

Man cut off hand in fight with Devil

STAFFORD, Conn. (AP) — An 18-year-old man said he cut off his hand because he "got in a fight with the devil," then walked the streets with a Bible to preach the word of God, says the policeman who found him.

Robert Huettl of Stonington, Conn., was in stable condition Tuesday night at Hartford Hospital following surgery to re-store his right hand. A spokesman said it was too early to tell if the operation had been successful.

Patrolman Frank Kania said he found Huettl Monday night as the young man was walking along Route 190, carrying a Bible under his arm and bleeding heavily.

"I asked him why he did it and he said, 'If your right hand offends thee, cut it off and toss it away,'" Kania said in an interview.

He said Huettl's parents told police their son had no history of any wrongdoing or instability.

They could not be reached for comment. The young man had taken a room Sunday night in an inn and was to attend a nearby truck drivers' school, Kania said. He apparently graduated from high school in June.

Kania said Huettl had made a tourniquet for his arm before cutting off the hand with a razor blade.

"He knew he wasn't going to die," Kania said. "He just had to get rid of his hand. He said he got in a fight with the devil."

The patrolman said he and an off-duty volunteer fireman who also stopped at the scene made a better tourniquet and called for another officer to retrieve the hand. It was found in a wastebasket in the room.

Huettl told the fireman, "this is what the Lord did" and said he was on his way to preach about evil.

As they drove to the hospital Huettl "just read the Bible," Kania said. "He didn't say anything but he was very coherent. He wasn't shocked or anything."

Study uses marijuana in treating glaucoma

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Randall's pot plant was once seized by police but he now has a legitimate supply, thanks to federal approval of a new study of marijuana use in treating glaucoma.

The 28-year-old Randall was away from his home here last summer when police found his illegal marijuana plant sunning on a balcony.

Seizure of the plant was of more than legal interest for Randall. He suffers from glaucoma, a progressive eye disease that has destroyed 90 per cent of his vision. No medication helps relieve his pain, except marijuana.

In a burst of speed unusual in the federal government, the Food and Drug Administration, the Drug Enforcement Administration and the National Institute on Drug Abuse cooperated to, in effect, get a new and legitimate supply for Randall.

The FDA said Tuesday it has approved a plan by Dr. John C. Merritt of Howard University Medical School to use marijuana to treat severe glaucoma cases. Randall will be among about 50 test subjects.

The FDA, anxious to avoid the appearance of giving unusual attention to the Randall case, said the Merritt study is the 16th new drug approval involving marijuana. But the agency's action, the spokesman said, "was among the more rapid approvals."

Merritt received permission to test whether use of THC, the primary psychoactive ingredient in marijuana, reduces painful internal eye pressure caused by glaucoma, one of the leading causes of blindness.

The test subjects will receive cigarettes of prime marijuana grown on a federal farm in Mississippi or, if they're not experienced in smoking marijuana, capsules of synthetic THC.

The FDA said earlier studies, principally those conducted at the University of California in Los Angeles, have suggested that THC may be beneficial in treating glaucoma patients, although not in curing the disease, which destroys the optic nerve.

"The evidence leading to conclusive proof of this effect has not yet been produced," the FDA spokesman said.

A worldwide flu epidemic in 1917-19 killed 20 to 30 million persons.

Flu shots okay for kids

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Federal health officials have reversed their earlier stand and now recommend swine flu shots for children, especially those who suffer from asthma or heart defects.

Deland Meriweather, director of the National Influenza Immunization Program, said here Tuesday that high-risk children already were receiving the vaccine at 16 test centers throughout the nation. He said he expects vaccination of normal children will begin on a national basis after a hearing at the National Institute of Health conference in Bethesda, Md., Oct. 22.

When the immunization program began Friday morning, only those over age 18 were eligible for the free inoculations. Meriweather said children were excluded from the program not because they are safe from the disease but because tests showed "an unacceptable incidence of side effects in youngsters."

"We have identified everyone as being susceptible to the swine flu virus."

He declined to give the rate of side effects in children, but he said it was higher than the estimated 1.9 per cent of adults who experienced a fever of up to 102 degrees for 24 hours after receiving the vaccine.

The government reversed its position because of a recommendation by the American Academy of Pediatrics, Meriweather said, and vaccination of high risk children began immediately.

"Should they become sick with the flu, they most often end up in the hospital," he said.

Based on their experience with high risk children, government officials should be able by the Oct. 22 meeting to recommend the proper dosage to minimize side effects in normal youngsters, he said. The proper dosage probably will be two injections — a regular shot followed by a booster.

Meriweather was in Indianapolis to address a national meeting of the American Legion, which has volunteered its meeting halls around the country for use as swine flu vaccination centers.

Hurricane brought nightmare to shanty town residents

By VINCENTE MORALES
Associated Press Writer

LA PAZ, Mexico (AP) — For most of the night and day, Hurricane Liza's furious winds uprooted trees, knocked down traffic lights and spread destruction.

Thousands of peasants sought shelter in their cardboard and tarpaper shacks in a dry river bed on the outskirts of the City of Peace.

It was 3:30 p.m. Sept. 30 in this tourist center of 85,000 on the Baja California peninsula.

Several miles up the dry river bed, a 30-foot high earthen dam that diverted the Cajonitos River began to weaken.

City officials had warned the residents living just below the dam — 15,000 persons, most of them in the shanty town, others in a government housing project — to take shelter in public buildings.

But what about their few precious belongings, they asked. Would they be there when they returned? Most chose to stay.

About four miles below the dam, Pedro Olvera arrived home from his job at the Social Security office, changed out of his soaked clothing and settled down to watch television. His house was one of those in a housing project and was sturdy enough to withstand any storm, he thought.

A half-mile closer to the dam, Lupita de Velazquez was upset because one of her two sons had left the door open and the rugs were soaked from the hurricane's rain.

In the shadow of the dam, Francisca Vega de Marquez was more concerned. The wind already had stripped pieces of scrap asbestos from the roof of her home. She huddled in her husband's taxi with her six children, the dam dark and high above them.

Pedro Olvera was also upset, but for a different reason. It was now 7 p.m., time for his favorite television program — and the electricity was off. But now Lupita Velazquez was no longer worried only about a soaked rug. The water in the dry river bed had risen a foot and a half. Some of her neighbors were fleeing for higher ground with their children in their arms. The water had not reached her house, but the telephone was dead.

At 8 p.m., Francisca recalled later: "We were all inside the car. The water had already covered the tires and started to come inside the car. I thought about going back into the house when I heard a roar. It was more deafening than thunder, and I feared the worst."

The dam had burst, releasing its wave of death and destruction.

The water roared into Lupita Velazquez's house. The beds floated away and she was afraid that the furniture churning around in the waters swirling through the house would crush one of her children. She grabbed hold of wrought iron bars across one of the windows.

At 8:10 p.m., Francisca Vega felt the car rise in the front. I put my arms around the children who were with me in the back seat. The car started floating backwards. I was beginning to panic and the children started to cry. Then I felt the car banging against a house.

Cars were whipped about like paper-boats, some ending up six miles from where they were parked. Rescuers would find nine bodies, including those of five children, in one car buried in the mud.

At 8:25, Lupita de Velazquez was still clinging to the wrought iron bars across the window with one hand and clutching her nephew in the other.

By 9:25 some of the bodies and cars were lodged against the houses in the government housing project farther down the riverbed. The houses, built close to each other, served as a dam, blocking at least 200 bodies and dozens of cars from being swept out to sea.

Congressmen campaign free

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of letters from congressmen seeking reelection are being mailed to voters at public expense.

The mass mailings constitute the latest instance of what critics say is use by congressmen of the free mailing privilege to win votes.

Congressmen are prohibited from making mass mailings to their constituents within 28 days of an election. So Monday was the deadline and congressional mail facilities were busy.

At one time Monday, an employe pushing a mail-filled hamper from a hallway outside the House folding room to a loading dock said, "We've been working nights and weekends for three weeks." Another said of the mail volume, "It's unbelievable. It's as bad now as I've ever seen it."

