Motel Held Up By Hooded Pair

Gray County Sheriff's Deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety officers converged on the L Ranch Motel, 1111 E. Frederic shortly after 3 a.m. today where $215 had been taken in a holdup.

Two men, moving quickly from the Fourth to Halloween, put hoods over their heads and rang the night buzzer at the motel. When the woman attendant answered, they stuck a revolver in her face and demanded all the money on the premises.

When it was handed over they left on foot going east on Highway 60. The woman told officers she went to the door shortly after their departure but heard no vehicle anywhere in the vicinity.

Jets Hit Hanoi Area With Heavy Strikes

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes blasted the Hanoi region with heavy strikes Tuesday, the U.S. Command announced today. More fighting also was reported on the northern front in South Vietnam, east of Quang Tri City and southwest of Hue.

North Vietnam claimed that the U.S. planes bombed and strafed residential areas of Hanoi, "killing or injuring many persons and destroying or damaging hundreds of dwelling houses." It said two U.S. F4 Phantoms were shot down.

The U.S. Command said it would disclose details of the raids later today, but it denied that attacks were made on civilian targets and said it had no information "indicating other than military targets were hit."

The command also said it had no plane losses Tuesday to announce yet. But it did announce that MIG21 interceptors shot down a pair of Phantoms southwest of Hanoi on June 27.

City Ordinance On Fireworks, Firecrackers Reported Violated

By RAY BAXTER

The Pampa city ordinance against discharging fireworks inside the city limits was shattered by hundreds of explosions last night and enforcement was as fragmented as the statute itself.

City police, faced with the normal course of law enforcement and patrolling of beats attempted to check out the most flagrant violations reported but said it was impossible to cope with the total number.

Violations ranged from firecrackers thrown from a number of cars cruising through various neighborhoods to that one man in an otherwise quiet section of town who stood mistakenly on his rights that he was on his own property even if it was within the city limits and proceeded to fire off barrage after barrage.

This morning, local citizens in informal discussion of the problem joined others across the nation from the National Safety Council to doctors who

Would-Be Hijacker Surrenders

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A man who held a young girl at knife point in an apparent attempt to hijack an American Airlines 707 at Buffalo International Airport surrendered to an FBI agent early today.

"He apparently decided he was not going to get out" of the airport, said Richard Ash, special agent in charge of the FBI office here.

"If there's no shooting, I'll come out," Ash quoted the man as saying moments before he emerged from the aircraft carrying his "hostage," who appeared to be 2 or 3 years old.

Ash said an FBI agent had sneaked aboard the plane and confronted the man. After the agent assured the man there would be no shooting, the man threw down his knife and carried the girl in his arms down the ramp to a waiting police car.

The child was not harmed, Ash said. Blood on the child's clothing, Ash said, was from a slight wound the man had suffered.

Police identified the man as Charles Smith, 23, of Buffalo.

The youngster was not identified immediately.

Police said Smith had allegedly stabbed the girl's mother and a man earlier in Buffalo. The woman was reported in critical condition, the man in fair condition, at Deaconess Hospital.

Police said Smith apparently slipped aboard the unoccupied jet about 5 a.m. and demanded that American Airlines provide a pilot for the craft.

"I want a pilot," he shouted to police and FBI agents who surrounded the plane as it stood at a terminal gate.

Smith and the girl were visible just inside the plane.

Scores of airline passengers passed through the terminal as usual. Many seemed unaware of what was happening at the American gate.

McGovern Backers Win Victory In Federal Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here today handed a victory to the forces of Sen. George McGovern in their battle with the Democratic Credentials Committee for California delegates.

At the same time, forces of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley were given a setback by the court in the second half of the dual attack on the committee's hotly disputed decisions.

The appeals court reversed a District Court decision which had upheld the committee's action of stripping 151 delegates from California. The Circuit Court ordered the district bench to rewrite its decision in the California case in accordance with an opinion not yet filed.

The Circuit Court rejected the appeal of Daley's forces in one case and in two others directed that state court action be prohibited insofar as the delegates from Illinois which were rejected by the committee are concerned.

The brief order of the appeals court carried no reasons for the action. The judges were expected to file opinions later in the day. The District Court ruled Monday that the federal judiciary had no place in the debate over delegates from the two states.

The Credentials Committee had issued decisions that stripped Sen. George S. McGovern of 151 California delegates and told Mayor Richard J. Daley and 58 other uncommitted Chicago delegates to stay home.

The committee decisions were likened to a "self-destruct button" by the party's lawyer Tuesday even as he fought to uphold them before the appeals court.

Party counsel Joseph A. Califano told the three judges that federal courts have no business in the party's business. His argument echoed the decision of a U.S. District Court which prompted the Fourth of July appeal.

McGovern and Daley forces appealed in their fight to overturn committee decisions which ousted 59 Illinois delegates, including Daley, and ripped the winner-take-all prize of the California presidential primary from McGovern to award the state's 271 delegates proportionately among candidates, based on their percentage of the vote.

Meanwhile, the Credentials Committee completed its pre-convention agenda and passed on to the convention the job of settling 13 contests over the seating of hundreds of delegates.

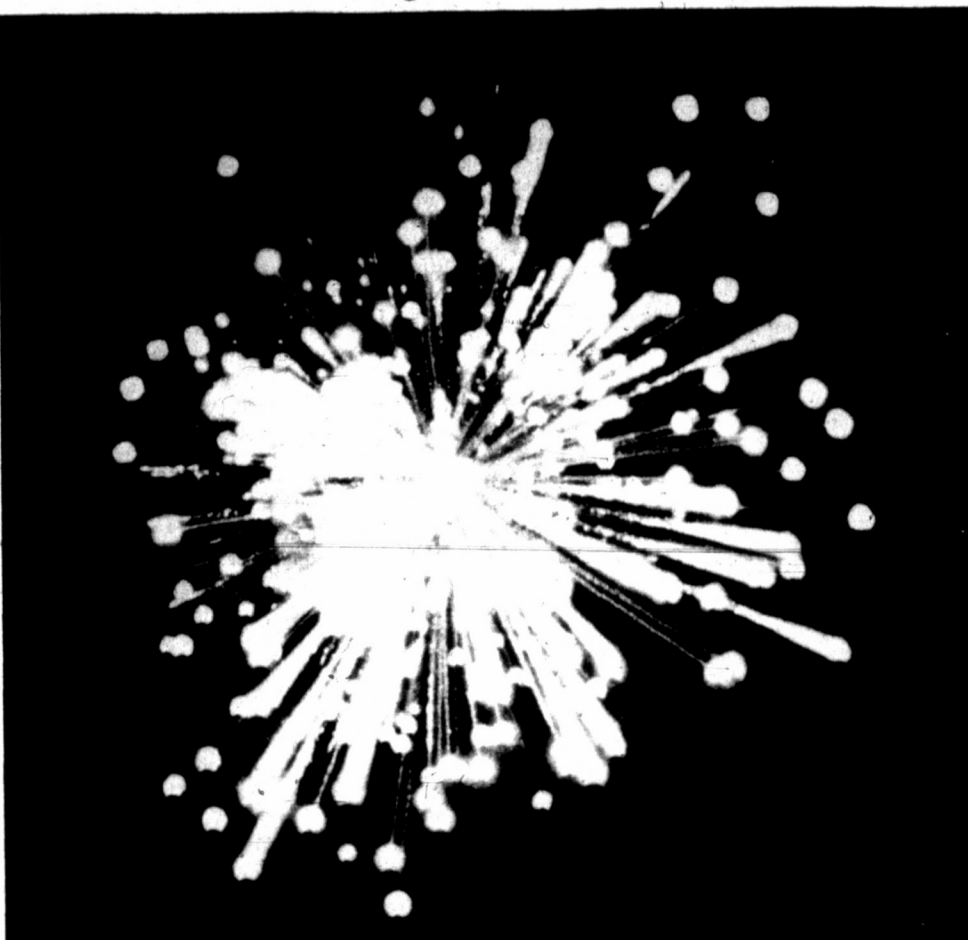

Many of the dissents concern issues raised by the mandate from the reform commission originally headed by McGovern: that women, young people and minorities be represented.

Committee's Decisions On Delegates Reversed

Successors to the ousted Illinois delegates were selected in meetings in the state's congressional districts. Original selection was by popular vote of Illinois Democrats.

The challengers are "new backroom bosses selected by losers" in the election, claimed Jerome Torshen, attorney for Daley forces.

By LARRY HOLLIS

Braving the unusually cool July weather, several thousand people from Pampa and surrounding areas showed up last night for the annual Fourth of July observance at Recreation Park.

Commemorating the heritage of Americans on this day, Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan delivered the Honor America Day address.

"We're standing today before the spirits of great men of the past," he said, referring to the framers of the Declaration of Independence and the founders of the United States of America.

Sheriff Jordan discussed the various hardships and sacrifices endured by the early colonists in bringing forth the new nation.

Noting the nation has had to fight at times to preserve its freedom and to battle those within the nation who would change it, he said, "We have kept the faith. We have returned again for another year."

Describing the accomplishments of the nation and deprecating those who would take away its greatness, Sheriff Jordan said, "We are recognizing those devout Americans who come out to pay homage to their country."

U.S. Rep. Bob Price delivered a few remarks, saying local citizens can be "proud of our community and the heritage of our forefathers, who have suffered more than we have today."

Bringing the official greetings from the city, Mayor Milo Carlson noted people should be "more mindful of what our nation needs and what we need to do for our country."

Roy Sparkman, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the event, presided over the program. He said the celebration marks the anniversary of the founding of "man's most noble experiment in self-government."

With gray clouds hanging over the arena and a touch of mist in the air, the program began at 7:30 p.m. with a presentation of various western games under the direction of Richard Guggisberg, assistant Gray County agricultural agent, and Andy Smith of the Gray County 4-H Riding Club.

Members of the Gray County 4-H Riding Club demonstrated the potato race, barrel race, Pony Express race, pole bending race, showmanship and Western pleasure.

Following the games, the Kwahadi Indian dancers from Explorers Post 80 of Amarillo presented a colorful 30-minute show of authentic Comanche Indian dances, including a war dance, eagle dance, rain dance (which, fortunately, didn't bring any rain during the show) and a battle of two braves.

Another highlight of the night for the youngsters in the stands came when a goat bearing a ribbon on its tail was turned loose in the arena.

All youngsters under 12 years of age were allowed to chase the goat, with the one bringing back the ribbon receiving a $5 prize. Winner was Tommy Wing.

The show ended with the annual fireworks display produced by Burnett Fireworks Co. of Enid, Okla., and fired by

UAW Leader May Support McGovern

Detroit (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock said Tuesday he could support either Sen. George McGovern or Sen. Hubert Humphrey for the Democratic presidential nomination, but was "leaning" toward McGovern.

Woodcock, who originally endorsed Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie for the nomination, said his statement could not be construed as an endorsement.

"I could gladly support either one Humphrey or McGovern," Woodcock said. "It looks as if McGovern is going to get it."

Woodcock also called for the return to McGovern of 151 California delegates taken from him by the party's Credentials Committee and distributed among his eight opponents in that primary.

The committee set aside California's winner-take-all system and left McGovern, who originally took all 271 delegates with under 50 per cent of the vote, with 120.

712 Die In Traffic Across Nation, 60 In Texas During Long Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents around the nation claimed 712 lives during the Independence Day weekend.

The National Safety Council had estimated in advance that 800 to 900 persons might be killed on streets and highways between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Tuesday.

The record toll for any Independence Day weekend was 732 in 1967 when the holiday also ran four days. The count last year, a three-day weekend, was 638.

It was a bloody July 4 weekend in Texas despite preventive steps by state police.

