It's President Jimmy Carter now

Promises a competent, compassionate government

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In soft Georgia accent, uttering the simple oath set out in the Constitution, Jimmy Carter came to power today and promised a government "both competent and compassionate."

Carter's first words as President were words of thanks to Gerald R. Ford for all he has done to heal the nation.

Amid applause that swelled to cheers, Carter paused to shake hands with the man he had just succeeded. Then he spoke of the future.

"You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are," said the President who leads America into its third century.

"Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust... let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together, confident that in the end we will triumph together in the right."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath to the former governor of Georgia at two minutes past the appointed hour of noon.

"Congratulations," he said, as the transfer of power was concluded in the oath as old as the Republic, and a 21-gun salute boomed from Army cannon on the Capitol grounds. Carter stood, first solemn, then with a momentary smile on his lips, as the strains of "Hail to the Chief" sounded in salute.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was sworn in first, his oath administered by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts.

A crowd estimated by Capitol police at 150,000 stretched across the plaza before the inaugural stand.

Carter's inaugural address was a brief one — 12 minutes.

And in the amity that marks American shifts of power from party to party and president to president, Carter and the departing Gerald Ford rode together down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol for the swearing-in.

It was the moment that Carter had campaigned for through 31 primaries and a bruising election campaign against Ford. But past political differences melted away in the grandeur of inauguration day.

Along the route, people gathered to cheer both the old and the new president. Inauguration day is a holiday for government employees and many were out in the 26-degree sunshine.

A possibility of snow was forecast for late in the day when the seven grand inaugural balls were to start. But no clouds marked this day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford, Carter and his wife, and the incoming and outgoing vice presidents and their wives, had chatted for 40 minutes over coffee in the White House before proceeding down the street nicknamed "The Avenue of the Presidents."

The Carters began their day by watching on television a prayer service at the Lincoln Memorial, then going to church themselves. On returning, they walked hand-in-hand to the White House where the Fords met them at the door with smiles and handshakes.

"I feel great, looking forward to it," Carter said of the coming ceremony and parade as he left for the service at the First Baptist Church. He returned from church to Blair House, then walked across the street for the traditional meeting with the outgoing first family.

Earlier, Ford said goodbye to 75 members of the staff that served him in his presidency of 29 months and 11 days.

"I've enjoyed the White House mainly because of the fine people," he said. "You all contributed to an administration I think was good and which history will treat kindly."

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, who had spent the night at the White House, told Ford "Mr. President, this is the proudest moment of our lives."

Carter was beaming as he made his first public appearance of a day that will not end until he has visited the last of seven parties — sometime after 2 a.m. Friday.

He was joined at the private church service by many members of his Cabinet and by Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale and his wife, Mrs. Mondale's father, a retired Presbyterian minister from Minnesota, helped conduct the half-hour service.

Carter's sister, Ruth Stapleton, an evangelist, and the Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., father of the slain civil rights leader, led 5,000 persons in prayer in front of the Lincoln Memorial. Also taking part was Carter's pastor from Plains, Ga., the Rev. Bruce Edwards.

The new president watched the service on television and heard Edwards say:

"It is fitting that we gather for prayer because the man for whom we pray is himself a man of prayer, a man who seeks God's direction."

Carter describes himself as a re-born Christian.

The Rev. Mr. King, who also gave the benediction at the Democratic National Convention which nominated Carter, called attention to the poignancy of preaching at the spot where his son, 14 years ago, made his famed "I have a dream" speech.

"I stand here with a bit of reluctance and timidity upon these hallowed grounds," he said.

Later, the miracle of democracy — the peaceful transfer of government from one party and one president to another — was celebrated once again with prayer and proud pageantry. The day was bright and cold.

Ford would share the pillared platform in front of the Capitol as Carter swore to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

For Carter, it was — as he told his neighbors in Plains, Ga. — "A new day, a new beginning, a new spirit for our country."

For Ford, it was a leave-taking from the government he had served nearly half his 63 years, the last 2½ as a president elected by no one. He had sought today's swearing-in ceremony for himself, but, failing to win election, directed full cooperation to smooth the new administration's way.

In that spirit, the departing 38th president and the incoming 39th paused together in the White House before riding together to the Capitol in a display of unity and continuity.

With them were their wives, each a partner in her husband's success. Rosalynn Carter, who campaigned day after day in Carter's dogged rise from obscurity, and Betty Ford, a first lady of dignity and grace whose popularity rating in polls often rivaled or surpassed her husband's.

And there was another transition as the vice presidency passed from Nelson A. Rockefeller to Walter F. Mondale.

With the oath-taking — Mondale first, then Carter — the nation once more had elected officials at the top.

Richard M. Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew, who assumed responsibility on this day four years ago, also vowed to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed," but were forced from office for failing to do just that.

Carter's presidency began the instant he placed his left hand on a Bible that had been in his mother's family for 150 years and repeated the 35-word oath prescribed by the Founding Fathers.

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Carter, as Ford before him, is renewed validation of the American dream that anyone, no matter how humble his birth, can become president.

Carter's roots are in Plains, Ga., population 683, and his success is self-made. A product of Plains public schools, educated at the U.S. Naval Academy, nuclear engineer, naval officer, peanut farmer, state senator, governor and now president.

"If I can stay close to the people of this country and not disappoint them, I think I have a chance to be a great president," Carter told his neighbors upon leaving home Wednesday.

"It still remains to be seen. I'll do the best I can, and I think I have it within me, to the extent that I can represent the American people well, to achieve greatness."

To the end, as a private citizen, he acted as any husband and father. He turned down the thermostat in his home before locking its doors, and he helped carry 9-year-old Amy's doll house to the moving van.

The man who has said he will wear blue jeans and an open shirt in his private time at the White House, donned a tuxedo for a star-filled pre-inauguration gala at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts on Wednesday night.

With Mrs. Carter beside him, Carter held Amy on his lap as they waited for the performance to begin.

Carter has said that Amy, reared in Georgia, has never seen snow. She may get her chance tonight as the Carters make the rounds of seven inaugural balls — a whirlwind not scheduled to end until after 1 a.m.

For Ford, leaving Washington after 25 years as congressman, one as vice president and 2½ as president, the burdens of office gave way immediately to the burden of the golf course.

A plane from the presidential fleet waited at Andrews AFB to take him to Monterey, Calif., where he will play in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am on Friday as the partner of Arnold Palmer.

As the new guard of Democrats was arriving in Washington Wednesday to rejoice and take the reins of government, Ford telephoned world leaders to say goodbye and pardoned Tokyo Rose.

And, fulfilling a promise made to the widow of the late Sen. Philip Hart, Ford approved what amounted to a token change in the rules on clemency for Vietnam-era military deserters. True to his oft-stated stand, Ford rejected Mrs. Hart's plea for a blanket amnesty.

Carter has said that one of his first tasks will be to declare amnesty.

Text of Carter's address is on page 13.

Presidential portrait Americans will be seeing in public offices after today will be this one for which Carter posed in December.

Babies' deaths linked to fathers' smoking

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Children whose fathers smoke at least 10 cigarettes a day run a higher risk of dying at birth than babies of nonsmokers, German researchers say.

If the father is a heavy smoker, there is also a greater risk that the child will be born deformed, the German Research Society said in an eight-year study. It said there were indications that male sperm was damaged by excessive use of nicotine.

The government-subsidized group, whose 40 members represent universities, scientific academies and research institutes, said 4 per cent of the children of nonsmoking mothers and smoking fathers died just before, during or shortly after birth, compared with 2.9 per cent when both parents were nonsmokers.

The institute also said it had studied 14,774 women and found it unlikely that infant death at or near birth was increased by "passive smoking" by the expectant mother breathing her husband's smoke.

Researchers found that in extreme cases of morning sickness, odds might favor the birth of a girl. The ratio for the entire study group was 107 boys to 100 girls, but the ratio for women complaining of intense nausea was 93 boys to 100 girls, the report said.

A spokesman for the society said that although U.S. researchers had suspected a link between a father's smoking and the health of his offspring, the German study provided the first conclusive evidence on the matter.

The society's study began in 1964 after a rash of birth defects were blamed on mothers' taking the tranquilizer Thalidomide during pregnancy.

Among other conclusions of the report —Morning sickness may be a good sign for pregnant women. "Without these complaints, miscarriages are frequent."

—Excessive consumption of coffee by mothers often caused underweight newborn children as did smoking by mothers. Tea and soft drinks had no negative effects.

—A woman's drinking alcohol could lead to premature birth of her baby.

Clayton sorts 600 bills

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Speaker Bill Clayton planned to play catch up today with the more than 600 bills filed in the House.

While senators remained in adjournment for Jimmy Carter's presidential inauguration, the House met at 9 a.m., mainly so Clayton could refer bills to the committees that will kill them or keep them alive for floor action.

"We hope to catch up," he said before Wednesday's adjournment.

Two bills of more than passing interest were introduced Wednesday.

Rep. Sam Hudson, a black Dallas lawyer who has a client on death row, introduced legislation to repeal the death penalty.

"I don't think anyone should kill anyone, including the state. It makes this a hypocritical situation. The better remedy would be to send a person to the pen for the rest of his life without parole," Hudson said.

While senators remained in adjournment for Jimmy Carter's presidential inauguration, the House met at 9 a.m., mainly so Clayton could refer bills to the committees that will kill them or keep them alive for floor action.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, said he opposes repeal and voted for the death penalty law four years ago.

"I haven't had a lot of groundswell support (for repeal) and I don't believe the members of the committee have had a lot of groundswell support for it," Nabers said.

Hudson defended Ronald Chambers of Dallas, who was sentenced to death in the slaying of a Texas Tech student on a Trinity River levee.

"My client is not guilty as far as I am concerned," Hudson said. "The chance you take of frying an innocent man argues against the state killing anyone."

A pig-headed lesson

Of all dangers to human life and freedom without doubt the greatest is thinking that goes something like this: "We must hurt you for your own good." Or, "Even if it kills you, we are going to force you to be healthy, or educated or happy, or even God-fearing, as the case may be. Imbued with such a crusading mania there are literally no lengths to which power-wielding individuals won't go.

Such thinking sparked the Inquisition in Europe, compulsory schooling, the military draft, Prohibition and thousands of laws in this country and elsewhere based on some misguided individual's or group's ideas of what they were sure would be good for you.

The Swine Flu Program is an illuminating case in point. Everyone should be inoculated with the vaccine, the powers that be in Washington, D.C. decided and forthwith mounted a massive taxpayer-funded campaign replete with scare tactics, calculated to insure that everyone was. That is, until mounting evidence began to accumulate that the program not only failed to do what it claimed but actually was dangerous to both health and life. At which point inoculations were suspended and probably will be quietly discontinued in the hope that the public will forget.

What appears to be a final blow has been dealt to a health program that was in trouble from the start — the annual plan to inoculate every American against swine flu, a recent issue of U.S. News and World Report states. Federal officials on December 16 suspended the project for at least a month after more than 50 cases of a rare form of paralysis were reported in people who had received shots. At least six of the paralysis victims died.

The magazine went on to quote Dr. Theodore Cooper, Assistant Secretary for Health for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, who declared: "It's important that the public not be unduly alarmed, adding that if the relationship between the vaccine and the paralysis were upheld he would be the first to recommend suspension permanently.

That mind you after some 45 million men, women and children have been given the government propagandized shots.

Moreover, it is not that the government hadn't been warned. It had. Just how well warned and to what effect are suggested by these excerpts from North American Newspaper Alliance (NANA) news dispatch filed in Washington, D.C. on July 29 of this year.

Dr. Anthony Morris, director of the Slow Latent and Temperate Virus Branch of the Food and Drug Administration, and once the government's chief vaccine control officer, has been fired. Following his firing, four rooms full of test animals were destroyed.

Five of the seven employees working under Morris have been detailed to other jobs. The other two do not yet know their fate. But these men have been stripped of all their research records and equipment and told to get rid of their vaccine cultures.

On July 16, government personnel officers presented Morris with his retirement papers to sign which would have guaranteed him $17,000 a year for life. Morris declined to sign.

Informed sources say the White House ordered the firing of Morris after an article appeared in the Washington Post in which Morris was quoted as saying the effectiveness of the flu vaccine was only 20 percent. This contradicted the public statement of HEW's Dr. Theodore Cooper of 80 percent effectiveness.

Morris has been telling government officials for years that follow-up studies on influenza vaccine were essential — especially hypersensitivity studies — according to government transcripts.

Hypersensitivity means that if a person gets a flu shot and then is later exposed to the flu, he will come down with a more severe case than he would have gotten had he not taken the flu shot at all. This could mean that insurance companies could be faced with millions, even billions, of dollars in claims for years to come.

In one 1968 study alone, 54 per cent of those getting a flu shot came down with severe cases of influenza during the next flu epidemic, while only 25 per cent of those not taking the flu shot got the flu.

Another study in a small group of industrial workers showed similar results — 55 per cent of the immunized group got the flu, while 26 per cent of the unimmunized got flu.

In June 1975, Dr. John E. Craighead in the department of pathology and oncology at the University of Vermont, said immunization enhanced the severity of the disease sometimes weeks and even years later.

Yet, government officials have not permitted Morris to do follow-up studies on influenza — even prevented him buying the necessary materials to do so.

Several scientists say it will take another two to three years to repeat the influenza studies destroyed by the government. In the meantime, millions of Americans will be taking an underdeveloped and undertested swine flu vaccine.

Pressure on for new jobs

By RICHARD LESHNER

WASHINGTON — "Creating jobs" is a topic much in the news these days. Various special-interest groups are pressuring the President to launch a massive federal employment program of some sort.

High levels of unemployment are not in anybody's best interest. But the way the problem is tackled is of crucial importance.

Before you can create a job, you have to know how jobs are created. That sounds obvious enough. Nevertheless, it's positively amazing how many otherwise intelligent proponents of federal jobs programs seem to have overlooked the acquisition of this rather basic knowledge.

Jobs are created by investment. If you want to open a store, for example, you need a lot of start-up money, money for such things as rent, stock, advertising, and pay for your staff until the cash starts coming in. The same principle applies to heavy industry, only more so. Big industrial processes require big, expensive machines. On the average, it takes $40,000 today to create one blue-collar job.

Where does this investment money come from? Ultimately, from savings. Yours, if your store is small and your bank account large. On a somewhat larger scale, the money may be borrowed from a bank. Then, the savings of many of the bank's depositors will be involved. Or, savings may be borrowed directly from individuals through the sale to them of stocks or bonds. And finally, a going concern may pay for diversification or expansion with its own savings, usually called "retained earnings."

Why should people risk their savings in this job-creating process? To earn a profit on their investment, of course. Which means that the product or service offered must be sufficiently attractive to the consumer.

In a nutshell, is the story of our economy. From it, you can deduce that job creation requires both consumer demand and adequate savings to finance the means of meeting that demand.

Now, let's take a look at that mythical federal product "Instant Jobs" (just add money and stir).

The first thing we can tell about such jobs is that they will be producing something for which there is little individual consumer demand — otherwise, the private economy would already have created them.

The next thing we can tell about the "Instant Jobs" is that they will — like all jobs — require investment. But where will the money come from? The government doesn't have any savings (except on those increasingly rare occasions when there is a budget surplus).

There are only two ways for the government to get the money: Higher taxes or borrowing.

Now consider the effect of those two alternatives on private job the amount of savings available for private borrowing. Therefore, in the process of creating government jobs, the government reduces the ability of the private sector to create private jobs. Worse yet, the jobs created in the private sector are those for which there is a genuine demand, whereas the jobs created by government to "cure" unemployment are likely to be more of a drag on the economy than a stimulus.

It's a fascinating subject, and an important one, but a little hard to cover in one short column. If you'd like to know more, we have an informative booklet titled "Who Is the Real Employer?" I'd be happy to send single copies free to readers. Just write: VOB-JOBS, News Department, U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D.C. 20062.

GLOBAL REALITIES

U.S. needs tight alliances

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

One of the principal tasks facing the Carter administration will be that of fashioning closer ties with capitalist nations around the globe and giving them a new measure of confidence.

President Carter, if he is to be true to American national interests, will have to decide early in his administration that emphasis must be on tightening alliances with the European community and Japan, not on appeasing the Third World nations.

In short, the great need is to buttress the industrialized countries of the free world, which are under increasingly heavy political and economic pressure.

