

Top pushers in the pack

Memphis Cub Scout Tom Rodgers pushes denmate Doug Hawkins in their bid for the championship of eight-year-old entries in the Second Annual Cub Scout Push Mobile Race Sunday afternoon behind Coronado Shopping Center. Although edged out for the eight-year-old honors by Pampa's Pack 498 Den 13, Memphis swept the grand championship, ten-year-old championship and best looking ten-year-old vehicle award with their entry from Pack 435 Den 3. Their first year to enter the push mobile races here, Memphis will hold the three-foot traveling trophy for one year. Championship for nine-year-olds went to Pampa Pack 498 Den 3, while Borger Pack 507 captured best looking vehicle awards for both eight-year-olds (Den 2) and nine-year-olds (Den 1). A total of 43 entries completed from a five county area this year compared to 30 entries last year.

Dogfight raided close to Hedley

About 200 persons who reportedly paid $45 each to be spectators at an organized dogfight near Hedley found they were barking up the wrong tree early Saturday when a number of federal agents and county authorities raided the site.

Armed with shotguns and automatic weapons, nine officers took into custody about 200 persons in a wooded thicket on a farm about six miles northeast of Hedley, a couple of miles off the McLean Highway. Donley County Sheriff Frank Lindsey told a reporter that to his knowledge there had never been any illegal dogfights staged in the county of the scope of Saturday's event which apparently involved 16 stocky Pit Bull terriers scheduled for eight fights.

The fights reportedly began about 5:30 a.m. Saturday. The fight site included a carpeted pit 20-foot square, a hospital cleanup area, a concession stand and bleachers.

An Amarillo Federal Bureau of Investigation officer told The News today that "We got our information Friday night" about the dog fight. Four FBI agents, the Collingsworth County sheriff and two deputies, and the Donley County Sheriff and a deputy conducted the raid.

A total of 151 drivers' licenses were taken from persons at the site before they were transported in a caravan to the Donley County Courthouse.

"There were people there from Missouri, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arizona, Wyoming, California, Canada, a couple of guys from Mexico, and from all over Texas," an FBI agent reported.

He said that at press time today it had not been verified who owned the property on which the dog fight was staged or who was the organizer of the illegal event.

While the FBI continues to look into the matter, only state misdemeanor charges of cruelty to animals were filed by Donley County against 12 persons.

Since there are no federal or state laws against watching the dogfights — only against organizing or actively participating in them — the remainder of those persons apprehended were released.

Freed Saturday after posting cash bonds and entering pleas of not guilty were Raymond L. Holt of Houston, $500; Dwight Hathaway of Canyon, and Darrell Van Henson, $200 each.

Nine persons pleaded guilty and paid fines. They included Ray Neal of Irving, $25 fine and $51 court costs; James F. Daniel and Larry Keyes, both of Dallas, both fined $25 and $51 court costs.

Fined $200 and $51 court costs each were Carl Jerry Nash of Dallas, Tommy Grimland of Amarillo, Ivan L. Lawson of Happy, Lee Girty of Amarillo, James Douglas Ueaton of Iowa Park, and David Vebanks of Tulsa, Okla.

"You've really got problems when you hit a place like that," a federal officer explained. "Since it is a violation to transport animals across state lines to participate in fights, all of the out of state dogs suddenly belong to Texas people."

And concerning the $45 admission charge, it could not be sufficiently verified since it is a violation to charge for such fights and many spectators denied there was any admission charge, an FBI agent said.

He reported seeing a published program on the fight and explained it probably had been mailed out well in advance of the fight.

"It's a little hard to put together a fight like that," the agent said.

He explained that common practice is that as dogs are entered from over the country, they are matched with other dogs and the owners must then make contact with each other to determine how much they are going to wager on the fight.

Several envelopes containing cash reportedly were found at the scene, but no gambling charges have been filed.

After being notified Friday of the pending fight, FBI agents searched the area around Hedley throughout the night. A Collingsworth County deputy sheriff in a light plane located the site shortly after sunup.

Kissinger hits Rhodesia deadlock

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Two of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's assistants left for Washington today to report to their boss on the deadlocked Rhodesian conference.

Neither Asst. Secretary of State William D. Schaefele nor Asst. Secretary John Reinhardt would say what they planned to recommend.

But a leading black Democrat in the U.S. Congress, Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr. of Michigan, called for Kissinger to put new pressure on the head of the white Rhodesian regime, Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Diggs flew home Sunday to report on the conference to President-elect Jimmy Carter's advisers. He told reporters that "most critical problems" could develop unless the Rhodesian negotiators cleared their first hurdle — agreement on a firm date for the transfer of power from the white minority to the black majority — by the end of this week.

Diggs blamed Smith for the conference stalemate and said:

"We certainly foresee the necessity for some more dialogue between the United States and Mr. Smith, the kind of dialogue that got this whole project off the ground."

He added that the Carter people would support fully any moves Kissinger might make before the new administration takes office. But another Democratic visitor to the Geneva conference, Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa, said President Ford's administration had been "very negligent" toward white rule in southern Africa and pursued "unwise" policies for the area.

Clark, who flew to Africa to discuss the situation in South Africa and Rhodesia with leaders of several governments, said he believes Carter will hasten the transfer of power in Rhodesia.

The British chairman of the conference, Ivor Richard, spent the weekend urging Smith's foreign minister, Pieter van der Byl, and the four black leaders attending the conference to move toward agreement on March 1, 1978, as the date for the blacks to take over. But the blacks — Joshua Nkomo, Robert Mugabe, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabangini Sithole — insisted on a one-year transition period while Van der Byl refused to agree to anything less than two years.

Richard scheduled more separate meetings with the leaders today.

Reinhardt met Saturday in Dar es Salaam with President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania after Nyerere met with the black Rhodesians' other chief African supporters, Presidents Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Samora Machel of Mozambique and Agostinho Neto of Angola and Vice President Q.K.J. Masire of Botswana.

Reinhardt told reporters he and Nyerere had a "good talk" and "updated each other." But Nyerere and his African colleagues issued a communique saying majority rule would be achieved in Rhodesia only by "armed struggle."

Mayors formulate urban battle plan

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayors of the nation's largest cities today formulated a new urban battle plan calling for immediate emergency aid for jobs and creation of an Urban Development Bank.

The mayors' urban strategy will be presented to Congress and President-elect Jimmy Carter with a stern warning that federal urban programs "are almost a nightmare of confusion."

Newark, N.J., Mayor Kenneth Gibson, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, told 100 city officials here that "the Carter Administration must set a national tone of concern for urban America."

Gibson said mayors should have access to Carter, suggesting it could be "through a vice president as an urban ombudsman or a domestic council in the White House with real urban clout."

"The issue is to make the federal bureaucracy responsive," Gibson said. In an address that ended a two-day conference session to outline urban priorities, Gibson called on Carter to develop "a coherent national urban policy that includes consolidation and cohesion" of federal grant programs, which he said number 1,800.

"Federal urban programs are now almost a nightmare of confusion," Gibson said.

The cornerstone of what the conference is calling a "new national urban investment policy" is creation of the Urban Development Bank, which would provide low-cost loans to businesses for expansion and location in the cities and to city governments for economic projects.

The mayors also will seek an emergency countercyclical jobs program "to shore up hard-pressed cities in deep fiscal trouble."

Gibson also said Congress and the Carter Administration would have to provide "additional federal money" to aid troubled cities.

Gibson did not say how much money the plan would cost. Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit in a television interview criticized Carter's representative here, Howard Samuels of New York, who was an under-secretary of commerce under Lyndon Johnson.

Young said the cities would be in trouble "if they have to depend on Mr. Samuels. I guess he's the man who recommended that President Ford let New York go down the drain."

In a magazine article last year, Samuels said default might be less painful for New York City than deeper and deeper budget cuts.

The mayors are hoping to influence Carter with their strategy that would provide crucial aid to troubled cities at the expense of healthier communities, if necessary.

"Carter has indicated he is going to help all the cities," said New York City Mayor Abraham D. Beame. "Some cities may need more help than others."

Absent from the discussions was Chicago's own Mayor Richard J. Daley, who, like Carter, was on vacation. Daley's reputation as a Democratic party power suffered a setback in last week's election when Illinois' electoral votes went to President Ford and Daley's hand-picked candidate for governor was defeated.

Beame, Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley and Boston Mayor Kevin White all suggested that federal money be distributed according to a formula based on unemployment.

