

Chairman Mao Tse-tung dies

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung, who led the Communist takeover of China in 1949 and dominated the world's most populous nation for 27 years, died early today, Peking announced.

He was 82 and had been failing for many months. His death immediately threw open the question of who would succeed him and was expected to intensify the power struggle that has shaken Peking intermittently for years and that flared up with renewed intensity after Prime Minister Chou En-lai's death.

There has been no designation of his successor as chairman of the Chinese Communist party, the country's most powerful post, which he had held since 1955.

Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, said Mao died at 12:10 a.m. — 12:10 p.m. EDT Wednesday — because of the worsening of his illness and despite all treatment, although meticulous medical care was given him in every way after he fell ill.

Many American and foreign visitors to China in the past year said Mao had looked frail and had trouble speaking. There were reports that he had suffered a stroke.

In June, Chinese officials said he had stopped receiving important foreign visitors because he is too old and too busy. In Chinese photographs and television broadcasts recently Mao looked pale and feeble.

After studying films of Mao's television appearances, medical experts said earlier this year he showed all the symptoms associated with Parkinson's disease — slowness of movement, set facial expression and slurred, indistinct speech. The disease is a progressive affliction of the central nervous system also known as shaking palsy.

There have been indications for some time that Mao was not in day-to-day control of the country because of his deepening illness and that many actions were taken by others in his name. However, the recent demotion and firing of former Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping was widely believed to have been at Mao's direction, indicating he still held enormous power.

The announcement of Mao's death was delayed for about 16 hours, the same length of time that intervened before the death of Chou was announced Jan. 8.

The first American reaction came from Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., an acknowledged authority on Asia. He was the last of the great World War II leaders, he said, adding that Mao's passing will mark the end of an era, but not the end of the policies he laid down for the People's Republic of China.

The problems surrounding relations with the United States and the Soviet Union still remain, he said.

President Ford said later that Chairman Mao was a remarkable and a very great man. He had the vision and imagination to open up the doors to the United States.

It's tragic, of course, that a man of his great remarkable ability and skill and vision and foresight has passed away.

Ford met with Mao for one hour and 50 minutes last December during his China trip. Former President Richard M. Nixon talked with the Communist leader in February, apparently the last American to do so.

Flags at Chinese government buildings and many foreign missions in Peking, including the U.S. Liaison Office, were lowered to half staff shortly after the Peking radio announcement.

Residents in Peking, contacted by telephone from Hong Kong, said there was no mass outburst of emotion. One resident said, "People were walking around normally, but some were weeping and many others reflected shock and sorrow on their faces."

Tiananmen, the huge public square near

Mao's Peking residence, was reported normal, except that a larger than usual number of official limousines could be seen.

The residents said news of Mao's death was repeated continuously over the radio and funeral music replaced regularly scheduled programs.

Mao is the third of his generation of Chinese leaders to die this year. Chou died in January. Then in June, 90-year-old Chu Teh, founder of the Red army, died little more than a month after he had taken over Mao's former job of greeting visiting dignitaries.

Presumably Premier Hua Kuo-feng is next in line to succeed Mao, since he was also named first vice chairman of the party when he was raised to the premiership five months ago. But his elevation is not assured. He is in his mid to late 50s.

Others who appear to be in the running are Mao's widow, Chang Chung, a leader of the radical faction of the party, her proteges, Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao, 64, Wang Hung-wen (the youngest possible successor at 42) and Yao Wen-yuan, 53, party vice chairman and defense minister Yeh Chuen-ying, 78, and Chen Hsi-lin, commander of Peking units of the 3½-million-man Liberation Army. Wang also is a vice chairman of the party.

The party constitution provides that a plenary session of the 196-member Central Committee elects the new chairman.

Peking began receiving messages of condolences from around the world within hours of the announcement. British Prime Minister James Callaghan issued a statement expressing "great regret." Callaghan said Mao was "one of the outstanding leaders of this century... he will be remembered as a man of great vision and a thinker with a profound sense of history."

Hsinhua said Mao's body would lie in state in the Great Hall of the People for one week, beginning Saturday.

Suit settled out of court $225,000

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The $600,000 lawsuit filed by Rebecca Jean Dalton, 21, and her 27-month old son on July 28, 1975, in 31st District Court following the death of her husband, Gary Daniel Dalton, 20, in a fire at Packerland has been settled out of court for $225,000 — the largest settlement in at least 26 years in this district.

Ross Buzzard and Mark N. Buzzard, attorneys for Mrs. Dalton, said this morning that it "appears that we have made the right move in the settlement."

The suit was filed against Southwest Vault Builders of Dallas and Cook Paint and Varnish Co.

Buzzard said this morning the settlement money will be divided between the widow and the child — with the child's part to be placed in a trust fund by the court.

Dalton died while working for Packerland Packing Co. when a fire broke out at the plant on April 16, 1975.

Attorneys for Mrs. Dalton alleged that during construction of a meat vault in the expansion of a packing plant, east of the Pampa City limits, Southwest Builders installed a "spray-on" type insulation, commonly known as polyurethane on the walls and ceiling.

They also contended that the insulation was thought to be fire resistant while in truth it was extremely inflammable as to be explosive.

Dalton was working in accordance with his employer's instructions at the time of his death, attorneys said.

He was cutting a steel wall with an acetylene torch when a nearby ceiling, which had been covered with polyurethane, burst into flames causing the death of Daniel Gary Dalton. He tried to escape from the room, but was unable to do so before expiring, the petition filed by Mrs. Dalton's attorneys stated.

The allegations in the suit contend Cook Paint and Varnish Co. sold the polyurethane to Southwest Builders who installed it in the vault room.

The product was defective at the time of the suit, the attorneys claimed.

They also claimed that Cook Paint and Varnish was negligent in failing to provide adequate instructions for the installation.

Southwest Builders, the plaintiffs said, were negligent in failing to affix a warning on the installed product, and in failure to sufficiently test the product to determine the explosive nature.

Dalton, his widow said, was in good health, worked regularly and devoted his earnings to the care, support and maintenance of his family.

The Buzzards said the settlement came the day before jury selection was scheduled on Aug. 30. The Workman's Compensation insurance firm which handled the Dalton case and has paid $70 weekly, totaling about $4,500, will be reimbursed, Buzzard said this morning.

Therefore the judge severed the damage suit filed by Packerland against the two defendants from the Dalton case for trial.

Hunger strike ends

MEXICO CITY (AP) — American prisoners have ended a hunger strike after 36 hours and expressed gratitude to the Mexican government for taking initiatives that could bring freedom to hundreds of Americans in Mexican jails, the Interior Ministry announced.

President Luis Echeverria proposed legislation on Sunday that could result in parole before the end of the year for many of the drug offenders among the 572 Americans in Mexican jails. Echeverria's action took most of the steam out of the strike movement, and when the fast began on Tuesday, only about 70 Americans and two Canadians participated.

The Interior Ministry said the leaders of the protest met Wednesday afternoon in the Reclusio Norte prison with Dr. Sergio Garcia Ramirez, under-secretary in charge of federal prisons, and agreed to end their fast.

"We are truly indebted to the president and Dr. Garcia Ramirez and congratulate them for their positive actions and for the new jails recently opened in this city," the ministry quoted Echeverria as saying.

Most of the Americans were convicted of trying to smuggle drugs from South America through Mexico to the United States. They have protested to the U.S. government for months that they were ill-treated and denied legal representation. Their sentences average seven years.

The chief organizer of the strike, James Dean Brown, 34, of San Francisco, said their protest was aimed chiefly at Washington. He accused the U.S. government of delaying in responding to a prisoner-exchange agreement which Mexico suggested in June during talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Echeverria said while visiting a Mexican trade fair in San Antonio, Tex., Wednesday that Washington had not responded to his proposal.

This lack of reaction on the part of the U.S. government has caused some unrest among the more than 500 U.S. citizens in Mexican jails, he said.

Taxes returns to Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas gets back in federal aid 82 cents out of every $1 its citizens pay in federal income taxes earmarked for such aid, a state comptroller's report said Wednesday.

Comptroller Bob Bullock's planning and research division reported, however, that although Texas ranked fifth in total federal aid in fiscal 1975—$2.2 billion—it ranked 47th in per capita receipts.

The $179.79 per capita aid in Texas was 23 per cent below the national average of $233.31.

The report noted that one reason Texas gets less on a per capita basis than other states is that it has the fifth lowest tax effort in the nation, which influences general revenue sharing.

Another reason the report said is that its untapped tax sources, like the individual and corporate income taxes, give it (Texas) a high fiscal capacity, which also has a negative effect on federal aid.

The report said that according to federal budget estimates, federal aid to Texas probably will increase to $2.6 billion in fiscal 1976 and to $2.7 billion in 1977.

This would be a 20 per cent increase for 1976 and slightly over 1 per cent for 1977.

Ford faces decision to veto UN membership for Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford faces a key foreign policy decision on whether to veto a Vietnamese bid for United Nations membership.

While not ruling out the possibility of a U.S. abstention when the vote comes up Friday, officials suggest that American dissatisfaction with Vietnam's policy toward U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action probably will lead to an American veto of Hanoi's bid.

The consensus among officials is that a veto would most likely help Ford in his goal of trying to consolidate support among those voters who would be alienated by any kind of gesture toward Vietnam. Last year, the United States vetoed the admission of what were then two Vietnams.

In what it described as a signal of goodwill, the Vietnamese government last Monday gave the American Embassy in Paris the names of 12 U.S. air men it said had been killed in the Vietnam war.

The move apparently was used to Vietnam's campaign for U.N. admission, but Ford called this a "limited action" and said it was "callous and cruel" of the Vietnamese not to account for the remaining 800 MIAs.

Although the United States has often subscribed to the theory of universal membership in the United Nations, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger indicated last week that American policy in the Vietnamese case is being governed by Hanoi's attitude toward the MIAs.

Asked about the Vietnamese application in the United Nations, Kissinger said "the issue of missing-in-action is of course a key issue, and we want to see whether any progress can be made there."

Officials refused to comment on whether they expected any additional accounting of MIAs by Hanoi before the U.N. debate on Vietnam opens Friday. One U.S. source said American acquiescence to the Vietnamese bid would deprive Washington of one of the few levers with which it hopes to extract concessions from Hanoi.

He said there was little sentiment within the administration for the argument that a U.S. decision not to block the Vietnamese application could inspire a more flexible attitude by Hanoi on the MIA issue.

Other officials, expressing the minority view, said Vietnam's behavior since the collapse of the U.S.-backed Saigon government 16 months ago is much better than Washington had expected.

Since that time, they said, Vietnam has normalized relations with all non-Communist nations in Southeast Asia, offered its friendship to Washington, called for expanded trade with the Western democracies and treated supporters of the old Saigon regime with restraint.

No proff of quality

Many thousand of house buyers believed that the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) would protect them against faulty workmanship. They took the "FHA Insured" label as assurance that the building they bought was sound.

When many defects began to appear the buyers were led to believe that the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) would step in and compensate them for their losses. No so.

Protection by government for consumers of housing became only disillusionment for many who accepted the idea of political protection.

Laws piled upon laws and regulatory agency added to agency will never protect consumers to the extent that they can protect themselves. Had the house buyers checked for themselves or paid a few dollars to someone competent to evaluate the construction, they would have saved themselves time, trouble and dollars.

If consumers will look to themselves, not government, for protection of their economic welfare, they will be sure their best interests will be served.

Consumer protection seems high on the list of "issues" for politicians and empire building bureaucrats. It sometimes seems as if people will never become aware that they cannot be protected by letting an overgrown bureaucracy become ever more bloated.

The best protection consumers could ever receive is to let the air out of the balloon of expanding government. We need to learn to take care of ourselves and protect ourselves, especially in the area of political controls.

Thousands were misled into believing that "FHA Approved" meant complete protection from all hazards in buying a house. They have learned to their sorrow that it just was not true. Whether or not these same people will believe the government can protect them in other areas is a moot question. A burnt child will sometimes touch the stove again.

It is unlikely that the stove would be touched the third time. The scorching done to the people by government may be a different story. For years the idea that government could be all things to all people was promulgated in so many ways that it has become almost gospel to the populace.

Perhaps it has never seemed a paradox to many that among the things consumers pay for is government itself. Today, government is not only our most expensive commodity, it is the one we are forced to accept and forced to pay for. We cannot even decide the amount.

Every time a little bureaucratic tyrant dreams up something to do us, or for us, we have no choice but to buy it and pay for it.

Free pie cut fairly?

Proposed legislation in Congress has frosted the Ivy at a number of the nation's institutions of higher learning, including the Ivy League. Senate bill 2657, an amendment to the Higher Education Act, would establish federal standards, and provide federal remedies, for the fair allocation of student activity fees at every school receiving funds under the Higher Education Act.

