

Weather keeps millions inside as states enforce energy plans

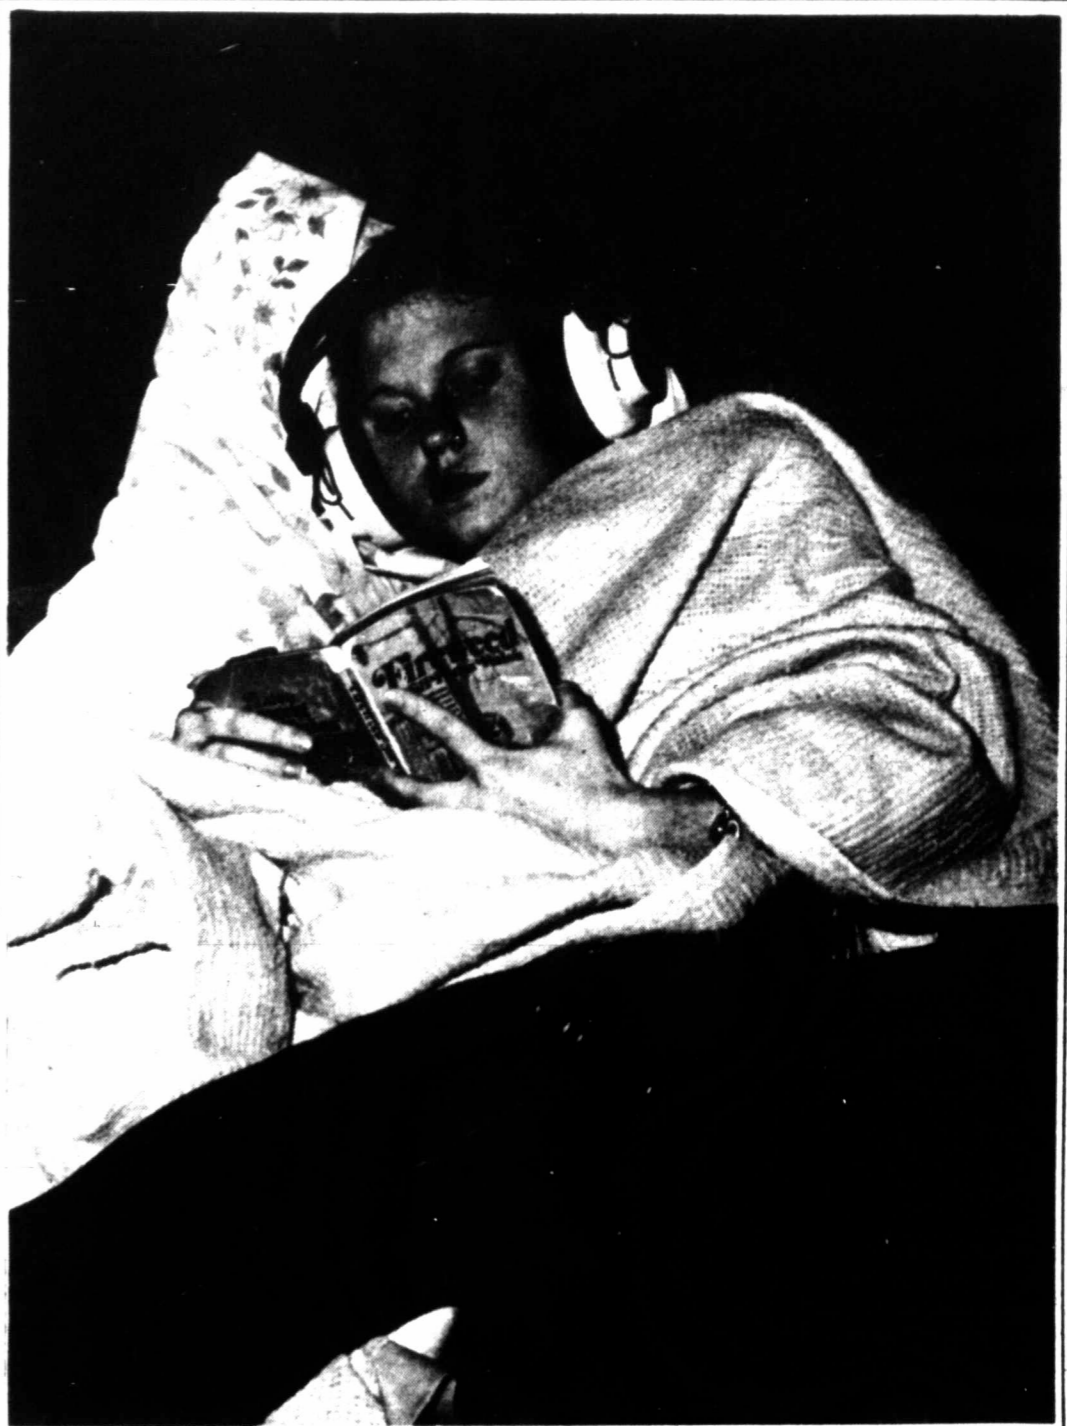

By The Associated Press
Strict orders for cutbacks in fuel consumption kept millions of workers and students at home today in the frigid East and Midwest but also helped guarantee that their homes will stay warm.
The Federal Power Commission said that because at least 11 states made plans to close businesses and schools to save fuel, and four major natural gas pipeline systems reported slight increases in supplies Sunday, the threat of interrupted gas service to homes had receded.
But more than 15 million people were out of work — one million of these in Ohio — and thousands of schools were closed because of the strain on fuel supplies, especially natural gas, during this winter's wicked cold spells.
In Buffalo, N.Y., hardest-hit city in the nation, at least eight persons perished in the blizzard there, including seven found dead in their cars. Fifty-nine persons were arraigned Sunday on charges connected with looting stores during the paralyzing storm.

A storm brought snow and sleet to the South, from central Texas to Georgia. Sunday and early today heavy snow fell in Texas and Louisiana — four inches at Gainsville and Mineral Wells, Tex. — and lesser amounts were recorded in Selma, Ala., Plains, Ga., and parts of northwest Florida.
In most areas, the forecast called for at least two more days of very cold weather, perhaps a few degrees warmer than during the weekend.
Both houses of Congress scheduled sessions today on an emergency natural gas bill proposed by the White House. The bill would enable President Carter to order gas transferred from one pipeline company to another to get it to the most desperate areas.
Senate leaders said a vote was possible today and likely by Tuesday unless attempts to amend the bill slow it down. The House Commerce Committee planned to work on the bill today so it could be ready for floor action Tuesday.
Carter traveled Sunday to Pittsburgh to tour a turbine plant that was partially shut down by the cold and the fuel shortage.

"I don't think there's any doubt that there is a natural gas shortage in this area," the President said. "But nationwide, if we could distribute the gas to exactly where it was needed, we would probably have enough."
Pennsylvania was among the states in which distributors had said they might have to cut off gas delivery to residences because of dwindling supplies and falling pressure.
They already had stopped servicing hundreds of businesses, and about 90,000 workers have been laid off. All state schools have been closed since Thursday, keeping more than 2.6 million pupils at home.
But a Civil Defense spokesman said Sunday night in Harrisburg that the residential cut-off no longer was imminent.
Gov. Milton Shapp scheduled a meeting for today to consider reopening the schools Tuesday.
In New York, which like Pennsylvania has been declared eligible for federal disaster relief, at least half a million schoolchildren will be off all this week. Gov. Hugh Carey closed every school heated by natural gas — 1,309 public schools and an unknown number of private schools.

A spokesman for the State Public Service Commission said that temperatures slightly above predictions had eased the supply shortage, but about 200,000 upstate New Yorkers were out of work because of an almost total ban imposed by the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. on the use of natural gas for industry.
The utility said the restrictions might last all week.
Activity in Buffalo, N.Y., was still far from normal. National Guardsmen, city workers and private contractors worked all day to clear snow from streets and highways, but one official said Sunday night, "We're about to lose the battle."
All but emergency travel has been banned in the city of 1.4 million, hundreds of cars abandoned in snowdrifts, hindered the movement of emergency and supply vehicles.
Officials feared that they might find more bodies in cars in addition to the seven already found in the Buffalo area since a blizzard struck Friday.

More blowing, drifting snow was predicted for Buffalo today. More than 157 inches of snow has fallen already this winter. In a normal winter 44 inches might be expected by now.
On a lighter note, three reindeer from the Buffalo Zoo took advantage of giant drifts Sunday to spring over their fence for an hour or so. All were sighted within a mile and brought in after being tranquilized.
In New Jersey, energy-saving procedures went into effect today under an emergency decree from Gov. Brendan Byrne. Stores, bars, restaurants, offices and recreation facilities were ordered onto a 40-hour week until further notice — regardless of what fuel is used.
Industrial use of natural gas was cut off last week in New Jersey, and Public Utility Commission president Joel Jacobsen said Sunday that business curtailments might raise the number of idled workers to 750,000.

Tucked in for a winter's rockathon

With book and blanket, pillow and radio headset, Laurie Huffines settles down for a round-the-clock rock to the tune of cash for charity. She was one of nine teen-age members of the Church of the Nazarene participating in a 24-hour rocking chair marathon, a fund-raising project that began at 5 p.m. Friday. Although two contestants, obviously on their rockers, made the 24-hour goal, Laurie threw in the blanket at 4:30 a.m. Saturday.

Rebate bill goes to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today sent to Congress his $31.2-billion jobs and tax-cut program featuring a 50 tax rebate for most Americans.
He declared that the two-year proposal "will set the stage for substantial growth in the years ahead."
The program embodies his campaign pledge to try to put new zip in the economy by cutting unemployment while fending off inflation.
The tax rebate and reduction portions would put $11.4 billion into taxpayers' hands this year and would save individuals and business another $10.6 billion over the next two years.
The jobs part of his two-year program includes $4 billion for additional emergency public works, another $15,000 public service jobs, and various training programs including ones targeted at youth and Vietnam war veterans.
Carter said in a statement that "our program only promises what can realistically be done."
In an apparent allusion to calls from organized labor and other groups for more spending for jobs, Carter said, "We are proposing major expansions of existing programs within a short period of time. To force more money, faster, into the system would risk poor administration."
He said he was guided by five principles in creating the program: continuity, speed, fairness, effectiveness, and limitation on permanent budget cost.

