Pampa Honors Its War Dead

By JANE KADINGO
Undaunted by the three-inch rainfall during the night, members of Pampa's veterans organizations and their auxiliaries waded through water and mud for the Memorial Day services at both cemeteries.

Due to the wet ground, flags were not put on veterans graves, but will be put up at 8 a.m. Tuesday at Fairview by Boy Scouts, according to Mrs. Jess Hatcher of the VFW Auxiliary.

At Memory Gardens, unable to have the parade of flags due to the rain, the flag was raised and Capt. L.Z. Sullivan of the Salvation Army, and his son, played "Taps." Capt. Sullivan gave a prayer for the war dead, and the flag was lowered.

The ceremony was under the direction of VFW Post Commander Herbert Denny, assisted by Commander-Elect Ross Nugin.

Highlight of the 7 a.m. service at Fairview Cemetery, was a talk by Tracy Cary of the Gray County Historical Survey Committee, who gave a resume of the history of the observance of Memorial Day.

"This is the 104th anniversary of the first formal observance of Memorial Day," he told the group.

In 1863, the women of Columbus, Miss., decorated the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers, he related. In 1865, Mrs. C. Landon Vaughn, a descendant of John Adams, our second president, led the women to the cemetery.

Absentee Voting Deadline Tuesday
Voters are reminded that Tuesday is the final day for absentee voting.

Those planning to leave on vacation before Saturday or on being away from home precincts on that date should cast their vote at the office of the county clerk before 5 p.m. tomorrow.

At the close of business Friday, 100 Democrats and nine Republicans had voted. The office was closed today for the holiday.

Views On 'Abusers Of Alcohol' Aired At Local Church Meeting

Abusers of alcohol use are not always criminals, but the law provides in certain cases that they be treated as criminals and sent to prison. District Judge Grainger McIlhenny told an interested audience Sunday afternoon at a public meeting on alcohol abuse.

Like many members of the medical profession, Judge McIlhenny told his listeners in at Vicksburg to decorate the graves of confederate soldiers. Early in May, 1865, Adjutant General Chipman of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Union veterans organization, suggested to Gen. John A. Logan, commander-in-chief, arrangements be made to decorate the graves of Union soldiers on a uniform date throughout the country. Cary reported.

On the 30th day of May, 1868, the first formal and official observance of Memorial Day was carried out, from small cemeteries to the National Cemetery at Arlington.

Cary listed the Confederate and Union veterans buried in Gray County, most of them at Fairview Cemetery. He listed four of the soldiers killed in Indian battles—on McLellan Creek in 1874 and on the north fork of the Red River, north of McLean in 1872.

"These four soldiers never had tribute paid to their memory since they died here nearly 100 years ago," he stated.

Cary read the names of charter members of the Kerley-Crossman Post No. 334 of the American Legion and of the Veterans of Foreign War, and paid tribute to their auxiliaries.

"We join together today in memory of all those who have served this country in honor until they, too, come again on that great Day of Resurrection," he concluded.

"Until that time, may our beloved Star Spangled Banner continue to wave proudly over the land of the free and home of the brave, never to be taken down until the day it is finally laid at the feet of the Prince of Peace."

Rev. Ralph Palmer of the First Christian Church gave the invocation and a short talk, and Mrs. May Hatcher of the VFW auxiliary gave the chaplain's Memorial Day prayer. Mrs. Hatcher and Mrs. Thelma Batson of the World War I Veterans auxiliary held the flag for the ceremony.

Cap. Sullivan and his son played "Taps."

U.S. And Soviet Union Agree To Avoid Military Collisions

NOT TODAY—Veterans of Foreign Wars were on hand for Memorial Day services at Memory Gardens, but the parade of flags was cancelled, due to rain. Looking over the 167 flags, which were to be placed along the cemetery road, are, left to right, VFW Post Commander Herbert Denny, 502 N. Dwight; Ross Nugin, incoming commander; and Capt. L. Z. Sullivan of the Salvation Army, who gave the invocation, and, along with his son, played taps.

MEMORIAL SERVICES—Despite water and mud, Memorial Day services were held at both Pampa cemeteries. At Fairview Cemetery, services were held on the porch of the office. Standing by the wreath, donated by the Gray County Historical Survey Committee in memory of Civil War veterans, are, left to right, Mrs. Thelma Malone of the WWI auxiliary; Rev. Ralph Palmer of the First Christian Church, who gave the invocation; and Mrs. Jess Hatcher of the VFW Auxiliary, and Tracy D. Cary, chairman of the historical survey committee, who gave the history of the Memorial Day and paid tribute to the more than 600 veterans buried at Fairview.

Statement Signed At Summit

MOSCOW (AP)—President Nixon and Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev signed a joint statement of long-range principles today agreeing to avoid military confrontations and envisioning eventual total world disarmament.

For the nearer future, Nixon and the Soviet leader agreed in a companion communique to hold a European security conference—a long goal of the Soviet regime—quite soon.

The conference will aim first at providing for an East-West cutback in military forces in Central Europe, notably those in East and West Germany.

Nixon concluded his seven days of summit talks at the Kremlin by inviting the three top Soviet leaders—Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin—to visit the United States "at a mutually convenient time."

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's assistant for national security affairs, said the return summit would not take place until after the U.S. elections in November.

The communique recited the opposing views of American and Soviet negotiators on Vietnam.

However, Kissinger said the war was the subject of "long, sometimes difficult and detailed discussions" which left in doubt the vital question of whether the two governments understand each other on the issue and will cooperate to seek peace.

As for the prospects, "only the future can say, and I wouldn't want to speculate," Kissinger said.

The communique also dealt with Middle East tensions and said the United States and the Soviet Union "declare their readiness to play their part in bringing about a peaceful settlement."

Of the two summit documents, the statement of principles signed by Nixon and Brezhnev at a televised Kremlin ceremony was the more sweeping.

Kissinger cautioned, however, that it represented "an aspiration and attitude" and that either side can ignore it at will.

The presidential adviser added that Nixon assumes the Soviet leaders take the document seriously or they wouldn't have signed it.

In noting that each government has an out, Kissinger volunteered for the benefit of those back home who may take a dim view of the accord that Nixon was "not suddenly gone soft-minded."

The first basic principle affirmed by Nixon and Brezhnev was that the Soviet and U.S. governments "will proceed from the common determination that in the nuclear age there is no alternative to conducting their relations on the basis of peaceful coexistence."

Differences in ideology and social systems, the document said, "are not obstacles to the bilateral development of normal relations based on the principles of sovereignty, equality, noninterference in internal affairs and mutual advantage."

The second principle declared that the two countries "attach major importance to preventing the development of situations capable of causing a dangerous exacerbation of their relations."

Nixon and Brezhnev agreed "they will do their utmost to avoid military confrontations and to prevent the outbreak of nuclear war."

Oklahoma Rainmaking Effort Raises Storm of Objections

By RAY BAXTER
Rainmakers, admittedly seeking to benefit watershed above Altus, Okla., have run into a storm cloud of adverse sentiment that has precipitated official objections with more to come.

The storm of protest started gathering when Weather Sciences Inc., Norman, Okla., ran a legal notice in the News seeking a permit to seed clouds over Gray, Wheeler and Comphill counties.

The request and the plans hanging upon it call for seeding of clouds over Texas in order for the seeding process to produce rain by the time it is over the reservoir in the watershed above Altus.

