

Half American kitchens poison prone

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government survey indicates that 63 per cent of American home kitchens are "high risk" zones for the 2 million to 10 million estimated cases of food poisoning each year.

The risks are higher if the cook is under 50 years old, better educated and part of a family with $15,000 or more income a year, according to the report by Judith L. Jones and Jon P. Weimer of the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

The nationwide survey, using a scientifically selected sample of 2,503 representative households, was conducted in 1974. The analysis of the findings is being published this month.

The focus of the study is the "high risk" homemaker — those — with an unnecessarily high potential of sickness due to possible contamination of food through such things as undercooking and poor refrigeration.

Too much faith on the part of the cook is a major part of the problem, the report says.

"Homemakers may place undue reliance upon government inspection functions for prevention of bacterial contamination of raw meat and poultry products," it concluded.

For example, Agriculture Department meat inspectors do not check or try to regulate the amount of salmonellae, the most common source of food poisoning, in slaughtered meat or processed products. The bacteria are present in the environment generally and it would be impractical to market sterile meat, the department said.

But 63 per cent of those surveyed thought it unlikely that government-inspected meat would carry such bacteria. The survey also found that 30 per cent would taste a suspected product to see if it were safe to eat, a potentially fatal act, the report said. About two-thirds of the respondents thought the leftovers from cooked foods should be left out to cool before refrigerating.

A homemaker earned a "high risk" designation for one or more of these "undesirable practices":

Eating hamburger rare, leaving meats at room temperature for more than two hours after cooking, leaving tuna, chicken or other salad-type sandwiches — including brown-bagged lunches — at room temperature for more than two hours, stuffing a turkey a day or more in advance, storing stuffing in the leftover turkey or cooking the turkey partially in one place and finishing it later.

Of the 63 per cent getting the label, about half committed only one of the errors, the researchers said, while 47 per cent hit on two to four.

The Jones-Weimer analysis commented that one reason for the apparently "safer" kitchens among the older, less-educated and lower-income families is they are less apt to be buying vulnerable whole turkeys or beef or pork roasts.

Even some of those who prepared the food safely were undone by their refrigerators, the survey found. About a third of the appliances checked were operating at temperatures higher than 45 degrees, the minimum needed to check bacterial growth. Twenty per cent of the homemakers erroneously thought refrigeration completely stopped the growth and that freezing killed the germs.

Economic growth rate falters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's rate of economic growth, faltered from July through September, a slowdown reflected in the increasing number of persons on the jobless rolls during the summer, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the Gross National Product, the total output of goods and services in the economy, expanded at an annual rate of 4 per cent in the third quarter.

The gross national product grew at an annual rate of 4.5 per cent in the second quarter and 9.2 per cent in the first three months of the year.

Most economists consider the growth rate during the second and third quarters adequate only to provide jobs for the expansion of the nation's labor force due to population growth. They believe it is inadequate to provide employment for persons thrown out of work because of the recession.

The Commerce report also showed that inflation, as measured in the Gross National Product, was less severe in the third quarter. Prices rose at an annual rate of 4.4 per cent, compared to 5.2 per cent from May through June.

The dollar value of the GNP in the third quarter was placed at $1,709.7 billion.

The percentage increase was the smallest since the 3.3 per cent growth rate recorded in the fourth quarter of 1975.

The growth rate was held down in part due to the slow build-up of business inventories and a slower pace of new investment in businesses and homes.

Inventories grew during the third quarter at an annual rate of $14.4 billion, compared to an annual rate of $16 billion in the previous three-month period.

Total investment expanded at an annual rate of 5 per cent during the summer months, compared to 11.5 per cent in the spring quarter, the department said.

The GNP figures represent the broadest measure of the nation's economic performance. Today's report is the last one due before the November election.

The 4 per cent growth rate was in line with economists' predictions during the past several weeks, although it was well below administration forecasts as recently as July.

In midsummer, the administration forecast the GNP growth rate would be about 7 per cent for the last six months of the year when computed on an annual basis, dropping unemployment below 7 per cent by December.

The growth rate in the two most recent quarters of 1976 has held close to the long-term growth in the economy, which averaged 3.8 per cent a year from 1950 until the onset of the recession in 1973.

But according to a theory expounded by Brookings Institution economist Arthur M. Okun, growth of 4 to 5 per cent when the economy is pulling out of a recession only takes care of expansion in the work force due to population growth.

The Labor Department released Monday a quarterly analysis showing that as a percentage of population, the number of people working during the July-September period remained at the 57 per cent mark, the same as the previous quarter. But another factor in the current rate of unemployment is the apparent readiness of some people who held back from job hunting during the recession to seek work now that the economy has improved.

And now, some economists suggest that at least part of the current stagnation is due to the federal government's spending policy. Federal spending on goods and services accounted for nearly 8 per cent of total GNP in the first half of the year, but in recent months spending has been running at an annual rate of $30 billion or so behind targets.

"If the numbers (cuts in federal spending) are as big as the numbers we're seeing, you could attribute this kind of slowdown as coming from this source," said George Perry of the Brookings Institution.

Administration budget officials, however, say they have not been able to show that the federal spending levels are related to the current slowdown.

Kids' chili fixin's

The Austin Elementary School PTA will host a grassroots chili feed from 5:30-8 p.m. Thursday. Students like Elaine French, holding can of beans, and DeLynn Ashford with some catsup turned over ingredients at the school this morning. PTA mothers will prepare the chili. Meal tickets will be $2 for persons over 12, $1 for children aged 3-12 and children under 3 will be admitted free. Proceeds will be used to buy equipment for the school. The meal will be at the school at 1900 Duncan. (Pampa News photos by Michal Thompson)

Temperatures hit record low

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A record low of 26 degrees for Oct. 19 was recorded this morning in Pampa — with the temperatures expected to fall at least two degrees lower tonight, according to Darrell Sehorn, U.S. weather observer for Pampa.

"And this morning's low matches the coldest ever in October," Sehorn said. He added that in 1957 a low of 26 degrees was recorded here — but that was later in the month.

October temperatures have been "a little colder than we would normally expect with the fourth freeze already registered and a fifth predicted tonight," he said.

The average freeze date for this area is Oct. 15. However, this year on Oct. 8, a low of 30 degrees was recorded, on Oct. 16, 31 degrees; and Oct. 17, 30 degrees.

Sehorn expects a "tougher winter this time — but not necessarily a long hard winter."

"The reason we are having the colder temperatures this soon is because a jet stream which normally runs north is now running across the Southern United States. This creates a vacuum to allow cold fronts quicker," Sehorn explained.

The moisture for 1976 to date stands at 14.60 inches as compared with a normal of 18.50 inches.

A trace was recorded here last night bringing the October total to .16 inches.

"We struck out last year in October — and received no moisture," Sehorn said.

The normal for October is 1.88 inches.

Asked about when Pampa usually receives its first snow, Sehorn said the average date would be around Dec. 10.

However, it sometimes comes as early as the end of September, he said.

The coldest temperature on record in Pampa since 1837 is 12 degrees below zero on Jan. 11, 1962.

The average amount of snow for the year here is 11.6 inches. In 1950 only a trace of snow fell, while in 1931 a total of 30.5 inches was registered.

Speaking of recent years, Sehorn called 1969 "our snow year" with 29.2 inches.

Pampa's official weather records date back to the 1920s, but regular reports were not kept until 1940. Amarillo's weather reports date back 1888.

Cigarette prices jump

By PAUL SIMS
Pampa News Staff

Cigarette smokers in Pampa may start holding in their puffs a little longer, now that prices have jumped five cents per pack in vending machines and around 20 cents per carton in most stores.

McCarty-Hull Tobacco Co., Pampa's biggest cigarette wholesaler, recently notified dealers that beginning Monday carton prices would be increased 15 cents.