"Because we wanted to target the benefits of this program to those most in need," he said, "the bulk of the reduction in personal income taxes will go to lower and middle-income taxpayers."
He said the program, together with previously anticipated economic growth, should reduce unemployment by almost one million persons by the end of 1977, with further significant reductions in 1978. There are now 7.5 million Americans out of work.
Here are the elements of the tax portion of Carter's proposal:
—A $50 rebate of 1976 taxes for each taxpayer and dependent up to the limit of the taxpayer's liability. This will cost $8.2 billion.
—A special $1.4-billion provision which will give many working poor families the full $50 per person even if that exceeds their total tax liability.
—A $50 payment to every recipient of Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, or Railroad Retirement. This will cost $1.8 billion.
—A permanent increase in the standard deduction on income tax calculations which would mean that 37 million low-income taxpayers and their families would no longer have to pay tax. The standard deduction now ranges from $2,100 to $2,800 for couples and from $1,700 to $2,400 for single persons

Carter would change this to a flat $2,800 for couples and $2,400 for singles.
Once phased in, this proposal would cost about $4 billion per year.
—An alternate tax break for business of either a tax credit equal to four per cent of Social Security payroll taxes paid by the employer or an additional two per cent credit for new investment in machinery or equipment. This would save business $900 million this year and $2.7 billion in fiscal 1978.
Here are the job and training programs the President is asking for:
—Additional emergency public works spending of $2 billion this year and $2 billion next year.
—An increase in federally funded public service jobs from the present 310,000 to 600,000 by Sept. 30 and 725,000 in the next fiscal year. This would give the unemployed jobs in hospitals, mental institutions, city rehabilitation, national park improvement, recreation and such energy-saving activities as insulating homes and public buildings. This would cost $4.1 billion, mostly next year.

—Add slots in other programs to boost apprenticeship training and in job training for migrants and Indians.
The various training programs would cost just under $2 billion.
Carter also proposed expansion of the special, anti-recession, revenue-sharing program which makes more funds available to state and local government when the national unemployment rate exceeds six per cent.

Hickory, dickory, rock: they kept watching the clock

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON
Pampa News Staff
It was rock-around-the-clock Friday and Saturday for nine Pampa teen-agers — all in the name of charity.
Young members of the Church of the Nazarene participated in a rocking chair marathon as a church fund-raising project, with local merchants and individuals donating various amounts on a per-hour basis. One store even provided the use of a rocking chair.
Sponsor contributions ranged from 25 cents per hour upwards, and several contestants had 15-20 sponsors. Contestants rocked for as much as $9.05 per hour, depending on the number of sponsors.
Held in the church basement, the event officially started at 5 p.m. Friday. Rules were simple: contestants were allowed one 5-minute break every three hours and there was a 24-hour limit on the rockathon.
The Rev. Robert Williams, church pastor, and several members of the congregation were on hand with refreshments and encouragement.
The first rocker slowed to a stop at 8 p.m. when Pam Harrison went to sleep on the job. Others, fortified by the certainty of not finishing last, kept up a steady pace until the wee hours of Saturday morning. The rosy fingers of dawn gently closed several eyelids, and James Williams, Sherry Smith and Sally Boyd sleepily withdrew from the race. Laurie Huffines conceded defeat 30 minutes later.

The remaining four contestants set their goals for the 5 p.m. Saturday time limit. Clocks ticked and rockers creaked, eyes opened and closed. Sheryl Williams discontinued all signs of activity at 9 a.m.
With the deadline only eight hours away, Valerie Swindle, Kenneth Wallin and Rhonda Williams settled in for the duration. At 4 p.m., an unavoidable conflict of schedules put Valerie off her rockers — she had to leave to meet other commitments. Kenneth and Rhonda were still rocking when church officials called it quits at 5 p.m.
Rocking for $9.05 per hour, Valerie earned $208.15 for her church. Kenneth, at $3.75 hourly netted $90, and Rhonda, earning $6.85 per hour, rocked $164.40 into the treasury. Totals earned by all contestants reached nearly $700.
The proverbial "thrill of victory, agony of defeat" was perhaps reversed for at least one of the winners. Kenneth Wallin described his feelings at the moment of triumph: "Thank goodness it's over. I'm almost paralyzed."

Leisure Lodge may face cutting of welfare funds

Officials of the State Welfare Office in Austin have verified that "in all probability" welfare funds to Leisure Lodge Nursing Center of Pampa will be suspended today.
A final review is to be conducted this afternoon in Austin on placing a hold order on the Pampa firm's vendor's license.
Mrs. Billie Jo Travland, administrator at the lodge, said the facility is presently under a hold order by the state for non-compliance of some regulations.
However, Gary Allen, director, certification services, Welfare Department, Austin, says the nursing center is presently not under a hold order.
A vendor's license is issued by the state when a facility meets various state and federal guidelines to receive Medicaid funds.
Upon notification of a hold order cutting off welfare funds the nursing center has about 30 days to comply with requirements, the Austin office says.
A representative of the local Welfare Office said Leisure

Lodge had been under a vendor's hold in the past.
It had been reported that officials from the Amarillo office of the state's Medical Advisory Unit conducted a review at the lodge recently.
A recent dispute occurred at the nursing center when a nurse was fired and several others walked off in protest. Those quitting the firm complained that the center had a shortage of some supplies and a lack of personnel.
Snow blitzes Buffalo
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Private contractors teamed with National Guardsmen and city workers today in an effort to clear snow from streets and highways in storm-beaten Buffalo.
But near-blizzard conditions maintained a stranglehold on western New York state, and some officials said the fight to clean snow-clogged streets seemed a losing battle because of high winds.
Roads remained littered with

The Austin office of the Welfare Department said recommendations for a hold order are made by field representatives and then forwarded to the Capital for final action.
The director's office in Austin said a list of alleged violations to federal and state requirements would not be available until later today. The order to cut off funds still required approval by the division's executive director.
hundreds of abandoned automobiles Sunday night, hindering emergency vehicles and trucks loaded with wholesale food and fuel oil for homes.
At least eight persons perished in this area's blizzard, authorities reported. Most were found in stalled autos, and officials attributed their deaths to the subzero weather, asphyxiation or heart attacks.
And at least two women who were unable to reach hospitals had babies at home.

Wednesday services set for Pampa teacher

Longtime Pampa educator Mrs. Cleona Newton Sears died at 11:20 p.m. Saturday in Highland General Hospital following a long illness. from Southeastern State Teachers College at Durant. She did graduate work at West Texas State University where Mrs. Sears, 60, of 1950 N. Faulkner, was born April 28, 1916, in Madill, Okla. She attended schools at McAlister and Durant, Okla., and received her bachelor of science degree. She earned a special reading certificate.
She was married to Robert C. Sears Dec. 19, 1942, at Atoka, Okla. He died Jan. 25, 1971.
She had been a teacher at Pampa Junior High School since moving here in 1955.
A past president of the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association, she was also a member of the Texas State Teachers Association and the National Education Association of Texas Classroom Teachers. She was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma Sorority and the First Baptist Church.
She is survived by a daughter, Miss LaJohnna Sears of Booker, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Newton of Pampa, and a brother, Cletus C. Newton of Selma, Calif.
Services will be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, the Rev. George Warren, associate minister, and the Rev. M.B. Smith, pastor of Highland Baptist Church, officiating. Graveside services are scheduled for 2 p.m.

Thursday at Highland Cemetery in Durant, Okla., by Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.
The Board of Trustees and faculty of the Pampa Independent School District has announced a memorial fund to establish the Cleona Newton Sears History Collection. To be housed at Pampa Junior High School, the memorial collection of history books will be for student use. Contributions may be sent to the Cleona Sears Fund at Citizens Bank and Trust Company.

Vance vows frankness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance vowed today to "speak frankly about injustice" in the Soviet Union and other countries and said he is convinced it will not harm U.S. foreign policy objectives.
"We don't intend to be strident or polemical, and we will not comment on each and every issue," Vance told his first news conference after nearly two weeks on the job.
But, he emphasized, he fully subscribes to the State Department's affirmation of support for embattled Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov even though he did not authorize last Thursday's implicit warning to Moscow. Vance said he does not believe "it will have a negative impact" on his projected trip next month to try to advance nuclear weapons negotiations.
On Sunday, President Carter also said he supports the Sakharov statement even though the State Department did not tell him in advance that it was going to speak out on the case. Carter said the statement "reflected my attitude" but he wished he had been told of it, indicating he might have liked to make it himself.
The statement, read by a department spokesman, cautioned against attempts by the Soviet government to intimidate or silence Sakharov, a physicist who has won the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts on behalf of human rights in the Soviet Union.
On another subject, Vance said the presence of thousands of Cuban troops in Angola "is not helpful to a peaceful solution" in Southern Africa. But he did not insist on their removal as a precondition for a resumption of U.S. relations with Havana after a 16-year break.
Vance's predecessor, Henry A. Kissinger, insisted on the expulsion of the 13,000-man force before talks with the Castro government could go on.

Soviets' odd game

Some of the Western news media have been worried about the possibility of restricted Olympic news coverage ever since the Soviet Union acquired the games for 1980, one of the news services reports.

Few could have expected that the restrictions would take such a blatant economic turn or come so soon. Executives of the three major American networks, ABC, CBS and NBC, walked out of negotiations with the Russians after they demanded $50 million for basic facilities — in addition to payments for broadcasting rights. The networks have asked the Justice Department to waive antitrust laws so they may negotiate with the Russians as a pool.

NATION'S PRESS

'Free lunch' buyers beware

(Wall Street Journal) New laws and regulations widely hailed as benefits to "consumers" put us on our guard these days. We can't help it. Too many such edicts fail to live up to the billing.

For example, there are those who claim the Federal Trade Commission has just struck a blow for consumers by cracking down on bill collectors. The FTC won a consent agreement from National Account Systems, Inc., of Chicago that sets new standards for collection agencies.

They can't, among other things, extract credit information from data banks under false pretenses, call up debtors in the dead of night, use threats or abusive tactics or try to pressure debtors by contacting their employers. No doubt the FTC will get a big burrah from most people for its action, which apparently will have general application beyond the immediate agreement. No one loves bill collectors and they become even more unloved when they resort to the tactics that the FTC has prescribed.

But to the extent that the new regulations make things easier for people who don't pay their bills — and alas, there are genuine dead-beats in this imperfect world — it can only make life a little harder for people who do pay their bills. If the bill collectors lose some of their effectiveness and bad debt losses go up, creditors will either have to pass along the higher costs to consumers generally or tighten up on the issuance of credit. Either way, "consumers" who are good credit risks will lose, either through higher costs or through greater bother in obtaining credit.