The seeding process takes about 25 minutes to generate rain if it is effective. It works like this: A concentrated charge of silver iodide (AgI) is delivered directly to clouds where it converts supercooled drops of moisture into ice crystals. This rapid freezing releases heat which increases the cloud "chimney" temperature producing a strong pulse of energy which theoretically causes substantial cloud growth.

This cloud growth in turn processes more water and develops more efficient precipitation—again, in theory.

According to a technical report issued by the Federal Bureau of Reclamation, the amount of such cloud growth is dependent upon the amount of silver iodide released into the cloud and the efficiency of AgI particles as well as the structure of the natural environment.

It is this latter that is causing some concern in the Texas area over which the seeding is proposed. Along with doubts of the true effectiveness of cloud seeding, there is an unknown factor involved in "the structure of the natural environment." That is, cloud development and ensuing precipitation is theoretical. Nothing guarantees this behavior as well as the direction it will take.

Therefore, it is possible for the structure of the natural environment to take over and the process could engender any effect, good or adverse, that any rain cloud might spawn.

This is the concern of agriculture people in the Texas area involved.

In addition, there is strong feeling regarding the general water picture in the areas involved. It dates back to the creation of the Altus reservoir. It was supposed to supply, among other things, irrigation waters. It has never reached this capacity.

To try to make up this deficiency, Oklahoma influences in the national congress have blocked all moves to develop the McClelland Creek watershed project saying it would deprive the Altus watershed of water due to it.

Some boosters of the Texas project feel these objections are now taking over Texas skywater as well.

Any citizen of the Texas area can lodge a formal protest or objection with the Texas Water Development Board at Austin and each will be given official consideration.

In addition to such individual protests, a number of area organizations are planning meetings to take action in the matter.

While the actual application of AgI will be under the direction of the private rainmaking firm, it will be done under the aegis of the Bureau of Reclamation.

Pampa Woman Taken Forcibly From Home

A man who entered a Pampa home, beat his wife, left with her, leaving four small children behind has been located at Wellington.

Believed to be an Amarillo resident, the man had been working at Wellington. He entered the Pampa residence forcibly to get his wife.

Authorities at Wellington and Amarillo were notified and advised that he was believed to be armed with a pistol. Fears were expressed for the safety of his wife.

Following location of the pair at Wellington, no report was forthcoming on the condition of the woman. No charges have been filed at Pampa as yet.

Duke Windsor, 77, Dies; Body Flown Home

LONDON (AP)—The long exile of the Duke of Windsor ends Wednesday when his body is flown home for burial on the grounds of Windsor Castle.

The former King Edward VIII, who gave up the British throne on Dec. 11, 1936, to marry an American divorcee, died an hour before dawn Sunday at his home in Paris. He was 77.

Canadian Man Hurt In Accident

A Canadian man, Wes Wilson, 27, suffered a possible broken leg and other injuries after a bulldozer accident at Laketon Sunday.

The incident happened about 10:30 a.m. According to reports available, Wilson had been standing near the "dozer" talking with the operator. The vehicle was set in motion and a sharp turn executed striking the man on the ground.

He was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital at Amarillo by Metropolitan ambulance service where he is reported in no danger.

Rep. Price Honored By Groups

WASHINGTON, D.C.—In a special ceremony held at the Capitol, U.S. Rep. Bob Price of Pampa, Tex., was presented a formal citation of recognition by the National Small Business Association and the National Committee for Small Business Tax Reform.

The citation was given to Price for his public backing and support of small business tax simplification and reform legislation.

The congressman was awarded the citation by Harry E. Brinkman, president, National Small Business Association, and Edward Larson, Chairman of the National Committee.

In honoring the Congressman, Mr. Brinkman said, "Mr. Price's strong backing of small business tax reform legislation is most commendable in these times of economic distress."

"His stand indicates to us, and particularly the small business community in his district that he is aware of the problems faced by every small businessman. The effects of NSB, coupled with those of Representative Price give strong impetus to wiping out the inequities in the Federal Tax Code as the Code applies to the small businessman."

50-MPH WIND GUSTS

Pampa Gets 3-Inch Rain In Early Morning Storm

By TEX DEWEESE

Pampa received an official 2.45 inches of rainfall at the National Weather Service station and an unofficial three and one-half to four inches in various areas of the city in a severe thunderstorm that hit around 2 a.m. and rainfall that continued through early hours of this morning.

The rain began about 1 a.m. and the heavy thunderstorm struck about an hour later accompanied by high winds with gusts up to 50 miles an hour.

The rainfall stopped around 7:30 a.m. and became intermittent in the early forenoon.

The weather forecast called for cloudy and continued rain through today and Tuesday with a 50 per cent possibility of severe thunderstorms again this afternoon and tonight.

The nearly 3-inch official rainfall was the heaviest precipitation registered locally in a six-hour period since last fall.

The highwinds again damaged trees throughout the city. Limbs were broken off and blown into the streets in all areas.

Red Deer Creek, usually completely dry, was running through Pampa with banks half full at 7 a.m. today.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. reported many service disruptions due to the storm. The company's repair service station reported it probably would be this afternoon before all service had been restored to normal.

Police had no reports of serious traffic trouble because of the storm.

The violent weather spread across the entire Texas Panhandle. It included high winds, rain and hail. The hail hit in the Dalhart area.

North Texas Native Gets Appointment

Edward E. Thomas, newly appointed state conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Texas, returns to his native state from Nashville, Tenn. where he was deputy state conservationist for SCS.

He succeeds Clyde W. Graham who has been named director of the South regional technical service center in Fort Worth.

A career conservationist since 1954, Thomas was an assistant to Graham at the Temple state office until he went to Nashville in January, 1971.

After starting his conservation career at Lubbock, Thomas worked at Wellington, Wheeler, Jayton, and Morton. Then he became area conservationist at Pecos in 1963. After holding a similar position at Harlingen, he moved to Temple as assistant state conservationist in 1968.

Thomas is a 1954 graduate of Texas A&M University where he was a member of the track team. He is also a graduate of Vernon High School and served as an Army officer in Korea from 1954 to 1956. He is a member of the T Association of Texas A&M, the Soil Conservation Society of America, and the American Society of Range Management.

He and his wife Mary have three children: Edjje, 15; Bill, 13; and Susan, 11.

Texas Farmers Urged To Eye Screwworms

A "red alert" is being sounded throughout the state as screwworms continue to assault livestock and other animals. Gray County has not recorded any cases to date, but it's most important that all animals be checked closely and regularly for infestations warns Foster Whaley, county agent.

Weather conditions were favorable for heavy screwworm buildups last winter in northern Mexico as well as in parts of the Southwest. Some infestations were also spread by transporting infested livestock last fall, and the insect pest spent the mild winter in new quarters. This spring overall conditions were "ripe" for a massive screwworm invasion.

According to Whaley, more than 2,300 cases have been confirmed in Texas this spring, the earliest and heaviest outbreak in the history of the screwworm eradication program.

Although sterile fly production at the Mission Lab is running at its peak—200 million a week—treatment with these flies is not enough to stop the destructive, flesh-eating livestock pest.

"Everyone must cooperate if the screwworm eradication program is to be effective," emphasizes Whaley. "This means farmers, ranchers, pet owners, auction managers and others who work with or own animals."

