripon Society has commented caustically.

The Ripon Society has declared that if Ford picks Connally "the party might just as well nominate Rose Mary Woods" — a reference to President Nixon's long-time secretary who was implicated in the mysterious eighteen-minute gap in one of the key White House tapes.

Those White House tapes were also a factor in Connally's indictment, for they disclosed conversations with Nixon and Agriculture Department officials in which Connally argued in favor of increased milk price supports for the dairy lobby in the same period they were raising a million dollar political fund.

When Connally recently suggested that the White House tapes that still exist should be destroyed, it isn't as if he didn't have a personal interest in the White House tapes, for the Nixon-Connally conversations are undoubtedly some of the most fascinating if the conversations on the milk price supports are a fair sample.

It is with injured innocence that Connally speaks of the Nixon taping as an "invasion of privacy" and it is with determination that he stands behind his suggestion that Nixon should have burned the tapes in the White House rose garden.

When John Connally asserts that he still believes the Nixon White House tapes should be destroyed, there can be little doubt that he means what he says.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

World bank 'giveaway' to its own executives

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — While U.S. taxpayers pour billions into the World Bank and others lesser known giveaway institutions, their officials are briskly lining their pockets with bulging salaries and tax-free housing, traveling and other allowances.

Examples: s
—World Bank — president $114,060; nearly double the pay of the U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, plus $16,000 in "housing and representational allowance. Senior vice president $98,280; vice president $78,870; executive directors $77,400; alternative executive directors $56,730.

—Inter-American Development Bank — president $56,475; plus $16,000 "expense allowance"; executive vice president $90,300; executive directors $74,750; alternative executive directors $54,850.

—Asian Development Bank — president $51,500; vice president $45,000; executive directors $38,500; alternative executive directors $38,000.

Aroused by this arrant boondoggling, the Senate Appropriations Committee, after a study, rebukingly declared:

"Our investigations have led us to the distressing conclusion that, rather than the rewards of a career service, there is found in these banks a broad pattern of personal enrichment. The personnel management practices of these banks are suggestive of an institutionalized granting of lifetime sinecures where extraordinarily high salaries are commonplace and the pursuit of fringe benefits has been raised to a form of art."

While the critical Senate report does not name the high-salaried bank officials, president of the World Bank is the same Robert McNamara who as Secretary of Defense under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson made a great ado about exercising tight-fisted control over military spending.

"Systems analysis" was the constantly and loudly proclaimed policy of the one-time automobile executive. He pridefully gloried in the nickname "whiz kid."

As World Bank president since 1968, McNamara has completely reversed course.

From a bombastic economist, he has become what has been described as a "compulsive internationalist" insistently clamoring for more loans and grants to "developing countries" and boasting of the billions he has handed out.

Last year he sponsored a $36 billion five-year World Bank lending program — more than double the $16 billion 1970-74 loan plan.

Throughout the World Bank's 30-year existence, the U.S. has been by far the largest contributor, putting up more than $10 billion of its funds. Under McNamara's grandiose $36 billion program, the U.S. is tagged for another $4 billion.

While zealously shoveling out these huge sums to "needy developing nations," at negligible interest rates, McNamara and other World Bank officials have found time to handsomely take care of themselves — with sky-high salaries and equally lush expense accounts.

Indignantly reports the committee, headed by Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark.:

"It was astounding to find that even a division chief in the World Bank receives more than our Treasury Secretary. Even more astounding, the committee learned that a former assistant Treasury secretary who became an executive director of the World Bank was started to discover that his salary had zoomed overnight from $38,000 as a top U.S. official to $74,060.

Helping Themselves
Obviously shocked, the committee points out that the World Bank and the other giveaway banks were established to provide financial assistance to the less developed nations of the world. From their inception, the U.S. has been the leading contributor.

But that isn't the way it has worked out. Somberly reports the committee:

"In the harsh light of reality, many of our conceptions proved to be empty shadows. We find that there are favored nations when development assistance was parceled out, and that many who are said to be dedicated servants of the poor receive unseemly compensation for their services."

This self-serving boondoggling became so "unseemly" that Treasury Secretary William Simon, as a governor of the World Bank, wrote the other governors demanding immediate curbs on salary hiking and free-handed expense spending.

In this unusual crackdown, published in the committee report, Simon warned:

"I am fearful that the proposed compensation increases will undermine public and legislative support for these institutions."

Graphically illustrative of the free-handed boondoggling uncovered by the committee are the following reported instances:

"All employees of the World Bank are authorized to travel first class in Africa, Asia and southern Latin America. By economizing, the World Bank could have saved $1.5 million during the period July 1974 to July 1975. The Inter-American Development Bank funded 76 trips by spouses at an average cost of $1,721. On another occasion, 52 spouse trips were funded at an average cost of $1,768. During the period January 1974 to September 1975, other banks funded 268 trips by spouses, of which the most expensive averaged $3,497. Four cost $4,749."

Caustically the committee declared it was unable "to reconcile the expenditures of these funds with the missions of the banks."

Some refused to flee from path of hurricane

By The Associated Press

They all had their own reasons, the many who refused to flee the path of Hurricane Belle.

Many residents of low-lying areas from the Outer Banks of North Carolina to the New England shores of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts stubbornly refused to evacuate their homes, despite warnings that the results could be disastrous.

Other people felt drawn toward the rampaging wind and rain, like children in calmer times who stand bravely at the edge of the water until a wave rolls up on the beach and chases them away.

Many said they were ready for anything the storm could give them—they had done it before and didn't believe in panicking. One motive was hardly a matter of bravado. Many were scared of looters if their homes were abandoned.

Mrs. Margaret Smith of Dennisport, Mass., spent the morning in the supermarket, loading up on bottled water and soup. "We're battening down the hatches," she said. "We'll be ready for anything Belle can dish out."

As heavy rains drenched southern New England in advance of the hurricane, some residents in a number of coastal towns turned a deaf ear to pleas to evacuate to safer quarters.

In Narragansett, R.I., police wrote down names of those who refused to leave their homes after the town council president declared a state of emergency and ordered residents to evacuate.

In several small communities around Charlestown, R.I., police had to issue a direct order before residents consented to leave. "People have ridden it out before, and they figure they can ride it out again," said one officer who noted many elderly residents were reluctant to leave antiquities in their homes unprotected.

Seven families on Pilots Point in Connecticut and five or six residents, some of them elderly, of a nearby mobile home park in Westbrook, Conn., also refused to heed warnings to leave.

"There's nothing we can do legally to force them out," said State Police Commissioner Edward Leonard. "The problem is that when the water reaches the second floor they panic and then policemen have to risk their lives to get them out."

When droves of tourists and campers fled inland earlier from the spaghetti-thin barrier banks off North Carolina, many permanent residents had stood their ground, apparently confident the storm would pass them by.

It didn't quite pass by unnoticed, but Belle stayed far enough offshore the spare the Outer Banks the full impact. "There wasn't anything spectacular," said Ed Gregory, 26, of Chester, Va., who watched the bluster from the lobby of a waterfront motel in Rodanthe, N.C.

On the beach at the tiny seacoast village of Southampton, N.Y., scores of the curious stood in their bare feet and waited in the rain for the storm to hit. "This is the calm before the storm," said Michael Borella.

And inside one of the few pubs there that remained open, Tim Duckett, a 30-year-old carpenter, said he was not going to leave his barstool no matter how fierce the storm became.

"You'll leave," said bartender Dick Forrest. "When the water gets to those trees out front, you'll run upstairs with me."

Hurricane parties were scheduled in many places. At Ocean City, Md., Heron's Nite Club provided free snacks and dry towels. Card players barely budged when the storm passed.

And at the Sandpiper bar in Hyannis, Mass., about 35 customers took advantage of owner Al Cotoia's offer of a free drink to anyone who brought in a candle. One patron, Vera Molnar, a college student from Villanova, Pa., said, "I've never been in a hurricane before. I'm afraid to go home. At least there's people here."

And there were, as there sadly always are, the cases of those who did not move because they could not move. The superintendent of the Seaside Regional Center for Retarded Children in Waterford Conn., which has 220 youngsters, decided not to evacuate the building, which is about 50 yards from the water.

"Some of the children are so delicate, so profoundly retarded, they shouldn't be moved," he said.

