Rain showers in the area may slow the maize harvest, but some farmers report that their crops are not ready for the combine. Rainfall ranged from .95 inch reported by Charles Gatlin 25 miles east of Pampa to a trace on the Paul Eakin place 14 miles southwest of Pampa. W.E. Nelgon, located 12 miles south of Pampa, reported .9 inch, as did Jack Benton from eight miles northeast of Pampa and Charlie Jordan from Laketon. Dean Burger 20 miles south of Pampa reported .5 inch of moisture. (Pampa News photos by Michal Thompson)

Blacks leaders reject plan

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Presidents of five black African nations have rejected the plan of Rhodesia's white minority rulers to transfer power to the black majority but agreed to confer on establishment of an interim government.

They called Sunday for a British-sponsored conference to determine the procedure under which Rhodesia's whites will yield power to the blacks. Britain replied it would begin talks within 48 hours to set up such a meeting.

In Salisbury, Rhodesia, Prime Minister Ian Smith reacted tersely to the black leaders' demands, saying, "It looks as though the Communists are calling the tune in those parts." He said he would give "a little bit of attention" to the matter but would await reaction from the United States and Britain.

The Rhodesian foreign minister called the demands "totally unreasonable."

The presidents of Zambia, Tanzania, Mozambique, Angola and Botswana turned down the American-British transition plan agreed to last Friday by

Smith and "reaffirmed their commitment to the cause of liberation in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) and the armed struggle" against Smith's regime.

All five leaders, whose approval is considered vital to a successful settlement in Rhodesia, said that Smith's proposal for an interim government divided between blacks and whites would be "tantamount to legalizing colonialist and racist structures of power."

The presidents, at their summit meeting here, said the interim government must be dominated by blacks.

British Foreign Minister Anthony Crosland said in Blackpool, England, that Minister of State Edward Rowlands would fly to Botswana Tuesday and confer with the five presidents. He said that "the parties concerned" must say where the talks will be held and who will attend.

Rhodesian Foreign Minister P.K. van der Byl said of the Lusaka statement that it would be "totally unreasonable to expect us to change our stand when the proposals were theirs and not ours and we accepted them."

South African Prime Minister John Vorster, who played a major role in persuading Smith to accept the plan put forward by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, called the black presidents' position "difficult to understand."

The Rhodesian government has fully executed the agreement reached during talks he and Smith had with Kissinger last week. Vorster said in a statement "It is of cardinal importance that if a peaceful solution is to be found, the United States and British governments must as soon as possible clear up the confusion which now exists."

In Washington, the U.S. State Department said "we have seen the statement of the African presidents in Lusaka and welcome it," and "The United States is now consulting with the United Kingdom" on the conference demand.

Presidents Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Agostinho Neto of Angola, Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Samora Machel of Mozambique and Seretse Khama of Botswana met for 4½ hours to discuss the Rhodesian situation. Also attending was Joshua Nkomo, head of one faction of Rhodesia's divided African National Council. Nkomo is considered most likely to become Rhodesia's first black prime minister.

The five presidents have been active supporters of the black nationalist drive in Rhodesia, and guerrillas fighting in the country are based in Zambia and Mozambique.

They balked at Smith's proposals on the structure of the interim government that would set up black majority rule within two years.

Tax rate, budget heads city session Tuesday

Final reading of ordinances approving Pampa's $3.2 million operating budget and setting the $1.95 tax rate for fiscal 1976-77 is scheduled for Tuesday's meeting of the City Commission at 9:30 a.m. in City Hall.

Also on the agenda will be ordinances approving a 7 percent increase in rates on all three city utilities — water, sanitary sewer and residential and commercial trash collections.

The new rates will become effective with the first billings after Oct. 1, start of the new fiscal year. The only fee that remains unchanged is the $4.50 minimum charge for the first 3,000 gallons of water.

The Tuesday meeting will open with a public hearing on the proposed removal or demolition of abandoned buildings at 729 N. Banks, 1622 Alcock, 868 S. Faulkner, 1106 W.

Wilks, 945 S. Wilcox, 807 Scott, 837 and 1000 Denver, 829 Gordon and 815 and 909 Campbell.

Other items on the agenda:

- Consider extension of the current water service contract with Dorchester Gas Producing Co., Skellytown.
- Adoption of the city compensation plan for fiscal 1976-77.
- Consideration of proposed salary changes to become effective in October.

Arabia threatens new oil embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department officials today denied a report that Saudi Arabia has threatened a new oil embargo against the United States if Congress enacts legislation aimed at weakening the Arab boycott of Israel.

The official Middle East News Agency said Sunday that such a warning was made to American officials by the Saudi foreign minister, Prince Saud Bin Faisal, who is in the United States for the United Nations General Assembly.

But officials at State said conversations with the prince over the issue have not carried any threats of a new embargo as retaliation if the bill, which would ban American firms from honoring the boycott of Israel, is enacted.

The Middle East News Agency report, an account of which appeared on the front page of the Washington Post today, prompted several congressional leaders to make sharp comments about the purported threat before the story was denied by State.

Syrians hang three guerrillas

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian government hanged three pro-Palestinian guerrillas at dawn today in swift retribution for a bloody raid on a Damascus hotel just 24 hours earlier.

A fourth guerrilla and four hostages were killed and 34 hostages were wounded in a seven-hour battle for the Semiramis Hotel in the most daring Palestinian attack yet in Syria.

The three surviving terrorists were hanged in a public square facing the luxury hotel. Their bodies, clad only in white tunics, were left dangling in nooses for six hours as thousands of Syrians pressed around the gallows and climbed to balconies and rooftops to see the victims.

The guerrillas called themselves the "Black June" group and apparently were protesting Syria's military intervention that began last June in the Lebanese civil war.

Before they were executed, the three went on Syrian state television and said they belonged to Al Fatah, the biggest Palestinian guerrilla group. They also said they had been trained in Iraq, which has supported radical Arab organizations and has denounced the Syrian role in Lebanon.

But in Beirut, a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), the Palestinian umbrella group headed by Yasser Arafat, denied that any PLO members were responsible. Arafat also heads Al Fatah, which is considered to be less radical than some Palestinian guerrilla units.

A Syrian government statement said the four hostages who died Sunday were killed by the terrorists. Three of the slain hostages were women, and witnesses said all were Arabs. Three Americans were reported in the hotel at the time and one, National Broadcasting Co. assistant producer Robert Castenbach, was taken hostage but was unharmed, the U.S. Embassy said.

According to an account pieced together from witnesses and security officers, the four-member team pulled up to the hotel at about 5 a.m. Sunday in a dark blue car with Lebanese license plates. They asked for a room, were told none was available, left and returned with submachine guns and grenades.

Security officers said the commandos moved from floor to floor of the five-story hotel rousing guests from their sleep and taking them captive. Someone called police and the hotel was immediately surrounded, witnesses said.

Security forces cut off communications to the hotel and the guerrillas, holding the top floor, opened fire and hurled grenades down on the Syrians.

Military police and plainclothes intelligence agents returned the fire and besieged the building for about four hours until Syrian Premier Gen. Abdul Rahman Khleifawi and Defense Minister Mustafa Tlas, who were at the scene, ordered the assault.

Some troops dashed into the lobby and worked their way upstairs while others clambered up fire-truck ladders and entered through upper-floor windows, firing automatic weapons and tear-gas grenades. After a furious three-hour gun battle, they subdued the terrorists.

It was not clear when the hostages were killed.

Bidding on bumbershoot

Bidding at the annual auction of unclaimed merchandise from the Pampa police property room was spirited as 90 of the 93 items offered were sold. Det. J.J. Ryzman was the auctioneer at the sale which netted over $780 for the city's general fund. The three items for which Ryzman could get no bids — a girdle, a shirt and a new pair of panties — will be returned to the property room for inclusion in next year's sale. An estimated 80-90 persons attended the auction Saturday. (Pampa News photo by Jeanne Grimes)

Peggy Baker enters race for jp post

Peggy Baker, currently serving as clerk in District Attorney Guy Hardin's office in Gray County Courthouse, will be on the Nov. 2 ballot as an independent candidate for the office of justice of peace provided a sufficient number of signatures on her petitions are certified.

Mrs. Baker said today that she obtained about 300 signatures on petition forms circulated Thursday and Friday. She said that 226 signatures are required to get her name on the ballot.

The number of signatures needed is based on five per cent of the number of people who voted in the last gubernatorial election in precinct 2.

The Republican Party nomination for the post went to Mrs. Venora Cole, daughter of the late Mr. Anderson and current court-appointed temporary justice of peace.

Both Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Baker had applied to the Democratic Party for selection as JP candidate, but a third applicant, Mrs. R.W. McPhillips, was selected by the Demo executive committee.

Two years remain of a four-year term.

Fifteen Air Force men on a training flight and four pharmaceutical company executives en route with their wives to a meeting at a plush Virginia resort were among 35 persons killed in plane crashes during a deadly six-hour span.

The crashes Sunday in four states left at least 15 children orphaned — children of the Johnson & Johnson subsidiaries' officials who died with their wives in a fiery crash at Hot Springs, Va. Three crew members aboard the company-owned jet also were killed.

In Colorado, a lawyer and his wife returning to Denver from a meeting at a summer and ski resort in Steamboat Springs were among six persons killed in the crash of a twin-engine Aztec Piper which slammed into two propane fuel storage tanks and burst into flames.

And three persons died in Illinois when their single-engine aircraft plunged into the Illinois River near Peoria.

Air Force officials said there were five survivors of the crash of a KC135 tanker jet which went down in a wooded area near Alpena, Mich., sometime after 8:30 a.m. Sunday. That's when Wurtsmith Air Force Base last had radar and radio contact with the pilot.

Two majors, nine captains, two 1st lieutenants and two sergeants died. Three captains and a 1st lieutenant from Kincheloe AFB and an airman 1st class from K.I. Sawyer AFB were admitted to Alpena General Hospital, where four were listed in serious but stable condition and the other in very good condition early today.

The plane, carrying five crew members and 15 passengers, ripped a swath 50 yards wide and half a mile long before crashing into a swamp a mile from the nearest road, witnesses said. The largest remaining recognizable part of the aircraft, the military equivalent of a Boeing 707, was a 20-foot section of tail structure.

Survivors were airlifted to the hospital, and the 15 bodies were evacuated to a temporary morgue set up in the same building.

Capt. Charles Pinkard of Wurtsmith, near the crash site in Lower Michigan, said the jet was en route from K.I. Sawyer in the Upper Peninsula to Offutt AFB, Neb., with a stopover at Kincheloe.

He said most of the victims were scheduled to participate in a special training program at Strategic Air Command headquarters.

At Ingalls Field in Hot Springs, the wreckage of the Grumman Gulfstream II jet owned by Johnson & Johnson of New Brunswick, N.J., was spotted by helicopter about 1 p.m. The plane, carrying Johnson subsidiaries officials and their wives from Trenton, N.J., to a Pharmaceutical Manufacturing Association meeting at the Homestead Hotel, plunged into a fog-shrouded mountain ravine and caught fire about 500 feet below the runway.

The airport is surrounded by mountains, and there is a drop off at each end of the runway.

Visibility was poor at the time of the crash, and a National Transportation Safety Board spokesman said the last report from the pilot indicated that he was attempting an instrument landing approach.

The spokesman for the NTSB team dispatched to investigate the crash said early today that the pilot apparently made two passes at the runway before the crash.

Dennis Sutton, a Civil Air Patrol member who was the first at the scene, said the plane erupted in fire on impact — "It was totaled, burned. Everything was gone."

It was at about the same time that a twin-engine plane carrying Don R. Evans, partner in the Denver law firm of Yegge, Hall and Evans, and his wife struck two propane fuel storage tanks shortly after takeoff from the Steamboat Springs, Colo., airport.

Evans, 50, and his wife, Garnett, were returning home from his firm's annual meeting at the ski and summer resort community in northwestern Colorado. Four other persons aboard also died.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Dave Olds said the Aztec Piper plane struck the storage tanks and was set ablaze soon after takeoff about 1 p.m.