A third was asked why there was so much mail. "It's election year," he replied.

The assistant postmaster for the House said the men were working to deliver to the Postal Service before midnight mass mailings by about 20 representatives. The Senate superintendent of mails declined to say whether large mailings had been sent by any senators.

Mass mailings frequently are newsletters recounting a congressman's accomplishments and are addressed only to "postal patron." They are stuffed into every mailbox in the congressional district or, in the case of a senator, in the state.

In the place of a stamp is a frank, a facsimile of the Congress member's signature, which allows the item to move through the mail without charge.

The citizen lobby Common Cause, which has filed suit challenging the constitutionality of the franking privilege, contends the privilege is an unfair advantage for an incumbent. Common Cause has estimated the value of the free mail at $70,000 per year for a House member and up to $500,000 annually for a senator.

South America is smaller than North America, but it is nearly twice as long as Europe.

He wants his phone

EASTON, Mass. (AP) — Wilford H. Woodworth was so angry with the New England Telephone Co.'s idea of progress he wrote the utility a letter on a typewriter, holding a stick between his teeth to punch the keys.

"Am I angry? You bet," wrote Woodworth, 35, paralyzed from the neck down by polio since he was 14.

His complaint was that the progress would deny him the special telephone service he needs by automating away the nearby Brockton telephone operators — the friends who have made his calls the past 19 years.

Woodworth, who is chairman of the Easton School Committee and attends its meetings in a wheelchair, said his old telephone had a special toggle switch, which he operated with the stick in his mouth.

"A light would go on at the Brockton switchboard that told the operator I was a special service customer — something, by the way, we pay extra for — and in less than 30 seconds the operator would put me in touch with the person I was calling," he said.

But now, the toggle switch only gives him a dial tone. He then must push another button.

"When the button is pushed, I get an operator from all over the place, including Lowell. There's no way the operator knows what kind of phone I have," he said in an interview with the Brockton Enterprise.

"When I get an operator unknown to me like this, I have to go through a question-and-answer period. The operator wants to know why I didn't dial the number. I say, 'I have a special phone.' She says, 'What kind of a special phone?'"

"And there I'm stuck with having to give her a synopsis of my life's history. It's a real hassle."

One telephone company representative told Woodworth the change would be an improvement. But Thomas Whelan, coordinator of special needs for the telephone company, said this was not exactly correct.

"He should never have been told the new system would be better for him. We are not trying to 'sell' the new system to people like him."

"As we improve technology, we lose the personal touch. That is what happened in this case," said Whelan, explaining that the duties of the Brockton operators would be taken over by operators in other centers around the state.

Peso value return may be slow

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP) — When will the thousands of Mexican customers shrug off the devaluation of the peso and return their vital business to U.S. merchants along the border?

One Mexican customer, a regular at an auto parts shop here, laughed and said: "We'll be back as soon as we learn to multiply using the new rate."

But labor experts and business leaders said this week they fear it will be a "long time before things return to the days before the devaluation" of the peso, even though it appears Mexican customers are beginning to trickle back to U.S. stores.

The Mexican government floated its currency on Sept. 1, allowing it to drop from a rate of 12.50 to a dollar to 20 to a dollar.

The measure had an immediate impact along the Rio Grande in U.S. cities which are really international retail centers that do nearly half their business with Mexican customers.

Since early September's evaluation, stores have reduced personnel while inventories piled up in warehouses.

One sales clerk said that "every day looked like a Sunday afternoon."

Bruno Abrego, director of the Texas Employment Commission office in Laredo, estimated that 500 employees, a little more than 1 per cent of the city's labor force, have been dismissed by retail stores since the peso was devaluated.

"Some have not filed unemployment claims because they still hope they will be rehired," he said.

Abrego estimated that the drop in trade in some of the stores "ranged from 50 to 90 per cent" shortly after the devaluation.

Mexican customers who used to pay 30 pesos for a gallon of milk, for instance, suddenly found they had to pay nearly 50.

Groceries made up a big percentage of daily purchases by Mexican customers from Reynosa, Matamoros, Nuevo Laredo, and Juarez where shops are within walking distance on both sides of the border.

George Gregg, president of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce, said "last weekend merchants said things looked good again. Most stores are offering large discounts to attract customers again. They have an abundance of stock they must sell. They are trying to revitalize the cash flow."

Gregg said he was confident that "when they (Mexico) go into full swing with their price freezes and salary increases, things will pick up again."

But right now, that is in the distant future, he added.

The Mexican government enacted salary increases and ordered higher prices for agricultural products and the latter may help U.S. businesses since the Mexican border area is basically an agricultural region.

In Hidalgo, across from Reynosa, a city with a large petrochemical complex, the store manager of the El Rio Supermarket said he had to dismiss 30 per cent of its employees. The store did 85 per cent of its business with Mexican customers who are almost within walking distance.

Manager Felipe Perez Garcia said: "The chamber of commerce keeps saying it's not that bad, but they are just trying to avoid a panic."

"The U.S. should get Henry Kissinger out of Africa and send him to Mexico City. He could do more good for us in Mexico than in Africa. This is a bad situation."

Among the shops hurt most seriously were those dealing with electronics and electrical appliances.

Fires common at home

From Pampa Fire Department
Did you know that 32 per cent of all fire deaths over the nation are unattended children? That's right, nearly one-third of all deaths by fire are children whose parents have left them home alone, if only for a few moments! About 2100 children are killed in home fires every year and a large percentage of these fires and deaths are caused by the age-old problem of children playing with matches! Now, it is logical to teach a child the dangers of playing with fire, but not just with a simple statement, "don't play with matches, Johnny." Time should be taken to sit down with the child and show him, in detail and on several occasions, the dangers involved. NEVER overestimate your child's ability for good judgment where fire is concerned!

About smoking: 21 per cent of all home fires and 11 per cent of home fire deaths are caused by cigarettes, cigars, pipes and matches. Do you allow yourself the luxury of smoking in bed? If so, it could develop into the costliest mistake you ever made!
Your water heater: Many people make a habit of storing old newspapers, and other items seldom used, in the enclosure where the water heater functions. Often clothes are dried here and cleaning items line the area. This is extremely bad practice as statistics show this to be a place of high fire potential.
Your attic: Most attics look like a disaster area. If your own falls into this category, and you sincerely want to cut fire hazard, do these things: Sort through everything stored there and get rid of old newspapers, loose clothing of no further use, cardboard boxes, etc. Do not store flammable liquids or aerosols in the attic, due to the extreme temperatures that build up in summer. Old pictures and other paper items that could never be replaced should be stored in fire-resistant cabinets or lock boxes. In short, throw out the unnecessary junk, while packaging and arranging those things you must save in proper containers. And, be sure your attic vents are clear of leaves and debris, with fine screening protecting them from entry of foreign matter.

The garage: This can also be the source of fire. Keep it neat and orderly. Do not use it for storage of things you are going to throw away "someday", especially newspapers, rags, old clothing, etc. And, above all, see to it that no greasy rags are left in waste cans or piles. (We'll cover this later.)

The crawl space: If you have no basement, you no doubt have a crawl space under the house. Frequently, depending on how tight your foundation and ventilation openings, leaves and other trash will accumulate here. Go under the house and clean out all unnecessary material.
Your basement: This is probably the most difficult area of all to keep free of fire hazard. As with the attic, neat, orderly and proper packaging are the keys to successful storage without danger. Flammables, in small quantities are best stored here due to the lower temperatures year 'round. But, they should be kept under lock and key to prevent misuse by curious youngsters. Heating units installed in the basement should be checked for efficient operation each year in the late summer prior to cool weather use. As you see, most fire prevention rules are just good efficient housekeeping.

The eaves, gutters and downspouts: Eaves always have ventilation openings. These should be kept clear of dried leaves and debris. The same holds true for gutters and downspouts. If a neighbor's house should burn, few things make it easier to endanger your home than gutters full of leaves and tree twigs.

