

High court to review Nixon tape bid

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to hear arguments in former President Richard M. Nixon's bid for control of White House tape recordings and other records of his administration.

The justices agreed to review a decision of a three-judge federal court in Washington upholding the Presidential Materials and Recordings Preservation Act passed by Congress in 1974. The act gives the General Services Administration control over an estimated 42 million pages of documents, including about 200,000 prepared or reviewed by Nixon, and 888 five-inch reels of tape.

The material is available to Nixon and to officers of the executive branch of government, subject to GSA regulations. Nixon contends that GSA control of the material violates his rights to privacy. The act calls for the GSA to prepare regulations to govern public access to the material and submit them to Congress for approval. The first set of proposed regulations was rejected by the Senate last year, a second set was withdrawn by the GSA and a third was vetoed by the House on Sept. 14.

On Oct. 26, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington ruled that the White House tapes played during the Watergate cover-up trial of Nixon's top advisers could be released to the public.

"By definition, the tapes played at the trial are no longer confidential," Chief Judge David L. Bazelon said in a two-page opinion rejecting arguments by Nixon's attorneys that the tapes would invade the former President's privacy and prove embarrassing to him.

"The tapes at issue are not recordings of bedroom or other intimate conversations, and the embarrassment Mr. Nixon fears is not republishing of highly personal matters," Bazelon said.

The court, in ordering the U.S. District Court to devise a procedure for making the tapes public, said the recordings are "conversations between business associates admitted into evidence as proof of criminal misconduct."

If the tapes are eventually released, the public will learn the tone and inflections of voice used in conversations of Nixon and Watergate figures John D. Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman, John Dean and others. The public will find out what "expletives" were deleted from written transcripts of the recordings.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica had ruled that the tapes should be withheld from public distribution temporarily, and it was his decision which was appealed to the Circuit Court by several broadcast news organizations.

On Dec. 20, 1974 — one day after President Ford signed the Presidential Materials and Recordings Preservation Act — Nixon filed suit in federal court on Dec. 20, 1974 to have the law declared unconstitutional as an invasion of his privacy and of the powers of the presidency.

The three-judge court found it "doubtful" that a former president was entitled to claim the limited executive privilege which a president has to protect his confidential dealings with his advisers.

In any event, it found that the act would infringe only slightly on confidentiality, because government archivists would screen the material before it could be made public.

As to the privacy claim, the court said this could not be tested until after the regulations have been adopted.

Blizzard whips survivors

By ISMAIL KOVACI
Associated Press Writer

CALDIRAN, Turkey (AP) — The government stepped up efforts to evacuate homeless survivors of the earthquake in eastern Turkey after a blizzard whipped the devastated area with heavy snow and icy winds.

"We are afraid that some mountain villagers who survived the quake may now freeze to death," the deputy governor of the province, Muzafer Yuce, said Sunday.

"We consider this snowstorm, under the circumstances, as great a calamity as the quake itself," said Gov. Ahmet Tosun. The governor ordered all men between the ages of 18 and 65 in Van, the provincial capital, to join rescue squads. He also ordered all private vehicles confiscated to bring in survivors from areas still isolated by the quake Wednesday.

The government rushed in snow moving equipment to clear roads.

Most residents of the area are farmers, and many were worried about their animals. "Ten sheep are already frozen," said one. "Praise be to God if he can save our animals.

They are our only riches." "If the government cannot take care of this problem, then let us cross the border (into Iran)," one told the governor.

No casualty figures have been announced since Saturday, when more than 3,800 bodies had been recovered. Authorities feared the death toll would exceed 5,000.

U.S. Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson interrupted a visit to Yugoslavia Sunday to fly to Ankara, the Turkish capital, to discuss more American disaster aid. The U.S. Embassy said Washington has already sent $3 million in aid. Villages closest to the border appeared to have suffered the most damage. Rescue workers reached some that had been cut off since the disaster, but the governor said others were still isolated because of destruction to the roads and because of the mountainous terrain.

Only 15 tents had arrived at the village of Altiyol for 330 survivors out of a population of 600. Food was also scarce. Residents said helicopters dropped some supplies Sunday morning, but not enough to feed them all.

Court to study mandatory death

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, which ruled last summer that state laws making the death penalty mandatory are unconstitutional, said today it will consider whether mandatory death sentences can be applied to murderers of police officers.

The court, limiting its consideration of a Louisiana case it already had agreed to review, appeared to be reopening the question of mandatory death sentences for specific crimes.

While upholding the death penalty laws of Georgia, Florida and Texas last July, the court struck down the capital punishment laws in North Carolina and Louisiana because they did not leave enough discretion to juries and judges.

Both North Carolina and Louisiana made the death penalty mandatory for certain crimes.

The justices said in their July ruling that mandatory sentences are unconstitutional.

In its order today, however, the court limited consideration in one death penalty case to "whether the imposition and carrying out of the sentence of death for the crime of first-degree murder of a police officer" in Louisiana is constitutional.

The case involves Harry Roberts, sentenced to death in 1974 for the murder of a New Orleans policeman.

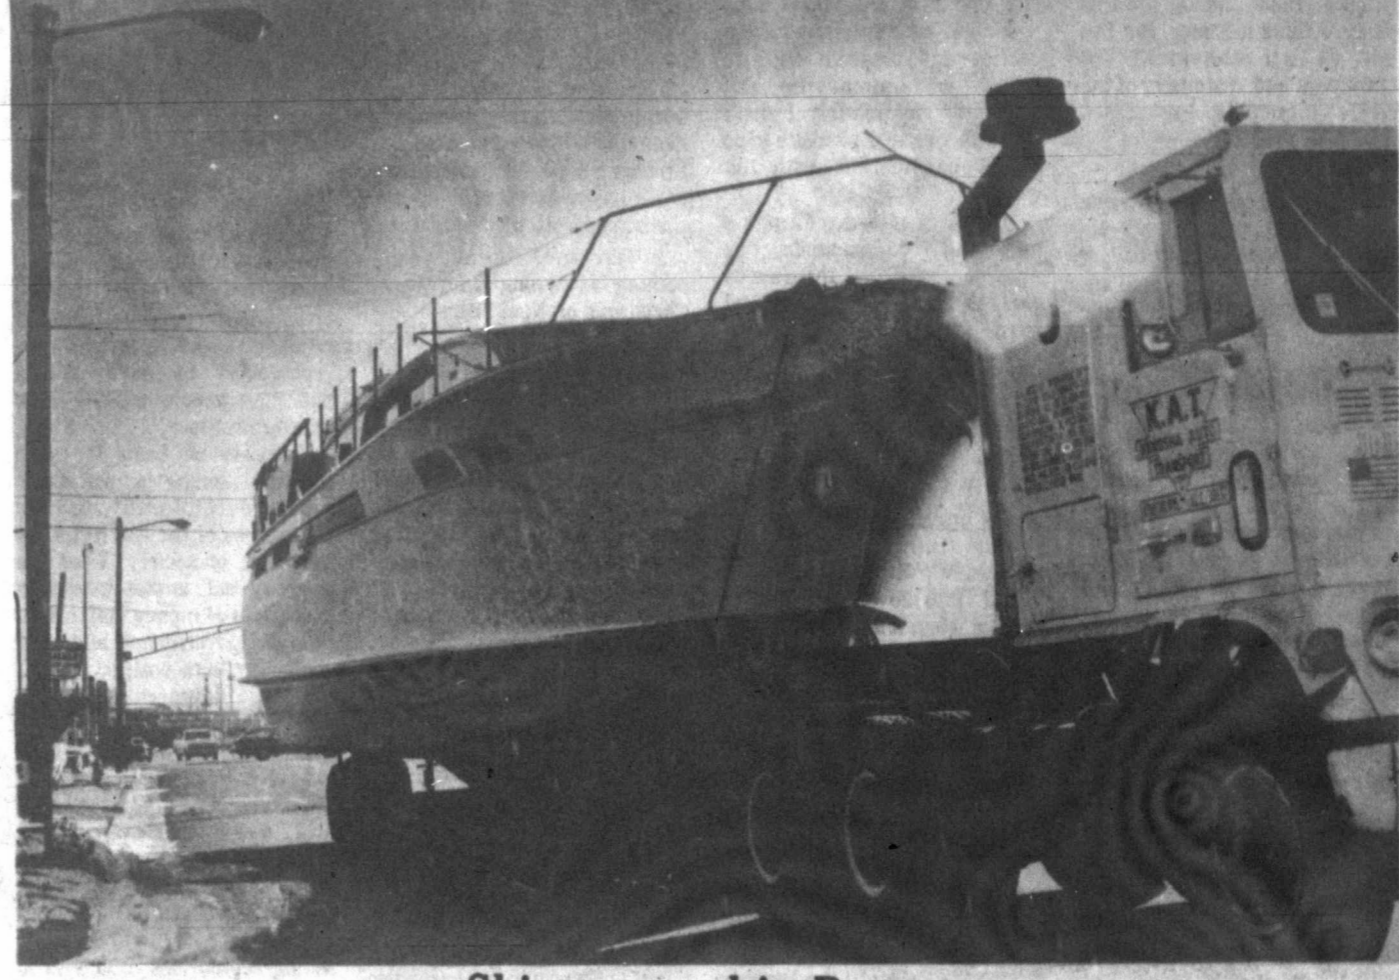

Roberts' appeal to the court had not centered on the constitutionality of the mandatory death sentence but instead focused on tactics used by the prosecuting attorney.

In its opinion striking down North Carolina's death penalty law, the court said in a footnote that the case did not involve a mandatory death penalty statute "limited to an extremely narrow category of homicide such as murder by a prisoner serving a life sentence."

The footnote added: "We thus express no opinion regarding the constitutionality of such a statute."

Arguments in last summer's death penalty cases revealed that some 20 states provided for mandatory death sentences for specific crimes.

Ship aground in Pampa

An ocean-going craft being transported from Seabrook, Tex., to Seattle, Wash., experienced a problem this morning — it would not fit through Pampa. The 40,000-pound craft measured more than 14 feet tall and the driver was unable to clear the railroad underpasses through Pampa. The Kenosha Transport, Boat Division, driver explained because of the unusual size of the boat, special state permits were required which limited travel to daylight only and prohibited movement of the load on interstate highways. The driver rerouted the 47-foot craft west of town to the Borger highway enroute to Dumas. The special built trailer had a highway clearance of only two inches, again presenting a problem for the driver when crossing some railroad tracks. (Pampa News photo)

New owner opens Rio Grande bank

By MILLER H. BONNER Jr.
Associated Press Writer

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — Fredrick Erck, a business partner of former Texas Gov. John Connally and the new owner of the newly-formed First National Bank of Rio Grande City, introduced himself this morning to a crowd of about 65 chilled, anxious persons awaiting the reopening of Starr County's only bank.

"My name is Fred Erck and the bank will be open in just a few moments for business as usual," he said outside the bank in 35-degree weather.

The bank opened at 9:12 a.m. after two armed guards escorted bank officials and nine money bags into the same building which had housed the defunct First State Bank & Trust Co.

Clinton Manges, the Freer-based businessman, who owned the defunct bank, had withdrawn from Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) Nov. 17.

Five days later the Texas Banking Commission ordered the bank closed for "imminent insolvency."

Manges charged the FDIC with "trying to destroy me." He also said Connally had used his political influence to harass Manges at both his Rio Grande City bank and the Groos National Bank of San Antonio. Shortly before the new bank opened, workers taped a paper banner covering the words "First State Bank & Trust Co." atop the ornate clock outside the building. The banner read "First National Bank of Rio Grande City, Tex." and in larger, blue letters, "Member F.D.I.C."

Erck, a 36-year-old banker from Alice, and Connally purchased controlling interest in the First City National Bank of Floresville in 1973.

"I don't know where those comments concerning Connally came from," said Erck when asked about Manges' claims. "Gov. Connally and I are personal friends but our only business association is at our bank in Floresville."

"I have not talked with Gov. Connally in a month or so. He has nothing to do with our other banks."

"I have absolutely no connections whatsoever with Clinton Manges," said Erck. "I own the bank in Alice. I'm a major stockholder in five other banks in the state but I am not connected with Clinton Manges in any way."

Erck said he owned large blocks of stock in the Central Park Bank and Windsor Park Bank, both of San Antonio; the Farmers State Bank of Orange Grove; the First City National Bank of Floresville and the Arlington National Bank in Arlington.

The FDIC said the First National Bank of Rio Grande City is assuming the closed bank's $12,158,000 of deposits and also agreed to pay a purchase premium of $900,000. The assuming bank also has purchased at market value the failed bank's securities portfolio of approximately $1,237,000 and other assets, it said.

