

Undersheriff orders terrorist killed

HAYSVILLE, Kan. (AP) — Undersheriff Sam Davidson said it was "the choice of one life or eight" that made him order sharpshooters to kill a former mental patient who threatened seven hostages with death in a home in this Wichita suburb.

Larry Leer, 30, was killed Wednesday night by two shots in the chest eight hours after he took Bonnie Horinek and her four children captive and held them with a pistol, rifle and six other weapons he gathered in their home. As the drama progressed, the Horineks were released and he took seven other hostages.

Leer's initial demand was to see his former girlfriend, Lonnie Beam, Mrs. Horinek's sister. But after she arrived, the demands grew to include cigarettes, protection upon surrender, protection from bankruptcy, and commitment at a mental hospital of his choice.

As police and sheriff's deputies gathered outside the dwelling, Leer told his hostages: "They (the officers) have signed our death warrants."

Two hours before the shooting, an Associated Press reporter telephoned Leer, who identified himself by saying, "You're talking to the man holding the gun."

He told the reporter he refused to end his life in a gutter somewhere, adding: "A man has to have something to live for and without the things that he lives for he must die. These things I must live for or I must die."

Before Leer could elaborate, his attorney, Warner Eisenbise of Wichita, who was one of the hostages, cut into the conversation.

Another hostage, Sedgwick County Sheriff Johnnie Darr, said, "When I went into the house, all the people were in control. They were very calm and very cool. "If any one of them had made a bad move while Mrs. Horinek and her four kids were there, I'm afraid we'd have all been shot."

Other hostages — who came to the home at various times at Leer's request or in exchange for the Horinek family — were Miss Beam, Police Lt. Harry Minor, Police Det. Bernie Drowalski, Police Chaplain The Rev. Byron D. Tracy and Charles W. Pickard, identified as a counselor.

Authorities said Leer had come to the Horinek home to see Miss Beam, who wasn't there. An argument developed, and Leer grabbed a pistol, pointed it at the head of John Horinek, Bonnie's husband, and threatened to kill him, officers said.

Horinek ran from the house, called police, and Haysville officer George Jameson, 32, was grazed on the head when Leer fired the pistol as he responded to the call.

Nurses, director quit

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Several nurses walked out of the Leisure Lodge Nursing Center Wednesday, quitting after the administrator fired one nurse who had refused to be transferred from the day shift to the night shift.

Following the incident, Mrs. Billie Jo Burrier, administrator of the center, told The News, "We are not short-handed. We had three LVNs and an RN walk out, but we still have plenty left. We were overstocked in the first place."

The administrator said that according to state regulations, nursing homes are required to maintain a ratio one licensed nurse per 30 patients and Leisure Lodge currently has 91 patients and "I think we have five LVNs still," Mrs. Burrier said. She added that she was going to the Amarillo airport at midnight to meet two RNs and an LVN who are being flown in from other nursing facilities in the Leisure Lodge chain, to work in Pampa until replacements for the nurses who quit can be hired.

One of those who quit was the director of nurses, Mrs. Jean Burch of White Deer.

She said, "They may be staffed within state standards, but there are a lot of patients out there who are bedfast and semi-bedfast. In order to care for this type of patient it requires more personnel."

Mrs. Burch said she quit not only because "I don't feel that we're adequately staffed to care for the elderly people," but also because "the administrator went over my head and fired one of my LVNs."

The director said she had been at the facility since the first week in November and "I was beginning to get a pretty good staff. But the nurse aide situation is bad. There's a lot of turnover. They only pay them minimum wage and we get a bunch of kids coming in that just needed a job temporarily."

One of the nurses who quit said, "We didn't want to quit out there. We know all those patients out there and we care about them. We'd all like to stay there. We just walked out because things aren't done right. We have licenses at stake. If somebody would die out there because of improper care, we could lose our licenses."

The quitting nurses said that insufficient supplies are kept at the center.

"We have had to go to Highland General Hospital to buy supplies because supplies have not come from Fort Smith. (Ark.) when they were needed," one of them said.

Fort Smith is the central supply depot for all the Leisure Lodge facilities — 51 in Texas and 15 in Arkansas.

"Would you believe they don't have a band aid out there?" one of the quitting nurses said. "We have to make our own. We've only got four or five thermometers and they are ones that patients have brought back from the hospital with them."

One of the nurses said that she had once given a family the money to go to Highland to buy a catheter for one of the Leisure Lodge patients.

"I think that's ridiculous," Mrs. Burrier said when asked about the quitting situation. She laughed when asked about the absence of band aids.

"We have tape and gauze, we don't need band aids," she said.

She said, "We can get anything within a week from Fort Smith," and added that if it is needed sooner, it can be put on a bus and sent to Pampa within 24 hours. She said that in emergency situations supplies have been purchased from local pharmacies and Highland General Hospital.

"There was always a shortage of supplies," the director of nurses said. "We had been without catheters; we had been without catheter bags."

She added that she had "never worked any place before where you didn't have a band aid."

This reporter visited Leisure Lodge and the administrator opened the supply room wherein there were several boxes of catheters.

"We had just gotten them in," the director of nurses said.

She added that "There have been times when we have had no sheets; the night shift has had no linens to change the beds."

Mrs. Burrier showed this reporter a linen closet containing about three dozen sheets and she said others were on service carts in the halls and in other linen closets in each of the six wings. She did not acknowledge a shortage of bedclothes, but did say many were on order.

The nurses said that Leisure Lodge had been placed on a "vendor hold" until recently.

"A vendor hold is when the Welfare Department holds the money until they are satisfied with a facility," Mrs. Burrier said.

She admitted that a vendor hold had been placed on Leisure Lodge but that it had happened before she came as administrator in September.

Asked why the Welfare Department had ordered the hold, Mrs. Burrier said, "The same thing happened before; people walked out and there were inexperienced people here who didn't know what to do."

The administrator said that she anticipated the Wednesday walkout.

"I heard the rumbles and had people coming before they were gone," she said.

The nurses who left said that in the year and a half that Leisure Lodge has been in Pampa there has been a large turnover in personnel. They said that the nurse who was fired was the senior employee and had worked at the facility since May 29.

Of Mrs. Burrier, one said, "She's the third or fourth administrator. There have been two since August. And there have been three directors of nurses since August."

"I'll tell you what the problem is," Mrs. Burrier said of the high rate of administrator turnover, "none of them has guts enough to stand up for what they believe and has let the employees run them off. This is not the first place I've been to where they've had these problems. I told them at the first staff meeting I was here to stay and they were not going to get rid of me."

Mrs. Burrier has been an administrator with the Leisure Lodge firm for five years.

She explained that the turnover in the directors of nurses position "is the same reason the other people left. They did not want to carry out the administrator's orders."

One point of contention between the quitting nurses and the administrator concerns overtime pay.

"All along we've been paid for overtime and then on our checks on the 24th of December she paid no overtime except to one LVN," a nurse said.

She said that one of them threatened to contact the labor board about the incident and she said that Mrs. Burrier then called the area supervisor for Leisure Lodge in Lubbock.

"Then she said it would be paid that time, but no more," the nurse said.

"We pay time and a half for authorized overtime," Mrs. Burrier said. "But they are supposed to get authorization before they stay. The problem was they (previous administrators) let them (nurses) have all the overtime they wanted. They (nurses) were staying like four hours overtime to get eight hours work done."

The directors of nurses said, "The evening shift often worked two or three hours overtime closing out charts."

She said that Mrs. Burrier maintained the overtime was due to inefficiency.

"I'm not so sure," Mrs. Burch said. She added that "as far as I know there are people talking to the labor board about overtime they have coming."

One of the nurses said, "When I was working days, I couldn't have made it to work and back without lights on the car. It was usually dark when I went to work in the morning and often dark when I left to go home."

Another nurse said that "setting up the medications takes more than eight hours, but you are expected to work overtime without pay to finish it."

The nurse who was fired said, "I often leave the house at 5:30 in the morning to get everything done and I don't charge them for it."

Mrs. Burrier said, "We have LVNs to replace LVNs on a shift. There is no reason for them to stay over."

Mrs. Burch acknowledged that an LVN in the evening replaced two on the day shift, but she said, "Nevertheless, you have to close up charts and medications for that shift have to be packed and counted."

Another point of dispute concerns transportation for the patients.

"There's no way to take patients to their doctors," one of the nurses contended. "People just have to volunteer. Many have no families to do this."

Mrs. Burrier said, "We furnish transportation," referring to herself, the assistant administrator and the activities director.

Patients at Leisure Lodge pay rates ranging from $18.93 to $24.50 per day. Of the 91 total patients, 67 receive financial aid from Medicaid.

"Our main concern is patient care," Mrs. Burrier said. "And anybody who walks out and leaves them in the middle of a shift is not here to take care of them."

The nurses who came to The News after they had quit said, "People in the community should know that we care."

A nurse said that when one of the patients learned of the firing of one of the nurses, "she got real upset, crying and shaking, and said she was moving out."

Mrs. Burrier said that one patient "put her arms around me and said, 'I heard them conniving against you and I'm 100 per cent for you.'"

"Families and residents are our biggest critics and they have not left us," the administrator said.

The nurses said that three patients recently have moved across the street to Pampa Nursing Center. One has moved from the Pampa Nursing Center to Leisure Lodge, but moved back to Pampa Nursing Center after about a week, one of the nurses said.

The administrator said, "We had one, three weeks ago, come here from across the street. We had two go over there. It is a back and forth process."

Second-highest scorer

Senior guard Rayford Young hits for two more points in the Pampa Harvesters' victory this week over Albuquerque Monzano at the Clovis, N.M. tournament. Young finished second in individual scoring for the tournament with 69 points over three games. Pampa won the championship in Clovis with a 56-46 win over the host team Wednesday. Young, Brian Bailey and Don Hughes were named to the all-tournament team, with Bailey selected as the Most Valuable Player. Next game for the Harvesters is Tuesday against Lubbock Monterey.

Carter mum on finances

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter says he is not ready to announce what he will do with his own extensive financial interests while in the White House. But he promises to abide by the same restrictions he plans to place on his top appointees.

Carter commented on his financial holdings and on a conflict-of-interest code Wednesday shortly before he returned to his home here after holding preinaugural cabinet meetings. Aides said the code of ethics for all those Carter names to high positions would be made public late today or Friday.

For three days, the President-elect held marathon meetings with his prospective cabinet members and other key advisers on St. Simons Island, a secluded resort off the Georgia coast.

The economy and the direction the new administration will take after the Jan. 20 inauguration were high on the agenda.

Carter told a Dec. 20 news conference he already had approved of the code of ethics and that Press Secretary Jody Powell would make it available for publication. For reasons never fully explained, release of the document was delayed.

Carter said Wednesday that all his appointees to date have agreed to meet the terms of the code, and he said:

"It will require the complete divestiture of any financial relationships that might create a conflict of interest, and a complete revelation of all other economic holdings, including net worth statements."

And the President-elect added, "I'll conform with the same restrictions I've placed on the cabinet members."

Carter reported during his campaign that his net worth at the end of 1975 was $811,982.00.

Gorilla, shark fight for grossing title

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

"King Kong" is roaring around the world, but whether the 40-foot ape can take a bite out of "Jaws" remains to be seen.

In 1,500 theaters worldwide, the movie has grossed more than $25 million in 10 days or less, said Gordon Armstrong, a spokesman for Italian producer Dino De Laurentiis. It opened in 2,200 theaters on or immediately after Dec. 17, but not all have reported.