Briscoe faithful to Carter despite...

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, cattleman and banker, kept smiling as Mrs. Jimmy Carter told Texas reporters that her husband plans high taxes on the rich.

If those remarks bothered Briscoe, her host and one of the wealthiest men in Texas, he didn't show it. Briscoe's devotion to Jimmy Carter's cause also has weathered the candidate's cutting comments about Lyndon Johnson in a Playboy magazine interview. The governor's support is a big plus for Carter's quest of Texas' 26 electoral votes.

Texas aren't used to seeing their conservative Democratic governors campaign enthusiastically for Democratic presidential candidates. Since the 1940s, Texas governors generally have been lukewarm toward the national tickets or pre-occupied with state politics.

And no presidential candidate can take Texas for granted. It went for Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956, narrowly for John F. Kennedy in 1960 and Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968 and for Richard M. Nixon in 1972. The only Democrat to carry Texas by a landslide since 1948 was native son Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964.

As chairman of Carter's steering committee, Briscoe is trying to out-campaign one of Texas' most popular governors of the past: John Connally, Conally is chairman of the President Ford Committee in Texas. Connally recognizes that Briscoe's support gives Carter a running start.

"I just am prayerful he (Briscoe) won't do all he possibly can," Connally said.

The two are old friends, and some of Connally's first campaign for governor in 1962 was planned at Briscoe's ranch in south Texas.

Connally still commands a large following of conservative Democrats despite his conversion to Republicanism in 1973 and has brought many of them together as "Texans for Ford."

He acknowledged when he accepted President Ford's request to run the Texas campaign that it would be uphill.

The President, Ford Committee's latest poll shows that still is the case, says Doug Lewis, who manages the campaign's day-to-day affairs.

"We are behind but we are in striking distance. I'd like to have a poll showing (the results of) Carter's gaffes," Lewis said.

Carter has spent much time explaining that he didn't intend to accuse LBJ in the Playboy interview of "lying, cheating and distorting the truth."

"Giving John Connally an issue like that is like giving a Stradivarius to Jascha Heifetz," said Dallasite Robert Strauss, Democratic national chairman.

But a cochairman of the Carter campaign in Texas, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, minimizes the effect of the interview on voters.

"They are just not going to vote Republican because of that. The people who did revere Johnson are people who need to have a Democrat in office. I'm talking about poor people, people who need an education to get on their feet," Armstrong said.

What are the issues in Texas? To the Republicans, they begin with the Democratic ticket's "liberalism." Disdain edges Connally's voice when he proclaims that Carter "chose as his running mate (Walter Mondale) probably the most liberal member of the U.S. Senate."

Briscoe, whose popularity derives largely from his "no new taxes" policy, perceives Carter — a personal friend — as a fellow conservative with no real commitment to the Democratic platform. "I don't think anybody after November is going to be reading the Democratic platform," he says.

But platforms are a big part of Ford's Texas campaign. The President's written commitment to the GOP platform is important to the disappointed backers of Ronald Reagan.

"Carter is calling in the platform for horizontal and vertical divestiture of energy companies. That's going to be a disaster for him. He is talking about destroying the economic base of Texas," Lewis says.

The Democratic platform, which Carter has basically supported in his public statements, does call for the prohibition of companies owning more than one form of energy, i.e., horizontal ownership. But the platform says vertical ownership — controlling everything from the oil well to the gas pump — should be prohibited only if it causes a lack of competition. Carter has said a wholesale breakup of the oil industry would be counterproductive.

Republican campaigners are saying that divestiture would reduce drilling and cut so deeply into Texas' $793 million annual revenue from oil and gas production taxes that a state income tax would be needed for the first time.

Harris County (Houston) Republican Chairman Ray Barnhart, who led Reagan's victorious campaign in the presidential primary, is working for Ford and was aboard the Natchez riverboat cruise with the President in Louisiana Sept. 25. The GOP chairman recently mailed 10,000 copies of a pamphlet comparing the Republican and Democratic platforms.

Republican leaders say federal limits on campaign spending made it crucial that the Reaganes forget their hurt feelings and volunteer as unpaid campaign workers.

"Out of the roster of 100 national convention delegates, I couldn't name you three who are not working actively for the entire Republican ticket," said Barnhart, who emphasized that the platform has brought the party together. Armstrong said platforms are meaningless.

As for breaking up the oil companies, Armstrong says that most Texans are consumers of oil and gas and are more interested in gasoline and utility prices than in how production and distribution are organized.

And Texas conservatives, he said, should be impressed with Carter's call for governmental reorganization and budgetary restraint. "A balanced budget — that sounds like pretty good fiscal conservatism. I can't remember ever hearing Kennedy or McGovern say: 'I will balance the budget.'" Armstrong said

Californians travel most in Texas in 1975

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Faraway California and neighboring Oklahoma have sent the most auto visitors to Texas during the past 12 months.

Residents of Florida, Illinois and Louisiana also liked driving to the Lone Star State, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation reported Tuesday.

Auto parties averaged driving 1,099 miles in the fall 1975: 1,392 miles last winter; 1,453 miles in the spring and 1,014 miles during Texas' Bicentennial summer.

California supplied 9.5 per cent of the auto tourists over the past 12 months and Oklahoma 7.5 per cent.

Florida was third with 5.75 per cent, followed by Illinois with 5.5 per cent and Louisiana 5.25 per cent.

The department also noted that 4 per cent of the visitors to Texas each year come from Mexico.

Tourists in Texas are spending less, and one way is by eating picnic-style in their rooms.

"Tabulations of Texas' summer-quarter tourist industry seem to confirm stories leaking from major hotel chains elsewhere that maids at luxury accommodations are finding room trash baskets full of hamburger and fried chicken wrappers, the department said.

The department reported that out-of-state auto tourists spent only $17.11 a person each day during June, July and August.

This was the second straight year that spending has dropped, the department said.

In 1974, auto visitors were each spending $20 a day.

Tourist parties during the Bicentennial summer averaged 3.03 persons, the department said, and they spent an average of 5.87 days in Texas. Tourists spend more time in the state during other times of the year.

State statisticians who gauge Texas' tourism pulse noted that the average stay is increasing in small but measurable increments," the department said in a statement. "The calculation is critical because tourist time converts directly to tourist dollars, left in Texas communities."

The tourist dollar was parceled out this way: 25 cents for lodging, 22 cents for food, 18 cents for auto expenses, 10 cents for entertainment and 25 cents for "other."

Among popular city destinations, the department said, were the Dallas-Arlington-Fort Worth complex, which hosted 16 per cent of the out-of-state summer visitors; Houston-Galveston 10 per cent; and San Antonio, 6 per cent.

The department said, however, "The greatest percentage of summertime vacationers continued to ramble around the state on unplanned, flexible schedules. Some 21 per cent toured Texas that way."

It was the first trip to Texas for 31 per cent of the summer tourists.

The department's report was based on postcard questionnaires filled out by 8,468 out-of-state auto parties.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? NEW YORK (AP) — How do you name one of the world's biggest offshore oil developments?

Geologists working on Phillips Petroleum Co.'s project in the Norwegian sector of the North Sea found a solution.

Each sector was assigned a letter. As maps were developed, names coded to each letter were required. The geologists decided to use the name of a fish or shellfish for each letter, starting with amberjack, bass, cod, etc.

Game features mini-winning streaks

Reason to smile

Jim Morgan, Pampa defensive end coach, has plenty of reasons to smile this fall, thanks to solid performances from his ends. Tommy Albus has been one of the instrumental players in Pampa's defense, which has come alive in the last two games. Albus has 22 tackles this season, 11 unassisted. He will be in action Friday when Pampa visits Lubbock Monterey.