Pampa SSA Computerizes Payments

The Social Security Administration recently has begun using computers to stop and start monthly social security payments. Computers are not new to social security but this usage of them is new, according to Howard L. Weatherly, social security manager in Pampa.

Before, if a person stopped working after establishing his entitlement to social security checks, it was necessary to send a written notice to the payment center where the records are kept. Now the local social security office can enter the information into the computer system. The process will get the checks out faster.

A written notice was also necessary if a person wanted to stop his checks. Now this information can be entered into the computer system locally, according to Weatherly.

Persons who stop or start work should call the local social security office, have social security claim number ready and be prepared to give them as estimate of expected earnings for the current year.

For more information about working and receiving social security checks, write or phone the Pampa social security office at 1541 N. Hobart. Pampa. The telephone number is 669-3381.

In 1971, a total of 6,006 shops moved in and out of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

There will be no admission charge; all seats are open to the public according to Rev. Moody.

Elementary Teachers, Pupils Mark School Year End With Art Exhibit

By RAY BAXTER

Art through the ages tends to bear out the contention that creative people are born—not made.

The same time span also verifies that physical birth and the spawning of creativity are two separate labors with the latter demanding a considerable amount of midwifery.

Which is to say with a certain amount of erudition that creativity must be brought along. For a city its size, Pampa has more helping hands for the budding artist than any in the state. Prominent among these are many teachers in the school system, themselves artists of considerable talent.

So it is not so strange that the end of the school year for elementary students and teachers was celebrated with an exhibit displayed at Carver Center featuring the work of both pupils and faculty.

Planning and execution of the event was directed by High School Principal Cameron Marsh who exhibited one of his paintings pictured elsewhere on the page.

Works ranged from impressionistic paste-up art to fine oils. As viewers visited the display there was always a knot of interest in front of a three dimensional tableau of prehistoric monsters lumbering among fossilized bits and pieces of another age.

A pencil sketch of a street scene, possibly Paris, showed what exciting liberties one can take with perspective once it has truly been mastered.

Without taking a stand on the best of the exhibit, it is safe to say the most eye-catching display was a painting of an early-day airplane—so early that it was probably spelled "aeroplane."

The aircraft was executed as a black skeletal silhouette against a background of yellow deepening to orange, then red at bottom and top.

Until recently, teachers and administrators gave help and encouragement in addition to their bit with the "three Rs." Now, there is help in a new form that will bring out the interest of the born creative talent—and thereby came a view of art not displayed in the auditorium at Carver Center.

It was still in boxes—boxes of new text books with brilliant hues and graceful lines

Texas Construction Boom Declining, Reports Show

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The construction boom in Texas may have passed its peak, the Bureau of Business Research reports.

For the second straight month, authorized construction declined in April. The 11 percent change point drop brought the total estimated value of authorized construction for the month down to $287.5 million.

Nonresidential construction rose 1 per cent, while residential construction decreased 18 per cent, and the index for additions, alterations and repairs was down 22 per cent.

"A plausible explanation for the similar drops at both the Texas and the national levels is that the tremendous push behind government housing programs has diminished somewhat."

"Since evidence shows that the economy is picking up steam in other areas now, the government no longer perceives the need for induced stimulus from home building," the bureau said.

Houston, Dallas and San Antonio accounted for 52 per cent of the total construction authorized in April, and this figure rises to more than 69 per cent.

Pair Admits They Take $31 From Purse

Tow youths, one from Pampa and one from Borger, have admitted to Pampa police officers that they took the $31 from the purse of an employee at Highland General Hospital earlier in the week.

The pair and a third youth from Borger were visiting a patient the day the money was taken from a purse on a pushcart in the second floor hall. The patient identified two of the young men and police went from that point.

After confronting the pair who admitted guilty at the police station Judge Ed Anderson was called. He issued warrants and placed each under $200 bond. They were held in custody in lieu of bond.

The victim of the theft had declined to press charges subject to restitution being made.

The name "buzzard" means different things in different parts of the world. In Europe, buzzards are broad-winged hawks, but in America it is often wrongly applied to the turkey vulture.

United Methodist Meet Set Tuesday In Lubbock

LUBBOCK—Delegates from 204 United Methodist churches will gather here Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church for the meeting of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference.

Representing 104,000 United Methodist members in a 67 county area in the Panhandle and South Plains of the state, the four day conference is expected to vote on a ten year $56,000 annual pension program, finalize plans to participate in the North American ecumenical KEY 73 evangelism program, and consideration of restructuring the conference program agencies.

"For the first time we will meet in district caucus groups to discuss legislation proposed to the annual conference," said Dr. S. Duane Bruce, program director. "These smaller caucuses will permit issues to be hammered out face-to-face before we vote on them in plenary session as an Annual Conference."

Dr. Bruce went on to say in an interview that youth would be represented with each church having one youth present at the conference. Special involvement of the youth and a youth banquet will be held Thursday evening.

A task force on Mexican-American work calls for the establishment of closer working relationship between the Anglo Northwest Texas Conference and the Spanish speaking Rio Grande Conference. These two United Methodist Conferences serve overlapping regions but have few common programs because of language differences.

The Rev. Caleb Hildebrand, chairman of the task force, described grass roots meetings of the two Methodist groups as necessary in order "that rapport be established, so that problems can be discussed honestly and freely."

"From these personal encounters should develop discussion groups and social action," said Hildebrand.

Bishop Alsie H. Carleton, resident bishop and president of the Annual Conference will announce the new pastoral appointments of ministers Tuesday evening.

Police Seek Third Youth In Theft Case

Acting on a reliable tip and a license number, Pampa police officers obtained an admission of guilt to theft from two Pampa youths.

Earlier this month a truck parked across from a local motel was entered and a suitcase and other items taken.

The two youths already referred to juvenile authorities implicated a third who is out of the city. Officers plan to take him into custody upon his return.

Shoplifting Case Solved

Pampa police officers have solved a case of shoplifting at Pampa Hardware Co. some six weeks ago.

Taken were more than $100 worth of baseball gloves. Finding one youth in possession of one of the stolen gloves, officers soon traced possession of other items to four other youths and obtained an admission of participation in the theft.

Action against the five is pending. Recovery of all the items is expected.

WHAT IS THE EFFECT OF ALCOHOL ON DRUGS?

We hear this question very often and it is an important one. For, alcohol can interact or interfere with a great many types of drugs. Anti-coagulants, certain sulphur medicines, insulin, analgesics, many tranquilizers and anti-histamines are a few of the major categories of drugs effected by alcohol.

To always be on the safe side, it is a good idea not to have a drink while on any medication. However, if there is some special occasion or situation involved, you should make it a point to check with your physician and to mention it when you bring in your prescription.

1972 Is Great Year—for Flea Bites

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Consider the flea. If you have a dog or cat, you probably already have.

The flea is a pest, a parasite, a bloodsucker. It is a circus performer, mass murderer and a tormenter of animals.

More simply, though, the flea is an insect, and a tiny one at that.

Ctenocephalides canis is the dog flea, ctenocephalides felis is the cat flea, and so on down the line through almost every mammal. Each has a flea of his own.

Many of the fleas are named for the kind of animals upon which they were first found. Thus the cat flea is not found exclusively on cats, in fact they are probably most common on dogs. Human fleas, too, are becoming increasingly common on dogs, according to one of the world's foremost authorities on the flea, Dr. Grover Cloyd.

