

Gulf lobbyist wrong, apologizes to Dole

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Claude Wild Jr. Gulf Oil Corp's former chief lobbyist today repudiated his claim that he had given $2,000 in 1970 to Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican vice-presidential candidate.

"I have been in error and consequently have done a serious disservice to Sen. Dole," Wild said in a statement.

Dole immediately accepted Wild's apology, calling the matter "an unfortunate incident." The senator added, "We're moving ahead with the campaign."

At issue was Wild's claim to reporters earlier this week that he had given $2,000 to Dole in 1970 to pass on to other Republican Senate candidates in that year.

Dole earlier had acknowledged that he had testified before a federal grand jury last March on the question of Gulf contributions, but that he had received no such funds from Wild either in 1970 or in 1973.

Wild's statement did not speak about other allegations that Dole received illegal corporate Gulf funds in 1973 — something which the GOP nominee has repeatedly denied — but discussed only the 1970 matter.

The former Gulf lobbyist said in his statement that he had made the claims to reporters without checking his records. "I feel confident I confused the $2,000 in cash with the $2,000 check made out to another individual," Wild said. "I make a sincere apology to Sen. Dole for my impromptu remarks without benefit of information I could have obtained from my records."

He blamed the mistake on "the past three years of confusion, frustration and disarray in my personal life." He said he was referring to various legal proceedings and Senate inquiries into Gulf political contributions.

On Labor Day, Dole told reporters he was mystified by the allegation that he had received $2,000 from Wild in 1970, the year before he became chairman of the Republican National Committee.

He said federal prosecutors had showed him a check stub for the $2,000, apparently drawn on a legal Gulf "Good Government Committee" fund. Dole said that the name "Dole or Dale" was on the stub, with the indication that the money was to be passed on to someone else.

The Republican candidate said he had no recollection of such a check. But he told reporters the transaction also involved a prominent political figure in Washington, Dole did not name the political figure.

NBC News reported today that the other name involved was that of Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe, who in 1970 waged an unsuccessful campaign in North Dakota for the Senate.

A Dole spokesman declined to confirm or deny the NBC report, claiming it was "a moot issue" in light of the Wild statement, which the spokesman said completely divorced Dole from the transfer of funds.

There was no immediate comment from Kleppe.

Dole has told reporters that he made President Ford aware of his appearance at the grand jury before Ford chose him last month to be his running mate.

The grand jury appearance centered principally on the question of whether Dole had received illegal Gulf corporate funds from Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Scott has been accused of receiving up to $100,000 from Wild from 1960 to 1973. Scott has denied ever knowingly accepting corporate money from Gulf, which would be illegal under federal campaign laws.

In his statement, Wild noted that in the past two days he had made statements to the news media indicating that he had made the $2,000 available to Dole or a member of his staff in 1970.

"I was questioned unexpectedly and before I had time to review my records of a meeting that allegedly happened six years earlier," Wild said.

After looking at the records and materials I have, I am confident I have been in error and consequently have done a disservice to Sen. Dole."

Hospital drill simulates disaster

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

It was about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday when Horace Williams announced in the reception area of Highland General Hospital that a "tornado" had struck and disaster victims were being rushed to the emergency room.

"Call in the crews," Williams, administrative assistant, said to Bun Hill, PBX operator.

"Oh, my Lord. They wouldn't do that to me," Mrs. Hill exclaimed.

The "tornado" was a disaster drill and 13 victims, simulating injuries of the Lefors tornado of 1975 began arriving in the emergency room where real patients already were in almost every area.

Physicians attended a staff meeting downstairs at the hospital. Dr. Joe Donaldson, head of the disaster committee, who knew the drill was scheduled, had just announced that a drill would be held in the near future.

As Mrs. Hill began making her calls to hospital employees she found that some were not at home. But she continued her efforts with a sigh. "I wish I had stayed home today."

"I can't believe it," Williams added.

Those who played the part of injured patients were members of Thespian Troop 1010 under the direction of Rochelle Lacy, who also participated in the act of injured patients.

The ambulance and a van had picked up the "injured" at Pampa High School where the Thespians interrupted practice of the play, "Anybody Out There?" soon to be presented.

Ruth Snapp, Licensed Vocational Nurse, who was working the emergency room, said she did not realize that the "disaster" was a drill until the "patients" started arriving. The emergency room was soon filled with doctors.

Among the first to arrive was Dee Joiner with cries of "pain" as his "wife," Brenda Burns, stood over him crying and holding his hand.

"There's more patients in the pickup," someone announced as the staff worked with the first group to arrive.

"Nobody told me," Mrs. Snapp said as she took a wheelchair outside.

"What's happened at the school?" inquired a spectator.

Dr. R.M. Bellamy at one point, commented that the "disaster" was a dry run.

Dr. M. McDaniel announced "We've got a dead one out there. He tells me he's dead."

The "dead on arrival" part was played by Tony Scoggin, 21, who said after the rush was over "Look, you guys are going to make front page and all I'm going to do is make an obituary."

As Thespians gathered in clusters after their "wounds" were treated, Anne Kadingo commented.

"That's hard work — trying to act sick." Mrs. Snapp, in discussing the drill later said she had a room full in the emergency room when she heard screams outside.

"I thought it was a car wreck," she said.

The "patients" were examined and moved quickly to X-ray and surgery areas, and the "dead" was shoved aside while physicians worked on the "injured."

Mark King, manager of Metropolitan Ambulance Service, found that he had used so much emergency equipment in the run that his battery was down when he started to leave.

Robert Monogue, administrator, came in but instructed Williams to take the lead. Monogue said he was observing the drill.

"The purpose is to show us our weak points," Monogue explained. He added that the drill will be discussed with key personnel in an effort to determine where improvements should be made.

Judith Auwen, public relations director, said a disaster drill is held annually with the exception of 1975 when the Lefors tornado provided employees with a real disaster.

Thespians who arrived at the hospital as disaster victims included Rochelle Lacy, Anne Kadingo, Ben Wilson, Tony Scoggin, Belinda Brewer, Dale Ferris, Bobby Burns, Mike Gage, Dee Joiner, Jimmy Jeffrey, Brenda Burns, Deborah Killough, Kristi Ledbetter and Diane Willis.

Jerry Lewis' annual Labor Day Teletthon Against Muscular Dystrophy raised a record $2,723,813, part of it thanks to some energetic, concerned young Pampa girls.

They made 60 dozen cookies, sold them and gave the money to Jerry's kids.

The young ladies, all eighth graders, were Jackie Hilton, Julie Watson, Dana Whatley, Sandy Woody, Tracy McCloskey and Jana Hill. Sandy's mom, Ronae Woody, helped the girls get organized and then drove them to Amarillo Monday where they donated the money on television.

The girls earned $130.22, some of it donated by cookie buyers who got caught up in the girls' enthusiasm and shared their generosity.

Their story appeared in last week's Pampa News. They took a clipping with them for the KFDD-TV teletthon scrapbook.

Frances Lambright of the Pampa Police Department passed along these thoughts on a timely topic — taxes. She said she clipped the poem several years ago from a newspaper.

An Oklahoma senator had read it on the floor of the Oklahoma congress.

"Tax his cow, tax his goat, Tax his pants, tax his coat, Tax his crop, tax his work, Tax his ties, tax his shirt, tax his chew, tax his smoke, Teach him taxes is no joke.

"Tax his tractor, tax his mule, Teach him taxes is the rule, Tax his oil, tax his gas, Tax his notes, tax his cash, Tax him good and let him know That after taxes he has no dough.

"If he hollers, tax him more, Tax him till he's good and sore, Tax his coffin, tax his grave, Tax the sod in which he lays, Put those words upon his tomb 'Taxes drove me to my doom.'"

"Even after he's gone we won't relax, We'll still be after inheritance tax."

New Jersey courts shut down the state's public schools because of their continued reliance on property tax as a main source of revenue.

Now Seattle School District is suing the state of Washington because it thinks the state, not local property tax payers, should shoulder the burden of providing a basic education.

The recent action to decontrol the price of natural gas at the wellhead could mean more tax income for the state. Gov. Briscoe could put that money back into local schools.

Meantime taxpayers throughout the country are revolting.

Many are forming organizations to demand relief from local and state officials.

In Los Angeles, 900 angry homeowners have forced the county board of supervisors to reopen the $3.3 billion 1976-77 budget to reduce their spiraling property tax assessments.

Says Robert Schleck, who works for Tax Foundation, a nonprofit watchdog group, "A group has filed a taxpayer's suit in Texas, too, so it's started. Property taxes in the last 20 years have been rising steadily. A major reason has been that public school systems depend on property-tax revenue. We've come to the point that state legislatures must find alternative means." He was quoted in the Christian Science Monitor.

Board opens school to ineligible child

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

George Sieder, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F.G. Sieder who were transferred to Pampa by Cabot Corporation, got an okay from the Pampa school board Tuesday evening to attend school here.

