

Carter taps Califano, Schlesinger

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter today completed his Cabinet by naming Washington lawyer Joseph Califano Jr., to head the sprawling Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The President-elect also named former defense secretary James R. Schlesinger as his new energy czar. And he appointed Theodore Sorenson, a key White House aide to President John F. Kennedy, to a top intelligence post.

Carter introduced Califano, a key adviser to Lyndon Johnson and one of those behind Johnson's Great Society programs. Schlesinger and Sorenson at a nationally broadcast news conference.

The appointment completed Carter's 11-member Cabinet, and the President-elect said he may recommend creation of a new Department of Energy, which Schlesinger would head. Carter said his plans on that point have not yet been drafted. He said while his ideas are still hazy, his inclination would be to put into the new department all energy functions now in the hands of other federal agencies, including the Department of Interior, which would be left with its other responsibilities.

He said Schlesinger's initial role on the White House staff will be to coordinate current energy programs and to direct the effort to draft a comprehensive national energy policy.

"I consider this to be one of the most important appointments that I shall make," Carter said.

The President-elect talked to the three reporters aboard his small Air Force jet during the return flight to Georgia from Chicago, where he attended funeral services for Mayor Richard Daley, who died Monday.

Shortly after returning home to Plains, Carter was driven to a hospital in nearby Americus to see his mother, Lillian Carter, who had been admitted for what a spokesman called "a few days of examination and rest" after she complained of not feeling well. Mrs. Carter is 78.

And Carter's controversial nominee for attorney general, Atlanta lawyer and former federal judge Griffin Bell, said he is quitting three exclusive primate clubs that have no black members.

Bell had been under fire from black leaders for his membership in the all-white clubs. Black congressional leaders had indicated they would fight his nomination because of the club memberships, out of concern for his civil rights record while on the federal bench and because of his support of G. Harrold Carswell, a Richard Nixon nominee to the Supreme Court.

Carter, during his aerial interview, said he takes at face value indirect assurances he has received from Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev that the Soviets will not try to test him in his first month in office, as was the case with the late Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Kennedy. But Carter added, "I'll be prepared if my belief is ill-founded."

Asked if he might attend an economic summit meeting of leaders of major non-Communist industrialized nations to be held in Japan later next year, he replied, "Possibly."

He said he will keep overseas trips to a minimum in 1977, but he indicated he might welcome one at which he could get to know a number of important leaders of other countries.

The incoming president said he plans a brief inaugural ceremony and will deliver a relatively short inaugural address.

Paralyzed man sues drug maker

By DAVID EGNER
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A man who says he became paralyzed from the neck down after receiving a swine flu vaccination is suing four drug manufacturers for $5.45 million.

Wayne Young, 58, a probation and parole officer, took the swine flu shot and it caused paralysis of his entire body from the neck down. The doctors have told us that it caused it," his lawyer, Gene Stipe, said Wednesday.

The possibility of a connection between the shot and the disease caused suspension of the national immunization program on Dec. 16.

Stipe said Young's suit is directed against the four drug companies that shipped swine flu vaccine to Oklahoma. He identified them as Parke-Davis and Co., Merrell-National, Wyeth Laboratories and Merck-Sharp and Dohme.

Stipe said that once proceedings begin in the case in January he expects to determine which of the companies produced the vaccine taken by Young Nov. 5, then drop the other companies from the suit.

Stipe said he mailed the suit to U.S. District Court for the eastern district of Oklahoma in Muskogee Wednesday. He said he knew of no similar suits.

Doctors have determined that Young is suffering from Guillain-Barre Syndrome, Stipe said. Dr. C.K. Holland, Young's personal physician, refused to tell a reporter whether the ailment had been diagnosed as Guillain-Barre. Young refused to let his doctors discuss his case.

Young, who is hospitalized in McAlester in eastern Oklahoma, said he was unable to walk when he awoke Nov. 21, one day after he went bird hunting. His paralysis worsened through the day.

The federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said its latest reports counted 172 persons stricken with the syndrome, of whom seven had died, not including the Pennsylvania man.

Meanwhile, health officials in Pennsylvania reported that a man there has died of Guillain-Barre Syndrome, bringing to at least eight the number of persons killed by the paralytic disease after receiving swine flu shots.

Marijuana-filled plane downed east of Vega

VEGA — The pilot and another occupant of a World War II B-25 bomber apparently were unable to remain high with 3,860 pounds of marijuana early Wednesday and crash landed the plane at a small airport east of Vega.

Authorities today were searching for two persons, apparently uninjured, who fled the landing site.

St. Bill Sneed of the Texas Department of Public Safety narcotics unit in Amarillo, said the twin-engine plane and its cargo are believed to be part of a major operation by an organized group in Texas. He said he did not believe the operation involved any persons in the Texas Panhandle.

The bomber, which had been converted for carrying cargo, apparently was forced down about 3 a.m. Wednesday with engine trouble.

The plane slipped onto the shoulder of the runway, crumpling a landing gear.

The Federal Aviation Administration is checking the plane's registration.

Street value of the cargo was estimated at between $772,000 and $965,000. Officers said that bulk marijuana sells for about $100 per pound to dealers and for $200 to $250 per pound on the street, depending upon the quality. Prices increase farther north.

Both of the plane's engines reportedly were covered with oil and one of them appeared to have burned "a little," one investigating officer said.

The silver-colored plane still bore Air Corps markings. Sgt. Sneed said the bulk marijuana came from Old Mexico. It was in kilo bricks which were wrapped and put into burlap sacks bearing Mexican writing.

The three pickup loads of marijuana were removed from the plane and taken to the courthouse at Vega.

In a separate and apparently unrelated incident in Roy, N.M., late Tuesday night, a suspect was arrested with 750 pounds of marijuana following a suspected drop by an unidentified plane about 60 miles northeast of Tucumcari.

Bruce Michael Bramucci, 32, of Lakewood, Colo., was arraigned Wednesday before District Judge Stanley Frost of Tucumcari on a charge of possession of more than eight ounces of marijuana. Bond was set at $15,000.

Pampa's living nativity

Strong winds and chilly December weather did not deter members of the Pampa Chapel of the Apostolic Faith as they presented a living nativity scene for three consecutive nights this week. Concluded Wednesday evening, the pageant was a total effort of the congregation, with all church members involved. Large crowds viewed the scenes, which were

CIA-Chile perjury probed

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA knew that an executive of International Telephone & Telegraph Co. would give false testimony about his relationship with the spy agency when he was called before a Senate subcommittee investigating U.S. actions in Chile.

The ITT executive, Harold V. Hendrix, is cooperating with a federal grand jury that is probing a possible conspiracy involving CIA and ITT officials. The jury is investigating allegations of fraud and perjury arising from the officials' testimony about U.S. activities in Chile, it was learned.

Targets of the grand jury investigation are known to be former CIA Director Richard Helms and ITT chairman Harold Geneen.

Hendrix already has pleaded to a misdemeanor charge and received a suspended sentence for withholding information about his covert relationship with the CIA from the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations.

A Justice Department lawyer told a federal court in Miami last month that Hendrix, former director of public relations for ITT in Latin America, informed the CIA in 1972 of his intention to withhold from the committee the fact that he had been in contact with the CIA.

The attorney, Walter W. May, added that Hendrix "did indeed withhold the fact" when questioned under oath by the Senate subcommittee, which investigated efforts by the CIA and ITT in 1970 to block election of Marxist Salvador Allende as Chile's president.

Lawrence Houston, who was general counsel of the CIA at the time, acknowledged in a telephone interview that the agency knew in advance of Hendrix's intention to testify falsely. "I thought we advised him from our point of view that there was no reason he couldn't say he had had a relationship with us," Houston said.

Asked why the CIA did not inform the subcommittee that Hendrix had in fact lied, Houston said the panel had been given documents that proved the inaccuracy of Hendrix's statements.

