County hopes to lower tax rate

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

If Gray County's financial operations for 1977 follow the proposed $2,147,569.10 budget, County Auditor A.C. Malone expects to see the bonded indebtedness paid in full — and hopefully a decrease in the 1978 tax rate.

The proposed budget is set for a public hearing at 10 a.m. Dec. 1 in the Commissioners Courtroom on the second floor of Courthouse.

According to the estimates, officials hope to have a balance of $524,155.67 at the end of 1977.

The 1977 budget shows a $200,788.91 increase above the 1976 budget.

An estimated $40,000 of the increase will be spent for salary hikes. The county has 115 full time employees with an estimated 1977 payroll of $1,025,519.09. A 6 per cent wage hike for most employees which has been approved to begin Jan. 1 will account for the $40,000.

Salaries make up 48 per cent of the budget expenses. County officials expect to have access to $2,671,724.77 in operating funds.

The county's money comes from taxes, revenue sharing, interest, fines, and grants.

The largest segment of income increase for Gray County came with the property values approved last summer. Assessed values again hit an all-time high of $111,625,780 — about $10 million more than the previous year, 1975. Assessed values in 1974 were $95,145,220.

Taxes assessed from the property valuations will be $1,337,615.68 with collections expected to be $1,297,487.21.

Assessments are based on 23 per cent of the true market values, and the tax base is $1.25 per $100 valuation.

The county taxes real and personal property and oil and gas leases.

Another figure on the credit side of the county's ledger is revenue sharing money for specific expenses. The county expects to receive $180,000 in revenue sharing monies in 1977.

Other projected income for Gray County includes:

— Fines and office fees, $178,575
— Interest on certificates of deposits, $40,000

— A grant of $47,407 from the Criminal Justice Division for operation of Gray County's adult probation office.

Expenses paid from the county budget are taken from several funds.

The $1.25 tax breakdown by funds includes 1 cent for the jury fund, 15 cents for road and bridge special fund, 60 cents for the general fund and 30 cents for the Farm to Market and Lateral Road account and 5 cents for the courthouse and jail improvement fund.

Twelve cents goes to bonded indebtedness for the hospital and two cents for the airport debt.

A total of $10,095.53 is budgeted for the jury fund. Jurors are paid $5 when they report on summons notice in county court and $10 per day if they serve as a juror. They are paid $3 per day for reporting for justice of peace court service.

The road and bridge fund is budgeted for $888,848.47, which includes about $25,000 from the state for road upkeep. This fund is used for the purchase of road and bridge equipment and payrolls for road and bridge department employees. A total of $711,739.92 was budgeted for that department in 1976.

Other county employee salaries are paid from the $878,040.83 general fund except for part of the salaries of elected officials.

Malone explained that the county has an officers salary fund into which office fees are placed, but fees and fines are not enough for the payroll of elected officials so the remainder is taken from the general fund.

Welfare costs, paid from the general fund, are up over 1976 — from $48,742.25 to $51,366.72.

The permanent improvement fund, used for repairs to the jail and courthouse, is projected at $110,000 compared to $95,000 last year.

Malone estimated the 1977 interest and sinking fund at $116,525.

The total indebtedness for the hospital and airport now stands at $279,700 and is scheduled to be paid off in 1978.

However, during a recent meeting of the Gray County Commissioners Court, Judge Don Cain said the county might be able to pay it in 1977 if it is legally permissible — according to terms of the contract.

In the 1976 budget, Malone figured an additional $5,000 in mileage costs since the county increased its mileage allowance from 14 to 16 cents per mile. Sheriff Rufe Jordan estimated mileage costs for his department at $30,500 in 1977.

Malone said mileage for the three Gray County constables and the four justices of peace is estimated at $8,000 in 1977.

The county judge and each of the four commissioners receive $150 monthly for mileage expenses. The district and county clerks each receive $25 monthly. Malone said those amounts are to remain the same.

Revenue sharing expenditures include $105,000 for miscellaneous items, $3,000 for the Day Care Center, $4,000 for Genesis House, $2,000 for Soil Conservation Watershed, $1,000 for McLean Senior Citizens, $10,000 for Pampa Senior Citizens.

Ambulance service costs are paid half from revenue sharing and half from the general fund. The estimates to be taken from revenue sharing is $1,500 for Lefors, $2,550 for McLean, and $14,000 for Pampa.

Fire department costs for the county are paid equally from revenue sharing and the general fund. Lefors will receive $4,700; McLean - Alanreed, $4,935.00 and Pampa $30,000.

The four Commissioner precincts are budgeted for a combined $40,000 in revenue sharing for road and bridge equipment, and $10,000 for the livestock pavilion. Rent on the public health nurse office will be $600 — $50 monthly — in the Salvation Army building.

Amounts which are not designated will be placed on the agenda and voted on before they are spent, Malone said.

The proposed budget represents about six months of preparations, beginning with estimates from each department head.

Traditional fare

Mrs. Jan Crippen gets some help from her daughter, Cori, in preparing America's popular Thanksgiving dinner main course. The bird will do a lot in the next few days. While cooking, it fills the house with pleasant smells that whet the appetites. Browned and plattered it is all the centerpiece a table needs. And if the family fails to consume it at one sitting — which is often the case — the remnants provide the makings for sandwiches and casseroles. The Thanksgiving bird of plenty does something else — it helps remind Americans to be thankful for their land of plenty.

No heads lost now over Thanksgiving

EDITOR'S NOTE — It was Sarah Hale, a magazine editor, who agitated for a national Thanksgiving Day holiday, and got it in 1863.

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

A lot of old traditions have died out. Even Thanksgiving has changed. It used to be that the people of the New World beheaded a young girl to mark the occasion. You just don't see that sort of sacrifice anymore.

Of course that particular custom was peculiar to the Indians, not the Pilgrims. Mexican Aztecs offered a damsel to the corn goddess Xilonen. A similar practice was common among the Pawnee, while other North American Indians used a corn dance to celebrate the harvest.

It just goes to show that the modern picture of Thanksgiving — religious refugees in somber costumes offering thanks for a skin-of-the-teeth existence — is a little out of focus.

The Pilgrims weren't even the first English settlers on this side of the Atlantic to have a Thanksgiving.

As harvest festivals, Thanksgivings stretch back to the ancients of Egypt, Syria, Mesopotamia and Rome. Such celebrations survived in medieval Germany, France, Holland and England as the Roman Catholic Feast of St. Martin. It was observed each Nov. 11 — coincidentally the day in 1620 when the Pilgrims set sail.

By that time a band of Englishmen in Virginia held a thanksgiving, on a plantation about 30 miles west of Jamestown. The day was Dec. 5, 1619. An order of the Virginia Company of London decreed:

"We ordain that the day of our ships' arrival at the place assigned for planting in the land of Virginia shall be yearly and perpetually kept holy as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God."

Before that, English fishermen at Newfoundland had observed a day of thanksgiving in 1578, and in 1607 the people of the Popham Colony on the Maine coast set aside such a day.

Nevertheless, it's the Pilgrim version of the event that captured the American imagination.

Venison, duck, goose, fish, eels, white bread, corn, leeks, watercress, greens, plums and berries were on the first menu, but turkey and pumpkin pie weren't listed in records of the event.

Indians killed five deer for the feast and staged military prowess with a bow-and-arrow demonstration.

Not until July 8, 1630, when a supply ship arrived, was a thanksgiving again celebrated. The Pilgrims felt such festivals ought to be spontaneous rather than matters of form, but Connecticut had an annual harvest festival by 1649 and Plymouth by 1668.

During the Revolution, the Continental Congress proclaimed occasional thanksgiving observances. George Washington issued the first presidential thanksgiving day proclamation, for Nov. 26, 1789.

Thomas Jefferson, apparently more sensitive to conflicts of church and state, didn't care for the idea of a federal thanksgiving holiday and none was decreed again until 1815.

Observances were left thereafter to the states. By 1859 many states were proclaiming the fourth Thursday in November as Thanksgiving.

That, perhaps, is attributable in large measure to Sarah Hale. As editor of the Ladies Magazine in Boston and later of Godey's Lady's Book of Philadelphia, she pushed for a standard observance.

She lobbied in letters to presidents, governors and other men of influence.

Mrs. Hale wrote her crowning thanksgiving editorial in September 1863. On Oct. 3, a national proclamation, echoing much the same sentiment as her editorial, was issued by Abraham Lincoln.

Almost every president and governor has since followed Lincoln's lead, proclaiming the fourth Thursday of November as Thanksgiving.

Just one man has tried to alter the tradition. In 1939, attempting to help merchants by lengthening the Christmas shopping season, Franklin Roosevelt moved Thanksgiving ahead one week.

The change was protested and in 1941 Congress issued a resolution moving the holiday back to the fourth Thursday.

So far as can be determined, nothing but turkeys have been beheaded since the demise of the Aztecs.

Killer quake hits Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A devastating earthquake struck parts of eastern Turkey near Mt. Ararat on Wednesday. Defense Minister Ferit Melen said as many as 3,000 persons could be dead in one town alone.

The government said it had problems contacting the remote area near the Soviet and Iranian borders in the province of Van, and precise figures were hard to obtain.

Other officials said at least 574 persons had been killed.

Melen was quoted by Anadolu news agency as saying:

"Initial figures reaching us indicate 3,000 persons are dead in one township. We have found out the greatest damage is in the townships of Muradiye and Caldiran. I hope these figures are exaggerated."

Burhan Yavuz Yilmaz, deputy governor of hard-hit Van Province, said first reports listed 500 dead in Muradiye, the epicenter of the quake, 64 in the nearby town of Ercis and 10 in Diyardin. He said 95 per cent of the houses in those areas were destroyed.

Faruk Kaygisiz, director of disaster relief in Ankara, said he feared a high death toll because the joints were very strong.

The post office of Muradiye, a township with 51,000 persons, was destroyed and telephone communications with the area were broken. Soldiers were rushed into duty as rescue workers, but Yilmaz said they were hampered by a gasoline shortage. The Red Crescent, the Turkish equivalent of the Red Cross, began sending tents and blankets to the stricken region.

The tremors were also felt in the Caucasus Mountains of the Soviet Union, but no casualties or serious destruction was immediately reported on Soviet territory.

A spokeswoman for the seismological center in the Soviet Georgian capital of Tbilisi said the ground shook in the Armenian town of Leninakan, which is just over the border from Turkey.

The Kandilli Observatory in Istanbul said the quake hit at 2:25 p.m. (7:25 a.m. EST) with a magnitude of 7.9 on the Richter scale. Tremors came at half-hour intervals for two hours, the observatory said.

The Richter scale gauges the energy released by a quake in terms of ground motion recorded on a seismograph. An increase of one number on the scale, from 6.5 to 7.5 for example, indicates an increase in intensity of at least 10 times.

Quakes of magnitude 7 can cause widespread, heavy damage. The earthquake in Guatemala that took 23,000 lives early this year had readings as high as 7.5.

"It was the worst tremor (to hit Turkey) since the one that registered 7.9 in Erzurum and killed about 30,000 in 1939," the observatory said of Wednesday's tremor.

Turkish radio and television interrupted its regular programming and played only classical music in mourning for the victims.

A quake in the southeastern town of Lice last year killed 3,000 persons.

Businessmen join landowners in strike

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Businessmen and industrialists in a huge 11-state area of Mexico closed their doors today to protest the policies of President Luis Echeverria.

"Only in this way can we unmask in time those who would impose a totalitarian regime," the strike organizers said. "History will judge who loves Mexico and who intends to destroy her."

Echeverria, who finishes his six-year term next Wednesday, made no public comment on the business shutdown in 41 cities that came in the midst of the worst economic crisis in Mexico in decades. The peso, battered by rumors and mistrust, was being traded for dollars again in Mexico City after a brief suspension by the central bank.

Banks handling foreign currency gave 23 pesos for each dollar and sold a dollar for 25 pesos. Until Sept. 1 the peso had been worth 12.5 to the dollar for 22 years.

About 360 patrolmen and police riot troops guarded the monument to the revolution in downtown Mexico City. They said they were ordered to put down a demonstration but claimed they did not know who might be planning to demonstrate or when.

Stores, buses, taxis, factories and other businesses were closed in an area ranging from Sonora in the northwest to Oaxaca in the deep south. Mexico City and Guadalajara, the nation's two largest cities, were not affected.

Echeverria ordered the expropriation Friday of 243,100 acres of farm and ranch land in Sonora state. The land, the government claimed, was owned illegally by only 72 people. Mexican law says an individual man can own only 250 acres of irrigated land.

The owners had received an "amparo" from a federal court before the expropriation. An amparo forbids a specific act by the government. Echeverria and the ministry of agrarian reform ignored the amparo when they ordered the land expropriated. The protestors claim this violates the Mexican Constitution.

A farm group in Sinaloa, where poor farm workers have invaded privately held land, obtained Tuesday an amparo against expropriation of their lands.

"We cannot rest easy," said Victor Manuel Barrantes Maldonado, president of the Sinaloa association of owners of small holdings. "Even though they had an amparo in Sonora, it was violated."

The farm groups claimed the expropriated land in Sonora was legally owned by 800 people. The government has turned the land over to more than 8,000 poor farm workers. The land is to be worked in communal farms.

Carlos Sparrow, president of the Ciudad Obregon Chamber of Commerce in Sonora and one of the strike organizers, said the strike would last all day in 40 cities but only two hours in Oaxaca. He said Mexico City and Guadalajara businesses did not participate because "they have not felt the problem as keenly as have others."

It appeared the strike had a serious affect on the country but did not shut it down as tightly as the organizers wanted.

Jorge A. Chapa, president of the Monterrey Chamber of Commerce, said some factories continued to work but allowed only enough workers inside to keep their production lines flowing. They made no deliveries and took no new orders during the strike, he said.

Civic, industrial and employer organizations published an advertisement in Mexican newspapers saying "today we close."

Thanksgiving past and present

There have probably been better years in which to celebrate Thanksgiving. A sudden return to life of the inflation we thought was pretty much licked; persistently high unemployment; other dismal, or at best uncertain, economic news — all these cast long shadows over the holiday in 1976 and stretch as far as we can see into 1977.

But certainly there have been far, far worse years in which to celebrate Thanksgiving.

Consider 1621, which tradition remembers as the year of the first Thanksgiving in America. The Pilgrims had lost half their tiny band of 100 souls to disease during the terrible winter before, and although the survivors had gone on to reap a good harvest, their colony on a raw and inhospitable continent was by no means established or secure.

Yet those who remained gave thanks — not merely for their survival but for the opportunity still offered to them for building a new life in a New World for themselves and their posterity.

Or consider 1863, the year of Abraham Lincoln's Thanksgiving Proclamation, from which we date our modern obser-vanche. The nation was in the midst of the most terrible war in its history, before or since. Although there had been a great victory for the Union at Gettysburg in July, no one could foresee how many more months of bloodletting, of brother killing brother, were still to be endured. Yet the people gave thanks — not merely for mere survival but for the promise of peace and the opportunity, as Lincoln was later to phrase it, "to bind up the nation's wounds" and to join, North and South, to fashion an even stronger and more perfect Union.

True, there have been more placid years than 1976. But if anyone knows of a time when there were no crises on the horizon, when life was better for the greater number than it is today, when the future was less forbidding and more promising than it is today — when, in short, Americans had more reason to be thankful than they have today — let him step forward and we will listen to his case for calling off the holiday.

Until then, we will give thanks for our own and our country's blessings this Thanksgiving, as Americans always have, and as we always will.

"I DON'T CARE HOW MUCH THE ELECTION RESULTS PLEASED YOU... PEANUT BUTTER FOR THANKSGIVING IS A LOUSY TRICK!"

REALISM ON ENERGY OPEC oil price hike in offing

The first major problem the Carter administration will be confronted with will be an increase in oil prices.

On Dec. 15, the oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will meet in Qatar to consider a price hike.

The Iranians and Algerians, who have tremendous international balance of payments problems, want a huge increase. Saudi Arabia, which is aware of the impact of an oil price increase on Western economies, reportedly is holding firm for a smaller increase. Nevertheless, the increase in oil costs after the New Year could be between 10 and 15 percent.

The United States can survive such a price hike, but it won't be without its effects. That 10 or 15 percent is money that won't be available to the country for other purposes. It's an extra 10 or 15 percent for fuel of the budgets of homeowners, companies, colleges, hospitals, and other institutions.

Many individuals, organizations, and institutions already are hard-pressed by fuel costs. Colleges, for example, will be struck a very heavy blow. With tuition and board charges already at peak levels, they can't pass on the additional costs to students and their parents.

Obviously, an increase in oil costs will necessitate new energy saving measures of a very strict and drastic character. Homeowners will have to reduce temperatures and cut off heat in unused rooms. The same rule will apply to institutions. As the next increase in oil costs is but one of many to come in the years ahead, the upward cost curve will change our way of life.

For many small countries, another oil price hike will be disastrous. They are likely to default on debts to lenders in the Western world. This, in turn, will cause heavy damage to Western financial institutions.

With the cost of imported oil continuing to rise, the goal of energy independence for the United States is more important than ever. Unfortunately, as the price has risen, U.S. dependence on imported oil also has risen. Today, the United States is extremely vulnerable to another oil boycott.

In the campaign, President-elect Jimmy Carter won the support of many environmentalists who oppose surface mining of coal and full development of nuclear power. When he takes office, however, Mr. Carter will be confronted with the energy realities, not anti-nuclear, anti-mining myths. He will have to spell out to the American people that they have only one choice: greater dependence on increasingly expensive foreign oil, or full development of America's energy resources, including

Shaping a new Republican face

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — A Republican wheel I've known for 30 years passed me in the hall of a government building the day after election. He stopped only long enough to say forcefully "We've got to clean house in the party from top to bottom, get the old group out and a new group in, give the party a new face, a new image." Then he went on his way, with a parting shot: "And we can do it."

Despite the failure of the Republicans to improve their position in the Senate, House and in state governorships after the walloping they took in 1974, there are signs my old friend may be right. The figures, for certain, don't give much comfort to the GOP — hefty Democratic majorities in the Senate and House and in the nation's governorships. Plus, of course, a Democrat, Carter, for president.

Even more discouraging to Republicans is the evidence of what adverse voting drives by the major labor unions and black organizations can do, as well as the surprising turnout of rural voters for Jimmy Carter in many sections of the country.

Nevertheless, the evidence of this election is that when Republicans put up outstanding candidates for Congress or for governorships they were elected more often than not, even in states which gave Carter a majority.

The Republican statisticians calculate too that Carter's 1.7 million vote majority was more than accounted for in nine states — Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia and the District of Columbia — where Carter piled up a 1.9 million advantage.