He was ineligible because he was born in October.

The Pampa Independent School board granted the child permission to go to half-day kindergarten where there was room available and charged him half of the established tuition for ineligible students for 1976-77 or $580 less the number of days of school already missed.

"If we simply open the door to ineligible students we are opening the door to overcrowded kindergartens and first grade which are already overcrowded," commented Bob Phillips, superintendent at the 4 p.m. board meeting in Carver Center, 321 W. Albert.

Sieder had made the request because "when we return to Germany eventually... he will be two years behind children of his age there. This, no doubt, is a considerable life-long disadvantage."

Other action by the board included approval to buy buses, adoption of action goals, full-time personnel definition and the first reading of three proposed policies.

The new policies would include:

1. Charging for reproduction of documents. The Pampa Independent School District will charge 20 cents per page, letter size and 25 cents per page, legal size, for reproduction of school records, policies, reports and other documents.

Board member Bill Arrington questioned this proposal. He wanted to make sure taxpayers who wanted information wouldn't have to pay for it.

"It is the duty of the administration and the board to have as much communication as possible. The more information we can get out the better. I want the information to be available for anybody who wants it," he said.

Trustee president Paul Simmons assured that "We don't want to prohibit anyone to have access to information. We want to recoup our expenses."

2. Graduation requirements. "Effective 1980-81, students graduating from Pampa High School shall be required to complete 66 quarters, including all state requirements, in addition to local requirements."

"One additional quarter of U.S. government shall be required for those who will graduate in 1978-79 and subsequent years."

Curt Beck said he thought this was a move in the direction toward a more challenging education. Sixty quarters presently are required.

Bill Mackey, high school drafting teacher, didn't want more required courses added. He described the competition among teachers of non-required courses to get students into their classes.

He said that if all teachers taught non-required courses, the teachers and courses would be better. Mackey teaches a non-required course.

Also from the audience, John Tripplehorn said he felt there should be more required courses.

3. Absence of personnel attending professional meetings.

"Professional personnel may attend workshops, conferences, seminars and other such meetings related to their assignments, responsibilities and/or offices held, with prior approval of the principal and the curriculum director. Such absences from duty may not exceed eight school days in any one school year without prior approval of the board of education."

The board adopted a definition of full-time personnel for the health insurance program after the second reading.

The definition reads: "Any employee who works on a regular basis performing duties and working the number of hours which are normal and customary for the particular job assignment shall be eligible for the health insurance program offered by the school district."

Those who work in the capacity of a substitute shall not be covered by the district's program.

"Newly employed auxiliary personnel will have a waiting period of not less than 60 days or more than 90 days, depending upon the initial date of employment, prior to being eligible for coverage by the district's program."

The program, approved this summer by the board, will cost the school district an estimated $90,000.

In other business the trustees authorized the purchase of one 16-passenger school bus and one 72-passenger school bus.

An amount of $42,550 has been budgeted this year for school buses.

James Trusty, assistant superintendent, said he hopes that two buses will be replaced annually in the school district's 20-bus fleet.

The board received a letter from Jimmy Thompson, attorney, who reported that cases against the Pampa Independent School filed by El Paso Natural Gas Company and Northern Natural Gas Company have been set for Nov. 29.

The board also adopted the district action goals, one of the final steps in the new accreditation procedure adopted by the State Board of Education.

A few of the goals scheduled for implementation this year are:

1. Emphasize acceptable spelling and writing in all areas.

2. Broaden efforts to improve fundamental mathematics skills.

3. Provide transportation for class field trips.

4. Offer the course "Fundamentals of the Free Enterprise System" in the high school.

5. Supplement social studies program with community resources.

6. Place more emphasis on value education.

7. Strive for greater teacher-student rapport.

8. Involve staff in working toward better wages, insurance and retirement benefits.

9. Employ qualified and competent personnel in reasonable ratio to the number of pupils.

10. Encourage the school board to call a bond election for capital improvements.

Other board members attending the meeting were Buddy Epperson, Bob Lyle and David Crossman. Al Smith was absent.

The Rev. Timothy Koenig of the Zion Lutheran Church presented opening prayer.

The next board meeting has been set for Sept. 20.

White teens hurl bottles

BOSTON (AP) — About 175 whites, most of them teenagers, hurled bottles at police near Charlestown High School today as classes resumed in Boston for the third year of court-ordered integration.

Elsewhere throughout the city, however, schools were quiet as a large force of city police stood on alert.

The disturbance occurred at a low-income housing project in the largely Irish Charlestown section.

One black U.S. marshal was struck in the ankle with a bottle while about 75 city officers attempted to push the crowd through the streets away from the housing project. The area was the scene of a similar disturbance on the first day of school last year.

City leaders pledged to "take any measures necessary to protect our children." Except in Charlestown, the large backup contingent of police appeared unnecessary as about one-third of the city's school children rode buses to integrated schools.

At least eight persons, seven of them police officers, received minor injuries in the disturbances, and 12 persons were arrested, police said.

Mexico may parole Americans

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Luis Echeverria of Mexico, seeking closer trade ties with the United States, has told officials here that U.S. citizens in Mexican jails may soon be eligible for parole.

The possibility of releasing some of the more than 570 U.S. prisoners now in Mexican jails was outlined to Texas and U.S. officials here in private meetings Tuesday after Echeverria arrived to inaugurate the 5th annual Mexican trade fair.

A source close to the president said the parole release and possible exchange of prisoners between Mexico and other countries would depend on how soon two bills are approved by the Mexican congress.

The bills, submitted recently by Echeverria, are expected to receive quick approval.

"At least 200 of the U.S. prisoners in Mexican jails could be eligible for immediate parole and benefit from the new law as early as November," the source said.

Echeverria himself avoided any direct comments on the proposed legislation or on the status of U.S. prisoners in Mexico, and his public speeches here were aimed at soothing U.S. concern over last week's devaluation of the peso, Mexico's basic currency.

The presidential source said the bills submitted by Echeverria would make parole available for the first time to drug offenders. Most of the U.S. prisoners in Mexico are charged with violation of drug laws.

The bills also would make it possible for Mexico, for instance, to exchange US prisoners for Mexican prisoners in U.S. jails. There are about 1,000 Mexican citizens in U.S. prisons, the source said.

Depending on the negotiations between the two countries, the source said, the prisoners could then serve their time in their own countries, close to their homes and families.

The alleged mistreatment of U.S. prisoners and the conditions of Mexican jails have been a source of friction between the two governments in recent years.

Last March, a Dallas man led a raid into the Pedras Negras jail across the border from Eagle Pass in Texas, and at gunpoint, freed 14 U.S. prisoners who then waded across the Rio Grande and turned themselves over to U.S. authorities.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who was among the officials welcoming Echeverria to Texas, said he had been informed of the details of the new laws and said it was "wonderful."

The presidential source said the bills were not being enacted under any pressure, but were "humanitarian measures that are part of a long-range reform of the Mexican penal code that includes the construction of new, modern jails."

Echeverria inaugurated the giant MexFair trade display, which is his nation's largest display of goods on foreign soil. In an opening speech, he sought to reassure U.S. investors that their capital was welcome in Mexico as a complement to Mexico's national development requirements.

"The reactivation of the United States economy has opened new trade opportunities for Mexico," Echeverria said. "And for this reason we have sought to exhibit our most characteristic products at a time when the monetary adjustments in our country make the prices of our articles more attractive." The trade fair, which has grown from an experimental beginning in 1972 with sales of $1.6 million to nearly $80 million in sales last year, was seen by officials as the first crucial test of the sharply devalued peso.

Echeverria's government last week allowed the peso to "float" to a new exchange level in the world money market. For 22 years, it had been exchanged at 12.5 pesos per U.S. dollar, but following the float, the peso plunged to 20 per dollar.

"The fixed exchange rate and monetary rigidity had imposed a veritable straight-jacket on us that impeded growth, encouraged the flight of capital and was unable to prevent inflation and foreign trade imbalances," Echeverria said Tuesday.

A presidential spokesman said the trade fair here "is going to be our first test following the floating of the peso." He noted the devaluation was intended in part to boost Mexican exports by making Mexican products cheaper.

Missing pilots declared dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two missing American pilots who the North Vietnamese now say are dead were previously identified by American officials as alive after they were shot down during the Vietnam war.

North Vietnamese diplomats remained silent five years ago when given evidence suggesting that the two pilots were alive when captured during the war, says the Pentagon's top expert on prisoners of war.

But, said Dr. Roger Shields, "I don't want to accuse them of killing any of the POWs."

The two pilots mentioned by Shields were Air Force Maj. Elwyn R. Capling and Capt. Samuel E. Waters. Their names were included by Hanoi on a list of 12 men previously listed as missing but now declared dead.

The inclusion of the two men in Hanoi's new list supports the belief of U.S. officials back in 1971 that the North Vietnamese

"had some information on people they never said anything about" during the Paris peace talks.