"It's going extremely well," De Laurentiis said Wednesday. "We'll know by Jan. 15 if we can top the goal we've set for ourselves."

That goal is to top the $192 million taken in by "Jaws," the top money-making film of all time. At present "King Kong" is running behind the early take of "Jaws" in the United States.

De Laurentiis' remake of the 1933 film classic was considered a gamble. Early in production he had difficulty with the 40-foot mechanical monster, and some people thought he had a disaster on his hands. But the problems were ironed out and the film opened to generally favorable reviews.

Kong, an intriguing blend of innocence and terror, is the star of the film. Supporting him are Jeff Bridges, Jessica Lange and Charles Grodin.

Early comparisons with "Jaws" are difficult because "King Kong" opened worldwide, while Universal's "Jaws" did not open overseas until some time after its June 20, 1975, American premiere. Universal spokesmen said they have not separated foreign from domestic box office figures for "Jaws" and can only report the $192 million total.

"King Kong" took in $18 million in its first 10 days in 964 theaters in the United States, while in the same period "Jaws" grossed $21 million in 409 theaters. Figures from Canada were not available.

Swine flu shots stopped

ATLANTA (AP) — With the nation's swine flu inoculation program suspended for at least another few weeks, some experts are predicting that there will be no need to resume it at all this winter.

The federal Center for Disease Control ordered Wednesday that the moratorium began Dec. 16 be extended until the strange paralytic disease called Guillain-Barre Syndrome can be studied more closely to determine whether it is linked to the vaccinations.

Several experts who met at the CDC here said the program probably would be reinstated only if signs of a flu epidemic appeared. They said there appears to be no threat of widespread swine flu or A-Victoria flu, last winter's major influenza.

"There is very little influenza anywhere in the world at the moment," said Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the CDC. "We hope that it stays that way."

After the CDC announcement, Maryland's health secretary said in Baltimore that his state had "permanently discontinued" its swine flu vaccination program. Dr. Neil Solomon said he made the decision after officials in Atlanta told him the chance of a swine flu outbreak this year were "zich, next to no possibility."

Only two cases of swine flu have been confirmed in the United States since the inoculation program began Oct. 1, both Wisconsin men engaged in farm work. A suspected case in Missouri was not confirmed.

At a news conference after the experts announced their recommendation, several said there was a scarcity of information about the rare syndrome, which they said has never before been closely monitored. They said they still could not be certain whether there was any connection between it and swine flu shots.

Since the inoculations began, 19 persons have died from Guillain-Barre. Of those, 11 had been inoculated against swine flu. In all, 496 people have suffered from Guillain-Barre since Oct. 1, including 242 who had received swine flu vaccinations, four who had received shots for Hong Kong flu.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy weather and not as warm today. Cloudy and colder tonight and Friday, with a slight chance of snow on Friday. Today's high will be near 50, the low in the 20s. Friday's high will be near 30. The probability of snow Friday is 20 per cent.

Oil use hits new high

WASHINGTON (AP) — American use of oil hit a new high in December, and while the government is blaming colder weather for the increase the weather bureau says January temperatures also will be below normal for the eastern half of the nation.

In a report Wednesday, the Federal Energy Administration said U.S. demand for oil averaged about 19,131,000 barrels a day during the four weeks that ended Dec. 17. That broke the previous record of 19,094,000 barrels of oil per day, recorded in February 1973, the winter before the Arab oil embargo.

The agency noted that use of oil has been more restrained since the embargo, aided in part by unusually mild winters the past two years.

But cold weather has returned to the eastern half of the nation this winter, and the FEA said that was largely responsible for the heavier use of fuel oils used both in home heating units and in the generation of electric power.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service said the cold December weather is going to be followed by colder January weather.

The weather service said in a report on Wednesday that it expects temperatures to average below normal in most areas east of the Continental Divide and in the southern Rocky Mountains.

The FEA said the largest increase over the 1975 figures was a 22.4 per cent hike in the use of distillate fuel oils such as those used in home heating units. It said the use of residual or heavy fuel oil, mostly used for generation of electricity and by industry, climbed 20.3 per cent over last year.

Perhaps it's the extreme cold or the rapidly changing way of life in Alaska...

Alcoholism is giant problem

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
NOME, Alaska (AP) — Even for a Saturday, it had been a rough night. The jail was busy. The hospital was busy.

About 2 a.m., the police brought in one fight's drunken loser who was so banged up it took the nurses a few minutes to discover his nose was missing.

Half an hour later, a police officer showed up with the shredded appendage, and the weary surgeon went to work.

Alcoholism, and all its accoutrements — crime, suicide, just plain trouble — are the bane of Alaska, and especially northwest Alaska where the alcoholism rate is one of the highest in the world and still growing.

Alaska leads the nation in per capita alcoholic intake — 3.86 gallons a year for everyone over 15. One of every 10 people in a state with 360,000 population is an alcoholic or a problem drinker. The problem is especially bad among Eskimos (nearly 20 per cent of the total population) in small bush towns like Nome, on the Bering Sea coast, only 120 miles from Siberia.

Perhaps it is that day and night lose meaning in the land of the midnight sun.

Last year 1,277 drunk and disorderly arrests were logged in this old gold mining town. It only has 2,500 residents.

Police Chief Cecil Johnson says 99 per cent of Nome's crime is related to alcohol. The hospitals say 99 per cent of their emergency cases involve alcohol. District Court Judge Ethan Windahl says: "If it weren't for demon rum, I wouldn't have a job."

Help is far away. There is no detoxification center in the area. If the hospital and the town's one psychologist decide a patient needs such help, he or she is flown to Anchorage for treatment in the state's primary alcoholism facility. Some go in straightjackets.

There are very few hard-core criminals in Nome. "Most of the offenses here involve someone getting drunk and then doing something stupid," said Johnson. "Most of the people around here are robust and like to drink."

Last year there were three murders, six rapes, 10 auto thefts, 32 burglaries, 21 cases of joy-riding, and one incident of child abuse.

Two persons killed themselves and 38 more tried "by any means you can think up — shooting, pills, hanging," said Ed Ward, chief investigator in the 10-man department. "We managed to talk a lot of people out of it because they generally were intoxicated."

About 85 per cent of Nome's population is Eskimo. Many arrests involve Eskimo visitors from the several dozen villages. Most of the visiting offenders are model citizens, police say. But when they come to town...

"This is not a dangerous place, it's a peaceful town," Johnson insists. "It's just that people like to drink a lot." Why drink? Unless you are a devout churchgoer, a television addict or a voracious reader, that's about the only thing to do.

Long ago white men taught the Eskimos to drink, and since then there has been no effective effort to teach them not to.

"There are some repeat prisoners who come before me in court whose alcoholism problems just can't be cured by the techniques we know," said Windahl. "An awful lot of the people I'm describing have permanent brain damage from alcohol."

A former Legal Services attorney appointed to the bench three years ago, Windahl has been criticized by many Nome residents as being too lenient.

"I don't believe in putting people in jail for an alcohol-related offense if it is minor," says the tall, lanky man in jeans. "In many cases, I assume it is some sort of problem that can be dealt with on a personal level. But it is so terribly frustrating to see some of the same people over and over again."

Windahl recently began cooperating with a native organization's fledgling family services center by sentencing some repeat alcoholic defendants to spend varying amounts of time in an Antabuse program. To avoid jail, the person must regularly take the medication, which causes violent nausea if liquor is consumed. If they do not cooperate in the program, their parole is revoked and they are sent to jail.

Although it is too soon to assess results accurately, Windahl says the program is moderately successful. The judge is also hopeful a new Alaska law will cut down on the number of cases before his court. The law allows police to pick up a drunk and hold him in jail for 12 hours in "protective custody" without formal charge.

Police generally favor the law because it may cut down on fights and crime and protect the drunks from stumbling off into the below-zero wilderness.

Johnson says every year a few lose consciousness in a snowbank and freeze to death. Most of the victims' bodies remain hidden until spring thaw.

Windahl says alcoholism in northwest Alaska has no racial boundaries.

"Some glibly say a breakdown in the Eskimo culture causes the people to resort to alcohol," said the judge. "Maybe I'm a dimwit anthropologist, but it seems to me we have so many people raising a ruckus because so often here a person is not deemed drunk until he has passed out. If there is no violence, people just tend to get out of the way."

"If I behaved that way at a cocktail party in Southern California, everybody would be appalled at my behavior..."

Not just town drunks. Youngsters too. Dr. Steve Harrison received a frantic telephone call in Nome one bleak Monday morning. It was from an anguished father.

"Okay, everything's going to be all right, we'll send a plane down to White Mountain and you just bring her on in to the hospital and we'll take care of her," said northwest Alaska's only psychologist. He hung up and called the hospital to alert doctors that a young alcoholic with psychotic tendencies was on her way. Harrison is director of Norton Sound Health Corporation's Family Services Center, a two-year-old, government-financed, mental health organization.

Its primary function is to counsel people who drink too much. It also tries to prevent people from killing themselves.

"When you talk about drinking in northwest Alaska, you're talking about something that reaches into every facet of life here," said Harrison, a long-haired Californian who's been in town only six months. "Most of the people... walked in the door because they were hurting."

"Court referrals have been mostly young kids in their late teens or early 20s who generally learn to drink at home because their parents do," said Harrison's assistant, Barry Levit. "Here there is no such thing as 'social drinking.'"

Officials say alcoholism costs the state $17.8 million annually. That includes direct treatment, welfare money, police services and court fees. The center, with a full-time staff of seven, is hiring native employees to train as counselors "so the alcoholic Eskimos up here can relate to the people who are offering help," Levit said.

He and the rest of the office staff work out of a two-story Front Street building just a block from most of Nome's bars and across the street from the jail.

The top floor has been converted into a "day hospital," a place Levit describes as a room where "people can lie down, play ping pong, drink coffee, work with crafts, fight the desire for a drink, get their head together and not be hassled."

But on Saturdays, because of short staff, the center is closed.

Another who helps is Renard Nichols, a police lieutenant who has halted more than one suicide attempt. When Nichols isn't taking people to jail, he is administering coffee, cigarettes and compassion.

Balding, 43, father of three young children and husband to a pretty native wife, Nichols has been in jail and twice fired from the Nome police force.

"I went clear to the bottom," he says. "Like everyone else does when they come to Nome, I hit all the bars night after night. One night I might be drinking with the city manager, the next night I might be fighting with him, and the next day I'd be working for him."

"Of course I'm good to the drunks on the street," he admits. "They are mostly decent human beings who've got an enormous problem and aren't getting much help in solving it." "Remember, I've been in the jug with most of them. I don't want to ever get back in there. By helping them, I also help myself."

Police Officer Guy Martin poses near the police station in Nome, Alaska. Nome only has 2,500 residents — yet last year it logged 1,277 drunk and disorderly arrests and about 99 per cent of the old gold mining town's crime can be related to alcohol. It seems people like to drink a lot and in Nome there's not much else to do. (AP News features photo)

Unreported evidence disclosed in murder

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A search of the home where multimillionaire Cullen Davis was arrested Aug. 3 produced several pieces of potential evidence despite earlier police reports that the search was fruitless, testimony in pretrial hearings for Davis' capital murder trial revealed Wednesday.