The total vote in the other 41 states taken as a whole gave a majority to President Ford. His losses in some were more than compensated for by wins in others.

These same statisticians note that a gain of a few thousand votes in Ohio plus a similar gain in Hawaii, would have put Mr. Ford in the White House for another four years.

But if the election indicated a bastion of Carter - Democratic strength in the South, it gave an equally clear promise of Republican hope in the West and continued strength in most of New England. A north-south line down the center of the United States dramatically illustrates a straight victory for President Ford on the Pacific side, except for Texas and Hawaii — but including Alaska.

These were the same states, conservative Republicans claim, that went so heavily for Ronald Reagan in the primaries.

Not all Republicans won in these Western states by any means, as not all Democrats won in the South or in major cities of the North where labor union and black voting were strong factors. But the feeling among Republican strategists is that the base is there for the building.

The Republicans gained hope too in what they see as the gradual splintering away of chunks of the sizeable Catholic and Jewish vote from traditional allegiance to the Democratic Party.

Rightly or wrongly, the Republicans see the Democratic Southern victory as more a victory for Carter the Southerner, than for Carter the Democrat.

Some influential GOP strategists believe that Carter would not have won if he had come from a northern state. If area pride did in fact give a major advantage to Carter, they ask themselves if that same factor would be so influential in future elections.

Whether that new Republican face will be more conservative or more middle-of-the-road shapes up as the major battle ahead, as it was in the Reagan-Ford contest for the nomination.

Capital Comedy

Carter doesn't expect to take a vacation the first few months. He'll relax in the Rose Garden pitching horseshoes.

Ford called Nixon after the election to cancel their second anniversary dinner of the pardon.

There's no truth to the rumor that the Secret Service men must help Amy Carter with her homework.

Now we know what Carter carries around in that garment bag. It was Rosalyn's home-made peanut brittle.

Nixon phoned Dole to congratulate him on winning the Nixon look-alike contest.

Congress will be very careful about phony travel vouchers. No side trips to investigate foreign massage parlors.

Imagine how much the government could save if it redid its offices with combination coffee-and-slot machines.

Every cabinet nominee is being checked by the FBI. Top priority will be their church attendance records.

The GOP is looking for a conservative leader. He must promise to repeal the Louisiana Purchase.

There's talk that Ford should run for congress. He still has all those WIN buttons.

With so many young members in congress, Amy Carter won't have to look for playmates.

Hillsdale fights to stay free

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
HILLSDALE, Mich. — America has more famous educational institutions than Hillsdale College, a small liberal arts college in southern Michigan, but none more important. Indeed, the future of private, independent higher education in the United States very much depends on Hillsdale's current resistance to federal encroachment on its academic independence.

While countless other colleges and universities have accepted federal funds and federal controls, Hillsdale has declined to accept the former and is firmly resisting the latter. To be specific, Hillsdale is the only college or university in the country to refuse on principle to comply with the quota requirements and other edicts issued by the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

Because of the stand it has taken in defense of academic freedom, Hillsdale today is a symbol of resistance to the bureaucratic power that menaces freedom in the United States.

In addressing a Hillsdale seminar on the prospects for the future, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, a Hillsdale trustee, described the bureaucracy as a "Frankenstein monster, fusing legislative and judicial functions." He said that the bureaucracy is "working in outright, open, blatant defiance of the will of Congress." He termed the federal bureaucracy "a fourth branch of government." It is against this vast, faceless force that Hillsdale has to contend.

Under the strong leadership of its president, Dr. George C. Roche III, Hillsdale has become a formidable contender on behalf of the cause of freedom. The HEW bureaucracy may regret that it targeted Hillsdale.

Aside from its basic task of educating approximately 1,000 students, who gain a keen insight into free market economics and other important aspects of our national heritage, Hillsdale offers programs that attract distinguished American and European scholars for a variety of special seminars, conferences, and lectures on crucial issues of public policy. The exciting ideas generated at Hillsdale by visiting scholars, journalists, and men of business reach a national audience, thereby giving the small college a remarkable impact on social and intellectual trends.

In the course of a few years, Hillsdale has become a key institution for those who study freedom issues and who are engaged in defense of freedom in American society. Increasingly, the business community appreciates Hillsdale as a bastion of free enterprise thought. The role of Hillsdale is growing as a gathering place and forum for those who are fighting collectivism and socialist repression in America.

In considering the role of Hillsdale, one is reminded of the special function performed by small communities of scholars in the so-called Dark Ages. Actually, the late 20th century may be much darker than the 7th or 8th centuries. In any case, if freedom and other civilized values are to survive totalitarian and bureaucratic pressures, these values must be studied and nurtured in small academic centers which are genuinely independent.

Hillsdale College is striving to remain independent, and to help make freedom issues better understood by Americans generally. The college deserves the respect and support of a national constituency, for it is engaged in an educational work that is truly vital to the nation.

Youth apathy 'not their fault'

By DORIAN FALK
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Young people are disenchanted and apathetic about their jobs because of poor working conditions and a negative attitude toward youth by employers and fellow workers, the International Labor Organization said Wednesday.

It said that "if a major proportion of the young find themselves incapable of accepting conditions of life and work offered by society, it is these conditions which should be questioned, not the attitude of youth."

The age range involved is 19 to 24. The statement was in a new ILO study on work problems of the young, excerpts of which were published by the headquarters of the U.N. specialized agency.

It said the need for a comprehensive inquiry into the question is indicated by the fact that between 30 and 50 per cent of the unemployed in industrialized countries, and up to 60 per cent in some developing lands today are young people.

Since 1972, the study said, the young unemployed have tended to stay out of work longer than adults, an "alarming" reversal from previous years. It suggests new measures to alleviate joblessness among the young.

These include creation of small cottage industries, especially in rural areas, and a change of the attitude of employers who often reserve "particularly dirty or monotonous tasks for young workers."

The study said youthful disenchantment toward jobs can be traced to the "breakdown between expectation and reality. Young people invariably enter employment hoping to play a full, adult role, but older workers tend to guard their preserve jealously."

For various reasons the young also become so apathetic toward their work "that they are forced to separate radically their living from their work."

The result, the study says, is higher absenteeism and "a tendency to switch from job to job with no real professional interest."

"One of the most disconcerting trends is the lack of interest shown by the young for manual jobs in industry. This may be because technological innovations render job security less certain, because jobs are over-rated, or because an individual enjoys great freedom in his private life, whereas work is still organized on authoritarian, hierarchical lines."

Many of these problems can be traced to employers' negative attitudes toward youth, the study said, citing reticence to employ young workers, lower salaries, ignoring the young in promotion, and failure to grant them a say in decision-making.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Moist air and cloudiness swept north off the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday, promising rain and mild temperatures Thanksgiving Day for much of South Texas.

Light rain pelted the Golden Triangle area of Southeast Texas, west across South Texas and into the Rio Grande Valley. Mild temperatures in the 60s and low 70s covered much of Texas although Panhandle areas had readings in the 40s.

Temperatures at noon ranged from 71 degrees at Brownsville to 40 at Lubbock.

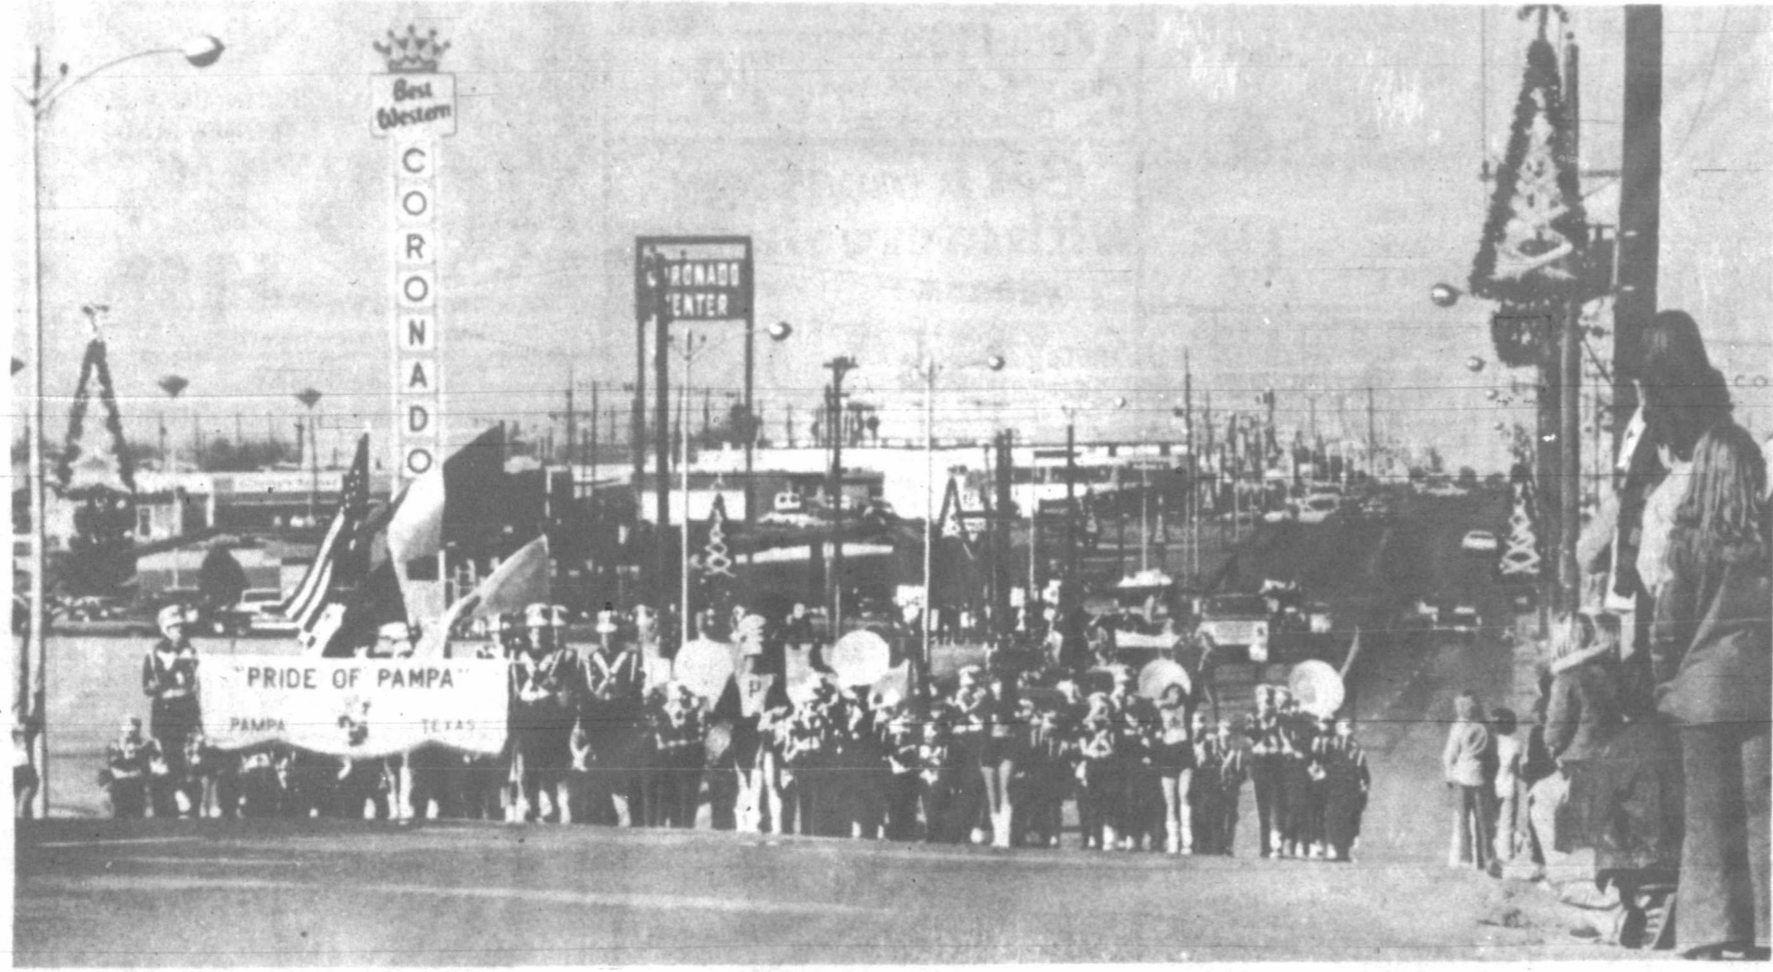

Weathermen said clear to partly cloudy skies will dominate northern and western areas of the state Thursday while cloudiness and light rain are expected across South Texas.

Little or no change in temperatures is expected.

Banker may get top job

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — A spokesman for President-elect Jimmy Carter said today Georgia banker Bert Lance almost certainly will be assigned a high post in the Carter administration, possibly as secretary of the Treasury.

The spokesman added, however, that Carter has made "no final decision" on what position Lance would occupy.

Pride practices

Among the hundreds who participated in the Thanksgiving-Christmas parade Tuesday in Pampa were members of the Pride of Pampa Band. Their next parade most likely will be the two in which they will compete in Ireland in March, over in Limerick and one in Dublin on St. Patrick's Day.

San Francisco suffers crime outbreak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "There are no safe neighborhoods any more," Mayor George Moscone declared Wednesday as city officials rushed to implement a $1.7 million emergency plan to stem a sudden series of violent crimes on the streets of San Francisco.

The same morning that Moscone announced the emergency plan, a New York cab driver touring San Francisco on vacation was shot for no apparent reason at a busy downtown intersection in morning daylight.

"You don't have this type of violence in New York City," said Bernard Ostrager, 55, recovering Wednesday from a bullet wound in his leg. "Oh sure, you get robbed, or maybe shot or knifed if you resist. But you don't hear about somebody shooting you out of the blue."

In Pacific Heights, a well-to-do neighborhood near the San Francisco Bay, wealthy insurance executive Edwin T. Golden, 66, was shot to death near his home Saturday by two youths who demanded money.

Golden's shooting to another slaying last week in a "quiet" neighborhood, but police say they have no suspects in the killings or in the Ostrager shooting.

Banking officials won't talk about Starr County failure

By MILLER H. BONNER JR.

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — A grand jury investigating the failure of Starr County's only bank was disappointed Wednesday when state and federal banking officials failed to testify before a special session of the grand jury.

with the grand jury in Rio Grande City Wednesday morning. "We are trying to investigate the reasons behind the bank being closed, but state officials say they can't testify before a grand jury whose proceedings are secret."

In Austin, Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill released a statement which said the trio "couldn't respond to the subpoenas because state and federal law prevents them from revealing confidential information relating to their work."

Pete Diaz, a wealthy Rio Grande City resident who heads a local group trying to purchase the bank, met with the grand jury for about 35 minutes.

Separated again

The Jimmy Carter's have gone their separate ways again, this time to different lands. Rosalynn, with Henry Kissinger, will attend the inauguration of President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico at the invitation of Mrs. Portillo. Meanwhile, her husband, who will become president Jan. 20 is planning strategy to reduce unemployment and attain a higher rate of economic growth in the country.

Italian city employs women as bodyguards

TURIN, Italy (AP) — They know judo and karate, are fast with guns and willing to tackle just about anyone. Some dress elegantly and carry handbags containing lipstick, nail polish — and Colt-38s.

They are women bodyguards — 24 in all — employed in this north Italian city by Mondialpol, a private organization providing security and escort services for businesses and the wealthy.

"It is a peculiar, hard job, but I like it," says Tamara Chierighin, an attractive 25-year-old Venetian woman, married and the mother of a child. A three-year veteran she was one of the first women enrolled by Mondialpol.

As with most women starting an unusual career, she faced opposition from her family and her fiancé.

"They did not absolutely accept the idea I could become a private detective. My fiancé was particularly critical. Now he is my husband and no longer criticizes my decision," Tamara said.

The women at Mondialpol, the only Italian organization with women detectives, specialize in anti-theft activities in department stores and supermarkets. The women also act as escorts for bank vans and for wealthy women who prefer a body guard who looks like a woman friend when they go shopping.

"It looked like a crazy idea when I decided to hire women as bodyguards," says Giorgio Calleri, boss of Mondialpol, Italy's largest private police organization, employing 1,350 detectives.

Calleri said his advertisement in the major Italian newspapers drew a surprising 700 applications from girls seeking a really new career.

"After special aptitude tests and training we selected 24 women detectives. They are especially good against shoplifting in supermarkets and department stores since they can easily be mistaken for regular customers. But they can do everything else, such as escort bank cash and serve as bodyguards of wealthy businessmen," Calleri claims.

The women detectives are paid $400 a month, nearly the same as their male colleagues and have the same social benefits as Italian women workers.

Rep.-elect released

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep.-elect Joe F. Robbins, R-Lubbock, and his brother, John Edward Robbins, were released on personal recognizance

Wednesday after being charged with public intoxication. Both entered pleas of innocent before a municipal judge.

Dear Abby

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: It's Thanksgiving again. (So soon?) A few years ago I wrote a column especially for Thanksgiving. It was so well received that I was asked to repeat it, and now it's become almost a tradition. And here it is again, with a few minor changes.

On this Thanksgiving day, take a few minutes to think about what you have to be thankful for.

How's your health? Not so good? Well, thank God you've lived this long. A lot of people haven't. You're hurting? Thousands—maybe millions—are hurting more. (Have you ever visited a veterans' hospital? Or a rehabilitation clinic for crippled children?)

If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds sing, use your vocal chords to utter human sounds, walk to the breakfast table on two good legs and read the newspaper with two good eyes, praise the Lord! A lot of people couldn't.

How's your pocketbook? Thin? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight.

Are you lonely? The way to have a friend is to BE one. If nobody calls you, call them. Go out of your way to do something nice for somebody. It's a sure cure for the blues.

Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern. Concern for honesty in government, concern for peace and concern for fair play under the law. Your country may not be a rose garden, but it also is not a patch of weeds.

Freedom rings! Look and listen. You can still worship at the church of your choice, cast a secret ballot and even criticize your government without fearing a knock on the head or a knock on the door at midnight! And if you want to live under a different system, you are free to go. There are no walls or fences—nothing to keep you here.

As a final thought, I'll repeat my Thanksgiving Prayer: O, heavenly Father: We thank Thee for food and remember the hungry.

We thank Thee for health and remember the sick.

We thank Thee for friends and remember the friendless.

We thank Thee for freedom and remember the enslaved.

May these remembrances stir us to service

That Thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen.