The United States has a strong community of interest with the nations of Western Europe, Japan and Canada. It is heavily dependent on three semi-industrialized, mineral-rich countries in the Southern Hemisphere: Australia, Brazil, and South Africa. The foreign and economic policies of the United States should be shaped to provide the country with access to energy and strategic raw materials, and to support nations that rely on private enterprise and other values basic to our way of life.

Mr. Carter's campaign comments included contradictory elements. On the one hand, he stressed that the United States should work with old allies and give them due notice of modifications in U.S. policy. However, there were indications in Mr. Carter's campaign speeches that he would be lenient to the Third World nations that are demanding massive income transfer from the United States and other Western countries. It is imperative that the U.S. not yield to such demands, and that it oppose attempts at cartel formation by producers of minerals.

A test of Mr. Carter's attitudes will come early in his administration when the oil-producing nations will almost certainly increase the price of petroleum. The oil price hike will place a severe strain on the American economy, at a time when Mr. Carter is pushing for higher employment, and will gravely endanger many less stable and less prosperous nations. If the oil price increase is truly excessive, it could trigger recession abroad. This, in turn, could lead to civil turmoil in Europe and the emergence of new communist regimes.

The oil price increase should serve notice on the new President that he must adopt a more realistic attitude towards energy questions than he did in the campaign. Specifically, if the U.S. isn't to be utterly dependent on imported oil and vulnerable to pressure from the oil producing nations, the neglected goal of energy independence must be stressed anew, despite the objections of Mr. Carter's supporters among the environmental protest groups.

The reality of the nation's situation cries out for a huge push for new surface coal production and new incentives for drilling for oil and gas, as well as for rapid licensing of nuclear power plants.

It isn't premature to speak of a coming battle for the mind of President Carter — a battle between his liberal supporters and advisers, who advocate economic "stimulation" (read: inflation), and who favor close ties with Third World nations who want to siphon off America's wealth, and between those Americans who understand the realities of our national situation which every responsible President must acknowledge. The unpleasant reality of the oil price hike may sharpen the focus of that struggle.

If a nation is to survive, ideology and political myths must give way to reality. The reality is that the productive, capitalist nations of the world have much in common and must work together to strengthen and protect their system, if the liberty and prosperity of their peoples are to endure. The task ahead is to persuade Mr. Carter to face up to that reality and act upon it.

It's Possible!

Deflated self

By Robert Schuller

As I went out of the house the other day, I was all enthusiastic about going to work. I rushed into the garage, threw my briefcase into the back seat, turned the key and backed out of the garage. But something didn't feel right. I jumped out of the car and discovered that I had a flat tire.

Have you ever had the experience of an emotional flat tire? Our positive emotions can leak out, blow out, and leave us with a deflated self-confidence. Just as you begin to believe you are an attractive person someone rejects or rebuffs you. What happened? You have an emotional flat tire. Or your work doesn't go ahead, you aren't receiving the recognition you deserve and you don't believe that people appreciate you. That's like a slow leak. One day you wake up and the lift is gone out of your life. Your emotional tire is flat. If you can get going you're in for a rough ride.

The answer? Change emotional tires by changing your thinking. God made you. He's planning your life. God thinks you're great! Now you believe it!

She's the real Bloody Mary in Michener's South Pacific

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
APIA, Western Samoa (AP) — James Michener admits that he based Bloody Mary, his famous South Pacific character, on Aggie Grey.

But Aggie, a sort of uncrowned queen of the South Seas and still knocking them dead with the hula at age 79, reckons she owes a lot of her fame to a drink named Tom Collins.

It was the most popular order at the Cosmopolitan Club on the waterfront at Apia, capital of Western Samoa, where Aggie has been holding forth for 57 years. It was here that Michener saw her, and through his writing she became well-known to Americans, particularly as Bloody Mary in the Broadway musical "South Pacific."

Today the Cosmopolitan Club is Aggie Grey's Hotel, a modern 120-room inn where Aggie, still trim, performs hip-swaying dances at a weekly Fiafia, or Samoan festival.

The hotel, with two swimming pools and a garden of crimson hibiscus, is a far cry from the bar Aggie started in 1919 when New Zealand introduced prohibition on the island.

The idea was to cut down on the wild drinking of the Samoans. To get a drink, you had a doctor sign a permit saying your health required it. "There were 102 veterans around Samoa in those days and I got all their permits," Aggie said.

"We didn't have a real bar," she said of the white frame building that now is the hotel's office. "Everyone used to sit on the floor on mats and drink beer and whisky."

The crew of every ship that visited Apia soon steered for Aggie's.

Prohibition was also in force for the U.S. Navy, stationed 80 miles away in Pago Pago on the American-controlled half of Samoa. Aggie's place became their port of call whenever possible, and the drink the American sailors wanted was Tom Collins.

"Boy, that Tom Collins. The Americans drank so much of it I was shoving dollars under the mat, under the icebox and everywhere," Aggie recalls cheerfully.

When World War II came to the Pacific and the U.S. overflow from Pago Pago spread to Apia, Aggie decided to sell hamburgers.

"Hamburgers were the next big thing ... The Americans had all the money in the world. They didn't know what to do with it and they were going to war. I really cared about those young men."

It was the Seabees — the Navy construction crews — who told Aggie about hamburgers. The Seabees cleaned up the club for Aggie, and two officers helped Aggie with her hamburger plans. "I bought a whole cow, got onions, salt and pepper, like they said, but on opening day they didn't show up to show me how to make 'em," she said.

"The first order I got I had to say to a young soldier, 'How do you stop them falling apart?' He jumped over the counter, flattened down the meat balls and said, 'See, it's easy.'"

Aggie fed hamburgers to 12,000 Seabees and sailors, she estimates. "When they left they all said, 'Aggie, goodbye, we'll come back and see you.'"

But only nine made it back. "I suppose they got married and tied down with families. And of course lots of Seabees got wiped out."

Two years after the war, when her husband died, Aggie expanded her hotel. "We started with 24 rooms, not enough sheets or towels, so that most of our regular guests used to bring their own towels and give them to me when they left," she said.

Aggie's guests include tourists, businessmen on their Pacific rounds and film stars like Marion Brando. "Last movie of his I saw he was getting very stout," she said. "But was he handsome?"

Now she sits back, taking it easy, so well-regarded by the government of Western Samoa (which became independent in 1962) that they issued a stamp with her portrait on it.

South Seas' uncrowned queen

Aggie Grey still holds court in Apia, Western Samoa — a smiling 79-year-old now, posing in the tropical garden of the hotel she runs there. It was Aggie who inspired James Michener's famous South Pacific character, Bloody Mary, and Aggie who, during World War II, fed hamburgers to some 12,000 U.S. Navy men. Now the uncrowned queen of the South Seas, trim and spry, she still wows 'em with her hula dancing.

Gunmen rob university

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men with guns forced employes into an unlocked vault and escaped today with about $10,000 in cash and an undetermined amount in checks from the cashier's office at the University of Houston.

Charles Bernard, assistant director of information, said a large amount of cash was on hand because of student registration Tuesday.

Police said the men entered the basement office and force several employes into the vault. The men did not lock the vault, however, and the employes notified campus security.

Witnesses said they saw two men run from the building and leave in an automobile.

Columbia University in New York City was originally founded in 1754 under a charter from King George II as King's College. It closed during the American Revolution, but reopened as Columbia College in 1784.

Ford days no amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Wednesday ruled out blanket amnesty for Vietnam military deserters and draft evaders but directed that wounded and decorated veterans who received other-than-honorable discharges have their status changed to honorable discharges.

Ford late last month had said he would look into the possibility of a general amnesty for Vietnam war deserters and draft resisters after he was asked to do so by the widow of Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., who had supported such amnesty.

In a letter to Mrs. Hart today, the President said he had decided to maintain my position on earned clemency and hope you will understand.

"Within my clemency program, however, I have directed that the other-than-honorable discharges received by former service members who were wounded in combat or received decorations for valor in combat in Vietnam each be reviewed and upgraded to discharges under honorable conditions unless there is a compelling reason to the contrary in any case," Ford wrote.

A White House spokesman said only deserters would be affected by Ford's new directive and that at most 700 veterans would be eligible.

The White House released a copy of the letter to Mrs. Hart after deputy White House counsel Edward Schmults had telephoned Mrs. Hart and read the letter to her.

The President also sent letters to the secretaries of the three armed services and the commandant of the Coast Guard asking them to evaluate how many people would be eligible under his new program.

Those who have their other-than-honorable discharge changed to honorable would become eligible for veterans benefits, including medical care and GI education benefits.

In 1974, Ford offered draft resisters, but not deserters, a form of limited amnesty by giving them the opportunity to "work their way back into society" through public service.

According to White House calculations, 106,472 draft resisters were eligible for the program but only 21,723 took advantage of it before it expired last year.

Eastern two-thirds of nation

Miami, Fla., gets snow flurries

By WILLIAM MORRISSEY
Associated Press Writer

Despite a lull in subzero temperatures, the current cold spell is putting mounting strain on generating plants, gas pipelines and water traffic in the eastern two-thirds of the nation.

Hundreds of thousands of workers and school children were staying home as factories and schools remained closed to conserve fuel.

Oranges froze on trees in Florida and fishermen were kept off the frozen Chesapeake Bay. A 160-mile stretch of the frozen northern Mississippi River was officially closed, stranding hundreds of barges and towboats — many of them carrying fuel supplies.

Temperatures were still cold throughout the region, with little change expected today.

In Miami, snow flurries fell Wednesday for the first time since the National Weather Service began keeping records in the 1880s. The afternoon high was a chilly 47 degrees — the lowest recorded high temperature ever there.

An all-time record low for West Palm Beach was set this morning when the temperature dipped to 27 degrees. The previous low was 29 degrees, reached on Jan. 10, 1970.

The mercury fell to 31 degrees in Miami, 20 degrees in Orlando, 26 degrees in Tampa, and 23 degrees in Daytona Beach. All readings broke or equaled record lows for the date.

The frigid temperatures severely damaged the citrus crop, said Earl Wells, a spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual. Damage to citrus crops begins when temperatures remain at 28 degrees or below for four hours or more.

"In many areas, we've had 25 degrees and below for eight-nine hours," Wells said. "We've suffered severe crop damage, although we can't put our finger on how much yet. In many areas, we've probably suffered major tree damage."

In North Dakota, they were calling the 20-and-30-degree readings a January thaw after the extreme cold earlier in the week. The higher readings, however, posed a new problem.

"A marked increase in the cases of the common cold and other illnesses have been noted to correspond with warm periods during the cold season," weathermen at Bismarck warned.

The common cold was not worrying officials in at least 21 states. They were concerned with "energy emergencies" — shortages, near-shortages, or severe strain on power plants or pipelines that carry natural gas to residences, businesses and industrial plants.

Warnings were phrased variously, but the message was the same: Conserve.

—Officials of the Dayton (Ohio) Power & Light Co. said Wednesday they would tell business and industrial customers that when they exceeded their winter natural gas allotments, service would be terminated.

—Electric power customers in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and parts of Missouri were told Wednesday to conserve or face "periodic interruption of electric service" during peak demand daytime hours. The warning came from Middle South Utilities Co., a distribution system for power companies in the four-state area.

There were disruptions to businessmen and farmers:

—The 7,300 persons who make their living harvesting clams, oysters and fish from Chesapeake Bay have suffered losses of $20 million, said Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel. He asked the Agriculture Department for federal aid.

—Winter vegetables and fresh citrus fruit from Florida may become scarce. The cold weather froze tomatoes, melons and cucumbers on the vines and so many oranges froze that the state citrus commission said it might impose an embargo on the crop Monday.

The Federal Power Commission offered some relief from the strain on natural gas supplies. It said Wednesday that the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. would be allowed to tap a reserve supply of 3 billion cubic feet over the next 60 days. The company, based in Houston, has customers from Texas to New York.

Frozen in his tracks is Winthrop, Mass., firefighter Murray Sawtelle, who is catching his breath while battling a four-alarm blaze in an apartment house. The temperature outside the apartment was 9 degrees.

DPS may sell aircraft

AMARILLO — A B-25 bomber which crashed landed Dec. 22 near Vega with about two tons of marijuana aboard may be sold by the Texas Department of Public Safety to the highest bidder if the DPS is successful in seizing the aircraft.

A spokesman at the DPS office in Amarillo said state narcotics agents have filed a notice of seizure and intended forfeiture with the 60th District Court at Vega to take possession of the converted military plane and dispose of it.

If no one files an answer within the next 30 days, there will be a hearing. The DPS officer said, "We have to prove that the owner did have knowledge that the marijuana was in it."

The plane reportedly is registered to the North American Transport Co. in Arizona, but a DPS officer said investigation has turned up no such company.

"That happens a lot," he said, explaining that a fictitious company often is formed by persons involved in drug trafficking so that planes and vehicles used can be registered to the company rather than an individual. Then, if it becomes necessary to abandon a vehicle or plane, tracing down the persons involved is more difficult, he explained.

William Gooch, 26, of Tucson, Ariz., has been charged in the incident, with the DPS alleging the bomber was being used to transport and deliver marijuana.

He was arrested in Arizona and has been released on bond. A second suspect, Ronald Chris Sherr, about 30, also is being sought. He formerly is of Arizona and currently is a fugitive from the law. DPS officers reported a warrant for his arrest was issued Monday in Oldham County on a charge of possession of marijuana over four ounces.

Indictments against both men have been returned by the Oldham County grand jury. The suspects reportedly hitched a ride to Amarillo after crash landing at the Vega-Oldham County Airport and left Amarillo by commercial air service.

The landing apparently was caused by engine trouble. The damaged plane sits in a field near the airport runway, surrounded by a makeshift fence.

A DPS official explained that if the plane is sold, proceeds from the sale will go into the general fund of the State of Texas. He said that the state police department conducts many such seizures in drug trafficking cases.

"On small airplanes, we sometimes incorporate them into service," he said, adding that the state's air force has no need of the converted B-25 bomber.

"We use a lot of cars we seize," he said. But explained that vehicles and planes with liens against them are not retained for service in the DPS.

The official explained that seizure proceedings "have nothing to do with anyone's guilt or innocence," and said the current case is "more or less the State of Texas versus the B-25 airplane."

Dog drags in bones

Three bones were brought into the Pampa Police Department on Tuesday. The bones could be those of a human, according to police chief Richard Mills.

Chief Mills said they are not sure whether the bones are from a human or from an animal such as a bear.

The bones, two long ones, possibly from an arm or thigh, and one small one, possibly from the foot area, have been sent to the crime laboratories in Austin, Chief Mills said.

The crime lab will be able to determine whether the bones are human. If so, the age and sex will also be determined.

According to Chief Mills, the bones had been dragged by a dog into the backyard of a house on North Kentucky Road. The dog's owner paid no attention to them for some time. They lay in the yard for almost a week before they were brought to the police station.

Sewer construction has been in progress both north and south of the house on Kentucky. Police have investigated both sites but have found no further bones, Chief Mills said.

He explained that if the bones are human, it could be the site of an old grave since Kentucky is an older section of Pampa.

Chief Mills expects further information from Austin next week.

Tonight's meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary has been cancelled. The next meeting will be in February.

Bob Phillips, superintendent of the Pampa Independent School District, will speak at the monthly membership luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce Monday, Jan. 31, in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn. Phillips is expected to discuss legislation affecting Texas schools, introduced in the current session of the Texas Legislature.

Two area students at East Texas State University in Commerce have been named to the dean's honor roll for the 1976 fall semester. They are Kathleen A. Chance of 1105 Crane and Gordon David Swan of Stinnett. To qualify for the dean's honor roll, students had to earn at least a 3.25 grade point average on the 4.0 scale.

Lozeta Zamora, 17-year-old daughter of Amelia Zamora of Pampa, will enter the Groom Hospital this afternoon for surgery.

Parent and Family Life Education courses, sponsored by the Pampa City Council, begin 9-11 a.m. Friday in the Carver Center conference room, 321 W. Albert Floyd Sackett and Mrs. Betty Tom Graham will offer information on individualized math and Mrs. Norma Whiteley, child welfare worker, will show a film on child abuse. The courses are open to the public and a babysitter will be provided. A special officer workshop has been set for 10 a.m. Friday, in the Courthouse Annex Meeting room to train new home demonstration club officers and council officers. Training will be conducted by Mrs. Charles Warminski, THDA vice president from White Deer; Mrs. Elaine Houston, and Mrs. Marilyn Tate, Extension agents.

Texas weather
By The Associated Press
Dust-churning winds subsided in West Texas during the night and a sharp norther was dying down along the Texas coast today.

