

Hearst whisked to unknown destination

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Patricia Hearst was whisked out of a federal prison here in the dead of night, an official at the Metropolitan Correctional Center said today.

Her destination was unknown, but with $500,000 bond posted by her family to free her while awaiting trial in Southern California, she needed only the approval of a San Francisco judge to be free for the first time in more than a year while she appeals her bank robbery conviction.

The official at the correctional center, who declined to have his name used, said

Miss Hearst was driven away by two federal marshals about 4:50 a.m. EST.

Members of a television camera crew stationed at the prison said they saw a black-and-white car speed away in the darkness.

U.S. District Court Judge William Orrick, who in September sentenced Miss Hearst to seven years in prison, was expected to rule today on a request that the 22-year-old newspaper heiress be released in her parents' custody under a secret security plan.

Orrick must decide whether she is still a flight risk. She had been ordered held without bail after her capture in September 1975.

The only other obstacle to Miss Hearst's freedom was removed on Thursday when her father and uncle signed a $500,000 personal surety bond on pending Los Angeles charges of kidnap, assault and robbery.

Miss Hearst faces a January 10 trial in that case involving a wild shooting at an Inglewood, Calif., sporting goods store that occurred while she was a fugitive member of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

Her father, Randolph A. Hearst, president of the San Francisco Examiner, and his twin brother, David, president of the William Randolph Hearst Foundation, pledged their assets to obtain Miss Hearst's release.

Attorney Albert Johnson asked Superior Court Judge William Ritz to reduce the $500,000 bail, but the judge said he would wait to see whether Orrick sets bail.

If she is released by the San Francisco court, and if bail is substantial in that case, I certainly would consider reduction in bond," he said.

Miss Hearst, now imprisoned at the Metropolitan Corrections Center in San Diego, has spent 14 months behind bars, including time served during her celebrated trial for the 1974 $10,050 robbery of San Francisco's Hibernia Bank.

Orrick told her during sentencing: "Miss Hearst, the violent nature of your conduct can not be condoned. Violence is unacceptable in our society and will not be tolerated."

Miss Hearst, who had been kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 4, 1974, was defended in an eight-week trial by famed criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey. She was convicted last March 10 of armed robbery and use of a firearm.

She has since shunned her radical associates and plans to testify against them. Johnson told Orrick she should be released because she cannot be adequately protected in prison from those who might want to stop such testimony.

Inflation continues moderate trend

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose three-tenths of a per cent in October, the government said today. It was the smallest increase in seven months as the nation's inflation rate continued its moderating trend.

The increase in the Consumer Price Index followed a rise of four-tenths of a per cent in September and monthly advances of five-tenths of a per cent during the June-August period.

The Labor Department said October's price increase was the smallest since a two-tenths of a per cent rise last March. Over the past 12 months, retail prices have risen 5.3 per cent, marking the smallest increase since the 12-month period ending in April 1973, when they rose 5.1 per cent.

In a separate report, the department said the purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck rose last month after declining in August and September.

Today's economic reports were bright spots in an otherwise bleak picture of high unemployment and slow economic growth.

Wholesale industrial prices, which are influential in setting the over-all inflation trend, have been rising steadily since May. However, these higher wholesale prices have not yet shown at the retail level.

In October, the consumer price index stood at 173.3, meaning that a market basket of goods and services costing $100 in 1967 now costs $173.30. The index is not adjusted to discount seasonal influences, as are the percentage increases.

Alan Greenspan, President Ford's chief economist, tended to discount the wholesale price trend in a speech Thursday to the Rubber Manufacturers Association. He said "There is just no corroborating evidence" to support the idea of a new outburst of inflation.

Greenspan said the long-term inflation rate is slowing down and, in what appeared to be a reaction to President Elect Jimmy Carter, predicted that the downward trend will continue if the government reduces its budget deficit by following "sensible fiscal and monetary policies."

Greenspan also acknowledged that the economic slowdown has continued longer than expected, but he said there is no danger of a recession.

Carter has said he may ask for a tax cut if the economy doesn't show more strength by January.

Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that conditions don't appear bad enough at this time to warrant a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

"I see no advantage in a tax cut at the present time," he said in a speech Thursday to the U.S. League of Savings Associations in New York.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that the economy was even weaker last summer than preliminary estimates indicated.

The Gross National Product, or the total output of goods and services, grew at an annual rate of 3.8 per cent during the July-September quarter. That was lower than the initial estimate last month of a 4 per cent growth rate, the rate generally considered sufficient to keep up with normal population growth.

The seasonally adjusted three-tenths of a per cent increase in over-all prices last month reflected higher costs for new cars, gasoline, natural gas, electricity, transportation services, fruits and vegetables and some foods, the Labor Department said. Food prices rose an adjusted three-tenths of a per cent last month after showing no change in September. Fresh vegetable prices rose sharply for the third straight month, while prices for beef, poultry, eggs and fresh fruits also increased after declining the previous month.

Coffee and dairy products also rose but not as much as in recent months. Prices for sugar and cereal declined.

Home accident claims Ragsdale

R.B. Ragsdale

R.B. Ragsdale, 60, a Pampa pharmacist, was dead on arrival at Highland General Hospital at 5:55 p.m. Thursday following an accident which took place while he was mowing the lawn at the family home at 801 N. Dwight.

The attending physician said at noon today Mr. Ragsdale died with a head injury.

Mr. Ragsdale was mowing the lawn when he ran over his foot, and fell. The physician said the fall "jarred his brain ... like being hit on the head with a hammer."

When he fell he struck the "occiput of the skull" the physician explained.

"It was a very unfortunate injury. He was dead as soon as he hit," he added.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery by Carmichael - Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mr. Ragsdale was born Nov. 9, 1916, at Childress and moved to Pampa in 1930. He was married to Audie Myatt on Jan. 17, 1941 at Pampa. He was a member of the First Baptist Church and Every Man's Sunday School Class.

He was graduated from Southwestern Pharmaceutical School in Weatherford in 1953. He attended the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque and was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife, a son, Van Ragsdale of Midland, a daughter, Mrs. Beth Dutton of Stillwater, Okla., one sister, Mrs. Eric Edwards of Pampa and two grandchildren.

Mr. Ragsdale was employed as a pharmacist at Malone Pharmacy at the Coronado Center.

Doctor wins no-practice suit

If a recent decision of the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo stands firm, Booker residents will go unreimbursed for an empty clinic building in their town and Dr. Neal K. Suthers of Buffalo, Okla., will not have to cough up the $110,000 that a lower court said he would.

But the dispute between the doctor and the town that helped finance his education is not over. "The next step is that the Booker Hospital District and the residents of the district will file a motion for rehearing in the Amarillo Court," said Otis Shearer, Booker attorney. "If it is overruled we'll file an appeal for writ of error in the Supreme Court of Texas."

The 7th Court of Civil Appeals upheld a lower court ruling in the case that called for Dr. Suthers to repay a scholarship fund in the amount of $15,816.49. The doctor entered into agreement with community representatives in 1966.

He was to become a licensed medical doctor and to practice in Booker in exchange for the scholarship money under terms of the agreement.

Booker Mayor Ralph Maxfield said that when it came time for Suthers to fulfill his obligation by moving to Booker, he "indicated he wanted a facility to practice in."

So the district built a clinic.

"While the clinic was being built, he (Dr. Suthers) practiced in Buffalo, Okla.," the mayor said. "After the clinic was completed he came back, but he only stayed for a little more than a month."

Then he moved back to Buffalo, leaving a new clinic in Booker empty and the scholarship fund somewhat depleted.

A suit by the Booker hospital district originally was filed in 31st District Court at Lipscomb. Shearer said. It was later moved to 31st District Court in Wheeler on a change of venue.

The decision of the 31st District Court jury was that the doctor should pay $110,000 to the Booker Hospital District and $1,000 to residents of the hospital district for his failure to practice medicine in Booker longer than five weeks.

The three-judge Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo ruled that the hospital district and its residents should not recover from the doctor the $110,000 the jury awarded to the district or the $1,000 the jury awarded to residents of the district.

The vote was two to one. Associate Justices Charles L. Reynolds and Mary Lou Robinson agreed that according to the contract neither the hospital district nor the residents had any money coming from the doctor. They said he owes only the scholarship fund.

James A. Ellis, chief justice, did not agree. He went along with the district court jury and said the hospital district had suffered $110,000 damages through decrease in market value of the clinic. And he said tax-paying residents of the hospital district should recover money from the doctor. He also said the doctor owed the scholarship money.

Suthers completed his medical education at the University of Oklahoma. He served for two years in the U.S. Navy before moving to Booker.

Booker reportedly has been without a practicing medical doctor — except for Dr. Suthers five weeks — since 1943.

The drive to fill that void led to the creation of the scholarship fund and later to the voting of bonds to pay for the clinic.

A doctor from India has moved into Booker, the mayor said, but has not yet passed examinations to obtain his license to practice.

Redistrict suit filed

By ANNA BURCHELL, Pampa News Staff

A suit seeking redistricting of the four Gray County Commissioner Precincts was filed Thursday afternoon in 31st District Court here by Ralph Prock of Pampa.

Prock asks that the Commissioner Precincts of Gray County be reapportioned as nearly "as is practicable on the general principle of substantial numerical equality."

He also requested the court to appoint a master in chancery to recommend a plan of equitable redistricting and reapportionment.

Prock, in his petition filed by J.A. Martindale, Pampa attorney, emphasized that each voter should have the same power and influence in electing members of the Commissioners Court.

Defendants in the suit are Joe Clarke, Precinct 1 (Lefors); Don Hinton, Precinct 2 (Pampa); Jim McCracken, Precinct 3 (Grandview); Ted Simmons, Precinct 4 (McLean); and Don Cain, Gray County judge.

Prock included figures from the 1970 census in an effort to show that the precincts are not evenly divided in regard to population.

"The right to vote on equal terms with other qualified voters and taxpayers and to equal representation is a right vested by law," Prock said.

The 1970 Gray County census shows a total population of 26,949.

"The City of Pampa (wholly situated within Precinct 2) has a population of 21,726," Prock said. His petition states that the rural area of the county has a total population of 5,223 persons.

The plaintiff contends that less than 20 per cent of the total population is represented by 75 per cent or three members of the Commissioners Court and 80 per cent by one member of the court.

According to Prock, each of the four Commissioner Precincts would have an ideal population of 6737.25, based on the present population figures.

"The foregoing figures indicate that the voting power of many citizens of Gray County is diluted and they are deprived of their rightful and equal representation on the Commissioners Court, all of which is contrary to the spirit and intent of Article 1, Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Constitution of the State of Texas and the Constitution of the United States with the 14th Amendment thereto," Prock said in his request for redistricting. He said that on Aug. 5, 1976, he presented a request to the Commissioners Court asking that the Commissioner Precincts be reapportioned on a nearly equal population basis as practical for the convenience of the people.

He referred guidelines in the first such suit of its kind filed in Texas — Midland Mayor Hank Avery versus Midland County.

In 1962, Prock said the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in effect that the right to an equitable apportionment of voting power "is a federally protected right."

The disparity in voting strength in at least one instance in Gray County is in excess of 400 to one, Prock claims.

The next Commissioners Court meeting is set for Dec. 1, and the redistricting suit may be discussed at that time.

What's in a name?

President Ford overruled officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in naming the orbiting laboratory for the space shuttle program.

It will be called the "Enterprise," he said, in honor of the aircraft carrier of World War II fame, instead of the "Constitution," preferred by NASA.

But the "trekkies," fans of the durable television series Star Trek are privy to Ford's real motive.

The "Enterprise," of course, is the spaceship that is the home of Capt. Kirk and his crew in the science-fiction adventure episodes still seen in television reruns.