In a strong statement presented to the Senate by the legal offices of the Ivy League Institutions and Stanford University, the proposal is characterized as "a prime example of the legal pollution which currently threatens the nation's educational environment."

If the proposal were enacted, the statement continues, student groups, which often feel that the activities fee pie has not been cut fairly, would have a federal law and a federal forum in which to pursue their grievances — at a time when the Chief Justice of the United States is already decrying the shortage of federal judges to deal with the present caseload.

Questions as trivial as whether permission is granted to hold a bake sale could be litigated in the federal courts, the attorneys claim.

Fairness in the allocation of student activity fees is an important objective, they concede, "but not an important federal objective." While the intent of the amendment might well be adopted to be the increasing propensity of federal government to intrude randomly into day-to-day operations of our colleges and universities and descent to progressively trivial levels of the educational process.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be on your guard. Things you thought were firmly in your control may not be so secure. Outside influences play a role in today's events.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Pals play a big role in your life, but don't rise or fall with them today. They have complications they can't iron out and neither can you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're ambitious today, but you are not as sure of yourself as you should be. To accomplish great things, you must be more bold and persistent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be overly concerned today if everyone doesn't agree with your procedures. The important thing is that the people who count will.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Financial conditions are mixed for you today. You will win a little, lose a little and possibly finish with a slight deficit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The affinity you have for balancing one side against another may be overemphasized today. You could go back and forth all day with no conclusions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't despair if this day appears to be a trying one. You'll be equal to the test, even to the point of bringing order out of chaos.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have a lot of well-wishers in your corner today. Though their intentions are fine, don't let them lull you into a sense of false security.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It isn't fair to weigh the accomplishments of loved ones against others you admire. The assets and opportunities may be far from equal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful traveling today. You're just a shade too anxious to get to your destination. A few more minutes won't hurt a soul.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep your generosity within bounds today. Not everyone you want to share with would be willing to do likewise under similar circumstances.

PULLING POWER

Reagan has it, Ford needs it

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Elections are won by workers, not by advertisements or TV shows or handouts, especially when the same amount of money is spent by competing candidates.

Jimmy Carter has shown some considerable ability in attracting workers — and in whipping them up to accomplishing more than they believed possible.

President Ford, for all his rugged honesty, has not.

This is where Mr. Ford needed Ronald Reagan. Of all the candidates vying for the nomination on either ticket, Reagan alone had the ability to get workers climbing out of their chairs with enthusiasm.

I am not referring here to ideology, strong or mild conservatism, middle-of-the-roadism or liberalism. I am concerned rather with something which some men have which causes numbers of men and women whom they scarcely know, whom they've never personally met, to choke up, to be moved to action with strong purpose.

I noticed a very unusual thing at the Republican National Convention at Kansas City. Usually, when a nominee wins, there is a heavy switching of votes, by delegates and states wishing to join the bandwagon. Not so at Kansas City. The vote on the rules change made it clear that Mr. Ford would win, but no great move to the President followed. To an extent that was wholly remarkable the Reagan delegates held firm.

All this with relatively little rancor and a great deal of friendly give and take with the Ford side of the convention.

Now I submit that this ability, as demonstrated by Reagan, to gather and hold the allegiance of workers nationwide is no mean accomplishment — one which Mr. Ford must find some way of bringing to him if he is to win the election against Jimmy Carter this November.

There are some who pass the Reagan charm off to his acting experience, or to his strong conservatism.

I think neither analysis is true. As an actor he did not create the numbers of ardent followers won by such as John Wayne, Gary Grant or Henry Fonda. And though actors, at one time, were regularly asked their political opinions, few have great political followings.

As for his conservatism. Note that Reagan's followers, almost to a man, stood by him after his selection of Sen. Richard Schweiker as his running mate. And all in the business have Schweiker labeled as a distinct liberal.

What Reagan projects is a feeling of a man who believes in something which will not give up working for what he believes whatever comes — and who invites you in the audience to work alongside him. I find that he impresses numbers of men and women who would not all agree with the solutions he offers.

Up close, as at a distance, it would appear there is no arrogance and no pomposity about him; sometimes he gives the appearance of being a shy young man, even when making strong statements.

There's little doubt that most of the Reagan people will end up by voting for Mr. Ford in November. But that's not the point. Who will inspire these men and women to work day and night and weekends, and thousands more like them, to get out the Ford vote among Republicans, Democrats and Independents?

INSIDE REPORT

Did Jimmy make error?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The unexpectedly sharp drop by Jimmy Carter in the Gallup Poll may now unlock anxious tongues of Democratic professional politicians who feel their candidate has made a critical tactical error: failing to move to the right after the Democratic national convention.

This criticism was reinforced by Carter's televised confrontation Tuesday with the American Legion over his pledge to pardon Vietnam draft dodgers. Party pros perceive the spectacle of Legionnaires booing Carter having only the effect of pushing Carter's image further left.

Yet, apart from the Vietnam pardon, Carter's Legion speech in Seattle was conciliatory and intended to give a middle to hard-boiled impression of his defense policy. Indeed, the professed post-nomination intent of key Carter advisers was to project a centrist image — an admittedly rightward tack after his courtship of the liberals at Madison Square Garden in July.

Thus, Carter's false start in a vaguely leftist pose is not a conscious design, much less a sign of doctrinaire attitudes by an infinitely flexible candidate. Rather, it stems from two factors highly worrisome to Democratic politicians: first, the Carter campaign's continuing reflexive need to reassure liberals long after the nomination was won; second, the clear pattern of McGovernite infestation of Carter's campaign structure.

The first danger signal from Plains, Ga., after Carter's nomination was his lavishly publicized embrace of consumer advocate Ralph Nader. Some Democratic operatives relayed this warning: despite Carter's seemingly safe lead, don't count out President Ford's appeal for ordinary middle-class voters — voters who are not nearly so enthralled with Nader as liberal Democrats.

In disregard of this warning, Carter launched his campaign this week at Los Angeles in the new tradition of radical chic: talking about Georgia's rural poverty to McGovernite beautiful people from Beverly Hills. "I am amazed," one Democratic moderate told us, "He goes from Ralph Nader to Warren Beatty."

There is, then, a gap between intent and results. Carter advisers say his speeches the past two weeks were intended to convey a centrist image by extolling the family. But front-page newspaper photos linking Carter and a grinning Beatty portray a different image.

This was in the minds of many national Democratic steering committee members when they lunched with Carter at the Pacifica Hotel in Los Angeles Monday. But with the latest published polls showing Carter over 20 percentage points ahead, who was going to quarrel with the miracle maker from Plains? The closed portion of the meeting quibbled over nuts-and-bolts relations between Carter fieldmen and local politicians but ignored serious questions of tactics.

Not surprisingly, Carter left the meeting to engage in more of the same activity that worries Barbs.

At 20, nothing is too good for your girl friend. After 40, that's what you always turn up with on anniversaries.

A luncheon club is what you have to use on some people to make 'em pick up the check.

That pleases liberals inside the Carter campaign who have worried disproportionately about the "menace" of Eugene McCarthy's independent left candidacy. But a Gallup Poll showing a dramatic shrinking within two weeks of Carter's lead outside the South makes clear that his real rival is not Gene McCarthy but Jerry Ford. "Thank God for the Gallup Poll," says one old-line Democratic politician who believes the Carter campaign might now get serious about heading for the middle of the road. The test will come on the first debate, particularly if the subject is defense policy as Mr. Ford proposes. To the old pros, that provides an opening for criticism of detente. Henry Kissinger and the Nixon-Ford foreign policy. Whether the Carter campaign perceives it in the same light remains to be seen.

Watch on Washington

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The same week Jimmy Carter was praising the Ford administration for "openness," an important House Democrat was castigating President Ford as "an imperial executive" whose information policies are "worse than those of Richard Nixon."

Those contrasting views on the openness of the Ford administration raised serious questions with some Democrats as to Carter's real understanding that the test of an administration's openness is its accountability to Congress.

Rep. John Moss (D-Cal.), dressed by Carter's praise of Ford's "openness," has been an enthusiastic supporter of the Democratic presidential candidate and believed that Carter understood the misuses of "executive privilege" by Nixon and Ford.

Moss has directed his staff to prepare a memorandum for Carter explaining the problems congressional investigating committees have had with "cover-ups" by the Ford White House. Moss and others believed that Carter's pledges of "open government" were based on understanding that the right of the people to answers is enforceable only through the investigating power of congressional committees.

Now it appears that Carter has accepted Ford's self-serving claims and has missed the significance of congressional and press complaints of Ford administration "cover-ups" at the FBI, Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), Defense Department, State Department, Commerce Department, Justice Department and other agencies.

Some Carter supporters excuse his "lack of understanding" because Carter has been busy campaigning most of the time Ford has been in office. These apologists assert that Carter really believes and understands open government, but has been so busy that he has not related Ford's refusal of records to Congress to the issue of open government.

Carter's critics are not so charitable. They assert that he has a strong streak of authoritarianism, and that he understands the open government issue in depth.

These critics consider his praise of Ford's "openness" a clever campaign device by a man who considers himself a shoo-in for the presidency, and does not wish to foreclose his own free use of "executive privilege." They believe Carter is establishing rhetoric that will be helpful when he seeks to impose a Carter government on the United States next January.

While Moss does not accept that critical view of Carter, he has been a consistent critic of "seeds of dictatorship" inherent in what he calls "the pernicious doctrine" of executive privilege over 20 years in Democratic and Republican administrations.

Moss believes that the frustrating experience of his House Commerce Oversight subcommittee in seeking documents from the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (AT&T) on secret government wiretaps is a prime example of Ford's extension of "executive privilege" beyond Richard Nixon's cover-up on the White House tapes.

In July, Chairman Moss issued a subpoena for AT&T records, including letters from the FBI requesting wiretap installations in cases where the Attorney General had approved a warrantless national security wiretap.

The law requires a court order for wiretaps installed for domestic law enforcement purposes, but the Attorney General is permitted to request wiretaps for foreign intelligence purposes and Moss was engaged in a study of possible abuses of this authority.

Moss recognized some inherent "national security" problems in the Commerce subcommittee subpoenas and entered into an agreement with the Justice Department for an arrangement for statistical sampling of the warrantless wiretap information and a system for sample testing of the credibility of executive branch reports.

The agreement was initially okayed by the Justice Department, but was rejected by the CIA and the Ford White House. President Ford laid down conditions that permitted unilateral White House determination of whether subpoenas would be complied with.

United States District Judge Oliver Gasch, without requesting access to the information subpoenaed, supported the Ford White House over vociferous objections of Moss and the Democratic majority of his subcommittee.

In his memorandum suggesting that Carter restudy his praise of the "openness" of the Ford White House, Moss notes:

"President Ford has put forth the novel theory that executive privilege can cover not only his conversations with White House advisers, but also put the cloak of secrecy over the activities of a private party, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company."

Moss warns that if the Gasch ruling is sustained, President Ford will have established that any president can block any subpoena by simply claiming that "national security" is involved.

In fighting the new Ford doctrine, Moss recalls that Congressman Gerald Ford in 1963 assailed executive privilege as a "claim made to cover up dishonesty, stupidity and failure of all kind."

Access to records on the Bay of Pigs was the issue when Rep. Ford accused the Kennedy administration of claiming presidential power "akin to the divine right of kings."

Blacks won't share power, African minister declares

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister John Vorster came home from his weekend with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to rule out a political role for blacks in white-ruled South Africa and threaten tough new steps against antigovernment rioters.

As Vorster repeated his contention that there is no crisis in South Africa, the current racial violence spread Wednesday for the first time to the diamond-mining town of Kimberley. Two bodies also were found in the smoking ruins of a hostel for Zulu migrant workers in Johannesburg's black Soweto township.

The prime minister's speech to a provincial congress of his ruling National party in Blomfontein disappointed some liberals who hoped for an announcement of significant relaxation of the apartheid policy of white supremacy, racial separation except during working hours and denial of South African citizenship to nonwhites.

Vorster said he was willing to meet with black leaders in urban areas to discuss complaints about wages, work opportunities, social services and restrictions on owning of property and movement. But he got a standing ovation from the crowd of 10,000 whites when he declared, "There will be no sharing of power" with nonwhites in South Africa. He said the government will adhere to its policy of offering blacks political rights only in the remote tribal homelands it is creating for them on the least desirable 15 per cent of South Africa's territory.

Vorster claimed that police have been restrained in their response to the three months of rioting by blacks and "coloreds," as persons of mixed race are called in South Africa. He warned that unless the violence stops immediately police will take "other steps" to restore order.

Young mother released

NEW YORK (AP) — A 24-year-old woman, accused of negligent homicide after a starved pet German Shepherd mauled her infant daughter to death, has been released without bond in the custody of a cousin.