Aside from some high clouds in the extreme west, skies were generally clear and further warming was promised across the state.

Lack of cloud cover permitted temperatures to drop to freezing or below again at many points, but the early morning marks were noticeably more comfortable than 24 hours earlier.

Near dawn the range was from 21 degrees at Lubbock and 23 at Houston up to 44 at Brownsville. Wednesday's top marks went as high as 70 at Alice and Wink.

Winds gusting above 40 miles per hour stirred dust into the sky over the Texas Panhandle and South Plains before abating after nightfall.

Forecasts promised increasing clouds in far West and extreme South Texas, clear skies elsewhere and no big changes in temperature.

National weather drifting snow in the Northwest, up to four inches of snow in the Ohio valley, one to three inches in the Tennessee valley and slippery roads farther south.

A few light rain showers were scattered in the south part of California today, and patches of fog formed along the Pacific coast. Otherwise, skies were partly cloudy or clear over most of the plains, the Rockies and the Pacific coast.

40 die in Cairo rioting

CAIRO (AP) — Army paratroopers with machine guns guarded key squares and bridges and patrolled Cairo's slum districts today after two days of riots over price increases.

Police sources said today 40 persons were killed and 250 injured in Cairo during the riots. The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram reported 34 persons were killed and 409 injured in Cairo and Alexandria and 439 arrested in the capital.

A 14-hour curfew, Cairo's first since King Farouk was overthrown in 1952, brought calm back to the metropolis. People were moving about the streets normally. Buses were running. Workers began clearing away the rubble and broken glass left by the rioting. Many shops reopened.

The curfew was shortened three hours today. Cairo Radio announced it would begin at 7 p.m. instead of 4 p.m.

Police reported calm also in Alexandria, the port city on the Mediterranean. Suez, at the southern end of the Suez Canal, and towns in the Nile Delta and Upper Egypt where disturbances occurred Wednesday.

The violence was the worst in Egypt since the revolution nearly 25 years ago. Al Ahram said 29 were killed, 267 were injured and 439 were arrested in Cairo. In Alexandria, five persons were reported killed and 132 injured Tuesday.

The rioting was touched off by the reduction Monday of government subsidies that were keeping down the prices of staple foods, bottled gas, gasoline, cigarettes and other items in general use. The subsidies were reduced in an attempt to cut the $3.2 billion deficit in the government's budget.

The intensity of the public reaction forced President Anwar Sadat to suspend the price increases. The president, who was assailed personally in slogans shouted by the demonstrators, returned to Cairo Wednesday night from Aswan, the winter resort 600 miles to the south where he was waiting to entertain Yugoslav President Tito.

The rioting was touched off

Filed against Davis

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers who have filed a civil suit against multimillionaire Cullen Davis stemming from the Aug. 3 shootings at the Davis mansion questioned his estranged wife Priscilla for seven hours Wednesday.

Grover Swift, counsel for shooting victim Gus Gavrel Jr., led the questioning, which focused on events the night two persons were killed and two others wounded at the mansion.

Davis is charged with murdering his stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, 12, and former Texas Christian basketball player Stan Farr and attempted murders of Mrs. Davis and Gavrel.

After answering questions under oath Wednesday, Mrs. Davis said her deposition in the $3 million Gavrel suit concerned "the crime itself" and some inquiries about the vast Davis business empire.

Although lawyers representing Mrs. Davis in divorce proceedings fought in vain to prevent the deposition, she said she did not refuse to answer any questions.

"But I didn't have the answers to some of the questions about the business," Mrs. Davis said.

Davis himself invoked the Fifth Amendment rather than answer questions on a similar deposition in the Gavrel suit Oct. 22.

The Gavrel action is one of three civil suits for $3 million each arising from the shootings. The others were filed by Miss Wilborn's father, Jack Wilborn, and relatives of Farr.

Bodies returned

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Five of the 46 sailors and Marines killed this week when a Navy launch collided with a Spanish freighter arrived here early today.

The remains were flown from Spain to Dover Air Force Base here for casing before being escorted to relatives, a spokesman for the base said. Six Air Force pall bearers and the base honor guard met the plane.

The Navy announced Wednesday that 46 were known dead and three were missing after a 56-foot launch collided with a 380-ton freighter and overturned in the harbor at Barcelona early Monday morning.

The launch was ferrying more than 100 servicemen returning from weekend passes to the helicopter carrier Guam and the amphibious transport ship Trenton which were anchored in the outer harbor.

The Navy did not release the names of the first victims returned to the United States. A spokesman said others would be transported in small groups of four to eight later and forwarded "as expeditiously as possible."

Ford's cabinet: be out by noon

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were no crises to defuse and no last-minute decisions to make. In the end, for President Ford's Cabinet, there was only one final deadline: They had to leave office by noon.

Immediately after Jimmy Carter's inauguration as president, the Senate planned to confirm their Democratic successors.

From Henry Kissinger's tearful farewell to Edward Levi's security debriefing and David Mathews' packing his household effects, the Ford administration wound down Wednesday for today's finale.

Most of the 11 members of Ford's Cabinet were to join Ford and his staff at a farewell breakfast today in the White House. Some planned to join the crowds on Capitol Hill to witness Carter's swearing in.

But not Carla Hills, the secretary of Housing and Urban Development, or Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson.

The 43-year-old attorney plans to spend the rest of her day at home with her children, parents and husband, Roderick, the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Richardson, 56, who held four Cabinet posts and was ambassador to Great Britain during the past seven years, said he was going home to clean out his basement. David Mathews, 41, the outgoing secretary of health, education and welfare, didn't wait. He stayed home Wednesday to pack for his move back to the University of Alabama, where he resumes the presidency.

Treasury Secretary William Simon stole a march on everyone. He began a month-long vacation in Hawaii five days ago.

Simon, 49, reportedly is considering returning to the Wall Street bond brokerage firm he left in 1972 when he joined the government.

Atty. Gen. Edward Levi took almost no notice that Wednesday was his final full day in office. Levi, 65, who is taking a trip down Egypt's Nile River and expects to return to the University of Chicago next fall, had several routine appointments and received a 30-minute security debriefing, which is routine for all departing government workers who had access to classified documents.

But most of his peers set aside Wednesday for their farewells.

Henry Kissinger overslept following a party at the White House. The secretary of state, who is expected to make a fortune by selling his memoirs, spent the afternoon shaking hands with hundreds of State Department employees who filed through his office.

At day's end, he delivered a tearful farewell to several hundred persons who crowded the department's flag-bedecked lobby.

"I want to tell you how much it has meant to me," said Kissinger. "I'll never forget you." One employe watched Kissinger's limousine pull away and commented, "It's like touching a piece of history."

Like several other Cabinet members and President Ford himself, Kissinger plans to spend some time in the groves of academia. He will lecture at Georgetown University in the spring.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld received a full-dress farewell salute at the Pentagon on Wednesday, then received the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, from Ford at a ceremony in the Oval Office.

Rumsfeld, 44, a former congressman, said he plans to vacation for 10 days and afterwards "very likely will have a parttime affiliation with a university."

Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. said Wednesday he will spend the next month or two at the Smithsonian Institution's Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars here.

Coleman, 56, "intends to do some thinking and writing" about government decision-making, a spokesman said. He formerly practiced law in Philadelphia.

W. J. Usery Jr., 53, who was the government's crack labor negotiator before he became labor secretary 11 months ago, went to the dentist Wednesday and then spent much of the day making farewells and packing dozens of plaques and mementoes from eight years in government.

Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe cleared up some paperwork Wednesday and had a farewell reception in his office. The 57-year-old wealthy former businessman from North Dakota plans to stay in the capital, but has no immediate career plans.

Acting Agriculture Secretary John Knebel, 40, who succeeded Earl Butz last fall, named four members of a child nutrition advisory council Wednesday and announced that research on predatory control will be stepped up to aid sheepmen complaining of coyotes.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and his wife and their nine- and 12-year-old boys spent Wednesday night as President Ford's guests in the White House.

Perhaps the most important lame duck decision Wednesday came from a non-Cabinet member. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Russell Train, who decided to ban the discharge of the chemical PCB into U.S. waterways.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Approximately a year ago you ran an article about a mother who never made her own Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner. Instead, she went to her mother's or mother-in-law's. She wrote to say that she wishes now that she had developed her own holiday celebrations.

That letter was terrific. If you could publish it again, it would be a great help to a lot of people.

Believe it or not, I am a grandmother who wishes my married children would make their own holiday dinner and invite me as a guest.

PAID MY DUES

DEAR PAID: It wasn't hard to find, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to HIS mother's or to MY mother's for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner?" Your answer has always been: "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year—as our children are ready to strike out on their own—that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself, and then she complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for the dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't.

Abby, please urge young married to dare to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

DOING MY OWN THING

DEAR DOING: Thank you for an excellent letter. Perhaps it will inspire others to "Do their own thing," too. It makes a lot of sense.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FOR CENSORSHIP": I agree, there is an excess of garbage passing for "literature" these days, but this is what one great American champion of human rights had to say about "censorship" 175 years ago: "I am mortified to be told that, in the United States of America, a question about the sale of a book can be carried before the civil magistrate. Are we to have a censor whose imprimatur shall say what book may be sold and what we may buy?"

"Shall a layman, simple as ourselves, set up his reason as the rule for what we are to read? It is an insult to our citizens to question whether they are rational beings or not."

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — By mixing a decaffeinated ground coffee in half-and-half portions with regular coffee, I tell myself that I'm only getting half the undesirable effects of drinking too much coffee. Am I correct in assuming this?

Also what is your opinion of the use of hypnosis in quitting smoking? Is there anything a person needs to beware of in allowing himself to be hypnotized?

DEAR READER — Each cup of coffee that you make from a half-and-half mixture of decaffeinated and regular coffee will only have half as much caffeine as a cup made the same way from regular coffee. Of course, if you drink two cups then instead of just one you are right back where you started.

An ordinary cup of brewed coffee usually contains between 80 and 120 milligrams of caffeine. A cup of instant coffee usually contains less, 66 to 100 milligrams and caffeine-free coffee is caffeine-free for all practical purposes.

About hypnosis, the important thing is to be in the hands of a reputable individual. Ask your family doctor for his recommendation for one in your area if you really want to try it. Hypnosis will help some people quit smoking who really want to quit. If the person is not motivated to quit and really doesn't want to do so, the hypnosis may not help very much, if at all.

To give you more information on the caffeine drinks I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-1, Coffee, Tea, Cola, Cocoa. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Write to me in care of this newspaper.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR READERS — Many good pointers are timeless. I believe you will agree after reading the following ones that are rather personal to me. — Polly.

DEAR POLLY — When going on a first visit to a new baby in a home where there are one or more toddlers, deduct fifty cents or a dollar from the cost of the wee one's gift and spend it on something to take the others. This will delight them and help the mother deal with the problem of any resentment toward the new baby. Can't you hear them saying, "I have a new baby brother (or sister) and people bring me presents, too."

My comment was: "I think this is a wonderful idea, don't you? It reminded me of a tactful and thoughtful thing my daughter-in-law's mother did when a new baby brother was being brought home from the hospital to join his little sister. That grandmother bought a baby doll, all done up in its own blanket, that went home from the hospital with little brother as Kit's own baby. She loved it."

"Scatter seeds of kindness all along your way;
Water them with love every passing day.
God will send the sunshine, skies will never be gray;
Lovely flowers will bloom for the Lord's bouquet."

He switched— country to hymns

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON

Pampa News Staff

When Bill Cox was five years old, he stood on an apple box at church to lead the singing.

He still sings in church, but nowadays many of the hymns are those he writes himself.

He has composed both words and music to more than 40 published hymns, two of which appear in the hymnal used at the Mary Ellen - Harvester Church of Christ where Cox is a deacon. Five more of his compositions appear in another hymnal.

Although his work for the past four years has been exclusively in church music, his early musical inclinations were toward the Nashville sound. "Ernest Tubb was my idol," he said.

In 1944 he formed a combo called the "Troubador Kids," named for his hero Tubb, the Texas Troubador. They soon had their own show on a local radio station. Cox, playing lead guitar, was at 13 the "old man" of the group. His steel guitar player, Leon Howe, was 12, and guitarist Buddy Smith was only nine years old. (Smith went on to a career in country music and was a member of the Grand Ol' Opry at the time of his death in a car accident several years ago.)

Cox continued to take guitar lessons until "I knew more than the teacher, and then I quit." His boyhood dreams of singing in Nashville were fulfilled in an unexpected way five years ago when Cox was attending the Grand Ol' Opry. The emcee called for volunteers from the audience; Cox went onstage and sang "There's a Little Bit of Everything in Texas," to a rousing round of applause indicating a predominately Texan audience.

In 1973 he began writing and publishing hymns. After four years of study, he is now a staff instructor for the Hensley Memorial Camp music schools at Travis Peak, near Austin. In addition to writing the hymns, he also makes musical arrangements and composes harmony for them.

Many of his hymns are written late at night. "I'll wake up with an idea for new words or music, and I'll stay up and work," he said.

After he finishes a manuscript, it goes to a publication company where an engraving is made. This is returned to him for corrections; then it goes to a printer, where it is made into finished sheet music. It is then ready to go to his publisher, Firm Foundation of Austin.

Cox said that probably his best-known hymn is "Christ Is The Answer," inspired by a sermon given by his minister, Glen Walton.

He mentioned the need for younger songwriters in the area of sacred music. "Most are quite old; one prominent hymnist is 92 years old and still composing," he said.

By profession a bricklayer, Cox lives at 733 Deane Drive. He is married to the former Beula Turner, daughter of Mrs. Cora Turner of Pampa. The couple has three children, Mrs. Judy Russell of Glazier, Duane of Broken Arrow, Okla., and Mrs. Toni Laubhan of Pampa. His mother, Mrs. Lucille Cox, lives at 405 N. Zimmers.

He also writes poetry, and although most of his rhymes are devotional, the West Texas wind was the inspiration for a recent verse written in the wee hours of a blustery night: "Is there no end to the West Texas wind? Just stick around and you'll see: All will be quiet, it'll end up all right — Just like you'd have it to be."

Two partly-finished manuscripts on his desk indicate he has every intention of continuing to fulfill the message of one of his hymns: "Put Christ's joy in your song... and pass it on."

Bill Cox writes church hymns from his home in Pampa. He was once a Troubador Kid and now is a brick layer when he doesn't busy himself with music.

Fuelish problems result with CB's in imports

By CAROL A. BREWER

Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Some

Citizens Band operators with European-made cars are complaining about interference with the car's fuel injection system.

The combination of a two-way radio and a fuel-injected car can pose problems, even if the two aren't in the same vehicle.

"The wiring in the car acts as an antenna," said Bob Radke, chief engineer for Kris, Inc., a Cedarburg, Wis., CB manufacturer. "Any wiring you have, like your house wiring or your car wiring or any wiring will act as an antenna for certain frequencies."

The problem arises when the wiring picks up radio transmissions from the CB or any other kind of two-way radio.

The fuel injection system controls the flow of gasoline to the motor by means of electronic signals from the engine. It cannot, however, tell the difference between a valid engine signal and a spurious signal from a two-way radio.

"It causes it to open too long or out of sequence," said Helmut Buchwald, service manager for Mossner Motors, a Milwaukee foreign car dealership. The fuel injection system, in its confused state, either speeds up or cuts the fuel flow.

The problem is restricted to European cars, said Radke, because they are the only ones equipped with vulnerable fuel injection systems.

For drivers whose radios interfere with fuel injection, Radke said owner's manuals for both radio and antenna are the best place to start looking for the source of the trouble. "Make sure you did everything the manufacturer recommends," he said.

A good antenna ground is mandatory — occasionally it's necessary to run a grounding line between the antenna base and some point known to be connected to the car's chassis. And the radio's power source should be as close to the battery as possible, connected with heavy wire.

The problem might be with the fuel injection system, Radke said. "You might find that over the miles, the fuel injection unit itself, which is in a metal-plastic box, might be suffering from some corrosion where it's mounted to the car chassis," Radke said.

The first step then, he said, is to clean the ground connections and tighten the screws. If that doesn't work, things might get complicated.

For the radio operator, checking those two areas should clear up the trouble.

Chamber sets screening

A dozen or more applications for Chamber of Commerce manager will be screened next week by a special committee.

Melvin Kunkel, chamber president, stated today.

Kunkel said some 15 applications for the post to be vacated March 1 by the resignation of E.O. Wedgeworth have been received.