Shields spoke in an interview Tuesday after President Ford demanded "a full accounting without further delay" of all the missing.

"It is callous and cruel to exploit human suffering in the hope of diplomatic advantage," Ford said. "Normalization of relations cannot take place until Vietnam accounts for all our men missing in action."

Shields said the 12 names on Hanoi's new list represent only a tiny fraction of the 2,500 men for whom the United States insists that North Vietnam give an accounting.

Pentagon officials said the 2,500 include about 1,300 whose fate was unresolved at the time of the 1973 cease fire, plus others believed killed in action whose remains have not been returned.

"They have been giving us a little bit of information from time to time and they expect us to do something on our side," Shields said. "It's kind of a ghastly sort of business to bargain this way."

He noted that the United Nations is about to consider North Vietnam's application for membership, something the United States has refused to permit so far. Shields recalled that during the Paris peace talks the United States laid before the North Vietnamese diplomats information relating to a number of men.

The Pentagon said publicly at the time that these men "were known to be alive, on the ground in North Vietnam, or were at one time actually identified by the North Vietnamese as having been captured."

Capling of Detroit and Waters of Mocksville, N.C., were among this group, Shields said. Capling was shot down in 1968, Waters in 1966.

Carter would have fired Kelley

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
While President Ford campaigns from the security of the White House, Jimmy Carter is out pressing the flesh. It seems that meeting the public has more hazards.

Campaigning through the Northeast on Tuesday, Carter said he would have fired FBI director Clarence Kelley and speculated that cheating by Richard Nixon and other Washington big shots encourages crime.

But for a group of angry demonstrators in Pennsylvania the big issue was abortion and they were noisy about it.

Carter met the demonstrators as he arrived Tuesday night in Scranton, Pa. They lined the route Carter took from the airport to his hotel, waving anti-abortion signs and shouting at the candidate.

And they mingled with Carter supporters at the hotel as the candidate arrived, making a throng estimated by police at 1,000 persons, with one side shouting "We want Carter" and the other chanting "Life, life, life."

Meanwhile, President Ford remained in Washington, making some unusual appearances designed to make use of the White House as a backdrop for what his campaigners hope will show him to be working instead of campaigning.

Carter's running mate, Sen.

Walter Mondale, said Ford was "practicing being president" and is "failing to take his campaign to the people."

Carter, faced with the crowd outside his hotel Tuesday night, first tried to greet supporters and shake hands. But in the crush of bodies and the din of the conflicting shouts, Secret Service agents circled the candidate and hustled him into the hotel.

Carter was not struck or injured and did not appear shaken by the incident. Inside the hotel, he smiled and waved to people in the lobby.

Demonstrators outside the hotel said they opposed Carter's stand on abortion. Carter opposes a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion, although he says he personally is against abortion.

He is running on a party platform that says it recognizes religious and ethical concerns over abortion, but opposes a constitutional amendment.

Earlier, Carter resurrected the memory of resigned President Nixon in arguing that wrongdoing by Republican big shots has led other Americans to conclude that breaking the law is okay.

And the former Georgia governor said if he were president he would have fired FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, who received gifts from subordinates and $355 worth of government-supplied window decor.

But asked if he will fire Kelley if elected president, Carter replied, "I will cross that bridge if I come to it."

"When people throughout the country, particularly young people, see Richard Nixon cheating, lying, leaving the highest office in disgrace... when you see the head of the FBI break a little law and stay there, it gives everybody the sense that crime must be okay."

He said people ask themselves, "If big shots in Washington can get away with it, why can't I?"

Carter has said he does not plan to make Ford's pardon of Nixon an issue and he did not mention it.

Meanwhile, Ford's stay-at-home campaign relied on a variety of events Tuesday aimed at showing him at work in the White House.

Zulu worker hostel burns

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A hostel for Zulu migrant workers was set afire by other blacks in Soweto township early today, and two charred bodies were found in the ruins. In Cape Town, police opened fire on rioters and made dozens of arrests.

Witnesses in Soweto, the big ghetto south of Johannesburg, said militant blacks who had been targets of Zulu violence two weeks ago attacked the eight-block Mzimhlope hostel with fire bombs. It houses 11,000 Zulu men.

The fire raised fears that the Zulus, members of South Africa's largest and most warlike tribe, would retaliate and set off another round of violence and bloodletting in Soweto, where the country's black upheaval began in mid-June.

Two weeks ago a clash between militant blacks trying to enforce an antigovernment work boycott and Zulus wanting to go to their jobs touched off a series of attacks and counterattacks in which 35 persons were killed.

The nearly three months of violence has killed at least 306 persons, all but three of them black.

The renewed unrest in downtown Cape Town and scattered areas around the coastal city followed widespread disturbances Tuesday in which four persons were killed and scores injured.

Dozens of arrests were reported today as police using shotguns and tear gas moved in against stone-throwing crowds of colored, or mixed race, youths. Under South Africa's racial separation laws, persons whose ancestry is neither all-black nor all-white are called colored.

Chamber adds seven directors

Ballots in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce membership election were counted this morning and seven new directors were named to the board.

The following were elected to serve three-year terms: Luther Robinson, Don Lane, Melvin Kunkel, Harold Comer, Roy Sparkman, Jim Ward and Floyd Sackett.

The new members will be installed at a dinner meeting of the board Tuesday, Oct. 19.

The following day the new board will elect officers for the coming year at a 10 a.m. meeting in the chamber office.

Holdover directors include Sheriff Rufe Jordan, William Kindle, Dr. Kenneth Royse, J.D. Skaggs, C. E. Steel, Boyd Taylor, Delmar Watkins, Verl Hagaman, William Hite, Tim Hoiles, Clotilde Thompson, Dona Cornutt, J.C. Roberts and Dudley Steele.

Three additional board members will be appointed by the incoming president following his election Oct. 20. Directors whose terms expire this year are Arthur Aftergut, E.L. Green Jr., Benny Kirksey, Dr. Royce Laycock, David McDaniel, Aubrey Steele, Gary Stevens, Clyde Carruth, Ken Plotner and Glen Turbeville.

Members of the election canvassing committee who counted ballots today were Arthur Aftergut, chairman; Dr. Royce Laycock, Gary Stevens and Verl Hagaman.

Defectors to go to US

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet air force pilot who landed his MIG25 fighter jet in northern Japan will leave for the United States in a day or two unless some unexpected development delays his departure, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said today.

The flier, Lt. Viktor I. Belenko, 29, told police after his surprise landing Monday that he wanted asylum in the United States.

States. The U.S. Embassy declined to comment, but White House press secretary Ron Neslen told reporters in Washington: "If the pilot requests asylum in the United States, I'm sure he will be welcomed here."

Washington sources reported that U.S. experts were making a thorough examination of Belenko's plane, but the Japanese spokesman denied this. "As far as I know, no foreigners have touched the aircraft," he said.

The Soviet Embassy said it lodged "more than five protests" because the Japanese government would not let it see Belenko.

The Soviet Union demanded that both the pilot and the plane be returned. The Japanese Foreign Ministry said the Soviet Embassy's request to interview Belenko had been denied, and the government took the "humanitarian view" that his request for asylum should be honored. But it was expected that the plane would be given back after American and Japanese experts learned all they could from it.

The MIG25 was still at the commercial airport at Hakodate, on Japan's northernmost island, where Belenko landed. U.S. military sources in Washington said American intelligence specialists are going over it thoroughly. An intelligence bonanza was expected from the inspection.

Officially, however, the U.S. and Japanese governments refused to say that the Americans were inspecting the plane. Sources in Washington indicated the U.S. government was trying to spare the Japanese diplomatic difficulties with the Soviet Union.

The plane, called the Foxbat, can fly at more than 2,000 miles an hour at 80,000 feet and is faster than the fastest American interceptor, the F15 Eagle. Although U.S. Air Force experts contend that the F15 is more maneuverable, Air Force Secretary Robert Seamans in 1973 said the MIG 25 was "probably the best interceptor in production in the world" at the time.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 8 years old and my name is Shelley Seibel. My Mom is 27 years old, and the reason I am writing to you is because my Mom smokes constantly. Abby, please give me some suggestions as to how I can get her to quit smoking. I love my Mom and don't want her to die from lung cancer or heart failure at the age of 30.

WORRYING IN EVANS CITY, PA.

DEAR SHELLEY: What a beautiful daughter you are for being so worried about your Mom's health that you would write to me!

People who smoke "constantly" would like to quit, but they lack the strength. Perhaps when your Mom sees this and realizes how much you love her, it will motivate her to quit. I hope so.

Write to me again, Shelley, and let me know if my suggestion has helped. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Mac and I have been married for three years, and we went together for two years before that. He's a terrific husband in every way, but something has come up lately that bothers me.

Mac plays softball three times a week. I always enjoyed going to the park to watch him play, but now that we have a baby, I can't go so often.