Joanne Bashold, described as a recluse whose recent activities are a mystery, appeared before Criminal Court Judge Hyman Solniker Tuesday on the negligent homicide charge. She left the courtroom after the hearing without saying anything.

While she was gone, the emaciated dog attacked and partially ate the baby. "I left the baby on the floor with the dog to protect it. The dog ate my baby," she told police.

Miss Bashold told police she left her 6-day-old baby alone with the dog in her shabby apartment in Spanish Harlem on Monday while she returned to the hospital where the girl was born to retrieve some possessions.

Miss Bashold has been on welfare, receiving $270 a month, including an extra $50 to help her prepare for the birth of her child. A spokesman for the welfare department said she had never asked for special assistance, despite the fact that her apartment contained only a rug, a folding chair and an empty refrigerator.

"The record shows no special needs, no health problems, no evidence of drugs, mental illness or child abuse," said Peter Barrett, the spokesman. "And the bottom line is that there was no cause to suspect any unusual circumstances. She fits a profile of a welfare client that is quite normal given the circumstances of people in need."

Barrett said it is against the law for a caseworker to visit a client's home unless the client requests it.

Miss Bashold's parents, John and Marguerite Bashold of Kirkland, Ohio, said that in the three years since she left home their daughter had not asked for money except for $22 to buy a crib for the baby.

Man arrested Wednesday in 4-year old murder

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Police in Grand Junction, Colo. have arrested a man indicted Wednesday by a Nueces County grand jury in connection with the slaying of millionaire Randy Farenthold in 1972.

Authorities said Bruce Bass III, originally of Corpus Christi, waived extradition following his arrest. The 37-year-old Bass had been living in Grand Junction since June.

The grand jury was to have ended its studies in July, but was granted a 90-day extension when it told District Court Judge Noah Kennedy that it wanted to continue its session.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times said it learned that the grand jury subpoenaed two men who have been questioned in the past about the Farenthold slaying.

Farenthold was a sportsman who had inherited wealth from farms and oil. In June, 1972, his body was discovered in the surf of Mustang Island. It was bound and chained and weighed with a cement block.

At the time of his death, Farenthold was scheduled to be the key witness in a $100,000 federal fraud case against four men.

The $100,000 was Farenthold's own money. Farenthold, according to the charge, was somehow induced to go to Houston in late 1969 with the money to buy a discount federal reserve notes from someone.

Farenthold, however, was robbed when he arrived at a Houston hotel. Because of Farenthold's death, the federal government had to dismiss the charges.

The four men became the subject of an intense investigation after Farenthold's body was discovered on the beach.

Since the murder, thousands of man-hours have been devoted to the investigation by officers, the FBI and the Nueces County Organized Crime Unit.

Farenthold was the stepson of one-time Texas gubernatorial candidate Mrs. Frances Farenthold.

Ehrlichman sentenced

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For 18 months, former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman has been charting a new life as an author, working quietly amid the desert landscape of New Mexico.

He grew a beard, lived alone, and emerged for public appearances from his cottage in Santa Fe only long enough to promote his book, "The Company," a fictional account of CIA intrigue in high government circles.

Now, a federal judge is about to end all that. U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said Tuesday that Ehrlichman must start serving by Sept. 17 a 20-month jail term for approving a burglary by government operatives against Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, a psychiatrist, who once treated Pentagon papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

Abby kept faith, survived abuse

PORT MOODY, Canada (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Abby Dwyer, who authorities say was imprisoned for 181 days and sexually abused in a six-foot square underground cell, apparently was convinced she would survive. She even told her captor, "I just wish you would be my friend."

She was in seclusion today, recuperating from the six-month ordeal. Authorities estimated that the 5-foot-3, blue-eyed girl, who was 12 when she disappeared while on the way to school March 10, weighed as little as 70 pounds when she was discovered Monday night. She had weighed about 90 pounds.

Charged with kidnapping, rape, gross indecency and abduction with intent to have sexual relations was Alexander Hay, 43.

He remained in a British Columbia provincial jail awaiting a second court appearance Thursday.

Police said they found a scrap of paper in the converted bomb shelter in which the girl was entombed on which she had written: "God has helped me so far and He will help me to the finish. God works in mysterious ways but what He does is right."

Police in this Vancouver suburb said the girl emerged from the cell underneath Hay's garage "mentally quite stable, but physically quite weakened."

Constable Wayne Smith said the girl had been forcibly restrained by handcuffs, shackles and chains.

They left but were summoned back when the woman reported that her husband was at the bottom of a seven-foot-deep shaft in the basement. "Apparently she had seen his (Hay's) feet at the bottom of the shaft and thought he killed himself," Reid said.

The officers returned as Hay was climbing up a crude wooden ladder in the shaft. Adams said they had just put handcuffs on Hay when "I heard this whining."

Police said a sound-proofed door at the bottom of the shaft opened on the squalid room in which the girl was imprisoned. It measured 6 1/2 feet by 6 feet by 6 1/2 feet high and contained a wash basin, hot and cold running water, a chemical toilet, bed, chains, a vent and a heater.

Candidates woe ethnic vote

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

While Jimmy Carter trekked through a Polish neighborhood in Pittsburgh, President Ford in the White House also was seeking the ethnic vote, entertaining a Polish-American delegation and declaring a Casimir Pulaski memorial day.

Casimir Pulaski was a Polish general who served the colonies in the Revolutionary War. Ford told the Polish-American leaders at the White House that he is naming Oct. 11 a Pulaski memorial day, and he praised the revolutionary general for his "heroic sacrifice."

Ford also told the Polish leaders Wednesday that the White House gates would always be open so they could discuss their problems with him. And they did, telling Ford they were concerned about Polish jokes on television, a need for Polish-Americans in high-level federal jobs and conditions in Poland.

In Pittsburgh, Carter donned a T-shirt emblazoned with "Polish Hill" and toured the heavily Polish neighborhood of the same name. The Democratic presidential candidate was greeted by enthusiastic crowds as he posed with parochial school children on the steps of a Catholic church and received a ceremonial kiss from a priest.

Later, in a speech in Washington to the national convention of the Jewish organization B'nai B'rith, Carter said the Ford administration often has "ignored basic American values and a proper concern for human rights."

Carter said the United States has "responded inadequately to human suffering" in Bangladesh and other undeveloped nations and ignored repression by the governments of such allies as South Korea.

He promised to restore the morality he said is lacking under the leadership of Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, and he vowed to work for the emigration of Soviet Jews.

Kissinger later showed up at the convention and declared, "Morality is not going to be an issue in this campaign by our side."

Ford met with the Jewish group today and in prepared remarks he vowed to defend Israel in the Middle East and the United Nations and to fight against Arab boycotts and international terrorism.

"I mean business," Ford said, expressing "moral and legal opposition to the Arab boycott of Israel."

Without mentioning Carter, Ford said, "In a national election, candidates will naturally disagree on political philosophy. It is still my fervent hope that this campaign will be pursued in keeping with the best American traditions. America has no place for those who would set brother against brother, group against group, American against American."

Ford said that while he has been president the United States "has helped bring about a momentum toward peace that has no parallel in history."

And he noted that his budgets contained $4 billion for Israel, pledging that "the U.S. will stand firm in its commitment to Israel's security and survival."

Carter turned to government spending in a statement issued by his campaign operation. He said that if elected he will seek enactment of legislation that would close down federal agencies and programs at specific intervals unless they are extended by Congress. Similar legislation now is pending in Congress.

As Carter continued his hectic campaign pace, Ford generally followed his campaign strategy of remaining at the White House.

But before unveiling Casimir Pulaski memorial day, Ford called a hasty outdoor news conference to accuse Carter of a lack of compassion for FBI Director Clarence Kelley.

Carter said Tuesday that if he were president he would have fired Kelley for receiving gifts and favors from FBI subordinates. But Carter declined to say if he will fire Kelley if the Democrats win the White House in November.

Ford said he thought Carter's refusal to say what he would do about Kelley was contradictory to his original criticism. And he argued that in criticizing Kelley the Democratic nominee displayed a lack of compassion because the FBI director's late wife was terminally ill at the time of the incidents.

"I'm confused on the one hand by his flip-flop on this issue and I am very disappointed by his lack of compassion on the other," Ford said, praising Kelley for "straightening out a very difficult situation" at the FBI.

Kelley has repaid $355 to the FBI for material and labor used to make improvements at his home. Kelley said he had not known FBI money was used to make the improvements.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said, "Ford's comments are a cynical distortion of Gov. Carter's remarks and an apparent attempt to skirt the real issue involved."

Moving on to Columbus, Ohio, Carter worked Wednesday night on the theme of party and national unity, saying that as president he will be able to bring the country together.

At a reception in Euclid, Ohio, he said, "Think about Nixon and now President Ford, a decent man, timid. They talk about fiscal responsibility. The last two budget requests by the government were over $50 billion in deficit."

"I don't care how you look at it — tough management, balanced budgets, low inflation, high employment, low deficits, and the Democratic party stands up well. I don't intend to destroy the reputation of the Democratic party if I'm elected."

Meanwhile, Claude Wild Jr., a former Gulf Oil Corp. lobbyist and a central figure in a federal probe of illegal campaign contributions, said he had made a mistake when he claimed he gave $2,000 in 1970 to Sen. Bob Dole, Ford's running mate.

Wild apologized to Dole for the earlier statement in which he said he had given Dole the money from a legal Gulf "good government" fund in 1970 to pass on to other GOP Senate candidates.

"I have been in error and consequently have done a serious disservice to Sen. Dole," Wild said. The significance of such a legal contribution rests in the fact that Dole had never mentioned any such money in his required campaign financing reports.

Dole called Wild's original charge "an unfortunate incident," adding, "We're moving ahead with the campaign."

A Tennessee congressman challenged Ford's power to let Dole's wife, Elizabeth, take a leave of absence from her post as a member of the Federal Trade Commission. Rep. Joe L. Evins, D-Tenn., said Mrs. Dole should quit the panel if she plans to campaign for her husband.

"A commissioner of a regulatory agency should not be appealing for votes from business and industry regulated by the commission," he said.

Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, campaigned from the back of a haywagon in a Missouri field crisped by drought and told farmers that Carter wants "to restore agriculture, rural America and, above all, family farming to the high priority it deserves in Washington."

Mondale, who said he worked on a Minnesota farm as a youngster, promised that if the Democratic ticket wins in November a Carter administration will fight to revise estate and gift tax laws to ease the tax burden on persons inheriting family farms.

He also recommended passage of a loan program for farmers that would extend beyond one year, enabling borrowers to take advantage of the best crop prices available beyond one season when using their crops as collateral for government loans.

If motor vehicle travel in the United States continues to increase at its present rate, by 1990 motor vehicles will be covering some two trillion miles annually, says the National Automobile Club.

Senate wants to kill bonus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate wants to kill a 1 per cent bonus on cost-of-living pension increases for retired federal civil service and military personnel.

Under present law in effect since 1969, federal retirees receive a 4 per cent pension increase whenever the cost of living goes up 3 per cent and remains at that level for three months. The extra 1 per cent was intended to compensate retirees for the time lag in computing cost-of-living pension increases.

But its operation led to a 72 per cent increase in federal pensions since 1969, compared with a cost-of-living increase of 56 per cent.

The elimination of the bonus was approved Wednesday by the Senate by voice vote and sent to a House-Senate conference that is deciding whether federal judges, the president's Cabinet and top federal executives earning $37,800 a year or more will get a pay raise of about 4.8 per cent Oct. 1 along with all other federal employees.

Both the House and Senate have voted to deny the cost-of-living raise to legislators. But the House went further to cut off the adjustment this year to the judiciary and top executive branch officials.

Elimination of the 1 per cent kicker on federal employee pensions was proposed by Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., who said it would save nearly $200 million in the next fiscal year and $3.8 billion by 1980.

Hollings' proposal was adopted along with a modification by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., to replace the quarterly cost-of-living pension adjustments with semi-annual changes.

The Associated Press revealed in February 1975 that the formula, designed to keep federal pensions in step with inflation, actually propels them increasingly ahead.

When the Civil Service Commission sent its proposed new formula to Congress last May, it credited The AP for bringing the formula problem to public attention.

The House last month voted 238 to 143 in favor of a bill to end the kicker for civil service retirees, but it failed to pass under a procedure requiring a two-thirds majority.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, who opposed the elimination of the kicker, said it had been an inducement to early retirement, saving the government money and making jobs available for others.

Defector heads to US

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet pilot who landed his super-secret MIG25 jet in Japan left today aboard a commercial airliner for asylum in the United States.

U.S. officials accompanied the defecting Soviet air force flier, Lt. Viktor I. Belenko.

Soviet sources said the pilot left a wife and daughter in the Soviet Union. They said Mrs. Belenko expressed disbelief that her husband had defected.