(Pampa News photos)

Two winning streaks, although nothing major, will be on the line Friday when Pampa visits Lubbock Monterey in the final non-district game for both teams. Pampa opens District 3-AAAA play in a week by hosting Amarillo Caprock, and Monterey, open next week, entertains Plainview in a 4-AAAA opener Oct. 22. Monterey has won all five games this season, the last two with shutouts — 26-0 over Inter-city rival Estacado and 28-0 over Hobbs. N.M. Pampa, which lost its opener to Hereford, has won its last three, including a 28-3 blasting of Borger two weeks ago. The Harvesters were open last week. "I think they (Harvesters) have made tremendous improvement since the first game. We saw them scrimmage Canyon and I didn't think they were real far along. Now, there's no comparison," said Monterey Coach James Odum. Monterey is ranked No. 1 in 4-AAAA in both total offense and defense, averaging 240 yards per game while giving up 185. The defense, which has given up an average of just 3.3 yards per rush, may be put to its biggest test of the year Friday. "Their running game is good," said Odum, thinking in terms of fullback David Caldwell and halfback Ricky Moore, who gained 100 yards on 15 carries against Borger. Caldwell is averaging 4.7 yards per rush, while Moore has a 5.5 average. Moore, coming off a season in which he gained 899 yards, has scored four touchdowns. Odum is also concerned with Pampa quarterback Mike Lancaster. "I think in some ways Pampa is better than last year (the Harvesters went 8-2 and tied for the district championship). I think they are better out of the wishbone. I think they have a better quarterback." Pampa's defense will also have a tough job on its hand — slowing down the Ron Reeves — led offense. Reeves is a 200-pound quarterback who never played a down over the center until this fall, is the team's leading rusher with 84 carries for 322 yards and eight touchdowns. Reeves has completed 16 of 40 passes for 204 yards, no interceptions and one touchdown. "When we lost Gardner (Scott Gardner, a passing whiz who was graduated), it hurt our passing game some but overall this kid (Reeves) does a fine job," Odum said. "He has never even taken a snap in a varsity ball game until this year. We started him at linebacker last year." Tailbacks Robby McDaniel and Bobby Walden and fullback Dan Levacy round out the backfield and give the Plainsmen exceptional balance. "We feel like our running game is much better than last year. We've got better balance, more balance on offense than we had last year." Odum again talked about Pampa. "They'll be as good as anybody we've played. They're probably the quickest team we've played and they've got better

Ali through? maybe not

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — "Boxing was small time. I'm graduating to bigger things," Muhammad Ali said. But there are growing doubts he is serious about retiring and passing up a $10-million payday with George Foreman. Ali said in Istanbul last Friday, three days after successfully defending his heavyweight title against Ken Norton, that he was retiring to devote himself to his religion — the Nation of Islam. But when asked Wednesday about his retirement announcement, the usually loquacious Ali was suddenly silent. "I'm not talking," he said. "I'm not talking to nobody."

His manager, Herbert Muhammad, said earlier in the day that no retirement decision would be made until a film on Ali's life was completed. "My manager and I will announce to world boxing officials, that's all," Ali, 34, said between takes of a film scene involving Ernest Borgnine and a look-alike young Cassius Clay. "Any official announcement on my status has to be made by them (boxing officials) to be recognized," he added. His retirement would have to be formally forwarded to the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association for acceptance to become official. Promoter Chris Dundee, who watched Ali's rise to stardom under brother Angelo Dundee's tutelage, said he believed the picture, "The Greatest," held the key to Ali's decision. "If this picture is a success, I don't think he'll ever fight again," Dundee said. "But that's just my opinion." There have been reports of a struggle within the Muslims between Herbert Muhammad and his brother, Nation of Islam leader Wallace Muhammad. According to reports, Wallace Muhammad would like Ali to devote his time to the Islamic ministry. Herbert Muhammad tried to dispel talk of a power dispute at a press conference earlier this week. "I do know that I will not sign Ali to any more fights until my brother, who is my master and teacher, tells me to do so," Herbert Muhammad said. "The only struggle we face is the struggle against lies and deception, the struggle to establish truth."

There have also been reports that Ali's finances are not sound. Wallace Muhammad said Sunday that "it appears like so many great champions before him, Ali has squandered his vast winnings." "I wouldn't call it that," said Herbert Muhammad, who gets a third of Ali's winnings. "He has made some bad investments. So have I." An estimated $6 million Ali made for beating Norton and Ali's stocks and bonds have been ordered held by a Chicago judge until disposition of a divorce suit filed by Khaliliah Ali. Ali's wife of nine years. Harvard plays its first four football games at home this year.

Texas may use 2 QB's

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — At least twice this week Coach Darrell Royal of Texas has hinted he might use both of his sophomore quarterbacks, Mike Cordaro and Ted Conzanzo, against undefeated Oklahoma Saturday. Wednesday, however, Royal seemed more concerned about the physical condition of his squad. And senior center Billy Gordon, who has only seen action on two plays against the Sooners, may have summed up the importance of the game when he said, "I think about it when I'm eating, I dream about it. It's just always in the back of your mind." Gordon started last year but went out on the second play after he caught a finger in the eye. Royal was asked at his news conference Monday if he intended to alternate quarterbacks against OU, and he said, "I don't know. I might use two, but I won't alternate them." He said Cordaro would start. He told the Longhorn Club Wednesday he "might play" Cordaro for one series and Conzanzo for another, but added "I won't shuttle them." The largest Longhorn Club crowd of the year turned out for Royal's narration of Texas' 42-15 trouncing of Rice last Saturday, but they were thinking of OU. The Sooners, 4-0, are ranked No. 3 in the nation. Texas, 2-1, is No. 16, but the game is rated a near tossup. One enthusiastic fan said this would be his 30th consecutive Texas-OU game, and "we're gonna beat the hell out of 'em." Royal watched film of Texas fullback Earl Campbell fumbling against Rice and immediately noted that 17 of the 24 points OU scored in last year's 24-17 victory "came after fumbles." "I'm hoping we can avoid giving them something easy Saturday," he said. Royal said the Texas players "are eager and not one bit shy" about playing OU, and "the coaches feel the same." Freshman safety Johnnie Johnson, the fiercest tackler in the Texas secondary, will miss the game, however, with a severe "charley horse." He will be replaced by junior Steve Collier, last year's starter. Defensive end Tim Campbell is still slowed with a muscle strain, and Russell Erxleben, the nation's leading punter, was "not walking" because of a bruised shin. But Royal said

"he should be ready to play Saturday." None of Texas' top four halfbacks, including starters Johnny "Lam" Jones and Johnny "Ham" Jones, are at "full speed," Royal said. Another starter, defensive back Paul Jette, echoed Gordon's comments about the game's importance. "A lot of fans base the whole season on beating OU and I can see their point," said Jette. "If you're a human being, you're up (emotionally) all week."

Wants to show Martin Kansas City's Gura to pitch grudge match

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Larry Gura, an even-tempered man not easily ruffled, looked like he had just swallowed the sunshine. "This will be the biggest, most emotional game of my life," said the 28-year-old left-handed pitcher. "I don't have anything against the New York Yankee organization. But I do against Billy Martin."

It was Martin who traded Gura to the Kansas City Royals in May after Gura, five, Martin tied to him and never gave him a chance to prove his worth. And it will be Martin's Eastern Division champion Yankees he will battle Saturday in the opening game of the American League playoffs. "I was hoping against hope I would get to start," he said Wednesday, moments after Manager Whitey Herzog gave him the word. "I'd like to pitch all three games."

Martin, Gura says, promised to give him plenty of work during spring training this year. He had virtually none. "Then at the beginning of the year he told me he was going to use me for long relief and spot starting," Gura said. "For five weeks he never even let me warm up in the bullpen." "I got rid of him because I didn't think he was as good as our other four starters," Martin said Wednesday. "If I had him here now I'd get rid of him again." After coming to the Royals in a trade for catcher Fran Healy, Gura went on the 21-day disabled list with a pulled groin muscle. He finished the year 4-0, including a four-hit shutout against Oakland on Sept. 23, the game that virtually locked up the Western Division championship.

