Carter tours new home

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, getting a look at his new home on his first post-election visit to Washington, met with a parade of high-level administration officials today before an afternoon session with President Ford at the White House.

James Lynn, who is Ford's director of the Office of Management and Budget, began the parade shortly before 9 a.m. EDT. He went to Blair House to meet with Carter across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House and the Old Executive Office Building complex.

As he left, Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld walked in. Both men were preceded by the vice president-elect.

Asked what he and Carter talked about, Lynn said "he loved it or not, we talked about budget and management, the name of my office being budget and management. He said Carter asked good questions, but did not indicate the direction he is moving on budget matters."

Lynn said Carter did not ask to have any influence on the budget. Ford is preparing to submit.

We talked about management matters, organization matters, techniques of putting budgets together, Lynn declared. It covered a wide range of subjects. It was obvious to me the governor had given this a great deal of thought.

Lynn said any specifics about the conversation would have to come from Carter.

The president-elect arrived in Washington on Sunday night, flying from Albany, Ga. in a chartered jet. As has become his custom, Carter carried his own suitcase as he walked off the plane. He planned to use Blair House, the government guest residence, for visiting dignitaries, as his base of operations.

In addition to Lynn and Rumsfeld, the secretaries of Treasury and Health, Education and Welfare, planned to visit him there. But Carter said he would cross the street to confer with Ford in the White House for his first visit with his defeated rival since the last of their three debates one month ago.

Asked how he felt arriving in Washington as president-elect, Carter said he felt "gratitude to the people of this country for giving me their confidence and a determination not to disappoint them."

I feel a very deep and sober sense of responsibility about the future," he said.

On Sunday, Carter attended services at the Plains Baptist Church. Also attending was the Rev. Clemon King, a black nondenominational minister whose application for church membership led the congregation to vote a week ago to allow blacks to worship at the church and seek membership.

Carter spent the rest of the day at home.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, predicted that the meetings today would deal with substantive matters and would not just be courtesy calls.

New York City Mayor Abraham Beame said Sunday that Carter had assured him he would talk to Secretary of the Treasury William Simon about the city's latest fiscal crisis. Beame said Carter had pledged to do what he could to help the city get past its current plight, caused by a court ruling that the moratorium on payments on city bonds was unconstitutional.

Carter plans a series of meetings Tuesday with House and Senate committee chairmen, Republican leaders, the House International Relations Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Carter planned to meet tonight with Sen. Walter F. Mondale, the Vice President elect, to begin preliminary attempts to narrow down his list of potential cabinet members.

Hamilton Jordan, who is recruiting personnel for Carter, said Sunday that Cyrus Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski are being seriously considered for positions in the administration.

Vance is a former deputy defense secretary and Brzezinski is a foreign affairs specialist and Columbia University professor who has advised Carter. Jordan made his comments on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

The Fords returned to Washington in a rainstorm Sunday night after an overnight visit with the family of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller at Rockefeller's 3,500-acre Pocantico Hills estate near Tarrytown, N.Y.

Though they have known each other for years, it was the first time the Fords had been inside the heavily guarded Rockefeller domain in the famed Sleepy Hollow area.

Red Wedgeworth to retire

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

F. O. "Red" Wedgeworth, manager of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce since 1945, submitted his formal letter of resignation today at the chamber's November board meeting.

Wedgeworth's retirement will become effective next March 1. He said he was giving the notice now to allow plenty of time for selection of his successor.

The board accepted the resignation with regrets and President Kunkel asked that a resolution of acceptance and appreciation for Wedgeworth's long service as a community leader in Pampa be drawn for chamber records.

The letter of resignation was read by Kunkel. Announcing the retirement date as March 1, it read in part:

The people of Pampa have been good to me and my family during the past 32 years and they join me in expressing thanks and appreciation for your friendships, cooperation and support during those years.

It has been gratifying to see the growth and economic development that has taken place during my tenure. Community leadership here has always been outstanding which has made Pampa a city of distinction, and I believe the future is bright for continued progress.

Good luck and best wishes to all of you. It has been my pleasure to serve you and the fine people of this area.

Kunkel named Toy Sparkman, Gene Steel and the three members of the chamber executive committee including the chamber president, Veri Hagaman, vice president and Luther Robinson, finance director, on a committee to screen applicants for the chamber manager's post.

Wedgeworth told the directors he had no recommendations for a successor and would have none.

The board of directors went on record in favor of a separate District Court for Gray County to replace the current 31st District Court, which encompasses Wheeler, Lipscomb, Roberts and Hemphill Counties in addition to Gray. The action was taken to forward the chamber's recommendation to State Rep. Phil Gates and State Sen. Max Sherman.

Finance Director Robinson gave a report on the chamber's current finances which showed an October bank balance of $10,762, expected receipts of $78,654, expected expenditures of $71,565 for the 1976-77 year and a projected $7,089 at the end of the year.

A list of chairmen for the chamber's various committees was approved and chairmen will select their committee members.

Directors also heard a report from Wedgeworth on the upcoming Job Fair Dec. 11 in Amarillo. He explained the affair is the second phase of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's Texas First program in which efforts will be made to match employers with available workers.

The chamber manager reported that upwards of 300 jobs are available in Pampa.

Cabot Corp. and Celanese Chemical Co. both are in need of additional employees.

Following the financial report by Finance Director Robinson, the proposed annual budget of $71,565 was approved unanimously. It showed an increase of slightly more than $1,000 over the budget approved for the current year.

Hunter shoots killer

RANKIN, Tex. (AP)—A San Angelo Tex. deer hunter and his son were returning Sunday from a New Mexico hunt when the pair saw a motorist shoot a highway patrolman.

The hunter pulled off U.S. 67 near this West Texas town, grabbed his 6 millimeter rifle and shot the killer to death after firing four shots, said authorities who refused to name the hunter.

Authorities said Long died from three bullet wounds in the back from a .32-caliber pistol. Long had been chasing the pickup at a high rate of speed, witnesses said.

Dist. Atty. Aubrey Edwards said Long stopped a pickup truck around dusk, later determined to be stolen from California, about four miles east of Rankin. As he approached the truck the motorist began firing. Long returned the fire and jumped behind his patrol car.

The deer hunter and his son saw the motorist shoot Long four times as he lay on the ground, Edwards said.

The hunter got out his 6 millimeter rifle and scope and shot the motorist. He said he shot four or five times, but I think he hit him only once," Edwards said.

Two San Angelo Tex. cops also witnessed the killings and used their citizens band radio to summon help.

I've taken a complete statement from him (the hunter) but our investigation isn't finished yet," Edwards said.

'Just slipped into water'

BOSTON (AP)—After hanging on to his overturned sail boat for 23 hours, Earl Dudman slipped into the freezing Atlantic and drowned as his son and best friend watched helplessly. Rescue came an hour later.

We tried our hardest to keep him aboard the boat, but there was nothing we could do. He was like a dead weight in our arms," said Peter Dudman 20 in a telephone interview from his hospital bed here Sunday night.

The three men balanced atop the hull for 23 hours. Peter said after the 20-foot Easy Go was swamped Saturday, 10 miles southeast of Gloucester.

The wife of the friend, Irwin Whitey Haynes, 35, of Topsheld, reported them missing to the Coast Guard when they failed to return home Saturday night.

Young Dudman said the three had huddled together trying to keep warm, as waves washed up around their legs.

We knew he was in trouble when he told us his rain gear had split," Peter said of his 47-year-old father. He started to get colder and colder, first his legs, then his hands and finally his head.

Peter and Haynes held on to Dudman for hours, scanning the horizon for helicopters or rescue ships. Several ships passed by without noticing the capsized boat, Peter said.

Electric company tracks possible power stealers

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff

Although reports from the East tell of electric power companies being squeezed hard by juice stealers, Melvin Kunkel, Pampa district manager for Southwestern Public Service Co. says it is not a problem here.

Thefts of electricity by tampering with meters are more numerous in the wintry Northeast, where consumers pay prices for electricity that rank among the nation's highest.

Three New England Electric System subsidiaries report that in 1975 they found 406 suspected cases of power theft among one million customers. They billed 177 customers for $61,450 worth of stolen electricity.

A big increase in thefts was noted by the New England firm in September of this year when 1,521 suspicious cases were found.

Kunkel said there have been reports and investigation of thefts in Pampa and in less than a half dozen cases they were found to be true and the violators were confronted and billed for stolen power on the basis of a comparable amount of kilowatt hours used in the same month one year ago.

Because of increased rates, stealing electricity is growing by leaps and bounds, according to power company officials.

"Anyone who says his company doesn't have a problem hasn't looked for one," said Clarence F. Eckelmann of the New Orleans Public Service Co. and chairman of the security committee of the Edison Electric Institute, a trade group.

Kunkel said his company plans to take a closer look at power consumption and the search for electricity thieves probably will be stepped up locally.

Many utilities initially ignored the problem for fear of putting larcenous ideas in the heads of other wise honest customers.

Kunkel said, however, it is not too difficult to catch up with a power thief and a few have been caught up with in Pampa.

Now that the practice seems to be spreading across the country, he said, "we are going to take still further steps to prevent it happening here."

Kunkel stated that so far there had been no prosecution of cases in Pampa. In all local instances those who have been caught have paid for the electricity stolen and the matter was then dropped.

Those who decide to commit the relatively new crime usually realize they would be caught immediately if their meter registered no usage," Kunkel stated, "so they disable it or install jumper wires only part of the time or else they rig their meter to run slow."

Kunkel can tell you how that is done, but for now it is more or less a trade secret among the electricity stealers.

He pointed out that stealing power, if prosecuted, can result in a misdemeanor, theft charge and if the amount is large enough, it can become a felony.

He said thefts can be discovered easily by a meter reader, but also can be found when computers spot a suspiciously low bill. Sometimes they are caught when a neighbor rattles on a customer who has bragged how he is taking the electric company on his electric bill.

In summation, Kunkel said that although the problem is extremely negligible locally, the company plans to keep its eyes and ears open for violators if the crime pattern spreads.

Nuclear cloud crosses US

WASHINGTON (AP)—Debris from a Chinese nuclear explosion, leaving a windblown, invisible trail of radioactive material across the United States, is now waiving across the Atlantic Ocean on its way around the earth.

The leading edge of the immense cloud of radioactive debris completed a journey across the United States on Sunday. Government experts insisted there was no danger, even in areas where rain washed the material to the earth.

Federal monitors said there was some evidence of increased levels of radioactivity in the wake of the forward edge of the cloud, which has the heaviest concentration of radioactive material.

But a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency said there had been no significant increases in radiation readings and that increases that were noted were not serious.

The readings were made as the cloud billowed across the country after crossing the Pacific Ocean following the nuclear explosion in China last week.

The EPA spokesman said the forward edge of the radioactive material will eventually reach China again, then will cross the Pacific and pass over the United States again in about a week.

The cloud's forward edge will leave behind a trail of radioactive material that will encircle the planet's northern hemisphere like an invisible radioactive doughnut for about two weeks. The shape and speed of the debris is determined by prevailing winds.

The cloud of material is made up of microscopic dust particles and is not visible or detectable except with special instruments.

the GOP, announced today she will resign in January, but urged Republicans to avoid any "fatal lurch" to political extremes.

The resignation, which becomes effective at the Republican National Committee meeting here Jan. 14-15, is an apparent peace move to avoid a bitter leadership fight. Mrs. Smith said she hopes it will pave the way for a compromise chairman.

Conservatives have indicated they will move to take over the party leadership in the wake of President Ford's loss to Democrat Jimmy Carter.

"During the next six weeks I hope that all Republicans will consider carefully the results of past elections at the local, state and national levels," Mrs. Smith said in a formal announcement of her resignation. "My own personal review of those election returns, per suades me that we must maintain a party that simultaneously expresses concern for people's problems, embraces a healthy diversity of viewpoints and stands behind traditional Republican principles," she said.

Surely, this is not time for destructive division within our party, just as it is not time for a fatal lurch to either extreme of the political spectrum.

Mrs. Smith said she resigned voluntarily. "I have reached this decision after a great deal of thought about the future of the party and the role of the chairman," she said. "I hope that a broad consensus on my successor will develop within the party so that an orderly transition may take place at the committee."

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Peek at new Congress

It's too early, of course, to predict with accuracy what the philosophical makeup of the newly elected Congress will be. There were many turnovers among the 435 members of the House, and 17 of the 100 Senate seats will be held by newcomers when the 95th Congress convenes in January.

What is apparent, however, is that the political balance of Congress remains about the same. That is, Democrats enjoy a margin of 62 to 38 in the Senate and a cool two to one majority in the House. In the statehouses, meantime, Democrats likewise have overwhelming strength of about three governors for every one GOP governor.

Many observers regard the 94th Congress which ended last month as one of the sorriest on record. Filled with a huge freshman class, of Democrats elected in 1974 in the wake of Watergate, the 94th will be remembered for its profligate spending — including a pay hike for itself cynically tied henceforth to the cost of living — and repeated scandals involving violations of both personal and public trust. It was the Congress that fiddled while the nation's most serious problems, including energy, continued to burn out of control. The stalemate that persisted, with a spendthrift Democratic Congress on one hand and a determined Republican President on the other, was by no means ideal government. It was better, however, than the national bankruptcy that some irresponsible members of the 94th seemed determined to bring upon the country.

We now shudder a bit to contemplate the fact that a similarly balanced Congress will be faced by fellow Democrat Jimmy Carter in the White House. Whether he will have the desire or courage to check the excesses of Capitol Hill remains to be seen.

On a positive note, Americans concerned help be pleased by the defeat at the polls of some very liberal members — such as New York's Bella Abzug and Hawaii's Patsy Mink, who lost in the primary, and Democratic Senators John Tunney, Vance Hartke and Frank Moss who lost in the general election. We can hope only hope that the men and women of Capitol Hill, regardless of their political affiliation, will put such differences aside and act responsibly over the next two years for the best long-range interests of the nation as a whole.

'For sale' signs banned

The law, which avowed purpose is to protect individual property rights, is, by far, their chief violator. Examples proliferate, the latest coming to our attention, occurring in the New Jersey town of Willingboro.

Long held as inviolate has been the right of homeowners in this country to dispose of their property when and as they please, including the right to advertise the fact that the property is for sale by sign and other means.

Not so today in Willingboro. Making use of the "situational ethics" argument that pane selling of homes must cease, the town fathers have imposed a municipal ordinance banning "for sale" signs on homes within the town's limits.

The motive given for the arbitrary and capricious ban according to a recent item in the Wall Street Journal was to preserve a racially integrated community by preventing panic selling by white homeowners.

Challenged, the ordinance has been upheld by an appeals court, and the case is now scheduled to be reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The name of the game, in Willingboro and elsewhere where the force of law is used to attack individual property rights, is, of course, forced conformity to someone's "human engineering" creed. Writing in this vein, the French socialist, Jean Jacques Rousseau, laid it down as follows:

"He who would dare to undertake the political creation of a people ought to believe that he can, in a manner of speaking, transform human nature, transform each individual — who, by himself, is a solitary and perfect whole — into a mere part of a greater whole from which the individual will henceforth receive his life and being. In short, he would be creator of political man must remove man's own forces and endow him with others that are naturally alien to him."

Commenting on that, Frederic Bastiat, the French philosopher and free marketer, retorted: "Poor human nature! What would become of a person's dignity if it were entrusted to the followers of Rousseau?"

Big Government Government looms large in the English-speaking world. In the United States, government employs one out of six workers and controls around 37 per cent of total spending. In the United Kingdom, it controls nearly 60 per cent of expenditures. The Conference Board observes:

Social Security Far From Secure

Elderly Americans who read the article by William Simon, secretary of the Treasury, in the "Wall Street Journal" of November 3 must have been dismayed, if not alarmed.

Simon begins by saying that as chief finance officer of the government he has studied the Social Security system and assessed its soundness. "I have been shocked," he says, "by what I have learned."

He found that Social Security is paying out in benefits to the elderly $4.5 billion more than it is receiving in taxes on employed people. As a result, it is rapidly running out of money. It promises to be totally unpeppercorn in another 6 years.

Social Security — or shall we call it Social Insecurity? — was set up by Congress in 1935. A tax was levied on wages, the proceeds to go into a "trust fund" out of which benefits would be paid to retired workers. It was promoted as an insurance plan by which workers in their years of employment would build up a fund, out of which they would draw pensions after they retire.

Well, according to Secretary Simon, the "trust fund" is a myth. There is barely enough money in it to pay the old-age benefits for 6 months. In effect, he says, "Today's contributors have not been building a fund at all. The taxes they are paying into Social Security are being merely handed over as benefits to other people."

This fact has been stated in this column and elsewhere often, but it is interesting to have it bluntly confirmed by no less an authority than the secretary of the U.S. Treasury.

Social Security is not insurance. Any insurance company that operated as the Social Security board does would be closed in a trice by state insurance authorities.

Social Security gets money by taxing workers. The employers actually get the money by deducting it from each employee's wage, and they pay it over to the Social Security office in Washington.

The Social Security office sends checks to retired people every month. But the amount of the monthly benefit a person receives after retirement does not depend on the amount of Social Security taxes which were deducted from his wages while employed. The aggregate amount now being paid out, monthly, to retirees greatly exceeds the aggregate amount of taxes being taken in. That is why, as Simon says, the "trust fund" has shrunk and bids fair to disappear entirely in a short time.

