

Vietnam campaigns for UN membership

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Vietnam began campaigning today for General Assembly pressure on the United States to reverse the Security Council veto it cast against Vietnamese membership in the United Nations. But nothing the assembly did was expected to have any effect on the Americans. U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton told the council the failure of the Hanoi government to "account satisfactorily" for 800 American servicemen missing in action in the Vietnam war raised doubts about Vietnam's humanitarianism and consequently about its fitness to join the United Nations. Scranton said if Vietnam would "abandon trading on the sorrows of families to attain its ends, normalization of relations could then flow swiftly." The council voted 14 to 1 on Monday in favor of recommending that the General Assembly admit Vietnam to membership, but the dissenting vote from one of the five permanent members — the United States — killed the recommendation. It was the 13th American veto in the history of the council. Vietnamese observer Dinh Ba Thi accused President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger of a "desire for vengeance" against Vietnam.

He told the council he was confident many U.N. members would back Vietnam's application "when the matter is placed before the General Assembly." Thi hinted that information about the missing men might be supplied if the United States would let Vietnam into the world organization. He said the U.S. veto policy "will only serve to continue the days of waiting of American families whose children" were listed missing. A resolution probably will be pushed through the assembly noting the council's one-sided vote in favor of Vietnam, pronouncing the country qualified for U.N. membership and asking the council to reconsider the application and approve it. The assembly by a vote of 123 to 0 adopted a similar resolution in favor of North and South Vietnam on Sept. 19, 1975, after the United States vetoed their separate membership applications. Despite the huge assembly majority in favor of the Vietnamese, the United States vetoed the applications again 11 days after the assembly vote. Another American veto is expected when the issue comes back from the assembly unless Vietnam has supplied information about the missing Americans to the U.S.-Vietnamese talks which opened in Paris last week. However, this is not considered likely.

Gilmore tries suicide

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Convicted killer Gary Mark Gilmore attempted to take his own life with a drug overdose today, a medical technician at the Utah State Prison reported.

In addition, police in Springville said a woman believed to be Gilmore's girlfriend was found unconscious in her apartment, also of an apparent drug overdose.

Gilmore had been scheduled to be executed by a firing squad on Monday, but the execution was delayed. He was sentenced for the killing of a motel clerk during a robbery.

Although there was no immediate confirmation that the woman found unconscious was Gilmore's girlfriend, Springville Police Chief Leland Bowers said he believed it was she and that it appeared to be a suicide attempt.

Gilmore's girlfriend, Mrs. Nicole Barrett, 20, of Springville, has been visiting him daily in the prison.

A spokesman at Utah Valley Hospital in Provo said the woman taken from the apartment was in critical condition of apparent drug overdose.

The technician at the prison, Tom Anguay, said Gilmore was found unconscious in his cell and medics "brought him back to life."

"He tried to take his own life. He tried to OD," Anguay said.

Anguay said he did not know what kind of drug was used but Gilmore has been on medication.

He said Gilmore was conscious after treatment but said nothing.

Mrs. Barrett was warned Monday before visiting Gilmore that she was known to have purchased sleeping pills on prescription and must not bring them to the prison, Deputy Warden Leon Hatch said Monday.

Hatch said she was subjected to skin searches by a matron before each of her visits and that Gilmore was searched before and after each visit.

Earlier, Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton had said that since he stayed Gilmore's execution, he had received hundreds of letters and telephone calls — mostly from "extremists" on both sides of the question.

Gilmore, who has fought efforts to commute his sentence, received his usual daily visit on Monday from his girl friend, Nicole Barrett, officials at the Utah State Prison said.

Revolutionaries win control of Canada

MONTREAL, Quebec (AP) — The Parti Quebecois, which advocates the independence of French-speaking Quebec from English-dominated Canada, has won control of the provincial government.

But, the vote for members of a new provincial legislature Monday indicated defeat for secession in a referendum promised within two years by party leader Rene Levesque, who will become premier of the province.

Anti-separatist parties got 59 per cent of the vote, and opinion polls before the election indicated only about 20 per cent of the voters were diehard separatists. Levesque himself during the campaign soft-pedaled his party's traditional goal of independence. Instead he attacked Premier Robert Bourassa and his Liberal-party administration for the province's 10.1 per cent unemployment rate, predicted billion-dollar deficit and the highest taxes in Canada. When counting stopped Monday night, the Parti Quebecois, or Pequistes, had won 66 of the 110 seats in the assembly and was leading for three others. The Liberals had 27 seats and were leading for one other. In the last assembly there were 102 Liberals and six Pequistes.

The Parti Quebecois won about 41 per cent of the popular vote: the Liberals got 34 per cent; Union Nationale took 18 per cent, and minor parties got the rest.

There was no immediate comment on the election outcome from Charles Bronfman, the millionaire distiller, sportsman and Liberal party supporter, who said just before the election that if the Pequistes won, he would take his company, Seagrams, and his baseball team, the Montreal Expos, out of the province.

Levesque is a 54-year-old former radio-TV journalist who quit the Liberal party in 1967 to fight for the independence of Quebec.

In the Canadian national capital of Ottawa, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and other political leaders said the election was a mandate to form a provincial government, not to separate Quebec from the rest of Canada.

"I am confident that Quebecers will continue to reject separatism because they still believe their destiny is linked with an indivisible Canada," Trudeau said.

Bourassa, a 43-year-old economist, attributed his government's defeat to "centrifugal forces in society... that polarize people rather than allow them to accept the middle course proposed by the Liberal party."

He said a major factor was the Official Language Act, which his government passed in 1974. The law made French the province's official language and tried to force children of immigrants into French-language schools by requiring those whose native tongue was not English to pass a proficiency test in that language in order to attend English schools.

Carter to meet with Kissinger

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter will meet with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger here Saturday for a briefing on foreign policy matters and will confer with President Ford in Washington next week, it was announced today.

Ford and Carter agreed in a telephone call Monday night to have their staffs work out arrangements for their meeting. The day for the session has not been decided yet, White House spokesman John Carlson said.

Carlson said Carter put in a telephone call to Ford as the President returned aboard Air Force One on Monday from a California vacation. Ford returned the call when he arrived back at the White House.

Carter's staff said Kissinger will be accompanied Saturday by Lawrence Eagleburger, the undersecretary for management at the State Department who is handling the department liaison with Carter during the transition from the Ford administration.

Eagleburger was scheduled to meet later today at the State Department with W. Anthony Lake, who has been designated by Carter to head his foreign policy transition team. Lake is expected to see Kissinger before the secretary travels to Georgia.

Vice President-elect Walter Mondale, who will be in Plains on Friday for a meeting between Carter and CIA Director

George Bush, also will attend the Carter briefing with Kissinger.

Carter met on Saturday for several hours with Dean Rusk, secretary of state under John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and now a law professor at the University of Georgia. Early this morning, Carter visited his brother, Billy, at the office of the family peanut business.

School board calls meeting on personnel

A called meeting of the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees has been set for 6 p.m. Thursday in the Carver Educational Service Center board conference room. Primary purpose of the meeting, according to the notice, is "For the purpose of considering appointment, employment, reassignment, evaluation... duties... of a public officer of employee." The personnel discussions will be held in a closed session, with any final action, decision or vote to be conducted in open meeting.

Foster child sues county

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dennis Smith is in his 17th year and his 16th foster home. "It's like a scar on your brain," he says. "If I had known I was going to spend the first 16 years of my life this way, I'd rather have been dead. I'd have wished my mother could have aborted me," said Dennis. "I want people to realize what's happening to foster children," he adds. And he has filed an unusual lawsuit with that purpose in mind. The suit, filed in Alameda County Superior Court Monday, asks damages of $500,000 from the county social service agency and officials of the public school system there. Smith claims the agency told his mother he would be placed for adoption but sent him instead to one

They promised adoption

foster home after another. He says the schools accepted what he called a mistaken diagnosis that he was mentally retarded and put him in classes for the handicapped. Dennis was born in Oakland on Oct. 5, 1959. His two legal aid lawyers say county records are unclear where he spent his first 2½ months. He doesn't know who his parents are or where he got the name "Smith." Early in 1960 he was placed with a couple already caring for one foster child. Then came more homes and a couple of stretches in public orphanages. He was placed last September in his present foster home, where his attorneys say he is "reasonably content." In Oakland, Alameda County officials refused to comment on specifics of the case, but Librado Perez, director of the Social Services Agency, said:

"Regardless of the outcome, we are re-examining our operation to determine whether improvements can be made or if preventive steps can be taken." Marian Love, an officer of the California State Foster Care Association and Dennis's court-appointed guardian for the lawsuit, said his case is not unusual. "On the one hand, you have hundreds of childless parents waiting to adopt children," she said. "And on the other, you have hundreds of parentless children seeking stability and hoping against hope they'll be adopted. The chief impediment to bringing these two groups together seems to be the courts and the Department of Social Services. That's what is so ludicrous."

Pampa eligible to get $250,000 federal grant

Pampa is one of the area towns eligible to receive up to $250,000 through the Community Block Grant Program for 1977, according to word received today by City Manager Mack Wofford from Benny Lawrence, director of regional planning for the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. The city manager said the first step would be to seek permission from the City Commission to file for a $250,000 grant to help finance the city's five-year waterline replacement program. Other possible use for the grant money possibly could be paving in areas of Pampa where low- and moderate-income families reside. Lawrence said towns with a population up to 5,000 could receive a maximum of $100,000, and towns between 5,000 and 20,000 could receive up to $100,000. About 150 Panhandle towns will be eligible to apply for the available funds, he stated. Deadline for filing applications is next Jan. 7 for towns outside Potter and Randall counties. Towns in those two counties, except Amarillo, have until Feb. 18 to apply. Lawrence emphasized that the rules by which applications will be judged by the federal department of Housing and Urban Development favor projects aimed at low and moderate income groups. Proposals from each town, he explained, will be judged on the basis of 100 points, with a maximum of 35 points awarded to programs that will benefit lower income groups. Uses of grant money include refurbishing property in deteriorating or undeveloped neighborhoods, building centers, streets, parks and pedestrian malls and walkways. HUD says the money cannot be used to construct city halls, courthouses, stadia or other facilities, auditoriums, schools, hospitals, or to pay government bills. Cities applying for the funds must conduct two public meetings to discuss the grant applications. Applications from area towns cannot be approved by HUD until the PRPC Community Development Advisory Council and board of directors act on the request.

Why drug prices rise

Anyone having occasion to purchase a prescription drug recently knows that prices are headed for the stratosphere. Few have difficulty grasping that unpleasant fact of life. The reasons for the continuing price spiral, although just as real, are not quite so clear. Actually, they are many and often complex.

Inflation, without doubt, is the chief culprit. As the government pours ever more fiat money into the economy, the purchasing power (demand) created by the influx of new money exerts pressure upon the supply of goods and services, drugs included, forcing prices ever upward.

Another way of saying the same thing is that this new "money" pouring into the economy dilutes the purchasing power of the dollars already in the hands of consumers, the effect being that it takes more dollars to purchase an item or service today than it did yesterday. Thus, in reality, prices of goods and services are not rising; rather, the value (purchasing power) of the dollar is falling due to inflation.

Another important factor to keep constantly in mind is that anything which acts to increase the costs of producing goods and services is bound to show up, ultimately, in higher prices charged the customers for those goods and services. This applies to prescription drugs, as to everything else.

Government regulations, with their attendant red tape and paperwork requirements, inevitably add to such costs.