And what is a more fitting name to bridge the narrowing gap between fiction and reality? The orbiter will not be launched until 1979. It will become operational in 1981, the first of a fleet of manned rocketships capable of round trips into space.

By that time, perhaps, some unemotional Mr. Spock will appear to give guidance to the many talented Capt. Kirks already involved in the nation's space program.

Liberalism's collapse

By MIKE LA VELLE
(Chicago Tribune)

"Commentary" is a monthly journal of diverse political thought, sponsored by the American Jewish Committee. It has been called a journal of the "chic Right" by such chic Left journals as the Village Voice.

The reason for such ideological hostility on the Left is that "Commentary" has avoided the leftist inclination to embrace perceived saints on the Left (even dictators) and to condemn sinners on the Right (whether they were dictators or not).

In the September issue of Commentary, noted journalists and scholars were asked: "What is a Liberal? Who is a Conservative?"

Most responses dealt with the "Liberal" question in terms of the shifting of the ideological grounds over the last decade. The term "Liberal" doesn't mean what it formerly did.

Some examples: Edith Efron, a media critic who writes for TV Guide: "Liberalism - it has turned an entire generation into regressive collectivists who classify human beings by color, gender, and sexual practices, in a manner appropriate to 2000, not to civilized society."

Robert Coles, Harvard psychiatrist: For many working people, liberals are "those who give them lectures on their greed or wastefulness or selfishness or their 'one-dimensional' Consumerism (an opiate of sorts), are not infrequently in possession of a home or two; a car or two; and even a trust fund or a parent with one."

Carl Gershman of Social Democrats, U.S.A. on liberal populism: "The statist liberals are of course aware that the bureaucrats of the kind of state they favor would be mostly drawn from their new class itself."

Ben J. Wattenberg, co-chairman of the Coalition for a Democratic Majority and co-author of "The Real Majority" on a liberal foreign policy: "Some President will give an inaugural address that says we are prepared to pay almost any price and oppose almost any foe to assure the survival of liberty. And all the liberals will applaud."

Paul H. Weaver, associate editor of Fortune: "Today, what we call liberalism no longer defends liberal values, or even comprehends them."

Gus Tyler, president of the International Garment Workers Union, on the liberal lifestyle: "Since the average worker cannot - like lumpens - find refuge in the lower depths, or like the jet set, in a flight to faraway lands, he clings tenaciously to his turf, to the trinity of family, flag and faith."

The comments above indicate the collapse of liberalism as a secular theology, not because its tenets were proven invalid, but rather because they were abandoned by the liberals themselves.

Perhaps the major difference is that liberals have had an ongoing romance with left-wing dictators while at the same time preaching a pious denunciation of right-wing dictators for being... well, dictators.

Not too long ago I was invited to hear a speech concerning the right-wing dictatorship in Chile. I asked the woman who invited me (over the phone) if her interest in dictatorships included Cuba. She hung up on me.

Over a few beers, I commented to a friend (who works in a factory and is not overly interested in politics of any variety) on such strange behavior. His observation was to the point: "Castro is a Commie; she was a liberal. What did you expect?"

At no point in any of the 56 short stories and four novels that Arthur Conan Doyle wrote about his famous detective does Sherlock Holmes say "Elementary, my dear Watson."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful with whom you involve yourself today. The wrong companion could cause you some problems both costly and embarrassing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't resurrect old domestic grievances today. Digging up ancient skeletons will only serve to spoil the day for you and your mate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something you've swept under the rug may pop up to haunt you. Dispose of it early in the day. You could still have a pleasurable evening.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be sure you get exactly what you want if making an important purchase today, or you'll be unhappy every time you look at it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't lean too heavily today on persons over whom you have authority. Underlings will resist strong methods and production will nosedive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're a little too negative today. Your keen imagination sees only the shadows unless you strive diligently to let the sun in.

It's Possible! Friend who's always there

By Robert Schuller

"The other elevator is stuck at the third floor," the workman told me as I got on. "The doors won't open and it's full. It's been stuck for over twenty minutes." Just as he finished that sentence, our elevator passed the other elevator. The sounds of talking and laughter echoed across the elevator shafts and suddenly it struck me, "It's not bad being stuck in an elevator if you're with friends."

It's not bad being stuck anywhere if you're with friends! The wonderful thing about knowing God is that he is a friend who is always with me. And not only is God with me, but with God's ability, I have the power to get unstuck. Are you stuck someplace? Invite God into that place with you. It's not bad being stuck if you're with a friend. Especially a friend like God.

Snow can protect crops from frost.

What are JOURNALISTS' goal?

By REED IRVINE
(Accuracy in Media, Inc. Bulletin)

A recent survey by The Washington Post and Harvard University revealed that liberals outnumber conservatives in the Washington press corps by more than three to one. This strengthens the argument that a lot of biased reporting comes out of Washington. On the other hand, newspapers that endorsed President Ford greatly outnumber those that endorsed Governor Carter. The tendency of papers to endorse Republican presidential candidates is often cited to counter the argument that liberal bias exists.

The endorsement of candidates usually reflects the views of the editor of the editorial page or perhaps the publisher. The editorial writers put their views before the public openly, and the readers know where they stand. However, the readers seldom know anything about the views of the news editors and reporters. But the news editors and reporters may actually be in a better position to mold opinion than the editorial writers. The stories they select, the way they write them, the positioning of them in the paper can make a lot of difference.

A great storm has recently been kicked up in Washington over allegations that the Republic of Korea has directly or indirectly channeled funds to members of Congress. The Washington Post has given tremendous play to these charges. The New York Times has also given the charges great prominence. At the heart of the matter are charges "that a network of South Korean agents was operating in Washington... to try to influence Congressional and Government actions in favor of Korean interests," to quote The New York Times.

By contrast, The Washington Post and The New York Times editors and reporters showed no interest at all in charges made a year ago concerning activities of the Soviet intelligence arm, the KGB, on Capitol Hill. Even demands by 50 members of Congress that the Church Committee investigate the charges went unreported.

It is not a matter of proof being present in one case and lacking in the other. On October 28, The New York Times published a front page headline reading, "Inquiry on Korean Influence In U.S. Focuses on a List of 90 in Congress." It turned out that this was based on a story that three years ago Customs officials copied a memo containing the names of 90 members of Congress that was in the possession of Tongson Park, a wealthy Korean resident of Washington, who has acknowledged having made cash gifts to four congressmen and to the wife of a former congressman.

The implication of the story was that 90 congressmen were beneficiaries of Mr. Park's largesse, but it was clear that The Times had no evidence of this. When we asked The Times last year about the failure to report on the KGB charges we were told that they would do so if any information on the subject was released by an official government agency. But, in the Korean case, the papers have not hesitated to publish rumors, speculation and innuendo.

A story in The Washington Post on October 29 said that "whether proved or not, the allegations hold grave and embarrassing implications for President Park." It noted concern in Korea over damage to Korea's image and the effect that the matter might have on U.S.-Korean relations.

It is reasonably safe to assume that many foreign governments, including both the Soviet Union and Korea, are trying to influence the U.S. government and Congress to act in ways favorable to their interests. U.S. agents are no doubt trying to do the same thing abroad. When editors decide to suppress charges about such activity on the part of a country that is hostile to the U.S. and then proceed to make a sensation of charges about one of our allies, one has to ask about motives. When The Washington Post and The New York Times editorially attack the Republic of Korea, the reader knows what the writer is up to. When the newsroom wields the budgeon, the readers should know the goals of the writers.

Ford should have boosted spending

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) - It's the little things men slip up on that lose elections.

Just two days after the voting, a friend - a Democrat who has worked on budgeting and spending in the Defense Department for a succession of administrations - stopped by to say that in his mind President Ford's aides had the key to victory in their hands and blew it.

Like most recent presidents and many seasoned political observers my friend assumes that an economy moving briskly upward in the months before election - guarantees a boost in the popular vote for the party in the White House and its candidate for president.

The Defense Department accounts, as this economist read them shortly before election day, listed a carry-over of uncommitted obligational authority of around $34 billion. In the interest of good business and planning, a carry-over of uncommitted obligational authority on that date of around $18 billion would make good sense. That means, in his mind, that an additional $16 billion could have and should have been put out to contractors in the summer and early fall of 1976, both in the interests of good defense management and political clout.

The ripple effect of that added $16 billion spreading out into the economy would have given the recovery a strong boost in September and October. For companies receiving these promises would have, in turn, put out bids to a variety of firms - and would have promised jobs to many men and women.

Voters then would have marched to the polls with optimism for the future. And, my friend says, Mr. Ford would have been elected Nov. 2. This economist, in retrospect, cannot understand why the Ford administration and Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld did not order these obligations put out. They were authorized by Congress. The original Ford Rumsfeld schedule, adopted around 12 to 15 months ago, called for these funds to have been obligated before Oct. 1, the beginning of the 1977 fiscal year. It was in the interest of national defense and of prudent project management that these obligations be placed on schedule so that the programs they represented could move ahead according to plan. These obligations were, my friend assumes, not inflationary, as they were part of the obligation-spending pattern approved by the scrupulously careful James Lynn at the President's Office of Management and the Budget.

This financial specialist is in a very good position to know how these things are done, having been a part of the Pentagon's speed-up-the-obligating-and-spending moves in previous presidential elections, both under Democratic and Republican administrations.

He recalls before one election that he was ordered by the defense secretary to go through every major Defense spending program in detail and discover what programs were behind target in their obligating and spending of funds and which could be speeded up - and by what means.

He and his associates were ordered on another occasion to search high and low for every extra dollar which Defense could obligate or spend in the months preceding November. On still another occasion he was in the office of the Pentagon's liaison officer with the White House, an attorney whose name is now well known politically, when a call came from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue asking for ways in which spending could be quickly, temporarily speeded - the called to a hastily devised program for putting out funds.

Note: This obligational authority which President Ford did not take advantage of will be a nest egg for President-elect Carter to use to boost the economy when he and his men take over Jan. 20.

Live burial changed outlook

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Daniel Durham says he looks at life differently now that he has the chips off his shoulders — some 30,000 pounds of them that entombed him alive for 90 minutes.

Durham was dumped into a truck, buried under six feet of wood chips and carried 40 miles while his screams went unheard. Someone even walked over the chips, unaware that Durham was buried beneath.

"All of a sudden I was falling, and then I was buried," Durham said Wednesday. "I may have blacked out a couple times from suffocation. I knew I couldn't last more than five minutes more."

Durham was leveling chips in an elevated bin last Friday when he was dumped accidentally into the truck, which then headed for a fiber company 40 miles away.

Jerry Thorp, supervisor at Lumber Specialty Industries Inc., said Durham had neglected to block the driveway with a board that keeps trucks from backing under the bin while somebody is working in it. Better safety precautions since have been instituted, Thorp said.

"I knew I was going to die," Durham said. "I struggled, I yelled, but nobody heard me. Then I realized I had better save my energy."

Durham said he was nearly trampled and suffocated when the truck stopped at a weigh station. "I could feel somebody walking right on top of me there, but no one heard me yelling," he said.

Unknown to Durham, back at the lumber company Thorp had noticed him gone about 15 minutes after the truck pulled away. Realizing he might be in the truck, Thorp phoned fiber company officials, who contacted the driver by radio.

An ambulance awaited the truck at Longview, and workers dug and clawed Durham free. He escaped with only three cracked ribs and internal bleeding which has cleared up.

"I'm not religious, but I have second thoughts now," he said. "I know God had something to do with me making it."

Man charged in escape has no leg to stand on SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Sheriff's officers thought they didn't have to guard Jesse Leon Bush. The young prisoner had just had his leg amputated.

But that didn't stop the 22-year-old inmate from escaping from a Shreveport hospital.