At least 99 persons died violently in the state between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Tuesday, when the extended holiday ended.

There were 60 fatalities in traffic accidents alone, eclipsing the predicted figure, and eight deaths in a single crash at Abilene sent the toll spurring upward. Nineteen shooting and 13 drownings added most of the other deaths.

State police had estimated in advance that 58 persons would die on streets and highways, a total which proved too small.

Eight motorists died as two cars smashed together in heavy rain Tuesday near the north edge of Abilene. Two others suffered critical injuries.

State police said an automobile carrying six persons tried to pass another vehicle, skidded and collided with one carrying four persons the opposite direction. All were Abilene residents.

Investigators blamed high speed and slick paving for the accident. It happened on Farm Road 600 about 300 yards outside the city limits.

Officers said five of the dead were in the car which sought to pass—Herman Sutters, 16; Brenda Joy Walker, 15; Curtis L. Renfro, 18; and Debra Bell and Kathy Livingston, both 14.

Farmers To Get Subsidy Checks For Feed Grain

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government subsidy checks totaling $1.1 billion are being mailed to 955,000 farmers as part payment for cooperating in acreage set-aside programs for feed grain, wheat and cotton this year.

Officials said most eligible farmers should have their checks by the end of July.

Those killed in the other vehicle were Teresina C. Sherman, 54; her daughter Linda, 18, just graduated from high school, and son Jeffery, 13.

The injured are Michael Renfro, 16, who was with the five teen-agers dying in one car, and Roddy Lee Qualls, 12, in the other with the Shermans.

Witnesses said the impact twisted the front of one auto at a 90 degree angle from the body. A state patrolman described it as the worst accident during his 20 years in this West Central Texas district.

Effie Mae Williams, 36, and Everline Dykes, 91, both of Hobbs, N.M., died in a one-car accident on Texas 214 south of Morton near the New Mexico line.

Police said a service station operator shot and killed Isaac Colton, 17, in Houston after he and a companion held up the gas station Tuesday night and there was a struggle over the station man's pistol.

Legislature Expected To End Special Session By Weekend

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators began today what most expect to be the last chapter of the third special session of the 62nd Legislature.

Agreement Tuesday by House-Senate negotiators on a $1.1 billion appropriations bill, the sole reason the session was called by Gov. Preston Smith, brought predictions of adjournment by this weekend.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes said the Senate would act on the proposed spending bill compromise Thursday afternoon.

Speaker Rayford Price indicated the House would consider the conference committee report Friday.

House members returned today from a two-day holiday to honor Price in the traditional "Speaker's Day" ceremonies. The festivities will be climaxed by a downtown dinner tonight.

Meanwhile, Senators planned to take up proposed new rules that would open up the usual secret Senate debate on gubernatorial appointments and would cut out most costly special study committees. They also would spell out prohibitions against nepotism or the hiring of legislators' relatives for Senate jobs.

Barnes said the Senate would wait until after it acts on the appropriations bill before they take up the long list of gubernatorial appointees, several of them highly controversial.

Approval of the big spending bill Tuesday came after two days and nights of hard work by the five senators and five representatives.

The final totals call for expenditure of $856.4 million from the state's general revenue fund. Barnes said the state comptroller had agreed to certify the bill under the constitution's pay-as-you-go provision that prohibits the state from making any expenditure not covered by expected income. No new taxes will be needed.

The compromise compares with the original Senate bill of $865 million, passed after a 42-hour and 33-minute filibuster. It also compares with the House bill of $852 million, passed after a 16-hour marathon session in which 47 amendments were made in floor debate and 48 others defeated.

The bill covers the state's next business year from this Sept. 1 to Aug. 31, 1973.

In January 1973, the regular session of the 63rd Legislature will begin finance talks for 1974-75.

Officials Will Discuss Food Price Spiral Issue

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Consumers warned by supermarket officials to expect higher meat prices are finding the warning all too true.

An Associated Press survey of about two dozen cities shows that grocery bills — particularly for pork — have increased anywhere from a dime a pound on up in the two weeks since the latest warning was issued.

Cabinet officials scheduled a meeting in Washington today with officials of food chains and called in farmers for a Thursday session to help in preparing a food prices report that President Nixon has requested by July 10.

Shoppers, meanwhile, were issuing their own reports. "The food prices are just terrible now," said a woman in a Seattle Wash. supermarket. "I know how much the prices have gone up because I just started shopping regularly a year and a half ago when I was married."

"Prices are out of sight," said a man in a Kansas City store. "The very first thing the government should have done in its economic program was to put controls on food prices."

Supermarket executives warned consumers on June 16 to expect a rise in prices, particularly of meat. They said that wholesale costs have been going up and the retail outlets no longer could absorb the increase.

The AP checked prices in a dozen cities on June 16. Then checked again two weeks later to see if there had been any change.

Among the findings: In Seattle, the prices of 10 items were checked. Five went up, one went down and four remained steady. Increases included veal round steak, which went from $2.25 to $2.39 a pound, and rib pork chops, up two cents to $1.09 a pound. Stable items included peanut butter crackers, fruit juices, cheese, mayonnaise, butter and milk.

In the Chicago suburb of LaGrange Park, pork loin end cut went from 79 to 85 cents a pound and jumbo eggs increased from 59 to 65 cents a dozen. Sirloin steak dropped from $1.59 to $1.39 cents a pound, but the manager said the decrease was temporary, due to a holiday special.

In Los Angeles, ground beef went from 73 to 78 cents a pound, sirloin tip steak from $1.49 to $1.67 a pound and a Swiss steak TV dinner from 63 to 67 cents. Items that were unchanged included round steak, chicken legs, russet potatoes, lettuce, onions, liquid cleaner and aluminum foil.

A store manager in Los Angeles said, "It's hard to tell what is happening to food prices because they go up and down continually. We do know that our prices are going up and our profits are going down."

Nonsphosphate Detergents Can Cause Irreversible Blindness, Study Shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some nonsphosphate detergents on the market can cause irreversible blindness if accidentally rubbed into the eye, according to an unpublished government study.

"The results of this study indicate the rather sharp demarcation between moderate ocular damage caused by soap in phosphate detergents and the intense causticity of carbonates and metasilicates," the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences concluded.

The Food and Drug Administration, charged with protecting the public from hazardous substances, has reacted to the report with disdain.

"They are treading outside the realm in which they should be operating," said an official in FDA's Bureau of Product Safety. "We have the charter, we have the mandate."

The official asked not to be named, because he said it would violate protocol to criticize a "sister agency."

The institute's study, conducted by Dr. David P. Rall, the director, said NIH veterinarians Dr. Donald B. Feldman and John A. Moore, concentrated on nine synthetic-detergent products purchased near its Triangle Park, N.C., facilities.

Seven were laundry products, of which three contained phosphates (Tide, Ajax, and Dash); two contained carbonate (Sears, and Arm and Hammer); one had metasilicate (Ecolo-G); and one was a soap powder (Ivory Snow). Two were dishwashing compounds, one containing metasilicate (Electro-Sol), and one with phosphate (Cascade).

Material was put into the left eyes of New Zealand white rabbits and reactions were recorded at one, two, three, seven and 14 days.

The researchers said all the products tested irritated the eyes and caused an inflammation, known as conjunctivitis, and some clouding of the cornea.

The soap-powder eyes began clearing by 72 hours and were healthy again at seven days. The laundry-phosphate eyes cleared in all but one of 24 rabbits by 14 days.

"The reaction to carbonate and metasilicate detergents was more intense," the report said. Carbonates caused chronic opacities on 14 of 18 rabbits. Eleven animals suffered partial or total destruction of the cornea and a deterioration of tissue in the eyelids.

Chess Match Rescheduled For Thursday

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — The world championship chess match between Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky now is scheduled to start Thursday afternoon following another postponement, this one demanded by the Soviet champion.

After holding out for more money and getting it, the American challenger came to Iceland for the postponed opening match Tuesday. But Spassky walked out of the noon drawing to decide who would move first because Fischer was not present. He had sent his second, a Roman Catholic priest.

Officials announced a new 48-hour postponement of the opening, originally scheduled for last Sunday. They hoped both players would be ready to meet on Thursday.

Fischer arrived in Reykjavik early Tuesday. The Icelandic Chess Federation had rejected his demand for 30 percent of the gate receipts, but he agreed to come after a London investment banker doubled the $125,000 purse which he and Spassky will divide.

The 29-year-old American grandmaster was resting from the overnight flight in a guarded villa at the edge of town when Spassky counterattacked in the holdout department.

The 35-year-old Soviet champion read a prepared statement calling the American's conduct insulting and intolerable. It said Fischer, by refusing to appear at the opening ceremony last weekend, had insulted Spassky personally and the Soviet Chess Federation and had jeopardized his right to play for the title. The statement demanded that Fischer be punished.

With the contribution from the London banker, James D. Slater, the winner is to get $156,250 and the loser $93,750. In addition, each player will get another $75,000 from the television and film rights.

High Temperature Expected As Cool Front Moving Away

Gray clouds hung over the city again this morning but were expected to begin to clear up later in the day as the cool front which pushed through the area Sunday night continued to head downstate.

High Tuesday was only 63, with a low this morning of 58. A mist that lingered in the air during the day left only a trace of moisture.

The weather failed to put a damper on the celebration of the Fourth of July as the Pampa Chamber of Commerce went ahead with its annual program and as youngsters fired off their hoards of fireworks.

Scattered pockets of rain lingered over the southern third of the state and in coastal areas to the north of the frontal zone, with some drizzle reported in West Texas, according to

Associated Press reports. It was mostly cloudy in other sections except for clear skies here and there in the central portions of the state.

A tornado hit the ground northwest of Tomball in the Houston area and inflicted minor damage.

As much as 2.58 inches of rain fell at Waco and a 1.5-inch downpour caused some street flooding in Houston.

Rising temperatures were expected throughout the state.

City To Begin Buying SH 273 Right-of-Way

Right-of-way purchase offers for the improvement of SH-273 on S. Cuyler from the intersection of Brown St. to the Fort Worth & Denver underpass will be made to property owners early next week, City Manager Mack Wofford said today.

The city manager said word had been received that appraisal figures on approximately 65 pieces of property had been approved by the State Highway Department in Austin.

"We have the final go-ahead signal to begin right-of-way purchases," Wofford said.

Wofford said the city's $370,000 share of financing the project was authorized in a 1964 bond issue approved by Pampa voters.

The State Highway Department has expressed hope work can be started on the improvement by December of this year. No definite date has been set, however.

New Outbreak Of VEE Kills Scores Of Horses In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A new outbreak of equine encephalitis, the disease that killed hundreds of horses in Texas last year, is reported to have killed 1,248 horses in western and northern Mexico.

Medical authorities also said that at least 83 persons have been reported ill affected by the disease.

The largest incidence was reported in the Pacific Coast state of Nayarit where 643 animals died and in Durango, in north central Mexico, where 278 died.

Last year the disease first appeared in north central and north east Mexico and then spread north into South Texas.

Officials said that more than 97,000 vaccinations, most of them free, have been administered since the disease appeared.

On June 16, agriculture officials reported 205 animals had died from the current outbreak.

Last summer, an equine encephalitis epidemic in Northern and Central Mexico killed an estimated 10,000 horses and five persons.

A health ministry spokesman said 64 persons now have confirmed cases of the disease in Nayarit, 14 in Guerrero, two in Morelos and three in the state of Mexico. It was the suspected cause of illness in another 560 persons.

The statistics were only for current cases of the disease, which the spokesman said lasts from three to five days in human beings.

It rarely is fatal in humans, but causes high fever, vomiting, aches and diarrhea, he said. The spokesman added that the symptoms are common to several diseases and make positive diagnosis difficult.