Testifying before a congressional committee recently, Richard Wood, chief executive of the pharmaceutical firm Eli Lilly and Company, provided a valuable insight into this aspect of the prescription drug price problem. His company alone, Wood pointed out, must prepare more than 27,000 government forms and reports each year. Costing the company an annual $5 million, this flood of paperwork adds an average of 50 cents to the price of each prescription filled with drugs manufactured by his company. Wood told the committee.

A single application, to the Food and Drug Administration for approval to market a drug to treat arthritis, had to be submitted in triplicate and weighed an incredible 2,000 pounds, the Lilly executive testified. In fact, said he, his company spends more man-hours filling out government forms and reports than it does studying the causes of cancer and heart disease.

Is it any wonder that drug prices continue to skyrocket, or that the drug industry of this country is discovering and marketing fewer and fewer new drugs each year in its battle with disease, pain and death?

And, finally, according to a recent news item in the Wall Street Journal, five of the nation's largest drug manufacturers are being sued for $200 million by the federal government in an "antitrust" action. One of the three counts against the five drug firms was dismissed by a federal judge without basis but, even so, the Journal pointed out, conviction on the remaining charges would cost the companies $41 million.

The same firms have paid out more than $230 million in more than 100 such suits since 1968, the story concluded.

If anyone is under the illusion that any industry can sustain such cost-raising blows as that without raising prices, they are naive in the extreme.

municipalities to allow tax reductions or exemptions for buildings equipped with solar heating and cooling systems, or for the equipment itself. In Michigan, wind and water conservation devices may also be exempt, and in Vermont, "alternate" energy sources.

Virginia's legislation is in the form of a constitutional amendment providing a tax exemption for property used to transfer or store solar energy and will be placed before the voters in the general election, Nov. 2.

"May I have your attention? There will be a slight delay"

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

The senatorial Class of 1976

By WILLIAM RUSHER
NEW YORK — In a presidential election year, attention is naturally focused on the battle for the White House. But every election also produces important changes in Congress and the 50 state houses — launching various promising new careers, and nipping others in the bud. Despite the statistical fluke that left the raw numbers of Republicans and Democrats in the Senate, the House, and the governorships almost unchanged, 1976 witnessed a good many important ups and downs. It is by no means inconceivable that among the new faces is a future president of the United States.

One man who would unquestionably like to think so is John D. Rockefeller 4th, who at 39 swamped a disorganized Republican opposition to become the new Democratic governor of West Virginia. With youth and all those millions on his side, and a fresh firm grip on a border-state governorship, young Rockefeller simply cannot be ignored as in the long run what will count most are his own intrinsic qualities, which are still unknown nationally. As Uncle Nelson could tell him, there are some things money can't buy, and the presidency is one of them.

Over on the Republican side, fate likewise tossed up a new governor who is bound to be assessed for latent presidential possibilities: James Thompson, the 40-year old former U.S. Attorney for Chicago, who snored under a hapless stooge of Mayor Daley to become the next chief executive of Illinois.

Thompson has, or at any rate has displayed thus far, the sort of centrist political leanings and inoffensive personality that appeals so mightily to many regular Republican voters: if he avoids major blunders during his term as governor, some angel or king-maker is almost sure to conclude that Thompson is what the GOP should offer America in 1980. By then, however, the Republican party may well be an unrecognizable rump whose nomination is scarcely worth having.

In any case, it is not governors but senators who have provided most of the presidential candidacies in recent years, and observers are therefore scanning the new senatorial crop with interest. With Jimmy Carter not yet sworn in, it is to say the least premature to start talking about possible Democratic presidential timber, but among Republicans there are some senatorial newcomers of more than ordinary interest — especially the conservatives, who cannot reasonably expect Ronald Reagan to last forever.

Significantly, all four of the most promising conservative gladiators come from the West where the GOP (or any successor party founded to oppose the Democrats more effectively) must look for a large share of its future support.

Dr. Sam Hayakawa performed brilliantly in retiring California John Tunney from the Senate, and may well prove a powerful addition to conservative strength there; but at 70 he is inevitably a short-term asset. On the other hand, the new Republican Senators from Utah, Wyoming, and New Mexico — Orrin Hatch, Malcolm Wallop, and Harrison Schmitt, in that order — are 42, 43, and 41 respectively. The near-total vacuum of national conservative leadership, at least among elected officials, is sure to make these senatorial freshmen the object of close attention in the months ahead. Reports reaching me suggest that Hatch, a trial lawyer who had never run for office before, yet thrived on three-term Senator Frank Moss resoundingly, is the most impressive of the lot; but we shall see.

As these stars rose in the Republican firmament, two others declined. Christopher Bond, a liberal Republican in whom the Ripon Society had invested considerable hopes, was rejected by the voters of Missouri when he sought a second term as governor. And James York, who won his New York senatorship on the conservative party line in a three-way contest in 1970, went down to defeat before the Irish-chic of Pat Moynihan. Buckley, who earned bipartisan praise for his unostentatious but effective work in the Senate, has confirmed that he intends to speak out on behalf of conservative causes, though visibility will be a problem in his case.

All in all, the senatorial Class of 1976 contains "Futurity enough," as Thomas Carlyle remarked in another connection. Welcome, gentlemen: Your country needs you.

RIGHT TO WORK:

Mr. Carter faces dilemma

By H.C. GORDON
Of all the issues that President-elect Carter will confront when he assumes office, few will more fully reveal the character of his administration than the issue of right-to-work laws.

At stake is a major question of personal freedom: Should individuals be compelled to join labor unions against their will? Federal law now permits the closed or union shop as a general rule but, under Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, each state is allowed to create an exemption from this rule by enacting a state right-to-work law. Such a law simply guarantees that no worker may be compelled to join a union in order to hold a job. Needless to say, these laws are highly unpopular with the big labor unions, who for years have made the repeal of Section 14 (b) a prime objective. Up to now, their efforts have been stymied — either by a lack of congressional support or by threat of presidential veto. With the results of the last elections, however, giving the Democrats both the White House and heavy majorities in Congress, the chances are excellent that a bill to repeal Section 14 (b) will reach the President's desk sometime in 1977.

Herein lies a serious dilemma for Mr. Carter. Some twenty states currently have right-towork laws — including all ten of the southern states he carried on November 2. These laws are very popular in the South. Hence, if Mr. Carter signs the repeal of Section 14 (b), he will alienate millions of voters in his own political stronghold.

On the other hand, Mr. Carter's narrow wins in such key northern states as Pennsylvania and Ohio were made possible largely through the aggressive support of organized labor. Hence, if Mr. Carter vetoes the repeal of 14 (b), he will be defaulting on his political I.O.U.s to the unions and may lose the margin of victory he will need to remain in office for another term.

How will Mr. Carter decide? His position on the issue thus far has been equivocal to say the least. As Governor of Georgia, he went on record as favoring the retention of that state's right-to-work law. In the early presidential primaries, he said that he opposed the repeal of Section 14 (b) but would not interfere, with the passage of legislation to that effect. Finally, desirous of obtaining the support of organized labor, he openly advocated repeal.

Reliable polls indicate that the American people overwhelmingly oppose compulsory union membership. Mr. Carter's ultimate stand on this issue will give us an effective yardstick with which to assess his presidential stature. How strong a leader will he prove himself to be?

Growing Older

Is Congress giving us our money's worth?

By Harold Blumenfeld

Now that the election is over, let's talk a little bit about what we voters should expect from the congressmen we returned, or are sending to Capitol Hill for the first time. Lost in all the brou-ha-ha for the presidential candidates was the major role congressmen have in the ebb-and-flow of America's present and future. Are we voters getting our tax-dollars' worth of effective service from these elected officials?

They may not be among the highest-paid jobs in the income compared to the income of large corporation executives or professional athletes. But it's a job they sought and campaigned for. They weren't drafted for their jobs. They did get a recent salary increase and now make $44,625 a year. But it's the fringe benefits that count and it's estimated that the expense for our men and women in Congress totals $71 million dollars, at the rate of $132,000 per legislator, a rise of perhaps 30 per cent in 10 years.

Congressmen have free office space in Washington and maintain one or more offices in their home districts, also at government expense. Each has a staff of, at least, 16 people, with an average salary of upwards of $18,000, which is more than most individuals in the aging population can put together from Social Security benefits, small dividends and bank interest, and income from odd jobs they may be able to find.

They have unlimited sick leave and also free medical treatment at Walter Reed and Bethesda Naval Hospital, and this sort of private national health plan is also available to their families. A whopping $7,500 is allotted to each congressman for "general expenses," which doesn't have to be accounted for. It can be carried over for years and when a legislator leaves office it's a wonderful "unofficial" pension to bank along with the official large pension.

We may cringe at the climbing postal rates when we drop our few letters in the mail box, but franking privileges are part of a congressman's free operational expense. It means he can send out thousands of pieces of mail each day without having to lick one 13 cent stamp. Which probably is permissible for government and congressional matters, but a legislator's personal mail and campaign literature often gets a free ride through the postal system.

Each congressman is allowed 26 trips a year to his home, with you and me paying the cost, which is a lump sum of about $7,500. And it appears that some of our legislators have been padding their expense accounts to show they drove although they had flown. Because the allowance for car mileage is greater than a first-class plane ticket.

You and I would like to take vacation trips abroad. But we can't afford them. Yet we pay for the foreign jaunts of our people in Congress. In addition to the 60 holidays scheduled for them, many seem to be ever so ready to fly to faraway places around the globe, with the excuse that they are "inspection trips." I call them "junkets," and very often they take along members of their families (or friends), at taxpayers' expense.

The low-cost excellent meals served in the Capitol dining rooms are much tastier and more nutritious than those we get at a luncheon counter or while pushing a tray in a cafeteria. Undoubtedly less-expensive and maybe better than the meals we can prepare at home. There are other freebies available to them in Washington — a gym, barbershop, free shines each day, and so many more items which cost us money.

The House recently acted on charges that the chairman of an important committee which controls the spending of billions of military dollars had failed to declare ownership of stock in a major defense contractor. He also failed to list the stock he owned in a bank which he had helped establish through his official congressional position.

He was reprimanded. The other day an unfortunate scene took place in front of our local supermarket. An elderly woman was caught after she had shoplifted a can of tuna, a can of soup and a can of spaghetti. She hadn't pilfered anything to make money. She was poor and she was hungry.

Stealing is a crime. The store manager didn't call the police. She was reprimanded. But she wasn't arrested. However, she couldn't keep any of the things she had taken.

Grand jury looks at bank

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — The Starr County district attorney began presenting evidence to a grand jury this morning concerning the recent problems faced by the county's only bank.

The First State Bank and Trust Co. lost "about a million-and-a-half dollars" in deposits after the bank dropped its ties with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) and statements were circulated calling the bank "unsafe" and "unsound."

The bank's owner, South Texas millionaire Clinton Manges, says the FDIC "is trying to destroy me. They have harassed everyone who tries to do business with me."

A federal judge in Brownsville conducted a hearing concerning the bank and its FDIC ties behind closed doors last week. The transcripts of the hearing involving U.S. Attorney W. L. Bowers and former state Sen. Jim Bates of Edinburg who represented Manges has been sealed by orders of Judge Reynaldo Garza of Brownsville.

Robinson death probed

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP) — Witnesses were expected to begin testifying here today at an inquest that officials hope will determine whether civil rights leader Frank Robinson committed suicide or was killed by another person.