Although applications will continue to be taken the screening committee will begin its elimination procedure on those already on file.

The chamber president said the committee will turn its findings over to the chamber board of directors for the final selection.

Members of the screening group, in addition to Kunkel, are Verl Hagaman, vice president; Luther Robinson, finance director; Roy Sparkman and Gene Steel, both past presidents.

Taters make pancakes, pizzas, pies

Here it is, once again — French Potato Pie. The late Louis Diat, famous chef of New York's old Ritz, introduced the recipe to American cooks about 35 years ago.

Since then a number of versions, including several we've published, have appeared. The following recipe is the latest of these and, in our opinion, the best.

The pie makes a marvelous offering, served with ham or sausage, for brunch. It's fine, offered with a tossed green salad, for lunch. It's also an outstanding accompaniment to meat or poultry for dinner. If you try it, we think you'll be as grateful to Louis Diat as we are.

FRENCH POTATO PIE
3 pounds (8 medium) potatoes
Medium-small onion, finely chopped (about 1-3rd cup)
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Butter Pastry, see below

3 tablespoons butter
1 egg yolk lightly beaten with 2 tablespoons water
1 cup (8-ounce container) heavy cream, at room temperature
Peel potatoes and slice thin — there should be about 8 cups. Toss well with onion, parsley, salt and pepper.
On a pastry cloth, roll out half the Butter Pastry 1½ inches larger than a 2-quart oblong (11¼ by 7¼ by 1½ inches) glass baking dish or similar utensil. Fit pastry into dish and trim even with edge of dish. Roll out remaining pastry so it is 1 to 2 inches larger than the top of the dish; reserve.

Drain any accumulated liquid from the potato mixture and discard liquid; turn potato mixture into pastry-lined dish; dot with butter. Place reserved pastry over potatoes and tuck it under the other pastry edge and inside the dish. Cut four or five 3-inch long crosswise slits at even intervals in the top pastry; brush with the egg wash.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until potatoes are tender when tested with the sharp point of a knife and the pastry is golden-brown — 1¼ to 1½ hours. Remove from oven. Pour a very little of the cream at one time into each slit — it will take 20 minutes or longer to use all the cream because each small amount must be absorbed before the next is added. After all the cream has been poured, let the pie stand about 10 minutes before serving. Some potatoes absorb the cream faster than others.
Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Boil the potatoes in their skins in 2 quarts water and 1 tablespoon salt until tender — about 30 minutes; drain; remove skins; cut into about ¾-inch cubes; add the scallions; cover and keep warm.
Meanwhile, in a 10-inch skillet heat the oil; add the frankfurters and over moderate heat, stirring often, brown lightly. With a slotted spoon remove frankfurters and add to the potatoes and scallions; continue keeping warm.
Into the hot drippings in the skillet, over low heat, stir the sugar, flour and 1 teaspoon salt; gradually stir in the vinegar and ½ cup water; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and boiling. Pour over potatoes, scallions and frankfurters; add parsley and mix lightly but well, adding more salt if needed. Serve at once.
Makes 6 servings.

Tamales are a staple in many Mexican households and are making their way into more north of the border cooking. Here is a version using mashed potatoes but still containing the all-important flavoring of cornmeal. Use canned chili con carne as filling and topping, or you may want to make your own favorite chili con carne recipe to use. This is a complete meal when served with slices of avocado and cherry tomatoes on lettuce. Or, try combining slices of oranges and snappy onions with an oil and vinegar dressing for a refreshing salad. These tamales will be as bland or as peppery as you want them, just add chili peppers or Tabasco to your taste to the chili con carne.
Makes 6 servings.

When the budget is low you might find it profitable to turn to German and thrifty Pennsylvania-Dutch cooking and offer their popular Hot Potato Salad.

To make the salad a main supper dish we've added frankfurters to it instead of the traditional bacon called for in German cookbooks and the hard-cooked eggs specified in Pennsylvania-Dutch cookbooks. The following version should satisfy the most moderate meat-and-potatoes people.

One note: serve this main dish as soon as it's made. Don't try to make it ahead and reheat it; we did and found it lost its fresh flavor during the reheating.

HOT POTATO SALAD WITH FRANKFURTERS
6 medium (about 2 pounds) potatoes, scrubbed
Salt
2 medium scallions, thinly sliced
6 frankfurters, sliced

½-inch thick
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon flour
¼ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup minced parsley
Boil the potatoes in their skins in 2 quarts water and 1 tablespoon salt until tender — about 30 minutes; drain; remove skins; cut into about ¾-inch cubes; add the scallions; cover and keep warm.
Meanwhile, in a 10-inch skillet heat the oil; add the frankfurters and over moderate heat, stirring often, brown lightly. With a slotted spoon remove frankfurters and add to the potatoes and scallions; continue keeping warm.
Into the hot drippings in the skillet, over low heat, stir the sugar, flour and 1 teaspoon salt; gradually stir in the vinegar and ½ cup water; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and boiling. Pour over potatoes, scallions and frankfurters; add parsley and mix lightly but well, adding more salt if needed. Serve at once.
Makes 6 servings.

Repeat to make 4 tamales. Place a wire rack or steaming basket in a large kettle. Add water to just below level of rack; bring to a boil. Place tamales on rack, cover tightly and steam 20 minutes. (Check occasionally to make sure water has not evaporated. Add more water, if necessary.) To serve, gently unwrap tamales onto plates. Stir reserved one-fourth cup chili into sour cream. Spoon over tamales. Makes 4 servings.

Pizza lovers are in for a surprise and potato devotees will be, too. Next time you feel the urge for pizza use frozen hash browns to make a crisp crust and top with Mozzarella and Parmesan cheeses, frankfurters and pizza sauce. This makes a delicious family meal or an informal supper entree to serve friends. Fresh garden salad and fresh fruit for dessert round out a flavorful menu. For dieters who enjoy Italian dishes try a zucchini Italiane or eggplant Roma, especially tailored to cut down on calories without losing that Italian zing.

Place potatoes in strainer, rinse with hot water to thaw. Drain well and pat dry with paper towels. Mix with onions and shape into an 8 and a half-inch round on well-buttered pizza pan. Drizzle melted butter around edge of potatoes. Bake in a 450-degree oven for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, put frankfurters into boiling water and simmer 3 minutes. Drain and cut each diagonally into 5 pieces. Remove potatoes from oven and sprinkle with one-half cup Mozzarella cheese. Drizzle pizza sauce over cheese and top with frankfurters. Sprinkle with remaining one-half cup Mozzarella and the Parmesan cheeses. Return to oven for 10 minutes longer, until hot and bubbly. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Adding caraway seed may be new to you.
3 medium baking potatoes
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon caraway seed
½ cup (about) peanut oil
Pare potatoes and place in a bowl of cold water as they are pared. Working with one potato at a time, pat dry and grate coarsely into a bowl containing the beaten egg. Stir in flour, salt and caraway seed. Into a large skillet pour enough oil to grease generously; heat over moderate heat. For each pancake, add 2 tablespoons batter to the hot oil and spread thin with the back of a spoon. Fry about 3 minutes on each side — until golden-brown and cooked through. Add oil as needed. Makes 12 to 14 pancakes — 4 servings.

MASHED POTATO TAMALES
4 medium potatoes (about 1½ pounds), cooked and mashed
1 egg yolk
1 cup flour
¼ cup cornmeal
Salt
Pepper
Aluminum foil
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 can (15 ounces) chili con carne without beans
1 cup dairy sour cream

In medium bowl, combine potatoes, egg yolk, flour and cornmeal until well-blended. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Cut aluminum foil into four 12-inch squares. Grease one side of each square generously with some salad oil. For each tamale, spoon one-fourth potato mixture along one side of a piece of foil. Spread out to a 5x7-inch rectangle, one-half inch from edges of foil. Set aside one-fourth cup chili. Spread one-fourth of remaining chili over potato layer. Sliding hands under foil beneath potato mixture, fold potato and chili mixture in half. Pat edges of potato mixture together to enclose chili. Fold free end of foil around tamale, tucking edges in to seal tamale tightly in foil.

Repeat to make 4 tamales. Place a wire rack or steaming basket in a large kettle. Add water to just below level of rack; bring to a boil. Place tamales on rack, cover tightly and steam 20 minutes. (Check occasionally to make sure water has not evaporated. Add more water, if necessary.) To serve, gently unwrap tamales onto plates. Stir reserved one-fourth cup chili into sour cream. 3 to 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
In a medium bowl beat eggs until thick and ivory colored. Beat in flour, salt and pepper. Fold in potatoes.
In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat, heat 2 tablespoons of the butter. With a tablespoon dip to bottom of the bowl each time and pour mixture well apart into the skillet, allowing each pancake to spread by itself. Turn as necessary and fry until brown on both sides and crispy around the edges, adjusting heat as necessary. Add more butter as needed for each batch of pancakes. Drain on brown paper; keep warm in a slow oven until all pancakes are fried.
Makes about 2 dozen.
Note: Potatoes turn brown quickly after being grated. This discoloration can be largely controlled by adding ¼ teaspoon ascorbic acid (vitamin C) crystals to the potatoes as they are being grated and by stirring occasionally.

For better baked beans, cook 'em in crockpot

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Slow cookers are making inroads into the lifestyles of more families. Busy homemakers and single working women and men find these slow cooking units as helpful as a live-in cook.

Maple baked beans are a natural for this method of cooking because it allows the flavors to blend perfectly. This recipe calls for Idaho Pink or Red beans combined with onion, salt pork and maple-flavored syrup, spiced with Worcestershire sauce, catsup, dry mustard and bay leaf.

This is a high protein dish, made even more nutritious when served with a small quantity of meat, cheese or other animal protein. Add a tossed green salad and fresh fruit for dessert for a satisfying meal in any season. Another plus being talked about more and more is the contribution of dry beans to fiber in the diet. This may be the year of the bean.

SLOW COOKER MAPLE BAKED BEANS

1 pound dried Idaho Red or Pink beans
¼ cups chopped onion
4 ounces salt pork, cut in small pieces
½ cup maple-flavored syrup
1/2 cup catsup
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf

Soak beans overnight in 8 cups water. Or, for quick soak method, add beans to 8 cups boiling water, boil 2 minutes and let stand for 1 hour. Simmer beans in soaking water until tender, about one and one-half hours. Drain, reserving one-half cup liquid. Transfer beans and reserved liquid to slow cooker. Stir in onion, salt pork, syrup, catsup, Worcestershire sauce, salt, dry mustard, pepper and bay leaf. Cover. Cook on low heat for 8 to 10 hours. Remove bay leaf before serving.

For regular cooking method, soak and simmer beans for one and one-half hours in the soaking liquid, as described for slow cooker beans. Bake covered at 325 degrees for about 3 to 4 hours. It may be necessary to add more soaking liquid as they bake. Check beans after 3 hours for doneness. Remove the cover the last one-half hour to let beans brown on top. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Baked spuds: 'My way is best'

By Gaynor Maddox

Long ago there was a railroad between Chicago and the West Coast known as "The Route of the Baked Potato."

At luncheon and dinner, the train would stop for a large meal with a baked potato, then travel on. Today the baked potato has another emissary — the Governor of Idaho who calls himself a russet Burbank pitman on TV screens and on platforms all over the country.

"Yes, although governor of my state, I am also a spud salesman. I want as many people as possible to learn about our remarkably different baking potatoes. They are the most asked for 'bakers' in the world and are one-third of the state's agriculture," reports Cecil D. Andrus, twice elected governor, a Democrat in a Republican state and a frank conservationist in a conservative area.

We met at Pierre's in New York. The waiter laid before us two Idaho baked potatoes. They were stuffed with broken up potatoes, cottage cheese and chopped hot green pepper.

The Governor brushed his aside. "Good, maybe. But the only way to enjoy an Idaho is baked, split open and sparked with butter. Incidentally, never cook wrapped in foil. That spoils the texture."

Then he continued to discuss his beloved subject: "Idaho grows more potatoes than any other state. And I am proud to say that most of the farms are owned by individuals, not by corporations. The great pride farmers take, the great care they give their fields, the money devoted to research and the amazing numbers of modern storage plants will convince you that potatoes are big business in Idaho. Many years ago Luther Burbank introduced his russet Burbank to my state. Through science, expensive research, experimentation and hard work we have developed it to its remarkable taste, texture and distinctive shape.

"Idaho has an altitude that makes it hot during the day and cool at night. This results in fine potato textures. We have abundant fresh streams and our air is still not polluted."

The governor suggested we bake Idaho potatoes as follows: Scrub potatoes well. Dry potatoes and prick with a fork. Bake in 425-degree oven 55 to 65 minutes, until soft. Or bake potatoes in 350-degree oven for 1 hour and 25 minutes to 1 hour and 30 minutes.

As soon as the potato is baked to the soft to the touch stage, take the potatoes from the oven and cut an "X" in the top. Then push some of the potato through with slight pressure of the fingers on the peel so that some of the snowy inside shows. This will help the fluffing process, and bring the potato dry and mealy to the table.

The skin of an Idaho baked potato is considered a great delicacy by potato connoisseurs. For a soft skin, scrub the potato and coat lightly with butter, oil or bacon fat before baking. For a crisp, brittle skin, just scrub and bake. On restaurant menus, they are listed as "Idaho shells."

Armistice Day, November 11, marks the anniversary of the end of World War I.

Rock music movies end up on the rocks

A helping hand

Peter Frampton and others were contacted to play a cheap ticket off-camera concert at Arizona State University's Sun Devil Stadium to fill the seats for scenes in Barbra Streisand's new movie 'A Star Is Born.'

By ABE PECK
For The Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rock music's been going to the movies since Bill Haley and the Comets rocked around the clock in "The Blackboard Jungle," 1955's classic about juvenile delinquency.

It's been documented ("Woodstock"), personified (Bob Dylan in "Don't Look Back"), fictionalized ("Performance" with Mick Jagger), exploited ("Wild In The Streets") and insulted ("How to Stuff a Wild Bikini").

The theaters are currently filled with rock movies, but unfortunately nearly all of them fail on one level or another.

The most ambitious is "A Star Is Born," the $8 million misunderstanding between Barbra Streisand and her ego. It was inevitable that any remake of the 1954 Judy Garland-James Mason effort would center around rock, and the high cost dictated a proven film star like Streisand. So there we have her in the role of Esther Hoffman, the unknown whose rise to stardom parallels the declining career of former rock giant John Norman Howard, played by the raspy-voiced but able Kris Kristofferson.

The problem is direction. Streisand's unfamiliarity with the rock scene made it impossible for "A Star Is Born" to capture that world. The rock scene's unfamiliarity with her made it necessary to have Peter Frampton, Santana and Montrose play a cheap-ticket, off-camera concert at Arizona State University's Sun Devil Stadium to fill the seats for her number.

"All This and World War II" has everybody from Frankie Valli to Elton John singing the words and music of John Lennon and Paul McCartney, mixed with documentary footage from World War II.

It works only occasionally. Hitler may have been "The Fool On The Hill" and Mussolini a real "Nowhere Man," but sometimes this sing along with death seems almost pornographic.

As early as the Elvis movies of the late '50s, record artists realized they could legitimize themselves and expand their appeal by appearing in a more traditional medium. "What's Happening! The Beatles in the U.S.A.," "The Monkees," Joe Cocker's "Mad Dogs and Englishmen," "Farewell to the Cream" and "The Stones' Gimme Shelter" followed suit. Now Led Zeppelin takes its fier with "The Song Remains the Same."

Heavy metal flower children will thrill to a half-hour of "A Stairway to Heaven" concert footage, and even to the fantasy sequences for each band member. But Led Zep's home movie fails to go beyond the band's traditional audience. If you're not a true believer, this look at Led Zep may go over like a lead balloon.

"Car Wash" is the opposite, a film so lightweight that it risks floating off the screen. Comedian Franklin Ajaye and his friends' day at the car wash is filled with bathroom humor and R & B composer Norman Whitfield's upbeat music. Sometimes it seems like nothing more than an excuse — successful at that — to launch Rose Royce's version of the title song as a Top Ten single.

"Bound for Glory" is the story of 1930s folk radical Woody Guthrie and thankfully it has not been updated into a tale about some amplified troubador riding the airways. But the 1970s do leave their imprint.

David Carradine is excellent in portraying Guthrie's songs and the tension between his art and his political lifestyle. However, items like "This Machine Kills Fascists," the legendary inscription that graced Guthrie's guitar, are gone. Some of the people associated with the movie filmed documentaries with the radical Weathermen. But for a $7 million Hollywood production, they cleaned up Guthrie's act.