An Illinois crash about 11 a.m. claimed the lives of three Peoria residents en route to Lancaster, Pa., from Mount Hawley airport. State police said the single-engine plane went down in the Illinois River about five miles from Peoria.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Postal officials and the law of limited returns

It would appear that U.S. Postal officials have never heard of the law of limited returns. This is a familiar phenomenon which makes itself felt in mechanics and in chemical objectives. It is also a potent factor in many economic goals. Expressing this law in our own way it would be an observation that "gains can be directly enhanced by addition of ingredients up to a certain point."

When the limiting point has been reached, the more ingredients added the less the gains until a no-gain point stops further progress.

The U.S. Postal Service has been adding ingredients of more charges to the customer and added inconvenience with more poor service.

As large customers are lost, the only answer officials can come up with is less service and steep added charges. When the first class stamp was still only 10 cents, a large power company began delivering its own bills and saved about $250,000 per year.

How much business has been lost since the stamp went to 13 cents is unknown here. But the guess would be that losses are considerable. Even federal agencies are now seeking and finding other methods to cut their use of first class mail.

Private industry is rapidly being lost as a postal customer for it also seeks and finds more efficient and less costly service. But the old U.S. postal mule plods ever slower and eats up more money with every change of management policy.

Monopolies are never very efficient because they are not subjected to the discipline of competition. The worst monopolies are those controlled and operated by government.

The operating deficit of the U.S. Postal Service was 13 million dollars in 1972. In the year that ends in 1977 the deficit will be near 4.5 billion dollars. And with this tremendous subsidy the people are getting deteriorating service at greater cost.

When the old postal mule finally falters and takes his last step, a couple of burial plots should also be reserved for AMTRAK and CONRAIL. These two subsidized political monopolies will never equal the life of the doddering postal mule.

Mao Tse-tung the evil

The recent death of Mao Tse-tung, as much as any single recent event, highlights the moral affliction of the West, not in the fact, of course, of the death itself but in the adulatory comments pouring forth from political leaders and the awed respect given by those liberal show business personalities on television as well as their counterparts in the print media.

If the moral traditions of western civilization mean anything, Mao Tse-tung was a consummately evil man. That he was "successful" in his pursuit of power is really beside the point: the same could be said for Adolph Hitler through his first ten years of reign and Josef Stalin throughout his life.

For the benefit of those too young to remember, in the process of consolidating his political hold on China, Mao exterminated 25 to 30 million people. What we are not talking about are those who would have been killed in conventional military combat but did not fit the procrustean bed of communism.

President Ford recently hailed Mao "vision and imagination" while former President Nixon recognized Mao as a "man of courage." Everything very respectful with no recognition of the catastrophe a man like Mao has been to the lives of hundreds of millions of people.

At the bottom of all this deference accorded to Mao, we suppose, rests the uneasy alliance that all politicians hold toward their fellows whose lives are also governed by political expediency. The great "respect" accorded by the liberal pundits of the media, on the other hand, is probably grounded in their affinity to socialism. As a dewey-eyed lady once commented to us in our office, "Chinese communism is really a form of Christianity."

The tradition of sympathy toward communism goes very deep in the liberal psyche as Whittaker Chambers pointed out years ago. If you could just somehow remove the blood and violence from communism, most liberal objections vanish.

Mao Tse-tung was an evil man if there has ever been such a thing as an evil man walking the earth. Attempts to treat him as a latter day St. Paul are born either out of the absence of a sound morality or a commitment to socialist-communist tyranny.

"PAY TAXES? HOW ABOMINABLY COMMON!"

FORD APPOINTMENTS

Congress holds up 70 of them

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 — In case you haven't noticed, important presidential appointments are not being made these days — with good reason!

They haven't a chance of being confirmed.

Policy of the nearly 2-to-1 Democratic Senate is to shelve White House nominations — for the obvious purpose of preserving choice patronage plums for a Democratic incumbent next year. That isn't being announced, but that's what's being done — with a vengeance.

More than 70 major appointments by President Ford are gathering dust in Senate committees, and are destined to continue doing so until well into 1977.

With Congress slated to shut down Oct. 2, that slams the door on all confirmation proceedings until the next Congress (95th) convenes and gets rolling. Even if the President is reelected, all pending appointments will have to be resubmitted to the new Congress as they expire with the end of his term.

If he doesn't win, his successor will fill these prime jobs — and scores of other replacing outgoing Republicans. In either event, it will be months before the 70-odd pending vacancies are acted on.

Judicial Topping the list are 14 lifetime federal judgeships, paying $44,600, and a number of U.S. attorneys, U.S. marshals and U.S. parole commissioners with salaries up to $39,900.

All are firmly buried in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Similarly interred in the Commerce and Banking Committees is a large batch of appointments to major regulatory agencies — all paying high salaries and with terms of six to ten years.

In some instances, the committees haven't even bothered to hold hearings.

In addition, Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., Commerce subcommittee chairman and leading consumer champion, has formally asked the Senate Commerce Committee to sit tight on the selection of Thaddeus Garret as head of the Consumer Products Safety Commission.

Also stalled in that committee on various grounds are six nominations to the board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting — without salaries but much prestige.

The Labor Committee has pigeonholed the appointment of Roger Yurchuk to the Legal Services Corporation on the claim he lacks experience "in providing legal services for the poor, and not representing any constituency groups served by this agency."

While this hefty bag of Republican patronage gathers dust, prospects are good for Congress in the wind-up rush to create 52 new federal judgeships.

The Senate has already passed such legislation, and the House is set to do so once the measure is dislodged from the Judiciary Committee. It has been stalled for upwards of a year because chairman Peter Rodino was peeved over the Senate's refusal to include New Jersey in the list of judgeships.

That deterrent has finally been removed by yielding to Rodino and giving his state a judgeship.

As one of his Democratic colleagues sardonically remarked, "At times you have to rise above principle. And after all, there is always need for a spare judge with the way cases are piling up."

Last increase in federal districts judges was in 1970. Since then the work load on these jurists has increased 30 per cent. Number of appeals court judges was last expanded in 1968. In the intervening eight years, their average case load has doubled.

Enactment of the big judgeship bill won't mean early enlargement of these overburdened federal courts.

Far from it. There will be no appointments until the President elected in November takes office, and the Senate Judiciary Committee gets around to acting on his selections to these lifetime positions — which could be a year or more.

Rebuff It's back to twiddling his thumbs at an empty State Department desk for former Ambassador to South Vietnam Graham Martin.

That was the edict of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in its little noticed rejection of his appointment as special presidential representative to conduct the negotiations on the future political status of Micronesia.

For months Martin dawdled around the State Department trying to wangle some kind of envoy assignment. In an effort to justify his remaining on the payroll, Secretary Kissinger made him a "special assistant" — a sinecure that didn't require Senate confirmation.

But Martin persisted in seeking a diplomatic appointment — firmly convinced his highly controversial record in Saigon was a resounding success. Finally Kissinger, despite Senate warnings against Martin, named him to the Micronesia post — of relative minor importance.

While a decided comedown for Martin, he took it anyway as a form of vindication.

But the Foreign Relations Committee would have none of it. He was turned down cold, and in a pointedly disapproving manner. The committee shelved the appointment "indefinitely" without even bothering to hold a hearing.

In effect, what the committee did was to serve notice on Martin that he is through and would be wise to retire.

At 63 and with 45 years' federal service, the career diplomat can take early retirement with a sizable pension. So far, he has doggedly refused to do that — but clearly a change of mind is in order.

Around the State Department where he ambles around aimlessly, he is irreverently called "the wandering zombie." (All Rights Reserved)

Peking works out new power balance

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Whenever in the past the Chinese Communists have faced with a crisis, they have withdrawn, cut outside contacts to a minimum and held long and tortuous sessions within the upper party hierarchy to emerge weeks or months later with their new plan of action.

I watched this take place in Yenan, then Mao Tse-tung's cave - capital, three decades ago. The process has taken place time and again since those days.

While the new decisions were being reached, and each group in the party's power structure was finding its new place in the scheme of things, no major actions were taken and no final decisions put into operation. The Communists held tightly to the status quo in their relationships with the outside world.

The first objective in this agreement - reaching process during past crises has been to assure continued control over the cities and as much of the countryside as possible. Mao's people correctly observed that despite major steps in recent years toward consolidation and unification, China was nevertheless not far removed from the days of the warlords, with army and bureaucratic types working to build their own small empires as free as possible from Peking influence.

In the past, this necessity of bringing control to a restless population has brought about the compromises necessary for a strongly divided leadership to present at least a superficially solid front most of the time. That was easier in the past, because they had Mao Tse - tung as a symbol, and because a good deal of the time he had the ability to force unity, even when that unity was paper thin. Even when Mao was shunted aside, and his leadership ignored in the inner circles, his ability to stir passions and to organize revolts as in the case of the turbulent Cultural Revolution forced those who set him aside to submerge their own quarrels in order to hold onto power and prevent a splitting of the country. Sometimes it was tough and go. Today, with Mao gone, things could go either way. That is, his successors could split so badly in public the country would verge on splintering. Or they could achieve working, if tenuous, compromises and present the country a facade of solidarity. Past experience in China would suggest the trumped-up solidarity, along with a series of purges and wild charges and countercharges in the Chinese press and on big posters in the streets.

In foreign affairs, the battle has been just beneath the surface for many years between those who believe an effort should be made to settle differences with the Soviet Union and attempt to secure from that nation know-how and arms to strengthen Peking's position and those who fear Russia, believing Soviet aggression can only be curbed by cautious semi - alliance with the West, particularly the United States.

Mao's personal hate for and mistrust of the Russians was so great that there was no chance of any improvement in Chinese - Soviet relations while he lived. I remember the manner in which the Russians were regarded and the way in which Soviet representatives were treated in my days in Yenan.

What may be possible now is a cautious feeler by elements in Peking toward Moscow with the concurrence, however reluctant, of others of the inner ruling group. It is not so likely, however, that the Chinese will abandon their present relationship with the U.S. for the Chinese see next - door Russia as a far greater threat to them than far - away Washington. And the Chinese are wedded to the philosophy of allying with one possible enemy so as to face but one threat at a time.

Berry's World

"You realize, sir, I could take a bribe and NEITHER of us would get into trouble!"

Dean's book reveals Ford money 'problem'

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — When Gerald R. Ford was House Republican leader he may have had some problems with unreported campaign contributions, says John W. Dean III, quoting a 1972 conversation with chief White House lobbyist William E. Timmons.

The remark about Ford is contained in Dean's book about Watergate to be published next month under the title "Blind Ambition." Dean was the young White House counsel whose testimony against President Richard M. Nixon in the Watergate cover-up case eventually led to Nixon's resignation.

Timmons, the supposed source of the Ford story, was quoted Thursday as denying Dean's account. The White House said President Ford would have no comment.

In the excerpt, Dean recounts efforts by the Nixon White House to block a Watergate investigation by the late Rep. Wright Patman's House Banking and Currency Committee.

During the summer and fall of 1972 — while the Nixon re-election campaign was under way — Patman was seeking subpoena power to enable a committee to call White House and Nixon campaign aides in an effort to look into the Watergate case.

Dean says he asked White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman how to "turn Patman off" and Haldeman told him: "Call (Treasury Secretary John) Connally. He may know some way to stop Patman. And tell Timmons to keep on Jerry Ford's ass. He knows he's got to produce on this one." Connally and Patman were both Texans. Timmons was chief lobbyist for the White House.

Dean said he called Connally and was told that Patman might have some campaign contributions that the congressman had not reported and would not want exposed.

"Timmons, who met regularly with Jerry Ford," Dean wrote, "had explored with him Connally's suggestion about Patman. 'What do you think?' I asked Timmons. 'Do you think we ought to dig into this stuff?'"

"Well, John, you know this is kind of sensitive," said Timmons, "and I talked to Jerry about it. Jerry doesn't think it would be such a good idea. And, frankly, I'll tell you the problem is that, uh, Jerry himself might have some problems in this area, and so might some of our guys on the committee. I don't think we ought to open this up."

"I see. I guess that scraps that."

"Yeh, I guess it does."

The excerpt does not say when the problem contributions may have been made or whether they were illegal.

Before April 7, 1972, when a major campaign finance reform law took effect, it was common practice for candidates to skirt the reporting requirements. One widely used loophole was the creation of a campaign committee in the District of Columbia, which did not require congressional candidates to report individual contributions.

Candidates could thus accept funds from sources that might prove embarrassing in their home districts — such as lobbyists for special interests or labor unions — and deposit the funds in their D.C. committee accounts. Their regular campaign committees at home could then accept a transfer of funds from the D.C. committee, and the original source of the money would not show up in campaign finance reports.