Two convention deaths linked

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Health investigators are checking for a possible connection between the recent outbreak of "legionnaires disease" and an illness that killed three to 10 persons shortly after they attended a 1974 Odd Fellows convention in Philadelphia.

Dr. Dennis Lucey, state commissioner for health planning, said the Odd Fellows outbreak involved symptoms of a non-specific viral pneumonia.

Doctors have used a similar description for the unknown disease that has killed 27 and affected 128 others among the more than 10,000 who were at an American Legion convention July 21-24 in Philadelphia.

Dr. David Fraser, an investigator for the federal Center for Disease Control, said Monday that reports from the Odd Fellows indicated there were 17 cases and three deaths from the illness.

"There were probably 12 to 18 cases," said Samuel Patterson of Philadelphia, who was chairman of the committee that set up the 1974 convention of the men's fraternal organization. "We lost in the neighborhood of 10."

Fraser said the CDC had started phoning persons who took part in the 1974 convention to get further details.

The Odd Fellows convention, in September 1974, attracted between 3,000 and 3,500 to two of the same hotels that the American Legion used last month.

All of the victims of the Odd Fellows illness were in apparent good health and became sick several days after the convention ended, officials of the organization said. The illness that afflicted the legionnaires followed the same pattern.

The possible connection between the two outbreaks was called to the attention of state and federal health investigators by officials of the Odd Fellows.

Medical investigators, meanwhile, continued interviewing legionnaires throughout Pennsylvania and examining hotels and other areas in Philadelphia where the legionnaires gathered.

After one week of intensive investigation, the source of the legion outbreak remains a mystery. The medical researchers have all ruled out viruses, bacteria or a fungus. They are focusing on a toxin, or poison. Among those being considered are heavy metals, insecticides and herbicides.

A. Ford Winters, sovereign grand secretary of the Odd Fellows, said he still does not know what caused the deaths of his colleagues.

"They never did pinpoint it," Winters said in a telephone interview Monday from his Baltimore home. "They wanted to call it a sort of virus or Asian flu."

"It was something that acted like a virus and seemed like pneumonia but didn't respond to treatment for any of those things," said Patterson.

Kissinger explains sale

DEAUVILLE, France (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger explained today to French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues American objections over the sale of a French nuclear reprocessing plant to Pakistan.

Robert Funseth, Kissinger's press spokesman, said the two men talked by telephone for five to 10 minutes. He described the conversation as friendly, constructive and non-confrontational.

Kissinger is staying here in Northern France for a short break from a six-nation tour to Europe, the Middle East and East Asia before flying to The Netherlands on Wednesday. Sauvagnargues is vacationing in southern France.

Kissinger is pressing for additional safeguards in the French nuclear plant sale to avoid proliferation of nuclear weapons. A senior American official told reporters traveling with Kissinger the present agreement would allow about five per cent of the plutonium produced to be diverted for armaments.

France says the contract has been approved by the International Atomic Energy Agency and that the agency will be the watchdog for use of the plutonium.

Official French sources said the contract contains all the safeguards that are necessary and called Kissinger's threat to Pakistan election-year politicking.

Senators say no to Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Ronald Reagan pressed President Ford to name his running mate, two senators Ford was considering for vice president said they don't want the second spot on the Republican ticket.

The two, Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and William Brock of Tennessee, said they would prefer to remain in the Senate rather than undertake a national campaign.

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas and Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond also revealed Monday that they have been asked for personal information by the White House as part of Ford's effort to screen possible running mates.

The five joined Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa and Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson on the list of those who have admitted White House inquiries about their health and finances.

In Kansas City, Mo., where the GOP convention opens next Monday, Reagan forces stepped up their efforts to get Ford to name a running mate, as Reagan did in picking Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Schweiker.

John Sears, Reagan's campaign manager, asked the Republican National Committee rules panel to adopt a convention rule to force Ford to name his vice presidential choice before the balloting for the presidential nomination begins Aug. 18.

"The delegates certainly do have the right to know the whole ticket in advance," said Sears. This "would force every candidate for the nomination to be judged on the quality of his recommended nominee, and hence be responsible for it."

The panel rejected Sears' proposal, but the question is certain to come up again before the convention's own rules committee, composed completely of delegates.

Spokesman Peter Kaye of the President Ford Committee said the proposal "is an attempt by Sears to write a rule that would force us to make the same mistake he did."

President Ford has said he will not name his choice until after he is nominated. In Kansas City, Ford strategists say one reason they are resisting any move to force an early disclosure of the President's choice for the No. 2 job is the longest possibility that Reagan might end up as Ford's running mate.

"That couldn't happen if the choice had to be disclosed before the presidential nomination. These Ford supporters say they expect some Reagan delegates to vote against Sears' proposal in order to keep the door open in case Reagan seeks the vice presidential nomination.

Brock said in a letter to Ford that he would prefer to continue his campaign this fall for election to a second term from Tennessee.

"The senator feels obligated to the people of Tennessee to run for the Senate," said Brock spokesperson Susan Hammond. "He sent a letter to the President asking that his name be withdrawn."

Brooke, the only black member of the Senate, gave similar reasons.

"I am pleased by the President's inclusion of my name among others as a possible vice presidential running mate, but I am committed to running for re-election for the U.S. Senate in 1978 where I feel I can best serve the country, the people of Massachusetts and my party."

Three 4-Hers enter district revue

Three Gray County 4-H fashion experts will model their own creations Thursday as they vie for top district honors in the 20-county Panhandle area, according to Marilyn Shirley, assistant county Extension agent for home economics.

They are Sue Smith, Bobbie Skaggs and Penny Miller.

"Bell Ringing 4-H Fashions" is the theme of the 1976 District I 4-H Dress Revue in the Amarillo College Fine Arts Building.

The three are already winners in the county competition, Shirley said. They are judged on sewing and construction skills, overall appearance, modeling abilities and 4-H record books.

Smith will compete in the senior division and five winners from this contest will take their designs to the State 4-H Dress Revue in San Antonio Sept. 17-18. Junior division contestants, aged 9-14, compete no further than the district level. Skaggs and Miller are entered in the junior division.

Participants will attend a luncheon at 12:15 p.m. and the revue will begin at 2 p.m. State Senator Max Sherman will present awards to the junior winners and senior winners will

Miami school sets Aug. 17 enrollment

Enrollment for the Miami Independent School District has been set for 9:30 to 11 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 17, in the school auditorium, according to Bob Burgoon, principal.

School will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 18. Buses will run and the cafeteria will serve meals.

Enrollment will begin with a general assembly for students in grades 1 through 12, teachers and parents. Students will register for classes and get textbooks and school supplies lists, Burgoon said.

Among the registration materials will be free and reduced lunch price applications, new student handbooks, elementary class schedules, locker assignments and complete trial schedule sheets for grades 7 to 12, Burgoon said.

Teacher in-service training has been set for 8:30 a.m. Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 17, to relay information on school policies, updated school accreditation process, budget reports, media and materials and teacher organizations, the principal said.

Lefors school board to meet on Thursday

The Lefors Independent School District Board of Trustees will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday to consider four items on the agenda.

Members will discuss bus routes and transportation for exceptional students to Pampa schools and will elect a school nurse.

In other business the board will vote on payment current bills and approval of the minutes of the previous meeting.

receive their awards from Congressman Jack Hightower.

Shirley said awards will include recognition of the 4-H member making the best all-cotton outfit, the best all-wool and the best all-synthetic garments. There will also be recognition of the best all-western or riding outfit. The dress revue committee has added this award, Shirley said, because "this mode of dress has become a part of our way of life and heritage, it should be a part of the contest."

The revue is open to the public. The Texas Home Demonstration Association will host a tea at 3 p.m. to conclude the activities.

Demo program would cost $1,000 for each American, says Simon

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Treasury Secretary William Simon told Republican platform writers today that Democratic spending proposals could mean nearly $1,000 more in federal outlays for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Simon was the first of several witnesses before a morning session of the GOP platform committee. He denounced such undertakings as the Democrats' jobs-for-all bill and proposed instead that Republicans concentrate on helping the private sector with tax reform and reducing the role of government.

The 1976 Democratic platform might well add another $200 billion in annual government spending, Simon said. He accused the Democrats of following "discredited policies of spend-spend, elect-elect, inflation, controls, bigger and bigger government" and said that if the Democrats had their way the country would be headed for accelerated inflation followed by deeper recession.