Erck outbid five other banking groups for the Rio Grande City bank, said the FDIC, which will advance some $9.6 million to facilitate the assumption of the bank's deposit liabilities.

The new bank will have initial capital of $1.5 million.

Holiday deaths hit 54 in Texas

By The Associated Press

At least 54 persons died violently in Texas over the long Thanksgiving holiday that was plagued by wintry weather and a rash of gunfire.

The Associated Press tally, which ran from 6 p.m. Wednesday through midnight Sunday, showed that 34 of the deaths came on the state's roads and highways and 12 came in shootings. There were four stabbings and four died in other violence.

Some of the latest deaths:

Edward Grumbeck, 18, and James Hunsuck, 19, were found shot to death Sunday night in their San Antonio apartment.

Kevin Johnson, 20, an airman stationed at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, was struck and killed by a car near the base.

One of the shooting deaths was Patrolman Robert Wood, 27, who was killed in the line of duty early Sunday, the second Dallas officer slain in the last two weeks.

A head-on collision three miles south of Jasper on U.S. 96 resulted in the death of James R. Jackson, 22, of Port Arthur. The department of Public Safety said 11 persons in a church van were injured in the wreck.

The manager of a drive-in restaurant in Dallas was shot to death early Sunday by a large caliber gun that had been placed at the back of his head. Donald Justice, 27, was alone at the store doing some cleanup work at about 2:15 a.m. when he was shot, police said.

Henry Sanders, about 40, died in Victoria when his small frame home burned down.

Police in Austin said 50-year-old Alice Raymond allegedly stabbed her husband, Earl, 52, to death Saturday, then stabbed herself to death.

A Friday car crash near Elgin in Central Texas left five dead. Authorities identified them as Taim Lele, about 26, a Cambodian who lived at Elgin; Sim Keo, another Cambodian, about 24, who lived in Austin; and three other Austin residents — Elizabeth Lucy Hernandez, 27, Janie Marie Roberts, 15, and Elena Roberts, 23.

What's in a signature?

One question which Jimmy Carter will have to solve by the time he takes over Jan. 20 as president of the United States is how he will sign his name. He wants to use "Jimmy" when he signs bills but he legally may have to use "James E." The formal version of the name was chosen for the biography appearing in the 1977 edition of the World Book Encyclopedia.

Dole warns battle could damage party

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A retiring Republican governor today agreed with Sen. Bob Dole's warning against a damaging battle between moderates and conservatives over a new national chairman.

"It is clear that a political party is not an organization of people on the basis of rigidly determined social and economic philosophy," Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. of West Virginia told the Republican Governors Association.

"As a party we must be big enough and comprehensive enough to attract many diverse and varied positions within the body politic."

Moore also said that governors are entitled to a large role in national Republican councils — "not as a courtesy but as a necessity."

The West Virginia's remarks opened a two-day association conference that drew nine GOP governors, three governors-elect and eight former Republican governors. Republicans lost a net of one governorship in the November election and will have 12 of the 50 governors next year.

One state that is changing party hands is West Virginia, where Moore, who did not run for re-election, will be succeeded by Democrat John D. Rockefeller IV.

Dole, the defeated Republican vice presidential candidate, said Sunday the party was "weakened by the election" and needs a leader with the skills to broaden the party's base.

Dole, interviewed on ABC News' "Issues and Answers" show, said he feels that the GOP is "basically a conservative party."

But he said, "I don't feel we can exclude those who may have more liberal views and certainly we can't exclude Hispanics or ethnic groups or black Americans."

The Kansas senator repeated his belief that the party erred during the presidential race in making no strong effort to attract black voters, who voted overwhelmingly for Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Dole said that President Ford might serve as head of a coordinating council to unite all party factions and "work with the Republican National Committee and come up with some strong and outstanding leader in the technical field to build our party."

Dole, whose Senate term runs through 1980, said he himself does not expect to become involved in the selection of a successor to Mary Louise Smith, who has resigned as chairman. But Dole mentioned several possible candidates for the job.

The forecast calls for slight increases in temperatures with the low tonight expected in the teens with the high tomorrow in the low 40s. There will be increasing clouds tonight with partly cloudy skies tomorrow. Winds are expected to diminish tonight.

"One thorn of experience is worth a whole wilderness of warning."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

and against 'em

I'm all for city employees having their annual awards party. I think it is nice. But I'm not at all convinced the taxpayers and customers of the city's monopoly businesses should be footing the bill for the fete.

The $1,300 it is expected to cost may not seem like a very big portion of the total city budget which runs past $3 million, but put it in a kettle along with some other trimmings and we could wind up with some pretty substantial soup.

For just one example of other trimmings we might look at paring some travel expenses. Maybe the six city officials — mayor, four commissioners and city attorney — could pay their wives' expenses when the spouses go along to a couple of annual meetings. Currently the city will pick up the tab if the ladies want to go along.

We might wind up with as much as another couple of grand to throw in the pot.

Please now, before you yell and call me names, remember that I'm not saying there should be no city awards party and I'm not saying that city officials shouldn't take their wives along with them on city-sponsored trips (business for him, pleasure for her).

I like parties and I like pleasure trips. But I don't think it is right for me to pay for the parties and pleasure trips of others without having any choice in the matter. I don't think parties and pleasure trips should be financed with tax money.

Mack Wofford, Pampa's apparently conscientious city manager, said that the awards party is "an informal thing" and said there is "no lavish entertainment, usually a local speaker."

He said that service awards are given for 5 years, 10 years, 15 years, etc., and the cost runs about 10 bucks each for the lapel pins or bracelet charms.

"The thing is kept to a minimum," Wofford said.

And I believe him. But I believe when it comes to public funds, the minimum is far too much.

For gosh sakes, throw a party for the city employees. Yes, but finance it some other way. Coffee fund money could do it. vending machine profits maybe. I don't know. But I do know it isn't right that we are taxed to pay for it.

Maybe the Chamber of Commerce could pitch in part of the expense. Maybe the Pampa Industrial Foundation could help. But such things, to have any meaning, should be paid for voluntarily and not funded with money forcibly taken from taxpayers.

I can hear, as I write this, city employees saying something like, "Well Thom Marshall is a Scrooge. What is wrong with a little awards party in the Christmas season?"

So let me repeat again, nothing is wrong with it at Christmas or New Years or the Fourth of July or Ground Hog's Day. Just as long as it is paid for with private, not public, funds.

Don't try to convince me the party and the pleasure trips are defensible as legitimate tax money expenses. Try, instead, to convince one of Pampa's senior citizens who exists on a fixed income. Maybe he or she has had to skip a few meals to pay the increased water, sewer, garbage collection bills. Sounds melodramatic, perhaps, but there are some who have.

Maybe the sacrifice isn't so great. Maybe the last time city rates went up it simply meant giving up a weekend pleasure trip or a party once a year, for someone on a fixed income.

Here's the question: Who should get the trip or the party, the fellow who earned the money, or employees of the city that took the money away from him?

"Baby's first step!"

Zoning Harms Both the Poor and the Rich

Of the hundreds of zoning cases filed annually, the vast majority involve wealthy property owners and developers and expensive land. As a result, students and other who follow these cases frequently come to the conclusion that zoning controversies are largely between ordinary persons represented by municipalities and rich people seeking ever greater profits.

There is no basis for such thinking. Zoning is, just as or more detrimental to the aspirations of the less fortunate members of society. What it takes a great deal of money and time to fight the government, and most people are in no position to do it. Lawyers, planners and other, experts are required to file and maintain these suits, which may extend over a lengthy period. Cities and towns have the funds and personnel to prolong litigation, and this gives them an enormous advantage over most private persons.

Only the courts can overturn zoning regulations. And with so few persons' able to attempt litigation, there is little to prevent cities from passing laws or engaging in practices that judges would readily strike down if given the opportunity.

Consider, as an illustration, the testimony in 1967 of a prominent Texas attorney before the Douglas Commission on Urban Affairs, appointed by President Johnson. He recounted an interesting experience. In spite of the then prevailing Texas case law that prohibited it, a certain city council sought to pass an ordinance that would permit only the construction of brick dwellings in that community.

The council members asked the attorney what the effect would be if the ordinance were held to be void. Replied the attorney: "It is the same as if we didn't have an ordinance." They countered, "Well, we can be no worse off," and proceeded to adopt the regulation. It was never challenged in the fifteen years prior to the time that the attorney testified. By then, incidentally, Texas law had become favorable to that kind of regulation.

Because of the expense and time involved, along with the ill will that may be incurred in a community in which they operate, even the largest builders may find litigation against zoning laws to be poor business practice. Further, by the time they are able to prevail in court, the market for what they originally sought to build may have disappeared.

This situation allows those very ordinary mortals who are elected to local public office wide latitude to adopt and enforce a large variety of regulations. The checks and balances that are supposed to be a bulwark of the American political system are noticeably absent in this area.

There are of course numerous instances when ordinary people have fought the authorities in court, and often these cases reveal the enormity of their problem. For example, about seven or eight years ago the Rev. Hymie Rayford of the African Methodist Episcopal Church (A.M.E.) sought permission from the Chicago zoning board of appeals to build a church and day-care center on an older, commercial, heavily traveled street in that city. A.M.E. is not a well financed church in Chicago and has a largely black membership.

The Reverend was the only witness to appear before the board and testified that both church and center were needed in the area. The board disagreed and said there were many churches in the area and presumably largely for this reason, denied the application. The board was upheld by the appellate court Rayford was not represented by an attorney before this court, and unlike the city of Chicago, filed no written brief.

It is difficult to comprehend how anyone could possibly have been damaged if the church and center were built. The site was clearly not in the midst of some quiet, secluded residential area that could be disturbed by church activities. No one can know with certainty how great the demand for the services of that particular church in that area would be, particularly since it may have attracted worshippers from other parts of the city.

Rayford, who had an was going to devote great efforts toward this end, was in a much better position to evaluate probable success of the church than were the members of the board and court and should have been allowed the opportunity to succeed or fail.

Can you imagine what the result would have been if a Catholic, Jewish or prominent Protestant group sought similar permission? Each would have been able to obtain the services of it least one or more lawyers and assorted experts, and many volunteers would have applied all sorts of pressures on the board and courts to allow the church to be built. The media would have been bombarded with press releases. Both the authorities and the courts would have found it extremely difficult to withstand this kind of heat.

Not all people are equal before the laws of zoning.

NATION'S PRESS

The scheming IRS

Orange County (Calif.) Register

The Internal Revenue Service has an investigation under way called Project Haven.

The idea is to discover some illegality by which the U.S. Department of Justice can shut down the use of offshore trusts for avoidance of income tax.

Part of the investigation centered around Castle Bank & Trust Ltd., a popular dollar refuge in Nassau.

While the inquiry was in process, a certain officer of the bank traveled to the United States. In his possession was a briefcase containing enlightening documents. The immediate problem was to separate the executive from his briefcase. An IRS informant struck up an acquaintance with the traveler. He managed to convince him that a banker's life ought not be completely immersed in arithmetic surely there was room somewhere for some fun and games. The consequence was that the executive laid aside his portable files temporarily to accept a brief "date" arranged for him by the informant. In the ensuing interlude contents of the brief case were copied for the IRS.

At some point obtained an indictment against a Chicago lawyer named Burton W. Kanter. The prosecution's objective was to show that Kanter's law firm and another law firm in Miami were the principals behind Castle Bank.

If proved, this would mean that the accounts of Castle Bank aren't really tax shelters because they are not foreign controlled, but rather are secretly and actually controlled by U.S. residents. The briefcase data, including account holders' names, were designed to establish that point.

The manner by which the IRS came into possession of the names became a topic of high-level consideration. Director of Internal Revenue Don Alexander opined that the informant's activities "involved a violation of Bahamian law." ITRS intelligence chief Thomas Clancy voiced an advisory from an IRS memorandum that the agency's informant could be prosecuted for violation of Florida laws prohibiting prosecution.

The high-level topic of conversation, conducted behind closed doors became public information when defendant Kanter filed a routine request, under the Freedom of Information Act. He opened the envelope and behold! the record of the conversation on the clandestine IRS-procedure dropped out.

As you may well imagine, the IRS fury hit the shingles. Release of the document that revealed scheming in high places was blamed on low-level employees. The office of the agency's chief counsel prepared an analysis of the damage. It concluded that release of the documents endangers success of the prosecution of the fraud case against Kanter and associates.

Kanter, of course, is happy with the windfall, but claims he ought not to be prosecuted in the first place. At most, he figures, the case is a civil matter turning on whether the Bahamas shelter is legal or illegal; that is, whether he or the IRS puts the correct interpretation on the technical rules governing offshore trusts. The principle is that tax avoidance is not illegal inasmuch as the IRS itself makes rules as to how tax avoidance can be achieved.