One night, Mac said, "I wish you wouldn't come to so many games. You make me nervous."

He says he plays lousy when I'm there. Abby, I've been watching him for years and he never played lousy, and I never made him nervous before.

I got to thinking that another guy on his team tells his wife to stay home because she makes him nervous, and if his wife's around, it cramps his style.

One of my friends says, "Maybe Mac just wants a night out with the boys." Another one said, "I'll bet he just wants to fool around." What do you think?

MAC'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Since Mac has to contend with an umpire during the game, he doesn't need another "ump" when it's over. His overall batting average as a husband is what counts.

Some "boys" like to mourn their defeats and celebrate their victories sans wives occasionally, so don't be too possessive or suspicious.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a college graduate, and I only graduated from high school.

My problem is the way he is always putting me down in front of people, calling me a "dummy" and "stupid."

I worked in a factory so he could finish college. I have considered taking some courses at the local college, but if I start now, it will take me six years to get a degree, and in six years I will be 38!

PUT DOWN

DEAR PUT: And how old will you be in six years if you DON'T go to college? Start now!

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have to get up three to four times a night to urinate. My doctor gave me a prescription for bladder irritation. I took all of the capsules but they did no good. I have also been told that this is not a bladder condition but a kidney condition. I would appreciate your comments. I know several other people affected this way but they have not consulted a doctor about it.

DEAR READER — Most symptoms are not specific for one illness, but can be caused by many different problems. A fever may be caused by any number of infectious illnesses — from a blood transfusion reaction, from tissue injury after an accident — or even surgery and from heat stroke.

In men, and this may apply to your friends, enlargement of the prostate gland may interfere with the normal emptying of the bladder and cause a man to get up frequently at night. To give you more information on the prostate I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. An irritation of the bladder may cause a person to urinate frequently but the total amount for the 24-hour period may not be increased or abnormal.

The kidneys may filter out lots of excess water and cause a person to go to the bathroom frequently and pass lots of urine each time. The most innocuous of examples is the person who drinks lots of fluids in the hours just before going to bed.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Water bugs have taken over our house. Please tell me what to do as we really need some help. — BETTY S.

DEAR BETTY S. — If your house is completely infested you should consult a professional pest control firm. For an average case a practically non-poisonous old-fashioned remedy is one part borax to three parts crushed chocolate sprinkled about generously, or equal parts of borax and powdered sugar. Poisons could not be spread all about the house while one is living in it. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is to go into the supermarket to shop and then have to battle with the line of carts that the strong box boys have pushed together so tightly that often they cannot be pulled apart by a lone woman. If one is strong and lucky they may get one on the third or fourth try. — MRS. J.P.A.

DEAR POLLY — When preparing a large quantity of beans for canning or freezing, I make quick work of it by snipping off the ends with scissors. Even the children can do it. — MRS. R.L.

Buyers check food price first

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans are paying more attention to what goes into the food they eat these days, but supermarket shoppers still look for price and brand name before they check for ingredients or nutritional value.

That's one of the findings of a report by the consumer studies division of the Food and Drug Administration, which surveyed people in 1973 and again in 1975 to try to find out how much consumers know about food and nutrition. Among the questions in the recently-released report was one asking people what they paid attention to when shopping for food.

Price was the item named most often. Almost three-fourths of those surveyed both in 1973 and 1975 said they looked at the cost of the item.

Brand name was second on the list, but it apparently is declining in importance. Fifty-eight per cent of those surveyed in 1973 and 54 per cent of those checked in 1975 said they paid attention to the brand name of a product.

The biggest change was in the number of people looking for some kind of date on the package — indicating either when the product was made or by when it should be used. Fifty-nine per cent of those questioned in 1975 said they paid attention to the date of manufacture or expiration, an increase of 16 percentage points from 1973.

Interest in nutritional value also increased. Only 27 per cent of those checked in 1973 said they looked for the calories, vitamins and minerals in a product; 41 per cent of the 1975 group said they paid attention to nutrition.

The number of people who paid attention to ingredient lists rose by five percentage points — from 42 per cent in 1973 to 47 per cent in 1975. Twenty-six per cent of those surveyed last year said they paid attention to the proportion of the major ingredient in a product — how much beef in canned beef goulash, for example. That was an increase of eight percentage points from 1973.

The FDA has been trying to learn what consumers think of nutritional labeling — now required for manufacturers who make a nutritional claim for their products — and whether shoppers actually will use the information. Some food industry officials claim there is not enough interest among the general public to justify the added costs.

While the regulators, the industry and the public debate what should — or shouldn't — appear on the label — the Agricultural Research Center in Greenbelt, Md., is trying to determine exactly what goes into some 60,000 food items.

The center is setting up a Nutrition Composition Laboratory with an $800,000 annual budget and a staff of 36 scientists as part of its Nutrition Institute headed by Dr. Walter Mertz.

"We are not making value judgements," said Mertz. "But we do want to know what's going on."

Judith Guest's first novel had to be written

JUDITH GUEST: "As long as I kept scrapping my novels, I never had to face finishing them. I set a goal to finish 'Ordinary People.'"

By Ira Berkow

Judith Guest still washes clothes for her husband and three sons, worries what to fix for dinner, vacuums her house, buys at the shopping center and performs all the ritual chores of a typical middle-aged suburban housewife. What makes her non-ordinary is the fact that in the last year she has received a fan letter from Robert Redford, written a best-selling novel, got a $635,000 paperback sale, and has Redford's movie company bidding for film rights.

Judith Guest had mailed off her book on her own; it became the first manuscript submitted without an agent to be accepted by Viking Press in 27 years. (An estimated 60,000 manuscripts had been rejected in that time.) "Ordinary People" is Judith Guest's first novel. In fact, Judith Guest's only published work, outside of the suburban paper in Arlington Heights, Ill., for which she covered the library beat and wrote a venomous gossip column.

At age 40, Judith Guest is a late bloomer but an exciting and romantic one. The story of how her novel came to be published is as terrific as the novel itself. Judith Guest is the Cinderella of belles lettres.

She is a slim, sunny woman with dark short hair. After a morning of "yelling a lot" to get the kids off to school — the family now lives in Edina, Minn., where her husband is vice-president of a microfilm company — she then retreats to write. Just off the living room is another room "as big as four telephone booths — but with a door," she says. There, she sits before an electric typewriter and looks out the window at a big maple tree on her front lawn and two dying elms across the street.

"Ordinary People" was actually the third novel she had written — or tried to write. She abandoned the first two, each after several years of labor. "In both cases," she said, "I wrote myself into so many jams and corners that I couldn't get myself out. So I gave up."

"In 'Ordinary People,' I was tempted to do the same thing. I finally said to myself, 'Who are you kidding? As long as you keep scrapping them you never have to face finishing them. I set a goal to finish 'Ordinary People.'"

The book is alive with "everyday people" in sudden, extraordinary circumstances, reeling from a family tragedy, struggling to prevail.

There is a sparseness of prose and pithiness of insight that distinguishes "Ordinary People." For example: — "Punishment? Of course, for losing control. Always. One of life's unwritten laws."

— "Get the motions right. The motives will follow."

— "The problem of connecting (with people) is partly that of fitting mood with opportunity." Redford picked out this line as one, he wrote Guest, that he particularly liked.

The manuscript was originally rejected by two New York publishers. An editor at the second, Random House, wrote her, "While the book does have some satiric bite ('Whatever the hell that means' says Guest), overall the level of writing does not sustain interest. I shall have to decline."

Guest said, "I went over and over that rejection, looking for a grain of meaning. A 'no' ought to have some sort of value. I couldn't find any here. I sent the manuscript on to Viking."

"Yes, I was aware of the unlikelihood of acceptance. But getting published was secondary to writing. I mean, if it's something you do, or have to do, nothing else matters. And I knew I'd be writing until my brains turned green."

"I don't know why I write. I don't know if anybody knows why one writes. I have a saying on my wall by Herbert Gold: 'I write to master my experience.'"

"That's probably what I do. Life is so unpredictable, so unmanageable. Writing is one area where you do have control, where you can make things happen the way you want them to."

She submitted the manuscript without an agent because, she says, agents are as hard to get as publishers. Viking was the third publisher she tried ("because I particularly liked two of their novelists, Bellow and Murdoch.")

Viking kept the manuscript for five months. Finally, a note came in the mail: Sorry for delay. Still considering. "In other words," said Guest, "be patient but don't get your hopes up."

Another month passed. She sent a query to the Viking editor. Two weeks later, in July of 1975, a mailgram arrived: "Viking would be honored to publish 'Ordinary People.'"

She received a modest $5,000 royalty advance. The book was published last July and immediately acclaimed as powerful and original.

"What has changed? A lot for awhile," she said. "I went on a promotion tour for a month and I began to believe all the praise. Then I got back home and was assigned a magazine article on how I wrote my novel. It's terrible — I keep going off on long tangents."