Beame said Carter already has suggested three proposals that would funnel federal aid to cities with employment problems. The proposals include benefits to firms for every person they hire from the jobless rolls, an increased commitment to on-the-job training programs and incentives to curb layoffs.

New York has laid off thousands of city workers and remains in deep budget trouble.

Boston will have a $150 million deficit by next spring on its $500 million budget, White said.

$800,000 ditch

Cable is being laid from Pampa's central Southwestern Bell Telephone Office to Price Road and over to the Amarillo highway at a cost of about $800,000, according to Gary Stevens, manager. He said that the project probably will be finished about Jan. 1. The additional cable "will allow us to expand and it will relieve some areas that are getting pretty tight," he said. A contracting firm from Dallas is doing the work. The project, which began about the middle of October, was described by Stevens as "a matter of growth."

New cables underground

Pampa's current rapid growth rate and resultant boom in construction have caused some problems for an underground operation in the city.

"Few people, if any, would knowingly dig up a telephone cable," said Gary Stevens, manager for Southwestern Bell. "But cable breaks do happen here — primarily because of construction going on."

About 90 per cent of the telephone cable being installed to keep up with Pampa's growth is being put underground, "both for protection from the elements and for a more attractive environment," Stevens said.

An $800,000 project currently involves laying underground cable from Pampa's central office at 301 N. Ballard to Price Road and over to U.S. 60.

The project, described as "a matter of growth" by Stevens, is expected to be completed about Jan. 1. It began about the middle of October and is being done by a contracting firm from Dallas.

"It's additional cable to allow us to expand and relieve some areas that are getting pretty tight," Stevens said.

"By going underground, the cable isn't as susceptible to bad weather," the manager said. A severed telephone cable can cost the one responsible, Stevens said. When a contractor fails to notify the telephone company of excavation plans and cuts a cable clearly indicated by a Southwestern Bell marker, the contractor often is held financially responsible for the damage.

"A call to the telephone company's toll-free Enterprise 9800 number — before digging — can prevent service interruptions," Stevens said.

Schnabel quits

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Senate Secretary Charles Schnabel, recently convicted of a misdemeanor charge of official misconduct, announced today he is quitting the $7,500-a-year job he has held for 20 years.

Schnabel and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who wanted to replace him as chief administrator of the Senate, met jointly with reporters in Hobby's office to announce the decision.

"Charles Schnabel has served the Texas Senate well and faithfully for 24 years. He has now decided to seek other opportunities to serve, either in the private sector or elsewhere in state government. I wish him every success in whatever he undertakes," Hobby said in a statement read to reporters with Schnabel standing at his side.

Schnabel, 44, said he would serve until he gets another job or until the Senate convenes in January, whichever comes first. The Senate elects its chief officers, and Schnabel said he would not seek re-election.

"I'd like to get involved in some kind of work where my basic disposition can be manifest," Schnabel said, adding that he prefers work that involves "doing for others."

The secretary of the Senate is in charge of virtually all phases of Senate administration, from payroll to personnel to overseeing the sergeant-at-arms.

Schnabel was convicted of official misconduct Sept. 16 after pleading guilty to assigning Senate secretaries to do typing chores for the Texas Relays in 1975.

Dist. Atty. Bob Smith then dropped five felony indictments against Schnabel, who was fined $2,000 and given a one-year probation sentence.

Schnabel maintained that "I didn't receive a penny" from any of his alleged misdeeds, including the use of Senate employees on his ranch and salary kickbacks that he claims he spent on curtains and a stereo phonograph for Senate offices.

Hobby said he had no candidate in mind for the new Senate secretary and declared he did not know whether Schnabel had enough votes to keep the job if he wanted it.

"To occupy the position of secretary of the Senate... requires a broad consensus," Hobby said.

County examines $2 million budget

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

A proposed $2,147,000 Gray County budget for 1977 was discussed this morning during a meeting of Gray County Commissioners Court. The commissioners also gave tentative approval for a $50 a month wage hike for seven elected officials effective Jan. 1, 1977.

Other employees, including justices of peace and constables, are scheduled to receive 6 per cent hikes.

The new budget is estimated at $200,000 more than the 1976 figure which was $1,946,000. No new taxes will be levied.

The budget report includes about $250,000 in revenue sharing funds.

Judge Don Cain said the indebtedness of $85,000 for hospital bonds and $25,000 in airport bonds could probably be paid a year earlier than the 1978 schedule if legally permissible.

"I believe we will have the funds to do it," he said. "But if it is not legally permissible we will pay them off in February 1978."

Projected income for 1977 is $685,000, with expenses projected at $694,000. The judge explained that the county will have $203,000 in reserve at the end of this year.

"Hopefully, we'll end up spending less than the budgeted amount," the judge added.

The $1.25 per $100 valuation tax rate shows the following breakdown: jury fund, 1 cent; Road and Bridge special fund, 15 cents; general fund, 60 cents; Farm to Market and Lateral Road, 30 cents; courthouse and jail, 5 cents; hospital interest and sinking fund, 12 cents; and airport interest and sinking, 2 cents.

During the session today, commissioners noted that the $20,000 projected for his year in fines has almost doubled — now standing at $37,650. The 55-mile per hour speed limits and reduction of some crimes from felonies to misdemeanors and fine money to go to the county are contributing factors, commissioners added.

The projections include $100,000 for jail improvements and money for the sheriff to hire an additional deputy sometime next year.

Payroll is 48 per cent of the budget, while industry averages 61 per cent, commissioners noted.

Election results were canvassed and announcement was made that 10,130 voters cast ballots in Gray in the Nov. 2 election. The county has 14,458 registered voters.

The court will meet again at 10 a.m. Friday.

U.N. agency threatens freedom of press

A United Nations Agency, established originally to promote the free flow of information throughout the world, is currently meeting in Nairobi, Kenya to consider proposals that would have precisely the opposite effect. The agency is the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

The agency today is largely dominated by so-called Third World countries whose grievances against developed nations such as the United States include the charge that independent news agencies operating from their territory—e.g., the AP and UPI—report only bad news about the developing countries. The remedy many of them propose is to adopt the Communist pattern of tightening government control of the media and severely restricting the movement of outside, independent reporters within their borders.

One resolution, approved at an earlier international assembly by Third World nations and tentatively scheduled to surface in Nairobi, leaves no doubt about the seriousness of this challenge to freedom. Its title—enough by itself to choke you—is: "Declaration of Fundamental Principles Governing the Use of Mass Information Media with a View to Strengthening Peace and International Understanding and Combating War Propaganda, Racism and Apartheid."

The key is in the explosive phrase "the use of..." That defines well the general view of the media in countries headed by authoritarian regimes. News is a tool to be used to suppress the people and keep them ill informed on the real world around them. To help do that, the Nairobi conference is considering a plan calling for government-controlled news agencies in each country, coordinated by a Third World news service.

Leonard Marks, former head of the U.S. Information Agency, in a recent speech to the Inter American Press Association answered the complaint of Communist and Third World countries this way: "It is the mark of democracy that its press is full of bad news. When the press of a country is filled with just good news, you can be pretty sure the jails are filled with good men."

Our tax-happy Congress

While most of the national news focus has been upon the campaign for the Presidency of the United States, of equal or possibly even greater importance will be the direction which will be taken by the newly elected Congress. Will it be any better than the last Congress? We can only hope so, because the record of the 94th Congress left a lot to be desired.

First, there can be no question but that our national defense—a major responsibility of the Congress—has suffered greatly. While pinching pennies in military spending, the House and the Senate managed to find ways to increase spending in other areas of government by billions of dollars. As a direct result of Congressional delinquency, the world balance of military power has moved perilously in favor of the Soviet Empire.

President Ford, in his campaign, stressed our "quality of life" as a major government objective. But it must be emphasized that whatever improvement we have enjoyed in our "quality of life" has been due to the private and business sector of our society, not government. Better automobiles, better refrigerators, better washing machines and stoves and homes are a direct result of business competition for the consumers' dollars. The only "contribution" made by government is in the form of regulatory overkill, which has added considerably to the cost of goods and services.

No, there can be no question. The two greatest "achievements" of the 94th Congress were that it extracted the largest number of tax dollars from the American people of any Congress in our history, and it managed to spend more than any other in our history.

Someone has suggested a Constitutional Amendment which would make it impossible for any Congress to spend more money than it takes in. Although that would not completely solve the problem, it would certainly be a step in the right direction.