The irony is this: a private group that undertakes to conform to highly technical rules and still avoids taxes is prosecuted as criminal. On the other hand, the activities of a government group that indulges in blatant misconduct (procuring) would have — except for a bureaucratic blunder — been kept even from public knowledge.

Will the real criminal please stand?

Jimmy Carter's responsibility

As the newly elected President of the United States, Jimmy Carter must assume a role which far transcends mere leadership of 220 million Americans. Upon his shoulders will soon fall the awesome responsibility as leader and defender of a vast socio-political institution known as Western Civilization, or more simply, the West. Included under this umbrella designation is a shrinking number of nations whose general value system is predicated on the philosophy that government is the servant and not the master of the governed, and that the highest purpose of man's sojourn on earth is not simply short term material satisfaction but an eternal relationship with his Creator.

This value system is now mortally threatened. Arrayed against it in tireless opposition is an utterly antithetical value system known as Marxism - Leninism. Here the people are nothing and the state is everything. In geopolitical terms we refer to this system as the East. Hence, the "East-West struggle." It is the climactic battle of all history up to now, for its outcome will determine the future organization of the entire world.

The greatness of the Russian prophet - exile Alexander Solzhenitsyn is that he sees and expounds this reality more clearly, perhaps, than any other man now living. For him the loss of any country to Marxism - Leninism is a disaster for freedom everywhere. He sees beneath the facade of optimistic rhetoric to which the American public is subjected, and perceives instead the awful truth that the West is inexorably losing the struggle for the world. He warns, again and again, that the bell that tolls for Vietnam, or Cambodia, or Angola, tolls for the people of the United States as well. His is a voice, virtually crying in the wilderness, which beseeches us to come to our senses before it is too late.

Jimmy Carter has promised to meet with this man. We pray that he listens, and listens well. Can the Georgia-peanut farmer rise to the challenge which history and his own ambition have conspired to present to him? Will he make the effort to master the subtle and insidious nature of communist doctrine so that he can better understand what can realistically be accomplished in negotiations with those who embrace this ideology? Will he grasp the fact that these people who respect only strength and a determined will?

Our future President is as yet untried in the crucible of foreign policy. Perhaps this is to the good. He can start a fresh. But he must well understand that among his global antagonists, he will find precious little of the spirit of peace and brotherhood.

Dip your fingers in water before rolling meatballs to prevent stickiness.

Welcome to the fray

Everybody and his uncle is forming citizens' lobbies these days, it seems.

One of the latest is New Directions, which apparently hopes to do in the field of foreign affairs what Common Cause has done in the domestic sphere.

Headed by former Delaware Gov. Russell W. Peterson, the group declares its intention is to take "hard political" action in such matters as the global economy, political stability and human rights. It is looking for an initial membership of 100,000 supporters at $25 a head.

Another birth announcement crossing our desk is that of Citizen's Choice, a new citizen-action group founded by business leaders active in the Chamber of Commerce of the United States with the goal of "recapturing Washington for hard-working taxpayers."

Citizen's Choice intends to represent the million of Americans who resent high taxes, inflation and increasing government interference in their lives — and also high dues, since it only costs $15 to join this group.

According to Jay Van Andel, chairman of the board of Amway Corp. and of Citizen's Choice, the organization will commit its initial efforts to such matters as sunset laws to suspend government agencies that cannot justify their existence, ending abuses in the food stamp program, requiring new federal programs to be tested before they are imposed nationally and supporting laws banning public employe strikes at any level of government.

We wish both New Directions and Citizen's Choice good luck as they join the Washington fray.

Rosalind Russell, 63, dies Sunday of cancer

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollywood's greatest names mourned the death of Rosalind Russell, who became a star by playing career women and stylish eccentrics.

"She was a great humanitarian and a wonderful, warm human being," said actor Cary Grant after Miss Russell died Sunday at 63 of cancer complicated by arthritis.

Lucille Ball said, "Roz showed so much courage here that God must have needed her fighting spirit somewhere else."

She had seemed as vigorous as ever at a dinner party at her home recently, although her guests considered it a farewell appearance. Two months ago, Miss Russell underwent surgery in an unsuccessful effort to stem her cancer, then returned home to await death.

"Rosalind came to terms with her life and she gave of herself in every way. She met death with the same gallantry," said George Cukor, who directed her in "The Women" in 1939.

Dr. Martin J. Cline said the actress suffered from rheumatoid arthritis and cancer for more than 15 years. She underwent a radical mastectomy 15 years ago, he said, and suffered no more from the cancer until a year ago.

"It didn't bother her particularly and didn't bother her career. I don't think she believed she had it any more," Cline said.

A year ago, she began receiving chemotherapy and responded well to treatment for about eight months, he said. Only in the last two or three months did the battle become more difficult and painful.

When she died at the Beverly Hills home, her husband of 35 years, producer Frederick Brisson, was by her side, along with their son, Lance, and his wife, Patricia.

Although no sexpot, Miss Russell added dash and glamor to her roles. She played dramatic roles in such 1930s films as "China Seas," "Under Two Flags," "Night Must Fall" and "The Citadel."

During the 1940s, she played a series of career women, helping them demonstrate that their sex could succeed in business while they remained feminine.

She remained glamorous in her middle years, scoring as the bohemian guardian of a young boy in 1956's "Auntie Mame," one of four films for which she won Academy Award nominations.

Miss Russell was born in Waterbury, Conn., the fourth of seven children of a prosperous Yankee lawyer.

She startled her family by leaving college as a sophomore to enroll at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York. After a few stage roles, she was signed to a Universal Studio contract. The film company was making mostly westerns and didn't know how to cast her.

Miss Russell talked her way out of the contract and signed with Metro Goldwyn Mayer, becoming a rival to Myrna Loy.

Besides "Auntie Mame," she won Oscar nominations for "My Sister Eileen" in 1942, "Sister Kenny" in 1946 and "Mourning Becomes Electra" in 1947.

She never won the best-actress award, but in 1973 she received the Academy's Jean Hershey Humanitarian Award.

Plains, Ga., land values boom, but some escape

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Time was when a 125-by-420-foot plot of land here fetched about $5,000, a real estate agent says. But a Toronto man recently paid $22,500 for one that happens to face Jimmy Carter's home.

"He just wants to be across the street from a president," said agent James Dalton.

Land values here have soared since Carter was elected president and Plains became celebrated. Several residents are selling out — some to take advantage of the boom, others to avoid it.

Dalton said the house where Carter's father was born was recently sold — for $58,000 — because its owners had come to change in Plains is driving people out. But he also said he might leave "if the price is right."

He said he'd like to make a good deal on his house in Plains, then retire and move back to the north Georgia mountains where he was raised.

The peanut farm is owned by W.O. Cochran. According to an associate, he wants to move because "he doesn't like the changes going on. Plains is like an Air Force base or a traveling circus."

The associate said Cochran hates publicity and reporters, and he moved to Plains from Palmetto a few years ago to find a quieter place.

Real estate activity has reached new heights in Plains. At least five houses and a 1,000-acre peanut farm are on the market. Some agents are working on private deals. Still others are assembling parcels of land for a motel and a Carter library. Some deals are brewing without the help of agents, with prospective purchasers going directly to landowners.

Arlington prof sues CIA for $25 million

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A University of Texas at Arlington professor has filed a $25 million damage claim against the Central Intelligence Agency for allegedly using the name of a Massachusetts aircraft company he headed, the Dallas Times Herald says.

The Times Herald reported in Sunday editions that the professor, Dr. Lynn Bollinger, says CIA agents illegally posed as representatives of Helio Aircraft Co. in the early 1970s.

Bollinger was chief executive officer of Helio's parent firm, General Aircraft Co., from 1964 to 1971.

The claim says the firm was negotiating with Congo authorities for an aircraft sale when that country's leaders discovered CIA operatives posing as company officials. The claim, filed with the CIA, has no legal status.

"Such cover was used by these agents to carry on illegal and immoral activities which resulted in the deaths of government officials in the Congo and the fall of the existing government," the claim said.

"These activities came to the attention of the Congo government and immediately resulted in the expulsion of Helio and its legitimate employees from any further operations."

The newspaper said the CIA declined to comment on the charges.

Bollinger resigned from the Bedford, Mass., firm, but is still a stockholder.

"There are still some Third World countries that believe we are part of the U.S. government," Bollinger said. "Hopefully, this claim will stop some of that."

Bollinger said he doubts top CIA officials had knowledge of the matter. "I don't think they knew what was going on in their own department. I think they were honest when they said they had no knowledge of it."

'Nation' gets editor

NEW YORK (AP) — A former editor of the Village Voice, a New York weekly newspaper, has reached an agreement to buy The Nation, and will act as editor of the 111-year-old liberal weekly magazine.

Thomas B. Morgan will become editor and publisher Jan.

1, said current publisher and owner James J. Storrow Jr.

Storrow said Sunday that the magazine, which he bought 11 years ago and which has a circulation of under 25,000, is losing more than $100,000 a year in operating expenses. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Australian dollar down

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Australia's conservative government devalued the Australian dollar 17.5 per cent Sunday, and today the New Zealand government made a companion revaluation of its dollar. The change in the New Zealand rate was much less, since that dollar was devalued 15 per cent on Aug. 10, 1975.

The U.S. dollar value of the Australian dollar was reduced from $1.2364 to $1.0174. Foreign exchange dealings were suspended in New Zealand until Tuesday, but Prime Minister Robert D. Muldoon said he expected his dollar to open at about 91 U.S. cents, down 6 cents, and at 89 Australian cents, up 10 cents.

Prime Minister Malcolm Fra-ser's Australian government said it was forced to devalue the currency because of rising costs, high wages and the loss of one-third of Australia's foreign reserves in the past year. Treasurer Phillip Lynch said the remaining $2 billion in reserves would pay for less than three months of imports.

The Australian move was welcomed by mining and farming interests and condemned by labor unions and the opposition Labor party. The president of the Associated Chamber of Manufacturers, Max Dillon, warned of the danger of inflation and said the devaluation "is of benefit to the primary and mining industries but not to the general community."

Amy to attend public school

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — When Amy Carter enrolls in January as a fourth grader at the Thaddeus Stevens School in Washington, D.C., it will mark the first time in seven decades that a president's child has attended public school.

President-elect Jimmy Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, announced Sunday that 9-year-old Amy will attend Stevens, a 108-year-old school with a predominantly minority enrollment about six blocks from the White House.

The last president to send a child to public school was Theodore Roosevelt. He sent his son, Quentin, to Washington's since-demolished Force School from 1904 to 1908.

Stevens — named after a fiery abolitionist congressman who proposed the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson in 1868 — is a three-story brick structure in a section of town that in recent years has been revitalized by the construction of new office buildings.

Although public, it is no ordinary school. She is currently in Plains Elementary School, which is also predominantly black.

Carter spokesman Jody Powell read a statement Sunday by Mrs. Carter, who was suffering from an eye inflammation caused by an allergy.

Mrs. Carter, who toured the school last Monday, said she “was very pleased with the quality of the school, the attitude of the staff and the friendliness of the students. . . . No special security problems have been found to exist. Amy is very pleased and excited about the prospects of attending school at Stevens.”

In Washington, Mrs. Meeder said Sunday: “It’s a very exciting and a once-in-a-lifetime experience. But I hope the publicity dies down soon, so our students don’t get disrupted.” Mrs. Meeder, who has taught at Stevens for 10 years, said Amy “will be tested soon after she arrives to see where she fits in the class.”

Cities want cash

DENVER (AP) — The growing ranks of black public officials saluted civil rights leader Roy Wilkins in a thunderous ceremony marked by a promise of urban aid from Jimmy Carter and Wilkins' quiet appraisal of the president-elect. “He means good.”

Wilkins, who steps down next year as director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, received the Liberty Award on Sunday from the National Black Caucus of Local Elected Officials. He was lauded by black urban leaders, as well as Carter and by Wilkins' successor at the NAACP, Benjamin Hooks.

“Let us not get so concerned with our Brooks Brothers suits and IBM briefcases that we forget there are people out there who need our help.”

Carter told the caucus he is “deeply concerned” about urban America, and he pledged to implement a “broad and comprehensive urban policy” to aid the nation's troubled cities.

Speaking by telephone from Plains, Ga., Carter offered no specific proposals in his address. But he said blacks would be “direct beneficiaries of our concern and our action,” promising, “I will not be remote from your own objectives and goals.”

Wilkins said he is often asked what black people can expect from the Carter administration, and he said, “The answer is simple: We expect him to keep his promises to give leadership and substance to the principles of equality and justice.”

“The cutting edge of the civil rights movement today is politics,” said caucus president Maynard Jackson, mayor of Atlanta.