The number of confirmed cases in persons, rose from a report of 72 cases Friday, while the number of suspected cases declined from 850 in the previous report.

HONG KONG (AP) — U.S. Reps. Hale Boggs and Gerald Ford arrived in Hong Kong today after a 10-day visit to China which Ford said he hoped would help expand the growing relations between the People's Republic of China and the United States.

Neither would comment on their discussions with Premier Chou En-lai and other Chinese leaders. Ford said they would disclose nothing about the substance of the talks until after he and Boggs report to President Nixon.

Boggs of Louisiana, is Democratic leader in the House. Ford, of Michigan, is the GOP leader.

In response to a question, Ford said it was difficult to say how much progress had been made toward establishing diplomatic relations between the United States and China, "but a good foundation has been laid."

Boggs said Chinese authorities had been helpful and polite and that the visit had been most informative.

The New McGovern Finds a Public

(Last of Two Articles.)

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—When George McGovern first ran for president in 1968, he looked like he was on leave from a South Dakota dairy farm. He was short on hair, confidence and cool. He wore a green iridescent suit that cleverly turned colors in the sun. He hauled around a pair of enormous cuff links that an observer swore "dragged the ground." And he had this very difficult problem with his socks—they kept drooping under his high-flying trouser cuffs.

"People think I come across like a Sunday school teacher," he said at the time, bravely, "that I'm not an effective communicator. Well, I think the American people are tired of flash and charisma and show-business spectacles." "I think truthfulness and trustworthiness are more important."

He won only 14 1/2 votes at the Democratic convention.

So much for what's important in politics.

Today, four years and a hell of a lot of flash and show business later, George McGovern is clearly not going back to the farm. Gone is the iridescent suit ("It's been donated to the Smithsonian," says a staffer), his hair curls over his ears, and he never takes a step without executive-length hose. Lights. Camera. Bring on the make-up man. Before every appearance, the new McGovern, 49, who used to be in the sainthood business but now is just a politician, checks his sun lamp tan, fluffs the bulk knot in his silk tie, winks at sidekicks like Shirley MacLaine (who just "loves" him) or her brother, Warren Beatty (who just "digs" him), and figures out exactly how truthful and trustworthy he can be for the particular audience.

George Stanley McGovern, the junior senator from South Dakota, is hardly ever mistaken for a Sunday schooler any more. He comes on instead like the fellow who would be Pope. The soft flat voice is still there, he is not yet able to conceal all his nervousness, he still lacks the confidence to deliver a good, gummy joke—but the time when Americans dismissed him as "that governor whathisname" has ended. Says Lester Spielman, a McGovern aide: "I remember the day he talked to 3,000 Chicanos out in California. Well, none of them could speak English or understand what he was saying. But, by God, they nodded and smiled and cheered all the way through the speech. Now that's proof. He's got something now and all those people knew it."

What McGovern has now is easily defined. He has the ear of the troubled public. And he got it, at least in part, by doing exactly what he once denounced—going slick.

Once the most earthy, the most specific and the most anti-political of all major candidates, he was also the most repetitive, uncharismatic and ignored. He entered the 1972 campaign (in January of 1971) announcing that he felt the country was "tired of the old rhetoric, the unmet promises, the image makers"—and everybody yawned.

So he shifted gears. He invented a new old rhetoric, spread unmeetable promises of his own ("$1,000 annually to every man, woman and child in the country"), and hired a whole staff of image makers. His TV schedule bloated. His interviews multiplied. His contributed income climbed from zero to, at last count, over $5 million. Today, his campaign is indistinguishable from that of the other runners—chartered planes, furious tours of blue-collar districts, every hair in place, every word carefully chosen. And it has worked. Says a McGovern staff coordinator, Amanda Smith: "I talk now about when we win the nomination, rather than if."

But the success has had a price. Nobody knows how high. If George McGovern's stock is rising, and his socks are staying up, too, it's been at the expense of falling credibility. Months ago, the senator's campaign manager, Gary Hart, said that a good part of McGovern's strength "is in his image of honesty and consistency—and he can't afford to lose that." There are those who now believe that he is losing it. Staffer Les Spielman, for example, frankly states: "I was more in agreement with George in New Hampshire than I am now." And one of the candidate's field workers put it more bluntly: "I still back McGovern, because he's still the best of the lot. But, wow, what's happened to him? He's ruined his whole thing."

McGovern's thing all-along has been low-key radicalism, other night he was on and somebody asked him how fast he would change the country around if he's elected. Man, he just squirmed. He said—you know how politicians talk—he said that people had to remember the "President couldn't change the country or something, that Congress passed the laws. Well, like, what's he mean? He means: 'Don't worry middle America, I'm not the revolutionary you believe.' He means: 'Don't worry, everything's gonna still be crappy.'"

Indeed, candidate McGovern has changed the pitch of his campaign orchestration. He still talks about the need to get out of Vietnam, but now prefaces it with a conservative assurance that, "I know this nation must be strong defensively and I know we must meet our commitments to other nations."

He still is in favor of busing for the purpose of school integration, but explains his stand not so much on morality these days as on the rule of law: "I believe we should obey the Supreme Court decision on this matter."

He still believes in the right of pregnant women to make their own decisions to have abortions, but says on the one hand that permitting legislation is a state rather ence in Houston: "Congress will provide the balance against any of the programs I recommend."

None of this sidestepping, this hedging, is, of course, shameful. It is, in fact, political. "This is give and take," says McGovern. And as a liberal Democrat from a conservative Republican state, the senator has had to indulge all his public life. When South Dakotans objected to his early hard views on Vietnam, he was disposed to issue a statement that, "I'm against U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam." During the 1968 senatorial campaign, his liberal voting record in Congress slumped dramatically. When the first glimmerings of success began in this year's primaries, he told Playboy magazine that he would be "more circumspect about the kind of groups with whom I am associated," a kissing-off of the rabid radicals whom he once appreciatively courted.

Yet if politics is "conciliation, is at times dirty, and if most professionals and most voters know and accept the realities of it, George McGovern has still shocked many by playing the game by the rules. He was, after all, the man who promised he was above such sport. "My greatest single asset is truth-telling," he said once. "I don't duck the issues and I'm not capable of deception." There are some who believe he still believes this. There are others who wonder with reason.

For this own part, George McGovern denies that he is something else in '72 than he was in '68. Speaking from the front seat of his plane recently, weary from 14 hours of campaigning, he said that, "I don't want the presidency bad enough to change my ideals for it," and he said he would never deceive his supporters: "I will never let my people down, and I think they know that. They know that I will make reasonable modifications in my program, that I have to do this; this is the way it is. But they also know that I will never betray them on fundamental principles. They know I will end the war, if I'm elected, they know I will never sell out to greedy self-interest groups, they know I won't give in to the forces of bigotry."

Why? Because, says staffer Amanda Smith, "McGovern is decent, truly decent. I remember once he was attacked by a militant feminist. Instead of getting mad, instead of writing her off as a nut, he came to me and said, 'Amanda, what can we do about her problem?' This is the real, the enduring George McGovern, says Smith. "The kind of man who listens, who is concerned, even when he's being attacked." Never mind his alterations, his new rhetoric she says, pancake make-up can't cover the basic McGovern good.

SEN. GEORGE MCGOVERN

a quiet plea for the nation's revival. And to many of the candidate's long-standing (they say long-suffering) rooters—people between the ages of 15 and 30—any deviation is a bad deviation. Says Doug Willitt, a college student from New York City who recently paid $5 to hear his hero speak: "Like, I remember when this guy would sit down with anybody and rap about real problems, about how crappy everything is. Now all you ever see him is on TV, saying nothing. The than a federal matter, and on the other hand, "I'm not going to lose the presidency over the abortion issue."

He still believes in the redistribution of wealth; reduction of the national defense budget (by 40 per cent over three years), withdrawal of many armed forces from foreign bases—but, to be sure, assures one and all that, "If anybody has any better ideas, I'm open-minded, I'm willing to listen." Look, he reportedly assured critics at the recent governors' confer-

THE 1972 OLYMPIC Games at Munich will be held almost entirely on a 740-acre tract whose most prominent landmarks are an 870-foot TV transmitter, left, and a partially roofed main stadium that holds 80,000 people.

Hitler's Olympics

The last time the Olympic Games were held in Germany, it was 1936 and Adolf Hitler tried to make them a propaganda vehicle for his Nazi regime. The lighting of the Olympic torch took place under the swastika and the crowds that filled the 100,000-seat main stadium for the games greeted Hitler's arrival with the Nazi salute.

130-Member Texas Delegation Wins Demo Credentials Committee Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texas Democratic party won a landslide victory Monday night before the national party's Credentials Committee.

The committee voted overwhelmingly to seat the 130 members of the Texas group without any change from selections made at the state convention.

Supporters of Sen. George McGovern split their ballots to give the Texas delegation an easy 76-40 victory.

Fourteen of the McGovern allies voted to seat the challenged Texans and another 11 abstained.

Janet Jones of Dallas, a McGovern supporter, said she asked district and state party officials for a "fairness resolution guaranteeing the senator his due representation on the convention slate" and I was told that I was naive and that the deals had already been made."

Helen Cassidy of Houston of the Texas Women's Political Caucus, said that 14 of the record 16 challenges claimed women were underrepresented.

The caucus asked election of 14 women to replace men of similar candidate affiliation to bring the ratio of women up from 30 per cent to 42 per cent.

The caucus also would add two black women who support McGovern in place of two uncommitted white men. Eddie Bernice Johnson, newly elected black state legislator from Dallas and member of the Credentials Committee, spoke out on behalf of a minority challenge and asked that blacks be named to replace five white delegates, including three men over 50 years old and one woman over 40.

Charles G. Purnell, representing Dolph Briscoe, nominee for governor, and the state party leadership, said strong efforts had been made to get more women and minority group members on the list, but the delegates elected were the preferences of the people. He asked the Credentials Committee not to upset these elected delegates.

"We had to balance the delegate list the same way you did in New York City," said Matthew Troy of New York City, "and from the at-large category we had to add 18 women and 15 men—and we did it. And I'll be damned if I'm going to allow Texas to do anything different than we had to do in New York City."

Purnell said Credentials Committee hearing Officer Burke Marshall concluded that the state party had tried to involve women and minorities.

"Now when the women of Texas decide to take over the government they won't have to ask the Texas Women's Political

Loss of Birth Card Poses No Problem

A lost birth certificate or marriage license no longer poses the problem it once did for veterans seeking veterans benefits, Jack Coker, Veterans Administration Regional Office Director, reports.

Less formal proof of marriage and birth are now acceptable, under a regulation initiated last October, when this information is needed to establish claims for higher benefit payments.

A veteran's or a widow's certified statement of marriage is now sufficient for applications for compensation and education benefits for veterans, widows and orphan children, provided neither he nor his wife has been married before, and VA has no contradictory information on file.

Coker said prior to the change in regulations, VA required all statements of marriages and births to be supported by formalized documentary evidence.

A certified statement is acceptable also regarding the birth of a child of a veteran's marriage, and as proof of age and relationship, he added.

Last U.S. president to be inaugurated on March 4 was Franklin D. Roosevelt, who took the oath of office on Saturday, March 4, 1933.

cal Caucus how to do it," Purnell said, "because the women of Texas are just as smart as those in any other state. But for some reason the people of Texas decided to vote for two thirds more male delegates than women delegates."

The Texas challengers agreed Sunday night to present a single petition for relief.

Hours before the challenge was to be presented, the compromise plan broke apart and considerable bitterness developed between Ms. Johnson and the women's caucus spokesman.