However, Jerome Levinson, chief counsel for the subcommittee, insisted that the CIA had not given any indication, either on or off the record, of its relationship with Hendrix.

May made his remarks Nov. 30 in the U.S. District Court for Southern Florida where Hendrix pleaded guilty to the mis-deemeanor charge of withholding information from Congress. The transcript of the proceedings makes clear that Hendrix was allowed to plead guilty to the misdemeanor charge and received a suspended sentence in return for his cooperation in the Justice Department's probe of possible perjury committed by CIA and ITT officials before the Senate panel.

Grenade kills soldier

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A grenade exploded outside the offices of Beirut's largest newspaper today, killing a Syrian soldier of the Arab league peacekeeping force. Another Syrian soldier was wounded.

The incident was the first act of violence in Beirut directed against the largely Syrian peacekeeping force which occupied most of Lebanon last month forcing an end to 19 months of civil war.

It came as newly appointed premier Salim el-Hoss asked the Lebanese parliament for a vote of confidence and emergency powers to rule by decree for six months to deal with urgent security, defense, economic, information and education problems.

Monty makes last deal

By JOHN M. WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — After nearly 3,800 shows, $35 million in prizes and 20,000 onstage kisses from female contestants, television's Monty Hall has tired of the grind and taped his last "Let's Make a Deal."

The final syndicated program starring the Canadian-born emcee and actor was videotaped at the Hilton Hotel here Wednesday night. Connie Busse of Las Vegas won two cars worth $12,000 in the "Big Deal," and there were no "zonks" — the booby prizes like live pigs or old socks for which the 14-year-old show is famous.

At a quiet backstage party for cast and crew afterwards, Hall said he never got a hostile reaction from his contestants, who had to dress in outlandish outfits to be picked for the show.

"That's the love of it," Hall declared. "The beautiful part about the show is that the people have always been so darned decent and so warm.

"And underneath those crazy costumes, there is a real slice of America," he said. "They've been very decent with me, and have shown me an awful lot of love."

"In 3,800 shows, never once have we had to edit a show because of a reaction from a contestant — physically or orally. The person has never hurled an expletive when they've lost a car, and got a pig, or anything like that."

When viewers nationwide see the show, they will not be able to tell it was the last one because no farewells were said while the tape was rolling. Hall, now 50, explained that some markets don't run the shows consecutively, and other markets are still playing last year's.

Hall said he was aware the show had been "the whipping boy for all the critics" who complained it glorified greed and commercialism. He said he had "never minded" people who made fun of the show. "It was the real harsh criticism that did get to me."

FCC tells CB operators, keep your four bucks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hang on to that $4, good buddy. You can get your CB radio license without it.

The Federal Communications Commission doesn't want it, even if the instructions for your new Christmas CB radio say to send it in for your citizens' band radio license. Those instructions are out of date.

The commission announced Wednesday that it had voted 7 to 0 to suspend all of its fee collections, including those from CB radio operators.

The suspension will give the FCC time to consider the impact of a U.S. Court of Appeals decision last week that said the FCC collects too much money in fees. The court said the FCC has to demonstrate that each fee it collects is directly related to the cost of preparing the license.

FCC officials said the suspension does not affect the need for CB fans and other broadcasters to get licenses before they go on the air. They just won't have to pay for them.

And there is a chance they may never have to pay for them, since many congressmen had been urging the FCC to do away with CB license fees before the court ruling.

Thomas P. Campbell, manager of the FCC's Finance Division, said no decision has been made on the question of refunds for those who have paid for their licenses. The court did not order refunds, but conceivably a license holder could sue to recover his money.

Campbell said the FCC will have to consider the legal and administrative problems involved in deciding if the FCC should continue collecting fees. He added that a large volume of inquiries from people seeking small re. and would not help expedite the decision.

The major individual financial beneficiaries of the decision will be commercial broadcasters, who were the plaintiffs in the suit that overturned the commission's fee system.

The FCC estimates that of the $34.4 million in fees it collected last year from all the communications licenses it monitors, $5.2 million came from commercial broadcasters. The rest comes from other users, like CB enthusiasts and telephone companies.

Partly cloudy skies are forecast today with highs in the 50s and lows in the teens. The outlook for the Christmas weekend calls for highs in the 40s, and lows in the teens.

Records make sound gifts for all

By Stanley Mieses

NEW YORK — (NEA) — What's a gift that can't miss with a lover of good music? More music. Records never miss with the young and the tried and true audiophile never can get enough. This season's offerings by the major recording companies are sufficient to fill a tinsel evergreen forest.

Records are appreciated by rock and classical music buffs, show tune aficionados and jazz followers. This Christmas, there are some superpackages by superstars out on the racks.

John Denver's popular Rocky Mountain Christmas lp has been coupled with his latest release, "Spirit," as a two-record set for the holidays. Additionally, the Denver catalogue is extensive and not a great risk if you're not sure of what to get. After all, he sells more than most pop musicians. Superstars Elton John, Stevie Wonder, Neil Diamond, Led Zeppelin and Lynyrd Skynyrd all have double-record sets ready for the Christmas rush.

There'll be new single records by Diana Ross (a live lp), Smokey Robinson, Leon Russell, Jackson Browne, a new Eagles album, "Hotel California," a new set by Joni Mitchell, Earth, Wind & Fire, Gladys Knight & The Pips — indicating that in the pop market, Christmas is some big deal.

Warner Brothers is ready-

ing a "Best Of" series which will include James Taylor, Doobie Brothers, Faces, and an ambitious three-record package by Neil Young entitled "Decade." RSO Records will release Eric Clapton's "No Reason to Cry" in time for the holiday hoopla, plus three previously unavailable albums by perennial favorites, the Bee Gees, and two outstanding defunct groups, Cream, and Blind Faith. Rock collectors will love these.

R&B fans will be happy to know a new Al Green lp will be waiting for them, as well as new disks by the Jacksons, the Isley Brothers, the O'Jays, Sly Tone, Billy Paul, Aretha Franklin, Billy Preston, and a "Best Of" offering from the Ohio Players. In addition, Atlantic is offering their traditional R&B Christmas album, "Soul Christmas," featuring the talents of Otis Redding, King Curtis, and Booker T and the MGs. Cotillion, an Atlantic subsidiary, is coming across with their own Xmas on vinyl, featuring the soft-soul sounds of Willis Jackson and red-hot glow of Margie Joseph.

Though Christmas and war (that's the real kind, not the pop group) shouldn't mix, they will on record this year, with most interesting partners. First, a World War II soundtrack album released by 20th Century Records, will feature the likes of Elton John, Helen Reddy, the Bee Gees, and Rod Stewart on this two-tp set. Robert Merrill, the opera singer, and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir are teaming up for a set of World War I songs, also slated for the holiday buying season.

On the jazz front, a slew of repackages will hit the stands, and for many young jazz listeners, this is a great time to stock up on the history-making musicians who influenced all American pop music. RCA's Bluebird label features attractive packages of big band music, notably Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, and Artie Shaw sets. Their Fats Waller and Tampa Red lps are well worth a listen.

Pablo Records, who in the last year have released some giant jazz names on old and new recordings, are featuring their monumental 13-record Art Tatum set, a collection of the ultimate jazz pianist's work that is a must in every jazz library, in part or all together. The rest of the Pablo catalogue, particularly the many tributes to Duke Ellington music and the virtuoso playing of Dizzy Gillespie are good bets. Pablo will release their entire 63-record catalogue on cassettes, also in time for the Yule rush. A six-record Lionel Hampton set is ready too.

Columbia, with its impressive jazz background, is also making several repackages available, including a Benny Goodman package; the World of Kay Kyser; a sterling reissue of that tenor sax great, Lester "Prez" Young; 50 Years of Jazz Guitar, and a George Benson jazz guitar double-tp. And, most items in the extensive Columbia Collector's Series would make for a good gift that would span generations of listeners.