In 1969, the first year that figures were compiled, 1,185 blacks held elected office at all levels of government. In 1976, the number is 3,979. Of these, 143 are mayors, many attending the National League of Cities annual meeting under way here this week.

Still, as Hooks pointed out, the struggle for equality that marked Wilkins' career at the NAACP remains to be won.

“Tonight we face the challenge of limited success. Tonight in America there is too little for too many,” said

Cadet charged in family deaths

MONTVALE, N.J. (AP) — A freshman cadet at a military academy, described as “a good kid” by his minister, has been charged with killing his parents and two younger brothers while he was home for Thanksgiving.

Police said young De La Roche told them he found the bodies of his parents and brothers when he returned at 4 a.m. Sunday from visiting a friend.

Woodcock said the youth told them he didn't know who had done it.

Denson said the father and mother each had been shot twice in the head. Eric, found in his bed, was shot three times, then bludgeoned in the head.

Woodcock said the father, a Ford Motor Co. employee in Newark, N.J., was shot in his bed, then carried to Ronald's bed. Ronald's body was in a metal cabinet in the attic. Mrs. De La Roche was found on her bed.

Woodcock said investigators found the murder weapon, a .22-caliber handgun. “We have evidence that will link him (young De La Roche) to the murders, but I will not discuss a motive,” he said.

Like the minister, friends of the youth were mystified by the accusation.

One friend, 17-year-old Vince Trojan, who had spent part of Saturday evening with young De La Roche, said: “He seemed to be in a real good mood. Nothing seemed to be bothering him.”

Medical examiner Lawrence Denson said Eric apparently “put up quite a struggle after he was shot.”

The family were “good people who always seemed to get along. That's the irony of it,” said the Rev. K. Ray Nissen.

Gap widens between men, women incomes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average man working fulltime in 1974 earned about $5,000 more than the average woman, the Labor Department says.

Furthermore, the gap between male and female incomes has increased drastically in the past two decades, the department reported Sunday.

In 1955, men were earning about 56.4 per cent more than women. By 1974, the gap had widened to 74.8 per cent.

In 1974, the median earnings of women were $6,772, compared with $11,835 for men — a difference of $5,063, or nearly $100 a week.

The report, based on Census Bureau data, blamed two primary factors for the widening gap: a continued concentration of women in low-skilled, low-paying jobs, and a sharp rise in the number of women entering the work force at beginners' level jobs.

Labor Department analysts said that even considering those factors and the shorter average lifetime work experience of women, “much of the male-female differential remains unexplained” and discrimination may be involved.

The report said that in constant dollars, (taking inflation into account), the gap between the earnings of men and women rose from $1,911 in 1955 to $3,433 in 1974.

Although women comprised 31.8 per cent of the fulltime, year-round work force, they make up only 5.3 per cent of workers earning $15,000 or more in 1974.

More than 80 per cent of the regularly employed women earned less than $10,000, while only 38 per cent of men working regularly make over $10,000, the report said.

Yoshimura's lawyer plans to blame fear

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura's lawyer is expected to contend that fear of false accusations drove her into three years of life as a fugitive.

After five weeks of jury selection, opening arguments and testimony were scheduled to begin today before Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich.

Miss Yoshimura, now free on $25,000 bail, was captured with Patricia Hearst in September 1975. She fled arrest in 1972, just hours after a weapons cache was uncovered in a Berkeley garage.

Prosecutor Jeff Horner said the state will argue that Miss Yoshimura, 33, rented the garage in August 1971 as a weapons storage facility for radicals.

She has been indicted by a county grand jury on four counts of possessing bomb components, explosives, a machine gun and a destructive device with intent to injure persons and destroy property. If convicted, she could be imprisoned for five years to life.

Shortly after Miss Yoshimura's capture, her lawyers filed a deposition which quoted her as saying she was living with Willie Brandt when police raided the garage. Brandt later pled guilty to illegal possession of weapons and is serving a one-to-two year sentence.

“I feared I would be forced to testify against him in court,” she said in the deposition.

“I was afraid, based on my knowledge of other political trials, that I might be falsely accused of the crimes myself. If so, I seriously doubted that I would be able to get a fair trial.”

Attorney James Larson has not said how many witnesses he intends to call in Miss Yoshimura's defense. Horner has indicated he will call nearly 70 witnesses for the prosecution.

Holiday toll 447

By The Associated Press

Despite inclement weather conditions that made driving hazardous across much of the country, traffic deaths during the long Thanksgiving weekend fell below the National Safety Council's predictions.

By early today, 447 highway deaths had been counted by The Associated Press.

Hugh Johnson, 48, of 510 N. Zimmers, was listed in satisfactory condition today in the intensive care unit of Highland General Hospital where he is being treated for burns sustained Saturday in an explosion and fire at the Cabot-Bryan Plant a mile north of Skellytown.

Johnson, a maintenance superintendent, was alone in the compressor building when the explosion occurred at about 3 p.m. The normal work crew in the area is five, according to Dave Redus, division safety manager with Cabot.

Don Cofer, plant manager, said this morning that “the insurance people” are expected Tuesday and he had no estimate of the amount of damage incurred.

He did say that only one of the three compressors in the approximate 5,000 square foot building appeared to have “sustained heavy damage.”

None of the units are operable, however, and Cofer said that some gas has been rerouted and “some has been shut down” pending the arrival of portable units at the station.

Cofer said that the fire has resulted in no layoffs since the men who work at the Bryan Plant also work at the Cabot Kingsmill Plant.

Cold weather and icy roads made the emergency more challenging Saturday. Pampa's fire department dispatched five men in two units to assist the plant crew in bringing the fire under control. It was accomplished in about an hour and a half.

More families buy homes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home buying this year is providing one of the few bright spots in the nation's economic picture despite studies showing the average American family cannot afford a median-priced house.

Sales of new and existing homes are certain to surpass the old record of three million set in 1975, industry and government figures show. And home buying is booming despite a 61 per cent jump in the price of a new home over the past four years.

In fact, analysts say, people are so determined to buy their own little rose-covered cottage that both spouses are holding down jobs and some may be digging deeper into their budget to swing it.

“Under the old ratios, many buyers would have been priced out, but by having two incomes and stretching even further, they're managing to keep up,” said Kenneth J. Karim, chief economist of the National Association of Realtors.

Mortgage rates — a key factor in home costs — have dropped, and some families apparently are cashing in on the equity in their former homes which have risen in value.

For example, a median-priced existing home purchased four years ago for $27,000, with $2,700 down and carrying a 25-year, 7.5-per-cent mortgage, would yield the owner $15,955 in cash toward another home if sold for today's median price of $38,700.

Whatever the reason, according to the National Association of Realtors, sales of existing homes are expected to hit three million this year, up from last year's record 2.45 million, and the Census Bureau says sales of new homes totaled 492,000 over the first nine months of the year.

The record for sales of new homes in a year was 718,000 set in 1972.

The Census Bureau reported the median price of a new home in September was $45,200, up from $39,700 in the same month a year ago and $28,000 in 1972. The Realtors Association says the median-priced existing home this September cost $38,700, up from $35,800 a year ago and $27,000 four years ago.

Pampa's check no longer missing

The federal government's overdue second payment on its $12 million sewage treatment plant finally arrived during the Thanksgiving holidays.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the check from the Environmental Protection Agency in the amount of $240,280 was on his desk when he arrived at City Hall this morning.

It brought the total received so far from EPA to $572,280 and enabled the city to pay back today the $100,000 it borrowed from the city's general fund last week to pay the contractor, West Construction Co. of Berger, $94,000 that was due and payable more than two weeks ago. West- Tex had submitted the bill at the City Commission's Nov. 9 meeting.

Wofford stated he also had received in today's mail notification from the Texas Water Quality Board that William C. Shilling and a representative of the Army Corps of Engineers, acting for EPA, would be in Pampa Thursday, Dec. 9, for an interim inspection of construction at the sewage treatment plant.

The letter of notification was from Nicholas W. Classen, chief of the Construction Grants Section of the Texas Water Quality Board in Austin.

Second officer slain in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — One of four Indians on the Dallas police force has become the second officer slain in the line of duty within 15 days, the briefest interim between officer killings in the department's history.

Robert W. Wood, 27, died of five gunshot wounds early Sunday after stopping an automobile during a routine traffic investigation.

Wood, a Choctaw Indian, had been on the police force for two years.

Wood's partner, Teresa A. Turko, 24, said she fired five shots into the rear of the automobile before it sped away. She could provide no description of the driver.

A Dallas police spokesman said the fatal shooting took place just eight blocks from where officer Alvin Moore, 26, was slain two weeks ago. Moore was shot to death while answering a disturbance call at a West Dallas housing project.

Capt. Billy Prince, head of the department's internal affairs division, said the death is the department's first involving a female partner.

“We're looking into it, of course, but as far as we're concerned, it looks like she did all anyone could do,” said Prince.

A police spokesman said Officer Turko took some time off from her duties after the shooting but would return to the patrol beat.

A week ago, a state trooper was shot to death in the line of duty on a highway near Rankin.

Ms. Turko said Wood approached the car from the left while she went to the right rear of the vehicle. She said as Wood reached the driver's window, the driver began firing.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Temperatures nosedived to record lows at one Texas point after another today as frigid weather propelled rain, sleet and snow all the way to the Gulf Coast while skies cleared in most other sections.

It was the second day of bitter cold in many areas in the wake of a storm that dumped as much as 7 inches of snow at El Paso in far West Texas, boosting its November total to a record 13 inches. Only a little less fell at some points in the Panhandle-Plains section. Snow drifted four feet deep around Marfa in the West Texas mountains.

Thermometers plunged to 2 degrees below zero at Marfa before dawn, 1 above at Lubbock — also blanketed by snow, 2 above at El Paso, 3 above at Amarillo and 4 above at Dalhart — all new low marks for November or for this date. It was zero the day before in Amarillo. Records also toppled at points far downstate, although they were much warmer by comparison.

There were even reports of snow flurries in parts of the semitropical Lower Rio Grande Valley, but no word came from that lush citrus and winter vegetable belt of cold severe or lasting long enough to cause damage.

Temperatures near dawn elsewhere included Wink 16, Childress, Midland-Odessa and Tyler 15, Abilene 16, San Angelo, Waco and Wichita Falls 17.

Other points reporting record lows included Austin and San Antonio at 21 and Victoria 24. Freezing weather enveloped the state, and the only readings above that level in early morning were 35 at Corpus Christi and 37 at Brownsville and McAllen or near the Lower Texas Coast.

Amarillo saw the mercury climb no higher than 17 Sunday afternoon — its lowest maximum on record for November. Top marks at other points hit a peak of 43 at Brownsville and stayed below freezing in most other localities.

Forecasts promised moderating weather throughout the state and skies were expected to be clear in all sections by evening.

Lawyer formulates war pardon

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — The man helping President-elect Jimmy Carter formulate a pardon for Vietnam-era draft evaders is a Houston lawyer who has handled court cases dealing with the military draft and protests against the Vietnam war.

The Carter aide, David Berg, has been assigned to research what has been done in the past to offer pardons and the potential impact the Carter pardon will have, according to Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary.

Berg, 34, is on leave from his Houston law firm to assist in Carter's transition to the presidency. In addition to his work on the pardon issue, Berg is one of Carter's transition representatives with the Justice Department.

Carter has said he would issue a pardon rather than declare amnesty to draft violators because, he said, amnesty indicates that what the evaders had done was right, while a pardon only indicates forgiveness and offers an opportunity to begin again.

During the campaign, Carter drew harsh criticism for his stand from a number of veterans' groups and was booed when he repeated it before the national convention of the American Legion in Seattle last August.

Carter has promised that he will issue a pardon to draft violators during the first week of his administration, which begins with his inauguration Jan. 20.

But he has said his pardon program would not extend to military deserters, who will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Powell said over the weekend that Carter's action in assigning Berg to the pardon work shows the president-elect's determination to keep his campaign promises.

One of Berg's first cases after he was graduated from law school involved a war protest, and he ended up taking it to the U.S. Supreme Court. He also performed legal work for men involved in disputes with the Selective Service System.

Lawyer formulates war pardon

Among the issues being examined in connection with Carter's planned pardon is the number of men who would be affected. For example, if the pardon were extended to men who failed to register initially for the draft, the magnitude of the Carter program would be substantially larger than if the pardon were limited to those who had registered but who had failed to report for induction.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A woman was distressed because her bright 19-year-old son had quit college to enroll in a trade school, saying he preferred to work with his hands. His mother insisted that men who work with their hands do so only because they are not smart enough to work with their minds.

Thanks for telling her that college was not for everyone, and that some hand work requires more talent, skill and know-how than many professions.

