

Longest hijacking ends with capture

...In your Easter bonnet

Two-and-a-half-year-old Tiffany Soukoup did some shopping Tuesday for her new Easter bonnet. The youngster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Soukoup of 210 N. Nelson, wears a smile of happiness while modeling a new hat. Spring fashion sales are reported on the upswing, in part due to the annual display of new finery for Easter Sunday, April 10.

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — An Italian hijacker was overpowered and arrested today at the end of an 8,500-mile pirate flight in a Spanish airliner around Europe and West Africa. It was the longest hijacking on record.

Police said the hijacker, Luciano Porcari, 36, shot and slightly wounded one of the three policemen who seized him inside the plane. No one else was hurt, the police said.

The three policemen entered the plane posing as members of a fresh flight crew that was to fly the Iberian Airlines Boeing 727 to Moscow. They overpowered the hijacker within moments.

The 13 passenger-hostages still aboard the plane and the seven exhausted crew members who had manned the aircraft since early Monday afternoon were released unharmed. The hijacking lasted 44½ hours.

Also aboard was Porcari's 3-year-old daughter by an African mistress but his estranged Italian wife refused to surrender their 5-year-old daughter to him.

Porcari released seven other passengers in Turin, Italy, and nine in Zurich Tuesday.

The hijacker brought the plane to Zurich from Warsaw where he had agreed to free all hostages in exchange for the new crew to fly him to Moscow. After three hours of negotiations, the Spanish ambassador to Poland, Jesus Millarado, said.

"We can't understand the man's mind. He must be crazy. It has nothing to do with politics. He just thinks he's solving his personal problems."

Porcari, an auto mechanic, seized the plane on a flight from Barcelona to Mallorca on Monday afternoon. He was armed with a pistol and a rifle and his goal was to get hold of his two daughters.

After a refueling stop in Abidjan, the plane flew to Abidjan, the capital of the Ivory Coast, on the under side of the West African bulge. Porcari once worked there, and officials met his demands for delivery of his child by a local woman and $140,000 in cash.

The plane flew back to Spain, refueled in Sevilla, and then went to Turin, where Porcari's estranged wife, Bella Zavoli, lives with their 5-year-old daughter, Consuelo. But the mother was adamant, saying "I cannot leave my daughter in the hands of a man who can commit terrible things."

Porcari ordered the plane to Zurich, negotiated for 90 minutes with an Italian official, ordered the plane into the air, then brought it back in 25 minutes for refueling.

The plane then circled over Turin and Porcari told his elderly mother in the airport control tower he was going to Moscow because "I do not trust the Italian police."

However, there was never any indication that the Soviets would let the plane land on their territory, and from Turin the airliner went to Warsaw.

The longest previous hijack was a 6,900-mile flight in November 1969 by Raphael Minichello, a Vietnam veteran born in Italy.

Voter turnout heavy in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The world's largest election began today as India's silent masses went to the polls to elect a new lower house of Parliament and to decide whether Prime Minister Indira Gandhi will continue in power.

The voter turnout was reported heavier than usual, a development that Mrs. Gandhi's opponents had said should prove favorable to them.

Voting was scheduled today in 300 of the country's 542 election districts and continues through Sunday. First results were to be announced then, after the last balloting.

The 59-year-old prime minister made a final campaign appeal to the 320 million voters not to believe opposition charges that she had been a dictator since she put the country under a national state of emergency 21 months ago, jailed thousands of her opponents, censored the press and drastically amended the constitution.

"If I had been a dictator, the people would not have been able to talk about dictatorship and elections to Parliament would not have been possible," she told a rally in her native state of Uttar Pradesh.

A helicopter took her to district after district, seeking votes for her Congress party. India's governing party since independence in 1947. The Congress is opposed by the new Janata (Peoples') party, a coalition of five parties formed to defeat Mrs. Gandhi.

Reports from around the country indicated that the polling was generally peaceful. Only a few incidents of violence were reported, primarily in the Calcutta area, where Mrs. Gandhi's opposition charged Congress party workers "captured" some voting stations to prevent normal polling. The police said they were investigating.

In the last election, in 1971, the Congress party won a two-thirds majority in the lower house, enabling it to amend the constitution without difficulty during the emergency. But Mrs. Gandhi's emergency rule united her opponents as they never had been brought together before and split the Congress party, and neutral observers thought the outcome would be close.

One of the chief issues in the campaign was Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son, Sanjay, who took over the leadership of the Congress party's youth wing during the emergency period and is running for Parliament for the first time.

Mrs. Gandhi's foes charged that she is grooming him to succeed her and continue the family hold on power that began with her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, who was India's first prime minister. She vigorously denied the charge.

Monday night, Sanjay and his aides reported that shots were fired at his jeep as he was returning to his campaign headquarters, but no one was hit. The opposition said the alleged assassination attempt was faked.

Judge appointment postponed

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON
Pampa News Staff

The expected announcement of a replacement for recently-promoted County Judge Don Cain did not happen during Monday's executive session of the Gray County commissioners.

Following the brief closed meeting, Judge Cain said no official action had been taken. A commissioner told The News a new judge probably would be named at the April 1 meeting, since Judge Cain's promotion as judge of a newly-created district will not be official until that time.

In action during open session, a Panhandle Regional Planning Commission request for possible aid to the Amarillo drug abuse and alcohol rehabilitation center was approved with an amendment.

John Dillard of the PRPC said the rehabilitation center has been operating on federal funds for a three-year pilot program expiring in June. He said application for renewal of funds has been made, but coordinator Claudia Stewart is asking help from 25 counties served by the center on a standby basis.

Judge Cain, who presided at the meeting, recommended passage of the resolution to assist with the center's funding should it become necessary — with an added clause to protect the county.

"I think this should read 'we will financially support if our ability permits it,' as I don't want to bind this court unless such help is feasible and the county can do it," he said.

He added that he felt federal funds should be exhausted before help of counties be asked, and said Gray County should support the program if necessary.

"We have not been charged to date for patients we've sent there," he stated, adding he felt the center is doing an excellent job.

"But I don't think we should sign without an amendment — we want to support the program but need to protect the county with an Oklahoma guarantee that we'll help if we can. If federal funds are cut off, as they sometimes are, I don't feel the counties can do the job alone."

Motion was made for approval of the resolution as amended and it passed unanimously.

Another PRPC resolution received a nod from the commissioners. A request was heard that the county pay 25 percent of the bill for a booster to improve radio communications equipment for the sheriff's office. The resolution said present equipment results in weak transmissions in certain areas. The county's share of the expense amounts to $815.71.

Commissioners approved the resolution by a unanimous vote.

A request by the Beautify Texas Council to endorse a clean-up and beautification by organized youth groups in the state was also approved by the commissioners.

Judge Cain explained the petition as a "courtesy resolution to support efforts of such organized groups as 4-H, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls in 'Keep America Beautiful Day,' set for April 23.

President sends help for invasion in Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Belgian weapons and American medical and military equipment have been speeded to Zaire as it tries to repel what it calls an invasion of "foreign mercenaries" from Angola.

Officials of the central African nation said today that the invaders who crossed into copper-rich Shaba Province last week were 5,000 mercenary troops led by "guerrilla and subversive war specialists from across the Atlantic."

The comment was considered a clear reference to Cuban forces which were instrumental in establishing a Marxist regime in Angola. The bulk of the forces, however, are believed to be exile guerrillas from Zaire itself.

Belgium's weapons shipments were the first ones reported by any country since Zaire announced the invasion last week. The Belgian Foreign Ministry said the two plane-loads of light weapons had been ordered earlier and were only being speeded up. Some sources said 5,000 to 7,000 Belgians are still living in the invaded province, which was the Province of Katanga when Zaire was the Belgian Congo.

The Carter administration was hurrying $1 million in medical and military equipment to Zaire, including communications equipment, parachutes, packs, rations and fuel tanks.

It was Carter administration's first involvement in foreign warfare and a spokesman said Carter himself had made the decision.

U.S. officials said they had no confirmation that Cubans were involved in whatever fighting was taking place.

The Carter administration has been making overtures to Castro in hopes of improving relations with Cuba. Cuban intervention in Zaire could disrupt that effort.

Firemen battle burning truck

WHITE DEER — Highway traffic was rerouted on Highway 60 Tuesday evening while firemen battled a blaze which sent flames an estimated 60 feet into the air.

Carson County Chief Deputy Buck Fields said a truck was unloading gasoline at the B and B Solvent Co. located at the west edge of White Deer when fire erupted. The driver escaped injury and fire units from White Deer, Pampa, Panhandle and Celanese Chemical Co. responded to the alarm.

"If that tank had exploded, it would have gone up like a rocket," a member of the Texas Department of Public Safety told The News.

A fireman at the scene said that several of the large rear tires on the truck exploded, leading nearby residents to believe the accident was much more serious than it actually was.

Smoke and flames reportedly could be seen 15 miles from the scene.

The fire crews had the blaze under control in about one hour and the tank truck was destroyed.

When first arriving on the scene a law enforcement officer said the firemen were in grave danger from the risk of an explosion since the burning truck was just a few feet from the large storage tank. Officials also feared for a time the intensity of the fire might trigger gasoline explosions in the area.

The incident occurred at about 4 p.m. and two units from the Metropolitan Ambulance Service of Pampa were also called to the scene in the event of any injuries.

The driver of the truck was Jimmy Gattin, 23, of Lefors.

A spokesman of B and B Solvent told The News the damage estimate was about $25,000.

Firemen from White Deer, Pampa, Panhandle and Celanese Chemical Co. joined forces Tuesday evening and prevented what could have been a major fire. Flames erupted while a truck was unloading gasoline from a large storage tank at the rear of B and B Solvent Co. on Highway 60 in White Deer. No injuries were reported in the fire. (Pampa News photo by Gene Anderson)

Band rehearsals earn fans, praise

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

DUBLIN, Ireland — A rehearsal period for the Pampa High stage band turned into a lively dance in the gymnasium of a Catholic girls' school on the outskirts of Dublin today.

Meanwhile, in a downtown Dublin television station, Jeff Doughton, director of the Pride of Pampa Band, appeared in a TV interview about Thursday's St. Patrick's Day Parade.

The entire band rehearsed its parade routine outside the Catholic boys' school a few blocks from the girls' school. Students and teachers lined the short practice route and applauded at appropriate times.