In addition, Ms. Johnson was accused by Ms. Jones, of posing

Cars For Disabled Vets Cheaper Than In 1971

Veterans disabled from military service may find it cheaper to buy a specially-equipped new car this year than it was two years ago, Jack Coker, Director of the VA Regional Office in Waco, advises.

Coker explained that those who purchased a car with special adaptive devices since Jan. 1, 1971, may find they have money coming from the Veterans Administration.

This reminder was issued by the Veterans Administration to call attention to new VA authority contained in Public Law 91-666.

The 1971 law raised the amount of the VA grant for purchase of a car to $2,800, and for the first time gave VA authority to pay for replacing and maintaining adaptive equipment on automobiles previously acquired by disabled veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict.

To be eligible a veteran must have suffered the loss, or loss of use, of one or both hands or feet or both eyes in the military service.

Such items as power brakes, automatic shift, hand dimmer switch and hand controls are among provisions of the law. Veterans should contact their nearest VA office, veterans county service officer, or a ing as a McGovern supporter on the district and state levels, winning McGovern support and McGovern money to be sent to the Credentials Committee, where she supported the stop-McGovern movement. Both women asked to be identified as "Ms."

Ms. Johnson, when asked if she had switched affiliations, said that she never had supported McGovern and that her money came mostly from small donations aside from a $300 gift from Calvin Guest, Briscoe's campaign manager. She said she has been a Humphrey stalwart in the past and will be in the future.

Jim: "Here is a hand I watched in a rubber bridge game the other day. North and South were rather disappointed at getting all the way up to three clubs when there were 12 top tricks right there for the taking."

Oswald: "I can just hear the conversation. North would explain that he didn't want to jump to four clubs and shut out three no-trump. Then he would suggest that South might have tried a bid over three clubs."

Jim: "You sound as if you were right there."

Oswald: "I have heard such discussions so often I might as well have been there. South surely explained that he had just 13 high-card points and that North had passed to start with, etc., etc."

Jim: "His very words. He also kept insisting that North could have jumped to four clubs, while North kept pointing out that, for all North knew, South might have held just three clubs."

Oswald: "Did they ever get around to the real trouble with their bidding?"

Jim: "Neither realized that, if South had just bid two clubs over one heart, they would surely have reached game."

Oswald: "In this, spot the two-club call merely tells partner that you hold a minimum hand with a decent suit. They still probably wouldn't get to six. Some slams just aren't biddable."

THURSDAY, JULY 6
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY:

The quality of this year's developments is unexpected; nearly every incident has its own theatrical quirk. Opportunities for sudden advancement are indicated, along with tests of your competence. Today's natives tend to less talk than action, usually have one special talent emphasized at the expense of others.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Attend your own base of operation in person. If you have to forage far afield, keep in touch so nothing surprises you.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Conservative approaches work out best, take more time and patience than usual. It may be difficult to stay within established plans.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: If the conflict starts somewhere else, meet it headon with whatever you have ready, but be sure you don't start a squabble.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Cater to your personal needs and comfort. Health check-ups are in order. Begin a new diet or exercise regimen, at a moderate pace.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Keeping your ideas within reasonable bounds is a challenge. Visitors pose a variety of interesting questions.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Unfamiliar people aren't likely to be what you imagine from their appearance. Suspend judgement until you understand them better.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Collect benefits, help those who are less stable. Circumstances surrounding your work are temporarily tense, but can be relieved soon.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Surprises are the order of the day, at home as well as on the road. Allowing extra time helps. Change plans without complaint.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: You can't always get what you want, and this is one of those times. Decide whether you can make do with a second choice.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Downward trends are not to be taken lightly, just something that challenges your resourcefulness. An alternate solution is available.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Guard against letting your attention wander as many distractions pop up. Most have little connection with your interests.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Just when you have things in a half-way state, changes are likely. Romantic enterprises are particularly delicate.

Female Machinist Is at Home In Noisy Machine Shop

By CAROL MILLER
Newport News Times-Herald

NEWPORT NEWS (AP)—Kathy Tom Thomason, a 20-year-old Portsmouth wife and mother, has become the first female student in the 82-year history of the Apprentice School of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.

Kathy donned safety glasses and began filing smooth a block of metal on Jan. 31. Several other girls reportedly had sought enrollment in the school to become designers, but backed out when they discovered they had to begin by working in a shop.

Kathy doesn't want to be a designer. The 5-foot, 6-inch Mrs. Thomason wants to be a machinist, and she's right at home in the huge, noisy machine shop filled with tools, greasy machines and metal filings.

"I like doing mechanical things, and I don't know much about it, so I figured this would be the best place to learn," she explains.

She already knows a lot about the ins and outs of the shipyard through her husband, Harry Lee Thomason Jr., a rigger with three years' experience.

In baggy jeans, sweatshirt and knit cap that nearly hides her short, reddish-brown hair, Kathy could pass at first glance as one of the boys. But on closer inspection her pretty complexion and brown eyes quickly give her away as a "she."

At home, she tinkers with a car, but not so much as her husband does. She worked as a processor at General Electric in Portsmouth before deciding to enter the Apprentice School.

She doesn't think her decision was unusual — "I've always been a tomboy," she says.

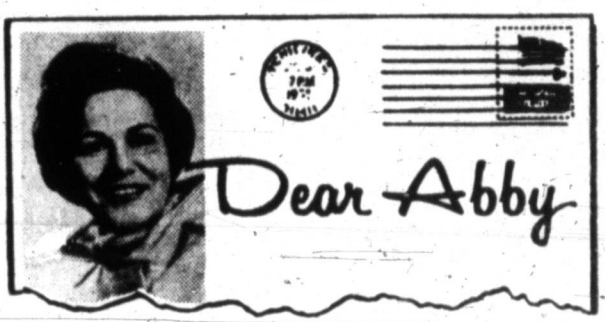

Kathy expects to do work just as the men do, except that her medical records specify she isn't to do excessively heavy lifting.

Her husband "keeps saying he's proud of me," Kathy says. Her mother worries sometimes. Her father thinks it's fine — a good way for Kathy to get an education while getting paid as she learns.

And the children? Son Michael, 15 months, is too young to have an opinion. And Kathy hasn't consulted her three stepchildren aged 9, 7 and 5.

FEMALE MACHINIST — Kathy Tom Thomason, shown at work, is the first female student in the history of the Apprentice School of Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. Before she even enrolled, however, she already had learned a lot about the ins and outs of a shipyard from her husband — a rigger with three years' experience.

Dear Abby

Mother in law
batting .500

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter in law who is lazy, fat and selfish. She takes but never gives. The house is usually a mess and so is she.

Our son has a position which requires him to look nice at all times so he sends his clothes out. He helps her with the meals and with the housework, too. Our little grandson is a handsome child but he looks like a ragamuffin most of the time even tho he has plenty of nice clothes.

This daughter in law has a violent temper so we stay out of her way as much as possible. She comes over here for free meals, a free baby sitter, or to get some sewing done.

Don't tell me she's sick and should see a doctor, psychiatrist or a marriage counselor. She's seen them all.

Every day I say, "Thank you, Lord, for my wonderful son in law, but what did I ever do to deserve a daughter in law like this?" LONG-SUFFERING MOTHER IN LAW

DEAR SUFFERING: You're batting .500, and that's a lot better than other parents who have written to me.

DEAR ABBY: There is a busybody in the office who I call "The Town Crier." She makes it her business to tip everybody off when a coworker has a gift-giving occasion coming up. [She'll say, "Oh, Patti is having a 30th birthday Saturday." Or, "Margaret is celebrating her fifth wedding anniversary next Sunday. I thought maybe you'd like to send her a card or something."]

Abby, to tell you the truth, I would be just as happy not knowing, but after she tells me I'm put on the spot. So what do I do? ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Say, "thank you," and then do as you please. There is always a chance that some coworkers appreciate knowing, so don't label "The Town Crier" a "busybody."

DEAR ABBY: My husband of many years is to me the most handsome man in the world. He is also the most generous, erudite, the most loving and most lovable.

But he has one habit which is absolutely infuriating. He is a saver. He saves empty bottles and bits of string, but the most annoying of all is his collection of newspapers!

I do not have an empty closet or cupboard. They are crammed with old newspapers. He has them stacked to the ceiling in the basement and in the garage. The walls of our guest room are lined with newspapers, and now I can hardly turn around in our bedroom for all those newspaper stacks. We will have to move out of this house if he doesn't stop.

We take two daily newspapers, plus the Sunday paper, and the New York Times. He reads them carefully, but refuses to throw them away. He says he may want to look at them again. [Abby, from ten years ago?]

If I tell him it's time to clean house of those newspapers he won't hear of it. Can you help me? HADIT

DEAR HADIT: I can understand a person's wanting to keep a few newspapers for future reference, but your husband's habit is more than a habit. It's an obsession. It's also a fire hazard. If he's mentally sound [and it wouldn't hurt to check it out] YOU clean house one day.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BEWILDERED": There is no way for you to call and subtly ask if perhaps your invitation was lost in the mails. But a mutual friend could find out if you were invited.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 6700, L. A., CALIF. 90009 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Family Crazy
About Frogs

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — If the fairy tale of the princess and the frog were true, the princess could wear out her mouth trying to turn Mabel Winters' frogs into princes. Mrs. Winters has 3,124 of them.

"We're just a frog-buying family," she said. "I've been married for nearly 46 years to a wonderful, frog-buying husband."

Her husband, Quinn, isn't the only frog-buyer in the Winters clan. Their son, Leroy, also often purchases additions to the family collection.

The frogs come in all sizes and shapes. One weighs 70 pounds, one is only a dot.

They are made from agate, turquoise, jade, onyx, opal, obsidian, ivory, candy, tallow, straw, silver, bronze, gold, pewter, brass, wood, shell, iron, glass, rubber, china, mother of pearl, even volcano ash.

"I also collect any pictures, books, jokes, postcards and greeting cards that are about frogs," said Mrs. Winters.

The collection includes frogs emblazoned on beach towels, beach bags, other towels, shopping bags and aprons.

Mrs. Winters, 64, said the collecting of frogs began in 1936 when she and her daughter, Louise, then four years old, were in Mexico.

"She put a coin in a gum machine and got a plastic frog as a prize," Mrs. Winters said. "She gave it to me."

More than 600 of the frogs in her collection come from Mexico, and 96 are stuffed-type frogs.

Friends in six countries have sent frogs to her, Mrs. Winters said.

The collection occupies a dozen show cases and three rooms of the Winters house. There are 84 frog-shaped banks, 72 frog-shaped salt and pepper shakers, a frog-shaped straw end table, a frog-shaped egg-holders, jewelry, you name it.

There's even a nine-piece froggy orchestra depicted playing "Bullfrog Blues."

Mrs. Winters' knowledge of frogs does not end with the stuffed or manufactured variety. There are, she said, 250 species of real frogs ranging in size from less than an inch to about one yard.

Painting By Best-Known Artist Will Be Exhibited In Canadian

CANADIAN — The first public showing of a recently discovered "lost" painting by America's best-known and best-loved artist, Norman Rockwell, is planned at the First State Bank in Canadian Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The painting titled "First Day of School" was painted by Rockwell, the artist believes, in 1915 when Rockwell, then 20 years old, was struggling to sell his first works.

It apparently was never published, although Artist Rockwell recalls that it was sold to a magazine, probably not "The Saturday Evening Post," which later bought and published many of his paintings as covers and made Rockwell's art America's favorite.

The painting came to light recently in New York when a New York City dealer bought a collection of paintings which had been stored for many years in an attic, and discovered the Rockwell painting among them.