That reminds me of this story: It seems a doctor had a plumbing problem at home so he called a plumber who came at once and corrected the problem in a short time. When the plumber finished, the doctor asked how much he owed him. The plumber said, "That will be $75."

"That's outrageous," said the physician, "I'm a doctor and I don't make that kind of money!" The plumber replied, "Neither did I when I was a doctor."

HENRY D. WIXEY, MSgt., USAF

DEAR HENRY: Beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column a bitter reference to wives who do not have custody of their children following a divorce. ("She's divorced and her husband has custody of the children, so you know what SHE's like!")

I would like to tell you of my own experience: I was divorced three years ago, and my ex-husband has custody of our children, now 6 and 8 years old. He and I discussed it at great length. Neither of us was stupid, immoral or emotionally disturbed. We decided that my husband was better qualified to raise the children than I was. He enjoyed childhood games, spending time with the children, reading to them, etc. He was a rotten husband, but an excellent father.

He and I get along wonderfully well now that we are divorced, and more important, the children are better off. I have unrestricted visitation rights, they love me, and I see them often.

It's time people, and the courts, realized that some men are more capable of rearing children than some women. Just because a mother gives her husband custody of the children doesn't make her a horrible person.

Perhaps she has made greater sacrifices for the benefit of her children than the hardheaded, bitter mother who uses her children for financial gain and a club to punish her husband. Please be fair and print this.

"G"

DEAR G: Color me "fair."

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I can't get home for Christmas, so we always mail my mother a gift.

My sister, with whom Mom lives, opens the gift, substitutes the same item (only cheaper quality) and gives the gift we sent my mother to someone in her husband's family.

Mother, who is quite elderly, never knows the difference and writes to thank us for the "dress, bathrobe, purse" or whatever it was we sent to her.

My sister doesn't know I am aware of this. Should I send flowers or candy from now on? Or should I say something? My sister and I have always been close, and I hesitate to cause a rift. Nevertheless I am perturbed over this.

WHAT TO DO

DEAR WHAT: It's unfair to your mother to give her "flowers or candy" if you feel she would prefer something else. If you are sure of your facts, confront your sister and tell her to quit that chintzy game.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — After reading your column about isometric exercises and what they can actually do to the blood pressure I became very concerned. I do not do isometric exercises, but whenever I think of it I tense my stomach muscles and keep them tight in order to have a flat stomach.

Is this a practice that I should avoid? I am a middle-aged woman and I do exercise. I've never been troubled with high blood pressure and I don't want it to happen to me now.

DEAR READER — Isometric contractions, including hand-shaking or squeezing and voluntary contractions, can cause a transitory rise of the blood pressure. They will not cause a normal person to develop high blood pressure though. The danger is for the person who already has excessively high blood pressure.

Many life situations increase the blood pressure temporarily. A good example is running. As a person exerts himself, the heart must pump more blood. With this increase the blood pressure rises. This is normal and after exercise the blood pressure returns to normal. Such exercise actually helps to lower blood pressure in many normal people after the period of exercise is over.

To give you more information on isometric exercises and blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-10, Exercise, Posture, Strength. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Keep up your exercise. It will help you keep strong abdominal muscles and help prevent back problems as well as keep you nicer looking.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem that has been bothering me for some time and it really worries me. I am female and 14 years old. I started menstruating a year ago. I had read that menstrual cycles can sometimes be irregular, such as skipping a month or two, so I was not going to be worried or surprised if mine did. Well, mine didn't. I was very regular.

After about six months, one month I didn't have my period. It didn't come the next month and now it is six months — half a year — since my last period.

Around that time I changed my eating habits and went on a mild diet. I started eating the right amount of everything; plenty of vegetables, fresh fruit and the right amounts of protein, milk, cereal, bread and bulk products. I do not eat any heavy, rich, sweet desserts as I used to all the time. I lost five pounds.

Isn't six months without menstruating very abnormal? Can it be normal at all? I am much too shy to talk to my mother or anyone about it or to see a doctor either. What should I do? This is really worrying me.

DEAR READER — You should have stuck with your original resolution not to worry if your periods were irregular. No, it is not unusual to have relatively long time spans without menstruation at your age. Young girls usually start having periods between 10 and 16 years of age. The fact that you had regular periods suggests that you are perfectly normal.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — I hope you or one of the readers can tell me how to clean the caulking around my bathtub. It looks black like it is mildewed and nothing I have used will clean this off. — E.M.

DEAR E.M. — You might try applying diluted bleach with an old toothbrush. That should remove the mildew and clean the caulking, too. Denatured alcohol is another suggestion or diluted hydrogen peroxide. Good luck! — POLLY.

Blazers-blue serge to tweed

By Charles Hix

Although the term blazer can be traced to the 1860s when a British captain of the HMS Blazer looked disdainfully on his motley crew and immediately summoned a tailor to sew up some metal-buttoned blue serge jackets, these days no one really knows how to define what a blazer is... other than big business.

With the continuing emphasis on dressing up (one shirt maker now reports its best-selling dress shirt is a classic white Oxford), sales of blazers and sportcoats are scaling heights higher than they've mounted within the last decade. And since designers are offering new touches and details to entice men, traditional notions of what makes a jacket one type versus another are disappearing. Not only true of blazers, this phenomenon is happening with hunting jackets and sports jackets as well.

"Originally 'blazer' stood for a solid-colored coat (usually in a dark shade, often navy) with metal buttons," explains one designer. "Today metal, pearl and even horn buttons are appropriate. The coat may be solid, striped or checked. The single most distinguishable feature is that metal buttons should always be used on stripes or checks, while solids can have metal, pearl or horn. Right now, double-breasted blazers are especially hot. Peaked lapels, too."

Traditionally, blazers have been cut with open patch pockets. Today they are seen with open patch, flap patch or even straight flap and the breast pocket can either be an open patch, flap patch or welt.

J. P. Stevens, the giant textiles company, notes that a variety of its fall fabrics, from navy to taupe to mushroom to camel, plus plaids of all persuasions, are being used in blazer looks this fall.

Among the designers who are putting their personal signature on blazers (or blazer suits) this fall are Yves Saint Laurent, Cardin, Ralph Lauren, Nino Cerruti, Carlo Palazzi, Adolfo, Oscar de la Renta, Sai Cesarani, Bill Blass and countless others. Dimitri is making a black leather blazer while Bill Kaiserman for Rafael goes the double-breasted, navy suede blazer route.

So important to over-all sales have blazers become that Austin Reed initiated a new blazer program this fall. As a result, sales reportedly doubled those in '75. The Jack Nicklaus blazer line has increased "substantially," notes an official. (Apparently "substantially" doesn't mean double.) Hickey-Freeman, while reporting a 10 per cent sales increase, qualifies this figure by noting their retailers BLAZER or sportcoat? That depends. Fall versions of jackets blur traditional distinguishing lines. Pared-down-silhouette of this Ralph Lauren for Chaps has flapped bellows pockets and braided leather buttons on a Stevens taupe wool flannel.

Carlo Palazzi and Petrocelli, though both divisions of MacMullin Industries, report blazer and sportcoat activity respectively. At Palazzi, 50 per cent of the firm's fall orders were in separates, with a dark gray, double-breasted blazer (about $125 retail) coordinated with lighter tone-on-tone gray flannel trousers (about $60) accounting for a hefty share. Petrocelli, whose figures in 1975 broke down to about 65 per cent of sales in traditional, fully constructed suits and 35 per cent in leisure suits, this year discontinued leisure suits entirely and for the first time offered sportcoats. Already jackets are 15 per cent of the total.

With the resurgence of sports jackets, unpredictable fashion looks are being generated. So-called hunting jackets, complete with rifle patch on one shoulder, are appearing as "country" jackets that are being worn often on city streets. Aggressive tweeds and nubby, oversized checks and plaids are shrugging off the Englishman image and are found in offices.

Not the same old cloak and needle game, but...

Fashion spies are still in business

By Rosette Hargrove

PARIS — (NEA) — Is fashion spying still rampant? Are copiers still intent upon tracing the slightest clue as to what the new line or direction — the A, trapeze, string bean or what have you — is going to be when a haute couture collection is shown? Time was when absolute secrecy reigned in the salons of the top establishments before showings of spring or winter collections. Creations were carried from the different workrooms shrouded in muslin. Cutters, fitters, midnettes were offered substantial or modest rewards by spies according to their job, for the slightest hint.

When you pose the question today to any of the big names in high fashion, you get a slight shrug of the shoulders and a whimsical smile. Courtiers and stylists confess that this no longer is one of their major problems. They are not too concerned with microscopic cameras and furtive sketchers. As a matter of fact, they themselves will release sketches or photographs the day of their showing.

Houses such as Ted Lapidus, Courreges, Saint Laurent and Dior believe that spying on the old scale is past. It all sounds now like a piece of folklore. The leaders will tell you that today's high fashion houses are laboratories related to the ready-to-wear production. Which seems to signify that a major collection has lost some of its past importance. Nobody seems to turn a hair when an onlooker is seen making a rudimentary sketch or two. Also, there is the disappearance of the individual dressmaker with a private clientele who used to attempt to reproduce, with more or less success, and at a fraction of the price, an exclusive model. There also was the filching of "toiles" or muslin patterns which sometimes could be sneaked out, escaping the control of checkers, even though all the personnel signed a contract respecting the professional secret.

Marc Bohan of the House of Dior told Elle (popular women's weekly) that while spying or copying on a large scale was a thing of the past, there is another angle which is more worrisome. That is the divulgence of fabric patterns.

There are several stores in Paris where a woman can buy Saint Laurent, Lanvin or Dior fabrics. Store owners do not hesitate to say that they get their hands on these by paying a good price.

This sort of espionage is sometimes carried out on a wide scale. A Milanese (Italian) fabric man admitted without batting an eye that he was able to lay his hands on fabric samples within days of their delivery to the creators. Sleuths, it is suggested, probably picked out snippets, designs, etc., from the garbage cans of the French manufacturers.

There is in reality little defense against such knock-offs. Anyhow it was the late Coco Chanel who long ago said she had no objection to being copied because it was a sure sign of success.

Courreges goes her one further stating that the top copier of his models is himself. These eventually he adopts for his ready-to-wear line at competitive prices. When, for example, he learned that one of his "blousons" had been copied in Spain, he immediately invaded this market with his own production. Result: While in 1965 his yearly sales represented something like a million dollars today this

Ted Lapidus explains that every year he took in a certain number of trainees to whom he teaches everything, from fashion sketching, the art of cutting and fitting to choosing the right fabric. In short, all that goes into a high-fashion model.

Colts, Rams, Pats close

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Colts, Los Angeles Rams and New England Patriots are another step closer today toward what seems to be the inevitable. And the Pittsburgh Steelers are another step closer to what might well be called a miracle.

The Colts devoured the New York Jets 33-16 and the Rams gobbled up the New Orleans Saints 33-14 in National Football League play Sunday and edged within a step of clinching division titles, while the Patriots crushed the Denver Broncos 38-14 and moved within a victory of clinching an American Conference playoff berth.

And the Steelers, playing on the brink of disaster, pulled out a 7-3 victory over Cincinnati in a snowstorm, keeping alive their hopes of returning to the Super Bowl which they have won the past two years.

In Sunday's other NFL games, it was Washington 24, Philadelphia 0; Oakland 49, Tampa Bay 16; the New York Giants 28, Seattle 16; Cleveland 17, Miami 13; Chicago 16, Green Bay 10; Houston 20, Atlanta 14; and Kansas City 23, San Diego 20. Last Thursday, it was Dallas 19, St. Louis 14, and Detroit 27, Buffalo 14. Tonight it is Minnesota at San Francisco. If the 49ers lose, the Rams will become the National Conference West champions.

Cincinnati had a chance to shoot down Pittsburgh's chances of getting into Super Bowl XI and the games which lead to it. Instead, the Bengals have a gun pointed at themselves — and they could get shot down a week from tonight.

By beating Pittsburgh, the Bengals would have clinched the American Conference's Central title and killed the Steelers' chances of making the playoffs. Now, though, Cincinnati leads the division by one game with two to go. And while Pittsburgh plays relatively easy foes in Tampa Bay and Houston, Cincinnati has to face the Raiders, the winningest team in the league, next Monday night at Oakland before closing the season in New York against the Jets. A two-team tie would give the division title to the Steelers, who beat the Bengals twice.

Franco Harris scored the game's only touchdown on a four-yard run late in the third quarter after the Steelers had recovered a Boobie Clark fumble at the Cincinnati 24. The Bengals' points came on Chris Bahr's 40-yard field goal in the first period.