"And we've already begun changing the vending machines to 65 cents," said G.R. Fugate, assistant manager of McCarty-Hull. "We had to. The manufacturer just went up last week."

All of the McCarty-Hull machines will be converted by Nov. 1, Fugate said. Prices in a few stores for individual packs may remain at 60 cents although most already have prices for both packs and prices.

"We went up 15 cents a carton yesterday," said Clarence Ward, owner of Ward's Mini Mart on the Perryton Parkway.

"We had to — the price for us was raised."

Harold Butler, manager of Furr's Family Center, said the increase in store prices could not be avoided. "There's no way we can absorb the increase in cost. The first notice I got was a week ago today. We went up yesterday (Monday) morning."

S&J Mart sold cigarettes for 65 cents a pack "when we first got the store. Then we went down to 60," store manager Jesse Whitson said. So cigarette customers probably won't be too shocked when they notice the nickel increase at the store.

Customers elsewhere may be surprised.

"I didn't know that," said one smoker when notified of the increases and asked if she might stop. "I sure am (going to quit). Well, I'm going to try."

Fugate discounted the possibility that people will give up the habit, even though it is becoming an extravagance.

"It won't affect the sale of cigarettes," Fugate said. "People are gonna smoke. They'll pay a dollar a package for 'em."

The trend for some smokers might change, though, Fugate added. "I think most of them will start buying 'em by the carton. Most people buy 'em by the carton anyway."

Allsup's stores purchases cigarettes through Affiliated Groceries. Heston Cooper, manager of the store at 1900 N. Hobart, was notified in a letter from the store headquarters that effective Monday, carton costs would be increased 15 cents — both to Allsup's when buying from Affiliated and to the store's clientele.

Cooper, a smoker himself, may slow down. "My wife told me to," he laughed.

"I'm probably not going to quit," Barbara Smethers, another smoker, said. "Does a coffee drinker quit drinking coffee when the price of coffee goes up?"

Fred Betchan won't stop either. "If it went up to 10 bucks a carton, I doubt I'd quit. If a person's gonna smoke, they'll smoke whatever the price."

"I could quit if I wanted to. The week before last week I quit for a whole week."

Asked if he might consider quitting or cutting down, Ed Burchell said no.

Burchell added he might make more treks to Oklahoma, where cigarettes are cheaper than in Texas.

Prices in Oklahoma, seemingly reflecting a nationwide trend, have gone up 17 cents per carton, according to an Oklahoma newspaper. Carton prices are still about 50 cents cheaper in that state.

McCarty-Hull's wholesale price to Pampa dealers is $4.75 per carton for regular cigarettes and $4.85 for "longs."

Shobek hooded, hanged at prison

NASSAU, The Bahamas (AP) — American Michael Shobek, his head covered by a black hood, was hanged today in the small gallows room at Her Majesty's Prison at Fox Hes 1.

The execution came 29 months after Shobek, a 22-year-old Milwaukee handyman and would-be songwriter, confessed to the murders of three fellow Americans he described as "angels of Lucifer."

The death was confirmed by criminal investigation department chief Addington Darville.

Darville provided no details of the hanging.

Shobek's body was taken from the prison to Old Trail Cemetery, about two miles away. A small section of the cemetery is reserved for paupers and murderers and Shobek was to be buried there without ceremony.

It had been raining when Shobek was hanged shortly after dawn. The skies cleared and it was hot and humid as the hearse carrying his body arrived at the cemetery.

The five-acre section of the cemetery where he was buried was covered by rough stone. It had been bulldozed two weeks ago and human bones were strewn over the surface. Two graves were dug in the area after it was bulldozed and Shobek was buried in one of them.

There were 10 reporters and about 50 other spectators standing quietly at the cemetery.

Shobek, 22, a Milwaukee handyman and would-be songwriter, came to the Bahamas on vacation and had been imprisoned for the last 2½ years of his life.

Bahamian police kept all cars carrying foreigners away from the prison this morning. Blue-uniformed officers stopped them two miles from the prison, told them they were not allowed to go further and warned of arrests if they persisted.

A group opposed to capital punishment, the Bain Town Freedom and Justice Committee, had appealed Monday to the island's churchmen to protest the hanging.

But Shobek had exhausted all avenues of legal appeal and he was led Monday night into a small, whitewashed stone cell to spend the final hours.

Ford, Carter agree election will be close

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

President Ford and Jimmy Carter have found one thing to agree on: the election is just too close to call now.

It was a light campaign day for both major candidates Monday, but both managed in separate ways to point to the tightness of their race for the White House.

Carter declared at a news conference that the election is "up for grabs" and made an emotional appeal in a campaign speech in Florida against voter apathy.

Ford stayed in Washington and sent word through his backers that he views the race as "a dead heat" now. Major polls also show the race is tight.

But there was disagreement between the two candidates about remarks made by the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Gen. George S. Brown. Brown was quoted in an interview as saying Israel is a military burden and that the United States does not have the stomach to stand up to the Soviets.

Carter said Brown's remarks are an example of what he said was Ford's failure to take strong action against errant administration officials, and he compared Ford's failure to re-buke Brown with what Carter said was Ford's inaction in the wake of the Earl Butz affair two weeks ago.

But resigned as Ford's secretary of agriculture after it became widely known that he had made an obscene racial slur against blacks aboard an airplane after the Republican National Convention.

A number of congressmen, senators and civil rights leaders wanted Butz fired, but Butz resigned his post three days after the furor began. And Ford expressed sadness at accepting the resignation.

Brown held a news conference Monday with Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld at his side. The Air Force general said he did not intend in the interview to imply that he disagreed with U.S. policy on Israel. He also denied saying the United States does not have the stomach to stand up to the Soviet Union.

Rumsfeld said Ford has no plans to either reprimand or fire Brown for his remarks, and White House spokesman Ron Nessen said Ford reviewed

Brown's remarks and "made it clear to Secretary Rumsfeld that he does not agree with the general's poor choice of words in portions of the interview."

"The absence of a reprimand should not mean an endorsement of Gen. Brown's obviously inelegant phraseology," Rumsfeld said.

Nessen said "the President considers the matter closed."

Brown was reprimanded by Ford in 1974 after telling a university audience that Jews have an undue influence in Congress and that they are in control of banks and newspapers in the United States.

Carter, comparing Ford's attitude toward Brown's remarks with the Butz case, said, "I think President Ford should show some leadership. Mr. Butz stayed there until Mr.

Ford assessed the political consequences of what he said, and finally Mr. Butz resigned."

Carter said that, based on news reports, Brown's remarks "are very disturbing to our country and the rest of the world. They insinuate that our nation doesn't have the will to stand up for our own principles in a challenge by the Soviet Union. They insinuate Israel is an unwarranted burden to our country when Israel is really the strength of democracy in the Middle East."

Carter, apparently unaware that Ford reprimanded Brown in 1974, said Brown "once before should have been reprimanded or discharged."

Brown also made remarks about the British armed forces and about the ambitions of the Shah of Iran.

Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, said people like Brown "shouldn't be sewage commissioners."

Mondale said Brown "has made many comments about Jewish-Americans that I think make him unfit for that office."

Ford is studying for Friday's final debate with Carter in Williamsburg, Va., and his aides say he is gearing his campaign toward a 12-day final push that will take him to as many as 14 states.

Carter traveled from his home in Plains, Ga., to Florida, where he campaigned against voter apathy.

"Although I've been discouraged, I've been dismayed and sometimes I've been ashamed" of actions taken by government leaders, Carter told a Tampa audience, the federal government can be effective and responsive, "provided the American people don't give up."

Mondale, campaigning in Denver, said the Ford administration is "paralyzed, aimless, disorganized and bound up in its own red tape."