Davis charged with murdering his stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, 12, and former basketball player Stan Farr in the Davis mansion was arrested about 4:30 a.m. This was four hours after the shootings at the home of Karen Master in Edgely Village, a suburb south of Fort Worth. Police and district attorney's investigators obtained a warrant Aug. 5 from Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore and searched the home. They reported to Ashmore the next day they had obtained no evidence. Under questioning Wednesday by defense lawyer Richard

Haynes, however, city detective C. R. Davis said several items were found by crime lab personnel. In asking Ashmore for the search warrant, detective Davis — no relation to Cullen Davis — signed an affidavit stating a search for the murder weapon would be conducted at the Master home. On the witness stand Wednesday, the detective repeated that no gun was found there — investigators never have found it. At the same time he identified several items: —A strand of hair from an aluminum chair.

No description of the hair was given. Davis' hair is black and Mrs. Master's is blonde. Investigators have not revealed —A dark stain from the chair. —A dark stain from a wall in a hallway.

No details about the stains were given, but in later testimony, Asst. Dist. Atty. Marvin Collins said a piece of evidence identified as a "white paint sample with a red stain" may have been the item scraped from the wall.

Anthropologist says CBs fill need

By Ink Dipper
(Editor's Note: Ink Dipper (KYZ-3516) is the handle of the editor of The CB Times-Journal.)
CBing has been hailed as a lifesaver for people, like truckers and traveling salesmen, who are on the road. But many of the nation's enthusiastic CBers never leave town or drive on the freeway.

These people have no apparent need for a CB radio, but they're often the ones who receive the crucial messages from other CBers who need help. The CB is more to them than just a tool or a casual pastime. It's an obsession. They spend hours at a stretch in front of the CB radio at home, talking to other people who they've never met and might not even say "hello" to if they met them on a street and didn't know who they were.

So why are they into CBing? That's a question that social scientists are beginning to ask, and we can look for some research on the subject in the future. Dr. William Lee, an anthropologist and CBER for the last 12 years, has already researched the subject and has come to some conclusions. "People want to communicate with other people. That's a basic anthropological principle," says Dr. Lee, anthropological curator at the Los Angeles Museum of Natural History.

"But in this country we've gotten away from personal contact. You might be in a traffic jam in downtown Los Angeles, but you're still isolated inside the car." The CB allows people to reach out and have the kind of contact they need, he says, and they're also able to fulfill psychological and sociological needs. "Small groups tend to form over the CB. It's sort of a living room discussion group, and people really look forward every night to making these personal contacts that they can't make in everyday life."

"People who are shy tend to lose that shyness when they're on the air, and they essentially 'discover' themselves on the CB. They discover other people with common needs and problems. It's really quite therapeutic." Since it fulfills these needs, Dr. Lee is confident that CBing will remain more than just a fad. Dr. Lee's specialty in anthropology is communications, and he sees the CB boom as a social phenomenon that's being ignored by most of the academic community.

"A great many people are dismissing it as a fad and, like a lot of other things that have been considered fads, CBing won't receive the attention it needs for some time," he says. Dr. Lee recently put together, through the University of California at Los Angeles extension program, a one-day symposium on the cultural and psychological aspects of CBing.

Included on the program were CBERs, highway patrolmen, representatives of the CB manufacturing industry, and social scientists. The audience was made up largely of other social scientists and psychologists who were curious about the CBing explosion and what it means. Dr. Lee also has students working under him on advanced degrees who are planning research on the subject. He has his own ideas about why CBers do certain things. CBER handles, for instance, are names that people give themselves to project an image of how they see themselves or how they would like other people to see them.

Auditions for Texas drama set

Auditions for actors, dancers, singers, technicians and instrumentalists in the annual production of the musical drama "Texas" will open in Canyon and Lubbock Jan. 15 and 16. Interested persons must be 18 years old by May 22, the day of the first rehearsal. Auditions in Canyon will be Saturday, Jan. 15, from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at the Branding Iron Theater in the Fine Arts Building at West Texas State University. Dancers will audition at 5 p.m. In Lubbock the following day, auditions will be from 1 to 3 p.m. at the University Theater, Texas Tech University. Dancers will audition at 3 p.m. Actors must prepare a memorized scene not longer than three minutes and audition for singing as well, since actors are members of the "Texas" chorus. Singers should perform one number and present a short memorized selection. Many singers double in minor speaking roles. Technicians will be interviewed personally and their profiles of past experiences will be examined. Instrumentalists may audition for positions with the violin, banjo, string bass, accordion and standard guitar. According to Pampa High School senior Angela Day, a member of the "Texas" company last year, the producers look for recommendations from past instructors. Performers in the company should be fast to learn; the cast has only two weeks to memorize the production. "A lot depends on how you look on stage," Miss Day said. "If you're good and smile for the producers, that has a lot to do with it."

Those who audition are asked to take a photo, school and home addresses and phone numbers. Those accepted into the company will be notified after a few months. Other auditions will be held in Austin Jan. 13 from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Theater Room in the Drama Department of the University of Texas. Auditions in Dallas will be Feb. 26 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at El Centro College. The following day, from 1 to 4 p.m., auditions will be in the Attic Theater in the E. Cullem Building at the University of Houston in Houston.

No dance tryouts will be held in Austin, Dallas or Houston. The company offers 140 salaried positions, ranging from $50 to $1500 for the season, depending on training and experience. The 12th season of "Texas" will run from June 15 to Aug. 20 in the Palo Duro Canyon Pioneer Amphitheater near Canyon.

Cancer society helps tobacco tennis tourney

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — American Cancer Society officials say it's too late to cancel a local chapter's plans to hold a benefit night at a tennis tournament sponsored by a tobacco company. The group is selling 500 tickets to the Jan. 14 round of the Virginia Slims tennis tour. The tour is sponsored by the Philip Morris Tobacco Co. The local chapter of the American Cancer Society sent letters to members announcing the affair. The letter portrays a young woman holding a tennis racket in one hand and a cigarette in the other. "I guess we were stupid, but we just figured we were selling tennis tickets and not cigarettes," said Ann Forte, director of the Broward County chapter. She said it was too late to cancel the affair. "We felt we were just working with tennis people (to raise money) the way we have worked with golf people, such as those with the Jackie Gleason Invitational Classic," Mrs. Forte said.

Coastal States to tell about private talks

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for Coastal States Gas Producing Co. and some of its customers were scheduled to tell the railroad commission today about the status of private negotiations on more than $1.6 billion in damage suits against the company. A similar hearing was held July 22, and those who attended that meeting have been asked to show up again. A spokesman for Coastal, Bob Wells, confirmed that talks had been going on in Houston this week involving Coastal and its subsidiary, Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. There were indications, however, that a settlement is a long way off. General manager Charles Herring of the Lower Colorado River Authority said LCRA lawyer Clint Small had been told "they didn't have anything yet." He (Small) told them he would talk about it when they had something, Herring said. The LCRA, Austin, San Antonio and others are suing Coastal and Lo-Vaca for breach of contract, alleging that they failed to deliver the low-cost natural gas called for in long-term contracts.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I think I'm pregnant. I've made love with my boyfriend, but it wasn't planned or we would have used something. I need some information on a clinic I can go to if I need an abortion.

This really scares me as I've never been to a hospital in my life. I've heard a lot of stories about girls who have had abortions. Some die, and others can never have children.

Are there any free clinics? I can't raise a lot of money. Maybe a few hundred dollars. Is that enough for a safe abortion? I'm in good health except for this problem.

I can't tell my parents. It would kill them. They've already been through this with my sister, only she got married. I swore this would never happen to me.

Please answer me in the column. No way can a reply go to my home. I am 19 and was a "nice" girl before this happened.

SCARED TO DEATH

DEAR SCARED: First, go to your local Planned Parenthood Clinic. They will arrange for an examination to determine whether or not you are pregnant. If you are, they will provide expert counseling to help you make the decision that is best for you. Please write again and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: It's easy to understand why a married man of 45 would leave his wife for a younger woman, but how about a man that age who would leave a beautiful 36-year-old wife for an old, wrinkled grandmother of 55? That is exactly what my brother did. He can't be in his right mind. Don't tell me he is looking for "mother substitute." Our mother is still living, and if ever a man got his share of mother love, Brother did. He was the "baby" of the family, and the only boy, born after four girls.

So please tell me what an intelligent, good-looking, professional man can see in a 55-year-old divorced retread. It's not money. She doesn't have any, and he has plenty.

DISGUSTED IN CHICAGO

DEAR DISGUSTED: One of life's most baffling mysteries is what people "in love" see in each other. But I suspect your brother's reasons are older than the hills and younger than springtime. (P.S. You are not your brother's keeper.)

DEAR ABBY: I applaud that clergyman who was man enough to admit that confessing his infidelity to his wife was a terrible mistake.

My husband of 15 years, whom I loved, respected and trusted implicitly, confessed such an affair to me two years ago, and our marriage will never be the same again.

That boastful confession was deadly, despite his proclaimed love for me. It was the biggest mistake he ever made.

If only one person reading this is considering such a confession to "cleanse his soul," I urge you, please, please, don't!

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read an article in the paper where two heart specialists were discussing heart disease. They said heart ailments could best be treated with exercise and diet rather than using drugs. They did not mention what kind of exercise or diet a heart patient should use. I wish you would give me some facts on dieting and exercise that a person could best use. I am real anxious to know what comments you would give on this subject.

DEAR READER — In articles and on TV programs the short space of time often prevents a complete presentation of the problem. Exercise, diet and not smoking are all important in preventing heart disease and strokes. They are not the answer, however, in some forms of heart disease, and they do not replace properly used medicines.

A person's exercise program depends entirely on what condition the heart is in. When a person has had a heart attack and the valves in the heart have been damaged to the point he can't walk the length of a hospital ward, it is foolish to talk about jogging to cure his damaged heart. A patient with rheumatic heart disease and damaged valves may need an operation and not an exercise program. There is literally no form of heart disease, though, that is benefited by obesity. The same applies to smoking cigarettes.

I think anyone who knows he or she has heart disease should not start an exercise program without discussing it with his or her doctor, familiar with how much heart damage is present.

There is a great deal of difference in what you can say to the public about exercise

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — My Problem is with oil on a vinyl carpet. How can I remove it? Also, I am starting a matchbook cover collection and would appreciate hearing how the readers might have mounted such collections or how they put them in a book without ruining them. Any information will be appreciated. — CONNIE.

DEAR CONNIE — Of course, all stains should be removed immediately — the longer one waits the less likely removers are going to work. You could use a commercial dry cleaning product and follow directions. Or, a teaspoon of white vinegar in three tablespoons lukewarm water. Do not drench but carefully apply only where needed. Let dry five minutes, blot up and follow with clear water put on the same way. To hasten the final drying a fan might be placed nearby. Brush up pile to fluff it. This is recommended in an American Carpet Institute booklet, but no matter what one uses it should be tested first.

I am sure you will be hearing from readers concerning your matchbook collection. They are always so generous about sharing their clever ideas with others. — POLLY.

We'll miss you, Betty

By Judy Clabes

Dear Betty: You didn't ask to be First Lady. You didn't actively seek the job, and most of us got the impression you would be just as happy without it. But when it was thrust on you, you were there, doing it up right when we needed you most.

You were frank, honest, open, natural — all the things we had begun to think First Ladies couldn't be. But most of all, you were human. You made us more comfortable with ourselves.

Oh, we didn't always agree with you, of course. But we couldn't help but love you for the way you were making us feel again.

While we were being bombarded with reports of the inevitable demise of the American family, there you were with a dotting husband and four handsome, well-adjusted, devoted, normal children.