Colts 33, Jets 16
Bert Jones tore up the Jets with three touchdown passes in a 24-point second quarter, covering 14 yards to Lydell Mitchell, five yards to Don McCauley and 31 yards to Roger Carr, keeping the Colts one game ahead of New England in the AFC East.

Rams 33, Saints 14
Rookie Pat Haden passed for two touchdowns — a two-yarder to Lawrence McCutcheon and a four-yarder to Bob Klein — and ran seven yards for a TD in the Rams' romp over New Orleans.

Patriots 38, Broncos 14
Steve Grogan of New England also did his pass-and-run thing, throwing three yards to Al Chandler and bulging in from the one for a pair of TDs. Don Calhoun amassed 177 yards on the ground and rookie Mike Haynes returned a punt 62 yards for a touchdown, ending Denver's hopes of making the playoffs.

Redskins 24, Eagles 0
"Every time the Eagles made a mistake, we capitalized," said Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer, who threw three touchdown passes, the first following a 45-yard punt return by Eddie Brown, the next two after fumble recoveries by Dennis Johnson.

Raiders 49, Buccaneers 16
Oakland got a pair of one-yard touchdowns plunges by Mark van Eeghen and a pair of scoring passes by Ken Stabler — nine yards to Warren Bankston and 25 to Cliff Branch — in remaining the league's winningest team at 11-1 and further solidifying Tampa Bay's chance of becoming the first NFL team to finish at 0-14.

Giants 28, Seahawks 16
Seattle, the other expansion team, jumped to a 9-0 first-quarter lead on Sherman Smith's two-yard touchdown run and John Leybold's 45-yard field goal. But by halftime, the Giants were on top and they finished that way as Craig Morton threw for two touchdowns and Gordon Bell ran for two.

Oilers 20, Falcons 14
Houston got helping hands from quarterback John Hadl and linebacker Robert Brazile in beating Atlanta. First, Hadl unleashed a 40-yard touchdown

Jackson signs with Yankees

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle and now Reggie Jackson. After eight years of light rain, the thunder and lightning finally will be returning to the New York Yankees' outfield.

Ottawa bags Cup

TORONTO (AP) — Tom Clements, once a standout quarterback at Notre Dame, drove Ottawa to a Grey Cup title, then found out he'll be driving a new car soon.

"My old car is kind of a joke and I had been planning on getting a new one," said Clements, whose 24-yard touchdown to Tony Gabriel with 20 seconds to play gave the Rough Riders a 23-20 victory over Saskatchewan in Sunday's Canadian Football League title game.

Clements was awarded the car as the game's outstanding offensive player. He connected on 11 of 25 passes for 174 yards and rushed for 35 yards on five carries. Linebacker Cleveland Vann of Saskatchewan was the outstanding defensive player and will also get a car. Gabriel caught seven passes for 124 yards.

His winning catch came barely a minute after Ottawa failed on a third-down gamble on the Saskatchewan one-yard line. Veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster failed to move Saskatchewan after the turnover and Ottawa regained possession on the Saskatchewan 35 with 44 seconds remaining.

Clements then passed to Gabriel for an 11-yard gain before finding the big tight end open in the end zone.

"People underestimated us all season," said halfback Jim Foley of Ottawa, which went into the game a five-point underdog. "We showed all season that in the crunch we don't quit. Nobody gave up out there today."

The crowd of 53,389, which withstood freezing weather in the renovated Exhibition Stadium, far surpassed the previous Grey Cup attendance record of 39,417 set at Vancouver in 1955. It also produced record gate receipts of $1,009,000, surpassing the $580,942 taken in last year at Calgary.

fensive outfielder, will be sized for Yankee pinstripes today and should fit in nicely with the legends that roamed the Yankee outfield for so many years.

The Associated Press learned that Jackson will sign a $3 million five-year package with the Yankees today.

"Having him in the outfield will be in keeping with the old Yankee tradition of Ruth, DiMaggio and Mantle," said a jubilant Mayor Abe Beame. "It's nice to know he'll be hitting for New York."

Beame's joy reflected the outpouring of emotion Jackson felt last Monday when Yankee owner George Steinbrenner took him on a walking and wooing tour around New York. And in the final analysis, it was the energy of New York, its streets, its people, its media and its hunger for a winner that tipped the scales toward the Yankees.

Why is Jackson going to accept the Yankees' offer of $3 million today when he could have taken a "king's ransom" of slightly less than $4 million from Montreal?

"Probably because of New York and probably because of George Steinbrenner," said a source close to the negotiations. "He found the Yankees to be fair gentlemen to deal with."

Jackson was due here today with the Yankees set to give him the red-carpet treatment with a scheduled mid-afternoon news conference. Jackson has not signed any preliminary contract or a memorandum of agreement, but he has given Steinbrenner his word that he will sign with the Yankees.

"It would be wonderful to sign him," said Steinbrenner Sunday after he arrived by plane from his home in Tampa, Fla. "More than I don't

Houston ends drought with win over Atlanta

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers aren't out of the desert yet but linebacker Robert Brazile and a productive offense have ended the Oilers' drought — six straight losses — with a 20-14 victory over Atlanta.

Oiler quarterback John Hadl threw touchdown passes of 40 yards to Billy Johnson and 16 yards to Ken Burrough and Brazile made the big play in a desperate fourth quarter goal-line stand to preserve the victory.

The victory gave the Oilers a 5-7 record and a chance at a 510 season after not winning since an Oct. 10 victory over Denver. They must beat Cleveland Sunday and Pittsburgh the following week to end with a 7-7 mark.

want to tell you."

Since Mantle retired in 1968, the Yankees have moved from the heavyweight division to the lightweight, especially in the outfield.

Bobby Murcer, Mantle's heir apparent, hit 33 homers in 1972, but he wasn't a bonafide, consistent power hitter. When the Yankees moved to Shea Stadium for the 1973 and 1974 seasons, Murcer totaled 32 homers — only 10 in 1974.

Following the 1974 season, Murcer was traded to the Giants for Bobby Bonds, who could have been the slugging outfielder the Yankees lacked. But he was traded to California after hitting 32 homers in 1975.

Volunteers seek Majors

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Coach Johnny Majors is considering a job offer from the University of Tennessee, and there's a report that could mean a new "Ara" for the University of Pittsburgh.

Majors, who's guided top-ranked Pitt to a 11-0 record this season, confirmed Sunday he had been contacted by Tennessee.

"There will be no decision for a few days, no decision until I talk to our people," he said by phone from his home in nearby Fox Chapel, Pa. "Nothing is happening right now."

Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reports Pitt, as a precaution, had already begun considering possible replacements, including former Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian.

Portland leads division with 12 home victories

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer

Portland may be thinking about offering other teams in the National Basketball Association some special incentive to switch Trail Blazers' road games to their home court.

The Trail Blazers have played 12 home games this season — and won them all. And they have played five games away from home — and lost them all. The Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde record of 12-5 has the Blazers in first place in the Pacific Division, and thinking about making the playoffs for the first time in their seven-year history. But Portland plays its next three games away from home.

Sunday, Portland extended its two-season winning streak at home to 18 games, routing the Indiana Pacers 145-115.

In other NBA action, Golden State bombed Atlanta 132-96. Kansas City defeated Philadelphia 101-90. New Orleans topped Buffalo 127-118. Los Angeles downed the hapless Chicago Bulls 103-84 and Seattle extended its unbeaten home streak to 28, edging Washington 117-116.

Maurice Lucas led Portland with 25 points and reserve forward Lloyd Neal hit for 19. Bill Walton had 18 points and 13 rebounds, while Indiana's Billy Knight was the game's top scorer with 29 points.

Golden State 132, Hawks 96
Rick Barry led Golden State to its first road victory in seven starts this season with 20 points and Jamaal Wilkes contributed 18.

The only bright spot for Atlanta was the play of rookie Armond Hill, who led all scorers with 21 points.

Kings 101, 76ers 89
Kansas City stretched its home winning streak to seven before 15,543 home fans, the second largest crowd in the history of the franchise.

Philadelphia's Julius Erving, a major reason for the big turnout, was held to four points in the second half and finished the game with 20 points.

George McGinnis, another part of Philadelphia's millionaire frontcourt, saw only limited action and scored just seven points.

Jazz 127, Braves 118
Pete Maravich scored 30 points for New Orleans and Nate Williams came off the bench to score 23.

Bird Averitt and Bob McAdoo, who finished with 29 points, helped cut Buffalo's 15-point halftime deficit to five.

Lakers 103, Bulls 84
Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar passed the 17,000-point mark in career points while scoring 21, as Chicago set a club record with its 11th consecutive loss. Rookie forward Scott May had his most productive game as a pro, leading Chicago's scoring with 19 points. Artis Gilmore had 16 for the 2-12 Bulls.

Sonics 117, Bullets 116
Slick Watts poured in a career-high 37 points and added 13 assists for Seattle, which needs just eight more victories to tie the NBA mark for consecutive home court triumphs.

The streak nearly ended as Mitch Kupchak of Washington missed a shot with 13 seconds to play and Wes Unseld's tip rolled off the hoop.

Mesa tips Coffeyville in freezing Wool Bowl

ROSSELL, N.M. (AP) — Every year two of the nation's top junior college grid squads clash in the Wool Bowl football game.

But it seems that every year an invited guest, Ol' Man Weather, tries to spoil it.

And he really outdid himself in this year's battle between Coffeyville, Kan., Junior College and Mesa, Ariz., Community College Saturday night.

It was snowing and the temperature was only 14 degrees when the game started. By the time Mesa's Thunderbirds had claimed an exciting 21-13 win over Coffeyville's Red Ravens there was about an inch of snow on the field and only a handful of people in the stands.

Al Snipes, chairman of the game's sponsoring Wool Bowl Committee, said Sunday it wasn't unusual the weather didn't cooperate because "it never has."

"I don't think we've had one real decent day or evening since we started this thing," he bad of deal."

No official figures were released on just how many fans turned out but estimates ranged from 200 to 400. The stadium seats about 7,000 and the largest crowd in the 11-history of the bowl was last year's 4,500.

But Snipes said the people who did show up Saturday were treated to a "heckuva" game. They passed and ran, they just did it all," he said.

Dan Manucci rifled two second quarter touchdown aerials for Mesa but the Thunderbirds got what may have been their most important touchdown on a freak play in the third quarter.

Coffeyville had just scored on a 28-yard TD strike from Tim Pivonka to Jim Walker to move the Red Ravens to within one point at 14-13 and appeared to have the momentum going its way.

But on the ensuing kickoff Mesa's Craig Richardson took the ball on his on five-yard line and raced to the Coffeyville 40. Suddenly he dropped the ball, but it bounced into the hands of teammate Bill Emmick, who scampered the remaining 40 yards to paydirt.

Coffeyville had taken a 7-0 lead early in the second period when Artrell Hawkins, who topped the 100-yard mark in rushing, broke loose on a 50-yard TD scamper. But the Ravens fell behind for good later in that quarter on Manucci's scoring passes of 15 yards to Lee Felice and 52 yards to Tim Johnson.

Mesa, third-ranked this year and the 1975 national junior college titlist, improved its record to 9-1-1 with the win. Coffeyville, eighth-rated among the nation's two-year colleges, dropped to 8-3.

He was offensive line coach for the Oilers in 1966-70, before coming to the Tulsa school.

"I hope to have all this settled and be in or out by Tuesday," the coach said.

Dry said Saturday night "was the first opportunity my wife and I have had to talk about this. We need to do a lot of talking and thinking before I decide anything."

Dry, 45, was an assistant coach at Tulsa from 1961-65, became athletic director in 1972 and head coach in mid-season in 1972.

Interested persons should contact the Pampa Youth and Community Center by Tuesday.

Indiana opens season, pounds South Dakota

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Indiana Hoosiers spent last season beating everybody's brains out and they've picked up this year right where they left off.

Bullying underprivileged South Dakota, the defending NCAA champions opened their college basketball season Saturday with an authoritative 110-64 victory.

"They pounded us on the boards," said South Dakota Coach Jack Doyle after the beating from the nation's fifth-ranked team. "It's tough to play a team the caliber of Indiana when you realize we're a Division II school and they're the national champions."

Bobby Knight, whose Hoosiers added onto their 32-game victory string of last year, looked at the opener as more of a tuneup than a test. His club is minus four starters from last year's team.

"We played with a number of combinations and did some things very well, but you have to put it in perspective," he said. "We played against a team that was totally out-manned."