Indeed, while fleas most commonly make pests of themselves on family pets, they can bother the family, too. "Fleas that might get on people produce irritation due to frequent bites and allergic rashes can occur. Flea bites are often mistaken for chiggers or mosquitoes," says Dr. Cloyd, director of veterinary medicine for the A. H. Robins Co.

On dogs and cats fleas can cause more problems; they are highly irritating, the itching may induce self-mutilation by the animal, allergic rashes can occur and fleas carry diseases such as the dog and cat tapeworm. In fact, the bubonic plague, or Black Death, rampant in Europe for three centuries—killing hundreds of thousands of people—was caused by fleas. The roof rats, then predominant in Europe, roamed the attics and roofs. When the rats died their fleas sought meals of blood and jumped to people, thus spreading the disease from the dead rats.

Fleas, which neither walk nor fly, but jump, spend only a very short time on their host animal, hopping on about 10 per cent of the time to copulate and snatch a free meal of nourishing blood. If the family goes on vacation, and the family dog is boarded for a few weeks, many fleas are bound to be hanging out in the rug, getting hungrier by the day.

When the family comes home the fleas will jump on the nearest living thing for a feast. If that living thing is you, you have fleas.

Flea populations tend to run in two-year cycles, Dr. Cloyd says, and since last year we had a moist, warm Indian summer—"great for fleas"—we're in for lots of flea bites this year.

How can fleas be controlled? In the past it has always been a difficult task since they live both on and off the animal.

One early control method was to dip the affected animal into a mixture containing pine tar derivatives. This was highly irritating to the animal, "but not too tough on the flea," Dr. Cloyd says.

Then came the soaps, baths, powders and sprays.

"The trouble with these things was that they were rather fleeting in their effect. You had to apply them every few days. They didn't keep the pressure on the fleas," Dr. Cloyd says.

In other words, the Vir-

THEY SHALL NOT PASS is the idea of the flea collar Dr. Grover Cloyd helped develop. The collar slowly releases tiny amounts of pesticide, killing fleas passing over or under to reach the moisture sources on the dog's head.

ginia veterinarian adds, "If you want to starve a dog in a meathouse, you can't take the muzzie off overnight."

Of course the entire house could be fumigated to eliminate fleas, but this is the hard way since dogs (and cats)—walking flea collectors that they are—will bring some more home.

"The best way to do it," Dr. Cloyd says, "is to let the dog be his own exterminator." This is just what is accomplished by the flea collar, which Dr. Cloyd helped to develop.

The plastic collars, made by the Robins Co., are impregnated with the pesticide DDVP, trademarked Vapona. It is the same chemical used in the controversial Shell No-Pest Strip, but the strip has 10 times more gas-generating power than the collars.

Flea collars work so well on dogs and cats because the fleas must have moisture to drink every day. They get this from the animal's mouth, nose or eyes, and they must get to these places via the neck, thus passing the collar which is lethal to them.

"When man removes an animal from its natural environment and imposes upon it the artificial conditions of domestication, he also inadvertently imposes the opportunity for parasites, both external and internal, to attack this animal," Dr. Cloyd explains.

"Of all the ways to handle fleas this is as good as any," says Shea, himself a trained insect specialist.

The major problem with flea collars would arise in the rare cases where a dog or child who comes in contact with them is allergic to either the plastic or the DDVP, just as some people are allergic to hair spray or nail polish. If this is the case, of course, alternate flea controls must be used.

One question that logically arises is why does it seem as if only domestic dogs and cats have flea problems? The answer is that in the wild, dogs, cats and other species seldom live in concentrated populations as they do in domestic situations.

DDVP is not a persistent

AFRAID OF PEOPLE.
MESQUITE, Tex. (AP) — A wayward baboon, who rode out of the World of Animals enclosure on top of a visitors' bus, took one look at the human race and apparently decided he preferred monkey business. Leaping down at the parking lot, he scrambled over a 17-foot chain link fence, swam a moat and raced back among his own kind.

HEART NEEDS WATTS
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — When the human heart operates at 100 per cent efficiency it requires eight watts of power, reports the Arizona Heart Institute. The report also said an artificial heart requires 32 watts of power and would be no more than 25 per cent efficient as a healthy human heart.

Homosexuals: Sick or unjustly persecuted?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Recently you printed a letter from someone who claimed to be a "well-adjusted homosexual."

There is no such thing as a well-adjusted homosexual; the two terms are antonyms. Homosexuality, male or female, is a form of sexual deviation which is symptomatic of personality disorder. By any reasonable standard of human development, homosexuality is an abnormal human condition which needs competent professional treatment. It is, in effect, a form of emotional illness.

I think that you would be as interested as I in what your readers think about the subject.

HAPPY HETEROSEXUAL

DEAR HAPPY: By whose definition is homosexuality an illness? There are homosexuals who live socially well-adjusted, discreet, personally happy lives, whose homosexuality would come as a surprise to many of their close heterosexual friends.

The fact that homosexuality is morally condemned by most people in our culture makes it seem abnormal. In other times and in other cultures it has not always been so judged.

Much of the maladjustment seen in homosexuals is due to the rejection, persecution and guilt imposed upon them by intolerant and ignorant contemporaries.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in reference to a question you asked in your column recently, "Exactly how does one go about thawing out a Swede?" If you ever receive a practical answer, I beg you to publish it at once.

You see, my wife, altho American born, is of Swedish extraction. Moreover she has an intensely religious background—the kind which stressed "no-no's" concerning anything to do with sex. Because of this she is so inhibited that she is totally unresponsive to my lovemaking. [Unresponsive? Worse yet. She finds it disgusting.]

I've tried everything: tenderness, ingenuity, sex manuals, marriage counselors, but to no avail.

Now, after 10 years of trying to thaw out my little iceberg, this "flame" is pretty well burned out.

Your question, "How does one thaw out a Swede?" has somehow sparked a narrow beam of hope again. If you ever get an answer, do publish it.

ASHES

DEAR ASHES: If the Reproductive-Biological Research Center in St. Louis, Mo., can't solve your problem, nobody can!

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations to your reader, Leonard M. Lake, in regard to that young woman's decision to marry a conscientious objector. It does not follow that a person with pacifist convictions could not act to protect his family. Take it from no less a spokesman than Mahatma Gandhi:

"He who cannot protect himself or his nearest and dearest of their honor by nonviolently facing death, may not ought to do so by violently dealing with the oppressor. He who can do neither of the two is a burden. He has no business to be the head of a family. He must either hide himself, or must rest content to live forever in helplessness and be prepared to crawl like a worm at the bidding of a bully." Submitted by: SPENCER H. MACCALLUM SAN PEDRO, CALIF.

CONFIDENTIAL TO R. R. IN PORTLAND, ORE.: If you are serious about locating E. R. to tell her you are sorry and want to make everything up to her, save enough money to hire a private investigator. After your behavior, I wouldn't blame her family for refusing to let you know where she and your children (which you denied were yours under oath in court) are now living. If you find E. R. and she tells you to get lost, leave her alone.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Eldema DeLeon Talks On Philippine Islands

The Altrusa Club of Pampa met in the Starlight room of Coronado Inn.

Edelma DeLeon from the Philippines was interviewed by Katherine Sullins. Edelma reported that things are so flat in Texas that she misses most the mountains she can see from her window at home. She reported on her home life and her family in the Philippines.