The staghe band makes friends and attracts large audiences at each rehearsal. Sunday and Monday nights the John F. Kennedy Band from Anaheim, Calif., winner of the overall trophy in the Sunday parade at Limerick, stayed in the same Killarney hotel as the Pampa band. The band members of the two groups did not seem to get along, although there were no outbreaks of any kind.

However, when the stage band performed in the hotel lobby Monday night the California students made a lively, receptive audience and animosities were forgotten. One California student remarked to this reporter, "You guys are really great. I said a lot of bad things about you today but I take them all back."

The first part of today was spent touring downtown Dublin and shopping. Thursday is the big day with the St. Patrick's Day Parade and the Lord Mayor's Ball.

Dallas' 'friendly rapist' indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas man identified by police as the "friendly rapist" has been indicted on three counts of burglary. The indictments returned Monday accuse Guy William Marble Jr., 29, of burglarizing three different apartments in Dallas in 1975 and 1976. Dist. Atty. Henry Wade said that the burglary indictments were sought instead of rape indictments because burglary would be easier to prove in court than aggravated rape. Wade pointed out that rape carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison while burglary of a dwelling carries a maximum sentence of life in prison. "You have to carve one offense out of one transaction," Wade said in explaining that the same complaining witness cannot be used to gain two separate convictions. Wade also said that prosecutors will have to prove that Marble burglarized a residence with the intention of committing a felony or theft. He said the evidence against Marble in the burglary charges would include testimony from the alleged victims that they were sexually assaulted and that money or other personal belongings were taken.

Marble, an advertising executive, was arrested Feb. 14 outside an apartment in the north section of Dallas by officers who were staking out the area in an attempt to find the man who was reportedly responsible for more than 40 rapes in the area. He had been called the "friendly rapist" by police because of his attitude towards his victims. Marble is being held in lieu of $750,000 bond.

'Radio Reen' link to Falklands

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON Associated Press Writer

PORT STANLEY, Falkland Islands (AP) — When the inhabitants of this windy British Crown Colony in the frigid South Atlantic need anything, they call Katherine Rowlands by radio.

Mrs. Rowlands, better known as "Radio Reen" by her scattered listeners, presides over the Port Stanley base station which monitors some 37 short wave radio bases in the Falklands.

The radio system, operated by the local government, serves as a lifeline for almost inaccessible sheep-raising settlements, providing services ranging from a radio doctor to wedding messages.

"You don't get bored in this job," said Mrs. Rowlands, in her 30's, as she fiddled with dials of her radio transmitter-receiver in a tiny wooden shed, adjacent to a tiny wooden firehouse overlooking Port Stanley.

There are only 12 miles of roads in the Falklands, a loose collection of 200 islands about the size of Northern Ireland.

Outside of Port Stanley, where 900 of the colony's 1,957 staunchly British islanders live, small boats, float planes and tough four-wheeled vehicles provide limited access to outlying areas.

A small but efficient crank-phone system operates in Port Stanley and connects some of the larger settlements further away.

One of the two doctors from the Port Stanley Hospital just a few blocks away from Reen's shed presides over medical consultations at 8:30 a.m. daily.

The doctor patiently listens to even the most seemingly trivial medical complaint, if only to give a few words of cheering advice to a lonely housewife living in a farflung sheep settlement.

"Stevens calling Stanley, calling Stanley," crackled Mrs. Rowlands' radio speaker as Dr. Peter Summers listened at her side.

Anne Robertson, living in Stevens, a settlement located at the southern tip of West Falkland Island, reported that Philip, just 8½ months old, had little spots on his body. She sounded worried.

Summers listened intently and asked several questions about just what the spots looked like.

"It sounds like diaper rash to me," Mrs. Robertson, he finally said, and gave her the name of an ointment to apply several times a day. The settlements keep ample stocks of medicine on hand.

When a case sounds serious, the government floatplane service is called and the patient is brought into Port Stanley for a hospital checkup.

The hospital is equipped to handle surgery cases and routinely delivers babies. But really serious cases mean sending patients to Argentina on once-a-week air flights.

DAN CARTER SALUTES THE CUSTOMER OF THE DAY MRS. W.P. BATEN JR.

The isolation and lack of amenities available in the outside world, doesn't mean that one can't lead a full life in the Falklands, says Harry Milne, the manager of the Falkland Islands Co., which owns about 46 per cent of the land in the islands.

Most homes here have wall-to-wall carpeting, stereo consoles, washing machines and freezers.

"In Great Britain, entertainment and food comes out of the can," he said. "Here, almost everyhouse has its vegetable garden. When beef is available, it's half a beef or a quarter and it must be cut up and frozen or, we catch fish and then clean them ourselves for the freezer."

It appears that the major hobby of many of the men in Port Stanley, a community of five taverns and three churches is drinking.

"We have the highest per capita of hangovers in the world," proudly claimed a grandmotherly lady presiding behind the bar of one of them, as she delicately sipped her third brandy of the evening.

He started with a calf

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Miami Hereford breeder Wayne Maddox remembers when Walter Britten, a classmate at Texas A&M in the 1930's, would stand up in class and auction whatever he could get his hands on. It was great entertainment to fill the minutes until the instructor arrived.

And Jake Hess of McLean told of watching Britten auction his first calf in the mid-30's. That was the start of a career at selling livestock that is still going strong.

The calf was being auctioned for charity. Hess said, and the bidding would get up in the $6-8 range. Britten would declare the animal sold and the buyer would turn it back to be sold again.

"He must have sold that calf seven or eight times," Hess said.

Britten, raised at Groom, now makes his home in Bryan. He was in Pampa Tuesday night to deliver the keynote address at the annual Top of Texas Hereford Breeders Association banquet. This afternoon he will take charge of selling 43 head of registered Hereford cattle to the highest bidder at the association's annual sale.

Britten's visit is something like a homecoming. Many of the association members like Hess and Maddox go back many years in their friendships with Britten.

Britten majored in agriculture economics at Texas A&M, but when he got out of college he selected auctioneering as his livelihood. He had attended an auctioneering school in 1933.

"I had done a little selling before I went to A&M," Britten said. "It was impossible in '37 or '38 to get a job. I could pick up a few dollars here or there on weekends."

He said he would be paid $5-7.50 for an auction.

"None of us had any money of course when we got out of A&M. We were all poor as snails."

"I've had some very difficult sales — in the drought when people had no need for stock. I've been in the business long enough to have sold 'em as high as they can sell and also when I couldn't hardly give them away," he said.

"It was difficult to sell," he said of the Thirties. "Things were very, very difficult. And I might say one of the bull sales at Amarillo averaged less than $40 per head."

"But that wasn't anything. When we were kids showing steers, they'd bring four, and a half cents per pound."

"At one livestock show in which he had entered a steer, the show management announced a sale for the day of the competition. Youngsters were told the sale money would be forwarded to them when, and if, the buyers were able to pay."

"It's better now," Britten said. "People can get credit now. So many young people now are kind of spoiled and I've had a lot to do with getting them spoiled."

He has auctioneered the Houston Junior Livestock Sale for 37 years. The champion steer this year brought $42,000 and the champion barrow sold for $21,000.

Britten said he works primarily registered Hereford and Santa Gertrudis sales, as well as some quarter horse and junior livestock sales.

"The only quarter horses I sell now are the King Ranch Production Sale," he said.

"I've always sold their horses and cattle."

He has worked the sale at the famed ranch 26 years, every year it has been offered.

Walter Britten

For the past 28 years, Britten has tried to pass on some of his knowledge to students at an auctioneering school he offers for two weeks each summer.

"I'm happy to say most of the outstanding auctioneers in the United States have been students in our school," he said.

"Auctioneering can be a tough game, he said.

"We have to display knowledge of the products we're selling. The most important thing an auctioneer has to know is sales psychology. It's not difficult to teach someone how to auction. But the other things like figuring out just what kind of crowd you've got, how much they're willing to spend — that only comes with experience."

He said he used to make sales in about 37 states each year, but now his travels are restricted to about 15-18 states.

"The highest priced bull I ever sold went to for $105,000 and I've sold horses at near $85,000 — from there all the way down to about nothing."

Does Britten ever regret the turns his life has taken since he left Groom in 1933? Not for a minute.

"I'd do it again. But the greatest thing, I've had to learn to know so many people. I'm pretty much at home just about everywhere. One of the good things about this business is I work with cattle people primarily."

"There are a lot of phases of auctioneering more lucrative than what I'm in, but if I had to do it over, I wouldn't want to change too much."

Congress panel reviews Indians

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Indians living on reservations should be given the power of self-determination, including the authority to levy taxes and to try non-Indians in their tribal courts, a report for Congress says.

These are among more than 100 recommendations contained in a report by the American Indian Policy Review Commission, a member of the panel said Tuesday night.

The full report is scheduled to be released this week. The 11-member commission was set up by Congress two years ago to review U.S. Indian policy. The panel includes six congressmen and five representatives of Indian tribes.

Basically, the commission has recommended that tribes be considered as sovereign nations, said Rep. Lloyd Meeds, D-Wash.

Meeds is the only member to strongly disagree with the report's recommendations. The report is being distributed to more than 1,000 groups for comment before it is submitted to Congress on May 18.

Pete Taylor, a commission staff member who helped write the report, said it was an attempt to recognize that the existing powers in Indian tribes "should be the primary government authority on reservations."

He added, "The long-term objective should be bringing those tribes into a position where they are the primary governmental authority."

Meeds said he particularly disagreed with the recommendation that Indians be given the power to tax non-Indians on reservations. He complained that, "Non-Indians wouldn't have any representation in making the decisions. We fought a Revolutionary War over that."

In addition to granting Indians full legal rights to run their own affairs, the report also criticizes the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA). Meeds said the report contends the bureau has interfered in tribal elections and plays off tribe against tribe.

The report recommends replacing the bureau with an independent agency.

Under terms of the commission's charter, Congress must consider its recommendations within two years.

The commission is chaired by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D. Also on the panel are: Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., and Reps. Don Young, R-Alaska, and Sidney Yates, D-Ill.

The five Indian members are: Jake Whitcower, a Quapaw from Oklahoma; Ada Deer, a Menominee from Wisconsin; John Borbridge of Alaska; former BIA Commissioner Louis Bruce, a Mohawk from New York; and Adolph Dial, a Lumbee from North Carolina.