Authorities now are wondering how he did it. "I know he didn't just walk off," said Caddo Parish Deputy Sheriff Bill Hart. "I guess he must have hobbled off."

"They didn't have him under guard cause he only had one leg. They apparently didn't think he'd escape from a third floor hospital room without a leg."

But officials at Confederate Memorial Hospital, where Bush had his leg amputated earlier this month, found Bush's room empty after visiting hours Tuesday night.

Escape had apparently been on Bush's mind ever since he was sent to prison in mid-July on an armed robbery charge. In fact, officers said Bush's amputation was the result of one of his escape plans.

Like a number of prisoners at the jail, Bush reportedly injected his saliva into his leg and claimed to have a "spider bite." The prisoners were sent to the hospital, which they found easier to break out of than the jail.

But hospital authorities said Bush's latest injection infected his leg, and it had to be amputated.

Presbyterian service set

"Our God Opens Doors" will be the sermon topic for the 10:45 a.m. Sunday worship service at the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray.

Mert Cooper, an ordained Methodist minister, now in private business at Canadian, will deliver the sermon.

The text will be taken from Acts 12-11.

Special music will be by the Chancel Choir. A congressional meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the church sanctuary for the purpose of electing a pulpit nominating committee.

The diaconate will meet in the west room of the church at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Church school for all ages begins at 9:30 a.m.

Bike-a-thon benefit

Eighth grader Lisa Grider plans to be on hand when contestants in the Pampa Jaycees annual Bike-A-Thon for the benefit of the American Cancer Society register at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the northeast corner of the Coronado Shopping Center. The bikers will start on the 27-mile course at 2 p.m., according to Cary Gillpatrick, chairman for the event. Anyone is eligible to enter the race with the backing of a business or industry sponsor who pledges a certain amount of money for each mile the contest rides. The individual riders will collect the money pledged to them. The route to be covered circles the outskirts of the city and winds up back at the shopping center. Gillpatrick said there will be four check points, one on each side of the city, and refreshments will be served at each one.

Says Bell request too high

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — An economist, testifying on behalf of a House committee, said today the Texas Public Utilities Commission should allow Southwestern Bell Telephone a rate increase of only $17 million.

Dr. Jack Hopper's recommendation contrasted with Bell's request of $290.3 million and a recommendation by the commission staff for $49.76 million.

Hopper testified on behalf of the House Committee on Social Services. He was advisor to committee chairman Lane Denton, D-Waco, in Denton's unsuccessful race for the Railroad Commission this spring.

Hopper said in written testimony that Bell parent company, American Telephone and Telegraph, has more than doubled its assets since 1970 and has the highest ratings on its common stock and bonds.

"It has raised dividends regularly, maintained good service and raised billions of dollars for new investments. It accomplished all this on earnings that were equivalent to a rate of return for its stockholders of 9 to 10 per cent," Hopper said.

He said his recommendation of a small rate increase would enable the company to earn 10 and a half per cent.

Bell attorney John Lawrence cross-examined Hopper about his view that Bell operates without competition.

Lawrence pointed out that Bell does have competition in certain areas, including provision of telephone instruments.

Lawrence said one can buy a telephone in any department store. He also mentioned private line service, in which there are some firms seeking to compete with Bell.

"I would say that you have some competitors who have taken their business life in their hands when they compete with this organization," Hopper replied.

On Thursday, a Dallas housewife told the commission it should listen to ordinary ratepayers as well as highly paid professionals in deciding on the Bell request.

"If this hearing is simply allowed to deteriorate into a contest of 'our expert witness versus your expert' and 'our lawyer versus your lawyer,' then Bell and the commission 'very quickly will find themselves faced with a genuine ratepayers' revolt,'" Mrs. Alma Hawkins testified Thursday.

"We think it is absolutely essential that the people of Texas be heard," she said.

"Southwestern Bell can quote a whole alphabet full of bond ratings to justify its need for higher rates," said Mrs. Hawkins. "but if it forces the ratepayers of Texas up against the wall its financial health will not be worth the price of a can of alphabet soup."

Mrs. Hawkins was one of three members of the Texas Association of Community Organization for Reform Now (ACORN) who protested the telephone company's request for a $298 million rate increase.

The statewide organization claims 3,300 members, all of whom are in the "low to moderate" income range.

Mrs. Hawkins said another large Texas utility, Dallas Power & Light, has been able to maintain its bond rating without being authorized more than a 7 per cent rate of return on investment, and "the same figure should be good enough for Southwestern Bell."

A Houston baker, Jonathan Goff, said, "Telephones are a basic human right, and a necessity these days," but "if things don't change" a lot of people are going to have to get their phones disconnected.

"In my opinion and Texas ACORN'S," Goff said, "the telephone company has no right to price low to moderate income people out of the market."

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Rain was expected to spread northward from South Texas today, covering most of the state by nightfall except in extreme North and West Texas.

Rain fell during the night in South Texas, but amounts generally were less than .25 of an inch. Skies over the northern half of the state were mostly clear early today.

Early morning temperature extremes ranged from 37 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 54

National weather

By The Associated Press
Temperatures in the 50's were forecast today for the Midwest, where readings soared Tuesday into the upper 70s, about 20 degrees above seasonal marks.

Topeka, Kan., equaled the day's record high of 79, while St. Joseph, Kansas City and St. Louis, Mo., with readings in the mid and upper 70s, set new daily high records.

The cool air slipped through the lower Great Lakes and the mid-Mississippi Valley and headed for New England and the Gulf Coast. By early tonight, its effects were expected to be felt in most of the nation east of the Rockies.

The weather remained cool in southern Texas under rain and cloudy skies. Yesterday afternoon Corpus Christi registered a high of 50 degrees while Brownsville had 53.

There was rain on the northwest coastal Washington coast and showers in northeastern New York state.

Gale warnings were posted over Lakes Michigan, Huron, Erie and Superior, where winds were expected to reach 40 miles an hour with waves building to 12 feet.

College cleared of coach charges

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The University of Southwestern Louisiana was cleared today of charges that it hired an illegal recruiting coach, a state investigator said.

"I could find no evidence to indicate that any of the charges were based on fact," said Irwin Sibille, coordinator of college athletics for the state Board of Trustees who conducted the investigation.

Sibille said, "I can without reservation state that the University of Southwestern Louisiana did not violate any Louisiana State Board of Trustees or NCAA policies concerning staff and recruiting."

The charges centered on allegations that the university had hired Madison Firmin as a recruiter after he left his job as coach at a high school in Bunkie.

Sibille said he heard the allegations from three college administrators and coaches, as well as other people, but he would not name them.

"Having the rumor mill pretty well saturated, it was difficult enough to investigate," Sibille said in an interview.

"I checked out every possible lead," he said, "either myself or the people who were assisting me. We talked to numerous people... and all the information came back to the same source."

First publication of the reports came in an article Oct. 28 in the Bunkie Record, a weekly newspaper.

Sibille did not say so, but the rumors were apparently buttressed by meetings Firmin had with the USL coaching staff. University officials said they allowed Firmin to sit in with university coaches so he could keep in touch with coaching. He has since taken another high school coaching job.

The investigation came shortly after USL was forced to forfeit the first two football games of the season when two ineligible players were found on the team.

It was the third investigation at the school in three years. The NCAA imposed the stiffest penalty ever given a school three years ago when it suspended the USL basketball program for two years and put the school on probation for four years in all sports after finding basketball recruiting violations.

Auto Workers strike plants

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — About 80,000 United Auto Workers struck 16 key General Motors plants today as bargainiers, meeting through the night, closed in on a new national contract.

"It was simply a matter of their running out of time," said one source close to the talks. He said the two sides were "very close," adding a settlement could come "within hours."

While the 16 selected plants were idled effective at midnight, about 100 other GM plants across the country continued operating in compliance with orders from the UAW.

Robber fashions changing

AMARILLO — Pantyhose and pillowcases may not normally be considered tools for the holdup trade, but a couple of robbers in Amarillo adapted them for use Wednesday in two unrelated incidents.

In the first holdup, which took place at 3 a.m. at the Toot 'n Totum store at 4109 S. Western, police said the man was wearing a flowered Western shirt with an orchid-colored pillowcase over his head.

His weapon also was unusual — a meat hook. But it served to sufficiently threaten the night clerk. She put the money from the cash register into a paper bag and the bandit escaped.

At 9:15 a man wearing pantyhose for his mask and toting a butcher knife entered the Toot 'n Totum store at 3104 Plains. He grabbed the 27-year-old clerk and threatened to kill her if she did not get inside the store's cooler.

She didn't and he didn't. Instead, she grabbed the pantyhose, ripped them from the man's head, and then chucked a soda drink bottle at him as he fled the scene.

A motorist coming onto the store's parking lot narrowly missed hitting the would-be bandit.

He was described as being blond, about five and a half feet tall, wearing a brown coat and blue denim trousers.

similar pact was ratified with Chrysler Corp. on Wednesday.

Plants initially idled by the selective strike include six assembly plants, six parts plants and four Fisher Body facilities. Seven plants with 47,600 workers are in Michigan. Of the other plants, three were in Ohio, two in Indiana and one each in New York, Georgia, Illinois and Wisconsin.

The last time GM was hit with a nationwide strike was in 1970, when a 67-day UAW strike turned out to be the costliest in American labor history. The walkout exhausted the UAW's $120 million strike fund and forced the union to borrow another $40 million.

The selective, seven-state walkout — concentrated in the Midwest and particularly Michigan — came after negotiators failed before a midnight deadline to fashion an agreement covering 390,000 hourly GM employees at more than 110 plants.

The UAW-General Motors contract has expired. UAW President Leonard Woodcock and Vice President Irving Bluestone announced in a brief prepared statement issued to reporters as the strike deadline passed.

Employment of the mini-strike strategy by the UAW is a first for the union over a national agreement. It also marks the first time the UAW has waged two major auto strikes in one year since it first won collective bargaining rights in 1937.

A 28-day strike at Ford Motor Co. last month achieved the industry's pattern agreement. A

Tests show friend lied about Robinson's death

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP) — A polygraph expert has told an inquest that lie detector tests indicated a friend of slain civil rights leader Frank Robinson lied when she said the former educator had never mentioned suicide.

The statement by Ralph Maurice Reeves of Athens, commissioned by authorities to conduct a series of polygraph tests, came Thursday in the final day of testimony in the inquest into Robinson's death.

Mrs. Zella Watkins, a neighbor and close friend of the Robinsons, had told the six-person jury earlier Thursday that Robinson had never mentioned suicide.

The shotgun death of the East Texas civil rights leader, whose body was discovered Oct. 14 in the garage of his home, is being investigated to determine whether it was homicide, suicide or accidental.

A team of three attorneys, including one from Atty. Gen. John Hill's office, was to summarize the evidence today for the jurors.

Reeves said Mrs. Watkins underwent two polygraph examinations and he said both times the machine indicated she lied when she said Robinson had never been despondent or mentioned suicide.

"Mrs. Watkins knows more than she has told," said Reeves.

Robinson's widow, Dorothy, took the stand twice Thursday, saying, "I cannot in any circumstances equate Frank Robinson with suicide. He was the most vibrantly alive person I have ever known."

Mrs. Robinson also said she had returned from a trip to Minnesota to find some unusual evidence at her home: holes in the front and back door screens, a tidy kitchen and Robinson's tidy desk.

She said whenever Robinson was alone she usually returned to find an unkempt kitchen area and his desk in disorder.

Borger man held for shooting death

BORGER — Delbert Lee Thomas, 31, of Borger was being held without bond this morning in Borger City Jail after he was arrested Thursday for the murder of another Borger man.

James Marvin Anderson, 34, was pronounced dead on arrival at North Plains Hospital after a shooting spree Wednesday night in front of a home at 401 E. 6th left two other persons injured.