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving and may God bless you and yours.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A relative in his 60s has pulmonary fibrosis. His doctor tells us that X rays show that he has only 25 per cent of normal lung capacity left. He takes prednisone and carries nitroglycerine tablets. He has had chest pains that certainly seemed to be heart attacks, but the EKG didn't show this to be so.

He tries to get around and do little things at home but gets so utterly fatigued it hurts to see him keep trying.

Is there any more to be done to help him?

DEAR READER — The replacement of normal lung tissue with nonfunctioning fibrous tissue literally decreases a person's ability to provide oxygen to the body. Remember that oxygen is needed to enable the cells to break down foods to release energy. The amount of energy released to the body is totally dependent upon the availability of oxygen. Lack of oxygen because of disease of the lungs, anemia or problems in circulation all cause fatigue.

The fibrous changes can be caused by a variety of different conditions. The most common form is thought to be related to the "immune diseases." That means the body's immune mechanism has gone haywire and produces a reaction — somewhat like an allergic response — to some part of the body, in this case the lungs. The reaction damages lung tissues which are replaced by fibrous tissues.

The treatment is unsatisfactory, but the use of hormones as in your relative's case is the usual approach. The chest pains may be related to his lung disease rather than the heart. Since his doctor wants him to have nitroglycerine tablets let me remind you that he should keep them fresh. Keep the main bottle tightly sealed, and inside the refrigerator. He should not use any pills that have been out of the bottle in the refrigerator for more than a week. They will be useless.

To give you a better idea of lung function I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-4, Keeping Your Lungs Fit. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10018.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a man of 59, in perfect health. My blood pressure is 130 over 80 and I am thinking of marriage with a 28 year old woman. She is as desirous of children as I am. My question is, since my health is A-OK, would you say that there is any reason why I could not sire healthy children, assuming the woman is also in perfect health?

Some people have told me that there is a danger of mongoloid children being born to parents where one, or both is older than 40. Is there any truth to that?

DEAR READER — Congratulations. I wouldn't worry about the Down's syndrome (mongoloid) problem. There is some evidence that the chances of this occurring are greater in older women, but these figures do not apply to men. Specifically, in women less than 30 years of age this occurs in 1 in 2000 births and in women over 45 it occurs in one in 50 births.

A female has all the ova or cells that form ova in her body at the time of her birth. In a sense the older a woman becomes the older will be the cells used for pregnancy. The sperm cells in males are constantly newly generated cells. As long as the male is able to produce a sufficient number of healthy sperm cells his age should not be a factor in the health of the offspring.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that so many packaged foods contain so much salt. It is a wonder more of us do not have high blood pressure. I find this true of canned soups, chips, weiners, some brands of bacon, etc. — you just name it. It seems the FDA would do something about this. — LEA.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is to help wheelchair patients keep their lap robes over their feet to keep them and the backs of their legs covered. Sew a strip of soft cloth across one end of the back of the robe. Stitch together at each end and across the bottom. I also make another seam down the middle to make two big pockets for the feet. — DAVIE.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook. If she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

Hardships of colonial life

Some struggles were at home

EDITOR'S NOTE — During the Revolution, colonial life was a struggle for survival, for man or woman, whether on the home front or the battle front. This is an account of struggles at home.

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If England was a nation of shopkeepers, America was a nation of farmers. Ninety per cent of Americans lived off the land in 1776, succeeding only because all the energies and abilities of each family member were as closely knit as an argyle sock.

It was a life of hand-hewn labor that never ceased, only changed with the seasons. For the man, field and forest; for the woman, kitchen and child-rearing. The family was the atom at the core of the country. Together, the atoms formed a whole precariously American.

Life was hard and short. In 1775 life expectancy at birth was 34 years for males, 36 for females. But time was not a tick-tock; rather it passed by nature's clock — seed, till, harvest; shear, spin, sew — hours marked only by the sun's passage across the noon groove chiseled in the door sill.

Dark meant sleep; winter hibernation.

John Adams's escape from the New England winter was to wish he could sleep like a dormouse from the first frost to the first crocus. Instead, there was firewood to be cut, candles to be made from tallow, and other chores.

It was a gloomy time after nightfall. The average family groped about in the flickering light from the hearth or a burning knot of pitch pine until crawling between a muslin sheet and corn shock mattress to await the dawn.

In winter that was the only place to be. John Rowe wrote of his ink freezing as he filled out his diary. Even the sap ozing out of the end of the great log on the hearth frequently turned to ice. Franklin, wearied of being "almost smoked to bacon" in front of the hearth, invented his metal stove, but even when fully stoked, it could not raise the temperature above a dubious 58 degrees.

The only breakthrough was the making of better privies, also known as houses of office, houses of ease or necessary houses. The necessary of Col. and Mrs. Joseph Webb in Wethersfield, Conn., was called Hospitality Hall and was fitted with a semi-circle of accommodations.

Public duty reflected the basics of private life. Every town had its hog reeve (and some still do, the honor deemed the equivalent of a colony in Kentucky) who kept the pigs from running wild in pastures and saw to it their ears were clipped to identify the owner.

Hay-wards turned other animals out of the fields and fined offending owners. Fence-viewers supervised fence repairs.

In winter everyone was expected to help plow the roads, the first path cleared being to the tavern, followed by the school, doctor's home and finally the meeting-house.

Group spirit extended far from the village. Besides the various bees and barn raisings, there were log-rollings when the neighborhood men spent all day undercutting trees and then felling a giant in hopes it would knock down all the rest, a progenitor of the domino theory.

Women married ere puberty was hardly over and began child-bearing in their mid or late teens. Husbands were scarcely older.

A Virginian said that "an Old Maid ... among us (is) reckoned as ominous as a Blazing Star." At one time single men in Maryland and Pennsylvania were taxed, and Connecticut authorities forbade bachelors to live alone and assigned them quarters.

The vast majority of women were raised from the crib to be replicas of their mothers. They were taught to read, said Franklin, "and perhaps write their Name or So, and that is the Height of a Woman's Education." A young Connecticut girl recorded a day's activity in 1775:

"Fix'd gown for Prude. — Mend Mother's Riding-hood — spun short thread ... Carded tow. — Spun linen. — Worked on Cheesebasket. — Hatched'd flax with Hannah ... Pleated and ironed. — Read a Sermon of Doddridge's. — Spooled a piece. — Milked the cows. — Spun linen, did 50 knots. — Made a Broom of Guinea wheat straw — Spun thread to whiten. — Set a Red dye ... I carded two pounds of whole wool ... Spun harness twine. — Scoured the pewter."

Once married, child-bearing joined the list of chores. Pretty young girls who could "talk saucily" to Hessian soldiers quickly aged from too frequent pregnancies. Calcium was literally drained from their bodies, rotting their teeth. A common folk saying was "one child, one tooth."

Mother's unresting place in this world was, of course, the kitchen. The cavernous colonial fireplaces were both furnace and stove and the cook was often burned along with the meat. The fire was set up with a huge backlog of foot in diameter that might burn a week. The fire was laid between that and a smaller forestick. Pots were hung from notched trammels, and meat was turned on a spit or boiled in a pot. Dutch ovens were used for baking, the bricks first heated by a fire to turn off the carbon which was then removed from the bread inserted.

One ingenious way of turning a roast was to suspend it from two strings which were twisted tightly and then allowed to unwind. When the meat stopped turning, one of the children would it up again. Often meat was smoked by hanging it in the flue, a process called barbecue in the West Indies. It survives as "barbecue."

You can prepare a steamed pudding for a holiday meal well ahead and store it in refrigerator or freezer. Reheat it over boiling water and serve with a pudding sauce.

Plump raisins and add them to tiny white onions braised in butter; serve with meat, poultry or fish.

The Vanderbilt signature

Gloria Vanderbilt has executed some more designs, this time of silk scarves at a cost of about $12. The design above is rose, putty, green and blue. Another design, with intermingling stripes, plaids and other motifs associated with Vanderbilt, is offered in turquoise, grey, beige and coral. The artist and fashion figure is known for her mixture of fantasy and softness, fashion's newest moods.

Hostess creates variety with sausage

Chefs William Jaeger and Robert Dimoff have created an international sausage buffet especially with the busy holiday hostess in mind. In selecting such world-wide favorites as bratwurst, salami, thuringer, frankfurters, bologna and ham, they have combined the warmth of Old World hospitality with the appeal of hearty party food that tastes just as good cold as warm.

The variety and versatility of sausage provides every hostess with the ideal basic ingredients for developing unusual and tasty party foods. Best of all, sausage products are economically priced year around and frequently receive special pricing during holidays.

Start off your hors d'oeuvre lineup with coconut coated Crispy Puffs and easy-to-make Hot Dog En Croute, speared on colorful toothpicks. As a party highlight, plan a Macedoine of Meat Fondue where guests can dunk chunks of smoked thuringer, canadian ham or soft salami in a blending of wine, cheddar and Swiss cheese fondue.

Crispy Puff Ups
one-third pound bratwurst one-third pound smoked thuringer one-third pound polish sausage

$\frac{1}{4}$  cup flour
2 eggs
 $\frac{1}{4}$  cup milk
2 cups shredded coconut
1 quart salad oil
Cut sausages at an angle into  $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch slices. Blend eggs and milk in a small bowl. Dip sausages in water; dust with flour and then dip into egg-milk mixture. Drain for a few seconds. Coat with coconut. Fry in 2 inches of salad oil heated to 350 degrees until crisp and golden. Serve with catsup, horseradish or chutney butter. Make your own chutney butter by mixing equal parts chutney with mayonnaise. Yield: Approximately 20 to 24.

Hot Dog En Croute

8 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 teaspoons mustard
4 teaspoons piccalilli
16 cocktail franks
16 toothpicks
16 frilled toothpicks
Spread mayonnaise, mustard and piccalilli on each slice of bread. Place 2 cocktail franks on each slice of bread and roll up. Place seam down on a greased baking pan and secure with toothpicks. Broil until bread is evenly browned. Remove toothpicks. Place 4 frilled toothpicks equally spaced on each roll. Slice between each pick to make 4 equal pieces. Serve with your favorite dip. Yield: 32 appetizers.

Macedoine of Meat Fondue
1 pound shredded Swiss cheese
6 ounces shredded cheddar cheese
4 tablespoons flour
2 dashes Tabasco

 $\frac{1}{2}$  pound smoked thuringer (cut one-third-inch slices)
 $\frac{1}{2}$  pound cocktail franks
Combine all ingredients except the sausages in a saucepan. Blend over medium heat, stirring constantly until all cheese is melted. Do not boil. Transfer into fondue pot and keep warm. MORNING COFFEE
Coconut Crumb Bars
Coffee

COCONUT CRUMB BARS
Easy to make, easy to serve.
3/4 cup butter or margarine
3/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 eggs
1 package (12 ounces) vanilla wafers, very finely crushed (about 3 1/4 cups crumbs)
1 can (3 1/2 ounces) flaked coconut
1 cup finely chopped walnuts

In the large bowl of the electric mixer, cream butter, sugar and vanilla. At low speed, beat in eggs, one at a time, alternately with crumbs. With a rubber spatula, fold in the coconut and nuts. Turn into a well-greased 9 by 9 by 2 inch cake pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 50 minutes. Cool in pan on wire rack for about 10 minutes; cut into bars.

Mix tuna with just enough mayonnaise to moisten; spoon into the taco shells and top with the remaining ingredients in the order given.

HOLIDAY BRUNCH
Bloody Marys Nuts
Turkey Hash Mushrooms
Hot Biscuits Coffee

RUTH ELLEN CHURCH'S BLOODY MARYS
We found these had plenty of zip made with plain tomato juice.

1 pint vodka
1 quart spicy tomato juice
5 ounces lemon juice
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

1 tablespoon powdered sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Stir together and chill. Makes 10 five-ounce servings. From the fine new book, "Entertaining with Wine" by Ruth Ellen Church (Rand McNally).

BACON-CHEESE SPOONBREAD
The bacon may be omitted if you like.

3 cups milk
1/2 cup white hominy grits
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 pound grated (medium-fine) sharp cheddar cheese
6 slices bacon, cut into 1-inch crosswise pieces and cooked until crisp
6 large eggs, separated
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

In a medium saucepan scald the milk; gradually stir in the grits; cook gently, covered and stirring often, for about 25 minutes. Stir in well the butter, cheese and bacon. Vigorously stir in egg yolks, one at a time, then baking powder. Beat egg whites, and salt to soft-peak stage. Stir a large spoonful of the whites into the grits mixture; fold in remaining whites. Turn into an ungreased 2 to 2 1/2-quart souffle dish. Place in a pan of hot water that comes up 1-inch high around dish. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a knife inserted in center comes out clean — 75 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Curry Zucchini Soup

Mocha Cake Beverage

RUTH CONRAD BATEMAN'S CURRY ZUCCHINI SOUP
One of the most successful recipes we have tried.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large onion, chopped
1 apple, peeled, cored and chopped
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 quart chicken broth
1/4 cup uncooked white rice
2 cups diced, unpeeled zucchini (2 to 3 medium)
1/2 teaspoon salt, or to taste
1 cup milk
1/4 cup heavy cream (optional)
1 tablespoon thinly sliced natural skin almonds, toasted

Heat butter in heavy saucepan or soup kettle. Add onions and apples and cook, stirring frequently, until they are soft. Sprinkle with curry powder, and stir and cook a few seconds. Pour in the chicken broth. Heat to boiling, drop in rice and zucchini. Season with salt (the amount depends on the saltiness of the broth). Cover pan and simmer until rice and zucchini are soft and tender, about 30 minutes. Pour into blender (in 2 batches, if necessary), and whirl until smooth. Return to pan and add milk. Heat until flavors blend. Taste and adjust seasonings as needed. Stir in cream, if used, just before serving. Ladle into warm bowls and top each with a few almond slices. Makes 4 to 5 servings. From "The Zucchini and Carrot Cookbook" by Ruth Conrad Bateman (Ward Ritchie Press, California, 1976).

AFTER-HOLIDAY SUPPER
Hot Turkey Sandwiches
Spicy Red Slaw

SPICY RED SLAW
Make ahead so flavors will blend, then reheat.

2 1/2-pound red cabbage, shredded
1 cup chicken bouillon
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Medium green apple, pared and coarsely chopped
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
Small stick cinnamon
2 cloves
Salt and pepper to taste

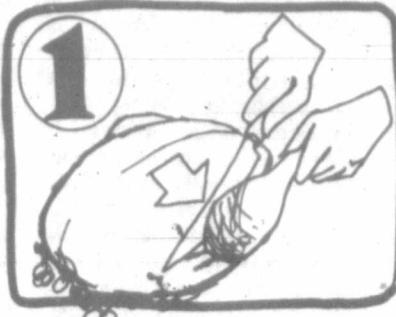

Bring the cabbage, bouillon and butter to a boil; simmer, covered and stirring occasionally, for 1 hour. Add remaining ingredients and simmer, covered, for 20 to 30 minutes longer. Makes 9 servings.

MEATLESS SUPPER
Hungarian Noodles
Green Beans Salad Bowl

PHYLLIS HENDERSON'S HUNGARIAN NOODLES
4 ounces (2 1/2 cups) fine egg noodles
1 cup sour cream
1 cup creamstyle cottage cheese
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Tabasco sauce to taste
1 tablespoon poppy seeds
Paprika
Grated Parmesan cheese

Cook the noodles according to package directions — this will be 5 or 6 minutes only, do not overcook. Drain. Fold in the remaining ingredients except the paprika and Parmesan. Turn into a buttered 1 1/2-quart glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 1 1/2 inches); sprinkle with paprika; bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve very hot; pass the Parmesan. Makes 6 servings.

Carving directions

1. Grasp drumstick. Place knife between thigh and body of turkey and cut through skin to joint. Remove entire leg by pulling out and back, using point of knife to disjoint it. Separate thigh and drumstick at joint.

2. Insert fork into upper wing to steady turkey. With knife, make a long cut above wing joint through to body frame. If desired, wing can be disjointed from body.

3. Slice straight down with an even stroke, beginning half way up the breast. When knife reaches cut above wing bone, slice will fall free.

4. Continue slicing white meat by starting cut at higher point each time until crest of bone is reached.

Easy on energy, delight for guests

Getting through the holidays with energy left to enjoy them takes good planning. One help is to choose recipes that make few demands on the cook whenever possible. An example could be cheesy mushroom puffs. To make them preheat oven to 375 degrees. In a small bowl blend 3 ounces cream cheese, a 2-oz. can mushrooms which have been drained and chopped, 2 tablespoons chopped pimento, 1 teaspoon instant minced onion or a tablespoon chopped onion and 2 drops Tabasco pepper sauce. Separate one 8-oz. can refrigerator crescent dinner rolls into four rectangles, press perforations to seal. Spread each with about 1 tablespoon mushroom mixture. Starting at longer side, roll up; seal. Cut each into six pieces. Roll in one-third cup finely chopped nuts. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm. This makes 24 appetizer puffs.

MORNING COFFEE
Coconut Crumb Bars
Coffee

COCONUT CRUMB BARS
Easy to make, easy to serve.
3/4 cup butter or margarine
3/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 eggs
1 package (12 ounces) vanilla wafers, very finely crushed (about 3 1/2 cups crumbs)
1 can (3 1/2 ounces) flaked coconut
1 cup finely chopped walnuts

In the large bowl of the electric mixer, cream butter, sugar and vanilla. At low speed, beat in eggs, one at a time, alternately with crumbs. With a rubber spatula, fold in the coconut and nuts. Turn into a well-greased 9 by 9 by 2 inch cake pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 50 minutes. Cool in pan on wire rack for about 10 minutes; cut into bars.

Curry Zucchini Soup
Broiled Chicken Potatoes
Salad Bowl Bread Tray
Mocha Cake Beverage

RUTH CONRAD BATEMAN'S CURRY ZUCCHINI SOUP
One of the most successful recipes we have tried.
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large onion, chopped
1 apple, peeled, cored and chopped
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 quart chicken broth
1/4 cup uncooked white rice
2 cups diced, unpeeled zucchini (2 to 3 medium)
1/2 teaspoon salt, or to taste
1 cup milk
1/4 cup heavy cream (optional)
1 tablespoon thinly sliced natural skin almonds, toasted

Heat butter in heavy saucepan or soup kettle. Add onions and apples and cook, stirring frequently, until they are soft. Sprinkle with curry powder, and stir and cook a few seconds. Pour in the chicken broth. Heat to boiling, drop in rice and zucchini. Season with salt (the amount depends on the saltiness of the broth). Cover pan and simmer until rice and zucchini are soft and tender, about 30 minutes. Pour into blender (in 2 batches, if necessary) and whirl until smooth. Return to pan and add milk. Heat until flavors blend. Taste and adjust seasonings as needed. Stir in cream, if used, just before serving. Ladle into warm bowls and top each with a few almond slices. Makes 4 to 5 servings. Mix tuna with just enough mayonnaise to moisten; spoon into the taco shells and top with the remaining ingredients in the order given.