He said Carter plans to establish a Cabinet-level department to deal with energy problems, and he said Ford's record on energy is "one without vision, without leadership, without a sense of purpose."

Ford's running mate, Sen. Bob Dole, campaigned in Missouri, where he was followed by hecklers waving Carter signs and shouting, "We want a change."

Speaking to a college crowd at Cape Girardeau, Dole said college students rallied behind the candidacies of Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern in past elections because "they told the truth."

He said students don't support Carter because "they don't know where he stands on the issues."

McCarthy, now an independent candidate for president, was in Kirkwood, Mo., where he said voter apathy could help his campaign. He said as many as 80 per cent of the eligible voters may not cast ballots, and he urged a college audience to vote for him and "participate, really, in the revolution of 1976."

The unemployment rate is 7.8 per cent of the labor force, and 100,000 more people are looking for work than at the beginning of the year.

Computer rip-offs

The really clever crook doesn't physically break into an office or bank these days. He does it electronically.

The growing problem of computer break-ins has drawn record attendance at recent computer industry conferences, where stories like the following are told:

In New York City, a Neighborhood Youth Corps employee with access to the agency's computerized check-writing system had more than 900 unauthorized payroll checks printed for his friends, at a cost of $2.7 million to the taxpayers.

In Washington, D.C., a swindler substituted his own magnetically marked check account deposit slips for the blank ones a local bank kept on the counter. His account accumulated $250,000 in four days from other people's deposits. He then made a hefty withdrawal and hasn't been seen since.

In California, a young graduate student stole about $1 million worth of inventory from a utility company with the assistance to the company's own computer. He simply had the computer order equipment to various warehouses, where he picked it up in a disguised truck. He then sold the equipment through a dummy company.

Elsewhere, private computer files have been invaded by people adding huge amounts of money, in the form of personal credit, to charge accounts.

To protect computer-stored files, many companies have devised systems as tight as Fort Knox, and a whole new industry has grown up in the field of computer security. For example, a company called Sycor, Inc., of Ann Arbor, Mich., has come up with magnetic badges, key locks and even passwords to ensure that only legitimate personnel have access to specific file banks.

Despite all the safeguards, an estimated $200 million will be stolen from business this year by means of computer manipulation — an electronic rip-off that will inevitably be passed on to honest consumers in the form of higher prices.

IBM unclutters files

One of America's largest corporations has stopped prying into the private and emotional lives of job applicants through the use of personality and I.Q. tests and the accumulation of other nonessential information, and has found it is doing quite well without it.

In an interview in the current issue of the Harvard Business Review, Frank T. Cary, chairman and chief executive officer of International Business Machines (IBM), says that his company now only asks job-seekers for the information it thinks is necessary to make the employment decision — name, address, previous employer, education and a few other basic facts.

"We don't ask about the employment of the applicant's spouse, about relatives employed by IBM or for previous addresses. We don't ask about prior treatment for nervous disorder or mental illness. We don't ask about arrest records or pending criminal charges or criminal indictments. We do ask about convictions, but only convictions during the previous five years."

The reason for the company's change in policy, says Cary, "is that we were getting a lot of data we really didn't need. It was cluttering up the files. Worse than that, it was tagging along after people. Particularly in the case of unfavorable information about an employee, there's a tendency for the material to follow the person around forever and to influence management decisions that it shouldn't."

"It's better not to have the data in the files in the first place."

Let's hope IBM's example starts a trend.

Latest in tin hats

For the third time in this century, America's fighting men are being equipped with new "tin hats," reports the National Geographic Society.

The first was in World War I when American Doughboys adopted the flat-brimmed steel helmets worn by British Tommies. World War II saw the emergence of the familiar GI helmet, which in addition to its primary purpose came in so handy for cooking and washing and emergency digging.

The new helmet isn't made of metal, however, but of a plastic that Army researchers say is lighter, stronger and more comfortable than any of its forerunners. In another departure from its one-size-fits-all predecessor, it will come in small, medium and large.

Also of interest is the fact that the new helmet bears a striking resemblance to the "coal scuttle" hats worn by Kaiser Bill's boys and Hitler's hordes, which the Germans have always maintained offered great protection than the helmets used by their erstwhile opponents.

Hubert Wilkins of Great Britain was the first man to fly an airplane over Antarctica, in 1928.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A successful day is in store for you. You'll gain the cooperation of coworkers through your pleasant manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Lady Luck is on your side today. If you like to take a flyer on a long shot, this is the day to do it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Helping others is second nature for you today. Even though you do it unselfishly, there could be some handsome rewards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Working gives you pleasure and holds your interest today. In the evening you'll have a fine time with true friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Look for assistance from those in high places. You're held in great regard. Favors will be readily granted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have excellent foresight today. If you act on it, changes for the better can be brought about for you and your family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your mind is active today, but you're not that interested in being around others. Curl up with a good book.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Cooperation is your forte today. Much can be gained to bring about fruitful relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be dealing for high stakes today, especially in career or work-related matters. It could be fortunate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Like the Pied Piper, children and even adults will follow you today. You're the one who dreams up all the fun things to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Property or possessions you're instrumental in acquiring today will make your family's surroundings more comfortable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If there is anything you want to talk over with your mate or business associates, this is the day to do it.

BOOLA BOOLA: It's replaced by moola moola

With the Ford Campaign — (NEA) — Gerald Ford never strays far from the playing fields of his imagination. This election season he is unwinding before audiences with sports jokes, explaining his positions with sports metaphors. He is even occasionally insisting that athletics may help this troubled country find itself once again.

Lifting Experience

It was at the World's Fair in New York in 1854 that the elevator industry got off the ground. An ingenious mechanic from Yonkers, Elisha Groves Otis, demonstrated a hoisting device at the Crystal Palace that had a safety catch to keep the platform from plummeting. Otis would raise himself to the ceiling and dramatically slash the rope as spectators gasped and paled. Then he would proclaim, "All safe, gentlemen. All safe!"

Anti-Breeches

Trousers became popular in America after the War of 1812 as a reaction against the silk breeches-and-hose syndrome that smacked too much of things British. The Duke of Wellington actually helped popularize trousers in England by wearing them to state functions. Early trousers were simply something to protect the fancy breeches when riding, similar to chaps worn by cowboys out West.

Guide for future

By Robert Schuller

A positive-thinking French woman who lived on the Bayou in Louisiana had to listen to her negative-thinking neighbor ladies as they grumbled and complained about living "way out here on the lonely, desolate back country."

One day the positive thinker had heard enough. She reminded her disagreeable and disgruntled neighbors, "You live on the Bayou. The Bayou flows to the river. The stream flows to the stream. The river flows into the gulf. The gulf flows into the ocean.

and hence has two sons in the starting lineup; the umpire who does business with one team's sponsor and so calls 'em the way prudence dictates. So it is that the children learn more than how, when behind the plate, to tip the bat as the opponent is swinging.

Then there is the prejudice. It has not changed in organized kids sports, it has merely shifted from color to sex. Last year in Michigan an 8-year-old girl was told she could not play on the baseball team unless she wore a plastic supporter cup like the boys. Rightly, she thought the idea was dumb, not to say bizarre, but it was the "rule."

Her parents had to threaten court action to end the affair. Small wonder that athletes often reach college and professional fields with less than a Frank Merriwell attitude.

Boola boola has been replaced with moola moola, to coin a phrase. Stop the music — "what's in it for me?" Before his sad death last year, long distance runner, Steven Prefontaine argued passionately that Olympic athletes should be paid; when asked if glory wasn't enough, he said flatly: "To hell with love of country, and the flag, I compete for myself."

No argument, athletes have changed since Ford vs. Nagurski. Or at least they are simply more honest. Today's most popular hero in sports is an unparoled egotist, draft dodger and admitted father of a child from a woman other than his wife, Muhammed Ali. One would almost prefer the youngsters read about Willie Sutton.