Military Fashion
Military men have put their mark on men's fashions: Eisenhower (jacket) Blucher (boot), Cardigan (sweater), Raglan (coat), Wellington (boot). In the first decades of the 19th century, the Duke of Wellington, fresh from his triumphs over Napoleon, appeared in public in trousers, thus hastening the departure of silk hose and breeches.

JOHN DEAN'S BOOK: Did it have election impact?

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ford's role in killing the House Watergate investigation in 1972 was given a new dimension in John Dean's book that may have had some impact on the presidential election.

The former White House counsel's inside story in the book "Blind Ambition" sharply contradicts testimony that Ford was not acting on behalf of the Nixon White House when he played a key role in blocking efforts by the late Representative Wright Patman (Dem., Tex.) to subpoena more than 20 important witnesses before the 1972 election.

While President Ford has admitted having a number of meetings with the Republican members of Patman's House Banking and Currency Committee, he has persistently denied that his actions were taken at the direction or at the suggestion of President Nixon or any other Nixon White House aides.

In fact, President Ford has denied any conversations with Nixon White House aides about the importance of stopping the Patman Watergate probe. Mr. Ford has insisted that his motivation was a desire to protect the rights of seven Watergate burglars who would not have received a fair trial if the House had conducted its hearings in October, 1972.

President Ford has rejected the accusation that he was carrying out the cover-up plan discussed by President Nixon, the then White House Chief of Staff H.R. (Bob) Haldeman and Dean in an Oval Office conversation on September 15, 1972.

The White House tape recording of that conversation involved Nixon's congratulations to Dean for his job of limiting the Watergate indictments to seven burglars, and emphasis on the fact that Patman's House investigation was the only thing standing between the Nixon-Agnew ticket and the November election.

Dean said he related to President Nixon that "Patman's planned hearings on the Watergate money transaction posed the biggest obstacle," and noted specifically that former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, finance chairman for the Nixon re-election committee, "had been calling me regularly to express his fears about being called before Patman's committee."

Nixon recognized the gravity of this possibility immediately, Dean wrote, and "he informed Haldeman that we would have to lean on Jerry Ford to block the hearings."

He quoted Nixon as saying "this is the big play," and added, "I'm getting into this thing, so that he (Ford); he's got to know that it comes from the top—and that he's got to get at this and screw this thing up while he can."

Dean related that a few days later, Haldeman had talked with him about the importance of stopping the Patman probe before the committee had voted to authorize subpoena power. Dean said he told Haldeman at that time that "it's a close question whether we have the votes to kill it. I've been talking to Bill (former White House Assistant William Timmons) and Stans and (former Assistant Attorney General Henry) Peterson on this thing, and (former Attorney General John) Mitchell is working on it to."

"We think we can give our guys (Ford and the Republican members of the House committee) a leg to stand on by telling them that an investigation will cause a lot of publicity that will jeopardize the defendants' rights in the Liddy trial," Dean wrote, "but that may not be enough. We really need to turn Patman off."

Dean related that Haldeman had told him to call John Connally who might "know some way to stop Patman."

"And tell Timmons (Nixon White House liaison with Congress) to keep on Jerry Ford's ass," Dean relates. "He knows he's got to produce on this one."

Ford has admitted that he had at least two meetings with Republican members of Patman's committee, and several meetings with individual members to express his personal concern over the need for preserving the right of a fair trial for G. Gordon Liddy, Howard Hunt, James McCord and the four other Watergate burglars.

"This was supremely cynical," Dean wrote. "We were trying to make Liddy, Hunt, McCord and the Cubans the scapegoats for all Watergate at the same time that we were blocking Patman with boundless professions of concern for their civil liberties."

It was later that Timmons reported that then House Republican leader Jerry Ford and Dick Cook (a Timmons aide) had told him they were sure they had every Republican lined up, a couple of Southern Democrats and one Northern Democrat, Representative Frank J. Brasco of New York.

(Brasco at that time was under investigation by the Justice Department, and in 1974 he was convicted on a federal charge of bribery and conspiracy in obtaining a government contract for a trucking firm operated by an organized crime figure.)

In concluding the recital of the pressures and persuasions used on Patman's committee members, Dean wrote: "More arm-twisting and back-room politics and Timmons reported we were safe."

The Dean book was called to the attention of Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff by Representative Elizabeth Holtzman (Dem., N.Y.) and Representative John Conyers (Dem., Mich.), who contend it indicates "perjury" by Mr. Ford or by Timmons in earlier testimony before the House Judiciary Committee.

Even if the evidence falls considerably short of sustaining the crime of perjury, Ford could ill afford any close focus on his admitted role in blocking Patman—even if he can make a convincing argument that he was motivated by concern for the civil rights of the Watergate burglars rather than Nixon-motivated concern for the political skin of Richard Nixon.

While the polls indicated that most voters did not believe that the Republican Party should be chargeable with the sins of Watergate, those same polls indicated strong distaste for those with any established role in Watergate or the Watergate cover-up.

Although Dean's book constitutes no new body of evidence against Mr. Ford, it does bring in just enough facts, along with conclusions, that the President was just a little closer to one of the most important bits of Nixon strategy in the Watergate cover-up.

BUTLER D. SHAFFER Political Apathy: A Step Into Maturity

I am indebted to the television networks and to Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter: the telecast of their "debates" probably did more to generate political apathy than just about anything else of which I can think. It's been a little like listening to a reading of the memoirs of Calvin Coolidge. The spectacle of two otherwise intelligent men mouthing—like ventriloquist's dummies—a string of platitudes and memorized data, each being ever-so-careful not to say anything that could be construed as thought-provoking, is beyond paths.

For ninety minutes per evening—not counting reruns, news reports, and reportorial analyses—each of the four commercial and educational networks lobotomizes our minds with this bilge. No one will be permitted to escape to such more stimulating fare as "Laverne and Shirley," "Let's Make a Deal," or "Sanford and Son." Even "Gilligan's Island" would be a welcome haven! Perhaps Marshall McLuhan was correct: the loss of sound during the first debate was but a revolt by the television system itself at being so cruelly exploited.

The only mental stimulation I received from this campaign came from the third-party candidates. The programs of most of these parties—most notably such neo-Marxists as the Socialist Labor, Socialist Workers, U.S. Labor, and Communist parties—are riddled with economic and philosophic nonsense. Others—such as the American, American Independent, and Senator Eugene McCarthy's organization—represented little more than the dying gasps of archaic viewpoints or archaic politicians having their "Last Hurrah."

To say that I have sharp difference with these political parties is to acknowledge the source of their stimulation. While Gerald R. "Clean" Ford is urged us to "have confidence" in his "proven leadership," and Jimmy "Carter gave me back my smile" Carter said "just trust me, 'cause I'll never lie to you," the third party candidates discussing things like issues, ideas, and philosophic principles.

Even though many of their ideas are absurd, and the rhetoric of some of the third-party candidates became strident and irate, they at least expressed a point of view, and didn't attempt to be "all things to all people." While the Social Democrats, U.S.A.—and product of the merger of the Socialist Party and the Democratic Socialist Federation—decided to "work enthusiastically" for Carter rather than run their own candidate for president, most third-party adherents would rather be right than president. American Party candidate Tom Anderson expressed this attitude we when, in response to the charge that his party represented only a splinter opinion, stated that his party sought to appeal only to those who do adhere to their beliefs.

The one candidate with whose views I could most closely sympathize the Libertarian Party's Roger McBride. If I were fatuous enough to believe that the problem of the political control of our lives and property could be solved by political action, I could probably have been persuaded to vote for him. Unfortunately—as I have indicated before—employing the political process to attempt to cure society of the ills of government is both ineffective and self-defeating. It is a little like trying to cure an alcoholic by hiding liquor bottles: it does not get at the underlying causes of the weakness.

It is a fact that people are becoming turned-off to the political process in rapidly increasing numbers. Because many people continue to practice the League of Women Voters "It doesn't matter how you vote, just vote" form of mindlessness, the third-party candidates picked up many protest votes. Tweedledum Ford and Carter certainly did nothing to discourage that trend. Personally, I would be interested in seeing the final figures on the number of people who, like myself, opted for staying home on election day. While politicians and their camp-followers tried to intimidate us with charges of "political apathy," we nonvoters will be the salvation of civilized society. When more people begin to lose interest in the coercive-manipulative-predatory mechanism of the political state, we shall, perhaps, find ourselves on the road to realizing the "progressive" and "great societies" of which politicians are fond of mouthing.