You were a steady influence, you with your boys who'd rather ride bucking broncos, plant trees, or go skiing than bask in the limelight of First Family fame; you with a stringy-haired, often barefoot and bluejean-clad daughter who'd rather have an apartment of her own than the glamorous perquisites of White House living. No fancy finishing schools, no snobbishness, no impudence, no phoiness — just a regular American family doing things regular American families do.

You were ever the mother. Your boys admitted they had smoked marijuana. You weren't shattered. You may not have approved, but they were no less your sons. You admitted — theoretically, of course — that you would try to understand if your daughter confessed to having an affair. Mothers everywhere knew what you meant. We all know we may not always like everything our children will do, but they are our children and we'll love them nonetheless. That's what families are all about. You were a welcome reminder.

And you were ever the wife. You often kissed and hugged your husband for all the world to see. It seemed always spontaneous, genuine — as if you really liked him. Yet, you were your own person, often in disagreement with him on weighty issues, always expressing your own mind.

You made us feel less like freaks, those of us who also have minds of our own, but who love our men, too.

Best of all, your husband seemed to like you that way. We got the impression he really meant it when he said he was proud you spoke your mind.

So there you were, reminding us that marriages can work in wonderful ways.

You made us proud, Betty Ford. Our hearts were with you as you — at your husband's request — read his concession statement to the world. You were gracious and dignified. "Most women couldn't have done that," a male viewer remarked. But deep down he must have been impressed by the fact that women are not necessarily reduced to blubbering incoherence in a clinch.

We remembered that it was Betty Ford who stepped forward and took charge when a man lay dying on the speaker's platform. It was Betty Ford, in a spontaneous act of genuine faith, who prayed. The nation watched in awe: you touched us all.

It was we who prayed for you when we learned of your pending mastectomy. But it was you who gave us strength. You were open, forthright, unashamed, courageous — giving hope to thousands of women who had been through that hell, saving countless others from a similar fate.

How can we repay you for the service you've done us and our country? We'll miss you, Betty Ford. We'll miss seeing you dance the bump with Tony Orlando or the hustle with Fred Astaire. We'll miss the "Betty Ford for President" buttons, we'll miss your unrehearsed laugh, your warmth, your steady influence. We'll miss seeing you, First Lady, just be yourself.

At the time when we needed you most, you were almost too good to be true. But that's the best part of all. We did believe again, and you didn't let us down.

Safecracker gives tips

By Ira Berkow

Most of the nation's thousands of burglars who perpetrate an estimated 2.5 million break-ins a year are somewhere in dexterity between E. Howard Hunt and Jimmy Valentine.

Hunt masterminded the now historic Watergate burglary. He and his pack of rank amateurs got pinched when they unnecessarily taped the simple pin-cylinder lock. The crudest burglar would be able to pick such a lock as though he had the key. But not Hunt.

Jimmy Valentine, on the other hand, was the nimble, safecracking creation of O. Henry. Jimmy would sandpaper his fingertips, he was so fastidious a pro. He retired to a small town, undefeated and anonymous champ. And only when a little girl was locked in the town's bank vault did Jimmy Valentine come into the open to save her, and be caught.

The modern-day, non-fictional lock-fiddling king may be Robert J. McDermott. He is a man of average size, graying sideburns and vigilant eyes. He wears a brown suede short-brimmed hat with dyed-in grease stains, and a dark raincoat.

In the inside pocket of his suit jacket is a thin leather packet containing several delicate steel tools. Some thin and straight, some thin and squiggly. Perfect for flipping a latch or eating an oyster.

There is about him, however, that unmistakable but indefinable air of a cop. Which he was for nearly 20 years. McDermott, 48, had been the New York Police Department's designated burglary expert, until retirement in 1971.

He is a licensed locksmith and committed some one thousand burglaries, "but under court orders," he emphasizes. Much of it had to do with the bugging or searching of the residences of people primarily in organized crime or narcotics traffic.

Another time he had been requested by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to help crack a dope-smuggling vices of Holmes Protection, Inc.

He is disquieted by the most recent FBI figures, which show that burglary is the fastest growing crime in the United States.

There is no good reason for

He wasn't sure what he'd need, so he loaded up his suitcase with every kind of tool, large and small. Customs is usually easy. The official asked him to state his purpose.

"Business." Surprisingly, the official decided to open the suitcase. He was startled at the contents.

"What kind of business?" McDermott swallowed. "Magician," he said. And he entered Canada as slyly as he has slipped into a thousand other joints.

case. It was top secret stuff. He wasn't sure what he'd need. So he loaded up his suitcase with every kind of tool, large and small. Customs is usually easy. The official asked him to state his purpose.

"Business." Surprisingly, the official decided to open the suitcase. He was startled at the contents.

"What kind of business?" McDermott swallowed. "Magician," he said.

And McDermott entered Canada as slyly as he has slipped into a thousand other joints.

McDermott today is consultant to the hardware division of Emhart Corporation and vice-president of security ser-picking complex locks, or even the everyday variety, as long as they are double-locked with key upon leaving.

Some people don't even do that. The classic case happened a few years ago in the Hotel Pierre in New York. The jewelers of Mrs. David Selznick, wife of the late Hollywood mogul, were stolen from her room.

She had gone out and just let the door close behind her. The thief was working in the most common manner. He got off the elevator at a high floor. The richer people live or stay on the uppermost floors normally. He went to a corner apartment, usually a suite. Richer pickings yet.

He tried the door and was elated to find it ripe for entry. With a simple celluloid tape, he jimmied open the lock. The heist was valued at $200,000. He got only $2,000 from a fence. After reading of the value in the papers, he grieved in several saloons how he had been robbed by the fence. He was presently pinched.

Grated carrot and cut-up grapefruit sections are good additions to a lemon-flavored gelatin base for a salad.

Double duty pork recipe can go plain or fancy

With the increased supply of pork, there also comes an increased need for new and exciting ways to prepare it. Two-Way Pork Strips a la King is a versatile entree that makes delicious use of this year's increased pork supply. It's a basic recipe that can do double duty.

The basic recipe calls for strips of pork, simmered to tenderness and included in a savory sauce of cream of asparagus soup and tomatoes lightly seasoned with aromatic nutmeg. The strips of pork are easily cut from popularly priced blade steaks.

When company is expected, the pork mixture can be dressed up deliciously with frozen cut asparagus and fresh mushrooms and served on toasted English muffins or in patty shells, if you prefer. But there's no need to reserve this marvelous recipe just for company. Costs can be trimmed by omitting the fresh mushrooms, substituting lima beans for asparagus and serving the mixture over mashed potatoes or rice for a hearty family meal.

Two-Way Pork

a la King
3 pork blade steaks, cut 1/4 inch thick
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup water
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
3 tablespoons flour
1 can (10 3/4 ounces) condensed cream of asparagus soup

For Company Best:
1 package (10 ounces) frozen cut asparagus, blanched
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
6 English muffins, split and toasted

For Family Favorite:
1 package (9 ounces) frozen green or lima beans, cooked and drained
Mashed potatoes or cooked rice

Cut pork steaks into strips 1/4 to 1/2 inch thick and 2 to 3 inches long. Brown in lard or drippings in large frying pan. Pour off drippings. Combine salt, nutmeg and pepper and sprinkle over meat. Stir in water, cover tightly and cook slowly 45 minutes or until meat is tender. Drain tomatoes, reserving liquid, and cut in pieces.

Gradually add reserved tomato liquid to flour and mix with asparagus soup. Stir soup mixture and tomatoes into meat and cook 5 minutes.

For Company Best:
Fold asparagus and sliced mushrooms into meat mixture and continue cooking slowly, covered, 10 to 15 minutes. Serve on toasted English muffins.

For Family Favorite:
Fold green or lima beans into meat mixture and continue cooking slowly, covered, 5 minutes. Serve on mashed potatoes or rice, 6 servings.

When serving the deluxe version of Pork Strips a la King, accompany it with a shimmering raspberry and pineapple salad mold and a pretty relish tray featuring pickles, olives and a colorful array of crisp vegetables. Creme de menthe parfaits along with dainty butter cookies will end the festive meal on a cool and refreshing note.

Look to simpler menu choices when the pork strips are featured for the family. When the meat and vegetable combo is served on mashed potatoes or rice, all that's really needed to complete the main course is a salad such as cole slaw. Dessert could be everyone's favorite — vanilla ice cream and fudge brownies.

This double-duty dish takes advantage of good pork buys. It is called Pork a la King and can be cooked up with fancy asparagus or frozen green beans.

The recipe file

MARYELLEN SPENCER'S MOCHA PIE
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar, divided
1 tablespoon instant coffee powder
1 tablespoon cocoa
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1/4 cup coffee liqueur
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Chocolate Meringue Shell, see below

Mix together gelatin, 1/4 cup sugar, instant coffee, cocoa and salt in saucepan. Beat together egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatin mixture. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly, 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in coffee liqueur. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold into gelatin mixture; fold in whipped cream. Turn into Chocolate Meringue Shell. Chill overnight. Garnish with additional whipped cream and candy coffee beans. Yield: 8 servings.

Chocolate Meringue Shell: Beat 3 egg whites with 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar and 1/4 teaspoon salt until stiff but not dry. Gradually add 3/4 cup sugar, about 1 tablespoon at a time, and beat until very stiff.

Fold in 1 square unsweetened chocolate, finely grated. Spread over bottom and side of well greased 9-inch pie plate; push up side to make high, attractive rim. Bake in 275 degree oven 1 hour. Cool before filling.

This lovely recipe comes from a 2-volume paperback, "The More or Less Cookbooks" by Maryellen Spencer.

LEMON YOGURT FREEZE: It's made in a loaf pan; no special ice-cream freezer needed.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon water
2-3rds cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
2 containers (each 8 ounces) plain yogurt
2 egg whites

In a small saucepan sprinkle gelatin over lemon juice and water; over low heat stir constantly until gelatin dissolves — about 3 minutes. Stir in sugar, salt and lemon rind. Remove from heat. Cool slightly. Stir in yogurt. Turn into a 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Freeze until firm. Turn into a large bowl and add egg whites; beat at high speed of electric mixer until smooth and fluffy — about 10 minutes. Return to loaf pan; freeze until firm. Makes about 1 1/2 quarts.

Bicentennial brownies have an unusual flavor reminiscent of Early America. They are sweetened with molasses.

Gen. Washington loved molasses

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

John Adams, second President of the United States, wrote: "General Washington always asserted and proved that Virginians loved molasses as well as New Englanders did." To help celebrate our Bicentennial in culinary fashion, here's a version of Brownies — America's favorite cookie bar — using that early American ingredient. Although these Brownies have rich chocolate flavor, molasses gives them a deliciously different taste.

BICENTENNIAL BROWNIES
1/2 cup flour, stir to aerate before measuring
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 1/4 squares (2 1/4 ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1-3rd cup butter or margarine
2 large eggs
1 cup sugar
1-3rd cup light or dark molasses

1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Line the bottom of an 8 by 8 inch cake pan with wax paper; grease paper. On another sheet of wax paper stir together the flour, baking soda and salt. In a small saucepan over low heat, stirring often, melt together the chocolate and butter. In a medium mixing bowl beat the eggs until thickened and lemon color; add sugar, molasses and vanilla and beat to blend. Add chocolate mixture and beat to blend. Add flour mixture and beat to blend. Stir in walnuts. Pour into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until edges come away slightly from pan — 40 minutes; a cake tester inserted in center will NOT come out clean. Place pan on a wire rack to cool for 15 minutes. Turn out onto rack; remove paper; with another rack turn right side up; cool completely. Remove to a cutting board; with a sharp knife cut into four 2-inch strips, then cut each strip into four 2-inch squares. Store tightly covered. Makes 16.