Finally, the rock cup runneth over with musical attractions either just released or still in production.

"Sergeant Pepper" will feature Peter Frampton as Billy Shears and the Bee Gees as the Lonely Hearts Club Band. Together they'll avert the crisis in Pepperland.

"The Last Waltz" is Martin Scorsese's ("Taxi Driver," "New York, New York") documentary film about The Band's farewell to the concert stage. "He knows our music so well," Band guitarist Robbie Robertson told "New Times" Magazine about Scorsese. "He can tell you the 12th line after the violin segway in 'Daniel and the Sacred Harp'."

Names in the news

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, in a farewell address to the Senate, said he accepted the No. 2 spot in the administration because he wanted to help during the post-Watergate days.

"I came to this post, to which I had never aspired and had, indeed, foresworn, because of the constitutional crisis facing the country," he said Tuesday.

"As I leave this office, I share with you and a grateful nation the profound satisfaction that our country has returned secure to its regular elective procedures of representative government."

Rockefeller, 68, succeeded Gerald R. Ford as vice president when Richard Nixon resigned the presidency.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor turns to teaching today, conducting a seminar on theater and film for drama students at the University of Virginia and surrounding high schools.

She has been living in Virginia since her marriage to former Navy Secretary John Warner of Middleburg. Entrance to the seminar was limited to students selected by their drama teachers.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Billie Jo Spears, Don Williams, Tommy Overstreet, Skeeter Davis and George Hamilton IV will appear at the international Festival of Country Music Feb. 1-5 in Johannesburg, South Africa.

They will be among the first country entertainers to appear in South Africa.

LA HABRA, Calif. (AP) — A Southern California fan of former President Richard M. Nixon says he and two friends bought Nixon's former law office and will restore it so people can visit the site.

Don Bendetti, a developer who is an alumnus of Nixon's undergraduate school, Whittier College, said he met with Nixon several months ago after he and his friends bought the office.

"He's encouraged about the thing too. We just discussed how we wanted to restore the building," said Bendetti, who graduated from Whittier in 1952 — 18 years after Nixon's graduation.

Nixon practiced law in the unobtrusive stucco structure on La Habra's main street from 1939 to 1942.

Youth found dead in open railway car

CLOVIS, N.M. — The body of an unidentified youth was found early Tuesday in the lower level of an empty auto carrier car in the Santa Fe Railway yards.

According to Clovis Police Department spokesmen, the body has been sent to Albuquerque for toxicology examinations and autopsy, but no trace of foul play was found. It is believed the youth froze to death.

The boy, wearing a t-shirt and jeans with no coat, was found about 11:30 a.m. by railroad workers in an open, empty car that arrived Monday night from Mirada, Calif.

Officers said the youth, believed to be from California, probably died Sunday or Monday.

Musical lauds Peron

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Would you listen to a rock opera about the life of Eva Peron? No, it's not a joke.
Eva Duarte Peron, second wife of Argentine dictator Juan Peron, may be an unlikely subject for the idiom that produced Elvis and the Beatles, but how would a rock opera on the life of Christ strike you if you hadn't heard of "Jesus Christ Superstar"?

"She's an extremely impressive person, a remarkable person," said Tim Rice, 32, who wrote the words for "Evita." "And that doesn't mean one admires her 100 per cent. I like to say most people are good and bad. She was very good and very bad."
The rock opera was unveiled in album form here this week for the media and selected trendsetters, including Sylvia Miles and Prince Egon von Furstenburg. A head-start single of one of the opera's most stirring songs, "Don't Cry for Me, Argentina," already has sold a quarter-million copies in England.
Rice caught the idea for "Evita" from a radio broadcast he heard in 1973, spent some time in Argentina "getting the facts and a feel for the country," then returned home to England to sell the idea to An-draw Lloyd Webber.

Rice got the facts — Eva Peron's mundane background, her career in motion pictures and on the radio, her marriage to then-Col. Juan D. Peron and the brief decade she spent as one of the world's most glamorous, powerful and beloved women. It ends with her death from cancer in 1952 at 33.
"I was not trying to make a political point," he said. "I was concerned with what made her tick. It wasn't going to be a deep, scholastic study."
Webber, 29, and Rice spent two years creating "Evita" from the sketchy biography.
"We were trying in a way," Rice said, "to get over in a piece of music in 1976 the kind of impact she had 25 or 30 years ago."

Parr's above-par treatment stops

By MILLER H. BONNER JR.
Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The honeymoon is over for former Duval County Judge Archer Parr.
State District Court Judge Darrell Hester ordered the Texas Rangers to remove Parr from the Kleberg County jail because of "special privileges" being accorded the convicted felon.
Parr, noted Judge Hester in a two-page letter, has been "accorded special privileges including special food, being permitted to marry after such request was denied by federal authorities, extended unmonitored visits with his new wife and receiving a number of highly unusual visitors."

The 51-year-old nephew of the late George B. Parr, the "Duke of Duval," was married on Oct. 15 of last year to Syleta Hawn, 46, of Alice, while Parr was incarcerated in the Kingsville jail awaiting trial in state court on four charges of official misconduct and one charge of theft by bailee. A federal judge had denied the marriage request in 1975 shortly before Parr began serving a 10-year sentence in a federal penitentiary for perjury.
Judge Hester's letter, dated Friday, was addressed to Jerry Carruth, an assistant Texas attorney general assigned to the scandal-ridden Duval County, Francisco Cerda, the newly elected district attorney, and Parr's two Kingsville lawyers.

In the letter, Judge Hester directed Texas Rangers Capt. John Wood "to transfer Mr. Parr to other federally approved custodial facilities where, in Capt. Wood's opinion, Mr. Parr will be held in custody under rules and regulations more commensurate with and appropriate to one in custody of the United States attorney general under felony conviction."
Parr pleaded innocent to the five state charges before Judge Hester on the same day he was married to Mrs. Hawn.
One month later, however,

Parr's lawyers filed motions claiming Parr was insane and bankrupt despite a reported income in 1972 of more than $300,000. The next day, Parr changed his plea to guilty on the theft by bailee charge.
Hester's letter came after he had read pre-sentencing reports on Parr.
"It is obvious to the court from such a pre-sentence report that Mr. Parr has been less than cooperative and there seems to be some suggestion he may even have furnished misinformation to the investigators wrote Hester."

DA Green claims lewd charge political perpetration

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Bill Green said today his arrest at Austin Tuesday on a charge of public lewdness resulted from a "set up" he believes was perpetrated by political enemies.

Green and an Austin man were arrested after Austin police said they saw the two men engaging in a sexual act inside a peep show booth at an Austin bookstore.

Green, freed on a $1,000 public recognition bond Tuesday, was named today in an additional Class A misdemeanor charge accusing him of escape from custody. A warrant is being sent to Palestine on that charge, Green said. Green was arrested after a lengthy chase through an Austin hotel.

The district attorney, who recently took office as chief law enforcement officer at Palestine, said "When they (his enemies) found out they could not defeat me at the ballot box, they decided to beat me in the courtroom."

"If they want a piece of my hide they can come get it, but I'm going to keep on fighting with everything I've got," Green said.

"A good name is the only thing I've ever had. If they try to take that, I'm going to fight back with everything I've got," Green said.

Green said he went to the book store and peep show because Palestine Police Kenneth Berry had asked him to help him determine what community standards could be enforced at Palestine as far as the sale of pornographic material was concerned.

The prosecutor said he examined some books and magazines and walked back to the area where the peep shows were. He said he saw homosexual conduct taking place in some of the booths.

Green said he entered a booth where a man was watching a show. He had been there about one minute, he said, when the show ended. He was reaching down to insert a coin in a coin slot, he said, when "This guy stuck a flashlight inside, flashed a badge and said we were under arrest."

The prosecutor said he was led to the front of the establishment where he said "another hippie type guy" was standing beside a small compact car.

"If you looked at those characters and that car, you wouldn't have thought it was the police, either," Green said.

"I ran as fast as my cowboy boots would take me," Green said. He ran through several floors of a nearby hotel, including through some rooms before he surrendered to uniformed police, he added.

Green said he believes that the same political faction that distributed leaflets containing a racial slur against him were behind his arrest.

Austin police said they went to the book store after someone telephoned to tip them that homosexual activity was going on. Green said they singled him and the other man out for arrest because "They were out to get Bill Green."

A police spokesman said no one else was arrested because Green fled and had to be chased.

Police-Chief Berry confirmed today that he had asked Green and another prosecutor to listen to a tape he believed was pornographic for the purpose of determining if a case could be filed against someone.

Asked if he had requested Green's help in determining community standards for Palestine, Chief Berry replied "In essence, I may have, but our community standards in the Bible belt aren't the same as they are in Austin next to the University of Texas."

Berry said he had never had any reason to suspect that Green had been involved in homosexual activities.

Green said he believes his political enemies are out to discredit him because he said he has found that "The district attorney's office was in a mess" and they fear that he will make some changes in the operation of the office.

"I found murder cases that have been on the docket for years and nothing has been done about them and there are cases where the court has ordered bonds forfeited and nothing was ever done about them," Green said.

Speaking of the additional charge of escape from custody filed against him today, Green said "Since I didn't roll over and play dead, they're trying to lay it all on me."

Green declined to identify his political enemies, describing them only as "some political people whose toes I have stepped on."

The FBI used fingerprints on file to identify 38,999 wanted fugitives in 1974.

Inaugural briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though peanuts are a major part of Washington's inaugural motif, a local man in the nut business is a bit worried about the effects of Jimmy Carter's inauguration.

Phil Rosen's Barcelona Nut Co. has been the White House's official supplier of assorted nuts — the edible variety — for more than four years.

But there may be a well-placed competitor or two for that contract after Jimmy Carter takes over: Brother Billy Carter and a host of other peanut entrepreneurs back in Plains, Ga.

A Carter spokesman said no decision has been made yet on the White House's peanut purveyor. It's not a big contract — about $300 per year, Rosen says. But it's prestigious.

In the event he loses it, Rosen said, "the only thing that will hurt will be my pride."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedian Chevy Chase, who rose to fame by falling on his derriere in satiric imitation of outgoing President Ford, has selected a new target.

Chase will play Chief Justice Warren Burger in tonight's televised Inaugural entertainment special. His NBC "Saturday Night" colleague, Dan Aykroyd, will play President-elect Carter in a skit about the swearing-in ceremony.

Details of the skit are classified until the performance, but at Tuesday's rehearsal, Chase and Aykroyd were overheard talking about stovepipe hats and propane torches.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter's inauguration will not repeat the poetic problem encountered at John Kennedy's 1960 ceremony when an aging Robert Frost could not read his poem because of the sun glaring off the paper.

James Dickey is this year's inaugural poet, but his reading will be done for television, where excessive sunlight is no problem.

Dickey said he went to the Virgin Islands to write his inaugural work and returned with a piece called "The Strength of the Fields," about a man and the power he draws from his attachment to his land.

Dickey, a contemporary of Carter's and a Southerner, said he looks at Carter's election as more evidence that "the South

Area lung group honors Miami woman

The Top o' Texas Area Advisory Council of the American Lung Association of Texas met recently to install new officers and to honor some members.

Mrs. Cora McNair of Miami, council chairman in 1976-77, received a certificate of appreciation from the group for her work.

Council members studied a program of work for 1977-78 and considered a tentative budget submitted by Mrs. McNair.

The program includes major plans to combat the high infant mortality rate in the Panhandle due to respiratory distress syndrome. Other areas of emphasis are asthma and emphysema.

Council members from Pampa are Vermell Meador, director of nursing service, and Bjell Owens, respiratory therapist. Both are employed by Highland General Hospital.

Supertanker terminal plans need study

HOUSTON (AP) — A spokesman for Seadock says it will "take quite a bit of study" before the consortium will decide whether to accept a federal license to build a $650 million supertanker crude oil terminal off the Texas coast.

Dave Coslett, public relations director for Seadock, said a copy of the license had not been received in Houston.

"When it is received, it will take quite a bit of study to find out what it means," he said.

Transportation Secretary William Coleman signed licenses Monday for both Seadock and LOOP, a similar $738 million project planned off the Louisiana coast.

Coleman had announced in December he would approve the licenses but include some restrictions recommended by the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission.

Exxon Pipeline Co. one of nine companies in the Seadock consortium, announced last week it could not proceed with the project unless some of the restrictions in the license eased.

Joseph E. Mims, a Seadock vice president, said the other eight companies involved also have objections to some of the restrictions.

Seadock and LOOP originally were to be given 90 days in which to accept or reject but Coleman extended the deadline to 6½ months Monday.

is the wave of the future.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first wave of inaugural visitors to Washington has found soldiers with jackhammers breaking up ice on the Pennsylvania Avenue parade route and at the swearing-in site on Capitol Hill.

Two weeks of snow, freezing rain, and temperatures hovering near zero have left sheets of ice on many Washington streets and sidewalks. The reaction of most visitors depends on their home towns.

"This is like Miami Beach to us," said Evelyn Barbero of Rochester, Minn.

Fifty-one per cent of the ice cream eaters of America say that vanilla is their favorite flavor, says National Geographic. It is followed by chocolate, 13.5 per cent, and strawberry, 6 per cent.

No ill effects for Nicole

DALLAS (AP) — Memories of her kidnapping eight months ago are dimming for little Nicole Moore of Dallas.

Her abductor is serving a life prison term and the 5-year-old Indian girl, the object of a nationwide search for 13 days last May, is preparing to enter the first grade.

And at least two professionals say the wide-eyed, dark-haired child has suffered no ill effects from the kidnapping.

Bess Tittle, founder of the Creative Learning Center where Nicole is a student, said Nicole was back in school within a week after she was found unhurt near the Tulane Medical Center in New Orleans, clutching a teddy bear and with a note pinned to her clothing.

"She went into the classroom and went right to work," said her teacher. "She hasn't stopped since."

Dr. Lynn Weiss, a family counselor and child development specialist who has worked with Nicole and her mother, Linda Moore, said the case is a rare one in which "a family took a near catastrophe and turned it into a positive."

Nicole has a scrapbook detailing the incident and she occasionally talks about it with her mother, who said the events of last May are indelibly etched in her mind.

"I am convinced she was not molested in any way," said Mrs. Moore. "Sometimes when we are driving in the car Nicole will remember bits of what happened."

Mrs. Moore had let her daughter, then four, go out to play last May 3. "The last time I saw her she was riding her tricycle out away from me in the back yard," recalled her mother.

Nicole didn't return that day or the next 13, while all Dallas waited with the grieving Mrs. Moore.

The search and the questioning took their toll on Mrs. Moore, who said, "On the eighth day I was so down I thought of suicide. I could not bear living without her."

"It is the worst loneliness there is to have a child missing," added Mrs. Moore, who has one other daughter. "You think, you wonder, I would walk where Nicole had played. I would see neighbors. They cried with me."

On May 16, Mrs. Moore got the good news. "I saw these three detectives coming up the walk and I held my father's hand tight and I went to the door and I heard these words, 'We have some good news for you. Your daughter has been found. She is safe and unharmed.'"

Mrs. Moore added, "I hardly let her out of my arms for two days after she came back."

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

My kids think a pioneer is someone without a clothes dryer. They've been raised in a world of electrical outlets, miracle fabrics, one-size-fits-all and just-add-water.

They don't know what an alley is... a washer wringer... a piece of coal... a plain white T-shirt... a pen wiper... or a doily.

Some of them have never had personal contact with a basement, bus transfer, a screen door that didn't have a glass replacement, or for that matter a person who didn't have a checking account.

I never look at my children that I don't fall on my knees and say, "Thank You, God, for making these children in the 20th century where technology prevails. They would never have survived without it."

Thank You for making doors that close automatically behind them. Otherwise large office buildings, schools and department stores would be open to all the elements.

Thank You for drip-dry and permanent press. Without them I'd never permit my children to give their right names anywhere.

Thank You for headphones for stereo or I'd have gone deaf long before last year.

Thank You for electric dishwashers. It takes a lot to admit the first model made with two hands and feet didn't work out.

How kind of You to assess their limitations and give them ovens, refrigerators, and pets that clean themselves.

Thank You for full-length mirrors that reflect what I say, but no one will listen to.

Thank You for 40-gallon hot-water heaters that take them through a complete shampoo without waiting for new water to heat.

Thank You for pocket computers where they no longer have to find out so soon what I don't know.

My gratitude for aerosol cans of pine, and lemon scents to surround gymshoes that have not left the feet in three years.