She is attending West Texas State University at Canyon and commuting to school from Pampa. She is living with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Brown.

Members of the Altrusa Club, who attended a leadership training seminar in San Angelo, presented highlights of the workshops. Reports were given by tape by Vermell Meador and Genevieve Henderson. Oral reports were presented by Jimmie Lou Wainwright, Marian Jameson, Irene Cox, Katherine Sullins and Evelyn Mason. It was announced that two Altrusans have just been elected as officers of the Council of Clubs. They are Marian Stroup, as vice president and Ruth Sewell as treasurer.

South's jump to four spades is one of those all purpose preempts. He doesn't know if he can make it but he knows it's a good gamble.

West leads the three of diamonds. South goes up with one of dummy's high diamonds and leads a trump. West wins with the ace and has to decide between a heart or a club lead.

If he leads a club, South will collect the rest of the tricks and make a slam. If he leads a heart, East will win and give West a ruff whereupon a second heart trick will set declarer at his game contract.

In an expert partnership, West will have no problem with his lead at trick three. East will have dropped the jack of diamonds at trick one. West will know that his partner isn't showing diamond strength. He will also know that he isn't giving a count.

All East can be doing with that jack play is giving a suit preference signal to say "Partner, if you do get in, lead hearts, the higher ranking suit."

As a matter of fact, a very expert partnership might set the hand two tricks. West would lead his fourth best heart, the three. East would know that under these circumstances West would not lead fourth best from a suit headed by nothing at all. Hence, West would be showing the king of hearts by his low lead. Hoggish expert East would win the first heart with the queen, give his partner a diamond ruff, get in again with the ace and give him a second ruff.

Marketing Report

COLLEGE STATION—Vegetable choices available at reasonable prices include head lettuce, red and russet potatoes, carrots, celery and cabbage. Others are dry yellow onions, radishes, green onions, mustard, collards and turnip greens.

"Oranges continue to be in heavy supply," said Houston consumer marketing specialist Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service specialist said that strawberry supplies are increasing seasonally and fresh pineapples are available. She suggested checking sizes for better values first, then selecting fruit heavy for its size and as large as possible.

"Fryer chickens continue to give red meat costs a lot of competition and many markets have retail features on the whole and cut-up bird and on fryer parts," the Texas A&M University employee said. "Chicken hens are specially priced again in several markets."

Eggs continue to be a good buy—a source of nutritious protein at bargain prices. In looking for good meat buys, check for chuck roasts, chuck steaks, ground beef, round steak, boneless pork shoulder roasts and loin roasts."

Ruling Is Made On Containers

COLLEGE STATION—The Food and Drug Administration is working to prohibit lung disease caused by certain furniture polishes.

"After September 13, 1972, manufacturers of certain liquid furniture polishes must package their products in child-proof containers to comply with a new FDA regulation," noted Pat Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

The specialist explained that the regulation covers liquid furniture polishes that contain at least 10 per cent mineral seal oil, a crude form of mineral oil used to put a shine on furniture. When swallowed by children, such polishes can cause lung diseases.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, MAY 30

Your birthday today: Finds you putting your life together more coherently. The search for spiritual truth underlies everything that you attempt this complex adventurous year. Simplicity is your keyword for most endeavors. Today's natives often benefit from family or partnership ventures.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Haste generates confusion; slow down, say just what you do intend. Business practically runs itself. Take the needs of loved one into account.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Expect an interruption in the midst of your work; realize that it isn't something to blame on the people who have to abandon their hopes.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Bring yourself to a one-thing-at-a-time pace even though it may be inconvenient. Speculation will be troublesome, subject to later repercussions.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: The test today is whether you can see and stay out of a fight. Remember that while you lose your calm, you miss something else too.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: There are only so many loose ends you can catch up at one time—select what you think you can attend properly and concentrate solely on that.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Impulse runs toward changes of relationship, affiliations. Leave your checkbook at home if you aren't sure of your self-discipline.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Just when you think you have reached a balance and have several ventures going, a challenge comes to your abilities.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Normal action pays off in conservative terms. Special opportunity opens amidst exterior readjustments. Take your share while the taking is good.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Don't talk about money and what you want to do with it. Check out the facts and if you still want to go ahead, do so without fanfare.

Baseball Roundup

By Associated Press

Vida Blue had a pretty good start Sunday, but George Hendrick provided an even better finish. Blue, Oakland's celebrated holdout, made his first 1972 start and fired five scoreless innings against the Chicago White Sox...

Two innings later, the Dodgers won it. Second baseman Bobby Fenwick threw Russell's leadoff grounder away for an error. Russell moved up on a sacrifice and after Steve Garvey bounced out, first baseman Lee May kicked Bobby Valentine's grounder, allowing the winning run to score.

Blue settled down after that, hitting only a third-inning single to Richie Allen. "I was as good as I had to be," he said. "I need at least four starts to get back where I was last year."

When Abner Doubleday thought up that game with the bats and balls and bases, he remembered to give all the players a glove.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, St. Louis beat New York 8-3, Pittsburgh nipped Philadelphia 6-5, San Diego beat Cincinnati 5-2 and the Astros took a 4-3 lead into the ninth inning against the Dodgers with Larry Dierker working on a six-hitter.

Expo Shortstop Battles Pressure

Tim Foli Leads the League in Temper

By IRA BERKOW NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — One can only painfully imagine Tim Foli's inner tortures.

He is the Montreal Expos' shortstop, lean and taut and volatile as a firecracker.

At age 21, he is filled with talent and promise and unquenchable temper.

In the space of one week in late May, he was fined $100 for throwing down his batting helmet and bat at a called third strike, and then thumbed out of a game while protesting with throbbing neck veins another called third strike.

With the New York Mets this spring, he got into a clubhouse argument with coach Joe Pignatano and heaved a punch. Not long after, he was traded to Montreal.

Conceivably this punch had something to do with the trade, the last blow as far as the Mets were concerned.

They may have felt that, for all of Foli's aggressiveness and potential, they are not running a Stillman's gym. For in the dugout last summer Foli had also presented Ed Kranepool with a knuckle sandwich.

On the field, Foli will make an infield out and run at the first baseman in sheer frustration. In the dugout, he walks the planks a thousand times like a worrisome preliminary fighter.

In customarily sensitive fashion, teammates call Foli "nutsy." And "Crazy Horse." And "redneck."

"It's because I'm so high-strung," he says.

He says he is driven to be the best shortstop in baseball, but has so far succeeded in being only the brashest.

If teammates are of little help and understanding, umpires are even less so. His spectacular complaints are taken by defensive umpires as an attempt to show them up.

"Half the umpires in the league are trying to curb his temper," said Montreal manager Gene Mauch. "They're so smart they ought to be psychiatrists at Columbia."

Mauch, however, says that he would like to channel Foli's fiery spirit. "He wants to be the first man to hit 1,000," said Mauch. "He won't be, of course. And when he understands that he'll be a different guy. But it takes experience for someone to learn just how capable he is."

Foli, an intelligent, un-smiling fellow whose steel-rimmed glasses add a degree of austerity, says he is so wound up before a game that he has difficulty eating, and finds it so hard to unwind after a game that he tosses in bed well into the night.

"I'm working on my self-control," he says. "I'm trying hard to relax more."

Yet when he goes 0-for-20, as he did in May, he begins to tighten the grip of his bat and the grit of his teeth. Do I have it? must be a persistent thought.