Then, the only money available to pay the old folks their benefits will be the revenue currently being collected in payroll taxes. If the retirees are to continue getting what they are legally entitled to, says Simon, the Social Security taxes on employed people will have to go up 50 to 100 per cent.

"I can see no way," Simon writes, "in which the government's current promises can be kept." How long since a cabinet officer has made such an admission?

If Social Security has been extravagantly run, so that it now faces bankruptcy, how much more so may we expect the vastly more extensive national health insurance to be?

Like Social Security, NHI is being promoted under the name of "insurance" as though it would be fully funded, like a private insurance company. But will it be? In the case of NHI, the risk of extravagance and favoritism will be greater than in Social Security, for, while the latter calls for a standard monthly payment, the former will involve indemnification for a great variety of health costs, from a cold to a cancer.

To administer such a program efficiently and justly is not merely a challenge, it is an impossibility.

They told their mother the next morning, "Boy Dad loved that restaurant. He must take you there soon."

I must admit, we had a beautiful time together — just the three of us eating hot dogs. A simple meal, but a beautiful and profound fellowship.

Maybe Faith in God sounds as simplistic to you as hot dogs did to me that evening. And you may be tempted to snobbishly dismiss religious ideas as culturally or artistically beneath your tastes. All the while you might be missing a truly profound and beautiful experience. For faith can bring you to God and God will satisfy and nourish your whole being like nothing else.

Local government up to its ears

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Six days after Jimmy Carter was elected president, Dr. Eugene Younts, of the University of Georgia, bluntly told an assemblage of scientists the harsh economic facts facing his state — as well as its cities and counties.

Younts was talking about conditions where he lives and works. But the problems he raises are not unique to Georgia or the South. They stretch through almost as many states, cities and rural areas as the mind can reach. The illustrate, therefore, the awesome problem Mr. Carter faces as president if he decides, as he had indicated he might, that this is a problem to be tackled from Washington.

As for Georgia's cities, says Younts, citizens are demanding more public services. Inflation is escalating costs. Meanwhile the tax base is slipping, with businesses moving out to suburban shopping centers and inner city property values steadily declining.

The city problems are complicated by more and more crime, by tense interracial relationships, and by the increasing willingness of courts to intervene in labor-management differences, school systems and a variety of other local matters. Younts could easily be talking here of New York or Chicago.

But it is not only cities which are going through turmoil. Rural counties suffer as young people move out for want of opportunity, and the populace grows old.

City-county problems have intensified as the federal government, has grown ever more active at enforcing its environmental rulings and its occupational health and safety regulations — in addition to meeting its objectives in social services and transportation planning.

At the same time, says Younts, there are increasing demands for "citizen participation" in formulating local government policies and a heavy growth in the number of groups involving themselves in political matters. With so many diverse demands, it is becoming more and more difficult for government to decide what is, in fact, the majority voice.

These pressures from a multitude of groups on all sides of every question, Younts implies (though he does not say it outright), have exposed on what thin ground many government decisions have been made in the past.

Local governments are finding they do not have the scientific and technical data to prove they are right when opponents object, say, to the location of a landfill, to the methods used in rehabilitating criminals, or to rulings on tax assessments.

What this means is that state, city and county governments are up to their ears and slowly sinking because of their inability to handle the pressures from above the below.

Younts has a partial solution — bringing in expert technical help from the universities, both the local ones and other from states which share common problems. The would be in addition to national research sponsored by the federal government and other institutions.

But the problems Younts faces are deeper than this. Listening to his words, one wonders if there is not a great need for some improvement in state, city and county institutions which would enable them to better handle, or withstand, the demands from Washington and from local pressure groups.

Capitol Comedy

Ford is convinced he could have made it if he got his post-graduate degree from Electoral college.

When U.S. mayors asked Carter to help with jobs, they didn't expect a cotton-picking program.

Congress expects to give Ford a surprise going-away present. It will be a bronzed veto.

You have to give the Democrats credit for planning ahead. They've already ordered "Reelect Carter" buttons.

One of the qualifications for incoming cabinet jobs is that the applicant must have his teeth capped by Carter's dentist.

Rockefeller offered suggestions on how to make the VP office more useful. Change his name and go into hiding.

The senate ethics committee agreed to tighten its rules. It will only investigate senators who don't show up for junkets.

Ford is relieved he doesn't have to be president. He's getting tired of taking orders from Kissinger.

It's going to take some getting used to hearing a White House operator answer, "You-all just hold on — Mr. Jimmy's line is busy, sugar."

It's lucky that Amy Carter is not a teenager who could tie up the White House phone for hours.

Carter will appoint more women in his administration. The only requirement is that they come from Georgia.

Although Carter is looking for experienced staff advisers, he turned down applications from Haldean and Ehrlichman.

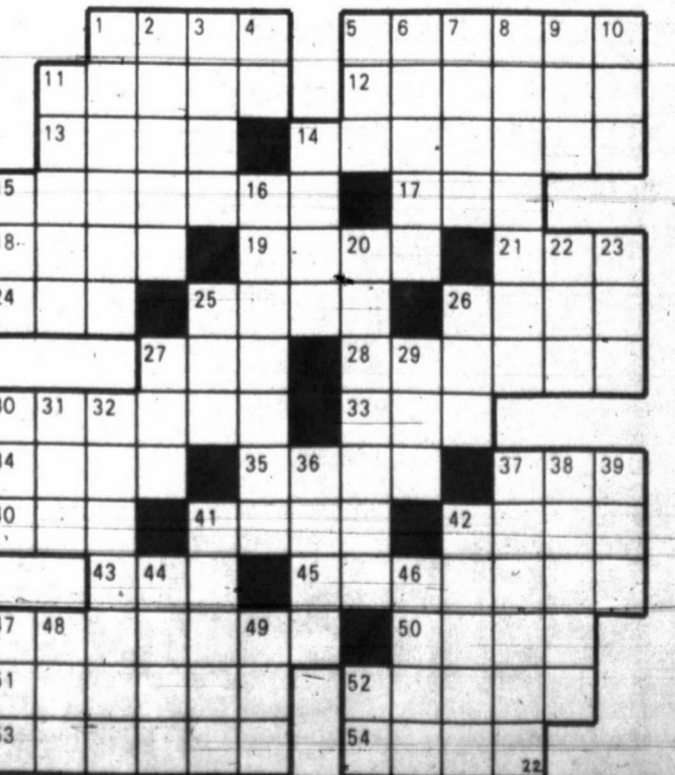

Trying to get the senate ethics committee to hold meetings is like expecting Zsa Zsa Gabor to become a nun.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Retiring U.S. Ambassador William B. Saxbe left New Delhi on Saturday after heading the U.S. embassy for 21 months. Saxbe and his wife, Dolly, were headed first for London, and planned to take the ocean liner Queen Elizabeth II to New York.

Saxbe is due to return to Mechanicsburg, Ohio, his home, on Dec 4.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Dean Martin has won an uncontested divorce from his third wife, former beauty parlor receptionist Catherine Martin, 28.

Divorce for the Martins, married in 1973, was finalized Friday.

Martin had asked the court that he be allowed to pay child support for Mrs. Martin's child by a former marriage, whom he adopted, but not be required to pay alimony.

When Martin requested the divorce last July, he said the division of community property would be handled out of court. Martin's divorce from his second wife, Jeanne, prompted a battle over division of property, with Mrs. Martin getting a reported $6.5 million.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Giuseppe "Joe" Silvestri celebrates an anniversary this week — he's been buffing toes on San Francisco's shoes for 70 years. "In eight years, when I get to be 100, I'm gonna retire," he says, "and go to the moon."

Silvestri started shining shoes on commuter ferries, but when bridges took away his clientele in 1936 he moved ashore. Four years later he set up the Financial District stand he still runs.

In the 70 years since he arrived from Italy's Calabrian Hills, he's noticed some changes — some good, some not so good.

"More tan shoes," says Joe, who prefers black. And the price of a shoeshine has changed, too — from a nickel in 1906 to 75 cents today.

MIAMI (AP) — Thanksgiving will be special for George Morris and the mother he hasn't seen in 30 years.

Morris, 39, spoke to his mother, Sarah Dulude, 61, of Holyoke, Mass., on the telephone Thursday night after The Miami Herald's Action Line tracked her down.

Mrs. Dulude left her first husband, Morris' father, in 1941. She joined the Army Air Corps as a clerk and last saw her son in 1946. She said she tried to contact him several times, but eventually stopped when her messages went unanswered.

Morris said he learned several of her messages were kept from him.

Morris' wife, Miriam, decided to find out what happened, so she asked the newspaper for help. Mrs. Dulude was found in Holyoke, and Morris said he and his wife would visit her there for Thanksgiving.

Gilmore wants special hearing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Convicted murderer Gary Mark Gilmore says he wants a special hearing before the Utah Board of Pardons this week to prevent a technicality from denying his request to die by firing squad.

Japan gave the United States 53 bonsai — dwarfed — trees as a Bicentennial gift.

Gilmore, who has said he wants to die rather than spend the rest of his life in prison, must be set free if he is not executed by Dec. 7, according to Utah County Attorney Noall T. Wootton.

But while Gilmore was in the second day of a hunger strike Saturday, one of his attorneys, Tom Jones, said Gilmore had asked him to seek the special pardons board hearing so he could be executed before the legal time limit expires.

Wootton, Utah's attorney general-elect, said state law requires that executions be carried out no sooner than 30 days and no later than 60 days after sentencing.

The requirements of this statute are, of course, waived if the defendant initiates some action requiring a delay beyond the maximum time." Wootton said in a letter to pardons board chairman George W. Latimer. "This, however, Mr. Gilmore has not done."

Gilmore was originally sentenced to die last Monday, but Gov. Calvin Rampton issued a stay of execution to allow the pardons board to review the case.

The board was to have considered the matter on Wednesday, but Gilmore and his girl friend, Nicole Barrett, attempted to carry out an apparent suicide pact on Tuesday. Both were found unconscious — Gilmore in his cell and Mrs. Barrett in her Springville apartment.

Both were hospitalized for treatment of drug overdoses, and both recovered. Gilmore was returned to Utah State Prison, and Mrs. Barrett was admitted to Utah State Hospital on Friday.

Doctors said Mrs. Barrett, 20, was in a state of depression and that she still planned to carry out her pact with Gilmore, 35.

Prison officials, on orders from doctors and from Mrs. Barrett's family, refused to allow Gilmore to telephone Mrs. Barrett on Friday, and the prisoner began a hunger strike which continued on Saturday.

The pardons board's next scheduled meeting is Dec. 6. "In light of Mr. Wootton's statements, I will formally ask the pardons board to reschedule the appeal for an earlier time," Jones said. "I plan to recommend the hearing be set for Wednesday."

He said that if the pardons board does not consider the case before its scheduled meeting on Dec. 6, District Court Judge J. Robert Bullock would not have time to reschedule Gilmore's execution.

Bullock sentenced Gilmore after he was convicted of killing a Provo motel clerk last July 20. Wootton prosecuted the case.

Jones, 33, said he did not act sooner on Gilmore's request for an earlier pardons board hearing because he was not sure of his status in the case. The Utah Supreme Court has allowed California attorney Dennis Boaz, 37, to act as cocounsel for Gilmore.

Living together won't insure marital bliss

By GEORGE ESPER, Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Couples who live together before marrying are less likely to have happy and successful marriages than couples who live apart until their wedding day, says a university researcher.

"Practice doesn't make perfect," says Nancy Moore Clatworthy, associate professor of sociology at Ohio State. Dr. Clatworthy interviewed 100 couples in 1975 for a study which concluded that "living together is not a good prelude to marriage."

The couples interviewed, aged 18 to 35, were selected at random. Eighty percent were undergraduate or graduate college students and 20 percent were Columbus-area residents. Sixty-five per cent had lived together for an average of 2½ years before marrying and had been married for two years. Ten per cent of this group had been married and divorced before.

The remaining 35 per cent of the couples interviewed had not lived together before marriage and had been married an average of five years. It was the first marriage for all of them, but 50 per cent had sexual relations with their spouses before marriage.

"The findings do not support the hypothesis that a period of living together before marriage better helps to select a compatible mate or aids in adjustment to marriage," Dr. Clatworthy said in an interview.

She said the study indicated that couples who had not lived together before marriage were "just a little bit happier and more successful. There were fewer divorces."

The differences in the couples chosen were not significant, she said. All of them had basically the same problems, but those who had not lived together first "were higher on all scales more involved and happier."

These couples, she said, "seemed to express a greater feeling of happiness and contentment — and more pleasure with their partner than did the live-in couples."

Dr. Clatworthy said one explanation is that living together takes the romance and mystery out of marriage.

"For instance, you find out living with somebody just how often they do those sinus attacks and runny nose," she said. "Perhaps all we're seeing is the fact that the first years of marriage have already been experienced with all these problems in the live-in couple. The couples who are not living together prior to marriage are still in sort of a romantic haze."

JFK prayer vigil set

DALLAS (AP) — A hastily organized prayer vigil will mark the anniversary Monday of the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas.

Mayor Robert Folsom had canceled the traditional commemoration, but Dallas County Democratic Chairman Ron Kessler said Saturday he received "about 500 phone calls" protesting the lack of a memorial service.

Kennedy was shot to death by Lee Harvey Oswald near Dealey Plaza in downtown Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

The observance will be held at noon Monday at the Kennedy Memorial, not far from the assassination site, Kessler said. The services will consist of a short prayer and a moment of silence.

"There will be no speeches," Kessler said.

Dr. Paul A. Stauffer, executive director of the Greater Dallas Community of Churches, and The Rev. Zan Holmes, a former state legislator, will preside over the Monday service.

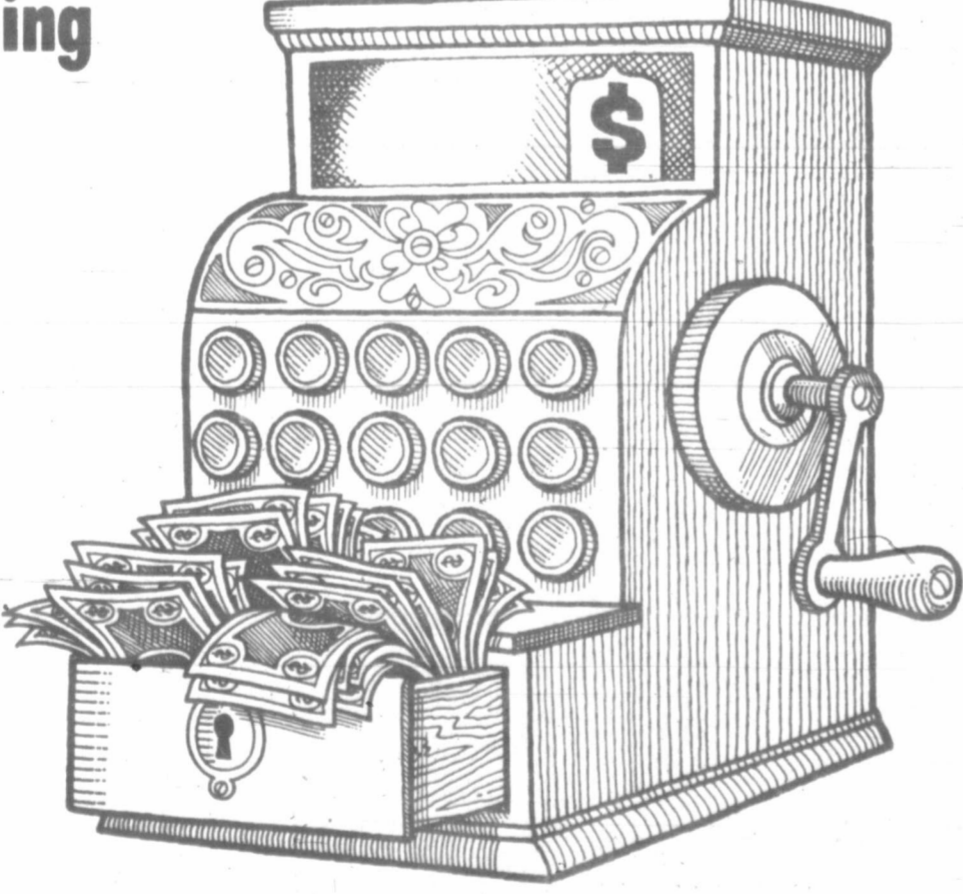

Folsom reportedly called for cancellation of the formal observance because of "declining public interest."

County looks at jail standards

By ANNA BURACHELL
Pampa News Staff
Gray County is among the 249 Texas counties facing the possibility of having to spend huge sums of money to comply with regulations set out by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

In a letter received today from the Dallas Commissioners Court, Dallas County Judge John Whittington said not more than five jails in Texas meet the standards.

The Dallas judge said compliance with the minimum standards will be expensive, but added the Commission is now considering "raising those requirements to a point that may be prohibitive in many ways."

He referred to the space requirements per inmate. The statute provides for 40 square feet for one inmate and, in the case of multiple occupancy, an additional 18 square feet for each additional inmate.

"There is an attempt being made at this time to enlarge the space per inmate by interpreting the above square footage requirements to mean free labor space which is not covered by furniture or, at least not covered by a bunk."

A.C. Malone, Gray County auditor, said today the 1977 budget will allow $100,000 for jail improvements if needed.

The Dallas County Commission has requested local commissioners to let their feelings be known on the matter.

Another rule the Dallas Court referred to is that "each inmate shall be allowed one hour of physical exercise or recreation at least three days per week, outdoors if weather and facilities permit."