Taylor said Bruce did not disagree with the report's critical remarks about the BIA.

Ex-CIA man says money wasn't offered

NEW YORK (AP) — The man who headed covert CIA operations in Mexico City in 1963 says Lee Harvey Oswald neither asked for nor received any aid from the Cubans or Russians in assassinating President Kennedy.

In fact, David Atlee Phillips writes in "The Night Watch," none of the CIA personnel in Mexico City had ever heard of Oswald, and were unaware that he had defected to the Soviet Union, married a Russian wife, and then returned to the United States.

Task force okays medicaid proposals

HOUSTON (AP) — Preliminary recommendations to improve Texas' financially-plagued Medicaid program for welfare recipients have been approved by a state task force.

Among proposals endorsed Tuesday by the Task Force for the Evaluation of Medicaid in Texas was one calling for the expansion of the Medicaid program to help the estimated 500,000 "working poor" in the state who are excluded from the program because they did not fit in a category of poor recognized by the State Department of Public Welfare.

The task force of 47 citizens from across the state also suggested at its meeting here that the program be redesigned to provide for the chronically ill and for catastrophic illness. It recommended that access to medical care be determined by need and not by personal income and urged adoption of a National Health Insurance program.

The task force will reconvene in Austin March 30 to finalize its recommendations and submit a report to the State Board of Public Welfare.

The committee, formed by the state welfare board and headed by former U. S. Postmaster Gen. W. Marvin Watson of Daingerfield, was asked to suggest changes by mid-March so they can be taken to the legislature in time to be acted upon before the new appropriations bill is passed.

Carters overlook party for author

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a party for the author of "How Jimmy Won" but Jimmy and most of his White House associates described in the book were conspicuously absent.

The Carters were invited all right, but a White House secretary called that afternoon to say, "Mrs. Carter wouldn't attend." Mr. Carter didn't either.

Nor did White House Press Secretary Jody Powell, whom the author described as someone many news people like but just don't trust.

However Mary Hoyt, who is Mrs. Carter's press secretary, was there, but she said she had yet to read the book.

The author, free lance writer Kandy Stroud spent the evening autographing copies of her book and introducing her 7-year-old daughter, Brooke, to many of Washington's permanent party goers who survived the change in administrations.

Iranian Ambassador Ardehsar Zahedi, fresh from his successful negotiations with the Hanafi Moslem terrorists was there.

So was television star Lorne Greene, a house guest of the host, former representative turned oil lobbyist Frank Ikard, and his wife Jayne, formerly of Newsweek.

The book, a collection of anecdotes from the Carter campaign trail, will be published next week by William Morrow and Co., Inc.

Conservation course to be meeting topic

A new conservation course at Pampa High School will be reviewed during today's meeting of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District.

The meeting is slated for 2 p.m. in the courthouse annex.

Other topics in the 12-point agenda are the possibility of sponsoring a conservation education workshop teacher, and a report of the Panhandle Association of SWCD meeting at Friona, attended by Milton Carpenter and Robert Sailor.

The group will assist members of the Pampa Noon Lions Club select the winner of the club's Outstanding Soil Conservationist Award.

Watershed topics of discussion on the agenda include Red Deer and McClellan Creek projects. Attendance of a Red Deer Creek Watershed meeting March 21 at Canadian will be considered.

The District Conservationist's letter on SCS activities in Gray County SWCD for February will be read, and a tour of lovegrass plantings and management in cooperation with the county agent will be discussed.

The agenda also includes development of the spring newsletter and payment of approved bills.

Pampans begin Hang-up fund

A group of concerned citizens has started a fund to assist the owner of Pampa's Hang-Up Shop, which burned recently.

According to the fund's founders, there was no insurance on contents of the macrame and plant shop. Its owner, Mrs. Gay Weatherford of 2126 Williston, lost approximately $4,000 in macrame plant holders, as well as an undetermined amount of green plants and ornamental flower pots. She indicated she would reopen her shop if economically possible.

The fund, called "The Hang-Up," is at Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of Pampa.

Hearing set for landfill

A public hearing is scheduled at City Hall for 9 a.m. Wednesday, April 13, on Pampa's application for a permit to operate its existing solid waste landfill on the 140-acre site one mile northeast of the city limits.

The hearing, according to John T. Richards of Austin, the examiner, will give any interested persons the right to present evidence for or against issuance of the permit.

The application has been filed by the City with the State Department of Health Resources under the Texas Solid Waste Disposal Act.

The facility receives approximately 75 tons of solid waste per day.

Tax program may be bigger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax cut and spending program launched by President Carter to jogg the lagging economy is snowballing through Congress and seems certain to emerge bigger than it started.

How much bigger it will be than $31.6 billion — the administration's latest two-year estimate — is still a question.

The answer may play a key role in determining whether Carter will be able to fulfill his promise to balance the budget by 1981.

The House on Tuesday voted a $23.3 billion appropriation to fund major elements of Carter's program and substantial additions by Congress.

The bill reached the House floor containing $4 billion for public works this year, twice the amount Carter sought. Amendments backed by the Democratic House leadership added $707 million to the total.

The House was planning to consider another appropriation bill, a catchall $27.9 billion measure, late today. More attempts to add stimulus money were expected, and some were likely to succeed.

The leadership is backing amendments, the exact amount of which were not settled in advance, to add funds for recreational programs and some military construction, advocated as an aid to lagging employment in the building trades.

On top of that, a bipartisan group of House members planned to fight for an amendment adding $200 million to help low-income persons pay fuel bills swollen by the bitter winter now ending.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, estimated the additions made Tuesday and those expected today would increase economic stimulus spending during the present year by $1.7 billion above Carter's $15.7 billion estimate.

Spending figures for a given year usually do not correspond with appropriations because of

PD members back home from school

Four members of the Pampa Police Department have recently returned from special schooling, according to Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills.

Detective J.J. Ryzman completed a one week management police school in east Texas. The course was designed to instruct police command officers in the new ways of management, Mills said.

Lt. Robert Scott is a qualified breathalyzer operator after completing a school at Lamar University and Officers Travis Rowland and K.A. Ogle attended a one week school on sex crimes in Amarillo. The school was taught by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Police report

Pampa Police investigated a call Monday evening reporting a man on Varnon Drive with a gun.

John D. Young Sr. was arrested and charged with intoxication and unlawful carrying of arms.

A tire and mag were reported stolen from a vehicle parked in the driveway of 525 N. Christy.

Police also reported a headlight stolen from a motorcycle parked on the lot of T and D Auto Sales.

The highway patrol investigated a one-car rollover 8.5 miles southwest of Pampa on FM 2300. A pickup driven by a Groom youth went out of control on a curve and rolled once landing on its right side.

The accident occurred at 8 a.m. this morning.

The youth escaped injury.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A friend of ours recently gave birth to an abnormal child (a Mongoloid). We, her friends, are terribly upset about it, and the poor woman and her husband are in a deep depression.

What should friends do under the circumstances? We certainly can't "congratulate" the parents.

Should we acknowledge the birth of this unfortunate child? Should we send a gift? (What does one send a Mongoloid child?) Or would it be kinder to ignore the tragedy?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Perhaps "congratulations" are not in order, but to ignore the birth of a child when you would normally express interest is, I think, cruel. So send a little gift (the same as you would to any other child), and show a continuing interest (not curiosity).

DEAR ABBY: During our two-year marriage, my husband and I have had some very difficult times including separation, a filing for and finally a cancellation of divorce proceedings.

The big problem is this: He thinks I should always be willing to have sex whenever HE feels like it.

Whenever we have an argument, which is often, my husband says some very cruel and cutting things to me, then he says, "I didn't mean what I said. Now can we have sex?"

I think it's nice that he says he's sorry, but I'm in no mood to have sex with him two minutes after he has ripped me up one side and down the other, and hurt my feelings by talking mean and ugly to me.

I need a little time to cool off after an argument, and having sex isn't my idea of cooling off. In an effort to save my marriage, I need your opinion.

NEEDING TIME OUT

DEAR NEEDING: I think you should take all the time out you need. And if your husband expects sex on demand because HE'S in the mood without considering YOUR mood, you may be trying to save a marriage that's not worth saving.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who deeply regrets not letting her husband go to "the other woman" 10 years ago. He left me for her once, but I fought him so hard over the divorce settlement that he came back to me but continued to see her.

I knew in my heart that they really loved each other, but I couldn't think of her as anything but a tramp who had stolen my husband.

If I had let him go, I probably could have made a new life for myself, but I hung onto him for security.

As my husband lay dying in the hospital, her name—not mine—was on his lips. If I had let him go when he wanted to, maybe he'd be alive and happy today, for heartaches, pressure and frustration can undermine a man's health. I saw it happen. I won the battle but lost the war.

10 YEARS TOO LATE

DEAR 10: Your 20-20 hindsight makes a touching story. And an appropriate time to point out that no one "steals" another person. People are drawn together by a mutual need.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STILL SEARCHING" IN BALTIMORE: Consider Dr. Donald W. Hastings' philosophy:

"If anyone is searching for peace of mind today, he's searching for a will-o'-the-wisp. Anxiety is a healthy phenomenon—the motivating factor by which we get things done."

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor told me I was a diabetic after he did a glucose tolerance test. I am on a strict diet — no medication.

Then I read this item in the paper that said the glucose tolerance tests are usually wrong and should not be used to make a diagnosis of diabetes. I have begun to wonder and would like your opinion.

DEAR READER — The comments you read in the paper need to be put into proper perspective. Doctors are trained to use their clinical judgment, not just the results from a laboratory test. A good doctor will know how much weight to put on the test he had performed in your case.

It is true that many false positive tests do occur. This is often because the patient has not been properly prepared. Unless the patient already has diabetes or has a medical condition that contra-indicates it, he should eat an abundant amount of carbohydrates, starches and sweets for three days before the test. This will prevent false positive tests in many cases.

It also depends on how severe the test results are. If the values go very high and stay very high in a properly prepared patient the condition is not so equivocal or borderline. If the fasting specimen is abnormally high to a significant degree the doctor can also be fairly sure about your diagnosis.

So my advice is to depend on your doctor's good judgment and let him worry about the interpretation of your test. I agree with your doctor's idea of reducing a patient and using diet as the first step in management when that is possible. Sometimes that is all that is needed.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 52 years old. I have not been in bad health at all. I feel I have passed the menopause. I have read that you recommend a quart of milk a day for women in my category to prevent a calcium deficiency that could lead to softening of the bones. What substitute could I possibly use? Milk causes gas on my stomach and since I am working with many people milk is not the answer for me.