The consumer who pays his

In the meantime Sara, a New York group that apparently markets everything from Soviet autos to air time, says that it has negotiated a provisional "cooperation agreement" with the Soviet Union for coverage of the games.

The coverage and sums that may yet change hands are cloaked in mystery. But there is no doubt that the Soviet Union is making use of the games to get all the dollar instruments it can acquire. And it is obvious that the high cost of coverage will introduce the very commercialism that the Soviet Union said it wanted to avoid when it bid for the games.

It all looks very capitalistic and profit-motivated from here.

Congress suspicious of Carter

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 — President Carter's weeks-long "transition" is far from finished as regards congressional leaders.

He still has work cut out establishing sound and effective rapport with them.

Bluntly — they're distrustful and dubious. With reason.

As one key Senate committee chairman irritably told this column:

"On two separate occasions, Carter voluntarily informed me I would be consulted on appointments over which my committee has jurisdiction. I didn't ask to be consulted; that never occurred to me. He proposed it. Then what happened? I got two phone calls from him on one day, each telling me whom he had decided to appoint."

"He didn't consult me. He just called to tell me whom he had selected. That was perfectly all right with me. As President, he picks whom he wants. But that's not consultation. It didn't fool me or members of the committee. We think it's distinctly artful."

"If Carter thinks he can get away with that sort of finessing in dealing with Congress, he's very wrong. Whatever else we are, we are not amateurs. We've been in politics a long time and we know when we're being eulogized. He would be well advised to mend his ways, or he's headed for rough going."

On Guard
Similar skepticism and uneasiness was evinced by House leaders.

Privately, they made no bones they have their fingers crossed on relations with Carter and are wary in dealing with him. Said one top Democrat:

"Carter's support in the House is paper-thin. As far as this chamber is concerned, he still has to prove himself reliable and competent. The feeling is general that he's fast on promising but slow or circuitous on coming through."

Critically cited as an example by this veteran legislator is Carter's economy stimulation package.

"What's bold or innovative about that?" he said derisively. "After his constant talk about the immediate need to create a lot of employment, he winds up with a plan that allocates all of $2 billion for that purpose. It's absurd on its face. To say nothing about being glaringly inconsistent and contradictory."

"You can bet your last dollar this Congress isn't buying that kind of cop-out. By the time we get through with that legislation, it'll be very different — and just let him try to veto it. We overrode Ford, and we'll have no hesitation in doing the same to Carter."

Pointedly noted by another major House leader was the quickly glossed-over clash between Carter and Secretary of Labor — designate F. Ray Marshall over the meager job aspect of the economy program. Related this Southern legislator:

"That press story that Marshall had a hand in drafting the plan came from Carter sources. When labor friends called Marshall, he told them, 'That is not so. I had nothing to do with it. I don't want to accuse anybody of falsehood, but I'll say that if I'm asked about it at the committee hearing on my confirmation...'"

He was, and the Texas university professor did.

Skeptically commented the House leader:

"Question is, how long can this sort of practice continue? It's a pure guess, but I'll hazard the opinion there will be one or several cabinet and other high-level turnovers in Carter's first year. Things already seem headed that way."

Note: Theodore Sorensen's last-minute back-out from his appointment as CIA head spared him from an awkward confrontation with the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee. Chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, a much-decorated World War II combat veteran, lost his right arm in Italy. Sorensen later avoided combat service as a conscientious objector.

While Inouye had no intention of raising this matter during the aborted confirmation hearings, it's an open secret in committee circles he disapproved of Sorensen's selection for lack of fitness, experience and questionable personality.

Flashes

McGovernites wind up with a number of prize plums as the Carter administration gets under way. Foremost among them is the new Democratic national chairman — former Maine Gov. Kenneth Curtis. Democratic leftists are jubilant over his being installed in that key job.

Beamed Alan Baron, chunky former $39,000-a-year member of McGovern's staff and activist zealot. "Curtis is the best appointment Carter has made yet. We're really sitting pretty now. One of our own is now right inside..."

It remains to be seen how much and how long.

Another one-time close McGovern supporter is Mary Finch Hoyt, press secretary for Mrs. Carter. She filled a similar role in McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign, and subsequently co-authored a book with his wife.

Chickens fly home to roost

By RICHARD LESHER
WASHINGTON — Ask the folks in Dalton, Georgia if there is really a shortage of natural gas. On Friday, January 14, they received 12 hours notice that their supply would be cut back by 52 per cent. It was Dalton suffered an immediate loss of 8,000 jobs.

Other communities all over the nation are experiencing similar curtailments, although few — so far — are as drastic as Dalton's.

What happened? First, this winter has been unusually severe over most of the country. The prolonged cold weather has increased the need for fuel of all kinds. It has also frozen many navigable waterways, which prevents barge deliveries of petroleum products and coal. Industries deprived of these fuels must either shut down or switch to natural gas (if they have the equipment). So the demand for natural gas has suddenly ballooned.

Second, this sudden increase in demand is meeting dwindling supplies of gas. Gas production peaked in this country in 1972. We are now using more every year than is being added to the reserves. Our present reserves are good for only eight or nine years at most.

This situation should not come as a surprise. The National Chamber, the gas producers and other business groups have been warning that it would happen for 22 years. That's right, 22 years — ever since the Supreme Court decided in the Phillips Petroleum case that the Federal Power Commission is required to regulate the wellhead price of natural gas sold in interstate commerce.

The inevitable result of federal regulation has been to hold the price of gas well below the level necessary to attract producers to discover and develop new supplies. It has also encouraged waste of a fuel that should be reserved for premium uses.

Why can't the FPC permit a realistically high price? Because every time it tries it gets sued by so-called consumer representatives who demand that the price be "cost based."

And what's wrong with that? "Cost based" to a regulatory agency means last year's costs, not this year's costs or next year's costs. In an inflationary economy, the difference can be ruinous. "Cost based" also means average costs. But the energy company exploring on Alaska's North Slope or offshore in 900 feet of water is not experiencing "average" costs.

An idea of just how far from reality the "official" prices are can be gained by a comparison of free-market intrastate rates and federal interstate rates. Gas is selling in the producer states for $2.50 per thousand cubic feet.

That's what it's really worth. In contrast, the federal ceiling for newly discovered gas is $1.42 per thousand, and much interstate gas is still moving under contracts reflecting earlier ceilings around 40 cents.

The only way out of this problem is total deregulation of gas prices. Temporary waivers of the rules can paper over the cracks for another winter or two, but that would only postpone the inevitable. However, since deregulation is politically unpopular, I am not too optimistic about the prospects. It makes a dandy issue for the demagogues.

Would deregulation cause hardships for present users of natural gas? Well, it would certainly cause a price increase. At the consumer level, although not as great as you might think (most of the cost of gas service goes to pay for the distribution system, not for the gas itself). And whatever price increases occurred would undoubtedly be phased in gradually to allow people time to adjust.

Nobody ever likes higher prices.

thom marshall's FORUM and against 'em

Following are a few items from a list of things long enough to reach from Washington, D.C., to the Los Angeles County Poorhouse, if such things as county poorhouses still existed.

+One of every 13 Americans today receives food stamps at a cost of more than $5 billion.

+Texas taxpayers will pay approximately $24 billion in federal taxes in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1977. Texas taxpayers are held up for about 5.49 per cent of all federal taxes.

+The federal budget deficit for fiscal 1977 is running at a $60 billion-per-year pace.

+The average tax victim works from Jan. 1 to April 30 — four months — every year for the government.

+You can figure that at least 40 per cent of your income is being robbed from you by some form of government tax — income, FICA, property, sales, gasoline, telephone, excise, ad infinitum.

+So many cities are applying for federal public works funds that city officials are resorting to elaborate and often expensive strategies to get their applications approved.

+The American Footwear Industries Association recently received a $225,000 federal grant "to foster long-range growth and create jobs in the shoe industry."

+$85,000 in federal funds was spent on a study of the impact of rural road construction in Poland.

+$576,969 in federal funds went to a study on teaching mothers how to play with their children.

+$35,000 to study wild boars in Pakistan.

+$46,069 for a dictionary on witchcraft.

+$6,000 for a study on bisexual Polish frogs.

+$15,000 to study lizards in Yugoslavia.

+$5,000 to study American and Indian whistling ducks.

+$22,470 to Central College in Iowa for study of "enhancement of cognitive abilities and self-image of freshmen women."

+$57,500 to the University of Pittsburgh on "community and national integration" in the People's Republic of China.

The last nine items listed above were reported in the U.S. News and World Report, July 22, 1974, edition.

In that article Congressman H.R. Gross, Rep. - Iowa, who was retiring after 26 years in the House, said congress is to blame for the sad state of federal spending simply because congressmen do not say "No" to appropriations.

He said that many citizens would refuse to pay their taxes if they knew the amounts being spent on far-fetched ideas.

He said that taxvictims can't expect any help on cutting back on spending to come from congress.

More and more people are becoming aware of governmental waste and are.

indeed, refusing to pay their taxes.

Treasury Secretary William Simon said in 1976 that the government faces a taxpayers' revolt.

The IRS has officially acknowledged that a million identifiable taxpayers are neglecting to file returns. Some IRS agents have guessed the total is closer to 5 million. James Dale Davidson of the National Taxpayers Union says it is more like 10 million.

Many tax resistors say the government cannot legally force collection of income taxes because of a Constitutional bias against it that was not overcome when the Constitution was amended in 1913 to permit a federal income tax.

A popular method used by many to avoid being victimized has to do with churches. A person pays a small fee to one of several divinity — school mills and thereby becomes an "ordained" minister. Then a church is set up to which all earnings are assigned, becoming tax free.

Those using the system argue they are protected by the Constitution which prevents governmental interference with religion.

Some rebel by simply refusing to file out tax returns, using the Fifth Amendment as a basis in arguing that to fill out forms violates their right against self-incrimination.

Since it is a crime not to file a return, they simply send in a signed, but otherwise blank, form.

There are those who put their faith in the Fourth Amendment, relying upon it to protect them from seizure of personal papers needed by the IRS in order to get a conviction.

Still others say that a federal statute defines a dollar in terms of its gold or silver content. And tax law says persons earning less than $750 need not file returns. So since the dollar no longer has any redeemable gold or silver content there is no legal income and no legal requirement for filing.

The IRS has reported getting convictions against tax resistors using all the defenses mentioned.

But if the numbers indeed are growing; if the tax revolt continues to gain momentum, it may become impossible for the government to properly police and prosecute all the resistors.