It was purchased from the Bernard Dannenberg Gallery by Dr. Malouf Abraham, Jr., of Canadian, who had the painting renovated and restored by New York craftsmen and placed in a specially hand-made frame, to replace the simple wooden one which had been the original frame.

Dr. Abraham will give the painting its first public showing in the lobby of the First State Bank before lending it for an exhibit of Rockwell's paintings which will be featured at the Marion Kogler McNeely Art Museum in San Antonio during August, and later at the M.H. DeYoung Memorial Museum in San Francisco where a six-weeks Rockwell show is planned.

The painting will also be featured, according to current plans, in the fall issue of the new "Saturday Evening Post."

A letter from artist Rockwell to Dr. Abraham confirms the authenticity of the painting and existence, most of them in private collections.

Rockwell, now 78 years old, lives in Stockbridge, Mass., where he still paints a few pictures each year on a commission basis. There are only about 250 of Rockwell's original oil paintings in the possession of the head engraver for the now-defunct Collier's Magazine, and after his death was found by his heirs in the attic of his home, covered with the dust and grime of many years but un-damaged. Careful cleaning by expert craftsmen has restored the work to its original brilliance.

Panhandle-area art lovers and Rockwell fans are invited to view the painting during its public showing at the First State Bank. Visitors will be welcomed, bank President Ed Daugherty says.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q I plan to make a $20 political contribution this year. How much of this can I take as a credit against my tax?

A You can claim as a credit against your tax one-half of your total political contributions, but no more than $12.50 if you are single or $25 if you are married filing jointly. In your case, you could claim a $10 tax credit.

In some cases, it may pay to claim political contributions as an itemized deduction rather than as a credit. If you claim a contribution as a deduction from gross income, it does not have to be halved. Deductions for political contributions, however, are limited to a total of $50 ($100 if you are married filing jointly).

Q Will contributions to a campaign committee be eligible for a deduction or credit if the committee engages in political activities not directly related to a campaign?

A No. The tax law requires that such a committee be organized and operated exclusively for the purpose of influencing the nomination or election of announced candidates. Thus, contributions will not qualify for deduction or credit if made to "political action committees" which engage in general political, educational, or legislative activities.

Q Does the IRS have a publication that tells you what your rights are in case of an audit?

A Yes. Write your Internal Revenue district office and ask for a free copy of IRS Publication 556, "Audit of Returns, Appeal Rights and Claims for Refund."

Q My employer furnishes me with room and board. Is the value of the lodging and meals taxable to me?

A The value of meals and lodging furnished to you without charge by your employer is not taxable to you if the following tests are met:

The meals or lodging are furnished on the business premises of your employer;

The meals or lodging are furnished for the convenience of your employer; and

In the case of lodging (but not meals), you are required to accept the lodging as a condition of your employment. This means that acceptance of the lodging is required to enable you to properly perform the duties of your employment, as in a situation where you are required to be available for duty at all times.

The $100 bill is the largest denomination of U.S. currency now being issued because of the sharp decline in use of currency in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000.

Announcement By IRS

(Dallas, Texas)—The Internal Revenue Service today announced that employers may increase the size of substitute Forms W-2 to provide information to employees which otherwise would have to be reported on separate forms.

The IRS said that the increased size of substitute Forms W-2 does not apply to Copy A, which is sent directly to the IRS by employers. However, employers reporting to the IRS on magnetic tape will find the new specifications particularly advantageous, since they are not required to file copy A.

Additional information such as annual withholding from pay for hospitalization, union or professional dues and other data may be included in substitute Form W-2. By taking advantage of this approach, employers can save computer time and mailing expense, the IRS said.

The requirements and specifications for substitute Forms W-2 are contained in Revenue Procedure 72-34 which appears in the Internal Revenue Bulletin for June 26, 1972.

The current requirements for reporting on magnetic tape are contained in Revenue Procedure 71-18 and 71-20. Copies of these Revenue Procedures are available at IRS District Offices and Service Centers.

Mounted police were first used in New York City on Sept. 9, 1904.

Musical Drama 'Texas' Opens In Canyon Area

CANYON — "Texas," by Paul Green, which opens each evening except Sundays in the beautiful amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon, is a production which draws patrons from all parts of the world. Before it can open, however, another drama takes place in the theatre. Much happens backstage. Another part unfolds in front of the house, played by 30 persons.

The crew reports at six p.m. Six men under the leadership of Charles E. Wright, who teaches drama at Canyon High School, report to the theatre to clean. Using big blowers, they send debris from under the chairs to the ends of the row where it can be picked up easily. They examine the periphery of the theatre and grounds to find cups and tissues which have been tossed into the grass and they crawl around the cacti to take away bits of paper which have been caught there.

Meanwhile girls in the box office have arrived with cartons of reservations and unsold tickets, if any, moving the information from the daytime box office at 2010 Fifth Ave. in Canyon. On a busy night they may find a line of people waiting to enroll on the list for the resale of uncalled for tickets. This list is made at six. They also line up to try to get some of the few tickets which are always reserved for people who may be in the canyon.

Sutphen's panel truck was driven up and the caterers are unloading the barbecue and potato salad and beans and apricots and pickles and onions for the typical ranch dinner served at the theatre each evening. The customers file through the line, then move to the comfortable tables on the grassy terraces to eat.

The concession building has opened. Early arrivals are examining the curios, seeking reminders of their day in Palo Duro Canyon and especially pleased when they discover something light and small and interesting. Lines for soft drinks, hot dogs, candy and coffee open, and the customers eat, drink and explore. Mrs. Raymond Raillard is at the cashier's desk and serves as information center and aide to distressed travelers.

When the theatre is clean, the crew moves to the parking lot to help cars find places and park so they can get out easily after the production.

Supervising all of this is a general manager, executive vice-president of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Raymond Raillard. He helps to put balky hoses on cola cans, checks the schedules to be sure all crew members are at their posts, walks through the grounds looking over the crowd and the service, often stopping to pick up a cup or a dropped plate. He visits the guests and encourages the crew.

Bicentennial First Day Cover--PNC

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission has announced that an official Bicentennial Philatelic-Numismatic Combination issued on the Fourth of July, 1972, is through the cooperation of the U.S. Mint, the U.S. Postal Service and the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

The PNC First Day Cover includes the first metal of an annual series of congressionally approved National Commemorative Medals, as well as the 1972 set of Bicentennial Commemorative Stamps on a Philatelic-Numismatic Combination envelope.

The medal, described in an earlier Money Clips column, will be enclosed behind a plastic window in the PNC envelope displaying both sides of the medal. The four stamps affixed to the envelope bear the official U.S.

The mint will issue a limited number of these First Day covers not to exceed two million. Orders will be accepted during July only or until the maximum issue has been reached.

FREE PNC ORDER BLANKS

For the convenience of our readers, we asked for and received an ample supply of official order blanks and descriptive literature from the office of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commissions Coins and Medals Panel to be distributed to anyone sending a 9-inch or 10-inch stamped, self-addressed envelope to

MONEY CLIPS, c/o MORT REED, P.O. Box 555, Wooster, Ohio, 44691.

A limit of three PNC First Day Covers may be secured with one order blank. No more than two order blanks will be available for each stamped, self-addressed envelope received by this column. You may request more with each additional envelope.

The deadline will be July 20, after which it would be fruitless to attempt to order the PNCs from the Mint since processing will not extend beyond July 31.

Postal Service First Day of issue cancellation. The Treasury seal will appear on the back just opposite the window for the reverse of the medal.

As illustrated in the artist's conception, the eight-cent Bicentennial Stamps, which will be postmarked from Colonial Williamsburg, Va., will honor craftsmen of the Revolutionary era.

With a July 4 cancellation date, the stamps are of the normal commemorative stamp size and each depicts a specific craftsman—glassmaker, silversmith, wig-maker and hatter. Each of the four eight-cent stamps bear the same inscription, "Colonial American Craftsmen" across the top and "United States Postage 8 Cents" across the bottom.

The medal, for issuance initially on July 4 (and to be made available as a single piece later in 1972) will be made of bronze measuring approximately 1½ inches in diameter. The obverse and reverse designs were more thoroughly described in a previous column. The design was developed by Ralph Menconi and Frank Gasparro, chief engraver for the U.S. Mint in Philadelphia.

President Theodore Roosevelt became the first U.S. president to set foot on foreign soil when he visited Panama, according to Encyclopaedia Brit.

The Tyranny Of The Automobile

By C. R. BATTEN

Some years ago, riding into Chicago on a train from either the north or the northwest, this observer saw from the train window the massive destruction wrought by the highway builders when they decide a new freeway should be built. I watched homes and businesses being destroyed to make way for the new highways and the world's most inefficient form of transportation.

I looked at Chicago's streets and parking areas, already jammed full, and wondered where the drivers were going to park the many thousands of additional cars that would converge in downtown Chicago after the freeways were completed.

More parking lots were built. Shuttle busses are provided between the Loop and acres of cars outside the Loop. Still the problem has not been solved.

In spite of the high costs and the problems created by the automobile, urban mass transit systems in city after city in financial trouble. They are being taken over by various levels of government. Regional transportation districts are being formed to develop integrated transportation systems.

Those who are concerned with the degradation of the environment caused by the automobile are seeking other ways of transporting people, especially in urban areas. They are demanding that funds from gasoline taxes be used for the development of mass transportation systems instead of for the construction of new highways.

Yet, as Clarence B. Carson pointed out in his Throttling the Railroads, it is impossible for governments to develop such coordinated systems simply because of the very nature of politics. "Politicians operate by conciliation and compromise," says Carson. "Whichever interests are at the moment most clamorous and crucial to election victories will receive the most attention."

We have accumulated a long history of subsidized transportation systems, and an equally long record of failures, misuses of public funds, and scandals in subsidized industries.

The subsidization of private transportation by building public highways at public expense has resulted in some of the greatest environmental problems we are facing today. Besides the tyranny of the automobile itself, most of us have been critical of highway building practices, and the broad ribbons of concrete that have sometimes destroyed pleasant retreats that we felt should have been left alone.

After several years, we are still arguing over the route and design of Interstate Highway 70 through the mountains of Colorado. Should it go through scenic Glenwood Canyon, or should it go over Cottonwood Pass?

If we did not depend on taxpayer funds for the highways, and in large part for the airways, the chances are good that the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad would be running three or four passenger trains a day through Glenwood Canyon—and people would be enjoying the view through fine dome cars, and seeing more than they ever could while driving an automobile.

So, instead of asking Congress to make gasoline tax funds available for mass transportation, why don't we try something different? Let's just repeal the gas tax. Of course, at the same time, we must quit building highways and maintaining them at taxpayer expense.

Let's charge the airlines the full cost of maintaining the airports and communication and traffic control systems—or better yet, get the taxpayer completely out of the air transport business by selling (or even giving) all those facilities to the airlines. Let's end the subsidies to all forms of transportation.

The consumer will benefit, because he is the guy that will be relieved of the taxes of maintaining those facilities. He will no longer be forced to pay for forms of transportation he does not use.

He will then see how grossly expensive and inefficient his Dreadnought 8 really is, and will seek other ways of getting to his destination. There will be an incentive to develop alternative systems of transportation. Man has demonstrated that when there is a real need and an opportunity, capital will be found to do a job. The consumer will be served.

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texans want to know where their elected officials get their money, how much of it they have, and how it is spent, an opinion study indicates.

They also have strong opinions on the death penalty and law reform, and they consider as good ideas a statewide driver education program and a strict land-use law to protect the environment.

State residents show a more divided opinion on women's liberation, a higher minimum wage, and the establishment of an independent council to monitor the objectivity of media.

An opinion study made by the Institute for Mass Communications Research at Texas Tech University showed 77.6 per cent of the respondents favored financial disclosure by state officials. The concept was opposed by only 14.7 per cent.