However, Simon said, President Ford and the outnumbered Republicans in Congress have succeeded in maintaining what he called responsible fiscal and monetary policies. These policies, he said, "are moving us in the right direction and confidence in the economy at home and abroad has been restored. I believe it is the direct result of the positive actions taken by President Ford."

Republican platform drafters appear to be finding agreement easier on defense matters and the economy than on abortion and women's rights. Simon and several economists, some asked to appear before the platform committee and its subcommittees by Ronald Reagan supporters, consider Democratic proposals ruinously expensive.

James Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Monday that major Democratic proposals on full employment and social services could require a 50 percent increase in income taxes to finance.

Discussions by a subcommittee on defense and foreign affairs appeared to show a majority in favor of taking a position on the future of the Panama Canal, an item that had been omitted from an earlier working paper circulated among some delegates.

Reagan has made strong statements about retaining sovereignty over the canal. President Ford's administration insists there is no intention of sacrificing U.S. interests in the waterway, but officials have been speaking in more moderate terms.

Harris convicted of robbery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William and Emily Harris, avowed revolutionaries who shared Patricia Hearst's underground life, stand convicted of kidnapping and robbery in a trial which is not yet over.

Harris were acquitted Monday of six counts of assault but were convicted of two kidnappings, one robbery and two car thefts — all involving Miss Hearst.

The jury delivered its verdict unaware of a controversy about possible bias against the Harris. Without dismissing the jury and ending the trial, the judge scheduled an unusual hearing today to investigate whether the verdict was tainted by prejudice.

In a surprise move, the jurors asked and were permitted to remain sequestered at a guarded hotel overnight to prevent contact with publicity they were ordered to avoid.

The sources of possible jury bias included reports of the construction of two mock hangman's nooses by potential jurors, the smuggling of an inflammatory newspaper article into a jury room and an allegedly biased remark by a juror who took part in the verdict.

The verdict by the seven-woman, five-man jury was angrily challenged by the defense. "I don't think this verdict will stand in any court," said chief defense attorney Leonard Weinglass. "It was the most tainted of verdicts."

Unless the verdict is set aside, Weinglass said he would appeal on numerous grounds. Chief prosecutor Sam Mayerson said if prejudice were shown at the jury hearing he would join in a motion to set aside the verdict and seek a new trial.

There were some unusual events in the trial, but I don't think they indicate the jury was tainted at all," he said. Immediately after the verdict was announced, Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp announced he would pursue the prosecution of Miss Hearst.

House okays voter postcards

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill moving through Congress would let you register to vote by mail, but only if you're willing to pick up registration forms yourself.

Members of the Democratic-controlled House gave 239 to 147 approval to the measure on Monday.

While the bill will allow prospective voters to register for federal elections by mail, the House approved an amendment that will require them to make at least a token effort to register.

Initially, the bill would have required registration postcards to be sent to every U.S. household. It was estimated that would involve about 140 million pieces of mail at a cost of from $50 million to $500 million.

But House members dropped the mass mailing requirement on a vote of 255 to 130, accepting an amendment by Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash. Instead of mass mailings, the measure as passed by the House would require that the postcard registration forms be placed in local post offices where prospective voters could easily obtain them.

Democrats had wanted the measure passed in time for this fall's general election, and Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter had called on House Speaker Carl Albert last month seeking to have it moved out of the Rules Committee where it had been stuck six months.

Bonker said he did not think his amendment had hurt the registration bill, adding that "I'm sure if Jimmy Carter knew what was in the bill he probably would have supported my amendment."

Under the House bill, a voter registration administration would be set up in the Federal Election Commission to administer the mail registrations. Prospective voters would mail the cards to local or state officials.

Gas producers free if . . .

WASHINGTON (AP) — Natural gas producers are free to raise gas prices if they first agree to refund the money in case the Federal Power Commission eventually decides the price is too high.

A federal appeals court cleared the way Monday for a new price ceiling approved by the FPC July 27 to go into effect but attached a condition designed to protect consumers.

The three-judge court ruled that producers raising their prices to the new ceiling must agree to refund the excess money if the power commission decides on appeal that it set the ceiling too high.

Producers who refuse to agree to the refund provision would be barred from raising prices until the commission rules on the appeal.

It was not immediately known which option the producers will select.

There were some unusual events in the trial, but I don't think they indicate the jury was tainted at all," he said. Immediately after the verdict was announced, Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp announced he would pursue the prosecution of Miss Hearst.

Although a codefendant with the Harris, Miss Hearst's trial has been delayed until Jan. 10 while she undergoes psychiatric testing prior to sentencing on a federal bank robbery conviction in San Francisco.

BIDDIE GRACE HENDERSON
Biddie Grace Henderson, 73, of Groom died this morning at Highland General Hospital. Funeral arrangements are pending with Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Home.

Mrs. Henderson was born in 1903 in Elk City, Okla., and moved to Groom from Duncan, Okla. in 1947. She married Minard Henderson in Burns Flat, Okla., in 1921. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Groom.

Survivors include the widow; a son, Jimmie Lee of Oklahoma City; and two grandchildren.

ADA GOLDA GARREN
Graveside services for Ada Golda Garren, 77, of 317 N. Faulkner, will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Rosedale Cemetery in Ada, Okla. She died Sunday in Odessa.

Mrs. Garren was born in 1899 in Waxahachie and later moved to Maud, Okla. She moved to Pampa from Maud in 1968 and she was preceded in death by her husband, Earl, in 1968.

Survivors include two daughters, Florene Davis of Amarillo and Marie Reynolds of Odessa; a son, L.L. Garren of Pampa; a brother, Bob Smith of Big Spring; four sisters, Mrs. Cecil Carter and Mrs. Leola Myers, both of Ada, Okla., Mrs. Lillian Phillips of Rolf, Okla., and Mrs. Edna Martinez of California; 10 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

DAVID W. NEELEY
Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Minton Memorial Chapel for David W. Neeley of Sanford. The Rev. Randy Hughes of Fort Worth will officiate, with burial in Westlawn Memorial Park.

Mr. Neeley was the mayor of Sanford. He died in his home Sunday of an apparent heart attack.

Stray dog, cat pickup increases
Animal control officers in Pampa picked up 1,565 animals during the first seven months of 1976 to average 224 animals per month, according to Richard Mills, Pampa police chief.

The pickups included 949 live dogs, 178 dead dogs, 204 live cats, 185 dead cats and 49 other animals.

Pickups of live dogs have averaged 136 animals per month in 1976, an increase of 100 animals a month during the same period in 1975.

ELIMINATING tax loopholes may be a reform whose time is coming, according to Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Re-writing tax laws to cut out special advantages might result in a new rate ranging from 10 to 12 per cent for lower incomes to a top 35 to 40 per cent, he says, compared with the current 14 to 70 per cent range.

Senate stops $billion B1

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators will take the next step toward a final decision on whether to begin production of the controversial B1 bomber.

The Senate gave 82 to 6 approval Monday to a $104-billion defense-spending bill that would prohibit the outlay of $1 billion for the B1 until after next Feb. 1.

But the vote on the B1 put the Senate bill in conflict with a defense bill passed by the House. On June 17 the House voted down an amendment that would have delayed orders for the first three B1 bombers until after the next presidential inauguration.

That leaves it up to a House and Senate conference committee to negotiate the differences.

The conference is to begin after Congress returns Aug. 23 from a week's recess for the Republican National Convention.

Supporters of the B1 delay said they wanted to give the president taking office next Jan. 20 a chance to decide whether a proposed fleet of 244 supersonic B1s is worth the estimated $22-billion price tag.

The Ford administration proposes to place initial orders for the first three planes in November. The Democratic party and its presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter, want a review of latest prototype flight test data early next year.

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, a leading Senate critic of the B1, said the absence of a challenge on the Senate floor to the B1 postponement, recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee, showed a solid Senate majority favors a delay in spending.

The $104-billion total in the Senate bill is $3.9 billion under Ford administration budget requests and $1.4 billion less than the total voted by the House. But the Senate total is $11.6 billion more than defense appropriations were for the 12 months that ended June 30.

The Senate turned down amendments to the bill that would have deleted $350 million in advance funding for a nuclear powered supercarrier and $75 million for 360 Lance surface-to-surface missiles armed with non-nuclear warheads.