"At home, I still do as much cleaning and hollering as ever. I've got boys aged 17, 14 and 11, so what else can you expect?"

"One thing I've learned, though, is that people are more alike than we think. Men, women and children. I've had men say to me, 'How were you able to get inside the minds so well of the males in your book?' I tell them that those thoughts are my thoughts. A common denominator is that we all have deep feelings of isolation."

She adds, "Men, more than women, say to me they have a story inside them just aching to be told. 'I reply, 'Great! Tell it!'"

Woman biochemist climbs Mt. Everest

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

EVEREST BASE CAMP, Nepal (AP) — Arlene Blum hopes to be the first American woman to climb Mt. Everest, but she says cancer research is more important to her.

"My research is very important to me, more important than mountaineering," said the 31-year-old biochemist from Berkeley, Calif., one of the two women in the 11-member American Bicentennial Everest Expedition.

Huddled in a tent as the snow fell on the base camp 11,500 feet below the peak of the world's highest mountain, Ms. Blum was reading over an advance copy of her article "Flame Retardant Additives as Possible Cancer Hazards." A runner had just brought it with the mail.

"My research on chemicals in the environment that may cause cancer is so satisfying," she said. "I think I can really help people this way. We spend so much money on trying to find cures for cancer but very little on the prevention of it. I really was reluctant to leave my work to come to Everest."

Earlier that day, draped with crampons, ice axe and a rope, and wearing a floppy zebra-striped sun hat, she returned delightedly from several hours of work in the Khumbu ice fall, the treacherous icy gateway to the world's highest peak.

"I love being there," she said, tired but smiling. "I'm really getting excited about climbing."

On the three-week march from Katmandu to the base camp, as she trudged up the slippery trails, Ms. Blum could be heard championing her favorite causes: legislation requiring that cigarettes extinguish quickly to reduce fire risk; regulation of chemicals in hair dyes and fabrics that may cause cancer; population control in developing countries where she has traveled and climbed.

And equality for women climbers.

Ms. Blum is a strong believer in equal rights high up in the mountains, and daily there have been incidents that rankle the feminist in her.

Shortly after arriving at the base camp, the Sherpa guides asked for some climbers to accompany them to the base of the ice fall for a ceremony to the mountain deities. Ms. Blum was pointedly ignored when she offered to go.

She also felt slighted when she was not selected for the first two days of work to make the route through the ice fall. She finally managed to go on the second day.

But Ms. Blum feels herself to be an equal member of the expedition.

She is big — 5-feet-10 — and strong, has climbed higher before than any of the other Americans, and so far has stayed in good health, unlike some of the men who have been plagued by diarrhea and colds.

As for being the first American woman on the top — a Japanese and a Tibetan woman reached the summit in 1975 — "it's incidental," she said. "I'd like it a lot better without all the publicity; it's not an ego thing for me. But wouldn't it be wonderful if a woman did make it to the top?"

Of all the marriage manuals that have come out of this decade, the one that has intrigued me the most has been "The Total Woman" by Marabel Morgan.

Some manuals are as complicated as assembling a lawn sweeper in a dark closet on Christmas Eve, but according to Marabel if you can dial a phone you can put excitement in your marriage.

If one of her chapters, she tells of a plan to make your husband want to hurry home. One of her students, Janet, tried it. She called her husband, Jack, at 4 p.m. one day and said, "Honey, I'm eagerly waiting for you to come home. I just crave your body."

There was a lot of heavy breathing in the phone followed by a return call from Jack who couldn't believe it either and said, "Would you please repeat slowly what you said five minutes ago?" (TV they also do that when you order pizza on the phone so they won't get stuck with it.)

I figured what the heck. I never call my husband at work. The shock alone would be worth the effort. I dialed the number. The phone lifted off the hook. "Don't say anything," I whispered, "just come home early. I crave your body."

His secretary said tiredly, "you wouldn't be hurt if I held out for a better offer, would you?"

Just a minute, I'll connect you with your husband.

After what seemed hours, he lifted the phone. "Come home early," I said huskily. "I crave your body."

He put me on hold for about ten minutes, then came back and said, "What's this about craving a party? It's only ten in the morning."

"I didn't say party, I said body as in Burt Reynolds."

"Burt is coming to our house for a party?" he asked.

"For crying out loud," I snapped. "Pay attention. Come home early and you can have your way with me."

"This piped-in music drives me up the wall. You say you want me home early? How early?"

"Well, I've got the baton twirling car pool at three and your cleaning is done and the lima beans will be done at five. If you get here when the lima beans are done, forget it. I hate overcooked vegetables."

"I hope you're having something else for the party besides lima beans. See you at five."

Marabel. Would you believe that some women in this world were meant to go through life as sub-total women? We can't seem to get it all added up.

OLD ARMY TANKS don't always fade away into junk yards — some end up as war memorials, such as this model in Bangert Park in Florissant, Mo. Joe Johnson gives little brother a lift to check out close up the World War II big shot.

Light side

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — The groom wore a vested suit, the bride wore a blue muslin gauze gown and the calf was decked out in his usual roan coat, white face and canvas halter with metallic-colored chain.

The calf? Yes, right there with all the other honored guests at Debbie Bryant and Randy Spae's recent wedding was Gimpy, a 4-month-old member of the moo set who's considered by all in the family to be a part of it.

Gimpy was born to a heifer who died giving birth. It also left the calf with a game leg, and gave him his name. Roger Bryant, father of the bride, sawed the ends off a pair of skis and used them to make a splint. Without a mother, it looked like Gimpy was doomed, but tender loving care — not to mention a giant baby bottle — kept him going.

Mrs. Spae said inviting the calf was an idea she and her husband came up with although "everybody else thought it was kind of dumb."

NORRIDGEWOCK, Maine (AP) — A grandmother took top honors in the adult division of the fourth annual Central Maine Frog Race and received a gallon of swampwater as her prize.

Margaret Gildart's prize came from the nearby Oosoola Stream. About 125 contestants, and more than 1,000 spectators, showed up for the race, which is becoming a Labor Day tradition in Oosoola Park here.

The competitors, divided into three age groups, placed their frogs in the center of a 30-foot circle, and the first to reach the outer rim was declared the winner.

Bruce Hertz, the race chairman, said the frog owners tried to get the creatures moving by yelling encouragement, stomping the ground behind them, and huffing and puffing on their backs. It's against the rules to touch the frogs.

TULSA (AP) — More than 3,400 persons pushed, paddled, dragged and floated their rafts down a 9.4-mile stretch of the Arkansas River here in the 4th annual Great Raft Race.

The crafts ranged from a bathtub manned by one to an elaborate side-wheel paddle boat with a crew of 18.

The oldest rafter was Helen King, 72, of Petaluma, Calif., who kept a merry tune coming from her harmonica as she captained her crew down the river.

Official results of Monday's timed race won't be known until Wednesday. Entrants in the faster classifications made the race in under one hour. The "Pokie-Okie" category entrants ran the course in innertubes in about four hours.

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (AP) — Roy Webster celebrated his 75th birthday several months late this year, as he planned, by participating in the 11th annual Labor Day cross channel swim of the Columbia River.

Webster was the oldest of 159 swimmers who completed the chilly, mile-long crossing from the Washington Jo the Oregon side of the river. It was the 34th year he had swum the river.

Webster, a retired orchardist, said the water this year was the "coldest ever." He said he intended to make the swim again next year.

Names in news

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Jeff Carter, 22-year-old son of Jimmy Carter, says that although he has tried marijuana "I don't recommend it to anybody."

Young Carter made the comment at a news conference Monday as he and his wife, Annette, joined Carter family members for the start of Carter's campaign in the South.

Jeff's mother, Rosalynn, disclosed in an interview last week that her three sons have smoked marijuana. Jeff told reporters, "I don't know why she said it. I kind of wish she hadn't."

While saying he does not recommend it, he said the laws against marijuana in some places are too severe and that authorities should be "more lenient" about it.

If his father is elected president, he said, "I think he'll try to decriminalize marijuana."

The Democratic presidential nominee has said before that he favors a modified form of marijuana decriminalization, with civil penalties for possession of small amounts.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Kate Smith remains in satisfactory condition at Terrace Heights Hospital where she has spent a week for treatment of what the hospital describes as an upper respiratory infection.

Miss Smith, 67, best known for her stentorian rendition of "God Bless America," was transferred to the hospital in Queens last Tuesday.

She had been admitted the weekend before to another hospital for what was reported as a sore throat or acute laryngitis.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — British Conservative party leader Margaret Thatcher, concluding a two-day visit to Pakistan, says her chances of becoming England's first woman prime minister are "not bad."

She made the statement at a news conference Monday following private meetings with Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and Laotian Premier Kaysone Phomvihane are meeting in Moscow to discuss the future of Laos, the official Communist news agency Tass reported.