Then again, perhaps the President is correct. Better for the lads to be breaking bones on the hockey ice than on the streets of San Francisco. Also, admittedly, when the coach is providing the uppers it removes the need for the young people to mess around in personal illegalities.

And so we may yet, through athletics, bring our kids up, ever up, until one day they are all just like Joe Namath.

Foster homes needed for abused children

The Texas Department of Public Welfare has been fighting hard to eliminate child abuse and neglect. Since the "Child Abuse Hotline" (1-800-292-5400) was initiated, thousands of reports have been called in.

Often when a child has been severely abused or neglected, he must be removed from his home for a period of time. But where can he go? There is a shortage of Foster Homes in many towns, including Pampa.

In order to end the "last minute search" for a foster home for dependent and neglected children, the Department of Public Welfare has begun establishing Emergency Foster Homes.

Twenty-four hour service, seven days a week, must be available in the home. The length of time any child will stay in the emergency home will be 28 days. Hopefully, the child can be placed in a regular foster home within 14 days.

Pampa has had an Emergency Foster Home for the last year, but the foster parents recently moved to another area. In that year, 32 foster children were cared for by the Emergency Foster Parents. There is a great need for another Emergency Foster Home.

Would you like to help a child in need? The special requirements are a tremendous amount of love and understanding.

For more information write to the Department of Public Welfare, P.O. Box 3700, Amarillo, Texas, 79106, or call (806) 353-7451, extension 61.

Social Security not fair to women

By Harold Blumenfeld

The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) keeps cropping up. It has its vehement defenders and its equally vocal opponents.

Some who are antagonistic to ERA grudgingly admit some disparity of wages for similar work with the ladies getting the short end of the stick. But they still adamantly oppose the amendment for a variety of other reasons.

These die-hards usually bring up the question of common toilets, something which has never even remotely been advocated by the proponents of ERA. But seldom does one hear about the gross inequities of the Social Security system as it applies to the fair sex.

From time to time some suggestions have been made to eliminate this discrimination against women in the system but they have been discarded as either unfeasible, unwieldy, or too expensive.

Donald Fraser (D-Minn.) has suggested a possible solution. His idea is for a husband and wife to pool their earnings in computing Social Security benefits, as is often done in filing joint tax returns. Each would have his and her own separate accounting and would be credited with 50 per cent of their combined earnings or 75 percent of the higher income, whichever is larger.

When the original program was started in the 1930s, the nation was recovering from the big Depression. Social Security was set up in a way to discourage women from competing in the labor market because unemployment was at an all-time high. It was assumed that the female population would be content to be homemakers and that "the little woman" would remain married to her mate — till death did them part. And she would be the beneficiary of his Social Security benefits upon his retirement or death.

The situation today is quite different. More and more women are working out of necessity or choice. Also, not all women marry. And the shocking statistics on divorce indicate about one in three marriages become unstock.

When a working wife retires at age 62 or 65, she is entitled to Social Security payments. She has her choice of collecting on her own earnings, usually less than her husband's, or 50 per cent of her husband's retirement benefits, whichever is the larger sum. But she can't have both even though each contributed to the system. If she opts for half of her husband's payments, she loses all her benefits even though deductions from her pay checks have been made, perhaps for years.

If she chooses to collect Social Security on the basis of her own earnings, she then forfeits the dependent wife's benefits which her husband's Social Security payments were to have provided for her.

Single women who never marry often feel they are being unfairly taxed because the deductions from their pay checks are based on paying for survivor benefits or survivors they will never have.

A wife may give her husband "the best years" of her life. But if those "best" years last less than 20 years — when she might have remained out of the labor market to raise children — she loses her share of benefits based on her former husband's earnings.

Some working wives who have yearly paid into Social Security for years may resent a system that gives dependent nonworking wives benefits without ever having contributed because they had no taxable earnings. And these same dependent wives, who have never worked outside the home, also have a gripe. Since they have never had any taxable income, they are not entitled to disability protection.

Because of other inequities in the system, more and more widows and widowers are living "in sin" without benefit of clergy. If they marry, the widow loses her deceased husband's Social Security allowance which is considerably more than she would be receiving as a new bride, collecting only half of her new husband's benefits. These oldsters are now "with it"; doing what the young ones are doing these days. And why not? Blame it on the "new" morality or the "old" injustices of our present Social Security system.

Roloff homes not exempt from state police power

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff's south Texas homes for wayward children are not exempt from the state's police power, Dist. Judge Charles Mathews ruled Monday.

Roloff listened to Mathews' ruling with a thick Bible resting on the counsel table near his left hand.

Several of his followers had nodded their heads in agreement as Roloff's lawyers tried to block state regulation.

The issue, Mathews said, was one "never decided before in the state" and he was anxious to get it before the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals and the Texas Supreme Court.

"I don't think there is any dispute as to the religious teachings of Brother Roloff, and there is no dispute as to the sincerity or as to the good Brother Roloff has done and is doing," Mathews said.

The question, Mathews said, is "whether the state is able to regulate the homes as they relate to the health and welfare of the people in these homes. Being the gentleman he is, the first person on earth who would want to know the answer is Brother Roloff."

In granting the state's motion for a summary judgment, Mathews imposed the lowest possible penalty for Roloff to pay for allegedly violating the 1975 Child Care Licensing Act.

The penalty is $150 a day—or $50 per home—from Jan. 1 through June 3—for a total of $23,250. Mathews said the state should work it out so Roloff would not have to pay anything pending appeal of Mathews' ruling.

June 3 was chosen as the cut-off date because that was when a hearing began on Roloff allegedly violating a temporary order instructing him to abide by the act.

Roloff's lawyer, David Gibbs of Cleveland, Ohio, said Roloff's religious "convictions run headlong into the state standards."

Mathews said the case "is on its way up to the appellate courts, and that's where it should go."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Lynn Taylor said he was "not interested in the destruction of the ministry of Brother Roloff," but "something should be done" to make him comply, for example, with state fire standards.

Roloff is president of the Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises, Inc., which runs the Rebekah Home for Girls in Corpus Christi, and the Anchor and Lighthouse homes for boys in Zapata and Port Isabel respectively.

"I hope you can work out something so Brother Roloff can keep the homes going," Mathews said.

Davis ordered back to jail for violation

DALLAS (AP) — Sterling Blake Davis, who was convicted of setting up a raid on a Mexican prison that freed his son and at least a dozen other Americans, has been ordered back to prison for violating his parole from another conviction.

Davis must serve the remaining four years and 10 months of a five-year sentence on a fraud conviction, U.S. District Court Judge Sarah Hughes ordered Monday. He was found guilty of fraud in 1974 in connection with a scheme to sell frog farm distributorships, but was paroled after two months due to illness.

Judge Hughes said Davis had "failed to make sufficient effort" to pay $16,000 in restitution money and a $10,000 fine.

She also said he had violated his probation by traveling to Piedras Negras, Mexico in connection with the jail raid.

Davis has admitted paying $5,000 to help free his son, Sterling Davis Jr., from the Piedras Negras jail across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, Tex.

Judge Hughes noted in her ruling that Davis was recently convicted of conspiracy in connection with the jailbreak.

Davis and William McCoy Hill, who was charged with conspiracy and illegally transporting a weapon from Mexico, were convicted in Del Rio earlier this month.

Don Fielden, who claims he organized the raid, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy and one count of illegally transporting a weapon.

Davis told the judge he paid only $400 in restitution before the raid because he was ill but since then he has made arrangements to pay $7,000.

He was ordered to report to the U.S. marshal's office Oct. 26 to go back to prison.

The Baltimore Department of Health, first set up by the Committee of Health in 1793, is the oldest such permanent municipal body in America.