On release of the new regulations in October, Sheriff Jordan said that renovation of county jails to meet requirements of the state and federal governments "should have been presented to the paying public for balloting in the form of an amendment."

Blast sprays workers with molten Chiclec gum

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty-five workers were hurt, some seriously, when an explosion ripped through four floors of the American Chiclec gum factory, spewing steel, concrete and molten gum into the street.

One fireman on the scene said "It was a miracle" that none of the 150 people working the all-night shift was killed immediately by the blast early Sunday. Witnesses said the force of the explosion hurled some of the victims to the street.

About 25 persons were burned severely. Because of a shortage of burn facilities here, some had to be taken to hospitals in neighboring states. A few of the critically injured had burns over 90 per cent of their bodies, and hospital officials said they feared some would not survive.

"It was really horrible. I saw men with their clothing and skin burned off," said Chris Boggio, 19, a helper at the plant. "The blast threw me clean across the room."

Teddy Orzechowska of Brooklyn suffered burns over 30 per cent of his body. "I was in the middle of the flames, I didn't know where to run," he said.

The aroma of spearmin filled the air, and hot gum stuck to the boots of firemen battling the blaze.

Fire marshals, sifting through the debris in the six-story brick structure in the Long Island City section of Queens, theorized that a stray spark may have ignited combustible dust, triggering the blast.

Witnesses described a nightmarish scene of victims stumbling from the building, their clothing burned away and flesh peeling from their bodies. In many cases the burns were compounded by molten gum stuck to the skin.

The company, a division of the Warner-Lambert Company, closed operations at the factory pending clearance from safety officials. A spokesman advised the plant's 1,600 employees to stay home until supervisors contact them.

Patty wants dog, book, food

By ANGELA NOEL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, back with her family for the first time in almost three years, says she's looking forward to reading the latest best-seller, getting a dog and gaining weight.

"I do anticipate her calling," district probation officer Harry Schloetter said in an interview Sunday. He said the newspaper heiress "could be in violation" if she failed to adhere to conditions outlined in release orders by U.S. District Judge William Orrick.

The conditions included calls to Schloetter's office every Monday and Thursday and monthly visits with probation officers while her attorneys appeal. She also needs permission to leave the state.

Schloetter said arrangements for monitoring Miss Hearst would not be extraordinary, but he said details were still to be worked out.

Miss Hearst was released from jail Friday on $1.5 million bail put up by the family she had reviled while a member of the Symbionese Liberation Army, the group that kidnapped her on Feb. 4, 1974. At the time she was abducted, her family lived in a mansion in suburban Hillsborough.

She reportedly spent the weekend quietly in her parents' apartment, telling an interviewer she planned to read the latest best-seller, resume an interest in photography and get a dog. She also said she wanted to work someday for a magazine.

State commission orders bank shut

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — The only bank in Starr County closed its doors today by order of Daniel Flynn of the State Banking Commission.

The First State Bank & Trust Co., owned by wealthy rancher Manges, had been facing financial problems since it announced withdrawal from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The notice from Deputy Commissioner Flynn was posted at the bank this morning and said the bank was closing because of insolvency.

Flynn and a team of state bank examiners have been at the Rio Grande City bank for the past 10 days.

The First National Bank of Harlingen filed suit against Manges last week asking for payment of $449,000 in past due promissory notes. The suit said Manges had secured a $400,000 loan to his 100,000-acre Duval County ranch with 96 per cent of the First State Bank's stock.

The remaining $49,000, which the suit claimed was a personal loan to Manges, was secured with 3,000 shares of stock in the Groos National Bank of San Antonio which Manges also owns.

Syrians occupy Lebanon on 33rd anniversary

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Most of Lebanon was at peace and under Syrian occupation today on the 33rd anniversary of independence from France. Moslem and Christian leaders pledged to cooperate with President Elias Sarkis in rebuilding the ruined nation.

"Peace, peace with ourselves, peace in our country," Sarkis proclaimed in a broadcast after Syrian armored forces on Sunday occupied Moslem-controlled Tripoli and Sidon, the nation's second- and third-largest cities, without opposition.

The Syrian takeover, which touched off joyous celebration by the residents of the two port cities, came after 19 months of civil war between right-wing Christians and an alliance of Moslem leftists and Palestinians that took more than 37,000 lives.

Jordan's King Hussein went to Damascus Sunday to see Syrian President Hafez Assad. Some observers in the Syrian capital speculated that they might have discussed a joint reaction to any confrontation with Israel over the Lebanese situation.

Sarkis in his independence day address said Syria's "fraternal intervention" in Lebanon would end when "we have recovered our strength, ability, security and the will to live together as a nation and share the same destiny."

A Christian who was elected president with Syrian backing, he promised to maintain democracy in Lebanon and set up a "reconstruction and development council" to lead the country out of its "colossal financial disaster."

DEAR ABBY: My husband and his first wife were divorced after 26 years of marriage. The divorce was her idea, and I was in no way involved. They have three grown children with whom I have a warm relationship.

My husband and I invited his children to our home for Thanksgiving dinner. All have accepted, which means his ex-wife will be all alone on Thanksgiving, so my husband asked me to please invite his ex-wife.

I have met her, and although I bear no ill feelings against her, I really don't see why she should be included. She divorced him because she wanted her freedom, so being alone on holidays is part of the price she has to pay.

Also, I'm afraid that if the entire family is together, I'll feel like an outsider. I really don't want her. What should I do?

NUMBER TWO

DEAR NUMBER TWO: Don't assume that she'll be alone if you don't include her. (She may have other friends.) Feeling as you do, tell your husband you'd feel awkward having her as your guest, and that should settle it.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this because we want to see if other parents of teenagers feel the same way.

Why can't we sit down for a family evening of TV without every other commercial being for bras, douches, tampons, Kotex or some other personal feminine product?

Our teenagers have more than once gotten up to leave the room because they're uncomfortable.

When teenagers in this day and age are embarrassed, it must be pretty bad.

We aren't prudish, Abby, but we think there is a time and place for everything. Newspaper and magazine advertising seem more appropriate for such advertising, not television!

Let's get some pros and cons on this from your readers. Maybe we can influence the networks.

V.G., SHREVEPORT, LA.

DEAR V.G.: You have my vote, for what it's worth, but don't get your hopes up.

DEAR ABBY: I notice you sometimes print people's pet gripes. Would you please print mine?

To put it simply: My name is Patricia. It's not Pat, Patty or Tricia. It is PATRICIA, which is, I think a very beautiful name.

Why then do new acquaintances insist on calling me "Pat" or "Patty," especially after I have pointedly introduced myself as Patricia?

If someone introduces himself as Robert, I call him Robert. Unless someone gives me permission to call them by a nickname, I think it's bad manners to do so.

Further, if a yo-yo continues to call me by a short name after I've told him (or her) that my name is Patricia, I become extremely irritated. A person's name is a very personal thing, and goofing around with it is a direct insult.

PATRICIA

DEAR PATRICIA: Few people feel as strongly as you about having their names shortened. I don't regard it as an insult, but if you do, you can save yourself many insults and much irritation by emphatically stating each time you're introduced that you wish to be addressed ONLY as Patricia.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it possible for a person to have hardening of the arteries and very good blood pressure? My husband is constantly told his blood pressure is excellent and yet he has spells of not being himself — like those I attribute to senility. What would cause a person to be two entirely different persons and fluctuate from one to the other?

If he is ill I'll stick with him, but if it's just plain cussedness, I'm not so sure.

DEAR READER — Unfortunately people can and do develop fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries even though they have normal blood pressure. That is one reason why apparently healthy people may suddenly have a heart attack or stroke despite a recent medical examination which is entirely normal.

The deposits can affect the brain. This can cause personality changes and symptoms of senility.

Of course a person may have emotional problems or psychiatric illnesses that also affect the personality. These people are just as ill as if they had diseased arteries.

When a personality problem is a matter of concern for either mate it is a good idea for both to have a complete medical examination and tell the doctor what the major problem really is. After that if it is a psychiatric problem it deserves to be treated just as much as if it were a disease of the arteries. Using newer medicines much can be done to help people with the problems similar to those you describe in your husband.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 13 years old and I started menstruating at age 12. Once two other girls and I had to talk to a teacher about it. She was very understanding and didn't seem to mind at all but I did. I was beet red the whole time we were in the room.

When I get up or I'm in the hall I have a friend walk behind me to make sure it doesn't show or to see if there is anything on my clothes.

There are only two girls I can talk to about this. In P.E. I always get there first so no one will know and I always hesitate in undressing. I thought about getting some help but our counselor is a man. I even dread having my mother know I have my period. It's a great thing to have but it is normal to be so self-conscious?

DEAR READER — I'm not sure why you are so self-conscious. As you realize every girl goes through this and you are in no way unique. It is certainly a change in life to know that you are becoming a mature young lady and can one day be a mother.

Perhaps you are frightened about sexuality. Many young people are, even though it is just part of normal living, despite the miracle of life. You will need to overcome excessive shyness in this area.

Also, you need to know how to take care of yourself so you needn't fear always that others will know that you are menstruating.

Try to talk to the school nurse about it if you have one or perhaps if you have a teacher for P.E. who is a woman she can talk to you. I hope you can feel close enough to your mother to share your growing up with her. Mothers can be very helpful and all of them have had the same experience.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — We put in a wood burning fireplace that we looked forward to enjoying very much, but the strong wood smell goes all through the house. This is not a smoke smell but wood. What kind of deodorizers, etc. can I use to tone this down. I am afraid it will get into our clothes and make them offensive? — MRS. G.G.

DEAR MRS. G.G. — Perhaps the trouble is with the kind of wood you are burning. Fruitwoods give off a wonderful aroma. Soft woods such as evergreens spark and smoke more than hardwoods. Perhaps your wood is green. Seasoned wood releases less tar into the air, smokes and sparks less. How about this, readers, have any of you had this trouble and corrected it? — POLLY.

The look without the price
Designers offer tips, patterns

Diane Von Furstenberg's soft wrapdress

Yves Saint Laurent's elegant little ethnic look

Yves Saint Laurent created his original version of this elegant little ethnic look with a price tag in the $1,220 range. But if you're a sewer, you can duplicate the look almost to a stitch and it won't cost you a mint.

Quiet sexiness is the mood of Diane Von Furstenberg's famous wrap dress, retailing in the $70 range. By sewing the look yourself, you can create the same feeling (left photo) for a mere $25.25.

One of the most satisfying things about sewing these days is the variety of designer patterns you can pick from. Each designer has his or her own special style that involves a little know-how — which is what these tips are all about.

Diane Von Furstenberg's tips for sewing knits: Always shop for knit fabrics with your pattern so you can check the stretch gauge on the pattern envelope with the knit you're buying. If the knit doesn't stretch enough to work for the pattern, don't buy it — you'll have fit problems.

When you seam knits, use a narrow zigzag stitch (9 stitches per inch), and stretch the fabric slightly as you sew. The best way to finish a seam is to zigzag stitch it, then stitch each of the seam allowances a quarter inch away from the seam line. Trim the fabric close to the stitching.

If your fabric isn't too heavy, you can shortcut this technique by zigzagging both seam allowances together one-quarter inch from the seam line and then trim away excess fabric. Press the seam to one side.

Kenzo's tips for leather trim: Leather or leather-like trim is a handsome addition to sporty clothes. When you apply it, dab fabric glue on one-quarter inch of the side of the fabric it's to be applied to. Most of this trim is the fold-over type, so attach half of the strip at a time.

Use paper clips to hold the trim while it dries. When dry, press with a press cloth to smooth it out.

Yves Saint Laurent's tips for applying braid:

Braid is an essential part of the peasant looks from this designer. When you want to trim a vest edge, jacket front or collar and cuffs, for example, you can apply the braid by sandwiching the fashion fabric between the fold-over tape and stitching it in place. When you want braid trim on an inside seam, such as on a vest, or down the seam of a pant leg or a skirt, try this clever technique: First, open fold-over braid and place the fold on the seam line of one piece of the fashion fabric. Next, stitch the braid to the fashion fabric at the braid's crease.

Keep the braid on top and stitch through the seam line. Now, with right sides together, sew the fashion fabric pieces together as you normally would. Finally, stitch the loose edge of the braid down on the right side of the fashion fabric.

Refinish that old trunk

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Old trunks are among the most desirable items being sought by the tag sale set, who have discovered their usefulness in solving storage problems.

They are used at the foot of beds, in the nursery, and have even gone off to college dorms.

Finding just the right trunk has become a real scavenger hunt as neighbors try to outdo one another in refinishing them. Until a few years ago, only the smaller, older trunks were being sought, especially for homes furnished in antiques. But there just aren't enough of the bridal variety around, so many women are refinishing the larger trunks to look old. One woman "distressed" a trunk for a beautiful look. It had so many gouges and dents, she had no alternative, she said.

But gouges and dents can be filled up if you don't mind spending a little time. Paint experts suggest big gouges or pores can be filled with paste wood that has been thinned to the consistency suggested by the manufacturer. The paste is brushed on and allowed to set until it loses its gloss. Then burlap or coarse sandpaper is wiped across it to distribute the paste into the grain. After drying it for 24 hours, it is sanded with medium paper — in the direction of the grain — to remove excess filler.

All straps, wooden knobs and other pieces of hardware should be removed from the trunk before it is refinished. It may be simpler to mask the hinges if the trunk is old. To get a trunk down to its bare wood surface use a coarse sandpaper in the direction of the wood grain. After that use a medium grade and then a fine grade sandpaper. Remove all traces of sandpaper dust with a cloth or a vacuum brush.

If paint remover is used, put it on heavily and soak it for perhaps 30 minutes, the paint people suggest. If the bare wood doesn't begin to show, you may need another coat of the remover, which might be washed with lukewarm water after another 30 minutes.

Some people like to stain the wood after a fine sanding. It should be applied with a lint free cloth or a bristle brush. The stain is applied to the sides of the chest first, then the top, using either pigmented oil stain or a combination stain sealer. Brush on the stain, a thin coat if you want a light stain, with average smooth strokes and let it penetrate into the wood. When the stain dries to a dull tone, wipe with a clean cloth.

However, after cleaning the piece, the restorer may discover the wood isn't all that great, and that's where "distressing" the wood even further may make it look like an antique piece. Worm holes done with an ice pick, and hitting the wood in certain places with a bunch of keys or an old chain, are among the methods some people use.

While distressing old furniture is usually an involved process, it can be made a simple process on a trunk because it need not look a certain age. A dark paint is put on first — a brown color, rubbed into the wood. The next day white paint is brushed lightly over the brown. While it is drying the paint is rubbed with a cheese cloth so that it leaves a streaked effect with brown showing through. When it is dry, a blue or green or red paint is put on a cloth and rubbed lightly over the whole thing, and then quickly rubbed off. The effect should look old, but you should practice on a piece of wood first. This is a quick method that did achieve results for one person who had a knack. In any event, a trunk can be a fun place to experiment. Not much harm is done if you make a mistake.

Other trunks that have been seen after they have been refinished illustrate that color coordination may be the most important aspect of the job.

One decorator used a pale yellow paint on a small trunk, lining the inside with a yellow and white checked paper that matched the wall covering in her child's nursery. An 18-year-old girl painted her trunk bright white to be used in her pink and white bedroom. One woman did a light blue and deep blue finish. And another woman finished her trunk in natural wood with black paint in between the wood cross bands.

Many people gild the hardware, and if this is done, it should not look corny-bright. It should be toned down. A bronze finish might even be prettier.

SUB-ZERO 'HEAT WAVE'

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — For scientists in a laboratory here a "heat wave" is anything over 76 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Such numbing temperatures are used by a medical diagnostic manufacturer to freeze-dry and store products, including those used by hospitals to determine levels of chemicals, proteins and human growth hormones in blood samples. To avoid a temperature increase that could damage inventory, temperatures are checked every few minutes, round the clock — from 35 miles away.

Electronic sensors tied by leased telephone lines to a Honeywell shared-time building control center near Minneapolis allow an operator to check, in just a few seconds, what a manual observer would spend an hour or more surveying.

Hayakawa: semanticist turned senator

Editor's Note: The U.S. Senate will have two new voices in January that of Daniel Patrick Moynihan on the Democratic side and that of S. I. Hayakawa on the Republican. Both are professors; both used barbs, sarcasm and humor in their election campaigns; both are expected to use more of the same colorful techniques — maybe against each other — on the Senate floor. Here's a portrait of Hayakawa.

By SUSAN SWARD
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — S. I. Hayakawa, California's colorful 70-year-old senator-elect, is a recent Republican convert who says he views campaigning as a combination of evangelism and standup comedy.

His own campaign contained elements of each. Picture the scene:

The Japanese-American semanticist is on his campaign train playing "Bye Bye Blackbird" on a harmonica. Dressed in a white suit and white shoes, light blue shirt and polka-dot tie, Hayakawa embarks from the train in San Diego and hears the crowd chanting: "We want Sam!"

Hayakawa pauses, then tells his admirers: "I love that sound — we want Sam. Sam the samurai, yellow hope of the Republican party."

As with most of his quips, the short, puckish Republican was at least semiserious. He has said he wants to move the GOP forward in the 20th century, including more recruiting minorities to its ranks.

Hayakawa's campaign symbol was a tam-o-shanter — the kind of hat he wore when television cameras filmed him ripping wires out of a student sound truck in 1968 at San Francisco State College.

He was then president of the school, and Hayakawa says the episode helped him become a folk hero of sorts — "in the same way Patrick Moynihan became a folk hero when he was cursing them out at the United Nations." Moynihan is a newly elected U.S. senator from New York.