At his vice presidential confirmation hearings in November 1973, Ford told the Senate Rules and Administration Committee, "I never talked with the President about it, or with Mr. Haldeman, Mr. (John D.) Ehrlichman and Mr. Dean. I know emphatically I had no conversation with them now."

And he added he met almost daily with Timmons or someone in the Legislative Liaison Office of the White House, but did not recall any conversations concerning the matter.

Ford said his main reason for trying to block the Patman hearings was that he and his GOP colleagues believed the Democratic committee chairman was on a "fishing expedition."

The committee's 15 Republicans, joining with five Democrats, voted 20-15 to deny Patman subpoena power, which effectively blocked the probe.

The New York Times quoted Timmons as calling Dean's account "an absolute lie, a bold-faced lie."

On Feb. 22, 1963, an American plane made the longest non-stop flight ever made in the U.S. pole area, covering 3,600 miles in 10 hours.

Schweiker mends liberal fences

By WILLIAM WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The man who jolted friends and political acquaintances by becoming Ronald Reagan's vice presidential running mate two months ago is at work mending fences and contemplating his future.

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker says his options include the 1978 governor's race in Pennsylvania, seeking re-election to the Senate in 1980 or perhaps a run at the presidency that year.

And he would rather forget what happened in the last few months.

"I think that's behind us," he says.

Schweiker is among the most liberal Republicans in the Senate. He agreed to run as Ronald Reagan's vice presidential candidate in the last month of the conservative former California governor's bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

That effort ended with nomination of President Ford at the Republican National Convention last month in Kansas City. "My job, as I see it, is to work for the Ford ticket," Schweiker said in a telephone interview this past week.

Schweiker was supposed to bring liberal support to the Reagan candidacy. At the GOP convention he battled with longtime friend Drew Lewis for the allegiance of Pennsylvania's delegates. Schweiker lost.

Lewis, Ford's state campaign chairman, and other Republicans felt Schweiker sold out his liberal credentials for a chance to become vice president. The result in Kansas City was 93 votes for Ford, 10 for Reagan, and a cooling of the relationship between Lewis and the senator.

Schweiker wants to restore that friendship and wants advice from Lewis on his future. Lewis was the GOP's unsuccessful candidate for governor in 1974 and remains a power in state party politics.

"I think there's no question we're going to get back to being good friends," Schweiker said.

And the future?

"I have no great desire to run for governor at this point, but I don't rule it out," Schweiker said. "I would expect to run again for the Senate, but I'll keep my options open. I may look at the national picture."

Does that include a shot at the presidency?

"I wouldn't want to cross that bridge until I come to it. But that's an option. I've gotten a tremendous increase in my recognition factor and I'm strengthening my ties with the conservative wing of the party," said the 50-year-old Schweiker, now serving his second term in the Senate.

Schweiker said his involvement with the Ford campaign began weeks ago when Ford invited about 10 congressmen and senators to breakfast.

His return to the Ford camp is part of the fence-mending movement.

Coalition nixes water bonds

AUSTIN (AP) — A coalition of environmental groups today urged defeat of a proposed constitutional amendment that would raise the state's water bonding authority by $400 million.

Amendment No. 1 on the Nov. 2 election ballot would threaten the environment and be an economic mistake, Environmental Action for Texas leaders told a news conference.

Richard Tims, chairman, said the proposition would give the Texas Water Development Board "open ended and uncontrolled" authority to spend millions on water projects.

He said the fund still contains $169 million, and the water development board has not told Texans how it would spend the additional money it wants to raise through new water bonds.

Richard Shannon, another spokesman for the group, called the proposal a "$400 million blank check for six people appointed by the governor to spend. It seems to me incumbent on the water development board to tell the people why they want this $400 million blank check."

He speculated the money might be used to convey water from East Texas to the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has appointed a McAllen accountant to lead the campaign for passage of the bond amendment.

Shannon said the board appeared to be using its 20 forums around the state on water planning as a device to campaign for the amendment.

He said the taxpayers have covered a $25 million shortfall since 1967 between the debt service requirements on existing bonds and the amounts raised from sale of water from reservoirs they financed.

Tims presented a position paper that concluded that "present water supplies are adequate (and) the TWDB is sufficiently funded to maintain and even reasonably increase these supplies. A gigantic crash program would bring economic and fiscal disaster."

The Bank of England is often referred to as the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

Baby care class set for Oct. 4

A Mother and Baby Care class will begin Oct. 4 from 7-9 p.m. at Highland General Hospital.

Instructor will be Mrs. Forrest Hills and the classes will meet each Monday during October.

Pre-natal care, the birth of the baby and care for the infant during the first six months will be covered, as will natural child birth.

Both parents are expected to participate in the classes if they are expecting their first child.

There is no charge for the classes and enrollment is open to anyone interested.

The course is being sponsored by the Gray County chapter of the American Red Cross.

Carter points to 'mismanagement'

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
President Ford is wrapping up a Southern campaign swing today, stressing conservative themes, while Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter continues to carry his attack on Republican policies to the Far West.

an "indictment of economic mismanagement" by the Ford Administration.
The U.S. Census Bureau released statistics Saturday which showed there are 2.5 million more Americans — or a total of 25.9 million — below the official poverty line of $5,500. The 10.7 per cent increase over last year is the largest jump in the 17 years the bureau has kept records.
Carter said it "means that we are on our way to creating a different kind of Other America, a class that has been called the New Poor."

Ford, who was in Miami today, said in a speech prepared for a Conference of the National Association of Chiefs of Police that he intends, if re-elected, to "stamp out the threat of political terrorism."
He said in the first 100 days of his next administration he would give top priority to federal anticrime legislation. Ford charged that "Congress has done nothing" about a series of anticrime proposals he has submitted.

Carter told audiences in California Sunday that the GOP was to blame for spiraling property taxes burdening homeowners. He proposed to bring property tax relief through revenue-sharing and federal assumption of local welfare costs.
Ford campaigned Sunday along the Mississippi Gulf Coast and, in effect, told voters he was closer to the South ideologically than Carter, its native son.

The President, who was greeted by some conservative Democratic officials along the way, accused Carter of favoring excessive spending for domestic social programs while advocating "disastrous" cuts in defense spending.

Meanwhile, vice presidential candidate Bob Dole, who is doing most of the legwork for the GOP ticket, is in Illinois, attempting to shore up support in farm areas where it has reportedly been wavering.
Sen. Walter F. Mondale, his Democratic rival, said he understood the seriousness of unemployment when he spoke to those who were out of work. In a Baptist church in Baltimore, he told the black congregation that children of families who have been deprived of a decent livelihood will be looking for a way "to make it... in the streets."

Off the campaign's center stage, attention focused on an investigation into fund raising in Ford's home state of Michigan.
Philip Buchen, special counsel to Ford, said the FBI had thoroughly examined in 1973 the same records now under study by Watergate special prosecutor Charles Ruff.

There are reports, unconfirmed by Ruff, that he is looking into the possibility that Ford, while a congressman, diverted political campaign money from two maritime unions for his own personal use after it was "laundered" by passing it through Republican committees in his home congressional district.

Buchen, who called timing of Ruff's investigation "deplorable," said that 350 FBI agents examined the Michigan records three years ago before Ford was picked by then-President Richard M. Nixon to be his vice president.

An interview with Playboy magazine in which he discussed lust and adultery continued to be a source of concern for Carter. Rosalynn Carter, his wife, said on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday that some of her husband's comments in the interview were taken out of context in news reports. But she also said that Playboy has 40 million readers and she didn't mind "if Jimmy wants to explain what the Baptist religion means to 40 million Americans."

She also said that criminal penalties should be eliminated for possession of small amounts of marijuana.

Mrs. Carter has said that her three sons have tried marijuana.
In five appearances Sunday in Mississippi and Alabama, Ford stressed opposition to gun control as well as attacks on Democratic spending priorities.

In Biloxi, Miss., he said Americans should have "the right to have firearms for their own national protection."

Democratic Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama was on hand in Mobile to welcome Ford. Though he has endorsed Carter, Wallace said Alabama "respect the office of president and respect and honor the person who occupies that office."

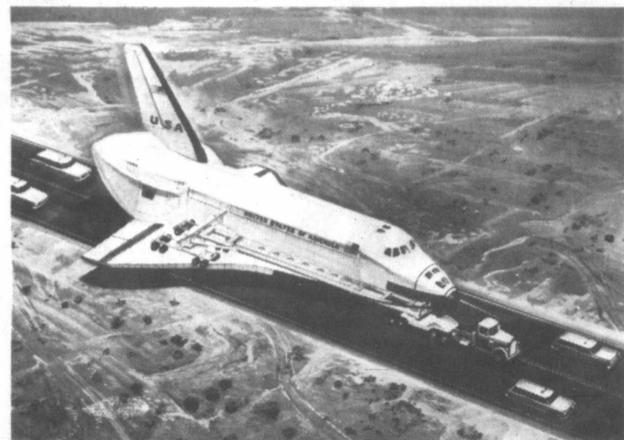

He added that during Ford's tenure, "however long that might be," the people of Alabama "hope and pray that you are successful."

Carter pursued Spanish-speaking voters during his day in California. He rode in a Mexican independence day parade in Santa Ana, Calif., and attended a rally near San Juan Capistrano.

Red Cross will offer water safety

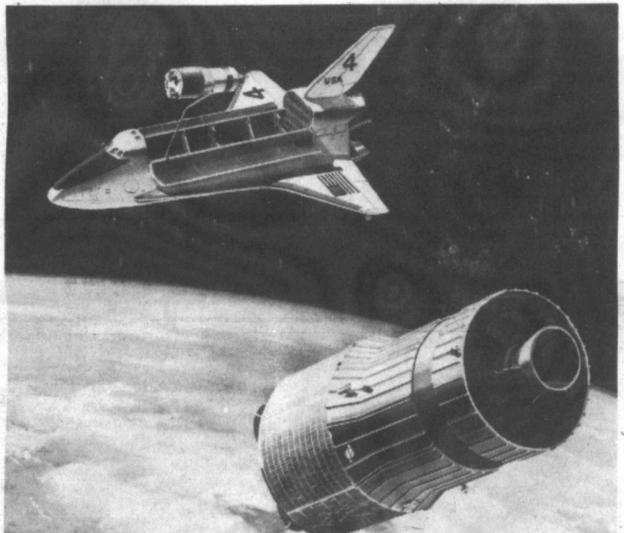

Jack Chisum, water safety instructor class trainer, will begin a water safety instructor class at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 5, in the Pampa Youth Center.
Enrollment is open to water safety instructors who need up-dating and persons aged 17 and older who have completed the advanced life saving class.

Another up-dating class for water safety instructors will be Oct. 23-24 in Amarillo with Jim Welch teaching.
The class in Pampa is sponsored by the Gray County chapter of the American Red Cross and persons interested should call 669-7121.

Journey by land

The first journey of the Space Shuttle Orbiter will be on land. NASA cutaway sketch depicts transport of the shuttle from the Rockwell International facilities at Palmdale, Calif., along 31 miles of highway to the Dryden Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif., for prelaunch checkout. The move is scheduled for January of 1977. A purpose of the shuttle is to release an Interim Upper Stage (IUS) from its cargo compartment. In foreground of the artist's concept below, the free-floating IUS orbits the earth. Designed to lift payloads into high orbits or planetary trajectories, it is a solid-fuel vehicle being developed for the Air Force by Boeing Aerospace Co.

Kansas girl named tops at high school rodeo

Individual high point honors in the Tri-State High School Rodeo in Pampa last week went to Paula Sage of Garden City, Kan., and Rick Kyle of Quanah.

The rodeo opened for a four-performance run on Thursday at the Top 'O' Texas Rodeo Arena and competition ended Saturday night.

The high point all-around honors are determined by points contestants receive for placing in the rodeo events. Sage, all-around cowgirl, had 16 points and Kyle too the all-around cowboy title with 14 points.

The girls' high point team was from Gruver with 21 1/2 points and boys' high point team with 17 1/2 points was Happy.

A Gruver cowgirl, Eva Holt, sportsmanship trophy and Matt Wing of Hugoton, Kan., won the boys' sportsmanship trophy.