A six-person jury, including two blacks, was chosen Monday to hear evidence in the shooting death of Robinson.

Municipal Judge Alex Nemer will preside over the proceedings to be held in the Anderson County Courthouse with both Palestine and state officials participating.

"I want every shred of evidence we can get in the record," Nemer said.

About 40 witnesses are expected to testify, Nemer said.

Robinson's body was found in his garage Oct. 13. He had been shot once in the head. A shotgun was found next to his bodies.

Investigators also found three spent shells at the scene. Two shotgun blasts had been aimed at the side of the garage.

Several black leaders and Robinson's widow asked for an official investigation of his death, which they claimed was a political assassination caused by Robinson's involvement in East Texas politics.

Robinson, a retired school superintendent, had successfully fought redistricting battles in Anderson County aimed at increasing black representation.

Palestine Police Chief Kenneth Berry has said the shotgun found near Robinson's body has been tentatively identified as belonging to the dead man.

Last month Berry said the evidence pointed to a suicide but added the shooting was being investigated as a homicide.

Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill last month assigned Anthony Sandberry, an assistant attorney general, to assist local authorities in their investigation.

Little Cuba grant appealed

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) — A controversial federal grant to the Zavala County Economic Development Corp. was expected to be discussed in a New Orleans federal appeals court today.

The hearing in the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals comes just before a committee of the Middle Rio Grande Development Council meets here Wednesday to review a request by the economic development corporation for the $1.5 million grant.

The grant, which Gov. Dolph Briscoe has charged will be used to create a "Little Cuba" in the predominantly Mexican-American county, originally was made without state review or approval.

U.S. District Court Judge Jack Roberts of Austin late last month barred the Zavala County Economic Development

Corp. from spending any of the money for 60 days.

Roberts' order has been appealed to the New Orleans federal appeals court.

Gov. Briscoe and other state officials charged the grant was approved in Washington without going through the normal channels that were provided.

Judge Roberts ruled that the federal government violated the law by not giving the state the right to review the grant application.

Among programs planned for development with the grant money is a 1,000-acre cooperative farm, a savings and loan firm and an import-export business, according to grant application papers.

Zavala County Judge Jose Angel Gutierrez is chairman of the county's Economic Development Corporation.

Pipe bomb being studied

PINEHURST, Tex. (AP) — Federal officials have joined in the investigation of a pipe bomb found at a shopping center store in this southeast Texas town and later exploded by an Army demolition team.

The explosive device was discovered Monday by Orange police in a trash can in a Sears store restroom after store officials reported a bomb threat that was received by telephone.

Police said two other bomb threats were received by businesses in this suburb of Orange on Monday. No explosives were found at the other firms.

Army demolition experts were flown by helicopter from Ft. Polk, La., to the parking lot of the MacArthur Shopping Center. The soldiers took the bomb from the store to a wooded area nearby and exploded it under several sandbags.

The explosive device was described as a pipe about 20 inches in length and approximately two inches in diameter. Orange police officer Audie Horn said specifics of the device were being withheld pending an investigation in which a U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent is helping.

Criswell says US in danger

DEL CITY, Okla. (AP) — The pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, the world's largest Southern Baptist church, said here Monday that the evil forces are trying to reduce America into secularism and materialism.

"If they succeed, if they win, we have lost our country," Dr. W. A. Criswell told some 3,500 gathered at Del City's First Southern Baptist Church for the 71st annual Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma (BGCO).

Dr. Criswell added that "at a time when the church ought to be at her best, she is at her worst. In a day when she ought to confront the world in strength, she is herself weakened by anemia."

Also speaking to the audience was Porter Routh, the executive secretary-treasurer of the Executive Committee of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Routh congratulated Oklahoma Baptists for their financial support to the association during the 1976 fiscal year — more than $2.6 million.

Supreme Court may study 4-H farm auction reverse discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Can a medical school reject a white student with test scores higher than minority students admitted under a special program? Or is that racial discrimination in reverse?

The Supreme Court may agree to wrestle with that question. If it does, its answer could carry great consequences for affirmative action programs in education and business throughout the nation.

The justices on Monday temporarily set aside an order by the California Supreme Court striking down a program at the University of California-Davis Medical School that gives admission preference to minority students.

While not denying the racial and ethnic aspect of its program at Davis and other UC campuses, the university's regents said they were attempting "to bring historically under-represented minorities and ethnic groups into the mainstream of our country's educational and professional life."

The charge of "reverse discrimination" was made by Allan Bakke, a 36-year-old white civil engineer who twice was turned down for admission to the medical school.

He charged that he was discriminated against because UC-Davis admitted 16 lower-rated students, all minority members.

The Supreme Court gave the UC regents 30 days to appeal the state court's ruling, saying it will hold in abeyance the order dismantling the affirmative action program pending the appeal.

Many civil rights groups — including the NAACP, the Mexican American Legal Defense Fund and the National Conference of Black Lawyers — have urged the regents to drop the case. They fear an adverse ruling could jeopardize affirmative action programs in schools as well as in working places.

Two years ago, the justices declined to rule in a similar case involving Marco DeFunis Jr., a white Phi Beta Kappa student who was rejected in 1971 by the University of Washington law school, which also had a special admission program for minorities.

By a 5 to 4 vote the court decided DeFunis' case was moot because he had been admitted to the law school under a lower court's order pending appeal, and he was about to graduate.

The court on Monday also: — Agreed to hear arguments in a case where a worker alleges that he lost his job because of religious discrimination.

— Refused to consider an appeal by Fairfax County, Va., and Nassau County, N.Y., authorities seeking to void federal approval of landing rights the supersonic Concorde jetliner at airports within their confines.

— Agreed to decide whether Michigan has to pay for half of an $11.6-million education, enrichment program in Detroit schools, an outgrowth of efforts to integrate the city's school system.

— Refused to consider the constitutionality of a curfew imposed by Middletown, Pa., which prohibits persons under 18 from being away from their homes at night when unescorted or without prior approval. About 3,000 U.S. cities and towns have similar curfews.

Brazilians would rather drive it than drink it

BRASILIA (AP) — Three cars fueled entirely with alcohol have completed a 5,000-mile tour of Brazil to publicize alcohol as a substitute for gasoline.

Technicians for the Brazilian air force, which sponsored the marathon, said the modified engines performed flawlessly in all weathers and got 36 miles to the gallon on asphalt and 30 miles on a 950-mile stretch of dirt road.

The three cars — a Volkswagen 1300, a Dodge Polara and a Gurgel jeep — were welcomed home at the air force research center in Sao Jose dos Campos Monday by a military band playing the popular samba song "You Think that Whisky is Water?"

The use of alcohol as a fuel in combustion engines is not a new idea. But with Brazil spending nearly $4 billion a year to import 80 per cent of the oil it uses, some government officials see the country's sugar cane crop — the world's largest — as a potential source of alcohol to substitute for gasoline.

Alcohol as a fuel is entirely free of pollutants, its advocates say. Its exhaust consists of carbon dioxide and water vapor, the same exhaust produced by a human being exhaling.

Air force engineer Miguel Azevedo, who drove one of the cars, said the alcohol fuel improved acceleration because of its higher octane content and reduced engine wear because it was cleaner.

Gasoline in Brazil now costs about $1.60 per gallon. Engineers refuse to predict how much alcohol fuel would cost if produced on a scale sufficient to fill even part of the country's needs. But the air force and other advocates say large-scale production from the abundant local sugar cane would eventually bring the cost way down.

"The energy which comes from sugar cane offers enormous opportunities for the development of our country," said an editorial in the Jornal do Brasilia. "Alcohol should not be viewed simply as a substitute for oil but as an opportunity for Brazilian control of a technology unique in the world."

The ministry of industry and commerce says it has received several inquiries from abroad about the technology. Volkswagen has a fleet of alcohol-fueled Volkswagens touring the country to promote the idea, and Fiat's Brazilian subsidiary says it has modified engines on some of its cars to burn alcohol.

Thelma Bray elected to WT alumni board

The West Texas State University Alumni Association has elected Mrs. Thelma Bray of Pampa to its board of directors.

Mrs. Bray, a U.S. postal clerk, will serve a two-year term on the 24-member board which begins in January 1977.

Other newly-elected board members include Boyd Vaughn of Tulia, Steve Hodges of Hereford, Don Powell and Bill Duncan, both of Amarillo.

The five new members replace Joel Plunk of Pampa, Orrell Vise of Canyon, Sarah Kunkel of Plainview, Edward Scott of Amarillo and Jim Edd Wines of Memphis.

The board of directors set policy for the alumni association.

Taylor to head board of Texas research

Boyd Taylor, vice president of Cabot Corporation, was re-elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the Texas Research League during its recent 24th annual membership meeting in Austin.

The League is a citizen-supported, educational corporation engaged in objective research into the operations and finances of Texas government. Its purpose is to encourage, through research, more efficient and more economical state and local government in Texas.

Elected as chairman of the League for 1977 was William H. Seay, chairman and chief executive officer of the Southwestern Life Insurance Company of Dallas.

John P. Harbin, chairman of the board of Halliburton Company of Dallas, was elected vice chairman. Robert T. Present, chairman and chief operating officer of the Capital National Bank of Austin, was re-elected treasurer.

Water district to meet

The Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District will meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Gray County Courthouse Annex and will discuss progress on the Red Deer Creek and McClellan Creek Watershed Projects.

Other business will include discussion of a salary increase for this SWCD secretary, a review of the annual audit report by Wayne Brown, and discussion of payment of watershed bills.

Wildlife tree packets will be ordered and there will be a discussion of the conservation awards program.

Conservation plans on James Bowers and Richard Bowers will be considered for approval, as will a Great Plains contract on Richard Back.

Milton Carpenter and Curtis Schaffer will report on the State Association meeting in McAllen.

Probation collects sum in fees

The 31st District Probation Department in Gray County has collected $65,148.71 during its first eight months of operations.

Don Snell, probation officer, said an estimated 250 persons from county and district courts are on probation.

Each probationer is assessed a $10 monthly fee. The probation office has collected $6,145 for the district court, and $13,147 for the Gray County court.

District court collections in fines and court costs total $3,828.44. Collections in fees to the county clerk, which also includes fines and court costs, total $42,028.27.

Postal Service claims surplus

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says its success in trimming its work force has helped it post its first surplus in four years.

Bailor called the continuing reduction in the postal work force the most important factor in the surplus. More than 50,000 jobs have been eliminated through attrition since January, 1975, and the payroll now stands at 664,000, he said.

The government-subsidized mail agency, which lost $1.2 billion in the fiscal year that ended last June 30, still expects to lose $500 million in fiscal 1977, which began last month, Bailor said. But that is down from an earlier forecast of a $1 billion loss.

Since labor costs account for about 86 per cent of the Postal Service's expenditures, Bailor has focused his efforts to balance the postal budget on this area. The 50,000 jobs translates into a $900 million savings for the current fiscal year, he added.

"We're not out of the woods yet. Nevertheless, this is a major accomplishment," he said at a news conference called to announce the $15 million surplus, which ended a string of quarterly deficits that stretched back to 1972.

Postal labor leaders congratulated Bailor on the unaccustomed surplus, but were unenthusiastic about the way in which it was accomplished.

The Postal Service has lost nearly $3 billion since it was created in 1971 to replace the old Post Office Department. "I'm hopeful there will not be a rate increase in 1977," he said.

Francis Filbey, president of the American Postal Workers Union, said, "We don't necessarily approve of the methods that were used in reaching this result, but they were in accordance with the contract. So we'll have to deal with that in the negotiations for the next contract."