In other top college basketball games Saturday, No. 1-ranked Michigan opened its season with a 94-70 victory over Western Kentucky; No. 3 North Carolina was shocked by Wake Forest 97-96 in overtime in the finals of the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro, N.C. after Duke upset No. 15 North Carolina State 84-82 in the consolation game; No. 4 UCLA trimmed No. 18 DePaul 76-69; sixth-rated Kentucky turned back Wisconsin 72-64; No. 14 Notre Dame upset No. 8 Maryland 80-79 in overtime; No. 11 San Francisco defeated UC-Santa Barbara 92-85 in overtime; 18th-ranked Tennessee hammered South Florida 94-64 and No. 19 North Carolina-Charlotte walloped Georgia College 111-63.

Besides the Big Four Tournament, several other championships were resolved Saturday night.

St. John's won the Lapchick Tournament in New York by beating Fairfield 87-65; Richmond edged George Washington 64-62 to take the Spider Classic in Richmond, Va.; West Virginia won the Hall of Fame tourney in Springfield, Mass., with an 83-78 decision over Syracuse; Virginia beat VMI 55-50 for the Virginia Tip-Off championship; New Orleans won its own New Orleans Tip-Off with a 91-73 triumph over Illinois State and Clemson defeated Florida State 108-92 to win the IPTAY tournament in Clemson, S.C.

Center Kent Benson, the only starter from last year's national championship team, and guard Wayne Radford combined for 35 points to pace Indiana's victory.

A combined 47-point performance by sophomore Phil Hubbard and Rickey Green led Michigan over Western Kentucky. Hubbard, who missed most of the first half due to foul trouble, came back and scored 18 of his 22 points after intermission. Green scored 11 of his 17 first-half points in the last five minutes, when the Wolverines shot into a 49-35 halftime advantage.

North Carolina was beaten by Larry Harrison's tip-in and Skip Brown's clutch foul shots in the closing seconds of overtime. The victory gave the Demon Deacons their third straight Big Four championship. Tate Armstrong's 23 points powered Duke over North Carolina State, handing the highly-regarded Wolfpack its second loss in two nights.

Marques Johnson's 18 points and 16-point performances by sophomores David Greenwood and Roy Hamilton helped UCLA hold off DePaul.

Rick Robey led five players in double figures with 13 points as Kentucky's Wildcats opened their giant new Civic Center with a victory over Wisconsin.

"Duck" Williams' 18-footer with 18 seconds remaining gave Notre Dame its victory over Maryland before 14,053 roaring fans at the Cole Field House in College Park and a national television audience.

Tennessee beat South Florida behind Ernie Grunfield's 37 points. The 6-foot-6 senior had 15 field goals and was 7-for-7 from the foul line before leaving the game with 5:20 remaining.

College football's national championship, still up for grabs, takes a back seat for the next month or so. The next order of business is the Heisman Trophy and No. 1-ranked Pitt's Tony Dorsett is expected to run away with it Tuesday.

Playoff field trimmed

By The Associated Press

It's nail-biting time in the Texas school football playoffs with The Associated Press top-ranked teams fighting for their collective lives. Ask Houston Kashmere how easy it is to retain those lofty rankings.

Houston Kashmere, the No. 1 rated Class 4A team, took a 21-10 thumping from Spring Branch Memorial which obviously deserved to be ranked higher than fifth in the final AP poll.

Spring Branch Memorial will meet defending champion Port Neches-Groves, which tripped Galveston Ball 14-7, Friday night in the Astro dome in a quarterfinal collision.

Other quarterfinal matches show Lubbock Monterey meeting Arlington Houston at 2 p.m. Saturday in Abilene, Dallas Highland Park versus Temple at Baylor Stadium in Waco at 2 p.m. Saturday, and Brazoswood playing San Antonio Churchill at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in College Station.

The Class 3A might reach the semifinals with Perryton and Gainesville playing 8 p.m. Friday in Vernon. Beaumont Hebert meets Gregory-Portland at 8 p.m. Friday in Houston.

Quarterfinal matches are set in 2A and A while Class B reaches the semifinals.

Top-rated Gorman and Groom meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Iowa Park while Corsicana Mildred and Ben Bolt collide at 2 p.m. Saturday in Round Rock.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas football team that was crushed by Texas Tech Saturday is not the same team that beat Houston six weeks ago.

Not the same emotionally or physically, says Arkansas coach Frank Broyles.

Broyles talked Sunday about intangibles — intensity, emotion, loss of confidence.

"And, the only way to turn it around is win," he said.

He said the Razorbacks played with intensity in September and October, but that after the 7-7 tie with Baylor a "little doubt seeped in."

He said that the momentum then diminished. That, he said, can cost a team 10 to 14 points while a team with momentum can gain that much.

Broyles said it was natural that the defense was disappointed in the offensive unit after the Baylor game. He said, however, that the defense was not giving as much effort as it had earlier in the year.

He said one reason the defense had digressed was that the scout squad did not offer the resistance it did early in the year. He said that because of injuries and a lack of depth, the No. 1 defense can do what it wants against the scout squad without extending itself.

"The mistakes show up on Saturday," he said. "Before, they showed up on Monday and Tuesday."

He said the Razorbacks would attempt to remedy the problem by having first-team defenders work against members of the No. 1 offense this week. In fact, he said defensive coordinator Jimmy Johnson had offered to use Texas' defense this week just for the opportunity to compete against the first team.

What else is there? Bill Yeoman, Houston's fine coach, said "I couldn't have even made up a dream like this season has been."

The only thing at stake in the Texas-Arkansas match is home-state pride.

And Texas hopes for a victory to avoid Coach Darrell Royal's first losing season at the Longhorn helm. Texas is 3-4 in the SWC and 4-5 overall. Arkansas is 3-3-1 and 5-4-1.

Touchdown Tony wound up the regular season with a scintillating 224-yard display in Pitt's 24-7 triumph over 16th-ranked Penn State. That boosted his season yardage to 1,948, an all-time NCAA record, and also made him the first 6,000-yard runner in history.

Dorsett has 6,062 career yards, which figures out to almost 3 1/2 miles. But right now he has other things besides records and yardage on his mind.

"I had all the records I really wanted going into this game," he said. "A national championship, that's my No. 1 goal now."

However, at least four other teams also have that as their objective and Pitt must face one of them — fourth-ranked Georgia — in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day. The Bulldogs eked out a 13-10 victory over Georgia Tech on Allan Leavitt's 33-yard field goal with just five seconds to play.

The other challengers are second-ranked Michigan, bound for the Rose Bowl against third-ranked Southern California, a 17-13 winner over No. 13 Notre Dame, and fifth-ranked Maryland, which meets No. 7 Houston in the Cotton Bowl.

And the national championship race will go right down to the wire — i.e., the New Year's Day bowl games.

Sophomore trio Members of the Pampa High sophomore girls basketball team include Deena Wildcat, Ora Carter and Amy Tackett. Pampa, 2-0 in its first season ever, challenges Dumas at 6 p.m. Tuesday in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Besides Pitt and Maryland, the only unbeaten-untied team in the country is No. 17 Rutgers, a 17-9 winner over Colgate but scored by the bowls because of its unattractive schedule.

In other games involving The Associated Press Top Twenty on the final big weekend of the regular season:

—Amazing Houston made it to the Cotton Bowl in its first season of Southwest Conference competition by routing Rice 42-20.

—Eighth-ranked Oklahoma scored twice in the final period and bumped off No. 10 Nebraska 20-17. The Sooners thus tied for the Big Eight championship with Colorado and Oklahoma State; but Colorado will go to the Orange Bowl to meet 12th-ranked Ohio State while Nebraska trudges to the Astro-Bleu Bonnet Bowl against ninth-ranked Texas Tech, a 30-7 winner over Arkansas.

—Texas A&M, ranked 11th and bound for the Sun Bowl against Florida, whipped Texas 27-3 while unranked Florida held off Miami of Florida 19-10.

—Oklahoma State, tied for 14th with Colorado, trimmed Texas-EI Paso 42-13 and No. 18 Alabama walloped Auburn 38-7.

Besides Michigan, Maryland, Ohio State and Colorado, other Top Twenty teams which completed their regular seasons earlier were UCLA, No. 6, and Mississippi State and North Carolina, tied for 19th.

The other bowl pairings look like this:

Gator — Notre Dame vs. Penn State; Fiesta — Oklahoma vs. Wyoming; Liberty — Penn State vs. Alabama; Tangerine — Oklahoma State vs. Brigham Young; Peach — North Carolina vs. Kentucky; Independence — McNeese State vs. Tulsa.

Elsewhere, East Carolina won the Southern Conference championship by whipping Appalachian State 35-7.

He said the Razorbacks played with intensity in September and October, but that after the 7-7 tie with Baylor a "little doubt seeped in."

He said that the momentum then diminished. That, he said, can cost a team 10 to 14 points while a team with momentum can gain that much.

Raiders after share of crown

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The television cameras will be on Austin, Tex. Saturday night but Southwest Conference football fans will have all eyes on Lubbock, Tex. where a long championship drought could be broken by the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

What the television moguls thought would be a Big Shoot-out has turned into pop guns at 10 paces when Arkansas and Texas mingle in Memorial Stadium at 8:06 p.m. The TV people decreed the game should be at night because that's prime time. The ratings could turn out to be as cold as the weather.

Meanwhile, Texas Tech will be trying for a co-championship against the Baylor Bears. Tech has never reached such a lofty goal in its 16 years in SWC competition.

Of course, the upstart Houston Cougars clinched at least a SWC tie Saturday with a 42-20 victory over Rice. Because they beat Texas Tech, the Cougars will host unbeaten Maryland in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

Houston has some unfinished business in the form of independent Miami which will come calling Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Astro dome.

Tech mangled Arkansas 30-7 Saturday to up its SWC ledger to 6-1. The Red Raiders are 9-1 overall. Houston is 7-1 and 8-2.

Baylor, coming on fast, defeated winless Texas Christian 24-19 in Jim Shofner's finale. TCU finished 0-11 for the year and 2-31 under Shofner.

"We're getting better every week and so is Texas Tech," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "People will look at our TCU score and say we had an off week. Heck, TCU just played good."

"It should be some kind of game against the Red Raiders."

Houston players went wild in the dressing room and sophomore quarterback Danny Davis declared "This is the greatest feeling of my life."

PROGRAMMED THEFT
WASHINGTON (AP) — There are better ways to steal a million dollars than with a gun, says the National Geographic Society. Authorities estimate that people steal $300 million a year through computers and much of it goes undetected.

One man programmed his bank's computer to ignore his overdrafts, then quit adding anything to the account while the bank made good on his checks. Another programmed his credit card company's computer not to enter charges against his card number.

But computers break down occasionally and both men were caught when a human bookkeeper had to take over.

NUTRITIOUS BEANS
NEW YORK (AP) — The humble bean, long thought of as poor folks' food, actually contains more protein than beef or eggs, according to the Dairy Council of Metropolitan New York.

Beans contain about 22 per cent protein, compared with 18 per cent in beef and 13 per cent in eggs.

But since the protein that beans contain is incomplete, unlike the protein in milk, fish, poultry, meat and eggs, beans must be combined with other foods to get their full benefits.

CAVERNS UPSTAGED
STANTON, Mo. (AP) — The multimillion-year-old formations are not the scene most photographed by tourists visiting Meramec Caverns here.

Upstaging the formations is a lifelike statue of Jesse James, the notorious outlaw, who used the hideout in the cave during the 1870s.

"Tourists enjoy having their pictures taken in front of Jesse," says Bob Hudson, cave manager.

These Santas swing from homemade mobile

By Dusty Pilot

Bring holiday spirit to any room with these whimsical swinging Santas. Hang them from the ceiling, from a light fixture over your dining table or hang them flat against a wall. They can even be used as package and tree trims.

Cut the felt Santas as small or as large as you like — the pattern here is easy to decrease or increase. Each square equals one-half inch.

FIRST STEP: Cut the cap and body from light-weight cardboard, then cover both the front and back sides with red felt.

SECOND STEP: For each Santa cut out four eyes, two tassels and two boots from black felt. From red felt, cut two noses and two mouths. Cut two beards from white.

THIRD STEP: Trim the bottom of Santa's coat with fur or heavy white yarn and the bottom of his cap with red sequins.

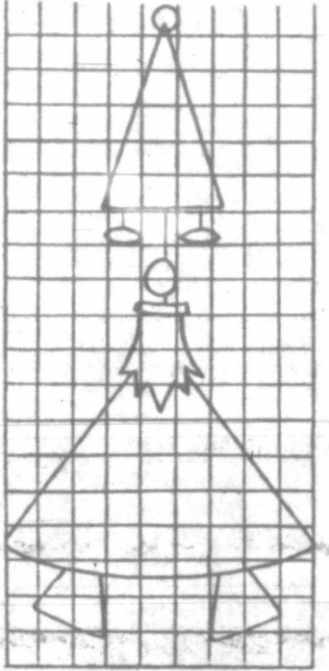

FOURTH STEP: To string the eyes, nose and body, sandwich heavy thread between the two pieces of felt. Use glue to hold the thread and felt together.