DEAR READER — It sounds like you have lactose intolerance — inability to split the double sugar, lactose, in milk. That usually causes gas and digestive complaints.

You can take calcium pills if you wish — enough to get about 1 gram (1000 milligrams) of calcium a day. You may want to try Lact-Aid, the enzyme substance that you can put in your milk to split lactose before you use the milk. The normal intestine contains this enzyme but some people, quite a few, do not produce enough of the enzyme when they become adults and have an intolerance to split lactose before you use this product can write to SugarLo Company, 3540 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, N.J. 08404 for more information on the product.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — While applying iron-on initials to a white canvas carry-all bag I scorched the canvas. Can you tell me how to get rid of this scorch? I will have to work around the green felt initials. — HENRIETTA.

DEAR HENRIETTA — A few months ago I cleaned some black marks off the canvas on a deck chair that had a black painted design by CAREFULLY sponging on a mixture of water and chlorine bleach.

An often recommended remedy for scorch marks is to dampen the marks with a cloth with peroxide on it, cover the area with a dry cloth and press with an iron as hot as is safe for the material. Rinse well. Deep scorch cannot be removed. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeyé is with the lack of information on clothes sold in thrift shops. It would be such a help if the donors would sew on tags with the sizes before they give their clothes away. I am in my seventies and like many others on limited budgets I wear used clothing. — JOSEPHINE.

Books alter view of lawyers

by Barry Simon

The image of lawyers hasn't improved much since Elizabethan times when Shakespeare wrote, "The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers."

But now lawyers are beginning to take the stand in their own defense. The case of Gerald M. Stern not only proves that lawyers can be on the side of justice, but that even partners in powerful law firms can protect the powerless.

In 1972 in the Appalachian Valley of Buffalo Creek, a dam burst, deluging 16 mining communities with more than 150 tons of water, oil and sludge. The communities were literally swept away.

One hundred and twenty-five people lost their lives, hundreds more lost their homes, possessions and families.

The Pittston Company, whose subsidiary built the dam, insisted that the flood was "an act of God." Several hundred of the survivors refused to accept this explanation and hired Stern, a partner in a Washington law firm.

In a case that dragged through two years and more than a half million pages of testimony, Stern attempted to prove that Pittston was more concerned with profit than safety. He found evidence that the maintenance of the dam violated government safety standards and that Pittston officials ignored repeated warnings from local residents and experts that the dam's structure was unsound.

But the most damaging evidence of all is Stern's recounting of conversations with survivors — fathers who tell how rushing waves pulled children from their arms; how homes were lifted off the ground and demolished when they hit a bridge.

The lawsuit never went to trial. It was settled out of court when Pittston agreed to pay $13.5 million to those who lost relatives and property and to those who suffered psychological damage.

Stern writes well and you needn't be a lawyer to appreciate his explanation of how the legal system, in this case, worked very well.

After graduating from law school in 1965, Helene Schwartz took a job with a Wall St. law firm. For nearly four years, she endured the sexism so common then (and now) in high powered and priced firms. When she asked her boss why male associates with less experience were earning more money, he explained that men need more money than women. After all, Fred's wife was pregnant with their third child.

"Lawyering" is about being a woman in what is still essentially a man's world. But its major focus is on the controversial clients (ranging from William Buckley to Abbie Hoffman) Schwartz has represented.

Her first assignment on Wall St. was to assist in the defense of conservative columnist Buckley, then being sued for libel by Novel Prize-winning scientist Linus Pauling. After leaving Wall St., she served as a senior attorney handling the appeals of Rennie Davis, Abbie Hoffman and the other Chicago conspiracy trial defendants.

Although Schwartz sometimes presumes her readers went to law school, "Lawyering" should prove provocative to lawyers and laymen alike.

James Simon, also a lawyer, closely observed a state court criminal judge at work and then dramatized his observations in "The Judge" — a typical week in the life of Judge James Barth. The reader watches Judge Barth preside over an armed robbery trial, sit through a plea bargaining session and sentence a drug pusher and a skid row arsonist. Throughout, the Judge tries to deal humanely and fairly with overwhelming legal and social problems.

Unfortunately, underwhelming is the most accurate way to describe Simon's writing style. Also, the author relies on the sensationalism of the crimes rather than the conflicts faced by the judge to keep his reader's interest. But it's these very conflicts (plea bargaining, subjectivity of jurors) which most often cause breakdowns in the legal system.

Not all lawyers are impressed with the profession. Co-editors Ralph Nader and Mark Green (both lawyers) have compiled a group of critical essays on the profession.

The "Verdicts on Lawyers" rendered by the contributors

— all lawyers and journalists — is clearly "guilty."

Green charges that lawyers are grossly overcharging the public for such routine legal services as divorce and credit claims since these can be easily executed by legal secretaries or paraprofessionals via standard forms. "When citizens can no longer afford justice, a democratic society loses a part of its legitimacy," Green writes. Congressman John Conyers calls for a nonprofit legal service corporation to serve the nation's poor, who now average only one lawyer per every 7,000 people.

While the contributors to "Verdicts on Lawyers" offer convincing arguments, collectively their case is unbalanced. Their premise is that the legal system has failed. They should meet Gerald Stern and Helene Schwartz, exhibits one and two that the system can work.

Canyon wins judging

By JEANNE CRIMES
Pampa News Staff
A Future Farmer of America livestock judging team from Canyon racked up 1,083 points to win high point team recognition during the FFA Livestock Judging Contest at the Clyde Carruth Pavilion Tuesday morning.

The Canyon clan narrowly edged past Dalhart which was second with 1,081 points and Hereford in third place with 1,079 points.

Pampa was tied with White Deer for eighth and ninth place with 1,062 points.

The results were announced at an awards presentation following a 5 p.m. banquet in the Pampa High School Cafeteria. Pampa's Chris Skaggs won the $500 Frank M. Carter Scholarship to attend Texas Tech University. The award goes to the outstanding FFA student in Area 1 each year.

Thirty-three livestock judging teams were entered in the 32nd annual competition. Bob Lee, West Texas State University professor, and members of the WTSU livestock judging team evaluated the FFA teams' efforts at placing three classes of beef cattle, three classes of market hogs and two classes of sheep.

In fourth place overall was a team from Dumas with 1,075 points. Roosevelt and Gruver trailed in fifth and sixth places with 1,073 and 1,067 points respectively. Groom was secure in seventh place with 1,066 points and Quail ended the day in 10th place with 1,045 points.

FFA members from Dumas and Roosevelt tied for first and second in the individual high point honors. T. J. Sturgess of Dumas and Bill Warren of Roosevelt each garnered 375 points. Mike Wickwire of Canyon was third with 372 points and Gruver's Kenny Gammon earned 370 points to finish in fourth place.

One-point spreads separated fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth places. Kent Crosswhite of Dalhart ended the day with 369 and Kris Black of Groom tallied 368. With 367 points was Curtis Simpson of McLean and Rusty Armstrong of White Deer had 366.

Ninth place went to Stan McCave of Hereford with 363 and another Hereford entry, Wayde Boren, finished in 10th place with 362.

Pampa's team racked up 428 points in the beef cattle classes to finish as second high point team in that division. First was Roosevelt with 431 points. Rounding out the top five were Canyon and Gruver tied for third and fourth with 425 points each and Riverroad in fifth place with 421 points.

Top-scoring individuals in the beef division included Mike Darnell of Hedley with 148 points in first place. In a three-way tie for second, third and fourth places were Robert Daugherty of Spur, J. Sturgess of Dumas and J. Crouch of Caprock, each with 147 points. Chris Skaggs of Pampa earned 146 points for a spot in the top five.

Dalhart walked away with the high point judging award in the swine judging with 419 points, 21 points ahead of their nearest competition. Quail with 398 points, Dumas was third with 396 points and Groom and Lockney teams were fourth and fifth with 392 and 390 points respectively.

An even 100 points was all it took to put Mike Davis of Roosevelt in the high scoring slot in the sheep division. Three FFA members — Rooster Rainbolt of Spur, Kevin Kuehler of Groom and Brent Thurman of Perryton — were tied with 98 points each and a five-way tie resulted when Brad Roberts of Panhandle, Curtis Simpson of McLean, Keith Horn of Briscoe, Leslie Weavers of Happy and Ron Reed of Tascosa each ended up with 97 points.

Spur had enough points — 288 — for the high point team honor in the sheep division. Panhandle was second with 283 points and Hereford was third with 281. White Deer finished in fourth place with 277 points and Canyon rounded out the five with 276 points.

FFA chapters represented in the contest were from Canyon, Dalhart, Hereford, Dumas, Roosevelt, Gruver, Groom, Pampa, White Deer, Quail, Lockney, Riverroad, Claude, Vega, Spur, Wheeler, Darrouzzett, Mobettie, Panhandle, Allison, McLean, Canadian, Childress, Briscoe, Happy, Estelline, Clarendon, Palo Duro, Tascosa, Perryton, Hedley, Caprock and Shamrock. Contest superintendent was Quentin Williams, J.V. Smith was assistant superintendent.

Senior yearling bull from Miami champion

B&C LI Dom 117, a senior yearling bull exhibited by the B&C Cattle Company of Miami, took the grand champion bull honors at the Top o' Texas Hereford Breeders Association Show in the Clyde Carruth Livestock Pavilion Tuesday.

A Frederick, Okla., cattle judge, C.A. Collins, picked a Conway entry, JPC D4 Mischief 17, as reserve champion at the afternoon show. The reserve champion, a junior yearling bull, is owned by J.P. Calliham.

Reserve champion in the Junior Heifer Show went to IMF Golden Ann 518 shown by Mike Fuston.

Collins picked Paul Dauer's entry as the best pen of two bulls with the B&C Cattle Co., placing second in that competition. Dauer is from Panhandle.

B&C Cattle Co. won the top slot in the best pen of three bulls. Wayne Maddox of Miami placed second with his entry.

The 41 bulls and two cows entered in the open competition will sell at auction at 1 p.m. today. Auctioneer will be Co. Walter Britten of Bryan.