Classical listeners will be gratified to learn that pianist extraordinaire Lazar Berman can be heard solo and solely playing Beethoven in an auspicious release; Michael Tilson-Thomas is conducting a very snappy "Rhapsody in Blue;" the "Concert of the Century," featuring the live Carnegie Hall get-together between violinist Vladimir Horowitz, cellist Rostropovich, lied-singer Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, and Leonard Bernstein, is a must for classical record buyers this Christmas.

RCA is releasing a three-record set of Handel's "Messiah" by the English Chamber Orchestra and Chorus, a three record Guarneri Quartet recording of Mozart's Hyden Quartets (Mozart dedicated them), the "Russian Album," chock full of Stravinsky and Tchaikowsky, directed by Eugene Ormandy, and a computerized restoration of the great voice of Enrico Caruso highlights RCA's "Legendary Performer" series.

On the show-tune side, the most ambitious release will be a two record set teaming the talents of Ray Charles and Cleo Laine as "Porgy and Bess."

We wish to thank you for your patronage during the past year and to express our warmest wishes for a very Merry Christmas and New Year.

Botswana may be joining Civil War

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Botswana said today it will appeal to the United Nations for a peacekeeping force to end tension along its border with Rhodesia. At the same time, Botswana rejected a Rhodesian proposal for talks between the neighboring southern African countries.

Botswana, a country without an army, is being drawn into the expanding civil war between Rhodesia's ruling white minority and black nationalist guerrillas.

Rhodesian forces launched a campaign last month against guerrillas operating in southwest Rhodesia along the Botswana border. Botswana has complained that some of this military activity involves "hot pursuit" into its territory.

Botswana, which has a police force of 500 men for a desert country the size of France, has protested that Rhodesian security forces repeatedly cross the 440-mile-long border.

Prime Minister Seretse Khama instructed Botswana's ambassador to the United Nations to call for a force to protect the border against "Rhodesian aggression," a Johannesburg English-language newspaper, the Citizen reported today.

The United Nations presently has peacekeeping forces in the Middle East and Cyprus. A communique from the Botswana Ministry of Foreign Affairs said it could not understand what the Rhodesians wanted to talk about. "If they stopped their incursions into Botswana, there would be no problem," L. Mpotokwana, permanent secretary for foreign affairs said.

Oil spill unnecessary?

BOSTON (AP) — Strongly criticizing the Coast Guard's handling of the stranded oil tanker Argo Merchant, Massachusetts' lieutenant governor says the worst oil spill in U.S. history "did not have to happen."

64-foot Liberian ship remained afloat over a shoal off Nantucket Island. It was settling into the sea at a 40-degree angle and was expected to disappear sometime today, according to a Coast Guard spokesman.

The Argo Merchant ran onto a shoal 27 miles southeast of Nantucket 10 days ago enroute from Venezuela to Salem, Mass.

Brown calls for arms pact

By FRED S. HOFFMAN AP Military Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Harold Brown, named President-elect Carter's defense secretary, has called for a U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms limitation agreement that would curb improvements in weapons as well as their numbers.

Brown, a technical member of the U.S. SALT negotiating team during the Nixon and Ford administrations, expressed his strategic arms views in a talk last year at the Soviet Academy of Science's Institute of U.S. Studies in Moscow.

As defense secretary, Brown will exert more influence on negotiations, deadlocked for months, on a new arms limitation agreement. The talks resume after Carter's inauguration.

So his Moscow talk is receiving fresh and close attention from military authorities. In the talk, Brown put forward what he called "general proposals which, in my view, would inhibit the rate of development and deployment of new offensive armaments."

Brown suggested limiting the number of missiles or bombers that could be modernized or replaced each year. He also proposed restricting the number of new strategic weapons systems that could be introduced during each five-year period, as well as curbing the number of missile tests that could be conducted each year.

"With such limits," Brown argued, "development and deployment will proceed more slowly and those carried out on each side will offer less justification for the other side to react and start its own new programs."

Former CIA man maybe sold papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agents staking out the drop for an espionage payoff were watching as a former employe of the Central Intelligence Agency arrived to pick up a package he thought contained money, the FBI says.

The package, a manila envelope about a half-inch thick, was turned over to the FBI by the Russians. When opened, it was found to contain copies of classified U.S. government papers and an anonymous note with an offer to sell classified information to Soviet agents.

Haynes, who claims he is one of the state's foremost experts on fingerprints, viewed prints obtained by prosecution investigators for nearly 30 minutes Wednesday during the hearing in Fort Worth district court.

Then he compared them to fingerprints and palm prints taken from Davis when he was arrested for the shootings.

"I'm more convinced than ever that they (prosecutors) don't have any fingerprints of Cullen Davis from the crime scene," Haynes said during a recess after his examination at the hearing.

Davis' five-man defense team contends the multi-millionaire was not at the mansion the night his step-daughter, Andrea Wilborn, and ex-Texas Christian University basketball player Stan Farr were killed.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richard Hongisto, the "flower-power" sheriff, is on trial for refusing to evict 70 tenants from a low-rent residence that new owners want to tear down. If convicted, Hongisto and his assistant could spend five days in their own jail.

The demise of the Chinatown hotel has been hotly opposed by community activists, who contend that the needs of the residents are being ignored.

Hongisto, whose 1975 re-election was based on a coalition of youths, liberals, ethnic minorities and homosexuals, was cited for contempt by Superior Court Judge Ira A. Brown on Dec. 1.

Brown issued an eviction order last September, giving the sheriff 60 days to clear the hotel and turn it over to its new owners. Hongisto has repeatedly claimed he has neither manpower nor training to remove the residents.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Conrad Hilton, the 87-year-old hotel magnate, has taken out a marriage license with a long-time friend, United Airlines saleswoman Mary Frances Kelly, according to officials at Santa Monica Superior Court.

The marriage would be the first for Miss Kelly, 61, and the third for Hilton, who once was married to Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Miss Kelly has been with United since 1942. After attending Northwestern University, she studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London. During World War II she joined the American Red Cross and accompanied the 9th Army in New Guinea, the Philippines and Japan, helping to arrange entertainment for the troops and encoosing the shows herself.

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir Bukovsky, the Soviet dissident who was exchanged last weekend for Chilean Communist leader Luis Corvalan, has been denounced for "crimes against Soviet power."

NSC predicts hundreds to be killed

CHICAGO (AP) — The Christmas holidays will be a time of highway tragedy for from 460 to 560 persons, the National Safety Council predicts.

The council released on Tuesday its estimate of the number of persons likely to die in highway accidents between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday.

Last year, 412 persons died during the Christmas holiday, the safety council said.

Since The Associated Press began counting holiday traffic deaths in 1946, the highest three-day Christmas total was 720 persons for 1965. The highest four-day holiday total was 706 in 1956.

The Safety Council estimates that 350 to 450 persons may die over the New Year's weekend. The worst New Year's holiday came in 1965 when 564 persons died in three days. The worst four-day period came in 1969 when 481 were killed.

Pharmacist arrested for bank heist

HOUSTON (AP) — George William Hall Jr., 49, was in jail Wednesday charged with the robbery of the Western Bank.

Hall, a pharmacist, was arrested Tuesday shortly after a drive-in teller said a man took about $2,300 after threatening the teller with a bomb note.

Police said a pistol and the bank money was found inside Hall's car when he was arrested while driving along a freeway about 10 minutes after the robbery. They said no bomb was found.

Authorities quoted the teller as saying a man drove up to the window of the bank and dropped a bag into the drawer which contained a note saying a bomb would explode in 20 seconds unless money was placed in the bag.

RAUSCHENBERG EXHIBIT WASHINGTON (AP) — The largest exhibition of the works of Robert Rauschenberg ever held is currently on display at the Smithsonian National Collection of Fine Arts. The exhibit contains approximately 150 works from the late 1940s to the present and includes some of his most famous works.

The exhibition will travel to the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, the Albright-Knox Art Gallery in Buffalo and the Art Institute of Chicago during 1977.

to the prisoner swap, and said Bukovsky was a "criminal recently expelled from the Soviet Union."