Raccoon gnaws baby boy

HOUSTON (AP) — Tiny Charles Scott is improving, his parents say, and they are confident he will pull through.

They weren't sure a week ago when the five-week old boy was nearly chewed to death by a raccoon.

"Poor little guy," said his father, Elmo Scott. "He had to get 86 stitches in his face alone—I think that was the final number—and that doesn't include what they (the doctors) did about his nose."

The infant was attacked in the bedroom of his grandmother's house last week while he slept.

He had improved to fair condition at a local hospital Monday.

Elmo and Evelyn Scott, the parents of two other children, said they agreed to talk about the incident in hopes of alerting others to the possible dangers of wild animals being kept as pets.

"No one should have to go through that," said Scott.

Scott said he was at his job with a private garbage pickup company Oct. 11 when his wife took Charles to visit her mother in north Houston.

Scott said the raccoon, a pet belonging to a neighbor, apparently got in the back door and went to the bedroom where the infant was sleeping.

He said his brother-in-law, Charles Mullenix, heard a "funny sound" and when he investigated he found the raccoon "all over" the baby.

Mullenix said he was bitten and scratched several times before he choked the animal to death.

Scott said the animal tore off the end of his son's nose, bit him all over the face, tore his lips and scratched him.

The Scotts alternate staying with Charles at the hospital or some other member of their families goes.

Colson says Watergate could happen again soon

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former White House aide Charles Colson, who says he has experienced a "spiritual rebirth," says another Watergate "could happen tomorrow unless we find a way to change human nature."

Colson, who served seven months in prison after leaving his post under former President Richard Nixon, said the nation must put its faith in God, not in government.

"We've all been flawed from the beginning," he said in reference to the Christian concept of original sin.

Government is an institution of men "who are corruptible" and will never be perfect, he said.

Colson told a news conference here that Washington, D.C., is "a spiritual battleground" where "Satan has gained his strongest foothold."

He said he served seven months in prison beginning in July 1974 for "disseminating derogatory information about Daniel Ellsberg," the man who leaked the controversial Pentagon papers.

Colson said he expects no official pardon for his acts and will not ask for one. "I have the most complete pardon I could ever want," he said of his religious conversion.

Colson also said the nation's prisons are turning inmates into "wild animals" and that most prisoners should not be in jail.

He said more than half of the crimes for which prisoners are held are committed under the influence of alcohol. Other people are jailed on drug violations. These people need treatment, not confinement, he said.

Bob Dole campaigns in Corpus

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., was scheduled to arrive in Corpus Christi today on the first stop of a two-day vice presidential campaign trip that includes visits to two other Texas cities.

The Republican vice presidential candidate's itinerary calls for him to arrive in Corpus Christi at about 5:30 p.m. He will depart for San Antonio at about 10:00 p.m.

Campaign officials said Monday Dole will stay Tuesday night in San Antonio and leave at about noon Wednesday for Lubbock, where he will stay for two hours before flying out of the state for other campaign stops.

UT dental dean fired

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Philip Boyne, fired as dean of the University of Texas dental school here, says he believes a committee appointed to review his performance had already decided to fire him before the investigation began.

Boyne said after his firing was announced Monday: "I was never allowed to rebut any of the charges."

Dr. Frank Harrison, president of the UT Health Science Center at San Antonio, of which the dental school is a component, made the decision to oust Boyne and announced it to the dental school faculty at a meeting.

Harrison said it was "solely because of our differences over matters of administrative approach" that he was firing Boyne as dean.

However, Boyne later said, "Dr. Harrison never explained any administrative differences to me."

Boyne will continue as a full member of the faculty. A search committee will be appointed to find a new dean. Harrison said.

Lebanon proposes cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Reaction to a proposed cease-fire and new peace plan aimed at ending Lebanon's civil war was divided here today, indicating the truce might be no more effective than 50 others in the 18 months of warfare.

The proposal for a cease-fire by midnight Wednesday and the plan to end the war were agreed on by Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat and Syrian President Hafez Assad and were announced Monday in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

Arafat and Assad met there in a two-day summit conference with Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Elias Sarkis of Lebanon, King Khaled of Saudi Arabia and Sheikh Sabah al-Sabah of Kuwait.

Pierre Gemayel's Phalangists, who have the largest militia fighting on the Christian side, endorsed the plan. But Camille Chamoun's National Liberals said it did not restrict the Palestinians enough. There was no comment from former President Suleiman Franjeh, the third major Christian warlord.

The Cedar Guards, numerically small but the most extreme of the Christian militias, vowed continued warfare "until the last Palestinian is either killed or kicked out of Lebanon."

Kamal Jumblatt, leader of the leftist Lebanese Moslems, was silent. But his supporters expressed fear the agreement would legitimize the presence of Syrian troops in Lebanon. They reiterated that there can be no peace until all Syrian forces withdraw.

The Palestine Rejection Front, made up of militant factions who broke with Arafat, was certain to reject the cease-fire.

Israeli government sources in Jerusalem said the agreement had little chance of success because so many participants in the fighting were not represented in the negotiations.

A joint communiqué broadcast from Riyadh said the conference agreed to expand the 2,300-man Arab League peace force in Beirut to a strength of 30,000 to enforce the peace agreement. It appeared likely that most of the reinforcements would come from the 21,000 Syrian troops Assad has sent into Lebanon since June to prevent a leftist victory and preserve a balance of power between the Christians and Moslems.

Meanwhile, both Israel and the Christians denied that Israeli forces were involved in the Christian-capture Monday of the town of Marjayoun, eight miles north of the Israeli border and the Palestinians' last gateway to the Arkoub region from which they harassed Israel before the Lebanese war.

Moslem military men who said they saw the fighting reported seeing Israeli helicopters and armored cars bringing troops to Marjayoun. But an Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv said: "From the beginning they have tried to involve Israel in the war. But this has not changed — Israel is not involved in the war."

The Phalangists said their "new mobile armored strike force" made the attack.

Police report

Pampa police were called to assist the Gray County Sheriff's office Monday and they also investigated a theft and two non-injury accidents.

Gray County Deputy Sheriff Ken Kiehl called police to assist him with a suspect arrested following an alleged knife fight at the Country House Cafe, 1403 E. Frederic.

Charles Calvin Swift, 22, Pampa, was arrested for disorderly conduct and, according to the police report, he assaulted a police officer en route to the jail.

He was charged with disorderly conduct and assault on a police officer and was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Venora Cole who set bond at $2,500.

T and D Automotive, 300 N. Dwight, reported that an eight track stereo tape player was taken from a vehicle parked on their lot.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Light snow and sleet fell in the Panhandle and South Plains and winds gusty to about 50 m.p.h. in the mountain passes of Southwest Texas as a cold front moved southeastward across the state.

Early today, the front was moving southeastward along a line from near the Dallas-Fort Worth area to Del Rio in South Texas. Behind the front, temperatures were dropping and some rainfall was reported in addition to the light snow and sleet. Ahead of the front, skies were generally cloudy and temperatures remained mild.

Temperatures early today ranged from the 30s in the Panhandle to the 60s in South Cen-

Cigarettes damaged health; teenaged boys ate them

HUME, Mo. (AP) — When the high school principal caught three teen-aged boys with cigarettes in their pockets, he gave them a choice of punishments: take a paddling or eat the cigarettes.

Two of the boys chose to eat a total of 18 cigarettes and have developed health problems as a result, their parents said Monday.

Both boys soon began to vomit, their parents said.

Mrs. William Adkins said she took Bill to a doctor 20 miles away that night after he began spitting up blood. She said tests showed he had a small ulcer, which doctors said had been developing over a long period but could have been made worse by the tobacco. She and her husband are threatening legal action against the school.

no record of anyone dying from it. "People don't normally go around eating cigarettes," he said.