He obviously expects a great deal of himself. He was signed by the Mets for a reported $75,000 bonus as No. 1 free agent draft choice in 1968. After three good seasons in the minors, he spent much of 1971 on the Mets' bench; he hit 226 in 97 games. He was sometimes erratic in the field and, when the team floundered, he was distressingly booed.

Foli received a break by going to Montreal where a starting job was open to him. He wants to make the most of it, in a hurry. He comes from a baseball family and, it seems, is looking over his shoulder at it. He had an older brother who, he says, only had a "cup of coffee" in the majors, with the California Angels. And Foli's father was his team manager in Little League. There remain unspoken pressures.

"I talk to my dad about once a week on the phone," says Foli, "and we both feel the same way about my career. It isn't success just being here. You've got to do something to make yourself known. You've got to prove you can play."

Pressure in the big leagues for anyone, especially for an unproven 21-year-old, is monumental. Before 40,000 ungenerous fans, each trip to the plate can be a trauma. One thinks of some other "high-strung" players like Ted Williams and Ty Cobb who learned to handle the pressure. And some like Jimmy Piersall and the young Tony Horton who did not.

Tim Foli, Montreal Expos shortstop, battles pressure in the majors.

French Indulge In Football Fantasies

PARIS (AP) — In the first off-tackle quick opener in France since Louis XVI ran out of Versailles in a hurry, Jim Kiick of the Miami Dolphins plunged Saturday toward what looked like a hole between his blocker and his guard.

However, a crew of second-rounders—line-backers—and a nasty-looking ailer-end—in mean old Ben Davidson of the Oakland Raiders greeted Kiick and threw him to the chewed turf of Charley Stadium.

There was no gain on the play, the opening one in an hour long demonstration by U.S. National Football League stars of their sport to the French. And in truth, little more yardage was picked up in getting them to understand what the sport was all about.

"Des monstres, des colosses, des geants," the handful of French in a crowd of 3,000 murmured, getting their first glimpse at the men in the shoulder pads.

Millions of other bemused Frenchmen watched the blocking and tackling on national television, after a week's softening process in which newspapers tried to explain that American football was an off-spring of rugby, which the French play with ingenuity and elegance.

Actually, a bit less than a legitimate offspring, said L'Equipe, the sports daily. "This bastard," it wrote, "is only recognized by the United States." It also informed its readers that the game is played with a rubber ball and "that anyone can aggress anyone else on the field."

France-Soir, the nation's biggest circulation newspaper, went deeper into the fantasy world with its explanations, saying that free kicks worth three points were given for brutality or obstruction and that offside was penalized by penalty kicks worth a point.

But the French were particularly thrown by a quirk in the demonstration that gave the ball constantly to an offensive formation that included Bob Hayes of the Dallas Cowboys, Gene Washington of the San Francisco 49ers and Tom Matte of the Baltimore Colts.

"Always the same men with the ball," a Frenchman said. "Impossible in France. Everybody would want a piece of it."

Foyt Hurt

DUQUIN (AP) — Race driver A. J. Foyt was listed in good condition at Marshall Browning Hospital where he remained overnight Sunday with burns suffered during a pit stop in a 100-mile United States Auto Club event earlier in the day.

Officials at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds said Foyt, a three-time winner of the Indianapolis 500, was leading the event by 35 seconds when he pulled into the pit to refuel on the 86th lap.

Foyt apparently left the pit area too soon, authorities said, jerking the fuel hose from his Ford-powered racing car and spilling the fuel on his back and into the car's cockpit.

The fuel then ignited, causing Foyt to leap from the car, his clothes ablaze. While attendants extinguished the fire, the car proceeded an eighth of a mile down the track.

Bob Lunn Birdies 18 Wins Atlanta By Two

ATLANTA (AP) — "I can't remember hitting the putt on 18," said an almost-dazed Bob Lunn Sunday after he ended a year-long victory drought on the pro golf tour with a twoshot victory in the $130,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I think everyone goes through these things," Lunn said of the lengthy slump that had seen him win only $7,307 on this year's tour before grabbing the $26,000 first prize here.

"I don't know what happened," he said. "My putting slacked off and I was not hitting the ball as well."

Ryun Frustrated By Weekend Track

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Eleven records, including an American women's standard in the high jump, were set during the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet here over the weekend, but for Jim Ryun it marked another time of frustration.

Ryun, the world mile and half-mile record holder who is trying for a comeback which will carry him to the Munich Olympics this year, sustained a muscle strain in his right thigh running on a wet track in a qualifying heat Friday. He had to scratch from the 880-yard final Saturday.

Triple Success

Only 11 players in major league history have led their league in home runs, runs batted in and batting average in the same season. Ted Williams and Rogers Hornsby each did it twice. Williams with the Boston Red Sox in 1942 and 1947, Hornsby with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1922 and 1925.

Shaving Strokes

by Frank Beard

I have been asked if I recommend cross-handed putting. My basic view is that it is a temporary, band-aid remedy. You are substituting one error for another, and no good putter does that.

However, I do not deny that it works for people who are having trouble with their putting nerves—people who have the "yips." There usually are a few fellows putting cross-handed on the tour. I guess Orville Moody is the best-known at the moment.

If your putting stroke is jerky, you're flippy with your right hand and you're afraid to hit a putt, the cross-handed style can firm you up. It gives your left hand the lead, instead of your right. You will lose feel but gain firmness.

38—Putting a Double-Break It amazes me how often I hear an average player who is faced with a putt that breaks twice say that he wants to play the ball straight. He figures the two breaks cancel each other out.

They don't. If you have a 12-foot putt that breaks a foot to the right in the first six feet and a foot to the left in the second six feet—a fairly common challenge—you have to play the breaks separately.

The best method is to play for the first break and let the second one take care of itself, which it will if you stroke the ball solidly.

'5 For 1' Come-On

The theories of socialism and, of course, advocates of the theories themselves, are chockfull of brain-teasing cliches. Unfortunately, many people who do not regard themselves as Socialists repeat and spread the cliches simply because they sound plausible and because they have never heard them exposed for the vicious foolishness they are.

For instance, how many times have you heard and repeated these without knowing that you were hearing and helping to spread anti-freedom socialist propaganda?
—"The more complex the society, the more government control we need."
—"If we had no social security, many people would go hungry."
—"The size of national debt doesn't matter because we owe it to ourselves."
—"Why, you'd take us back to the horse and buggy."
—"The free market ignores the poor."
—"Human rights are more important than property rights."
—"Competition is fine, but not at the expense of human beings."
—"We're paying for it, so we might as well get our share."
—"Customers ought to be protected by price controls."
—"Labor is not a commodity."
—"From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs."
—"There ought to be a law."
—"Nobody is worth a million dollars."
—"Tax the rich to help the poor."
—"Wars bring jobs and prosperity."
—"I'm for private enterprise—BUT!"
—"Rent control protects tenants."
—"Public housing helps to reduce crime."