His flight Monday in the world's fastest warplane touched off a diplomatic row between Moscow and Tokyo. It also gave the United States and Japan an intelligence bonanza, the chance to examine thoroughly the Soviet Union's most advanced fighter aircraft and to question the pilot about his training.

Kensuke Yanagiya, a Foreign Ministry spokesman, said Japan is fully entitled to inspect the MIG25 since it entered Japanese territory illegally.

Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Polyanski charged today in a meeting with Foreign Ministry officials that Japan had shown an "unfriendly attitude" toward the Soviet Union by refusing to return the defector and his plane immediately. Moscow had lodged six previous protests.

After refusing for four days to speak with Soviet officials, the 29-year-old pilot was persuaded by Japanese authorities to meet with representatives of the Soviet Embassy shortly before he left for Honolulu and the U.S. mainland.

There was no indication of what transpired at the meeting, but Belenko smiled and waved to reporters as he walked out of a police station afterward.

A Soviet official reported that Polyanski, in an hour-long meeting with Foreign Ministry officials, said the Japanese government has met none of the Soviet demands since the pilot made a "mistaken" landing Monday.

He claimed that the Japanese government "fabricated" its announcement that Belenko wanted political asylum. The ambassador contended that some television film and press photographs showed force being used to restrain the pilot because he was handcuffed in a patrol car and police pushed his head down.

Jury favors Cook Paint

A 31st District Court jury ruled in favor of both defendants Wednesday in an $850,000 products liability suit filed by Packerland Packing Co. to collect damages as a result of a fire in April 1975.

No damages were awarded.

The jury's verdict came after four hours deliberations and a trial which began with jury selection on Aug. 30.

The defendants were Cook Paint and Varnish Co. and Southwest Vault Builders.

Packerland contended that Cook manufactured and put into commerce polyurethane, which Mack Hancock, attorney for Packerland, said was "unreasonably dangerous."

Dick Stokes and Ben Sturgeon, both of Amarillo, represented Cook. Orville Smith of Lubbock represented Southwest Vault Builders who installed the product at the plant near here.

The jury's charge included 17 special issues with sub-parts. Smith, in his final arguments, called attention to the testimony of Paul A. Crouch who bought the product in 1969, and testified that he knew one could not safely take a cutting torch to that type of material.

"Paul Crouch is the man who built this business," Smith emphasized.

Sturgeon said the jury had been called to referee the matter.

"The plaintiff has taken four days of testimony. We've taken a day to demonstrate that the product was not defective — but misused," Sturgeon said.

"It is your responsibility to weigh the evidence — and that's the biggest stick in show business," he added.

Stokes said anyone can bring a suit. "This is an unfair lawsuit," he emphasized in drawing the parallel of Cook being a defendant as a result of a fire at Packerland.

Mack Hancock of Amarillo, attorney for Packerland, said the product was defective.

Ford interprets abortion stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he fully endorses the Republican party's position on abortion, although Ford's interpretation of that plank differs from what was widely assumed to be the GOP position on the volatile campaign issue.

"My position is that of the Republican platform," Ford told reporters Wednesday. "I have had the position for some time that there should be a constitutional amendment that would permit individual states to make the decision based on a vote of the people of each state."

But the Republican platform makes no mention of a return to the days when states determined the legal question — days ended by the 1973 Supreme Court ruling that struck down state laws flatly prohibiting abortion.

The platform states that the GOP "supports the efforts of those who seek enactment of a constitutional amendment to restore protection of the right to life for unborn children."

Antiabortion leaders have interpreted that plank to refer to current efforts to adopt a constitutional amendment that bars abortions. But a White House spokesman has come forward to say it's not necessarily so.

After Ford said he endorsed the Republican platform, the White House spokesman said the GOP abortion plank encompasses the views of those persons who want a constitutional amendment banning abortion and those, like Ford, who want an amendment that would allow individual states to take charge.

The spokesman said that the word "restore" in the plank "means to go back to states' rights as it existed before" the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortions under specified conditions.

While the Republican platform favors some kind of constitutional amendment, the Democrats do not.

The Democratic plank said that "while recognizing religious and ethical concerns, it (the party) opposes any attempt to amend the U.S. Constitution to overturn Supreme Court decisions upholding the legality of abortions."

Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, who was jostled by a crowd that included screaming antiabortion demonstrators in Scranton, Pa., Tuesday night, has expressed his personal opposition to abortion.

He said he would do everything possible as president to cut federal spending for it. But he said he won't back any constitutional amendment to outlaw it.

The former Georgia governor's wife, Rosalynn, said Wednesday that her husband has agonized over the abortion question. "While Jimmy was governor we had to write a new law and we wrote the most conservative law the Supreme Court would allow," she said.

Ford told reporters that his and Carter's views on abortion differ and that the issue is a legitimate one.

"I think the American people ought to get an answer from Gov. Carter and myself on this issue, just like any other," he said.

The first legislative act proclaiming religious freedom was enacted in 1649 in St. Mary's City, Maryland's first settlement.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: If I were a Catholic, I'd go to confession and get this guilt off my conscience, but seeing as how I'm a Baptist, I'm writing to you instead.

I'm a grown woman, but I've been acting like a schoolgirl about a man in town. I became infatuated with him two years ago, and I haven't been able to leave him alone since.

I've sent him anonymous love letters, cards and poems, and I've even called him on the phone to hear his voice, but I always hang up right away.

I've waited on street corners just to catch a glimpse of him, but I've never spoken to him. He knows someone has a crush on him, but he doesn't know who.

Abby, I can't get this man out of my mind. I even dream about him. Is it wrong to enjoy a little harmless fantasy?

Sometimes I hate myself for pestering him like I do, but I can't seem to help myself. Just writing this has made me feel better. Thanks for listening.

FULLY GROWN CHILD

DEAR CHILD: It's not "a little harmless fantasy" to call a man on the phone and hang up. And sending anonymous letters, cards and poems can make him feel threatened and uncomfortable.

You are guilty of harassment—which is punishable by law. I urge you to leave the man alone, for his sake and yours.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a small one, but it's causing a lot of disagreement between my husband and me. I'm 23 and he is 27.

I have a 6-year-old brother who my husband feels should say, "Yes, Ma'am" and "No, Ma'am" to me, and "Sir" to him.

I strongly disagree. Abby, I don't want a brother of mine saying "Ma'am" to me, no matter what age he is.

I've asked a lot of people how they feel about this "Ma'am and Sir" business and have gotten mixed reactions. I'd like to know how you feel about it.

NOT "MA'AM" IN MOBILE, ALA.

DEAR NOT: In Iowa where I was raised, children addressed adults with "Ma'am" and "Sir" to show respect for their elders.

In the South, years ago, it was mandatory for servants to use "Ma'am" and "Sir" when addressing their employers. (Some still do.)

Since you're from Alabama, I can understand your objections. Your husband obviously wasn't raised in the South.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, my husband's brother died. His widow now claims that she is no longer related to any of my husband's family. How about her children? Aren't they still my nieces and nephews? And aren't they still the grandchildren of her deceased husband's parents?

She is getting married again, and even though she will have another husband and another name, I still feel that she is my sister-in-law, but she feels otherwise.

Please straighten this out.

CANCELLED OUT

DEAR CANCELLED OUT: If your signature reflects your feelings, don't try to maintain a family relationship with your former sister-in-law. Technically, she is no longer related to her deceased husband's family, but her children will always be related to them.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What makes a person feel cold? I am 25 and when the temperature is below 70 degrees Fahrenheit I feel cold. I stay in the house most of the time unless it is above 70 degrees. I don't go swimming because I can't stand the water temperature. It doesn't matter whether it is an indoor or outdoor pool, I still feel cold.

DEAR READER — I receive quite a few letters from people about this. The sensation of feeling cold is not a reliable indicator of how hot or cold the body really is. It only indicates that the skin is hot or cold. You feel hot or cold only in relation to stimulation of nerve endings in the skin, not the rest of the body.

The sensation of being hot or cold is greatly affected by the amount of blood circulating through the skin. A person with low thyroid functions feels cold because this condition results in decreased blood flow through the skin. By contrast if you had an overactive thyroid your body would turn on the cooling mechanisms to eliminate the excess heat generated by increased metabolism. That would increase the flow of warm blood to the skin.

Feet and hands feel cold because they get the least amount of circulation under normal resting circumstances. So what can you do? Increase the flow of blood to your skin. The best way to do that is to be more active. Physical activity generates body heat and in turn the blood flow to the skin is then increased.

Another cause for feeling cold is a poor diet. Inadequate calorie intake means less heat is formed. The body metabolism slows when you don't eat enough. It is nature's way of protecting you, but this

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My complaint concerns next door neighbors who have no qualms about coming into one's yard and tearing slips off of plants when the owner is not around. Some people I know have even had neighbors take vegetables out of their gardens. People resent the intrusion of these trespassers on their property. No matter how little they take I call that stealing. — RENE.

DEAR POLLY — I am allergic to soap and have to use a very expensive soap substitute. I can make a bar last much longer if I keep it on a sponge. After the bar is gone, there is enough soap in the sponge to use it alone two or three more times. This really helps. — PAULA.

American inmates tortured, cheated in Mexican jails

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Don't get arrested in Mexico. That message is unmistakable in dozens of written statements a Texas law student says he smuggled out of four Mexican prisons.

"I found that U. S. citizens imprisoned in Mexico were subjected to physical torture, extortion and denied procedural justice. Usually a prisoner is held incommunicado for days," said Paul Parsons, 25.

Parsons, who speaks Spanish, said he talked with more than 100 Americans in Mexico City prisons last month.

He shared the purported statements from some of them with The Associated Press on Tuesday on the condition that the signers not be identified by name.

President Luis Echeverria has sent Congress bills allowing a prisoner exchange and permitting parole of drug offenders, the category into which most American inmates fall.

The statements given to The AP by Parsons have several common themes:

—The use of torture to extract confessions while being held incommunicado.

—Extortion and physical abuse by prison officials and inmate "mayors" of cell blocks.

—Crooked lawyers who extract huge sums from prisoners' families and then fail to provide representation.

Some said Mexican authorities didn't hesitate to use the threat of rape as an interrogation tactic against women.

An American girl's statement said she was arrested at Mexico City's International Airport and was badgered to sign a confession in Spanish even though she didn't know the charges. She said she resisted for five days.

Finally, "I was pushed into a room where five men were and decided I'd better sign than suffer the consequences. Never knew what I signed," said the American girl.

Several male prisoners said interrogators shocked their testicles with cattle prods.

"My testicles were deformed from the interrogation and bleeding. Nine months later, they are still deformed," one statement said.

Upon entering prison, he said, "I was told that either I work cleaning floors nude on my hands and knees for 22 hours per day or I pay $2,000. I paid. I was then forced to pay $1,000 for my cell or else they said I'd be put in a cell with 20 murderers where I'd probably be hanged. The money was paid to the head of the prison."

If other affidavits are to be believed, the threat of forced labor was not an idle one.

One man's statement said cigarette burns received during interrogation became infected when he was "forced to wash all areas of the prison with water and a rag as big as a handkerchief."

"All of my clothes were removed forcefully and I was ordered (to go) into the urinals naked to scrub them with a brick while cold water was thrown over my body. This lasted all day long. I was told I could come out if I paid $1,000 U. S. which I eventually did," he said.

Another said he was required at Lecumberri Prison in Mexico City to rise at 4 a.m., 7 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. and mop up water. His family finally sent about $1,200 and this ended the forced labor and got him a cell to himself, he said.

"But the extortion had only started. Every Sunday was bill day. We had to pay for everything—electricity, beds, food, night guard, showers, clothes, even for paint for the dorm. If we refused to pay we were beaten (and) put back to the work and in the cell with others who couldn't pay sleeping on the floor," he said.

A woman inmate told of an incident in which a Mexican prisoner pulled a knife on two American women.

"The women protested to an official, she said. 'He merely laughed in our faces and said, 'Then you better go find yourselves some knives and learn to fight,'" the statement said.

Another woman prisoner said she was stripped after police agents said they had been tipped that she had hidden heroin in a body cavity, she said.

"When they got me nude, one of the agents stood aside laughing while another one felt me up and stuck his fingers inside of me. By this time I was crying hysterically. . . . Of course they found nothing in this so-called search of my private parts," she said.

Another inmate, who admits possessing a kilogram of cocaine when arrested in Mexico City, said that shortly after his imprisonment, "I hired a lawyer who stated he could have me released within three months for $10,000. I borrowed the money from a friend and paid him (the lawyer) in full. . . . I do not have any idea what happened to my appeal in the Supreme Court as I have not seen my lawyer since February 1975."

Parsons, an Eagle Scout, said he became interested in the plight of American citizens held in Mexican prisons through a law course on international human rights.

He said he visited inmates in four prisons in Mexico City last month and was allowed to mingle freely with other prisoners. Prisoners, he said, would write their statements with paper and pens kept in their cells, then slip them to him.