FIFTH STEP: Hang the eyes and nose from the bottom of the cap. Hang the body from the bottom of the nose. Attach the thread with a dab of glue.

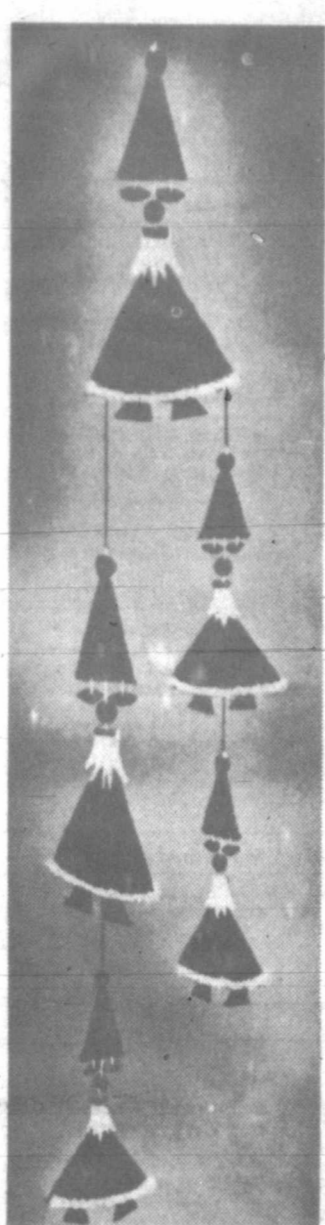

SIXTH STEP: The Santas can be made into a mobile by hanging one Santa from another. Hang the individual strings of various sizes from one central point.

The swinging, swaying Santas are part of the jolly family of clothes pin dolls, pine cone owls and pixie tree ornaments in Dusty Pilot's Christmas Craft Book which also includes many other holiday decorating ideas.

Order your own and gift copies today. The book costs only $1.50 each (includes postage and handling). Send check or money order with name, address and zip code to CHRISTMAS CRAFTS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Dept. J, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

FOLLOW THIS PATTERN TO MAKE A BASIC FELT SANTA. SIZE CAN BE INCREASED OR DECREASED ACCORDING TO THE SIZE DESIRED.

FELT SANTA CLAUSES cut to various sizes make a holiday mobile. This makes good gifts for family members and also is good family project.

By STANLEY JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Archdeacon and Emma Stiles, who twinkled and chuckle like Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, are selling off a treasure trove of antique toys that has eager collectors straining at the leash like Dancer and Prancer on Christmas Eve. Most of them date from the 18th century, the classic age of American toy-making, and the more than 4,000 items are expected to fetch from $25 for "ordinary" items to $6,000 for the most "important" ones. They will be auctioned next Tuesday and Wednesday at PBM, a sort of poor man's version of Sotheby Parke Bernet. A cast-iron model of a four-horse-drawn carriage called a "four hand brake" is expected to draw the top price.

"Right up until last year we wouldn't sell one single toy," said Mrs. Stiles, the more subdued of the couple, while her white-bearded husband, his tufted eyebrows shading sparkling blue eyes, added they would continue collecting.

But they have found that the toys, which range from dolls and cast iron banks to carousel horses and Victorian doll carriages, are taking over their house.

"We'll be glad to have this money," he said, "but we'll keep right on looking for more. It's a fun business, and it's too much excitement to pass up."

The Stiles make their living in Meyersville, N.J., running a resale shop — less elegantly known as a junk shop.

The couple, both in their 60s, couldn't pick a favorite from the toy collection, which is believed to be the biggest ever auctioned in America.

"You have a shine for one for a while and then it goes to another one," he said.

He pointed to a three-foot-high model of a ferris wheel painted in pastel colors.

"We had that one there on a coffee table," he said. "It has a clock-work mechanism and will turn for three or four hours when it's perfectly balanced. We use coins and other little objects and keep testing them until it does balance."

Stiles, who occasionally invites some of their 14 pet deer into the house, added: "We'd watch it for hours, and so would the deer."

Accidents are the leading cause of death for those in the 15 to 24 age group, says the National Safety Council. About two-thirds of these deaths result from motor-vehicle related accidents.

Texas still one-party state

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — The results of this month's elections reinforce the notion that Texas is still predominately a one-party state.

Moderate to conservative Democrats handily turned back Republican competition in all but a few House races and one Senate contest.

Republicans lost at least one of their four current seats — the one vacated by Rep. Alan Steelman who unsuccessfully challenged Sen. Lloyd Bentsen — and are on the short end in another race where a recount is being held.

Those results and President-elect Jimmy Carter's Texas victory prompted a Republican pollster to lament that the Democrats might have stemmed the Republican tide in the Lone Star State.

"Texas is the one state in which ideology is important," said Richard Wirthlin, president of California-based Decision Making Information, a nationwide polling firm.

"It's very difficult for a Republican to beat a conservative Democrat in the State of Texas," he added.

The Virginia Company held a lottery on June 26, 1614, to help raise money to be used by the colonies. It was the first important lottery in America and the grand prize was 4,500 crowns.

The observation is enough to cause some Republicans to worry that the Texas Senate seat now held by Republican Sen. John Tower could be in danger in 1978. A host of Democratic candidates, covering the political spectrum, are interested in challenging Tower, who has always been considered vulnerable under the right conditions.

Wirthlin, who handled former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's private surveys in the primaries and did a poll for Steelman, acknowledged that Tower might be hard-pressed in his reelection bid if he is opposed by a Texas conservative, such as Rep. Robert Krueger. The 41-year-old New Braunfels Democrat, who easily won a second term, is known to harbor statewide if not national ambitions.

Wirthlin and Democratic pollster Peter Hart, who conducted Bentsen's polls in the past campaign, gave a post-mortem of the election in a breakfast meeting with reporters a week after the race.

The Republican pollster attributed Carter's good showing in Texas — he beat Ford by 130,000 votes — to the former Georgia governor's southern roots and a good Democratic effort in the state.

In Texas, Wirthlin said Steelman's early polls which he conducted showed that the Dallas Republican had virtually no chance of defeating Bentsen. Steelman got less than one-third of the vote.

A Democrat, State Rep. Jim Mattox, beat Republican Nancy Judy to capture Steelman's current seat. Another incumbent Republican, Rep. Ron Paul of Lake Jackson, lost his 22nd District race by 94 votes to State Sen. Robert Gammage, but a recount has been called.

If Paul loses, the only Texas Republicans in the House will be Rep. James Collins of Dallas and Rep. Bill Archer of Houston.

Post Office expects strike to cause clog

By LOUISE COOK

Postal officials say they are managing — so far — to cope with the crush of packages clogging the mails because of a 15-day strike against United Parcel Service. But the situation may get worse as Christmas gets closer.

The first negotiations in more than a week are scheduled for today. And one postmaster, in Springfield, Mass., said, "Even a strike settlement will not end our problem, so much is already in the pipeline."

Whether your holiday parcel is delayed is largely up to you. And to the millions of other Americans sending gift packages during December.

Authorities say they can handle the extra volume if consumers mail early — parcels by Friday, Dec. 3, and cards by Friday, Dec. 10.

(Note: Christmas cards are not directly affected by the strike, but postal officials are trying to even out the workload, just in case manpower shifts are needed later on. "We're trying to spread out the peaks and valleys," said one spokesman.)

The strike at UPS — the nation's largest private carrier of packages — has more than doubled the amount of bulk mail handled by the U.S. Postal Service in the East, and a sudden surge of last-minute business could cause severe problems. The walkout also has boosted shipping costs for firms which normally receive stock and fill orders via UPS.

Arthur B. Morin supervises the regional bulk mail center which handles most parcels shipped to western New England. "We tried to prepare for a small landslide, but it turned out to be an avalanche."

Other officials said things were going smoothly. Oscar B. Sloan, the postmaster in Charlotte, N.C., said volume was up by 300 per cent. "But we are handling it . . . without any difficulty," he added.

James Donovan, the postmaster in Albany, N.Y., agreed. "Our people have done a terrific job," he said. "But it could get a little sticky later on when people start mailing their Christmas packages."

The Teamsters Union strike began Sept. 15, and talks have been stalemated, with virtually no hope of a settlement in time for the pre-Christmas rush. The walkout involves several issues — including job security — and has idled 17,000 employees of the delivery service from Maine to South Carolina. UPS workers in other areas have settled with the company, but the strike affects anyone who is sending a package to, or getting one from, the East.

Most delays reported thus far have been relatively minor — only a day or two. None of the businesses contacted in an Associated Press spot check indicated that the strike was preventing it from complying with a new federal regulation requiring companies to deliver mail orders within 30 days or offer customers a full refund.

Salt may prevent root rot

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Scientists at Texas A&M University have come up with a promising solution to the problem of root rot in cotton crops, but it doesn't involve any secret formulas.

The cure may be on your kitchen table . . . in the salt shaker. "Table salt treatment just may be the answer," said Dr. William Eichhof, a researcher at the Cotton, Inc., center in Raleigh, N.C., whose firm commissioned the research by A&M.

Dr. Stuart Lyda heads the research team at A&M. He observed several years ago that root rot does not occur in soil with a high salt content because it causes a chemical exchange that creates carbon dioxide, which strangles root rot spores.

Clashes over PBS shows

By JERRY T. BAULCH

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three years of uneasy peace, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the Public Broadcasting Service are clashing again this week over control of public television programming.

The crux of the dispute is a contention by the PBS that the corporation's proper role is to finance the programs but to leave their selection to the PBS and the 265 member-stations of its network.

The issue is to be debated Thursday at a meeting of the CPB-PBS Partnership Review Committee in New York City.

A senior PBS executive said the big question is "who represents the system's needs and what the station's schedules require." He said the PBS, whose governing bodies consist of station managers, is in the best position to fill this role.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting is run by a presidentially appointed 15-member board.

As things are now, the PBS executive said, there is "too much wasteful bureaucracy" which drains funds that could be spent better.

A spokesman for the corporation, in a separate interview, said the corporation is following the law in getting involved in program choice. However, he said, the differences now are being framed in terms of fundamental philosophy and that both parties can discuss the problem on this basis rather than on a program-by-program basis.

The disagreement has been simmering for some time over such specifics as the corporation's decision to spend $12 million over six years to acquire the British Broadcasting Corporation's Shakespeare series and the corporation's decision to set up a $1 million revolving fund for production of documentaries.

The showdown was set when the PBS board of governors and board of managers, meeting in Kansas City earlier this month, voted unanimously to instruct their representatives in this week's meeting to develop "a simplified, rational and effective structure and division of roles and responsibilities between CPB and public television licensees."

This, the resolution said, must be "consistent with the mandate of the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967 for local control of public broadcasting in this country."

The corporation's proper role, the resolution said, is as a non-government entity to disburse federal funds to the public broadcasting system, aid the stations and insulate them from politics.

The PBS group was instructed to tell the corporation that the funds which the CPB disburses to the public broadcasting system are federal matching funds earned by the system through nonfederal support generated by the individual stations.

Couple takes protest to court

CLAREMONT, N.H. (AP) — The case of a husband and wife who have refused to display New Hampshire's motto "Live Free or Die" on their license plates reaches the nation's highest court today.

"We feel life is more precious than freedom," say George and Maxine Maynard.

A panel of three federal judges ruled in February that the Maynards acted within the law when they taped over the motto on their plates. New Hampshire has appealed that judgment, and arguments were to be presented to the U.S. Supreme Court today in Washington.

Maynard, a 42-year-old printer, had gone to jail for refusing to pay a fine imposed for obscuring the motto. The Maynards, who are Jehovah's Witnesses, said the motto violates their religious beliefs.

The federal judges said that under the First Amendment, freedom of symbolic expression protected the Maynards' action.

The decision prompted Gov. Meldrim Thomson to say that "if the un-American decisions of misguided judges are allowed to continue unchallenged and unchecked, the judiciary will succeed in doing what no enemy has been able to do — namely destroy America."

In the appeal, state Atty. Gen. David Souther said he felt the case went beyond what is protected by the First Amendment.

He also said that the significance of the Maynards' actions was "extremely ambiguous."

"Live Free or Die" replaced "Scenic New Hampshire" on license plates in 1969, during the Vietnam war. Supporters in the state legislature argued that the motto was patriotic.

Opponents said the slogan could be interpreted as a demand for welfare or a call to revolution. It was pointed out that the motto was also claimed by such groups as the Black Panthers.

The origin of the slogan has been traced to a letter by Gen. John Stark, a hero of the Battle of Bennington, to the veterans of the Revolution.