All social cliches, all anti-private enterprise, all either totally or predominately untrue, all destructive of freedom, and all exploded, along with dozens of others, in "Cliches of Socialism," published by the Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, New York.
But there is a relatively new one making the scene of late. It was coined this past week at an Environmental Planning Association Symposium in support of "CURE" and other "Urban Renewal" activities financed with local taxpayer dollars routed through Washington, D.C. and returned with cream skimmed off the top. The cliche goes like this:
—"Every federal (taxpayer) dollar put in redevelopment programs generates five dollars in private enterprise financing."
The spokesman for the "Urban Renewal" scheme went on to add: "The idea of the program is to encourage private investment for the purpose of rebuilding the cities. The whole idea of the renewal program is directed toward promoting free enterprise." (Which, incidentally, is a blatant contradiction. You don't promote private enterprise by indulging in socialistic programs any more than you promote honesty and thrift by indulging in theft and profligate spending.)

We have labeled the social cliche "The '5 for 1' Come-On," for that, precisely is what it is. The come-on has just the right amount of plausibility to qualify it as a social cliche.

Plausible, because the principle expressed, when applied to private enterprise, does tend to do what the cliche claims. It is common knowledge that money spent in the market place to build and expand public-serving enterprise does tend to attract other enterprises and, consequently, additional capital spending. For proof of this, one need only observe any of the many shopping centers and the many peripheral enterprises that have sprung up around them. The "five for one" formula used by the "Urban Renewal" spokesman, however, is an arbitrary equation picked out of the thin air, as there is nothing in either economics or logic in support of such an exact ratio.

On the other hand, the principle expressed in the cliche, when applied to government spending of tax monies, tends to operate just to the contrary. And here are some of the reasons why:

1. A dollar, taken by force from its rightful owner in taxes and spent by the government, is a dollar which the owner cannot himself spend or otherwise invest. Therefore, since private enterprise gets its capital from individual spending and investment, a dollar spent by the government is a dollar that private enterprise cannot spend. Or, to put it another way: every dollar added to the government's ability to spend reduces private enterprise's ability to spend by a like amount.

2. Taxes, as they grow day by day, leave less and less for the individual to invest after the necessities of life are paid for. Therefore, instead of generating private enterprise spending for capital construction as the cliche would have you believe, government spending of tax money actually inhibits private enterprise spending. Nor is it difficult to see, once the taxing process advances past a certain point, leaving the individual nothing to invest after the necessities of life are taken care of, that government spending would make private enterprise spending for capital construction impossible. With government at all levels now taking from one-third to one-half of what the average person earns, and with no signs of curbing its increasing appetite, we are rapidly approaching that point.

3. Since government doesn't have to worry about profit or operating efficiently, relying on the tax-gun instead to make up its deficits, money put into its hands tends to be spent wastefully on bureaucratic monuments and other political boondoggles, while money put into the hands of private enterprise, on the other hand, tends to be spent economically on creating products and services the consuming public really wants simply because private enterprise must serve the public, operate efficiently, and show a profit or go broke.

4. But all the three foregoing arguments against government spending are purely economic. The moral, and primary, argument is yet to come. It is simply this: Government spending of funds taken forcibly from their rightful owners and disbursed by persons to whom they do NOT belong. And that, putting it as bluntly as we know how, is stealing by ANY objective definition.
The argument that, "Every federal (taxpayer) dollar put in redevelopment programs generates five dollars in private enterprise financing" is a social cliche calculated to make the taxpaying victims of such "generation" believe that they are being benefited by being robbed. Know it for what it is.

Home Front Is Big Cost -Not War

WASHINGTON (NEA)—For far too long, loose talk has marred the public debate over how much money can and should be spent for the nation's rising burden of pressing social needs.

It is not different here today as leading contenders for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination battle in the climactic California primary. The air is thick with promises of "reordered priorities," of rebuilding the cities, ending poverty, producing jobs for all, better schools, more Social Security, fuller health care, better housing, welfare reform, day care for children of working mothers, etc.

As these things roll off the tongues of Sens. George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey, top Democratic rivals, the steady listener often gets the idea that very little has been spent for social programs—and that there is almost no limit to what we could spend if we would just end the "costly" Vietnam war and get with it at home.

Well, another good look at the newly published treasure trove, the Brookings Institution's annual study of the proposed federal budget, will give us some sobering insights into this facile oratory.

To begin, let's note that 10 years ago civilian programs consumed 47 per cent of federal expenditures, but in President Nixon's budget for fiscal 1973 they are expected to consume 66 per cent.

Some social programs are of a reasonable long standing—Social Security, basic welfare, veterans' benefits. Ten years ago they cost $28.4 billion a year. In the new budget they will come to $74.9 billion.

The year 1965 was a watershed period, under a host of new programs under the "great society" heading were launched. These included Medicare and Medicaid, various categories of aid to education, manpower training, anti-poverty projects, housing subsidies, health aids. A decade back, outlays in these general fields totaled no more than $1.7 billion yearly. In fiscal 1973, they should reach $35.7 billion.

Put the categories together. In the 10-year span, these outlays have risen from $30.1 billion a year to a probable $110.6 billion. That's not exactly "starvation for social programs," as a McGovern aide once glibly asserted was the case up to now.

Now, as to this business of huge savings from ending our participation in the Vietnam war, Brookings takes care of that.
"The war is no longer a significant budgetary factor; at most it may absorb 5 per cent of the 1973 defense budget. Nor is it a source of significant savings in the future. The peace dividend has virtually been paid."

Brookings puts at $3.5 billion the "incremental cost" of the war—meaning that cost above what the defense establishment would spend in fiscal 1973 if there were no war. Roughly $2.5 billion of that sum goes not for direct United States war outlays, but for aid to South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Thailand. Some of this might go on a good while.
As noted in an earlier report, most of the savings from our heavy withdrawals from Vietnam have already been soaked up by steeply rising defense manpower costs due to higher pay scales.

All the new programs our 1972 politicians promise so fervently on the campaign stump—including property tax relief, revenue-sharing and cleaning up the welfare mess—are incredibly costly. And no public utterance, not even McGovern's sober tax reform and defense cut proposals, is telling us with hard realism where that money can come from unless we take on still bigger tax loads.

Politics Is A Gamble; It's Win Or Lose Deal

By PAUL HARVEY

Surely the classic quote of this political season was when AP's Lee Byrd said, "What happened to Ed Muskie, for crying out loud?"

One after another, presidential hopefuls have left some comfortable niche in Senate, House or governor's mansion and sought the national following which might lead to the more venerated if less comfortable niche in the White House.

And one after another they have had to surrender their swords—Hughes, Harris, Lindsay, McCloskey, Hartke—Muskie.

Political primaries are a precarious gamble. You win and it ensures nothing. You lose, and your financial supporters drop out from under you.

The only adequate reason for campaigning for the presidential nomination in the several state primaries is for a locally prominent politician to get his name recognized nationally.

That's why the Kennedys can afford to sit 'em out.

In my professional recollection, no man had a bigger head start toward the nomination than did Sen. Ed Muskie six months ago. He was well remembered for his polite deference to running-mate Humphrey conveyed an illusion of immense inner strength.

He was a great second banana. But he is no star. When-his hopes were finally buried in Pennsylvania, Sen. Muskie modified his own epitaph: "I'm everybody's second choice."

Factually, actually, he's not even that.

Ed Muskie lost his lead because he stumbled too many times.

For a politician to remark that "a ticket including a black vice-presidential candidate could not win at this time" is wrong even if it is right.

For anybody to refer to Canadians as "Canuks" is inexcusably disrespectful. Write off another minority.

For a potential Commander-in-Chief to urge disengagement in Indochina but then say we may have to fight in the Middle East—that offends the whole antiwar majority.