In regard to the death penalty and revision of the penal and criminal law, most Texans favored reform but most also favored keeping the death penalty.

In the study 69.9 per cent did not approve of abolishing the death penalty and of the total responding 44.8 per cent strongly disapproved of doing away with capital punishment. Only 24 per cent would abolish the death penalty. The last executions took place in Texas in 1964 and the last in the United States in 1967.

A commanding majority 70.5 per cent want a strict land-use law to protect the environment. Dissenting were 15.8 per cent of the respondents. Boosting the state minimum wage of $1.40 per hour was favored by 46.5 per cent of the respondents, opposed by 36.6 per cent, and the others either had no opinion or wanted the minimum to stay the same.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE, PH. D., M. D.

Jerry was a male sex slave! For he had gone through a subconscious form of love hypnosis which rendered him vulnerable to each of the 4 wives he divorced. Shatter such slavery and pick your mate by your head, not your heart!

CASE U-527: Jerry B., aged 38, is having his 4th divorce.

"Dr. Crane," he moaned, "every time I get married, I feel sure the girl is ideal."

"But in a year or so we become incompatible, often violently so, and my wife sues for divorce."

"What is wrong with me, anyhow?"

"Am I just a born loser?"

EMOTIONAL BRAINWASH

Jerry was the only child of wealthy parents.

His mother was a typical socialite, so she left Jerry at home with the maid on many occasions.

And once a week in those days a jolly Irish laundress would visit his home to wash their clothes and do the ironing.

She was fond of children, so she would bring cookies to Jerry.

And she would occasionally hug him or give him a goodbye kiss.

Unwittingly, she brainwashed the little boy!

For she had red hair and freckles!

Jerry subconsciously began to link love and affection from the opposite sex with red hair and freckles.

He wasn't conscious of this early brainwashing process (we psychologists call it "conditioning") but it made an indelible imprint on Jerry.

When he was in college, he met a waitress with red hair and freckles.

"It was love at first sight," Jerry confessed to me.

But they had very little in common, so after their marriage, they soon broke up.

Wife No. 2 also had red hair and freckles.

So did No. 3 and No. 4, whom he is now divorcing.

"I just seem to fall for red haired gals," he mournfully admitted.

But he didn't realize why, for he had never analyzed his past background till his visit at my office.

During my interview, I found the early cause of Jerry's infatuation for red heads with freckles.

When we have been emotionally brainwashed in childhood, those early attitudes may influence us all our lives.

Our fondness for our mother, usually extends to her cooking, which is why men often "fall for" the menu items their mother prepared.

Don't expect to change your mate much after the wedding! (Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg. Mellet, Indiana 47958 enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

American League

Three comeback pitchers, two rookies and one 20-game winner kept the July 4 fireworks to a minimum in the American League Tuesday.

—Pat Dobson, one of Baltimore's four 20-game winners last season, hurled the Orioles into sole possession of first place in the American League East with a three-hit, 11-strikeout 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

—Detroit skidded into second place when Kansas City's Roger Nelson, fighting back from two years of arm miseries, blanked the Tigers 1-0 on four hits for his first complete game and first triumph as a starter since 1969.

—Rookie Lynn McGlothen notched his first major league triumph with a three-hitter that propelled Boston past Minnesota 2-0.

—Oakland's Blue Moon Odom, recuperating from a 1971 elbow operation, posted his sixth victory with eight-inning help from Darold as the A's downed the New York Yankees 4-2.

—Jim Lonborg, the AL's Cy Young Award winner with Boston in 1967 but a much-injured hurler since, won his fourth straight baseball game for Milwaukee, blanking California until the ninth when Frank Linzy came on to preserve a 4-2 triumph.

—Cleveland rookie Dick Tidrow took over for the injured Mike Kilkenny in the third inning and completed a 2-0 shutout over Texas.

Baltimore's Dobson surrendered a first-inning home run to Dick Allen and second-inning singles to Rick Reichardt and Mike Andrews but kept the White Sox hitless thereafter.

The Orioles tied the game against Stan Bahnsen in the fifth on Bobby Grich's single and Dave Johnson's triple and scored the winning run in the sixth on consecutive singles by Paul Blair, Boog Powell and Merv Rettenmund.

Kansas City got Nelson the only run he needed against Detroit in the first inning on Amos Otis' bunt single, a stolen base and John Mayberry's infield hit, which loser Bill Slayback threw wild to first base.

Boston's McGlothen, a 22-year-old right-hander, held the Twins to Eric Soderholm's double in the second inning and singles by Danny Thompson in the third. Rookie shortstop Juan Beniquez accounted for one of the runs off loser Ray Corbin, with his first major league homer.

About the only fireworks were in Oakland, where Sal Bando hammered a grand slam home run off New York's Mel Stottlemyre in the fourth inning and the A's put on a gaudy pyrotechnic display after the game.

National League

It rained all over Denny McLain's parade but the moisture left Leo Durocher a lot more upset than it did Atlanta's newest resident.

McLain, making his National League debut, was tied 3-3 in the eighth inning Tuesday night as the Braves tried to sweep a baseball doubleheader from the Durocher's Cubs. Atlanta had taken the opener 5-1.

Jose Cardenal, who had homered off McLain earlier, and Don Kessinger opened the Chicago eighth with singles and suddenly, Denny had runners on first and third with none out.

Just as suddenly, the Atlanta skies opened up with an enormous downpour. The rain hit so swiftly that the ground crew was unable to get the tarps down over the infield. Soon, it was a swamp and the game had to be called, rescuing McLain from a precarious situation and leaving Durocher rather agitated.

Leo decided that the Braves' ground crew didn't move quite as fast as it might have if the two runners on base were wearing Atlanta uniforms and formally protested the rainout.

National League President Chub Feeney said he would give careful consideration to the protest and ruled that the game could not be rescheduled until he ruled on it.

Elsewhere in the NL Tuesday, New York split a doubleheader with San Diego, winning the opener 2-0 on Tom Seaver's one-hitter, but dropping the nightcap 4-2. Cincinnati dropped St. Louis 6-1, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 2-1, Montreal slugged Los Angeles 7-3 and Houston shut out Pittsburgh 6-0.

A crowd of 56,597 showed at Atlanta Stadium for a gigantic July 4 fireworks display and McLain's debut. They gave Denny an ear-shattering standing ovation as he walked out to the mound to start the second game.

"I've never experienced anything like that," said McLain, "not even in Detroit. This tonight was unbelievable. I could have got the Saints in heaven in that first inning after that."

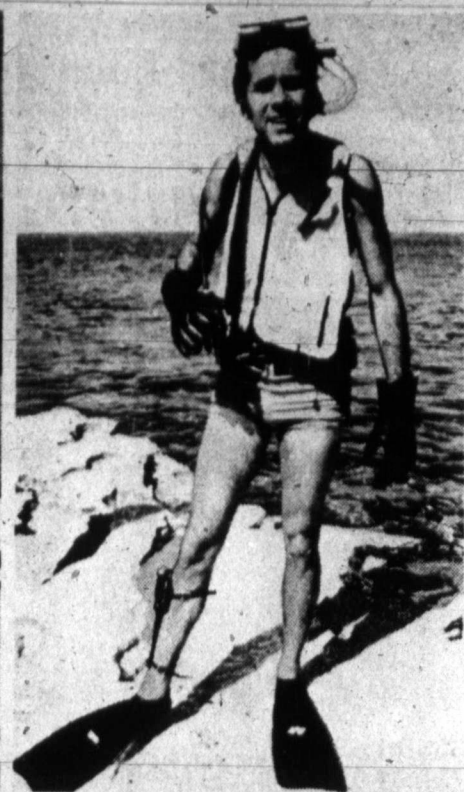

All he had to do was get the Cubs of Chicago and for three innings, he did that easily.

The Cubs started nibbling away at McLain in the middle three innings and by the eighth, he had given up nine hits, the last two to Cardenal and Kessinger.

The Braves won the first game of the doubleheader, scoring four runs in the seventh inning on homers by Paul Casanova and Mike Lum to crack a 1-tie.

JERRY LUCAS doesn't have any trouble finding things to do when he is not playing pro basketball. The New York Knicks' 6-8 center is an accomplished magician, specializing in memory and card tricks, and is planning a new television magic show for children. And he also tried his fins at snorkeling recently.

Chris Meets Evonne In Today's Semi-Finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The first meeting between Evonne Cuyach, the happy-go-lucky Australian, and Chris Evert, the ice-cool 17-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., will draw a tremendous crowd today when they play their women's semifinal match in the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

But waiting in the wings—almost unnoticed but still the favorite among the bookies—is Billie Jean King.

In the excitement of seeing the long-awaited confrontation of the two brightest youngsters in years, the fans seemingly have forgotten about Billie Jean, winner of three Wimbledon titles.

Billie Jean plays her old friend, rival and former doubles partner, Rosemary Casals, in today's other semifinal.

On the basis of her form so far in the tourney, Billie Jean, seeded second, is the hottest favorite in years at 4-6.

In contrast, Evonne, the defending champion and one of the Wimbledon crowds' favorites, is rated at only 3-1.

She had a close call in the quarter-finals, before beating Francoise Durr of France, and another tough match in the previous round against Olga Morozova.

Evonne is seeded first, while Chris, making her first appearance in the tournament, was rated fourth. The betting on her so far is 9-2, with sixth-seeded Miss Casals at 14-1. In 18 matches between Rosie and Billie Jean in the past two years, Rosie has won only once.

In the men's semifinals Thursday, Stan Smith, last year's losing finalist and No. 1 seed this year, will be carrying the American hopes.

The other semifinalists are Europeans. That's the first time this has happened since World War II.

The reason is the running battle between the International Lawn Tennis Federation and World Championship Tennis, the pro group that has the top players like Rod Laver, Arthur Ashe and Ken Rosewall under contract. Differences between the two organizations have been patched up, but not in time to allow the WCT pros to compete here this year.

This has helped fifth-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, second seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania, and third seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain, reach the semifinals.

In the semifinals, Smith will play Kodes and Nastase will face Orantes.

Industrial League Scores

In softball play last week St. Vincent's beat Harvester Barbeque 9-6. Benny Wyant was on the mound for St. Vincent's. Mike Archibald was the losing pitcher.

Jerry Simpson led the winners at the plate, going four for five. Jerry Holt went two for three and Jerry Smith hit a home run.

For BBQ Bob Cloud was two for three with a home run and a triple. David Jenkins got two hits in four trips. Allen Jenkins got a homer.

In action later in the week St. Vincent's won again, this time blasting Skellytown 23-3. St. Vincent's got thirteen runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

Mike Velasquez was the winning pitcher and McClendon the loser.

Velasquez went four for five at the plate to lead St. Vincent's. Jerry Holt and Al Gomez went three for four, with one of Holt's hits being a homer. Velasquez and Gomez each garnered triples.

Homer Lester led Skellytown batters with two hits in three trips. Rex Pryor went two for four.

A SHUTOUT PITCHER

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre's two early season shutouts against the California Angels placed the star Yankee right hander ahead of all active American League pitchers with a career total of 31 shutouts.

Bob Silvers Triumphs In Pikes Peak Hill Climb

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Bob Silvers ran his Camaro off the twisting mountain road twice but couldn't even remember where after winning Tuesday's running of the annual Pikes Peak Hill Climb.

The Colorado Springs racer, in his second year at the hill climb, credited the independent rear suspension on his 1972 stock car for the victory. He completed the 12.42 bumpy miles in 13:45.9, just five seconds off Bobby Unser's record 1969 pace.