Don Vance, Top o' Texas Hereford Breeders Association vice president, announced the following names of winners:

Auction slated for Manges' ranch

SAN DIEGO, Tex. (AP) — Clinton Manges' ranchland may be sold at an auction, but "it'll be an auction that I hold and it won't be on the steps of the Duval County courthouse," claimed the controversial South Texan.

A notice of trustees' sale was posted on the Duval County Court House bulleting board Monday declaring Manges' ranch company had defaulted on an $8.6 million loan from the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. of Bloomfield, Conn.

A public auction of 118,000 Manges' acres is scheduled for April 5 on the court house steps with the land going to the highest cash bidder.

"If there was any kind of problem, other than a temporary cash shortage, I would declare a Chapter 11 bankruptcy and quit worrying about it and go fishing," said Manges in a telephone interview Tuesday at his San Antonio bank, the Groos National. "I'm not about to lose any land; there won't be any sale."

Under chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings, Manges could possibly hold off creditors until new repayment schedules are devised.

"It's just like the ol' boy who owes $18 but he's only got $2 in his pocket... a cash shortage," the stormy South Texan added.

Manges' alleged debts, however, range in the millions.

Connecticut General claims Manges owes $7,203,632 on a note executed Jan. 31, 1970, plus interest, late charges and attorney fees.

But the rancher-banker-oilman also faces 17 civil suits in state district courts in San Diego and Houston claiming Manges owes almost a million dollars for oil field services. One of the suits involves $381,000 allegedly owed to an Alice lumber company for the construction of Manges' palatial, part-time residence in Duval County.

In addition, county and school taxes allegedly owed by Manges total more than a million dollars for the years 1971 through 1976. "You don't really think I'm going to let go of that land, do you?" Asked Manges although he was not willing to discuss possible solutions to his multifaceted financial problems.

The 118,000 acres scheduled for the public auction block are valued "roughly at $29.5 million and probably much higher," noted a local realtor.

The auction will include his 100,000-acre Duval County Ranch Co. and 18,000 acres in Jim Hogg and Starr counties. It does not include thousands of acres in Webb and Zapata counties where Manges owns oil and gas fields with "very, very good potential," according to a spokesman for the Houston Natural Gas Co.

In addition to his financial woes, Manges also faces "theft of service" charges in state court. He was indicted in January by a Duval County grand jury for allegedly issuing a worthless $57,000 check to an oil field firm.

Governor must name 2 more district judges

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Senate Nominations Subcommittee scheduled a special noon hearing today on the appointment of 21 new district judges by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, said, however, he would ask the seven-member subcommittee to postpone voting on the appointees until the governor names the remaining two judges.

The legislature created 23 new courts after Briscoe requested that they be considered on an emergency basis.

Schwartz said Tuesday that Briscoe apparently had decided to pull back his appointment of J. Ray Gayle III as a new district judge in Brazoria County. Schwartz said Feb. 28 — the day Briscoe announced the new judges — that he would invoke what amounts to a senatorial veto against Gayle.

On March 10, Schwartz denounced Briscoe for delaying submission of the names of the 23 judges for Senate approval.

Teacher asks for 25 per cent raise

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A fourth grade teacher from Mount Pleasant has told a House committee he is being forced out of the profession by the simple need to feed, house and cloth his wife and two children.

"My income will not adequately support my family," said Duwan Fortenberry, a teacher for the past nine years.

Recent high school graduates often receive salaries higher than the experienced teachers they had during their school days, he said.

Fortenberry urged the House Public Education Committee to approve the 25 per cent across the board pay raise sought by the Texas State Teachers Association.

That would mean an immediate $2,000 increase for beginning teachers, who now make $8,000 annually plus local supplementation in some districts.

The TSTA bill would cost $880 million over the next two years — an amount that can't be funded under the governor's no-new-taxes policy along with taxpayer relief, new highway construction and general state expenditures.

Jo Karr, a master's degree teacher at Del Valle Middle School near Austin, said, "I can barely put food on the table."

Mrs. Karr said she supports herself and her daughter with $700 a month in take-home pay, plus another $80 for driving a school bus.

"After I've paid the bills each month, I have $125 for groceries, child care and miscellaneous expenses," she said.

The committee heard and sent to subcommittee the TSTA proposal and four other teacher pay bills, with instructions to merge them into a single measure for consideration by the full committee.

The bills include the Texas School Administrators Council's proposal to provide larger increases for experienced teachers than for those early in their careers. It would raise beginning teachers to $8,500 this year, $9,000 in 1978-79 and $10,000 in 1980-81.

A teacher in his or her 10th year would receive half again as much as the beginning teacher, or $1,500 for every $1,000.

Committee chairman Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, offered a bill providing a 6 per cent raise for teachers who have taught three years or more.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Dallas, proposed putting teacher pay in the general appropriation bill, just as state employees, rather than requiring a separate bill each session of the legislature.

Rep. Bill Blanton, D-Carrollton, recommended 5 per cent annual increases.

The TSTA presented statistics showing the buying power of a beginning teacher's salary has dropped from $4,614 in 1967 to $4,611 today, measured in 1967 dollars.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has recommended that the legislature not raise the minimum salaries guaranteed teachers by the state but let local districts raise them if funds are available. His school finance plan would reduce demands on local taxes for the Foundation School Program.

TSTA President Grace Grimes of Marshall said, however, that neither teachers nor districts wanted to be forced into such pay raise negotiations.

Ex-AP sports scribe dies

DALLAS (AP) — Funeral services for Harold V. Ratliff, dean of Texas sports writers who helped make schoolboy football a way of life in the state, will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday at Restland Funeral Home in Dallas.

Ratliff, who served as Texas sports editor of The Associated Press for 32 years before retiring in 1968, died Tuesday, one week after suffering a stroke. He was 73.

Ratliff, known by scores of fellow sports writers and newsmen for his ever-present cigar, was succeeded at the AP by the current sports editor, Denne Freeman.

The colorful Ratliff was the man initially responsible for the in-depth coverage now given Texas high school's 1,000 plus football teams.

He almost died seven years ago with a stroke but battled back. One magazine mistakenly carried Ratliff's name on his obit page.

The thing that insulted him was "they only gave me three paragraphs."

Ratliff, the author of five books, was considered Texas' leading sports authority. He joined The AP at Dallas after working from 1924 until 1927 at the Hillsboro Mirror and from 1927 to 1936 at the Cleburne Times-Review.

His favorite book "Autumn's Mightiest Legions" was a chronicle of Texas high school football—his first love. It is regarded as the best printed history of the schoolboy gridiron wars.

Ratliff, who wrote something like 4.5 million words on sports in Texas, said his greatest football thrill was the Southern Methodist-Texas Christian game for the national championship in 1935.

Randy Matson, Texas A&M's world record holder in the shot put, was his favorite athlete.

Ratliff's style at press conferences was almost as famous as his writings.

One writer said Ratliff conducted an interview "like he had five minutes to get a confession."

But Ratliff contended that with the "needle" he got news which otherwise would have been missed.

He once asked Paul (Bear) Bryant, then coach at A&M, whether he was a genius.

The Bear replied "I don't know if I'm a genius or not but I'm a damned good football coach."

"You see," Ratliff beamed, "with a little needling we got a pretty good quote."

Ratliff's final football game for The AP was Texas A&M's Cotton Bowl win over Alabama.

"It came out just the way I wanted it," Ratliff said. "One of my own Southwest teams won. It's just like they set it up this way for me."

"I got so excited I didn't realize I didn't have a cigar." Then he gave his laugh—described by some as sounding like a broken fan belt.

Ratliff was born in Hillsboro and attended Hillsboro Junior College. He was captain of a three-man track team. Survivors include his widow, Ruby, and a son, Harold Jr.

The first elevated trains were introduced in New York City to ease the congestion of streets filled with carriages, wagons and horse-drawn streetcars.

Group wants to have limit on abortions

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Abortions should be illegal after 22 weeks, except in cases where the mother's life is in danger or the child could not survive anyway, says the president of the Texas Right to Life Committee.

Dr. T. Erwin Ballinger testified Tuesday before the Senate Jurisprudence subcommittee on criminal matters in support of a bill establishing 22 weeks as age at which a fetus becomes viable.

The State Board of Health Resources would be charged under the bill with lowering that age if evidence at a yearly study indicated it should be lowered.

Opposition testimony to the bill, sponsored by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, is scheduled March 29.

The measure also would prohibit saline abortions except where no other means is available. Ballinger said the salt solution injected into the sack around the baby often gets into the mother's bloodstream, where it can cause death.

Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, who sponsored anti-abortion measures in the 1975 legislature, asked Ballinger what the viable age of fetuses was 50 years ago. Ballinger said 36 weeks.

And what will it be 50 years from now, Mengden asked. "It may drop to the point of conception."

HIC sends auto bills to committee

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The House Insurance Committee late Tuesday night sent group auto insurance bills to a subcommittee, where they are likely to remain.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, moved to table the motion to send the proposals to subcommittee, but his motion was voted down, 7-2. The committee then sent them to subcommittee by voice vote.

Two of the bills would authorize group auto insurance for persons over 55.

Rep. Herman Adams, D-Silsoe, said all the bills should go to subcommittee so they could be combined.

Green said if that's what Adams really wanted, all he had to do was vote for Green's bill, which would authorize group auto insurance for everybody, regardless of age.

But the committee sent the measures to subcommittee anyway.

Some insurance industry spokesmen said the group insurance idea will not work for automobile insurance as it will with hospitalization, for example, because there is third party liability involved in car insurance.

Blomberg sparks Yank win

76ers back on track, clout Cleveland Cavs

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

"It feels..." Ron Blomberg said, "like you're a fan and you jumped up and hit a home run."

Blomberg ought to know. For the past 1 1/2 years, he has been little more than a fan.

Tuesday night, he became a hitter again. A career .302 hitter before suffering a shoulder injury that wiped him out in July, 1975 and limited him to one game and two at-bats last season, Blomberg unloaded a 400-foot two-run homer and a run-scoring grounder as the New York Yankees defeated the Minnesota Twins 9-4 in an exhibition game.

But it was much more than a meaningless spring game to the 28-year-old Blomberg, who is trying to recapture his spot as the Yankees' designated hitter against right-handed pitching.