"I would walk out like it was a letter I was going to mail," Parsons said.

He said he visited Lecumberri, Santa Marta, Reclusorio del Norte and Los Reyes prisons.

American inmates, he said, believe their arrests resulted from efforts by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency. "They say the Drug Enforcement Agency prefers these kids to get busted there because the penalties are more severe. . . . These are mostly carriers—mules. Most are guilty."

$95,000 for one day in 'New York'

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — "All right," came the voice of the assistant director over the loudspeaker, "cue the confetti!"

That was the signal to begin filming what is one of the biggest scenes shot in Hollywood in a long time. These pinch-penny days, if they have more than six people and a dog, it's a mob scene. But this day, it was like the old Hollywood.

The movie is a big one from United Artists and the successful producing team of Chartoff-Winkler. Called "New York, New York," it reunites director Martin Scorsese and his "Taxi Driver" star, Robert DeNiro, with Liza Minnelli thrown in.

It's a musical romance, set in New York just after World War II. And the big scene, from the standpoint of numbers, is the beginning — V-J Day in New York.

That's what they were filming. They had built (for $125,000) a New York hotel ballroom of the 1940s era. On the bandstand, playing "Song of India," was Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra. (It wasn't Tommy, obviously; it was Bill Toole in a double-breasted suit. Toole is a local Los Angeles bandleader who looks a lot like T.D.)

And on the dance floor and sitting at the tables, whooping it up for peace and prosperity, were some 600 extras. Most were in uniforms — soldiers, sailors, marines — but there were many civilians in the crowd. And they were dancing and laughing and drinking and acting like they must have acted on V-J Day in New York.

DAV and Auxiliary members of Chapter 35 in Pampa recently gathered in the Hobart Street Park for a picnic.

Honored guests were of Region 1. Commander Carlis Buck O'Neal and wife, Oletha, of Chapter 47 in Big Spring; Senior Vice Commander Charles F. Hood Jr. and wife of Chapter 26 in Amarillo and Adjutant John E. Goodman and wife, Alene, of Chapter 26 in Amarillo. Goodman is also past national First Junior Vice Commander of 1975 and 1976.

Each one reported on the national convention in Miami, Fla.

Alene Goodman gave a report on the VAVS work being done in the hospitals, nursing homes.

Light bulbs could last many years

COLLEGE STATION — Imagine a light bulb without filaments to wear out that lasts many years — but uses only one-fourth the electricity of a standard bulb.

Mrs. Janice Carberry, a family resource management specialist, says that the technology needed for producing a longer-lasting, less expensive light bulb has been known for many years.

She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension System, The Texas A&M University System.

DeNiro was in the crowd, working his way through to find his friends. He was wearing a raucous sports shirt, something his character had obviously bought on the sidewalks of New York for 49 cents — pictures of the Empire State Building and the Statue of Liberty all over it.

Co-producer Irwin Winkler said they couldn't find a shirt like that anywhere. They had to have it hand-painted. They had four made. Fifty bucks a copy.

The economics of a crowd scene like this are staggering, and pretty much explain why they seldom touch them any more. The other co-producer, Robert Chartoff, ticked off the day's expenses: The set cost $125,000. They'll use it maybe six days so he figured it was costing about $20,000 a day.

They also figure an ordinary work day, what with salaries and rentals and all that, runs around $25,000 and Chartoff figured another $10,000 for costumes and the extra crew members needed for a big scene like that.

Grand total: about $95,000 was being spent for one day's shooting.

Up on the beams that run across the stage, stagehands had boxes of confetti. And streamers. Scorsese gave the sign, the assistant director cued the confetti men, the playback of the music started, the extras began to dance and yell and sing.

"Cut it, cut it!" came the voice. "Sorry, we had a camera problem." Six hundred people groaned.

George Auld, the onetime Artie Shaw and Benny Goodman sideman, is technical adviser on the film. He's teaching DeNiro to finger the sax properly, since he's playing a sax man in the film.

They did take after take. They ran out of confetti, and they had to hoist boxes of the stuff on ropes up to the men on beams.

One extra, playing a sergeant, was cheerfully stuffing confetti into a sandwich bag. He was obviously going to take it home after his day's work was finished.

Everything was authentic, as to period. All the clothes except for those worn by the principals came from the MGM wardrobe department. The assistant directors looked at everybody closely, to see that there was nothing wrong. Even the nail polish had to be '40s style.

"I've been informed," the voice said at one point, "that there is a WAC with dangling ear rings that are wrong for the period. Whoever she is, please take them off and put them in your pocket."

One of the actors in the foreground was supposed to open a bottle of champagne. As take after take proceeded, he used up bottle after bottle of the bubbly. So, after each take, one of the prop men had to refill his bottle.

You might be interested in knowing that movie champagne isn't the real stuff. The prop man concocted a mixture of Bromo-Seltzer and club soda which he poured in the empty bottle. It really popped.

After one take, the voice said, "That was very good, indeed," and the 600 extras loudly applauded themselves.

Each take was carefully choreographed, so certain bits of action were visible as the camera focused on DeNiro, forcing his way through the crowd. There was even a staged fight — two men battling over a bottle of champagne — and the action was frenetic.

It all got so hectic that at one point, a large extra lost her hat.

"Excuse me, have you seen

CALM AMID CHAOS, Robert DeNiro and Liza Minnelli seem oblivious to the crowd behind them, dancing and romancing for the cameras, on the set of Robert Scorsese's "New York, New York."

my hat?" she kept saying. "Has anyone seen my hat?" They kept filming, take after take after take. Sometimes, it would be just for sound — the extras yelling and screaming and shouting and singing. Sometimes it would be without sound.

everybody dancing and walking but doing it silently. The miracle was that everybody knew where to go and when to go there. Once, though, after a break, the eagle-eyed assistant director noted something wrong. "We're missing a lady in a lavender dress at the front table," he said, and everything stopped until the lady in the lavender dress was located. The day wore on. It was like the old days of Hollywood. Maybe the old days are back. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Fruity ideas for peaches and plums

Peaches and plums.
They help the family food budget when they come straight off the backyard tree. They provide intriguing possibilities for the dinner table.

Peaches are plentiful this year. Despite stormy spring weather that damaged some orchards in the Hill Country and Northeast Texas, the state's crop is about 44 per cent above last year, according to John C. White, state agriculture commissioner.

In buying peaches, avoid the green ones. They should be creamy colored and reddish. Ripe peaches feel soft to the touch. They should not be bruised.

Peach-Cream Cheese Salad

3 oz. pkg. cream cheese
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
3 ripe freestone peaches
Allow cream cheese to soften. Add sugar and mix well. Shape into six balls and roll in chopped pecans. Wash peaches, peel and cut in half. Remove pit. Cook peach halves in saucepan in small amount of water until done. Drain. Place halves on lettuce leaves; fill with cream cheese balls. Yield: 6 servings.

Peach Bundt Cake

1 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter
3 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups peach puree
1/2 cup chopped pecans

1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Sift dry ingredients. Add alternately with peach puree to creamed mixture. Add pecans and vanilla and stir until well blended. Pour into well greased and floured 9-cup bundt pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 55 to 60 minutes. Serve with Peach Sauce. Yield: 8-10 servings.

Peach Puree

4-6 peaches
1 teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid
1/2 cup sugar
Wash peaches, pit and slice (do not peel). Place in blender. Add sugar and ascorbic acid to peaches. Blend well. Yield: 2 cups puree.

Peach Sauce

1 cup sliced peaches
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
Dash of salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon orange extract
1/4 teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid

Combine peaches, sugar, cornstarch and salt in small saucepan. Add 1/2 cup water, if additional liquid is needed. Cook slowly over low heat, stirring until mixture begins to thicken. Stir in butter and orange extract. Add ascorbic acid. Sauce may be eaten warm over Peach Bundt Cake or ice cream. Yield: 1 cup.

County Peach Kuchen

6 peaches
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 1/2 cups flour
one-third cup sugar

Peach bundt cake with sauce

2 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup butter, melted
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour
1 egg yolk
3 tablespoons milk

Peel and slice peaches; sprinkle with lemon juice and set aside. Sift 1 1/2 cups flour, baking powder and salt. In a mixing bowl, beat eggs and milk. Add flour mixture, 1/4 cup melted butter and vanilla. Stir with fork until smooth. Spread batter in a buttered 9-inch round baking dish. Arrange peach slices on batter. Make streusel-type topping by combining 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1 cup flour and 2 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle over peaches. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes. Combine egg yolk and 3 tablespoons milk; pour over peaches and bake 10 minutes longer. Serve kuchen warm. Good with whipped cream or ice cream.

Peach Honey

Ripe peaches
Sugar
Peel and halve peaches, discarding pits. Mash fruit thoroughly and measure. Add 2 cups sugar to each cup of peach pulp. Over low heat, bring to boil. Stir constantly. Simmer about 30 minutes, or until mixture is thick and clear. Stir often because mixture will scorch easily. Pack in hot sterilized jars and process in a boiling water bath for ten minutes. Let jars cool, label and store.

Frozen Peach Snacks

1 fresh peach
1 can (18 oz.) vanilla or butterscotch pudding
Wash and dry peach. Carefully cut it into slices. If you are not allowed to use a sharp knife, let someone older do this. Line 6 muffin cups with baking cups. Divide the peach slices among the paper-lined cups. Fill each cup to the top with pudding. Put a stick or spoon into each cup.

Let the pudding and peaches freeze from 2 to 3 hours, or until firm. To loosen, quickly dip the muffin pan to the rim in hot water. Use the table knife to loosen the baking cups from the muffin cups.

To serve, peel off the baking cups. Hint: slide a clean baking cup over each wooden ice cream stick or plastic spoon to catch drips. Makes 6 frozen snacks.

DEEP-DISH PEACH PIE

1 9-inch pan frozen peach pie filling
Pastry for single 9-inch pie crust
Egg glaze (1 egg yolk mixed with 1 teaspoon water)

Heavy cream (optional)

Bake frozen peach pie filling in 425-degree oven for 30 minutes. Roll out pastry to 9-inch circle. Cut into 4 to 8 wedges, as desired. When pie filling has baked 30 minutes, remove from oven. Arrange wedges on pie. Brush with egg glaze. Return to oven and bake 35 to 40 minutes more, or until pastry is golden. Serve warm or cold with heavy cream, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

FRESH PEACH DUMPLINGS

1 package (8 ounces) crescent rolls
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
4 fresh peaches, peeled, halved and pits removed
8 walnut halves
Milk
Brown sugar or coarse sugar

Divide crescent rolls into 4 portions (2 triangles to each portion) and roll into squares. Combine brown sugar, flour and nutmeg in a mixing bowl; blend thoroughly. Roll peach halves in brown sugar mixture. Place two walnut halves in center cavity and sandwich two halves together to form whole peach. Place in center of dough squares and bring ends of dough up, pinching to seal. Brush with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Place on cookie sheet and bake in 375-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm or at room temperature. Makes 4 servings.

SUMMER FRUIT PUDDING

1 large loaf French bread
3 cups sliced fresh plums
1 1/2 cups sugar

1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
2 cups sliced fresh peaches

Trim crusts from bread; cut into half-inch slices. Line a one and one-half quart Charlotte mold or round bowl with bread, pressing firmly with fingers. In saucepan, cook plums with 1 cup sugar and cinnamon, stirring constantly, until plums are soft, about 10 minutes. Cook peaches with two-thirds cup sugar, stirring constantly, until peaches are soft, about 10 minutes. Layer plums and peaches in the bread-lined mold. Cover top of mold with remaining bread slices. Place flat plate and heavy weight on top. Refrigerate overnight. Unmold and serve with sweetened whipped cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

PLUM 'N BISCUIT BAKE

1 pound plums, pitted and sliced (about 8-8 plums)
1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon lemon juice
1 package (8 ounces) refrigerator biscuits

Arrange plums in 9-inch layer cake pan. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake in 400-degree oven for 20 minutes. Meanwhile, in mixing bowl, blend cream cheese, sugar, egg and lemon juice. Remove plums from oven and reduce heat to 350 degrees. Pour cream cheese mixture over plums. Open package of dinner rolls. Arrange them in an overlapping ring over plums. Bake 30 minutes longer. Serve warm. Makes 8-10 servings.

FRESH PLUM SORBET

3 cups water
3 cups sugar
3 pounds fresh plums, halved and pitted
Lemon juice or plum brandy (optional)

In saucepan, combine water and sugar; stir until sugar dissolves. Boil until syrup spins a thread when dropped into cold water (230 to 234 degrees). Puree plums in blender and strain; or peel fruit and put through food mill. Combine pureed fruit pulp with sugar syrup (there should be 4 cups of syrup). Pour into ice cube trays and freeze 30 to 40 minutes. At serving time, pour into stemmed glasses and top with a dash of lemon juice or plum brandy. Makes 4-6 servings.