Second was Bill Daniels of Colorado Springs, timed in 14:00.4 in a 1971 Chevrolet, and

By CLAY LIVELY
Sports Editor

A gentleman who is well known in Pampa and this area for his interest in young people and their well-being came by this office yesterday and left a letter which he wrote to the citizens of Pampa.

A great many of you are aware of the incident in question and I commend this statement to you and to those who might not yet know of it.

What the author makes particular reference to is a game, a Babe Ruth championship game, but a game nevertheless.

It deals with a person's attitude, and all players, coaches and parents should take careful note of it.

While we all, at one time or another, see things or have things happen to us that upset us, we should all pay attention to this one man's statement about another man's reaction to such an occurrence.

I think it applies equally to parents, fans and players. One of the letters of which threw his hat nearly to the top of the back-stop after the game was over.

Dear Babe Ruth Baseball Fans: I was the umpire-in-chief July 3rd for the championship game of the Babe Ruth League, between the top two teams, Cree Companies and First National Bank.

The job of an umpire is not a very easy one, because first of all, you just cannot please everybody. But believe me, every umpire goes out trying to do his best, while never trying to favor one team. It might look like that to the losers, but he doesn't.

For example, after the championship game, two ladies made the remark, "We didn't lose the game—the umpires just took it away from us." I also heard one of the losing coaches say, "You are so right ladies."

Those who saw the game know very well what happened. After the disputed play (Editor's note—The play in question was described in yesterday's edition of the News.), we called time out and discussed the play for some time. It being a championship game, and being in the last inning of that game, it was quite a decision to make.

I honestly believe that the umpires and the three committeemen made the right decision. If we had called it the other way we would have deprived this kid from scoring the winning run, for which he was trying so hard after having stolen third base and then having been interfered with by the third baseman.

Now I was the umpire-in-chief, and like I said at the game, I did not see the whole play, since I was getting ready to call the play at the plate.

I honestly say that the runner was interfered with. I did not call the interference until we discussed it, and believe you me Cree fans, it was a very hard decision to make.

I had a lot of nice compliments on my umpiring, and on my handling of the decision, and I appreciate it—but the one I appreciate the most and the one that made me feel real good was from a kid who pitched his heart out, only to become the losing pitcher because of our decision.

He said, "Mr. Molberg, you umpired a great game." And he told me this three or four times after the game. He also said that if the play were turned around—meaning that if they (Cree) had had the runner in this situation, they would have felt just like the First National Bank coaches and players did.

I do not know if the Optimist Club gives a Best Sportsmanship Award, but if they do I would vote for Rich Leverich!

He showed me that he is not a kid, but that at that moment he was a man.

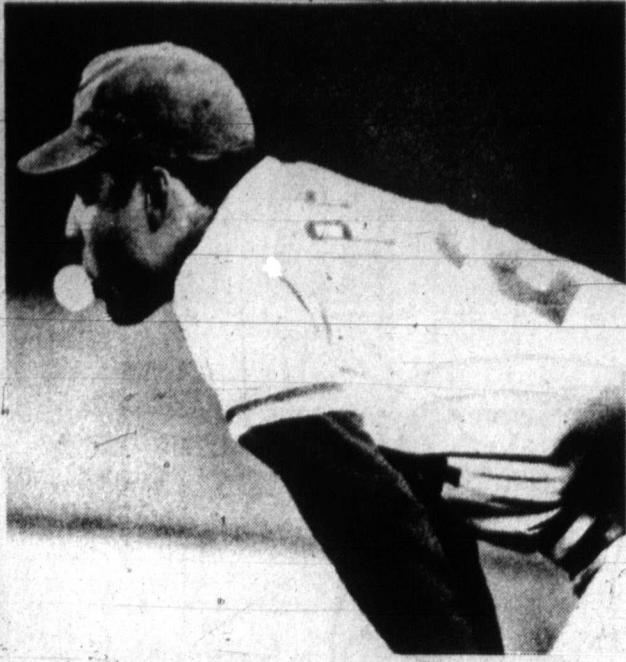

So you two ladies, Cree coach and Cree fans just see how this man felt about the play, and if you still think that the umpires took the game away from you, then I am very sorry.

Yours truly,
Signed
Max Molberg

I would like at this time to thank the people who have been of such great help in getting the results of baseball games in to me. Gene Bynum, President of the National Little League, and T.V. Lowrance, President of the American League, deserve particular praise.

So do John Maxwell, president of the Babe Ruth League, and Kerry Ammons who each reported some of the Babe Ruth scores to the News.

I would also like to thank those Mothers, Fathers and coaches who compiled the scores and turned them in to Gene, who did a great deal of leg-work that culminated in the results being in the paper.

Jeff Bannister Captures Olympic Trials Decathlon

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — They call it a "little club of ours" and they refer to the members as they would loved ones.

It's the rugged, grueling, two-day-ten-event test known as the decathlon—the event Jeff Bannister calls his own today.

Bannister, a graduate of New Hampshire who stands 6 feet 3 and weighs 10 pounds less than his normal 200 today, captured the U.S. Olympic Trials decathlon Tuesday with 8,120 points, the top total in the world this year. He conquered 97-degree heat as well as little Jeff Bennett of the Army.

Bennett, with 8,076, and Bruce Jenner, a longshot from Iowa, with 7,846, also made the U.S. team which goes to Munich this summer for the 20th Olympic Games.

"I just wanted to get on the team. It's been a long wait," said a champagne-drenched Bannister on the track, moments after completing the final event, the 1,500-meter run.

Bannister was asked about his own performance but preferred to speak in glowing terms of his competitors.

"I was so happy to see Jeff do so well in the pole vault, and Bruce make the team. I love all these guys. We compete against each other so often."

Bennett went 16 feet 7 3/4 inches in the pole vault Tuesday, jumping from fifth position in the over-all standings to first briefly. Then Bannister came back for a 200-11 javelin and regained the lead.

The two ran almost arm-in-arm through the last half lap in the 1,500 as both clocked 4:25.5. "I know Jeff likes to set the pace," said Bannister, "and I like to run behind. He had to beat me by seven seconds to win this thing and we agreed that if we were close to each other with 200 to go, we'd go in together."

"We didn't want to make it a dog-eat-dog affair at the end. There was no need to. We're both on the team."

Bannister's total was the best mark in the world this year, 36 better than Russia's Nikolai Avilov, but Bannister says "it'll take at least 8,200 to win in Munich."

Sunday thoroughbred racing will be held at Delaware Park's meeting through Aug. 13.

Colwell Wins Tucson Open
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Paul Colwell, a 23-year-old airman stationed at Tucson, crashed through to his first professional victory Tuesday night in the $40,000 Tucson Open Bowling Tournament.

The handsome righthander was fourth when the third and final eight-game block of match play began, trailing leader Nelson Burton Jr., St. Louis, Mo., by 60 pins.

When Colwell took seven of his matches, including a last-game 234-222 triumph over Don Johnson, a 19-time champion from Akron, Ohio, he rolled to the $4,000 victory.

Colwell's gross pinfall for the 42-game event, including 510 bonus pins, 30 for each of his 15 match game wins, was 9,915. Johnson, who finished as the runnerup for a second straight week, earned $2,200 as he showed 14 victories.

Third place and $1,500 went to Curt Schmidt, Ft. Wayne, Ind., while Roy Buckley, Columbus, Ohio, and Burton wound up fourth and fifth, respectively.

Firecracker 400 Win Goes To David Pearson

By Associated Press
"It reminded me of Kansas City last year," said Don Shula, coach of the Miami Dolphins. "That was when we went three overtimes to beat the Chiefs in the National Football League playoffs."

Shula was the grand marshal for Tuesday's Firecracker 400-mile Stock Car Race at Dayton International Speedway. It was the first time he had watched one of the auto racing spectacles.

He couldn't have picked a better time to be indoctrinated into the world of speed.

Like 67,200 other sweating, sun-drenched spectators, he stood and cheered as 37-year-old David Pearson drove a Mercury to a split-second victory over Dodge's Richard Petty and Chevrolet's Bobby Allison after 400 miles of 180-mile-an-hour dueling.

Pearson finished half a car length ahead of Petty and another length in front of Allison, averaging 160.821 miles an hour for the distance. Clifton "Coo-Coo-Marlin" was fourth in a Chevrolet and James Hylton fifth in a Ford.

Elsewhere during the long Fourth of July weekend, 1971 world champion Jackie Stewart won the French Grand Prix as Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil, the current championship points leader, came in second and Chris Amon of New Zealand third.

For the fourth time in five races in the Trans-American Sedan Championship, George Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., drove an American Motors Javelin home in first place in the 200-mile race at Donnybrook Speedway in Brainerd, Minn.

And Vince Gimondo, a balding, 41-year-old part-time racer from Orlando, Fla., won the Paul Revere After-Midnight Race for Sports Sedans at Daytona Beach.

Gimondo's Camaro set a record average speed of 104.293 m.p.h. for the 250 miles over Daytona's 3.81-mile road course.

Tom Nehl was second and Jimmy Capps third, both also driving Camaros.

The Firecracker at Daytona, a $105,000 mid-season stop on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing's Grand National trial, started out as a seven-car battle.

Among the front runners for the first 100 miles were pole sitter Bobby Isaac, who had qualified his Dodge at 186.277 mph; Petty's teammate Buddy Baker in a Dodge, and 28-year-old Pete Hamilton, a big winner two years ago and making a comeback this year in a Plymouth he helped build.

But all three dropped out with mechanical problems before the halfway point, leaving Pearson, Petty and Allison to carry on the tooth-and-nail struggle.

Pearson was paid $15,150 for Tuesday's victory. Petty's second-place payoff of $9,225 pushed him past Allison in the money ranks with $121,360 against $120,210.

Follmer won despite a gear-box stuck in fourth gear, managing to complete the 200 miles in barely over two hours—and just 28 seconds in front of the Mustang driven by Jerry Thompson of Clawson, Mich. Follmer averaged 97.88 mph.

Assassination Science

"Assassination" is a word that comes into use when a successful or unsuccessful attempt is made to kill a prominent person. Usually the intended target is a politician. If an ordinary citizen is shot, the probabilities of his being just as hurt or just as dead are not different from the probabilities otherwise, yet the term "assassination" is reserved for the more notable victims.

The conditions conducive to assassination include the prevalence of domestic tension and a reasonable likelihood that the assassin himself can escape death. In this connection, it can be seen that assassination is related, at least in some vague way, with the abolition of the death penalty. For, with execution banned, the killer has a measure of security, provided he manages to live long enough to win a conviction in the courts.

One wonders why politicians, who are the usual targets of assassins, should combine together to eliminate a principal deterrent to the crime. The rational answer is that politicians of the more ruthless stripes have more to gain from assassination than they have to lose. The thought is staggering! For anything more valuable than life?

Obviously, the answer is "no"—if you think like a human being. To see the possibility of a "yes" answer, you must think like a politician. Not a politician of the garden variety, but rather in the Mafia-Machiavellian sense of

New Shoplifting War

Because shoplifters cause higher prices for merchandise, they steal not only from stores but from everybody.

Recognition of the pilferage problem—estimated by the FBI as a $2.5 billion-a-year disease—has prompted in recent years a variety of broad-based campaigns to discourage the shoplifter and beef up security.