Divan: turkey, celery

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

The turkey has just begun, it seems, to be thought of as a staple ingredient for a variety of dishes. Now that it is available in a variety of cuts as well as in a range of weights, it is logical for cooks to turn to this less expensive nutritious bird when planning family meals. The next time you have leftover turkey, whip up a celery turkey Divan using a white sauce and topping it all with Parmesan cheese.

CELERY TURKEY DIVAN
1 stalk Florida celery
1 can (10-3/4 ounces) condensed chicken broth
1 cup Medium White Sauce*
1/4 cup minced onion
4 cups cooked sliced turkey
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cut off celery leaves reserving one-fourth cup chopped leaves. Trim base of stalk. Separate stalk into ribs. Cut ribs into 4-inch lengths. In a large skillet heat broth, add celery lengths. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until celery is crisp-tender, about 5 minutes. Drain, reserving broth (about one-half cup); set celery aside. Combine reserved broth with white sauce, onion and celery leaves; set aside. Arrange turkey slices in bottom of a well-buttered 12 x 8 x 2-inch baking pan. Spoon half of the reserved sauce over turkey. Top with reserved celery lengths and remaining sauce. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese over all. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until hot and bubbly, about 30 minutes. Makes 4 portions.

Medium White Sauce
In a small saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter. Stir in 2 tablespoons flour. Cook and stir over medium heat for 1 minute. Stir in 1 cup milk or half and half, one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon ground white pepper. Cook and stir until thickened, about 3 minutes.

Revolved-eat less, exercise

By Gaynor Maddox

Now is the time to make good resolutions for 1977. Therefore, we asked one of the country's most accredited biochemists and nutritionists to suggest a few for the average man and woman. But nothing too drastic.

Dr. C. Glen King, formerly head of the Nutrition Foundation and currently member of the American Institute of Nutrition, suggests that we eat too much. We should taper down our appetites, or rather, cut back on our intake of foods.

"There are a million men and women today facing heart attacks because of over-stuffing. Moral: don't eat so much. It's as simple as that."

Dr. King, member of the National Academy of Sciences, urges everyone to check his or her body weight against official schedules and with his doctors. Then do something about it if overweight. "Act sensibly but relentlessly. And try to keep your resolution to eat less within the limits of social normalcy. Eat with your family, at your club, with the crowd from the office — in other words, keep your eating habits socially acceptable. Try to eat food from the same sources as the others, but less of it. But try to eat with the group you are accustomed to," he advises. "Nobody enjoys being isolated from his social life by a diet."

"Variety is important, too," he adds. "Both nutritionally and in appetite appeal. Select wisely from meats, fish, poultry, milk and cheese, fruits and vegetables, some cereals. Selection from a variety of such foods will guarantee that you eat all the essential vitamins, proteins, calories and minerals your body needs. And you can get a lot of good eating from them at the same time." So to sum up: resolve to eat less and choose your food wisely. Nobody wants a heart attack.

Eating too much is just one of the problems. The other is not getting out of your chair often enough.

Human physiology has not changed. We need exercise today just as much as our grandfathers did. Those larger waists, those well-tailored paunches and heavier thighs that begin to develop after age 30 are the result not only of eating too much but also of taking it too easy.

Although regular physical exercise is necessary to weight control, it does not necessarily have to be strenuous. Consistency is the key. Tennis, volleyball, swimming and jogging are all excellent for some people. But they are not always available or within the budget costs of a family. But a mile walk every day, or even a half mile, will be far more effective in your efforts at weight control than digging in the garden Saturday and Sunday or playing 10 sets of tennis on the weekend, or a Saturday afternoon of sandlot baseball with your youngsters. Consistency of exercise every day is the major thing.

Follow this advice from the Harvard School of Public Health: walk — don't ride, whenever you can. That may seem startling in this motorized era. However, muscles of the body still need regular flexing. So let's take a walk.

Get the habit of walking and you'll find it far easier to get the habit of not getting fat. Moderate exercise every day is important in keeping you emotionally stable while you are cutting down on your habitual and indulgent use of food.

FTC bans Panasonic ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The makers of Panasonic television sets have agreed not to use misleading advertisements based on "tests" and "comparisons" with other brands.

Matsushita Electric Corp. of America entered into a consent order to that effect with the Federal Trade Commission, it was announced Tuesday.

The agreement settles a case begun in 1974 by the FTC. Under the terms of the agreement, Matsushita admitted no wrongdoing and was not punished.

The FTC challenged a series of advertisements which appeared in national magazines from September 1973 to January 1974. The ads claimed that the National Electronics Association rated the Panasonic Quatrecolor model CT-701 as "the easiest to service of all color televisions ... tested in plant through June of 1973."

In fact, the FTC said, the tests did not establish that the Panasonic was the easiest or least expensive to service among the brands tested. Moreover, the agency charged, the tests did not apply to a broad sample of major or well-known brands.

The consent order bars Matsushita, of Secaucus, N.J., from misrepresenting "the results or conclusions of any test, survey, evaluation, report, study, research or analysis" of television sets.

Another provision of the order bars the firm from citing any tests as evidence that its video or audio equipment, major home appliances or bicycles are superior to other products unless those claims are based on a broad sampling or specifically named competitors.

Neither can the firm advertise test results unless they squarely support the comparative superiority represented and, moreover, the degree of superiority "is significant to consumers."

Violation of the order is punishable by fines of up to $10,000 per offense.

Hiker faced dangers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — He was struck by lightning, came down with a case of blood poisoning and suffered from frostbite.

"Other than that, the trip went well," said Marshall William "Bud" Kinney Jr., who has spent the past 2 1/2 years walking cross-country from his home town of Leola, Pa.

He was accompanied by a dog named Muscoda and by Maybelline, a 12-year-old mare who pulled a pony cart filled with hay and Kinney's belongings.

After crossing the Golden Gate Bridge Monday, the 28-year-old former disc jockey said he made the trip to prove it's "possible to travel slowly and enjoy it, and to meet people and get to know them."

Kinney said he was struck by lightning while passing through South Dakota, and he came down with blood poisoning while living with the Oglala Sioux near Wounded Knee, S.D.

He decided to push on from there when some Indians suspected him of being an FBI informer. Then, while crossing the Continental Divide, he suffered from frozen feet and required hospitalization in Butte, Mont.

After seeing the sights here, Kinney plans to step off for Lake Tahoe, on the California-

Nevada border, and then on to Hot Springs, Ark., his final destination.

When he started, Kinney said he had $100, but he was down to $8 when he hit San Francisco. He earned money along the way by doing odd jobs.

Along the way, he supplemented his diet with natural food found beside the nation's highways. Maybelline fed herself by grazing in roadside pastures.

Herbert Hoover lived almost 32 years after his term of office ended ... longer than any other former president after retiring from the office.

Belfast carries scars of long conflict

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The story of Northern Ireland's seven years of bloody violence can be read on the walls of Belfast.

"Kill the Orange bastards," reads a war cry painted on a wall in the Falls Road, a Roman Catholic enclave that is one of the most violence scarred battlegrounds in the city.

"Kill Taig murderers" is commonly scrawled, daubed and aerosol-sprayed on walls in Protestant areas. A "Taig" is Belfast slang for a Roman Catholic.

In Northern Ireland colors have meanings — orange for the million-strong Protestant majority, green for the half million Catholics.

The orange comes from William of Orange — King William II of Britain — whose forces assured supremacy for Protestant colonists by defeating a Catholic army at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

"Join the UVF," exhorts another slogan in the gaunt Shankill Protestant enclave. The UVF is the outlawed Ulster Volunteer Force, the militant arm of Protestantism in the province and one of the secret underground armies fighting the equally outlawed and mainly Catholic Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland's savage conflict.

On a road into Protestant East Belfast, across the murky Lagan River, an anonymous militant wrote: "You are entering Protestant territory. We rule by the gun..."

The slogan ends abruptly, as if the paint ran out or the writer was frightened off.

The Protestant, working-class Shankill area is distinguishable from the neighboring Catholic Falls area by the wording of the slogans and the names above the shops and bars.

In Protestant territory, the names are Macdonald, Johnson, Scott, Wilson and Davidson — descendants of Scottish and English "colonists" shipped to Ireland centuries ago to settle the conquered Emerald Isle.

In Catholic streets, they're McMurty, Brandy, Sullivan, Shaughnessy or O'Toole

— Anglicized family names of the Catholic Irish who lived under Protestant English domination for hundreds of years.

"Up the Provos," "Provo Rule OK" and "Brits Out" are defiantly smeared across the drab gray concrete walls of Unity Flats, a fortress-like warren of Catholic apartment blocks that is a hotbed of support for the IRA's "Provisional" wing.

The British army has been fighting the IRA since 1971, two years after sectarian warfare broke out in August 1969. The IRA is seeking to drive the British out of Northern Ireland and unite the Protestant-dominated province with the Irish Republic, which is 96 per cent Catholic.

When it became evident that the army, which at one time had 21,000 troops in the province, could not smash the IRA, militant Protestants raised their own clandestine armies, the Ulster Volunteer Force, the Ulster Defense Association (UDA) and a half-dozen other paramilitary organizations that have spawned secret gangs of assassins.

Belfast's graffiti-covered walls bear testimony to the deep hatreds between some Protestant and Catholic factions. The jumble of defiant, bitter, fearful and sometimes poignant slogans are like Peking's wall newspapers — by keeping a sharp eye on the new editions a seasoned observer can detect the mood of Belfast.

"Jesus Saves," reads one hopeful message in the bleak and grimy Shankill. Below it, someone with less faith in divine intervention has scrawled, "What's Keeping Him?"

"Seven years is enough — OK" reads another wall sign. This one is plastered on billboards all over Belfast, put up by the British administration in an appeal to Protestant and Catholic extremists to end their fighting.

The British launched their mass appeal after the blossoming of a peace movement led by two Catholic women, Mrs. Betty Williams and Mairead Corrigan.

The crusade — called "Peace People" — has been growing for three months and shows no sign of fading away.

The Lighter Side

KADOKA, S.D. (AP) — Residents of the Kadoka retirement home got a surprise in their latest shipment of foodstuffs from the federal government.

Three pounds of roasted peanuts for each resident were shipped with the normal supplies of milk, margarine and other foods for the first three months of 1977.

Home administrator Nona Prang says she doesn't know what to do with the goobers. "So many of our people don't have any teeth," she said. "And doctors say peanuts are hard to digest."

The home includes about 17 people on welfare who use the federal commodities. The home pays freight on the shipment.

"I'll wait and see what I get on the next shipment," Mrs. Prang said. "If we get them again I think I'll write to the President and tell him he can keep his peanuts in Georgia."

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Federal scientists are adding a "leap second" to 1976 because the earth is spinning one second slower this year than the standard 365-day calendar calls for.

Officials at the National Bureau of Standards here said Tuesday the second will be inserted on Dec. 31 in order to keep atomic clocks functioning properly.

"Compared to the atomic clocks," the bureau said, "the earth is slowing down enough that the extra second is needed to keep the clocks synchronized to the spin of the earth within one second."

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — Twenty girls on Rock Springs High School's swim team swam a total of 100 miles in 36 hours.

Why? Well, for one thing, they had hoped to make it into the Guinness Book of World Records — which coach Stewart Dulaney says doesn't have a category that fits their feat.