The rodeo, an annual show for high school rodeo contestants, attracted 240 cowboys and cowgirls from Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and New Mexico.

Stock was furnished by James Martin of Spearman and the contestants entered bull riding, bareback bronc riding, calf roping, bull dogging, team roping, barrel racing, pole bending, ribbon roping, goat tying, breakaway roping and steer riding.

Final standings from the rodeo are:

Water development to be forum topic

The Texas Water Development Board (TWDB) will hold a public forum in Amarillo, Tuesday, September 28, at 9 a.m. in the Sunburst Room of the Quality Inn, 2915 IH-40 E., on revision of the plan for developing Texas' water resources, announced TWDB Executive Director James M. Rose.

The Amarillo forum is one of a series of 22 forums being held throughout the state in September and October.

"The forums are being held to afford individual citizens, organizations — both local and regional — and other groups a place in their area to make their recommendations, views and opinions known to the state water agency about local, regional and statewide water problems and opportunities. We want to hear from the people," explained Rose.

Early next session, the Water Development Board will submit to the Legislature a new comprehensive plan for the efficient use and development of the state's water resources to meet present and future needs of all regions and all areas of Texas, Rose said.

Each of the forums is open to the public. Persons interested in providing input to the plan are encouraged to be present and state their views publicly or submit written statements, said Rose.

The need for increasing the Texas Water Development Fund for loans to cities and towns and other local entities will be discussed, said Rose.

Constitutional Amendment No. 1, which will be on the general election ballot November 2, would increase the Water Development Fund bonding level by $400 million, if approved by a majority of the voters.

consider land rights certification on McClellan Creek Watershed sites and to discuss relocation of Pursley Road.

In other business the court will consider approval of bond for Venora Anderson Cole as justice of peace and appointed an election judge and assistant for Precinct 12.

The agenda also lists an executive session, "if required," for consideration of personnel matters and calls for reconvening in open session for any necessary action resulting from the closed session.

Country to discuss ambulance costs

Approval of the tax roll and discussion of a request for increases in ambulance service costs will be among items on the agenda when the Commissioners Court of Gray County meets at 10 a.m. Friday.

The court also will consider a contract with Western Data for tax services and will consider making the final payment of $500 to Texas Engineering and Development Co. from revenue sharing funds for addition to the livestock pavilion.

Perry Gruhkey, district conservationist, will attend the session for the commissioners to to seven years in prison on a bank robbery conviction.

Miss Hearst's lawyers said in their appeal "imprisonment of the defendant would result in a substantial loss of effectiveness of the defendant in providing testimony in ancillary criminal proceedings."

During her bank robbery trial earlier this year, she accused the Harrises of her abduction and denied that she willingly joined them during a 19-month journey through the terrorist underground.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, seeking to accent the positive, took an optimistic view of the declaration by five black African leaders that they reject some of Premier Ian Smith's terms for yielding power to Rhodesia's black majority but apparently accept some basic principles for such a transition.

The presidents of Zambia, Tanzania, Botswana, Mozambique and Angola, meeting Sunday in Lusaka, Zambia, turned down Smith's proposal for setting up a state council, with black-white parity, under a white chairman.

This council would, in theory, have powers to veto decisions of a black-dominated council of ministers serving as an executive organ while a new constitution is being shaped to give Rhodesia full statehood by 1978.

The presidents also reaffirmed their commitment to the guerrilla struggle against Smith's white minority regime and called on Britain to convene a constitutional conference to establish a black-majority government. Britain quickly agreed to that request.

Smith formally proposed his transition plan Friday after its details had been worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster.

Smith had called for a two-year transition period, an interim administration directed by the state council, a constitutional conference within Rhodesia to draft a new constitution and an end of the guerrilla war against his regime.

black-white parity, under a white chairman.

This council would, in theory, have powers to veto decisions of a black-dominated council of ministers serving as an executive organ while a new constitution is being shaped to give Rhodesia full statehood by 1978.

The presidents also reaffirmed their commitment to the guerrilla struggle against Smith's white minority regime and called on Britain to convene a constitutional conference to establish a black-majority government. Britain quickly agreed to that request.

Smith formally proposed his transition plan Friday after its details had been worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster.

Smith had called for a two-year transition period, an interim administration directed by the state council, a constitutional conference within Rhodesia to draft a new constitution and an end of the guerrilla war against his regime.

The Lusaka declaration Sunday, saying "THE ROAD TO A NEGOTIATED SOLUTION IS NOW OPEN." U.S. officials described the declaration as an acceptance of the fundamental issues involved in Kissinger's recent shuttle negotiations in southern Africa, namely, the idea that the Smith government will yield power over a two-year period and that a conference will be convened to establish an interim government.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our middle son, Andy, is a very intelligent young man of 19. He went to college for one year just to please us, then he quit, saying, "I don't want to waste any more of my time and your money."

His grades were fine, but he says he prefers working with his hands. He's now enrolled in a trade school and we're so disappointed in him!

I'm not putting down people who work with their hands, Abby, but it seems to me that people who work with their hands do so because they aren't smart enough to work with their minds.

Andy's father is a professional man, and both of Andy's brothers plan to enter professions.

Please say in your column that a college degree is absolutely necessary these days. After Andy graduates from college he can do anything he chooses, but we desperately want him to have a college degree first. Thank you.

ANDY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I disagree. College is NOT for everybody. If Andy prefers to work with his hands, that's what he should do.

It's not true that people work with their hands because they aren't smart enough to work with their minds. Some handwork requires more skill, talent and know-how than many professions. You do your son a tremendous disservice by telling him he's "disappointed you" and urging him to go to college. Change your tune.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine was married for 22 years when her husband died. Two years later she married another man. That marriage lasted just about a year and ended in divorce.

She calls herself a widow now. Inasmuch as her most current status was that of a divorcee, shouldn't she be calling herself a divorcee instead of a widow?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Technically she's a divorcee, but if she wants to call herself a widow, it's all right with me.

DEAR ABBY: My date and I were dining out, and as he was adding the tip to the credit card, the waiter said, "Don't bother adding the tip to that—I won't get it anyway." Then the waiter explained that after the restaurants are reimbursed by the credit card companies, the waiters rarely get their tips.

Abby, with so many diners paying with credit cards, I'll bet a lot of waiters get gyped this way.

You'd be doing waiters a tremendous service if you'd ask people who use credit cards to give the waiter his tip in cash. Thanks.

MARION

DEAR MARION: The top credit card companies and restaurants state that waiters are reimbursed immediately by their employers for their tips. Most waiters insure themselves against being gyped by keeping a record of tips due them.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have a low renal threshold. My doctor said it was nothing to worry about and there was no diet to control it. My kidneys just don't absorb sugar and it shows up in my urine. Everytime I go for a physical I'm sent for blood tests to see if I'm a diabetic.

My problem is I get a lot of headaches. I feel so miserable with them that I have to lie down. I have had a bladder infection and a few other infections. I also get tired very easily. I constantly have to go to the bathroom. Would losing so much sugar constantly cause my problems? Also is there more about low renal threshold than I know?

DEAR READER—You have a rare disorder. In the normal kidney the blood glucose is first filtered out in the plasma inside the kidney then reabsorbed with the water and minerals that the body will retain. The kidney will reabsorb the glucose as long as the level in the blood does not exceed about 170 (milligrams per cent). Above these levels the sugar is not reabsorbed and is spilled out in the urine.

In diabetes the blood glucose often exceeds 170 causing a positive urine test. Because of this association, sugar in the urine automatically requires a check to be sure the person is not diabetic. That is why you get a blood test everytime your urine is tested.

In your case your threshold is lower which means you spill glucose into the urine when the blood level is below the usual 170 threshold. How important this is in your case depends upon what the threshold really is. If the threshold is too low it is one way to cause true hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). Hypoglycemia can cause headaches and fatigue. There would be no harm in trying a few experiments on yourself to see what benefit you can derive from changing your diet. Why not try eating a diet that contains more protein and even fat while eliminating the concentrated sweets and starches. Bulk cereal would be all right. You should still eat fresh fruits and vegetables. Avoid sweet liquids like the plague. Eating more frequently in smaller amounts may help you.

An infection of any type can cause headaches and fatigue too. Bladder infections may be more common with sugar in the urine. The frequency you experience may also be due to a bladder infection, but if you are really losing lots of glucose you will need to drink more water and thus experience this difficulty. You would have the same problem the diabetic has. The kidney needs to dilute the glucose for elimination so excess water is taken from the body.

I would recommend that you have a more detailed discussion with your doctor and find out just how low your threshold is. He may need to take special tests to find out. Your blood glucose level will give him a fairly good idea. It would be wise to measure the amount of glucose you are losing in a 24-hour period with your present living patterns.

For additional information I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY—Last week when I was on the bus, a lady got on who did not have the correct change. This can happen to the most careful people. After it happened to me a couple of times I started keeping a pill bottle in my purse. It is large enough to hold the necessary quarters, so now when I have any dimes and quarters they are dropped into this bottle. Both the bus driver and I are saved a lot of frustration. This also comes in handy when I go to the laundromat. —SARAH.

DEAR POLLY—I have found that white liquid shoe polish is great for covering smudges on my rough textured white walls. The bottle with a sponge dabber works great, is quick and easy and has saved me a messy, piecemeal painting job. I have also used it on white woodwork that was chipped or had some dirty spots. —MRS. J.K.

DEAR POLLY—Those needing new bra straps can easily make them with one-half inch polyester twill tape. Make it double the length you need. Then stitch sides and center of tape with long stitches to make very firm straps. I am quite pleased with mine. —MRS. A.Y.

Divorced parents often turn to abducting own children

EDITOR'S NOTE—As the divorce rate climbs, so do custody battles for children—battles that aren't being resolved in the courts. So, many parents have turned to abducting their children.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

SHEFFIELD, Ala. (AP)—The three men kept changing rent-a-cars. One had dyed his hair so he wouldn't be easily recognized. Their mission: snatch a 10-year-old boy and his 8-year-old brother and get them across the state line.

They prowled the area for four days last May, watching the Tewksbury, Mass., home where the youngsters lived. Once, a police car gave pursuit but they outran it.

They were armed with teargas, a club and two sets of handcuffs should someone give them trouble.

On the fifth day, their green car screeched to a halt and two of the men went after the brothers. The 10-year-old had a running start on his bicycle and had to be knocked off it. The eight-year-old was snatched up easily. Both were tossed into the strange car.

The children were terrified, until they recognized the man with the dyed hair as their father, Arlie Wayne Haskins. He was committing one of the thousands of child snatches carried out in the United States each year by divorced, separated or about-to-be-separated parents who believe they have no other way to get possession of their children.

Minutes later, Haskins, his two companions and the children switched cars, and sped across the state line.

Haskins, a 37-year-old nuclear chemist, won custody of Eric and Shelly in Alabama. But the mother, Oleeta Haskins, a 32-year-old rehabilitation counselor, won custody in Massachusetts. She had warrants sworn out against the father.

Both parents want the children and, depending upon which side of what state line you stand on, each is absolutely in the right.

The problem is that most state courts do not recognize custody decrees from other states.

In addition, the divorce rate is soaring, and a growing number of fathers now want custody of their children. About 100,000 children are being snatched each year in the United States by a parent, according to Arnold Miller, founder of Children's Rights, Inc., a Washington-based group. Miller, whose wife disappeared with his son, bases his estimate on missing persons reports and other records. He says 60 per cent of the abductions are by parents who fear they won't win custody in a court.

Most child snatchings don't make police blotters or the local press, partly because the federal kidnapping law doesn't include children seized by a parent. One that did was the case of multimillionaire Seward Prosser Mellon.

Mellon had custody in Pennsylvania, his ex-wife won it in New York. Mellon had three men snatch the children in Brooklyn last March and bring them to Pennsylvania. That case is still before a grand jury. The men are alleged to have Ralston, 36, is involved in "self-help," as the proponents call it, because his wife absconded with his own two children, Marc, 8, and Shari, 7, whom he has not seen in three years.

Ralston has helped about 15 parents recover their children. He and Austin insist the parent have a custody decree before they'll help.

"Before I go with anybody I want to make sure I'm with the right parent," says Ralston. "I also insist the parent go with me to help calm the children down."

He said his gravest doubts yet came when he helped Haskins.