Drug smugglers armed

DEMING, N.M. (AP) — Drug smugglers in southern New Mexico often conduct heavily armed operations that include planes, camouflaged fortifications, attack dogs, walkie-talkies and other military equipment, says a U.S. Customs official.

Maj. William Anderson of Deming, a station supervisor for the Customs Service, described one such narcotics operation Friday for the Governor's Organized Crime Prevention Commission.

The commission is conducting a series of hearings around the state on drug problems.

Thompson said government radar spotted a plane entering Mexico, then picked it up on the return flight.

He said Customs aircraft followed the suspect plane to a remote airstrip in the Gila National Forest of southwest New Mexico. The plane landed and "we observed materials being transferred to a waiting vehicle on the ground."

Customs agents who landed and approached the area found no suspects, Thompson said.

But, he said, "we found a hidden stash of drugs and several more stash locations which, with nearby encampments, were well camouflaged."

"The encampments were covered from several directions by fire stations (foxhole-type entrenchments) equipped with quantities of 30-06 and .308-caliber ammunition.

"We found at least 10 sleeping bags and food for at least 10 men to last more than two weeks, walkie-talkies and a couple of trained military attack dogs," Thompson said.

"It is obvious they were highly organized and had the manpower and equipment to fight off any attack. Our men could have become involved in a dangerous skirmish of major proportions."

Anderson said these "quasi-military smuggling operations ... are multimillion-dollar organizations" and said his greatest need is for more personnel.

Anderson's division covers 150 remote miles of the American-Mexican border.

Brig. Gen. Edward Hooten of Deming, assistant adjutant general for the New Mexico National Guard, said the guard could provide men and equipment in specific cases if authorized by the governor.

Engineering professor to speak here Tuesday

Todd M. Doscher, professor of petroleum engineering at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles and a 1976-77 Distinguished Lecturer for the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME, will be the guest speaker at the November meeting of the Panhandle Section of SPE.

The meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Coronado Inn.

Doscher's speech, entitled "Oil Recovery — Past History and Future Directions," will assess the future of petroleum production and energy availability. He will discuss new oil recovery processes and analyze the recovery potential of each process. Doscher also will examine the influence of social, political, and economic constraints on energy research and development programs.

Doscher is a graduate of City College of New York, Case Institute of Technology, and the University of Southern California and holds degrees in chemical engineering and physical and colloid chemistry. He joined Shell Oil's Production Research organization in 1951, where he worked on fluid injection, production operations, and secondary oil recovery.

Weekend quakes not connected

By The Associated Press
Earthquakes hit Iran, the Philippines, Greece and Japan and one was reported in China during the weekend and today. A volcano erupted in Indonesia. Casualties reported were 16 dead and 32 injuries in north-east Iran.

A duty officer at the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said he believed there was no connection among the weekend quakes.

The Iranian quake occurred Sunday morning (11:01 p.m. EST Saturday) and registered 6.2 on the Richter scale. Most of the casualties were reported in the mountain village of Vandik, 400 miles northeast of Tehran, where all of the 150 mud-brick houses collapsed.

The Hong Kong observatory reported a quake in southwest China early Sunday morning (1:07 p.m. EST) measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale. The observatory said the epicenter was about 970 mile west-northwest of Hong Kong and about 205 miles northwest of Kuming. There was no confirmation from the Chinese and no report of casualties or damage.

A quake measuring 6.3 on the Richter Scale shook the eastern half of Mindanao island in the southern Philippines early today (12:11 p.m. EST Sunday), and a mild quake was felt in western Mindanao 3 1/2 hours later, where all of the 150 mud-brick houses collapsed.

Philippine officials described the tremors as an aftershock of the Moro Gulf quake in August that killed at least 3,000 persons and left 3,000 more missing, many from tidal waves that swept the coastline after the main quake.

Tidal wave warnings were issued by the government observatory following the earthquake today, but no waves have been reported.

The Philippine government said it had flown 5,000 pounds of relief goods, including medicine, to northeast Mindanao.

The epicenter of the quake was 530 miles southeast of Quezon City, about 15 miles off-shore of the province of Surigao del Sur.

Five quakes jolted Salonika, the capital of northern Greece, Sunday night and this morning. Most of the city's half a million people spent the night out of doors, but police said there were no casualties and no serious damage.

The most severe of the shocks had a reading of 3.4 on the Richter Scale. Amateur radio operators added to the panic with broadcasts of rumors of heavy damage in the suburbs. Long lines of cars left the city despite government pleas to everyone to return home.

A weak earthquake shook Tokyo and part of northern Japan today but there were no reports of damage or casualties. Japan's meteorological agency said the tremor was thought to be centered in the Pacific.

Indonesian authorities reported 9,550-foot Mt. Merapi, the highest volcano on the island of Java, spouted smoke 10,000 feet above its peak Saturday and rained ash onto the town of Magelang and the area around it. The local volcano control office said molten lava flowed into a nearby river.

No casualties were reported, but officials were preparing to evacuate residents of the area if the eruption got worse.

Wrecks, plane crashes swell violent deaths

By The Associated Press
Two three-fatality wrecks and two plane crashes swelled the Texas weekend violent death total into double figures Sunday.

At least 17 persons were killed by violent causes in Texas over the weekend, according to an Associated Press count that started at 6 p.m. and included fatalities that occurred before midnight Sunday.

Eleven persons died in motor vehicle accidents, two were shot to death and three died in two plane crashes.

Three persons were killed Sunday evening in a car-truck crash in Martin County 27 miles north of Midland. The Department of Public Safety identified one of the victims as Antonio Rodriguez Savala, 35.

The other two victims had not been identified early today. The truck driver was not injured.

A Brownwood man, his wife and small child died late Saturday when the automobile they were riding was struck by another vehicle that was being pursued at more than 100 miles per hour by police units. The victims were identified as Curtis Eldon Nicks, 24; his wife Betty May, 23, and their two-year-old son Curtis Jr. Police said Gilbert Saldana of Odessa, who was hospitalized with injuries after the wreck, was charged with murder Sunday.

Two Houston youths died Friday night when a private plane crashed into a field in North-west Harris County. They were identified as Peter Carl Baechele and Mitchell Drew Kaye, both 17.

Anita Mae Wright, 43, of Dallas, died Saturday when two private planes collided over the Denton Airport. Witnesses said Mrs. Wright was making her first solo flight at the time of the accident.

Robert Lujan, 30, of Corpus Christi was killed Sunday when he was struck by a car while sitting on his motorcycle in a parking lot. Officers said the driver of the car was arrested.

Officers said JoAnn Allen, 36, was shot to death Sunday in Marshall and her husband, James Edward Allen, 42, was charged with murder. Officers said Allen was in the Harrison County jail in lieu of bond Sunday night.

Carter may thank labor

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the early-morning hours on the day after the elections, with the presidential race still undecided, Jimmy Carter was on the phone with George Meany telling the head of the 14-million-member AFL-CIO: "You people do good work."

Organized labor turned out its troops in what has been described as the biggest, most expensive, best organized and most sophisticated campaign in behalf of a presidential candidate.

Carter is likely to show his appreciation with several top-level jobs and by advocating job-creating legislation supported by labor.

The unions also have a shopping list of long-sought special-interest measures dealing with bargaining rights for public employees, a stronger merchant marine, workmen's compensation standards, picketing rights for construction workers and repeal of "14B," the section of federal law that authorizes state right-to-work laws banning the union shop.

Nevertheless, while labor leaders are taking credit for helping to elect Carter — surveys show he had a 61-to-38 margin among voters with union backgrounds — they say they do not regard it as any guarantee of Carter's support when it comes to their special interests.

"If one special group thinks its going to be treated to an advantage over another, I think they're wrong," said Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Wurf and others regard jobs, health insurance, welfare and Medicaid reform as their priorities.

On the eve of Tuesday's election, Carter aides in Atlanta said he would probably give high priority to early action on job programs, including efforts to promote more employment in private industry through job subsidies and stimulation of housing construction.

Carter also said that before making major appointments he would talk to key leaders in business and labor. Meany expects to be among those consulted, just as he was when Carter picked Walter Mondale for vice president.

At the top of Meany's list for labor secretary is John T. Dunlop, who held that Cabinet post earlier this year before quitting in a policy dispute with President Ford.