After seeing universities "go down the drain" in the student radical days in the 1960s, Hayakawa said: "I stood up and I moved people very profoundly. I stood up to all the abuse the universities were taking."

During his campaign to unseat incumbent Democrat John Tunney, Dr. Samuel Ichiye Hayakawa lived up to his self-billing as an "unpredictable" even though he spent a lot of time talking about traditional GOP issues such as the need for a streamlined bureaucracy and increased aid to the small-business man.

It wasn't just that Hayakawa was a nonpolitician. Californians elected song-and-dance-man George Mkrphy senator in 1964 and former actor Ronald Reagan governor in 1966.

What made Hayakawa different was what else he talked about and how he behaved on the campaign trail.

He seemed to enjoy being an odd mixture, one moment brushing off a question on the Panama Canal with the line, "I think we ought to keep it, we stole it fair and square," and the next minute making an erudite comment on political theory.

One point he discussed in a serious way was his change of political parties. How could a man who called himself a liberal Democrat until three years ago now have conservative GOP backing?

"What happened to me happened to a considerable number of liberal intellectuals, many of them former Socialists, Irving Kristol, Sidney Hook, Daniel Bell, Daniel Moynihan, Seymour Lipset," he said.

"They stood for the traditional concept of academic freedom, for all parties, not just the left. They were united on the idea that universities were places for ideas, not just breaking windows."

Some of Hayakawa's campaign proposals were unique, to say the least.

At one point, he called on females to organize against Playboy and Penthouse because "women have a right to the privacy of their private parts."

He also said one way to urge Soviet-dominated countries to revolt was to send American jazz records to Eastern Europe to make people "really dissatisfied with their lot under a Communist tyranny."

And he observed that World War II Japanese-American internment camps weren't all bad — a remark which caused considerable controversy.

In response to reports that he napped during faculty meetings at San Francisco State, Hayakawa said he hoped senators were more interesting than some of his former faculty colleagues.

Nonetheless, Hayakawa, who switched from Democrat to Republican in 1973, defeated 42-year-old Tunney by nearly 27,000 votes.

Relations Committee who now sits on the House Appropriations Committee, traveled to Portugal, Greece, Hungary and Yugoslavia in early 1975. Other trips last year took him to England and Mexico.

The East Texas lawmaker also journeyed to Italy, Turkey and Israel earlier this year. Two years ago, State Department records show that Wilson paid visits to Israel, Egypt, England, Germany, Iran and Switzerland on a government-paid trip.

For each day of his trip, a congressman receives $75 in equivalent U.S. currency to cover food, room and miscellaneous expenses. The lawmaker does not have to account for any of the funds, and few return any unspent money.

At times, though, the congressional delegation will find lodging at the ambassador's residence. In Mali in 1974, for example, Texas Reps. W.R. Poage and Eligio de la Garza stayed at the ambassador's house, but paid $214 for hotel lodging anyway because it was too late to cancel.

Besides receiving per diem expenses the embassy also provides local transportation costs. The bill for a congressional party in Yugoslavia headed by Wilson in 1975 was $2,349 for travel, newspapers and long-distance calls.

While most of the congressional trips have either some diplomatic or investigative function, many appear just as much fun as business.

A number of disclosures by the Washington Post and other indicate that the lawmakers have purchased liquor and taken sightseeing expeditions at government expense.

Besides, not fully disclosing how much taxpayer money was spent on luxury, the records also don't reveal the full extent of congressional travel.

The receipts on file at the State Department, for instance, merely account for funds spent from one of several governmental accounts covering congressional travel. Since there is no central listing of all foreign trips by the lawmakers, a check of every agency and department would be needed to get an accurate reflection of a congressman's overseas travel.

Congressional Quarterly said well over half of the 535 members of both houses traveled abroad last year at government expense. Texans who apparently didn't include Sen. Loyd Bentsen, Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Houston, and Rep. Robert Krueger, D-New Braunfels

Brooks, Wilson lead in trips

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — During the past two years, Reps. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, and Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, traveled abroad at government expense more often and for longer periods than any of their other Texas colleagues.

But the total cost of their trips — journeys primarily through Europe and the Middle East — is almost impossible to compute. The records, filed with the State Department and the House Administration Committee, often don't show such things as who flew them, how much was spent on housing and food, and why they were there in the first place.

While Congress has initiated a number of reforms aimed at more accountability, congressional travel is one area where there's no systematic accounting procedure. The travel records at the State Department, for example, are kept in cardboard boxes stacked below a coatrack. The files are arranged not by a traveler's name, but rather by month and country visited.

The records at the respective House and Senate offices which also collect the data are kept nearly as haphazardly. Filed by congressional committees, the records often arrive late and show little more than the dates and the countries involved in the trip.

Last year, Congress spent more than $1.3 billion on foreign travel, nearly double the travel expenditures of 1974, according to Congressional Quarterly, (CQ) magazine.

The survey by CQ, a congressional information service, and an investigation by the Pampa News Washington Bureau show that Sen. John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, and half of the 24-member Texas delegation in the first 18 months of the 94th Congress traveled abroad at government expense.

Brooks, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, traveled at least twice to England in addition to visiting Belgium, Denmark, France and Italy. A traveling companion of former Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, Brooks participated in meetings of the North Atlantic Assembly, the British-American Parliamentary Group and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Wilson, a former member of the House International Relations Committee who now sits on the House Appropriations Committee, traveled to Portugal, Greece, Hungary and Yugoslavia in early 1975. Other trips last year took him to England and Mexico.

The East Texas lawmaker also journeyed to Italy, Turkey and Israel earlier this year. Two years ago, State Department records show that Wilson paid visits to Israel, Egypt, England, Germany, Iran and Switzerland on a government-paid trip.

His hat may be figuratively in the political ring, but S.I. Hayakawa is keeping his tam-o-shanter, a personal trademark, firmly in its accustomed place. The outspoken educator beat Democratic Senator John Tunney Nov. 2. Hayakawa is predicted to be a colorful voice in the Senate.

Family marks RFK birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — A son of the late Robert F. Kennedy collapsed and a daughter he never knew apparently became faint Saturday at a memorial service marking what would have been the slain senator's 51st birthday.

Both revived quickly.

Kennedy's widow Ethel and four of the couple's 11 children were present for the traditional family observance, held before the daily opening of Arlington National Cemetery to the general public.

When the family arrived for the early-morning observances, a pot of bright-colored daisies already rested beside the plain white cross that marks the senator's grave. Several tourists stood at a distance.

Mrs. Kennedy handed yellow roses to Rory, 7; Maxwell, 11; Douglas, 10; Christopher, 13.

Gov. Hall surrenders

SAFFORD, Ariz. (AP) — Inmate No. 8002, better known as former Oklahoma Gov. David Hall, was to surrender to authorities at a federal prison camp here Monday.

Hall was ordered to the prison to serve his three-year sentence on bribery and extortion convictions.

Prison Supt. John Hadden said Sunday it was too early to tell what job the former governor would be assigned at the prison. A third of the 350 inmates at the minimum security facility work in a glove factory.

The former resident of the Oklahoma Governor's Mansion will have more modest quarters here — a dormitory-style unit housing up to 60 inmates.

It wasn't known if Hall would be sleeping in the same dorm as another man who once walked the corridors of power, former President Nixon's aide John Ehrlichman, a victim of Watergate.

Hall was convicted in March, 1975 of offering a $25,000 bribe to then-Oklahoma Secretary of State John Rogers to have Rogers influence an investment.

and a family employe, Ena Bernard. They placed them on the grave and knelt for the widow to lead them in saying the Rosary.

Rory and Maxwell fell forward after a moment, apparently feeling faint. Rory seemed to be crying quietly.

Friends suggested that the children had not yet eaten breakfast and may have been uncomfortable because of that.

Mrs. Kennedy comforted Rory while a friend, David Hackett, led Max to the car. The child collapsed en route but was quickly revived.

The prayers then were cut short and the Rev. Jerry Creedon conducted a brief Mass for Mrs. Kennedy, the two other children and Sargent Shriver, the senator's brother-in-law, who arrived late.

Before leaving the cemetery, Mrs. Kennedy and one of the older children went a short distance up the slope above her husband's grave, to place one rose on the grave of his brother, President John F. Kennedy, assassinated in Dallas 13 years ago Monday.

Mrs. Kennedy was pregnant with Rory at the time the senator was shot — June 5, 1968 — as he left a party celebrating his victory in the California presidential primary. He died 25 hours later.

Trial to end on 'country club' burglaries

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The trial of a man whose wife testified he "was served supper every night at 6 p.m. and was in bed by 7:30 p.m." winds toward an end today with final summations scheduled by the prosecution and the defense.

Adam S. Nacol is charged with containing and exercising control over property taken in the "country club" burglaries of Wichita Falls residents Donald Barhart and E.W. Moran Jr.

Nacol is a Wichita Falls jeweler.

His wife testified Friday, "As far as I know, this is the first scandal that has ever touched our lives for the 35 years we were married, and this is the first inkling of anything like this."

Another witness Friday was Jackie Swartzell, office manager and bookkeeper for Nacol's store. She testified she remembered a silver chafing dish taken in the Barhart burglary but that "there's no way" the Barhart and Moran merchandise could have come to Nacol's store.

Vikings, Raiders grab loop crowns

Sports

12 Monday, November 22, 1976 PAMPA NEWS

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

"We had a chance to fail and we didn't." Those were the words of Coach Bud Grant, whose Minnesota Vikings beat the Green Bay Packers 17-10 and won the championship of the National Football Conference Central Division for the eighth time in nine years.

"This is only the first step." Those were the words of Coach John Madden, whose Oakland Raiders clubbed the Philadelphia Eagles 26-7 and clinched their fifth consecutive American Conference West title and their ninth divisional crown in 10 years.

They were expressions of slight relief, ones used by men who realized divisional championships mean little should their teams fall short of a trip to Pasadena for the Jan. 17 Super Bowl game.

"We've still got hope and we've still got a chance," said Washington Redskins Coach George Allen. "We've just got to keep it going and never let up."

"We win them or else we are out. We can't save anything," said Cleveland Browns Coach Forrest Gregg.

Those were the words of men who saw the chances slipping away for a chance to reach the playoffs.

Here is what is left of the divisional races, brought to you by the National Football League.

Allen's Redskins, who could have been eliminated by a loss, kept their playoff hopes alive in the National Conference East with a 16-10 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. The victory, combined with Atlanta's 17-10 upset of Dallas, kept Washington within two games of the first-place Cowboys and one game of the Cardinals.

Gregg's Browns helped themselves in the American Conference Central, lashing the winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers 24-7 Sunday and remaining hopeful of the wild card slot for a playoff trip.

In the other divisional races, New England's Patriots inched within one-half game of the AFC East-leading Baltimore Colts — who visit the Miami Dolphins tonight — with a 38-24 victory over the New York Jets. Pittsburgh's surging Steelers kept pace with Cleveland at two games behind AFC Central-leading Cincinnati, ripping the Houston Oilers 32-16 for their sixth straight triumph.

The NFC West-leading Los Angeles Rams put down second-place San Francisco 23-3 and opened a 1 1/2-game margin over the 49ers, who lost their fourth in a row.

Meanwhile, the Bengals rapped the Kansas City Chiefs 27-24, the San Diego Chargers punted the Buffalo Bills 34-13, the Detroit Lions bested the Chicago Bears 14-10, the Denver Broncos clipped the New York Giants 14-13 and the New Orleans Saints blasted the Seattle Seahawks 51-27.

Vikings 17, Packers 10
Fran Tarkenton completed 23 of 43 passes for 180 yards and two touchdowns as the Vikings, 9-1-1, nailed down the crown against Green Bay, 4-7. His 11-yard pass to Ahmad Rashad in the fourth period broke a 10-10 tie.

Raiders 27, Eagles 7
Clarence Davis and Mark van Eeghen combined for 206 rushing yards and two touchdowns, lifting the Raiders to their seventh straight triumph and their 10th in 11 games. Philadelphia, 3-8, got its score on Roman Garbriel's 200th career touchdown pass.

Redskins 16, Cardinals 10
The Redskins, 7-4, got their only touchdown from Mike Thomas, who rushed 31 times for a team-record 195 yards. The other points came on Mark Moseley field goals.

"We didn't do the job," said Coach Don Coryell of St. Louis, 8-3.

Browns 24, Buccaneers 7
Forrest Gregg got his players in the right mood for a second-half surge with a tongue lashing of which defensive end Joe Jones said, "What he said isn't printable." But the results were: 17 second-half points against Tampa Bay, 0-11. Quarterback Brian Sipe hit veteran Paul Warfield for a 14-yard touchdown, breaking a 7-7 tie in the third period as the Browns improved their record to 7-4.

Falcons 17, Cowboys 10

"You got to make the plays to win, and we didn't," said Coach Tom Landry, who saw his Cowboys' NFC East lead trimmed by the Atlanta upset and now faces a game against St. Louis with just three days to prepare. The Falcons, 4-7, turned two pass interceptions and a short Dallas punt into 17 fourth-quarter points in beating the Cowboys, 9-2.

Patriots 38, Jets 24
New England, 8-3, intercepted seven passes and recovered three fumbles in blasting the Jets, 3-8. Prentice McCray picked off two of the passes and turned them into touchdowns of 63 and 55 yards. Steve Grogan threw three scoring passes for the Patriots.

Steelers 32, Oilers 16
Pittsburgh, 7-4, gave up a touchdown for the first time in six weeks — 22 quarters, when Houston's Ken Burroughs hauled in a 69-yard touchdown pass from Dan Pastorini. Pittsburgh used a pair of scores by Reggie Harrison to hand Houston its sixth straight loss.

Rams 23, 49ers 3
The Rams, 7-3-1, managed eight first downs and three pass completions. But Jim Youngblood picked off two Jim Plunkett passes, and Monte Jackson — the NFL's interception leader — returned his 10th of the season 41 yards for a touchdown to embarrass San Francisco, 6-5.

Bengals 27, Chiefs 24
"We're not afraid of Pittsburgh. We're absolutely going to win," said the Bengals' Bob Trumpy of next week's clash with the Steelers. A triumph would clinch the division for Cincinnati, 9-2, which beat Kansas City on a one-yard Tony Davis plunge in the fourth quarter.

The Bengals lost five fumbles and an interception, and the Chiefs, 3-8, missed a chance to tie the game when a 46-yard Jan Stenerud field goal attempt went wide at 1:48 of the final period.

Skinners, Houck net motocross race titles

Joe Skinner of Pampa was first in the 250 cc class of the Top O' Texas Motocross Sunday afternoon at the Vernon Baggerman ranch, 22 miles south of Pampa on U.S. Highway 70.

Skinner edged runner-up Brad Houck of Pampa and third-place finisher Allen Scott of Amarillo.

Houck won the 125 cc trophy, finishing ahead of Mike Terry of Amarillo and Tom Johnson of Hedley.

In the mini-man class, Jerry Skinner of Pampa won over Marvin Skinner of Pampa and Morris Troxell of Canyon.

Kerry Frank of Amarillo was first in the 100 cc class, while Amarillo's Mark Richie and Hedley's Mark Brinson were second and third, respectively.

Sunday's race was the first ever at the Baggerman track. Riders will compete every other Sunday from 1-4 p.m., running in two heats of five classes around a winding dirt track over a distance of six-tenths of a mile.

The divisions are mini-man (13 and under with less than 100 cc engines), up to 100 cc, 101-125 cc, 126-250 cc and 251+ open.

Entrants Sunday came from throughout the tri-state area. More than 50 riders were entered.

Harvesters, Perryton to meet in cage game

Pampa, hoping to stay undefeated in the early stages of the season, visits Perryton Tuesday night in a non-conference basketball contest.

The teams will begin at 7:30 p.m. A junior varsity contest between the two schools will start at 6 o'clock.

Pampa is 2-0 for the season after downing Midland 99-77 Friday and 59-53 Saturday.

Pampa's junior varsity is 0-1 after losing 66-64 to White Deer's varsity Saturday. Bobby Tollison led the winners with 30 points, followed by Bebo Terry with 14 and Steve Williams with 11.

Steve Stout, Kevin Young and Doug Skaggs each scored 10 points to lead the Shockers.

White Deer's B-team edged the Pampa Sophomores, 51-45. Saturday Mike Pettit scored 16 to pace White Deer, while Pampa was led by Mike Drennan and Doug Nie with 12 apiece.

Pampa's next home action will be Saturday when the Harvesters host Berger in a non-conference clash at 7:45 p.m. The sophomore game will begin at 4:30 and the B-team contest at 6 o'clock.

Few bowls remain undecided

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

The college football bowl picture is virtually complete and it includes a lot of unfamiliar faces in strange places.

How does Kentucky grab you? What about Wyoming? Would you believe Brigham Young and Oklahoma State in the Tangerine Bowl?

And how about McNeese State (who?) in the Independence Bowl (when? where?)

The McNeese State Cowboys are champions of the Southland Conference that's who. And the fledgling Independence Bowl will be played in Shreveport, La., the night of Dec. 14 that's when and where.

Anyone who still does not have a bowl bid should dial Shreveport immediately, because the Independence Bowl has the only vacancy, even though some of the other bowls are not sure who will be heading their way yet.

With 19 of 24 precincts — there are 12 major bowls — reporting, this is the way it looks:

Sugar Bowl — No. 1 Pitt vs. Georgia, which is tied for No. 6 with Maryland.