Linda Higgins, 29, of 401 E. 6th was still listed in critical condition today at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo after being shot in the neck, while her mother, Mrs. Faye Young, 58, also of Borger, was in fair condition at North Plains ance agent Audrey Campbell, another in a long list of witnesses to be called, told the panel Mrs. Robinson inquired recently about a cancer insurance policy.

Mrs. Campbell said Mrs. Robinson had inquired about the policy but Mrs. Campbell telephoned Robinson the day before he was found dead and discussed policy details with him.

Several of Robinson's friends also told jurors the former educator hadn't acted differently or appeared despondent in the days before his death.

Mary Kathleen Alexander, bookkeeper at East Texas National Bank in Palestine, said Robinson came into the bank Oct. 13 and ordered a special statement of his account mailed to his home.

W. L. Singletary, another longtime friend of the Robinsons, said the shotgun identified as the death weapon appeared to be the same gun he saw in Robinson's closet three years ago.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The letter from TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING, concerning a neighbor who was wearing out her welcome, is similar to the problem I encountered. This neighbor would pop in on me often, and always without notice. Sometimes I was entertaining a relative or another friend, and frequently I had a lot of work to do and no time for a social visit. I became frustrated and didn't know how to tell her without hurting her feelings.

Finally, in desperation, I took this nice neighbor into my bedroom and closed the door. Then I explained that I really liked her and valued her friendship, but there were times when I wanted to be alone with my friends or family, and as a favor to me to please phone to see if it was all right to come over.

She was very understanding, and thanked me for being honest with her. Now she visits me less often and always phones first. Today we are the best of friends.

Abby, if we would all speak our minds honestly and with love, we could accomplish much.

G. S. IN VA.

DEAR G. S.: Read on for a letter from a woman who lacked your compassion and lived to regret it!

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently retired woman who once enjoyed a successful and fulfilling business career. I've remained single by choice.

I live alone, but I'm far from lonely. I have all the friends I want. I like my privacy and have never encouraged visitors to drop in.

The high-rise in which I live has excellent security, and no one gets into the building without being screened.

One evening about 7:30, there was a knock on my door. I wasn't expecting anyone so I asked who was there. It was a widow who lives on my floor, and with whom I had had only a nodding acquaintance. She said she was "lonely" and didn't know what to do with herself, and asked if she could come in and visit for a while.

I told her politely but bluntly that I was busy, and didn't approve of visitors dropping in without phoning first. (I have an unlisted phone number, which I did not give her.) She apologized for bothering me and left.

Abby, I've always felt that people who intrude on others should be treated with the same lack of consideration they give those upon whom they intrude. I felt quite proud of myself for not getting trapped by a bore who would probably be difficult to get rid of.

The next evening a friend telephoned to ask if I knew the woman in my building who had committed suicide the night before.

If you have already guessed that she was the woman who knocked on my door, you are right.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My question is can a person have seven or eight strokes before final death. I heard if one has two, the third is fatal, and one does not know when these will occur until they happen.

DEAR READER — There is no limit to how many strokes a person can have. Repeated small strokes may cause symptoms of short duration and may or may not cause any permanent damage.

The small strokes are now thought to be caused by small bits breaking off a clot in arteries in the neck. The small clots may temporarily obstruct an artery in the brain causing transitory symptoms. If the small clot moves on and ends up in a silent unimportant part of the brain there may be no residual effects at all.

A large clot can obstruct a major large artery to the brain and cause extensive damage or death in a very short time — sometimes even within minutes.

The difference is based on how large the artery is that is involved — or stated another way how large and important the area of brain is that is damaged for any reason. It also depends upon whether the brain damage is permanent or just temporary, causing poor function of the cells because of temporary swelling of the tissues.

Many patients who survive a stroke never die from a stroke at all but often die from a heart attack. The common forms of heart disease and strokes are both caused by the same disease of arteries — fatty cholesterol deposits — called atherosclerosis.

To give you more information about small strokes, big strokes and what we know about preventing them I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-5, Strokes; Cerebral Vascular Accident — Cerebral Thrombosis. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551 Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My sister and I disagree about the use of codeine. She insists that codeine can become addictive and for that reason her doctor discontinued giving her a particular medication for pain during a recent illness. He said it contained codeine and she could become addicted to the drug.

Is codeine really an addictive drug? I worked in a pharmacy some years ago and I am sure I heard the pharmacist say that codeine, such as "aspirin" with codeine, in itself was not addictive.

Will you please settle this argument between us?

DEAR READER — Part of the problem may be in the definition of addiction. This word is used so loosely both in professional and public use that it means all sorts of things to different people.

If by addiction you mean a person will have discomfort and feel so bad when they stop a medicine that they will seek more of the medicine, it is addictive. If you mean sudden cessation of medicine may cause serious symptoms then alcohol is addictive.

Perhaps I can help by pointing out that codeine and morphine are both from opium. Heroin also belongs to the group. For your benefit, since you worked in a pharmacy, they are called alkaloids of opium. Certainly habitual use of the medication can lead to problems, and I would agree that no one should be taking codeine regularly — except under the most unusual circumstances.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — The cutting board top on my dishwasher has rust stain rings caused by setting rusty-bottomed fruit cans on it. I have no idea how to remove these and would appreciate any suggestions. — DEBBIE.

DEAR DEBBIE — Have you tried bleach? Put about a tablespoon of bleach in a cup of water and rub in with steel wool. Go over the entire board so it is whitened evenly. After rinsing it off, dry and rub in salad oil. Leave overnight and wipe off the excess. Repeat oiling occasionally. This will remove any dryness caused by the use of bleach and provide some future protection. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I would like to tell Cindy and other African violet growers that I find putting a piece of aluminum foil around the top of the clay pot keeps the plants from wilting. Cut the foil wide enough to tuck inside the pot and then have enough left to around on the outside, too. — F.H.L.

DEAR POLLY — I make good use of the elasticized tops off of old sports socks. I find them handy for holding a bandage in place on an arm or knee. They also make great sweat bands for tennis players. We have even used them to keep a bandage in place on a horse. They could be used on large dogs, too. Such bands are great to use when wrapping fragile items to store or mail, to hold rolled maps or documents in place as well as for a thousand other things. — VERA.

Johnnie Lee's 71, but Health habit keeps her young

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Johnnie Lee Macfadden so wants things to go well.

First thing, she autographs a copy of her book, "Barefoot in Eden," which was published by Prentice-Hall in 1962 and is in its ninth printing, she says.

She labors to get the name right and the inscription — "For Health and Long Youth, You Are a Love, Sincerely, With Blessings, Johnnie Lee Macfadden." And her hand trembles slightly.

But inside of five minutes, the blonde kitten in white pantsuit has her feet propped on the edge of the coffee table in her press agent's office. She's dipping into her handbag for honey drops and her Texas twang that was ambling sweetly down a dirt road before, is roaring down the freeway.

Johnnie Lee is talking about Mr. Macfadden and the 10 years she was married to him. And how MUCH she tries to help people, like he did — teach them to keep away from caffeine and smoking and those DREADFUL processed foods — and, LORD, he was SUCH A MAN . . . but probably you're wondering just who he was.

Back in the '40s, when she was 44, Johnnie Lee married Bernarr Macfadden who was 75 and in the wrong time. His time would have been now.

Oh, maybe they'd still shake their heads at a man in his 80s parachuting out of planes and frolicking barefoot in Central Park, but he believed that natural food and exercise would keep the body going almost forever and he wanted to prove it.

And probably they'd think that, even if he was a multi-millionaire with his Physical Culture magazine and his health spas, he was crazy because he slept on a pallet and wore outrageous clothes and buried $4 million out in the woods which no one ever found.

Well, crazy or not, Johnnie Lee loved him and his ideas. "Mr. Macfadden and I met when he heard me lecture on Long Lasting Youth, Beauty and Peace of Mind in Carnegie Hall and he was so COMPLETELY impressed with the fact that I was 44 and the way I looked for my age." She always has looked younger than her years, that's a fact.

"From the age of four, I became COMPLETELY obsessed with health and natural healing. I was always being pulled out of school because my father was in real estate and we moved a lot. My uncles were doctors and I was always hearing about health."

And she read everything she could about it. "I'm 71 and I never HAVE taken any medicine or been to the hospital; never had to go."

She believes in ANYTHING and EVERYTHING to stay young, but it's not out of a fear of death, she says, "because life is eternal and death is like taking off an old coat."

You "tune into the godhead, I like to call it, which flows through EVERYONE, and," she declares, leaning forward, "you must learn NOT to allow ANY person, ANY condition, ANY thing, to take away your inner tranquility and joy."

She relaxes and lowers her voice. There's this spiritual aspect to her life, you understand, which she doesn't want to go into too deeply. "You can say, sweetie, all of my work is DEEPLY occult and inspired." She gazes into the distance and dictates.

"There's no doubt that there are forces around her, you can say, that seem to be guiding her life and she seems to be immune to a lot of things that people are sensitive to."

"See, my life is dedicated to humanity. I do private counseling here in New York. I don't have any degree — I went through high school and one year of college — but I'm actually a 'psychiatrist,' but I don't charge but $20. The first session is $25."

What she counsels is to think well of yourself, keep everything in balance and moderation, get yourself some goals, get rid of negative thoughts, and damn if you won't do ANYTHING you want if you face life without giving in.

Johnnie Lee doesn't give in; never has. She wanted Hollywood to make a movie of Mr. Macfadden's life 15 years ago, and now they're finally going to. Well, in four years or so. And in a year and a half, she hopes to open this rejuvenation center in Hartford, Conn., "which will be sensational. I'll bring in all the leaders of rejuvenation and people will come from all over."

Like it or not, she'll do it. Why, when she was 54 Mr. Macfadden died before telling her where he buried all his money and she was left "with a famous name and not a PENNY in the bank."

"I've made my own money and I'm proud of whatever I've done." The television talk show appearances, the lectures, her small line of cosmetics.

"Everyone thought I had it made, a young girl married to an old man with all that money and it wasn't that at all. I idolized what he represented."

"He had four wives and he told me I was the love of his life and I believe that it was true." She says that several times.

Then she pops one more honey drop and says straight out, "If I give you ANY thing today, my pet, don't let ANYBODY keep you from doing what you want in life." Amen, Johnnie Lee.

JOHNNIE LEE MACFADDEN: . . . "You must learn not to allow any person, any condition, any thing, to take away your inner tranquility and joy."

Abortion risk higher for women with IUDs

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The risk of dying from an infected spontaneous abortion is 50 times higher among women who wear intrauterine devices—IUDs—while pregnant, a federal study says.

The researchers say the figures dramatize the importance of women having their IUDs removed at the first sign of pregnancy.

IUDs are plastic birth control devices implanted in the uterus to prevent pregnancy. About 2 per cent of the time, however, they fail, and women become pregnant anyway.

The new study says that unless these women have their IUDs removed at once, they run a greatly increased risk of dying from infected, or septic, abortions that occur spontaneously, unlike those induced by doctors.

The research was conducted by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. It was published today in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The doctors reached their conclusions after surveying the 50 deaths related to spontaneous abortions that occurred in the United States between 1972 and 1974. During that time, they estimated that 115,000 pregnant women were wearing IUDs and 11.9 million were not.

They found about 15 deaths among every 100,000 women who kept wearing their IUDs while pregnant. Among women who did not have IUDs, there was only a fraction of one

Transfer may fix fever

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The flu-like and sometimes fatal disease called Valley Fever might successfully be combated by a blood extract now being tested, doctors report.

The process is called a transfer factor. An extract is made from white blood cells taken from someone who has recovered from the disease and is injected into the body of a fever victim whose bodily defenses no longer are functioning.