But it indirectly attacked Western press coverage of the exchange, claiming "the propaganda machine has been put in top gear" to make Bukovsky look like a hero. Bukovsky had been in Soviet labor camps since 1972 for alleged anti-Soviet activities.

By MARY LENZ
Associated Press Writer
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Life to Betinho is a four-letter word.

The eight-year-old Brazilian street kid never knew his father, and his mother abandoned him when he was four. He shines shoes to eat and tries to sleep at friends' houses because he doesn't like to sleep in the street.

"But things will get better," he told Steve Murphy.

Murphy, a bachelor in his early 30s, is an American banker who tries to know Brazilians of all kinds. He once lived for six months in a favela, one of the hillside slums that the well-to-do avoid and police are reluctant to enter. He had been growing more and more concerned about Betinho and the rest of the 15 million abandoned Brazilian children who beg and steal to stay alive in the cities.

"I decided something ought to be done for the kids even in a small personal way," the young American said.

He wrote his American and Brazilian friends asking them to help with a Christmas party at his apartment in Rio's elegant Copacabana district. Each friend was asked to find an abandoned child to bring to the party.

Some of his friends responded enthusiastically. They raised money to buy shoes, shorts and t-shirts, ice cream, cake and punch. Three toy companies volunteered to donate 200 to 300 toys.

Not everyone approved. "I think it's a very eccentric idea for Rio," one man said. "I know these kids — they're mean. They'll come to his house and he'll never get rid of them."

"He'll probably get his house robbed," said another who refused to contribute. "You can't control those kids."

"Some asked us why we didn't donate this money to organized charity because it's more efficient," said Murphy. "My reply is that organized charity puts a buffer between the giver and the receiver, the child and us, the fat cats of society."

"I thought it was about time that we got down and talked personally to these children."

About 130 children were rounded up at Murphy's apartment they found ice cream, punch, cake, presents, clothes and Papa Noel, Brazil's Santa Claus.

Murphy will gather a few friends on Christmas Eve and "take to the hills" to distribute the gifts left from the party among families in the favelas.

Brown wants no cut in defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold Brown, who will be defense secretary in the Carter administration, shares the present Pentagon leadership's concern about trends in relative Soviet and U.S. military spending.

"I am concerned about the trend, upward past trend, of Soviet expenditures... and the downward trend of U.S. defense expenditures," Brown told a Tuesday news conference in Plains, Ga., after President-elect Carter named him to the defense post.

"If that continues indefinitely, or even for a substantial period, then I would begin to be concerned about our capabilities," he said.

Brown, who served as Pentagon research chief and Air Force secretary in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, virtually echoed Donald H. Rumsfeld, the outgoing Ford administration's defense secretary.

At his news conference, Carter restated his campaign pledge to save between $5 billion and $7 billion in defense spending through a number of measures to eliminate waste and improve efficiency.

The President-elect was not clear on when savings of that magnitude will occur. The assumption has been that the new administration will attempt to trim the Ford administration defense budget proposal, expected to be a record $123 billion. Ford's budget will go to Congress shortly before Carter is inaugurated next month.

Carter also restated his promise to withdraw about 32,000 U.S. ground troops from South Korea, saying it would be a "very slow, very methodical, very careful" process in consultation with the South Korean and Japanese governments.

Such a U.S. ground troop pullback, which Carter previously said would occur over a four to five year period, still would leave about 8,000 U.S. airmen and U.S. fighter-bombers to back up South Korea.

Announcing Brown as defense secretary and Charles Duncan Jr., a Houston businessman, as deputy defense secretary, Carter stressed their management abilities and his hope of making the huge defense establishment operate on a more businesslike and frugal basis.

Wellington to vote on school bonds

Wellington Independent School District will vote on the proposal to issue $500,000 in bonds early next year.

The issue, proposed to finance construction of a new elementary school will probably be submitted to voters during the first week of February.

The school board has met with an architect and a financial adviser and has called a meeting for Jan. 3, when the election date will be set.

If the issue is approved, a contract might be let by March, but Supt. E.W. Clement said it is unlikely the building could be completed in time for the opening of the 1977-78 school year.

The new building will include 18 classrooms, a large library and media center, offices and other facilities. The present school building will be utilized to house four classrooms, the cafeteria, the school tax office and other offices and storage rooms.

Approval of a $500,000 bond issue will raise the bonded indebtedness of the school district to $1,076,000, and the tax rate to finance the debt would be 68 cents, the financial adviser said.

This rate would be 26 cents more than the present rate of 42 cents per $100 valuation.

Man charged with murder of policeman

DALLAS (AP) — A man who recently moved to Texas from Ohio was in jail here Wednesday charged with capital murder in connection with the shooting death last month of a Dallas police officer, officials said.

Randall Dale Adams, 28, was arrested Tuesday after police received information on the shooting from a 16-year-old Vidor, Tex., youth who told investigators he was with Adams when Officer Robert Wood was killed Nov. 28, authorities said.

Wood was shot five times with a .22 caliber pistol after he and his partner stopped a car for a routine traffic investigation.

Dallas police said the youth was questioned initially by Vidor investigators who contacted Dallas authorities after the boy described the shooting. The youth reportedly said Adams was a hitchhiker he had picked up.

No charges are planned against the youth, whom police described as a "very cooperative witness."

Adams, a construction worker who police said moved to Texas from Columbus, Ohio, two months ago, was ordered held without bond by Justice of the Peace Robert Cole.

Police said a .22 caliber pistol had been recovered from a swamp near Vidor.

Court moves for reversal of film ruling

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A Bexar County "commercial obscenity" conviction for showing the movie "Deep Throat" was reversed and sent back for possible retrial today because the prosecution wheeled into the courtroom a file cabinet with an "Organized Crime" sign on it.

Richard C. Dexter's lawyer earlier got the court to ban references to "syndicate," "organized crime" or "mafia" after the prosecutor told prospective jurors he would prove Dexter's theater was owned by a syndicate located in Memphis, Tenn.

Despite that order, the prosecutor ordered the file cabinet brought in and positioned so the jurors could read the red-lettered sign.

The defense made a motion for mistrial, but it was overruled. The defense lawyer then introduced the label into the record, without objection from the prosecutor, and noted that the jurors had craned their necks to read it.

Dexter was convicted and sentenced to 90 days in jail and a $750 fine.

When Dexter appealed, the prosecutor cited a driving while intoxicated case in which the prosecutor placed an ice pick on the state's table but never referred to it during the trial.

The Court of Criminal Appeals said the difference between that case and Dexter's was that Dexter's lawyer made reference to the sign in the record of the trial. There was nothing in the record of the DWI trial to show that the jury had seen the ice pick.

"We have often stated that an individual should only be convicted upon evidence that demonstrates he is guilty of the offense charged and not through an attempt to arouse prejudice in the minds of the jurors," the high court said.

Horace Mann P.T.A.
The Horace Mann P.T.A. held its regular meeting Dec. 16 in the school auditorium with Mrs. Dorothy Miller, president, presiding.
During the business meeting, minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Vangie Turner. Reports were given by the treasurer and by the chairmen of the membership and communications committees. Topics and dates for the PAFLE course were announced. It was decided by vote to purchase a planetarium, a listening center, globes, and maps for the classrooms with the project funds.

A nominating committee to select candidates for next year's officers was elected. Serving on the committee are Mrs. Mary Miller, Mrs. Punky Daniels, and Sam Begert.

The program, given by the Horace Mann Choir, included a Christmas play, as well as "Living Christmas Cards From Other Lands." The program was directed by Mrs. Hester Branham, and Mrs. Fay DeLis Adams was accompanist.

The room count was won by Mrs. D.L. Hinkle's first grade, and the door prize, donated by Mrs. Vera Farmer, went to Rev. Williams.