Police report

Pampa police investigated three thefts, a burglary, an assault and criminal mischief complaint, two non-injury accidents and a hit and run accident Monday.

The owner of 401 Roberia told police he had been out of town for a month and when he returned his house had been entered and approximately $600 of electronic equipment was missing. Damage to the residence was estimated at $200 and $800 worth of items were missing from a car parked in front of the house.

Culberson-Stowers Chevrolet, 805 N. Hobart, reported that batteries were taken from two pickups parked on the lot and Top o' Texas Used Cars at 503 E. Atchison reported that tires and wheels had been removed from a car on the lot. Two dollars of gasoline was taken from Allsup's at 1900 N. Hobart.

A man told police that he was threatened with a knife at a local lounge and added that a tire on his car was damaged.

The hit and run accident was reported at Brown and Cuyler. In other reports, police recovered a 1972 Chevrolet reported stolen from 1004 N. Somerville Friday.

The car was located abandoned in the 400 block of E. Short with the keys still in the ignition. Investigation of the theft is continuing.

Multi-racial government nears

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — An agreement is near to form an interim multi-racial government to prepare South-West Africa for independence by next June 30, sources at a constitutional conference in Windhoek report.

South Africa rules the territory, also called Namibia, under a League of Nations mandate rejected by the United Nations. The U.N. Security Council has ordered South Africa to submit plans for U.N.-supervised free elections by Aug. 31 or face economic sanctions.

Thirty-five delegates representing whites, blacks and coloreds (mixed races) have been meeting since September in Windhoek, the territory's major city, to draft a constitution.

Members of the committee said on Monday that plans for the interim government will be announced on Aug. 24.

"We have the go-ahead for a multiracial government from the South African Department of Foreign Affairs," a colored delegate said. "You can take it that consultations are taking place with Western powers in a bid to prevent precipitate action when the Security Council deadline expires."

A key issue still unresolved is whether the South African People's Organization, or SWAPO, will oppose or participate in the new government.

SWAPO guerrillas based in southern Angola and Zambia are fighting South African troops and police along the northern border of South-West Africa, and the South African government berred the nationalist organization from the constitutional negotiations.

Some black and colored delegates have raised the possibility of SWAPO leaders being in the interim government or joining a coalition government after independence. SWAPO leaders have said they will not take part until the South African government frees all political prisoners, recognizes the territorial integrity of South-West Africa and withdraws its troops and police.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just celebrated our 30th wedding anniversary. Three years ago my father died. He was very wealthy and left everything to my stepmother. Last June, my stepmother (who is 11 years older than I am) was visiting my husband and me, and I found them in bed together. My world came crashing down, and I ordered her out of the house.

After conferring with my two sons and their wives, I wrote a letter to this woman and told her I never wanted to see her again. She responded with a letter stating that she has been in love with my husband as long as I have, and she could never say no to him.

My husband has asked me to forgive him, and he promised never to see her again. I forgave him, but this woman won't give up. She calls here, and if I answer the phone she hangs up on me. I don't know whether she calls him at his office, but I assume she does.

My sons and their wives tell me that she has called them, and they have slammed the phone down on her. Just when I think I'm getting over this terrible hurt, she calls and upsets me. Please tell me how to handle it.

HURT BADLY

DEAR HURT: She sounds disturbed. Ask your lawyer what steps should be taken to put an end to this harassment. You don't have to tolerate it.

DEAR ABBY: I am the only female in an office of 10 men. Although the restrooms are clearly marked "MEN" and "WOMEN," the men use the women's restroom in addition to their own. I strongly resent that practice!

I do want privacy in the restroom, but if I mention it, I will be labeled a prude. My job is well paying, and I would hate to change for that reason, especially at age 50. May I have your suggestions?

DESIRES PRIVACY

DEAR DESIRES: If you DON'T MENTION it, how will the offenders know that you resent their actions? The solution is obvious. Speak up. And don't worry about what they call you.

DEAR ABBY: I notice that you sometimes let people air their beefs in your column. Well, here's mine:

I've been a waitress for many years in two of Seattle's finest restaurants, and it positively infuriates me when a lady speaks to me through her escort as though I am not good enough for her to speak directly to.

Example: Me to her: "Ma'am, how would you like your steak?" She ignores me, turns to her escort and says, "Honey, tell her I like my steak rare."

Abby, what is wrong with those snobbish women, anyway? This probably won't make your column, but I feel a lot better just telling somebody.

CHARLENE

DEAR CHARLENE: Those snobbish ladies are going by some very archaic rules of etiquette. At one time (and don't ask me why) it wasn't considered proper for a lady to speak to a waiter or waitress, so she communicated through her escort.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very concerned about skin cancer. I know there must be several people who have it and think it's just a spot that will go away. That's what I thought about the spot on my back. It turned pink and I decided to go into the doctor's office and have it checked after ignoring it for a while.

He cut it out and sent it to the lab. It was skin cancer. The doctor said he got it all out and not to worry. I hope I can take his word for it. It was told the sun rays can cause skin cancer. Please tell us more about it and also about moles.

DEAR READER — Skin cancer is the most common of all cancers. Fortunately, with the exception of cancer from moles (malignant melanomas) they usually do not spread to other parts of the body. They only cause local tissue destruction and can be cured simply by cutting out all of the area involved. That can become a fair-sized area though if the cancer is neglected.

Those little scab-like formations of the face and back of the hands are often actinic keratosis, the name for the premalignant spots that develop from exposure to the sun. They should be seen by a doctor and removed. Sun rays are radiation. The ultraviolet radiation from the sun causes these spots and is the major factor in causing skin cancer. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — One of my Pet Peeves is that whenever it rains there are always inconsiderate drivers who face madly along very close to the curb and splash pedestrians who are waiting to cross the street. I have had rain and mud splashed all over my clothes by such nuts, even when I step back as far as I can. — MRS. L.H.

DEAR POLLY — L.P. wanted to know about cleaning white suede leather. I found I could remove axle grease from my white suede dress with a super spot remover sold by a well known door to door salesman for brushes. Spray on a WHITE cloth and then rub the spot instead of spraying directly on it so as to avoid rings. I discovered this nine years ago and am still using it and also for an occasional cleaning of my white suede shoes. — DORIS

DEAR READERS — Do test first on an inconspicuous spot. There are different suede fabrics now on the market and what works well on one may not work on another. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — When washing or drying a sweater or jacket with pretty buttons on it, I button it and turn inside out. Then the buttons are not chipped during the washing. — BETTY J.

Tennis clinics— they offer lots of practice

EDITOR'S NOTE — For the growing number of Americans attending tennis clinics and camps, a warning: You seldom emerge from these crash courses a better player. But you can learn what to do to become better — with a lot of practice.

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The hot sun is finally going down behind the pine trees. The air is humid, and perspiration pastes our shirts to our backs. The blister on my thumb is beginning to bleed and a new one is forming on the heel of my hand.

We continue. We might be prisoners working on a road gang. But our clothes are white, not prison green. We carry rackets, not shovels. And we have paid to be here.

This is a tennis clinic. Hundreds of yellow balls are strewn about the sandy green courts. A pro is hitting balls to my forehead. I lurch backward after one and flail away at it.

The pro stops and walks to the net. He puts his hands on his hips and cocks his head. "Do you know what you look like? You look like you're going to... the store for a loaf of bread," he says. I swallow and wipe the sweat from my eyes. I nod and try again. I must learn to move in on the ball.

My forehand and serve are erratic. But they are strong and comforting friends when compared with my perfidious backhand. My net game is a hopeless exercise.

I am the easy prey of the dinker, the guy who waits for me to make the mistakes. Pat the ball back to me three or four times and I'll bang one out into the net.

I am not alone. Eve Kraft of the U.S. Tennis Association says she gets dozens of calls every week from tennis hackers. All of them cling to the belief that given some expert help, they can beat the guy two rungs ahead on the club ladder.

"People who once went sight-seeing or something now do this for their vacation," she said. "There's been a phenomenal growth in the past few years."

Last year, the USTA began counting the tennis camps in the country. The list has more than 200 names and it grows each month. It includes only the pure tennis camps, not the hundreds of clinics offered by resort hotels. No one knows how many people take tennis courses annually at camps and clinics. Mrs. Kraft said.