HOLIDAY BRUNCH
Bloody Marys Nuts
Hot Biscuits Coffee

RUTH ELLEN CHURCH'S BLOODY MARYS
We found these had plenty of zip made with plain tomato juice.
1 pint vodka
1 quart spicy tomato juice
5 ounces lemon juice
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon powdered sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon celery salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

BACON-CHEESE SPOONBREAD
The bacon may be omitted if you like.
3 cups milk
3/4 cup white hominy grits
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 pound grated (medium-fine) sharp cheddar cheese
6 slices bacon, cut into 1-inch crosswise pieces and cooked until crisp
6 large eggs, separated
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

In a medium saucepan scald the milk; gradually stir in the grits; cook gently, covered and stirring often, for about 25 minutes. Stir in well the butter, cheese and bacon. Vigorously stir in egg yolks, one at a time, then baking powder. Beat egg whites and salt to soft-peak stage. Stir a large spoonful of the whites into the grits mixture; fold in remaining whites. Turn into an ungreased 2 to 2 1/2-quart souffle dish. Place in a pan of hot water that comes up 1-inch high around dish. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a knife inserted in center comes out clean — 75 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Tabasco sauce to taste
1 tablespoon poppy seeds
Grated Parmesan cheese

Cook the noodles according to package directions — this will be 5 or 6 minutes only, do not overcook. Drain. Fold in the remaining ingredients except the paprika and Parmesan. Turn into a buttered 1 1/2-quart glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 1 1/2 inches); sprinkle with paprika; bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve very hot; pass the Parmesan. Makes 6 servings.

Easy on energy, delight for guests

Carving directions

1. Grasp drumstick. Place knife between thigh and body of turkey and cut through skin to joint. Remove entire leg by pulling out and back, using point of knife to disjoint it. Separate thigh and drumstick at joint.

2. Insert fork into upper wing to steady turkey. With knife, make a long cut above wing joint through to body frame. If desired, wing can be disjointed from body.

3. Slice straight down with an even stroke, beginning half way up the breast. When knife reaches cut above wing bone, slice will fall free.

4. Continue slicing white meat by starting cut at higher point each time until crest of bone is reached.

On the light side

LONDON (AP) — Whenever Battersea fire chief David Callingham jumps on a fire tender leaving for a blaze, his men jump off, hang up their helmets and march into the restroom.

When he is on duty, the south London fire station is declared nonoperational and emergencies are covered by neighboring fire crews.

For five months firemen have refused to work or talk to Callingham because of what they called his fixation about spit and polish, drills and insistence on washing fire tenders at the "wrong time."

The Fire Brigades Union upheld the complaints against Callingham. But the Greater London Council turned down the union's demand that he be removed from a supervisory post, saying he was being "psychologically tortured" by his men.

Callingham, 31, handed in his resignation Tuesday, announcing he was emigrating to New Zealand.

NORWICH, N.Y. (AP) — This upstate village's curfew law was declared unconstitutional because it says what time kids have to be home but doesn't say when they can go out again.

The law bans children under 17 from streets and other public places after 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and after midnight Friday and Saturday unless accompanied by an adult.

"Parents and minors are not given fair notice of when children are permitted to return to the streets," a three-judge panel said Tuesday in throwing out the statute. "The lack of termination time renders the ordinance susceptible to arbitrary, capricious and erratic enforcement and therefore it is unconstitutional."

$1,000 check turns into $2.3 million

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A woman who says she's grateful to Oklahoma City has invested $1,000 so the city can reap a $2.3 million dividend for the nation's Tricentennial in 2076.

Esther Stuewe, who moved from Oklahoma to Slinger, Wis., with her husband in 1947, told the city council on Tuesday about the unusual gift.

"I've always wanted to do something as a memorial for John and Neacie Snider (her parents)," said Mrs. Stuewe, now a widow. "Maybe this is a good way."

She told the astonished council that a computer check showed that the $1,000, invested in a certificate of deposit at 7 1/2 per cent interest compounded daily, would double every 100 months and be worth about $2.3 million in 100 years.

That amount will be available to the city in the year 2076. Mrs. Stuewe said — with a few stipulations. At least 10 per cent of the funds must be used "for the city's senior citizens" at the time of the Tricentennial. And $3,000 must be reinvested for the next 100 years.

The perpetual fund should ensure a celebration for Oklahoma City's citizens "as long as there is a city," she said.

Mrs. Stuewe said her parents married in Arkansas and moved in 1912 to Oklahoma City, where they raised 22 children. Two of the children still live here.

Mrs. Stuewe said she and her brothers and sisters were grateful to the city because their father had asked for free tuition to the schools in 1924, and the city agreed.

"They figured we were better off with some education than without it. Of course, we agreed," she added.

75 arraignments are schedules for December

An estimated 75 criminal arraignments in Gray County Court are set for Dec. 2, 6, 9, and 13, according to Gray County Judge Don Cain.

Other arraignments will be scheduled as required, he said. The docket for both criminal and civil cases is scheduled for 10 a.m. Jan. 17 to set cases for jury trials.

Motions in jury trial cases will be heard on Jan. 21.

In 1960 two-thirds of Americans lived in rural areas. Now less than 10 per cent are considered rural.

thought he'd be filling out an accident report as he approached an apparently disabled car on the bridge's toll plaza.

Instead he was dispatched for oxygen and blankets Tuesday as Yuk Tung Kwan gave birth to a five-pound, four-ounce boy in the back seat.

Mrs. Tung's sister and brother-in-law had successfully scanned license plates in the heavy traffic for the MD designation and flagged down Dr. Dante Gismondi, who was on his way to the New York Medical College-Metropolitan Hospital.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Hidden 29 years in a cavernous hangar, Howard Hughes' giant wooden flying boat, the Spruce Goose, is back in the public eye — and government officials say they may even try to take it aloft.

The late billionaire's Summa Corp., the conglomerate that runs Hughes' empire, released a series of photographs of the plane Tuesday, including one taken in 1947 showing Hughes talking to technicians inside the big machine.

It was the first public glance at the plane since it made its one flight, skimming along 70 feet above the water for less than a mile, on Nov. 2, 1947, with Hughes at the controls.

Since then it has been locked away in its hangar at the harbor here under 24-hour guard. The only outsider known to have seen it regularly is a fire inspector on monthly rounds.

One official said despite the long sleep, the plane — actually called the Hercules Flying Boat — "is in mint condition."

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Navy say they are interested in the Goose as part of a vehicle research project. Adm. Carl Seiberlich said, "We are trying to decide if a large seaplane is viable as a future naval vehicle."

Other possible uses reportedly include a mobile launch bed for intercontinental ballistic missiles or as a test site over water for experimental nuclear propulsion.

The craft—which is not really made of much spruce, it's largely plywood and birch—became a point of honor with Hughes, who was criticized for its multi-million dollar cost.

The 200-ton flying boat cost the government $18 million and Hughes, who designed it personally, many times that amount.

"I have put the sweat of my life into this thing," Hughes told a Congressional inquiry into the plane.

"If it fails—I will leave this country. And I mean it!"

The craft is actually owned by the government, the General Services Administration, with Summa paying $800 a month to rent it — plus untold maintenance and hangar costs.

Its eight engines are said to have been fired up once a month.

No agreements or commitments have been made about resurrecting the Goose but estimates to ready the plane for flight range from $3 million to $5 million.

The three-story tall plane, 220 feet long with a wingspan of 320 feet, was built of wood to save on metal, scarce in World War II. The plane was designed to carry 750 troops.

The GSA acquired ownership of the plane in 1949 from the War Assets Administration, which financed its construction.

Bing to broadcast 41th Christmas

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A week from today, Bing Crosby, in his 50th year of show biz, stars in his 41st annual Christmas broadcast in a CBS-TV offering called "Bing Crosby's White Christmas Special."

It was taped in London last summer, which is an odd time to do a Christmas show with one's family, as Crosby readily concedes. But wife Kathryn and their three kids all happened to be in town and ...

Well, the show's done and the performing Crosbys can relax on Thanksgiving Day, right? Wrong, Crosby says they're rehearsing Thursday in Las Vegas for a fund-raising benefit on Friday and Saturday. The proceeds, as he puts it, are "to get the padre started," the padre being Rev. Ben Franzinelli, the start involving construction of a new Catholic church in which the padre's Las Vegas flock can pray.

The 72-year-old singer discussed these and other matters this week in a phone interview — conducted at the bizarre hour of 8 a.m. — from his home in Hillsborough near San Francisco.

"Road to Morocco" was made in 1962. Such a project is afoot, he said. It's tentatively titled, "Road to Tomorrow" and is a spy comedy caper set in Europe. It reached script outline form, but was sent back for more liveliness by the writer.

In a famous scene in the film, he and Hope peered over a bush and came face to face with the camel. The camel spit at Hope. It wasn't in the script. But Hope's reaction was so funny the scene was kept.

Now, the pipes of many singers poop out at 50. So how does the Old Groaner still manage to get that famed, mellow baritone sound out of his 72-year-old vocal chords?

Ramona Williams and Jimmy Forman, both of Pampa, are among 49 West Texas State University students named to Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges.

Frank Davis, a senior at West Texas State University from Pampa, placed fifth in his division at the recent 25th annual student auditions of the Texoma Region of the National Association of Teachers of Singing.

Coastal must pay damages

EASTLAND, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland Wednesday reversed a 1975 trial court judgment that had awarded the Lower Colorado River Authority $27.5 million in damages in its dispute with Coastal States Gas Corp. and two of its subsidiaries.

A spokesman for the court said the effect of the decision was that "they (LCRA) get nothing."

The decision was written by Judge Esco Walter.

The original suit had been filed by LCRA against Coastal and its two subsidiaries, Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. and Coastal States Gas Producing Co.

In Houston, a spokesman for Coastal States said the company had received word of the Eastland court decision, but would have no comment until the opinion could be studied.

In Austin, the general counsel for LCRA, Mac Umstadt, said he won't know if the decision will be appealed until he has read it.

The district court ruling was returned in Bryan on July 28, 1975, against Coastal States Gas Producing Co. but provided that the execution of the judgment be stayed until all appeals are final.

The LCRA had claimed that its gas delivery contract was with Coastal States Gas Producing Co. and not with its subsidiary, Lo-Vaca.

LCRA sought to recover alleged overcharges representing the difference between its original contract price for gas and the higher rates charged under the interim rate order of the Texas Railroad Commission.

The Bryan award to LCRA was $26.1 million and the Eastland court ordered last Aug. 5 the posting of a bond sufficient to cover the lower court judgment.

Coastal States Gas Producing then delivered to the Eastland court a certified check for $27.5 million covering the amount of the lower court judgment and accrued interest.

The gas delivery troubles of Coastal States and its subsidiaries began mushrooming after natural gas prices on interstate sales jumped sharply to a current level that has some gas brining as much as $2 per 1,000 cubic feet compares with some prices as low as 26 cents in the original contracts.

Numerous lawsuits were filed against the Coastal States subsidiaries but the LCRA suit was the first to be determined at the district court level.

Including LCRA, the lawsuits seek total damages approximating $1.5 billion.

A $448 million suit brought by the City of San Antonio and its City Public Service Board has had preliminary hearings in San Antonio.

Although expressing confidence of ultimate victory in the litigation, Coastal States Gas Corp. officials have acknowledged that adverse judgments could have a very material adverse effect on the company and its financial position.

A footnote in a Nov. 5 financial report to security holders of the parent firm stated:

"In the opinion of outside counsel, the company has meritorious defenses to the claims asserted in those suits, assuming satisfactory resolution of the fact issues which must be presented to a jury or to the court for decisions at trial of the suits.

"It is impossible to predict with certainty the outcome of a jury trial on disputed fact issues particularly in view of the excessive and prejudicial publicity in local news media to which the company and its subsidiaries have been subjected in recent years in various areas served by Lo-Vaca's gas pipelines.

"Although there can be no absolute assurances, the company is of the opinion the facts will support its position and that its defenses should prevail over the claims of the Lo-Vaca customers."

Among those involved in the various suits filed against the companies are the cities of Austin, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, Eagle Pass, Carrizo Springs, Crystal City, and Uvalde.

In July, representatives of the parent firm and of most of Lo-Vaca's major customers drafted a proposed out-of-court settlement of the customer claims.

First time in Texas

One man, 8 instruments makes a balalaika

Did you ever hear a Russian balalaika? If not, just ask any student from the Pampa Junior High School and he or she should be able to explain.

A one-man band, with all string instruments, performed for an assembly of the junior high students Tuesday.

The entertainer, Louie Popejoy, presented his musical program to the student body and in addition to the balalaika he played an auto harp, viola, violin, mandolin, Spanish guitar, lute, banjo and Hawaiian steel guitar, which also is known as a dobro.

Popejoy told the Pampa News he has presented musical programs in every state east of the Mississippi, but this marked his first visit to Texas. He is based out of Terre Haute, Ind., and also has a blue grass group which tours with him.

Popejoy says he gives about 15 programs each week to schools alone and his schedule will include stops in Amarillo and Borger as well as another show in Pampa, at Travis Elementary School.

The musical program was sponsored by the junior high school for the entertainment of the students.

Bush to quit CIA on inauguration day

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush said Wednesday he has informed President-elect Jimmy Carter he will resign as director of the Central Intelligence Agency on inauguration day.

The two-paragraph announcement on departure plans of the former Texas congressman and ex-chairman of the Republican National Committee could have hardly come as a surprise to Carter.

The statement said Bush had told both Carter and President Ford "that he would not remain as director..." after Jan. 20.

An aide to Bush said he could not elaborate on the statement except to say "there is no indication" what Bush's plans might be after leaving the CIA.

Cabinet members and senior government officials routinely submit their resignations when a new president takes office, even if he is of the same political party and there is a chance they might be kept on.

There has been some speculation that because Bush had impressed Carter during transition intelligence briefings, Carter might consider Bush as a Republican survivor in the new Democratic administration.

One source working on Carter's transition said Bush's early role as a GOP partisan made that unlikely.

CIA directors have been kept on their jobs during changes of administration, but they have all been career intelligence officers, while Bush had no previous credentials as a spy.

After running twice for the Senate from Texas and losing, Bush was named in 1970 as ambassador to the United Nations by former President Richard M. Nixon. Later, while head of the Republican party in 1974, he was picked by Ford to become the U.S. envoy to the People's Republic of China, one of the most sensitive and prestigious of American diplomatic posts.

From China, Bush went to the CIA, where for less than a year he has directed an agency shaken by reaction to a series of disclosures of assassination plots and surveillance of Americans on U.S. soil.

Upon taking over, Bush became the fourth CIA director in three years. His appointment was vigorously opposed by some Senate Democrats who sought in exchange for his confirmation a promise that he would decline any offer to run as Ford's vice presidential candidate.

Ford nearly appointed Bush over Nelson A. Rockefeller for vice president in 1974. Bush refused, but Ford ended any possibility of a deadlock by telling the Senate he would not choose Bush, who had run as an attractive, strong GOP candidate in a traditionally Democratic state.

Bell rate hearing done

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Public Utility Commission concluded its 3½-week hearing Wednesday on Southwestern Bell Telephone's request for rate increases totaling $298.3 million.

"I would hope we would issue a final order some time after the middle of December," commission chairman Garrett Morris said.

Bell and the various groups opposing the increase, including Atty. Gen. John Hill and the Texas Municipal League, have until Dec. 6 to file briefs in lieu of final arguments.

The hearing began Nov. 1 and has produced 18 days of testimony and cross-examination.

"It's been a rather long, and at times rather tedious hearing. I'm glad we've come to the end of it," Morris said.

The board's staff of accountants, economists and engineers recommended an increase of $49.7 million.

The municipal league said $61 million would be in order, and the U. S. General Services Administration said Bell should be limited to $29 million.

Doyle Rogers, Bell's vice-president for Texas operations, said Bell had documented its revenue requirements.

He said the other parties had been guilty of "misconceptions, inconsistencies and out-and-out errors that won't stand up in the real world of payrolls to be met. taxes to be paid and telephone bills to be collected."

In testimony Tuesday and Wednesday, Bell's chief accountant, George Swenson, said that if the errors were corrected, the PUC staff recommendation would rise to about $100 million, the GSA's to $142 million and the municipal league's to $108 million.

Deer hunter killed Ewers, 19, of Waco

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Department of Public Safety Wednesday identified a gunman who allegedly killed a highway patrolman before he in turn was shot and killed by a deer hunter as Larry Ewers, 19, of Waco.

A spokesman for the DPS said positive identification had been made by the department's Identification and Criminal Records Division. He added he did not know if Ewers had a police record before he was shot and killed Sunday just off Highway 67 shortly after he was stopped by patrolman Charles Sammy Long.

Long, 39, stopped the pickup truck driven by Ewers. According to authorities, Ewers then got out of the truck and shot Long. As he stood over the patrolman, Ewers was shot and killed by a deer hunter who had stopped about 150 yards ahead.

The pickup driven by Ewers had been reported stolen in San Francisco Friday.

Bank probe subpoenas 80

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A federal grand jury in San Antonio has issued subpoenas for bank records of 80 individuals and businesses in connection with its probe of possible Texas banking irregularities.

The investigation was touched off by the collapse last summer of the Citizens State Bank of Carrizo Springs.

The grand jury here is seeking checking account and loan records from American National Bank in Amarillo and Navarro Savings and Loan of Corsicana.

Among the dozens whose records are being sought is Enrique Salinas of Eagle Pass, principal owner of the citizens state bank when it was closed by state banking officials.

Records also are sought on former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, University of Texas system regent Dr. James Bauerle of San Antonio and Eagle Pass ranchers Richmond Harper Sr. and Richmond Harper Jr.

Subpoenas also are out for records dealing with members of a San Antonio group, including Bauerle, which owned the Citizens State Bank before its controlling interest was sold to Salinas early this year.

The subpoenas also seek checking account records for several businesses operated by the Salinas and Harper families.

Barnes previously has denied any dealings with Harper or Salinas. Records show Barnes borrowed money from the Citizens State Bank, but Barnes said he repaid the loan.

Federal officials said a subpoena for records of an individual or business indicates only that prosecutors believe the data could shed light on matters under investigation. The subpoenas do not imply that the people or businesses are under investigation.