Then, standing on that flatbed truck in the New Hampshire snow, he shed tears for the TV cameras.

Sen. Muskie—defending his wife against published reports that she had used profanity, invited dirty jokes—merely focused additional attention on the accusation and, at the same time, diluted with tears his own image as a strong, self-confident leader.

The people want their President to appear in total command of himself, even when it's a mask.

And then, of course, the war heated up at a most opportune time to favor a peace candidate, and Sen. McGovern had already corralled that following.

Tragically, however, his essential honesty finally did him in. Muskie sought to claim for himself the philosophical "middle ground" and Mr. Nixon owns that.

During 1971, more than 31.9 million persons owned shares in American corporations, compared to 8.63 million in 1956. The World Almanac notes, The New York Exchange listed 1,896 issues of 1,400 companies for a total of 16.9 billion shares, valued at $711.9 billion on Aug. 31, 1971.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Allergy Can Be Difficult to Trace

Dear Dr. Lamb—Some time ago I read an article by you about the person who had swelling of the lips (angioneurotic edema) and had been tested for all kinds of allergies for almost everything. I wanted to add my experience in hope that it would help somebody.

I had this problem when I was in high school and had intermittent attacks of clonely and itchy face. I was told not to eat this or drink that and not to be nervous. My problem was simple aspirin. Oh, I didn't get the attacks immediately after taking the aspirin, but some times several days later and with observation and study it became apparent that I was allergic to the salicylate which is in aspirin and in other medicines.

Whenever I have been in the hospital since then, I have often had trouble convincing people that I have an allergy to aspirin and salicylates and every once in awhile someone gives it to me and I have trouble again, but if I am successful in avoiding taking any aspirin or salicylates of any type, I don't have any problem. It has made a great difference in my life and it means being able to live a perfectly normal life without any itchy, clonely face and running to the hospital emergency room for adrenalin.

Dear Reader—Thank you for your nice letter. It is true that some people are allergic to aspirin, like you. Unfortunately, many people have this same problem from allergies to other substances and, as you have discovered, it is a long, drawn-out process in finding which substance is guilty. You are very fortunate and saw a very good doctor. Certainly allergy to aspirin or other medicines should be considered when searching for the cause of an allergy.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Would you explain why caffeine is always included with aspirin and other medicines for headaches?

Dear Reader—Caffeine is useful in relieving headaches in some people because it causes constriction of the arteries to the head, both inside and outside the skull. A large number of temporary dilation of these arteries and if the caffeine causes them to constrict the headache is relieved.

However, it is not going to help the person who is accustomed to drinking lots of coffee.

New Viet Weapons Point Up U.S. Intelligence Failure

By Robert S. Allen

Whatever the outcome of the desperately fateful fighting in Vietnam, two grimly significant military realities already are inescapably clear:
(1) The overall striking force and firepower of the North Vietnamese were grossly underestimated.
(2) Ability of the air to stop the Communists was equally overestimated.

Both miscalculations were basically intelligence failures. "Killer weapon" of the Communist offensive is the Russian-supplied 130-mm. highly mobile field gun, with a range of 17 miles and pinpoint accuracy due to an ingeniously sophisticated computerized sighting mechanism. With this device, a shell can be dropped into a barrel 17 miles away.

It was the incessant hammering of large numbers of these 130-mm. field pieces that shattered South Vietnamese forces and positions on the DMZ, and sent their 3rd Division and other units reeling back.

Initially, the Reds definitely scored a tactical surprise. From skillfully camouflaged emplacements miles north of the DMZ, mobile batteries of the 130-mm. Soviet guns destroyed virtually all of South Vietnam's key defensive firebases below the DMZ—manned with U.S. 175-mm. propelled howitzers. This is an excellent and accurate artillery piece with a 22-mile range, but most of them were knocked out in the Reds' unexpectedly overwhelming barrages.

The North Vietnamese expended shells without stint. To wipe out some of the firebases, they fired as many as 2,000 rounds—all from positions as much as 15 miles north of the DMZ.

There was no let-up in this devastating gunnery.

The Communists' seemingly unlimited supply of artillery and other ammunition is another of the stunningly painful surprises of their offensive. Tragic examples: more than 200,000 rounds poured into Hue, Quang Tri, Mychanh, Danang, An Loc and other centers. In one 24-hour period in the long and bitterly fought struggle over An Loc, the Reds fired some 10,000 shells. For days there, their total was never less than 2,500 rounds.

It was this huge steady shelling that kept large South Vietnamese relief columns from reaching An Loc for weeks.

Repeated strikes by B-52s and swarms of fighter-bombers had relatively minimal effect on the 130-mm. because they were constantly moved around. Towed by jeeplike vehicles, these guns are very mobile; they are quickly and easily shifted about and just as readily set up and fired in a new position.

Saving Punch

There can be no question that U.S. air has been the crucial counterbalancing factor in the decisive battlefield struggle transpiring in South Vietnam.

Without U.S. air, Saigon would have collapsed weeks ago. It was U.S. air that slowed down the Reds and prevented their overrunning the country, as they carefully planned and confidently expected.

Undoubtedly, U.S. air exacted an immense and fearful toll from the Hanoi invaders.

At the same time, air displayed marked and grievous shortcomings—which are not new! Air can be annihilating against fixed and stationary targets—depots, tank farms, bridges, port facilities, fortified positions, massed troops, armor, etc. Air has batteringly demonstrated this in Vietnam against the Communists. Almost continuous large-scale air strikes have made the saving difference against the Reds.

But in the crucial struggle on the ground, the power and impact of the air was sadly overestimated. It has not been a decisive factor in stopping the North Vietnamese.

As in Korea, Europe, Africa, Sicily and elsewhere, the conflict in Vietnam has again forcefully demonstrated that to hold ground and to take ground requires ground forces—men, tanks and guns. Air is a valuable help but not the key ingredient.

Communist air power has been almost non-existent. But the Reds have had overwhelming ground strength and firepower—and that is what has so devastatingly counted.

These somber realities and facts have not been lost on Pentagon leaders and planners. They are being earnestly and critically examined and discussed in quarters that count—foremost among them the National Security Council, headed by President Nixon himself.

What will be done remains to be seen. But at least for the time being, these vital problems are being recognized and discussed.

Who Did It?
It was Sen. Edward Kennedy—who is loquaciously professing to keep hands off the tense Democratic Presidential race—who put over that endorsement of Sen. George McGovern by Mrs. Coretta King.

The widow of Dr. Martin Luther King announced this electrifying blessing at the personal request of Kennedy.

Mrs. King does not know the New Left South Dakota. McGovern has never been in the forefront of the civil rights movement. In all the state primaries so far, he has run poorly in black centers, way behind Sen. Hubert Humphrey and other candidates.

In Indiana and Illinois where McGovern was soundly beaten, he was greatly out-distanced by Humphrey in every black district. It was these black majorities that put Humphrey on top in these states.

But when Teddy Kennedy personally appealed to Mrs. King to endorse his backstage candidate, she promptly complied.

Kennedy's strong influence with Dr. King's widow goes back to the Massachusetts Senator's two older brothers, particularly Bobby. As JFK's campaign manager and subsequent Attorney General, Bobby took great pains to cultivate Dr. King. That paid off big when Bobby ran for the Senate in New York—although he actually was not a resident of the state. Bobby swept Harlem and other black centers.