El Progreso Club
The El Progreso Club met Dec. 14 with Mrs. J.G. Morrison for a Christmas program. Mrs. Bruce Riehart, club president, appointed Mrs. Roy McMillen, Mrs. Ralph Palmer and Mrs. Ruth Morrison to serve on the nominating committee.

Mrs. Kermit Lawson presented a program on "Old-fashioned Christmas Thoughts." She closed the program by leading the group in singing Christmas carols, with Mrs. Quentin Williams at the piano.

Members exchanged handmade Christmas gifts. In keeping with the theme of "An Old-fashioned Christmas," the hostess had decorated the tree with gingerbread men and popcorn strings.

The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 11 at the home of Mrs. Roy McMillen.

Delta Kappa Gamma
The Beta Delta Chapter and the Theta Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society held a joint meeting and luncheon Dec. 11 in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn. The luncheon meeting was attended by 75 persons.

Organized crime profits from porno, gambling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized crime may be making larger profits from such "victimless crimes" as prostitution, gambling and pornography because of moves to decriminalize the offenses, a federally funded study says.

In a report released today, the National Advisory Committee on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, a government-supported advisory panel, urged states to go slowly in cutting criminal penalties for "victimless crimes."

It said cutting penalties for such offenses seems to increase those crimes and, in turn, channels more money to organized crime.

The report said decriminalization plans usually are based on the idea that removal of stiff penalties from victimless crimes would cut corruption and let police concentrate on more serious offenses.

"Actual experience with legalization in certain areas indicates that these arguments are not realistic," the panel said, contending that legal off-track betting and state lotteries have not lured gamblers away from illegal bookies and the numbers racket.

"The partial legalization of gambling and pornography not only appears to have increased the levels of those activities, but also may have increased profits for organized crime," the committee said. "As to prostitution, its current connection with organized crime appears to be increasing through ownership of bars and massage parlors where the women work."

The commission concluded that "the issue of revising laws on victimless crimes is one that states should view with considerable caution."

The panel said investigations indicate that pornography has become organized crime's latest business, producing profits which are pumped into loan-sharking, extortion, consumer fraud and bribery.

In a 288-page report on organized crime, the commission also recommended establishment of special prosecutors, statewide grand juries, witness immunity and protection laws, electronic surveillance and election campaign reform laws.

It urged that prosecutors' offices be removed from politics and that assistant prosecutors be full-time, career government employes. Other suggestions included a nonpartisan selection plan for judges.

The report said organized mobsters have moved into a variety of legitimate businesses, including freight companies and airlines, which it said are used as fronts for smuggling of drugs, weapons, jewelry, cigarettes and alcohol.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ancel Keys, Ph.D., and Henry Blackburn, M.D., of the University of Minnesota School of Public Health were recently given the Eleanor Dana Award by the American Health Foundation.

The award is for their original research on the relation of cholesterol metabolites to coronary disease prevention. Ronald Kotulak, a reporter for the Chicago Tribune, received the Lifetime Award for his series of articles, "The 'Good Life' — It Can Kill You."

Carter among few to be openly devout

EDITOR'S NOTE: This fifth and final installment of a five-part Christmas series about the religion of U.S. presidents, "The Presidents and God," deals with Jimmy Carter.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Most presidents of the United States have avoided elaborating their particular religious views openly, regarding it politically hazardous and limiting themselves in public to reverent generalities. But Jimmy Carter laid it out explicitly, in the clear.

Among presidents down through the years, only Lincoln has so plainly expressed his theological ideas in connection with that office, and possibly Wilson. Most of the others of high religious concern, such as Jefferson and John Adams, kept private their detailed discussions of it, preserved largely in personal papers.

But Carter, newly elected to the presidency, brushed aside the conventional reticence and spelled out frankly and publicly just where he stood in matters religious. He spoke against any governmental partisanship about religion and disclaimed presuming to have himself any special pipeline to God, but strongly and specifically affirmed dependence on him.

"I pray many times a day for God's guidance as I confront difficult decisions," he says. "I ask God to let me do what's right, and let me do what's best." But he said, "The fact that a person has deep religious convictions doesn't mean that person thinks he is always right. I recognize my own shortcomings and sinfulness and my need to improve, and the need for forgiveness from the people around me, and from God."

Carter, the first Georgian and the first full-fledged Southerner elected president since before the Civil War, also is the first in the presidential line to assert openly that Christ is the main influence in his life, and the first to make his concepts of Scriptural teaching and evangelical belief part of the electoral process.

"Jesus comes first in my life, even before politics," he says. "I don't want anything that's not God's will for my life... I'm a Christian, no matter what." But he also says of Judaism: "We worship the same God. We study the same Bible."

A Southern Baptist, Carter has served as deacon and Sunday School teacher in his home congregation in Plains, Ga. He has also served as trustee of the national denomination's service agency, the Brotherhood Commission, and as a lay preacher, evangelist and worker on mission teams in Lock Haven, Pa., and among Spanish-speaking poor in Springfield, Mass.

"My religion," he says, "is as natural to me as breathing." Whether his unreserved religious faith appealed to voters or not, it was not just pro forma as it has seemed to be with some past presidents. He had lived it and witnessed to it before ever aspiring to the presidency, and it clearly was the real Carter.

In contrast, modern political savvy has tended to downplay the religious factor, keeping it so generalized as not really to matter one way or another and to bother no one. But Carter bluntly laid it on the line. Regardless of whether it helped him or hurt him at the polls, he declared his convictions.

"I do not hold them because of their effect on the electorate," he says. "I hold them despite their effect. I hold them because I believe them. They're part of the Carter package. They come with me."

When the question first arose in the beginning of his campaign in 1975, he says he had a moment's hesitation about whether to pass it off with only his denominational affiliation, the usual sideling of it, but "I decided I'd respond with the same kind of openness and honesty to this question as to any other question."

He took some lumps for it. The political intelligentsia groaned. Numerous columnists and commentators voiced their cynicism.

Carter says the most unexpected aspect of the campaign had been the furor over his religious views. "So many analyses, so many stories, so many questions, so many expressions of doubt and skepticism — and occasionally ridicule," he says. "It really amazed me, and sometimes it hurt a little."

Two other Baptists besides Carter have been president: Warren G. Harding, 1921-23, a perfunctory, incidental member of the Northern branch, the American Baptists; and Harry Truman, 1945-53, a Southern Baptist like Carter, but not so extensively active in church affairs, although a consistent worshipper, versed in Scriptures.

Carter, despite misportrayals of his religion, is not a rigid Biblical literalist nor hard-line fundamentalist, being neither defensive nor judgmental. Rather, he conveys a positive, trusting religious viewpoint, a man of tolerant breadth and disciplined devotional practice.

"I pray many times during the day," he says, noting that he does so especially when he hears of someone in trouble or when facing a decision affecting the lives of others. "For a long time, I've had a habit of reading a chapter in the Bible every day. It's been a help to me and become part of my life... I haven't missed a day this year."

Lately, he's been reading from a Spanish version, combining both sustaining his fluency in that language and sharpening his Scriptural consciousness, reflecting his bent for getting maximum efficiency from his time.

While his principles are grounded in the Bible, he also is familiar with the works of the great religious thinkers, Reinhold Niebuhr, Karl Barth, Paul Tillich, Soren Kierkegaard, and often refers to their insights.

By a strange irony, the question has been raised about whether Carter might use the presidency to foist his religious views on others. Yet he belongs to a tradition, the Baptists, who from the first have been among the staunchest champions of individual liberty in religion and of the U.S. policy separating church and state.

Indeed, Baptists played a key role in obtaining that policy. The first American colony assuring religious freedom was established in 1639 in Rhode Island by Baptist Roger Williams. A Baptist leader in Virginia, John Leland, had a major influence with James Madison in drafting the first constitutional amendment forbidding any "law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

So fervently have Baptists defended that principle that they're sometimes accused of carrying it too far, such as in refusing federal loans for their colleges. They proclaim a spirit of individuality in religion, insisting that each person is free to determine his beliefs and interpret Scripture according to his own conscience.