Bird Sanctuary

The most important pelican nesting ground on the east coast of Florida is Pelican Island in the Indian River near Sebastian, used as a rookery at least since 1858. Early boat travelers along the river used to kill hundreds of pelicans as they cruised by this island. They used the birds for target practice until it was designated as the first federal wildlife refuge in the United States by executive order of President Theodore Roosevelt in 1903.

Cold gives economists fits

NEW YORK (AP) — The continued flow of arctic air southward over the industrial heartland of the nation is also paralyzing the analytical powers of many economic forecasters.

Never before have some of them faced quite the challenge they now see before them, a challenge for which there are really no guides in the textbooks and few or no criteria to borrow from earlier studies.

Most other destructive rampages of nature have been brief in duration, such as windstorms and earthquakes. Or they have been geographically limited, such as floods, droughts and frosts, or limited to certain crops or industries.

The frigid weather has not been restricted by geography, time or industrial category. It covers two-thirds of the country. It has persisted for four months. It has slowed, shut or otherwise affected every industry that uses any form of energy, natural, human, mechanical.

The total bill, measured in lost production, unemployment, higher fuel bills, destruction of crops and machinery, slowed transportation, impaired health, lowered productivity and educational disruption cannot be calculated.

It is obviously in the many billions of dollars, but confirmation of the rough estimates probably must await reports on the Gross National Product, or the total of all goods and services produced in a given period.

Meanwhile, economists who could easily gauge the impact of crop loss resulting from drought or blight are perplexed about how and where to begin measuring the economic impact of the big freeze.

Nevertheless, they are pressed to make their estimates for banks, brokers, manufacturers and others.

Up to now, the major business economists have continued to stick with their earlier forecasts of a steady but unspectacular improvement through much of the year. And some even suggest we are in for a more prolonged period of improvement.

The index of leading economic indicators rose in December for the third straight month, but of even greater significance, it rose by 1.6 per cent, the largest gain in well over a year.

But this was before the severest weather. Throughout the fall — in October, November and December — temperatures were well below normal through much of the East. But that was before the coldest months.

The question that economic forecasters cannot possibly answer is whether the cold weather will continue. The truth is that the meteorologists can't tell either. About all they can say is that the pattern that produced the cold weather is still holding, and from what they can see it will continue to hold.

And for already perplexed economic forecasters, that isn't exactly the kind of material they can feed to the electronic computers.

Chad Rebels release couple after 3 years

PARIS (AP) — Archeologist Francoise Claustre, a Frenchwoman held hostage for nearly three years in the African Sahara, and her husband were reported in "good health" in Libya today after being freed by rebels in Chad.

The office of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing announced late Sunday night that President Moammar Khadafi of Libya telephoned Giscard at 10:30 p.m. to tell him Mrs. Claustre and her husband, Pierre, arrived in Tripoli, the Libyan capital.

Libya's Arab Revolution News Agency reported that the couple were "in good health."

Several French television interviews with Mrs. Claustre during her captivity in the former French colony in central Africa kept alive public interest in her plight. There were demands that the French garrison kept in Chad after it became independent in 1960 be used to free her.

She told one interviewer she contemplated suicide because her life had become so desolate. She told another the biggest treat she and her husband, who was kept in a separate enclosure, had was the camel meat that occasionally spiced up their diet of rice, vegetables and fruit.

Mrs. Claustre, in her late 30s, was captured April 21, 1974, along with French researcher

Marc Combe and Dr. Christophe Staewen, a West German, at the Bardai oasis in northern Chad.

Staewen's wife was fatally wounded in the attack by Toubou tribesmen of the Chad National Liberation Front, or FROLINAT, who were led by Hissen Habre. The rebels marched their captives off to a hideout in the Tibesti desert and demanded $4 million in cash, supplies, arms, the release of 32 political prisoners and publication of a FROLINAT manifesto.

Staewen, a distant relative of then-President Gustav Heinemann of West Germany, was freed June 11, 1974, after the Bonn government reportedly paid a ransom of $500,000. The rebels announced on April 12, 1975, they had executed a French army officer, Commandant Pierre Galopin, who had been sent to negotiate with them.

A month later Combe escaped to Libya.

Pierre Claustre flew to the desert outpost where his wife was held in August 1975 to negotiate for her release, and on Aug. 26 the rebels announced that he, too, was their prisoner.

Synagogue sues pair

MIAMI (AP) — Richard and Nina Kaufman say they're bitter over the price of religion. A Jewish synagogue has filed suit against them for $235 in unpaid membership dues.

"What's the price of God?" Mrs. Kaufman asked. "This is religion? Sure, it's my obligation as a Jew to help the synagogue. But just what is a fair share? Unbelievable."

But leaders of the 64-year-old temple, one of Miami's first, say the synagogue can't exist on promises and that the Kaufmans promised to pay dues while they were members from August 1973 until late 1974.

The suit filed by the Beth David Synagogue of Miami is scheduled for trial Feb. 8.

"People think the preacher doesn't have to live, that the rabbi doesn't have to live, that the synagogue doesn't have to live," said Samuel Badanes, the congregation's vice president. "The church always gets the bottom of the heel."

Rabbi Sol Landau said he tries to remain detached from financial affairs, but he said he had "great reservations" about the suit, "because of the kind of institution we are."

Beth David lists an annual budget of nearly $600,000, plus a building fund, the expense of Sunday and Hebrew schools as well as the expense of a staff to accommodate 850 member families.

"We can't exist on people owing us money," Badanes said. "Something had to be done. It might be wrong, it might be right, but it's the way we're doing it."

Mrs. Kaufman said the couple was married at the temple in 1973 because "it was important to us to include a strong religious life in marriage."

But the Kaufmans, real estate agents, said they fell on hard times during the 1974 recession.

"Finally, it came to a choice, between paying the synagogue and paying the mortgage," Mrs. Kaufman said.

Besides, she became pregnant. In the fall of 1974, behind in their dues, they dropped membership. They moved to nearby Hollywood where they now live with their 2-year-old son David.

"It's not the money," said

Mrs. Kaufman, adding the couple's financial situation is much better now. "We can pay the $235. It's the way they went about this that I resent. How many people have been treated this way?"

The synagogue's lawyer, Michael Gale, said, "When you sign for membership, you agree to pay dues. They knew they were obligating themselves." He said many delinquent members arrange to pay back dues through small weekly payments.

"All that charm, all that love, all that marvelous talent and all that niceness," said James Komack, producer and creator of the "Chico" series. "He couldn't do that offstage. Offstage the world was still uncomfortable for him."

Prinze was faced with the breakup of his marriage, the problems of trying to free himself from a contract with a former manager who signed him as a teen-ager and the concern over an impending trial on charges of driving under the influence of drugs.

Johnny Carson, host of the "Tonight" show where Komack spotted Prinze, said the young actor "had tremendous talent. The sadness is always magnified when someone so young finds the pressures intolerable."

Friends attend funeral of actor Freddy Prinze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As co-star Jack Albertson and best friend Tony Orlando composed eulogies for Freddy Prinze's funeral service today, the corner revealed that the 22-year-old comic had no chance for survival from the moment he shot himself in the head.

A small funeral service was scheduled for 12:30 p.m. PST today at the Old North Church at Forest Lawn in Hollywood Hills for the young star of NBC-TV's "Chico and the Man."

A spokesman for Forest Lawn said pallbearers would include songwriter Paul Williams and business agent Marvin Snyder. A Prinze spokesman said entertainer Bob Hope would be an honorary pallbearer.

Prinze, who left a note saying he couldn't "take it anymore," died Saturday afternoon, 33 hours after he pulled a .32 caliber automatic from his apartment sofa and fired a bullet through his temple as Snyder watched. He had just hung up the telephone from speaking to his estranged wife, Kathy, mother of his 10-month-old son Freddie Jr.

As doctors at UCLA Medical Center performed surgery and used life-sustaining equipment in a futile effort to save him, the hospital was flooded with telephone calls from fans. The family and a few close friends, including singer Orlando, held a vigil.

Doctors at first refused to comment on Prinze's chances for survival, but the Los Angeles County coroner's office said Sunday that his injuries were so serious that he could not have lived.

"All that charm, all that love, all that marvelous talent and all that niceness," said James Komack, producer and creator of the "Chico" series. "He couldn't do that offstage. Offstage the world was still uncomfortable for him."

Prinze was faced with the breakup of his marriage, the problems of trying to free himself from a contract with a former manager who signed him as a teen-ager and the concern over an impending trial on charges of driving under the influence of drugs.

Florida may have death row wedding

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Two killers sentenced to the electric chair want to be married in Florida's first Death Row wedding, not for themselves but for the sake of their child.

Jessie Tafero says he is prepared for the worst — the possibility that his and Sonia Jacobs' appeals will fail and they will be executed. That would orphan their daughter, Christina, born out of wedlock 21 months ago and now living with her mother's parents in California.

"Sonia and I are applying now to be married. Here, just about anywhere we can, so our marital status will be completely legitimized for everybody's questions... We have a child," Tafero said in a copyright story in today's St. Petersburg Times.

Florida recognizes an illegitimate child as one of the few reasons for marriage inside state prisons. But officials said this is their first request for a Death Row wedding.

"All the others, the spouse has been outside and free. So this really throws a monkey wrench in the thing," said an assistant chaplain.

The decision rests with the head prison chaplain in Tallahassee.

The newspaper interviewed the 28-year-old mother at Florida Correctional Institute for Women. Tafero, 30, was interviewed at Florida State Prison in Starke, 55 miles away.

They had been telling prison officials that they were married — ever since their arrests in February 1976 for the murders of Florida Highway Patrolman Phillip Black and his friend, visiting Canadian Constable Donald Irwin. The officers were shot to death near Delray Beach at an Interstate 95 rest stop.

Tafero insisted they are innocent of murder, and he is optimistic they will be released on appeal.

Miss Jacobs and Tafero said they lived together for years, but they were unable to produce a marriage license.

They were tried separately and sent to different facilities. They haven't seen each other since her trial last July, although they write to each other every day.

Miss Jacobs, interviewed first, insisted she was married.

"It's a legal marriage," she said.

"I've decided not to talk too much about it because I don't know what the question is, but we are so close a family, you know, that I just ignore that."

Tafero, interviewed later, suggested that Miss Jacobs was lying for the child's sake. He said she didn't know about his plans for a Death Row wedding.

He said he had just talked to the prison chaplain and "told him my intentions and Sonia's intentions."

"He says there shouldn't be any problem, and I'm doing the paperwork now," Tafero said.