He also said tax rebates and government spending were tools that could be used to stimulate the economy if it needs a boost after the Jan. 20 inauguration. That was the first time Carter has mentioned tax rebates, as opposed to tax cuts, which he has often referred to as a possible device to spur the economy.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have raised 14 children, eight daughters and six sons, here in the coal fields of the Southeast. All were raised in the church. (My husband teaches a Bible class.)

Seven years ago one of my daughters, then 15, became pregnant. I couldn't believe it and was heartbroken. My husband insisted that she be sent away, and her baby left wherever it was born. I defied him, saw my daughter through the birth and am now raising her little boy. My once tenderhearted, precious daughter has become a lesbian and has fallen into the use of alcohol and drugs.

Six weeks ago she revealed to me that her own father is the baby's father, too! I also learned that he had molested our other daughters as they were growing up. No one would tell me, but immediately after high school graduation they would leave home to work. Now I know why!

For the first time in my life, prayer has not brought me the wisdom I need now. I am 58, a diabetic, ailing physically and longing for peace of mind. My 60-year-old husband repels me. Would you leave him or endure till death separates you? Please help me.

CRUSHED

DEAR CRUSHED: If ever a mother of 14 children deserved their understanding and help, you do. They can help make life bearable again. Go to them.

Your husband is a very sick man, and unless he goes for treatment and recovers completely (which I doubt he will), the Lord will forgive you for not being a wife to him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an ordained minister who doesn't charge a fee to officiate at weddings for families in his congregation.

Last summer he performed six ceremonies. They were all lovely church affairs followed by receptions and dinners, and the night before, there were rehearsal dinners. Abby, my husband and I never got one invitation to any of these festivities!

One bride's mother said to my husband after the ceremony, "Oh, please stay for the reception and dinner, and phone your wife and tell her to come over right away?" (He politely declined.)

Another bride told him, "We didn't invite you and your wife to our wedding reception because we figured you'd be too busy to come."

The other four brides didn't even ask my husband to stay after the ceremony, but one saw him on the street a few months later and said, "How come you didn't stay for the dinner? We had a place set for you!"

My husband's brother is a minister in Illinois, and he and his wife are invited to all the affairs related to the wedding. And he is paid a fee, too. What's the matter with the people in California, Abby?

DEAR LEFT: California is a large state. Pinpoint the place, and I'll give them the needle.

DEAR ABBY: To those who write you about problems with relatives, may I submit what I call Einstein's Second or Revised Law on Relativity: Your chances of getting along with your relatives increases directly in proportion with the distance you keep away from them.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know there is a higher incidence of cancer of the penis in uncircumcised males. I would like to know if it is possible for adult males to be circumcised and what the operation would entail. Is the operation painful for very long after it is performed? Can most doctors do it or does it require a surgeon? Can it be done in the office or must it be done in the hospital? Would you recommend that uncircumcised adults be circumcised?

DEAR READER — Yes, the danger of cancer of the penis is greater in uncircumcised males. In a study from the Cancer Research Unit at the South African Institute for Medical Research in Johannesburg, investigators reported that a high number of Bantu men developed cancer of the penis, particularly in noncircumcised men. The highest incidence was in men who wore an artificial prepuce cover, a practice common among the native Bantu.

This same report confirmed what other investigators had noticed about the relationship between cancer of the cervix in women and lack of circumcision of the man. In South Africa cancer of the cervix is the most common malignancy in black women and the Lesotho group have the highest rate of cancer of the cervix although 50 per cent of the men are circumcised. By contrast, in Natal where men are not circumcised the rate of cancer of the cervix is quite low. In plain English, circumcision of the male is not a major factor in causing cancer of the cervix in women regardless of what misinformation you may have read to the contrary.

Cancer of the penis is fairly uncommon in our society. When it occurs it is almost always in an uncircumcised male. However, that does not mean circumcision is necessary. The key to preventing the cancer is cleanliness. That may be dependent upon the individual's anatomy and how easily he can do this. If the individual is able and willing to do this regularly there is little likelihood that cancer of the penis can develop.

As I have mentioned before, with age, drying and constriction of the skin may make it difficult to keep clean. And occasionally the skin gets caught in the retracted position, creating real and sometimes immediate problems that require prompt medical attention.

The operation can be done easily in most adult males. It is not particularly painful. After all, despite its location it is just a skin incision. If a complete circumcision is done in an adult the period of recovery is usually limited to the short time it takes a simple skin incision to heal. The newly exposed tip, however, is quite sensitive, not painful but sensitive. somewhat analogous to the tender feet a person may have when first going barefoot.

I don't think it is necessary for every adult to have a circumcision. It depends upon the anatomical situation and the individual's hygienic habits. It is a personal decision. In most cases I regard this about like long or short hair. If you want to have it long, keep it clean. If you are not willing to make the effort, cut it short.

For information about the prostate gland send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Do you or any of your readers know how to remove clear varnish stains from a carpet? After spilling the varnish I was able to soak it out, but I am left with a stain. — MARGARET.

DEAR MARGARET — In a National Institute of Rug Cleaning release they suggest applying turpentine. Sponge on with a cloth, working from the edges to the center of the stain. Next use a dry cleaning fluid. If this does not work you may have to have a professional rug cleaner.

Another source suggests applying dry cleaning fluid (such as one uses to remove spots from clothing) and then a solution made of one teaspoon detergent and one teaspoon white vinegar in a quart of water. Re-apply dry cleaning fluid with a cloth or sponge, then dry as quickly as possible by either blotting up or using a fan or even a hair blower. You did not say what material your carpet is, so do test in an inconspicuous spot first. — POLLY.

She took women out of ruffles
Chanel--eccentric designer

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "We still have her apartment furnished the way it was when she was alive. She wouldn't sleep there, you know. She had a room across the street in the Ritz Hotel. She was very set on cleanliness and after she entertained, she didn't want to wake up in disorder."

And Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel had other eccentricities, says Armande Dellamaria, director of beauty for Chanel in Paris, who visited New York recently to promote Chanel Beauty, a new line of cosmetics.

"She always wore white cuffs which she changed several times a day. And the last ten years of her life, until she died in January, 1971, she had her hands made up to cover the age marks."

She only permitted camelias and gardenias in her apartment and "she lied so much about her early life, that hardly anybody can find the truth."

But it is known that she was a poor child, reared by aunts in "the middle of the provinces in France." And that eventually she ran off to Paris with a lover and began designing hats.

By 1917, the House of Chanel was firmly established, and for roughly the same number of years that Queen Victoria had ruled England, Chanel dominated women's fashion.

Says Ms. Dellamaria "She took women out of their ruffles and laces and yards of material," and put them instead into little three-piece jersey suits, adapted from the jersey used in men's underwear.

"Actually, she took everything she could from men, like jersey and tweeds and the gold buttons they wore on blazers, because she felt they were dressed much more comfortably."

She was the first to design uneven hems. The first to put women in pants at night; to fashion a strapless dress; to cut her hair short because she burned it by mistake one night. "Within one month, all the women in Paris wanted short hair."

And perhaps the first, in the '20s, to dabble with her own cosmetics. That's most important to Ms. Dellamaria, who said Mademoiselle Chanel experimented with nail polish, skin cream, face powder and lipstick, which she sold only at Maison Chanel.

When World War II began, the small cosmetic output was discontinued and never really reactivated until now. But if Chanel had continued right along, who knows what she might have devised?

"We found old booklets of hers and even in the '20s she had ideas for special jells to slim the body."

Chanel Beauty might have included them now, in addition to the eight skin care and 16 make-up products which comprise the line.

Introduced in France in 1974, the line is now being offered on a limited basis to American women. Specifically, to those women in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Dallas who will pay $6-20 for whatever they and the trained Chanel saleswomen decide they need.

Chanel was such an imposing figure, Ms. Dellamaria says, that at Maison Chanel today, they still say, "What would Mademoiselle have thought of this or that?"

THOSE WHO SHOP second-hand stores may find something resembling (left) this Chanel black pea d'oe evening coat of 1925. However, the prize would be owning this Chanel classic, beige jersey suit with striped tunic of 1926. The design became one of this indomitable designer's signatures in the fashion world. These were shown in the United States in a recent Chanel fashion retrospective.

Markets lengthen hours

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of supermarkets are staying open around the clock these days, hoping to boost sales by offering 24-hour service to customers who cannot shop during normal business hours.

There are no industry-wide statistics on the number of stores now operating 24 hours a day, but Dick Bragaw of the Super Market Institute in Chicago said, "There's been quite an increase in the past decade."

The initial boom in 24-hour supermarkets came in the early 1970s, partly as a result of the relaxation of local regulations that limited business hours. In most areas, the stores that operate around the clock are open seven days a week if so-called "blue laws" do not interfere.

Supermarkets General, a New Jersey-based company which operates the Pathmark chain of supermarkets in the Middle Atlantic states, was one of the first to try 24-hour operations, opening an around-the-clock store in May 1972.

Crime has not been a problem for the 24-hour operations because the stores do not keep large amounts of cash on hand and because grocery products are not high-value items from a thief's point of view, the spokesman said.

Safeway, the nation's largest chain, has only a handful of 24-hour stores. But A&P, the second-largest chain, opened its first 24-hour store early in 1975 and now has 535 round-the-clock operations across the country, representing about one-fourth of all A&P outlets.

"They are doing very well," an A&P spokesman said.

What makes a 24-hour operation a success?

The Pathmark spokesman said that geography per se has little to do with it. The industry and lifestyles in a community are more important than its location, he said, adding that 24-hour stores do well in areas where there are concentrations of people who work on a three-shift basis, such as airline or hospital personnel.

The growth in 24-hour operations has been accompanied by an increase in Sunday openings, according to Progressive Grocer, a trade magazine.

Another study, meanwhile, shows that Americans spent just under $129.3 billion in grocery stores in 1975, an increase of about 10 per cent from 1974. The study, by Supermarketing magazine, showed that about $101.3 billion went for foods and food products; another $15.6 billion was spent on other grocery products — including paper goods, soaps and detergents, pet foods and tobacco items; and $12.3 billion went for non-food items such as health and beauty aids, magazines and newspapers.

You can use either dry or prepared mustard in an oil-and-vinegar dressing for salads. A half teaspoon of dry mustard or a whole teaspoon of prepared mustard is a good proportion to use with a cup of oil and a quarter cup of vinegar.

Spiced prunes make a delicious accompaniment for roast pork.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

Last summer, when our family took to the highways, we noted that every 15 miles or so there was an exit on the freeway marked, "Rest Area." As we whizzed by, we saw happy families at play. Daddy was making yummies over a grill, the kids were tossing a frisbee, Mother was moving a picnic table that was chained to the ground to the shade and the dog was holding his stomach with laughter.

"We could do that," I said enviously. "It wouldn't take much to toss a cooler, a bag of charcoal, and a few folding chairs in the back seat. We could stretch our legs, use the facilities, get a cold drink of water, and Daddy could read one of those big maps they frame in glass to find out where we are."

This year, everyone forgot but me. When we packed the car, I announced, "No more driving for days to find a restaurant where grease is the beverage. This year, it's the rest areas for the Bombecks."

We were on the road only 15 minutes, when we saw our first rest area. "Wanta stop?" asked my husband.

"No need," I smiled confidently. "There'll be another one in 30 miles."

I was right. Thirty miles later was another rest area. Another thirty miles, we saw another one. Then lunchtime came and we never saw another one.