United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, one of the first labor leaders to endorse Carter, is also thought to be in line for a top job in the new administration.

W. Howard McClellan, president of the AFL-CIO Public Employees Department, said Carter had assured him of support for a proposed national collective bargaining law for state and local government workers and liberalization of the Hatch Act, which currently bars federal employes from partisan political activities.

During the campaign, Carter said that, while he would not push for such legislation as repeal of "14B," he would sign it if it got through Congress.

Soviets mark anniversary; parade no new weapons

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government marked the 59th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution Sunday with one of its smaller military parades that included no new weapons.

It also received a message of congratulations from China that seemed a little warmer than usual.

It took only six minutes for the armored personnel carriers, artillery pieces and missiles to roll through Red Square. For the second year in succession, no giant intercontinental ballistic missiles were shown, and no tanks or other tracked vehicles appeared.

The hardware on parade was mostly defensive, including five types of anti-aircraft missiles, a 100mm antitank gun and the Sagger antitank missile on an amphibious carriage.

The several thousand soldiers, sailors, seaborne commandos and cadets who marched past the reviewing stand dropped the traditional goosestep for a less militant pose.

"The Soviet army and navy are reliably guarding the cause of revolution, socialism and peace," Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov told the marchers. He accused "aggressive imperialist circles" abroad of "trying to contain the onward development of the world revolutionary process."

Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev headed the party and government officials in the reviewing box atop Lenin's tomb.

After the military parade, brigades of sportsmen and more than 100,000 workers from farms, factories and government offices marched for two hours across the square.

A somewhat friendlier tone was added to the message from Peking by the inclusion of this phrase: "The Chinese people have always cherished their revolutionary friendship with the Soviet people."

Except for this and the deletion of a proposal for negotiating the border dispute between the two nations, the message was almost exactly the same as last year's. It said differences of principle "should not prevent normal state relations" between the two countries on the basis of Peking's often-stated five principles of peaceful coexistence.

The message was the first official communication to the Soviets from the Chinese government since Mao Tse-tung died Sept. 9. Since then, Moscow has sharply reduced its anti-Peking rhetoric, and the Soviet press has published several articles about former good relations with China.

Carter vacations on resort island

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter will attend a meeting of the Plains Baptist Church next Sunday and hopes his fellow parishioners will agree to abandon their whites-only policy, spokesman Jody Powell says.

As the President-elect rested among the marshes, woods and fishing streams of this Southern Georgia resort island Sunday, word reached him that the Rev. Clennon King, a black activist minister, had been barred from the church for the second week in a row.

Powell said Carter and other church members with whom the President-elect had been in contact "hope at the conference to reach an amicable conclusion and guarantee the right of all to worship without regard to race."

Powell said that if next Sunday's vote continues the whites-only policy, Carter would have to make "a difficult personal decision" about what course to take. He did not outline what options Carter might have.

Carter voted against a 1965 church rule excluding "Negroes and civil rights activists," and he has said many times he hoped the rule could be changed.

Meanwhile, the President-elect is dividing his time here among fishing, swimming, ping-pong and the study of recommendations from his staff and others about ways to complete the transition between a Carter administration and that of outgoing President Ford.

For instance, Carter is studying a memo from Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller recommending Rockefeller's experiences in the vice presidency and his thoughts on how that office can be made more useful.

Carter motored from his rented vacation home at Musgrove Plantation early Sunday morning to take communion at historic, small and unheated Christ Church, the parish in which Charles and John Wesley preached in the late 1730s. John Wesley later founded the Methodist church.

Carter has been campaigning virtually nonstop for almost two years, and he said he needs the rest his current vacation is providing. His vacation cottage is near a swift-flowing creek overlooking a marsh at the end of a winding road nearly two miles from the nearest highway.

The estate is owned by Smith Bagley, a Washington, D.C., businessman who was an early supporter of Carter's presidential hopes. Powell said Bagley will be paid up to $2,000 by Carter for five or six days' use of the cottage, surrounding buildings, and the 1,483 acres of woods, water and marshland.

In 1951 the United States signed a treaty with Australia and New Zealand for their mutual defense in Asia. Each country pledged to aid the others in case of an attack.

Hazing showed 'too much zeal'

NEW YORK (AP) — The mock military exercise that led to the stabbing death of a 20-year-old ROTC cadet was unauthorized and showed poor judgment — but it did not necessarily amount to hazing, a spokesman for St. John's University says.

"It was probably a result of too much zeal on the part of the students in attempting to perfect their military tactical skills," said Martin Healey, the university's director of public relations.

Summer Street to be topic for commission

Bids for opening and improvement of North Sumner St. will be received at Tuesday morning's semi-monthly meeting of the Pampa City Commission.

An unusually light agenda faces commissioners when they convene at 9:30 a.m. in City Hall.

Other matters to be considered include:

Appointment of an accounting firm to conduct the annual audit of city books.

Second and final reading of legislation amending Ordinance 563 creating and establishing city fire districts.

Recommendation of the Planning & Zoning Commission in regard to a zoning change on Lots 10-15 inclusive, Blk. 1, Broadmore Addition, and Lots 17 and 18, Blk. 1, Cole Addition.

Routine salary changes for October and payment of current accounts.

Police report

Weekend activity by Pampa police included investigating a report of enticing a child, two thefts, one criminal mischief complaint, arresting two drivers for driving while intoxicated and a third driver for driving while license suspended and working one accident with injury and three non-injury accidents.

Officers are investigating a report that a minor was approached by a male aged 16-18 near Starkweather and Frederic.

Dallas elects first GOP

DALLAS (AP) — Carl Thomas Jr., elected last week as the first ever Republican Dallas County sheriff, ousted incumbent Democrat Clarence Jones with belated help from the GOP "establishment."

Thomas, a 32-year-old ex-deputy and ex-Marine, will be sworn in Jan. 1 as the new sheriff, having beaten Jones 218,389 votes to 196,209.

But just six months ago he had passed a GOP primary test by less than 1,000 votes.

Then local Republicans, believing that Jones was vulnerable because of alleged bail bond irregularities and the highly-publicized slaying of an inmate during his term, took Thomas under their wing.

Most of his campaign funds came through $20-$50 contributions, generated by GOP women's clubs.

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Women increased their ranks in state legislatures from 8 per cent to 9.1 per cent in last Tuesday's election, for a new total of 685 seats.

"It's progress — but not very fast progress," said Betsy Wright, director of the National Women's Education Fund, which has been compiling statistics on women at state and local levels since 1974.

"We've got to discover some way we can go from 9 per cent all the way up to 25 per cent in one election period," said Ms. Wright, who prefers that designation.

Only then, she said, will women have enough of a base to make significant inroads on statewide and national offices.

The number of women in the U.S. Congress declined by one as a result of Tuesday's elections, from 19 to 18 out of 435 House members. There are no women in the 100-member Senate.

Ann Zill, director of the Women's Campaign Fund, said one breakthrough in 1976 was that for the first time women have begun to contribute money for women's campaigns.

The campaign fund collected almost $63,700 for women candidates, and the National Women's Political Caucus raised another $30,000.

The sum of $100,000 for women candidates is indeed paltry," said Ms. Zill, who also prefers the feminist designation, compared to the total of $400 million which analysts estimate is spent for all levels of campaigns in a year such as this.

The National Women's Education Fund has given intensive campaign-skills seminars in various regions of the country since 1974 to more than 500 women who want to manage campaigns or run for office.

In the elections, the number of women rose in 22 state legislatures, held even in 10 and lost strength in 11. Seven states did not hold legislative elections.

Alaska lost the most women, from 9 to 4 state legislators. California made the biggest increase in percentages, from 3 to 6, including the first woman elected to the state senate. Other sizable increases were Florida, from 12 to 18; Illinois, 14 to 21; Minnesota, 8 to 12, and Texas, 7 to 11.

The two states with the lowest percentages of women legislators did not hold elections this year: Alabama with 7.1 per cent and Louisiana with 1.4 per cent. States with the next-lowest numbers of women are Arkansas, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

States with the largest percentages of women legislators are New Hampshire, with 27.1 per cent; Connecticut, 20.3 per cent; Arizona, 16.7 per cent; Washington, 15.6 per cent, and Maine, 15.2 per cent.