Police report

Pampa police investigated four burglaries, five hit and run accidents and one non-injury accident over the weekend.

Verne Cook, industrial arts teacher at Pampa High School, reported to police that burglars had entered the wood shop and taken an estimated $25. A window was broken with a rock to gain entry. Police said damage was $90.

B&J Tropical Fish, 1918 Alcock, was the site of another burglary in which $113.98 worth of aquarium supplies was taken. Items reported missing by the store owner were a 27-gallon aquarium set, two pumps, a 10-gallon hood, one 20-gallon hood, a 29-gallon hood and one roll of tubing.

A man reported his car parked at 2328 Comanche had been entered. A brown leather briefcase removed from the car was later found in the yard at 2319 Comanche. In another auto burglary, a man told officers that a CB radio valued at $60 was taken from his car parked at 1045 S. Finely.

The hit and run accidents were reported at 410 Maple, the 1400 block of N. Hobart, the 2100 block of N. Hobart, the 300 block of W. Foster and the Highland General Hospital parking lot.

Pampa Fire Department

The Pampa Fire Department responded to an alarm from the 100 block of North Starkweather Sunday, a department spokesman said.

Firefighters extinguished a blaze in a dumpster.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Snow mantled a broad stretch of North Texas, icy roads held travel to a creeping minimum and scores of schools suspended classes today.

Bitter cold numbed nearly all other parts of the state as skies cleared over most sections in the wake of a weekend storm. Light rain still fell near the coast.

As much as 9 inches of snow blanketed an area along the Red River around Gainesville, the National Weather Service reported, although the measurement in that city generally was around 4 inches.

Before the light but rather steady fall tapered off Sunday evening, depths of 3 to 6 inches were recorded at many other points in areas stretching 360 miles across the state and extending southward more than 100 miles. Traces of snow and freezing rain reached 75 miles deeper into the state.

The moisture belt lay generally north of an east-west line linking Marshall and Big Spring, and snow was lightest in the west.

Some of the snow melted as it still fell Sunday afternoon.

National weather

By The Associated Press

A winter storm brought heavy snow, sleet and freezing rain to a large portion of the South overnight, reaching from north central Texas into Georgia and Florida.

Snowfalls of four inches were reported in Gainesville and Mineral Wells, Texas, and the snow extended eastward across Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama into parts of southwest Georgia and northwest Florida. Snow fell for three hours this morning in Atlanta.

Freezing rain and sleet were reported over southern Alabama and Mississippi and in northwest Florida. Rain and thunderstorms continued along the Texas and Louisiana coasts.

Travel was reported hazardous, with some highways closed due to snow in northwest Louisiana. At Columbia, Miss., there were heavy accumulations of sleet and freezing rain.

Teaching everyone goal of CPR week

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON
Pampa News Staff

The Gray County Heart Division has announced a goal that everyone in the county beyond a sixth-grade level be taught cardiopulmonary resuscitation, and CPR week will offer many opportunities for area residents to learn the technique.

Activities begin Saturday with an 8 a.m. breakfast at Coronado Inn. Highlight of the breakfast will be a speech contest with each entrant sponsored by a civic group, industry or club. Each sponsor will donate $50 to the Heart Association.

Contestants will give three-minute speeches on the subject, "Why CPR," with an award going to the winner. Judging is to be by members of the Toastmasters Club. Tickets for the breakfast are available at $3.50 by calling Vermell Meador at 665-3721, ext. 239, or Melvin Kunkel at 669-7432.

CPR classes will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 7-8 at Lovett Memorial Library, and all day Feb. 9 at Highland General Hospital. Area residents are urged by officials to attend these demonstrations. Persons desiring re-certification are asked to have their old certification cards with them.

Students at Pampa Junior High School will be taught the technique during health class periods Feb. 19. Pampa High School demonstrations for the students there are scheduled for Feb. 26.

In addition to the scheduled demonstrations, officials said any club, organization, business, or even a group of lay people... any gathering at all may arrange for a demonstration by calling Mrs. Jessie Newberry at Highland General Hospital.

Instructors for the demonstrations will be certified CPA instructors from the community.

CPR may prevent death if initiated within four to six minutes of heart stoppage. The victim can often be resuscitated and kept alive until advanced treatment can be obtained. Heart Division officials said the life-saving technique, using a combination of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage, can be a protection from sudden death.

Heart Association figures indicate that if present rates continue, one of every two people in America will die of heart and circulatory diseases.

It is estimated that 100,000 persons die needlessly each year of heart attacks alone. CPR, promptly administered, can save many of these victims.

Heart Sunday in Pampa is Feb. 13. Volunteers of the American Heart Association here will be collecting funds all day on a door-to-door basis.

Gray County Heart Division president Melvin Kunkel has announced that Heart Week chairmen include Benny Kirksey, general chairman; J.C. Roberts, business; and Luther Robinson, director of door-to-door campaign.

Mondale assures Japan no changes

TOKYO (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale promised Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda today that the Carter administration will consult with the Japanese government fully on issues that concern both nations.

Mondale also pledged that the new administration will make no sudden changes of policy that might embarrass Japan, like President Nixon's decision in 1972, without giving the Japanese ample warning, to improve relations with Communist China.

The vice president and the prime minister met for more than an hour. Mondale said it was a "very long and productive and useful" session, and he relayed to Fukuda the "strong desire of our government to have the closest possible cooperative relationship with the leaders of Japan."

Japanese sources said Mondale also conveyed an invitation from President Carter for Fukuda to visit Washington for talks with him March 21-22. Fukuda, who became prime minister following elections in early December, has said several times he wanted to go to Washington as soon as possible.

Much of the conversation was devoted to the international economic situation, the economic policies of both countries and the agenda, timing and site for the summit conference of major non-Communist industrial nations to be held this spring.

"There was agreement that both countries would, on a continuing basis, watch how each other's economies were doing," one source said. "You have to be in constant consultation."

He said the meeting was "very businesslike but relaxed," and "there are no issues of great tension."

Aides to Mondale said there was no discussion of withdrawal of U.S. ground troops from South Korea and future U.S. relations with China, but they said the two men would take up these topics at a meeting Tuesday. Afterward Mondale will hold a news conference and then leave for Washington.

One source said Mondale would "obviously reaffirm what has already been stated" about troop withdrawal from Korea, that the question is not whether it will take place but when. But one official said the South Korean government has been assured that "this is not a trip to cut a deal behind Korea's back."

The vice president arrived in Tokyo Sunday night from Paris after a trip of nearly 20 hours across northern Canada and Alaska. In a brief airport statement he emphasized that the new U.S. administration views Japanese participation as "an indispensable prerequisite to managing international economic problems and devising equitable solutions to global problems."

En route to Japan, the vice president's plane made refueling stops in Iceland, where he spoke with Prime Minister Geir Halgrimson at the airport, and in Alaska, where he slept through the brief stop.

Talking with reporters during the flight, Mondale said he was holding up well despite the hectic travel pace.

"I'm in good shape," he said. "I've been able to hold up a lot better than I thought I would."

Shuttle being relocated

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — America's first space shuttle headed for a landlubber's trip today — at creeping speeds of 3 to 10 miles an hour from a construction hangar to a dry lake runway 36 miles away.

Rockwell International, the main contractor for the craft, along with law officers, prepared security for the trip, which was expected to attract hundreds of sightseers from the southern California desert communities of Palmdale and Lancaster.

The sight was a half-rocket, half-airplane cargo carrier headed for Edwards Air Force Base.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the delta-winged 122-foot-long craft with a 53-foot-high tail fin was timed to reach its temporary home at Dryden Flight Research at the base by late afternoon.

A 90-wheel trailer rig carrying the orbiter had tested the route twice to make sure the orbiter's 78-foot wingspan would clear all obstacles and to detect any weak spots in the roadway. The orbiter tips the scales at 110 tons.

The big moving job was being handled by Contractor's Cargo, a firm which in the past moved loads such as the massive fuel tanks for the Saturn rocket used in many U.S. space launches.

The space orbiter, says Lee Bisson of Contractor's Cargo, is the "most expensive load ever carried in the history of trucking." Its value is not precisely known, but one NASA spokesman estimated the craft to be worth $500 million.

If tests go well, the craft in a few years will be fired by disposable rockets into space, where it will carry out scientific work in orbit, then glide without power back through the atmosphere to land on a runway.

Ground testing is to begin at Dryden on Feb. 18, when the orbiter will be placed, pilotless, atop a Boeing 747 jumbo jet. First the piggy-back craft will be rolled around on a runway just to see how the 747 handles — with that big glob on the top," said Donald "Deke" Slayton, veteran NASA astronaut from Sparta, Wis., who is in charge of the approach and landing tests.

Finally the orbiter will be released from the jumbo jet in a landing test slated for July 22.

Only one of the test pilots for the craft, Fred Haise, 42, has flown in space. But all of the crews have been training on jet airplanes modified to handle in a manner similar to the gliding orbiter.

The other three test pilots are Charles Fullerton, Joe Engle and Richard Truly.

Crowds protest Gandhi reign

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Large crowds at the first anti-government rallies in 19 months raised the election hopes of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's foes today.

The Janata (People's) coalition of four non-Communist parties formed two weeks ago opened its campaign for the March parliamentary elections in New Delhi, Jaipur and Patna Sunday. Mrs. Gandhi was criticized at public meetings for the first time since she put India under a state of emergency, on June 26, 1975, suspended civil liberties, jailed most opposition leaders and ordered press censorship.

Now freed from jail, opposition leaders told the crowds at the rallies the election gives the Indian people a crucial choice between democracy and dictatorship.

The rally in New Delhi drew the biggest crowd, more than 50,000, despite almost no publicity.

"It shows that the spirit of the people is still alive," said Morarji Desai, the 80-year-old Janata chairman.

"Even during the British era we did not witness the atmosphere of fear we are witnessing today," Desai told the crowd.

"The people have to come out of this shell of fear or else they will be slaves of the present regime."

He said Mrs. Gandhi and her ruling Congress party "bulldozed the constitution and vasatomized democracy. The issues in the elections are very clear — whether the people want dictatorship or the rule of law."

He pledged that if the Janata party comes to power it will repeal "black laws" passed by the Congress-dominated Parliament since the emergency.

4 Freshmen concert set Wednesday

The Four Freshmen, third attraction in the Pampa Community Concert Association's 1976-77 season, is scheduled Wednesday night in the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium.

It was stated inadvertently in Sunday's Pampa News the concert would be Tuesday night.