Brezhnev suggested at a meeting Monday that the new Southeast Asian state has an important role to play in supporting progressive movements in Asia.

Phomvihane is making his second visit to the Soviet Union in five months. He was here for 16 days ending May 4.

TOKYO (AP) — Former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger has arrived in Peking for a visit at the invitation of the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs, China's official Hsinhua news agency reported.

Schlesinger, arriving Monday, was greeted at the airport by Ko Po-nien, vice president of the institute, and Lin Ping, director of American affairs in the Foreign Ministry.

The Japanese newspaper Asahi, meanwhile, reported that Schlesinger will tour Sinkiang province and Inner Mongolia, where Chinese troops are posted opposite Soviet units along the frontier. Sinkiang also is the site of China's atomic weapons testing grounds.

Asahi, quoting Chinese sources, said Peking wants to impress on Schlesinger the Soviet threat to China.

Licenses checked

The Pampa Police Department operated a driver's license check in the 1500 block of Alcock Thursday.

Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills said 225 cars were stopped and seven citations were issued.

Officers talk

Traffic Control Officers Johnnie Fontenot and Sue Mathew talked on safety to 270 students at Lamar Elementary School Wednesday, according to Richard Mills, Pampa police chief.

The program included a film and safety materials were distributed to the students.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mrs. E. L. Young, a tailor, placed the following ad in a newspaper recently: "Eastside tailor seeks design for pickproof man's hip pocket. Professionals invited to compete. Agreed upon fee paid earliest delivered acceptable design."

The acceptable design came from a 78-year-old man who described himself as a "retired professional pickpocket."

He said he was offering his design to "clear my conscience" and, therefore, he was relinquishing "all rights and claims to this design and turn them over to you without cost or obligation."

Mrs. Young said the design was "right on target." She said she would not divulge details of the design until after she received a patent on it.

PAMPA NEWS Wednesday, September 8, 1976 11

NEW YORK (AP) — It's decision-making time. And it has nothing to do with people named Ford or Carter, although it wouldn't be surprising if Jerry Ford, a one-time Michigan center, dropped in to see how the football team is coming along when he kicks off his campaign in Ann Arbor this week.

No, the immediate choices lie between Nebraska and Louisiana State, Arizona State and UCLA, Ohio State and Michigan State, Pitt and Notre Dame — people like that.

Our Presidential favorite will remain a secret; that's why they have curtains around voting booths. The college football picks are yours for the price of this newspaper.

Nebraska at Louisiana State: The Cornhuskers had all sorts of trouble with LSU a year ago, winning by only 10-7. This time, the Cornhuskers are ranked No. 1 in the nation, but it still won't be a runaway. Nebraska 21-14.

UCLA at Arizona State: The Sun Devils make no bones about it — they're going for No. 1. You can see them do it on national television in a unique Thursday night game, if the cameraman can stay with the ASU speed demons. Arizona State 28-14.

Michigan State at Ohio State: For a change, someone other than Woody Hayes is out for revenge. Michigan State is steaming because Hayes — among others — whispered their recruiting misdeeds into NCAA ears, leading to a whopping three-year probation. New Coach Darryl Rogers said he doesn't know Hayes or Columbus, Ohio, very well but he doesn't like either one. He'll like them even less after Ohio State 24-7. Pitt at Notre Dame: From 1965-73, Notre Dame outscored Pitt 427-74. But the Panthers made it close in '74 and whipped the Irish last year behind Tony Dorsett's amazing 303-yard galloping. The winner of this game goes right into the thick of the national championship picture. Notre Dame 17-14.

Oklahoma at Vanderbilt: No team has ever won three national championships in a row and only one team has a people like that.

chance this year. Oklahoma 38-14.

Alabama at Mississippi: How much was Ole Miss looking ahead when Memphis State zapped 'em last weekend? Too much, probably. Last week, the Tigers; this week, a Bear named Bryant. Alabama 28-7.

Texas at Boston College: With Earl Campbell and a couple of speedsters named Johnny Jones, Darrell Royal's Wishbone could become a Royal-T — royalty, get it? So will Missouri at Southern California: The Trojans are aware of what underdog Missouri did to Alabama in last year's opener. As it turned out, that game cost 'Bama the national championship. Southern Cal 31-17.

Stanford at Penn State: Will Stanford be looking ahead to Michigan more than Penn State will be looking ahead to Ohio State? The same situation prevailed last year, Penn State winning 34-14. This time Penn State 19-14.

California at Georgia: This one should be a "breather" for the Bears since their next two games, also on the road, are at Oklahoma and Arizona State. Cal 28-14.

North Carolina at Florida: The Tar Heels used a fake-injury, no-huddle trick play to dump Miami of Ohio last week-end. Another ranked team coming up. Florida 30-13.

Virginia Tech at Texas A&M: The Gobblers are trying to crack the Top Twenty and this could be their only stumbling block. Texas A&M 24-10. Washington State at Kansas: Jackie Sherrill, State's new coach, may turn the program around, but not this fast. Kansas 28-14.

Rutgers at Navy: The Scarlet Knights are looking for an unbeaten season to match the one turned in by the basketball team. Surprise, surprise. Navy 18-14.

Duke at Tennessee: The feeling in this corner is that the Vols will be the surprise team in the South. Tennessee 24-10.

Houston at Baylor: Houston makes its long-awaited debut in the Southwest Conference. Too much, too soon. Baylor 20-12.

Indiana at Minnesota: The Gophers, riding Tony Dungy's throwing arm, are the Big Ten's darkhorse. Things get even darker with the Upset Special of the Week. Indiana 21-17.

Tulsa at Oklahoma State: Winner can lay claim to being the second best team in the State of Oklahoma. Oklahoma State 29-14.

Colorado at Texas Tech: The last time the Buffs hit the Lone Star State, Texas provided a 38-21 loss in the Bluebonnet Bowl. Tech ain't Texas. Colorado 28-20.

Arkansas State at San Diego State: Goodbye to the nation's longest winning streak at a major college. Arkansas State has won 15 in a row, but San Diego State 21-13.

Wisconsin at Michigan: Oh, yes, Mr. President, the Wolverines are doing very nicely, thank you. Michigan 42-7.

Other games: East — Army 21, Lafayette 7; Colgate 24, Connecticut 20; Holy Cross 21, New Hampshire 14; Massachusetts 17, Toledo 7; Syracuse 24, Bowling Green 17; West Virginia 34, Villanova 14.

South — Maryland 35, Richmond 6; Miami of Ohio 45, Marshall 0; Appalachian State 28, East Tennessee State 14; The Citadel 16, Clemson 13; East Carolina 26, Southern Mississippi 12; Georgia Tech 28, South Carolina 17; Oregon State 20, Kentucky 13; McNeese State 28, Southern Illinois 14; Memphis State 27, Florida State 13; Southwestern Louisiana 22, Fresno State 10; Furman 23, Tennessee Tech 16; Tulane 16, Cincinnati 9; North Carolina State 28, Wake Forest 10.

Oakland narrows gap

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Pennant pressure is suffocating and the Oakland A's say that's exactly what's choking the Kansas City Royals.

"The pressure has to be getting to Kansas City," says Oakland's Gene Tenace. "They haven't been there before. Nothing is easy this time of year. You can't think about it, you just have to go out and play."

Tenace's famous "Mustache Gang" has been there before, of course, having won five Western pennants and three World Series in recent history. And now, the A's are making a serious bid in the homestretch to overhaul the faltering Royals.

They cut another game off Kansas City's lead with a 4-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night and now stand merely five games behind the leaders. That's a good deal less formidable than, say, 12 games — which was Kansas City's lead as recently as Aug. 6.

"Kansas City still has to beat us to win it," points out Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner, stressing that the A's and Royals still have to meet six more times this year.

In Kansas City, Manager Whitey Herzog alluded to the pinch of a tough pennant race in explaining the Royals' eighth loss in the last nine games.

"We're playing like we're scared to win — and don't know how," he said after a 2-1 loss to the California Angels.

Mike Torrez pitched a four-hitter, retiring 16 straight batters at one point, and Tenace hit two home runs to give the A's their victory over Chicago.

Righthander Don Kirkwood held struggling Kansas City to three hits and ex-Royal Tony Solaita drove in both runs as California beat the Royals: Two singles by George Brett and one by Tom Poquette were the only safeties against Kirkwood, who walked four and struck out three in improving his record to 6-10.

Yankees 4, Red Sox 2
A two-run triple by Chris Chambliss and a two-run homer by Oscar Gamble enabled New York to break Luis Tiant's seven-game personal winning streak and beat Boston.

The Harvesters will compete in a tournament Friday and Saturday at West Texas State University in Canyon. Most of the area's AAAA and AAA teams are expected to compete in the tourney.

Volleyers rip Hereford

HEREFORD — Pampa's tiny but quick girls volleyball team ran its unbeaten string to five matches with a 15-8, 15-5 win over Hereford Tuesday.