"They (the children) were so terrified, I wondered if I had done the right thing," says Ralston. "But when they started singing this song, you know, 'going back to Alabama with a banjo on my knee,' then I knew I had done the right thing."

Mrs. Haskins wonders how Ralston can make such an assumption.

"How can he play God?" she said. "These people ought to be prosecuted. They're kidnapers. This is not a civil matter. It's a criminal act against the child."

Mrs. Haskins says she is also stalled before the courts. Her next move will be to go to Alabama and start the fight from the ground up.

Would she consider re-snatching the children?

"I just couldn't consider that kind of violence. Nobody gives a darn what happens to the kids. I'd sooner they didn't live with either of us. It's a no-win situation. These kids don't really trust anybody now. It's a pretty unhappy business all around."

The children have been shuffled around, and the question of what this is doing to their psyches

A growing number of fathers now want custody of their children told the armed guard protecting the children that they were with the FBI and he should hand over his gun quietly. Which he did.

Haskins had lived in Massachusetts but moved back to his native Alabama, where he won custody of the children, but couldn't get it recognized in Massachusetts.

"I felt I was the only one in the world who had this problem," he says. "I didn't know what to do. At first I thought I could settle this through the courts. Thousands of dollars later, I realized the courts were not going to help me."

He then learned of the underground world of child-snatching. First he heard about Eugene Austin of Foley, Mo., and wrote to him. Austin, 52, who bills himself as "Mean Gene, the meanest man in the world," has helped snatch over 400 children for their parents.

Austin wrote back and mentioned another man, Bill Ralston. It was Ralston rather than Austin who subsequently helped him. The third man was Mike Ashe, an Alabama buddy of Haskins.

Austin charges $300 plus expenses. Ralston works for free and hopes only for a contribution to the organization he founded, United Parents of Absconded Children in Cuba, N.Y. Haskins donated $100 and paid expenses, for a total of about $1,000.

Most state courts do not recognize custody decrees from other states.

is one both parents worry about. The children are noncommittal as to which parent they want to live with.

"I think they're afraid of being abandoned by both sides. They don't want to burn any bridges," says their father.

Shelly, a slightly skinny red-haired boy with green eyes and a missing front tooth, and Eric, a blond with green eyes, seem happy with their father. But they seemed happy with their mother, too.

Mrs. Haskins thinks they always try to look happy for fear of abandonment.

"The last time I got them back, one had a bleeding ulcer and the other forgot how to talk, but, by God, there were smiles on their faces," she said. The father said he was unaware of such ailments.

Child-snatching is not against any federal law if the snatcher is the parent.

U.S. Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., introduced a bill three and a half years ago to include parents, but it has not been enacted. The FBI said it is opposed to it because agents would have time for nothing but chasing child snatchers.

Most states have some sort of kidnapping statute, but law enforcement agencies tend to be uninterested if a parent is the kidnapper. In New York, "custodial interference" is a misdemeanor.

Another possible solution is the Uniform Child Custody Act, which states that courts must recognize decrees from other states and consider them heavily in custody battles. It was drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1968, but only 10 states have adopted it.

California has been the most progressive in implementing the law, followed by Colorado. Other states which have adopted it are Delaware, Hawaii, Maryland, Michigan, North Dakota, Oregon, Wisconsin and Wyoming. Minnesota has a law which closely parallels it.

The most tragic case was in Oklahoma where 4-year-old Cain Cody was killed in a high speed auto chase in July. His father died the next day from injuries suffered when the car was forced off the road. The three men who tried to help the father were charged with second degree murder and kidnapping. The man who forced the car off the road, the wife's brother, was not charged.

Austin says his success rate is dropping. "It used to be 99 per cent. But people are getting smarter. They're guarding the kids closer. I abort more now. I will never move when there is a chance a child is going to get hurt."

Buzzard perfect pet

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Most people with pet birds are happy with a parakeet, but Wallace Hayes says nothing beats a buzzard.

"When I ask the butcher for meat scraps for my pet buzzard, he just smiles, like he doesn't believe me," says Hayes, whose pet is actually a turkey vulture, commonly called a buzzard.

Hayes, an employee of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. here, became the owner of "Buzz" by accident. He found the baby buzzard a year ago abandoned in an old barn. Hayes carried the bird home and cared for it. "Now he thinks I'm his daddy," he explains.

Hayes recently surprised a veterinarian by calling to make an appointment for his pet. "When I told the vet I had a sick buzzard, he said he'd never examined one. He had to consult several books before he treated the buzzard, but he cured him.

"Buzz has never seen another buzzard, and has no idea of what one looks like. In fact, it bothers him when any other birds come near him," Hayes adds.

The bird apparently enjoys his master's company. "He'll come to me, just like a dog. He got lost once, and when I found him he flew straight to my arm. I think he was glad to see me."

In spite of his loyalty to Hayes, Buzz strays from home once in a while. Diners at a neighborhood cafe once discovered the buzzard scouting the premises. "I'm afraid it made people wonder about the food at the cafe," Hayes says.

Buzz was also responsible for creating a local landmark. He once spent the day perched on a gas station, peering down at customers. Now townspeople refer to the station as "Buzzard's Roost."

Hayes' wife, Peggy, says it took her about six months to adjust to the adopted pet. "It's strange to have a bird that can easily eat a pound of liver, and will also eat the carton if you don't take it away in time," she says.

Pats nip Steelers in NFL's top upset

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The meek inherited the earth — huge chunks of it at a clip.

In Pittsburgh, Steve Grogan, the wonder boy of the National Football League, followed up his sensational performance of a week ago with an even greater one, against an even more menacing foe, to lead the baffling New England Patriots past the reeling Steelers 30-27.

In San Diego, young Dan Fouts, facing a St. Louis team which often seems to own the patent on explosiveness, unleashed a bunch of lightning bolts of his own as the on-cowley Chargers struck down the Cardinals 43-24.

In Sunday's other games, Dallas outlasted Baltimore 30-27, Oakland edged Houston 14-13, Buffalo beat Tampa Bay 17-9, Minnesota nipped Detroit 10-9, New Orleans downed Kansas City 27-17, Miami shut out the New York Jets 16-0, Cincinnati whipped Green Bay 28-7, Atlanta blanked Chicago 10-0, Denver clobbered Cleveland 44-13, San Francisco sank Seattle 37-21 and Los Angeles trimmed the New York Giants 24-10. Tonight it's Washington at Philadelphia.

Patriots 30, Steelers 27

When Jim Plunkett left New England for the homier confines of the San Francisco Bay Area, the job of quarterbacking the downtrodden Patriots fell to young Steve Grogan, who had shown flashes of excellence last year.

This year, he's shown almost nothing but excellence. After a downbeat start, a loss to Baltimore, Grogan beat Miami by throwing for three touchdowns and running for one.

Ahh, the fans said. Just wait until he meets the meanest defense of them all — Pittsburgh's.

He met them Sunday, said howdy and did his thing, all over again, throwing for two touchdowns and running for a third against the two-time Super Bowl champions.

The Steelers built a 20-9 third-period lead before the roof caved in. The first crack came on Grogan's 38-yard TD pass to Russ Francis. When the Pats got the ball back, they got the lead for good on his 42-yarder to Darryl Stingley. Then he drove New England 80 yards for another touchdown, scoring it himself by stiff-arming tackle Mean Joe Greene and sweeping in from the six.

It put New England on top 30-20. Terry Bradshaw's TD pass cut the lead to three points and Roy Gerela tried to cut it to zero — but his try for a 48-yard field goal at the gun failed wide.

Chargers 43, Cardinals 24

Fouts threw four touchdown passes — twice his entire 1975 output — against the Cardinals. Three of them came in the second period, when the game was put out of reach.

"We're 3-0 right now and it's been a long time since any Charger team started this way," said Fouts. The last time, in fact, was in 1968 when they finished at 9-5. They'd been going downhill ever since, including last year's horrendous 2-12 campaign.

St. Louis led 10-6 going into the second period. Ten seconds later, though, the Chargers were on top via Rickey Young's three-yard run. And 14 seconds after that, the rout was on. Jerry Latin fumbled the ensuing kickoff, Rick Middleton recovered and Fouts hit Charlie Joiner on a 30-yard TD pass. Three minutes later, Tom Graham recovered a fumble and Fouts found Dwight McDonald with a 44-yard TD bomb. And with 61 seconds to go in the half, Graham intercepted a pass to set up Fouts' 18-yard TD pass to McDonald.

Cowboys 30, Colts 27

Efren Herrera's 32-yard field goal with three seconds left to play was the winner, but the real winner was quarterback Roger Staubach, who teamed with Drew Pearson on 14-yard and 16-yard passes — and got a more-than-helpful pass-interference call against Baltimore to boot — to set up the winning kick.

Raiders 14, Oilers 13

Mike Rae, virtually an untested NFL rookie when he started in Ken Stabler's place for Oakland, threw touchdown passes of nine and 33 yards to Cliff Branch.

Bills 14, Bucs 9

Tampa Bay finally got on the scoreboard — but not across the goal line. Three Dave Green field goals averted what might have been the Buccaneers' third straight shutout. Two Joe Ferguson touchdown passes — 58 yards to Bob Chandler and 15 yards to Reuben Gant — were all Buffalo needed.

Vikings 10, Lions 9

Chuck Foreman ran five yards for a tie-breaking touchdown in the first period, ran nine yards in the fourth for the TD that beat the Chiefs.

Dolphins 16, Jets 0

Bob Griese's four-yard touchdown pass to Jim Mandich and Garo Yepremian's three field goals boosted Miami past the Jets, who fumbled four times and had a Joe Namath pass picked off.

Bengals 28, Packers 7

Ken Riley intercepted a pass and ran it 53 yards for a touchdown, then Tom Casanova went 33 yards for a score with another theft to lead Cincinnati past the Packers.

Falcons 10, Bears 0

A Haskel Stanback touchdown run, three plays after a Steve Schubert fumble at the Chicago 17-yard line, was all the Falcons needed to beat the Bears.

Bengals 44, Browns 13

Rick Upchurch returned punts 73 and 47 yards for touchdowns in Denver's romp over the Browns.

49ers 37, Seahawks 21

San Francisco's Jim Plunkett rattled Seattle's secondary for three first-half touchdowns, two of them to Gene Washington.

Rams 24, Giants 10

Los Angeles rallied behind John Cappelletti's two touchdowns on a 10-yard run and a 32-yard pass from James Haris.

Snead nets 2nd victory, tops Miller by 2 shots

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — "I don't think I want to be a superstar," J.C. Snead said after he'd denied Johnny Miller a third consecutive victory in the Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

"I don't think I could stand it," said the big, easy-going nephew of the legendary Sam Snead. He'd just fashioned a solid, four-under-par 68 for a two-stroke victory over Miller. It was the second title of the season for J.C. and lifted him to fifth place on the season's money-winning list at $191,807.

"I used to worry about it some. You know, about keeping the Snead name going for a little longer. And I'd get ticked off when I see all these other guys with their pictures on the front of magazines and in the papers."

"And, you know, I'm hardly ever listed, not even among the fairly decent players. I know I'm not very charismatic. People don't follow me around."

But I was trained that way. I was a good athlete in high school. Good in lots of sports. If I'd made a basket in basketball and started jumping up and down and patting myself on the back and saying, 'Hey, look how good I am,' the coach would have hit me up alongside the head.

"But I still used to worry about it. I've won some tournaments. My stroke average isn't that bad. I've been on the last three Ryder Cup teams. I've won more than $700,000 in five years. That's not bad for a guy who didn't start playing golf until he was 22."

"But I don't want to be a superstar now. Leonard Thompson and I had dinner with Arnold Palmer a few weeks ago. He couldn't eat for people coming over and talking to him and asking for his autograph and everything. And they'd ask him the stupidest questions. Really stupid. And Lee Trevino. He's a good friend of mine. He can't even go out to dinner. Never does. His food would get cold."

He don't do anything but have hamburgers in his room.

"I don't think I want that." And Miller was equally philosophic after a double-bogey six on the sixth hole had killed his chances for a third consecutive title on the course where he has built his home.

"I'm almost glad to finish second," said Miller, who shot a final round 69. Snead finished with a 274 total, 14 under par, while Miller and Gibby Gilbert shared second at 274.