"I believe in complete separation of church and state," Carter says. "Certainly I would never use political office to impose my religious convictions on someone else. The broad diversity of philosophical and religious beliefs in our country is one of our greatest strengths."

Nevertheless, like any genuinely religious person, Carter makes clear that his faith permeates his whole outlook and provides the framework of his values in his approach to issues, personal and political.

"As far as my decisions as a political leader, they are affected very heavily by my Christian beliefs," he says. "I don't look on the presidency as a pastorate. But it gives me a chance to serve and it also gives me a chance to magnify whatever influence I have, for either good or bad, and I hope it will be for good... I try to utilize my religious beliefs as a constant guide in making my decisions as a private and public citizen."

He notes that there are ethical principles common to many religions — compassion, brotherhood, love, truth, honesty, decency, and he adds, "I believe it is a state's responsibility and privilege to reflect these virtues in its policies, both domestic and foreign."

Carter's religion was portrayed as being problematical for Jews, yet Southern Baptists and other evangelicals are among the sturdiest supporters of the state of Israel, seeing it as a fulfillment of Biblical prophecy. Carter himself affirms that view.

"The survival of Israel is not a political issue — it is a moral imperative," he says. Surveys indicate Jews gave him 75 per cent of their vote, surpassing their usual margin for Democrats.

Carter, whose main boyhood playmates were blacks, also showed that special Southern understanding for them, and they reciprocated with 90 per cent of the black vote, providing his majority in several areas. He probably is the first president whose election edge came from blacks.

Among Catholics, he took an indicated 54 per cent of the votes despite criticism by some of the church's press and bishops for his refusal to advocate a constitutional amendment outlawing all abortions. He emphasized he personally opposed abortion, and would do all he could to minimize the need for it.

Carter, baptized in his home church as a boy of 11, had experienced a spiritual rebirth in 1966 at the age of 42, described as being "born again," a common evangelical expression drawn from Jesus' statement in John 3: "You must be born anew."

Although the mass media treated it as some kind of strange anomaly, a Gallup survey indicates 34 per cent of all adult Americans say they have been "born again" — half the Protestants and 18 per cent of Roman Catholics. Actually it is basic to all Christianity whether the term is used or not.

In Carter's case, as he tells it, it happened at a low point in his political fortunes. Troubled that his faith did not take priority over other interests, he wrestled with these and other misgivings on a conversational stroll through the pine woods near his home with his sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton, a psychologist-evangelist.

"I determined then and there really to commit my life to Christ," he says. "I became uniquely aware of the Holy Spirit as an integral part of my life. I began to read the Bible with new interest and perspective. Since then, I've had an inner peace and inner assurance that have transformed my life for the better. Now that doesn't mean I'm better, but I'm better off."

In his campaign, Carter not only faced misapprehensions about his own faith but false stereotypes about his denomination, the Southern Baptist, as a narrow, dogmatic body. Actually it embraces a diverse, yet generally moderate religious spectrum. With 12.7 million members, it is the largest Protestant body in the country, now spread through all 50 states.

Although predominantly white, its national convention repeatedly has condemned race discrimination and segregation. It has less than 1 per cent black membership and many of its congregations still are solidly white. Only last month did Carter's home church in Plains vote to open its membership to blacks, as long advocated by Carter's family.

As president, he says he plans no special services in the White House as in the Nixon era when the president had his own selected religious attendants. Carter intends simply to participate in a nearby Baptist congregation and "play down any sort of show about it."

Carter's rise to the presidency heightened a religious element in the national consciousness. While he sometimes may have demurred at precision on various other issues, he seemed to have touched some deeper chord, some more basic pain and need in American society for moral fiber and spiritual strength. It was a theme he constantly sounded.

Perhaps he may bring some tempering of the secular saturation that has dominated society in recent times, suggests Lutheran scholar Richard J. Neuhaus. He notes that the last presidents to do so were Wilson and, more successfully, Lincoln.

Both of them also were Southerners by birth. Perhaps Carter's influence may also help stimulate a climate in which the moral traditions that shaped the nation's heritage can surface more naturally, enriching the diversity that is American life.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., father of the late civil rights leader, put it this way at the Democratic convention that nominated the man destined to be the next U.S. President: "Surely the Lord has sent Jimmy Carter to come out and bring America back to where it belongs."

Show looks at life in 1940's

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forget "Happy Days," forget the Fonz. The real, funny, bittersweet, industrial-strength truth of growing up is arriving tonight on public TV in "The Phantom of the Open Hearth."

Written and narrated by nostalgia master Jean Shepherd, it's a keen-eyed, colorful, slice-of-life look at blue-collar Americana in the late 1940s and an agonizing teen-age tribal rite — the junior prom.

To call it and its actors brilliant understates the case. I kid you not. The show is funny with a capital F. I'd even pay to see it.

It centers on Shepherd's youth (he's "Ralph" in the show) and the lives of all around him in a grimy steel mill town in what he calls "the great inverted bowl of darkness" — the Midwest.

The town is where he got his "first real part-time job," delivering mail at the steel mill, where he "learned to dream the American dream — of the beautiful future, the glorious past, the crummy now."

It is where his old man loved two things, which he used Olds and the Chicago White Sox; where his mother was "forever battling the trivia of her life," where his kid brother "could make his nose run at will."

It is where Zedek, the old man's pal, proudly declared, "I ordered a house from Sears and Roebuck... a Cape Cod Imperial. Five rooms, and it comes in a kit."

It is where Pop, a working stiff who never won anything in his life, won the "Great Heroes from the World of Sports" contest, and was mailed his trophy, a plastic lamp shaped like a woman's leg.

It also is where Mom accidentally broke the lamp, enraging Pop.

And it is where he wound up taking home, bespectacled Wanda Hickey, the algebra shark, to the prom, to dance as Mickey Isley and His Magic Music Makers completely rendered "Red Sails in the Sunset."

The standout cast includes David Elliott as young Ralph; James Broderick, the father in "Family," as Ralph's old man; Roberta Wallach as Wanda, and William Lamley as Ralph's pal, Flick.

They and Shepherd's remarkable ear for dialogue and photographic memory of The Way It Was make this show.

Ho, ho, ho, you're under arrest

DALLAS (AP) — To the prostitutes in the Oak Lawn area, he looked just like any other Santa Claus.

White beard and hair. Red suit. Friendly smile. A seemingly jolly manner.

Besides, one streetwalker said, two other Santas had already driven through the area this holiday season doing some Christmas shopping.

But the Santa of Tuesday night had a badge in his bag of treats. He used it to make nine arrests.

"The girls waved and laughed and asked what kind of presents I had," said Ross Salverino, the vice squad officer who played jolly St. Nick. "A couple (of women) even asked if I had any candy for them."

Salverino paid part of the $32.50 cost to rent the Santa outfit for two hours.

Officials said their efforts resulted in a record number of arrests of prostitutes during time period.

"We've been city employees and whatever, so why not Santa Claus," said Les Mertz, Dallas police vice control officer. "We just wanted to live things up and do something else."

After the arrests, Mertz said the operation was successful. "There ain't any left, except two who thought it was sacrilegious to have sex with Santa Claus," Mertz said. "They said, 'No, no, I can't do that with Santa Claus.'"

Some prostitutes were upset for more than one reason after being arrested, the officers said.

"Well, that's not fair," the officers quoted one girl as saying upon learning Santa was carrying a badge. "You shouldn't be using a Santa Claus suit."

Anti-hunger funds misused

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Chronicle reported today that federal investigators have learned an Austin-based organization used federal anti-hunger funds to purchase a "prestigious" three-story office building as a profit-making venture.

General Accounting Office (GAO) and the Community Services Administration (CSA) records show, however, the now-defunct organization lost its federal funding and defaulted on the mortgage.