Pampa's junior varsity upped its record to 2-0 with a win over the Hereford B-team in a match prior to the varsity contests. The Pampa JV lost the first match, 5-15, but won the next two by 15-12 and 15-14 scores.

Harvester Coach Lynn Wolfe said, "We're getting better," but was not pleased with the varsity's serving game.

"They got 78 percent of their serves over in the first game and 83 percent in the last game. You don't look at it like shooting baskets. It sounds good but it should have been at least 90 percent."

Ms. Wolfe praised Teresa Stafford on the B-team.

"She served well. She kept her poise and got them over even though the team was losing the ball."

The Harvesters won their second, third and fourth matches of the season Saturday

Nastase finally gets call his way

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert did it the easy way. She always does it the easy way.

Bjorn Borg and Manuel Orantes did it the hard way. Borg and Orantes are used to doing it the hard way.

And Ilie Nastase did it his way, coming through in a storm of controversy. Nastase is always surrounded by controversy.

But one way or another they all advanced to the quarter-finals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships. They started playing tennis at the West Side Tennis Club at 11:30 in the morning Tuesday and they didn't get done until after 1 a.m. And they saved the best match for last.

Nastase, the temperamental Romanian who terrorized officials, fans, ballboys, cameramen and Hans-Jurgen Pohmann earlier in the tournament, squared off against muscular Roscoe Tanner in the final match of the evening session. They played for 3 hours and 15 minutes. It was grueling tennis, pressure tennis, brilliant tennis.

And when it was over, after all the booming serves and searing forehands and crackling volleys, it came down to whether one tennis ball landed a half-inch this way or a half-inch that way.

The sets were even at two each and the games were even at four. Tanner, the handsome, blond southpaw, was serving at 30-40. Nastase hit a forehand volley and the ball flicked close to the line. The linesman called it out. Nastase cried out in disbelief. The umpire overruled the linesman. The head referee was called.

Finally, with both players agreeing and the linesman still dissenting, the ball was ruled in and Nastase had his break. He won his service to love to take the match 7-5, 6-7, 1-6, 7-6, 6-4.

"I never even thought the ball would be called out," said the 24-year-old Tanner. "I definitely saw the ball in. It bounced half on the line and as I see the rules that is."

Nastase's victory boosted him into the quarters against Dick Stockton of Dallas, a 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 winner over Jairo Velasco. The other men's quarters match Borg-Orantes, Jimmy Connors-Jan Kodes and Guillermo Vilas-Eddie Dibbs.

Borg, down two sets to none and 0-2 in the third, rallied to beat dogged Brian Gottfried 6-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 in a torturous 3½-hour match. And Orantes, the defending champion, overcame arm problems to survive a 2-45 marathon with Stan Smith 3-6, 1-6, 6-2, 7-6, 6-1.

Gottfried played brilliantly against the second-seeded Borg for two sets in the afternoon before fading before the speedy Swede's sharp passing shots. Gottfried had success at the net in the first two sets but was passed repeatedly in the final three.

Smith, the former champion who has been making a startling comeback of late, cruised through the first two sets against a sluggish Orantes. But the Spaniard came to life in the third set, won the fourth-set tiebreaker with a brilliant lob and coasted through the final set against the sagging Smith.

Miss Evert, who doesn't waste time haggling about line calls or staging heroic comebacks, prefers to beat her opponents quickly and decisively.

House bill curbs release of toxics

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — A bill designed chiefly to curb the release of toxic substances in regions such as the Gulf Coast's highly concentrated petrochemical area cleared the House.

The legislation, officially known as the Toxic Substances Control Act, was sponsored by Rep. Robert Eckhardt, D-Houston, and supported by both environmentalists and representatives from the chemical industry.

In approving the measure by a 319-45 vote, the House passed the bill for the third time in the past five years. Previous attempts to enact the legislation into law have always failed, however. However, backers of the bill, such as Eckhardt, believe chances are excellent that the bill will become law this year since the Senate has already approved a tougher version of the legislation. While the Ford Administration passively opposes the bill, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the federal department charged with implementing the measures provisions, supports it. Specifically, the bill which gained bipartisan support in the House requires manufacturers and processors of potentially harmful chemicals to conduct tests as required by the EPA administrator, before marketing the substances or mixtures. After a 90-day delay, the EPA administrator, by seeking court action, could further postpone the marketing of any substance determined to be potentially carcinogenic or otherwise harmful to the environment.

The House measure represents a compromise between positions advanced by the industry and such environmental groups as the Sierra Club. Eckhardt, whose east Houston area district covers one of the most highly concentrated petrochemical areas in the country, particularly sought a bill this year to boost his reelection chances.

Although environmentalists strongly support the concept of the legislation, they are somewhat irked at the Houston Democrat, contending that he gave away too much in the compromise. The environmentalists now hope to add tougher language in the bill when the House and Senate conferees meet to reconcile differences in the two bills.

One of the more controversial provisions in the House measure is a 30-month phase out of production and distribution of a chemical substance called Polychlorinated Biphenyls (PCB). The potentially dangerous chemical is frequently found in fish and other aquatic animals as well as in human tissues.

Approved over the protests of Eckhardt, the provision is supported by the Texas Water Quality Board, which has reported finding traces of PCB in fish caught in the state. Again over the objections of the bill's sponsors, the House added a provision giving Congress veto power over any decision reached by the EPA in implementing the legislation.

Arguing against the bill, Rep. James Collins, R-Dallas, said the bill would create unfair burdens on the small manufacturer. The conservative Republican added that the "only people that will benefit from this bill are the lawyers" who will be representing the manufacturers.

Jack Hightower, D. Vernon supported the measure and voted for the amendment giving Congress veto power over EPA regulations.

Minerals education urged

By GEOFFREY O'GARA
Pampa's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — "The state of the minerals professions in the U.S. can best be described as deplorable," believes J.H. Kelley, dean of the School of Mines at the University of West Virginia who recently made a pitch to Congress for more federal funding of miner education programs.

Kelley's comment was echoed by academics, federal officials, and coal industry executives appearing before the House subcommittee on Energy Research, Development, and Demonstration (Fossil Fuels) during recent oversight hearings on coal research and development. Other witnesses agreed that an impending manpower shortage in the mining engineering field might hamper the government's drive to increase coal production.

Several called for government aid in the field of mining engineering education.

Four bills to provide federal support for advanced degree programs in the field, including one authored by Rep. Carl Ptkrins, D-Ky., are before the committee, but probably won't move this year.

The Perkins bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to spend $125 million for the construction of comprehensive coal research and training centers at five locations around the country. The bill would also fund operation and scholarships at the centers.

An aide to Perkins said no action on the bill is expected due to this year's crowded legislative calendar, but noted that the educational program would include training for coal liquefaction and gasification plants, which form a controversial section of the synthetic fuels legislation now before the House.

Reps. Olin Teague, D-Tex., John Heinz, R-Pa., and Edward Derwinski, R-Ill., have introduced similar bills that would place responsibility for the program with the Director of the National Science Foundation rather than HEW.

Wallace McGahan, director of research at Ingersoll-Rand Co., a producer of mining machinery, claimed that in the current "tight supply situation" a new graduate in mine engineering received starting salary offers "several hundred dollars higher than other education fields."

McGahan and other witnesses cited the expansion of coal mining stimulated by President

Ford's "energy independence" goals as a cause for the personnel shortage. The Ford Administration has called for a national capacity of 1.04 billion tons of coal production by 1985. Bureau of Mines officials estimate that 670 million tons will be produced in 1976, up 30 million from the previous year. Industry officials point out that stringent health and safety regulations have hampered production increases.

Kelley testified that the manpower shortage in mine engineering required that the current number of graduates receiving higher degrees in the field, about 366 annually, must be doubled if Ford's goals are to be met. He called for an increase in programs, both at the graduate and the vocational level, and for the establishment of coal research laboratories.

Energy, colonial style

There were no energy shortages facing Americans two centuries ago when they depended on abundant natural resources and ingenuity as their greatest sources of power.

Before the development of mass production, most metal objects came handforged from the blacksmith, right, who required a large and constant supply of coal since a steady temperature had to be maintained. Tedious labor of candlemaking, far right, may have offered little excitement as a career then, but it was America's only method of lighting homes once night fell. The most intricately-detailed furniture came from the most primitive of tools, the spring lathe, below, and the experienced hands of an artisan. But they were not totally without developing some energy sources, water and wind among them. Windmills often provided the muscle to power mills and huge sawblades. At day's end, the windmill's huge sail, were "furled," or secured, below center, to prevent useless wear on its mechanical parts. But more than anything else, the 18th century's primary source of energy, as evident by the dedicated craftsman at work with mallet and chisel, was none other than ... man.

No pay raise this year Jobs plank watered down

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no cost-of-living pay raise this election year for members of Congress.