At two o'clock, the children became restless and started to kick the back of the seat in protest. "Sit back and put your seat belt on," I commanded.

"I ate it," came the reply. At 2:30, one child with his nose pressed against the window shouted, "Rest area spotted at 9 o'clock." We swiveled around and said numbly, "Rest area acknowledged... negative... on wrong side of turnpike."

At three o'clock, our stomachs were singing as a group. We were irritable, listless and one of the kids had raw hamburger breath but I couldn't prove it.

"Check the road map," said my husband. "Isn't that a rest area marked with a little tepee? Don't you see it?"

"No. It's my saliva," I said. By four o'clock we could stand it no longer. My husband pulled over to a soft shoulder under a sign that read, "NO PARKING ANYTIME." Here, we ripped through plastic with our teeth, ate cold wieners, and watched tomatoes drip off our elbows while we were blown off our feet by passing traffic.

We weren't on our way 15 minutes, when we saw a sign, "Rest Area."

I knew without looking that there would be one every 30 miles from here on in.

friendship of a German officer during the war, as she did, and then retrieve her position in the world after the war.

And she won't let go, even in death. "In France, when we introduced the cosmetics, we were right in the middle of the oil crisis and we were a little worried about the reaction. But we have done very well," Ms. Dellamaria said.

Yes, she agreed, perhaps there is a certain stability in the name Chanel that people wish to grasp. "But I would even go further. I would say there's a kind of magic in the name."

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower has celebrated a quiet 80th birthday, listening to her favorite hymns at a church service and spending the day with her grandchildren.

A children's choir sang "That Old Time Religion" and "Brighten the Corner" at a special service at the 400-seat First Presbyterian Church, which was filled to capacity Sunday.

The children's choir also treated Mrs. Eisenhower to a chorus of "Happy Birthday," as did about 50 well-wishers who awaited the Eisenhower family as they left the church.

LONDON (AP) — The marital plans of Prince Charles — if, indeed, there are any — are once again causing speculation here.

According to the London Sunday Mirror, European royalty has begun gossiping about whether the prince, who was 28 on Sunday, will marry the 22-year-old daughter of the Grand Duke Jean of Luxembourg, Princess Marie-Astrid.

LONDON (AP) — Zanella Tshabalala, 19-year-old Miss Swaziland, and Anne-Lise Lesur, 18-year-old Miss Mauritius, came to London to compete in the Miss World beauty contest. But they are going to wind up on the sidelines.

Their countries on Sunday withdrew their entries from the contest to protest the presence of two entrants from South Africa, one black and one white.

According to a spokeswoman for Mecca, the British entertainments company, the two African governments insisted that South Africa be represented by only one young woman picked on a multiracial basis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morris K. Udall was going onto the roof of his suburban Virginia home from a ladder to look at a leak over the weekend.

The ladder shifted and as he tumbled about six feet onto concrete, he thrust out both his arms to break the fall. He broke the arms instead. Following hospital treatment, Udall said his left arm is in a cast and his right arm in a sling, and that he will probably have to stay home for 10 days.

Said the unsuccessful Democratic presidential candidate: "1976 has not been my year."

MIAMI (AP) — Sen. Robert Dole, the Kansas Republican who was President Ford's running mate, says the economy was the issue that cost them the election.

Railroads seek hike in freight

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Twenty-nine railroads asked the Texas Railroad Commission today for a 5 per cent increase in freight charges to offset rising costs.

Spokesmen for scrap iron, stone, gypsum, grain and soft drink industries protested the request.

In prepared testimony, the assistant manager of the Western Railroad Association said 10 railroad carriers he represents had absorbed cost increases of $256.5 million, including $84.6 million in wage increases that were effective last Jan. 1.

James Harry of Chicago said the railroads' estimated rate of return for 1976 is 1.03 per cent. He noted that the Interstate Commerce Commission had observed that "rates of return in the range of 4 per cent or less have repeatedly been held to be substandard and inadequate."

The 5 per cent increase in rates within Texas would be comparable, Harry said, with the increase granted by the commerce commission on interstate traffic, including Texas, effective Oct. 7.

John Osborne of Houston, manager of pricing for Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., noted that the railroads were not asking for an increase in charges to ship peanuts in the Southwest. "We refer to this as the Carter amendment," Osborne said.

The hearing was expected to last for several days.

Raza Unida is indicted candidate

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ramsey Muniz, twice the unsuccessful Texas gubernatorial candidate of the Raza Unida political party, has been indicted by a federal grand jury here on marijuana smuggling charges.

Chief U.S. Atty. John E. Clark said today that government officials believe Muniz, 34, may have fled to Mexico.

Muniz is named in two indictments, unsealed today, charging him with conspiracy to import marijuana and conspiracy to possess marijuana for distribution.

The indictments allege that Muniz, a Corpus Christi lawyer, and six others conspired to import 832 pounds of the illegal weed in early October.

Pay utilities in installments?

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill has proposed that Texans be allowed to make installment payments on utility bills during summer months when electricity usage is highest.

"We are going to have to face the fact that the day of cheap energy is gone," Hill told the annual meeting of the Texas Municipal League Sunday. "I think the utilities have a moral obligation to let the public pay off unusually high bills on an installment plan."

Nearly 3,000 city officials from across the state are expected to attend the municipal conference that runs through Thursday.

Hill said he discussed the deferred payments proposal with the Texas Utilities Commission and believes it will be adopted. Under the program, Texas residents would be able to spread out payments of their utility bills over a period of months so that no individual month's charges would be too great.

"In the summer months when everyone uses their air conditioners, homeowners sometimes get electric bills for $200 or more," Hill said. "Why not spread this figure out into the winter when use of electricity is much less."

Hill also told the Municipal League members that he would not support legislation that would not allow utilities to get a fair rate of return on their investments.

"There is a wave of distrust today that causes the public to believe high utility bills are the result of a giant conspiracy," Hill said. "This sentiment has brought many proposed bills to the state legislature next year that I think are bad."

Among the legislative proposals are bills that would require a public hearing on any pass-through utility rate increases and would establish a "lifeline" discount electric and gas rate for low income residents.

In another speech Sunday, TML utility counsel Don Butler said Southwestern Bell is seeking new rates that are five times greater than the amount it needs.

The Austin attorney said some of the findings of TML research consultants indicate Bell could get by with as little as $17 million in added revenues next year. Bell has asked for a $299 million rate hike in Texas.

Supreme Court to review religious case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a case of alleged religious discrimination strikingly similar to one in which the justices were deadlocked in reaching a decision earlier this month.

At the same time, however, the court refused to consider two related cases.

The justices agreed to hear arguments in Trans World Airlines appeal of a decision by the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the company was guilty of religious discrimination by firing an employee who refused to work on Saturdays.

TWA employe Larry G. Hardison was fired from his job at the company's maintenance base in Kansas City in 1969 after refusing to fill in for a vacationing employe on three successive Saturdays. Hardison said his membership in the Worldwide Church of God precluded any work from sundown

Friday to sundown Saturday.

The circuit court ruled that TWA had not provided "reasonable accommodation" for Hardison's religious convictions. The airline said it treated Hardison's case as that of other employes covered by union collective bargaining.

In a 4-4 deadlock Nov. 2, the Supreme Court upheld a decision of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that a Berea, Ky. employe was guilty of religious discrimination by not accommodating an employe's religious principles. In that case, Justice John Paul Stevens did not take part.

The court deadlock automatically upheld the circuit court's ruling that an employe's religious scruples — even those against working on certain days of the week — must normally be accommodated by an employer.

The court refused to hear a copy editor's arguments that his religious freedoms were violated when the Memphis, Tenn., Press-Scimitar refused to hire him because he declined to work on Saturdays.

The justices let stand a decision of the U.S. Circuit Court in Cincinnati rejecting the claim made by McCann L. Reid, a member of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church.

The court also refused to hear arguments in the case of Larry J. Williams, a New Mexico employe of the Southern Union Gas. Co. who claimed his constitutional rights were violated when he was fired for refusing to work on his religion's Sabbath. Williams also is a member of the Worldwide Church of God.

A district court ruled against Williams' claim, and the decision was upheld by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

In 1956, the first closed circuit educational TV system used in schools was started in Hagerstown, Md.

The Lighter Side

AUBURN, Wash. (AP) — The windows of Auburn City Hall don't get opened much nowadays, because they tend to fall out onto the sidewalks.

Council members avoid the second floor because its ceiling beam is held up by a chain.

An emergency door is permanently locked because only a sledgehammer could open it — and that would cause the walls to shift even more than they already have.

"When I began working here 24 years ago, we were renting out surplus space," said George Schuler, planning director for this city just south of Seattle.

"When this place was built, Auburn had 3,000 residents. Now we have 22,600."

The council planned to consider alternative fund-raising approaches today to raise $3.8 million and repair the building. But only a few dozen spectators are allowed in the meeting chamber, because it is partitioned to provide an office for the building inspector.

NEW YORK (AP) — Penelope the Porcupine is back with her owners after being stolen from the back of a pickup truck in Greenwich Village.

A crate containing the 11-pound, 7-month-old pet was among the items snatched by a thief Thursday night from the truck belonging to Liz Troester Morris. The thief kept some tools worth about $1,000, but abandoned the crate when he discovered its contents.

Penelope, who likes to eat pretzels, pickles and chocolate, was found by a man who had read a newspaper article reporting her abduction. He turned the porcupine over to the superintendent of a state park, who contacted Mrs. Morris.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Essie Ramsey says he doesn't plan to miss class at Bonner Elementary School today just because it's his birthday — he's 101.

Ramsey said that a month ago he "got tired of just sitting around" and enrolled in a continuing adult education class held at Bonner in the evenings and sponsored by Daytona Beach Community College.

"He's already the teacher's pet," said Beady Smith, who is teaching Ramsey to read and write.

Ramsey said he once served as a gardener at the Ormond Beach home of John D. Rockefeller.

Postal Service touts surplus of $15 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service said today it had a surplus of $15 million in the last quarter and Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar called it "a milestone in terms of getting our finances in balance."

Bailar cautioned that "one swallow doesn't make a summer. We're not out of the woods yet. Nevertheless, this is a major accomplishment."

The Postal Service has been a consistent money loser since it was reorganized from the old Post Office Department in 1971. The new agency has had a deficit in each of the five complete years since.

The postmaster-general attributed the improving financial picture principally to reductions in the Postal Service work force through attrition.

The mail service now employs 664,000 workers, compared to 728,911 at the time of reorganization.

Bailar said he has set no goal on further reductions in the work force. "I'm going to rely on our people in the field to reduce the payroll wherever they think they can do so without reducing service," he told a news conference.

A smaller factor in the surplus was a slight upturn in the use of the mail, he said.

Nevertheless, he predicted that mail volume in years to come will decline because of increasing use of electronic technology to communicate at the expense of letters.

Davies pleads innocent

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Margo Davies pleaded innocent today to three counts of aggravated murder in the deaths of her young daughters.

Mrs. Davies, 20, of Worthington, told a Delaware County Common Pleas Court judge she did not kill her three small daughters two weeks ago.

Judge Henry Shaw ordered her returned to the Marion County Jail and set her bond at $250,000 cash. The judge said he expected a trial date to be set in about a week.

Mrs. Davies was indicted Friday by a Delaware County Grand Jury on the three counts of murder. The charges against her carry specifications which could bring the death penalty if she is convicted.