(Note: If mixture becomes too solid (or if you wish to store it) before serving, return to blender or beat a few minutes until sorbet is thick and foamy. Should it become too liquid, return to freezer a few minutes.)

Pantryshelf quickie salad: drain a canned vegetable such as green beans or asparagus and marinate with French dressing. Serve on lettuce and garnish with tomato slices or wedges.

Soft cheese such as cottage and cream should be served cold from the refrigerator. Semi-soft cheese tastes best when served at room temperature.

If you need crushed cardamom and you have cardamom in the pod, treat the spice this way: break open some pods, remove the seeds and crush the seeds between folded wax paper with a rolling pin.

Peanut Turtle Cookies

1 1/2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar

1-3 cup milk
1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate
1 cup confectioners' sugar
3/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 cup peanut butter

Stir together flour, soda and salt; set aside. In a mixing bowl cream butter and brown sugar; beat in egg and vanilla. Mix in dry ingredients until blended. Cover and chill for ease in handling. Shape dough into balls using about 1 tablespoon dough for each. Press each ball into 1 teaspoon of cocktail peanuts on baking sheet. Bake in a pre-heated 350-degree oven 10-12 minutes, until cookie tests done; cool and frost. To prepare frosting: Over low heat, melt chocolate with milk, stirring occasionally until blended. Stir in sugar and vanilla; heat to boiling; blend in peanut butter. Keep frosting warm over hot water while frosting the cookies. Makes 2-1/2 dozen.

2 teaspoons brown and seasoning sauce

Drain and reserve juice from each can of fruit separately. Measure one-fourth cup of each juice into saucepan. Blend in cornstarch and marmalade. Cook until mixture boils. Add brandy, brown and seasoning sauce and drained fruit. Heat through and serve as a sauce with Cornish hens and duckling.

Limas for crock pot

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Many cooks are turning out recipes from the old-fashioned school. These are dishes loaded with tradition... and very special flavors. Foods prepared by long, slow cooking — part of colonial expertise brought about by necessity — still find fans among older persons and younger gourmards.

Chili lima beans made with dry beans, cubed ham, condensed tomato soup and whole kernel corn gets added zip from a healthy dash of pepper sauce.

Here are two recipes, one for traditional top-of-the-stove simmering and the other for a modern crockpot, to make chili lima beans to fit your day's schedule.

CHILI LIMA BEANS
1 pound dry lima beans
1/2 pound ham, cubed
1 large onion, chopped
1 10 1/2-ounce can condensed tomato soup
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 tablespoon Worcestershire

2 sauce
teaspoons salt
1/2 to 1 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
1 7-ounce can whole kernel corn, drained

Traditional way: Place beans in large saucepan, cover generously with water. Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat and simmer about 1 hour, or until tender. Add remaining ingredients, plus 1 cup water. Simmer 1 hour, stirring frequently. Add water if necessary during cooking. Makes 6 servings.

Modern way: Place beans in large saucepan, cover generously with water. Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat and simmer about 1 hour, or until tender. Drain off excess liquid; measure one cup, adding water if necessary. Place beans, liquid and remaining ingredients except corn in electric slow cooker. Cover and cook on low 8 to 10 hours. (High 4 to 5 hours.) Add corn during last hour of cooking. Makes 6 servings.

FDA okays strong medicine sale

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a scientific panel which spent three years studying the thousands of nonprescription cough and cold drugs on the market said today that Grandma's remedy was as good as any.

Her advice for bed rest, plenty of liquids and chicken soup was "as good as any" if you have a cold or hayfever, said Dr. Francis C. Lowell of Harvard Medical School.

The panel headed by Lowell reviewed the safety and effectiveness of nonprescription cold remedies for the Food and Drug Administration.

Lowell, in a news conference with FDA officials, said there was no need for anyone to take the nonprescription products, unless they wanted temporary relief from sore throat, headache and runny nose. He said that he would be his personal recommendation, as a physician and allergist.

"There is no need for your ultimate welfare to take any medicine at all" if you're suffering from a cold, Lowell said. The same advice applies to the use of antihistamines because "they make you drowsy" and do not cure the common cold, he added.

Many of the nonprescription remedies on the markets have such low levels of active ingredients that they "might not do very much" to even relieve the symptoms, he said.

On its part, the FDA announced it will allow consumers to buy 10 strong medicines, available until now only on a doctor's order, without a prescription for self-treatment of the symptoms of coughs, colds, allergies and asthma.

The FDA said it has no way of telling whether any prescription drug marketed under a brand name could now qualify to be sold as a nonprescription drug. Part of the problem is that a prescription drug may contain several ingredients, not all of which have been removed from the prescription list.

The agency predicted the decision, coming just ahead of the traditional season for colds and hay fever, will save consumers money by reducing trips to the doctor's office and time lost from work. The average American suffers three colds each year, experts say.

A panel of outside scientists had recommended the action on the basis of its three-year study of the 35,000 to 50,000 cough and cold remedies sold without prescription.

The panel also said:

- No non-prescription cough or cold drug should contain more than three active ingredients, and each of them must be from a different group such as cough suppressant, nasal decongestant and antihistamines.

—The FDA should require labels for non-prescription cough-and-cold remedies to be more specific, emphasize that the products give only temporary relief from symptoms rather than cure the ailments, carry warnings if aspirin is present, and advise patients to see a doctor if the problem persists.

—There is no scientific justification for the claim that vitamin C prevents or cures a common cold. The report recommended against approving it for that purpose until controlled clinical studies prove it is effective.

The FDA decided to allow the sale of the 10 strong drugs immediately. The panel's other recommendations were being reviewed by FDA officials, although Sherwin Gardner, acting FDA commissioner, indicated that he agreed that over-the-counter drugs should have more detailed labels.

The advisory panel had recommended removing 14 cough-and-cold drugs from the prescription list, but the FDA said it disagreed on three of the drugs and was deferring a decision on another.

Opposes Texas tuition hike

AUSTIN (AP) — State Higher Education Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth told Republican platform writers today that he opposes any increase in tuition at state colleges and universities.

Dr. Ashworth was the leadoff witness as the committee gathered material for the platform and resolutions it will recommend to the GOP state convention Saturday.

When a committee member asked him if he favored a tuition increase from the present $50 per semester, Ashworth replied:

"No, I don't. One of the heritages of the state of Texas is open access to higher education. The fees added on top of tuition are a very real burden to some students at this time."

Ashworth's position, stated as a personal opinion, runs contrary to the State College Coordinating Board's recommendations to several past legislative sessions. He said that he would be duty-bound to defend the board's position should it again recommend an increase.

The platform committee, chaired by Rep. Bob Davis of Dallas, also heard from Mike McCormick, director of the Texas Association of District and County Attorneys. His recommendations were strongly similar to the anticrime program of Democratic Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who is not up for election this year.

McCormick advocated court-ordered wiretapping, the use of oral confessions and mandatory supervision of all convicts upon their release from prison.

"In Texas, if a defendant has confessed to a roomful of witnesses and on the stand tells a different story, his previous statement can't be used to impeach him," McCormick said.

He also said Texas law should be changed to permit search warrants to seek out evidence of crime. Such warrants must now specifically name the items being sought.

Davis said that although platform provisions traditionally have been designed for statewide candidates, "What we are looking at primarily is legislative matters—things that would form a reasonable base for our candidates to run on."

He said that the districts in which Republicans stand a chance of winning election to the legislature are similar enough to make a single statewide platform valid for their Republican candidates.

"I feel confident that this group can fashion a state-level platform that can speak for the party to the people of Texas—not only for 1976, but for years to come. And this party must speak, because the national Democratic platform does not, and I'll be amazed if the liberal Carter-controlled state Democratic convention can come up with one any more acceptable to Texans," said party Chairman Ray Hutchison.

September conventions of state political parties traditionally have fashioned the platform on which their gubernatorial and other statewide candidates run.

But this year, there is only one statewide race, for railroad commissioner.

Walter Wendlandt, the GOP candidate for commissioner, said there are several things he would like to see in the platform.

He said the party should adopt a plank calling for a change in the commission's name to Texas Energy and Transportation Commission to reflect its true function.

In addition, Wendlandt wants the GOP to come out for a two-term limit on the three commissioners and for greater efforts for railroad safety. "I think they have done a poor job in that area."

Finally, Wendlandt said, "I think there ought to be some concern about the utility costs to Texas consumers."

School reports meal program

An income scale has been released by the Pampa Independent School District for use in determining eligibility for free or reduced-price meals.

Children from families whose income is more than levels shown may be eligible for free or reduced-price meals if they have unusually high medical expenses, shelter expenses in excess of 30 per cent of the income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of the child or disaster or casualty losses.

Children are eligible for free meals when income does not exceed $2,940 for a family of one, $3,860 for a family of two, $4,780 for a family of three, $5,700 for a family of four, $6,550 for a family of five, $7,390 for a family of six, $8,160 for a family of seven, $8,920 for a family of eight, $9,610 for a family of nine, $10,300 for a family of 10, $10,990 for a family of 11, and $11,680 for a family of 12.

Larger families should add $690 for each additional family member.

Children are eligible for reduced price meals (20 cents per lunch) when family income is between $2,940-5,730 for family of one, $3,860-7,330 for family of two, $4,780-9,320 for family of three, $5,700-11,110 for family of four, $6,550-12,770 for family of five, $7,390-14,410 for family of six, $8,160-15,910 for family of seven, $8,920-17,390 for family of eight, $9,610-18,740 for family of nine, $10,300-20,090 for family of 10, $10,990-21,430 for family of 11, and $11,680-22,770 for family of 12.

Larger families should add $1,340 for each additional family member.

Applications are available from the principal's office in each school. Principals will study the applications to determine eligibility.

Parents or guardians may appeal those decisions to the Superintendent of Schools, Bob Phillips, 321 W. Albert, 665-2376.

The free and reduced-price meals are part of the National School Lunch Program.

Americans in Mexican jails big problem

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — U.S. and Mexican officials have begun preliminary discussions regarding a proposal designed to alleviate the increasingly onerous problem of U.S. citizens in Mexican jails.

In recent months, both the White House and Congress have taken new initiatives in hopes of better protecting the legal and human rights of U.S. nationals traveling abroad and particularly in Mexico.

However, there is still no clear sign of any "meaningful improvement," reports one high State Department official.

Accounts from Mexico indicate that U.S. citizens, suspected of using or dealing drugs, are being apprehended by Mexican authorities with increasing frequency and then physically abused by Mexican law enforcement agents.

After arrest, the individuals are generally incarcerated — without a jury trial and sometimes without a judicial hearing at all — in any one of several Mexican jails. As a result the number of Americans in Mexican prisons has skyrocketed from only a very few in the early 60's to some 600 now.

"They were mostly the professional criminal who was sort of expected to be jailed," Alan Gise, director of the office of Special Consular Services at the State Department here said in describing the prisoners of two decades ago.

"But," he added, "for the past five years or so the number of Americans incarcerated has risen with most of the increase coming from Americans charged with drug offenses."

The incarcerated Americans frequently are not drug dealers, and in some cases, don't have any involvement with narcotics or marijuana at all. One recent report in the Wall Street Journal described the plight of a number of middle-class American businessmen and sportsmen who by some strange fate found themselves in trouble with Mexican police.

"While perhaps every American going to Mexico may not be subject to the cattle prod, the stories coming from the prisons are true," said Rep. Fortney Stark Jr., D-Calif., in a recent interview. "It can indeed be dangerous to travel to Mexico, even if you're a simple and innocent tourist. The good neighbor policy is dead."

Arrested Americans are finding conditions in Mexican jails ranging from poor to torturous. Usually they are stripped of their possessions, housed in a confining cellblock and made to pay — following Mexican custom — for their accommodations.

There have been charges that the State Department is doing less for U.S. prisoners incarcerated in Mexico than elsewhere in hopes of curtailing drug traffic. A State Department official denied this. On the abuse question, he said, Americans generally receive what their Mexican counterparts get.

"We have no indications that the Americans are receiving any worse treatment than Mexican prisoners," says James Hughes, assistant chief of Emergency and Protection Services in the special consular office.

Shortly after Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met with Mexican officials in June, both governments initiated talks to arrange a prisoner exchange system whereby U.S. nationals could serve time for alleged Mexican crimes in American institutions.

Gise reports these talks, only in the "preliminary" stages, already have identified a number of constitutional and jurisdictional problems.

Since many prisoners are incarcerated without jury trials, Gise said there would be problems arising from the questionable constitutionality of holding Americans in U.S. jails when they were not given U.S. constitutional rights by Mexican officials.

Blasts 'do-nothing' image

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Executive director Henry Sanchez of Texas' Good Neighbor Commission, who claimed he wanted to change the agency's "do-nothing" image, has been fired.