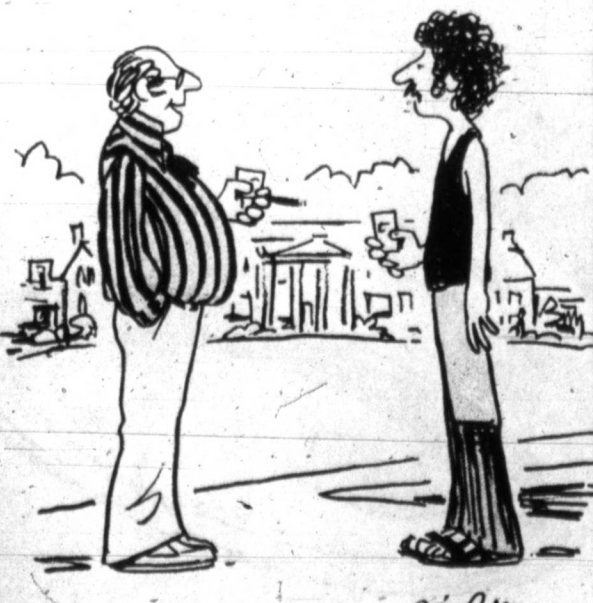

But the most significant success has been reported in Philadelphia.

And the 20 per cent drop in the Philadelphia pilferage rate is attributed to the activities of STEM, an anti-shoplifting drive that rejects the broad base and concentrates on the largest single group of offenders—teen-agers.

The focus of the Philadelphia effort acknowledges the futility of appealing to the finer instincts of the hardened criminal. It attributes its apparent effectiveness to the conviction that the attitudes and behavior of teenagers can be changed.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Hypertension Is a Symptom

Dear Dr. Lamb—Is hypertension and high blood pressure the same thing? Is it a symptom or a disease? How high is too high? What could be the consequences of carrying a reading of 200/105 untreated for several months?

Dear Reader—Yes, hypertension and high blood pressure are the same thing. Tension refers to pressure and hyper, of course, means increased, hence increased pressure or high blood pressure.

A single elevated blood pressure reading should not be considered as a disease. It is a symptom. Single office readings like this may often represent merely the apprehension of the patient about his medical examination. Before it is assumed that a person has true hypertension, a number of readings need to be taken on different occasions. Sometimes the patient's blood pressure will subside to normal levels after he is in the doctor's office for 30 minutes or an hour. Often doctors take the blood pressure at the beginning of the examination and at the end to find out if the patient's pressure has dropped.

As these remarks would suggest, elevated pressure is a symptom. Sometimes it is caused by a problem in circulation to the kidneys (these are rare cases). Some authorities have amassed a large number of cases that are associated with endocrine problems involving the adrenal glands that rest over the kidneys.

Many cases of elevated blood pressure will return to normal values if the person simply loses any excess body fat that he may have. For this reason many good heart specialists insist that patients with moderately elevated blood pressure should lose fat before taking medicine. I agree with this concept. This has an added benefit since most of the complications of high blood pressure, including strokes and heart attacks, are related to the fatty deposits in the arteries. These deposits are increased in the presence of persistently elevated blood pressure.

Weight reduction decreases the amount of blood fat and prevents fatty deposits in the arteries and helps to prevent the complications of high blood pressure. Women, during their childbearing years, are less prone to have fatty deposits in their arteries than men and usually tolerate elevated blood pressure better than men. There is no absolute level of normal for blood pressure but, in general, it shouldn't be more than 140/90 on repeated examinations over a period of time. There is some evidence to suggest that the lower the blood pressure the less likely there will be fatty deposits in the arteries and the less likely that strokes and heart attacks will occur.

I can't tell you what kind of problem will result from not treating a blood pressure of 200/105. It depends on what causes it and whether that's the persistent level of the blood pressure and the rest of the individual's medical status. I have frequently observed that with diet and adequate weight reduction many people develop normal pressure. Of course, if the person is already skinny, he'll have to use a different approach. In general, individuals who have elevated blood pressure would do well to at least cut down and preferably eliminate the use of added salt in their diet. This means not adding salt during cooking preparation and not adding salt at the table.

Paul Harvey News How In The World Does Archie Get By With It?

BY PAUL HARVEY
Another season is set for Emmy-winner Archie Bunker and his All in the Family family. The very idea that melting-pot Americans should be applauding a bigot has everybody pretending the reason is not what it is.

Archie Bunker is a spokesman for American standpatters who resist and resent being pushed when they won't yield and shushed when they dare object. Professional ethicists don't understand this. They equate Archie's slurs with some sinister subterranean hostility. Archie is menaced, not menaced.

A Black Panther on the left or a Minuteman on the right would not last two episodes on TV. They are militant, hostile, aggressive, threatening.

Archie Bunker threatens nobody. He is, instead, the classic "victim" in the image of Charlie Chaplin, Harry Langdon and Stan Laurel. He is not frightening; he is frightened. And a very big bunch of Americans identify with that.

Question Box

QUESTION: Omitting the past, concerning today and the future, I see no reason for the "costumes" worn by our judges. Can you help me?—K.L.

ANSWER: We presume the word "costumes" refers to the black robes that judges wear. Such a robe symbolizes the mantle of authority that descends on the wearer by virtue of the fact that he is the duly chosen and accepted officer for the position he occupies. The symbol may cloak either a Solomon or a scoundrel. Of what value is it?

Symbols are functionally important because they are a means to a quick identification. When the robed judge walks into the courtroom, you don't have to wonder whether he is the defendant. The robe tells you, "Here comes da judge."

Second, by quickly identifying the judge, the robe signals spectators that proceedings are about to begin and reinforces the bailiff's warning that the onlookers should come to order.

Third, the judicial robe is a part of that sequence of events known as the conditioned response. The presence of the robe in a courtroom, because it has been historically associated with process and voicings over justice, serves to raise an impression that such weighty matters are a present concern.

When worn by a just man, the judicial vesture is a measure of what he aspires to. When worn by a scoundrel, is a measure of what is lacking. After all, you couldn't very well say that a judge is a disgrace to his sports coat, but not infrequently you hear it said that one is a disgrace to his robe.

Obviously, a symbol or any other tool that can do good can, by misuse, do harm. The robe tends to give undue prestige to a species of politician. It lends an aura of respectability to what otherwise would be called laziness or neglect.

H. L. Hunt Writes

IN RETROSPECT
Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles cut through to the heart of the Vietnam matter the other day when he said that some of the leading politicians of the U. S. at the national level had changed sides on the war issue and that the whole thing could have, and should have, been ended with a victory for Freedom several years ago.

The Mayor would remove the war from current campaigning for the Presidency and have the nation unite in foreign policy efforts. This makes sense. Mayor Yorty is talking like a professional statesman and the comments here are non-political since he is for all practical purposes eliminated as a contender for Presidential candidacy nomination.

The Admiral in technical command of all our operations in the Pacific theater told Mayor Yorty, he disclosed, that the war could have been won in the mid-1960s had the military been given the go-ahead to strike Haiphong and other North Vietnamese cities.

Admiral's comments were made back in those years when the U. S. was getting deeply involved in the conflict on the side of the South Vietnamese. Mayor Yorty said he talked to President Lyndon Johnson about it at the time. The President, Yorty said, listened to the politicians in the Senate instead of the military. Thus the chance to win the longest war in U. S. history slipped away, probably forever.

History will hold the timid of those years to strict accountability. When the accuracy of present-day summary is bared by history, it may show that we were forced to go to the citadels of communism, Moscow and Peking, for a helping hand in getting out of the war, all because we lacked the courage to win it in the 1960s. We won't have to wait on history to know that we financed the war through deficit spending.

Wallace Wants 'Wide Open' Selection of Running-Mate
By Robert S. Allen

MIAMI BEACH.—Gov. Wallace wants a "wide open" convention on the selection of the Democratic running-mate.

That's the emphatic word he has sent the controlling McGovern leadership.

The assassin-wounded Alabama vigorously maintains that a "free choice" of the Vice Presidential candidate by the full convention is required by the spirit and intent of the reform rules—drafted by a commission headed by Sen. McGovern himself.

Loudly professed purpose of those rules is to assure the "widest possible" participation of the delegates in all decisions of the convention—including the ticket.

For the No. 2 standard-bearer to be handpicked by one individual or a "small inner clique of kingmakers" would be, Wallace contends, a flagrant violation of the fanfare reforms. Either the reforms mean what they say, or they are opportunistic window-dressing.

In making this demand, Wallace flatly insists he "hasn't the slightest interest" in being on a McGovern ticket.

Also that he has no choice for Vice President.

Confirming that Wallace intimates are shuffling off reports that Rep. Wilbur Mills, Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, would be "acceptable" to him. They say "that's absolutely not true"; that Wallace has "strong misgivings about some of the things Mills has indicated he's for."

These sources also are making it clear Wallace "is far from happy" about the platform likely to emerge from the convention.

They say that "under no circumstance" will he accept a pro-busing plank.

They are equally unequivocal about his uncompromising opposition to the planks on amnesty, homosexuals and other New Left stands. Stormy convention floor battles are slated on most of them.

Who McGovern's For
Relatively recent history is cited as precedent for "wide open" convention selection of the Vice Presidential nominee.

In 1956, Adlai Stevenson left it up to the delegates to choose his running-mate. The top candidates were Sens. Estes Kefauver, Tenn., and John F. Kennedy, Mass. After a tense seesaw race, Kefauver, nationally renowned as a crime investigator, narrowly emerged as the victor.

Four years later, Kefauver was dead, and Kennedy was elected President.

McGovern insiders make no secret that he proposes to pick his running-mate—regardless of who does or doesn't like it. According to them that would not be a breach of the "spirit and intent" of the reform rules. Said one McGovern intimate bluntly:

"That's just good common-sense politics. After all, you want a team that matches up. And to do that, some one has to do the deciding—the Presidential standard-bearer. There is absolutely nothing in the rules barring that."

But while no secret is made of McGovern's fixed determination to name his running-mate, it is one of the best kept secrets in politics who he has in mind—if anyone.

Even closest intimates profess not to know. One put it this way:

"McGovern has not fixed on any one individual. There are a number of acceptable possibilities based on geographic, ideological, personal and other considerations. That's why he has said he might go for a woman, a black, some ethnic, etc. He really means that. It all depends on a lot of things."

"Unquestionably, what he really has in mind is a well-known liberal offshooting Catholic from a swing state. Gov. John Gilligan of Ohio fits that perfectly. Of course, there is also Ted Kennedy, although Massachusetts is not a swing state in the sense and tradition Ohio is. Also Kennedy has said he doesn't want to run."

"McGovern would be very content with either of them. Either would add a lot to the ticket, and that's what he is looking for. He has no illusions that he won't need the reinforcement he can get. And that's why he is going to do the selecting."

McGovern insiders laugh off the avowed Vice Presidential aspirations of Alaska's grandstanding Sen. Mike Gravel, former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, and John Gardner, onetime HEW Secretary and now head of Common Cause, multi-million-dollar "people's" lobby and pressure organization.

Baby Sitters
Women delegates are being informed by the Democratic National Committee that a child-care center is being set up for children, free of charge, starting at 7:00 p.m. every evening. It is claimed this is the first institution of its kind in the history of national conventions. So far more than a score of children have been registered for this service—which will be staffed by volunteers headed by Penny Morgan, local child-care expert. Mrs. Harriet Cipriani, chairman of women's activities for the National Committee, says the child-care center was decided on because of the big increase in the number of women delegates—33 per cent as against 13 per cent in 1968.

All convention delegates are getting free copies of a laudatory McGovern biography just published. Some 5,000 copies of the book were bought by McGovern for distribution to the delegates and supporters around the country. Later in the campaign, it is planned to peddle autographed copies of the book for campaign contributions—hopefully sizable.

California's maverick Republican Rep. "Pete" McCloskey, who fell flat on his face as a "dumb Nixon" Presidential aspirant, is dropping hints he may campaign for the Democratic Presidential ticket. McCloskey was renominated for another House term as a Republican but apparently that won't deter him from electioneering for McGovern.