"I don't usually do that," Johnny said. "I either finish first or down the road somewhere. 31st or something like that. That's not like some guys, like Hale Irwin. They're in the top 10 every week. Maybe it shows I'm getting more consistent. I'm happy with my performance."

Gilbert, who shot a final round 71, started the last day one stroke in front of Snead with Miller another shot back.

Miller Barber was fourth alone with a 71-277, followed by Don Massengale, Jack Ewing and Lyn Lott. Massengale had a 67. Ewing 68 and Lott 72.

Newcombe, Panatta tied 1 set apiece

ROME (AP) — John Newcombe of Australia sought revived prestige for himself and his team here Monday as he faced Italian idol Adriano Panatta in the decisive match for the semifinal of the Davis Cup tennis tournament.

The 32-year-old Australian and Panatta, 26, were squared off at a set each — 7-5 for Newcombe and 8-6 for the Italian — and two games apiece when their match was called for darkness Sunday at the Foro Italico Sports Center.

Earlier, Kohn Alexander had tied the score for Australia, beating Corrado Barazzutti 6-2, 6-2, 5-7, 4-6, 6-2 in a marathon 3½-hour match.

The match between Newcombe and Panatta featured fine play by both players before a crowd of 8,000 that backed Panatta, but also gave the Australian his share of approval when he scored.

Both sides expressed satisfaction over the interruption, and vowed to win the match — and the semifinal — because of it.

Newcombe returned Panatta's service more steadily in the first set. Panatta pulled himself together and replied more effectively to win the second.

There were four service breaks. The decisive breaks were in the 12th game of the first set, which gave Newcombe a 7-5 win, and in the 13th of the second, which gave Panatta a 7-6 lead.

"It was a bit nervous when the match started, feeling the pressure after Barazzutti lost to Alexander, but then I cooled off," Panatta said. "I was lucky it happened soon because Newcombe was playing tremendously well, and I needed all my concentration and drive to keep up with his service."

"I was playing well too, but I just couldn't get to beat him. It was an amazing change from his performance in the singles and doubles so far."

"I was lucky he wasn't feeling well; had he been in perfect condition what would he have done?"

Newcombe had been suffering from a sore shoulder and arm, and there were reports he had tonsillitis. Australian team captain Neale Fraser had reportedly tried to have him replaced by Ross Case because of the illness, but referee Enrique Morea was said to have rejected the Australian try.

The winner of the match qualifies to play Chile in December in the final of the Davis Cup.

Substitute passer stops Oilers, 14-13

HOUSTON (AP) — Oakland Coach John Madden, never got around to telling rookie quarterback Mike Rae he would start Sunday's National Football League game against Houston.

Somehow Rae, getting his first NFL start, figured it out. He flipped touchdown passes of nine and 33 yards to Houstonian Cliff Branch to lead the Raiders to a 14-13 victory, with an ample assist by the Raider defense.

"I'm still waiting to be told," Rae joked. "But even though no one told me, I figured I would start."

With starting quarterback Ken Stabler injured and Raider defense playing with rookie Charles Philyaw and much-traveled John Matuszak in the defensive line, the Raiders stitched together their third straight victory.

For Rae, who hit 13 of 22 passes for 170 yards and outperformed Houston's Dan Pastorini, it was a long-awaited chance in the NFL spotlight after three years in the Canadian Football League.

"I called most of the play," said Rae, a former Southern Cal quarterback. "It's really a big thrill. It's been a long road for me. But under the circumstances, I feel I may have reached the turning point."

The turning point for Oakland came in the second quarter when Rae hit his first NFL touchdown pass, a nine-yarder to Branch, who leaped high in the end zone over safety C. L. Whittington to put the Raiders ahead 7-6.

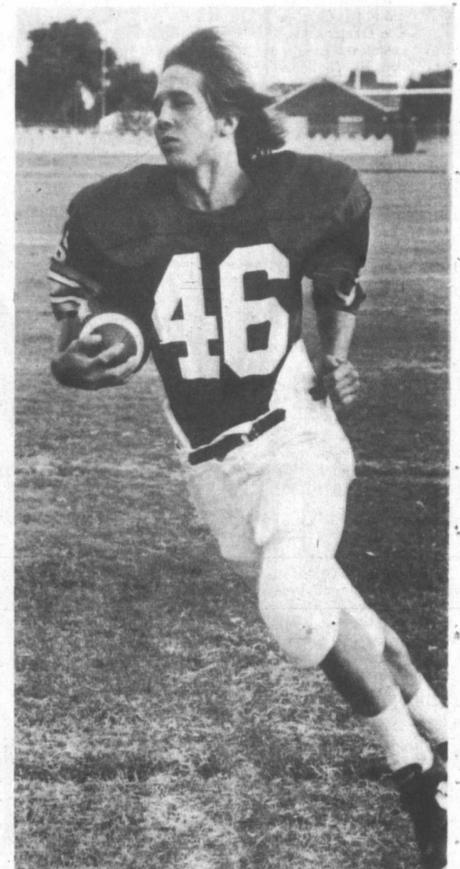

The Oilers held a brief 6-9 lead after the first quarter on field goals of 22 and 40 yards by Skip Butler.

Then in the fourth quarter Branch got a step on Oiler safety Mike Weger in the corner of the end zone — and hauled in Rae's 33-yard bomb for what proved to be the winning touchdown.

First touchdowns

Pampa managed several season "firsts" in its 28-8 win over Berger Friday in Harvester Stadium. End David Green, left, and halfback Dean Smith scored their first touchdowns of the season — Green on a nine-yard pass from Mike Lancaster and Smith on a 19-yard scamper. Four different Harvesters scored touchdowns — another first. Others included David Caldwell rushing for 100 yards, the first time a Harvester has reached that plateau this season, and Juan Vargas kicking four straight extra points. Pampa's previous best this season was one extra-point kick. (Pampa News photos)

Pokes win, 30-27

Kick wrecks Baltimore

DALLAS (AP) — Efren Herrera had this dream Saturday night, but it was just a little too corny to believe.

"I dreamed I would win with a 50-yard kick," said the side-winding Dallas Cowboy place-kicker from Guadalajara, Mexico, a former UCLA star.

Herrera told a few teammates of his premonition before Sunday's National Football League battle of the unbeaten against Baltimore and they laughed it off.

As a fiction writer would have it, Herrera kicked a pressure 33-yard field goal with three seconds left to play to defeat Baltimore 30-27.

Herrera, who had to beat out Toni Fritsch to win a place on the Dallas roster during the preseason, was almost matter-of-fact after the game.

"Drew (Pearson) made it easy with that catch on the Baltimore 14," said Herrera. "I thought I had a good shot at 50 yards, if I had to kick it that far."

"Charlie Waters came over and asked me how I felt. I told Charlie I was OK, but my shoe was wet. He said 'Well, get a dry shoe.' I changed it and got a good kick."

Dallas' miracle-making combination of quarterback Roger Staubach and Pearson again displayed the clutch talents that put the team in Super Bowl C.

With 23 seconds left to play, Dallas (3-0) took over on its own 32 yard line following a 24-yard field goal by Toni Linhart which tied the game 27-all. The sellout crowd of 64,000 in Texas Stadium and a national television audience were thinking sudden death.

But not Staubach, who finished the day with an incredible 22 of 28 for 339 yards and two touchdowns—his best in a Dallas uniform.

Staubach dialed Pearson for a 16 yard pass. Then came a costly pass interference penalty against safety Bruce Laird. Officials originally said the flag was on linebacker Derrel Luce but changed the guilty party later.

Staubach whipped a 13-yard pass to Pearson with 12 second left to set up the field goal.

"It was a little wobbly but it got there," said Pearson.

"Anytime he (Pearson) gets his body in front of the defender on that sideline call he's going to get it," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "He has a great knack for keeping his body there. I thought for sure their safety had an interception."

Momentum in the final period of the game bounced back-and-forth like a ping pong ball.

"It was a great offensive show," said Landry.

Dallas pulled some razzle-dazzle out of its bag after Roosevelt Leaks had charged three-yards to give Baltimore (2-1) a 7-0 first period lead.

Pearson took a handoff from Doug Dennison and whipped a 38-yard touchdown pass to Golden Richards on the double reverse.

The enraged Colts took a 14-7 halftime lead when Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones caught the Cowboy secondary napping and sneaked six yards for a touchdown.

Herrera kicked a 37-yard field goal to cut the count to 14-10 but Linhart countered with a 30-yarder.

Dallas tied it 17-all when Staubach found Richards on a 31-yard scoring strike and Herrera's 18-yard chip shot put Dallas ahead 20-17 midway of the fourth period.

That just set the stage for the fireworks ahead. Don McCauley high jumped two yards for a touchdown but Staubach struck back on a 38-yard scoring loft to tight end Billy Joe Dupree with less than four minutes remaining to put Dallas ahead 27-24.

Then Linhart did his thing which put Staubach, Pearson and Herrera front and center.

"I thought anything could happen but I never thought we would lose," said Cowboy cornerback Mel Renfro. "The Colts were tougher than I expected. I guess I underestimated them."

Landry said "The odds on us moving for a field goal in the final 30 seconds wasn't too good. Roger just had a perfect day. He's super."

Perhaps Leaks summed up the day: "Dallas has a great team, particularly when times get tough. We're just going to have to get tougher ourselves."

Onofrio: greatest Missouri game ever Tech remains only unbeaten

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

"This was the greatest football game a Missouri team ever has played," said Al Onofrio. "Nuts! I said Woody Hayes."

Woody wasn't disputing Onofrio. It was just that the scoreboard said 22 points for Al's Missouri Tigers and 21 for Woody's Ohio State Buckeyes when sub quarterback Pete Woods tossed a two-yard touchdown pass to Leo Lewis with 12 seconds left and then ran across for the decisive two-point conversion after a penalty gave Missouri a second chance.

The commencement of the second-ranked Buckeyes highlighted another wave of upsets for the second time in three weeks as four other members of The Associated Press Top Twenty also went down to defeat.

Houston continued to make the most of its initial season in the Southwest Conference race. The Cougars, 49-14 losers to Florida in a non-conference game a week ago, knocked off ninth-ranked Texas A&M 21-10 and took over undisputed possession of the top rung in the SWC.

Penn State, like Missouri, went for two points in the final period but a pass fell incomplete and the 11th-ranked Nittany Lions bowed to unheralded Iowa 7-6. Arkansas, ranked 12th, dropped a 9-3 battle of field goals to Tulsa while No. 10 Illinois followed last week's upset of Missouri with a 34-19 loss to Baylor.

Meanwhile, top-rated Michigan smashed Navy 70-14, third-ranked Pitt held off Temple 217, No. 4

Oklahoma downed Florida State 24-9, fifth-ranked UCLA drubbed Air Force 40-7, sixth-ranked Nebraska crushed Texas Christian 64-10, No. 7 Georgia turned back South Carolina 20-12 and eighth-ranked Maryland beat Syracuse 42-28. Kansas, No. 10, was idle.

Back in the Second Ten, No. 13 Alabama trounced Vanderbilt 42-14, No. 15 Louisiana State zapped Rice 31-0, No. 16 North Carolina outlasted Army 34-32, No. 17 Mississippi blanked Southern Mississippi 28-0, No. 18 Boston College trimmed Tulane 27-3, No. 19 Southern California trounced Purdue 31-13 and No. 20 Texas Tech nosed out New Mexico 20-16.

Missouri's Woods, filling in for the injured Steve Pisarkiewicz, fired a 31-yard scoring pass to Joe Stewart in the second quarter but Ohio State's Pete Johnson scored three times on two-yard bursts to give the Buckeyes a 21-7 halftime lead.

Curt Brown's four-yard run in the third period made it 21-14 and Brown raced 31 yards to the Ohio State nine to set up Missouri's final TD.

Woods then overthrew Lewis in the end zone but Ohio State was caught holding, giving Missouri another shot. This time, Woods ran it in.

"I was quite relieved when I was given a second chance for the extra points," he said. "I just saw daylight and got hit before I got to the goal. I was lucky enough to get it."

The trigger-tempered Hayes was subdued but showed up for post-game questioning. He exploded when newsmen kept harping on the critical penalty. "You just want me to say something about that penalty," he snorted as he stalked from the room. "You just want me to make an alibi. Well, nuts! Nuts!"

Danny Davis was the triggerman in Houston's upset of Texas A&M, drilling first-half scoring passes of 32 and 18 yards to Eddie Foster and a 50-yarder to Robert Lavergne.