The camps range from $200-per-week arrangements using idle college dormitories and courts to $600-a-week tennis havens. Anyone with a court and racket can start a tennis camp. There is no guarantee of quality.

"You ought to look for an established place where the head pro is really a resident teacher and not just a celebrity who's never there. The best way to pick one is to ask someone else who's been there what they thought about it," Mrs. Kraft said.

Instead of a camp, I chose an extended weekend clinic at the Pinehurst Hotel, better known for its golf courses. In the past five years, it has built 12 courts in a pine glade and, for $217, offers a four-day, three-night package called the Australian Tennis Institute.

The head pro is a former Australian touring player, Terry Addison, a bluff, stocky and bearded man with powerful forearms. His assistants are also Aussies — Garry Cooper and Peter Marshall. All of their instruction is spiced with the lilt of their home-land.

They like to teach 12 players per clinic. But our group had only five: an accountant who didn't stay down on his backhand; his wife, who couldn't stretch up for her serve; a doctor who was just starting; my wife and me. If we had a common bond it was our sedentary occupations and our nearly fanatical desire to improve. It would drive us to arrive early for our lessons and to continue playing for eight hours despite blisters and aching muscles.

But on Friday, the first day, it rained. Pinehurst lacks indoor courts, and we learned Lesson One: check beforehand to make sure plans won't be ruined by bad weather.

Terry did manage to get us to a local junior high gymnasium for a video taping session. The idea is to let you view your mistakes. Terry operated the camera while Garry lobbed balls to us the way a doting father teaches a 4-year-old to catch baseballs. One by one we strode to a designated spot and hit three forehands, three backhands and three serves.

The playback, in slow motion, did not look like an instant replay from Wimbledon. Good players look like dancers in slow motion. We looked awkward.

"Look at your left hand, Bob. Have you ever wondered what your left hand is doing?" Garry asked as we watched my forehands. I had not, primarily because I am right-handed. But tennis, Garry informed me, is a two-handed game. Henceforth, I would have to concern myself with what both hands were doing as I swung.

My video image started serving and Terry wacked me on the left leg with his pointer. "You've got a wandering left foot there. And your toss is too high." We watched the ball disappear through the top of the screen. I was taken aback. My serve was my best shot. I thought.

When the skies finally cleared and the courts dried, we got to hit with the pros. This was what we'd come for! This was tennis!

But Terry continued to dissect my serve. He changed my stance and forced me to anchor my front foot. He changed the way I tossed the ball. After a day of practice, I felt as if I were standing on the edge of a cliff trying to catch butterflies in a net. My serves banged against the back fence or ploughed furrows at my feet more often than they came cleanly off my racket and landed deep in the service court the way they were supposed to.

Terry looked at me curiously. "You know, I really expected your serve to improve. You had the rhythm and all. But it hasn't. You seemed to get discouraged and it started getting worse," he observed. Then he shook his head, sadly. But I felt better. It was the first time anyone ever told me I had rhythm.

During a break, Garry told us the facts of tennis life. If we wanted to improve, he said, we could not play any matches for three months. "You've got to go out and just practice your strokes until you've got them down instinctively. If you play a match, you'll revert to your old bad habits."

Three months! I was playing a match in three days!

Before we left, Terry handed each of us a can of tennis balls, along with a diploma that said we had been "adjudged proficient" and written reports on our strokes. The reports were to guide us in the practice sessions ahead. Mine read like the review of a play that closed in Boston:

"Forehand: You get too close to the ball, causing you to lift off the shot..."

"Backhand: Don't move your feet so much. You lose control of your body weight..."

"Serve: Relax yourself more. Release must be forward and in line with the left shoulder..."

Terry's last words were a guarantee that if we practiced hard for a few months, we'd improve. Don't play, just practice.

But I had a match scheduled. I was determined to beat a friend who regularly beat me badly simply by hitting to my backhand.

I walked onto the court nervous, my blistered hand encased in a glove. I felt like a plastic surgery patient facing the mirror for the first time.

He punched my first service return to my backhand. I netted it. I came up on a forehand and lofted it out. I double faulted. Soon, I was down 4-0.

Then it changed. I took the next backhand shot and stroked a deep cross-court return. I followed it to the net and volleyed crisply to his forehand corner. He managed to loft a lob, but I drifted back and, to my own amazement, knocked the over-head past him for a winner.

Arthur Ashe said last year, after winning at Wimbledon, that he played the tournament "in the zone." Temporarily and inexplicably, he began playing as well as, or perhaps better than, he was capable of playing. For the first time, I had found the zone. I won four of the next five games.

Just as suddenly, I lost it. I lost the set as well. But I knew the strokes were in me. It was just a matter of bringing them out, like polishing tarnish off silver. I begged off playing a second set with Joe. I wanted to pull out a bucket of old balls and practice.

BENEFITS IMPROVING
NEW YORK (AP) — Relocation assistance to new employees is definitely improving, says Tico Relocation Management Co., an employe relocation services firm. However, most U.S. companies still offer transferring employes more generous relocation benefits than those offered new hires.

The most marked differences involve real estate assistance. The fewest relate to expenses incurred during shipment of household goods and house-hunting trips.

About books Tennis books, anyone?

Capsule reviews prepared by the American Library Assn.

By Barry Simon

What do tennis stars do when their matches get rained out? Not all pull out the practice machine and perfect volleys and ground strokes. Some don't even jog or do sit-ups. The latest off-court activity for many pros is writing tennis books.

While some of these — standard sports autobiographies — aim at polishing the author's image, others aim at polishing the game of the typical once-a-weekend tennis bum.

Rod "Rocket" Laver and Roy "Emmo" Emerson, authors of "Tennis for the Bloody Fun of It" certainly have the proper credentials. Laver is the only player in history to twice win the grand slam of tennis — the Australian, French, U.S. and Wimbledon championships in one year. Emerson has won each of these tournaments at least twice. The two also conduct tennis camps.

Their philosophy is that tennis should be fun, no matter how awful the player. Unfortunately, their book — which is stuffed with anecdotes about themselves, their coaches and other tennis stars — is often more fun than instructional.

They offer some of their best advice on the subject of tennis fashions. "If the stripe on your headband doesn't happen to blend well with the stripe on your socks or your wristlet, and if the color of your shoe-laces doesn't match the color of the band inside your hat, nobody is going to drum you out of the game and

TENNIS FOR THE BLOODY FUN OF IT by Rod Laver and Roy Emerson with Barry Tarshis (Quadrangle, 158 pages, $9.95)
TENNIS BEGINS AT FORTY by Pancho Gonzalez and Jeffrey Bairstow (Dial, 176 pages, $12.95)
THE ULTIMATE TENNIS BOOK: 500 YEARS OF THE SPORT by Gianni Clerici, translated by Richard J. Wieszell (Follett, 327 pages, $24.95)

"Tennis Begins at Forty" by Pancho Gonzalez is filled with the detail that makes or breaks a game.

I doubt if it's going to have any effect on your backhand."

The book's format — a conversation between Rocket and Emmo — makes for enjoyable reading, but the book's dearth of detail on basics like footwork and strategy and death of sequential photos also makes the transition from easy chair to court difficult.

It's on just that detail — the detail that makes or breaks a game — that Pancho Gonzalez's "Tennis Begins at Forty" focuses.

In teaching the serving ball toss, for example, he suggests that the player place a bucket one foot in front of him and a few inches to the right of his forward foot. Most of the balls should fall in the bucket. To illustrate the toss alone, Gonzalez uses 24 photographs.

What really makes Gonzalez's book unique is its intended audience. As the subtitle says, this is a "Guide For All Players Who Don't Have Wrists of Steel or a Cannonball Serve. Don't Always Rush the Net or Have a Devastating Overhead, But Want to Win"

Gonzalez, who is currently tennis director at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, is considered one of the best players in the history of the game. Still competing at age 48, his philosophy of tennis is that the player — whether amateur or pro — need never retire.