The Four Freshmen, vocal and instrumental quartet, bring to Pampa their superb singing arrangements and fresh blend of harmony that has set a high standard for popular quartets for the last two decades.

Curtain time for the Wednesday concert is 8 p.m. and there will be no box office sale.

Warnke gets arms position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul C. Warnke, a former Defense Department official, will be named the chief American negotiator for nuclear weapons limitations and head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, State Department officials said today.

Warnke, who turned 57 today, and Clifford, are law partners in the Washington firm of Clifford, Warnke, Glass, Melwain & Finney.

Known as a moderate on defense policy, Warnke will be responsible for heading up American efforts to sign a new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union. As head of the arms control agency, he also will be in charge of most American efforts to reduce arms levels in all areas as well as nuclear weaponry.

Warnke was general counsel for the Defense Department from 1966 to 1967 and became assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs from 1967 to 1969.

Phillips blocks pipeline

BORGER — Workmen for Phillips Petroleum Co. blocked off a pipeline after a rupture in the line destroyed several oil storage tanks and overhead electric lines Sunday.

The explosion occurred in a 12-inch Tiopane Propane line running to Chicago. A Phillips spokesman said the line was blocked within two minutes, but added that propane in the line burned about six hours.

Damage to the line, located about seven miles north of Borger near the old Dial Gulf Camp, has not been determined.

The line was operating at normal pressure when the rupture occurred. The spokesman said the line should be back in service later today. Mapco has been feeding the line to Chicago while the Phillips line was out of commission.

Secret Service sees expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Amy Carter tends to her studies in a fourth-grade classroom in Washington, Secret Service agents wait outside, trying to be inconspicuous. As Susan Ford scurries to classes at the University of Kansas, Secret Service agents trail her.

They are just two of the increasing number of individuals Congress has ordered the Secret Service to protect.

Amy, 9-year-old daughter of President Carter, gets protection due to the immediate family of the president, Susan, 19, daughter of former President Gerald Ford, gets protection for up to six months because of a special law passed by Congress this year.

For fiscal 1977, the Secret Service estimated it needs 3,667 employees, 1,529 of them special agents, and a budget of $110 million.

That's the outlay for all the agency's work: suppressing counterfeiting, investigating check and bond forgeries, protecting individuals, buildings and grounds and safeguarding government securities. All the activities are on the upswing.

Currently, the Secret Service protects two dozen or more individuals. The number varies. It includes certain U.S. officials and their immediate families, visiting heads of state and "at the direction of the President," other foreign visitors and official U.S. representatives on special missions abroad.

In a presidential election year it includes major national candidates unless protection is declined. It includes wives of such candidates for 60 days before the general election.

The Secret Service doesn't want to tip its hand as to who is getting protection or when, where, and especially how a subject is guarded.

However, the law is specific in some instances.

Advice

Dear Abby

The National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse tells us that child abuse is now epidemic not only in the United States, but throughout the world. Last year, approximately one million American children were abused, and two thousand died painful deaths from beatings, burns, immersion in scalding water, etc.

Neglect (failure to provide a child with the basic necessities of life: food, clothing, shelter or medical care) is also child abuse. So is using a child for sexual gratification. Child abuse can leave permanent physical scars—a crippled limb, impaired vision, a hearing loss and even brain damage. It causes antisocial behavior, failure in school, juvenile delinquency and emotional problems.

Parents who abuse their children need the kind of help that is now available through Parents Anonymous. It was founded by parents who had abused their children and had the courage to organize and seek solutions to their problem. They are headquartered at 2810 Artesia Blvd., Redondo Beach, Calif. 90278.

There are now 450 chapters in more than 300 cities. You can reach them toll free. In California dial 1-800-352-0386. Outside California, dial 1-800-421-1353.

Some questions:

Do you sometimes physically hurt your child because you're angry with yourself?
Were you mistreated as a child and now find yourself repeating your past?
Do you feel inadequate as a parent? Depressed? Unable to cope?

After punishing your child severely are you heartsick, ashamed and disgusted with yourself to the point of prayers and tears?
Have you ever injured your child, and then lied about it? ("He fell down the stairs"—or "out of bed")?

If you can see yourself in any of the above situations, don't be ashamed. You are not alone. Call P.A.

Here are some questions and answers that might be helpful:

Who may report a case of child abuse? Anybody can. Do I have any legal protection when I report a suspected case of child abuse? Yes. Persons who report in good faith are granted immunity from civil and criminal court action, even if the report proves to be erroneous.

How sure must I be before I report? There is no rule. If there is serious doubt, resolve the doubt in favor of the child, and report.

Must I identify myself when I report? No, but it would be better if you did.

Is hitting "child abuse"? It depends on the age of the child, what part of the body was hit, what was used to inflict the punishment and how serious the injuries are.

Do abusive parents hate their children? No. Most parents love their children, but in times of anger, they strike out at whoever is closest.

Do abusive parents ever learn to cope with their problems, and can the children be safely returned home? Yes. If parents receive the right kind of support and treatment, they can learn to handle their anger, and their children can be left safely in their care.

Does jailing abusive parents help solve the problem? No. It only satisfies society's need for retribution and protects the child only temporarily. Imprisonment does not provide treatment and counseling, which is what the abusive parent desperately needs.

There are more than a dozen government, private, volunteer and specialized programs dealing with the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. Parents Anonymous is a good place to start if one wants to know more about the project.

If you think you need help, call P.A. now. If you suspect that a child you know is being abused, please report it. All reports will be strictly confidential, and your name will be withheld.

Children should be seen—and not hurt. ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has been losing weight so fast the last two years that he has lost 40 pounds. He eats well and sleeps well. You can count his ribs.

The doctor doesn't seem to know what causes him to lose weight. He had a physical not long ago. I am so worried, afraid of cancer. My first husband died from cancer. His head hurts in the back. Could it possibly be a tapeworm?

DEAR READER — Weight loss follows the same principles of weight gain. Your body uses as many calories of energy a day as it needs to maintain itself and the number of calories used to do physical work of various types. If you take in more calories than your body uses as fat. If you use more energy than you take in you deplete the energy stored as body fat. After the fat is gone you start using the muscles for body energy.

Anyone who has unexplained weight loss must have an examination. The most common cause is an inadequate diet — not taking in enough calories. After that you need to look at problems that prevent absorbing your food — that literally prevent the calories of energy from ever getting into your body. A host of intestinal problems are in this category, including parasites which could be worms. Worms still exist in a surprising number of people but a simple stool examination and competent examination of the digestive system will demonstrate them.

The calories may be lost from the body in the urine, as in a diabetic losing sugar in the urine to cause weight loss. If you are eating enough, absorbing the calories and not losing them, the next problem could be things that increase the body's use of calories. This includes an overactive thyroid gland that is like turning up the thermostat causing the body cells to use lots more energy and release more heat. These individuals usually eat a lot and still lose weight.

The infectious diseases, including tuberculosis, cause tissue destruction and in the replacement process you use more calories. The increased heat production with a fever and the repair processes use calories. That is why you are correct in feeding a fever. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-6 Body Temperature and Fever, to give you more information on this. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Cancer can be a cause of weight loss and is one reason why anyone with this problem deserves a complete examination. The cancer cells multiply and form new growth. New growth requires energy. The best example here is the energy consumption of the growing child. It takes energy to hook together the chemical compounds that form new tissue. In cancer the combination of new growth and cell destruction may lead to rapid weight loss.

You didn't say how old your husband is, but occasionally disease of the arteries supplying the digestive system prevents it from functioning normally and prevents absorption of food. Pancreatic disease may also affect absorption. You might talk with your doctor again and see if he has any further suggestions. You may need to talk with a nutritionist to be sure he is really getting enough calories in the kind of food he eats, if there are no medical reasons for his loss of weight. Arab baubles and bangles run into millions of dollars

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS — Over the last four years emissaries of Saudi Arabian emirs, sheiks or potentates have been investing their employers' colossal fortunes in various enterprises.

Recently the state of Kuwait acquired the Tour Manhattan (one of the 26-story skyscrapers which now dot the skyline west of Paris, across the Seine) for the reputed sum of 468 million francs (roughly $90 million.) This is only one of the many acquisitions known, if only because most transactions traceable to Arabian Gulf countries are surrounded with much secrecy. However, the fact that several historical chateaux and vineyards in the Champagne and Burgundy country, villas on the Cote d'Azur plus a couple of hotels have been bought by an Arabian sheik is common knowledge.

But perhaps the most spectacular purchases by the rulers of Saudi Arabia take place in the luxurious salons of the world-renowned jewelers of the Place Vendome and the rue de la Paix.

Alain Boucheron, 32, third-generation member of a firm who happens to be one of the first to count emirs and, in the old days descendants of the pharaohs among its clients says: "It is no exaggeration to say that the sky is the limit and price is no object when a piece of jewelry appeals to the buyer — and the bigger the better. "But," he pointed out, "these princes have an innate knowledge and love of precious stones, so that they never can be put off with a piece which might have even an infinitesimal flaw, nor one which is not a last-minute creation. Incidentally, a solitary diamond of less than 10 carats does not interest them.

"Our clients come to us or we go to them," continued Boucheron. "Wives," he pointed out, "are allowed to buy trinkets up to $10,000. After that, it is the man who decides and buys."

Many of the princesses and concubines own fabulous jewels. Sets of necklace, earrings, bracelets, rings combining precious stones sometimes as large as a plover's egg and literally paved in diamonds will be ordered in triplicate in emeralds, rubies, sapphires. Some of the wealthier Arabians own as many as 100 watches, while they also have a passion for clocks of every description, often in gold and jewel-studded.

The same indifference to price is manifested when the princesses come to Paris — four or five times a year — to buy clothes. They may buy practically the whole of a collection and think nothing of

The most fabulous sale the House of Boucheron made not so long ago was an "ensemble" in emeralds and diamonds which cost $3 million. It is interesting to note that emeralds are first favorites in the "precious stone" category.

Apparently Oriental women wear jewels from the moment they open their eyes until they go to sleep.

A sheik, for example, will think nothing of offering friends and guests a jewel at the drop of a hat. Their generosity is well known. At a recent dinner, each of the 80 present found a diamond-encrusted gold watch on his plate.

The men are extremely jewel-conscious, too. Among the Boucheron collection is a batch of recent models in watches — square and round, surrounded by three rows of diamonds on platinum or gold bracelets. The price tag for these starts at $20,000. Then there are gold chains with very masculine pendants, cuff links, rings. A few months ago one of the princes ordered a gold bracelet studded with 3,000 diamonds (1,200 carats in all) for his favorite steed he mounted when hunting falcon.