"It has a lot of promise, especially in severe cases," said Dr. Daniel Thor of the University of Texas at San Antonio. The report, made Wednesday, came during an international symposium of doctors sponsored by the College of Chest Physicians.

Valley Fever may affect as much as 60 per cent of the southern Arizona population although for most people, symptoms are either unnoticed or flu-like. But Valley Fever can be fatal, with 122 deaths attributed to the disease in the last seven years in Arizona alone.

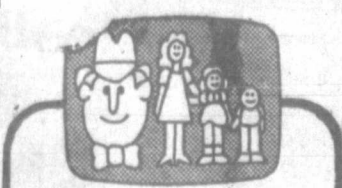

Valley Fever also is contracted in Texas and Southern California and is brought on by the inhalation or ingestion of a certain type of fungus.

The doctors reported they have achieved dramatic results at several research centers in the United States and Mexico but added more work needs to be done to substantiate those results.

Dr. J. Richard Graybill, also of San Antonio, said unlike other treatments for the disease, the transfer factor has virtually no side effects.

To give interesting seasoning to beef patties, add a little dried crushed tarragon. Good served with creamed potatoes. Before adding the tarragon, season the ground meat only with salt and pepper.

Pampans initiate drive to aid burned-out family

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wood, formerly of Pampa, now of Pauls Valley, Okla., was totally destroyed by fire recently.

The family lost personal items, including household property and clothing.

Friends in Pampa have initiated a drive to assist the family in re-establishing the home.

Their trailer home was located east of Pauls Valley where Wood is employed by Creslen Oil Co. He was transferred there from Pampa.

While living in Pampa, the Wood children attended local schools and their parents were active in civic work.

Family friends in Pampa said anything new or used would be appreciated to help the Wood family. Contributions will be accepted through Nov. 28. Donations may be left at the First Christian Church here from 2 to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Other locations for contributions include Sam's Gulf Service Station, 200 W. Brown; Bill's Welding Service, Price Road, or Qualls Studio, 1540 N. Hobart.

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy may have saved his sister's life when he shot and killed a Doberman Pinscher that was mauling the girl, authorities say.

Police said the boy, Jamie Wright, fired three shots into the dog at point-blank range with his father's .22-caliber pistol when the animal attacked his 10-year-old sister, Vickie.

The girl was listed in fair condition at Midland Hospital on Wednesday following surgery for deep bites on both her legs.

Urges jail for Medicaid fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being urged to consider severe jail terms for doctors, druggists and nursing home operators found guilty of taking part in the estimated billions of dollars in Medicaid fraud.

A New York state prosecutor told a Senate investigating committee Wednesday that his office uncovered evidence that nursing home operators were padding bills under the federal-state Medicaid program to pay for personal luxuries.

Charles Hynes, New York state special prosecutor for nursing homes, said his office found that nursing home operators treated themselves to mink coats, stereo equipment and paintings by such masters as Matisse and Renoir, claiming in bills to Medicaid that these were all legitimate business expenses.

It has been estimated that abuse and fraud in Medicaid, a federal-state program for the poor, and Medicare, which aids the elderly, cost taxpayers $3 billion to $4 billion a year.

Despite those figures, said Hynes and Samuel K. Skinner, U.S. attorney for Northern Illinois, virtually no health service offenders are ever sent to jail.

Skinner blamed the federal government in large part because the health insurance programs, which together cost about $40 billion a year, were launched with no tests or pilot projects.

Skinner also warned that "it would be suicidal to go ahead with national health insurance," which could cost up to $80 billion a year, until state and federal officials show they can rid Medicaid and Medicare of fraud.

Hynes said that "there still exists a climate in this country where the exploitation of old people is a respectable and risk-free profession."

He testified that the kickback scheme with suppliers worked this way: in order to get a nursing home contract, the supplier would pad its bill by charging for goods that were never delivered, and the nursing home operator would pass the phony bills along to the Medicaid program and end up with the extra cash.

Hynes, who obtained indictments earlier this week of 26 nursing home owners, employees and suppliers, told the Senate panel that up to half the 125 nursing homes in the New York City area may be involved in taking kickbacks from suppliers.

Skinner suggested appointment of state-federal task forces operating in cooperation with U.S. attorneys.

Church supports prostitution

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Legislature should legalize prostitution, according to the opinion of the congregation of the Richardson Unitarian Church.

Herb Croner, chairman of the church's Social Action Committee, told newsmen Wednesday that the legislature should make provisions for legalized and controlled prostitution which would make exploitation of the profession by criminal elements impossible.

Croner said the congregation "goes on record strongly condemning the Dallas city ordinance which empowers non-legally trained person (police officer) to judge whether or not a person is prostitute or a panderer."

The Dallas City Council recently passed an ordinance to combat open prostitution in the Cedar Springs-Oak Lawn area.

TREASURE

Jesus said, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal, for where your treasure is there will your heart be also." (Matthew 6:19-21)

The treasures of heaven and earth are alike in one respect—it requires effort to obtain them. Some people may wonder why God concealed so many things that are an advantage to human existence. Men must search diligently to find gold, silver, oil, coal or the other things we need. Sometimes the expense of such searches are very great. These things of value to us are frequently hidden in obscure places. It is often difficult to recover them after they have been found. But we usually feel that the effort and the expense are worthwhile.

And so it is with the treasures of the kingdom of heaven. Jesus taught a worthwhile lesson on the kingdom in a parable. "The kingdom is like unto a treasure hid in a field, the which when a man hath found he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field." (Matthew 13:44)

The lesson in the parable is plain. Man must give up earthly things in order to possess the kingdom of heaven. The price required is self-sacrifice, taking up one's cross and following Jesus. This may seem, and apparently it does to many, a great price to pay, but the rewards are far greater. These material treasures we seek, perish with the using. The heavenly treasure not only provides in life but in eternity as well! And, strange as it may seem, obtaining the heavenly treasure does not require giving up one thing that is good for one in life.

However, many like the rich young ruler, inquire, and then go away sorrowful. Their earthly possessions are too great. They cannot give them up. They simply are not willing to be saved on the Lord's terms.

- A STRONG NATION
- FREEDOM OF WORSHIP

Pages could be filled with ways that God has blessed us, and we should be continually thankful for God's goodness. At this time, however, we should pause from our daily workday habits and in unison, give special thanks to God, that we still have freedom of worship.

Attend church this Thanksgiving weekend

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Rep. Shannon released

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — For the second time in four months a former Texas legislator convicted in connection with the Sharpstown scandal has been released from the remainder of his probation by a district judge.

A district judge here said Thursday he has released former State Rep. Tommy Shannon of Fort Worth, convicted of conspiracy to accept a bribe in 1972 as part of the scandal, from the remainder of his five-year probation and dismissed the indictment.

Former House Speaker Gus Mutscher was also cleared and released from his probation in July under the same legal procedure. He is now Washington County judge.

District Court Judge J. Neal Daniel said Thursday he issued the order Nov. 3 releasing Shannon from the remainder of his five-year probationary term and dismissing his indictment.

"It was a simple legal procedure," the judge said. "There was a motion made and I granted it."

The action restores to Shannon his rights as a citizen.

Shannon, who continued to maintain his innocence, said he was glad the situation had been corrected.

"I am grateful the judge took this action," he said. "It was unfortunate that an injustice like that could occur in our judicial system, but it has been corrected by the same judicial system."

Shannon declined to say if he intended to enter politics again, but said, "I've always been, will always be interested in politics and public affairs."

Maverick whooping crane roams

BIG SPRING, Tex. (AP) — Out in the desolate West Texas countryside where the coyotes roam there may also be a maverick whooping crane.

And the probable presence of that rare bird near here greatly worries U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials, who fear the out-of-place crane might be shot by sandhill crane hunters.

Barbara Ely, a spokesman for the federal agency's Southwestern Regional office in Albuquerque, N.M., said Thursday the whooping crane apparently is hanging out with a flock of relatively common sandhill cranes around West Texas lakes.

The hunting season for the West Texas sandhills begins this weekend.

The nearest flocks of the whooping cranes, one of the most endangered bird species in the United States, are wintering more than 450 miles from West Texas.

A flock of 66 cranes is wintered near Port Aransas on the Texas coast, while four "foster" cranes are living with another species of sandhill cranes south of Albuquerque, N.M.

Officials speculate the wandering whooper, which is larger and lighter in color than the sandhill cranes, probably came from one of those flocks — but they can't be sure.

"We're missing three birds from the flock on the Coast and one from the New Mexico flock, so it could be one of those," said Ely. "We really don't know for sure."

"The bird has been sighted with the Texas sandhill cranes around area lakes at least five times," she added. "Two of those sightings we consider very reliable."

It is legal for Texas hunters to kill the relatively common sandhill crane, described as a gray bird, about three and a half to four feet tall with about a five and a half foot wingspan.

Ely said the whooping crane is white, is about four to four and a half feet tall and has a seven foot wingspan. She added that the difference was "very noticeable."

Any unfortunate hunter, however, who fails to discern that difference and shoots the rare bird could face up to two years in prison and a $5,000 fine. The whooping cranes are protected under federal law.

"There is a possibility that more than one whooper is in the area, but we are thinking in terms of one," said Ely. "We want to locate it and see how it is faring before we decide what to do with it."

Pampa teacher resigns

Linda Haygood, eighth grade vocational home economics teacher, has resigned to accept a position with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Lipscomb County.

The Pampa Independent School Board accepted her decision at a Thursday night meeting and appointed Betty Johnston to fill the remainder of the 1976-77 school year.

Mrs. Johnston is a graduate of Texas A&I University in Kingsville.

Today is Miss Haygood's last day on the job.

Attending the meeting were trustees Paul Simmons, Bob Lyle, David Crossman and Buddy Epperson. Absent were Al Smith, Bill Arrington and Curt Beck.

Following the 6 p.m. meeting in Carver Center, 321 W. Albert, the board members and superintendent Bob Phillips attended a dinner and program at Baker Elementary School sponsored by Parents of Developmental Students.

Phillips was the speaker. The board has slated a regular meeting for 4 p.m. Monday in Carver Center. Topics to be discussed will include: payment of bills, budget report, audience with Elaine Ledbetter, local textbook committee, bids for typewriter, woodworking equipment and maintenance vehicle, assessed valuation, foundation funds and sale of buses and vehicles.

Oklahoma's Boren says feds caused shortage

ELK CITY, Okla. (AP) — Gov. David Boren Thursday blamed a feared natural gas shortage this winter on federal interference in the free economic system and quoted campaign promises of President-elect Jimmy Carter in holding out hope to oil and gas industry officials here that natural gas soon will be deregulated.

Boren addressed the 7th annual oil and gas industry appreciation banquet which this year honored drilling contractors active in the Anadarko Basin.

"If we would deregulate natural gas today and let the average price go up somewhat — lets suppose that you double the average price at the wellhead — you'd save so much by filling the pipeline in amortization costs in that pipeline ... that you would more than make up for the increased costs to the producer, and New York with deregulation could have an average of perhaps one or two cents less than the present costs," Boren said.

He said $12 billion is committed to pay off pipelines and "it has to be paid by someone. You run that pipeline one-fourth full, you've got to pay a lot more per unit of gas to pay off the pipeline costs than you do if you run it full. We've found that the pipeline savings alone will more than make up for the increased costs to the producer."

"Government policy has held the price of natural gas at the wellhead artificially low. Its ridiculous when we have an energy crisis to have a national policy that discourages the producer from going in and getting the gas that is in the ground beneath us now and sending it where it's needed."

Boren quoted an Oct. 19th letter he and Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe received purposing three steps in response to the national energy problem.

He discussed the service Lions provides throughout the district, state and world. He also commended the local club for its community projects including sight conservation, High Plains Eye Bank, Crippled Children's Clinic, Girls Town, Boy Scouts, Senior Citizens Center, Hearing Conservation, Salvation Army, Genesis House and many other worthwhile causes.