Federal sources here said the subpoenas are only part of a continuing probe into possible banking irregularities. No indictments are expected for some time. The grand jury is to meet again Monday.

Meanwhile, a special congressional investigation into Texas banking problems is scheduled to begin two days of public hearings in San Antonio Tuesday.

Investigators from the House Banking, Currency and Housing Committee have been gathering information in recent months as part of the congressional probe, which was requested by Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez.

Gonzalez has said the people he is after "are engaged in stealing banks."

The closing this week of the First State Bank and Trust Co. in Rio Grande City, the only bank in Starr County, has added to the current banking controversy.

Depositors in the closed banks have been insured to $40,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC).

The Citizens State Bank in Carrizo Springs was closed June 28 by state banking Commissioner Robert Stewart after a two-week investigation by state and federal examiners.

Examiners, in their report before the bank was closed, believed as much as $2.1 million in Citizens State loans had been made to Salinas, his family and associates.

The examiners, who classified more than $3 million in loans as possibly not collectible, said many of these loans were made to members of the bank's official family or their associates. Such loans usually were not secured by any collateral, they said.

Holiday accident damage

Two vehicles were heavily damaged in a collision at the intersection of South Faulkner and Wilks at 11 a.m. Wednesday. The drivers of both cars were treated in the emergency room of Highland General Hospital and released. Officer LeRoy Slater of the Pampa Police Department said one car was driven by Michael Lynn Riley, 29, of Pampa, and other was driven by Charles Richard Parker, 21, also of Pampa. During the impact the highway identification marker was knocked down. Officer Slater was assisted in the investigation by Lt. Robert Scott.

Son to represent Ford at Mexico inaugural

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said Wednesday he is sending his son Jack to be his personal representative at the inauguration of President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico.

Jack Ford, 24, will join Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Mrs. Jimmy Carter in the U.S. delegation.

Kissinger left Tuesday for a nine-day visit to Mexico, allowing him to combine a brief vacation with his trip. State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said Kissinger will spend several days in Acapulco at the home of a friend, departing Monday for Mexico City and the Dec. 1 inauguration.

Rosalynn Carter will attend the inauguration as a private citizen at the invitation of Mrs. Lopez Portillo, according to Mrs. Carter's press secretary. Ford family press secretary Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld said Jack Ford will leave Washington on Monday on a commercial airliner to attend pre-inaugural ceremonies starting Nov. 28.

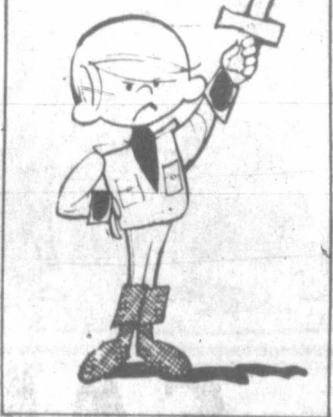

Of the 12 members of the official delegation, some are unable to make the trip. The State Department said Wednesday that those scheduled to go include:

The U.S. ambassador to Mexico Joseph John Jova; retiring Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield; Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., who is in line to be the next chairman of the House International Relations Committee.

Also the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs Harry W. Shlaudeman; San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, former congresswoman Edith Green of Oregon; President Ford's former campaign manager, James Baker, and Leon Parma of San Diego.

Electric chair closes for White, Livingston

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Robert Excel White and James Owen Livingston have moved one step closer to the electric chair with the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals' refusal to stay their Dec. 10 execution date.

After the court's ruling Tuesday, White's lawyer, J.E. Abernathy, said he plans to file an application with the U.S. Supreme Court asking that the execution date be delayed so he can present his case before that court.

"To say the least, I was surprised by the this," Abernathy said of the appellate ruling.

Despite White's request that he be executed on the "earliest possible" date, Abernathy said an appeal to Gov. Dolph Briscoe to stay the execution would be used "as a last resort."

White, who admitted publicly he has led a life of violence and crime, said in a recent interview, that "if any man deserves to die, I do for the crimes I've committed."

He asked also that his execution be televised. Television cameras were allowed in the courtroom when his execution date was set.

The attorney said he had submitted the Texas appeal over White's objection because he felt it was his "duty and responsibility" to his client.

The two Waco men received their death sentences earlier this month after being convicted of the 1974 robbery-slaying of a 73-year-old grocery station attendant in McKinney, northeast of Dallas.

White and Livingston are the third and fourth men to have their execution dates set since the Texas death law was ruled constitutional earlier this year by the U.S. Supreme Court. The other two execution dates, set for Nov. 22 and Jan. 19, have been delayed by appeals.

Angola signs Soviet pact

LUANDA — (LENS) — A year after Angola formally became independent — the anniversary was Nov. 11 — the ruling Popular Movement and its Cuban allies have still not imposed their control on large parts of the country.

The anti-Marxist rebels of the Unita guerrilla movement, led by Jonas Savimbi, continue to operate in the southern half of Angola despite the government's attempts to dislodge them.

Last week alone some 3,000 refugees, mostly women and children, fled over the border into South West Africa and told South African officials there that Popular Movement and Cuban troops, supported by tanks and planes, have launched an all-out offensive against Unita's men.

Refugees have been trickling into South West Africa in increasing numbers over the past few weeks; some 8,000 are now reported to be in the care of the South African army. In early September the Angolan government halted work on the Calueque dam, part of the Cunene hydroelectric project on the Angolan-South West African border which is being constructed in cooperation with the South Africans.

The government's troops, with Cuban help, then tried to cut the Unita guerrillas off from their supply lines to South West Africa and Zambia. Unita fought to break out; and now the government and its Cuban allies are trying to crush them.

Savimbi, however, claims that his men defeated an earlier offensive in July, when the government deployed 10,000 men — including 6,000 Cubans — with 50 tanks and 60 armored cars.

If the Popular Movement is having trouble in Angola itself, it can claim a novel achievement in foreign policy. President Agostino Neto's visit to Moscow last month produced more than the standard government-to-government treaty of Friendship with the Soviet Union. In his pocket when he left was a second agreement — a pact for party-to-party cooperation between the Popular Movement and the Soviet Communist party.

Angola is the first country outside the familiar borders of the Communist world to be offered a party-to-party agreement. This suggests that Leonid Brezhnev's hopes of Angola are making progress. He would presumably like the Popular Movement to transform itself into an orthodox Communist party, just as Fidel Castro's followers did in Cuba.

The Cubans are there, indeed, to show Neto how. On Oct. 31 he told a youth rally that he intended to make Angola a "people's democracy."

Names in the news

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Jerzy Lee Lewis says it was resentment of favorable publicity given to Elvis Presley that made him scream curses and wave a pistol outside the gates of Presley's mansion.

Lewis, 40, was arrested Tuesday and charged with public drunkenness. It was the second arrest within two days for the rock 'n' roll singer.

On Monday, Lewis was charged by Collierville, Tenn., police with drunken driving, reckless driving and having no driving license following the wreck of his $46,000 Rolls Royce.

In the second arrest, police said Lewis was found sitting in his 1976 Lincoln Continental with a .38-caliber pistol, cocked and loaded, lying on his knee. He was freed on $250 bond and ordered to appear today in City Court.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Neil Diamond must complete a six-month drug diversion program before a judge decides whether to make the singer stand trial on a misdemeanor marijuana possession charge.

Sheff's deputies said they found one ounce of marijuana at Diamond's Bel Air home last June 30 after receiving an anonymous tip.

Diamond pleaded innocent. Municipal Court Judge Louis Feder has ordered Diamond to return to court next May 20 for a decision about dropping the charge, court records showed, Tuesday.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Helen Reddy and her husband Jeff Wald have sued New West magazine for allegedly damaging her reputation by circulating an article about her too widely.

Miss Reddy and her agent-husband asked for undisclosed damages and a halt to further publication of the article in the suit filed Tuesday against NYM Corp., owners of New West and New York magazines.

The suit says that since the article, entitled "Superstar Women and Their Marriages" appeared Aug. 9, it has been excerpted in various newspapers, including one in Australia, Miss Reddy's native land.

The suit alleges that NYM had made an oral agreement to confine publication of an interview with Miss Reddy to New West and New York.

New West also was named in a $3.25 million libel suit filed by Los Angeles architect Charles Luckman over an article which accused him of threatening a fellow architect in order to obtain redevelopment funds for a proposed city library. The suit denies that Luckman threatened another architect.

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has arrived here with his wife Nancy for a five-day vacation.

The Kissingers, who honeymooned here, flew from Washington on Tuesday night with several staff members.

They landed in an Air Force jet at a private airport and drove to two private homes on a hill overlooking famed Acapulco Bay.

After the stay here, Kissinger is expected to fly to Mexico City.

A deer friend

Wearing a red neck ribbon to ward off hunters, this four legged friend of Michael Alt is not the average beast of the wild. Found in a haystack on a Barneveld, Wis., farm last June, it was raised on a bottle. The ward has since returned to the woods and a herd of wild deer, but still visits the farm daily for a snack of milk and crackers.

'Law should penalize illegal alien employers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Penalties should be imposed against employers who knowingly hire aliens illegally in the United States, Immigration and Naturalization Service Commissioner Leonard F. Chapman says.

He told the Senate Small Business Committee there are at least one million illegal aliens holding well-paying jobs in this country and another million holding lesser-paying jobs.

"Considering that there are presently more than seven million unemployed Americans, the two million or more jobs held by illegal aliens present a serious problem," Chapman testified Tuesday.

"An effective solution would be to focus on a major source of the problem: the employer who knowingly hires illegal aliens for his economic gain," Chapman said.

Under current laws, an employer is not subject to any penalty for hiring illegal aliens. However, he can be prosecuted for harboring them or smuggling them into the country.

Bills have been introduced by the chairmen of the House and Senate Judiciary committees to bar knowing employment, with civil or criminal penalties, or both.

While the Small Business Committee has no legislative jurisdiction in this field, it is looking into objections voiced by employers, especially small businessmen, that it is difficult for them to determine a job applicant's immigration status. Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., conducting the hearing, said employers also are concerned that their screening efforts could lead to charges by other federal or state agencies of discriminatory employment practices.

Chapman said all an employer would have to do is make "a good faith inquiry" as to a job applicant's citizenship or, if he is an alien, whether he falls in a category authorized to work.

Just too many turkeys

By The Associated Press
On this bicentennial Thanksgiving, farmers are finding that the turkey is no bird of paradise.

"We've just produced too many turkeys this year," says R. H. Strickler, president of Rocco Farms in Harrisonburg, Va., estimating farmers are losing $1.50 for each turkey sold.

"We had a profitable year in 1975," he adds, "and in keeping with the American way, we produced about 10 per cent more this year than last."

Mike Clagg of Swift Fresh Meats Co. in Chattanooga said the supply of turkeys this year is 10 to 15 per cent greater than last year.

"Supply has been much greater this year," he added. "The price of turkeys usually goes up in November, but it hasn't this year."

Many supermarkets in Chattanooga carried turkey for 39 cents a pound.

"That's less than it costs to raise them," Clagg noted. "When retailers sell them that cheaply, they're using turkeys for a loss leader and losing money on them."

Another reason for low turkey prices, supermarket officials note, is that the whole meat complex has overproduced and declining prices of ham and steak has lured the housewife from the turkey counter.

Bill Bates, owner of Bates Turkey Farm in Fort Deposit, Ala., predicts many turkey farmers will be forced out of business this year.

"They're losing money and it will break a lot of them," he said, noting that one large turkey producer, Plantation Foods of Waco, Tex., is now operating under chapter XI of the bankruptcy act.

In addition to the marketing difficulties, the turkey is a miserable bird to raise. It dives under the wheels of slow-moving tractors and stampedes in terror when a hawk soars overhead. They've been known to charge into an enclosed area and smother to death.

Braniff to settle but denies charge

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas-based Braniff International Wednesday denied the allegations contained in a discrimination suit filed against it by minority employees, but said it had agreed to a $1.3 million settlement.

"We have agreed to the settlement to avoid any further litigation in this case," a spokesman for Braniff said. "But we deny all the allegations in the suit."

The suit, filed in 1974 by 10 black employees, alleged that Braniff engaged in employment discrimination practices.

The settlement, approved Tuesday by U.S. District Court Judge D. W. Suttle in San Antonio, calls for back pay and damages to be paid to some 586 Braniff employees with damages and allotments ranging as high as $40,000 for some individuals.

As part of the settlement, Braniff also agreed to hire additional blacks and to raise its percentage in such work classifications as aircraft mechanic and customer service agent.

The company and two unions, the International Association of Machinists and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, also agreed to changes in seniority and transfer practices.

A spokesman for Braniff declined to comment on the agreement saying only that the company had denied the allegations.

The spokesman said the company has 1,500 minority employees, mostly black and Spanish-surnamed, out of a total of 9,600.

He said there were no figures available on the number of minority employees in administrative positions.

He also declined to specify how the company would carry out the terms of the settlement.

"We can only say that we will do whatever the settlement calls for," he said.

Objections to the settlement had been raised by some Mexican-American employees who claimed the suit dealt only with blacks, but Judge Suttle said the settlement did not exclude a suit by Mexican-American workers.

The Thanksgiving holiday we now enjoy is a part of our rich, glorious heritage. The first day of thanks was a day dedicated by our ancestors to count their blessings for a successful harvest.

During America's birthday year, may we count our blessings as they did. Not only for our well-laden festive boards, but for the priceless heritage of our freedom. A freedom made possible because of the persistence of our pioneering ancestors who sat around that first Thanksgiving table.

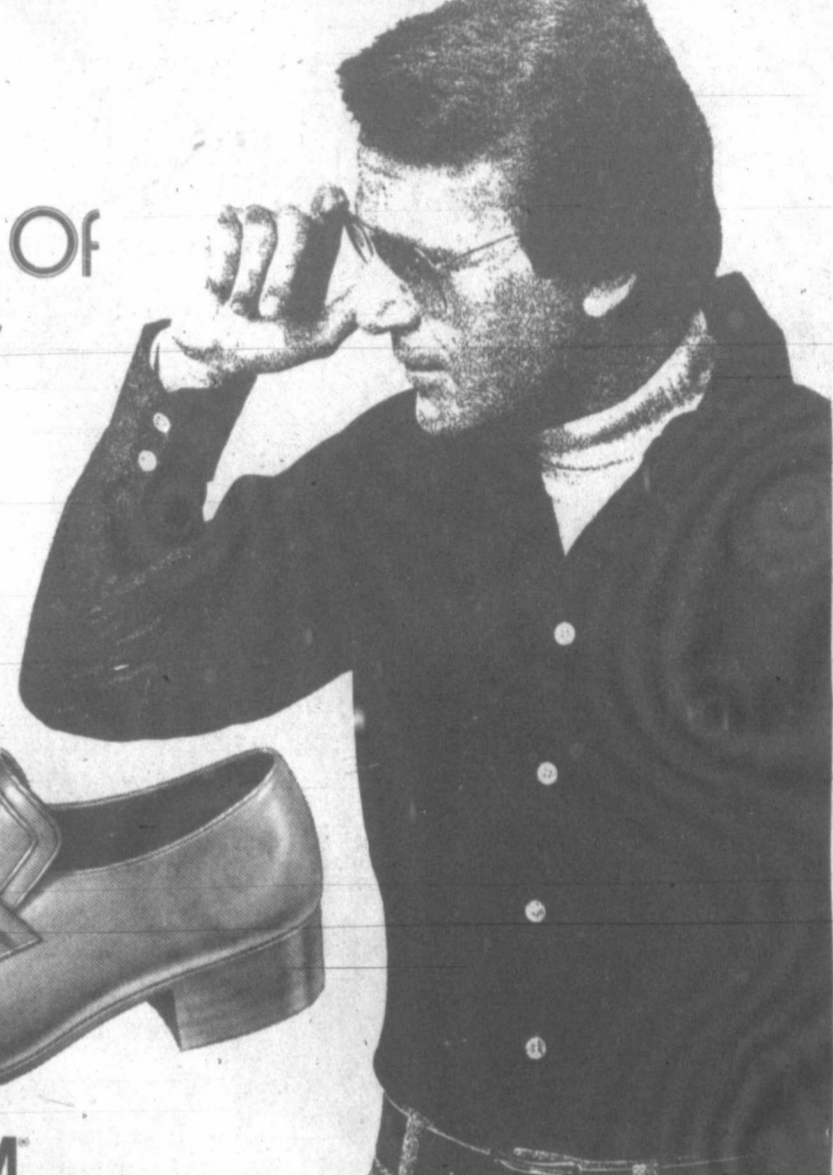

It is a time to be thankful for the people who made our country great... proud of the people who made possible our free democratic way of life. It is a time to wish a sincere...

Neighbors judge local car thief

SEATTLE (AP) — Ray Olsen, 17, who had "borrowed" an unlocked car and wrecked it, was given two choices by police: juvenile court or a neighborhood accountability board.

Olsen chose the latter, appearing before the Ballard-Freemont Accountability Board composed of people from his own neighborhood.

"When I went there I didn't think it was going to be that bad," Ray said, "but they sort of shook me up. They asked me questions about why I did it and if I thought it was fair to be made to pay back...

"They recommended that I do 85 hours of community service work for pay to repay the victim for his loss, and 15 hours without pay," Ray said.

Olsen was one of a number of delinquent youths being sent to three neighborhood "accountability boards" in Seattle.

An official says the boards may have reduced the rate of increase in burglary, auto theft and larceny in the three neighborhoods.

David Moseley, who heads the program under the city's Department of Human Resources, said about half the restitution ordered under the plan is monetary repayment to victims of juvenile crime. The rest is symbolic restitution to pay back the community.

The boards are operated by 40 to 75 volunteers in each neighborhood and are funded by $500,000 per year in federal money designed to cut street crime. Moseley said.

More than 70 per cent of the city's apprehended burglars, auto thieves and larcenists are juveniles. Moseley said. Although these three offenses have increased all over Seattle by 13.4 per cent, he said, they are up only 7.2 per cent in the neighborhoods served by the accountability programs.

"I think the statistics are indicative of the effect of our program," Moseley said.

A youth chooses the accountability board with his parents' consent. Although the parents don't appear with their offspring before the board, they can ask it to reconsider its decision or take the case back to court.

Most of the cases heard involve shoplifting, vandalism, auto theft and burglary. The boards don't handle more serious crimes.

Moseley said deterrence is just as important in the program as crime control. That's the reason for having the youth pay for his crime right in front of his neighbors.

Another youth, Earl Patterson, 17, was caught shoplifting and referred to an accountability board

Texas school children befriend runaway steer

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A never-say-die steer that escaped from a slaughter house lineup and commandeered a nearby school playground was a delight to students and a concern for police.