"This was like a regular-season game for me. The home run felt good, it feels like my swing is coming back," said Blomberg, whose powerful, compact stroke is one of baseball's neatest swings. "If I show them I can swing the bat I'll probably be a part of this team." Meanwhile, Buzz Capra, who used to pitch in New York for the Mets and is trying to make it back to Atlanta's starting rotation following arm surgery, worked three scoreless innings, allowing two hits, in the Braves' 6-1 triumph over the Houston Astros. Phil Niekro, the Atlanta starter, allowed one hit in four scoreless innings.

The world champion Cincinnati Reds split their squad and made two Canadian clubs happy. One team of Reds bowed to the Montreal Expos 5-2 - ex-Reds first baseman Tony Perez homered in his first game against his former team and later scored what proved to be the winning run - while the fledgling Toronto Blue Jays edged the Reds' other group 9-8 in 11 innings. The Baltimore Orioles also split their squad with somewhat different results. They downed the Boston Red Sox 3-0 as Rudy May, Dennis Martinez and Fred Holdsworth combined on a two-hitter - Dwight Evans' two-out single in the eighth inning and Fred Lynn's double in the ninth - and also whipped the Texas Rangers 7-3 as Doug DeCinces slugged a tie-breaking two-run homer.

Elsewhere, Dave Kingman hit his second homer in two days as the New York Mets beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2. Tim Lincecum's two-run homer gave the Detroit Tigers a 3-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies in 11 innings, and the Los Angeles Dodgers scored six times in the fifth inning - Rick Monday and Dave Lopes each drove in a pair - and trounced the St. Louis Cardinals 13-3.

Home runs by Ralph Garr and Larry Foster powered the Chicago White Sox to a 4-0 victory over Kansas City in the opener of a doubleheader, but the Royals took the night cap 10-3 as John Wathan and Luis Rivera homered; Vida Blue allowed two hits in five scoreless innings as the Oakland A's beat the Cleveland Indians 4-2; Jerry Morales singled in the winning run as the Chicago Cubs edged the California Angels 4-3; the San Diego Padres got homers from George Hendrick and Jerry Turner in defeating the Milwaukee Brewers 7-4, and the Seattle Mariners scored five runs in the seventh inning and beat the San Francisco Giants 6-4.

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia 76ers may be back on the track. Having aired their gripes and spoken their pieces, the 76ers settled down to what they do best Tuesday night and routed the Cleveland Cavaliers 133-102.

"I think the stories cleared the air," suggested 76ers forward George McGinnis, referring to reports of discord on the team which had surfaced earlier this week. "Everybody came into the locker room tonight with a different attitude."

"If this can be a turning point for us, it couldn't come at a better time."

Indeed, if the 76ers are to go far in the National Basketball Association playoffs - which are only a month away - they will have to play better than they did for the past month when they had difficulty breaking even.

The way they played against Cleveland would be just fine, however.

In other NBA games, the Denver Nuggets beat the Los Angeles Lakers 107-95, the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the New Orleans Jazz 131-104, the Kansas City Kings edged the Washington Bullets 101-99, the Chicago Bulls beat the Boston Celtics 107-96 and the San Antonio Spurs stopped the New York Nets 118-108.

Julius Erving scored 29 points for Philadelphia and McGinnis had 23, including 13 in the decisive third period.

The 76ers led 57-46 at intermission, started the second half with a 10-2 burst and outscored Cleveland 43-25 in the third quarter, putting the game away.

Plumlee homer sinks Harvesters

Johnny Plumlee's three-run homerun sparked Bergr to a 13-8 eight-inning baseball victory over Pampa Tuesday at Optimist Park.

Pampa led 7-3 entering the seventh inning before the Bulldogs tied the game with a four-run outburst. The Harvesters threatened in the bottom half of the frame, getting two runners on, but were unable to score.

Plumlee knocked in three runs with his extra-inning smash. Bo Herron and Wesley Fick also drove in runs in the inning.

Pampa scored once in the bottom of the eighth when Buddy Brown drove in Bobby Taylor, who had doubled, with a base hit.

After Bergr scored twice in the first inning, Pampa took a 3-2 lead in the bottom half with three hits, including a Mike Lancaster double.

Both teams scored once in the fourth inning, then Pampa exploded for three runs in the fifth behind doubles by Lancaster, Doug Burns and Richard Wuest.

Knutson, who relieved sophomore Steve Stout, in the seventh inning, absorbed the loss, his second of the season without a win. The winning pitcher was Plumlee, who went the distance.

Both teams pounded out 13 hits.

The Harvesters, now 3-5, next play in the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational Baseball Tournament Friday and Saturday at Hereford.

Bergr now is 2-4 for the season.

In other area games, defending 3-AAA champion Amarillo High edged Plainview 3-2. Amarillo Palo Duro clubbed Hereford 12-3. Amarillo Tascosa squeaked by Dumas 8-7 and Canyon blasted Amarillo Caprock 15-6.

Ellsworth nips Western Texas

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Ellsworth of Iowa and Sheridan, Wyo., met today in the only championship bracket game of the National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

Top-seeded, undefeated Southern Idaho, the tournament's defending champion, overcame stubborn Lincoln Trail of Illinois 76-66 Tuesday.

Other games in the double-elimination tourney saw Ellsworth nip fourth-seeded Western Texas 65-62. Vincennes of Indiana trounce Potomac of West Virginia 80-61. North Greenville of South Carolina shade Rhode Island 80-79. Farmingdale of New York upset Mercer County, N.J., 66-61. and San Jacinto, Tex. whip Shelby State of Tennessee 79-77.

Southern Idaho, which has not lost since early last season, got a scare. Although leading most of the way, the Golden Eagles were unable to pull free of Lincoln Trail until taking a 68-57 lead with four minutes remaining on a streak of three free throws and a field goal.

Kim Goetz led Southern Idaho with 23 points while Richard Johnson hit 22 for Lincoln Trail.

Richard Hall's layup with one minute remaining snapped a 61-61 deadlock and sparked Farmingdale past Mercer County. The Aggies then put in three consecutive free throws, icing the victory over Mercer County, the runner-up in last year's tournament.

Bonnies nip Oregon

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Satalin aged 23 years in 13 seconds.

"I felt I was 53," said the St. Bonaventure basketball coach. Satalin in reality is 30, but it is no wonder he felt older after St. Bonaventure's 76-73 victory over Oregon in the National Invitation Tournament Tuesday night.

The last few seconds obviously seemed like the longest mile to Satalin, what with the following events occurring.

—Kelvin Small hit one foul shot at the 10-second mark for Oregon's 73rd point, then missed another attempt and the ball went out of bounds off a St. Bonaventure player.

—With eight seconds remaining and the score 76-73 in favor of the Bonnies, Oregon in-bounded the ball and got it inside to Greg Ballard and the Ducks' high scorer, looking for a three-point play, hit the rim and St. Bonaventure's Greg Sanders came down with the rebound at the buzzer.

The way the ball bounced sent St. Bonaventure into Thursday night's semifinals at Madison Square Garden against Villanova, which beat Massachusetts 81-71 in an earlier quarter-final game Tuesday night.

Alabama and Houston, which won quarter-final games Monday night, will play in the other semifinal.

The Bonnies appeared to have the Ducks in tow midway through the second half with a 15-point lead behind the dominating play of Sanders. But then they slowed things down, giving the Pac-8 team a chance to catch up.

Lasorda points loyalty to rise

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Want a little spiritual uplift in this calloused age of selfishness, cynicism, negativism and greed? Then catch Tom Lasorda's lockerroom act around baseball's spring training circuit.

It's enough to make you rush up to the attic and pull out all those old Horatio Alger books and reread "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." It restores your faith in old-fashioned values.

Lasorda is a glib, tobacco-chewing young castoff who worked untingly in the Dodgers organization for 23 years as a second-rate pitcher, scout, coach and minor league manager. Then last Sept. 29, he learned he was the new field boss of the Los Angeles team, succeeding Walter Alton.

"Loyalty," he said, "is a two way street. I never had a guarantee from Peter or Mr. (Walter) O'Malley. I just prayed that my contributions to the organization, my dedication and loyalty would be rewarded."

"It was like waking up and somebody telling you, 'You just inherited the Hope Diamond.'"

Peter O'Malley is president of the Dodgers and son of Walter O'Malley, chairman of the board, godfather of one of baseball's most successful franchises.

"When you are a Dodger, you are part of the family," Lasorda said. "O'Malley's door is always open. You know if you have allegiance and work hard you will be rewarded. I coached third base last year for $20,000 less than I could have made some place else."

But I never regretted a day of it. I had peace of mind. I never wanted to be anything but a Dodger. There are four things I love: God, Country, family and the Dodgers."

Lasorda's lockerroom dissertation on loyalty and dedication is a mixture of a Billy Graham revival, a Fourth of July speech and a Don Rickles' act in Las Vegas. The graying, 50-year-old medicine man of the diamond deftly mixes humor and allegory with his serious sermons.

"If you cut my wrist, Dodger blue blood would flow out," he says. "Once I went to Mayo Clinic for a complete physical. I had more wires hitched to me than a telephone pole. Then the doctors hung up all these X-rays and started examining them. They looked concerned. I was afraid they had found something terrible. But it wasn't serious."

It was a small Dodger logo on my heart." Becoming the Dodgers manager, Lasorda said, was like the ending of rags-to-riches novel.

"I was the son of an immigrant," he said. "I was just a third-string pitcher on my high school team in Norristown, Pa. When I finally got to the Dodgers - around all those great players like Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese - I worked hard to be one of the three men they took north to cut when the season started."

Lasorda was asked if he didn't feel pressure, taking over for a man who had managed the Dodgers for 23 years.

"Pressure? No," he replied. "It was like scratching around Superstition Mountain for 30 years and suddenly striking the Mother Lode. It was like going to heaven and finding a big steak."

TSU coach wants chance at Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern University Coach Robert Moreland, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) national basketball championship safely tucked away, says only a myth keeps TSU from playing the University of Houston in basketball.

They (major universities) have this myth that it's a disgrace to lose to someone in another division," said Moreland, whose Tigers defeated Campbell College of North Carolina Saturday in the NAIA title game at Kansas City. "But I think all divisions still put the same number of players on the floor."

Two years ago a basketball game between UH and TSU might have seemed ludicrous. The TSU program was at rock bottom finishing the 1975 season with an 8-16 record. The Cougars annually are among the nation's better teams.