Pigman serves as district governor for the 70 Lions Clubs of Lions International's District

2-T1 and also serves as chairman of the council of district governors for the State of Texas.

Dr. Fred Simmons directed the session.

Announcement was made that Frankie Watt has been selected Lions Club Queen for November. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy G. Watt, 1947 N. Nelson.

Millie Fatheree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Fatheree of 1009 N. Wells, was the club's September queen, and Janis Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Johnson of 2123 N. Russell was the October queen.

Cameron County sheriff says 'don't blame me'

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Cameron County sheriff says he's not to blame for the conditions in his jail discovered when a grand jury made an "un-scheduled tour" of the facility.

The grand jury issued a two-page report Thursday saying it found "potential weapons readily accessible and unsafe and unsanitary conditions" in the county jail plus "non-adherence to rules and regulations that common sense would indicate should be followed."

"I know what the grand jury is saying, and I don't blame them," says Sheriff Gus Krause. "But if the commissioner's court doesn't give me the money, there's nothing I can do about it."

The grand jury report also noted jail employees were paid $472 a month.

The sheriff claims it is "ridiculous" for anyone to expect guards making that much money to keep "$4 million worth of bonded prisoners" in a building constructed in 1912 which is "cracking all over the place."

The Cameron County Jail has been the subject of federal and state grand jury probes since a jail clerk and four guards were indicted last month in connection with the escape of three prisoners including a convicted murderer and a man charged with heroin possession being held in lieu of a $500,000 bond.

"This is a problem, and I'm glad the grand jury brought it up so the taxpayers will know the commissioner's court is the one holding us back," claims Krause. "I don't control the salaries, the commissioner's court does."

The report stated the grand jury feels "adequate funds have not been provided to attract and train qualified jail personnel."

"They (commissioners) seem to think you don't need qualified people," Krause continues. "They think all the guy needs to know is how to open and close a lock."

Revivaltime set Tuesday

Members of the Women's Ministries Department of First Assembly of God in Pampa will participate in the Revivaltime World Prayer meeting which begins at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The annual world prayer meeting is the largest effort of its kind in the nation.

R.L. Courtney, local pastor, said more than 100,000 persons in approximately 1,500 churches and prayer groups are expected to share in this effort.

The annual effort is organized and sponsored by "Revivaltime," the international radio broadcast of The Assemblies of God, presented each Sunday at 8 a.m. over KPDM as well as on 650 other stations around the world.

The local function is under the direction of The Women's Ministries Department of First Assembly with Mrs. Lila Kitch as president.

COOKIE RANSOM YANKTON, S.D. (AP) — Three dozen cookies and a loaf of banana bread brought Alice Kingsbury back home.

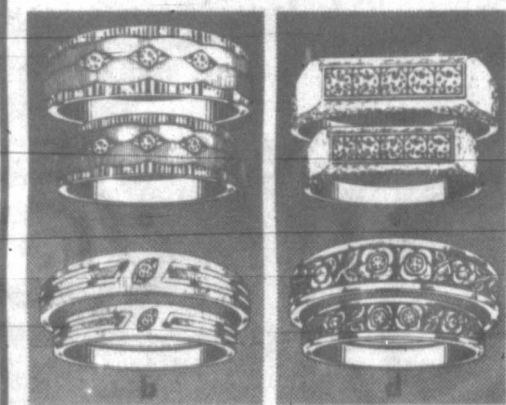

Recently, Dr. Kingsbury's portrait disappeared from the hall that bears her name on the Yankton College campus. On the desk below was a note: "Please deposit three dozen cookies and one loaf of banana bread on Observatory Hill this evening and the picture will be returned."

House Mother Alice Johnson followed the instructions and the hung y kidnapers kept their word. Mrs. Johnson says the portrait will be hung a little more securely, but as a precaution she is doing a little extra baking.

One, two, three, kick. Most of the Buccaneers' drills involve kicks and dance-type routines with partners.

Buccaneers put up kick for Lefors football

The Buccaneers have joined the Pirates on the football field at Lefors High School. Both kick and bump, but they do it at different times.

The Pirates is the football team. The Buccaneers is a drill team which the high school girls organized this year so they would have more participation in football games.

The Lefors band isn't bit enough to march at halftime; the drill team does its thing in time to taped music. The girls... usually 21 of them in the drill talked Dale Ann Garrett, high school home economics teacher, into helping them start the group.

Miss Garrett has a cousin Vicky Ward, in Pampa who had been with a Fort Worth drill team. She helped the girls learn a few routines and now they make up their own.

"They just jumped right in there," the teacher said of the support from the girls and community. Mothers made costumes. Football players call the Buccaneers "the Pirate's pride."

Diana Humphrey, Connie Stroud, Mary Ann Nichols and Jeanie Sawyer, the four senior Buccaneer captains, invent the routines. They try to have a new one for each game and pep rally.

Each week the girls learn the new routines and try out. If you don't learn the routine, you can't drill.

"It was the blind leading the blind but they were all willing to work," Miss Garrett reported. "I took quite a bit of responsibility at first but now pretty much leave it up to the captains."

The Buccaneers practiced nightly at school. They don't plan to continue during basketball season because they will be busy playing themselves.

Miss Garrett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Garrett of Lefors, is in her first year of teaching at Lefors.

Medicine man blesses Town

ZZYZX, Calif. (AP) — This abandoned desert town, intended by its founder to be literally the last word in health spas, is getting a new lease on life as a research center. Zzyzx (pronounced Zye-tix) was built in 1944 on federal property near Soda Dry Lake in the Mojave Desert about 200 miles east of Los Angeles by Curtis Howe Springer, who called himself the "last of the old-time medicine men."

With the help of workers from Los Angeles' Skid Row, Springer built a two-story hotel called "The Castle," groups of cottages, a community dining hall, a church, a printing plant, food production area, hot baths, shops and a swimming pool.

He picked the odd name to make it the last word in the English language. It still appears on road signs pointing there from the Las Vegas, Nev., to Los Angeles highway.

But Springer himself is gone — evicted in 1974 by federal marshals and sent to jail for several months after conviction for illegally using federal property and false advertising of health food products he claimed would cure everything from sore toes to cancer. Springer, now 80, lives in Las Vegas.

Now Zzyzx is being converted into an education and research center under an arrangement between a consortium of seven Southern California colleges and universities and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

The site will be used for field trips and desert studies in biology as well as anthropology, archaeology, geology and geography. "The beauty of Zzyzx is its central location in the Mojave Desert as an ideal support base for desert research," said Dr. Dalton H. Harrington, chairman of the biology department at Cal State, San Bernardino, and chairman of the California Desert Studies Consortium.

Each school is contributing $3,000 a year for an annual operating budget of $21,000.

Sympathizers protest

HOUSTON (AP) — About 50 sympathizers demonstrated in front of the federal court house today as immigration officials began deportation hearings for a group of Iranians arrested in a downtown clash with police.

About 60 of the 91 arrested Nov. 9 witnessed the demonstration while waiting to be taken to the hearings in groups of four or five.

Police watched the demonstrators closely. They chanted "Down with the Shah" and "Stop Deportation" but quickly stopped and remained silent as immigration officials conferred with those scheduled to appear at the hearings. The chanting resumed as the officials stepped back inside the court house.

All but 30 of those involved in the clash with police had been released from jail by early morning on personal recognizance bonds or on reduced bonds of $500. The 61 had been charged with disorderly conduct but immigration officials had ordered $2,000 bonds pending completion of their week-long investigation.

The court house is three blocks west of the downtown skyscraper where the Iranians were arrested while demonstrating in protest of the Paris arrest of two Iranians charged with killing an Iranian official there. The French Consulate is in the downtown building.

Police said the Nov. 9 group was disrupting traffic and the operations of business firms.

No business establishments are in the immediate vicinity of the federal building. A light rain fell as the demonstrators marched in a circle on the sidewalk at the building's main entrance.

Morales case not closed

CASTROVILLE, Tex. (AP) — It has been 14 months since Castroville construction worker Richard Morales was gunned down beside a desolate road near this tiny Central Texas town.

A state jury convicted former Castroville city marshal Frank Hayes of aggravated assault in Morales' death and sentenced him to two to 10 years.

But few persons — from Morales' family to Gov. Dolph Briscoe — consider the case closed.

The death of Morales, who was killed by a shotgun blast Sept. 14, 1975, touched off demands by Morales' family, Mexican-American groups and state officials for federal investigations — all of whom still await word from the Justice Department.

In Washington, Justice Department spokesman John Russel said the matter is "a high priority in the civil rights division and is still pending."

But Texas Asst. Atty. Gen. Ed Idar Jr., named by Atty. Gen. John Hill to investigate the slaying, said Wednesday, "We've been hoping to hear something any day but as of today we have heard nothing."

The Justice Department first announced it was considering the case July 27.

Court testimony showed that Morales, 27, was picked up at his home by Hayes and another marshal on an arrest warrant. He was taken to an isolated area where Hayes was left alone with him.

His body was discovered two days later buried in a shallow grave 400 miles away on an East Texas farm owned by Hayes' wife's family.

Texas Ranger Dan North said the body had a large wound under the left armpit and said he found two hoses, a shovel and blood stains in the Hayes' car in Liano.

He later found the shotgun in Hayes' bedroom in his Castroville trailer home.

Hayes, 53, claimed the gun discharged accidentally. He had originally been indicted for murder, but was convicted of aggravated assault.

The demands for a federal investigation to determine if Hayes had violated Morales' civil rights became even louder when jurors in the Hayes trial in San Angelo admitted they had signed a mistake and had signed the wrong charge when they convicted the former marshal.

Jury foreman Luther Sheldon said the jury had meant to find Hayes guilty of murder by aggravated assault, but misunderstood the instructions from the judge.

U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., Briscoe and Hill asked for a federal investigation.

Cocaine smuggling to be investigated

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal grand jury will convene here in December to investigate alleged marijuana and cocaine smuggling operations, reportedly involving several states.

U.S. Atty. Gerald Gallinghouse said Wednesday the investigation is an outgrowth of the trial of lawyer Albert Bensabat III, who was convicted this week of conspiring to smuggle two pounds of cocaine into the country.

Bensabat and three co-defendants, who pleaded guilty earlier, are expected to testify before the grand jury and could lead the panel to other prominent persons in New Orleans, Philadelphia, New England and California, as well as to cocaine growers and sellers in South America. The Times-Picayune reported today.

Bensabat's attorney, John Martzell, maintains that his client was a pawn in a narcotics investigation aimed at implicating Criminal District Court Judge Jerome Winsberg.

During the trial, a New Orleans policeman testified Bensabat told him that part of a cocaine shipment from Colombia was to be delivered to Winsberg.

Winsberg denied any connection with the case and said he had been told by federal investigators they had no evidence implicating him in cocaine transactions.

The judge said he anticipates being called before the grand jury to testify and said he would appear.

Bensabat's wife had been an employe of Winsberg before her husband's arrest. The judge had married the couple in his courtroom.

Bensabat is scheduled to be sentenced Dec. 22, while his co-defendants are scheduled to be sentenced Nov. 24.

Spearman, Childress meet today in Pampa

Childress, the top-ranked Class AA team in the state according to United Press International, meets Spearman, a playoff veteran, in a bi-district football clash at 7:30 p.m. today in Pampa's Harvester Stadium.

Childress, winner of all 10 games this season, captured the District 2-AA championship, was last undefeated in 1972, when the Bobcats went 11-0 before dropping a 13-10 decision to Floydada in the regional playoffs.

The Bobcats are led by all-star Ricky Smith, who has rushed for 1,073 yards and scored 14 touchdowns.