Sanchez, a former House member from Brownsville, had held the $26,800-a-year job since Oct. 1, 1975.

"They (commission members) didn't want to do anything," Sanchez said Tuesday. "Several of them wanted to be Henry Kissingers, traveling and running the show."

Sanchez was fired in an executive session Friday, but it was not disclosed publicly until Tuesday when deputy director Eddie Aurispa told a legislator-citizen subcommittee. "I wanted Eddie fired," Sanchez said. "He was not qualified. I told them (the commissioners) to fire him or me."

At least one of the nine commissioners, Aubrey Kline of San Antonio, said he thought Sanchez "was an excellent man." He said he had left the meeting early, not knowing Sanchez' job would be discussed.

Aurispa referred questions to Sanchez and the commissioners.

The commission staff was to report Tuesday to the subcommittee on cost-cutting in state government about its expenses, but Aurispa requested a delay.

The subcommittee postponed the hearing until Sept. 27. Members asked for more information at that time, such as complete financial records.

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, said he wanted to quiz six commissioners about recent meetings in Tampico, Mexico. Hollowell has referred to the commission as "useless."

There also have been moves in the legislature to abolish the commission, which was created in 1943 to offset anti-American propaganda in Mexico. It was made an official state agency in 1945.

In early Texas, $10 bought a cow and a calf.

Sign 'insulted' Echeverria

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Luis Echeverria of Mexico says he tore up a protest poster waved in front of him by a Mexican-American activist because he found it "insulting."

In a brief flash of anger Tuesday night, the Mexican president, here to open the Mexican Trade Fair, grabbed a poster calling for "freedom for political prisoners," tore it in half and threw it back at the protester.

The poster, waved by Mario Cantu, a Mexican-American political activist who is being tried on charges of conspiracy and shielding illegal aliens from detention, was later displayed by Cantu.

There were no arrests following the incident.

The encounter occurred as Echeverria walked to the St. Anthony Hotel in downtown San Antonio for a private state dinner that included as guests Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe and San Antonio Mayor Lila Cockrell.

Briscoe said he did not witness the incident but "anything that mars the expressions of friendship is very regrettable."

The incident lasted only a few seconds, witnesses said.

U.S. Secret Service agents, who helped guard Echeverria, refused to comment.

Mexican secret service men rushed the president into the hotel as Cantu and a handful of other demonstrators continued to wave posters calling for the release of "political prisoners."

The Mexican government maintains that there are no political prisoners in the country.

Witnesses said Echeverria hurled the poster back at Cantu and called him "little Fascist."

Later Echeverria told Charles O. Kilpatrick, publisher of the San Antonio Express and News, "Yes, I tore up the sign because I found the lettering on it very insulting."

Echeverria said he and Cantu never actually touched physically, but he "had the feeling that he (Cantu) was trying to get close to me."

A cordon of security officers and bodyguards quickly squeezed in around Echeverria.

This young man (Cantu) is trying to interfere with our efforts to establish better relations with the United States and is trying to make himself notorious," Echeverria said.

Kilpatrick said that Cantu rushed Echeverria. He said the Mexican president did not run toward Cantu. Cantu, after speaking with newsmen, said he was leaving the hotel area because of the "violent atmosphere" created by several dozen policemen.

Cantu is an activist who has campaigned in the past two for La Raza Unida political party of Texas and who, five years ago, also led a group of protesters during a previous Echeverria visit here.

Cantu told newsmen he had contacts with groups in Mexico who are campaigning for the release of alleged political prisoners.

Checking corn crop

A trio of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researchers study the effects of irrigation on corn in preparation for the field day at the Halfway station Tuesday. Irrigated corn research ready HALFWAY — Three Texas Agricultural Experiment Station research scientists figure corn irrigation will get a lot of attention during the annual TAES field day at Halfway Tuesday.

The trio are Drs. Charles Wendt, Otto Wilke and Bill Lyle, all of whom are involved in research in plant-water-soil relationships at Lubbock and Halfway.

"Producers have found that corn requires a large amount of irrigation water, especially if no rainfall is received during tasseling and pollination growth," the scientists said.

"This high irrigation water requirement has caused much concern with producers facing increasing costs of production due to higher natural gas prices."

Wendt, Wilke and Lyle began two studies at the Experiment Station at Halfway this year to determine what yields can be obtained with various irrigation techniques, with an objective of reducing irrigation costs and conserving limited water supplies. Wilke and Lyle are agricultural engineers, and Wendt is a soil physicist.

In one study, alternate row irrigation was compared with every-row irrigation. Amount of water applied varied from 8.17 inches in four irrigations to 17.12 inches in nine irrigations.

In another study tensiometers were used to schedule irrigations using different soil moisture tension levels at various stages of growth. Amounts of water applied varied from 20.12 inches in five irrigations to 28.86 inches in eight irrigations. All plots received a preplant irrigation of 7.6 inches and have received 8.76 inches of rainfall to date.

The researchers said that although the corn has not been harvested, distinct differences in ear length and pollination can be seen among the different moisture treatments.

Field day activities featuring the corn irrigation studies and a number of other agricultural research projects get underway at 1 p.m. The public is encouraged to attend.

The Halfway Station is 14 miles west of Plainview on Highway 70.

County agent comments

WSM can wipe out crop

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent
Farmers preparing to sow wheat should remember to kill all volunteer wheat. Wheat streak mosaic virus, spread by the wheat curl mite, lives in wheat or some other type of susceptible grass from day to day.

The extra dry summer has prevented much grass from being green along with very little volunteer wheat. However, WSM can virtually destroy an entire field of wheat because a little volunteer wheat left or there was volunteer in an adjoining field.

The best method for preventing WSM is plant a little alter and make sure the field is cleared of volunteer at time of planting.

According to USDA, the value of U.S. grain and feed exports in fiscal year 1976 totaled $11.9 billion, $300 million ahead of last year and 54 per cent of the record $22.1 billion U.S. Agricultural exports.

The value of wheat and flour totaled $4.9 billion in fiscal 1976, about equal to the fiscal 1975 level. A 3.5 million metric-ton increase over last year was largely offset by about $20 per metric ton decline in the unit value.

Total feed grain export value reached $5.6 billion, compared with $4.8 billion in fiscal 1975. On a volume basis, feed grain exports were up about 6.6 million metric tons over fiscal 1975 levels.

Another example of how inflation is continually raising farm costs is a recent report from USDA which indicated average farm wages increased 32 cents per hour from a year ago. Average wages paid all hired agricultural workers in Texas during the week of July 11-17, averaged $2.40 per hour. This was an increase of two cents above April, 1976, although it was still 13 cents lower than the national average of $2.53.

Commercial production of red meat in the U.S. continues to run ahead of last year. In July, red meat production was seven per cent more than a year ago and one per cent above July 1974. Total red meat output for January-July 1976 was up five per cent from 1975. Beef is up 10 per cent; veal, up five per cent; pork, down four per cent; lamb and mutton, down eleven per cent. If you want to use Roundup herbicide be careful about the container you put it in. Roundup spray solutions should be mixed, stored and applied only in stainless steel, aluminum, fiberglass or plastic-lined steel containers. Do not mix, store or apply Roundup in galvanized steel or unlined steel (except stainless steel) containers or spray tanks.

Roundup or Roundup spray solutions react with such containers and tend to produce a highly combustible hydrogen gas mixture which could flash or explode causing serious personal injury.

Fall is a good time to apply a good general purpose complete fertilizer to your lawn, trees and shrubs. This fall fertilization helps to give plants more strength in general as they go into the winter.

For lawn areas, a general guide is to apply about two pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of area. As examples, if you use 16-20-0, you would need 22 pounds of the fertilizer material per 1,000 square feet. Or, if you use 10-20-10, apply 20 pounds of fertilizer. Remember the first number listed is the per cent of nitrogen contained in the fertilizer.

Horticulture offered

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M University has a new Department of Horticultural Sciences as of Sept. 1.

Dr. Warren S. Barham, professor, will head the new department, announced Dean of Agriculture Dr. H.O. Kunkel. Barham has been director of raw material research and onion seed production of Basic Vegetable Products located in California and is also chairman of the national committee on liaison between industry and society with the American Horticulture Society. He was previously an associate professor of horticulture at North Carolina State University for nine years.

Horticulture has been offered through the Department of Soil and Crop Sciences since 1959. Texas A&M officials said the demand for graduates in horticulture has expanded rapidly from 59 students five years ago to an estimated fall enrollment of more than 500.

The responsibilities of the new department will include the supervision and coordination of Experiment Station and Extension Service activities as well as the instructional program. The department will have a research load of more than $400,000 at College Station and program leadership of more than $2 million in research located at centers throughout Texas.

Two degree programs will be offered in horticulture and floriculture. These programs include the use, propagation, marketing and selling of edible crops and ornamental plants. Students are trained in nursery and greenhouse production along with the retail florist business, Dr. Kunkel said.

Beef carcass awards planned

Awards in the Iowa Beef Processors Fed Beef Carcass Show will be made at a dinner meeting of the Southwestern T-Bone Assn. Sept. 16, in the Tropic Room of Villa Inn at Amarillo, according to Rex McAnelly of Pampa, association president.

The Fed Beef Carcass Show is set for Sept. 14, 15 and 16 with top prize money of $1,000 going to the grand champion pen.

Dr. Ted Montgomery of the animal science department at West Texas State University will lead a discussion on carcass data.

The dinner speaker will be Paul Zillman of the Livestock Conservation Institute at Hillsdale, Ill. Zillman will discuss research being done in the area of losses due to disease and bruising along with disease eradication.

Evert, Goolagong still winning Los Angeles, Buffalo don't reach agreement

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — At Wimbledon, it was Evert and Goolagong. Four times on the women's pro tour this winter, it was Evert and Goolagong. At last year's U.S. Open, it was Evert and Goolagong.

It always seems to be Evert and Goolagong — and the 1976 U.S. Open Tennis Championships is shaping up the same way.

Top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and second-ranked Evonne Goolagong of Australia took another stride on the road toward their expected showdown in the women's singles final by scoring easy quarter-final victories Wednesday. Miss Evert overwhelmed Natasha Chmyreva, the 18-year-old Russian, 6-1, 6-2 in an afternoon quarter-final match, while Miss Goolagong beat gritty veteran Rosie Casals 6-1, 6-2 in the featured night match at the West Side Tennis Club.

In men's action, top-seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill. overpowered Jan Kodeš of Czechoslovakia 7-5, 6-3, 6-1 and third-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina wore down plucky Eddie Dibbs of North Miami Beach, Fla., the No. 9 seed, 6-1, 2-6, 7-6, 7-6 in a two-hour, 57 minute marathon. Connors will meet Vilas in one men's semifinal Saturday.

The remaining men's semifinal berths were to be determined today, with No. 2 Bjorn Borg of Sweden playing No. 6 Manuel Orantes of Spain, the defending champion, and No. 5 Ilie Nastase of Romania facing unseeded Dick Stockton of Dallas.

Miss Evert's victory was her 99th in a row on clay or slow artificial surfaces, a streak which dates back to the Western Championships in July, 1973 — when she lost to Miss Goolagong.

After the customary disclaimers about playing one match at a time and not looking too far ahead, both distaff rivals conceded they never are far from each other's thoughts.

"Playing Evonne is always something special," Miss Evert said. "It's always in the back of my mind that we may meet in the finals, and I know she thinks the same way."

"I really don't like to look ahead," Miss Goolagong said with a smile. "But it would be nice to beat Chris, especially here in the U.S. Open, and on clay."

Standing in the way of a rematch between the tennis queens are a pair of upset-minded 20-year-olds. Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and Dianne Fromholtz of Australia. Both breezed into the semis. Miss Jausovec beating her doubles partner, Virginia Ruzici of Romania, 6-2, 6-1, and Miss Fromholtz defeating pig-tailed, 16-year-old Zenda Liess of Daytona Beach, Fla., 6-1, 6-3.

Neither was expected to do much in this tournament. Both are happy to have gotten as far as they did — and hopeful of getting farther.

"It's fantastic. I can't believe I've gotten this far," said Miss Jausovec. "I'm looking forward to playing Chris. I'm playing well now, and I'm anxious to see how I'll do against her."

"Each day my game seems to get better," said the perky Miss Fromholtz. "I'm playing very steadily. I think I can give Evonne a good match."

Line starters

Anchoring the Pampa High offensive and defensive lines, respectively, are guard Darrell Mitchell and tackle Marvin Oliver. Both excelled in Pampa's 20-12 loss to Hereford a week ago. The Harvesters will try to rebound Friday when they host Dumas. (Pampa News photos)

Tackles Pampa Friday

Dumas happy with tie, hoping for another one

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Somebody once said, and thousands have repeated, a tie is like kissing your sister.