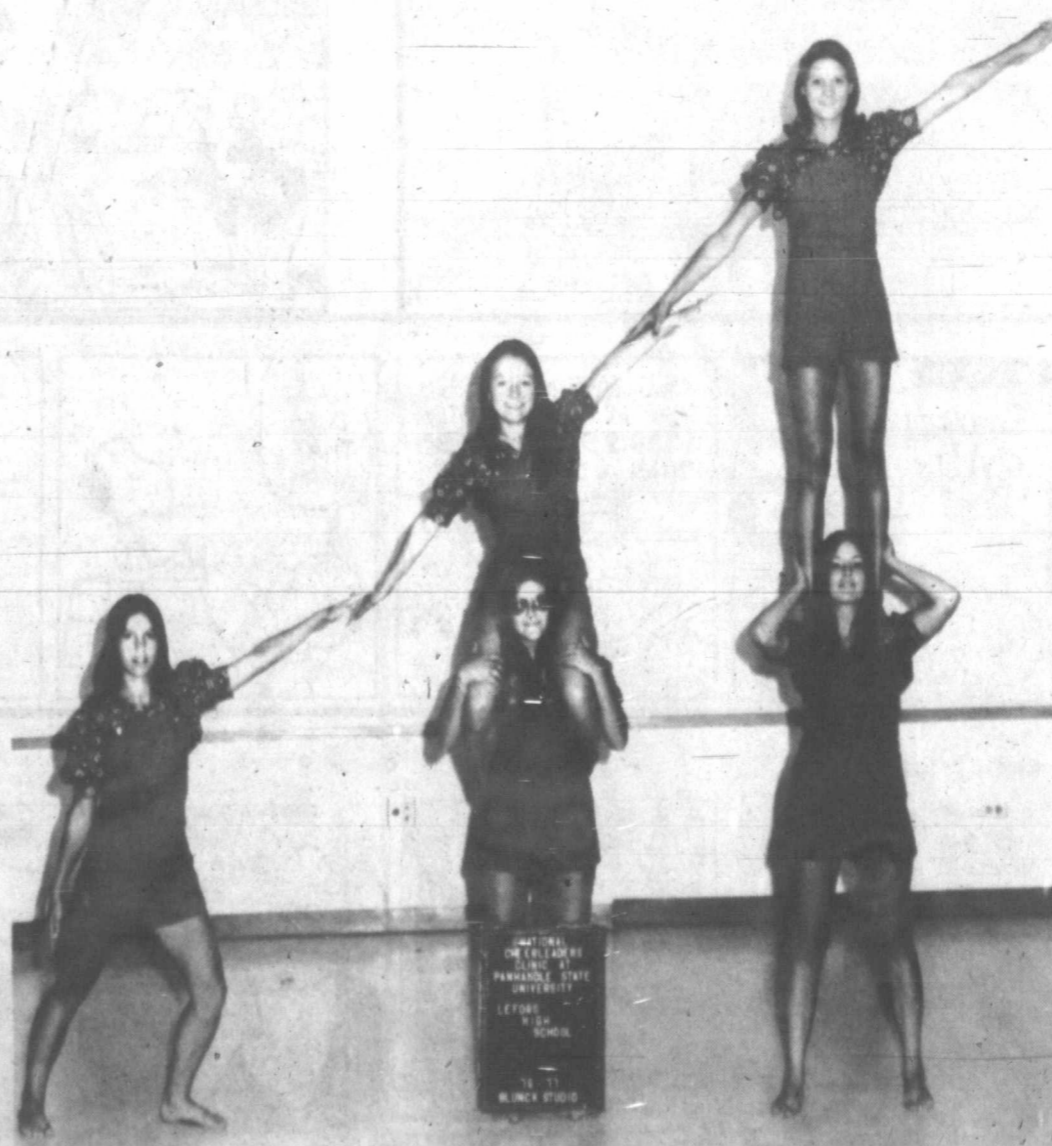

He offers special tips — in italics — for older players. He recommends a more loosely strung racket and suggests that a wood racket helps prevent tennis elbow.

Some of his strategy tips are obvious — stressing the importance, for example, of making the first serve count and so conserving energy or pointing out that in mixed doubles, husband-wife teams should sacrifice points in the interest of maintaining the off-court partnership.

For the tennis player who is either too good for self-help books or totally beyond help, Gianni Clerici, a popular Italian sportswriter, has created "The Ultimate Tennis Book: 500 Years of the Sport." And "ultimate" is the only word which accurately describes Clerici's masterpiece — a big book bulging

The cheerleaders received instruction and training in mass cheers, Pom Pom and tumbling. They also attended lecture session on organizing pep rallies, crowd and pep club psychology and working with the school officials. New training programs included making posters, jumps and more individual instruction with each squad.

Roberts, 5 others join Hall of Fame

By DICK JOYCE
AP Sports Writer
COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Sawyer, the former college professor who managed the 1950 Philadelphia Phillies to the National League pennant, came here to see one of his Whiz Kids inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Hall of Fame Monday. "We brought him up from Wilmington (Del.) of the old Interstate League. One of our coaches, Cy Perkins, who knew pitching, watched him pitch two games and said, 'This kid can't miss.'"

Sawyer added, "He had ability and desire. He wanted to pitch every day. If we had 20 players like him there would have been no stopping us. He made my job easy." The former Ithaca College professor said he was the one who started counting pitches thrown by his pitchers. "Robbie was smooth and fast with great control. He was remarkable. Many times he threw only 70 to 75 pitches a game."

"He was a good athlete," Sawyer said. "That's what it takes to be a good pitcher." Of the present day players, he compared Roberts with Jim Kaat of the old Phillies, a hard worker who doesn't throw many pitches.

Sawyer pointed out that Roberts pitched six games in 10 days in 1950 as the Phillies pulled out the NL pennant on the last day (a loss would have forced a playoff with Brooklyn) and met the New York Yankees in the World Series.

Roberts won 20 and lost 11 in 1950, his second full season in the majors. He went on to post 20 wins or more the next five years despite playing for poor clubs. He won 286 games during 19 seasons and said he wasn't upset that he never reached the magic 300-victory mark. "I stayed in the majors until I was 40 and did the best I could. I'm just thrilled to be inducted here."

The big right-hander also pitched for Baltimore, Houston and the Chicago Cubs before calling it a career. He also lost 245 games and served up 502 home runs balls.

"I wanted to invite every player to who hit a homer off me here today," said Roberts, now 49 and in the brokerage business in the Philadelphia area, "but they said Cooperstown wasn't big enough."

Another top right-hander of the 1950s, Bob Lemon, also was inducted after being elected by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Fred Linstrom, third baseman for John McGraw's New York Giants, umpire Cal Hubbard and pre-1900 home run king Roger Connor — all voted in by the Veterans Committee — and outfielder Oscar Charleston — elected by the Negro Leagues Committee — were the other members added Monday, bringing the total to 157.

Lemon, who spent his career with the Cleveland Indians after failing to hit well enough to make it as an outfielder-third baseman, won 20 or more games seven times and helped the Indians win American League pennants in 1948 and 1954. He had a lifetime mark of 207-128.

"It's downhill from here on," said Lemon. "I feel so good that I'd like to thank the guys (sports writers) who didn't vote for me."

Wynn captures BC golf victory

ENDICOTT, N.Y. AP — Meet Bob Wynn, a golfer who had just won a chance to play in the PGA Championship and decided instead to relax in the sun.

With a $40,000 check in his pocket, the 36-year-old resident of Santa Clara, Calif., said he and his wife Ann had planned to spend the rest of this week with their 3-year-old daughter Jennifer on an Atlantic Coast beach.

"We won't be going there because of the hurricane," he said Monday shortly after winning the $200,000 B.C. Open title with a 13-under-par 271. "I guess we'll fly to California. I know there's a lot of sun there and besides we've had too much rain here."

Wynn and the rest of the field in the B.C. had more than their share of rain between midday Friday and Sunday night.

The rain, caused in part by the approach of Hurricane Belle, became so heavy Saturday that the third round in the 72-hole event at the par-71, 6,868-yard En-Joie Golf Club was postponed until Sunday.

Then, after that round was completed in the morning, a deluge flooded the course late Sunday and forced a halt in final-round play until Monday morning, with 11 players still on the links.

At the time, Wynn and rookie

Bob Gilder were leading the 64 survivors of the cut, tied at 12 under par. They had two holes to play.

With the sky filled with leaden clouds Monday, the pair went to the 17th tee. Gilder's six-iron shot on the par-three, 175-yard hole put him two feet from the pin. Wynn, also using a six iron, dropped his ball 20 feet out.

"I thought I got him there," said Gilder, winner of the Phoenix Open this year in his second pro start. He made his birdie.