After what amounted to a two hour standoff, the big brown steer, snorting in protest, finally clambered into a cattle trailer and was hauled off to slaughter. But not before children at the Austin Elementary School got a valuable lesson in animal behavior.

"We were just leading a class out to physical education when the teachers saw the bull and turned the lines back around into the building," said Principal Peggy McKenzie.

"The kids just seemed to love it. It's been a real learning experience. They didn't realize a bull could get so angry. I think it has taught them about danger and how to react in emergency situations."

Names in the news

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Folksinger Joan Baez says she's going to Belfast to help try to end the violence in Northern Ireland.

"It's a cause that's tailor-made for beliefs I've had since I was 9 or 10 years old," the 34-year-old pacifist told a news conference Monday. "I expect to have a very good time there and to be very frightened."

Miss Baez said she will leave today for two weeks of rallies and marching at the invitation of the Peace People of Ireland, a nonviolent movement organized by Protestant and Catholic women.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf Landon, the 1936 Republican presidential nominee, says President Ford has responsibility for leading the Republican party for the next four years and should make his plans with that in mind.

"You fought a good fight, and on your record deserved to win," Landon wrote in a letter to Ford he made public on Monday. "After each presidential election, the Republican standard bearer has had the responsibility of continuing to lead the party."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge George Harris, maternal grandfather to Jean Paul Getty III, has been given help in managing Getty's financial affairs.

Harris was appointed conservator for his grandson in April 1975 after a court ruled that Getty, 19, was a spendthrift. Getty's paternal grandfather was the late oil billionaire J. Paul Getty.

But Superior Court Judge Neil Lake on Monday determined that Harris was having difficulty overseeing Getty's affairs, largely because he lives in San Francisco and Getty lives in Los Angeles. Lake appointed attorney Alton Myhrvold as co-conservator.

Getty receives a $1,000-a-month allowance from his mother, Gail Harris Getty, who paid his ransom after he was kidnaped in Rome in 1972. He and his wife, Martine, 26, have a 21-month-old son, Paul.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Testimony is set to start next Monday in the trial of Wendy Yoshimura. Patricia Hearst's last underground roommate, on charges of possessing weapons and explosives.

"We're very happy with the jury," Miss Yoshimura, 33, said Monday after a panel of seven women and five men was sworn in.

She was arrested in September 1975 with Miss Hearst and is free on $25,000 bail.

ATHENS (AP) — After 13 months of searching the Aegean seabed, Jacques Cousteau says he's concluded that the legendary city of Atlantis was just a figment of Plato's imagination.

"Plato... built up a fantasy of Atlantis as his model for a perfect civilization," the underwater explorer said Monday. "Atlantis was never a reality, but the myth was carried on after Plato."

Cousteau said his expedition had turned up thousands of ancient artifacts and several ships dating from as far back as 3,000 B.C.

The purple martin, found in Southern Canada, is the largest Canadian swallow.

Among 14-year-old boys in 1980, 23 were reported to be married, one divorced and none widowed, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Forces own kidnaping?

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Mel Patrick Lynch says Samuel Bronfman 2nd was his homosexual lover and forced Lynch to stage his kidnaping in a plot to extort money from Bronfman's father.

Speaking in a soft Irish brogue, the 38-year-old Lynch testified almost matter-of-factly Monday about having sex with Bronfman in a darkened pool house bedroom on the 40-acre estate of Bronfman's mother in Purchase, N.Y., in Westchester County.

The defendant said he went along with the kidnaping because Bronfman threatened to get him fired as a fireman by exposing his homosexuality to the New York City Fire Department.

Speaking as the first defense witness in the 26-day old trial, Lynch said he and his codefendant, Dominic Byrne, born in Ireland as was Lynch, had tried to persuade Bronfman to go home after the kidnaping but Bronfman rejected their plea.

"I had it out with him about going home," Lynch told the state Supreme Court jury. "He told me I was being unduly alarmed."

Lynch claimed that Bronfman was alone several times in Lynch's Brooklyn apartment during the nine-day abduction, including one two-hour stretch in which Lynch was in Byrne's home drinking rum and coke with Mrs. Byrne.

Bronfman testified last week that he had not known Lynch before the kidnaping, nor had a homosexual relationship with him, nor engineered his own kidnaping.

The $2.3 million ransom was paid by Bronfman's father, Edgar, chief executive of the Seagram Distillery empire. The money was recovered.

Connally prestige fall?

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — The 1976 presidential campaign probably did more to muddle than answer the question: How powerful a politician is former Texas Governor John Connally?

Connally's prestige appears to have fallen after he failed to deliver Texas for President Ford when it was generally known that the Ford camp was relying on Connally's reputation to win Texas.

Additionally, one private poll commissioned by unsuccessful Senate hopeful Alan Steelman, a Dallas Republican, shows that voters in Texas a year ago would be more likely to vote against a candidate endorsed by Connally than to vote for him.

However, Connally proved to be a popular GOP figure on the campaign trail, as well as the Republican National Committee's (RNC) leading money raider. The former Texas governor, who traded party labels, was directly responsible for raising about one-sixth of the RNC's $18 million receipts this year.

Steelman's poll, released in part for the first time, shows that in November, 1975, Texas voters were nearly evenly split on their opinion of Connally.

The survey, conducted last fall with 800 randomly selected Texas voters, showed that 48 per cent of the respondents had a favorable opinion of their former governor while 46 per cent expressed an unfavorable position.

According to the poll, conducted by Decision Making Information of California, Connally had a lower favorable rating than Alabama Gov. George Wallace, Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

When the respondents were asked whether they would be more or less likely to vote for a candidate who "has the endorsement of John Connally," 38 per cent said "less likely," 34 per cent said "more likely" and 29 per cent said it made "no difference."

The survey, running 73 questions, reflected by race, sex and age the 1972 electorate in Texas.

The biggest group of voters — 22 per cent — said they had no opinion on the question of which Texas politician they had the most confidence in. Briscoe ranked second, with 12 per cent, while one-tenth of the respondents said "no one has my confidence."

After the, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Connally followed with nine per cent ratings. Sen. John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, trailed them by a percentage point.

The survey indicates that Connally might have a brighter political future nationally than in his own state.

"He's a very charismatic politician," says Republican pollster Richard Wirthlin, president of the firm which conducted Steelman's poll.

"He does have a political future... nationally and regionally," Wirthlin adds.

Nationwide, Connally received enthusiastic responses from GOP loyalists during his months of campaigning and is credited with directly raising $3,095,000 for RNC coffers through personal appearances and a letter-writing campaign.

For his fundraising activities, the RNC recently awarded Connally a $13,000 painting by John Rutven — a traveling trophy which RNC will give each year to the individual who raises the most money for party coffers.

"When he accepted the award, he said he intended to go after it again next year," said Buck Byers, deputy finance chairman of the RNC.

Byers said about $2.4 million in donations under $100 was raised for the GOP through a letter drafted and signed by Connally this summer.

Searching oil men perforate Texas

In this century, oil men have drilled more than 633,000 holes in Texas soil in search of crude oil and natural gas. And the search continues. Future Texas petroleum production depends greatly on the extent of new oil and gas deposits discovered today.

The pitch of the hunt depends on how much money comes in from the sale of the petroleum that is found. Low prices for oil and gas, which oil men generally blame on federal policies, threw drilling into a slump for most of the past two decades. Increased prices for oil and for natural gas sold within the state — free from federal controls — reversed the trend in Texas in 1974, when 9,808 wells were drilled, and in 1975, with 12,438 new holes, according to the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

While Texas drilling activity dropped a little during the first six months of 1976, compared with the last half of 1975, it was running 11 per cent ahead of the same period in 1975. The Oil and Gas Journal, at mid-year, was predicting 1,000 more wells would be drilled in Texas in 1976 than in 1975.

"In Texas, drilling activity is an important barometer for sizing up present and future conditions in the petroleum industry," says Jack S. Blanton of Houston, an independent oil company executive and president of the Association. "Drilling slumps usually indicate inadequate prices for oil and gas. The present trend is encouraging, but capital requirements for finding and developing new fields are very high, currently about $5 billion a year in Texas alone," Blanton adds.

"Wildcat" wells seeking production in new areas or from new geologic formations were put down in 221 of Texas' 254 counties last year. Holes averaged a little more than 5,000 feet in depth during the past six years, compared to less than 5,000 in previous years. But one — a dry hole in Pecos County — set the state record in 1972 at 28,500 feet.

The longevity of wells varies, depending on the size of reserves discovered under them. Some last only a few weeks. Others produce for decades. Of the 380,000 oil wells and 38,000 gas wells completed in Texas since 1900, about 172,000 of the oil wells and 27,000 of these gas wells still are producing.

A strong local market for newly discovered natural gas, with prices in the range of $1.30 per thousand cubic feet (Mcf), had developed. This has caused producers to step up their search for this "perfect" fuel which, in earlier eras, was regarded as almost a by-product of the hunt for crude oil. In many cases, new Texas gas wells now tap relatively small deposits, some of which were passed over as uneconomic to drill when gas prices were in the range of 10 to 15 cents per Mcg.

Texas drilling last year yielded more than 6,000 oil wells, the largest number completed in 10 years and a 27 per cent increase over the year before, and 2,135 gas wells, the largest number ever recorded for any year. About 31 per cent of all the wells drilled in the U.S. last year were drilled in Texas.

Drilling sites were located in all geographic regions of the state, but one-fourth of the ventures probed for the highly productive formations in the West Texas region generally called the Permian Basin. That section of Texas west of a line running generally from Laredo to Fort Worth and Wichita Falls accounted for more than 60 per cent of the state's drilling.

Despite technological advances, the Texas oil man still cannot bet the statistical odds that a well will turn out to be a dry hole instead of a money-making producer. The odds vary with different definitions of success, but statewide figures show that 31 per cent of all wells drilled last year were failures. The figure fluctuates a point or so from year to year, but the 75-year average is 33 per cent dry.

When the oil man ventures into totally new territory or searches out a new formation with what is technically called a "new field wildcat," the odds switch very heavily against him. Of the 2,235 Texas wells attempted in this category in 1975, 84 per cent were dry. On a national basis, when the definition is narrowed to include only those wells which discover "significant" reserves — one million barrels of oil or six billion cubic feet of gas — about one in 55 is called a success.

While an average of 637 drilling rigs were grinding away throughout Texas in 1975, their work — holes in the ground — went unseen. On the surface, there is little to suggest to the layman the expenditure of some $1.8 billion for Texas drilling last year. Only those that found oil and gas were marked by the erection of wellhead equipment, called "Christmas trees," or pumping jacks.

Even to the experienced oil man, the outlays are impressively large and still growing as costlier technology is used and an inflation boosts every item in a drilling project. National estimates indicate the total expenditures for the search for oil and gas in Texas will continue to be in excess of $5 billion a year.

In 1974, the costs of Texas wells averaged $143,000 each. In the 5,000- to 7,000-foot depth bracket, they averaged more than $120,000; around 11,000 feet, they hit $435,000; 13,000 feet, $750,000, and, for a 16,000-foot hole, $1.7 million. By 1975, these costs were enlarged by 85 per cent, according to industry surveys, thereby making an average Texas well cost about $165,000.

While almost 63,000 Texans employed in drilling earn a payroll of more than $750 million a year, their activity, for the most part, is scattered over ranch country, in wooded areas, or in coastal waters. The impact of dollars spent on drilling is far-reaching in the Texas economy because the operators pay for supplies and services not reflected in these "payroll" figures of drilling crews. For instance, included in the cost of development of domestic energy resources. "These policies should include not only a more efficient use of energy, but they should also be conducive to a reasonable balance between energy costs, protection of the environment, and security of supply," he said.

"All of these facts are interrelated with our country's energy future, and no amount of wishful thinking can make them go away."

Langston said the short-term outlook is for energy supply and demand to be in reasonable balance.

Energy

22 Thursday, November 25, 1976 PAMPA NEWS

Company official paints bleak picture of energy

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — J. D. Langston says there are several sobering and incontrovertible facts about the broad challenge the nation now faces with respect to energy.

Langston, vice president for exploration for Exxon Co. USA, says a quick look at the brief set of facts places the challenge in better perspective.

As a starter, Langston said it is a fact that ever since 1966, except for the year the Prudhoe Bay Field was discovered in Alaska, the nation has been producing more oil than it has been finding.

"Last year, for every new barrel that was added to reserves, we produced more than two," he said.

Langston said it also is a fact the nation's self-sufficiency as to both oil and gas has vanished.

"Domestic oil production peaked in 1970 and has recently been declining at a rate of about three per cent a year," he said.

"Production of natural gas peaked in 1972, and it, too, has been steadily declining. In just the last 20 years, gas consumption in the United States has more than doubled, and proved reserves have dropped from over 20 times annual production to about 10 times annual production."

Langston said the United States is now dependent on imports for more than 40 per cent of its oil requirements.

"Moreover, about 85 per cent of these imports come directly for the OPEC nations, who now control nearly two-thirds of the world's oil supply, or from countries refining OPEC crude," he said.

Langston said another fact is that for many years to come most of the nation's energy must continue to come from the fossil fuels, coal, crude oil, and natural gas.

"Because of the long lead times associated with new energy technologies, we cannot count on much help from the so-called exotic energy sources in meeting our needs during the remainder of the 20th Century," he said.

Langston said the most hard-to-accept fact perhaps is there has been a fundamental change in the U.S. energy environment.

"The abundance of inexpensive energy we enjoyed for so many years in this country is no longer available, nor is it likely to be available again during our lifetime," he said.

Langston added, however, that the nation, fortunately, has a resource base with which to resolve many of the more pressing energy problems and one that allows ample time to develop additional forms of energy.

"For example, the United States has half of the Free World's coal reserves, making us to coal what the Middle East is to oil," he said.

Langston said it also is a fact that it is very much in the public interest that the United States have national policies that expedite the discovery and development of domestic energy resources.

"These policies should include not only a more efficient use of energy, but they should also be conducive to a reasonable balance between energy costs, protection of the environment, and security of supply," he said.

"All of these facts are interrelated with our country's energy future, and no amount of wishful thinking can make them go away."

Langston said the short-term outlook is for energy supply and demand to be in reasonable balance.

"We do have a very serious long-term problem, and one that demands attention now."

'Pokes, Lions favored today

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For Thanksgiving Day, the National Football League proudly presents a turkey—followed by a delicious dessert.

The Buffalo Bills against the Lions in Detroit will have everybody glued ... to the table, enjoying the chatter and menu. The game has the appetizing appeal of next week's turkey leftovers.

Ah, but the Cardinals against the Cowboys! Clear the table, turn on the television and, for goodness sake, quiet everybody!

After the Lions beat Buffalo and the family picks apart the bird, Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach's gonna pick apart the St. Louis defense and the Cowboys are gonna just about lock up the National Conference's East Division title.

Speaking of picking, last week's were kind of slim for this football forecaster, who came away with a 9-5 mark to put the season record at 109-44-1 for a .712 percentage.

Cowboys 27, Cardinals 20
After last week's shocking loss, Dallas will be extra-tough for St. Louis. The Cards lost, too, but that probably served more to dampen their faith than another division title is in the offing. Their secondary is a tempting one to throw against.

Lions 24, Bills 10
So Detroit shoots for yet another 7-7 season. So what else is new?

Vikings 28, Oilers 13
San Francisco's playoff hopes, so bright and sunny a few weeks ago, will get smuffed out in a Monday night mauling.

Broncos 18, Patriots 17
Denver's defense will keep the Broncos in the playoff chase and won't exactly knock New England out of it...

Steelers 28, Bengals 23
...but it'll sure give Pittsburgh a big lift. While Cincinnati's been playing cardiac football against so-so teams the past few weeks, the Steelers have been unreal. With a victory, their shot at Steeler Bowl III will look better than ever.

Rams 24, Saints 6
Los Angeles is hitting its playoff stride. The 51 points New Orleans got last Sunday is about four dozen more than it figures to score this time.

Colts 41, Jets 17
Bert Jones, Roger Carr, Lydell Mitchell facing the Jets' defense. It'll be like the St. Valentine's Day Massacre, with the Jets playing the role of the garage ... all shot up.

Redskins 27, Eagles 14
How do you figure Washington, playing brinkmanship week after week? Well, we'll give the 'Skins another couple of weeks before waving goodbye.

Falcons 20, Oilers 13
If Atlanta beats Houston the way it beat Dallas, maybe the Falcons will insist on playing next year's home games in Texas. Some people say the Falcons shot their wad against the Cowboys, but we don't think it'll take much to shoot down the Oilers.

Browns 28, Dolphins 23
This already has been pretty much of a miracle year for the up-from-the-ashes Browns. Why not another small one?

Bears 31, Packers 14
The same goes for resurgent Chicago.

Chargers 24, Chiefs 17
San Diego still has some decent offense, which is a more than Kansas City's defense can handle.

Seahawks 20, Giants 13

Raiders 45, Buccaneers 9

Jordan-Dobler bout highlights NFL contest

DALLAS (AP) — Among other things, the crucial St. Louis-Dallas Cowboy showdown today featured the return bout of Cowboy linebacker Lee Roy Jordan versus Cardinal offensive lineman Conrad (Mad Dog) Dobler.

Dobler sent Jordan into a tizzy last month when Dallas lost 21-17 in St. Louis.

"Just wait until he (Dobler) comes to Texas Stadium," said Jordan, who accused Dobler of clipping him.

Jordan added "Dobler is probably the dirtiest player in the league."

Dobler countered by saying "I can remember when Lee Roy used to run so fast you couldn't block him. He must be slowing down."

"We know Lee Roy is after Conrad," said Cardinal wide receiver Mel Gray. "We like Lee Roy as a person, but when the game starts he's the enemy."

Cowboy Assistant Scout Ernie Allen has said that the Cardinals are the holding team in professional football.

Asked if he agreed with that summation, Dallas Coach Tom Landry smiled "They (the Cardinals) are very skilled at what they do."

The Cardinals, trailing the Cowboys by a game, need this one worse than Dallas.

If St. Louis loses, the Cardinals are in jeopardy of not making the playoffs. A loss would tumble the Cardinals to an 8-4 record and a tie with Washington, which would have a leg up on the tie-breaker because of two victories over St. Louis.

A St. Louis victory would place the Cardinals in a National Conference Eastern Division tie with Dallas on the strength of 8-3 ledgers. St. Louis would have the edge over Dallas in capturing a third consecutive division title because it would have beaten Dallas twice.

The Cowboys would still be a game ahead of Washington for the wild card berth.

But that's a lot of ifs. Buts and Woulds.