Advice

Dear, Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-H. T. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: A reader wrote that her husband's 24-year-old brother, "a nice young man," was their houseguest. They had all planned to go out that evening, but the man and wife were leaving earlier, so the houseguest would have been left to shower and dress while a 13-year-old neighbor girl sat with the children.

The wife demanded that the brother-in-law shower and dress quickly and leave the house with them so he and the young sister wouldn't be alone in the house. The brother-in-law was insulted and the husband thought his wife was crazy.

She asked my opinion, and I said she owed the young man an apology. I received 289 letters telling me I was wrong! Not one letter in my defense! I then asked my readers if there wasn't somebody out there who agreed with me. The response was heartwarming, but my mailman isn't speaking to me. Letters poured in by the thousands, and I'm pleased to report that my mail is running about 300 to one in my favor. Here's a sampling of the responses:

DEAR ABBY: I'm in the U.S. Navy and all the guys aboard the carrier MIDWAY agree with me that you were right. Hang in there, Abby. MARK, S.C.: U.S. NAVY

DEAR ABBY: Pull in your horns. You're wrong. No man is a good man. In the back of his mind is always the thought of what he can get off a woman. This includes fathers, stepfathers, brothers, uncles, neighbors and your best friend's husband. CAREFUL IN HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: We are a retired couple who commend you for pointing out to your opponents the paranoia, suspicion and evil-mindedness of their views. You have our 1000 per cent support. MR. AND MRS. J. C. T., OAK BLUFFS, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: Here's one Lutheran pastor who hopes you get some support for your trusting attitude. If not, don't worry. Your advice is helpful even when it's not popular. W. W. WARRENTON, TEX.

DEAR ABBY: Unless the 13-year-old girl was Lolita, or the 24-year-old man was a potential rapist, I cannot agree that they could not have been trusted alone together. I strongly suspect that those who wrote to protest could not themselves be trusted in that situation—the old psychological phenomenon of "projection." J. McCANN

DEAR ABBY: If I had been the houseguest, I'd have informed my sister-in-law that she needn't worry about my alleged depravity anymore because she wouldn't be seeing me again unless I received an apology. JACK L.G. IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR ABBY: Sorry, you're wrong. If there's a one-in-a-million chance that the sitter could be molested, it wouldn't be worth the risk. Back down, Abby. FATHER OF THREE, SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: Whatever happened to the principle, "Innocent until proven guilty?" Stick to your guns! I'm 83 and read you daily. ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

DEAR ABBY: I must vote against you, Abby. I'm also guessing that you have no daughters—only sons. NEW ORLEANS, LA.

DEAR ORLEANS: Guess again. I have one of each.

DEAR ABBY: What's this world coming to? If that wife can't trust her own brother-in-law with a 13-year-old kid, what makes her think she can trust her own husband? APPALLED IN CHICAGO

DEAR ABBY: I doubt that a 24-year-old man would have any interest in a 13-year-old girl. It's the immature boys you have to watch out for. When I was 18 years old and did a lot of babysitting, a little 10-year-old boy actually made a pass at me! BORED IN BRATTELBORO

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A year and a half ago I had a fractured hip operation. This prevents me from doing the exercises I used to do. I'm 5 feet 7 and weigh 148 pounds. I know this is a good weight.

My biggest problem is that my arms have become flabby. What I'm looking for is an exercise to firm my upper arms.

DEAR READER — I understand that you might have some problems with exercises that require the use of your legs — depending on the amount of damage you sustained and your recovery — but I don't understand how that would keep you from exercising your arms. After all a person paralyzed from the waist down can do exercises on parallel bars and weight lifting to build up the arms to the level needed to move the body around. Usually people with damage to the legs from any cause develop strong arms.

You can lie on your back and lift weights with the arm extended. Or you can use "bend the elbow" exercises while holding a weight. If you can stand up to a chin-up bar you could do chin-ups.

A person can develop and maintain muscle mass to a satisfactory degree by simply using modified isometric exercises. Your body is built with opposing muscle groups. As an example, tense the muscles in your arm with your elbow bent. Now keep your muscles tense and straighten, then bend the elbow. The repeated straightening and bending motion with the muscles contracted will work the muscles. You can apply the same principle to almost any part of the body that you want to exercise.

You can tighten and relax the abdominal muscles while lying in bed. Using this technique you can keep your muscles fairly strong even while at bed rest. Of course, no one should exercise a fractured leg or any other part of the body that has been injured without the doctor's o.k.

To give you more information about isometric exercises, stretching exercises, and their relationship to posture, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-10, Exercise, Posture, Strength. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Last week when I was in the supermarket I noticed dandelions for sale to be eaten. Please inform me as to the calorie count and nutritional value of this so-called weed. I would also like to know if they are the very same dandelions that grow wild in my lawn. Any information as to preparation for eating would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — You have come to the right source. As a farm boy my mother used to gather dandelions and cook dandelion greens. You should cook them like other greens, such as spinach, or use them in a salad as a spinach substitute.

You may be in for a surprise. From a nutrition standpoint they are better than spinach. A three-and-a-half ounce portion raw contains 45 calories, spinach only 26. The chief difference in calories is that dandelions contain more carbohydrate.

That is not all. The dandelions contain 187 milligrams of calcium and spinach about half with only 93 milligrams. They both have about the same amount of iron. Dandelions have lots more vitamin A — 14,000 units while spinach has only 8,100. You have a better-than-spinach substitute on your front doorstep.

US voted with pocketbooks

By EVANS WITT and DICK BARNES

Associated Press Writers WASHINGTON (AP) — America voted with its pocketbooks as the White House changed to Democratic and left the heavily Democratic Congress and generally Democratic state legislatures with little change.

Though the aftermath of Watergate seemed to leave an anti-Washington taint that helped Jimmy Carter to his narrow presidential triumph, incumbents were not tossed out in large numbers.

Candidate personalities and local issues were important factors in many races. And, in a mood that seemed light years removed from the passions of the Vietnam War era, voters showed almost no interest in foreign or defense issues.

Most members of Congress who were associated with scandals of their own in recent months won re-election.

Voters continued a tendency to opt for younger candidates. Illustration: Losses by a trio of three-term U.S. senators to challengers ranging in age from 42 to 44. California voters tossing out the two oldest members of state legislature in favor of younger men; and three other new U.S. senators are under 40.

Jobs and inflation, overlaid with concern on how the government has been handling its own budget, were the major concerns that voters cited when asked in an Associated Press election day poll what one or two problems concern them most.

The AP election day poll found that Carter seemed to benefit most from concern over jobs, while Ford had the slight edge on the inflation issues. And those who said they were most concerned about holding down government spending overwhelmingly favored Ford.

Likewise, it was the Democratic congressional candidates who seemed to draw support from those most concerned with inflation and jobs.

For example, one of the biggest election surprises, the defeat of Democratic Sen. Gale McGee of Wyoming, came in a state where unemployment is low and inflation generally not an issue. McGee didn't have those issues in his fight with Malcolm Wallop in this Republican state, yet McGee lost the job he had held for 18 years.

Among 2,485 voters surveyed by The AP as they left the polls, the most personally important issue was inflation and high prices, mentioned by 40 per cent. Thirty-two per cent mentioned jobs and unemployment. Trust in government was listed by 18 per cent, government spending by 17 per cent, tax reform by 16 per cent and crime by 11 per cent.

Energy problems, a focus of public concern less than two years ago, were viewed among the top problems by only 9 per cent of the voters. Just 8 per cent named national defense as a prime concern. The two most dominant foreign policy issues, U.S.-Soviet relations and the Middle East, were cited by just 2 per cent each.

Those who did mention defense or foreign issues were more likely to vote for Republican congressional candidates.

But those concerned with the dominant economic areas voted for the Democratic congressional candidates. The group citing jobs and unemployment voted

2 1/2 to 1 for Democrats, the most one-sided split among any of the issues cited.

The split was closer, though still Democratic, among persons most concerned with inflation and high prices. Those bothered by government spending were more likely to vote for Republican congressional candidates.

The issue divisions on congressional candidates generally went the same way in congressional races as in the presidential race, but the margins on issues in favor of Democratic congressional candidates was wider than the similar Carter edge over Ford on issues.

However, there was less ticket-splitting on issue lines than there was in 1968 or 1972.

Once past the presidential election and their pocketbook concerns, the voters seemed to offer no coherent or consistent protest or mandate in their treatment of other incumbents.