While the Guinness book doesn't list a separate category for girls' swimming marathon records, which Dulaney said they were aiming for, it does list under "Odd Swimming Records" a fastest time recorded for 100 miles by a team of 20 swimmers.

According to the 1976 edition, that was 25 hours 55 minutes.

Real estate appraisal class to be taught

A real estate appraisal class will start Jan. 18 at Clarendon College.

The class will meet on Tuesday nights from 7-10 p.m. finishing May 3 with April 5 a holiday for Easter.

The class must have 15 or more. It will meet in Room 103 of Clarendon College Academic Center. The instructor will be a licensed, qualified real estate appraiser.

The class is open to anyone interested and credit toward certification may be earned. No audits allowed. The cost for each student will be $35 plus the book which may be required of each student.

This course is to cover real estate appraisal for this area. The credit earned will be from Amarillo College in cooperation with Clarendon College.

Students must register at the time of the first scheduled meeting, Jan. 18. Registration is to be completed at the Business Office of Clarendon College.

Swine flu shot not to blame for virus death

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Janell Spencer died of a virus attack, not a swine flu shot, an autopsy report showed Tuesday.

Mrs. Spencer, 27, a county employe and mother of three, was given a flu shot on Nov. 19 and died Nov. 22.

Dr. Guatros A. DaSilva, chief pathologist at Brackenridge Hospital, said the autopsy showed she died of viremia—a virus infection of the brain, lungs and intestines.

"The most important thing is that the tests we ran show that there is not a reaction demonstrable between the patient's blood and the swine flu vaccine that was used," he said.

FIREARM SHOW WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — An exhibition of 94 European firearms, part of the collection of Clay P. Bedford of Scottsdale, Ariz., will be on display here at the 1977 Antiques Forum through March 7.

The arms date from the early 16th to mid-19th century. An illustrated book on the firearms will be published by The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation for distribution during the exhibit.

8.2 seconds by a high school team in Dundee, Scotland, on Dec. 14 and 15, 1974 — which would seem to rule the girls out of the running. The only chance would seem to lie in the book's failure to mention whether the Scots were boys or girls.

The 20 girls began swimming at 8 a.m. Monday and stopped just after 8 p.m. Tuesday night, Coach Dulaney said.

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After months of asking ABC to move "Barney Miller" from the sanitized "family hour," producer Danny Arnold is getting his wish. The series starts tonight in its new 9 p.m. EST time slot.

Tonight's yarn is about what occurs when the gang down at the copshop consume brownies laced with hashish. The eats were given by a lady to detective Wojo, who didn't know the brownies were wired.

Question: Could this epic, with its mention of that potent marijuana derivative called hashish, ever have aired in the family hour?

"Yeah, I think so," producer Arnold said. He noted that ABC originally scheduled it for the old 8:30 p.m. "Miller" slot on Thursdays before deciding to reschedule it for the show's new time period tonight.

"There's nothing particularly controversial about it. We've done shows far more controversial than this. I just thought it was a very funny show and it's good to start the new time period with it."

Arnold is one of the Hollywood producers who last fall won a major court victory when the "family hour" was declared unlawful as an industrywide standard — but not as an individual network standard.

Until now, his "Miller" series has appeared in the "family hour" that in September 1975 became part of the National Association of Broadcasters' TV code. The policy was adopted in response to public gripes about violence or sexually oriented programs aired early at night when kids still are watching the tube.

Arnold feels that parents should be the censors of what their kids watch, not the NAB or the networks. But, he said, "after nine o'clock, the theory always has been that they're supposed to be away from the sets, that you have a more adult audience and the censors are less apt to whack away at your scripts."

He said he grew extremely weary battling ABC censors whenever they found fault with the content of a "Miller" episode and kept telling him, "We can't put something like that on at 8 or 8:30 p.m."

Laverne folks, doc disagree

LAVERNE, Okla. — Disputes over the closing of the local hospital continue as city officials, residents, and the town's only doctor disagree on important issues involved with the closing.

The municipally-owned Laverne General Hospital was closed Oct. 15, and lawsuits were filed by area residents to keep the hospital open so that the community would have emergency medical care.

Acting Hospital Administrator

Lawrence Rolf said the reason given by the town council for the hospital's closing was serious monetary loss. According to Rolf, a recent audit report indicates the hospital lost about $60,000 for a four-month period ending Oct. 31.

However, the town's only doctor, Anthony Lenz, called the town council "liars," and charged that the actual reason behind the shutdown was a "personality clash with me."

He accused the town council with misleading the public about the hospital's financial status.

The doctor doubted that the hospital could be reopened because of Medicare regulations that would be difficult for the hospital to meet. "Without Medicare approval, since 51 per cent of the patients were receiving Medicare payments, 51 per cent of the hospital's revenue would be lost," he said.

Acting Administrator Rolf doubts that the hospital could be reopened.

However, the Postal Service

Post office claims speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says its statistics show that mail delivery is getting faster and "service to the American people improved in 1976."

In its annual report, issued Tuesday, the mail agency said it reduced the average delivery time for first-class letters to 1.53 days in the fiscal year that ended June 30. In the previous year, the average was 1.57 days.

The postmaster general said first-class letters mailed to made no mention of a General Accounting Office report last February that said the old Post Office Department once had a slightly faster average, 1.5 days in fiscal 1969.

"The Postal Service made tangible progress in improved and more reliable service to the American people," Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said in a message in the annual report.

Bailar said this was an improvement from the previous year in all three categories.

address in the same local area were delivered the next day 95 per cent of the time.

In addition, letters going up to 600 miles were delivered by the second day 92 per cent of the time and letters going farther were delivered by the third day 90 per cent of the time, he said.

Names in the news

MOUNT CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — Former Army Secretary Howard "Bo" Callaway is moving to the Colorado Rockies to become president and chief executive officer of the Crested Butte Development Corp., which manages a resort Callaway and his brother-in-law bought in 1970.

Last year, Callaway resigned as President Ford's campaign manager because of allegations that, while he was in the Pentagon, he missed his office to obtain a favorable U.S. Forest Service ruling allowing expansion of the company's Crested Butte Ski Area.

A spokesman said Tuesday that Callaway will replace his brother-in-law, Ralph Walton, as the corporation's chief executive officer. Walton resigned the position Monday, and members of the board elected him to Callaway's former post as chairman.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter's inauguration will be immortalized by five top figures in American art — Andy Warhol, Jacob Lawrence, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Rauschenberg and Jamie Wyeth.

The Presidential Inauguration Committee announced Tuesday that it has commissioned the five to record their impressions of the inauguration, and will raise funds for the event by selling 100 sets of their signed prints for $2,500 each.

Warhol, 46, lives in New York and was a leading figure in the pop art movement of the 1960s, when his works celebrated such familiar images as the Campbell's soup can. Lichtenstein, 53, of Southampton, N.Y., also figured prominently in that era, with dot pattern paintings.

Lawrence, 59, of Seattle, paints social and historical themes. Rauschenberg, 51, is a Texas-born artist who lives in New York and Florida. Wyeth, 30, a portrait artist, is the son of Andrew Wyeth and lives in Chadds Ford, Pa.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For serving as executors of the estate of J. Paul Getty, his sons, Gordon Peter Getty and Jean Ronald Getty, have each received payments of nearly a million dollars.

And that's only about half of their executor commission totals.

Getty, who died June 6 at the age of 83, left an estate whose estimated inventory is $720 million, according to legal documents.

Based on that inventory, the commissions for executors is estimated at about $7.1 million in all.

Superior Court Judge Neal Lake on Tuesday ordered the first payments — $960,000 apiece — to the two sons, and a payment of about 1 million to a third executor, Title Insurance and Trust Co.

It is expected to be years before the Getty will clear probate.

Area singers can audition for the Met

Career possibilities for area singers are in the offing as the Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions are offered for the 18th year.

The Junior League of El Paso, in cooperation with the University of Texas at El Paso, has scheduled preliminary auditions for the West Texas - New Mexico district on Feb. 5 in El Paso. The winner is eligible to compete in regional competition Feb. 19 in San Antonio.

Competition continues on the semi-final and national levels, with many awards and grants going to the top winners.

To enter the preliminary competition, applications must be mailed by Jan. 21 to the Junior League of El Paso, 520 Thunderbird, El Paso 79912.

The West Texas - New Mexico District director is Mrs. Barron Fletcher.

Tucumcari crash leaves one dead

TUCUMCARI, N.M. (AP) — A Costa Mesa, Calif., man was killed Tuesday when the car in which he was riding crashed into a parked truck on Interstate 40 about 17 miles west of Tucumcari.

The victim was identified as Terrance David Ramsey, 18.

Officers said he was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Robin Lynn Brown Ramsey, 21, also of Costa Mesa. She was injured and taken to an Amarillo, Tex., hospital.

Police said the vehicle swerved into the parked truck about 6 a.m. Tuesday. The driver of the truck was not in the vehicle at the time, officers said.

RENT CONTROL SPREADING

NEW YORK (AP) — Rent control may soon spread from the East Coast to other parts of the nation, triggered by a new round of rent increases, reports House & Home Magazine.

Among those who think there might be stepped-up action for rent control is John Williamson, general counsel for the National Apartment Association, Washington, D.C.

"You have to increase rents. There are going to be apartment shortages, tenants are more militant."

Bailey named most valuable player

Harvesters capture tourney championship

CLOVIS — With a 55-46 victory over Clovis Wednesday night, the Pampa Harvesters took their first tournament championship of the season.

The Harvesters won three straight games at the Clovis, N.M., basketball tournament which started Monday, and three Pampa players were named to the all-tournament team.

Named Most Valuable Player in the tournament was senior guard Brian Bailey. Also chosen for the list were senior forward Don Hughes and senior guard Rayford Young.

Young finished second in individual tournament scoring with 69 points for three games, behind Ron Black of Lovings with 70.

Young was high-point man of the Pampa - Clovis contest with 21 points. Top scorer for the host team was Bill Patton with 9.

A number of turnovers kept the scoring low as Clovis lost the ball 19 times and Pampa turned it over 17 times in the game. Throughout much of the contest neither team could capitalize on those errors.

The score was close in the first half, though Pampa never fell behind. Rayford Young's jump shot at the end of the first quarter put the Harvesters ahead 10-6. Young scored again at the start of the second period. He was fouled and a free throw increased the Harvesters lead to 13-6, their largest margin of the first half.

The Wildcats tied the score at 23 late in the half before junior Rusty Ward added two points for Pampa to give the Harvesters a 25-23 halftime edge.

Clovis took the lead very briefly in the third quarter, 31-29. Don Hughes completed a three-point play to put the Harvesters back in front, 32-31.

Pampa pressed the Wildcats in the last half of the game, forcing more Clovis turnovers and increasing the Harvesters lead. Pampa led 46-38 with three and one-half minutes remaining in the game. The Harvesters succeeded in slowing down the pace of the contest and using up time before taking a 10-point, 48-38 lead.

Clovis failed to come within eight points of the Harvesters the rest of the game.

The win put the Harvesters season record at 12-4. Clovis, whose only previous losses had been to Amarillo Tascosa and to defending 4-AAAA champion Plainview, fell to 7-3.

Next game for the Harvesters will be in Lubbock Tuesday against Lubbock Monterey.

'En garde' would seem to be the appropriate sporting term for this situation, although it happens to involve the wrong sport. Chris Evert and Czechoslovak Martina Navratilova, rushing for the ball in a Tokyo match, made their duel look like the real thing for a moment.