Asked about Dallas' position in the playoffs, Landry said patiently: "Well, I can sure tell you more after today."

Rutgers on television

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer
Rutgers Coach Frank Burns didn't get the bowl bid he wanted for the Scarlet Knights, who try to stretch the nation's longest winning streak in major college football to 18 in a game regionally televised tonight.

"We would have liked to play a major school in a bowl game and show our ability," said Burns, who believes his club has not received the national recognition it deserves.

Rutgers, rated 17th in the nation, puts its streak on the line against Colgate, 8-1 after losing its last game to Army. The game will be played in the new Giants Stadium, located in East Rutherford, N.J.

Burns' team decided to reject an offer to play in the Independence Bowl after officials of the Peach and Tangerine Bowl Games selected other teams.

"They decided to be satisfied with an undefeated campaign and look forward to enjoying free time for the holidays," explained Burns. "They've earned the rest ... but, it won't be an enjoyable rest if we don't finish with a win and we'll have to work for it."

Also scheduled on regional telecasts are the Southwest Conference game between Texas and 11th-rated Texas A&M, and a Southern Conference showdown between Appalachian State and East Carolina.

Thursday's action starts a heavy weekend of college football on television. Friday afternoon, eighth-rated Oklahoma, bound for the Fiesta Bowl, and Nebraska, No. 10, battle for a share of the Big Eight championship with Nebraska going to the Orange Bowl if it wins and the Astro-Bluebonnet bowl if it loses.

Top-rated Pittsburgh puts Heisman Trophy hopeful Tony Dorset on display against Penn State, No. 16, at night.

Both games will be shown nationally, as will Saturday's traditional Army-Navy game. The University of Southern California, rated No. 3 in this week's AP poll, against Notre Dame, rated No. 13, will be shown on a regional basis.

In other Saturday games involving rated teams, Liberty Bowl bound No. 18 Alabama plays Auburn in a Southeastern Conference game at Birmingham; No. 14 Oklahoma State is at El Paso, Tex.; Georgia Tech visits No. 4 Georgia; No. 9 Texas Tech has a Southwestern Conference date with Arkansas, and No. 7 Houston is at Rice with the host role in the Cotton Bowl on the line.

Rose Bowl-bound Michigan, No. 2, has completed its regular season schedule, as has Cotton Bowl bound Maryland, No. 5; Liberty Bowl bound UCLA, No. 6, and Orange Bowl bound Ohio State, No. 12.

Colorado and Oklahoma State, which share the No. 14 spot in this week's poll, have earned a share of the Big Eight title and completed their regular season. However, Colorado has more than a passing interest in the outcome of the Nebraska-Oklahoma game. If Oklahoma wins, the Buffaloes go to the Orange Bowl.

Groom's Jigger Britten caught this 13-yard pass on fourth down for a first down at Sundown's seven-yard line last week in the Class B bi-district contest. On the next play, John Krizan ran seven yards to paydirt to give the Tigers a 20-7 lead. Britten caught two passes in the game, in which Tiger quarterback Nathan Wieberg completed five of seven tosses for 50 yards. ## Royal pessimistic

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M's steamrolling Aggies come to town tonight, and Texas Coach Darrell Royal says it is probably the biggest mismatch one of his teams has faced.

Only a "fanatical" stand—for which the 83-year-old series is famous—can save Texas from defeat, Royal said.

Royal told his weekly news conference Monday Texas hasn't "run up the flag" of surrender, but he said his squad is "awfully depleted" with injuries.

A&M, bound for the Sun Bowl, has rolled to five consecutive victories since David Walker took over at quarter back, averaging 43 points a game and running its record to 8-2. Texas has lost three of its last four in a 4-1 season marked by so many injuries that three freshman are starting in the backfield.

Those hurt in Texas' 20-10 loss to Baylor Saturday included the only non-freshman in the Texas backfield—senior halfback Jimmy Walker, who pulled a thigh muscle. "I'm sure he's out of it (the A&M game)," Royal said.

That position is so thin, Royal added, that defensive halfback Raymond Clayborn will also be trained on offense.

"Every week it's been costly," Royal said. "I don't have the answer. I don't know why it happens—why it runs in strings like that. I still pet stray dogs and speak to old folks. I don't know why I should be punished."

Asked if one of his teams had ever faced a "grimmer outlook," Royal replied, "No, probably not."

Asked what he had "going for him," Royal said, "You've always got a shot at something," but "there's no reason for my coming in here waving my fist and saying how good things are."

"We'll try to gather up what's left and make one of those fanatical stands," he said. "We're not out of it. We definitely have not conceded."

Quizzed about whether Texas might rely on trickery to offset A&M's manpower advantage, Royal said, "No, they've already bounced it off the ground."

This was in reference to a bounce-lateral that A&M converted into a scoring pass in the 1965 game, which Texas won, 21-17, after overcoming a 17-0 halftime lead.

In addition to Walker, Royal said linebacker Lionell Johnson hurt his neck in the Baylor game; Ivey Suber injured his shoulder; offensive guard Rick Ingraham strained his knee; and halfback Johnny "Lam" Jones is still bothered with a virus that caused him to throw up repeatedly during the Baylor game.

Texas' five top backs—Walker, Suber, Jones, Earl Campbell and Johnny "Ham" Jones—all sat out practice with injuries Sunday.

"We'll have 11 (on the field Thursday)," he said.

The Rainbow Classic in Honolulu Dec. 27-30 has eight teams: They are Illinois, Arizona State, Houston, St. John's, San Francisco, Temple, William and Mary and Hawaii.

Milk producers, doctors gave most to candidates

By BILL CHOYKE and KYRA SUBBOTIN
Pampa's Washington Bureau
 WASHINGTON — A national dairy group based in Texas and the state affiliate of the American Medical Association led Texas corporate interests this year in their support of political candidates both within and outside of Texas.

Nationally, Texas-based groups ranked among the leaders both in the numbers participating and the amount of financial support given in this election campaign. In the first election featuring expanded corporate and union participation, approximately 60 Texas political action committees representing such wide-ranging groups as bankers to blue-collar laborers organized to funnel millions of dollars to candidates of their choice.

The most active Texas-based group — the Committee for Thorough Agriculture Education (Tape), affiliated with the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., of San Antonio — collected $2.2 million from its members and doled out $816,936. In the last several weeks of the campaign, Texans receiving committee funds included Bob Gammage and Rep. Bob Eckhardt, both Houston Democrats. Altogether, 22 congressional candidates received $5,000 contributions from TAPE in the final weeks of the campaign.

The second biggest Texas spender, the Texas Medical Association's Tex PAC committee, contributed extensively to both U.S. and Texas state candidates this year on its way to spending $433,887 through mid-October.

Rep. Jack Hightower, who beat former congressman Bob Price in the 13th District race, received $3,000 from the medical group in October. Last summer, TexPac also gave Gov. Dolph Briscoe $10,000 to pay off past campaign deficits.

A combination of the 1974 election law and regulations developed by the Federal Election Commission (FEC) — established by the law — provided the framework for more direct involvement in the political campaign this year by corporations.

Under federal law, corporations are prohibited from contributing directly to a political campaign. However, the FEC said corporate funds could be used to establish and operate and political action committees which raise funds from the firm's employees.

The new law triggered formations of hundreds of corporate-related committees across the country.

In Texas, several political committees formed but later abandoned because of excessive paperwork or because they had only a small amount of funds to contribute.

For example, one group called the Panhandle Energy Political Action Committee raised $11,450 through Sept. 30, but only contributed $565. Much of the funds were raised from energy-related interests in Amarillo, Pampa, Perryton and Spearman.

Generally, conservative Democrats and Republicans were the prime recipients of the business-oriented donations, while unions channeled most of their funds to moderate and liberal Democrats.

However, there were several exceptions to the rule. Eckhardt, for instance, an advocate of continued federal price controls on oil and gas, was one of 43 candidates receiving funds from the political arm of the Houston Natural Gas Co. in the closing weeks of the campaign.

Across the state, some of the other more active corporate political action committees include, according to latest FEC records:

—The state branch of the National Automobile Dealers Assn., which raised $34,524 and spent $29,750.

—Ballot Bankers Legislation League (banking profession), which raised $59,182 and spent $15,184. Most of the funds went to candidates for the Texas state legislature.

—The state branch of the National Association of Life Underwriters, which raised $74,013 and spent $42,744. The group supported only one federal candidate, J. Philip Gramm, who lost to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen in the Democratic primary May 1.

—Nursing Home Administrators of Texas (Austin), which spent about $70,000. Among the donations were $3,500 to Gov. Dolph Briscoe to help him campaign this fall, and $1,000 to Bentsen in October.

New homes cost $42,702

WASHINGTON (AP) — The typical new American home cost $42,702 and required monthly payments of $351.71, a survey by a trade association says.

The survey covered 950 home buyers in the year ending June 30, 1976, according to the National Association of Homebuilders.

It found that the families buying new homes had an average income of $21,615. More than half of the heads of households were in the 25-34 age group.

Pampa's Washington Bureau
 WASHINGTON — Imagine a world without checks. No weekly pay checks, no monthly personal check sent to the department store, nothing, in fact, but a banking card, similar to a credit card, that provides all the traditional bank services — and more.

Today, many banks have taken the first step toward this checkless society. You can visit an automatic teller after hours or on weekends and withdraw money, or transfer it from your savings account to your checking account, all with one card. Many stores are installing electronic computer terminals that can dock your account for the amount of a purchase.

Soon, if what experts say is true, banks may simply transfer your salary from your employer's account to your own and allow you to pay your monthly bills, taxes and mortgage, and add to your savings, all by computer.

But in spite of these conveniences, doubts persist that this checkless computer technology, called Electronic Fund Transfer System (EFTS), will lead to trouble-free banking. Among the potential problems are:

—Computer Error: Should an error occur in a bank transaction, it would be the customer's word against the computer — not a bank teller, as it is now. It would be hard to spot an error without check stubs and even harder to prove. A bank whose computer handles millions of transactions a month would be reluctant to admit an error that could touch off a landslide of similar appeals.

—Stop Payment: Consumers now have the option of "talking back" to merchants who sell damaged merchandise by stopping payment on a check a day or so after the purchase. But with EFTS, a transaction takes a matter of seconds. The money is simply moved from your account to his, and your stop payment leverage to force repair or exchange a purchase is forfeited.

—Privacy: To facilitate complex transactions of depositing your salary or paying your taxes, all by computer, banks will have to gather customer's personal bank records in one place. Many critics of the checkless system say this will be too great a temptation for the telephone company, credit examiners and government agencies to pry into a citizen's bank records.

Nevertheless, the support for EFTS is growing. Government agencies favor the system because it will simplify their collection and dispersal of a citizen's money, whether they are taking in taxes or paying out welfare, veterans or social security funds.

Banks favor EFTS because it will eliminate much of the paper work of the current system and because the computer will prevent customers from overdrawing their checking accounts.

Merchants favor it because it will cut down on bad checks and allow them to ascertain a customer's credit with more accuracy than before.

Carter's ag secretary may come from Midwest

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter has indicated he may reach into the Midwest for his secretary of agriculture — a move that would follow a long tradition of filling the post with Midwesterners.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., said Carter told him Tuesday that the secretary of agriculture should be an advocate and spokesman for farmers, should have farm experience himself and probably should be from the Midwest.

Six of the past nine secretaries of agriculture, beginning with Henry A. Wallace of Iowa in 1933, have had Midwest or Plains States backgrounds.

Carter already has named a Midwesterner to head his farm transition team. Lynn M. Daft, originally from Baltimore, Ohio, is in charge of arranging a smooth entry for Carter's agriculture secretary.

Daft, 39, a former Agriculture Department economist, said Tuesday he had no idea when Carter might choose his agriculture secretary.

retary John A. Knebel, an Oklahoman, or his aides to work out transition procedures.

Daft said his main task will be "to come to grips with the major policy issues" that will face the new secretary and to provide options for his consideration.

High on that agenda will be drafting new farm legislation to replace laws that expire in 1977.

Search for minister begins

LAS VEGAS, N.M. (AP) — A Civil Air Patrol search began today over the north-central New Mexico mountains for a missing plane carrying a Texas minister and his wife.

Members of the Longdale Church of Christ in Amarillo, Tex., identified the missing as Rev. Jack Mackey, 58, and his wife, Edna. They said the Mackeys left Friday to spend the weekend at a cabin in the Questa-Taos area.

Mackey did not file a flight plan, the CAP said.

The two weren't reported missing until Tuesday, when they didn't show up at a church meeting in San Antonio, Tex.

Picturesque landscape

Barn painting, once a familiar feature of rural America, is still around — but in Wisconsin at least it has changed in style. Subject matter which once ran to advertisements for tobacco and animal feeds, and in some localities traditional hex symbols, has gone psychedelic. The mural montage of pond and field brightening a farm near Eau Claire is one of several around the state decorated in the Wisconsin Arts Board's Dairyland Graphics program. Funding for the work by local professional artists came from the National Endowment for the Arts. Paint was supplied by PPG Industries.

Hazards to be profiled

Pampa's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — The Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) announced last week that it is changing the way it publicizes safety information about retail merchandise.

Beginning this fall, the CPSC will issue "profiles" of consumer products explaining their hazards under six major categories: flammability, chemical hazards, electric shock danger, mechanical devices, home structures, and certain merchandise that only affects a specific group in the population, such as children.

An agency spokesman said information on many products is available with CPSC and other government agencies but the profile will enable manufacturers and consumers to get it easily from one place.

Within each of the major categories, CPSC researchers will study hundreds of products, point out the hazards present, and list them according to their generic name. For instance, under flammability, one profile will list the burn potential of all tents on the market.

A product will be selected for study, the CPSC spokesman said, according to its potential for injury and where the agency thinks it can make an immediate impact on consumer safety.

After that, the CPSC has three steps it can take to address a safety hazard: it can suggest voluntary measures within an industry, it can propose regulations to congress, or it can begin its own public education program.

If you are one of millions of consumers who has rejected soft, sliceable white bread in favor of one of the new high fiber breads, there is something you should know. That fiber is cellulose, made by processing wood pulp from trees.

But don't worry, says the National Observer. Wood pulp is currently being used in everything from fish sticks to ice cream and may soon turn up in salad dressing and meat.

High fiber breads have become popular because cellulose has one fourth to one-third fewer calories than the flour used in white bread. Bread manufacturers have begun to replace the high levels of flour and fats in bread with the chewy substitute to meet the consumer demand for less fatening bread products.

Bakers argue that consumers aren't really eating wood pulp because it undergoes a sophisticated purification treatment before it is made into bread.

But some government experts are becoming concerned. Dr. Barbara Harland, of the Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Division of Nutrition is afraid that people might now be getting too much fiber. She claimed that tests with animals have shown that an excess of fiber in the system might lead to a vitamin deficiency and lower energy levels in humans. However, bread manufacturers laud the utility of cellulose in many new products, such as whipped cream and macaroni.

"The breakthrough with wood pulp cellulose is that it has a palatable taste," according to a spokesman at ITT's bread division.

"It can be used anywhere," said Bob Callaghan of the Brown Co., the nation's largest cellulose producer. "It's only limited by one's imagination."

STARS
Hunters may soon be in for a surprise if the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) has its way.

Officials there are moving to replace traditional lead buck shot for shotguns with steel shot or a steel alloy. They charged recently that approximately 2 million ducks and geese are poisoned annually because they mistakenly eat the lead shot that litters hunting areas when the season is over.

Researchers said that over 6 million pounds of lead shot remains on the ground in hunting refuges to be eaten by birds who mistake it for grain.

Critics of the move say that steel shot will damage shotgun barrels because it is a harder substance than lead. Also, they add, steel is more expensive than lead.

Proponents claim that both steel and lead will damage a barrel over time and use, but a FWS spokesman said that tests involving thousands of firings comparing steel and lead, showed the barrel damage was only "cosmetic." Addressing the cost issue, they said that the price of steel shot will drop once ammunition makers produce enough to compete with lead on the market.

But whichever way it goes, lead or steel, autumn will still be the most dangerous time of year for game birds.

A Chronicle of America

Early this month an American schooner standing out of the Carribbean island of St. Croix fires several volleys in salute to the Danish fort overlooking the harbor. According to an angered British observer, the fort returns the salute "the same as if she had been an English or Danish ship." On the 18th, the 14-gun American brig Andrea Doria, commanded by Captain Isalah Robinson, greets the Dutch garrison in Fort Orange on St. Eustatius in the West Indies with an 11-round salute. The Dutch respond with a nine-round volley. These are the first known salutes to the American flag (Grand Union design) by forces of another country. These acts of recognition outrage British authorities.

Pupils' grass use grows

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half of the Bicentennial class of high school seniors tried marijuana and three out of 10 were users at graduation time, according to government surveys.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse surveyed 17,000 high school seniors in 130 schools last spring and found that 53 per cent had tried marijuana, a 5 per cent increase over the class of 1975.

The survey, released today, said 32 per cent regarded themselves as current marijuana users.

An identical 53 per cent of persons aged 18 to 25 had tried marijuana, according to another institute survey, and 25 per cent were current users. It showed 22 per cent of 12-to-17-year-olds had experimented with marijuana and 15 per cent were regular or occasional users.

Although cigarettes and alcohol were used more frequently than marijuana by young adults, 57 per cent of high school seniors thought there was a serious health risk for cigarettes while only 40 per cent felt the same way about marijuana.

The findings indicated the use of LSD has remained virtually constant the last four years, and that abuse of heroin and psychotherapeutic drugs has been unchanged the last two years.

The rate of cocaine use was the same this year as in 1975.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, the institute's director, said comparison of the surveys show "an apparent stabilization in drug use and the attitudes toward drugs in general."

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texans pay less at the gas pump than people in other states, but the percentage of their local property taxes used for highway construction is more than twice the national average, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Monday.

The national average is 6 per cent, while in Texas it is 13 per cent, Bullock said.

The Texas state motor fuel tax is 5 cents a gallon. Thirteen other states cited in Bullock's study have fuel taxes ranging from 6.5 cents a gallon in Oklahoma to 9 cents in Pennsylvania.

Frank Phillips College in Borger will introduce a four-day schedule for students who desire it in the coming spring semester.

Under the new plan, classes will meet Monday through Thursday giving the students an opportunity for a three-day weekend.

College officials estimate that approximately one-half the student body will take advantage of the new schedule.

Plans are underway to extend the multiplicity concept even further next fall so that the student who wishes to work two, three or four days a week may do so and still carry a full load.

Unwed father sues school over dismissal

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Robert Petrie thinks his high school was wrong to suspend him from the swimming team because he is an unwed father. So he's suing the school for $10,000.