The organization was the Mexican-American Council for Economic Progress (MACEP), a private, nonprofit corporation which, the GAO reported, set up a general business partnership "to acquire and operate for profit a three-story, 19,000 square foot office building" in Austin.

The Chronicle said the CSA inspection report obtained under the Freedom of Information Act identified the investment as "a prestigious office building called the Americana Bldg."

The inspection report said it was apparent the use of grant funds to purchase the building "was not related either directly or indirectly to alleviating hunger or malnutrition among the poor," the report said.

MACEP, the report said, received a $200,000 Emergency Food and Medical Services grant in June 1974 through the acting regional director in Dallas "despite the written reservations of his staff that the guarantee was not qualified to sponsor the grant."

The Chronicle said the acting director, Humberto Aguirre, now senior vice president of St. Edwards University in Austin, said in an interview he remembers the funding but "as far as implementation and details of the program, I never got involved with it."

The GAO and CSA reports said $25,000 of the $100,000 was delegated to other agencies which used the money to distribute food vouchers to the poor.

"But, as for the remaining $75,000 of the grant which has directly administered by MACEP, there is no evidence that any of these funds" were used to alleviate hunger, the CSA inspection report said.

Court upholds blue law

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Another attack on the state's 1961 blue law failed Wednesday, with the Texas Supreme Court upholding the act, 5-4.

The law says stores can't sell more than 40 kinds of goods on both Saturdays and Sundays.

Lawyers for Gibson Products Co., Inc., attacked the constitutionality of the law. They took the case to the high court after a Dallas district court judge ordered Gibson's to obey the law.

The high court noted that the 1973 legislature preserved the act while repealing laws that broadly prohibited labor and sales on Sunday.

"Allowing latitude for Sabbatharians and for some who prefer to tend only the Sunday trade, the legislature thereby maintains the prevailing custom of people doing their serious shopping for clothing, furniture, automobiles, household and office appliances and hardware on weekdays," the court majority said.

Chief Justice Joe Greenhill and Justices Ross Doughty, Sears McGee and Sam Johnson dissented.

They said the question was not one of doing business seven days a week but whether the legislature could arbitrarily prohibit sale of certain merchandise on both Saturday and Sunday.

Writing for the dissenters, Doughty said he could uncover no rationale for prohibiting some merchants from selling on both Saturday and Sunday while allowing all others to sell on both days.

"Although the legislature could enact a Sunday closing law that would meet constitutional requirements, article 9001 does not do so. It denies Gibson's equal protection and due process of the law," Doughty wrote.

Pepperoni cheese ball

Hostesses, for greater savings may buy their own sausage meats and cheeses and arrange a tray. By slicing it yourself, one may get as many as 40 thin slices to the pound which can roll or flute into pretty patterns around the tray. Hold three ounces of pepperoni under running hot water and remove skin. Grind, soften and add three ounces of package cream cheese with fork. Add one-fourth cup whipping cream, whipped. Stir in pepperoni. Chill. Shape into a ball and roll in one-fourth cup chopped parsley. Serve on crackers. For blender method, skin pepperoni and slice into one-fourth inch slices, then in half. Grind on low or chop speed. Add cream cheese and whipped cream. Blend until just mixed, stopping blender to scrape down sides if necessary.

Cookie treat tree

All you need to decorate your Christmas tree with cookies is a roll of refrigerated sugar slice and bake cookies, a cake and cookie decorator, butter cream frosting, red hot and other decorator items and yarn and a large darning needle. The shapes are all formed by slices of cookie dough 1/4 inch thick. Each is baked then strung with the needle and yarn. For added stability, cookies can be glued to cardboard.

Shrimp and turkey delight

Melt 1/2 cup butter or margarine in a saucepan; blend in 1/2 cup flour and gradually add 2 cups milk and 1/2 cup dry sherry. Stir over low heat till sauce thickens. Add a 12-oz. package frozen shrimp, thawed and cooked, and 4 cups cooked, diced turkey. Stir in a 6-oz. can of sliced mushrooms, drained, and a 10-oz. package frozen peas. Add salt and pepper to taste. Pour mixture into greased 2-quart casserole and sprinkle top with an even layer of small cheese crackers. Cover loosely with foil to prevent overbrowning. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. The casserole serves six to eight.

India inspires holiday feast

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

With the holidays come many parties. For a change, treat your guests to an adventure in eating from India. Not all Indian dishes are hot or flavored with curry since there are at least 15 regional cuisines in India.

Indians believe that the careful blending of seasonings is the criterion of fine food. This differs from the extensive Chinese cuisine many are coming to know. The Chinese believe contrast of textures is a prime factor in food preparation.

Interesting and economical for entertaining is the light meatless cookery evolved by Zoroastrians in western India. This is based upon vegetables, legumes and rice served on a thali, or round brass or nickel-plated tray, in three or four shining bowls. Each bowl has a different vegetable preparation and there is usually dahl — a spicy lentil sauce — a fluffy rice pillau and Indian bread, such as Chapati. Here is a complete Indian meal done with an American twist. The protein item was inspired by a Kashmiri dish (Ghoshtaba) and uses tuna. You may want to sample each recipe to serve individually with your favorite meats and vegetables, too. Or, why not use them as a base for a round-robin meal with one recipe assigned to each couple to bring to a dinner party. The thali was inspired by Gaylord's Indian restaurant in New York City. Serve with beer or iced or hot tea and milk flavored with cinnamon, cardamom, ginger and sugar.

INDIAN TUNA BALLS IN YOGURT SAUCE
2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
3/4 teaspoon salt, divided
1 1/2 teaspoons ground cardamom, divided
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 eggs
1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 cups plain yogurt
1 1/2 tablespoons flour mixed with 1/4 cup cold water
1/4 cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon sugar
2 whole cloves

Drain tuna and turn into medium bowl. Break into fine flakes. Add one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cardamom, ginger, 1 clove minced garlic, onion, eggs and bread crumbs; mix well. Shape into one and one-half inch balls. Place tuna balls in shallow baking pan and bake uncovered in 350-degree oven 30 to 40 minutes or until golden brown. Meanwhile, prepare sauce. In medium saucepan melt butter. Add remaining one and one-fourth teaspoons cardamom, 1 clove minced garlic and nutmeg. Cook until onion is tender. Remove from heat; stir in yogurt, flour mixture, heavy cream, remaining one-fourth teaspoon salt, sugar and cloves. Add tuna balls to sauce, cover and let stand 1 to 3 hours to develop flavors. Return to heat and cook covered over low heat until hot. Do not boil. Makes 6 servings.

RICE
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 medium onion, chopped
1/4 teaspoon ground cardamom
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/16 teaspoon saffron
1 cup uncooked long-grain rice
1/4 cup curries
1 vegetable bouillon cube dissolved in 2 cups water or 2 cups clear vegetable broth
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup coarsely chopped cashew nuts

In medium saucepan, melt butter. Add chopped onion, cardamom, nutmeg and saffron. Cook over low heat until onion is tender. Add rice and cook until all butter is absorbed. Add currants, vegetable bouillon and salt. Cover and cook over very low heat for 30 to 40 minutes or until liquid is absorbed and rice is tender. Stir in cashews. Makes 6 servings.

MATTAR PANEER (Peas and Cheese)
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped onion
3/4 teaspoon turmeric
1/8 teaspoon cayenne
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup finely chopped tomato package (10 ounces)
1 frozen green peas, thawed
1/2 pound milk white cheese (such as Mozzarella)

In large skillet melt butter. Add onion, turmeric, cayenne, cumin, coriander and cook until onion is tender. Add salt, chicken broth and tomato. Simmer uncovered until liquid is reduced by half. Add thawed peas. Cover and cook 5 to 10 minutes or until peas are cooked. Cut cheese into one-fourth-inch cubes and add to peas. Serve immediately; do not melt cheese. Makes 6 servings.