Maryland claims unfairness

By GORDON BEARD AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — It may surprise folks in these parts, but Maryland's fourth-ranked football team feels it has something to prove in Saturday's Cotton Bowl game against sixth-ranked Houston.

"I think we've been knocked unfairly," quarterback Mark Manges said today as the unbeaten Terps prepared for Maryland's first major bowl appearance in 20 years.

"People say we don't play any good teams," Manges said, "and that we had a readymade 11-0 schedule. We don't get much credit."

Five of Maryland's victories were recorded against opponents in the Atlantic Coast Conference, where the Terps have won 20 in a row and three consecutive championships.

Outside the league, they rolled over Richmond, West Virginia, Syracuse, Villanova, Kentucky and Cincinnati. Maryland allowed just 11 touchdowns for the season and ranked No. 2 nationally in scoring defense, giving up 85 points.

Many observers said before the 1976 season started that Maryland should go unbeaten, and Manges feels that the Terps deserve even more credit for accomplishing the feat.

"If we had gone 10-1," he said, "we would be going through the same thing Michigan did for losing to Purdue. The pressure of expecting to win can get to you, if you think about it."

Manges and three of his teammates talked about the downgrading of the Terps at a news conference Wednesday, mostly in response to questions from media members from the Maryland area.

"Where did this criticism come from?" asked a reporter with a Texas drawl. "We never heard about it down here."

"From the Washington Post and the Washington Star,"

Manges said, looking directly at a reporter from one of those newspapers.

Quarterback Danny Davis of Houston, which won the Southwest Conference championship in its first year as a member of the league, felt empathy for Maryland's position.

"We know what it feels like to be accused of playing a weak schedule," Davis said. "When we were independent, we had to prove ourselves."

"But Houston used to play a schedule like Maryland's and finish 8-3. So, you can't knock winning. I'm impressed by Maryland. They shut teams out."

Defensive guard Larry Seder of the Terps, who blanketed last three opponents in the regular season, said Saturday's setting was a natural for Maryland to spread the word about its revived football program.

"We're playing on national television as part of the Southwest Conference champion in the Cotton Bowl," he said. "We have a chance to show everybody."

Should Maryland score an impressive victory over Houston while top-ranked Pittsburgh loses to Georgia in the Sugar Bowl, Manges said the Terps should be acclaimed national champions.

He noted that second-ranked Michigan and No. 3 Southern Cal. opponents in the Rose Bowl, each have one loss. "And that," he said, "should eliminate them from national championship aspirations."

He threw 1,511 yards to get in Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Quarterbacks are amazing athletes. They can throw a football overhanded, underhanded or down-and-out. With 260-pound tackles holding on to their legs and coaches on their backs, they can throw the ball out of sight, out of trouble or out of reach, but very few have been able to throw it out of the Wishbone, and that's where Florida's Jimmy Fisher comes in.

Fisher, a 6-2 184-pound senior from Tampa, directed the Gators to an 8-3 record this past season while becoming one of the few Wishbone quarterbacks in the country to lead a conference in passing.

Florida was rewarded with an invitation to the Sun Bowl which pits the Gators against Texas A&M here Jan. 2.

Fisher gained a net 288 yards rushing in 1976, but he threw for 1,511 yards and 10 touchdowns in an offensive set that usually only puts the ball in the air on punts and fumbles.

"We ran the Vee in high school, so I guess I've been running all my life," Fisher explained. "But I still think of myself as a passer. I like to throw. It's fun and I think it's exciting for the people to watch."

"It may be easier to pass out of the Wishbone because the defense is trying to stop the run. I think it's hard for a team to prepare for us because of our passing attack. If they bring everyone up, we can pass, and we've got a really good rushing attack, too. If they do one thing, we can do something else."

The Florida offense has been "something else" at times this season, scoring an average of 28.5 points a game and knocking off such notables as seventh-ranked Houston (49-14) and 19th-ranked Mississippi (34-31).

"I think it will be our offense against their defense," Fisher predicted. "They've got just a tremendous defense and I don't think anyone's got a better offense than ours. There's just so many things we can do."

"Texas A&M has some unbelievably talented people on defense, but we do some things running the ball that I don't think they've seen before and we can pass if we have to."

"Our wide receiver, Wes Chandler, is about the best there is in the country and the coaches wanted to get the ball to him and that's why we're passing. I just try to get the ball to Wes any way I can and let him do the rest."

The duo has teamed up for 10 touchdowns this season, including one 73-yard pass for a score against Houston. And Fisher feels that the bomb threat has done plenty to help the Gators' ground troops.

Fisher hopes his aerie antics, which included completing 56 per cent of his passes, will attract some pro offers. And he thinks playing Texas A&M in the Sun Bowl might just put him in the best possible light.

"I was really happy when I found out we were going to the Sun Bowl," Fisher said. "We were being realistic, and we knew we were out of the big bowls, but when I looked at the other bowls like the Fiesta, the Peach, the Gator and the Sun, I wanted to go to the Sun Bowl."

"I've always heard it's a great place to go, and I was really glad when I heard we were going to play Texas A&M. They're just what we wanted, a really top-ranked team."

"Things were really terrible after we lost the SEC championship and this is our chance to make up for it. It's really a challenge for us."

"I think the fans will enjoy it because I think we're exciting to watch. I mean, I love 18-play drives."

Malone blocked seven shots Wednesday night for the Houston Rockets in their 93-91 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers and his final block was the biggest.

With 52 seconds remaining and the Rockets holding a 92-91 margin, Philadelphia's Lloyd Free missed a shot but got the rebound and tried again only to have Malone reject it.

Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich then hit one of two free throws to give the Rockets a 93-91 margin and Julius Erving's last second 25-foot shot for the 76ers was off the rim.

Malone said Free's first shot had "a lot of arch on it."

"On the second one, I caught him on the way up," Malone said. "He didn't get so high on that one."

Calvin Murphy's 26 points helped Houston rally from a third period deficit to win the National Basketball Association contest.

Free led all scorers with 29 points and George McGinnis had 26.

Closely guarded by John Johnson and Eddie Ratliff, Erving managed only 12 points. He caught a finger in his eye early in the game and he felt this might have contributed to his off night.

Nearly red shirted at Tech

Allison hunted snakes

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — The twists and turns in Texas Tech quarterback Rodney Allison's career would make a rattlesnake envious. The Odessa, Tex. native survived his high school hobby of hunting rattlesnakes and attended Texas Tech after refusing an offer to play for Nebraska as a defensive back.

Allison's biggest job this season was to prove his passing ability. The 5-11, 185 Allison was heavily recruited for his prowess at running the option, but his passing ability was suspect.

close calls while hunting in West Texas. Once a rattler struck from behind a rock and dug its fangs into Allison's boot. "The fangs didn't go through the boot but you could see the venom dripping down the side," Allison said.

Tony Dorsett may be king of Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Led by Tony Dorsett, college football's all-time rushing king, top-ranked Pittsburgh shoots for its first national championship in 39 years and winds up a sensational four-year renaissance Saturday when it meets fifth-ranked Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

Dorsett, winner of the Heisman Trophy, 13 other regular and Coach Johnny Majors, who is returning to the University of Tennessee, will wrap up their Pitt careers after inheriting a 1-10 record from the 1972 club and now standing within one game of the national title.

Only Georgia's Southeastern Conference championship stand in the way with their snarling "Junkyard Dogs" defense, a bunch of shaved heads, including that of Coach Vince Dooley, and an irascible bulldog mascot which sank its teeth into a sports writer following a 21-0 rout of Alabama.

As the Bulldogs marched to the SEC title, several coaches and players shaved their heads after each victory to promote togetherness. Dooley's locks went at a recent banquet honoring the squad.

Dooley told the team early in the season he would submit to the razor if the Bulldogs won the SEC crown.

But all the mean looks and bristly scalps on the 10-1 Georgia team aren't likely to scare Pitt, 11-0, which began its regular season with a 31-10 rout of Notre Dame and ended it by trouncing arch-rival Penn State 24-7.

"Pitt is every bit as good as its No. 1 ranking," says Dooley. "Everybody knows about Tony Dorsett, but the real underrated part of the Pitt team is their defense, which has only given up 11.8 points a game."

Besides Dorsett, Pitt has a defensive All-American in middle guard Al Romano.

Allison narrowly averted being red shirted prior to this season but got his chance to play when starter Tommy Duniven was injured.

He then proved himself by leading Tech to a 10-1 record and an unprecedented share of the Southwest Conference title and Friday night he'll break on top again as the starter for No. 8 Tech against No. 13 Nebraska in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Allison says the possibility that he might be starting this game as a defensive back for the Cornhuskers is remote.

"When I left Odessa to visit Nebraska and the temperature was 80 degrees and it was snowing in Lincoln I pretty well decided right then," Allison said. "But the real reason was I didn't want to play defensive back."

"Nobody thought I could pass," Allison said. "I've had confidence that I could pass but Coach (Steve) Sloan and I were the only ones who thought I could."

"I guess a lot of it was psychological. When it would come out in the paper that I couldn't pass, Coach Sloan would stress that I could pass. I had to overcome that thinking before I had the confidence to drop back and go to the second or third receiver."

Allison rushed for 523 yards on 140 carries, third among Tech rushers, and completed 83 of 139 passes for 1,456 yards this season, which ended with Allison earning All-Southwest Conference honors.

Allison says he hasn't had a chance to do much rattlesnake hunting since coming to Tech, but he still remembers several

On another occasion, Allison and some mates walked unawares into the midst of a rattler den.

"I took off running down the hill," Allison laughed. "This other guy stayed up there and caught them with a stick and pitched them down the hill to us and we put them in the bag."

Allison's cool head in pressure situations becomes understandable after hearing of his hobby. He may get sacked, but the fierce Cornhusker defense doesn't normally bite.

Defensive play

Senior forward Keith Fisher (35) plays defense for the Harvesters in Monday night's victory over Albuquerque Monzano. Tuesday night's win over Alamogordo qualified the Harvesters for Wednesday's championship game against the host Clovis Wildcats in the first Clovis, N.M., basketball tournament. New coach to stress recruiting at UT

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas lacks the depth of "great teams" and the Longhorns' new coach, Fred Akers, says that's why it is so important that he catch up fast in wowing schoolboy stars.

Tuesday, at his first news conference as Darrell Royal's successor, Akers said he was leaving at once to recruit in Odessa, Dallas, Sherman and Longview.

He said he had talked to at least four quarterback prospects on the phone, and a reporter asked if Mesquite's Mike Ford was one of them.

"Mike's getting our consideration, and I hope we're getting his," Akers said.

Texas has a "good nucleus" returning from this year's 5-5-1 squad, Akers said, but 1977 "can't be viewed any other way than as a rebuilding" year.

He added later, however, "I'm not expecting to lose, but things need to be answered."

Akers, 38, acknowledged that some of Texas' top schoolboy players had not listed Texas as one of the six schools they are allowed to visit.

He said he hoped to change their minds and that he had "nationwide contacts" and would look for outstanding players wherever they lived.

He said two or three players he had coached at Wyoming had hinted that they wanted to follow him to Texas. Also, some he had tried to recruit for Wyoming seemed "eager and interested to visit Texas."

Asked if Wyoming's 41-7 loss to Oklahoma in the Fiesta Bowl might hurt Texas recruiting, Akers said, "I'm sure some (other recruiters) will use that, but I hope we're recruiting football players who are smarter than to listen to that."