Rose Bowl — No. 3 Southern California vs. No. 4 Michigan.

Cotton Bowl — Maryland vs. the Southwest Conference representative, probably No. 9 Houston.

Orange Bowl — No. 8 Ohio State vs. the Big Eight representative, either No. 12 Nebraska or No. 15 Colorado.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl — Probably No. 5 Texas Tech, unless the Red Raiders sneak into the Cotton Bowl, against Nebraska, if the Cornhuskers do not make it to the Orange. If they do come back later.

Gator Bowl — No. 13 Notre Dame vs. No. 17 Penn State.

Liberty Bowl — No. 2 UCLA vs. No. 18 Alabama.

Fiesta Bowl — No. 10 Oklahoma vs. Wyoming, co-champion of the Western Athletic Conference.

Tangerine Bowl — No. 16 Oklahoma State vs. WAC co-champion Brigham Young.

Sun Bowl — No. 11 Texas A&M vs. Florida.

Peach Bowl — North Carolina vs. Kentucky.

And in the Independence Bowl, it will be McNeese State against — well, it probably was going to be Tulsa until the Hurricane lost to Wichita State 30-13, and it still might be. Or it could be Rutgers, one of only three teams with perfect records — Pitt and Maryland are the others — or Boston College or Cincinnati or Memphis State.

Under an agreement with the NCAA, the Independence Bowl can only invite independents or teams from leagues with no bowl tie-up to meet the Southland Conference king.

The Associated Press' Top Twenty, of course, will undergo some revision as a result of Saturday's action, and some of the bowl spots depend on what happens this week. In addition to completing the bowl lineup, the race for the national championship still is very much alive.

"I believe that if we win our last two games, that will prove we are No. 1 and nobody can take it away from us," Pitt's Johnny Majors said after the Panthers, idle Saturday, accepted an invitation to meet Georgia, also, off in the Sugar Bowl. Pitt closes its regular season Friday night against Penn State.

The Southern Cal Trojans trounced UCLA 24-14 in the Pacific 8 Conference showdown and set up a Rose Bowl meeting with Michigan, which humiliated Ohio State 22-0.

"Any team that beats us that badly has got to be No. 1," said Ohio State's Woody Hayes.

Maryland, 11-0, completed its first perfect regular season by trouncing Virginia 28-0.

Steelers drub Oilers

By GARY MIHOCES
AP Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Houston Coach Bum Phillips kept his sense of humor in defeat while the Pittsburgh Steelers found it hard to laugh in victory.

Phillips savored a wad of tobacco after Pittsburgh dealt his Oilers their sixth straight loss, 32-16, Sunday. "Sure, my wife lets me chew in the house," he said. "She just doesn't let me spit."

The Steelers may find it equally hard to swallow if they end up winning their last nine games, finishing 10-4, and still are denied a playoff chance for their third straight Super Bowl title.

"We're very, very apprehensive," admitted linebacker Andy Russell, a standout in a Steelers defense that allowed its first two touchdowns in six games—but little else.

"We've got to win the rest and get help, and we're looking desperately to find out where that help is coming from," said Russell.

Phillips, whose Oilers are 4-7 after a 4-1 start, declined to make a prediction on whether Pittsburgh could overtake Cincinnati.

"That's y'all's job," he told reporters. He did acknowledge that Pittsburgh seems to have momentum. "They were in a deep hole and they worked and fought their way out of it," he said.

And he noted that Steelers tackle Joe Greene appears to be back in form after a lingering shoulder injury. "He had a pinched nerve, huh?" Phillips said. "I don't know whose nerve he's pinching now."

With Kruceck at quarterback in place of injured Terry Bradshaw, the Steelers marched 56 yards on the game's first series for a touchdown that came on Rocky Bleier's 10-yard run.

Roy Greer kicked the first of his three field goals later in the first period.

Cincinnati Bengals in the final period.

The Steelers knew that if the Bengals lost, it would cut their lead to one game over Pittsburgh in the American Football Conference Central Division, and the two teams meet next week in Cincinnati.

But last week, the Steelers were told Cincinnati had lost to Houston, only to learn later that the Bengals had rallied to win in the last seconds.

"I'll wait for the news. I don't want to hear that," defensive tackle John BamSzak reacted to the late score.

"Cincinnati is so explosive anything can happen," cautioned rookie quarterback Mike Kruceck.

A handful of Steelers were left in the lockerroom when the final word came Cincinnati had rallied to win 27-24 and preserve its two-game lead.

"We've got to win the rest and get help, and we're looking desperately to find out where that help is coming from," said Russell.

Roy Greer kicked the first of his three field goals later in the first period.

The Oilers, held without a first down in the opening period, fell behind 12-0 early in the second quarter on a safety that came when backup linebacker Loren Toews blocked a Skip Butler punt.

It was fortunate for the Oilers that the ball rolled out of the end zone before any Steelers could grab it for a touchdown, but it was an overall bad day for Butler, who averaged 27.7 yards on seven punts and also lost a fumble on a low-center snap.

Houston's brightest moment came with 5:02 left before halftime when John Hadl and wide receiver Ken Burrough combined for a 69-yard touchdown pass.

It was the first touchdown against the Steelers in 22 quarters and the longest play against Pittsburgh this season.

Russell said the Steelers defense went into a brief "depression" when the streak ended.

"You could sense this deep funk," he said. "We were telling each other, 'Hey, lets get our heads together.' And we had to get out of a depression at halftime. You can't just go into the tank because they throw a bomb on you."

Good players still available

A frantic week of signings has depleted baseball's free agent marketplace, of some of its biggest stars, but there still are some good names available.

Nine free agents — outfielders Gary Matthews, Joe Rudi and Don Baylor, pitchers Wayne Garland and Don Gullett, catcher Gene Tenace and infielders Dave Cash, Bert Campaneris and Sal Bando — came to terms last week. All except Matthews and Bando were clients of agent Jerry Kapstein.

Kapstein still is negotiating contracts for infielder Bobby Grich and pitchers Rolfe Fingers and Doyle Alexander.

Also still looking for new homes are slugger Reggie Jackson, who spent the weekend in Montreal, talking with Expos club officials, infielders Richie Hebner and Tito Fuentes, and pitcher Steve Stone, among others.

The California Angels, who signed Rudi and Baylor last week, were reported hot on Grich's trail with their main competition coming from the New York Yankees, who signed Gullett last week.

Kapstein said Sunday that final proposals for Grich were on the table and the infielder was in the process of finalizing his decision.

Meanwhile, Kapstein concentrated on talks for Fingers, the 30-year-old bullpen ace. When he signs, he will be the sixth Oakland player to switch teams.

Jackson would have been a seventh except the A's traded him to Baltimore last spring in the deal that brought Baylor to Oakland for one season.

Montreal made Jackson the opening selection in the historic Nov. 4 free agent draft and spent the weekend cajoling the slugger outfielder. Before Jackson finished talking with the Expos and reportedly took off for New York, Expos Chairman of the Board Charles Bronfman said, "The discussions went very, very well."

Falcons stun Cowboys; Cards next opponent

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Tom Landry says he hopes the stunning loss to the Atlanta Falcons Sunday may shock his National Football Conference Eastern Conference-leading Dallas Cowboys out of the doldrums.

But he admits he is worried about Thursday's confrontation against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Falcons turned a pair of interceptions and a short punt into 17 points within a five-minute span of the final quarter and upset the Cowboys 17-10 Sunday in a National Football League game, setting up a Thanksgiving Day showdown with the Cardinals for the conference lead.

"We've got to win now," said Landry as his club continued to struggle after three consecutive punchless games against the New York Giants, Buffalo Bills and Falcons.

Dallas, 9-2, beat the Giants and Bills by 9-3 and 17-10 scores, relying mainly on its defense.

Landry, whose club has been in the playoffs 10 of the last 11 seasons and is fighting for a playoff berth again, said, "This loss won't help since we only have three days to prepare for the Cardinals and I don't know if we can get over it that quick."

The Cowboys took a 10-0 lead on Scott Laidlaw's 16-yard run and a 23-yard field goal by Efran Herrera before the Falcons broke loose.

The Falcons, recording their first triumph ever against the Cowboys, turned an interception by Dewey McClain into a 21-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer, a 15-yard punt by Danny White into a 35-yard touchdown run by Mike Espino and an interception by Ray Brown into a one-yard TD run by Scott Hunter.

"We moved the ball well when we weren't making mistakes," said Landry. "But we had too many holding penalties, interceptions and dropped passes."

In professional football you get in a streak where you don't play well and still win like we were doing. Then you get beat.

Now we have to try to come back. "We stopped ourselves," agreed Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, who was intercepted three times—the last by Tommy Nobis on the Atlanta nine in the final minute. "It was a combination of interceptions and penalties. Just a bunch of mistakes that Atlanta created."

Claude Humphrey, Atlanta's defensive end, was a big factor, sacking Staubach twice and tipping two passes.

"We moved the ball well when we weren't making mistakes," said Landry. "But we had too many holding penalties, interceptions and dropped passes."

Houston still 'thinking cotton'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

The Houston Cougars wore T-Shirts with "Think Cotton" stenciled on them during workouts in late August. With another strong 60-minute Saturday the incredible Cougars will be in high cotton.

All it takes is a victory over the lowly Rice Owls and Houston will be the host team New Year's Day against undefeated Maryland in the Cotton Bowl.

Houston swept the Southwest Conference Game of the Year Saturday with a 27-19 victory over previously unbeaten Texas Tech.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman was a numb but happy man. "I'm sure that when I get my feeling back I will be elated with the same," he said. "It's encouraging to the team and the whole program when you find that you can compete when people had indicated earlier that they (thought) you could not."

Meanwhile, Texas Tech hopes to at least salvage a tie for the SWC title. Tech, which will go to the AstroBluebonnet Bowl if Houston takes off to the Cotton Bowl, meets Arkansas Saturday in Little Rock.

Houston is 6-1 and Texas Tech is 5-1. "We've got to regroup, reload and refire," said Tech Coach Steve Sloan. "It's a shame we had to lose."

Sloan said "I really hate it for our fans, but we've got to keep in mind that if we win the rest of our games we get the co-championship and Tech's never done that before."

There are few other things that may happen that never happened before—like Houston becoming the first team in history to share in a SWC title and go to the Cotton Bowl in its first season as a league contender.

And Houston was 2-8 in 1975 and generally picked for sixth place this year. "We won't have any time to celebrate this win," said Houston quarterback Danny Davis. "We've got to be ready for Rice. We've come too far to slip up now."

Another SWC team, Texas A&M, clinched a Sun Bowl berth Saturday with a 59-10 romp over Texas Christian.

"We've got to regroup, reload and refire," said Tech Coach Steve Sloan. "It's a shame we had to lose."

College cagers begin seasons

All but four of the nation's Top Twenty college basketball teams start shooting this week. The Big Four Tournament at Greensboro, N.C., on Friday night, highlighted by a game between third-ranked North Carolina and No. 15 North Carolina State, precipitates a landslide of games involving the country's basketball royalty.

The college basketball season opened Sunday with a token number of unimportant games. By next Saturday, such teams as top-ranked Michigan, third-ranked North Carolina, fourth-ranked UCLA and fifth-ranked Indiana, the defending national champion, will see action.

Michigan entertains Western Kentucky Saturday. UCLA plays San Diego State Friday and No. 18 DePaul Saturday, and Indiana opens with a game against South Dakota Saturday.

In other games over the weekend, No. 6 Kentucky entertains Wisconsin; No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas plays Nevada-Reno; No. 8 Maryland meets No. 14 Notre Dame; 10th-ranked Arizona faces Arizona State; No. 11 San Francisco visits UC-Santa Barbara; 13th-ranked Alabama opposes Purdue; 16th-ranked Tennessee plays South Florida; No. 19 North Carolina-Charlotte meets Georgia College, and No. 20 Missouri takes on Southern Illinois.

Second-ranked Marquette, No. 9 Louisville, No. 12 Cincinnati and No. 17 Rutgers will not start their seasons until next week.

The Associated Press' preseason rankings were announced Sunday.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters judged Michigan best by a 588 to 531-point margin over Marquette. The Wolverines, who lost to Big 10 Conference rival Indiana in last year's NCAA final, have four returning starters, while Bobby Knight's Hoosiers have lost four of theirs.

Michigan collected 21 first-place votes, compared to Marquette's six. North Carolina drew nine votes for first and had a total of 449 points for third place.

UCLA placed No. 4 on the strength of 425 points, nosing out Indiana, fifth with 422. The Bruins received two first-place votes, compared to Indiana's seven.

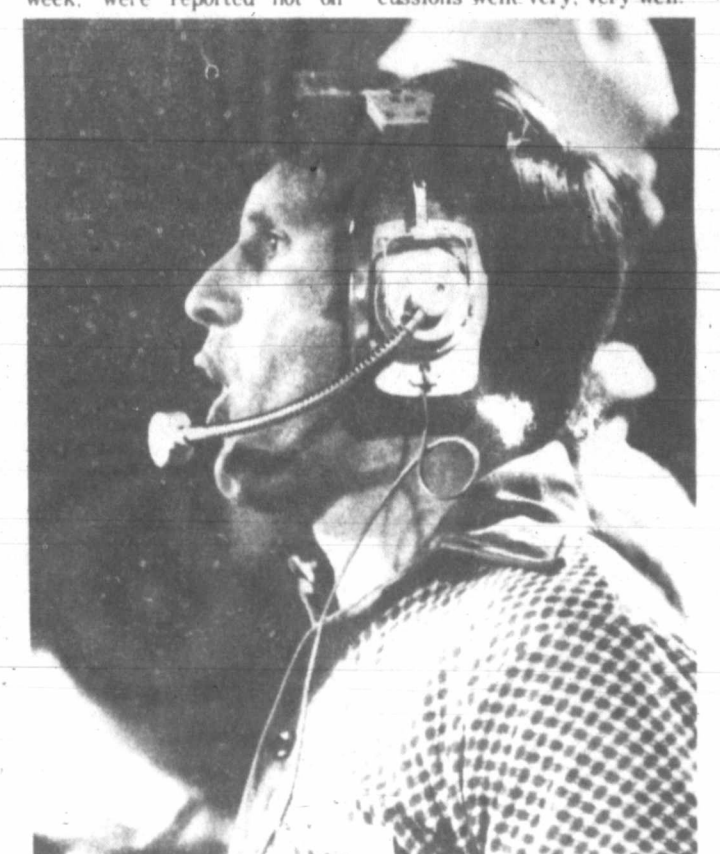

Kentucky, winner of last year's National Invitation Tournament and one of the hottest clubs in the nation at the end of the season, placed No. 6 in the voting. The Wildcats collected 280 points, with the help of two votes for first place.

Nevada-Las Vegas finished No. 7 in the voting with 279 points, Maryland was No. 8 with 235, Louisville No. 9 with 227, and Arizona No. 10 with 206.

Louisville and San Francisco, No. 11 team, received the only other first-place votes, getting one each.

Sonics continue home dominance

By The Associated Press

The Seattle SuperSonics are really the Seattle Supermen at home.

Merely human when they play basketball in arenas around the National Basketball Association, they rise to uncommon heights at the Seattle Center Coliseum.

The Sonics have a modest 10-7 record so far this season but after Sunday night's 115-106 beating of Milwaukee, have won 26 straight games at home over the past two years. The NBA record for consecutive home-court victories is 36.

Bill Russell's players fashioned their latest home-court victory behind Fred Brown's 25 points and a 16-rebound performance by Tom Burleson.

"This is the best ballgame we've had from Tommy," said Russell. "He's capable of a lot more than he showed tonight. It was a funny kind of game in that they were playing well enough to keep us from blowing them out."

The Sonics put the heat on the Bucks with a sizzling third-quarter performance that put them 23 points ahead at one time.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Los Angeles Lakers downed the New York Nets 96-91; the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Chicago Bulls 101-96; the New Orleans Jazz whipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 97-92; the Kansas City Kings beat the Atlanta Hawks 106-83 and the Portland Trail Blazers blasted the Buffalo Braves 128-98.

Lakers 96, Nets 91
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 33 points to lead Los Angeles past New York Abdul-Jabbar, who made 14 of 16 shots from the field, also contributed 15 rebounds.

Suns 101, Bulls 96
Paul Westphal, with 15 second-half points and 26 overall, led Phoenix over Chicago. The teams were tied 21 at the end of the first quarter, then Westphal hit 10 points in the second quarter to help the Suns edge ahead 48-45 at the half. Phoenix held a 72-68 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Jazz 97, Cavaliers 92
Pete Maravich ignored a sore ankle and scored 41 points, leading New Orleans past Cleveland Maravich, who missed last Friday night's game against Philadelphia with an ankle sprain, had 18 points in the fourth period when a Cleveland rally fell short.

Kings 106, Hawks 83
Ron Boone scored 30 points, including 18 in the third period, leading Kansas City over slumping Atlanta

Vikings, Raiders grab loop crowns

Sports

12 Monday, November 22, 1976 PAMPA NEWS

By FRANK BROWN

AP Sports Writer

"We had a chance to fail and we didn't." Those were the words of Coach Bud Grant, whose Minnesota Vikings beat the Green Bay Packers 17-10 and won the championship of the National Football Conference Central Division for the eighth time in nine years.

"This is only the first step." Those were the words of Coach John Madden, whose Oakland Raiders clubbed the Philadelphia Eagles 26-7 and clinched their fifth consecutive American Conference West title and their ninth divisional crown in 10 years.