The parents of both of the boys knew they smoked.

When the boys' mothers went to a school board meeting to protest, the board voted to uphold the principal's actions. Board member Joe Brooks said the principal's authority would be damaged unless the board supported him.

"I feel like if the kids make up their own mind, it's up to them," Principal Kenneth Hightower said shortly after the incident late last month. Hightower said he always offered the same alternative to other students who broke the rule against carrying cigarettes, but all had chosen paddling.

Hightower had caught Terry Weatherman, 15, Bill Adkins, 14, and another youth with the cigarettes. He told them they could have two swats with a paddle or eat the tobacco they were carrying.

The incident in this town of 350 persons has sparked criticism from health experts around the country.

"That's a very dangerous form of punishment," said Dr. Paul Larsen, a pharmacology expert who studies effects of tobacco at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. "I bet they were very, very sick."

There are a number of incidents of people being poisoned in one degree or another from eating cigarettes.

He said fatalities are rare because the victim usually vomits.

Yoshimura trial begins on explosives charges

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura's trial on weapons and explosives charges opened quietly, with none of the hoopla or tight security that accompanied the bank robbery trial of her underground companion, Patricia Hearst.

When the session Monday was called to order, Miss Yoshimura was in a corridor chatting with friends.

Her attorney, James Larson, muttered, "I'll get her," to Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich. He dashed outside, and a moment later the 33-year-old Japanese-American artist came scurrying into the small courtroom.

Miss Yoshimura, who met Miss Hearst when both were on the run in 1974 and was with her when both were captured in San Francisco on Sept. 18, 1975, has been free on $25,000 bail.

She is charged with possessing explosives, a machine gun, bomb components and a destructive device with intent to injure persons and destroy property. If convicted, she could be imprisoned for five years to life.

The prosecution contends she rented a Berkeley garage in 1971 as a weapons storage facility for radicals. Police raided the building in March 1972. Miss Yoshimura dropped out of sight the next day.

On Monday, she smiled, glanced at the dozen reporters who were covering the opening of the trial and jotted down notes as her attorney argued several motions.

Only the two regularly assigned deputies were in the courtroom, whereas a platoon of federal marshals were assigned to the Hearst trial.

Larson argued for an hour — in private — against allowing Miss Hearst to testify at the trial. He has said that Miss Hearst's testimony would be irrelevant to the charges, because the Berkeley incident occurred two years before the kidnapping that led to Miss Hearst's underground activity.

Larson also asked that Miss Yoshimura be allowed to act as co-counsel.

Judge Pulich took the motions under advisement, and he was not likely to rule on the one involving Miss Hearst unless she is called as a witness. Prosecutor Jeffrey Horner has said she might be called during the rebuttal phase of the state's case.

The judge summoned a pool of 40 prospective jurors and laid out a jury selection process that will last at least until Oct. 27.

Miss Hearst, who was brought to court handcuffed daily, was convicted of armed bank robbery and sentenced to seven years in prison. She and Miss Yoshimura have not met since their capture.

Baptists begin crusade

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A $1.5 million mass media campaign to "share Christ with every person in Texas" will be launched today as an estimated 6,000 Baptists open their denomination's annual state convention here.

The 91st session of the two million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas, being held at the convention center, also is likely to include debate among the delegates on at least two issues concerning the church's internal workings.

But the major focus will be on "Good News Texas," the 1977 statewide evangelistic campaign in which Texas Baptists will seek to take their beliefs to everyone in the state.

In the convention's opening session tonight, (Executive director James H. Landes will challenge churches to make maximum use of the unprecedented Baptist promotional campaign.

Court to hear case on sexual segregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was 22 years ago that the Supreme Court rocked American society when it ruled that separate public schools for white and black children were unconstitutional because such schools were inherently unequal.

Now the court's nine justices, none of whom took part in the 1954 decision in Brown vs. Board of Education, have agreed to hear a case involving the issue of whether Philadelphia can maintain sexually segregated schools whose equality is being challenged.

Susan Lynn Vorchheimer, the outstanding student in her junior high school and an award winner in science, was 15 years old when she filed suit in 1974 claiming that the city's practice of maintaining two schools for academically gifted children was discriminatory.

She wanted to attend Central High School, an all-boys school since its founding in 1836. A federal judge agreed with her claim that Central High offered superior science facilities and a better reputation than Girls High, the city's other school for

Chances there will be fatalities among the group

At the South Side clinic in Pittsburgh, where reports of deaths prompted the initial clinic closings, only a few people showed up on the first day back in business.

"I guess it's just a chance I'm taking," said 65-year-old Agnes Franz of Mount Oliver. She said that she had become sick in 1918, when swine flu killed 20 million people worldwide. She said she was willing to take any risk the shot might pose.

Officials at reopened clinics elsewhere also said fewer people were showing up than before the scare.

Authorities at the federal center for disease control in Atlanta were reluctant to predict how long the slowdown might last.

CDC spokesman Don Berrett said that because the program had also started late, there might be a problem reaching the Christmastime goal.

"We hoped to have all of the people who wanted the shots vaccinated before Christmas," he said. "Now we don't know."

However, he said the shipment of vaccine doses around the country was "in good shape."

He said the disease center would continue to monitor the program for any reports of illness, but he said, "The major reaction so far is a sore arm."

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a nice, refined woman my age (45) and we planned to be married next month. But an incident occurred last week in the shop where she works that makes me wonder if I should go through with my marriage plans.

Another woman employee and my friend got into an argument when the other woman accused my friend of stealing one of her best customers. The name-calling graduated into hair-pulling, and my friend was getting the best of this other woman when the other woman yanked her dress off her.

Well, my lady friend just wouldn't quit. Minus her dress she tore into the other woman, and before the battle was over, both women stripped each other and were fighting naked when the boss called the police.

My question: Should I marry this woman who fought naked in front of both men and women when she could have quit when just her dress had been torn off?

WONDERING IN N.Y.

DEAR WONDERING: Among other things, your lady friend exhibited a violent temper. I'd have to know more about her before answering your question, but if you place a high premium on modesty, don't rush into anything.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's all right for a man who is married and has four children to go out with other women as long as it doesn't interfere with his home life? I can't receive mail at my place because nothing around here is private, but I need an answer fast.

BURLINGAME

DEAR BURLINGAME: It's NOT all right. Besides, regardless of what you may think, it HAS TO interfere with his home life.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in disagreement over something and want you to settle it.

When someone comes to our door asking for me, my husband will invite him (or her) in, and he sends them to whichever room of the house I happen to be in at the moment.

He's sent people to my bedroom when I'm lying down! He has directed them to the basement while I'm putting up pickles. He's even invited them to join me in the kitchen while I'm mopping-up the floor!

Some of the people he's invited in I hardly know, such as the Avon lady.

I have asked him to please ask the caller to be seated, then come get me so I can go to THEM, but he never does. He continues to send them to me, which embarrasses me to no end.

He is a perfect gentleman otherwise, but now that he's retired and home all day, this habit of his is getting me nervous. We've been married 43 years, and this morning he sent a magazine salesman into my bedroom while I was dressing!

Please help me.

FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: You've told your husband what I would have told him. Now it's two to one.

Ask Dr. Lamb
By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — There is a great amount of industrial deafness in the area where I live and I have heard there is no remedy for it.

Then I read an item in the paper in which Florence Henderson said she had otosclerosis and had an operation so she could hear. I really do not know what kind of deafness I have or my friends have but I am wondering about this.

Maybe many will not know this type of operation is possible. A friend of mine who had the operation said it was just like flipping on a light switch, one minute deaf and the next minute she could hear. It was wonderful.

DEAR READER — I wish all those people who had deafness from exposure to noise in industry could be cured by a simple operation but it is not the same kind of deafness.