But principal Larry L. Pinkerton says he stands by the decision. He said it was based on an Indiana High School Athletic Association rule giving schools the right to disqualify athletes whose "habits, conduct or character in or out of school... are such to reflect discredit upon their school or the association."

The suit filed Monday in U.S. district court claims the one-year suspension violates Petrie's civil rights and will hurt his chances of getting a college athletic scholarship. Petrie said such a scholarship would be worth more than $10,000.

Besides damages, Petrie is seeking a temporary restraining order and a permanent order to force Twin Lakes High School in Monticello to allow him to compete when the team opens its season Saturday.

According to the suit, the youth's mother, Mary Campbell of rural Burnettsville, received a letter Oct. 7 from the high school swimming coach saying her son had been suspended from competition because his child was born out of wedlock.

The suit alleged that Supt. Robert Hanni and principal Pinkerton acknowledged that Petrie would not have been suspended had he married the child's mother.

But Hanni said "that statement wasn't made by me. That is an assumption made by the plaintiff's attorney."

Petrie and his girl friend, also 16, placed their three-month-old child up for adoption after deciding that their youth made marriage inadvisable, the suit said.

Pinkerton said the school planned to "stay with the policy until someone tells us otherwise." He said that aside from the suspension, "there's been no discrimination, no harassment" against Petrie.

Meanwhile, Petrie has continued to practice with the swim team and his coach says he is good enough to compete, the suit said.

Says Ike was impotent

NEW YORK (AP) — The late Kay Summersby says in a posthumously published memoir that she and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had a love affair during World War II. But she said it was never consummated because he was impotent.

Miss Summersby wrote that Eisenhower, then Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, discussed his relationship with his wife, Mamie, and then told her: "Kay, I guess I'm telling you that I'm not the lover you should have. It killed something in me... For years I never thought of making love."

"And then when I did... I failed with you, my dearest, didn't I?"

The onetime London fashion model who became Eisenhower's driver and later his aide describes her relationship with "Ike" in a book titled "Past Forgetting: My Love Affair with Dwight D. Eisenhower."

In excerpts appearing in the current Ladies Home Journal, Miss Summersby, who died of cancer last Jan. 20, wrote that she felt free to tell the story because "The General is dead. I am dying."

"I do not believe that anyone today will construe our relationship as shameful," she added.

She wrote that the relationship began in Algiers during the invasion of North Africa, when Eisenhower told her: "Kay, you are someone very special to me."

She said he took her hand and tears welled in her eyes.

A few days later, she said, she was trying to ignore the situation when the general shouted: "Goddammit, can't you tell I'm crazy about you? Goddammit, I love you."

After a visit to Washington and reunion with Mamie, wrote Miss Summersby, Eisenhower returned and told her "there was the very devil to pay."

"I kept calling her Kay," she quoted the general as saying. "Every time I started to say something to Mamie, I'd call her Kay. She was furious."

Miss Summersby wrote that she felt "great sympathy" for Mrs. Eisenhower, who has been living quietly on her Gettysburg farm since the former president's death. But the book excerpts give no details of the Eisenhower's supposed marital problems.

Hearst's day in court set before Jan. 10

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst must appear in court at least once before the start of her Jan. 10 trial here for kidnaping, robbery and assault, a judge has ruled.

Superior Court Judge William Ritz, informed that Miss Hearst would not appear at pretrial hearings, said Monday she must personally come into open court to sign a waiver of such appearances.

Program group of Wheeler sets tax study

The Wheeler County Program Building Committee and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will sponsor an income tax meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the Shamrock High School auditorium.

Ritz also reduced Miss Hearst's bail to $250,000 and ordered her lawyer to begin filing motions "as soon as possible" in connection with her upcoming trial. The charges stem from a May 1974 shooting and crime spree that began at an Inglewood sporting goods store.

The speaker will be Dr. Ray Sammons, area economist-management, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Amarillo.

Dr. Sammons will discuss ways to reduce taxes, things to consider when purchasing equipment or land and changes in the tax laws.

He also will discuss the types of farm records needed to enable a tax preparer to do the best job possible.

A question and answer session will follow.

Outside court, attorney Albert Johnson reiterated his frequently stated position that the case never will go to trial. He said it would be impossible to find an unbiased jury to judge the "celebrated convict heiress."

Thanksgiving holiday toll forecast set

CHICAGO (AP) — Between 450 and 550 persons are expected to die in traffic accidents over the four day Thanksgiving weekend, about the same as during a nonholiday period, the National Safety Council says.

Johnson came to Ritz's court Monday with Randolph Hearst, father of the 22-year-old heiress. They were granted a reduction of the $500,000 bail set by Ritz for the Los Angeles charges. Deputy Dist. Atty. Sam Mayerson, who will prosecute Miss Hearst, did not oppose the reduction.

The number of holiday accidents has been holding about steady since the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit went into effect, a spokesman for the council said Monday.

Heard told reporters his daughter was "delighted" to be home. He said she had received visits from relatives, had been catching up on old times, and cooked a "pretty good omelette" for Sunday breakfast.

For counting purposes, the Thanksgiving weekend begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

During a nonholiday period of a similar length at this time of the year, the council said that about 530 traffic deaths could be expected.

Over the last Thanksgiving weekend, 403 persons died in highway accidents. The worst four-day Thanksgiving weekend was in 1968 when 764 motorists were killed.

He declined to say whether she would remain at the family's Nob Hill apartment in San Francisco or be moved elsewhere. If she is moved, he said, the location will remain a secret for security reasons. The Hearsts have hired a private platoon of security guards to ensure their daughter's safety.

A "DESIGNATED SCORER" MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Coach Cal Stoll of Minnesota's football team calls fullback Jim Perkins the team's "designated scorer." In the Gophers' first six games this season, Perkins carried the ball 35 times but scored nine touchdowns.

Baptist Church prosecutes man with bologna sandwich

DUNDEE, Fla. (AP) — A man caught making a bologna sandwich in a church was sent to jail because the minister felt it was his Christian duty "to apprehend those involved in criminal acts."

Virgil Hughes, 52, a migrant farmworker employed on a local farm, said he was outside the Dundee Baptist Church on Sunday, penniless and unable to remember the last time he had eaten. A passerby suggested he try the church kitchen, he told police.

Hughes said he walked through an open door and was fixing a sandwich when the minister, Rev. James Lockwood, found him and called police.

Officer Ron Sellgren said he found no evidence of forced entry and no burglary tools. "He had nothing on him but a can of pipe tobacco," Sellgren said.

But the Rev. Mr. Lockwood said he caught Hughes filling a bag with groceries. "And of course I don't know what else he was going to take," he said.

Hughes was taken to police headquarters, where he told authorities his story. Asst. Polk County State Attorney Al Smith then decided that he could be charged only with trespassing, a misdemeanor. Hughes was set free.

But Smith said the Rev. Mr. Lockwood called him later to complain about the release. The minister claimed that the church was locked and Hughes broke in, Smith said.

"It's pretty hard to convince me or anyone else that a church shouldn't be open on Sunday morning," Smith said.

Nonetheless, the minister filed a complaint, and Hughes was arrested on burglary charges.

"I've given my life to helping others," the minister said. "I don't want him harmed, but I feel as a Christian that I have a duty to society to apprehend those involved in criminal acts."

The Rev. Mr. Lockwood said he would ask the state attorney if Hughes could be released on his own recognizance. He also said he's invited Hughes to join him for Thanksgiving dinner.

Said Hughes: "I will never go into another church."

About 150,000 small windmills are still operating in the United States.

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP) — This old mining town, which once offered its hard-drinking residents 110 saloons, has only 30 left. And even that's 10 too many, according to a new ordinance.

The ordinance setting a long-range goal of 20 bars was needed because tourists who come here during summer want to see other things, and because barkeeps have trouble making a living in off-season months, an official said Tuesday.

"This ordinance will make our area more of a family tourist thing," said Henry Bland, chairman of the Storey County Commission which unanimously passed the liquor license ordinance Monday.

The restriction affects both Virginia City, once a city of 33,000 but now down to 600 residents, and nearby Gold Hill, a hamlet of 60 citizens that has been limited to its current three bars.

The ordinance provides that if any of the Virginia City barkeeps decide to give up their businesses, the licenses will lapse until only 20 remain available. It's still possible for a newcomer to buy out an existing operation.

Bland said the ordinance "goes against my grain a little bit. I'm sort of a conservative person. But we just felt it was time we tried something, because we have just been getting more bars every year."

The saloon limit had been under discussion for at least two years. Saloon keepers had mixed feelings at first, because initial proposals would have required some of them to clear out.

But Angelo Petrini, a spokesman for the local Saloon Owners Association, said the ordinance in its final form represents "something everyone's agreed upon."

Miners hauled out nearly $700 million in gold and silver in the heyday of the "Comstock Lode." The mining peaked in the 1880s, and there has been no large scale mining since the 1920s.

Some of the more elaborate saloons featured carved bars which were shipped around Cape Horn and carted by wagon from San Francisco.

Despite the new limit, you still can stand on the street and get a feeling for one part of life in the Wild West. In one three-block stretch, you'll find 27 of the remaining 30 watering holes.

Two newsmen will be allowed at executions

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections says only two newsmen will be allowed as witnesses when the state of Texas executes condemned men in the Huntsville state prison.

Robert Excel White and James Owen Livingston are scheduled to die in the electric chair next Dec. 10. A request for a stay of execution was denied Wednesday by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin.

An official news media policy guide issued by the TDC says a reporter from The Associated Press and a reporter from United Press International will be admitted along with official witnesses in the chamber where the executions take place. The two reporters will act as "pool" newsmen gathering information to be distributed to other news media.

Other news reporters will watch the execution through a television monitor in a room nearby.

All persons entering the chamber or the monitor room will have to submit to electronic surveillance and no recording devices or monitor equipment will be allowed.

Judge Bates gets 8 years

HOUSTON (AP) — Criminal District Court Judge Garth C. Bates, 60, was sentenced today to serve eight years in prison for his conviction on a charge of accepting a $50,000 bribe.

Bates was sentenced by retired appellate Judge John M.

Barron of Bryan. He presided over the 10-day trial that ended Nov. 11 when a jury deliberated about two hours in returning the verdict of guilty.

Dist. Atty. Carol Vance had asked Barron to assess the maximum sentence of 20 years in prison.

Barron handled the sentencing after defense lawyers waived sentencing deliberations by the jury.

Bates was convicted on a July 16 charge alleging the acceptance of the bribe from Nukie Fontenot, a pawnbroker, in exchange for a promise Fontenot would not be sent to prison.

Fontenot was not indicted in the case and testified for the prosecution.

Death of woman, 27, is mystery

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The doctor who treated a young woman who died mysteriously Monday says there is no evidence her death was related to the swine flu shot she took three days before.

"There is no evidence of a connection," said Dr. Earl Matthews.

Janell Spencer, 27, died in the intensive care unit of a local hospital at 11:47 p.m. Monday.

Officials said an autopsy will be performed.

"It's an unusual case. We've spent a lot of hours trying to decide what happened," Matthews said.

He said the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta told him it had no reports of any such reactions to swine flu shots.

The dead woman's family said she felt fine Friday but became ill Saturday and was hospitalized that day.

Dr. Phillip Mallory of the State Department of Health Resources said, "Nothing like this has been reported elsewhere. A good many millions have had the shot without trouble."

Justice of the Peace Jon Wisser said the young San Antonian apparently was watching the truck unload. He was told to leave the loading area but apparently returned, Wisser said.

Delivery truck runs over student, 16

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Robert Castillo, 16, a student at the Austin State School, died Tuesday after a delivery truck ran over him on the school's campus.

Justice of the Peace Jon Wisser said the young San Antonian apparently was watching the truck unload. He was told to leave the loading area but apparently returned, Wisser said.

Wisser ruled the death accidental.

The night before Christmas

On the day before Christmas a procession of clergymen will slowly make its way into Manger Square after a 10 mile walk from Jerusalem. More than 20,000 tourists will visit the tiny city to witness this traditional ceremony. Christmas Eve ceremonies for the "Western churches traditionally begin at 1 p.m. on Dec. 24 when a pilgrimage of clergymen sets out from Jerusalem, 10 miles to the north. As the procession reaches Bethlehem, it is joined by thousands of members of religious and youth organizations.

Baby to live in bubble

NEW YORK (AP) — An 8-month-old New Mexico boy will spend the next few months in a plastic bubble here, undergoing a transplant operation to give him the defense system that nature failed to provide. Demetrius Varvarigos was flown here Tuesday from Albuquerque and taken to Sloan-Kettering Cancer Institute. He will live in a crib-like shell supplied with sterile air to isolate him from the ordinary germs that have filled his life with staph, strep and ear infections. He also will be treated with antibiotics.

Dr. Shirley Murphy, pediatric immunologist at the University of New Mexico School of Medicine, said Demetrius was born without an immune defense system. She said only luck, his mother's care and an alert family pediatrician had brought him this far.

Dr. Murphy said she "became especially concerned about the boy when his mother told me that three of her brothers had died of overwhelming infections at about the age of eight months."

The boy's mother, Mrs. Mario Varvarigos, said Demetrius would "be okay for two or three days and then there would be the fever and fuzziness again and something would start."

Demetrius is to spend three to six months at Sloan-Kettering, receiving a fetal liver cell transplant that doctors "hope will build an immunity system."

Doctors wanted to give the child a bone marrow transplant to start his immune system working. But he has a rare cell type, and no family donors could be found.

"Such a child, two or three years ago, without a bone marrow donor, would die or would have to live in a bubble," Dr. Murphy said. "Now with fetal liver or fetal thymus transplants, his immune system can be reconstructed and he can be returned to a normal human life."

The transplant involves implanting cells from the liver of infants who miscarried at an early stage. The cells provide the basis on which the body can form an immune system, doctors said.

Once the system is working, Demetrius will return to Albuquerque and the university hospital.

Dr. Murphy said three such transplants have been performed at Sloan-Kettering. She said all three children are alive a year or more later with normal immune systems.

Most birds fly below 3,000 feet when migrating, although ducks and some small perching birds have been sighted above 20,000 feet, says National Geographic.

'Swine flu was nothing'

CONCORDIA, Mo. (AP) — Larry Hardison, who didn't even know he had swine flu until after he recovered, says it was nothing compared to the severe case of publicity he's come down with since.

A network television crew was waiting to interview Hardison when he showed up for work Tuesday morning as lineman and repairman for the Continental Telephone Co. of Concordia, a rural community of 1,854 about 60 miles east of Kansas City.

"They asked me, 'Are you the one?'" Hardison said. "I said I was, and I've been talking to reporters ever since."

By midmorning he was on his third interview and had been unable to put in any time on his job. Hardison said that for about a week in October, he had felt "punky," with a cough, sore throat, a low-grade fever of 100 to 101 degrees and a slight burning in the chest. "Like running in the wind in the winter-time."

Swine flu information

NEW YORK (AP) — The Center for Disease Control uses age and health as determining factors for who should or shouldn't receive the swine flu vaccine and what type vaccine is needed.

A spokesman for the CDC said the following applies:

Under 6 months: none
For healthy children:
—6 months to 3 years: none
—3 to 17 years: two shots of swine flu vaccine. Supplies are available for one out of 10 children.

For children with chronic illness:

—6 months to 17 years: two shots of "bivalent" vaccine that protects against both swine and A-Victoria strains.

swine flu vaccine and a booster.

For adults with chronic illness:

—18 to 24 years: two shots of bivalent vaccine.

—25 to 65 years: one shot of bivalent vaccine.

For those over 65: one shot of bivalent vaccine.

Some states have lowered the minimum age for the bivalent vaccine in healthy or chronically ill adults from 65 to 50.

The symptoms for swine flu and A-Victoria strains are similar to those of any flu: fever, chills, headache, dry cough, soreness and aching, a feeling of weakness, the CDC said.

'Sybil', 'Billy Jack' take top ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Top ratings for NBC's 50th anniversary special, Part Two of "Sybil," a TV movie, and the 1971 hit movie, "Billy Jack," helped NBC come in No. 1 last week in the weekly ratings averages.

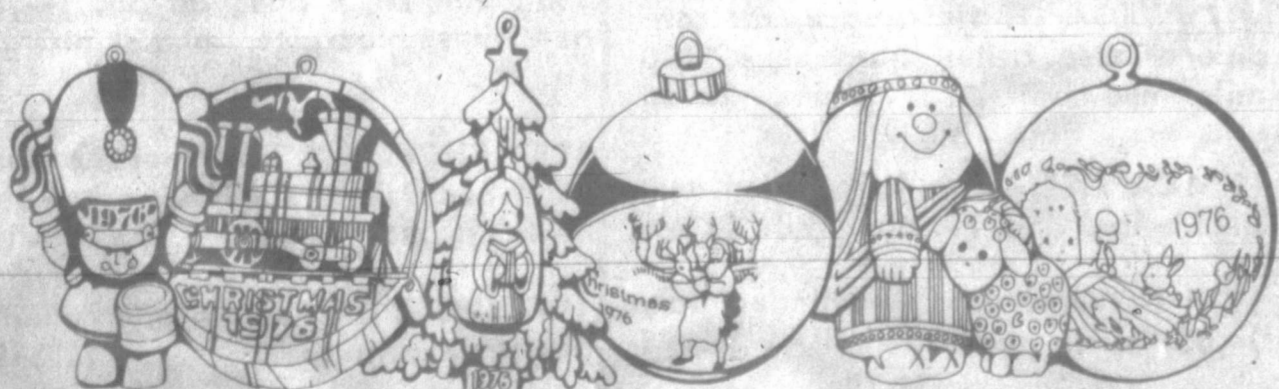

Audience estimates showed Tuesday that those NBC programs came in third, fourth and fifth in the A.C. Nielsen Co. standings, helping the network win the ratings race for the third consecutive week.

The margin of victory was narrow though. Nielsen figures showed that NBC's evening programs were seen, on the average, in only 356,000 more homes than watched the programs of second-place ABC.

According to the Nielsen estimates, the 20 highest-rated shows last week were "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley" (ABC); "First 50 Years," "Sybil" and "Billy Jack" (NBC); "John Denver Special" (ABC); "M-A-S-H," "The Waltons," "Good Times," "The Jeffersons," "Hawaii Five-O" and "One Day at a Time" (CBS); "Dorothy Hamill Special," "Monday Night Football" and "Olivia Newton-John Special" (ABC); "Chinatown" (CBS); "Welcome Back, Kotter" (ABC); "Sanford and Son" (NBC); "Barney Miller" (NBC); and "All in the Family" (CBS).