Spearman lost, 29-0, last year to Childress in the bi-district clash. The Lynx, 1-AA champions, advanced to the state finals two years ago.

In other area bi-district contests tonight, Memphis meets Stratford in Class A at 8 p.m. in Canyon and Groom tackles Sundown in Class B at 7:30 p.m. in Panhandle.

Saturday (1 p.m.) Amarillo High hosts Lubbock Monterey in Class AAAA. Perryton and Monahan play in Class AAA at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Lubbock.

By PAUL SIMS
 Sports Editor

A healthy Chris Britten has made all the difference in the world. And Groom is banking on its all-state fullback to provide the punch it needs to capture a Class B bi-district football victory over Sundown tonight in Panhandle.

The teams meet at 7:30, with the winner playing the victor of the Balmorrah - Forsan contest, being staged tonight in Big Spring, in the state quarterfinals.

Groom, 7-2 for the season, played spotty football early in the year but won its last three games by a combined score of 117-6. Groom's 34-0 victory over Lefors ranks as one of the most impressive Tiger wins in school history according to some followers.

The Tigers lost their opener, 13-12, to Claude, barely beat Wheeler, 12-9, in the fifth game, and lost to Booker, 29-20, the following week.

"We've gotten better," Groom Coach Russell Roberts states matter-of-factly. "Chris has gotten healthier, not any better, just healthier. You can't get any better than he is."

"He's played better in the last four games and this is a tribute to him and the line."

Britten this season has carried 142 times for 831 yards and scored six touchdowns. He gained more than 1,000 yards last season in leading the Tigers to the state semifinals.

Three Groom players — Britten, Thomas Reed and John Krizan — topped 1,000 yards a year ago but none have as impressive statistics this season. Reed, a cat-in-the-hat quick halfback who turns the 40 in 4.6, has rushed 106 times for 766 yards and is the team's leading scorer with 16 touchdowns, while wingback John Krizan, just a junior, has carried 58 times for 459 yards.

Groom's offense is the reason for the less yardage.

"Krizan's proved to be an extremely valuable blocker," Roberts said. "His blocking is just tremendous but that doesn't mean his running isn't great."

"I don't think he's disappointed that he hasn't got the yardage this season. I'm not disappointed in any of our kids because we didn't get the big yardage games this year. It's not important to me and the thing that makes me feel best about it is it's not important to them."

"John wants to win and I don't think he minds blocking. Of course, he'd like to carry the ball more. Who gets the big yardage and the big headlines isn't important to these kids."

Sundown Coach Bill Dendy is as high on the Groom backfield as Roberts is.

"We're impressed with everybody in that backfield. Of course, we're impressed with Britten and Reed. Britten has size and speed and quickness, and Reed isn't quite as large but he's good. We didn't see Krizan run with the ball too much but he does a good job from where he's at (wingback).

"I would imagine Groom has more speed than us. They're bigger, too."

Groom's biggest lineman is tackle Jay Witt, who is 6-2 by 250. The Groom offensive line averages 186 pounds per man, while the Sundown defensive wall averages 158.

"We hope we can blow them out," Roberts said. "They're little but they're very aggressive. They play real aggressive defense."

"The thing that they do that scares me is they're opportunists — if you give them an inch, they take the ball game."

Offensively, the Roughnecks are led by quarterback Robert Smith and halfbacks Buster Day and Stephen Smith. Although Dendy kept no statistics through the regular season, he points to a balanced running attack as the key to Sundown's surprising 8-3 regular season, which culminated last week with a 26-6 upset victory over Sudan.

Sudan blanked Sundown, 20-0, in the season opener. The Roughnecks dropped their next two games — 50-0 to Seagraves and 65-12 to Plains — then won their next eight.

"We had confidence all along," Dendy said. "We were making some mistakes on defense early in the year. After three games, I was a little concerned — you can't lose three in a row and not be worried."

"We were concerned mainly with their attitude. We knew what they were capable of doing. Early, we moved the ball fast but we didn't score. We'd move it and make some mistakes."

"Still, we don't have a tremendous offense but we're getting better. We don't have a best runner; they're all fair runners. We're just a bunch of old country boys chugging along."

Sundown has allowed a total of 12 points in its last four games. The Roughnecks have shut out four opponents this season.

"In three games, we got over 130 points scored on us. They kicked the dog out of us. We're playing better defense now than what we were. We just changed the personnel around a little bit."

Groom has shut out three opponents this season. Britten, also an all-state linebacker, is the team's leading tackler, while end Richard Weller, linebacker Krizan, cornerback Reed and Baggerman, an ultra-quick safety who also starts at offensive end, are among the defensive leaders.

The Tiger defense may be severely tested tonight.

"They (the Roughnecks) are tough kids, hard-nosed kids. Their best runner is probably this Steve Smith. He's a very punishing runner. Day is a quick, jitter-bug type runner."

"But the guy that makes the whole thing go is their quarterback. I'll be honest with you — I respect him more than anybody else. He's an outstanding athlete."

Groom isn't quite up to par with last year's unit, which lost, 28-2, in the state finals to Big Sandy. But Roberts' optimism is growing.

"I think we're closing in. I still don't think we're as good as last year yet but I think we're just about up with it."

"I know we'll get better as the season goes along."

Steelers, Oilers meet in key game

By BRUCE LOWITT
 AP Sports Writer

It was a year in which Pittsburgh was supposed to set National Football League history. The team with the impenetrable Steel Curtain defense last year and the year before, was going to succeed where Green Bay and Miami had failed.

The Steelers, it was expected, would win a third straight Super Bowl.

Now, they may not even get into it. They may not surpass that first hurdle to greatness. They may not even make the playoffs.

Not that the Steelers are to be written off yet, mind you. But time is growing short for this once-invincible band of behemoths. Naturally, the Steelers, who face the Houston Oilers Sunday, are not writing themselves off.

If the Steelers are to get back to the Super Bowl, they will either have to overtake Cincinnati, which owns a two-game lead in the American Conference's Central Division, or come away win the AFC's wildcard playoff berth. Even that looks as a difficult task. Pittsburgh is 6-4, tied among AFC runner-up candidates with Cleveland and Denver. But all three trail New England, second-best in the East at 7-2.

Coach Bum Phillips, whose Oilers have lost their last five games to wreck what was such a promising season, does not relish the idea of playing against a team which has permitted only nine points (three field goals) in five games, three of which were won by shutouts.

Crucial showdowns set

By The Associated Press
 It's showdown Saturday in Columbus, Ohio, and Los Angeles.

The Minnesota, Iowa, California and Stanford have all fallen by the wayside again. As usual, it will be Michigan against Ohio State to decide who wins the Big Ten and a spot in the Rose Bowl. And UCLA against Southern California for the Pacific-8 championship and the other berth in the Rose Bowl.

No. 4 Michigan, 9-1 after its untimely loss to Purdue a

Pampa to wrestle

RICHARDSON — Seven Pampans will compete in the Richardson Lake Highlands High School Invitational Wrestling Tournament today and Saturday here.

The Pampa entrants, who will open their season with the meet, are Mike Cole in the 112 weight class, Phillip Fields in 126, Charlie Miller in 132, Demetrio Martinez in 138, Jimmy Britton in either 145 or 155, Marc Nichols in either 145 or 155 and Vern Cave in 185.

Several Dallas-area schools are expected to participate.

The Pampa team is Optimist Club-sponsored.

Fem cagers open tonight

The inauguration of girls' basketball at Pampa High is scheduled for 6 p.m. today, when the Harvesters host Hereford in a sophomore contest prior to the boys' varsity clash between Pampa and Midland.

Pampa will have a sophomore team this season, a junior varsity in 1977-78 and a varsity in 1978-79. This year's schedule will be limited to sophomore contests.

"I think we're going to be good but I have no idea what to expect," said Pampa Coach Bob Young. "We've been practicing since the first of school. We've progressed; we've come a long way."

Fundamentally, we couldn't do hardly anything the first of the year. We could dribble a little bit but we couldn't pivot or pass effectively. We can pivot and pass now. You've got to learn from game experience, though.

"We don't know how the girls are going to react in a game. We've got a lot to learn."

Pampa starters will be forwards Tamera Glascock (5-4), Becky Davis (5-4) and Pat Coats (5-10) and guards Kim Bronner (5-6), Diane McNeely (5-6) and Melissa Pisoni (5-4).

Famera's our best shooter — she's got a tremendous jump shot. She drives well and she's quick. Becky Davis has about the same moves and she's got a good jump shot. Both rebound well," Young said.

Pampa's offense, at least early in the season, will be an experimental thing.

"We've tried a few offenses. We'll try to get a lot of passing movement and not just stand around," the Pampa coach said.

System blamed for salaries

By FRED ROTHENBERG
 AP Sports Writer

In the "Babe Ruth Story," actor William Bendix promised a critically ill boy a home run. Anything can happen in Hollywood, so when the Bambino came through with his homer, the movie cameras showed the boy perking up. He went on to live happily ever after.

Baseball players, or sports figures in general, are not in the business of saving or protecting lives. They may make the public stand up and cheer or provide excitement and entertainment for millions of people. This, too, is a public service.

But they don't save people's lives.

Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Doc Medich leaped into the stands this season and tried to revive a heart attack victim. The man died, but Medich succeeded, it would have been because of his medical school training, not his pitching ability.

Assuming that saving lives is one of the most admirable things a human can do, why does the average professional athlete make more money than the average doctor? Why is the average basketball salary nearly $110,000, when the average salary for policemen and firemen in America is under $15,000?

"If we had a completely rational system then I think it would be legitimate for people to compare salaries," says Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association. "If the majority agreed to base the system of salaries on society's needs, then the top priorities should be for cancer research and the like."

"If we had such a system, then it would be fair to ask, 'What does playing ball mean?'" "But we don't have that kind of system. Our system is a hodgepodge. It's based on all sorts of rational and irrational things."

"If a rock star fits the tempo of the times, then people will pay to buy his records. This has nothing to do with whether society needs rock stars."

"The fallacy of comparing athletes salaries with other professions is that it makes a stupid assumption. If a ballplayer made less, would a teacher be paid more?"

"Absolutely not. If a ballplayer makes less, then the rich owners will make more."

Professional athletes are merely the beneficiaries of American society and its economic system. They didn't create it; they only profit from it.

"That's what society wants because if society didn't want it, they wouldn't be paying the dollars," said basketball star George McGinnis of the Philadelphia 76ers, who is in the second year of a six-year package worth $3.2 million.

"If a club thinks a player is worth $1.5 million to play, he has to be worth it," said Los Angeles Dodger's baseball player Steve Garvey, who just completed a two-year contract worth $220,000. "No organization is going to pay more than a player is worth."

The professional sports owners feel athletes have a marketable talent, and they pay them accordingly. Some can afford it better than others.

Roy Boe of the New York Nets said he couldn't afford to renegotiate Julius Erving's contract. So he sold him to the 76ers for $3 million. Philadelphia is now paying Erving $3 million over five years.

"We're entertainers, and the entertainment business is big business," says Erving, whose on-court ability is credited with being an important influence behind the recent basketball merger. "A player has to try and get whatever the traffic will bear, and make the most of his earning capability while he has it."

The average career in the National Football League is five years. It's five years for baseball players, six years for the National Basketball Association and nine years in the National Hockey League.

"I'm not guaranteed anything for next year," says Roger Staubach of the Dallas Cowboys, who makes an estimated $100,000 a year. "There's no question that we are in a short-term business as far as a career is concerned."

"I definitely don't want to be paid a ridiculous figure, but as long as sport is drawing people and making money an athlete deserves his fair share."

"My salary is very good but I've got to produce every year. I've signed a long-term contract, but it's based on my producing. It's not guaranteed. My salary would end, however, in one year if I got hurt."

Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings is probably the richest quarterback ever. He lives in a $400,000 house in Atlanta and leases a lakefront home in suburban Minneapolis during the football season.

Through various investments he became a millionaire in 1971 and his net worth is estimated at $7 million. "That's what my accountants tell me," Tarkenton said.

When Tarkenton was an NFL rookie in 1961, he made $12,500. He is now working on a three-year contract estimated at $1 million.

"Who is to determine what any group of people make? We make what the market bears," Tarkenton said. "Should an athlete make a half-million dollars a year or should Elvis Presley make a quarter-million dollars a night to sing?"

"We all make what the market bears."

It just so happens that the going rate is high for an All-Pro quarterback who sets career passing records and leads his team to the Super Bowl. Isn't that the case with most people who are at the top of their professions?

"I don't think athletes are overpaid, particularly golfers," said Arnold Palmer, whose career earnings on the U.S. golf tour are nearly $2 million.

"In every other sport, except maybe tennis, the player has a contract. He's gonna get that much," Palmer said. "In golf, you're paid solely on the basis of your performance."

"Look, if you're the best at what you do, or if you're close to the top, I think you're worth what you can get."

Yanks sign free-agent Gullett

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees and the Atlanta Braves, who took home the prizes in past free-agent sweepstakes, are still playing the game.

The Yankees signed Catfish Hunter, the first free agent in modern times, on New Year's Eve, 1974. On Thursday, they became the first team with matching free-agent pitchers, adding left-handed Don Gullett to the right-handed Hunter.

When Hunter's auction was held, he was the only player eligible. The law of supply and demand escalated his value to a five-year package worth $3.5 million. With 24 free agents available this time, money isn't being thrown around as readily. Gullett signed a six-year contract worth in the neighborhood of $2 million.

That's a little more than Gary Matthews got for moving south to Atlanta to join the free-agent pitcher Andy Messersmith. Matthews, a strong offensive and defensive outfielder, will receive $1.75 million over five years to play with the Braves.

That's not a bad pay raise considering the fact that Matthews made $46,000 with San Francisco in 1975, asked for $65,000 in 1976 but was only offered $60,000 by the Giants.

Matthews, 26, turned down a higher offer of more than $2 million from the Montreal Expos. Higher income taxes in Canada and the cold weather were factors in that decision.

Matthews, a lifetime 285 hitter with the Giants, said Thursday at the press conference announcing his signing that he was happy "to get out of the cold on the West Coast." Gullett is changing leagues, moving from the biggest winner in baseball, the Cincinnati Reds, to the American League champion Yankees.

"I'm coming to a winning baseball team," said Gullett. "I can't wait to get started."

Harvesters open with Midland

Pampa, District 3-AAAA's pre-season favorite, and Midland, which owns one of the region's top forwards, clash in the season basketball opener at 7:45 p.m. today in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The non-conference clash will be preceded by a girls' sophomore contest between Pampa and Hereford.

Craig Dunn, a 6-3 senior and one of the region's best players, according to Pampa Coach Robert McPherson, will lead Midland tonight against the Harvesters, who have outscored two scrimmage opponents this week.

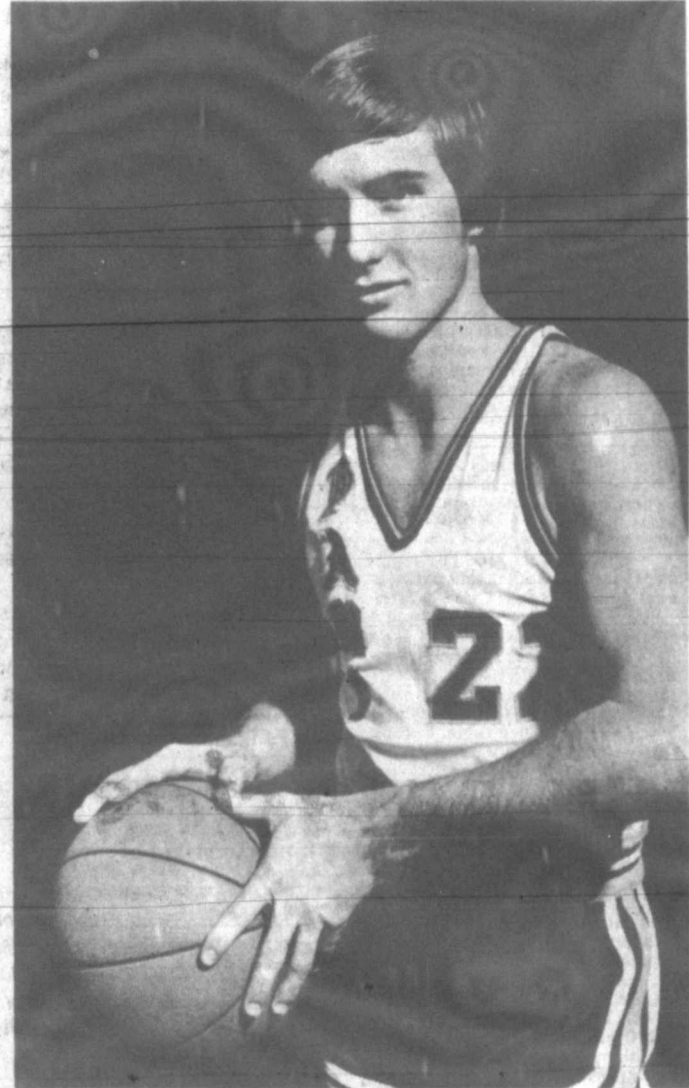

Pampa downed Altus, Okla., 62-55, and ripped an intramural team from West Texas State University in scrimmages this week.

Pampa starters tonight will be 6-6 senior post Winslow Ellis, 6-4 1/2 senior forward Don Hughes, 6-4 junior forward Rusty Ward, 6-3 senior guard Brian Bailey and 5-10 senior guard Rayford Young.

Bailey, Hughes and Young are returning starters off last season's 26-6 district championship club. Bailey was one of the area's top guards last season, averaging more than 20 points per district game.

"Workouts have been real good — they're ready and eager. This first game is important — we need to win it to get off to a good start."

Pampa will host Midland in a second game at 7:45 p.m. Saturday. White Deer will play the Pampa junior varsity at 6 p.m. Saturday, with the White Deer JV meeting the Pampa sophomores at 4:30 p.m.

Pampa guard

Junior Tim Reddell is one reason Pampa has more depth this season than in past years. The 5-9 guard averaged 11.6 points for the Pampa junior varsity last season. Reddell may see action in tonight's season opener against Midland in Harvester Fieldhouse. (Pampa News photo by Michal Thompson)

Carter studies foreign policy

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, after focusing on the nation's domestic problems, is turning his attention to national security and foreign policy as he prepares for the presidency.

George Bush, the director of the Central Intelligence Agency, was flying to Plains today, and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will visit this tiny southwest Georgia hamlet on Saturday.

Vice President-elect Walter Mondale planned to fly from Washington to Plains for today's session and remain for the meeting with Kissinger.

Asked about a report that former Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger would be named as a White House "intelligence czar," Powell said speculation about Carter's choices for his Cabinet and other top posts was "premature."

In Washington on Thursday, Hamilton Jordan told reporters that he and other Carter talent scouts intend to give the president-elect the option of choosing an experienced Washington figure, a black, a woman or a newcomer for each key position.

'Little Cuba' to fight for federal grant

DEL RIO, Tex. (AP) — An official of the Zavala Development Corp. vows the organization will continue its efforts to obtain a $1.5 million federal grant even though roadblocks continue to be thrown in its way.

The Middle Rio Grande Development Council Wednesday voted against state approval of the grant for the formation of a private farming co-operative that Gov. Dolph Briscoe claimed would be "a little Cuba."

The Council's action came only hours after the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans had affirmed a lower court ruling that the state had the right to review the grant request before it was approved.

The lower court had prohibited county officials from using any of the grant money and issued a 60-day restraining order to allow them to present their case through state agencies.

Zavala County Judge Jose Angel Gutierrez, one of the leaders of the corporation, said,

"We will wait the 60 days as the federal court ruled then take additional steps to obtain the grant."

The council is a regional government organization that acts as a review board for area projects before they are submitted to state or federal agencies.

Representatives of the nine-county agency voted 4-2 against recommending the grant approval to Gov. Briscoe.

Gutierrez, founder of the Raza Unida party, shrugged off the Council's vote after the hearing, saying it was just an advisory board and it did not have the final say.

Gutierrez told the council each individual project sought by the federal government. "Even if you approve it and everyone else approves it, the proposal for the grant would have to be submitted for approval," he said.

Gutierrez, who presented the project to the agency, answered questions from other members of the board and at one time told Edwards County Judge Allen Stovall that the opposition to the plan was "brought about by Red baiting and cheap shot by Gov. Briscoe."

Briscoe, a political foe of Gutierrez, has claimed the project create a "Little Cuba" in Zavala County. Gutierrez has been to Cuba, but said Briscoe opposes the project because of his extensive land holdings in the area.

Gutierrez said the plan called for the purchase of 1,000 acres of land in the county for a farming co-operative and the creation of other businesses.

Profits, he said, would be put back into the project for expansion or would be given to co-operative members as dividends.

He denied any socialistic intent and added, "It will be run like any other business operating in Texas and we will comply with state and federal laws."

Pass. Those voting against the project were Mayor Alfredo Gutierrez of Del Rio, Judge Thomas Sergeant of Bracketville, Mayor Howard Langford of Uvalde and County Judge Rogelio Gonzalez of Val Verde County.

The federal grant was already in effect Oct. 28 when U.S. District Court Judge Jack Roberts blocked it.

He issued a temporary restraining order at the request of the State of Texas barring the corporation from spending any of the money for 60 days until state agencies had a chance to review and approve it. Zavala officials took the case to the appeals court which said Wednesday it found "no reversible error" and concluded that the lower court had not "abused its discretion in fashioning the equitable remedy which it decreed."

Judge Roberts had ruled the federal government violated the law by not giving the state the right to review the grant application.

Briscoe, a political foe of Gutierrez, referred to the grant as "un-American, un-Texan," and said it was intended to create a "little Cuba."

Board chairman burns tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board today recommended against a tax cut at the present time, but did not rule one out if the economy fails to recover from its current slowdown.

"I see no advantage in a tax cut at the present time," Burns said. "My mind on the subject, however, is by no means closed."

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he will consider a tax reduction next year if the economic slowdown continues. Some of Carter's advisers have expressed concern that the Federal Reserve Board could offset the benefits by tightening the nation's money supply.

Burns has been trying to head off a possible conflict with Carter on the matter.

The chairman made his statements in a speech prepared for the United States League of Savings Associations in New York. His remarks came as the government reduced its estimate of growth in the nation's economic output to 3.8 per cent during the fall quarter.

That rate is just below the level generally considered necessary to whittle down unemployment.

Referring to a tax cut, Burns said he "will weigh the issue carefully" if the economy appears to need such a stimulus and if there are "economies" in federal spending.

While some of Carter's advisers have said they would prefer a one-time tax rebate, Burns said he would prefer a broad-based permanent tax reduction for both business and individuals, similar to a tax cut enacted in the early 1960s.

"Such a measure, on a responsible scale, would minimize social conflict and have the best chance of producing lasting economic benefits for our country," he said.

Carter, on the other hand, has said he will consider tax cuts aimed at benefiting low and middle-income workers and has said nothing about cutting taxes to benefit business.

In any case, Burns said there is no need for a tax cut at the present time, partly because it could add to inflationary pressures and partly because he expects the economy to resume solid growth without one. But in keeping the door slightly ajar, as he has in the past, Burns continued to send out what appear to be conflicting signals on the money and interest-rate policies which the Federal Reserve Board will follow after Carter takes office.