They were expressions of slight relief, ones used by men who realized divisional championships mean little should their teams fall short of a trip to Pasadena for the Jan. 17 Super Bowl game.

"We've still got hope and we've still got a chance," said Washington Redskins Coach George Allen. "We've just got to keep it going and never let up."

"We win them or else we are out. We can't save anything," said Cleveland Browns Coach Forrest Gregg.

Those were the words of men who saw the chances slipping away for a chance to reach the playoffs.

Here is what is left of the divisional races, brought to you by the National Football League.

Allen's Redskins, who could have been eliminated by a loss, kept their playoff hopes alive in the National Conference East with a 16-10 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. The victory, combined with Atlanta's 17-10 upset of Dallas, kept Washington within two games of the first-place Cowboys and one game of the Cardinals.

Gregg's Browns helped themselves in the American Conference Central, lashing the winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers 24-7 Sunday and remaining hopeful of the wild card slot for a playoff trip.

In the other divisional races, New England's Patriots inched within one-half game of the AFC East-leading Baltimore Colts — who visit the Miami Dolphins tonight — with a 38-24 victory over the New York Jets. Pittsburgh's surging Steelers kept pace with Cleveland at two games behind AFC Central-leading Cincinnati, ripping the Houston Oilers 32-16 for their sixth straight triumph. The NFC West-leading Los Angeles Rams put down second-place San Francisco 23-3 and opened a 1 1/2-game margin over the 49ers, who lost their fourth in a row.

Meanwhile, the Bengals rapped the Kansas City Chiefs 27-24, the San Diego Chargers pasted the Buffalo Bills 34-13, the Detroit Lions bested the Chicago Bears 14-10, the Denver Broncos clipped the New York Giants 14-13 and the New Orleans Saints blasted the Seattle Seahawks 51-27.

Vikings 17, Packers 10
Fran Tarkenton completed 23 of 43 passes for 180 yards and two touchdowns as the Vikings, 9-1-1, nailed down the crown against Green Bay, 4-7. His 11-yard pass to Ahmad Rashad in the fourth period broke a 10-10 tie.

Raiders 27, Eagles 7
Clarence Davis and Mark van Eggen combined for 206 rushing yards and two touchdowns, lifting the Raiders to their seventh straight triumph and their 10th in 11 games. Philadelphia, 3-8, got its score on Roman Garbiel's 20th career touchdown pass.

Redskins 16, Cardinals 10
The Redskins, 7-4, got their only touchdown from Mike Thomas, who rushed 31 times for a team-record 195 yards. The other points came on Mark Moseley field goals.

"We didn't do the job," said Coach Don Coryell of St. Louis, 8-3.

Browns 24, Buccaneers 7
Forrest Gregg got his players in the right mood for a second-half surge with a tongue lashing of which defensive end Joe Jones said, "What he had isn't printable." But the results were: 17 second-half points against Tampa Bay, 0-11. Quarterback Brian Sipe hit veteran Paul Warfield for a 14-yard touchdown, breaking a 7-7 tie in the third period as the Browns improved their record to 7-4.

Falcons 17, Cowboys 10

"You got to make the plays to win, and we didn't," said Coach Tom Landry, who saw his Cowboys' NFC East lead trimmed by the Atlanta upset and now faces a game against St. Louis with just three days to prepare. The Falcons, 4-7, turned two pass interceptions and a short Dallas punt into 17 fourth-quarter points in beating the Cowboys, 9-2.

Patriots 38, Jets 24
New England, 8-3, intercepted seven passes and recovered three fumbles in blasting the Jets, 3-8. Prentice McCray picked off two of the passes and turned them into touchdowns of 63 and 55 yards. Steve Grogan threw three scoring passes for the Patriots.

Steelers 32, Oilers 16
Pittsburgh, 7-4, gave up a touchdown for the first time in six weeks — 22 quarters, when Houston's Ken Burroughs hauled in a 69-yard touchdown pass from Dan Pastorini. Pittsburgh used a pair of scores by Reggie Harrison to hand Houston its sixth straight loss.

Rams 23, 49ers 3
The Rams, 7-3-1, managed eight first downs and three pass completions. But Jim Youngblood picked off two Jim Plunkett passes, and Monte Jackson — the NFL's interception leader — returned his 10th of the season 41 yards for a touchdown to embarrass San Francisco, 6-5.

Bengals 27, Chiefs 24
"We're not afraid of Pittsburgh. We're absolutely going to win," said the Bengals' Bob Trumpy of next week's clash with the Steelers. A triumph would clinch the division for Cincinnati, 9-2, which beat Kansas City on a one-yard Tony Davis plunge in the fourth quarter.

The Bengals lost five fumbles and an interception, and the Chiefs, 3-8, missed a chance to tie the game when a 46-yard Jan Stenerud field goal attempt went wide at 1:48 of the final period.

Skinner, Houck net motocross race titles

Joe Skinner of Pampa was first in the 250 cc class of the Top O' Texas Motocross Sunday afternoon at the Vernon Baggerman ranch, 22 miles south of Pampa on U.S. Highway 70.

Skinner edged runner-up Brad Houck of Pampa and third-place finisher Allen Scott of Amarillo.

Houck won the 125 cc trophy, finishing ahead of Mike Terry of Amarillo and Tom Johnson of Hedley.

In the mini-man class, Jerry Skinner of Pampa won over Marvin Skinner of Pampa and Morris Troxell of Canyon.

Kerry Frank of Amarillo was first in the 100 cc class, while Amarillo's Mark Richie and Hedley's Mark Brinson were second and third, respectively.

Sunday's race was the first ever at the Baggerman track. Riders will compete every other Sunday from 1-4 p.m., running in two heats of five classes around a winding dirt track over a distance of six-tenths of a mile.

The divisions are mini-man (13 and under with less than 100 cc engines), up to 100 cc, 101-125 cc, 126-250 cc and 251-open.

Entrants Sunday came from throughout the tri-state area. More than 50 riders were entered.

Harvesters, Perryton to meet in cage game

Pampa, hoping to stay undefeated in the early stages of the season, visits Perryton Tuesday night in a non-conference basketball contest. The teams will begin at 7:30 p.m. A junior varsity contest between the two schools will start at 6 o'clock.

Pampa's next home action will be Saturday when the Harvesters host Borger in a non-conference clash at 7:45 p.m. The sophomore game will begin at 4:30 and the B-team contest at 6 o'clock.

Few bowls remain undecided

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

The college football bowl picture is virtually complete and it includes a lot of unfamiliar faces in strange places.

How does Kentucky grab you? What about Wyoming? Would you believe Brigham Young and Oklahoma State in the Tangerine Bowl?

And how about McNeese State (who?) in the Independence Bowl (when? where?)

The McNeese State Cowboys are champions of the Southland Conference, that's who. And the fledgling Independence Bowl will be played in Shreveport, La., the night of Dec. 14 that's when and where.

Anyone who still does not have a bowl bid should dial Shreveport immediately, because the Independence Bowl has the only vacancy, even though some of the other bowls are not sure who will be heading their way yet.

With 19 of 24 precincts — there are 12 major bowls — reporting, this is the way it looks:

Sugar Bowl — No. 1 Pitt vs. Georgia, which is tied for No. 6 with Maryland.

Rose Bowl — No. 3 Southern California vs. No. 4 Michigan.

Cotton Bowl — Maryland vs. the Southwest Conference representative, probably No. 9 Houston.

Orange Bowl — No. 8 Ohio State vs. the Big Eight representative, either No. 12 Nebraska or No. 15 Colorado.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl — Probably No. 5 Texas Tech, unless the Red Raiders sneak into the Cotton Bowl, against Nebraska, if the Cornhuskers do not make it to the Orange. If they do — come back later.

Gator Bowl — No. 13 Notre Dame vs. No. 17 Penn State.

Liberty Bowl — No. 2 UCLA vs. No. 18 Alabama.

Fiesta Bowl — No. 10 Oklahoma vs. Wyoming, co-champion of the Western Athletic Conference.

Tangerine Bowl — No. 16 Oklahoma State vs. WAC co-champion Brigham Young.

Sun Bowl — No. 11 Texas A&M vs. Florida.

Peach Bowl — North Carolina vs. Kentucky.

And in the Independence Bowl, it will be McNeese State against well, it probably was going to be Tulsa until the Hurricane lost to Wichita State 30-13, and it still might be. Or it could be Rutgers, one of only three teams with perfect records — Pitt and Maryland are the others — or Boston College or Cincinnati or Memphis State.

Under an agreement with the NCAA, the Independence Bowl can only invite independents or teams from leagues with no bowl tie-up to meet the Southland Conference king.

The Associated Press' Top Twenty, of course, will undergo some revision as a result of Saturday's action, and some of the bowl spots depend on what happens this week. In addition, to completing the bowl lineup, the race for the national championship still is very much alive.

I believe that if we win our last two games, that will prove we are No. 1 and nobody can take it away from us," Pitt's Johnny Majors said after the Panthers, idle Saturday, accepted an invitation to meet Georgia, also off, in the Sugar Bowl. Pitt closes its regular season Friday night against Penn State.

The Southern Cal Trojans trounced UCLA 24-14 in the Pacific 8 Conference showdown and set up a Rose Bowl meeting with Michigan, which humiliated Ohio State 22-0.

"Any team that beats us that badly has got to be No. 1," said Ohio State's Woody Hayes.

Maryland, 11-0, completed its first perfect regular season by trouncing Virginia 28-0.

Steelers drub Oilers

By GARY MIHOCS
AP Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Houston Coach Bum Phillips kept his sense of humor in defeat, while the Pittsburgh Steelers found it hard to laugh in victory.

Phillips savored a wad of tobacco after Pittsburgh dealt his Oilers their sixth straight loss, 32-16, Sunday. "Sure my wife lets me chew in the house," he said. "She just doesn't let me spit."

The Steelers may find it equally hard to swallow if they end up winning their last nine games, finishing 10-4, and still are denied a playoff chance for their third straight Super Bowl title.

"We're very, very apprehensive," admitted linebacker Andy Russell, a standout in a Steelers defense that allowed its first two touchdowns in six games—but little else. "We could find ourselves on the sofa, watching the playoffs on television and thinking we're the best team. It's a horrible situation."

After their sixth straight victory, the Steelers heard that Kansas City led 24-20 over the Cincinnati Bengals in the final period.

The Steelers knew that if the Bengals lost, it would cut their lead to one game over Pittsburgh in the American Football Conference Central Division, and the two teams meet next week in Cincinnati.

But last week, the Steelers were told Cincinnati had lost to Houston, only to learn later that the Bengals had rallied to win in the last seconds.

"I'll wait for the news. I don't want to hear that," defensive tackle John Banaszak reacted to the late score.

"Cincinnati is so explosive anything can happen," cautioned rookie quarterback Mike Kruczek.

A handful of Steelers were left in the lockerroom when the final word came. Cincinnati had rallied to win 27-24 and preserve its two-game lead.

"We've got to win the rest and get help, and we're looking desperately to find out where that help is coming from," said Russell.

Phillips, whose Oilers are 4-7 after a 4-1 start, declined to make a prediction on whether Pittsburgh could overtake Cincinnati.

"That's y'all's job," he told reporters.

He did acknowledge that Pittsburgh seems to have momentum. "They were in a deep hole and they worked and fought their way out of it," he said.

And he noted that Steelers tackle Joe Greene appears to be back in form after a lingering shoulder injury. "He had a pinched nerve, huh?" Phillips said. "I don't know whose nerve he's pinching now."

In place of injured Terry Bradshaw, the Steelers marched 56 yards on the game's first series for a touchdown that came on Rocky Bleier's 10-yard run.

Roy Gerela kicked the first of his three fields goal later in the first period.

The Oilers, held without a first down in the opening period, fell behind 12-0 early in the second quarter on a safety that came when backup linebacker Loren Toews blocked a Skip Butler punt.

It was fortunate for the Oilers that the ball rolled out of the end zone before any Steelers could grab it for a touchdown, but it was an over-all bad day for Butler, who averaged 27.7 yards on seven punts and also lost a fumble on a low center snap.

Houston's brightest moment came with 5:02 left before halftime when John Hadl and wide receiver Ken Burrough combined for a 69-yard touchdown pass.

It was the first touchdown against the Steelers in 22 quarters and the longest play against Pittsburgh this season.

Russell said the Steelers' defense went into a brief "depression" when the streak ended.

"You could sense this deep funk," he said. "We were telling each other, 'Hey, let's get our heads together.' And we had to get out of a depression at halftime. You can't just go into the tank because they throw a bomb on you."

Good players still available

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

A frantic week of signings has depleted baseball's free agent marketplace of some of its biggest stars, but there still are some good names available.

Nine free agents — outfielders Gary Matthews, Joe Rudi and Don Baylor, pitchers Wayne Garland and Don Gullett, catcher Gene Tenace and infielders Dave Cash, Bert Campaneris and Sal Bando — came to terms last week. All except Matthews and Bando were clients of agent Jerry Kapstein.

Kapstein still is negotiating contracts for infielder Bobby Grich and pitchers Rollie Fingers and Doyle Alexander.

Also still looking for new homes are slugger Reggie Jackson, who spent the weekend in Montreal, talking with Expos club officials, infielders Richie Hebner and Tito Fuentes, and pitcher Steve Stone, among others.

The California Angels, who signed Rudi and Baylor last week, were reported hot on Grich's trail with their main competition coming from the New York Yankees, who signed Gullett last week.

Kapstein said Sunday that final proposals for Grich were on the table and the infielder was "in the process of finalizing his decision."

Meanwhile, Kapstein concentrated on talks for Fingers, the 30-year-old bullpen ace. When he signs, he will be the sixth Oakland player to switch teams.

Jackson would have been a seventh except the A's traded him to Baltimore last spring in the deal that brought Baylor to Oakland for one season.

Montreal made Jackson the opening selection in the historic Nov. 4 free agent draft and spent the weekend enjoining the slugger outfielder. Before Jackson finished talking with the Expos and reportedly took off for New York, Expos Chairman of the Board Charles Bronfman said. "The discussions went very, very well."

Falcons stun Cowboys; Cards next opponent

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Tom Landry says he hopes the stunning loss to the Atlanta Falcons Sunday may shock his National Football Conference Eastern Conference leading Dallas Cowboys out of the doldrums.

But he admits he is worried about Thursday's confrontation against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Falcons turned a pair of interceptions and a short punt into 17 points within a five-minute span of the final quarter and upset the Cowboys 17-10 Sunday in a National Football League game, setting up a Thanksgiving Day showdown with the Cardinals for the conference lead.

"We've got to win now," said Landry as his club continued to struggle after three consecutive punchless games against the New York Giants, Buffalo Bills and Falcons.

Dallas, 9-2, beat the Giants and Bills by 9-3 and 17-10 scores, relying mainly on its defense.

Landry, whose club has been in the playoffs 10 of the last 11 seasons and is fighting for a playoff berth again, said. "This loss won't help since we only have three days to prepare for the Cardinals and I don't know if we can get over it that quick."

The Cowboys took a 10-0 lead on Scott Laidlaw's 16-yard run and a 23-yard field goal by Efren Herrera before the Falcons broke loose.

The Falcons, recording their first triumph ever against the Cowboys, turned an interception by Dewey McClain into a 21-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer, a 15-yard punt by Danny White into a 35-yard touchdown run by Mike Espoito and an interception by Ray Brown into a one-yard TD run by Scott Hunter.

"We moved the ball well when we weren't making mistakes," said Landry. "But we had too many holding penalties, interceptions and dropped passes."

"In professional football you get in a streak where you don't play well and still win like we were doing. Then you get beat back."

"We stopped ourselves," agreed Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, who was intercepted three times—the last by Tommy Nobis on the Atlanta nine in the final minute. "It was a combination of interceptions and penalties. Just a bunch of mistakes that Atlanta created."

Claude Humphrey, Atlanta's defensive end, was a big factor, sacking Staubach twice and tipping two passes.

Charlie Johnston of Childress admires the Class AA bi-district championship trophy after his Bobcats edged Spearman, 16-14, Friday night in Pampa's Harvester Stadium. Right, Groom Coach Russell Roberts watches the action while his Tigers crush Sundown, 40-15, in a class B bi-district meeting at Panhandle to earn the right to face Forsan in the state quarterfinals Friday night in Levelland.

Houston still 'thinking cotton'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Houston Cougars wore T-Shirts with "Think Cotton" stenciled on them during workouts in late August. With another strong 60-minute Saturday the incredible Cougars will be in high cotton.

All it takes is a victory over the lowly Rice Owls and Houston will be the host team New Year's Day against undefeated Maryland in the Cotton Bowl.

Houston swept the Southwest Conference Game of the Year Saturday with a 27-19 victory over previously unbeaten Texas Tech.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman was a numb but happy man.

"I'm sure that when I get my feeling back I will be elated with the same," he said. "It's encouraging to the team and the whole program when you find that you can compete when people had indicated earlier that they (thought) you could not."

Meanwhile, Texas Tech hopes to at least salvage a tie for the SWC title Tech, which will go to the AstroBluebonnet Bowl if Houston takes off to the Cotton Bowl, meets Arkansas Saturday in Little Rock.

Houston is 6-1 and Texas Tech is 5-1.

"We've got to regroup, reload and refire," said Tech Coach Steve Sloan. "It's a shame we had to lose."

Sloan said "I really hate it for our fans, but we've got to keep in mind that if we win the rest of our games we get the co-championship and Tech's never done that before."