So did Wynn, who putted it "straight in."

Both found the rough at the 18th. Gilder to the right behind trees and Wynn to the left.

Gilder's second shot landed in tall grass to the left of the green; Wynn hit the green 30 feet from the pin.

From there, Wynn putted within a foot and tapped in for a par. Gilder, ever cautiously, took his turn. The ball broke from left to right as planned, but lipped the cup and Wynn had won his first major PGA event since he joined the tour in 1971.

He had a 69, as did Gilder.

Pirate 'Candy Man' no-hits Dodgers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It was "Candy Night" at Three Rivers Stadium and Pittsburgh Pirate left-hander John Candelaria gave everyone a treat.

The first 10,000 fans entering the stadium Monday night received a free candy bar in honor of the occasion and Candelaria followed that up by pitching a 2-0, no-hitter over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I've been dreaming about this since I was five years old," said the 22-year-old pitcher known as "The Candy Man" to Pirate fans. "I don't know if I'll come down. It's going to take a while to realize what's happened."

Only in his second major league season, Candelaria, 11-4, became the first Pirate pitcher to throw a no-hitter in Pittsburgh since Nick Maddox accomplished the feat at old Exposition Park in 1907.

He extended Los Angeles' losing streak to six games as he walked one batter and struck out seven. With the exception of the third inning, Candelaria retired the Dodgers in order.

A walk to Steve Yeager and two Pirate errors loaded the bases before Candelaria got Bill Russell to ground out to end the inning.

In the first inning, Al Oliver made a running grab of Davy Lopes' fly ball and Dave Parker made a shoestring catch of Ted Sizemore's sinking liner to snuff out possible hits.

Frank Taveras caught a line drive off Sizemore's bat in the sixth and Oliver ranged far to his left to make a running catch of Ron Cey's fly ball an inning later.

The last out in the ninth was also the last threat to the no-hitter. Russell blooped a fly to center that Oliver gloved after nearly colliding with Taveras at shortstop.

"I looked out and thought, 'That's a heck of a way to lose it,'" Candelaria said.

When Oliver made the catch, Candelaria jumped into the air and the celebration began.

His teammates made a path of white towels extending from the clubhouse door to Candelaria's locker and added a few candy bars along the way to keep up the spirit of "Candy Night."

Candelaria sat down, opened a can of beer and promised it wouldn't be his last.

"I'm gonna drink beer all night," he said with a broad grin. "I don't think anyone can blame me."

In other National League games, the Houston Astros routed the St. Louis Cardinals 13-4 and the Montreal Expos nipped the San Francisco Giants 2-1. In the American League, the Kansas City Royals beat the New York Yankees 8-2; the Texas Rangers crushed the Detroit Tigers 8-1 and the Cleveland Indians turned back the Chicago White Sox 4-2.

Astros 13, Cardinals 4
Cesar Cedeno drilled a home run, triple, double and single and knocked in five runs to help Houston beat St. Louis. Three of Cedeno's RBI came on a double in the seventh inning and snapped a 2-2 tie.

Expos 2, Giants 1
Jose Morales' pinch-hit, ground-rule double with two out in the bottom of the ninth drove in pinch-runner, Jerry White from third base to give Montreal its victory over San Francisco. Morales slammed the pitch from losing pitcher Jim Barr, 10-8, on one bounce over the fence in right-center field for his 16th pinch-hit this season, a club record.

Steelers down Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It was the kind of night a guy wouldn't even send his mother-in-law out in: torrential rain and wind gusts up to 41 miles per hour from Hurricane Belle.

But the elements didn't stop 16,823 fans from watching the action at Veterans Stadium Monday night as the Pittsburgh Steelers slogged their way to a 14-7 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The National Football League preseason game proved nothing, since both coach Dick Vermeil of the Eagles and Chuck Noll of the Steelers were unable to evaluate the young talent striving to make both teams.

The artificial surface was soaked, puddles dotting the field. Winds and sheets of rain swept through the stadium.

"I thought the winner tonight (Monday) was Hurricane Belle," said a disgusted Noll after his team drove 72 yards on nine running plays for the winning touchdown scored early in the fourth quarter.

"It was a very difficult game because the circumstances to look at people were less than favorable," said Noll. "You really didn't even get a chance to work on a rainy day offense, because usually it rains only a little bit. The ball got heavier and heavier as the game went on, and it certainly was difficult to evaluate anybody."

Noll's view must have been a disappointment to rookie running backs Jack Deloplane, a sixth-round draft choice from Salem (W. Va.) College, and

Royals, 8, Yankees 2
Amos Otis cracked a home run and two doubles while Dennis Leonard coasted to his 14th victory as Kansas City clubbed New York. The Royals pounded New York starter Ken Holtzman, 9-8, for all their runs and nine hits in the first four innings before Grant Jackson, Dick Tidrow and Sparky Lyle came on in relief.

Rangers 8, Tigers 1
Juan Beniquez and Gene Cline each drove in two runs while Nelson Briles scattered eight hits as Texas crushed Detroit. Briles won his first game in more than a month to even his record at 8-8. Beniquez' two-run single climaxed a five-run third inning off starter Dave Lemanczyk, 3-4, and Bill Laxton.

Indians 4, White Sox 2
Jim Bibby and Dave LaRoche combined on a seven-hit effort and George Hendrick drove in two runs to lead Cleveland over Chicago. LaRoche, who got Jim Spencer to pop out in the eighth inning with the tying run at the plate, registered his 12th save. Bibby, 8-4, retired 10 straight men in the middle innings after having control problems early.

NFL safety in an unsafe job

Anderson prods stars to back union

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

MIAMI, Fla. — (NEA) — It did cross Dick Anderson's mind that he might not be doing himself a bit of good when he agreed to become president of the National Football League Players Association.

The track record for his predecessors wasn't encouraging, John Mackey, Bill Curry, Kermit Alexander. They became immersed in player activities, running the union, at a time when relations with NFL owners became strained. Poof — they were gone. Released.

(In the cases of Curry and Alexander, recent court judgments have held they were discriminated against because of their NFLPA ties.)

Dick Anderson is 30 years old; the lack of hair on his scalp makes him look older. He has been an all-pro safety several times. But he is coming back from almost a year of inactivity, sidelined by surgery which removed a cartilage and a cyst from his left knee.

Besides justifying his salary from the Miami Dolphins, for whom he starred in three Super Bowls, Dick has to worry about the lack of a collective bargaining agreement for the NFL Players, and no money contributed to their pension plan since 1974.

It's an anomalous position for Anderson who, when he's not playing football, runs his own insurance business dealing with banks and other financial institutions. Which puts him philosophically squarely on the side of ownership.

"When you make a stand against the owners," admits Dick, "you're labeled, Unionist, radical, revolutionist."

"But I don't consider myself a labor leader because I feel football is unique. When 90 to 95 per cent of your compensation is individually negotiated, what issues are you bargaining for, how much value do you place on them? Whatever collective benefits we get are a small percentage of what I make."

"I got involved, not to be a member of a union, but because I felt I was needed. I never really believed in a strike as a way to settle things."

He became the player representative of the Dolphins after the training camp strike in 1974 and became president of the Association, succeeding Kermit Alexander, this spring.

"I came into the job," he says, "with the idea that to get an agreement requires certain compromises — from our side as well as their side."

"One of the major problems today is that the players really don't know what they're fighting for. Team leaders who blast us in the press really don't know what's going on. They haven't taken the time to come to team meetings."

And so President Anderson has gone to a prominent player such as Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings, who has been publicly critical of the NFLPA, and argued: "Fran, what good does it do you just to blast us? Why don't you come to an Association meeting and blast us? See what the linemen want, what the defensive linemen want, what the marginal player wants."

"We can't help you any. We're not going to help a quarterback who makes a lot of money. But we want you to support your offensive linemen. Because without them you're nothing."

A serious deficiency of the Players Association has been the paucity of dues-paying members. When there was a collective bargaining agreement, a check-off system could be used, with dues being deducted from paychecks by the clubs. Now, of the 1200 players in the NFLPA, only about 700 have paid their annual dues of $200.

"Biggest problem with dues," says Anderson, "is that a guy says, 'I'll pay.' But to get him to come up with his checkbook, you sometimes have to badger him."