The word "miniature," which comes from the art of manuscript illumination, referred not to size, but to the red lead pigment "minium" used to paint initials and decorative borders.

John Bunyan was imprisoned at Bedford, England, in 1660 for unlawful preaching. He wrote part of "Pilgrim's Progress" while in jail.

Houston attorney fails to get Bates' bench

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston attorney's attempt to fill convicted Criminal District Court Judge Garth Bates' bench with a special election has failed.

Wesley Hocker, an unsuccessful Nov. 2 general election write-in candidate against Bates, had sought the action Monday by invoking a seldom used statute.

However, retired State District Judge George Taylor of Beaumont enjoined any courtroom caucusing for the judgeship which he has been assigned. Late a gathering of Hocker forces also failed because no officials participated in the plan for a lawyers' election of a special judge.

Hocker's lawyers said they plan to appeal the action by Taylor to the Court of Civil Appeals.

Hocker said civil law permits courtroom lawyers to elect a special judge if the regular judge is absent during the first court session of his new term.

The laws also recognize the authority of a state administrative judge to appoint a qualified judge to fill in during the absence of a regular court judge.

Bates has taken a leave of absence from the bench, pending appeal of his conviction on a charge of accepting a $59,000 bribe.

Attorneys said the appeal could take a year. Meanwhile, Nancy Leshiker, director of the state controller's claims division, said that Bates would continue to receive his judge's salary of about $44,000 a year unless he is removed.

Hocker forces mustered early Monday when about 70 lawyers gathered in Bates 174th district courtroom. Taylor's injunction from the bench halted any balloting.

Hocker reappeared in the courtroom hallway about noon and announced to a group of lawyers that the second planned election also could not be conducted.

He said District Clerk Ray Hardy, who would have to supervise the balloting, was unsure whether the earlier injunction applied to him. No sheriff or constable was on hand to follow the procedure set out in the statute—calling three times for the judge before an election could be held. Hocker said.

Joe Moss, with the district attorney's appellate division, said the special election statute was drawn before administrative judges were named to assign visiting and retired judges to the bench. He said the law was aimed at situations in smaller rural counties which might hold court only two times a year.

Liberty rings from autoharp

Morris Kille, music director for the First Methodist Church in Pampa, will play "Liberty Song" on his autoharp in the salute to America at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in M.K. Brown Auditorium. He also will present readings with Carolyn Smith, Nancy Coffee, Richard Peet, Richard Hill and Henry Gruben. The revue, sponsored by the Gray County Bicentennial Committee, will include singers and dancers to depict eras of American history. "Liberty Song" is from the post revolutionary period. Briscoe wants to allow wiretaps in drug cases DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has told members of the Texas Municipal League that he will ask the 1977 legislature to approve laws allowing police electronic equipment and wiretaps to fight drug trafficking.

Briscoe said Monday the new laws are necessary to control drug trade in Texas, which, he said, the police are now losing.

The governor said any laws concerning wiretapping and electronic surveillance would include provisions to protect the privacy of individuals.

Members of the TML also heard Monday about problems facing the elderly and problems connected the bureaucratic red tape in some federal agencies.

Hiram Friedsam, dean of the school of community services at North Texas State University, said president-elect Jimmy Carter can be expected to place greater emphasis on the problems of senior citizens and enhancing services to those people.

Friedsam was one of five guest panelists who addressed a seminar at the 64th annual conference and exhibition of the Texas Municipal League here.

"My crystal ball is not all that good and the new administration's stand on aging is a little fuzzy but I would say Carter will put greater emphasis on aging and aging services but not a marked departure from existing programs," said Fried-sam.

Panelist Hortense Dixon, executive assistant to the mayor of Houston, stressed the need for increased services for the elderly quoting figures provided by the Center for Democratic Institutions.

"There are now 22 million aged Americans," she said. "By the year 2,000, one half of the population will be over 50 and one-third over 65."

Mrs. Dixon said 70 per cent of the county's elderly live on annual incomes of some $4,300.

Kenneth McNease, a San Angelo city commissioner, told TML delegates his city turned down a $92,000 federal nutrition grant for the elderly recently.

McNease, who voted for the grant, termed the vote "unfortunate" but pointed out that a local "Meals on Wheels" program has since increased the size of its operation.

Earlier, Sen. John Tower, D-Tex., fired a pair of broadsides at federal agencies, accusing them of maligning much good congressional legislation with bureaucratic red tape and misinterpreting laws passed to benefit the cities.

Tower cited the Department of Housing and Urban Development's denial of funds to San Antonio after the city had proposed to use the money for a recreation area on land owned by the local school district.

He said HUD's denial, based on a provision of the 1974 Community Development Act prohibiting funds for schools, outweighed the general intent of the law—which is to allow cities to be flexible in the use of CD funds.

STEP sites reported for November

Selective Traffic Enforcement Program locations in November will include Kingsmill and Duncan.

Norman Rushing, STEP co-ordinator, said an officer is assigned to work on 900 block to the 1500 block of Hobart. He will be working with radar and watching for speed violations, stop sign violations, turning violations and improper lane usage along with failure to yield right of way.

While working the Kingsmill locations, the officer will keep the unit moving between Cuyler and Ward streets watching for red light violations, failure to yield right of way and turning violations. Warning citations will be issued in failure to signal intent, except in aggravated cases, officials said.

The radar locations for Duncan Street will include the 1100 block to the 1700 block—but does not include any of the school zones.

Housing program predicted

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., says more public spending on housing programs is likely to be proposed by the new administration of President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Tower told delegates to the National Association of Realtors Convention Monday that heavy federal spending depletes the supply of private capital needed for more jobs and for more goods and services at lower prices.

"The United States is trailing in capital creation," he said. "We're even behind Great Britain."

Tower drew applause from the realtors when he criticized consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

"Mr. Nader is self appointed as a spokesman for the consumer," Tower said. "He has been elected by no one. I have more of a mandate from the people than he does."

"He seems to be convinced to three things: All businessmen are crooked. All consumers are gullible. And the government is infallible. None of those three are true."

Tower said pressure exerted by Nader as a guest on talk shows on television caused Congress to enact legislation requiring an interlock seat belt system on new cars manufactured for the model year 1975.

"The same goes for the defective legislation on closing costs on real estate settlements," Tower said. "The interlock law of course had to be repealed. And the settlement law had to be heavily amended to end red tape bogging down home sales."

"Yet my mail shows that there was never a groundswell of public sentiment for the settlement or interlock legislation or for creating a federal agency on consumer advocacy proposed by Nader."

Tower earlier told newsmen he will seek reelection as a senator in 1978 but has not decided whether to run for Senate minority leader in January.

Kennon V. Rothchild, of St. Paul, Minn., president of the Mortgage Bankers Association, told delegates "next year should be a very good one for home loans."

He said the average rate on a mortgage loan for a new or used home should decrease from 9 to 8.75 per cent by March or April, then possibly stabilize at or near that figure for the rest of the year.

Ford prepared federal budget

By FRANK CORMIER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Back from a California holiday, President Ford is rejoining the working world by devoting time to one of the last major tasks of his presidency: preparing the federal budget for 1978.

The three-hour conference on the budget that Ford planned today was his longest work session since Nov. 2 when he lost the election to Jimmy Carter.

Ford, wife Betty, daughter Susan and son Jack returned to Washington on Monday evening from Palm Springs, Calif., where the President spent eight days unwinding from the campaign.

James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, met with Ford twice in Palm Springs and returned with him for today's meeting on preliminary outlines for the federal budget for fiscal 1978, due for presentation to Congress in January.

Lynn said last week that Ford's 1978 budget will exceed the $429.5 billion in outlays that were tentatively projected a year ago. Spending in fiscal 1977, which began Oct. 1, is expected to top $413 billion, including a $50 billion deficit.

Carter can submit his own budget proposals for fiscal 1978 after he takes office Jan. 20.

Ford's vacation routine in Palm Springs consisted mainly of swimming and golf, but he also went house hunting.

The Fords on Sunday viewed several houses and lots in the posh desert resort where they stayed, but made no decision on whether to move to the area permanently. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday.

Mrs. Ford's press secretary,

Sheila Weidenfeld, said, "Weatherwise, it is her favorite choice."

She also said she felt the Fords would not return to the Alexandria, Va., home the family occupied during Ford's years in Congress.

"The kids are grown now and I don't think they will be going back" to Alexandria, she said.

Nessen said the next month would be "normal, busy routine," after which Ford will take his family to Vail, Colo., for their annual Christmas skiing vacation. The Fords own a condominium there.

The press secretary said Ford has accepted an invitation from Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller to spend this weekend at Pocatello Hills, Rockefeller's country estate near Tarrytown, N.Y.

Jeweler trial begins

HUNTSVILLE — Testimony was expected to begin today here in the trial of Wichita Falls jeweler Adam Nacol, who is accused of receiving and concealing stolen goods.

Nacol was indicted by a Wichita County grand jury on a charge of theft over $10,000 and theft over $200 dollars for allegedly receiving property stolen in a series of burglaries in the Wichita Falls area in 1975.

Former Wichita Falls stockbroker James LeBus, who was accused of setting up the burglaries, pleaded guilty in September in a Dallas state district court to a burglary charge.

LeBus is expected to testify as a state witness against Nacol.

A witness at LeBus' trial testified that LeBus asked him to burglarize a Wichita Falls building to steal precious metals valued at more than $25,000.

Two convicts charged

MATADOR, Tex. (AP) — Capital murder charges have been filed against two Louisiana escaped convicts in connection with the shotgun slaying of Motley County Sheriff Jinks Wilson.

Justice of the Peace Roy Smith said Stacy Carter, 25, of Olivia, N.C., and Larry Fortenberry, 28, of Mt. Hermon, La., were charged Monday in this West Texas town with murder of a police officer.

The two men were ordered held without bond in the nearby Crosby County jail, Smith said.

Officials said Wilson, 62, and a friend, John Rogers, of Matador, left Friday to go to Wilson's ranch to check on reports of some cattle running loose.

Wilson was shot as he questioned two men standing alongside Rogers' car after he and Rogers returned from the ranch.

Rogers was also wounded by a shotgun blast.

Carter and Fortenberry were arrested by state police about two hours after the shooting on U.S. 82 near Dickens.

Crosby County Sheriff A.F. Stark said the men admitted escaping from a Louisiana jail. Authorities later confirmed the two escaped from Terrebonne Parish prison in southern Louisiana Oct. 30.

Hill says 55 mph limit legal here

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill says there is no doubt in his mind that the 55 miles-per-hour speed limit in Texas is legal.

"Contrary to what has appeared in some newspaper stories, it is the position of the attorney general's office that the 55 miles-per-hour speed limit is constitutional and may be validly enforced," Hill said in a letter to Robert C. Richter Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Texas Municipal Courts Association, Houston.

Richter wrote to Hill saying at least one Texas judge had expressed personal views that the 55 mph law was invalid.

Hill said the confusion in some people's minds resulted from two different orders from the Texas Highway Commission before and after a special session of the legislature.

On Dec. 4, 1973, the highway commission issued a "minute order" lowering the state speed limit from 70 to 55. However, on Dec. 20 the attorney general ruled that the order was invalid because the commission did not have statutory authority to issue the order.

On Dec. 18 a special session of the legislature was called to consider legislation that would give the highway commission authority to set a new speed limit. The bill, which has already been approved by Hill, passed on Dec. 20. On Jan. 8, 1974, the highway commission adopted a new order setting a statewide 55 mph limit, effective Jan. 20.