Then TSU Athletic Director Rod Paige persuaded Moreland to leave Uta, Mississippi Junior College and bring his star pupil Alonzo Bradley with him to TSU.

Last season the Tigers advanced to the quarter-finals at the NAIA tournament at Kansas City and finished with a 23-10 record. The Tigers made it all the way Saturday, finishing with a 31-5 standard.

Moreland thinks his two-year record of 54-15 rates a shot at the more established Cougars, and he apparently thinks his Tigers could compete on even terms.

"I look at it this way," Moreland said. "Houston has Otis Birdsong (No. 4 college scorer in the nation) and we've got Alonzo Bradley and Lawrence Williams so the problem would be theirs."

The Cougars finished second in the Southwest Conference race this season and earned a berth in the National Invitation Tournament. Houston has advanced to the tournament semifinals Thursday night against 12th ranked Alabama.

Asked why the two schools have not played in basketball, Moreland blamed a myth.

"I think it's mostly an imaginary myth," Moreland said. "Houston has lost to smaller schools before and it hasn't seemed to hurt their program."

Moreland loses Bradley and Williams to graduation but he's confident the Tigers' program is off the ground.

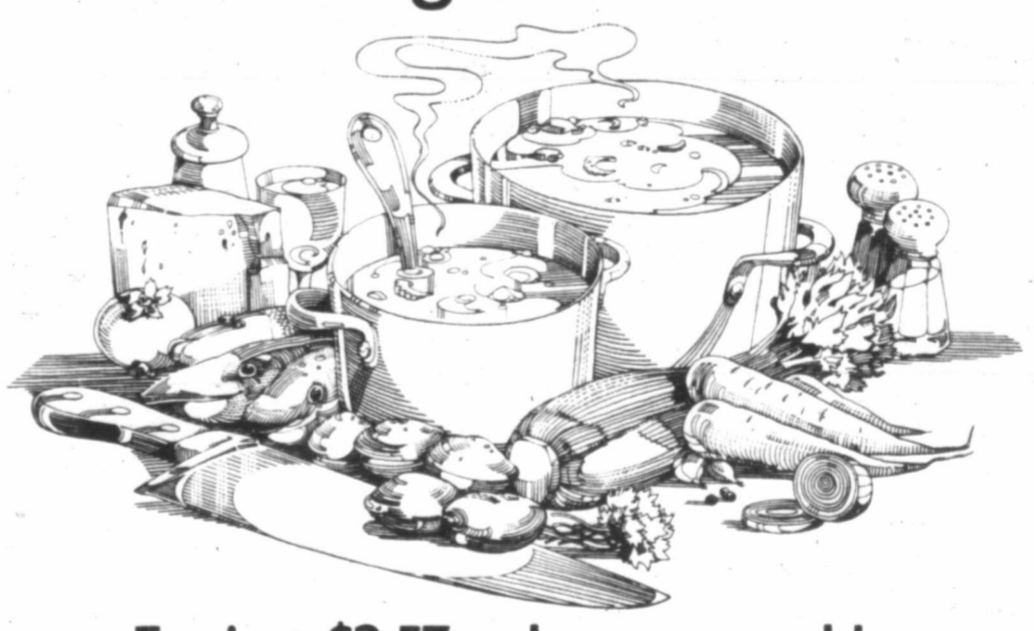

"If we had to play a game tomorrow we could compete with the players we have coming back," Moreland said. Moreland also said the Tigers' success has helped with recruiting, especially in the talent-laden Houston area.

"We've had five or six players from this area express interest in TSU," Moreland said. "That's a major breakthrough for us. The last quality player from this area to come to TSU was Gaylord Davis and that was five years ago."

Ever since he managed the Texas Rangers, Yankee manager Billy Martin has lived in Arlington, Tex.

Enjoy a 10-minute call to Boston without shelling out a lot of clams.

For just $2.57 or less, you could take down these recipes by Long Distance.

We're printing these chowder recipes to make a point: a Long Distance call lets you say so much, for so little.

In a 10-minute call to Boston, between 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. tonight, you could easily take down the recipes below. And by dialing 1+, the most you pay is $2.57, plus tax. So enjoy a pleasant visit tonight by Long Distance. Wherever you call, you can take the time to find out what's cookin'... without stirring up a big expense.

1. FISHERMEN'S CATCH CHOWDER

2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped pared carrots
1/2 cup snipped parsley
1/2 tsp. crushed dried rosemary
1 can (16-oz.) whole tomatoes, drained (reserve liquid)
2 cups dry white wine

1 bottle (8-oz.) clam juice
1 tsp. salt
3 tbsps. flour
3 tbsps. softened butter or margarine
8 ozs. flounder or ocean perch
8 ozs. pike or rainbow trout
8 ozs. haddock or halibut
8 ozs. minced clams (opt.)
1/2 cup light cream

a) Heat the first 6 ingredients in Dutch oven until bubbly; reduce heat and cover. Simmer 15 minutes.
b) Chop tomatoes. Stir tomatoes, reserved liquid, wine, clam juice and salt into vegetables in Dutch oven. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and cover. Simmer 10 minutes.
c) Mix flour and 3 tbsps. butter until smooth; stir into chowder. Cook and stir until slightly thickened.
d) Cut fish into 1-inch pieces, and add to chowder. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer uncovered until fish flakes easily with fork, 8-10 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in cream.
e) Ladle chowder over sliced, toasted French bread. Garnish with snipped parsley. (Makes six 1 1/2-cup servings.)

2. SEAFOOD CHOWDER

3 cups water
2 cups chopped pared potatoes
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/4 tsp. ground allspice
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup all-purpose flour

2 cups milk
1 lb. cod fillets
1 tsp. dried dill weed
1 cup chopped unpared seeded cucumber
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. paprika
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced

a) Heat first 6 ingredients in saucepan to boiling; cover. Boil until vegetables are tender, 10-12 minutes. Drain vegetables, reserving 2 cups broth.
b) Melt butter in Dutch oven; stir in flour. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and bubbly. Remove from heat. Stir in milk and reserved broth. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Cut cod into 1/2-inch pieces; stir into mixture. Add dill. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer uncovered until fish flakes easily with fork, about 8 minutes.
c) Stir cucumber, lemon juice, paprika and vegetables into chowder. Heat until hot. Garnish with egg slices. (Makes eight 3/4-cup servings.)

Goldwater disclaims crime link

By The Associated Press
Reports linking U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater, his brother Robert and a close friend to mob figures in Arizona sparked new controversy Tuesday. Both Goldwaters have attacked the reports.

"It's not only ridiculous, it's completely untrue," the senator said today on ABC television's "Good Morning America."

Sen. Goldwater said Monday that what he had seen of the stories was "totally false," "libelous and was rather shabby, rather dishonest reporting." His brother called the report "poppycock" and added "None of my friends will pay any attention to it."

In Arizona the stories prompted arguments among legislators in a morning demonstration outside the Arizona Republic and Phoenix Gazette which was not carrying the articles.

A spokesman for the Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc. which produced the series of stories in question, said the group would stand by its work.

A 36-member team of journalists from 23 newspapers and broadcast outlets went to Arizona six months ago to investigate organized crime. The group said the aim of the effort was to continue the investigative work of reporter Don Bolles of the Arizona Republic who was murdered last June. One man has pleaded guilty to second degree murder in the case; two are awaiting trial.

Sen. Goldwater, a Republican, said Monday that he believed the reporters had gone to Arizona "hoping to solve the Bolles murder." When they found they could not solve the murder, he said, "they set out to do a job on Arizona." He conceded that organized crime does exist in Arizona, "particularly in the field of land sales."

The copyright series of reports by the IRE was released to participating newspapers and broadcasters for use starting Sunday and there were wide variations in the way the stories were handled.

Some papers started the series as scheduled and said they would continue daily articles for the 23-day span of the project. Others said they would delay the series. Some papers, citing the length of the installments — which run several thousand words each — cut large sections of the reports.

The Arizona Republic and Phoenix Gazette decided not to run the entire series, pending further study, and some 20 placard-carrying demonstrators from a group calling itself Citizens for Freedom marched in front of the newspapers building this morning. "Has Barry G. Stuffed the R & G?" read one placard. "Whose truth does the R & G print?" read another.

A spokesman for the Republic said the papers provided a reporter to act as a liaison with the IRE team, helping them with local research in the newspaper's files, but was not a participant in the project. The spokesman said the Republic was given the opportunity to publish the report and also received copies of the IRE files.

The protesters also handed out leaflets, which said, in part, "The Republic and Gazette ... are covering up the investigative report into Arizona political corruption and criminal wrongdoing."

The report sparked controversy in the Arizona Legislature on Monday.

State Sen. Sue Dye of Tucson criticized the Arizona Republic and Phoenix Gazette, while state Sen. Leo Corbet of Phoenix said he supported the newspapers stance.

In the first two days, published accounts of the series said there was widespread organized crime in Arizona, often condoned by political leaders who profited from associations with the underworld. The Monday installment focused on the two Goldwaters and on a close friend, Harry Rosenzweig, former Arizona Republican chairman.

Both Robert Goldwater, who heads the family business, and Rosenzweig, a jeweler, were interviewed by IRE members with their attorneys present. Barry Goldwater was not. He said he was forced to cancel one appointment with the group because of family obligations; a spokesman for the IRE said he had canceled two appointments.

Robert and Barry issued statements Monday on the IRE report. Rosenzweig was unavailable for comment. A woman who answered the telephone at his home said he was at his store; a secretary at the store said he would not be in. Mrs. Rosenzweig, reached at home Sunday night, said of the series: "We haven't seen it."

Published accounts of the Tuesday installment said that Rosenzweig, 1975 Phoenix Man of the Year, "has nurtured prostitution and gambling" in the Arizona city for years. The stories on the IRE reports said Rosenzweig "had documented ties with mob-connected bookmakers and syndicate hoodlums" instrumental in building up Las Vegas "as the gambling capital of the nation." They also said Rosenzweig denied influence in gambling rackets and saying his only connection with prostitution was "maybe twice" recommending prostitutes to friends as an accommodation.

Sen. Goldwater telephoned members of the news media in his home state of Arizona on Monday. He also said he had seen published reports of the series and added: "I would say from the copies of the original material that we've gotten our hands on ... I would have to say, not being a lawyer, that they're all libelous. What I've seen of it is totally false."

Asked if he would file suit, the Republican senator said: "That's something we're taking a look at."