Though nine U.S. senators were defeated for re-election, the changes reflected no significant party shift as have massive turnovers of past years. And 14 incumbents were returned for new terms.

In the House, the defeat of a mere 11 incumbents resulted in no important shift in party alignment. Although this year saw the largest number of representatives ever deciding not to seek another term, more than 370 incumbents will be returning next year.

Even at the state legislature level, what few changes took place had no sweeping effect on party dominance. Republicans gained full control of state legislatures in Colorado, Wyoming and South Dakota, all previously split. But they lost full control in Kansas, North Dakota and Vermont, each now split. Democrats lost full control in Utah, now split.

A pocketbook issue, utility prices, appeared a factor in the surprising loss by Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond, a Republican, in his bid for a second term. His opponent blamed him for high utility bills.

The sin and personal conduct issue tarred several incumbents, including Rep. Allen Howe, D-Utah; Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., and Rep. Henry Helstoski, D-N.J., who all lost. Howe was hurt by his conviction for soliciting services of a prostitute. Montoya was involved in questioned building leases, and Helstoski was indicted for seeking campaign contributions in return for support of bills helping immigrants.

But a much larger group of congressmen who were variously involved with illegitimate children, sex in the office, South Korean money and other tinges of scandal, all won new terms.

Carter committed to gov shake up

By DON McLEOD

AP Political Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is coming to Washington more committed than any other president in modern times to shake up the very structure of government.

And to accomplish some of his most cherished goals, he will have to tread on some of the most sacrosanct prerogatives of Congress.

The result could be a clash between the White House and congressional Democrats which would make President Ford and the last Congress look like sweethearts.

Carter's reputation for tough dealing with the Georgia legislature when he was governor is preceding him to Washington, and some backs are arching already in anticipation.

Several congressional staff aides fired the first shots this past week with complaints against Frank Moore, the man who has been Carter's congressional liaison during the campaign.

They said Moore wasn't attentive enough and didn't answer their phone calls. Moore denies any intended affront, and his chief lieutenant says the most they hear to apologize for is not being able to answer all of the calls when "everybody calls at once."

Ordinarily a Democratic Congress would be expected to be delighted at having the party back in the White House, but some of the most important Democrats in town are going to be upstaged by the new non-Washington outsider at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

When he talks about tax reform, he is encroaching on the preserve of congressional committees which usually act for the Democrats.

Even when he talks about shaking up the bureaucracy, he is threatening power bases in Congress.

The reorganization, key to nearly all of Carter's dreams for restoring order and accountability to government, means more than just reordering the departments in his own administration.

For every agency in government there is a committee or subcommittee somewhere in Congress which holds life and death control in the form of budget and enabling legislation, a committee to which Cabinet secretaries and agency commissioners or directors troop regularly, hat in hand, to ask for money or authority.

As president, Carter will have some clout he can use to pressure a reluctant Congress to yield to his reorganization demands. He ran into the same kind of resistance in Georgia and beat it. But the crossfire in Washington could damage both sides.

However, despite the early danger signals there are people in Washington and Georgia who think the fallout may not be that bad.

For one thing, if Carter proves to be popular, members of Congress will not want to put themselves at odds with the President.

"If he is as effective in organizing the business community and the people behind him as he was in Georgia, the thing will go through," long-time Carter adviser Charles Kirbo said of the reorganization plan.

The word "explode" originally meant to drive an actor off the stage by clapping and hooting.

Dead director lived double life

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer
SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — When South Dakota's director of economic development died three weeks ago, he left a wife and four children in Pierre. He also left a wife and five children less than 200 miles away in Sioux Falls.

Bob Martin's double home life surfaced because attorneys for both families inquired about his estate after he died of a heart attack on Oct. 16 at the age of 52.

State Atty. Gen. William Janklow confirmed the arrangement Sunday and said an investigation was under way, although he said he had "mixed feelings" about it.

"All it's going to do is wreck the innocent kids. And on top of it, their father's dead," he said.

The Sioux Falls wife said Sunday that she did not know there were two families. Someday, she said, she would like to talk to the wife in Pierre.

"I feel very sorry for her also," she said. "It was just as much a shock to her."

Mrs. Martin of Pierre, asked Sunday about the situation, said: "This is not fact," and declined further comment. Her attorney, Gary Colwill, said he planned to file for the estate on Monday. He said he had been unable to find a will.

Jack Allmon, who as South Dakota's secretary of economic and tourism development was Martin's boss, described him as a reserved and quiet man who didn't socialize much. But Allmon added that he knew the family in Pierre, and he described it as "very close."

It's not known when Martin married the Pierre woman, but the youngest of their children was said to be about 12 years old.

Allmon said a son in the Pierre family had worked in the state tourism department the last two summers.

Martin traveled frequently between Pierre — the state capital — and Sioux Falls, where his division was headquartered. He maintained an office in Pierre.

Attorney Steven Jorgensen, who represents the Sioux Falls wife, said she married Martin in 1968. He said he had not been able to find the marriage license. The youngest child of that marriage reportedly is 14 months old.

The wife in Sioux Falls said Martin spent Christmas and other holidays with her.

Martin's last salary checks and his personnel file have been impounded by the state pending a legal determination of how to administer the estate, Atty. Gen. Janklow said.

He said the Minnehaha County grand jury would be convened, and would take testimony from several people, including the wife in Sioux Falls.

Two days before Martin's death, Janklow said, he received an anonymous letter about Martin's double life. He said Martin died before he could ask him about it.

Carters plan simple inaugural

WASHINGTON (AP) — The planners of Jimmy Carter's presidential inauguration say they will put on a more modest celebration than the $4 million extravaganza that installed Richard M. Nixon in 1973.

Washington attorney Bardyl R. Tirana says Carter will use nothing like the $900,000 imitation marble reviewing stands that held and sheltered Nixon and 22,000 others four years ago.

"That was 'too extravagant' for Carter, Tirana said. 'The inauguration will be modest. It will not be extravagant, that much I know.'

Tirana and South Carolinian Vicki Rogers, both longtime Carter supporters, have been named by the president-elect as chairmen of the committees planning the festivities for the Jan. 20 inaugural.

The $4 million total tab for the 1973 inauguration included the swearing-in ceremonies at the Capitol, several concerts, five inaugural balls, and a reception for ex-Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

No over-all budget for the 1977 ceremony has been established.

Much of the inaugural schedule is determined by custom and protocol and won't be changed by the Carters, Tirana said. The president-elect will primarily influence specific details, such as the type of hats the men will wear, if any.

Later this week, Tirana will meet with Mrs. Rosalynn Carter, who will indicate some of the general ideas she and the president-elect would like included in the schedule. Detailed planning will begin from there, Tirana said.

Contractors authorized by Congress have begun work on the wooden platform in front of the east portico of the Capitol. Nearly all presidents since Thomas Jefferson have taken the oath of office near there.

One variable the committee can do little about is the weather, which has disrupted more than one inaugural in the past. William H. Taft moved his ceremony indoors to the Senate chamber in 1909 because of a snowstorm.

In 1961, on the night before John F. Kennedy's inauguration, about eight inches of snow fell and the military had to be called out to clear the thoroughfares with shovels.

But no one has suffered from inaugural weather like William Henry Harrison in 1841. He stood in a cold downpour to take the oath, then rode back to the White House on a white charger in the first inaugural parade.

A month later, Harrison was dead of pneumonia.

Fords vacation in Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Ford and his family may discuss possibilities for his future during an eight-day golfing vacation in this sunny resort town, an aide says.

The First Family arrived here Sunday from Washington and settled in at the home of U.S. Ambassador to Belgium Leonard Firestone. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the Fords had no plans for any activities on their first night.

Army aide Robert Barre't said "some options may be delineated," regarding Ford's activities after Jimmy Carter takes over as president on Jan. 20. "But there certainly will be no decisions made," Barre't said.

He indicated the entire Ford family will have a role in deciding on the President's post-

White House role.

Ford was expected to spend several hours a day on official business, such as budget matters and the State of the Union message he will deliver to the new 95th Congress.

When the President arrived at the airport here, he immediately plunged into an old routine — shaking hands with well-comers.

Liquor may have hidden acid

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — One man was in a San Angelo hospital today after he and another man apparently were poisoned with nitric or sulfuric acid given to them by someone offering them a shot of liquor.

Dave Thomasov, 45, and Calvin Reed were taken to Shannon Hospital for treatment, police said, while officers searched for the man who gave them the acid.