Iowa took the lead against Penn State on a two-yard first-period touchdown by freshman Tom Renn and Nick Quartaro's conversion and blanked the losers until only nine minutes remained.

Arkansas' Steve Little kicked a Southwest Conference record 61-yard field goal but Tulsa freshman Steve Cox offset that with boots of 39, 28 and 40 yards. Cleveland Franklin scored four times on short runs as Baylor stunned Illinois.

Rick Leach scored two touchdowns and threw for two more as Michigan rolled up its highest point total in 37 years in routing Navy.

Pitt spotted Temple an early touchdown, then came from behind on two field goals and short touchdown runs by Elliott Walker and Tony Dorsett. Scoring runs of 37 and 23 yards by Horace Ivory helped Oklahoma defeat Florida State.

UCLA's Wendell Tyler rushed for 156 yards against Air Force and upped his career total to a school record 2,519. Vince Ferragamo tied the Nebraska record by throwing four touchdown passes against TCU while Georgia rallied on two second-half touchdowns to down South Carolina.

Steve Atkins, a 225-pound sophomore, set a Maryland rushing mark of 215 yards against Syracuse. He scored on runs of one, 11 and 76 yards.

Jack O'Rear triggered Alabama's rout of Vanderbilt with a 52-yard gallop but injured an ankle on the play and turned quarterbacking duties over to subs Jeff Rutledge and Kevin Jones.

Terry Robiskie rushed for a school record 214 yards in leading LSU over Rice while Mike Voight ran for 168 yards and four touchdowns as North Carolina outlasted Army. The losers' Leamon Hall set three West Point records by completing 28 of 55 passes for 385 yards and a record-tying four touchdowns.

Ole Miss shut out Southern Mississippi but the Rebels defensive unit suffered a blow when end Gary Stuart went out for the season with a knee injury. Boston College workhorse Glen Capriola carried 35 times for 144 yards against Tulane in the New Orleans Superdome as President Ford watched most of the first half.

Ricky Bell gained 177 yards to lead Southern Cal over Purdue while Texas Tech used a 69-yard pass from Rodney Allison to Godfrey Turner to turn back stubborn New Mexico.

In the 67th edition of college football's oldest rivalry, Rutgers blanked Princeton 17-0 and extended the nation's longest winning streak to 10 games. The Scarlet Knights share the honor with Ball State, a 27-14 winner over Toledo.

Tech remains only unbeaten

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Texas Tech will remain the Southwest Conference's only unbeaten team and newcomer Houston will be the league leader until October.

That's one of the few safe statements you can make these days about an already zany, bizzare, weird, wild, crazy, baffling, spooky, eerie, ETC., SWC football chase that has sent preseason prognosticators into hiding.

Item: Houston, a 14-point underdog, whips ninth-ranked Texas A&M with three touchdown passes against the nation's No. 1 defensive team. The Cougars are now 2-0 in SWC play and won't be tested against until they travel to Dallas to meet Southern Methodist Oct. 16.

Item: Tulsa knocks 12-ranked Arkansas from the undefeated ranks 9-3 with three field goals. "We're just not turning on all cylinders," says Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles. "They were fired up and we weren't," says Hog defensive end Johnnie Meadors.

Item: Texas Tech escaped with a 20-16 victory over New Mexico on a third quarter bomb off the arm of Rodney Allison. Tech Coach Steve Sloan said "We're just happy to get out of here alive. We didn't play as well as we did when we beat Colorado (24-7), but we knew we were going to have trouble coming in here. We did." Tech is idle this week.

There were other exotics on last week's schedule such as Baylor's 34-19 surprise of Illinois on Cleveland Franklin's four-touchdown runs. Southern Methodist's 38-31 victory over North Texas State, and Coach Homer Rice's first loss at Rice—31-0 to Louisiana State.

For the masochists, there was Texas Christian's pitiful 64-10 slaughter at Lincoln, Neb., courtesy of the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Eagles host 'Skins tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

The Philadelphia Eagles, still riding a cloud after their first victory of the year last Sunday, meet the unbeaten Washington Redskins on national television tonight in a National Football League game.

A crowd in excess of 60,000 is expected to see whether the Eagles' one-game winning streak resulted from improved play or from catching the New York Giants on an off-day.

The Eagles lost all six pre-season games and were trounced by Dallas in the season opener three weeks ago. The Redskins edged the Giants and beat Seattle's expansion club for a 2-0 record.

Washington Coach George Allen is wary of the Eagles, who won just four games in 1975 — two of them over the Redskins.

Allen claims Coach Dick Vermeil's first Eagles' team is much improved and that he expects a battle.

Allen reportedly was going to show his team a 32-minute film entitled, "Psychological Preparation for Eagles," produced and directed by a sports psychologist.

Basically the film is a composite of the two 1975 losses to the Eagles, pointing out mistakes, such as the seven interceptions in the second game.

The Eagles' Vermeil spent the week guarding against overreaction by his team as the result of their first win.

Chico falls in Class B

By The Associated Press

The Class B division of Texas schoolboy football, with schools having the smallest enrollments among the state's five classes, continues to have the most volatile power struggle.

For the third time in four weeks, the top-ranked Class B team in The Associated Press poll failed to win this weekend. Chico was thrashed 56-9 by Muenster, a Class A team, so a fourth No. 1 is likely this week.

Groom and Rochester held the top spot before Chico. Meanwhile, the other four No. 1 teams should hold their lofty positions. Sherman of Class 4A whipped closer rival Denison. Class 3A kingpin Beaumont Hebert tripped Beaumont French of Class 4A. Class 2A's Rockdale was idle and Alledo of Class A drubbed Hillsboro.

The Class 4A schedule was highlighted by No. 4 Longview's 35-15 scuttling of No. 8 Galveston Bay.

the best club in baseball."

Ozark's club took the first step towards backing up that contention Sunday by clinching the National League's East Division title with a 4-1 triumph over Montreal in the first game of a doubleheader. After a between-games champagne party, the Phils came back to complete the sweep with a 2-1 victory in the second game, shortened to seven innings by rain.

The Phils will meet the defending champion Cincinnati Reds for the National League crown in the best-of-five playoffs. Should they survive that test, they would meet the American League representative in the World Series. "We've got pitching on this club. We can hit. We've got some speed, experience and maturity," said Jim Lomborg, who pitched a four-hitter in the clinching victory to raise his record to 17-10. "You've got to have all those things in order to be champions."

"Today, we're champions." Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1, the Atlanta Braves routed the St. Louis Cardinals 10-4, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2, the Los Angeles

Dodgers nipped the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants defeated the Houston Astros 5-1.

Greg Luzinski's three-run homer off Montreal starter Dan Warthen, 2-9, in the sixth inning was the decisive blow as Philadelphia mathematically eliminated Pittsburgh to win its first title since 1950, when the "Whiz Kids" took the National League pennant on the last day of the season. The Phils' only other pennant year was 1915.

The Expos got their only run with two out in the bottom of the sixth when Wayne Garrett walked and Andre Dawson doubled. The Phils made it 4-1 in the seventh when Gary Maddox drew a leadoff walk, stole second and scored on Lomborg's single.

The Phils erased an early 1-0 deficit in the nightcap on run-scoring singles by Jay Johnstone in the third inning and Tim Lincecum in the sixth.

Mets 2, Cubs 1
The Mets built a 2-0 lead over the first six innings as Jerry Kosman, 21-9, did not allow a hit. But the Cubs reached him for a run on four consecutive hits starting the seventh, sending Kosman to the showers.

Bob Apodaca came on and pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam, retiring three consecutive pinch hitters without letting the ball get out of the infield. Larry Bitner bounced into a forceout, John Sommers popped out and Pete LaCock grounded out to end the threat.

Cards 5, Pirates 2
Lou Brock snapped a 1-1 tie with a two-run triple in the fifth inning, then Hector Chen hit shoulder stiffed. Tom Walker and Al Hrabosky came on in relief to complete the seven-hitter.

Braves 10, Padres 4
The Braves snapped a 4-4 tie with six runs in the eighth inning, two-run doubles by Darrell Chaney and Willie Montanez highlighting the rally.

Giants 5, Astros 1
Gary Thomasson had four hits and scored twice for the Giants, who snapped a 1-1 tie with two runs in the sixth on Thomasson's single, a sacrifice, a run-scoring single by Chris Speier and Dave Rader's RBI double.

Dodgers 2, Reds 1
Bill Buckner doubled home rookie catcher Kevin Pasley with the Dodgers' first run in the third inning, then Steve Garvey singled, stole second and raced home on a tapper in front of the plate by John Hale in the fourth to make it 2-0.

Red Sox 8, Orioles 3
A six-hitter by Reggie Cleveland was backed by rookie catcher Ernie Whit's two-run double as Boston defeated Baltimore. Cleveland, 9-9, was helped by three double plays as Boston won its 11th game in its last 13 outings. The Red Sox scored three runs in the fifth off rookie Dennis Martinez, 1-1, making his first major league start. Then added five in the eighth as Cecil Cooper and Jim Rice knocked in two runs each.

victories or Oakland defeats adding up to three.

"We've got to start hitting," said Royals Manager Whitey Herzog. "If we don't hit we won't win it."

"I've never seen anything like this. They (the Royals) look afraid to hit the ball, scared they are going to win a game. I'll be honest, I don't see how we're ever going to win another game."

Texas starter Nelson Briles, 11-9, held the Royals to just three hits through the first eight innings. But John Mayberry led off the Kansas City ninth with a single, bringing on reliever Mike Bacsik. Al Cowens singled and Jamie Quirk walked to load the bases.

After Bob Stinson's ground out scored Mayberry, Craig Skok relieved and walked Jim Wofford to load the bases again. But Steve Hargan — the Rangers' fourth pitcher of the inning — came on to get Amos Otis to fly to right, ending the game.

Lenny Randle knocked in two of the Texas runs. In the only other AL games played Sunday, Boston stopped Baltimore 8-3 and California defeated Minnesota 4-1.

Rain washed out New York at Detroit, Milwaukee at Cleveland and Oakland at Chicago.

The New York Yankees clinched the AL East Division title Saturday night when they beat Detroit and second-place Baltimore lost to Boston.

"Maybe players make too much money and the World Series doesn't mean anything to them," Herzog said. "We should have wrapped this up two weeks ago."

Royals visit Okaland in make-or-break series

Kansas City might be in the driver's seat, but the Oakland A's have a big say in which direction the Royals are heading.

The Royals lead Oakland by 4 1/2 games in the American League West Division — the only division race not yet settled. And Kansas City opens a three-game series at Oakland tonight.

"We're in the driver's seat, but we've got to win some of them," said Kansas City's Hal McRae following the Royals' 3-1 loss to the Texas Rangers Sunday. "It's been that way since the All-Star break when we were 12 games up."

One Kansas City victory at Oakland would set up at least a tie for the Royals, whose "magic number" is three — any combination of Kansas City victories or Oakland defeats adding up to three.

"We've got to start hitting," said Royals Manager Whitey Herzog. "If we don't hit we won't win it."

Connally's firm gave to Carter

HOUSTON (AP) — A campaign committee formed by partners and attorneys in the Houston law firm of Republican John B. Connally has distributed at least $18,000 to candidates so far — all but $1,250 of it to Democrats, the Houston Post said.

Democrats receiving donations from the committee, known as the National Good Government Fund, included the party's presidential nominee, Jimmy Carter, a Sunday story by the Post's Washington Bureau said.

Reports filed with the Federal Election Commission (FEC), the Post said, showed that the committee gave Carter $2,000 on July 7. Records also showed that the committee also donated to President Ford on April 27, three days before the Texas primary election.

The newspaper said Connally contributed $300 to the fund.

However, a spokesman for the committee said Connally, a former Democrat, took no part in the decision to make the Carter donation and has had a minimal role in the organization's other activities.

Technically, the fund is not tied legally to the law firm of Vincent, Elkins, Searls, Connally and Smith. All of its donations have come from lawyers in the firm and the fund's two officers who are employed there, the Post story said.

The former Texas governor is a senior partner in the firm. He switched from the Democratic to the Republican parties in 1973 and currently is Ford's state campaign chairman and adviser to the GOP ticket.

Daniel C. Arnold, the fund's treasurer, said decisions on which candidates will receive contributions are made by the fund's executive committee of which Connally is not a member.