He faced the Yankees once, in August, and surrendered only a bunt single to Graig Nettles in seven-plus innings of relief. The nuances of Gura's anger were not lost on Martin, who is a master psychologist. "He's going to try to prove something," said the Yankee manager. "I think it'll make him a worse pitcher. He's a nibbler, always going for the corners, and he's liable to blow it. I don't think my players appreciate the way he's been popping off either."

Can Gura visualize himself overpowering Martin's Yankees Saturday? "Yes," he answered. "And that's just exactly what I'm afraid I might try to do. I've got to make sure I don't throw the ball through the screen. It will just be a matter of concentration." "Pressure, to me," he added. "Is where you aren't sure you can do something. I'll just remind myself that deep down I feel sorry for Billy Martin because he's been that way his whole life."

But what about Penn State, a team that's been in a post-season bowl eight of the last nine years, seldom out of the polls' top ten? They've lost three games, things look bad, don't they? "I don't like the way I'm starting. John being hurt. He's a good friend," Fusina said in a telephone interview. Fusina says there's no better way to learn than by playing, as he did when Andress was hurt early in the game. "I learned from the game. Standing on the sidelines is one thing, you can see the mistakes, but it's not the same as playing. By playing you learn to think, where to look, what to look for, what to do with the ball," he said. "Fusina is an only child and his father died when he was four, but his mother travels to each home game along with grandfather, his girl friend and his best friend."

MLPA seeking change in DH rule for Series

NEW YORK (AP) — American League pitchers may still come to bat in the World Series. The Major League Players Association filed a grievance Wednesday to bar the use in the World Series of designated hitters, claiming the rule is a violation of a new agreement between the baseball players and the owners. "It's not that the players' group is against the designated hitter, according to Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association. "We did not file the grievance on the merit of the designated hitter rule," Miller told The Associated Press Wednesday night. "But the settlement we reached with the owners states that any rule change must be negotiated with the players. This change was never even discussed with the players. Therefore, it's a contract violation." National and American League owners have been unable to reach an agreement on the use of a designated hitter. The AL has been using the rule, which allows the manager to use a player exclusively as a hitter while the pitcher doesn't bat, since 1973. The league also has been unsuccessfully trying to have its use approved in the World Series. When the leagues were unable to agree this summer, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ruled the DH would be used in alternate World Series, beginning this year. The grievance is expected to receive a quick hearing from the owners' Players Relations Committee, which consists of the two league presidents and representatives of six major league teams. If that group is unable to settle the issue, it will be sent to baseball's arbitrator, Alexander Posner. At least one member of that committee, American League President Lee MacPhail, indicated Wednesday he didn't think the grievance was justified and that owners in his league were upset over the issue. MacPhail said Wednesday that the designated hitter was officially a rule before the new contract became effective and therefore is not reviewable by the Players Association.

It did in 1970 Penn State slump may end with Army

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — In 1970, Penn State started out the football season on a losing note and a young sophomore quarterback turned the team around. The Nittany Lions were 2-3 when Coach Joe Paterno gave the ball to John Hufnagel in 1970. Hufnagel and the Lions knocked off Army that week, then finished the season with a 7-3 record. It's 1976. The Lions have dropped three straight games, have a 1-3 mark, and, ironically, face Army this week. This time, sophomore quarterback Chuck Fusina gets his first starting assignment. But Paterno did not demote anybody as he did in 1970. Fusina replaces John Andress, who suffered a shoulder injury in last week's 22-6 loss to Kentucky. He's out for five or six weeks. "I don't like the way I'm

Howard slated to do playoff

NEW YORK (AP) — The familiar voice you hear on TV when the Yankees meet the Royals in the American League baseball playoffs Saturday will be that of your old friend, Howard Cosell. Cosell? On baseball? None other, ABC-TV Sports President Rooney Arledge is hauling out the big guns for the first year in which his network alternates on the playoffs and World Series with NBC. But, you say, hasn't Cosell been one of baseball's most outspoken critics? True, yet he sees no inconsistency in his position as color man on the best three-five playoffs. "I'll be there as an objective reporter rather than a member of the baseball establishment," Cosell said. "The baseball playoffs and the World Series are special events, prime time attractions. In the face of the support ABC has shown me, if they assign me someplace, I'm there."

But Cosell says he has not changed his position on what he considers to be the restrictive structure of baseball. "I'm unchanging in my objection to the anomaly we have at law in which baseball is exempt from the antitrust laws," he said. "I've testified six times before Senate and House committees on that. I'm unchanging in my opposition to the carpetbagging of franchises. My objection is to baseball operations when I think they are not in the public interest." Cosell said his assignment came about after a skull session of producers and directors at ABC yielded the recommendation that he be on the playoff team. "Roone and I were talking alone and he said, 'Howard, I want to talk to you about baseball.' "I know I'll get a lot of flak," he said. "I'm certain many owners will resent it, but not all of them will. I've maintained friends in baseball. At this stage of my life, the most important thing is how I feel about myself and my family." One network source said "If he says anything good about what happens on the field, they'll call him a hypocrite." "All I'm going to do is do my job," said Cosell. Cosell will team with Keith Jackson and Reggie Jackson on the Yankees-Royals playoffs. Bob Uecker will sub for Jackson on Saturday when Jackson is committed to college football.

Cardinals nudge 'Skins in TL, 6-0

The Cardinals edged the Redskins, 6-0, and the Browns and Packers fought to a 0-0 tie in Tiger League football action Tuesday at Optimum Park. Anthony Scott scored on a 60-yard run with 2:54 left in the game to lead the Cardinals (2-0). Tuesday, the Colts (1-1) will meet the Packers (0-1-1) at 6 p.m., and the Browns (0-1-1) will face the Redskins. "Pressure, to me," he added. "Is where you aren't sure you can do something. ## Jones suffers back injury

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Injuries in Texas' ever-shifting backfield plague the Longhorns on the eve of their battle with Oklahoma as fleet freshman Johnny Jones of Lampasas missed Wednesday's practice with a back injury. Coach Darrell Royal said that reserve halfback Ivey Huber would replace Jones against the Sooners Saturday if the lower back bruise knocks the Olympic gold medal-winning sprinter out of action. Jones raced through Rice for 182 yards last Saturday.

Outsized White Deer to face Stratford

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

White Deer Coach Mike Purcell hasn't gotten tired of all the comments about his Bucks being too small to win in competitive District 1-A. "I'm eating it up," Purcell says. "When I was in Vega High School playing football, we had a real small team and we won six ball games. "I feel at home around these little guys. It's kind of nostalgic. Maybe it's because I'm so little."

White Deer, 3-2 for the season and 1-0 in 1-A, visits Stratford, also 3-2 and 1-0, Friday night.

White Deer, vastly outsized last week, opened 1-A play with a bang, bucking Sunray, 14-6. The Bucks, whose biggest lineman weighs 165 pounds and whose defensive linemen average 142 pounds compared to 203 pounds for Sunray's offensive linemen, overcame the size disadvantage with superior quickness. The quickest of the Bucks may be halfback Steve Williams, who carried 20 times for 187 yards and scored on gallops of 64 and 35 yards against the Bobcats. Williams has rushed 58 times for 466 yards this fall, giving him an 8.0 average. Williams, typical of White Deer players, weighs 140 pounds. "Size is secondary to quickness," Purcell said. "We'll play anybody in the state pound for pound. If we added 30 pounds a man and kept our same quickness, we'd be awful tough. "I think we'd win state." They might win district. The Bucks were not ranked highly in pre-season polls but have gained considerable respect from rival teams and coaches. "They're real quick and they hang in there real nice," Sunray Coach Buddy Sharp said. "They stay after it. I guess you could say they've got a lot of stickability. "It was disappointing to lose to them. But we knew they were going to be extremely tough. "Sharp still thinks Stratford will win Friday. "They're just as quick as White Deer and they're bigger. We're going to be pulling for Stratford. Somebody has to beat White Deer." White Deer, a six-point underdog, will try to contain the Elks' potent running game, powered by tailback Joe Pete Albert and fullback Leonard Duncan. "Albert's a good outside runner with a lot of speed," Purcell said, "and Duncan's a real strong, muscular young man. He gets the yardage inside. "They're Mister Outside, Mister Inside. We've got to play real good defense. If we play good defense, we can beat them. If we can stop the big play, we'll play with them.