College cagers begin seasons

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

All but four of the nation's Top Twenty college basketball teams start shooting this week.

The Big Four Tournament at Greensboro, N.C., on Friday night, highlighted by a game between third-ranked North Carolina and No. 15 North Carolina State, precipitates a landslide of games involving the country's basketball royalty.

The college basketball season opened Sunday with a token number of important games. By next Saturday, such teams as top-ranked Michigan, third-ranked North Carolina, fourth-ranked UCLA and fifth-ranked Indiana, the defending national champion, will see action.

Michigan entertains Western Kentucky Saturday. UCLA plays San Diego State Friday and No. 18 DePaul Saturday, and Indiana opens with a game against South Dakota Saturday.

In other games over the weekend, No. 6 Kentucky entertains Wisconsin; No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas plays Nevada-Reno; No. 8 Maryland meets No. 14 Notre Dame; 10th-ranked Indiana faces Arizona State; No. 11 San Francisco visits UC-Santa Barbara; 13th-ranked Alabama opposes Purdue; 16th-rated Tennessee plays South Florida; No. 19 North Carolina-Charlotte meets Georgia College, and No. 20 Missouri takes on Southern Illinois.

Second-ranked Marquette, No. 9 Louisville, No. 12 Cincinnati and No. 17 Rutgers will not start their seasons until next week.

The Associated Press' preseason rankings were announced Sunday.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters judged Michigan best by a 588 to 531-point margin over Marquette. The Wolverines, who lost to Big 10 Conference rival Indiana in last year's NCAA final, have four returning starters, while Bobby Knight's Hoosiers have lost four of theirs.

Michigan collected 21 first-place votes, compared to Marquette's six. North Carolina drew nine votes for first and had a total of 449 points for third place.

UCLA placed No. 4 on the strength of 425 points, nosing out Indiana, fifth with 422. The Bruins received two first-place votes, compared to Indiana's seven.

Kentucky, winner of last year's National Invitation Tournament and one of the hottest clubs in the nation at the end of the season, placed No. 6 in the voting. The Wildcats collected 298 points, with the help of two votes for first place.

Nevada-Las Vegas finished No. 7 in the voting with 279 points. Maryland was No. 8 with 235. Louisville No. 9 with 227, and Arizona No. 10 with 206.

Louisville and San Francisco, the No. 11 team, received the only other first-place votes, getting one each.

Winning coaches

Paul Westphal, with 15 second-half points and 26 overall, led Phoenix over Chicago. The teams were tied 21 at the end of the first quarter, then Westphal hit 10 points in the second quarter to help the Suns edge ahead 48-45 at the half. Phoenix held a 72-68 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Jazz 97, Cavaliers 92

Pete Maravich ignored a sore ankle and scored 41 points, leading New Orleans past Cleveland Maravich, who missed last Friday night's game against Philadelphia with an ankle sprain, had 18 points in the fourth period when a Cleveland rally fell short.

Kings 106, Hawks 83

Ron Boone scored 30 points, including 18 in the third period, leading Kansas City over slumping Atlanta.

Sonics continue home dominance

By The Associated Press

The Seattle SuperSonics are really the Seattle Supermen at home.

Merely human when they play basketball in arenas around the National Basketball Association, they rise to uncommon heights at the Seattle Center Coliseum.

The Sonics have a modest 10-7 record so far this season but after Sunday night's 115-106 beating of Milwaukee, have won 26 straight games at home over the past two years. The NBA record for consecutive home-court victories is 36.

Bill Russell's players fashioned their latest home-court victory behind Fred Brown's 25 points and a 16-rebound performance by Tom Burleson.

"This is the best ballgame we've had from Tommy," said

Russell. "He's capable of a lot more than he showed tonight. It was a funny kind of game in that they were playing well enough to keep up from blowing them out."

The Sonics put the heat on the Bucks with a sizzling third-quarter performance that put them 23 points ahead at one time.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Los Angeles Lakers downed the New York Nets 96-91; the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Chicago Bulls 101-96; the New Orleans Jazz whipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 97-92; the Kansas City Kings beat the Atlanta Hawks 106-83 and the Portland Trail Blazers blasted the Buffalo Braves 128-98.

JOHN DEAN, who's gotten a best seller, "Blind Ambition," out of the Watergate affair, is turning his attention toward screenplay writing these days.

Nightmares about new watergates

By Dick Kleiner

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — "It troubles me terribly," says John Dean, "that it will happen again."

The "it" he's referring to is, of course, the Watergate affair. He sees a parallel between what happened in 1972 — the Watergate investigation was tabled until after the election — and this year.

Dean has recently stated that Dick Cook, a White House staff member in 1972, approached President Ford, then an influential congressman, and asked him to try to block the Patman Committee inquiry into Watergate.

But nothing came of Dean's statement. He says no one in an official capacity has approached him for amplification. And he says he and some media friends are "having nightmares" of a new outburst of Watergate investigations — now that the '76 election is over.

He says Cook first denied having spoken to him about Ford's complicity in the movie to impede the Patman inquiry. But later, Dean says, Cook changed his story and currently says he is "unsure" whether or not he spoke to Dean.

"At first," Dean says, "Cook said he was at Lockheed at the time of the Patman inquiry. Now he admits that was wrong, and he says his memory was off by two years."

Dean says many TV and newspaper reporters have indicated to him they wanted to write more about the Ford-Cook incident, before the election. But, he says, they were told by their producers and editors not to touch the story. With the election over, Dean believes the shackles will be off and that the probe into Ford's connection with the story will begin in earnest.

Dean, one of the leading figures in the Watergate scandal, is now a writer. He does interviews for Rolling Stone magazine, and his book about his connection with Watergate, "Blind Ambition," is on the best seller list.

He feels now that his future is in writing. It can't be in law. He was disbarred and says now that he believes his disbarment was "a right decision."

"I made bad judgments," he says. "I don't deserve to practice law." He was "uncomfortable" during his years as President Nixon's counsel, "uncomfortable" doing the things he had to do. "I know right from wrong," he says. "I rationalized my way by having others handle things for me. I saved myself, I thought."

Dean's parents, he says, keep telling him now that what he went through was a good lesson for him. They tell him he was moving too fast and had gotten "too big for his britches."

"And I guess I can be grateful," he says, "that I learned my lesson at this age, rather than when I was older."

Dean's book, written almost like a novel, includes a great deal of dialogue. He relies on his memory for that, a memory first made famous when he testified before the Ervin committee and was able to recreate entire conversations.

"I've always been a listener," he says. "My memory is eclectic. I can still hear those people talking. When (Leon) Jaworski first heard the Nixon tapes, he compared them with my testimony."

"John, it's frightening," he said to me. "You used the exact language and phrases that they did."

Curiously, John Dean started out to be a writer. He was an English major, first at Colgate and then at the College of Wooster in Ohio. In his junior year, he became a dual English-political science major. His senior thesis was called "Verisimilitude in Political Novels."

He says it is strange, but that the thesis has been lost. The college, he says, claims they can no longer find it, despite the fact that all theses are kept on file.

So Watergate, which changed so many things, turned him back from politics to writing. "When I was in the White House," he says, "I was very ambitious. I enjoyed being in the inner power, where the movers and the shakers lived. It was that that excited me, not the money, not the public recognition."

"Today, I'm generally in Levis, working at the typewriter. I look at things differently now. When I was covering the Kansas City convention, I realized that I was happier being an observer than a participant."

"My biggest problem now is public recognition. I'm uncomfortable being recognized. I've lost my privacy. I miss my anonymity. I become uncomfortable in restaurants. People turn around to watch me eat. But I'm hoping my anonymity will one day return."

He would like to get into screenplay writing. At one point, during the height of the Watergate crisis, he wrote a treatment for a screenplay (about a black woman nominated to be a Supreme Court justice) and had a "handsome" offer for it.

"I showed it to Lowell Weicker (the Republican senator from Connecticut). He said I might someday be involved in an impeachment hearing and that the screenplay wouldn't win me any friends. So I dropped it." But now he says he's reading ten screenplays a week, to familiarize himself with the technique. He calls it "a beautiful craft."

Dean looks ahead these days, although he's forced often to look back. He has regrets over what he did, or didn't do.

"The most troublesome thing to me," he says, "is the way I had the opportunity to do so many things right — and I abused that opportunity. Since then, I've tried to right the wrongs. It sounds mucky, but it's true."

He believes former President Nixon, who is now writing a book about his involvement in Watergate, "has the opportunity to write an all-time classic."

"It could become the piece of literature to read," Dean says. "But I'll be surprised if he does it the way he should do it. If it's like 'Six Crises,' it won't be the way it should be."

He says he feels no bitterness toward Nixon. "I can't defend his behavior," he says. "But, then, I can't defend my own behavior, either. It was indefensible."

Fonda-Redgrave film is study of two women

PARIS (AP) — "Movies in recent years have featured all kinds of close relationships between men. I think it's time for a film about two women."

Film maker Fred Zinnemann was talking about the project that has brought him back to production after a four-year absence; his last was "Day of the Jackal." His new subject is "Julia," based on a chapter of Lillian Hellman's book "Pentimento." Jane Fonda is playing the young Hellman, Vanessa Redgrave is Julia, her childhood friend who becomes enmeshed in the anti-Nazi movement in pre-war Germany.

After shooting the 20th Century-Fox film in England, Zinnemann had come to Paris for scenes around the city and at the Bologne studios, then planned to finish at Strasbourg. "I'm half-way through the picture and it feels good," said the "double Oscar" winner

"From Here to Eternity." "A Man for All Seasons". A vigorous 69, he stood bare-headed in a misty chill, directing a scene near the Louvre in the Tuileries with Maximilian Schell and Miss Fonda.

Zinnemann said that the project had come to him through producer Richard Roth, who had commissioned a first-draft screenplay by Alvin Sargent. The director described it as the story of "a friendship of two girls who are school chums and then drift apart; Julia becomes enmeshed in the intellectual ferment of Berlin, and Lillian brings money to provide escape for people in danger — not only Jews but liberals who oppose Hitler."

An important figure in "Julia" is Dashiell Hammett, with whom Miss Hellman lived for many years. "I'm portraying him as a father figure, since he was older than Lil-

People are always mourning the passing of the old general store, that wonderful meeting place in the old West where you could buy a chain saw and a dozen eggs, a length of calico or kerosene for the lamps.

"I've never been sure in my mind that it disappeared. As my husband and I put away the groceries the other day he said, 'Where do you want the salt for the water softener?'"

"In the garage. The kids can lug it around to the side yard."

"And the garden hose and the charcoal lighter?"

"On the porch."

"Hey, you got a lot of 'goodies' this week," he said, pulling out a pair of men's sandals.

"I know. We were out of everything. Wanta put these bath towels on the dining room table? I'll run them back when we finish unpacking. But the prices," I added, "I don't know how big families afford to eat. Here, put these lightbulbs in the drawer. I did get a good buy on underwear this week — three for $4."

"Did you check on the car seat that was in the ad?"

"Yeah, but I think I can do better at another supermarket across town."

"Ummm... This looks yummy, what is it?"

"A bundt pan. Got that special coating on it so the cake won't stick. Makes your mouth water, doesn't it?"

"Why candles? You know they're more expensive when they're out of season."

"I know, but I just craved to see those green ones in the dining room."

"I hope you got there early enough to get the plants while they were fresh."

"They were a little picked over, but I found a great dieffenbachia. In fact, I had Ralph divide them into two pots so I can give mother one and use the other myself. I love a store that has a garden man. None of those pre-packaged deals."

"Incidentally," said my husband, "what's for lunch?"

I shuffled through the greeting cards, zippers, anti-freeze, dark glasses, pots, pans, insecticide, paperbacks, and clothesline and finally said, "You wanta run down to the store and get some lunch meat? And don't get distracted by things we can't eat!"

Holiday gas priced lower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Holiday motorists should find the prices of all grades of gasoline slightly lower than on Labor Day, the American Automobile Association reported today after a spot check of 3,700 retail fuel outlets across the country.

The association said regular gasoline averages 61.5 cents per gallon for the upcoming four-day weekend, down four-tenths of one cent from Labor Day, traditional end of the heavy-travel season. Premium gasoline averages 65.8 cents per gallon, down from 66 cents, and unleaded 63.8 cents, down from 63.9 cents, AAA said.

Diesel fuel is averaging 53.3 cents a gallon, the association said.

The association said its survey indicated that motorists should find adequate supplies of all grades over the long weekend.

Over 70 per cent of the stations surveyed said they planned to be open on the holiday itself, Thursday, Nov. 25; more than half indicated they would pump gas after 6 p.m. that day; all said normal operating hours would be observed on Friday and Saturday, and only 20 per cent said they would be closed on Sunday.

At least 15 per cent of the stations contacted said they would remain open around the clock throughout the four-day weekend.

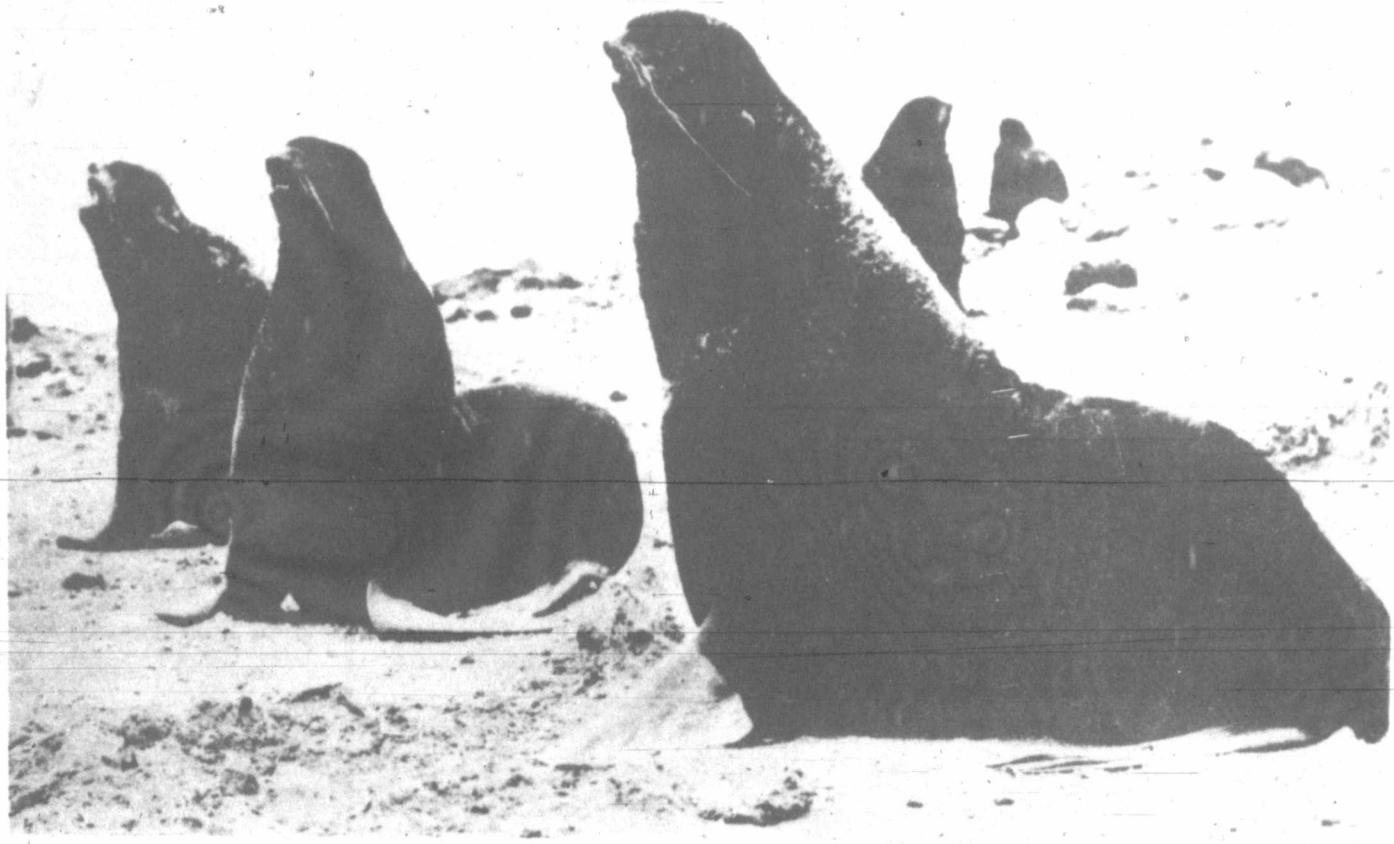

The highest prices found in the survey were in Mammoth Lakes, Calif., where regular grade fuel was 75.9 cents per gallon, premium 79.9 and unleaded 77.9.

Lowest prices were found in the Houston and Beaumont, Tex., areas, where a gallon of regular sold for 45.9 cents, premium 50.9 cents and unleaded 49.9 cents.

On a regional basis, the highest prices per gallon were found in the Mountain states of Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, where regular was 64.6 cents per gallon, premium 68.5 cents and unleaded 66.6 cents.

The lowest prices regionally were reported in the oil-producing West South Central area — Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas — where regular was 59.9 cents per gallon, premium 63.7 cents and unleaded 61.8 cents.