Thank You for digital watches that eliminate a lot of teaching about which hand is before and which one is after.

Thank You for Dial-a-Prayer for the woman who can't cope until Sunday.

New pendant saves life

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Katherine Held felt the chest pains and knew she was having a heart attack — she had already suffered four. She squeezed the pendant around her neck and within minutes, paramedics arrived at her home to give her emergency aid.

Mrs. Held, 64, now recovered, is one of more than a thousand persons who wear one-ounce transmitters, slightly larger than a pack of matches, around their necks or on their wrists.

The device, which leases for $20 a month, allows a user to set off a series of prerecorded telephone messages to paramedics, neighbors or police by triggering a separate sending unit that is kept plugged into a standard telephone jack.

Heart patients, disabled or elderly persons, shopkeepers worried about robbers or anyone else who may need help in an emergency can use the Microlet Pendant Transmitter, made by Microlet Systems International of North Hollywood.

"It's saved my life more than once," said Mrs. Held. "I wouldn't be without the thing. All I have to do is push on that little button and I've got paramedics and everybody else here."

Tom Cataldo, the 51-year-old president of MSI, said he founded the firm three years ago after his mother suffered an attack and lay alone for several hours in her Boston home before help came.

"There is often no way to get help in these situations other than by having something on your person," Cataldo said in an interview. "It just seemed like there ought to be a way for people in that situation to get help, so I decided to chuck it all and get involved in this. I had an engineering background and figured I could do something more useful with my life."

Today, Cataldo's firm has the potential to produce as many as 10,000 Microlets a month. The device can trigger its sending unit within a range of about 300 feet, setting off as many as 50 phone calls to preselected numbers, although Cataldo said five or six messages are normally sufficient.

Tax trade measure over first hurdle

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A bill to let Texarkana residents get out from under the Arkansas personal income tax by raising the sales tax to 4 per cent won a "do pass" legislative committee recommendation Tuesday.

The Arkansas House Committee on Revenue and Taxation approved the bill by Rep. Earl Jones of Texarkana. He said the measure would apply to no other city.

Texas has no income tax on individuals or corporations, but Arkansas taxes both.

Jones said that hurt Texarkana because it inspired people who had substantial incomes to move to the Texas side.

Of the 112 doctors in Texarkana, 104 live on the Texas side, he said.

"It's sad to live all your life in a town and watch it drying up," he said of the Arkansas side.

"You folks know about competing in football between Arkansas and Texas, but that happens just once a year," Jones said. "In Texarkana, we compete with the state of Texas every day."

The Texas sales tax is 4 per cent at the state level and 1 per cent imposed locally. The Arkansas side has a sales tax of 3 per cent at the state level and 1 per cent locally.

The bill would permit the filing of petitions for an Arkansas-side election to drop the income tax and raise the sales tax on the Arkansas side to the Texas level.

Jones said the state of Arkansas would not lose any revenue in the swap. The income tax at Texarkana brought the state $798,271 in 1975, he said, but an additional per cent of sales tax would have produced $980,000.

SMOKERS SHORT ON VITAMIN C
NUTLEY, N.J. (AP) — Clinical research shows that cigarette smokers may need more vitamin C per day than non-smokers. The Canadian Nutrition Survey, completed in 1975, showed that smokers of 20 or more cigarettes daily experience a reduction in blood serum vitamin C levels of as much as 40 per cent.

Other studies conducted over the last 10 years also show that smoking lowers blood levels of vitamin C, as well as lowering the percentage of vitamin C in mothers' milk.

The number of privately and publicly-owned vehicles in the United States exceeded 133 million in 1975, according to the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Assn.

Mother drops lawsuit

DALLAS (AP)—The mother of a 12-year-old Dallas boy shot to death by a police officer while in custody has dropped a $475,000 suit against two former policemen and the city of Dallas, it was revealed today.

The suit had been filed by Mrs. Bessie Rodriguez, mother of Santos Rodriguez, the boy shot by former police officer Darrell Cain on July 24, 1973.

Cain said he did not think the gun was loaded when he pointed it at the handcuffed Rodriguez boy and questioned him about a robbery.

Cain was sentenced to five years in prison. He is appealing.

Mrs. Rodriguez, who is serving a prison term for murder, requested U.S. District Court Judge Robert Porter to dismiss the suit.

Assistant City Atty. Joe Werner, who handled the case for the city, said the city was not told why Mrs. Rodriguez wanted the case dropped.

The other defendant named in the suit was former policeman Roy Arnold.

Grain fraud case in court Feb. 14

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Fourteen men from Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas who are charged with using counterfeit checks to buy grain valued at more than $100,000 states have been scheduled for federal court trial here Feb. 14.

Government agents allege counterfeit checks printed here at the Union National Bank were used to purchase grain at elevators in Mississippi, Minnesota, Colorado, Kansas and Missouri.

The government contends the grain was trucked a short distance, usually into another state, and sold for cash at less than the price the men got it with the allegedly counterfeit checks.

The defendants are charged with conspiracy and one or more of 16 individual counts alleging interstate transportation of forged securities.

Government agents have been investigating the alleged swindle since news accounts here in June 1975 revealed that the bank had unknowingly honored several of the counterfeit checks. A 17-count indictment was returned last month.

Authorities said those indicted are Ralph J. Teenor, 30, Lloyd Lee Jenkins, 29, and Kenneth M. Gunning, 26, all of Tulsa; Lacy Lee Parker, 38, and Billy Wayne Davenport, 36, both of Tahlequah, Okla.; Larry G. Wyche, 37, and Bruce Wayne Guffey, 21, both of Stillwell, Okla.; R. D. Brown, 38, and Jarrell Henry Cox, 31, both of Muskogee, Okla.; and Dennis Edward Parnell, 30, and Jimmy Ray Culver, 35, both of Amarillo, Tex.; Milton Steven McGugin, 31, of Fort Smith, Ark.; and Stewart Frederick Higgins, 41, of Fayetteville, Ark.

Government agents said Culver and Parnell were the alleged leaders of the ring. They are free on $10,000 bonds while the other 12 men are free on bonds of $2,500.

The defendants all have pleaded innocent.

The grand jury indictment claims Parnell started the plan April 18, 1975, when he traveled to Tulsa and purchased a $4.32 cashiers' check from Union National Bank.

As part of the plan, the government contends, Parnell rented an apartment here and had a telephone installed.

Truck drivers buying grain with bogus checks would present the telephone number to call for "verification."

The checks were written in amounts from $6,000 to $17,500.

Wind damage on the rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been about 8.5 per cent more land damaged by wind erosion in the Great Plains so far this season than during the same period last year, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Last year during the so-called wind erosion season which runs from Nov. 1 through the following May 31, a total of nearly 6.2 million acres of land was damaged, the most in 20 years.

The department's Soil Conservation Service, in its first report of the new season, said that as of Dec. 31 some 1,122,517 acres were damaged by wind in selected counties in 10 states.

Officials said the heaviest damage occurred in the Dakotas where farmers were hit severely by drought last year and had poor vegetative cover to protect land.

Although last season's damage was the most in 20 years, wind erosion during the mid-1950s damaged 10 million to 16 million acres annually.

The report said Montana as of Dec. 31 had 82,206 acres damaged against 216,734 a year earlier; Nebraska, 91,295 and 171,402; North Dakota, 330,350 and 44,000; South Dakota, 451,610 and 208,570; and Wyoming, 7,150 and 16,400.

Damage in the Southern Plains included Colorado, 8,875 acres on Dec. 31 and 6,000 a year earlier; Kansas, 8,300 and 49,660; New Mexico, 4,050 and 13,220; Oklahoma, 27,000 and 41,670; and Texas, 111,602 and 287,794.

The ancient Roman goddess Clementia was the personification of mercy and clemency. Her likeness is found on many Roman coins, a standing goddess with a holy dish in one hand and a scepter in the other.

Text of Carter's inaugural address

'..renewed our search for humility, mercy, justice.'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a text of President-elect Carter's inaugural address:

For myself and our nation, I want to thank my predecessor for all he has done to heal our land.

In this outward and physical ceremony we attest once again to the inner and spiritual strength of our nation.

As my high school teacher, Miss Julia Coleman, used to say, "We must adjust to changing times and still hold to unchanging principles."

Here before me is the Bible used in the inauguration of our first President in 1789, and I have just taken my own oath of office on the Bible my mother gave me a few years ago, opened to a timeless admonition from the ancient prophet Micah:

"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God." (Micah 6:8)

This inauguration ceremony marks a new beginning, a new dedication within our government, and a new spirit among us all. A President may sense and proclaim that new spirit, but only a people can provide it.

Two centuries ago our nation's birth was a milestone in the long quest for freedom, but the bold and brilliant dream which excited the founder of our nation still awaits its consummation. I have no new dream to set forth today, but rather urge a fresh faith in the old dream.

Ours was the first society openly to define itself in terms of both spirituality and of human liberty. It is that unique self-definition which has given us an exceptional appeal — but it also imposes on us a special obligation — to take on those moral duties which, when assumed, seem invariably to be in our own best interests.

You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are. Let us create together a new national spirit of unity and trust. Your strength can compensate for my weakness, and your wisdom can help to minimize my mistakes.

Let us learn together and laugh together and work together and pray together, confident that in the end we will triumph together in the right.

The American dream endures. We must once again have full faith in our country — and in one another. I believe America can be better. We can be stronger than before.

Let our recent mistakes bring a resurgent commitment to the basic principles of our nation, for we know that if we despise our own government we have no future. We recall in special times when we have stood briefly, but magnificently, united; in those times no prize was beyond our grasp.

But we cannot dwell upon remembered glory. We cannot afford to drift. We reject the prospect of failure or mediocrity or an inferior quality of life for any person.

Our government must at the same time be both competent and compassionate.

We have already found a high degree of personal liberty, and we are now struggling to enhance equality of opportunity.

Our commitment to human rights must be absolute, our laws fair, our natural beauty preserved; the powerful must not persecute the weak, and human dignity must be enhanced.

We have learned that "more" is not necessarily "better"; that even our great nation has its recognized limits, and that we can neither answer all questions nor solve all problems. We cannot afford to do everything, nor can we afford to lack boldness as we meet the future. So together, in a spirit of individual sacrifice for the common good, we must simply do our best.

Our nation can be strong abroad only if it is strong at home, and we know that the best way to enhance freedom in other lands is to demonstrate here that our democratic system is worthy of emulation.

To be true to ourselves, we must be true to others. We will not behave in foreign places so as to violate our rules and standards here at home, for we know that the trust which our nation earns is essential to its strength.

The world itself is now dominated by a new spirit. Peoples more numerous and more politically aware are craving and now demanding their place in the sun — not just for the benefit of their own physical condition, but for basic human rights.

The passion for freedom is on the rise. Tapping this new spirit, there can be no nobler nor more ambitious task for America to undertake on this day of a new beginning than to help shape a just and peaceful world that is truly humane.

We are a strong nation and we will maintain strength so sufficient that it need not be proven in combat — a quiet strength based not merely on the size of an arsenal, but on the nobility of ideas.

We will be ever vigilant and never vulnerable, and we will fight our wars against poverty, ignorance and injustice, for those are the enemies against which our forces can be honorably marshalled.

We are a proud idealistic nation, but let no one confuse our idealism with weakness.

Because we are free we can never be indifferent to the fate of freedom elsewhere. Our moral sense dictates a clearcut preference for those societies which share with us an abiding respect for individual human rights. We do not seek to intimidate, but it is clear that a world which others can dominate with impunity would be inhospitable to decency and a threat to the well-being of all people.

The world is still engaged in a massive armaments race designed to insure continuing equivalent strength among potential adversaries. We pledge perseverance and wisdom in our efforts to limit the world's armaments to those necessary for each nation's own domestic safety. We will move this year a step toward our ultimate goal — the elimination of all nuclear weapons from this earth.

We urge all other people to join us, for success can mean life instead of death.

Within us, the people of the United States, there is evident a serious and purposeful rekindling of confidence, and I join in the hope that when my time as your President has ended, people might say this about our nation:

That we had remembered the words of Micah and renewed our search for humility, mercy and justice; That we had torn down the barriers that separated those of different race and region and religion, and where there had been mistrust, built unity, with a respect for diversity;

That we had found productive work for those able to perform it;

That we had strengthened the American family, which is the basis of our society;

That we had ensured respect for the law, and equal treatment under the law, for the weak and the powerful, the rich and the poor;

And that we had enabled our people to be proud of their own government once again.

I would hope that the nations of the world might say that we had built a lasting peace, based not on weapons of war but on international policies which reflect our own most precious values.

These are not just my goals, but our common hopes. And they will not be my accomplishments, but the affirmation of our nation's continuing moral strength and our belief in an undiminished, ever-expanding American dream.

New around the White House

Today Rosalynn Carter will become First Lady of the United States when her husband takes the presidential oath of office in front of the White House. Walter Mondale becomes vice president and although the former Senator's face is familiar around the capital city, his role will be different, and, Carter has promised, consequential.

Billy says he'll send his DC bill to brother

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter, a beer can in hand and a wide grin on his face, is getting acquainted with the city his older brother will dominate for the next four years.

But Billy, visiting Washington for the first time, seems unimpressed by his new status, the people who kowtow to him and the trappings surrounding the incoming president.

He brought a tuxedo to wear to the inaugural parties tonight, but he was dressed in a blue denim leisure suit when he arrived aboard a chartered jet from Georgia on Wednesday for five days of partying.

As the bus carrying his group passed the White House, he was asked whether he would stay overnight there before returning to his peanut warehouse and gas station in Plains.

"No," he replied firmly, sipping from an ever-present can of beer. "I will never spend the night in a mansion."

The 39-year-old Carter, his wife and six children and dozens of Georgia friends and neighbors have taken over the ninth floor of the Washington Hilton until Sunday. Also rooming there are the sons of Jimmy Carter — Jack, Chip and Jeff — and their wives.

The scene was chaotic on the ninth floor Wednesday afternoon, with Carter children running back and forth and Chip, 26, trying to help his family and friends figure out what parties they were going to and at what time.

On Wednesday night, with temperatures in the low 20s, Billy Carter emerged coatless from his suite with his wife, Sybil, to attend several private parties and the inauguration eve gala at the Kennedy Center.

Billy said he enjoys his brother's glory, but he's sorry to see him leave the little Georgia town where they both grew up.

"I hated to see him get the damn job, but I'm glad for him that he won," he said at the airport shortly after he arrived. "I just hate to lose him."

Billy Carter will continue to run the Carter peanut warehouse and his gas station in Plains, although he says he may have his beer-selling licence lifted soon. The suspension would come as the result of Billy's recent citation for sale of beer in his station on Sunday in violation of Georgia law.

"They're trying to make an example of me," he said with a shake of his head. An employee, not Billy himself, sold the beer.

But he's not letting that problem spoil his fun in Washington.

"I'm going to have a good time and just send my bills to the White House," he declared with the famous Carter grin.

Asked at the airport if he had a message for the nation on the eve of his brother's inauguration, Billy replied: "I'm just glad the rest of the country has finally joined the South."

Houston cousin to go

HOUSTON (AP) — One of Jimmy Carter's two Houston cousins was to attend the presidential inauguration today but the other—who was not invited—said he was not sure he will even watch it on television.

Carol Gordy White said Wednesday she planned to attend the inauguration and the ball.

However, her brother, Tom Gordy, received no invitation. "I'm not sure I'll even watch it (on television)," Gordy said.

"Don't get me wrong. I believe he will make our best president, and I wish him all the luck in the world."

Gordy, who has been ailing because of a neck operation, said news stories and pictures in connection with the inauguration proved to be a blessing. He found a brother.

Newspapers carried an Associated Press picture Wednesday of Gordy's brother, Jim Gordy, who is a chef in a motel in Brisbane, Australia.

Gordy said he had not heard from his brother in eight years and did not know of his whereabouts until he saw the picture.

He said he planned to write him and tell him about their father's death more than a year ago and other family events. Their father, Tom Gordy Sr., was Miss Lillian's brother.

Mrs. White, whose husband Francis is a machinist at a valve company, said she last saw Carter during his campaign visit to Houston.

Civic Center has limited beer sales

AMARILLO — A compromise was reached Tuesday on the Civic Center beer sale controversy when the Amarillo City Commission unanimously passed an ordinance to limit the sale and consumption of beer to segregated areas of the complex.

Anti-beer forces accepted the compromise move, though a spokesman for the group said all members still were not satisfied by the action.