In general there are two main causes of deafness. The type Florence Henderson spoke of in the Sunday magazine involves degeneration of the bone and reformation of bone in the ear area. The new bone formation involves the small bones in the middle of the ear so they cannot vibrate and transmit sound.

The other type of deafness involves the nerve mechanism of the ear itself. This is the type of deafness that comes on with increasing age in most cases. It can also be caused by damage to the sound sensing mechanism in the internal ear and brain from noise. You cannot operate on the ear and correct this form of deafness.

The doctor can tell the difference in the type of hearing loss by using a simple tuning fork. The fork vibrates and he places the fork on the skull behind the ear (over the mastoid). The sounds are conducted to the internal ear by the bone. When the person can no longer hear the sound of the vibrating fork by bone conduction the doctor holds the fork in front of the ear. The normal ear will still hear the vibrations.

With otosclerosis or bone growth deafness the patient will not still hear the vibrations when the fork is held in front of the ear because hearing then depends upon the sound waves vibrating the tiny ear bones. The tiny bones have grown together from the abnormal bone formation. An operation frees the tiny bones or through other surgical techniques makes it possible to hear sound vibrations in the air.

The patient with otosclerosis hears the vibrations of the tuning fork pressed against the skull because the skull bones transmit the vibrations directly to the nerve mechanism. These people can often hear over the telephone much better than they can hear the spoken voice. Why? Because the receiver is held against the ear and the skull bones pick up the vibrations.

The tiny bones just inside the ear drum are called the hammer, anvil and stirrup because they resemble these objects. When sound waves strike the ear drum the vibrations are picked up by these small bones that are connected to each other. As they move in response to the vibration they set up vibrations which are picked up by the internal hearing device and transmitted to the brain. When these bones literally grow together they can no longer cause the vibrations for normal hearing.

What do we know about aging? Those who want information on this subject can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's pointers
By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I would like some advice from the readers concerning the care of gardenia plants. My two-year-old plant is growing quite tall, but has had very small blooms and has only bloomed twice. I have it indoors now, but it was outside in the sun. The results there were the same. I have gotten no real information by calling nurseries and would be grateful for any information. — C.M.J.

DEAR C.M.J. — From what I have been able to learn, gardenias demand very exacting conditions for blooming. This includes full sunlight and frequent watering to keep the buds from dropping and the leaves green and glossy. They need acid soil, moist air and night temperatures from 60 degrees to 65 degrees and day temperatures from 72 to 75 degrees. One of my sons has a dozen or more beautiful gardenia plants in his yard in California that bloom profusely. Perhaps yours are growing too tall and would bloom more if pinched back a bit. Perhaps some readers will have other ideas for you. — POLLY.

Herstory: feminist game

BALTIMORE (AP) — The woman who invented a feminist board game called "Herstory" admits she's never won it, and she adds, "When men play, I usually place third or fourth."

But Sharon Donovan, 32, said she's content to let others succeed at the game, which started as an assignment for a course on "Sex Roles and Social Inequities."

"Herstory" is similar to most board competitions, Ms. Donovan, who prefers that designation, said in an interview. Players roll dice and move a designated number of spaces, with the winner the first to reach the block marked "Herstory."

Along the way, they pass over squares marked "Vote," "Exit from Home," "Go Home" and "Go to Work." There are special cards marked "Pay Checks," "Awards Certificates" and "Style Bulletins."

The board is sprinkled with drawings of items associated with women, like pots and pans, and with tools of predominantly male trades, such as the T square used in carpentry.

The game can be played either by older children or adults answering questions about women in history, or by younger children simply moving through the board and skipping the questions.

She said many of the questions concern figures important to the history of the women's movement, but who may be little known, such as the suffragette Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

You can freezer-store those fruit and nut quick-bread loaves for two or three months. Thaw the loaves in their wrapping at room temperature.

Vietnamese child going home

FOREST CITY, Iowa (AP) — Doan Van Binh — 4-year-old centerpiece of an emotional legal battle — is going home with his Vietnamese mother, 18 months after the John Nelson family thought they had adopted him.

Doan Thi Hoang Ahn, 33, left her home in Great Falls, Mont., on Sunday and planned to pick her son up at the Nelson home today.

The foster family had asked that she stay with them for several days before taking Binh home with her. "Unless she can spend some time with us and find out what Ben has been going through, it's going to be very difficult for him," Nelson said.

But Mrs. Doan told reporters that she expected to return with the child Monday evening. "He will be going home," she said.

She said she couldn't take time away from her nurse's aide studies and couldn't arrange babysitting for her other children.

The Nelsons, meanwhile, said the child told them, "I want to stay home," and, "I love Bobby. I don't want to leave Bobby," an older child of the Nelsons.

"Ben doesn't understand what's going on — and that's the biggest problem," said Nelson. "He trusts us and thinks we are his mom and dad."

Legal records show that Mrs. Doan escaped to Saigon with her seven children from their home in the central highlands during the last days of the Saigon regime. Her husband was killed in the final days of the war.

Six of the children were brought to the United States, and some were placed in foster homes. She quickly regained custody of five, but the Nelsons kept Binh. The other child is in France, and diplomats are negotiating for the child's return.

Mrs. Doan began her fight to regain custody of her son when she arrived in this country as a refugee on Aug. 5, 1975.

Hospital auxiliary attracts volunteers

Five new volunteers attended the meeting of the Highland General Hospital Auxiliary Tuesday in the home of Mrs. E.M. Dunigan, president.

Swine flue vaccine was discussed by Mrs. Bennie Holland, health nurse in Gray, Carson and Wheeler Counties. Several members offered to assist with filling our required forms if vaccine for a public immunization program becomes available.

The scholarship committee reported that Sam Line, recipient of the auxiliary's $1500 annual award, is an honor student and president of nursing students at Northwest Texas in Amarillo.

Mrs. Dunigan and Mrs. Art

Teed, director of volunteers, explained that more volunteers are still needed to maintain and expand services to patients and staff.

Interested persons may phone or contact Mrs. Teed morning at the auxiliary office on the second floor of Highland General Hospital.

Three or four hours of service a week would be helpful, officials said. There is also a need for substitutes.

A coffee hour closed the meeting which was attended by 23 members.

The new volunteers are Mrs. Ray Sutterfield, Mrs. Don Speaks, Mrs. Marion Hunter, Mrs. Kay Fancher, all of Pampa, and Mrs. Albert Thorne of Miami.

Anderson not counting Yanks out of Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson isn't about to write off the New York Yankees and Yankee manager Billy Martin thinks he's wise not to do so.

"I said before the World Series began that I thought it would go seven games," Anderson said before the Series resumed tonight with Game Three. "I think I'll stick with that."

"The Yanks are an excellent club. They have to be here in the Series. They've won three or four in a row before and they can always do it again," Anderson said.

The Yanks will have to do just that to get back into this Series. They lost the first two games in Cincinnati, 5-1 and 4-3. Only six times in 73 previous World Series has a team been down 2-0 and come back to win the championship. And two of those teams were Yankee teams, in 1906 against the Brooklyn Dodgers and two years later against the Milwaukee Braves.

"I think Sparky's fight," Martin said of Anderson's conservative stance. "I think we have the edge at home because we're more used to the natural grass. And we're very easily capable of turning this thing around in a hurry."

"I'm not all that impressed with their pitching," Martin continued. "But I am impressed with the rest of their club. Still, I can't call them awesome the way some people have. The Yankee clubs that I played on, when we won five World Series in a row, that's awesome."

Martin sends 31-year-old right-hander Dock Ellis to the mound tonight in hopes of turning things around. Ellis turned himself around this year after coming to New York as a virtual throw-in in a trade with the Pittsburgh Pirates. After several stormy and ineffective seasons, he posted a 17-8 record this year.