Brezhnev hopes to tighten ties

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived in Bucharest today to tighten the Kremlin's ties with its maverick East European ally. But Romanian leader Nicolae Ceausescu appears certain to retain the independence he has established. Even as Ceausescu welcomed Brezhnev at Otopeni Airport,

U.S. Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson was talking with officials a few miles away in downtown Bucharest about ways of expanding U.S.-Romanian trade. Diplomatic observers said that although Romania may be showing willingness to improve relations with the Soviet Union it hasn't changed its basic stance of being independent and developing ties with non-Communist countries.

Brezhnev's arrival today marks his first visit in 10 years. In the interim, both Presidents Nixon and Ford have visited Ceausescu and received warm welcomes. Strained relations between Romania and the Soviet Union dating back to the mid-1950s have improved, at least outwardly, since the summit conference of European Communist parties in East Berlin last June.

Brezhnev at that meeting appeared to accept the right of each Communist party to chart its own course without directives from Moscow. And in a visit last week to the pioneer European rebel against Moscow's domination, President Tito, the Soviet Communist party chief renewed his acceptance of Yugoslavia's independent stand.

Observers believe Brezhnev's trips to Yugoslavia and Romania are part of a campaign to present a unified Communist front when the 35 signers of the 1975 Helsinki Agreement on East-West cooperation meet in Belgrade next summer.

Relations between the Soviet Union and Romania hit their lowest point in 1968. Romania was the only Warsaw Pact country that refused to contribute troops to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, and Ceausescu denounced the Brezhnev Doctrine that Moscow should, take military action against Communist governments whose interpretation of Marxism varied too much from the Soviet line.

Unlike Yugoslavia, Romania is tied to its big northern neighbor as a member of both Comecon, the East European version of the Common Market, and the Warsaw Pact.

But Romania, like Yugoslavia, has made individual trade agreements with Western and nonaligned countries.

Soviets research microwave weapons

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer
A Pentagon report says recent Soviet research suggests that microwaves could potentially be used as an interrogation tool and as a weapon to trigger heart attacks or alter the behavior in diplomats and military officials.

The U.S. analysis of experiments in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe was released to The Associated Press by the Defense Intelligence Agency in response to a request under the Freedom of Information Act. The Pentagon said parts were withheld for national security reasons.

The report concluded Soviet studies have "great potential for development into a system for disorienting or disrupting the behavior patterns of military or diplomatic personnel. It could be used equally as well as an interrogation tool."

No mention was made in the study made by the Army Medical Intelligence and Information Agency of the current microwave bombardment of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, which the State Department has declared "an unhealthful post."

State Department officials claim the microwaves are beamed at the embassy in an attempt to disrupt electronic observation equipment in the building. The Soviets deny beaming any radiation at the embassy.

Microwaves are electromagnetic radiation used to transmit television signals, relay telephone calls and cook food quickly. But overexposure can cause headaches, dizziness, fatigue, irritability, insomnia, agitation, depression, anxiety, forgetfulness and menstrual disorders.

Soviet researchers have found that persons exposed to low-level radiation "experience more neurological, cardiovascular and hemodynamic (blood circulation) disturbances than do their unexposed counterparts," the analysis said.

"Soviet scientists are fully aware of the biological effects of low-level microwave radiation which might have offensive weapons application," according to the report compiled by Ronald L. Adams of the Army surgeon general's office and Dr. R.A. Williams of Battelle Laboratories in Columbus, Ohio.

Formal sentencing is set for Dec. 6.

Dallas marks JFK death

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas was to briefly and silently mark the anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy today — two blocks from where shots shattered the calm of a sunny November day 13 years ago.

Meanwhile, Dallas police gathered records of the killing, subpoenaed by a House committee investigating assassinations.

A short prayer and a moment of silence were scheduled at the Kennedy Memorial, close to the spot where — according to the Warren Commission — Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, shot and killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

"There will be no speeches," Dallas County Democratic Chairman Ron Kessler said of the short service.

The Rev. Zan Holmes, a former Texas legislator, and Dr. Paul A. Stauffer, executive director of the Greater Dallas Community of Churches, were to officiate at the memorial service.

Police spokesman Bob Shaw confirmed Sunday that the department's records had been subpoenaed. He said he presumed the records would include those detailing the killing of Oswald by Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby two days after Kennedy's death.

Dallas Police Chief Don Byrd is required, under the terms of the subpoena, to deliver the records to the committee to verify that they are complete.

Byrd, however, was not expected to be called on to testify because he was not a ranking member of the department when Kennedy was slain.

America eats out often

LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Americans are spending more money at restaurants these days, even though menu prices are rising at a much faster rate than the cost of food at home.

And at least one culinary expert indicates that consumers may not always be getting their money's worth.

The sales forecast comes from the National Restaurant Association; the criticism comes from Franz K. Lemoine, director of a Providence, R.I., school that trains would-be chefs.

The restaurant association predicted recently that sales for the food service industry as a whole — including everything from school cafeterias to fancy restaurants — would total $86.9 billion next year, up 10.6 per cent from 1976.

"Today, for every $100 that an American family uses to purchase food, around $34 is spent on food away from home — one out of every three food dollars," said the association.

president, Patrick L. O'Malley. "By 1980, we feel confident that Americans will be spending two out of five dollars in our industry."

The biggest growth, said O'Malley, will be in fast-food establishments, "a segment (of the industry) which literally did not exist 20 years ago." The fast-food establishments now account for almost one-third of eating place sales and will increase 14.1 per cent next year, O'Malley said.

Menu prices in 1977 will rise an average of 6.5 per cent, a little less than this year's increase, according to the trade association.

Figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index show that the cost of food away from home rose 6.9 per cent from September 1975 to September 1976. The cost of food at home rose only 1 per cent in the same period. (The figures are not seasonally adjusted.)

Is the food worth the price? Not always, says Lemoine, whose School of Culinary Arts at Johnson & Wales College claims to be the second largest culinary training institution in the nation.

Lemoine was critical of restaurants which offer frozen, pre-prepared and mass-marketed entrees at high prices. A filet of sole dish that is essentially the same thing you can buy for a couple dollars in the frozen food department of the grocery store may wind up on a restaurant menu for $8.50, he said.

The customer is as important as the kitchen staff in determining food quality, Lemoine said. "What makes food good is not trained chefs, but a discriminating public."

Lemoine said consumers can generally judge the quality of restaurant food before they taste a bite.

Among the things to look for: a well-lit dining room, no stale odor of food, tables arranged neatly with space between them, a menu that is in good condition without grease spots or ragged edges, an attractive table setting, friendly help and a clean rest room.

When it comes to the food itself, Lemoine said, hot food should be served hot on a hot plate; cold food should be cold. The plate should not be overcrowded; most restaurant food portions are "ridiculous," he said.

Grandview Hopkins board sets meeting

The Grandview Hopkins Independent School District Board of trustees will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday for a six-item agenda.

The board will review the governor's finance proposal to the Legislature, and hear the superintendent reports.

Consideration of renewal of membership in the Panhandle Association of School Boards is also on the agenda.

Recognition of guests, consideration of previous board minutes, and consideration of current bills and invoices completes the agenda.

Hugh Auchincloss dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hugh D. Auchincloss, an investment banker known to the public primarily as the stepfather of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, is dead at the age of 79.

He died Saturday at his home in Georgetown after suffering from emphysema. His funeral has been scheduled for noon Wednesday at Christ Church in Georgetown. Burial will be in Newport, R.I. on Friday.

Auchincloss was born at his family's Newport estate, Hamersmith Farm, in 1897. The family roots extended back to Aaron Burr on his mother's side, and his grandfather, Oliver Gould Jennings, was a co-founder of the Standard Oil Co.

along with John D. Rockefeller. In 1931, he cofounded Auchincloss Parker and Redpath, an investment firm. It was merged in 1970 with Thomson & McKinnon to become Thomson & McKinnon, Auchincloss.

Auchincloss married three times. His first two marriages ended in divorce. His third wife was Janet Lee Bouvier, whom he married in 1942. In 1953, he hosted the wedding of her daughter, Jacqueline, to then-Sen. John F. Kennedy at Hamersmith Farms.

He is survived by his wife; five children; two step children; a sister, and 13 grandchildren.

Hearst fears assault

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. Atty James Browning, whose prosecution resulted in the conviction of Patricia Hearst for bank robbery, says he is frustrated that she is out on bail, but it "doesn't mean she's out forever."

Miss Hearst went free on a total of $1.5 million bail Friday, 33 months after she was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment by the Symbionese Liberation Army. Arguments on the appeal of her conviction are scheduled for next March.

She was sentenced in September to seven years in prison for the robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch here with her SLA comrades 10 weeks after they kidnaped her Feb. 4, 1974. In addition to the $1 million bail to free her while appealing that conviction, the Hearst family posted $500,000 to free her while awaiting trial on unrelated state charges in Southern California.

Browning, whose forces overcame the defense of lawyer F. Lee Bailey, told reporters over the weekend that he has prosecuted other defendants who were free on bail for years and went back to prison upon confirmation of their convictions.

Browning has said publicly he does not know the details of the private security arrangements for Miss Hearst, who is frightened that she might be a target for radicals because of her testimony against SLA members Bill and Emily Harris.

The Harrises were convicted last August 9 in Los Angeles of the robbery of a Los Angeles sporting goods store, and associated charges of assault and kidnaping and sentenced to 11 years to life. Miss Hearst, at her own trial, renounced her underground life and claimed she was at their mercy throughout.

Miss Hearst is scheduled to go on trial in Los Angeles in January on in the same incident and on the same charges for which the Harrises were convicted.

Uranium: 24 carrot stuff for Grants

EDITOR'S NOTE — Ever since the fated day when a curious yellow rock, found in a canyon, turned out to be uranium, the lifestyle of Grants, N.M., has been boom and bust. Now it's boom again — as never before. But like every silver-lined cloud, there's a dark side too.

By ROBERT LOCKE
Associated Press Writer
GRANTS, N.M. (AP) — Once upon a time this town called itself the carrot center of the nation, a modest boast, and its 2-000 people led the typically modest lives of tillers of the soil.

Then one day in 1950 a Navajo shepherd named Paddy Martinez, wandering through nearby Poison Canyon, picked up some peculiar yellow rocks and brought them into town.

Uranium.
Over the next decade the population leaped to 10,274 and Grants' agricultural face underwent profound change. But like many another boom, it ended as quickly as it began. The government, sole buyer of uranium in the early 1960s, found itself overstocked. Almost overnight, nearly a fourth of the town's population moved away and many who didn't, looked back fondly on the old carrot days.

Now, once again, Grants has become one of the boomiest towns in the nation.

The resurgence began about 1967, cautiously at first, when private firms began buying uranium against the day nuclear reactors would produce significant amounts of electricity. Then in 1974 the market price of New Mexico's milled uranium jumped from less than $1 a pound to one recent contract of $41.50 a pound.

"I think it's just great," said Larry Baca. Last year Baca, 19, was pumping gas for $2 an hour. Now he makes $15 an hour in a mine.

Half of all the uranium known to exist in the United States is in a 100-mile strip of west-central New Mexico. Near the center of the strip is Grants.

Once again the Grants population is booming — as of now about 12,000 and climbing — and once again the city is experiencing wrenching growth pains.

Overloaded sewage lines have backed onto U.S. Route 66, Grants' main street. There is almost no housing available to a newcomer and almost none being built. Mobile homes are everywhere, lining the new and unpaved streets that climb the San Mateo Mountains' foothills behind the city. The crime rate has doubled in four years and residential burglaries are up 300 per cent, a statistic police blame on a growing drug problem.

"This is a wide-open town right now and a lot of undesirable are coming in," said Grants Police Detective Bill Johnson.

City Manager Anthony Vasiliak remains confident the boom can be contained.

"Here's what we'll do," he said. "We'll get some state money somewhere along in there. Then the feds will come along and we'll be able to match some of theirs, and we'll build these basic lines — the collector lines and the water lines — some of that."
"Then the subdivider will come along, and he'll pay for every damned thing he does — every water line, every sewer line, streets, curbs, gutters, everything. So they give us a turn-key job of property that's completely developed, with people living on it and paying taxes. Then you have the money to move a little bit farther."

Meanwhile, housing remains a critical problem.

The brakes were applied to construction when Gas Co. of New Mexico placed a moratorium on new natural gas hook-ups in the area. The company said the Federal Power Commission had limited its allocation of interstate gas for New Mexico, the nation's fourth largest producer of natural gas.

The moratorium is only now being lifted after six months.

At nearby San Mateo, population 300, house trailers hide behind centuries-old adobe homes. At the Spanish-Indian village of Bibo, trailers are scattered helter-skelter inside wooden corrals or stand alone on concrete foundations. At the Laguna Indian Pueblo they appear in anachronistic contrast with earth-colored homes, whitewashed missions and wooden outhouses.

Not surprisingly, some who are prospering by the uranium boom also have mixed feelings about its effect on a way of life.

"I didn't feel too bad about the uranium when it was far from here," said Arthur Candelaria. "But now that it's right at our doorstep, I don't like it too good."

Candelaria, 40, said that his family dates back to the original settlers of San Mateo, about 20 miles north of Grants, who built the village on a Spanish land grant.

Like nearly every other adult male in San Mateo he works for a uranium company. As he talked, you could hear the dull, clanking sounds of heavy machinery. Gulf Minerals Corp. is drilling what is supposed to be the world's deepest uranium mine barely a quarter-mile from the village.

"We lived here for 200 years. No problems," Candelaria said. "And now, all of a sudden, there's all kinds of changes. And it'll get worse. It's going to ruin the whole town."

On the other hand, Oracio S. Marquez, who has lived in San Mateo nearly all his 59 years, sees some benefit.

"We used to make a living out of farming and ranching and that's about all we knew," he said. "I used to go outside the town and work part of the year, then come back and stay five or six months at home. Now there's several uranium companies out here and we all work for them."

One group that surely has more money are the natives of the area whose ancestry dates back even further. About half the New Mexico uranium production is on Indian land (with about 25 per cent on private land and the remainder about evenly divided between state and federal land).

Tourists still leave Interstate 40 to photograph the scenic pueblo, but from the highway you can't see the television antennas that sprout from nearly every adobe roof. The Laguna Indian Reservation — Laguna Pueblo (3,500 people) — may be on the verge of middle class.

At Pagueate, one of five out-villages of Laguna Pueblo, an old Indian man stood beside a pinon fence he built 50 years ago and contemplated the gigantic gash in the earth that is the Jackpile mine.

He didn't, he said, object to the mine. Instead he seemed awed by its grand proportions.

He tried to explain its depth and breadth and the huge machines that take great bites of the earth. He repeated the story of Paddy Martinez and wondered "if that old Navajo's still alive somewhere."

He was sorry to hear that the man who discovered the uranium died in 1968.

The old man said there's plenty of money in Pagueate now. His sister had a new room added to her house and a lot of people just bought a bunch of houses to rent and then they moved off to Albuquerque.

"They get a lot of money from that mine, my people do," Roland Johnson, Laguna's governor, said there's very little opposition to the mine, "but there is a concern. The Pueblos revere earth, and for many people it is, in their eyes, criminal for us to be abusing Mother Earth as we are."

Another concern, throughout the New Mexico uranium belt, is even more ominous. It is summed up in a warning sign posted near the door to the Laguna tribal office:

"If you have rocks, sand or mining waste from the Jackpile-Pagueate mine or the arroyos below the mine, please contact the governor's office. This material may be radioactive and hazardous to use as building material."

Much of the opposition to the uranium industry revolves around the issue of radioactivity.

The tailings left by the mines and mills around Grants contain radium, which produces as it decomposes a radioactive gas called radon. Some research has associated radon with cancer.

The state planning officer, Dr. Grace Olivarez, has estimated that by 1990 the tailings piles could contain 280 million tons — "enough to cover Albuquerque to a depth of 22 inches."

And, she added, there are no state or federal regulations governing the disposal of uranium tailings.

The danger of radiation is debated almost endlessly, but not in Grants.

Dallas policeman says, 'tis season to be careful'

DALLAS (AP) — 'Tis the season to station shotgun squads, beef up foot patrols and increase security measures.

The holiday mood of giving is exceeded only by the holiday mood of illegally taking, according to the Dallas Metro Crime Council. Police are bracing for the annual increase in the number of robberies of department, convenience, liquor and grocery stores that accompanies the Thanksgiving through New Year holidays.

"You just never know what will happen," said Lt. Clifford Macasas of the police planning and research division. "All we have to go on are elements of past crimes... which will determine what we'll look for this time around."

Macasas said police try not to "turn stores into shooting galleries," but admitted that stakeout squads armed with shotguns have been effective.

"We've used the shotgun squads in the past and I'm sure it is one of the methods we'll use this year," said Capt. D.H. Milliken of the Crimes Against Persons Division. "There are other plans that we are considering, but I'm not at liberty to talk about those plans."

Officer B.J. Hamby also works in the research and planning department, and he attributes a lot of the holiday problem to more opportunity for the criminals.

"There are more people with money making more transactions and who are leaving more packages in their cars," Hamby said. "There are simply more targets for criminals."

Milliken said store clerks should leave law enforcement to the police.

"Clerks who don't know how to use guns can stand a chance of getting hurt (if they try to use one)," Milliken said.

Police estimate an increase in crime of more than 15 per cent by the middle of December, the height of the season.

Violent crimes are not the only thorn in the Yule thistle, either. Shoplifting has a huge impact on the economy.

Police spokesman Bob Shaw said Christmas pilferage accounts for a big part of the annual $20 million that Dallas merchants lose to shoplifters.

FBI national figures show that last year, for each shoplifter caught, 35 got away with an average booty of $35.