The ordinance, which will serve as an amendment to a three-part ordinance previously enacted by the city commission, provides for the sale of beer upon the specific request of the sponsor or promoter of events at the complex.

Requests for the sale of beer must be filed at least five days in advance of the event and beer sales and consumption will be limited to specified areas outside the auditorium and coliseum.

Shooting spree unexplained

CANTON, Tex. (AP) — Law enforcement officials here say they can't explain what caused a 27-year-old Brownsboro man to embark on a shooting spree that ended when state troopers killed him near Myrtle Springs in Northeast Texas.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said the body of James Milton Roberson was identified by his driver's license minutes after the father of two children was killed in a running gun battle with seven troopers Wednesday.

DPS Sgt. Bill Dean said Roberson was shooting at passing cars from his pickup truck on Texas 64 near his Northeast Texas town.

"He was shooting at cars all over this county," said Dean. "We have no idea how many cars he fired at."

State police were called to the scene by the Van Zandt County sheriff's office. Sheriff Travis Schaeffer said, "an individual came running in here (his office in Canton) saying somebody in a two-tone green pickup was shooting at him. I also had a call from the Henderson County sheriff's office to put out a warrant on that same pickup because the driver had shot at somebody and pointed a gun at another person down there somewhere.

State police intercepted Roberson at 64 and Interstate 20 and a high speed chase ensued with Roberson firing several shots at the pursuing officers.

Dean said Roberson wrecked his pickup on the outskirts of Myrtle Springs, got out and continued to fire on police as he attempted to flee into a nearby tree line.

Dean said at that point the officers returned the fire and killed Roberson. He said two small caliber pistols and a 22-caliber rifle were found on the seat of the pickup.

"We're still investigating this," said Schaeffer. "But I talked to his parents and they said they just couldn't understand it. To my knowledge, nobody was hit but that individual that came running in here. I know his car was hit at least once."

Schaeffer said Roberson was married and had two children.

26 men charge Army with recruiting fraud

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Craig Johnson is the recipient of an award as the outstanding Chinese language student in his class as the Army's Defense Language Institute.

However, Spec. 5 Johnson can neither read, write nor speak Chinese.

Johnson, from Branford, Conn., is one of 26 recruits who filed a class action suit against the U.S. Army charging fraud in the recruiting of cryptologists.

The recruits, who are continuing their training while an appeal of the suit's dismissal is pending in the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in California, said their enlistment contracts assured them of training as interpreter-translator.

Johnson and 18 more of the plaintiffs in the suit are stationed at Goodfellow Air Force Base at San Angelo, location of the armed services' School of Applied Cryptologic Sciences.

Their training as "electronic warfare cryptologic interceptors" does not include a requirement to speak, read or write the foreign language.

Johnson says.

A Pentagon spokesman said Wednesday the Army had no comment on the suit.

The 26 men and women recruits said in the suit they were encouraged to enlist because of the opportunity to become an "interpreter-translator."

What they learned in class was not what they were promised, they allege.

"We were forbidden to speak the foreign language in class," said Andrew Toler of Richmond, Va., who completed the Defense Language Institute course in Russian with honors.

Toler could not reply to the question "How are you?" in Russian, although he said he could construct a sentence "with the aid of a dictionary."

Toler said he still likes the Army, despite the misunderstanding.

"I love the Army — the Spartan life appeals to me," he said. "I like serving my country."

The suit, filed July 1 in San Francisco, alleges the Army allowed recruiters to sign people up for a specialty that is non-existent.

Johnson described his Defense Language Institute training as being "taught like stenographers, to record sounds."

Islam, the religion founded by the Prophet Muhammad in the late 6th century, is today divided into many sects. The two major divisions are the Sunni (traditionalist) and the Shi (partisan) sects.

Hughes estate, Texas may settle out of court

HOUSTON (AP) — A lawyer for the Howard Hughes estate says an out-of-court tax settlement between the estate and the State of Texas is possible.

Jim Dilworth said Wednesday he was "optimistic" the discussions could result in a settlement.

"I think the thing has some possibilities," said Dilworth, attorney for the Texas co-administrator of the Hughes estates, the late billionaire's cousin, William Lumis.

Asst. Texas Atty. Gen. Rick Harrison confirmed that such discussions have been held but declined further comment.

Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill has been attempting to prove Hughes was a legal resident of Texas so the state could collect inheritance taxes from the estimated $2.3 billion estate.

Dilworth said if a settlement is reached, Texas and California, the states where Hughes spent much of his life and where many of his assets are located, would get about 16 percent of the estate to divide in some fashion.

Meanwhile, a deposition in the court of Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory Wednesday quoted the doctor who performed an autopsy on Hughes as saying he weighed only 90 to 95 pounds and had cancer, a peptic ulcer and kidney disease.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. Jack Titus, pathologist at Baylor College of Medicine. Titus' statement said the autopsy disclosed a "microfocus of cancer" in Hughes' prostate.

Titus also said Hughes was emaciated and dehydrated at the time of his death. Hughes died last April 6 while being flown from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston for medical treatment. At that time it was announced that Hughes died of chronic renal or kidney disease.

Titus said he believes Hughes suffered from kidney disease at least 10 years.

Dr. Oscar Maldonado, an oral surgeon at Methodist Hospital, said in a deposition, that Hughes' teeth were badly decayed and must have been very painful.

Body cremated

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — The body of a 22-year-old woman who died with her boyfriend after a 10-hour siege in a bank at Yarnell has been cremated here.

Butch Hampton, owner of the Hampton Funeral Home, said the cremation was at the request of Johnna Marie Jessee's mother, Helen Jessee of Spokane, Wash.

Miss Jessee, known in Yarnell as "Whisky," lived in Spokane with her parents before coming to Yarnell last summer. She left Yarnell about two months ago but returned about 10 days before she and William Buffington, 31, attempted to rob the bank.

The robbery attempt turned the tiny community into an armed camp as law enforcement officers sealed off Buffington and Miss Jessee inside the bank where at times four hostages were held.

Two hours after the last hostage was released, Buffington shot Miss Jessee behind the right ear and then took his own life by shooting himself in the head, authorities said.

Rose welcomes pardon

By CHERYL DEBES
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — "Now I have a government to protect me," said Iva Toguri D'Aquino, who was cleared by President Ford of treason for her "Tokyo Rose" broadcasts after living for nearly three decades as a woman without a country.

"After all these years, it's hard for me to believe that it's all over and the pardon is really true," said Mrs. D'Aquino, a slight, 60-year-old Japanese-American woman whose voice was known to millions of World War II servicemen.

Mrs. D'Aquino, who spent more than six years in prison but consistently maintained her broadcasts did no harm to the Allied cause, had lost two previous bids for a presidential pardon. The pardon restores all her forfeited rights, including citizenship.

Now working as a shopkeeper in her family's gift store on Chicago's North Side, she spoke at a hastily called news conference Wednesday after announcement of the pardon, one of Ford's last acts in office.

As Iva Toguri, a native of Los Angeles and a UCLA graduate, she had just passed her 25th birthday in July 1941 when she sailed for Japan to care for her sick aunt. Because of her hurried departure, she failed to obtain a U.S. passport and was stranded in Tokyo when the war began after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

She described those years as "living hell." Because she refused to give up her U.S. citizenship, she was considered an "enemy alien" and, without a food ration card, found it difficult to live even at subsistence levels.

In August 1943, she took a part-time job as typist at Radio Tokyo. Three months later, Japanese officials ordered her to take part in the English-language program aimed at demoralizing U.S. troops.

She agreed, she contends, only after imprisoned officers convinced her she could actually help the Allies, by voicing subtle absurdities which the Japanese wouldn't understand.

Those officers testified on her behalf at her 1949 San Francisco trial for treason.

The only one of 14 women who were on Radio Tokyo's "Zero Hour" program accused of treason, she was held without trial for two years, convicted on one of nine counts, sent to jail and fined $10,000.

"I only mouthed the things that were written by the Allied prisoners of war," she said Wednesday. "If you can find any propaganda material in that, I will give up the citizenship I gained back today."

In Washington, California Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, one of many who felt Mrs. D'Aquino was victimized by postwar anti-Japanese sentiment, said she had "remained loyal to the United States despite the fact that the United States treated her unjustly."

Bell loses second try

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has lost its attempt to void a rate increase smaller than it requested and now must decide whether to ask for a stay, and risk the temporary loss even of the smaller hike, or follow the slower normal appeal procedure.

State District Judge Jim Meyer said Wednesday, "I have decided that (the public utility) commission position with respect to the matter is correct. Contrary to what Bell argued, I do not believe the appeal automatically voided the order."

The next move will be up to Bell, Meyer said.

The commission granted a $7.8 million rate increase for Bell. But Bell had requested $296.8 million, and it sought a temporary injunction, contending the commission's order was so low it amounted to confiscation of Bell's property.

The law creating the commission provides for injunctions in confiscation cases.

Billionaire's body had bad problems

HOUSTON (AP) — Court documents filed today indicate the late billionaire Howard Hughes suffered from cancer, a peptic ulcer, kidney disease, badly decayed teeth and undernourishment.

Testimony in the form of depositions taken from doctors who performed the autopsy on Hughes were filed with Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory.

Dr. Jack Titus, pathologist at Baylor College of Medicine, said he found a peptic ulcer, a "tiny focus of cancer" in the prostate gland, scar tissue blocking the urinary tract and uremic poisoning.

Titus said the kidneys were shrunken by an ailment that may have been caused by a drug Hughes took from 1946 to 1972.

Dr. Oscar D. Maldonado, an oral surgeon on the staff at Methodist Hospital where the autopsy was performed April 6, said the teeth of the billionaire were so badly decayed they must have been "very, very painful."

Hughes died April 5 while being flown to Houston from Acapulco, Mexico, for medical treatment. A brief report released after the autopsy attributed death to kidney failure.

Methodist hospital officials later delivered the autopsy report to Gregory and its details have not been released.

Maldonado's deposition described Hughes' teeth as in as "poor shape as any I have seen since I was in training 15 to 18 years ago."

Titus identified the drug that caused the kidney failure as phenacetin, an analgesic Hughes was said to have started taking after being injured in a 1946 plane crash. Titus quoted Hughes' personal doctors as saying they induced their patient to stop taking the drug in 1972.

The pathologist said Hughes died at 1:27 p. m. on April 5 as the plane bringing him to Houston passed over Brownsville.

He said Hughes was being brought to Houston because the Hughes Medical Foundation had "medical scholars" at Methodist Hospital. He said the foundation has such scholars at various medical institutions over the country.

Titus quoted the personal physicians as describing Hughes as an extremely difficult person to provide medical care for.

He quoted them as saying he refused to see a dentist, refused to submit to medical examinations or tests and often embarked on erratic dieting habits, refusing to drink fluids or eat much of anything for periods of time.

Titus said he was told Hughes had eaten little during the two or three days prior to death and that during the final 24 hours of his life Hughes was confused.

Titus added that, to him, that could mean Hughes might not have been sure where he was or able to identify people around him. He said the confused mental state could be attributed to the kidney failure.

Vance predicts new Panama treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State-designate Cyrus Vance is telling Latin American countries the Carter administration should be able to complete negotiations for a new Panama Canal treaty within three months.

Foreign minister Gonzalo Facio of Costa Rica, serving as a special emissary of eight Latin American presidents, said in an interview Tuesday that Vance also told him Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd will be invited to Washington to begin talks within two weeks of Carter's inauguration.

That would make him the first foreign minister to be asked to the capital.

Facio said that in his conversation with Vance on Tuesday, the incoming secretary of state said "he thinks the completion of the treaty should be done within the next three months."

Facio said letters he brought to Vance for later transmission to Carter made three key points. He said the Latin American presidents expressed satisfaction over Carter's professed willingness to forge a new inter-American policy, hailed the appointment of Vance and expressed the view that "Panama is the main and first issue between the United States and Latin America."

He said the letters told Vance that Panama will be a "test of the good intentions" of Carter's desire "to start a new policy more equitable and more profitable toward Latin America."

The U.S.-Panamanian canal talks have droned on for 12 years, heightening tensions between the two countries. Although several important issues still divide them, the key is the duration of the U.S. right to defend the canal and occupy the Canal Zone.

Panama wants to share operational control of the canal, and it wants an end to U.S. occupation by the year 2000. Panama also wants a fifteen-fold hike in toll revenues, which now bring Panama under $3 million a year.

Texas escaped gas loss could fuel San Antonio

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Railroad commissioner Jon Newton says $4 billion cubic feet of natural gas escaped from Texas pipelines in 1975.

He told the Gulf Coast Chapter of the Society of Petroleum Engineers on Tuesday that this represented "almost twice the gas need of the City of Austin and (was) virtually equal to the gas demand for the City of San Antonio in 1975."

He said he intended to work hard toward eliminating the causes of the transmission and distribution system losses.

He said the commission is investigating the sources of the leaked gas "to minimize the potential for destruction of home and industry and to maximize the Texas gas output that is immediately available."

The commission's preliminary study was completed just before this week's Arctic front moved in and caused curtailments of gas supply in several cities.

Newton questioned many of the current maximum efficient rates of oil production used by the railroad commission in determining allowances. He said he feared they were "based on data obtained when the fields were much younger and capable of efficiently producing at higher rates."

The poison hemlock which killed Socrates was probably brewed from a plant of the parsley family.

IBP business forecast

WHITE DEER — Two and one-half million head of cattle are expected to be processed through the Amarillo plant of Iowa Beef Processors Inc., said the firm's manager during an address to the Lions Club here Tuesday evening.

Roger Dreyer, plant manager of Amarillo, also told the 43 club members and guests that very little of the animals is not used in some form. He detailed the progress being made with food chains to change from bulk buying to packaged beef.

The firm employs between 700 to 800 people and is the largest producer of its type in the area, he noted.

He also explained in detail the usage of non-edible portions of the animals and said that chemicals from 36 million head of cattle are required to meet the needs for insulin in the United States alone.

Irvin Lavake was program chairman for the meeting.

The White Deer club meets each Tuesday evening in the school cafeteria and Markam Waddill is the local president.

Bing's clambake begins today

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — This is the confused Crosby.

It started back in the dark days of the Great Depression, the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, as a social event in Los Angeles and a way for the touring pros to pick up a winter-time check.

It's changed locations and grown into one of golf's great extravaganzas, one of the premier tournaments in the game. It draws the best players in the world and the biggest field of celebrities and is played before one of television's largest audiences.

But it's still very much a social thing. There are as many celebrity-watchers as golf fans in the gallery. The old timers still call it "Bing's Clambake."

The social whirl that surrounds the tournament, with its lines of hospitality rooms and scores of open-house condominiums and hotel suites, always has made it a confused weekend.

But this one, which got underway today on three courses — and not the usual three — at the Monterey Peninsula, is the most confused of them all.

First, there're the scores of Secret Service agents scurrying around, setting up their restrictions and precautions and procedures for the arrival of President Ford. He's due to come in Friday as an ex-President to play as the 16-handicap partner of Arnold Palmer.

Then, too, there's a couple of girls playing. That's a first for this tournament. One of them is University of Tulsa coed Nancy Lopez, probably the best female amateur in the country.

And there's the fact that it's entirely possible that no one will know who's leading the tournament until after Saturday's third round.

The courses add to the confusion. The 168 teams of a pro and an amateur will play one round each over Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and the Shore course at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

Spyglass Hill, usually in the rotation, is being rebuilt due to damage from the Northern California drought. The Shore course substitutes. It's a par 71. The others are par 72.

So Jack Nicklaus shoots 68 at Pebble Beach and Johnny Miller shoots 67 at the Shore course. Each is four under par. Are they tied? Or does Miller lead?

Actually, Pebble Beach is about two shots harder than the Shore. So does Nicklaus lead? It won't be possible to determine precisely until all players have played all three courses.

President Ford, who attended the inauguration of Jimmy Carter today, will compete Friday and Saturday. If he and Palmer survive the cut, they'll also play Sunday in the final round at Pebble Beach.

Jack Nicklaus, starting his season, was the pretournament favorite for the individual title despite the horrid, career-high 82 final round he shot here last year.

Other major contenders included defending champion Ben Crenshaw, British Open king Johnny Miller, U.S. Open titleholder Jerry Pate, PGA champ Dave Stockton, Masters winner Ray Floyd, Hale Irwin, Hubert Green, David Graham and Tom Watson.

ABC-TV will provide national coverage of portions of the final two rounds.