Michigan, Pitt remain 1-2 in AP grid ratings

By HERSCHEL NISSENON AP Sports Writer Michigan, Pitt, Nebraska and UCLA held onto the first four spots in The Associated Press college football poll today while two-time defending champion Oklahoma moved into fifth place and four schools cracked the ratings for the first time this season.

The four newcomers are No. 16 Iowa State, No. 19 South Carolina and East Carolina and Mississippi State, tied for 20th. Michigan remained atop the ratings for the sixth week in a row. The Wolverines trounced Northwestern 38-7 for their sixth consecutive triumph and received 58 first-place ballots and 1,232 of a possible 1,340 points from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters.

The other four first-place votes went to Pitt, which defeated Miami, Fla. 36-19 without its top two quarterbacks. The Panthers received 1,088 points in holding onto second place for the fourth week in a row. Last week, Michigan led Pitt 1,194-1,057 with 60 voters participating.

Nebraska remained third with 930 points by walloping Kansas State 51-0 while UCLA clobbered Washington State 62-3 and stayed in fourth place with 896 points.

Oklahoma moved up from sixth to fifth with 718 points by defeating Kansas 28-10, dropping the Jayhawks from 15th place out of the rankings for the first time this season.

Meanwhile, Maryland slipped from fifth to sixth with 554 points after a hard-fought 17-15 victory over Wake Forest.

Rounding out the Top Ten are Southern California, Texas Tech, Ohio State and Georgia.

Southern Cal. idle last weekend, climbed from eighth to seventh while Texas Tech jumped from 10th to eighth by battering Rice 37-13. Ohio State, a 30-20 victor over Wisconsin, remained in ninth place while Georgia moved up from 11th to 10th with a 45-0 rout of Vanderbilt.

Missouri fell from seventh to 17th via a 21-17 loss to Iowa State, which also moved the Cyclones into the Top Twenty for the first time in several years.

The Second Ten consists of Florida, Notre Dame, Texas, Houston, Arkansas, Iowa State, Missouri, Alabama and South Carolina, with East Carolina and Mississippi State sharing the 20th position.

Last week's Second Ten was Texas Tech, Georgia, Florida, Texas, Notre Dame, Kansas, Louisiana State and Mississippi tied for 18th, followed by Arkansas, Houston and Alabama.

Grogan, Patriots romp past Namath, Jets, 41-7

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Steve Grogan, the New England Patriots' sophomore quarterback, isn't yet comparable to such National Football League scramblers as Fran Tarkenton and Roger Staubach, but he loves to run as much as pass.

The 23-year-old former Kansas State star has done both in making New England fans forget about traded Jim Plunkett while leading the Patriots to a surprising 4-2 record.

Grogan enjoys running so much that he even scores touchdowns on broken plays. He did that twice Monday night, sparking the Patriots to a 41-7 romp over the New York Jets before a national television audience.

Grogan, who received a telegram signed by about 500 hometown friends from Ottawa, Kan., celebrated his debut on national TV with a spectacular performance that stole the thunder from veteran quarterback Joe Namath of the Jets.

He completed 14 of 23 passes for 145 yards and one touchdown. He also carried seven times for 103 yards, including a 41-yard scoring sprint.

And he scooped up a fumble by teammate Don Calhoun at the New York six and ran for a touchdown.

"Grogan had an excellent game, a super game," Jets Coach Lou Holtz said. "The tale of the game was the offensive line."

"They protected Grogan and opened holes in play action. When we blitzed inside, he stepped outside. When we blitzed outside, he stepped inside. He sure has some horses in front of him and behind him."

Grogan's pickup of Calhoun's fumble for New England's second touchdown in the second period was the broken play. However, his run for the fourth touchdown in the third quarter was electrifying.

"A couple of his runs were planned, a couple weren't," New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks said. "The long one for the touchdown was not designed for him to carry the ball."

"Most plays are designed for me to run, but I took off about four times on my own tonight," Grogan said. "They were giving it (the quarterback run) to us."

The Jets now are 0-8 in the long-standing weekly television series and 1-5 over-all for this season.

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

October 11, 1776:

For the past several months, Benedict Arnold has been constructing a freshwater flotilla at the southern end of Lake Champlain in upstate New York to battle the British. Having departed Canada with 13,000 British and Hessian troops, British General Guy Carleton plans to proceed south and to cut off the New England colonies. The British have been sailing ships up the St. Lawrence to the rapids, dismantling them, carrying their parts overland, and reassembling them on the northern end of the lake. Arnold received his only sailing experience during a brief stint as a West Indies trader. In his words, his 700 men are "a miserable set. The Marines are the refuse of every regiment, and the seamen — few of them were ever wet with saltwater." Today Arnold takes up a position with 15 boats in the channel of Valcour Island.

4-H club now taking consignments for sale

Consignments in the Gray County 4-H Council - sponsored farm sale are being accepted by the Gray County Extension office, according to Layton Barton, assistant Gray County agent.

The sale will begin at 11 a.m. Nov. 13 in Recreation Park and proceeds will be used to finance 4-H Club work in Gray County.

"Any farmer, businessman or home owner in the surrounding area is invited to consign items to this sale," Barton said.

Consigners will be charged five per cent of the sale price on the first $5,000 and 2.5 per cent of the amount over $5,000. Minimum charge on each item will be $1 and a one per cent pass-out fee not to exceed $10 will be assessed on items not sold.

Barton said persons wishing to consign items should contact the Gray County Extension office at 689-7429.

ASCS sets meeting Wednesday

The board of directors of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District will discuss easements for the McClellan Creek and Red Deer Creek Watershed projects in a regular meeting set for 2 p.m. Wednesday.

In other business the directors will approve a conservation plan on Earl Smith, discuss the conservation awards program for the year, and review matching funds requests.

Payment of watershed related bills and a salary increase for the SWCD secretary will be discussed. The annual audit will be reviewed.

The Black Sea is bounded by the Soviet Union, Romania, Bulgaria and Turkey.

The largest island in the West Indies is Cuba, 44,217 square miles.

Celanese reports $496 million sales

Celanese Corporation has reported net income of 83 cents per common share, or $13 million, and sales of $496 million for the quarter that ended Sept. 30.

Income per share for the quarter was 41 per cent lower and sales were 6 per cent lower than in the third quarter of 1975 when the corporation reported income of $1.40 per share — $21 million — and sales of $536 million.

However, net income for the first nine months of 1976 was up from the first nine months of 1975. Sales of $1.6 billion resulted in income of $4.05 per share, or $60 million this year, compared to income of $1.56 per share, or $25 million, and sales of $1.4 billion in 1975.

Foreign exchange losses, including 25 cents per share resulting from the Sept. 1

Mexican peso devaluation, reduced the 1976 third quarter results by 38 cents per share. The 1975 third quarter foreign exchange losses were only nine cents per share.

Total foreign exchange losses to date for 1976 are 55 cents, compared to 10 cents in the comparable 1975 period.

The income per share by product group for the third quarter of 1976 was:

—total fibers 25 cents loss (U.S. polyester - nylon 14 cents profit, cellulose 18 cents profit and a loss in non-U.S. of 57 cents).

—chemicals 84 cents —plastics 15 cents —coatings and specialties nine cents.

John W. Brooks, chairman and chief executive officer for Celanese, explained that the low third quarter earnings for this year are due to several reasons. "Most important," he said, "they include labor disputes in Canada, foreign exchange losses and the depressed worldwide polyester filament business. In addition, the general economic pause in the U.S. slowed many of the industries served by Celanese beyond the normal seasonal lull mentioned in our second quarter report."

Officials have confirmed that Celanese is negotiating a direct placement of $150 million in notes with six institutional lenders.