Fit for a princess

Arabian wives are allowed to buy $10,000 trinkets. So, who paid for this $3 million ensemble of emeralds and diamonds which Boucheron in Paris says was ordered for an Arabian princess?

ordering 15 to 20 numbers of the same model in different colors and fabrics. They are inclined to be conservative in their taste although they are well aware of the latest style trends. Not for them, however, the mini-skirts or décolletés down to the navel. Those belong to the "naught" girls.

For really great occasions a Saudi Arabian princess will unhesitatingly set her mind on a dress with a price tag close to half a million dollars which she may wear once. Sales executives in the leading couture houses say that these new clients are often very shy, speak English better than French and are very impatient — they want everything at once.

Arabian princes, on the other hand, will usually have the outstanding men's tailors and creators of accessories come to their hotel and like

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't know about any other women, but I'm exhausted from reading novels that awaken me sexually and intellectually.

I want to shout, "Knock it off! I'm awake already."

As I nodded over a current novel the other night in bed, my husband nudged me and said, "What are you reading?"

I blinked myself awake. "It's a sensual discovery manual that says I am consumed with self-loathing and misdirected aggressions. Is there any popcorn left or did you eat it all?"

"Only the burnt ones are left. Doesn't that upset you? All that self-analysis?"

"Not really. I have to search for the wof and warp of my own existence."

"What does that mean?"

"I'm not sure, but I'm hungry all the time."

He picked up the book and for a couple of minutes was engrossed in it. Then he put it down and said, "This reminds me. Did the part come in for my lawn sweeper?"

"No. I have to check again Tuesday. Incidentally, are you reading anything I can take out of town with me next weekend?"

"What's wrong with this book?"

"Are you crazy? Do you want the entire plane to know I am being sexually and intellectually stimulated?"

"Where does it say that?"

"Men don't read all this stuff. How come women do?"

"Because we used to read trashy novels and that was bad for us."

"What's the difference between a trash novel and this?"

"Two things. The dirty words are eight-letter and it's a book club alternate."

"How much longer are you going to read? That light is shining right into my eyes."

"Just as soon as I finish the chapter on fantasies."

"You fantasize?" he asked, sitting upright.

"All the time. I have this one recurring one. I am on a train in a compartment going into the city. Across from me is a good-looking stranger.

We are both reading the same book. "Don't Let the Warrant Run Out on Your Sex Life." Finally, our eyes meet. He puts down his book, leans over and whispers, "Do you understand a word of this book?"

"I and I reply coolly, "But of course."

Good night. Good night.

Scouts offer cookie recipes

Girl Scouts began selling cookies Friday. The local Girl Scout office offers these desert recipes using different types of the cookies on sale.

Cookies 'n' Fruit

(Using Vanilla Sandwich Creams)

One can cherry pie filling into 8 inch pie plate. Press 6 to 8 vanilla sandwich cream cookies slightly into surface. Heat in 400 degree oven until bubbling, 15 minutes. Spoon into dessert dishes. Serve warm with cream. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Apricot Whip

(Using stewed dried fruitsweetened to taste)

1/2 tablespoon plain gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water
1 cup hot apricot syrup
3/4 cup crumbled Butter Shorties
1 cup whipping cream
12 stewed apricot halves

Soften gelatin in cold water; add to hot syrup and stir until dissolved. Cool and chill. When slightly jelled and beginning to set, whip until light and fluffy. Fold in crumbled cookies and whipped cream. Place the apricot halves in bottom of mold and stand Butter Shorties around the edge. Pour in gelatin mixture and chill until firm.

Date and Nut Roll

(Using Butter Shorties)

1 doz. Girl Scout Cookies broken but not too fine
3/4 cup chopped dates
14 marshmallows - cut up

1 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup whipped cream

Combine the above — saving 1/2 cup crumbs. Mix well and roll up with 1/2 cup crumbs on the outside. Wrap in waxed paper and put in refrigerator at least 5 hours. Cut in slices and top with whipped cream.

Banana-Cookie-Pudding

Place layer Shortbread Cookies in dish, add layer pudding, layer of sliced bananas. Repeat layers. Chill before serving.

Mint Ice Cream

(Using Chocolate Mint Cookies)

1 pt. Whipping cream
1 14-oz. can sweetened condensed milk
12-20 Chocolate Mint Cookies chilled

Beat whipping cream and add condensed milk slowly, mixing well. Put Mints in a paper bag and roll to crumbs. Stir these into the cream and pour into ice cube tray. When partially frozen, remove from refrigerator and stir once.

Heavenly Cookie Cream

10 Girl Scout Vanilla Sandwich Cookies, plus extra cookies

1 cup well-drained crushed pineapple
1/2 cup chopped nut meats
1/2 cup chopped dates, or drained maraschino cherries
1 cup heavy cream, or 1 pkg. dessert topping mix
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. lemon flavoring

Roll the 10 cookies between a fold of waxed paper to even crumbs (cream filling mixes with crumbs). Combine with fruits and nuts. Whip cream or prepare dessert topping mix as directed on package. Fold in "flavorings" and crumb mixture. Chill. Spoon into dessert dishes.

Set a vanilla or chocolate sandwich cookie on edge into each serving with insignia and "GS" letters on full view. Makes 6 servings.

Club news

Pampa Garden Club

Mrs. Georgia Mack was recently elected president of the Pampa Garden Club for 1977-1978. Other elected officers, to be installed at a May luncheon, include Mrs. E.L. Hudson, first vice-president; Mrs. Carlton Freeman, second vice-president; Mrs. John Gattis, recording secretary; Mrs. Tom Price, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A.B. Cross, treasurer; Mrs. Lee Harrah, historian; and Mrs. S.T. Holding, parliamentarian.

County Extension Agriculture Agent Joe VanZandt spoke on tree planting in the Panhandle. He listed the narrow-leaved evergreens that are well-adapted to our climate and good for windbreaks as the Oriental arbutus, Eastern red cedar, Austrian pine, Ponderosa pine, Scotch pine, and the pinon and Colorado spruce.

For deciduous trees he recommended the desert willow, golden rain tree, thornless honeylocust, Kentucky coffeetree, bur oak, red oak (for fall color), the osage orange or bordeaux arc, flowering and fruiting pear, apricot, persimmon, redbud (for spring color), soapberry or Chinaberry, black walnut, fruitless mulberry, and the Russian olive for windbreaks.

Stainless Steel Mixing Bowls

AMAZINGLY EASY TO USE...TO CLEAN...TO STORE

6 PIECE STAINLESS STEEL REFRIGERATOR SET plastic covers

There's nothing handier for mixing, stirring and other odd jobs in the kitchen! Made of stainless steel, it's unbreakable and built for hard use. It's wonderful for hand stirring and beating. Cut-of-the-way ring handle provides a secure grip to prevent slipping or spilling — permits hanging bowl for storage, saves cupboard space. Bowl can be used on range to warm ingredients — excellent for storing foods in the refrigerator. Polished exterior and satin-finish interior with gently rounded sides makes cleaning amazingly easy.

DRAMA FELLOWS

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) - The four recipients of the CBS Fellowships in Creative Writing at the Yale School of Drama for the 1976-77 academic year are Eric Bentley, William Hauptman, Arthur Kopit and David Mamet. The fellows will write plays as well as conduct seminars and lectures for playwrighting students at the School of Drama.

FLOUR POWER WASHINGTON (AP) - Nearly 95 percent of all bread eaten in America is made by 24,000 commercial bakeries which employ more than 400,000 persons. Each year these bakers use more than 15 billion pounds of flour, ground from more than 345 million bushels of wheat. They also use 223 million pounds of dried milk; 1.3 million pounds of shortening; 2.4 million pounds of sugar; more than 300 million pounds of corn syrup and millions of pounds of fruits and nuts.

Stockton tops Connors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dick Stockton acted like he could not understand what all the excitement was about, why everyone was treating him as if he had just found a new supply of natural gas.

The 25-year-old Stockton shocked a crowd of 14,571 with a 3-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 triumph Sunday over Jimmy Connors, the world's top-ranked tennis player.

But Stockton treated it nonchalantly, even though he had not beaten Connors since they were juniors in 1969. And then, according to Connors, Jimmy was just 5-foot-4 and 98 pounds. The upset should not have been that surprising. It completed the elimination of the top 10 seeded players, who fell like bowling pins all week.

Connors had not lost more than three games in any set in advancing to the final with victories over Buster Mottram, Wojtek Fibak, Tony Roche and Cliff Drysdale.

He had enveloped himself in an aura of invincibility.

"People seem to have the opinion that it's Connors and then everybody else," said Stockton after picking up his $40,000 check as winner of the $200,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

Watson wins Williams

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "Well," sighed veteran Tour official Don Mirandi, "it looks like we've got another Nicklaus on our hands."

It may be a little early to start placing Tom Watson in that category, but there's no question that he's the outstanding player of the new pro golf season and almost certainly the brightest of the young stars who are replacing the more established names and claiming the rich tour for their own.