Gal's basketball boss condones sports betting

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rozelle would choke on his football if he knew that a fellow commissioner approved and supported sports gambling.

"I think it will make our sport more interesting," said Lois Geraci Ernst, commissioner of the new Women's Basketball Association. "With off-track betting and the like, we know that gambling happens."

"I have no problems with it. If it brings people into our arenas, that's fine. A lot of men will bet on anything they can make money on."

A lot of people are betting that women's basketball will bounce as high as an airless ball. Mrs. Ernst is not one of them.

"I think it will work because we're going to attract a new kind of fan," she said. "We won't be in competition with the (New York) Knicks. We're going to get the young woman, and she's going to bring her husband."

The 12-team league, which announced Wednesday that it will begin play in October, is in the process of selling its franchises. League officials said New York and Dallas have found buyers, with sales close in Los Angeles, Phoenix, Des Moines, Iowa, and Milwaukee. The other league cities will be Philadelphia, Greensboro, N.C.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Indianapolis; Salt Lake City, and Portland, Ore.

Portland battles back against Nets

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

New York Nets Coach Kevin Loughery already has started looking to the future. Considering the way the present looks, he can't be blamed.

Loughery watched his club keep pace with Portland for better than three periods Wednesday night, only to fade in the stretch and lose 109-94. It was the Nets' 11th consecutive National Basketball Association defeat, a club record, and Loughery has just about run out of answers.

"We may go back to playing a running game," Loughery suggested, even though he realizes he does not have the big center to get the rebounds to start a running game, and that Tiny Archibald, the guard who could make such an attack go, is on the injured list for at least another month.

But a running game is the kind Loughery likes best, and obviously the Nets have not done well with the pattern play they have been using this season — their 12-29 record attesting to that. The Nets might not win many games by running, but at least it will give Loughery ry a line on next season.

"I want to try and determine what players I want back for next year," he said.

Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday night, the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the Atlanta Hawks 114-94, the Washington Bullets edged the Buffalo Braves 91-87, the San Antonio Spurs beat the Chicago Bulls 115-107, the Boston Celtics defeated the Houston Rockets 112-102, the Phoenix Suns stopped the New York Knicks 97-90 and the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Indiana Pacers 109-102.

Maurice Lucas scored 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds for Portland, while center Bill Walton played a solid 44 minutes — 11 points, 15 rebounds, six assists and three blocked shots.

76ers 114, Hawks 94
Reserve forward Steve Mix, getting more playing time than usual because Julius Erving got in early foul trouble, scored 27 points, helping Philadelphia to its fifth consecutive win and eighth in the last nine games. George McGinnis added 11 points and 23 rebounds.

Louisville stuns Bearcats, 83-77

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Gale Catlett is among the first to admit that television has helped college basketball.

But Wednesday night, he says, it hurt his Cincinnati Bearcats.

The nation's second-ranked team was short-circuited by a TV timeout, according to Catlett, and thus lost an 83-77 decision to No. 12 Louisville.

"I wish they'd eliminate the timeouts for TV or call them at a set time," said Catlett. "We were making a run at them and had them on the ropes, so to speak."

It was Catlett's contention that the critical timeout slowed the Bearcats after they had picked up momentum and forged a 31-31 tie in the first half. The Cincinnati coach also accused Louisville Coach Denny Crum of conspiracy in the incident.

"What bothered me," said Catlett, "was that Coach Crum called for that timeout from the bench."

Crum's alleged directorial talent was not the only thing within Catlett's range of fire. He also took verbal shots at the officials.

"It was the poorest officiated game since I've been head coach," said Catlett, pointing among other things to a 2-1 ratio in fouls called against his team. Cincinnati was charged with 32 personal fouls, compared to 16 for Louisville.

The Bearcats were one of three Top 20 teams upset

Wednesday night. North Carolina State edged No. 4 North Carolina 75-73 and Clemson stunned No. 13 Maryland 93-71 in Atlantic Coast Conference games.

In another ACC game involving a ranked club, No. 9 Wake Forest trimmed Duke 85-73.

Darrell Griffith ignited a second-half rally as Louisville handed Cincinnati its first defeat after 12 victories. Louisville was leading 54-52 with 11:08 left in the game. Then Griffith came off the bench and spearheaded a 13-2 Cardinals spurt with seven points, including an electrifying slam dunk that sent 16,616 fans into a frenzy.

Kenny Carr hit a field goal with 19 seconds remaining, then blocked a shot by North Carolina's Phil Ford in leading North Carolina State past the Tar Heels.

Skip Brown and Jerry Schellenberg combined for 40 points and led a second-half rally as Wake Forest whipped crippled Duke, playing without star guard Tate Armstrong.

Nooncaster named fame hall honoree

AMARILLO — Aubra Nooncaster, who has filmed every Pampa High School football game for the past 13 years, will receive a special achievement award at the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame annual ceremonies, which begin at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Amarillo College gymnasium.

Nooncaster, head coach at Pampa in 1954 when the Harvesters went 3-7, has taught English at the high school for the past several years. He resigned as head coach after the 1954 season because of his health.

Nooncaster has 30 years of service in the high school, including a seven-year stint as an assistant coach.

Nooncaster also has filmed district basketball games for Pampa for 13 years.

"I film the games because it gives me the opportunity to see all the games I might not otherwise get to see," Nooncaster said.

"I miss coaching but you've got to realize there's some things you can do and some things you can't."

About his receiving of Sunday's award, Nooncaster said, "I felt quite pleased."

Amarillo High gymnast Steve Elliott who won a silver medal in platform trumbling in the Soviet Invitational Club Gymnastics Tournament in Moscow, and Diane Ellis, Amarillo High girls' cross country coach, also will be inducted in the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame as special achievement award winners.

Banks elected to hall in his 'greatest moment'

NEW YORK (AP) — "The wonderful thing about being a baseball player," said Ernie Banks, "is that years after you're through hitting home runs and playing in All-Star games, people still remember you."

The Baseball Writers Association of America remembered Banks Wednesday, naming him to the Hall of Fame as the only candidate to receive mention on 75 per cent of the ballots in the annual election.

"This is the greatest moment in my life," said Banks, who earned election in his first year of eligibility.

Banks received 321 votes of the 383 cast by veteran members of the BBWAA, easily passing the required three-quarters figure of 288. Eddie Mathews was second in the vote with 239, missing election by 49 votes. The late Gil Hodges was third with 224 followed by Enos Slaughter with 222 and Duke Snider with 212.

In winning election on his first chance, Banks joins an elite set of Hall of Famers. Only seven others, Sandy Koufax, Mickey Mantle, Ted Williams, Jackie Robinson, Bob Feller, Stan Musial and Warren Spahn, gained immediate acceptance to Cooperstown.

Banks knew that his 512 career home runs gave him a good shot at the Hall of Fame on his first go-round. "I was getting jittery about it," he said. "I talked to people who've been elected before like Lou Boudreau and Bob Lemon and they told me what it's like. They said it's the most excitement you can experience in your life, and they were right."

Banks joined the Chicago Cubs in 1953 and spent 19 years playing shortstop and first base with the club. He was the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1958 and 1959 and five times hit 40 or more home runs in a single season.

After retiring in 1971, he remained with the organization in various front office posts and now works in the group ticket sales department for owner P.K. Wrigley.

Banks insists that his relationship with management was so close that it even if the free agent uproar had occurred during his playing days, it would not have affected him.

"I wouldn't be tempted to move," he said. "The key association is with the owner and general manager. My philosophy is that if the owner believes you have the ability to play, you'll be paid for it. There is a certain teamwork that exists in this game that goes beyond the field to the front office."

And Banks just loves baseball.

"What a marvelous life it has given me," he said. "I've had a beautiful association with people I never would have met if it hadn't been for baseball. It's a great game and something I wish every young man throughout the world could have a chance to play."

Cowboys to appear on telethon

An 18-hour telethon for the purpose of raising money for the money-plagued West Texas State University athletic program has attracted the services of Dallas Cowboy stars Cliff Harris and Scott Laidlaw.

The two players are expected to be joined by other National Football League players and some area talent on the telethon, to be aired from 11 p.m. Jan. 28 to 5 p.m. Jan. 29 on KPDA-TV Channel 10.

West Texas State needs approximately $308,000 to offset a projected deficit in the athletic budget for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

A.W. Lair of Canyon, chairman of the drive to raise the money, expects to meet the goal by Feb. 7, the date the WTSU board of regents gave area business to have $308,000 in order to keep the school's athletics on NCAA Division I level.

Pain a big part of sports

By BARRY WILNER
Associated Press Writer
Sometimes it's not whether you win or lose that counts, nor how you play the game. Sometimes, what's most important is how well you avoid injury.

All sports participants must accept the possibility that they will get hurt, perhaps seriously. Avoiding injuries often is beyond the control of an athlete. Injuries in football, a bad fall while skiing, even too many tennis serves, can cause serious damage to one's physique and psyche.

"Injuries have always been a very real part of sports," says Dr. John Marshall, physician for the New York Giants football team and director of sports medicine services at the Hospital for Special Surgery in New York.

"Injuries affect performance in every manner. I'm not talking only of debilitating injuries like wrecked knees or broken bones. I mean muscle pulls, bruises, cuts."

There are no accurate statistics on injuries for most sports. Using skiing as an example, though, Marshall says his figures show that up to half of those who participate receive injuries that prevent them from hitting the slopes for some time.

Not all sports are that dangerous, of course. But every athletic activity, from football to handball, tennis to badminton, offers the potential for injury.

"It is essential that we develop programs to deal with injuries on all levels," says Marshall.

The place to start, according to Marshall and his colleagues in sports medicine, is the classroom.

"As physicians who are interested in sports medicine, we must further the education of people involved in athletics," says Dr. William J. Liebler, a member of the American Association of Sports Medicine and team physician for the New York Rangers hockey club.

"We must start this education in the primary schools, get to the kids, the parents, the coaches, the trainers, everyone. Then we have to carry on the educational process right through high school and the colleges.

"It's not enough for athletes to know about injuries, though. Each performer must know his own capabilities. So must the doctors involved."

The weekend athlete may be the most vulnerable of all sportsmen.

Knowing one's limitations, it seems, is the key to staying healthy, for professionals and novices alike.

"We have devised screening and profile tests for just that," Marshall notes. "Health care in our country has to be based on an individual's basic abilities and weaknesses. By testing athletes and their body types, we can determine what their limitations are."

Such testing involves doctors, coaches, teachers, dieticians and statisticians. These methods are designed to help athletes avoid injuries ... or to educate them in what to expect if they are hurt.

What of the medical advances in treating injuries once they have occurred?

"The most common injury, regardless of the sport, is in the knee," Dr. Marshall says. "It's by far the most vulnerable area. It requires quick movement, which creates a strong internal force. Add to that a powerful external force, like a block or tackle in football, or a hard check in hockey, and the knee gives way. There is too much stress."

"With the increase in knee injuries have come vast improvements in treatment of them. There is arthroscopy, in which we inject an instrument inside the knee. We can take pictures of the inside of the knee, and this sometimes eliminates the need for surgery. It has replaced exploratory surgery in so many instances."

"We also have the arthrogram, which is an X-ray study to help diagnose injuries. This method helps in determining the functions of various joints through simple tests."

Such progressive programs are designed for the medical expert, however. There is still a need to develop techniques for the layman.

"Preventative medicine has made great strides," offers Dr. Liebler. "There has been a large improvement in diagnostic techniques. Equipment testing has provided better and safer equipment. Training schedules are better suited to the athletes. But through lectures, classroom courses and written material, we have to educate everyone involved in sports on how to deal with serious and minor injuries."

Toward that end, the American Association of Sports Medicine is conducting clinics for the uninitiated throughout the nation.

Misses hook

Rayford Young, Pampa's leading scorer in non-conference play with a 17.8 average, misses a hook shot from under the basket while a Monterey player makes off with the rebound. Pampa won the game Tuesday, 72-52, giving the Harvesters a 15-5 record going into Friday night's district opener at Amarillo Caprock. (Pampa News photo by Gene Anderson)

Taunters may be penalized

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The NCAA issued a warning to collegiate football showboaters Tuesday—it might get costly.

Cliff Speegle, chairman of the NCAA rules committee said from his Dallas home after a Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., meeting.

"The rules committee will be charged with the responsibility of doing something drastic if it (the taunting) isn't stopped," Speegle said.

Speegle said officials, coaches and players "will be given the opportunity to eliminate this trend. Officials will be asked to call unsportsmanlike conduct penalties."

Such a rule is already in the books but rarely enforced.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman said, "During recent years there has been a tendency by players to add some unnecessary theatrics to the game after making a big play. This is a very lamentable trend."

"Taunting has never been an admirable trait. It is less appealing when exhibited by a young man during a football game."

Bill Margin, coach of the Air Force Academy and president of the American Football Coaches Association, told Speegle's committee: "I strongly decry the trend that apparently is developing whereby opposing players are taunting one another and providing ill will by gestures or verbal interchange."

WT football to stay

says chairman

CANYON, Tex. (AP) — Football will stay at West Texas State University, the chairman of an athletic fund raising committee formed to help the financially-plagued program said today.

Lawyer A.W. Lair said a preliminary survey indicates that the committee will be able to raise more than the $300,000 it needed to raise to save the school's football program.

"We expect to have the money in hand in 30 days, Lair said. He said the money has been found just by contacting "rank and file" donors. He said that more money can be obtained from large companies in the area.

Lair said the board of regents has been advised that the money has been located and the regents are in the process of screening applicants for the post of head football coach and athletic director.

The lawyer said he understands the regents have applications from "eight or ten top flight applicants."

The new coach would fill the spot vacated when head coach Gene Mayfield resigned.

Regents had said they would have to raise $300,000 above and beyond anticipated revenues in order to save the program.

"We know we have the money we are going to need. There are 350,000 people in the upper Panhandle to support this program," Lair said.

Earlier, university officials, including school President Lloyd I. Watkins, had expressed doubt that the money could be raised this year in time to save football.

Reds, others may be facing destruction through greed

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — All-star catcher Thurman Munson announces out of the blue that he may ask the New York Yankees to trade him. He wants what Reggie Jackson got — $3 million for five years. His battery mate, pitcher Ed Figueroa, is reported saying that he ought to get as much as Don Gullett, who was picked up for $2 million.

In Cincinnati there are ominous rumblings in the Big Red Machine. Tony Perez, the team's RBI champ, is peddled off to Montreal. Catcher Johnny Bench warns that management can expect strong demands from players who carried the team to consecutive World Series championships.

Such reliables as Dave Concepcion, Rawley Eastwick, Ken Griffey and George Foster are threatening to play out their options. Pete Rose has given them a sharp dressing-down.

The rattle of dollars in million-dollar stacks is creating obvious unrest in the camps of baseball's two most successful franchises, raising a series of foreboding questions:

Is the Big Red Machine, which had just laid the first stones of a baseball dynasty, facing piece-by-piece demolition?

Are the New York Yankees, who restored pride to the pin stripes, about to blow it all because of player greed and in-herent jealousies?

Are the Reds and Yankees suffering the most damaging impact from the unique free agent re-entry draft which saw 15 top players go on the open market and sell their services for more than $20 million?

Munson's comments at a sports dinner in Hamilton, Ontario, only added grist to the mill of discontent surfacing not only with the affluent Yankees but also in the highly disciplined and normally tightly-knit camp of the champion Reds.

What Munson said was that owner George Steinbrenner had promised him the kind of contract that the Yankees gave free agent Reggie Jackson. That's more than four times his present $140,000 salary.

Figueroa, who makes about $50,000 a year, figures he will be worth as much to the Yanks as Gullett, who gets $2 million for five years. Baseball has reached a hazardous state where everybody wants the going rate — which is slightly above astronomical.

Bench and Rose have taken conflicting viewpoints. Bench predicting a wave of free agencies, Rose arguing "players want too much." Their boss, Bob Howsam, has a dislike for long-term contracts.

Howsam is one of the front men in the conservative "hold the line" stances adopted also by Phil Wrigley of the Cubs, Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers, August Busch of the Cards and Don Grant of the Mets.

Tickets to be sold in Amarillo

No tickets for the Pampa - Amarillo Caprock basketball contest Friday night in Amarillo are available in Pampa, according to Athletic Director Ed Lehnick.

Lehnick said that tickets will be available at the door "at regular district prices," which are $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

The game is not expected to be a sellout, even though it opens District 3-AAAA play for both teams.

The junior varsity contest will start at 6 p.m., followed by the varsity clash.