Briscoe to fight 'little Cub' fund

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — A South Texas communal farm, described by Mexican-American activist Jose Angel Gutierrez "as American as apple pie," has become the target of a suit by Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Hill filed suit last week to rescind a $1.5 million grant from the federal Community Services Administration to the Zavala Economic Development Corp., headed by Gutierrez.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has said the project would result in a "little Cuba" that was both "un-Texas and un-American."

Gutierrez said over the weekend that Briscoe opposes the federal grant because the farm's operation would compete with the governor's large land holdings in South Texas.

Gutierrez, 31, is the founder of La Raza Unida political party that controls Zavala County.

"Hill wants to be governor, and it looks like Briscoe is helping him out... attempting to tear La Raza Unida up," Gutierrez said.

Hill's suit contends the grant illegally bypassed the state government's review and approval process in violation of the Intergovernmental Cooperation Act of 1968.

Gutierrez said the project's money is already being spent.

The money will be used to employ 800 persons on a farming cooperative and in savings and loan and export businesses, Gutierrez said.

New park

The new little city park area at Cuyler and Browning is taking shape but a couple of Pampanos aren't waiting until it is finished to enjoy it. The pile of dirt provides an ideal site for a game of "King of the Mountain." The park is a joint effort by the City of Pampa and the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Beaification seeks members

A drive for new members is underway by the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation, an organization founded in 1973 "to create a vehicle for the beautification of parks, streets, and public places in the City of Pampa and its environs."

Al Smith, president of the organization, said, "We have about 75 individuals and firms in our current membership."

He said that foundation projects include the removal of abandoned building, the landscaping of the Pampa Fine Arts Building and M.K. Brown Auditorium, Santa Fe Park, shelters along the hike and bike trails, and many bedding plants for areas around town.

"The foundation coordinates efforts and provides funds for projects," Smith said. "We normally don't provide money for maintenance."

Projects have involved other organizations such as local garden clubs and the Girls Scouts, he said.

"Our current project is the park at Cuyler and Browning," the foundation president commented.

He said that funds for the park development are being provided by the foundation with labor and equipment furnished by the city.

Funds used by the foundation come from memberships (annual dues of $5 or more), memorials and other foundations in Pampa.

"We meet once every three months to review committee reports and discuss projects — suggested projects, completed projects, and projects in progress," Smith said.

Other current officers include E.L. Green and Kirk Duncan, vice presidents; Betty Henderson, secretary; and R.H. Nienstiel, treasurer. Thelma Bray served as founding president.

Persons interested in becoming members or in learning more about the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation may contact Mrs. Henderson, Smith said.

Prisoners await word on talks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tension is mounting for friends and relatives of Americans jailed in Mexico for drug violations as they anxiously await word whether the government will begin releasing them on parole.

About 40 relatives of Americans behind bars in Mexico and several former Mexican prisoners gathered in Los Angeles over the weekend to talk to two State Department representatives who flew from Washington, D.C., to hear their complaints and answer questions.

But the tenor of the talks was much different from that of the outrage vocalized in such meetings in recent years. While fear and anxiety still were evident, the friends and relatives advocated a "walk easy" policy, fearing that renewed complaints aimed at the Mexican government might jeopardize chances that some Americans may soon be sent home for the first time in six years.

"Anything that makes waves now is out of the question," said a retired U.S. Navy commander, whose 27-year-old daughter has spent the last three years in a Mexico prison for cocaine possession, and since has become pregnant.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's two years too late to do any good with stories about the torture in Mexico jails or everything that goes with it. Things are changing fast now and we have to be quiet and wait."

"If we can do that, my daughter could be home in February. But if the Mexican government doesn't go ahead with granting parole, I'll tell you (the press) everything you want to know."

Comments of the Navy commander, who wished that his name not be used were representative of many of the Americans who gathered to discuss the fate of their loved ones behind bars in Mexico.

Many of them said they were certain that the Mexican government has signed into law a parole program for drug offenders, but said an announcement will not be made until the government is prepared to put the law into immediate effect.

The State Department said it had not heard of such a law being signed in Mexico. However, one high-ranking State Department official said announcement and enactment of such a law is imminent and could be implemented to bring some of the 600 American prisoners in Mexican jails home early next year.

James E. Kiley, acting director of the State Department special consular services, which communicates with Americans in foreign prisons, said both American and Mexican officials have been perplexed over how to deal with foreign prisoners who are unable to speak the country's language and are alien to the country's laws and customs.

"A lot of the prisoners in Mexico don't really even know what the charges are against them, because they can't read or speak Spanish," Kiley said.

"And it's a bit tough on foreigners who find themselves in jail in this country sometimes. The United States often has problems getting smaller, more remote law enforcement agencies to cooperate in notifying us whenever foreign nationals are arrested. And of course the same thing happens in other countries, including Mexico."

Kiley said some prisoners groups attempting to persuade the Mexican government to go easier on Americans in Mexico jails forget they are in jail for violations that require punishment.

"A prison is a prison," said Kiley. "It's not supposed to be fun."

While optimistic that Mexico may soon reinstate parole for drug violators, which was suspended in 1971 Kiley said the likelihood of a prisoner exchange between the United States and Mexico is not certain.

Kiley said that such a treaty proposed recently by the Mexican government, would probably require a great deal of negotiating and legal research to allow Mexico to bring its citizens in American prisons back to Mexico to serve their terms, with Americans in Mexican jails doing the same.

Kidnaped wife found

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — After four days of helplessness — bound, gagged and blindfolded in dense woodland — Sheri Linda Jaffa, the kidnaped wife of a wealthy land developer, wasn't sure she could trust her rescuers.

Even as Jacksonville Police Chief Matt Touchton worked with knife and scissors to cut her bound wrists early Sunday, Mrs. Jaffa demanded to see his badge. The men who abducted her last Wednesday had been dressed as policemen.

"But the rescue was real, and her husband, Richard, was soon at her side."

"I can't recall what she said when we first saw each other. The big thing is seeing. We kissed and it was the greatest kiss we ever had," her husband said.

Jack McWilliams, 39, the brother of Jaffa's business partner in a Jacksonville contracting business, was charged with the kidnaping and held under $750,000 bond.

He was arrested in jail, where he was serving a week-end-only jail sentence imposed in another case.

Investigators said Mrs. Jaffa's rescue in a wooded area came after McWilliams' girl friend, Edith Burton, 22, broke down under questioning at the jail in Macclenny, 30 miles west of Jacksonville.

"She drew us a map to lead us to the spot but I took her in my car and made her show us," Asst. State Atty. Wayne Ellis said.

Mrs. Burton, who told police she helped in the abduction, hid under a cover in the back seat of the car because she didn't want to see Mrs. Jaffa again, Ellis said.

"We called out... heard her groan and found her," Ellis said. It was just a mile from her home.

Mrs. Jaffa, 35, was hospitalized for exposure and abrasions but was reported in good condition and high spirits today.

Rescuers said Mrs. Jaffa was badly bitten by mosquitoes and scraped on the back and head from trying to work herself loose from the post to which she was tied, which was similar to a railroad tie and six-feet tall. Her bonds were nailed to the post.

"She wanted to know if her husband and children were all right," Touchton said. "She was in excellent condition for the situation. She had been exposed to rain, heat, cool nights and the tape over her eyes and mouth which naturally makes the skin sore."

Jaffa said his wife will not meet with reporters to discuss her ordeal.

"The most important thing is to get life back to normal," Jaffa said. "She is already discussing a possible European vacation."

After the kidnap, Jaffa received a $200,000 ransom demand. He got $50,000 together, and a trail of notes directed him to leave the money at a spot in the Ocala National Forest.

The money was never picked up, and when the kidnappers made no further contact, Jaffa and his two children made a televised appeal for Mrs. Jaffa's release.

FBI agent Arthur Nehrbass said the accused man, a native of Lumpkin, Ga., is the brother of Aubrey E. McWilliams, a partner with Jaffa in Spectra Builders.

Congress ends Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — With senators and congressmen anxious to get on with the business of campaigning, the 94th Congress hopes to complete its major legislative business by Saturday night.

Unfinished business includes bills dealing with the Arab boycott, Washington lobbyists, clean air, offshore oil leases, revenue-sharing and possibly two more vetoes from President Ford.

The House was scheduled to start off today with a $5.1-billion foreign aid appropriation bill and the Senate was still considering a controversial civil rights enforcement bill.

House and Senate leaders say they would like to finish up and go out of business Friday night but that the House may have to stay until Saturday night.

All 435 House seats and 33 of the 100 Senate seats are up for re-election Nov. 2.

Democratic Whip Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., told the Senate that on top of everything else there will be congressional override votes if President Ford vetoes the $5-billion Labor-Health, Education and Welfare department appropriation bill and an antitrust bill.

House-Senate conferees expect to agree on a bill to impose a stiff ban against U.S. participation in the Arab boycott. The House bill would go beyond that and prohibit U.S. companies from boycotting Israel.

Opponents and some supporters say the Arab boycott bill will jeopardize some of the estimated $7-billion U.S. trade with Arab countries and therefore put some Americans out of work.

Another conference committee is deadlocked on the clean air bill. The clean air bill among other things would impose automobile exhaust standards on manufacturers.

There is some doubt that conferees can reach any agreement on the bill, but more and more House conferees say they might give in and accept the stricter Senate bill.

The House is to act on a bill Tuesday to manage oil drilling off all U.S. coasts and send it to the Senate for Congress' final action.

Then the House is to take up a bill to require public disclosure of Washington lobbyists' activities. A compromise would have to be worked out later with a Senate bill.

Two other major unfinished bills would extend sharing of federal revenues with the states and stiffen grain inspection standards in the wake of inspection scandals in New Orleans and Houston.

Another bill added to the list Friday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would veto a $30-million sale of Maverick missiles to Saudi Arabia. This is part of a proposed $5 billion U.S. arms sale to Persian Gulf countries.

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., who proposed the disapproval resolution on the Saudi Arabia missiles, said the missiles would tend to destabilize the Middle East balance of power.

Gas suit begins today

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — After months of delay caused by legal maneuvering and efforts to reach a settlement, the city of San Antonio's $436 million law suit against its natural gas supplier was scheduled to begin trial today.

The trial was expected to begin with motions by the gas supply companies and their chairman, Oscar Wyatt, to have the trial moved to Harris County (Houston).

San Antonio and its City Public Service filed suit against Coastal States Gas Producing Co. and LoVaca Gathering Co., both subsidiaries of Coast States Gas Corp., for breach of contract.

The city claims the companies violated a long-term pact signed several years ago by charging prices higher than those set in the agreement.

Coastal officials now say that LoVaca would be forced into bankruptcy if forced to sell gas at the price originally negotiated.

Last month state Dist. Court Judge Peter Michael Curry recessed the trial to give all parties time for a last-ditch effort to reach a settlement.

MIAMI (AP) — "We survived another one," Jane Sutherland said last February after learning her husband had undergone successful brain surgery for removal of a tumor.

It was good news for the family that had lost one son to cancer but saw their two other sons win their battles against the disease.

Now, Raymond Sutherland says the disease which has brought his family grief and financial hardship may have given scientists vital information.

Sutherland says scientists at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., where he underwent surgery, have told him they believe they've found a link between his tumor and his sons' malignancies.

"They're calling the full complex of tumors 'embryonic,'" the Dade County police deputy said. "In other words, they think there is something in our genes that is causing us all the trouble."

What Sutherland, 37, calls "all the trouble" began in 1942 when his brother, Jerry, died at age 2 from a malignant brain tumor. His mother suffered from breast cancer.

The Sutherland's 4-year-old son, Jeffrey, died of lymphatic leukemia in 1969 after an 18-month battle against the disease. The day before his death, doctors diagnosed a rare form of cancer in the nerve linings of his brother, Michael, then 5. Michael underwent two operations, radiation treatment and physical therapy for paralysis in his left arm.

The Sutherland's 15-year-old son Stephen was diagnosed in 1974 as having bone cancer in his left leg, and his leg was amputated. Later, he became good friends with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's son, Ted, who had a similar operation. Neither Stephen nor Michael has had a recurrence of the disease.

"I hope this is all over for us," Sutherland said. "The doctors said we could still contract it. But we haven't had any recurrences. Maybe it is over."