Anthony Insolia, managing editor of Newsday, the Long Island newspaper, and story editor for the IRE report said: "We stand on what we have reported and written based on six months of intensive, dedicated investigation in Arizona."

The published accounts said the Goldwaters and Rosenzweig were involved in a web of relationships with lieutenants of underworld financier Meyer Lansky, but Sen. Goldwater said Monday afternoon: "I never heard of Meyer Lansky until I talked to Barbara Walters about 20 minutes ago."

Robert Goldwater, in a telephone call to The Associated Press in Phoenix on Monday said of the IRE report: "I know that none of my friends will pay any attention to it. They'll take it for the poppycock that it is."

The published stories said Rosenzweig confirmed that he had received a $5,000 contribution from the late Willie Bioff, described as a racketeer, which he put into Barry Goldwater's 1952 Senate campaign.

Sen. Goldwater said "That is true." But he added that he knew Bioff under the name Bill Nelson which Bioff used when he moved to Phoenix in the 1940s. He was murdered in 1955.

The senator also said that he once gave Bioff and his wife a ride in his plane from Las Vegas to Phoenix after there was a problem with the Bioffs' commercial flight. He said the whole story had been reported by columnist Westbrook Pegler about 20 years ago.

The published accounts of the IRE series said Goldwater "flew Bioff to social events around the state," and added that Goldwater continued to associate with Bioff after he learned his true identity.

The stories also said that both Goldwaters were friendly with Gus Greenbaum, described as a Lansky lieutenant, and stayed at the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas when he operated it. The stories said the Valley National Bank — of which Robert Goldwater is a director — loaned money to help finance the Flamingo.

Sen. Goldwater said: "I didn't know that he (Greenbaum) had any connection with any gangsters, but I wouldn't have been surprised."

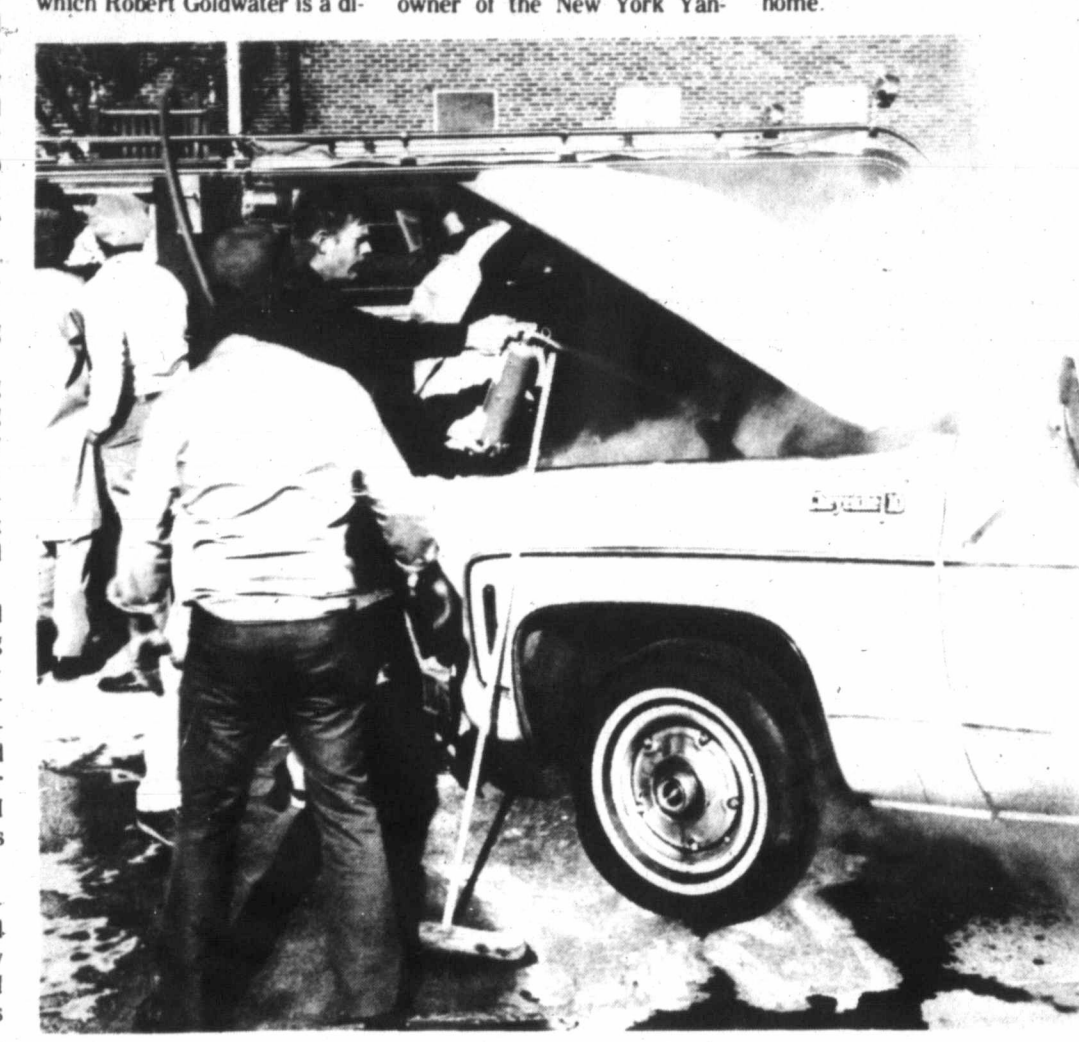

Sen. Goldwater said Gus Greenbaum and his wife were "very respected, highly thought of as church people. Later Gus Greenbaum went to Las Vegas and became manager of the Flamingo. When Peggy (Goldwater's wife) and I, on rare occasions, would go up there, we would stay at the Flamingo." He said he went to Greenbaum's funeral after Greenbaum and his wife were murdered in 1958.

Discussing the loans and the visits, Robert Goldwater said Monday: "That's not true. If any loan were ever made it would be made probably to Del Webb. (The late, former co-owner of the New York Yankees and head of the Webb Corp.) Del Webb built the Flamingo. As far as I know the bank never made a loan to the Flamingo hotel as such."

He said of the visits, "That had no connection with the loan at all ... Del Webb built the thing. We were good friends. When the thing opened, a group of us went up there ..."

The published accounts said Robert Goldwater was among "the businessmen bettors" catered to by Clarence "Mike" Newman, who took over organized crime's gambling operation in Phoenix when Greenbaum left. The stories said Sen.

FEA hears wide range of energy-saving ideas

DALLAS (AP) — Federal energy policy makers have listened to suggestions ranging from burning mesquite trees for heat to building wind turbines to power Dallas.

Those suggestions were among ideas presented here Monday during a Federal Energy Administration Town Hall meeting.

The meeting was called by the FEA to receive views and recommendations that may be considered in the formulation of a new national energy policy.

The technology to double the fuel-burning efficiency of industrial boilers is available, but Texas industrialists will not use it until they are told they have to do it, according to Lloyd C. Box, president of Boiler Services Co.

Those speaking at the meeting urged the use of technological advanced alternate fuel sources. Some expressed the belief that there is no energy shortage and still others complained about high utility bills.

Box said industrialists are waiting on the FEA to tell them what to do.

Box, whose company produces conversion equipment to improve boiler efficiency, told the FEA panel that there are more than 200,000 boilers in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and 35 percent of the natural gas burned in them is for industrial uses. He said those boilers burn at "40 per cent or less efficiency."

He added devices are available to convert the boilers to alternate fuels "such as fuel oil, coal, wood wastes and others."

By using the converters, natural gas and the alternate fuels will burn at 80 to 85 per cent efficiency, he said.

An Irving man suggested that the nation should gear up its exploration for new energy sources but hold back on actual production.

"Let's use the Arab oil first. If we use their oil first, we will still have ours left," said Allan B. Isbell.

"If we use ours first, then we'll be more dependent on them," Isbell said.

Mrs. Bina Lee Shores, an elderly Dallas woman, said high utility bills are threatening to make "beggars" of the elderly and the poor.

"I do not believe there exists an oil and gas shortage," she said. "We claim that we have a democracy. I doubt that we do. This is a corporate state, not a democracy."

David Tucker, author of a book called "The Changing Energy Picture," urged the FEA to encourage the development of practical fuel alternatives to coal and nuclear power. He said solar and wind energy may have some value. "But we should not mislead the public to believe they will be the ultimate answer to our energy needs."

Delbert M. Fowler, FEA administrator here, said the one-day meeting here is one of 10 similar sessions to be held in the headquarters city of each FEA region.

Utilities given May 2 deadline

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Several major Texas electric utilities have until May 2 to present their plan to reconnect the Texas power grid and the Public Utility Commission will do it for them, says one commissioner.

The deadline was set Monday after commissioners again heard the status of negotiations aimed at allowing the Lower Colorado River Authority, Austin and San Antonio to reconnect with Houston Lighting and Power Co. and the Texas Utilities subsidiaries.

"They have to come up with a solution they can live with," said commissioner Al Erwin. "If not, we will have to come up with a solution we can live with."

"This problem needs to be solved," said HLP attorney Finis Cowan. "It needs to be resolved before this summer when the temperatures start to soar."

CP&L's attorney, J.D. Giller of Houston, said CP&L and WTU are willing to separate from each other and the LCRA. Austin and San Antonio, but expressed fears that the split would hurt the reliability of customer service.

Bill Woolsey, attorney for WTU, said the firm has "reluctantly" agreed to the separation.

Former Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, also representing CP&L, attended the hearing, but presented no arguments.

Southbound giraffe on his way

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A giraffe named Wally narrowly neared his way towards Mexico City Monday with the aid of anxious zookeepers on the look-out for highway obstacles.

A spokesman for the Chapultepec Zoo here said veterinarians and other zoo officials met Wally as he crossed the border in a crate aboard a truck from Laredo, Tex. Monday.

The 16-foot, 2,000-pound giraffe is a gift to President Jose this beautiful Lowrey organ will play along with you, teach you, sing with you, or record and playback your own performance!

A built-in cassette player/recorder gives you private lessons, lets you play along with big name bands, accompany favorite singers... even lets you record yourself!

Plus

the magic of Genie lets you play like magic the first time you sit down at it. It's a beautifully styled organ too, a complement to any decor. And it all adds up to a great value. So stop in at the Lowrey Carnival of values. ----