A hospital spokesman said that Thomasov was treated and released because he did not swallow the poison, while Reed was admitted and listed in fair condition.

Police said Thomasov and Reed were inside a bar early Sunday night when a man asked them if they wanted a drink from his pint liquor bottle.

Both men drank from the bottle and while Thomasov spit out the acid and suffered only minor mouth burns, Reed immediately started vomiting and was stricken with chest pains.

Police found a bottle nearby and a physician determined that it contained remnants of acid.

Less than an hour after the first incident, police found a man lying on the ground in a parking lot next to another downtown San Angelo bar, complaining of chest and throat pains.

He was taken to Shannon hospital, but a spokesman said the man was simply intoxicated and had become hysterical after hearing a news report of the poisonings.

Houston, Tech, 'Hogs still in race

Kratzert-Blackburn earn NTGC money

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

For five years, the University of Houston rode the back of the Southwest Conference bus serving out its apprenticeship as a new league member. There are a lot of Texas alumni today wishing it had been 10 years.

Houston, the school Texas sponsored for membership, is the Cinderella team of the 1976 SWC football title chase and could very well be dancing at the Cotton Bowl ball New Year's Eve.

Texas Tech and Arkansas appear to have a leg up on the Cougars. Tech is 4-0 and Arkansas is 3-0-1. However, the two schools must meet Nov. 27 in Little Rock.

Houston, which has lost only to Arkansas, has but two SWC games on the schedule. The Cougars are idle this week then visit Texas Tech in Lubbock Nov. 20. Houston meets cross-city rival Rice Nov. 27.

Tech hosts Southern Methodist and Arkansas entertains the red-tailed Texas Aggies this weekend.

Houston bit the hand that helped it Saturday with a 30-0 thrashing of Texas, the first defeat for the Longhorns in Memorial Stadium since 1967. The Cougar defense held Texas to 24 yards rushing, an all-time school record low.

"We knew that we could get the Orange mountain," said Houston defensive tackle Wilson Whitley. "We knew we could beat them, but we had to make the people in the stands believe it."

Texas Coach Darrell Royal, beset by injury problems to fullback Earl Campbell and inexperience at quarterback, said simply "I'm embarrassed it was by that margin. We weren't in the game ever at any point. We were totally beaten. We lost to a much better team, but there's no reason it should have been that bad."

The fifth-ranked Texas Tech Red Raiders survived winless Texas Christian 14-10. Arkansas dodged a Baylor point-blank field goal try in a 7-7 tie with the Bears, and Rice scored two touchdowns in the final minutes to whip Southern Methodist 41-

34 in the other games Saturday.

Texas Tech got caught in an emotional letdown from last week's come-from-behind victory over Texas and the fact that winless TCU was tired of hearing how bad it was.

"I think we did a real good job of holding down what must be the best offense in the conference," said TCU Coach Jim Shofner, who is the target of rumor mills saying that his job is on the ropes.

TCU suffered an interception at the Tech goal late in the game and Shofner said "We haven't got enough poise in that type of situation to win. We haven't played well enough to be in many winning situations. They had been through it and felt they could stop us."

"But," Shofner added, "We weren't out-horsed today."

"We just have to win the rest of the games if we want to go back to the Cotton Bowl," said Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles.

Texas Tech can say the same thing.

And Houston, the upstart, is waiting for either team to stumble.

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Bill Kratzert, a raw rookie on the pro golf tour, stood in the middle of the fairway facing perhaps the most important shot of his young career.

He and partner Woody Blackburn were on the third hole of sudden death playoff against a couple of titled veterans, former Masters champion Gay Brewer and former PGA king Bobby Nichols. At stake was the title in the National Team Golf Championship, $40,000 and — for the rookies — an exemption from qualifying for next year.

Brewer had just put his approach four feet from the cup and appeared set for a sure birdie, probably the end of the playoff.

"I just got over the ball," Kratzert said. "It's a muscle-memory thing. I hit it. I knew it was close. The crowd yelled."

The crowd yelled because Kratzert, still wearing sunglasses despite the gathering darkness, had hit it inside Brewer. He'd put it about six inches from the cup with the five iron.

Nichols missed his putt from about 18 feet and Kratzert opted to putt next. He tapped in for birdie. And Brewer, his 44-year-old nerves twitching in the growing pressure, needed to make it from four feet to stay alive. And he missed.

"Dog-gone it, I missed two short putts and that cost us the tournament," the bitterly-disappointed Brewer said.

The four-footer on the third playoff hole was one of them. The other came on the final hole of regulation play.

He'd made a six-footer for birdie on the 71st hole to give him and Nichols the lead alone with one hole to go.

Dallas has 'off day', edges Giants, 9-6

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — For Dallas Coach Tom Landry, it was like taking a walk down death row toward the electric chair only to be stopped by a call from the governor.

"I feel like a man who has been reprieved," said Landry.

horrified at the thought of losing to the worst team the New York Giants have fielded in 52 years.

Dallas (8-1) kept its one game lead in the National Conference Eastern Division Sunday with a 9-3 victory over the Giants in a game that was a flashback to the days of leather helmets and flying wedges.

"It's a mark of a good team to win on an off day and we had one today," said Landry.

The Giants are not a good team. Their record is 0-9.

New York did break a string of 10 consecutive scoreless quarters with Joe Danelo's 19-yard field goal in the first period. The Giants still haven't had a touchdown since from Craig Morton since Oct. 10.

The offensive highlights for Dallas were Efen Herrera's field goals of 22, 30 and 20 yards.

Herrera broke a 3-3 tie with two field goals in the fourth quarter after Danny White hoodwinked the Giants with a fake punt and Charlie Waters intercepted a Morton pass.

"It was a 'don't get caught' type of play," said White of his fake punt and run in the fourth quarter that set up Herrera's go-ahead field goal. "It's something that kinda happens. I saw them coming in for the block, so I double checked their line and ran."

McVay, who unleashed fullback Larry Csonka for 27 carries and 89 yards, said, "We're knocking on the door. We played well enough to win against a good football team, but just didn't do it. We had our chances."

New York drove to the Cowboy five-yard line late in the game but defensive end Harvey Martin caused Morton to fumble while trying to pass to kill the threat.

"We knew they had to score a touchdown to win and I knew Craig wasn't going to use his backs for blocking," said Martin. "So, I just took off and ran."

McVay. "We felt he was going to punt because we've seen him on film several times. When he started to move, they thought he (White) was going through with his kicking motion, so they peeled back."

McVay, who unleashed fullback Larry Csonka for 27 carries and 89 yards, said, "We're knocking on the door. We played well enough to win against a good football team, but just didn't do it. We had our chances."

Canyon grabs crown in Pampa tournament

David White bolted off right tackle for 65 yards to score the game's only touchdown as Canyon trimmed the Pampa Colts, 7-0, in the championship game of the Pampa Optimist Bowl elementary school football tournament Saturday.

Bryan Crabtree ran over the conversion for the 7-0 advantage.

Canyon reached the finals by whipping Stratford, 19-6, and the Pampa Cardinals, 21-13.

Lanny Wilkinson scored on runs of three and four yards against Stratford, while White scored on a seven-yard sprint. A pass from Mark Johnson to Danny Byrd gave Canyon its only extra point.

Stratford scored late in the game on a 35-yard run by Mark Hawkins.

Scotty Thompson returned the opening kickoff 65 yards for a touchdown, and Mike Nelson added the extra point as the Cardinals grabbed an early lead against Canyon.

Anthony Scott upped Pampa's margin on a three yard burst for a touchdown.

After a scoreless second period, Canyon, behind White's touchdown runs of 11, one and eight yards, rolled to its second victory of the tournament.

Wilkinson ran for two extra points and White one to round out the scoring.

The Colts, who drew a bye in the first round, blanked the Pampa Redskins, 14-0, as David Sokolosky went three yards for a TD on the second quarter and Brad Voyles seven yards in the final period. Boyles and Bill Carter added the extra points.

The Redskins in the first round shut out the Pampa Browns, 6-0, on a 13-yard run by Lynn Don Willis in the third stanza.

Also Saturday, the Pampa Packers captured the McLean tournament championship after battling Fritch to a scoreless tie in the first round and winning the game on penetrations.

The Packers, behind Dennis Kuempel's two touchdowns, whipped McLean, 12-7, in the finals.

The Cardinals and Colts will travel to Shamrock for a tournament Saturday.