"Thus, the Dec. 4, 1973, attempt to lower the speed limit was indeed invalid but the speed limit was properly reduced effective Jan. 20, 1974," Hill's letter said.

Novels study marriage

Capsule reviews prepared by the American Library Assn.

By Carol Felsenthal

Marriage as an institution may be riddled with imperfections, but it's still a situation in which most people eventually find themselves. Perhaps that's the reason why so many novelists seem fixated on its failures and possibilities.

"The Wallpaper Fox," an intense, intelligent and entertaining novel by Morris Philipson, is about the fate of a good marriage suddenly beset by difficult moral dilemmas.

Set in New Haven, Conn., during the early 1970s, the novel focuses on Henry and Kate Warner. Henry, whose family was among the founders of the town that spawned Yale University, is the product of three centuries of Yankee ingenuity, industriousness, affluence and influence.

His wife is a strong-willed beautiful woman who is mostly happy with her role as wife and mother. But she feels an emptiness inside that leaves her battling depression, migraine headaches and fears of losing her identity and self-worth.

By the novel's close, the Warners are struggling to free themselves from a net of lies that threatens to strangle their marriage. To make his point — that even strong marriages are built on lies as well as love — the author unfortunately, relies on a series of improbable coincidences climaxing in an explosive and contrived exposure scene. Philipson does, however, skillfully reveal not only his characters' lies but also the extent to which duplicity is a socially acceptable part of most marriages.

THE WALLPAPER FOX by Morris Philipson (Scribner's, 226 pages, $7.95)
MARRY ME by John Updike (Knopf, 303 pages, $7.95)
THE BEST PLACE TO BE by Helen Van Slyke (Doubleday, 354 pages, $8.95)

MORRIS PHILIPSON describes moral dilemmas in a good marriage in "The Wallpaper Fox."

John Updike's eighth novel is also set in an affluent Connecticut suburb where people have the time and inclination to wander from and wonder about their marriages.

Jerry Conant and Sally Mathias are having an affair that they both claim they'd love to convert to a marriage. One obstacle is the fact that they're already married to other people. Another obstacle is children. But the real obstacle is Jerry.

To justify his procrastination over leaving his wife, he clutches at the most unlikely excuses. He worries that Ruth will never find a comparable mate. "If only there was some decent man who I know would marry her and take care of her — but every man we know, compared to me, is a clunk. Really, I'm not conceded, but that's a fact."

From religion, though, he reaps his most preposterous repertoire of excuses. "To live without you," he tells Sally, "is death to me. On the other hand, to abandon my family is a sin; to do it I'd have to deny God, and by denying God I'd give up all claim on immortality."

The character of Jerry is vintage Updike. He's a superb illustration of the novel's theme — that the appeal of affairs depends on their inherent danger and impermanence. As soon as Jerry realizes that not only is the forbidden fruit no longer forbidden, but that it's even about to become a steady diet, his appetite disappears.

Updike placed his novel in 1962 and subtitled it "A romance," because, he contends, "People don't act like that anymore."

But except for some mentions of John Kennedy and the characters' tacit assumption that it's a woman's duty to make a man at least believe he's boss and that children are a good reason to stay married, like most good fiction this very good novel is timeless.

According to Helen Van Slyke, "The Best Place to Be" is in the strong protective arms of a husband.

By the end of this masterpiece of melodrama, the widow Sheila Callahan has become Mrs. William Reardon — carried away by her new husband to safety, security and a castle in Ireland.

But in between this horrendously hokey happy-ever-after ending and the novel's opening incident — the sudden death of Sheila's first husband — Van Slyke does offer a sometimes sensitive look at widowhood.

For 27 years, Sheila

Callahan lived in the shadow of her handsome, philandering "professional Irishman" husband. His death leaves her with a curious mix of grief and relief — relief at finally being free. But the freedom is fleeting since she soon finds that being a widow can be more suffocating than being a wife.

Between the pity of her children and the shock of her friends when she refuses to grab the first available widower, her future seems bleak. And it seems even bleaker when she discovers that the rambling suburban Cleveland home is practically all her husband has left her. So Sheila, whose lifelong occupation has consisted of caring for and making others happy, is suddenly faced with finding a job.

But this novel is basically a dishonest view of what it's like to be a widow in middle class America. Sheila is an uncommonly beautiful and sexy widow, pursued by a handsome young doctor and a best-selling author. The other widows and single women she meets are so depressing a lot that widowhood does seem fit only for escaping. And working seems about as glamorous and fulfilling as washing a floor, unless, of course, it results in meeting a mate.

Van Slyke has concocted what's essentially attractively packaged junk food for the mind. But junk food, if it's not a steady diet, can't hurt and can certainly be fun to consume. Once started, this novel is addictive, in the same way a soap opera is addictive. And you don't even have to tune in tomorrow to discover the outcome of some of the most clichéd crises this side of Peyton Place.

State probes drip gas operation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday state auditors are checking at least eight Panhandle service stations as a result of weekend raids that shut down a "drip gas" operation at McLean.

This is the first result of a project to monitor the quality of gasoline sold at Texas stations, Bullock said in a statement. Bullock said his agents sealed the pumps at a McLean station on Interstate 40, seized a 9,000-gallon tank truck and a 2,000-gallon bob-tail truck and sealed off a 25,000-gallon storage tank in Cactus.

Approximately 18,000 gallons of drip-gas, a condensate fuel, was seized, he said.

"I hope this serves as a warning to anyone in this state who—just to make a few extra bucks—would pump inferior fuel into the tank of a customer who thinks he is getting good quality gasoline," Bullock said.

He said drip gas may be sold through pumps when it is prominently labeled, but the inferior fuel—which can damage or destroy an engine—is sometimes sold without the tax being paid and without proper labeling to unsuspecting motorists.

Bullock said his agents were assisted by state police. Texas Rangers, the sheriff's offices in Moore and Gray Counties and an investigator from the Moore County district attorney's office.

Pampa hosting loop CC meet

Pampans Sherry Kimbell and Robert Thaxton are their team's top hopes for regional qualifying berths, which 3-AAAA teams and runners will be trying to earn today in the district cross-country meet at 3 p.m. on the course at the end of NE 23rd Street in Pampa. Provided the course is not muddy.

Pampa Athletic Director Ed Lehnick was to have examined the course, made wet by Friday and Saturday's snowstorm, to see if it was runnable. If not, the meet will be postponed.

Divisions include varsity boys, junior varsity boys, varsity girls and junior varsity girls. The girls will run 1 1/2 miles, while the boys will go 2 miles. The top 10 individuals and best three teams in the varsity divisions will qualify for the regional meet.

Amarillo High is an overwhelming favorite to capture the girls' title, with last year's winner and runner-up returning, Julie Curry won and Lorie Scott finished second a year ago to lead the Sandies to the girls' championship with 39 points, compared to 48 for runner up Amarillo Tascosa.

In the Pampa meet this year, which kicked off the area cross country season, Scott won in 10:34, while Curry was second in 10:42. Amarillo's Priscilla Gregory was third in 10:53.

Kimbell, who was fourth last year, is Pampa's best hope. She had her best clocking of the season two weeks ago in the Amarillo Invitational by placing seventh in 9:19.

Teammate Jana Vaughn was 15th in that meet in 9:33. Other Pampa times were Angela Brooks, 32nd, 10:14; Karen Pope, 49th, 10:44; Lucinda Mynear, 50th, 10:48; and Anita Marlar, 61st, 11:26.

Other strong contenders for the girls' title should be Caprock's Virginia Cruz and Dianna Moulder and Palo Duro's Sandy Koesjan.

The boys' team and individual favorites are Amarillo Tascosa and Chris Caldwell of Amarillo High.

Caldwell who was second in the Amarillo Invitational, should be pressed by Tascosa's Joel Thompson. Amarillo's Richard Postma and Ted Winton and Caprock's Dan Wetmore.

Thaxton's best time this season was 11:00 in the Lubbock meet, in which he placed 28th.

In the Amarillo meet, Thaxton was 37th in 11:18. Teammate Jim Britton edged him by netting 38th in 11:17. Other Pampa times were Pete Myers, 39th, 11:26; Taron Moore, 46th, 11:40; Jim Hall, 49th, 11:55; Glen Roth, 51st, 12:01; and Greg Sandeford, 52nd, 12:26.

No points, team totals or medals will be awarded in the junior varsity divisions.

The meet is the fourth district event for the boys and second for the girls since cross country became a University Scholastic League sport. Girls ran a mile last year instead of 1 1/2 miles.

Cowboys fight off stubborn Bills

DALLAS (AP) — Drew Pearson had just caught nine passes for 135 yards but displayed a hang dog look on the sidelines as the final seconds ticked away on a 17-10 victory Monday night over the Buffalo Bills.

"Boy, he's going to chew us out this time," Pearson said to another Dallas Cowboy player. The other player nodded.

"He" is Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who has a 9-1 team that's playing bad and winning. In fact, the Cowboys are off to their finest start record-wise in the 16-year history of the club.

Pearson said later in the dressing room "We are professionals and if we don't play up to our level than we should expect to be chewed out."

The Cowboy receiver was told that Landry says he never chews players out.

Pearson answered, smiling. "If he says he doesn't chew us out—then he doesn't."

Landry didn't sound like the Cowboys were in for too severe a tongue-lashing.

"We are not playing real good, but I remember last year we got beat three or four times we didn't play well," said Landry. "It shows you something when you don't play well and still can win."

UCLA trims Pitt lead

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

The University of Pittsburgh's still-comfortable lead over UCLA was narrowed slightly in The Associated Press' college football ratings released today.

Meanwhile, Southern California, Michigan and Texas Tech retained the 3-4-5 spots, while Georgia climbed into a sixth-place tie with Maryland.

Pitt ran its record to 10-0 with a 24-16 triumph over West Virginia last Saturday. The Panthers received 44 first-place votes and 1,206 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters.

Oregon State, got 13 first-place ballots and 1,093 points. Pitt's margin last week was 1,226-1,093 and UCLA also sliced Pitt's edge in first-place votes from 49-7 to 44-13.

Southern Cal, which beat Washington 20-3, received one first-place mention and 866 points, while Michigan, the No. 1 team for most of the season until a loss to Purdue two weeks ago, rebounded to beat Illinois 38-7 and was accorded two first-place votes and 834 points.

Texas Tech, one of the nation's four unbeaten teams along with Pitt, Maryland and Rutgers, walloped Southern Methodist 34-7 and received one first-place vote and 786 points. The other two first-places went to Maryland and Texas A&M, No. 11 in the new rankings.

Georgia, seventh last week, caught Maryland for a sixth-place deadlock at 663 points with a 28-0 trouncing of Auburn, while the Terrapins blanked Clemson 20-0.

Ohio State, a 9-3 winner over Minnesota, held the No. 8 position, but idle Houston jumped from 12th to ninth and Oklahoma's defending two-time national champions rose from 14th to 10th, downing Missouri 27-20.

Nebraska and Alabama were 9-10 last week, but the Cornhuskers lost to Iowa State 37-28, while the Crimson Tide bowed to Notre Dame 21-18.

Court issues warrant for arrest of Barnes

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A Providence Superior Court judge has issued an arrest warrant for Marvin Barnes of the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association for allegedly violating terms of a probationary sentence.

The alleged probation violation occurred Oct. 9 when Barnes was charged with having an unloaded handgun in his luggage when it was checked at Detroit Metropolitan Airport in Romulus, Mich.