"I think they're quicker than Sunray was; that worries me as much as anything. I'd just as soon play big, old slow boys." Quarterback Will Allen, a 6-4 senior, 185-pound linebacker Tony Urias and noseguard John Powers are other Elk standouts. Williams, quarterback Donnie Webb and fullback Dean Bennett comprise the Buck backfield, which may be the most explosive in 1-A. In other area games Friday night, Groom is at Booker, Lefors is at Higgins and McLean is at Miami. Textline is at Wheeler Saturday. All are District 1-B encounters.

Groom at Booker
Groom, 4-1 overall and 4-0 in 1-B, edged Wheeler, 12-9, in a critical outing last week, a game that gave the Tigers a decided advantage in district play. Halfback Thomas Reed had his best game of the season, rushing for 110 yards and two touchdowns. Booker, 2-2 and 2-1, must win to stay alive in District 1-B. A heartbreaking 28-26 loss to Lefors last week may have taken some of the steam out of the Kiowas, although a win Friday will put them back into contention. Bradley Mills, who scored twice last week, is hard to stop.

Booker, though bigger than Groom, lacks the speed to have much of a chance — Tigers by 15.

Lefors at Higgins
The Pirates, 4-1 and 3-1, have played only one unimpressive game this fall, losing to Wheeler, 35-10. Phil White had his only poor game of the season in that one, carrying 23 times for 55 yards. White, the Panhandle's top rusher statistically, has carried 132 times for 813 yards, including a 42 for 251 performance against Booker. Noseguard Johnny Siermann and tackle Randy Squiers are defensive standouts.

Higgins, 1-4 and 0-3, won its first game of the season last week, 28-22, over the Turpin, Okla., junior varsity.

Lefors may have to take White out in the first period to keep the score down — Pirates by 32.

McLean at Miami
Another team with troubles is McLean, 1-4 and 0-3. In spite of good performances from quarterback Sammy Don Haynes and halfback Curtis Simpson and pre-season expectations of a high finish in its first year in 1-B, McLean has yet to put things together. Miami, 3-1 overall and in district play, is another 1-B team with a chance to dethrone Groom. The Warriors' only loss this season was to the Tigers, 26-8. Halfback Kirk Flowers, who also starts at linebacker, is one of the Panhandle's finest athletes.

McLean lacks enough balance and speed to knock off Miami — Warriors by 14.

Textline at Wheeler
Textline, 1-3 in district and overall, has shown promise, but until last week, had not come up with a good effort from more than one player. The Tornados, whose steadiest performer has been halfback Terry McNabb, whipped McLean, 41-14, Saturday.

Wheeler, with athletes like 245-pound tackle Jim Verden, tailbacks Don Brown and Marvin Grimes and fullback Dell Ford, probably will finish 9-1. The Mustangs, 3-1 and 2-1, may have lost a chance at the 1-B title with last week's 12-9 setback to Groom.

No contest — Mustangs by 25.

Phillies unphased by Cincy's stunts

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson can talk all he wants about the Reds' post-season experience and their ability to score runs. He can stay silent about his starting pitcher for Saturday's National League playoff opener.

None of it is upsetting the Philadelphia Phillies, says All-Star left-fielder Greg Luzinski. "It's all part of Sparky's psyche job," said Luzinski. "Well, in this clubhouse it goes out like a grain of salt. He talks about starting a left-hander instead of a right-hander, because Timmy (McCarver) is catching. We won 101 games and we had to beat both sides (right and left).

"They talk about experience. We have respect for them. They have the best record in baseball (102 victories). They're a good team. But our inexperience is canceled out because we open at home before our fans. It's tough to come in here and play. The fans are behind us. They've waited a long time."

The 25-year-old Luzinski, affectionately known as "The Bull" for his 6-foot-1, 225-pound stature, will hopefully be recovered from a hamstring pull when the Phillies host the Reds Saturday in the opener of the best-of-five-game NL playoffs.

Luzinski, who hit 304, slugged 21 homers and batted in 95 runs in the Phillies' dash to a nine-game victory in the NL East, said it is important to the Phillies not to get too keyed up for the playoffs.

"All the pressure is in the playoffs," Luzinski noted. "You have to win here to get into the World Series. The World Series is fun. This is tough."

Reds' pitching wobbly

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who proved a year ago that pitching isn't everything, try to do it again — this time in shakier shape.

Heading into their fifth National League playoff in seven years, the Reds find themselves in a familiar spot. They figure to go as far their power and slick defense can take them.

Reds catcher Johnny Bench gives the pitching edge to the playoff foe, the East Division champion Philadelphia Phillies.

"I'd have to favor Philadelphia's starting pitching over ours, because of our question marks," said the nine-time All-Star. "The bullpen too."

If the Reds, baseball's winningest club over the past two years, have a soft spot, it is their sometimes-superb, often-wobbly pitching staff.

The problems started early, with ace left-hander Don Gullett missing most of the season with a recurring shoulder problem. Now that Gullett appears ready, veteran right-hander Jack Billingham, 12-10, suffered an arm injury in the season finale that could bite deeply into Cincinnati's already-thin starting staff.

The best-of-five series opens Saturday with the first two games at Philadelphia, before shifting to Cincinnati Tuesday. The Reds finished the season with a major league-leading 280 batting average, their highest in 46 years, but failed to produce a 20-game winner for the sixth straight year.

A bullpen that played a key role in last year's world championship has been shaky, almost a one-man force. Rawly Eastwick continued his sensational relief work, winning 11 of 16 decisions, saving 26 games while compiling the best ERA on the club, a 2.06 mark.

Pedro Borbon and Will McEaney, steady under fire last year, have 3.35 and 4.87 earned run averages and a collective 6-9 record.

Cincinnati relies on the most devastating hitting attack in baseball, one that produced club records in runs batted in, 802; hits, 1,599 and an unprecedented seven 10-game winners on the 13-man staff.

Manager Sparky Anderson was forced to start rookie pitchers 50 times, but uncovered a stopper of sorts in the process.

Criticism angers slumping Namath

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — "Stupid. Stupid. The stupidest thing I ever heard."

Joe Namath, the New York Jets' million-dollar quarterback, reacted testily to the suggestion that his passing skills have become so eroded that he is unable to scramble he no longer takes the step into the pocket before delivering a pass.

"I've been reading that stuff. It's ridiculous. How are you going to step if there is no place to step?" Namath said.

With the Jets 0-4 for the season and facing O.J. Simpson and the Buffalo Bills in New York's home opener Sunday at Shea Stadium, both Namath and rookie coach Lou Holtz are having to weather an increasing barrage of criticism.

"When is Hottz going to bench Namath?" was one of the most asked questions after the Jets lost their fourth straight game last Sunday, bowing to the San Francisco 49ers 17-6. It was a game in which Namath was sacked five times and was thwarted in attempts to initiate a touchdown for the third game.

Has Broadway Joe, 33, with fragile knees and carrying the pain of a pulled hamstring muscle, lost his old magic? Joe doesn't think so, but the very mention of it almost sends him up the wall.

"I don't want to talk about it," he snapped while dressing for a workout Wednesday at the Jets' Hofstra College training complex.

"If you want to know how I am playing, look at the films. That's all I ask. Am I missing any reads? Am I doing anything differently than I did last year or the year before?"

"It's the media. I am sick and tired of it."

Namath stuck a wad of tobacco in his lower lip. He thumbed through a handful of mail. He kidded with his quarterback understudy, Richard Todd, occupying the adjacent stall, and swapped quips with other teammates.

Texas state title at stake this Saturday

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If there were an equal number of Texans and Oklahomans on the 53-man Sooner game roster, most football fans would be surprised.

What would they think if they knew that actually there are twice as many Texans as Oklahomans on the OU roster?