"A lot of the top players in the league have total apathy toward our organization. Yet they're taken care of. If we're going to accomplish something as a group, we need total involvement of all the players. We need to be on the same page. That's our biggest concern."

Anderson keeps in close touch with the negotiations between Ed Garvey, representing the players, and Dan Rooney, speaking for the owners, to break the logjam and come up with a formula that will mean pro football peace.

"I can't say I feel positive," he says, "but we are communicating. And if we don't get a collective bargaining agreement, at least the players have freedom of movement since three federal judges have now said the Rozelle Rule is illegal."

Fear of winning adds to pressure of pro golf

By MIKE COCHRAN

Associated Press Writer
MARBLE FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A strange and subtle pressure stalks the professional golf ranks, says Tom Kite, and it's called "fear of winning."

Furthermore, said the personable young Texan, he quite possibly was among those so afflicted.

"Fear of winning is really not all that unusual," he said before leaving his home course at Horseshoe Bay in the Texas Hill Country for Washington, D.C., and the PGA tournament opening Thursday.

"I would say I was pretty close to that frame of mind... At least I was beginning to wonder."

Although he won more than $220,000 in his first three years on the tour, it was not until last June that he cracked the winner's circle at the Philadelphia Golf Classic.

"I just wanted that one so bad I couldn't see letting it get away from me," he laughed.

"It's strange. You play practically as well to finish 10th as you do to win. There's a fine distinction and you can't really put your finger on it."

"I think there are a lot of fine players out there who are scared to win. You might say it's a fear of the unknown. Sometimes you're not sure you can handle it."

Winning, he said, brings a different type pressure: "All of a sudden there's pressure and responsibility. People expect you to play better and win more. And you're trying to prove that one victory wasn't a fluke."

Kite, 26, whose pro career has been overshadowed somewhat by that of Ben Crenshaw, his teammate at the University of Texas, also tossed out this provocative thought on winning:

"Everybody out here fits in the category of losers. Even Jack Nicklaus. He loses more than he wins. Everybody knows what it's like to be a loser. But there's not that many who know what it's like to be a winner."

"...A lot of guys want to be winners. But there's very few who do not want to be losers. Jack Nicklaus probably hates to lose more than anybody on the tour, and that's probably why he wins more. That plus the fact that he's got a little ability."

Kite said his fear of winning vanished at Philadelphia and that the victory will help in the future.

"It'll help me when I get in the position to win again. I can say, 'Gee, I've been here before' and I'll know how to handle it. In that respect it'll be very helpful."

And he expects to win some more.

"I'm constantly upgrading my goals," he said. Last year, for instance, it was to win a tournament and break the $100,000 barrier. He missed it.

But already this year he's topped the 100,000 mark and won a tournament so now he's shooting for a goal of $200,000 and two tournaments.

"I'm not concerned with the money. I'm concerned with winning tournaments. The money will take care of itself," he said.

"Likewise, if you win tournaments, the majors will take care of themselves. They'll come."

home for Saturday's pre-season game against the Denver Broncos in Dallas.

End sweep defense is high on Landry's priority list this week after the Rams ran extensively around the corners in downing the Cowboys 26-14 last Saturday.

"The Rams looked awfully good for this time of year," Landry said. "They were doing most everything well, which made us look pretty bad."

Landry said the only bright spot he saw against Los Angeles was the Cowboys' punting. Punter-quarterback Danny White and rookie Bill Farris each punted four times. White for a 47.5 average and Farris for a 36.5.

Fullback Robert Newhouse was the only serious casualty from the Rams' contest. He rejured a groin, muscle and is expected to miss the home opener against Denver.

All-pro offensive tackle Rayfield Wright signed a multi-year contract to provide at least one other bright spot in the Cowboys' week.

Selecting a winner

A panel of three judges will go to work Friday morning to select the 1976 Miss Top O' Texas. Each of the more than 30 contestants will meet with the panel for a morning interview. The ninth annual pageant will begin at 8 p.m. Friday night in M.K. Brown auditorium with the finals of the competition. Judges for the event will be Shearl Strecker of Amarillo, R. Byrn Bass of Lubbock and Don Hileman of Amarillo. According to director Ann Horton, judges were chosen from towns not sponsoring entrants in the pageant. Contestants come from 15 area cities including Pampa.

DPS losing 55 mph battle

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Despite more than 700,000 speeding tickets a year, the Department of Public Safety is losing the fight to get Texans to obey the 55 miles per hour speed limit, Col. Wilson Speir says. Speir, DPS director, said Monday he needs more troopers. He acknowledged at a budget hearing Monday that he deliberately held down the DPS budget request for 1978-79 because of the "no new taxes" policy of Gov. Dolph Briscoe. "I wanted real bad to request 100 (additional) troopers a year. I wish I had gone ahead and asked for the full 100," Speir said. In his budget document, he said Texas has half the troopers recommended by national standards. Speir said Texas has one patrol car unit for every 100 miles of highway, but that was on a 24-hour basis, "and you can't drive 24 hours a day." "There are not enough to hold the line on speeding. We are getting behind. We do not have enough people to keep up with the increase in traffic," he said. Speir told reporters he hoped his agency would continue to receive the major part of its money from motor fuel taxes and license plate fees. Briscoe wants to cut the DPS' share from $70 million to $20 million a year as part of a plan to increase funds available for highways.

"I feel it would be proper for us to continue to be funded from that source. We would hope, of course, to be funded from this source," Speir said in an interview following the hearing on the DPS money request by-examiners for the governor and the Legislative Budget Board. "If we are taken out, that would put us in the general revenue fund, which is a highly competitive fund... and somewhere down the line, the department could stand to get hurt," Speir said. The DPS seeks a legislative appropriation of $89.9 million for 1978 and $97.6 million for 1979, an 18 per cent increase. Included are 50 additional uniformed troopers each year.

but only 26 would go to the highway patrol. Others would be assigned to license and weights, driver licensing, motor vehicle inspection and special auto theft duties. Noting that California has 5,000 troopers, he said he would like to see 1,000 men added to the 94-man Texas Ranger force. He said a major priority was to increase salaries to a level that "would equalize us with the City of Houston." A highway patrolman with three years' experience would earn $15,108 in the first year and $15,624 in the second year of the biennium. Speir said a three-year trooper makes $968 a month now, compared with $1,081 for a Dallas policeman and $1,217 for one on the Houston force. "It's kind of embarrassing to have a state agency that is paid less than the cities," he said. Also included in the budget are funds to staff regional crime labs at Abilene and Wichita Falls. Speir said he would like to have a lab within a two- or three-hour drive of every peace officer in Texas.

Herman Hill to retire August 31

Herman B. Hill Jr., veteran public relations executive for Santa Fe Railway in Amarillo, has announced that he will retire Aug. 31 after more than 35 years with Santa Fe. A native of Shamrock, Hill was born in 1914. He entered Santa Fe service as a clerk in the operating department at Amarillo in 1941, and moved a year later to Chicago as secretary to the assistant vice president of operations. Prior to joining Santa Fe, Hill worked in legal stenographic capacities for his father, a Shamrock attorney, and as a stenographer in the state legislature at Austin. Following retirement, Hill and his wife, Mary Lou, will continue to live at 1903 Crockett in Amarillo. They are the parents of Herman B. III of Lubbock, Mary Pat of Dallas, and James R. of Apalachin, N.Y. They have two grandchildren.

Credit group directors will meet Thursday

Pampa and area men will be among the directors of the Canadian Production Credit Association who meet with Production Credit Association officials for a directors conference Thursday in Amarillo. Director participants include Wallace N. Hamker of Booker, chairman; James D. Skaggs, vice chairman, and Don W. Morrison, both of Pampa; Lloyd R. Buzzard of Spearman; L.F. Etheredge of Canadian and C.B. Henderson of Wheeler. Larry E. Albin, president, and Neal Plathers, vice president and secretary, will accompany the group. Canadian PCA has loans outstanding to area farmers and ranchers of approximately $33 million.

Police officer hurt in fall

Pampa Police Officer Jim Miller was injured Sunday when the horse which he was riding fell. Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills said Miller was taken to Highland General Hospital and later transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. He sustained "two or three breaks" in his right leg, Mills said, and was scheduled for surgery in Amarillo Monday.

The U.S. government operates the National Air Museum in Washington as a memorial to national aviation development. The exhibits include the Wright brothers' first airplane and Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis."