The Senate voted 46 to 25 Tuesday to exclude Senators and House members from an automatic pay increase due Oct. 1 to all federal civil service employees.

The House had voted 325 to 75 last Wednesday to exclude not only Congress but also federal judges, cabinet members and other top federal officials earning more than $37,800 a year.

The Senate, however, in adopting an amendment by Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio, agreed to lift the salary freeze for all but senators and congressmen.

The ultimate pay raise fate of judges and top federal officials will await decision of a House-Senate conference on the billion-dollar legislative appropriation bill for fiscal 1977.

The exact amount of the federal pay raise, due automatically Oct. 1 unless blocked by Congress, is yet to be determined, but it has been estimated at 4.8 per cent. That would have raised the salary of members of Congress from $44,625 to $46,750 a year. The current salary reflects a 5 per cent automatic raise last year.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., chairman of the Senate legislative appropriations subcommittee, defended the pay raise for all officials, including members of Congress.

He said that if the Taft amendment, allowing the raise for everyone but members of Congress, were adopted "there will be 14 White House staff aides running around earning more than senators."

The debate included discussion over whether Congress members, if they lacked "the guts" in an election year to vote themselves a pay raise, should deny it to other top government officials.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said Congress members should not "demean" themselves by rejecting a cost-of-living increase while approving it for federal judges and high-level executive officials.

Pastore, retiring at the end of the year, said it made little difference to him personally, but he argued a pay hike should go to all or none.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said the career civil servants and federal judges should not be denied cost-of-living increases just because "we don't have the guts to give it to ourselves."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the Humphrey-Hawkins jobs bill, a major plank in the Democratic party platform, now are pushing a watered-down version of the measure because the original proposal met key opposition.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., with Sen. Hubert H.

Humphrey, D-Minn., the sponsor of the bill, is trying to get the House Education and Labor Committee to approve the revised measure today. The backers then face the problem of getting it on the floor and sent to the Senate and approved there before Congress adjourns for the year on Oct. 2.

The committee passed an earlier version in May. However, that bill was blocked by the House leadership from coming to the House floor after the measure attracted a lot of political lightning.

The Republican National Convention used the bill as a prime example of what the GOP considered the tendency of congressional Democrats to spend huge amounts of tax money and to expand government. And 60 of the 81 Democratic freshmen asked the House leadership not to bring up the costly bill because it might hurt their re-election chances.

Under the bill, the president, Congress and the Federal Reserve would take various steps aimed at stimulating private industry to produce new jobs. To further close the unemployment gap, there would be public service jobs to employ those unable to find work elsewhere.

The Ford administration claims the bill would cost $30 billion annually. Others estimate the cost from $8 billion to $16 billion. It also has been criticized by some supporters of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, and some liberal economists have said it might be inflationary.

Since the early summer, Hawkins, organized labor and civil rights organizations have regrouped to revise the bill. That revision is up for committee approval. An aide to Hawkins said the revisions have been endorsed by Carter campaign aides and are being promoted with vigor by the AFL-CIO and other groups.

These are the key changes: —The goal of getting unemployment down to 3 per cent within four years would be for adults only. The original 3 per cent goal was to include persons between the age of 16 and 20 as well as adults. By comparison, the August unemployment rate was 7.9 per cent.

—The bill's mandate to plan ahead for balanced growth in the economy with full employment and minimal inflation would apply only to government planning. The original measure held the prospect of government planning for private business.

Curtain to raise--four years, $2 million later

BLOOMFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The curtain goes up today, literally, on the grandiose brainchild of artist Christo Javacheff — an 18-foot-high nylon fence stretching over 24 miles of rolling hills and farms to the Pacific Ocean.

If all goes well, he will tear it down again in two weeks.

At dawn today, 300 youthful workers begin stringing the white curtain panels like hundreds of billowing sails along cables attached to 2,050 steel posts previously anchored in the soil of 55 Northern California farms.

In a surprise move Tuesday, the helpers, who are paid $2.40 an hour, installed a section of the running curtain-fence on the one spot where Javacheff couldn't obtain permission: the last 1,000 feet to the ocean 40 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Javacheff, 41, who once stretched a curtain across a Colorado canyon, spent four years and $2 million weaving his way through an array of public hearings and legal battles to see his masterwork completed.

He asked only that the curtain — which some agree is art and other have called a fraud — be allowed to wave for two weeks in the ocean-misted winds. Then, he promised, he will happily dismantle it.

"The project is not the fence," explained Christo, a Bulgarian-born, New York-based artist who doesn't use his last name. "It is the complex relationship of many things — the fence, the hills, the sky, the people, the urban areas, the countryside.

Jeanne Claude, his business agent and wife, put it mysteriously: "Revealing through concealing. As old as Adam's fig leaf."

A local sculptor, Mary McChesney, said she doesn't like the fence being hung "in my own backyard. I think the project is boring. Christo is a lightweight scam guy, an art hustler. I think his motivations are to make himself famous and rich."

The farmers, who were paid $215 each for property rights of way and were guaranteed that they could keep the expensive steel poles and taut fabric for their own use, were among Christo's staunchest supporters.

But environmentalists fought Christo in the courts and finally compelled him to spend $39,000 on an environmental impact report. He also had to win approval of a dozen local and state agencies in 17 public hearings.

The California Coastal Commission, which has jurisdiction over construction within 1,000 feet of the sea, had scheduled a final appeal on Javacheff's application Sept. 22 — a day after the art work is scheduled to be dismantled.

Informed that the illegal portion had been erected, commission executive director Joseph Borovitz said, "We'll treat it the same as any violation of the Coastal Act and ask the attorney general to take appropriate action." That could mean punitive damages and jail for contempt if Christo defied a court order to remove the section.

Kissinger to report on trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger appears ready to embark on a round of African shuttle diplomacy that he considers to have no better than a 50 per cent chance of heading off a race war in southern Africa.

Kissinger reports to President Ford today on his weekend talks in Switzerland with South African Prime Minister John Vorster and is expected to discuss plans for a trip to Africa.

Kissinger said Tuesday that Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere has invited him to come to Africa as soon as possible. Kissinger said he would hold off a final decision on going until he receives a report from his top aide on African affairs, William E. Schauffele Jr.

A spokesman for Nyerere insisted that Kissinger had invited himself. "He asked to come and we said all right, come along," the spokesman said.

Schauffele, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, went to Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, on Tuesday to be briefed on the outcome of a summit meeting by black African leaders. If, as expected, he relays a positive report, Kissinger probably will leave Washington for Africa by next Monday.

Reporters traveling with Kissinger were told by a senior American official that the secretary considered his chances for success in Africa at no more than 50 per cent.

In Dar es Salaam, conference sources said little attention was given to U.S. diplomatic initiatives aimed at achieving black majority rule in Rhodesia and South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

In Hamburg, Kissinger told West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt that progress had been made with Vorster in formulating an approach to the problem areas of Rhodesia and Namibia.

The issue involved in Rhodesia is the transfer of power from the 270,000 whites to the six million blacks. The Namibia question centers on negotiating the independence of the territory from South Africa, which took it from Germany in World War I.

Schmidt was asked if Germany would participate in a program to contribute funds for the resettlement of white Rhodesians in other countries. The chancellor indicated his government was considering such contributions on a unilateral basis. He said his main concern was Namibia, where 30,000 persons of German descent still live.

Louise Evans Bruce of Amarillo will serve as regional coordinator of volunteer participation during the swine flu inoculation this fall.

Announcement was made by Mary Hazlewood of Amarillo coordinator for the First Lady's Volunteer Program, Office of the Governor.

Assisting Mrs. Bruce in Gray County will be Majunta Hills.

The volunteer program, a division of the Texas Center for Volunteer Action, is co-sponsoring with the Texas Department of Health Resources the massive effort to protect 10 million Texans from swine flu during a 90-day inoculation period this fall.

The Gray County program is scheduled for sometime in October.

Persons who wish to help in the volunteer effort may contact Mrs. Bruce, who serves as executive director of the Amarillo Area Academic Health Center.

Police investigate 84 class 1 crimes here

The Pampa Police Department investigated reports of 84 class 1 crimes during August, according to Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills.

Of that number, four were unfounded and officers cleared 36 of the remaining 80 cases, giving the department a 45 per cent clearance rate, Mills said.

The greatest incidence of class 1 crimes during August was larceny theft with 39 reports, three of which were unfounded.

Police have investigated 680 class 1 crimes during the first eight months of 1976.

Class 1 crimes during August included negligent manslaughter, 1; assault with firearms, 2; assault - aggravated injury, 4; assault - other, 5; burglary - forced entry, 17; unlawful entry - no force, 11; larceny theft, 36; auto theft, 1; and other vehicle thefts, 3.

Mills said the department investigated 155 class 2 crimes and cleared 91 of those during August. They have investigated 1,356 class 2 crimes in the first eight months of 1976.