Asked if freshman halfback Johnny "Lam" Jones, a worldclass sprinter, would be required to take part in spring football, which would conflict with track season Akers said, "I enjoy track, but I kind of like to win football games, too."

Pressed for a more specific answer, Akers said, "I'm not going to tell him to go run track." Asked a third time what he would say to Jones, Akers said if Jones "feels he can handle the situation and not be behind, then he should go ahead" and run.

There would be no problem about his running track after he and others have learned Akers' new football system this spring, he said.

Akers said he would meet individually with Texas players when they return in mid-January from the holidays.

Akers said Texas will continue to use a 4-3 defensive alignment, but the ends will have different responsibilities and there will be more man-to-man coverage in the secondary.

The offense will shift from the wishbone to a veer, but Akers said the formations are "very similar."

Asked if anyone had told him he should beat OU, Akers, an assistant under Royal for nine years, said, "No, but I am well aware of what is expected at the University of Texas. I know the demands the university makes and they all point toward excellence."

The feud between Royal and OU Coach Barry Switzer was mentioned, and Akers said, "I'd rather our feud take place on the field."

One of his main goals, Akers said, is building "quality depth like other teams" — such as OU and Texas A&M.

Asked if he had any higher aspirations, Akers said, "The University of Texas, to me, represents the very finest anywhere. I hope I stay here the rest of my coaching career."

Claiborne's tactics payed off

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Things were going so smoothly for the University of Maryland's football team last spring, Coach Jerry Claiborne began to worry.

"I found that the coaches hardly had to get on the players at all," Claiborne recalled today as the fourth-ranked Terps prepared for Saturday's Cotton Bowl game against sixth-ranked Houston. "I began to wonder if I was expecting less of them, or whether I was getting soft."

As it turned out, Claiborne's fifth team at Maryland had solidified into a group of self-motivated, convinced of his methods and willing to pay the price for success.

They went on to record 11 consecutive victories, Maryland's first unbeaten regular season since 1961, a mark which earned the Terps their first "major" bowl bid in 20 years.

As the team approached its fourth consecutive postseason contest, some of the Terps were amazed by the easing of curfew regulations by Claiborne — a move reflecting the mutual trust of coach and players.

"We were allowed to stay out until 1 a.m. Monday and Tuesday nights," said junior quarterback Mark Manges. "That's kind of unheard of."

"I think beating Florida in the Gator Bowl last year was the turning point," Manges added. "That destroyed a lot of myths — that we couldn't beat a Southeastern Conference team, win the big game or win a bowl game. After that, coach became more relaxed."

"We're all his recruits now," Manges said, "his type of people who are sold on his system. There's no need to push us anymore. We want to accomplish the same thing he does."

Senior defensive back Kenny Roy, who called the curfew relaxation a "milestone in itself," claims he also notes an easing of tension in Claiborne's makeup.

"But he still strives for perfection on the field," Roy said, "and he treats everybody the same — from the superstar down to the last man. If his son does something wrong, he'll get after him, too."

Defensive back Jonathan Claiborne, who was born while his father was an assistant to Paul "Bear" Bryant at Texas A&M, earned a scholarship after coming out for the team on his own.

When Claiborne took over at Maryland in 1972, he said he treated all players as though they were his sons and he contends he still approaches the job the same way.

"During the four years the players are in school," he said, "we're with them more than their parents and the professors. We strive to instill good character habits, things that will help them when they go out to make a spot in life."

"When I first came to Maryland, we had some rules we might not have had otherwise. But now the players understand what we want from them, and they accept it better."

Goodbye Columbus?

Roman coin discovered

ROUND ROCK, Tex. (AP) — Would you believe the United States of Augustus? Caesonia the Beautiful? The Star-Spangled Constantine? My Caesar 'Tis of Thee?

Perhaps, then, you can accept the prospect that some Roman buccaneer discovered America.

Goodbye, Columbus? Well, don't wager the family denarii. But the discovery in 1963 of an ancient Roman coin in an Indian mound in Texas has triggered new and interesting speculation.

"In terms of possibilities you can argue most anything," admitted Dr. Jeremiah Epstein, a professor of anthropology at the University of Texas at Austin.

"This is the first real chance we've had to date a Roman coin in the American archaeological context. If we can do this, then we can start asking more profound questions as to how and when this got here..."

Dr. Epstein is not contending, or hardly even suggesting, that a seafaring Roman preceded Columbus and his Spanish expedition to America, either by accident or purpose.

But he's not ruling out the possibility.

"What we need is good solid data to substantiate one possibility over another...At this point, we're just getting started," he said in an interview Wednesday.

The story came to light after Epstein learned of the coin, uncovered 13 years ago by a surveyor named Walter L. Horton Jr.

Horton, an amateur archaeologist, said he found the coin at the bottom of a three-foot trench he dug into one of a number of old Indian mounds scattered across Central Texas.

The coin is about the size of a dime and bears the picture of a young emperor adorned with laurel crown, breastplate and cloak. Inscriptions refer to Emperor Constantine and his "Loyal Son Augustus" and to "The Invincible Sun, Companion of the Emperor."

Epstein said the coin is known as a follis and probably was minted in England about 314 years after the birth of Christ. He estimated the Indian mound dates back almost 1,200 years.

According to Horton, there were no traces of arrowheads or pottery in the Indian mound, an ancient garbage dump of sorts. Arrowheads and pottery did not find their way into Texas until after 600 A.D., archaeologists say.

"If Horton is right, about the way the mound was, it looks as if this coin came into Texas as early as 550 A.D.," Epstein said. "If that's so, that's only a couple hundred years after it was minted."

He said it is too early to discount the possibility that a Roman crew carried the coin across the Atlantic centuries before Columbus made his epic journey to the New World.

However, he said, a more logical theory might be that a stricken Roman vessel drifted crewless across the ocean and beached along the Eastern seaboard, its cargo of coins plundered by Indians.

"It's possible some early settler dropped the coin accidentally or gave it to the Indians," he said. "Perhaps after we've studied the mound we can start putting the pieces of the puzzle together."

Bill opposes jail for booze problems

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Two legislators filed bills Wednesday that one of the sponsors, Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena, says presents methods for confronting drug and alcohol problems without resorting to jail terms.

One proposal would remove "public intoxication" from the list of criminal offenses.

The measure charges the Texas Commission on Alcoholism with designing a comprehensive program for treating alcohol-dependents.

Rep. Bill Caraway of Houston, the sponsor of the companion measure in the House, says it "is based on the philosophy that alcoholics and intoxicated persons may not be subjected to criminal prosecution, but rather should be afforded a continuum of treatment in order that they may lead normal lives as productive members of society."

Brooks' other proposal would authorize the Texas Department of Community Affairs to establish and supervise a drug dependence treatment program, including procedures for emergency treatment of persons in police custody.

Brooks said Texas ranks 53rd among United States territories and states in state funds to fight drug abuse—even though Texas shares a 1,200-mile border with Mexico, the source of 90 per cent of the heroin and 60 per cent of the marijuana entering the United States.

"Alcoholics and alcohol abusers have deep medical and emotional problems that simply can't be confronted and treated in a jail or prison," Brooks added in a statement.

The Macedonian Empire, founded by Alexander the Great, included Greece, European Turkey, Asia Minor, Egypt, Syria, Persia and eastwards as far as northern India.

Another series set for Lear

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This has been a good year for Judith Cohen. We pause now as everyone says, "Who?" They'll learn who if they tune in the Jan. 19 premiere of CBS' new comedy, "A Year at the Top."

The Norman Lear series concerns an aged quartet of vaudevillians who give their souls to the devil in return for a year of youth, a year of success as a music group in today's pop music world.

Miss Cohen, a Baltimore, Md., native with but four years of professional performing logged, was signed this year to play the mod version of one of the old troupers, played by Vivian Blaine.

"It's kind of wonderful," the young singer-actress said in a soft, husky voice. "It's like a dream that this could really happen. But it can. It truly can."

Things commenced happening this year, she said, when CBS casting director Pat Kirkland watched her work as a singer at a new-talent club called Reno Sweeney's in the hamlet called New York.

She said Kirkland urged Lear to consider her for a part. She originally was to be considered for the role of Bernadette Peters' roommate in CBS' "All's Pair." But when Lear came to Gotham, she was leaving for a gig in Florida. She said the rest happened this way:

He asked her when she'd be working again at the New York club. She told him. He said he'd try to be there opening night. He was. A week later, she signed her for a guest shot on "Good Times," she said. After that came one of the lead roles in "A Year at the Top."

All of which is quite a leap forward for the red-haired Miss Cohen, who put in a year at Towson College in Maryland, then dropped out to study acting and to act and sing in Fun City.

She began as a professional when she auditioned for a part in an off-Broadway improvisational play, "The Proposition."

"It was the first thing I'd ever tried out for, and I was very lucky," she said. Meaning she got the job her first time out.

Nine months later, she landed a part in another off-Broadway show called "42 Seconds From Broadway." It expired immediately. How'd she feel about that setback? "To be honest, I'd never done Equity (plays requiring union actors, union pay) or anything like that before," she said. "So it was an incredible working experience for me. I loved it."

"If something ends abruptly like that, you don't give up. So I just went on."

While seeking other acting jobs, she also launched her singing career, backed by a quartet consisting of piano, harp, drums and cello. She drew favorable reviews for her work at Reno Sweeney's.

To sing in clubs, one usually needs music arrangements. Which cost some bucks. But Judith Cohen, a self-described Lucky lady, was lucky even in this regard.

"Oh, I didn't have to pay for any arrangements," she laughed. "My musicians just believed in me. And whatever we made, we divided."

Patent No. 4,000,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — A system to recycle asphalt and aggregate composition materials has become the nation's Patent No. 4,000,000.

The four-millionth patent was awarded Tuesday to Robert L. Mendenhall of Las Vegas, Nev., as Patent Commissioner C. Marshall Dann said. "We are witnesses to a significant, historic occasion, happily coinciding with America's bicentennial year."

Dann said the landmark patent "is evidence of the continuing vigor of our patent system, which has been so effective as a force in establishing new industries and in making available new and improved products."

The Patent Office was established in 1790 and the millionth patent was not granted until 1911. Patent No. 2,000,000 was issued in 1935 and No. 3,000,000 in 1961.

Collision kills 3 generations

MCKINNEY, Tex. (AP) — A grandmother, her daughter and granddaughter were killed Tuesday when the car in which they were riding collided near here with a truck.

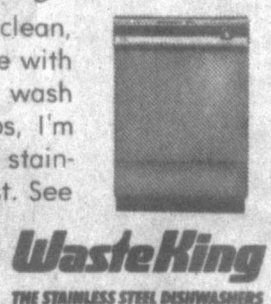

Investigators identified the victims, all of whom were dead at the scene of the accident, as Hazel Walker, 60; her daughter, Lela Hance, 32; and Mrs. Hance's daughter, Tracy, 18 months, all of Anna, Tex.

The accident occurred near here on U.S. 280, officers said.

Singer is defendant in suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Country singer Willie Nelson has been named a defendant in a state district court suit filed here by a Baytown, Tex., man.

Nelson and other promoters of the singer's July 4 picnic in Gonzales County, Tex., were named Tuesday in the suit filed by William Dale Courtney, 21.

Courtney, asking $150,000, claimed he awoke from a nap there July 2 and found himself ablaze and severely burned.

He claimed in the suit he was unable to receive proper medical care or treatment because defendants failed to meet all medical requirements under the Texas Mass Gathering Act.

Nelson was not available for comment.