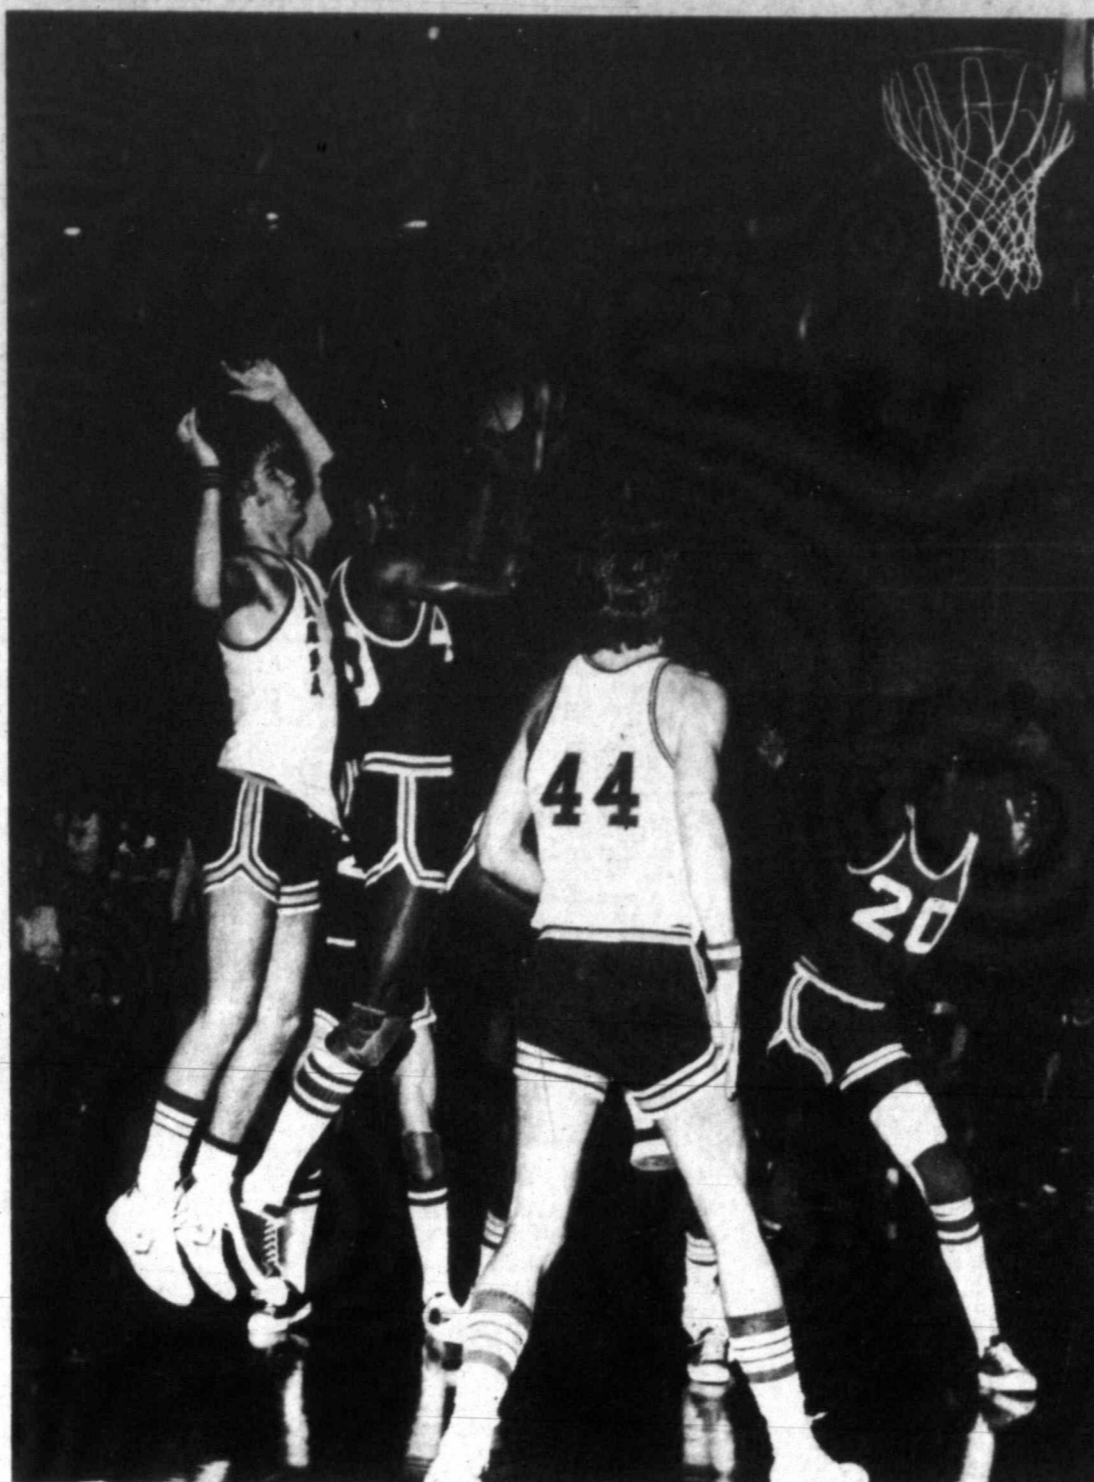

He's finished fourth-first in his last three starts, has played those three events 42 strokes below par and has set scoring records in both his victories — in the Bing Crosby a week ago and in Sunday's San Diego Open.

While his heroics have drawn the inevitable comparisons with Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller and others — Watson, intelligent, friendly, a growing favorite with the galleries and a golfing Tom Sawyer — red-haired and freckle-faced — isn't yet ready to rank himself with the game's greats.

John Schroeder, with a closing 67, and Larry Nelson, 69, tied for second five shots back at 274. Neither ever really threatened.

Australian rookie Bob Shearer, the only man who had a shot at Watson, slipped to a 73 and tied for fourth with Jerry McGee at 275. McGee had a last-round 68.

Tight squeeze

Palo Duro's Cleveland Winston hauls down a rebound despite pressure by Don Hughes and Rusty Ward (44). Pampa won the district contest, 69-61, Friday to earn at least a tie for the conference's first-half championship. The Harvesters can win the first go-round by knocking off Amarillo Tuesday in Harvesters Fieldhouse. (Pampa News photo by Shirley Anderson)

Smith to lead Sandies Tuesday against PHS

Stopping Mike Smith, District 3-AAAA's leading scorer, will be a major objective of the Pampa Harvesters, who host the Amarillo High Sandies with a shot at claiming the first-half conference title outright in a 7:45 p.m. game Tuesday.

Pampa, 18-5 overall having won its last five games, is 3-0 in district play, with wins over Amarillo schools Caprock, Tascosa and most recently Palo Duro, 69-61 Friday.

Amarillo, 9-13 for the season, lost to Tascosa Friday, 60-54, evening the Sandies' loop record at 1-1.

"We know they're going to come in real emotional against us," Pampa Coach Robert McPherson said, "because they still have a chance to tie for this thing."

A Sandie win against Pampa and Friday against Palo Duro would mean a tie between Pampa and Amarillo for the first-half championship. Tascosa, at 2-1, also is in the running for a share of the title.

Pampa can wrap up the first-half crown and assure itself of a spot in the district championship game, if one is necessary, by beating Amarillo. Tuesday's contest is the first-half finale for the Harvesters, who meet Canyon in a non-conference game Wednesday night in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum. "We have to play with a lot of enthusiasm and aggressiveness if we're going to win,"

McPherson said. "We have to play much better than we did against Palo Duro. We have to handle the ball better — we made too many costly turnovers."

"And we have to do a better job offensively outside on Smith because he's too good a shooter. Against Palo Duro, we didn't put that much pressure on him outside."

McPherson said Smith is "the best offensive player in the district. He's a good shooter and he drives well. The kid is capable of getting 35 or 40 points on us if we don't play good defense."

Smith, averaging 23.5 points, is the district's scoring leader and probably among the state's top scorers. Complementing him inside for the Sandies is 6-7 post Eric Jacobsen, one of 3-AAAA's most respected posts.

The Pampa junior varsity, winner of its five games and 14-6 overall, can win the first-half B-team title Tuesday by beating Amarillo in a 6 p.m. game.

UCLA trips Vols

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The UCLA Bruins felt right at home in the Atlanta Omni Sunday. In fact, they enjoyed playing there so much that they plan to return in March.

Eighth-ranked UCLA put on a devastating shooting display in snapping No. 7 Tennessee's 12-game winning streak 103-89 before a national television audience. The next important collegiate basketball games to be played in the Omni are the NCAA semifinals in late March, and the 16-2 Bruins appear to be a solid bet to be involved.

The Bruins were paced by sophomore guard Roy Hamilton's 30 points and forward Marques Johnson's 24, including several spectacular slam dunks.

Tennessee, 14-3, trailed throughout and rallied just once when Ernie Grunfeld's three-point play with just under 17 minutes left narrowed UCLA's lead to 56-52. Bernard King had 31 points for Tennessee and Grunfeld 23 before fouling out with 5:14 remaining.

While top-ranked San Francisco survived a scare by Santa Clara before subduing the Broncos 71-70 Saturday night for the second time last week, several other members of The Associated Press Top 20 were not so lucky. The other four members of the top five all lost, although No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas' 104-77 defeat by Athletics in Action was only an exhibition game.

No. 2 Michigan was upset by lowly (5-13) Northwestern 99-87. No. 3 Alabama lost a key Southeastern Conference battle at home to No. 6 Kentucky 87-85, and fourth-ranked North Carolina ended an 8-2 week with an Atlantic Coast Conference loss to No. 19 Clemson 93-73.

In other games involving the Top 20, No. 9 Marquette romped over DePaul 85-64. 10th-rated Wake Forest topped Appalachian State 83-73. No. 11 Louisville took Rhode Island 105-87. 12th-ranked Cincinnati beat Duquesne 83-65; Minnesota, No. 13, beat Big Ten Conference rival Ohio State 77-67. 15th-rated Arkansas defeated Baylor 68-59. No. 16 Arizona stopped Colorado State 77-72. 18th-ranked Purdue edged Illinois 66-63, and No. 20 Memphis State outshot Dayton 81-67.

No. 14 Providence was idle and No. 17 Syracuse's game against La Salle was postponed because of heavy snow. Several other college games also were postponed throughout the storm-plagued East and Midwest.

San Francisco squeezed by Santa Clara on Chubby Cox' basket with two seconds left. The Dons recovered from a 16-point second-half deficit.

Northwestern Coach Tex Winter called the victory over Michigan "the sweetest win I've ever had in basketball." Billy McKinney led the upset with 29 points.

Arkansas seeks title, faces SMU, Houston

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Arkansas takes dead aim at salting away the regular season Southwest Conference basketball title this week, then the 19th ranked Razorbacks can sit back and watch the scramble in the first round of the post-season tournament Feb. 26.

Saturday, March 5.

Last year Texas A&M won the regular title but lost to Texas Tech in Dallas in the post-season tournament.

Here's how the Feb. 26 first round shapes up with, of course, possible changes with seven games left.

either SMU or Texas A&M. A&M and SMU are each 5-4 and Baylor and Texas Tech 4-5. It's a tight race for the fifth and sixth spots on the SWC ladder.

TCU is still winless and Rice has only won one game. Houston and Tech have a virtual lock on a homecourt advantage.

But post-tournament thoughts are the furthest thing from Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton's mind.

"I keep telling you anybody can pull off a surprise in the conference this year," said Sutton.

But there is a distinct difference between the Arkansas team of 1976 and the steamroller of 77.

"We've got a lot of poise and discipline," said Sutton. "We played three games this last week and no doubt we were physically exhausted. We missed a lot of free throws against Baylor at the last but I guess I'm just spoiled."

Arkansas crunched Baylor 68-59 at Heart 'O Texas Coliseum in Waco after victories over Texas A&M and SMU earlier in the week.