Judge William M. Mackenzie signed the warrant Monday. Barnes was sentenced in Superior Court two years ago for assaulting a former Providence College teammate with a tire iron.

Dolphins grab 8 1sts in Lawton swim meet

LAWTON, Okla. — Pampa Dolphin swimmers captured eight individual first-place ribbons and two relay victories last weekend in the Lawton YMCA Invitational AAU "B" Swim Meet.

Fourteen Dolphins were among the 278 entrants in the meet. Every member of the Pampa swim club improved times in at least one event.

Lisa Raymond, competing in the 13-14 year old class, led Pampa with four first-place and two second-place finishes. Amy Raymond followed with two first places and two thirds.

Robbie Hill had a first and two thirds, while Richie Hill had a first and a second.

Paul Turek finished with two seconds; Raymond Hill with a second and two thirds, and Cindy Raymond with a third.

The Pampa relay team of John Carter, Robbie Hill, Eugene Thompson and James White took two relay wins in the 13-14 class.

Other Dolphins scoring in the top six or improving on previous bests were Sharon Willis, Renita and Richelle Hill and Clay Douglas.

PAMPA NEWS Tuesday, November 16, 1976 11

Freshman passer to start for UT

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A freshman quarterback with "practically no playing time at all" will lead Texas against a Baylor defense that has given up only 13 points in its past two games.

Texas Coach Darrell Royal confirmed Monday that first-year southpaw Mark McBath will start for the second week in a row even though he fumbled five snapbacks in the fourth quarter against Texas Christian Saturday.

McBath guided Texas to a 34-7 victory over winless Texas Christian, however, breaking a two-game Texas losing streak.

Royal told his weekly news conference Monday that Baylor has a better record and more impressive statistics than Texas and should be favored if Texas fullback Earl Campbell can't play.

"I imagine without Earl, they will have an edge, and with Earl, it ought to be a tossup," Royal said.

Campbell, a 231-pound junior, has not played since the first quarter of the Texas Tech game Oct. 30, when he pulled a hamstring muscle. Royal said Campbell "can't have total confidence in the leg even if he fumbles against Baylor."

Asked whether Texas would be playing a "much better" team in Baylor than TCU, Royal said, "That group (Baylor) has a better record than we've got and better statistics on both ends (offense and defense) than we've got."

Royal said he would "lump" Texas A&M, Houston and Texas Tech in the top category, followed by Baylor, Arkansas and Texas in another "lump."

JAMES E. CARTER, JR.

James Earl Carter, Jr.

CARTER, JAMES EARL, JR. (1924) was elected President of the United States in 1976, following a remarkable run to national fame. Carter had been governor of Georgia from 1971 to 1975 and was just elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1976. He was the 39th President of the United States. Carter, known by the nickname Jimmy, was born in Plains, Ga., on Oct. 1, 1924. Before Carter was elected as governor, he served in the Georgia Senate. He had managed his family's peanut business and farm before entering politics. Carter also had been an officer in the United States Navy. He was the first president of the U.S. Naval Academy to become chief executive. When Carter took office as President, the nation was challenged mainly by economic problems. The economy was gradually recovering from a severe recession that had struck in 1974, but the unemployment rate remained high. Carter pledged during his campaign to reduce unemployment and to encourage steady growth in the economy. Carter also promised government reform for every American. He once said: "We should make our major investments in people, in building and weapons. The poor, the weak, the aged, the afflicted must be helped with respect and compassion and with love. The test of any government is not how people do it with the powerful, but how honestly and fairly it deals with the many who must depend on it." As an entrepreneur and inventor, Carter was calm, organized and a man of few words. He was a member of the United States Naval Academy and the United States Naval Reserve. He was a member of the United States Naval Academy and the United States Naval Reserve. He was a member of the United States Naval Academy and the United States Naval Reserve.

THE WINNER of the Nov. 2 presidential election became a matter of record in the reference works almost before counting of the votes was finished. In the 1977 edition of The World Book Encyclopedia, James Earl Carter Jr. is already entered as the 39th president of the United States. The six-page article was prepared in advance and rushed into print for the edition due out Jan. 1, 1977, as soon as the election outcome was determined. A just-in-case "loser" version was destroyed.

Asia rice crop smaller

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of Agriculture Department trade specialists said Monday that a smaller rice crop in Asia this year probably will trigger larger foreign shipments to help feed food-deficit countries. The confident atmosphere of abundance that followed Asia's large 1975 rice harvests has begun to fade, they said. Excellent weather helped Asia produce a record 209 million metric tons of rice last year, they said. But poor weather, insects and other problems have plagued the 1976 crop and it now appears that the Asian harvest may be about 3 per cent below the 1975 mark. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds. The report, included in a weekly issue of "Foreign Agriculture" published by the department, said that the decline results mainly from smaller harvests in the People's Republic of China, India, Indonesia and Sri Lanka. As a result, the report said, it is "quite possible" that U.S. exports of rice to some of the deficit countries may be larger in the coming year than had been previously indicated. One reason is that consumer demand for rice in Asia has grown as a result of rising incomes, lower prices and smaller per capita supplies of other grains. The stockpile of surplus rice in the United States, where it is a minor food item, is record large. Farmers produced a record crop of 127.6 million hundredweight (about 5.8 million metric tons) in 1975. But, with a new government acreage program this year and much lower market prices, farmers cut back production to 112 million hundredweight. Even so, there was a record surplus of 36.9 million hundredweight of rice on hand Aug. 1, the start of this marketing year, compared with only 7.1 million on Aug. 1, 1975. Thus, despite the smaller 1976 harvest and some improvement in exports, the U.S. rice stockpile is expected to rise further to around 44.6 million hundredweight by next Aug. 1. WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department economist said today that beef prices are expected to rise slowly next year but that the increases will be tempered by competition from larger quantities of pork and broiler chicken at least through mid-1977. Beef output continues to expand, but losses by cattle feeders much of this year led to reduced placements of cattle on feed this summer. Rex F. Daly said in remarks for USDA's National Agricultural Outlook Conference. "This and the downphase of the cattle cycle is expected to lead to less beef output next year and strengthening prices for cattle." A recent report showed that as of Nov. 1 there were about 7.3 million cattle being fattened for slaughter in seven major beef states, down 4 per cent from a year ago.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six areas in the United States have been formally recognized by the United Nations as "biosphere reserve" areas. The Agriculture Department said the areas include: Coweeta Experimental Forest, N.C.; Great Smoky Mountains National Park, Tenn. and N.C.; Hubbard Brook Experimental Forest, N.H.; Everglades National Park, Fla.; Virgin Islands National Park, V.I.; and Luquillo Experimental Forest, Puerto Rico. Officials said the biosphere reserve project was started in 1973 to establish an international network of protected areas, representing the major natural regions of the world, which can be used for ecological training, monitoring, and education.

Employment tax credit proposed by Bentsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., proposed on Monday an employment tax credit as a means of reducing unemployment without stimulating inflation. Pattered on the investment tax credit for new equipment and machinery, Bentsen suggested to a news conference a credit to employers for 10 to 15 per cent of the first year's salaries of additional employees. Returning from a successful re-election campaign, Bentsen said the employment tax credit plan would take people off unemployment compensation or welfare and at the same time lower the costs of production, which could benefit consumers through lower prices. As a last resort, Bentsen said he would vote for additional public service jobs. He said, however, that a $12,000-a-year public service job would cost federal taxpayers $12,000, while a 10 to 15 per cent credit would cost only $1,200 to $1,800. Bentsen said he found during his campaign that more and more people feel they're not getting their money's worth from government. He said government reorganization should be a first order of business for Congress and the new Jimmy Carter administration — "to cut out some of the dead wood and weed out unnecessary regulations."

South African whites may want to live in US

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South African whites wanting to live in the United States have their visa applications approved or denied by an American official who is a black. White government leaders who attend official receptions given by U.S. Ambassador William Bowdler find themselves mixing company with black South African leaders, some of whom are former government detainees. All this is part of an activist program to stress American disapproval of South Africa's race policy — apartheid — and the U.S. commitment of a multiracial society in this race-conscious nation. Blacks flock to the United States Information Service (USIS) reading room opened recently in the segregated black township of Soweto outside Johannesburg. Through films, lectures, and libraries, the USIS brings the American message to blacks and whites alike. USIS and other American officials persistently ignore the "traditional South African way of life" and make a point of entertaining blacks in their homes. William "Jake" Jacobsen, the director of USIS programs in Johannesburg, says he is convinced the policy has impact. "White South Africans say: 'Why is it we white South Africans have to meet our own black countrymen in homes of our Americans?' "Communication between the races here is difficult. We provide an opportunity for races to meet." The South African government has avoided confrontation with the Americans despite the assault on official racial practice here. White South Africans often are perplexed by the fact that American blacks serve the U.S. government here. American officials here have mixed views on whether the United States should adopt an even more activist posture in South Africa. The South African Broadcasting Corp. orchestra service invited the American ambassador and other U.S. officials to attend a concert last July 4 to honor the American Bicentennial. But the concert was for whites only and Ambassador Bowdler diplomatically declined the invitation without fuss. Some local newspaper writer suggested that a vigorous protest by Bowdler was in order. But American officials say they walk a tightrope where it would be easy to transgress from a policy of persuasion to one of interference.

Union says assistance calls would mean fewer Bell jobs

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman for the Communications Workers of America testified Monday that 5,000 jobs in Texas would be lost if the Texas Public Utility Commission allows Southwestern Bell to charge for directory assistance calls. "Many telephone numbers are never published in rapidly growing areas of the country or in areas where the population is transient in nature, telephone directories are out of date before they are even published," he said. Bell lawyers began cross-examination of utility commission staffers who recommended in prepared written testimony that the company be granted a $49.7 million per year rate increase, compared with the $28.3 million sought by Bell. Jon Lawrence, Bell's lawyer, challenged commission accountant Tom Boudreaux on numerous recommendations including elimination of $3.58 million in advertising expenses. Boudreaux said the expenses related to interstate tolls, national and out of state advertising. "The company has not shown how these costs benefit Texas consumers and therefore they should be excluded from the Texas intrastate cost of service," Boudreaux said. Lawrence asked how the amount to be disallowed was determined. Boudreaux said that this was based on physical examination of the telephone company's work papers and the ads themselves, or at least "a portion of them." Lawrence handed a copy of an ad to Boudreaux and asked if it was one of those that was disallowed. Boudreaux said he could not remember and would have to check against the large packet of ads that were thrown out from Bell's rate base. MONET EXHIBIT NEW YORK (AP) — An exhibition of 68 paintings by Claude Monet (1840-1926) commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the French Impressionist painter's death opened recently at the Acquavella Galleries here. The exhibit, which includes many seldom seen works, was assembled from private collections and museums throughout the United States.

"Merit Delivers More Taste Than Higher Tar Cigarettes."

-American Institute of Consumer Opinion

Extensive taste testing shows Merit delivers flavor of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

The bottom line was conclusive:
In a series of taste tests conducted for MERIT by the American Institute of Consumer Opinion,* smokers from across the country judged MERIT to have more flavor than five leading low tar cigarette brands.

What's really startling — and of major importance to all smokers — is that MERIT has less tar than these five brands.

Less tar. Yet more taste. That's the report on a remarkable new taste process called 'Enriched Flavor.' A way to pack extra flavor into tobacco without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now smoke the cigarette. MERIT.

Unprecedented smoking pleasure at only 9 mg. tar.