No wonder the Texas-Oklahoma rivalry tops all others in bitterness. It is a family fight. It is UT-Austin versus UT-Norman.

There are only 11 Oklahomans on the OU roster. Texans number 22. There are 20 from other states.

That means only one out of five Sooners comes from the school's home state. It is unlikely that any other state university can make that statement.

There are five starters from Oklahoma and five from Texas on the Sooners' offensive team. On defense, Oklahoma has two starters and Texas has six. The placekicker is from Texas. So Texas wins on starters, 12 to 7.

Oklahoma has beaten Texas the last five years. In their frustration, some Longhorn fans carry such bumper stickers as the one that says, "OU — The Best Texans That Money Can Buy."

Every school has been accused at one time or other of buying players. The NCAA put Oklahoma on probation in 1974 and 1975 for recruiting violations. But the fact is, no matter how Oklahoma got there, it has a first class football program that attracts players from all over the country.

Texas Coach Darrell Royal reportedly told the American Football Coaches Association committee in 1974, "I resent even having to play them when they (Oklahoma) develop a monster team with illegal tactics."

OU Coach Barry Switzer says he has to recruit outside of Oklahoma because the population of the Sooner state is so small.

On the other hand, Switzer only has to recruit against Oklahoma State and Tulsa in Oklahoma. Royal has to recruit against Oklahoma, Arkansas (the other big out-of-state raider of Texas talent), Baylor, Houston, SMU, Rice, Texas A&M, Texas Tech TCU and several other schools that are playing major powers, such as North Texas State, West Texas State and UT-El Paso.

Some Sooner fans may play down the number of Texans on their squad. Not Switzer. He calls out their home towns on his hour television show as he narrates game films.

Switzer and Royal frequently trade jabs over recruiting.

In 1975, Switzer opposed a two-visit limit to a recruit's home.

"It usually takes me two visits just to get all that (Texas) homestate loyalty stuff out of his head," he said.

And Switzer still is fighting the NCAA to keep 14 coaches. Royal says eight is the maximum number of coaches that can do an efficient job of coaching. Anything over that is for lifetime recruiting, and that kind of emphasis on recruiting is bad for college football, he says.

Both Royal and Switzer have proposed lie detector tests for recruiters. Royal challenged Switzer to have both staffs take them at the same time. Switzer said his coaches already had taken the test and passed.

Switzer stung Royal when he said some coaches want restrictions on recruiting because they are being outworked while they spend their time listening to guitar pickers.

The idea of using Texans to beat Texas did not originate with Switzer. In his one year as head coach in 1946, Jim Tatum vigorously pushed Sooner recruiting beyond Oklahoma, and his successor, Bud Wilkinson, concentrated on Texas.

Before 1948, Oklahoma beat Texas only 11 times in 42 tries. Since then, the Sooners have won 13 and lost 15.

Oklahoma has had more consensus All-Americans (9) since 1950 from Texas than Texas has had lettermen (8) from all other states in the 19 years Royal has been coach at UT. Oklahoma has had six other Texans that made one or more All-American teams.

Texas has never had an All-American player from another state.

Button business doesn't boom

BROADVIEW, Ill. (AP) — A man who mints campaign buttons by the millions says business has fallen off sharply, and he pins the blame on new campaign finance laws.

Frank Sitzerger, president of Adcraft Manufacturing Co., said Wednesday that he's turning out far fewer of the colorful discs this fall than in any recent presidential campaign.

The problem this year is that both President Ford and Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter accepted tax-supported federal funding for their campaigns, he said in an interview.

"They've only got $28.1 million apiece, and they're going to spend that on television, not on buttons, pamphlets or the other traditional stuff," Sitzerger said.

He said Ford and Carter have ordered one million buttons each from his firm, compared with the 17 million discs that were made for Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign effort.

Sitzerger believes the buttons are valuable because they stimulate political discussions.

"You don't see the button, you don't get the discussion and the issues don't get aired," he said. "It's as simple as that."

Jimmy Carter swung harder

WASHINGTON (AP) — This time they came out swinging, and Jimmy Carter swung harder — on the very issues President Ford had chosen. The voters will decide how many punches landed.

While the final impact will only come clear in an election 26 days away, it was evident that in the second of the presidential campaign debates, Democrat Carter was on the offensive.

President Ford did his share of slugging, too, in a San Francisco rematch that was far more heated and contentious than the leadoff debate.

They met once more, on Oct. 22, in a debate that is not limited as to subject. That one, perhaps, will get to the topics people are talking about, things like Earl L. Butz and racial slurs; Carter, playboy and secret lust; the still unsettled inquiry into Republican campaign finances in Ford's old congressional district.

Those matters have not come up in the opening debates, under ground rules that limited the subject matter. In San Francisco on Wednesday night, the agenda was foreign policy and defense. Ford had wanted those topics debated first, since he considered them his strong points. Instead, the leadoff debate two weeks ago was on domestic affairs and the economy — supposedly heavy issues for Carter.

Ironically, Ford came out of the Philadelphia debate with added strength and Carter made a debater's comeback in San Francisco.

An Associated Press survey showed Carter gained a narrow edge in Wednesday night's debate in the eyes of the voters. A similar poll had rated Ford slightly ahead in the first debate.

In San Francisco, while Ford boasted of peace, performance and experience in foreign and security affairs, he was cast as the candidate with a record to defend. He did so.

He also used the powers of his office to disclose a hint of possible opening toward progress in the stalemated negotiations with Moscow for a new strategic arms limitation agreement, and to announce that the administration will publish today a list of U.S. firms that have participated in the Arab boycott aimed against Israel.

While incumbency worked to Ford's advantage on those points, Carter made maximum use of his role as challenger.

For him, there were no inhibitions born of the need to defend current policies. Almost every answer carried a built-in challenge, another slap at administration policies he called horrible, immoral, overly secretive and unsuccessful.

He said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger "has been the president of this country" in foreign affairs.

In fact, the language with which he keynoted his denunciation of Republican foreign policy could well serve as a capsule review of the debate:

Almost all style and spectacle and not substance.

There also were misstatements, notably Ford's claim that there is no Soviet domination in Eastern Europe. Not even his own national security adviser could second that.

During the debate, Ford defended that statement, saying he did not think Yugoslavia, Romania or Poland considered themselves dominated by Russia. He said they are independent and autonomous.

Carter said Ford would have a hard time convincing Polish, Czech or Hungarian-Americans that their ancestral homelands are not dominated by the Soviet Union.

Ford said he thought he had done all right in the debate, said he had been specific and Carter had dealt in generalities.

It was a point Ford raised repeatedly during the debate.

Once again, the candidates generally restated positions already taken, although this time there were nuggets of new information, as on the SALT talks, the boycott list, and Carter's insistence on continuing U.S. control of the Panama Canal Zone for the foreseeable future.

There also were misstatements, notably Ford's claim that there is no Soviet domination in Eastern Europe. Not even his own national security adviser could second that.

An AP news analysis

Even when he seemed in general agreement with Ford, Carter pressed the attack. Both candidates said they would move for normalization of relations with China, but without yielding the independence and freedom of Taiwan. Carter said, however, that Ford had "pretty well ... frittered away" a great opportunity to improve ties with Peking.

Ford said the United States must and will maintain full access to the Panama Canal. Carter said he would not relinquish practical control of the Panama Canal Zone in the foreseeable future — but would continue negotiations with Panama.

When Ford spoke of possible progress toward a SALT agreement, Carter acridly remarked that the President apparently had just learned that the current accord will expire in a year. "Mr. Ford acts like he's running for president for the first time," Carter said. And, in fact, he is.

By the time the debaters got to the Arab boycott, there seemed to be some hyperbole on both sides. Carter said the administration had proceeded disgracefully, and was permitting foreign nations to circumvent the Bill of Rights.

Ford then claimed credit for legislation to deny tax advantages to countries that have cooperated with the boycott, although the administration actually opposed the measure as too restrictive. He also said the administration had pressed for legislation to take strong and effective action against companies that cooperate with the boycott. Legislation to penalize such companies was shelved at the insistence of a Republican senator acting in behalf of the administration.