Dumas Coach Jack Moss isn't one to repeat trite phrases. In his team's case, a tie was as sweet — well, nearly as sweet — as a win, and the Demons will be just as glad to manage another deadlock Friday night against Pampa.

"If we could tie or beat Pampa, it would help us tremendously as far as confidence. Our kids need confidence. We hope we can play with Pampa and make it a ball game," said Moss, the personable first-year Dumas coach.

"Of course, nobody plays to tie. In order to win, the Demons, said Moss, "are going to have to have the same type of super effort that we had against Palo Duro."

Dumas surprised the Amarillo school last week by fighting to a 7-7 tie. "For us it was good as a win. We played well."

And they did it with a cast of sophomores and players with limited or no varsity experience. The Demons start sophomores at quarterback, wingback, tight end, split end and left guard.

"We've only got two kids — Gillman (right guard James) and Sisson (right tackle Mark) — that did any playing at all last year," Moss said.

"Sophomore kids one week look like all-Americans and the next week look like they never played a day in their life. I couldn't begin to guess how we're going to play this week."

Moss expects Dumas will have its hands full, even though the Harvesters lost 20-12 to Hereford last week. Pampa, ranked No. 1 in District 3-AAAA, boasts an experienced backfield, a hefty offensive line and "a tough defense."

"We think Pampa is a much better football team than Palo Duro is. Their offense is probably equal to Palo Duro's but I think defensively they're really much better than Palo Duro."

"It wasn't their defense's fault they lost to Hereford. It was their fumbling the ball. We've been totally impressed with their defense — both kids and that kid that plays left linebacker (Frank Stowers)."

"I think he's one of the best football players I've ever seen. This Copeland (tackle Charles) is a hoss and McBride (tackle Terry) is the same way."

Dumas is led by tailback Danny McCandless, a senior, and quarterback Kent Hazen, a yearling.

"Hazen did a tremendous job last week. We didn't throw but five passes. He completed one but they dropped three of them. He had never played a day at quarterback in his life," Moss said.

Concerning the Dumas yearlings, Pampa Coach John Welborn said, "They're sophomores but they're sophomores that play pretty well."

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Harvester Stadium.

Los Angeles General Manager Don Klosterman, no agreement could be reached. The Bills insisted that All-Pro defensive end Jack Youngblood be part of their compensation for Simpson, and when the Rams refused to part with him, the issue was totally dead.

"We tried again," said Klosterman, "but we weren't successful."

Neither were the San Francisco 49ers, who also made a last-ditch bid before the inter-conference trading deadline expired at 4 p.m. According to reports, they offered defensive end Cedric Hardman, running back Wilbur Jackson and defensive back Reggie Taylor for the All-Pro runner.

That left the Rams with their draft choices, the 49ers with their players, and Simpson with the Bills, where he doesn't want to be. Though two years still remain on Simpson's five-year contract, he has not yet appeared at training camp or played in a preseason game. He isn't on the club's active roster.

The next move, it appears, is that Wilson again will try to persuade Simpson to return to action with Buffalo. Wilson told a Los Angeles newspaper he thinks it can be done.

It appears few other options are available. The Bills no longer can trade with National Conference clubs, leaving only the AFC Oakland Raiders as prospective dealers since Simpson has said he won't go to San Diego.

District 1-B begins loop warfare Friday

By PAUL SIMS Sports Editor

Now that the preliminaries are out of the way, District 1-B football teams can begin deciding on their playoff representative.

While most state high school teams are barely into their non-conference schedules, eight 1-B schools begin loop warfare

Friday. Pampa area games include Groom at Miami, Follett at Wheeler and Lefors at Textline.

McLean, also a 1-B member, has a non-conference home game tonight against the Pampa High sophomores.

Other area games Friday include Clarendon at White Deer and Canadian at Shamrock.

Groom, a 13-12 loser to Claude in the state's most stunning upset last week, will try to rebound against Miami, a team which Groom Coach Russell Roberts knows little about.

Miami, which has been promoted from an eight-man district to 1-B, will be opening its season against the Tigers.

"We haven't seen them play. I really have no idea what to anticipate. I think they've got some speed and a little size. We're not as worried about their size as we are their potential speed," Roberts said.

Groom was ranked No. 1 in the state in Class B prior to last week's disaster. The Tigers are rated No. 8 this week by the Associated Press.

"I'm glad we're still in the top 10," Roberts said. "We felt like we lost a good ball club."

Groom, since it has played a game, should have a big advantage on the Warriors, whose only game-like action thus far has been limited to a scrimmage against the Pampa sophomores, an outing that Miami Coach Bill Gilliland felt did his players little good.

"We beat them without much trouble," Gilliland said. "They weren't real organized. It looked like they (Pampa coaches) were working with the varsity and neglecting the sophomores."

Although the Warriors

outscored Pampa, three touchdowns to one, they are 14-point underdogs against Groom. The Tigers potentially are awesome and boast the same set of running backs that led the team to the state runner-up spot in Class B last fall.

Fullback Chris Britten and halfbacks Thomas Reed and John Krizan all are returning starters for Groom, each having gained more than 1,000 yards last year.

"They just line up and run at you, run over you," Gilliland said. "Chris Britten is a tough runner. Thomas Reed has a lot of speed and this Krizan is a strong kid."

"They do have a good team. They're physical, strong boys and they've got good size. They're quite a bit bigger than us. If Claude hadn't passed the ball, Claude wouldn't have beaten them... we'll have to throw the football some."

That will be the task of Miami quarterback Phillip McCullough, whom Roberts calls "a good runner. He likes to throw to his backs out of the backfield, too."

Miami fullback Dwayne Childress was unstopable against the Pampa yearlings.

"Their fullback and their quarterback seem to be their offense," Roberts said.

Roberts did not mention all-district halfback Kirk Flowers, who may be one of the best runners in a district loaded with rushing talent.

Linebackers Flowers and Stan and Curtis Cowan pace the Miami defense. Flowers was a defensive all-stater last season.

Groom's Britten also was an all-stater as a junior, making the Class B elite team on both offense and defense (linebacker).

"Everybody that plays them is going to have to double team Frazier. We're going to do it some. He's probably their best football player."

Follett opened with a 14-9 win over Shattuck, Okla. Lefors, like just about everybody else in 1-B, also has a superback in Phil White, who piled up 213 yards on 22 carries as the Pirates waded Happy, 32-0, last week.

Friday's Lefors-Textline clash is shaping up into a running duel between White and the Greyhounds' Terry McNabb, who rushed for more than 1,300 yards last season.

"They're quick," Lefors Coach Jim Allen said. "and explosive with McNabb and Herrera (halfback Orlanda Herrera) and Chapman (quarterback Richard Chapman)."

"They're a much better team than they were last year. Defensively, they swarm you an awful lot."

Lefors rates as a six-point favorite against the Mustangs.

Follett, a 10-point underdog in the district opener, returns two all-staters off last year's state runner-up eight-man team. Those players are linebacker Colin Kellin, also a powerful running back, and noseguard Mark Frazier.

White Deer, a surprising 33-9 winner over Vega in the season opener, boasts overall quickness and elusive runners in Steve Williams and Dean Bennett. Williams gained 105 yards on 10 carries in the opener.

Clarendon is supposed to lack experience and White Deer is supposed to be too small. Both turned in two of the area's most impressive performances last week. This one should be close—White Deer by three.

Canadian at Shamrock

Canadian scored twice in the fourth quarter to trim Phillips, 13-9, last week. Statistically, the Wildcats annihilated Phillips, though, as Canadian outrushed the Blackhawks, 191 to minus 13 and won the first down battle, 15-6.

Shamrock, in spite of Jacky Thompson's 99 yards on 15 carries, was unimpressive against Wheeler. The Irish managed only one first down and 10 yards of total offense in the second half. It's likely Shamrock isn't that poor, however, since four offensive backfield starters return off last year's 5-5 club.

If last week's outing is any indication of the luck of the Irish, this game will be a runaway. Shamrock probably will play better now that opening-night jitters are gone—Canadian by 15.

To test Pampa

McLean fullback Ken Parker will be in action tonight as the Tigers host the Pampa sophomores in a 7 o'clock game. Parker gained 32 yards in last week's season-opening 29-0 loss to Clarendon. The Pampa sophomores open their season tonight.

Buck end

White Deer split end Randy Baldrige caught four passes for 52 yards and a touchdown to spark White Deer to a 33-9 win over Vega last week. Clarendon will try to shut down the sure-handed Baldrige Friday when the Bronchos visit White Deer.

New teams the reason

NFL attendance rises

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

More than six weeks after fans began paying regular-season prices for their tickets, National Football League teams will begin playing regular-season games for those tickets this Sunday.

More than 3.5 million fans paid their way into the tuneup games that Commissioner Pete Rozelle labels preseason games and almost everyone else calls exhibitions.

The total attendance of 3,534,713 was up from 1975's figure of 3,365,147, but that was because expansion teams in Seattle and Tampa Bay swelled the total number of games played from 79 last year to 86 this season. The per-game average suffered a small decline from 42,587 in 1975 to 41,101 this year.

Ticket policies throughout the league vary from team to team. Some hard-liners require season-ticket holders to purchase all preseason games as part of their package. Others require one or two exhibition purchases. Some offer option plans and a few even separate the preseason games from the regular-season ticket package entirely.

Many NFL teams claim that the only way they can turn a profit is with income from preseason games. And that is the explanation they offer for the six-weeks of exhibition games.

But there is not too much fan enthusiasm for paying full price to watch games that don't count. Attendance dropoffs have caused some teams to seriously question the length of the preseason.

"If I was an owner, I would want to make money," said Don Coryell, coach of the St. Louis Cardinals. "If you ask me how, I'd say more regular-season games, something like 16 games for four exhibitions."

In Philadelphia, the Eagles drew only 37,462 for two games, less than half the 78,181 they attracted for two games last year. General Manager Jim Murray called the exhibition attendances "one of the most serious problems professional football has to face in the near future."

"The fans have sent us a message," Murray added. "They'd like to see some changes. It's our Achilles heel. We set out the regular season but get minimal attendance in the preseason despite heavy promotion."

In three years, the Washington Redskins' total exhibition attendance has dropped a startling 43 per cent from 329,981 to 188,100. That's one reason why Redskins' President Edward Bennett Williams opposes the long preseason schedule.

"We've got to cut them down," said Williams, who last year proposed the NFL adopt a 16-game regular season with just four exhibitions. From four, he would eventually cut to two games and then none. "Let them have scrimmages," he said. "The training season is too long."

Some NFL sources believe preseason enthusiasm began to wane in 1974, the year of the players' strike. "People found something else to do with their money and the league never recovered," said one ticket manager. "That was a disaster."

Palmer nets 20th victory

BALTIMORE (AP) — Posting a 20th victory just doesn't mean as much to a pitcher who has reached the coveted plateau in six of his last seven seasons.

"It's a milestone, I guess," Baltimore ace Jim Palmer said after pitching a 3-1 seven-hitter over the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night. "But when you have 19 by the end of August, you kind of feel you're going to win 20."

"People judge you on 20 wins," Palmer said while teammates drank the champagne he supplied for the occasion, "but what's the difference in winning 19 or 20? It's like a batter hitting .299 instead of .300."

"Actually, there's not much difference between winning 15 or winning 20. It depends on how many times you go out there, the breaks you get, and how the team plays. You need luck and consistency."

The 30-year-old right-hander, the American League's Cy Young Award winner in two of the past three years, said both he and the Orioles had been a might inconsistent when his record was just 6-7 through mid-June.

"Since then," he said, "I've pitched as well as I could have, except I've lost about a foot off my fast ball since pulling a back muscle on July 31."

"The back just won't get well between starts," Palmer said, "so the main thing is not to favor my arm and change my motion. I haven't done that, but it's scary not being able to do what you want to do."

Palmer, who has lost 12 this year, gave up a first inning run when John Lowenstein tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Larvell Blanks. Just two Cleveland runners reached second base after that and one, Lowenstein, was picked off by Palmer.

Palmer entered the 1976 season with a career winning percentage of .655, the best among active pitchers, and an earned run average of 2.63, the best in the history of the American League. His lifetime mark is now 172-92.

Flag league sets meeting

The Pampa Men's Flag Football League will hold its second organizational meeting of the year at 7 p.m. Sept. 16 at the Pampa Youth Center.

Two teams signed up at the last meeting. The league hopes four more teams will sign up, according to Nelson Medley, last year's president.

Interested teams or men not affiliated with a team but wanting to play should attend the meeting, Medley said.

Pampans win in doubles

AMARILLO — Joe Davis of Pampa and Bud Satterwhite of Amarillo won the Men's 45 Doubles title in the Tri-State Tennis Tournament held over the Labor Day weekend.

The tournament concluded the Panhandle tennis circuit for the summer.