DAHL
1 cup dried lentils
6 cups water
1 teaspoon turmeric
1 teaspoon cumin seeds
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 onion, cut in quarters

Pinch lentils and add to large saucepan with remaining ingredients. Place over medium heat, partially cover and simmer 1 hour. Remove onion. Makes 6 servings.

CURRIED CARROTS AND CELERY
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon mustard seeds
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
1/2 teaspoon turmeric
1/8 teaspoon cayenne
3 carrots, pared and cut into 1/4-inch slices (2 cups)
1 cup sliced celery
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt

Melt butter in large skillet. Add mustard seeds, cumin, coriander, turmeric and cayenne. Cook over very low heat until mustard seeds begin to pop. Watch that spices don't burn; reduce heat if necessary. Add carrots and celery; mix well. Add water and salt, cover and cook over moderate heat until vegetables are tender, 15 to 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

YOGURT AND CUCUMBER
2 cups plain yogurt
1 medium cucumber, pared, seeded and chopped
1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh mint (optional)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon cayenne

Mix yogurt, cucumber, lemon rind, mint and salt in small bowl. Chill. Sprinkle with cayenne before serving. Makes 6 servings.

CHAPATIS (Whole Wheat Flat Bread)
2 cups whole wheat flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup milk
1/2 to 3/4 cup water

Measure flour and salt into medium bowl; cut in butter. Make shallow well in center of flour mixture. Pour in milk, mix with fork until milk is absorbed. Mix in water, a tablespoon at a time adding enough water to make a smooth, firm, compact ball that is not sticky. Knead dough for 8 to 10 minutes on a lightly floured surface. Cover and let rest about 30 minutes. To make each Chapati, pinch off about 2 tablespoons of dough. Roll into a very thin circle, about 5 inches in diameter. Place in hot Teflon-lined or lightly greased skillet, or on a hot griddle, and cook over moderately high heat about 30 seconds, or until bubbles form. Turn and "bake" another 30 seconds. Keep warm while baking remaining dough. Chapatis may also be prepared ahead and reheated on baking sheet in 350-degree oven for about 10 minutes. Makes 12 to 16 Chapatis.

First Lady is happy to retire

VAIL, COLO. (AP) — Relaxing in this Colorado Rockies resort and looking forward to a new home in California, First Lady Betty Ford seems almost relieved that her husband lost the presidential election.

While the President skied on the snow-scarce slopes of Vail Mountain Tuesday, Mrs. Ford strolled through Vail Village doing some last-minute Christmas shopping and chatting informally with reporters.

Asked if Ford had put the disappointment of his loss to president-elect Carter behind him, she said he had, and that skiing was doing wonders for him.

"We did very well," she said of the election. "We came from way behind and we almost made it."

Then she added with a smile. "Thank goodness we didn't." Before she could be asked for an explanation, she disappeared into a ski shop.

Being First Lady has been hard on Mrs. Ford, who suffers from an arthritis condition in her neck and shoulders. A month after Ford became president in 1974 she underwent breast surgery for cancer and just recently completed an extensive series of chemotherapy treatments.

In a pre-election interview, she was asked if she would be disappointed if Ford lost and replied: "I wouldn't be broken-hearted. I would get my husband back."

Mrs. Ford also told reporters Tuesday. "It's a very good guess" that the couple will make their home in California next year, either in Palm Springs or Palm Desert.

Both have "a lot of golf courses," she said, noting that is the President's favorite sport. The desert climate also would be good for her arthritis, she said.

Mrs. Ford also indicated her husband will have at least a part-time teaching job next year. She said he had had many offers from colleges, including his alma mater, the University of Michigan, to become a visiting professor.

The Fords arrived here Sunday for a two-week holiday vacation.

'Don't chop our trees' says judge

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — Clear-cutting timber in Texas' four national forests is still illegal. Federal District Court Judge William Wayne Justice extended Tuesday a ban against the logging practice, pending a final ruling.

Justice made the preliminary ruling after final arguments were heard from both sides in the Texas Committee on Natural Resources suit against the U.S. Forest Service.

The judge set no specific date for a final ruling in the matter. "I realize this is a significant case to be handled as speedily as possible," Judge Justice said.

Justice said he based his preliminary findings on the interpretation that clear-cutting in national forests constitutes "a major federal action which may significantly affect the environment."

The extension of the injunction against clear-cutting prevents:

-Executing sales contracts for sale of any trees other than those that are dead, physiologically mature or large.

-Causing any other than mature or large trees to die by felling or mechanical means, except by accident.

-Clear-cutting in the sense of moving trees down to the earth.

Jimmy Carter taco hits San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — To some people it tastes like crunchy scrambled eggs. But the peanut and egg "Jimmy Carter Taco" is making a place for itself in this South Texas city.

Oswaldo Rodriguez, 55, owner of a Mexican food restaurant, says he's been making the new taco since right after the election last month.

"One customer has grown a liking for them and comes in every morning asking for four peanut and egg tacos," Rodriguez said in an interview.

"If I eat it plain — just peanuts and eggs — and don't drink coffee, it tastes like pork to me," he said.

Rodriguez said his customers tagged it the Jimmy Carter Taco, but he said Carter's election sparked the idea.

"I was reading the paper of how Jimmy Carter won the election when my mind started to tick. The idea hit me and I waited for the grocery store to open so I could buy some peanuts," he recalled.

In a few hours, the Carter Taco made its debut in San Antonio, where tacos are eaten as often as hamburgers or hot dogs. Rodriguez made about 10 of the new tacos and passed out samples to some of his customers.

The customers prevailed upon Rodriguez to add the item to his menu.

"Some say the peanut and egg taco doesn't sound very good and so they never try it. And a lot of people think I use peanut butter," Rodriguez said.

Actually, dried roasted peanuts are mashed down to match-tip size and scrambled with eggs. In the process, some of the peanut bits are fried and get a new flavor of their own, Rodriguez explained.

And, he added, for some reason Democrats seem to like the peanut and egg tacos better than Republicans.

On the light side

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A 30-year-old bellhop has offered President-elect Carter a tip: when staying at a hotel, let the staff carry the luggage.

Carter has been photographed handling his own baggage on several trips, and Tom Gould, who works at the Crown Center Hotel here, said the President-elect has hurt the trade.

In a letter to Carter, Gould said, "Your public actions have given license to people free-loading, and then looking at service personnel as if they were parasites. This upsets the staff. It affects the operation of the whole house and it cheats the people who have come there to enjoy a fine hotel."

Gould, who has been a bellhop for three years, said, "Just as one does not go to a restaurant and ask for cafeteria service, one does not go to a hotel and expect motel service.

"Travelers... who prefer to carry their own luggage, make their own beds and fix their own food will hopefully go camping," he added.

PATENT MILESTONE. WASHINGTON (AP) — The four millionth U.S. patent was expected to be issued by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office in late December, according to Intellectual Property Owners, Inc. (IPO), a nonprofit public educational organization dedicated to preserving the patent system as an incentive to invention and innovation throughout the nation.

Among the 11 million documents which have been assembled into a patent file by the Patent and Trademark office can be found the disclosure of nearly every major technological advance which has occurred throughout the world during the 186 years since the first U.S. patent was granted. Also available are over 9 million patents of other nations and 1 million pieces of non-patent, technological literature.

The file is used primarily by government patent examiners and the public as the principal resource in determining the novelty and patentability of inventions.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Donald Moser makes his living convincing people that they need new sources of energy, so he figured he had to convert his gasoline-powered bus. Now it can run on chicken droppings — about 30 birds to the mile.

"I decided to help the country and society to make changes," said Moser, 43, during a recent stop here. "I decided the best way would be to put on a one-man demonstration."

But it takes the daily droppings of 600 chickens to produce enough methane gas to send the bus 20 miles, Moser said, and there are only 13 places around the country where farmers have rigged methane digesters — tanks in which wastes like chicken droppings are heated to speed the natural production of the gas.

Commercially produced methane is expensive, so sometimes the bus takes gasoline, Moser admitted.