Of such items are debate points scored. But in a televised political debate, style may, after all, be the major point. And Carter changed his.

"I think in the first debate I deferred too much to him because he was President," Carter said. This time, Carter deferred to Ford not at all.

Connally says Ford won

By The Associated Press

Texas Republicans and Democrats each thought their man won debate No. 2 and John Connally thought President Ford was more clearly the winner of this debate than the last.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, Jimmy Carter's campaign co-chairman in Texas, thought his man was the clear winner, saying Wednesday night Carter showed a "competent grasping of the issues."

"To me, it came across as a parallel to Kennedy-Nixon (debates)," Armstrong said. "The President continually referred to experience but Carter showed that that experience was not a very satisfactory experience."

Armstrong said he could understand if Carter lost or tied this round since Ford had the experience, background and briefing. But during the debate, it became more apparent that Carter could think and react.

"I felt like he showed that there had been some non-management or mismanagement of the foreign policy, lack of communication with the Congress, and therefore the people, and that he intended to change that."

Connally said Carter took a negative position while Ford, on the other hand, handled himself "superbly well."

"He obviously was in great command of the facts," Connally said of Ford. "He showed great knowledge and real understanding of both the economic and the foreign policy issues and manifested a real strength in his determination to deal with those issues."

Roy Hutchison, chairman of the Texas Republican Party, said the depth of knowledge and the expertise of President Ford was obvious.

"Carter attempted to turn a discussion on foreign policy into a study of morality," Hutchison said. "All clear thinking Americans know that foreign policy involves a great deal more than that."

Doug Louis, Ford's campaign director for Texas, said "Jimmy Carter has volunteered to become the Neville Chamberlain of our time. He talked in platitudes of love and morality."

As for Texas' two senators, Democrat Lloyd Bentsen thought Carter made a strong showing and Republican John Tower thought Ford was the winner.

"Gov. Carter demonstrated the depth of understanding of defense issues and the proper role of the United States in world affairs," Bentsen said.

Tower said Ford "was strong on the question of defense reductions and on formulation and implementation of foreign policy in the Middle East and NATO."

Carter engaged in demagoguery. He swung away to domestic issues. It made his argument weaker," Tower said.

Conjugal visits backed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — All but a handful of Texas counties will have to upgrade their jails under rules being considered by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

A commission subcommittee has endorsed conjugal visits but the commission did not include them among the proposed requirements at its Wednesday meeting.

The standards drafted by a commission subcommittee would require sheriffs to write out detailed plans on separation of types of prisoners, sanitation, discipline, work assignments and rehabilitation and education.

The commission hopes to adopt its rules by the first of the year, according to Steve Suttle of Abilene, one of nine members of the new commission.

Despite the paperwork that would be required, Suttle says that sheriffs support the commission's work. Many of them have pleaded in vain with county commissioners' courts for money to modernize jails, he said.

Only five or six of the county jails in Texas would be in compliance with the proposed standards, Suttle said. The others would have to apply for a variance pending completion of required work.

If a variance is denied, a county could appeal to a state district court in Austin but would have to prove the commission's decision was not supported by the evidence before it.

The commission could close the jail of a county that simply refused to make the necessary improvements, transfer its prisoners to another county's jail and charge the expense to the offending county.

Suttle said Texas is breaking new ground. No other state has more than a couple of pages of law on jail standards, he said.

Among the proposed rules being considered by the commission are ones calling for:

- Conjugal visits.
- Limiting inmate work weeks to 48 hours "except in emergencies."
- Prohibiting assignments of work to one inmate by another inmate.
- Visual observation of each inmate at least once every hour around the clock.
- Granting each prisoner the right to testify and present witnesses to the sheriff prior to the imposition of disciplinary measures.
- Prohibition variation in normal feeding procedures as a disciplinary measure.
- Prohibiting corporal punishment.
- Make showers available at least once every two days, and for those on work assignments or making court appearances, once a day.
- Granting women prisoners access to hair styling equipment and other grooming accessories.

Probably the largest hailstones on record fell in Nebraska in 1928; they were 17 inches around and weighed 1½ pounds.

Africans seek arms embargo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Africans are once again seeking support in the U.N. Security Council for a binding arms embargo on South Africa aimed at forcing her to get out of Namibia.

A similar embargo was vetoed by Britain, France and the United States last year.

Informed sources said recently that if such a resolution is submitted as expected today the Western Big Three will veto it again.

African diplomats have given council members a private, informal and unofficial draft of an embargo resolution, hoping to negotiate a final text that could be submitted to the council next week.

The council scheduled another meeting this afternoon in the debate on Namibia, or South-West Africa. The discussion overlaps U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts to negotiate a South African handover of the territory to black majority rule.

The South Africans are sponsoring talks on independence for the territory, but they have excluded the South-West African Peoples Organization (SWAPO), recognized by the U.N. as representative of the Namibian people.

Africans working on the resolution said it would be unwise to submit one that would bring a veto if Kissinger seemed to be succeeding in his negotiations. But, they said, if it was clear that Kissinger had no chance of getting South Africa out of the territory, they could do nothing less than propose mandatory sanctions.

Some speculated that a proposal for a mandatory arms embargo was less likely to bring on Western vetoes than one for a mandatory trade boycott. The United States and Britain both trade with South Africa, but they do not sell it arms, as France does.

The speculation that there might be no veto contradicted British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland's remark to reporters Tuesday that "we're against" applying Chapter Seven of the U.N. charter, the section that authorizes the council to order diplomatic ostracism, embargo or force against any country threatening peace.

Prison term overturned; trial here 'too slow'

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals removed a 10-year prison sentence for Robert Turner, about 38, of Muskogee, Okla., assessed in 1974 in 31st District Court here because prosecutors failed to grant a "speedy trial."

Turner was convicted of a felony theft in November 1974 after a Gray County grand jury indictment 27 months earlier.

He was indicted for car theft. Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said Turner was free under a $9,000 appeals bond.

He was first arrested on the Gray County charge in Missouri. He was first arrested on the Gray County charge in Missouri. The state contended the delay was caused in part by Turner's being moved from one federal institution to another on several occasions during the period between his indictment and trial. As a result, the state had to file new writs each time.

However, the appeals court said the "state did not file its first application for a writ until two years and one month" after Turner was indicted.

Sheriff Jordan said the charge stemmed from Turner and his wife, Rosetta Mae, taking the car by worthless check from Claude Clay of Pampa.

The sheriff said the Clays lost about $7,500 on three vehicles paid for by worthless checks.

The higher court reversed the Turner conviction and ordered further prosecution dismissed.

Robert McPherson of Pampa was court-appointed to represent Turner and filed the appeal on his behalf.

Texas woman dies from screwworms

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An investigation was promised today in the death of a 70-year-old San Antonio woman from a screwworm infestation.

Bexar County Hospital authorities reported Wednesday night that Bertha Gimbel died from that cause last Friday. They gave no explanation for the delay in releasing the information.

"I don't know what happened," said the Metropolitan Health department director, Dr. Kurand Rothe, "but I intend to find out."

Screwworms are larvae of the screwworm fly which hatch from eggs deposited in open wounds of warm-blooded animals.

Man charged with murder faces commitment hearing

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A Wichita Falls man charged with murder in a 1969 slaying faces a commitment hearing, possibly next week, to decide whether he will be returned to Rusk State Hospital.

A state district court jury deliberated about four hours Wednesday before finding Charles Frank Hodges, 39, incompetent to stand trial on murder charges in connection with the beating death of Alma Carter.

The seven-woman, five-man jury also said Hodges "will not attain competency to stand trial in the foreseeable future."

Hodges' commitment hearing before a six-person jury could come as early as Monday, officials said.

Hodges has been a patient at Rusk since 1969 when a jury declared him insane after he was indicted for murder in connection with the woman's death.

Closing testimony Wednesday
