Gandhi resigns after election loss

By MYRON BELKIND

Associated Press Writer NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Prime Minister Indira Gandhi decided today to resign following the loss of her seat in Parliament and reverses suffered by her Congress party in the Indian general election, her spokesman said Opposition leaders began talks aimed at forming a new government

The prime minister's spokesman said Mrs. Gandhi would formally submit her resignation Tuesday, ending 11 years as leader of the world's second most populous nation. China has the largest population.

The Congress party, which has ruled India since independence from Britain 30 years ago, trailed by a wide margin in the parliamentary returns and appeared unlikely to win enough seats to stay in

With results declared in races for 393 of the 542 seats in the lower house of Parliament, the new Janata (People's) party and its allies had 211 seats, only 61 short of a majority with 149 still to be

The Congress party, which won twothirds of the seats in the 1971 elections, had 134 seats. The pro-Moscow Communists won seven seats, and independents and other groups split the remainder.

Most of the seats still to be decided were from constituencies in northern India. a center of Janata strength.

In Washington, State Department officials said it was too early to judge the effect of the elections on U.S. Indian relations. They added no valid assessment is possible until a new government is formed had lost her own seat, the 59-year-old prime minister ordered the end of the state of emergency, under which she imprisoned thousands of her opponents, and the restoration of all civil liberties

Proclaimed in June 1975 to keep her in office after her conviction on a charge of campaign irregularities, the emergency sparked a voter revolt that contributed to her downfall, the defeat of her son Sanjay in his first bid for office, and the eclipse of the ruling dynasty her father, the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. established 30 years ago

The chief contenders to succeed her are two former leaders of the Congress party who broke with her. Morarji Desai and Jaguvan Ram Desai, now 81, was Mrs. Gandhi's deputy prime minister in 1969 when she split the party in a struggle for power with conservative leaders. He and other conservatives formed the Opposition Congress, and in January it merged with three other opposition parties to form the Ram, the 68-year-old leader of India's Untouchable caste, was the agriculture minister in Mrs. Gandhi's last cabinet. He broke with her last month and formed the Congress for Democracy, which won seven seats in the early returns.

There was speculation that Mrs. Gandhi's defeat would produce more defectors from her Congress who would rally behind Desai or Ram. Although separate parties, the Janata and Ram's Congress campaigned together and pledged to work together in the new Parliament

No major shift in foreign policy is expected since the Janata's manifesto pledged adherence to India's traditional policy of nonalignment free from any attackment to any power bloc." The party also pledged to restore all civil liberties and repeal the legislation Mrs. Gandhi put through during the emergency restricting freedom of the press and the independence of the judiciary

Mrs Gandhi lost her seat in Uttar Pradesh by 55.000 votes to Socialist leader Raj Narain, whom she had defeated in 1971 by 110,000 votes. Her 30-yearold son Sanjay. running for office for the first time after taking over leadership of the youth wing of the Congress party, lost the district adjoining his mother's by 75.844 votes.

The school system is required by Texas law to serve the 2,200 local pupils a diet - balanced lunch which includes specific amounts of meat, vegetables and milk.

Based on past records, Mrs. Sharon Dunlap of Carver Center explains that it costs an average of $17,300 per month for foodstuff served in the program.

The cost of lunches vary from 60 cents at the elementary schools to 80 cents for high school pupils.

Each school has a lunchroom manager, an assistant and the required cooks. It takes 31 people a day, based on 61/2 working hours, to prepare, serve and cleanup in the nine schools. The youngsters pictured are all students at Woodrow Wil-

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Finance Committee today approved a tax bill that includes $50 rebates for most Americans and a permanent tax reduction of more than $105 each for those who use the standard deduction

A vote of 9 to 7 sent the bill to the full Senate and expected battles over the rebates, changes in the standard deduction and tax incentives for business to reduce unemployment

One of President Carter's first acts in the White House was to propose tax rebates and reductions in an effort to stimulate the economy. The bill approved by the Finance Committee is based on that proposal

The rebate provision is the same as that approved earlier by the House. The payments would go to an estimated 200 million Americans whose 1976 gross income was under $25,000, including Social Security recipients, veterans who receive pensions and others who pay no taxes.

Rebates of less than $50 would go to families with 1976 incomes of between $25,000 and $30,000. Those earning more than $30,000 would get no rebates. The administration hopes to begin mailing rebate checks this spring.

The bill would extend through 1978 the general tax credit that allows a credit of $35 for a taxpayer and each dependent or of 2 per cent of the first $9.000 of taxable income, up to $180. Also extended would be an earned-income credit of up to $400 for poor, working families and lower tax rates on the first $50,000 annual income of corporations.

The average $105 permanent tax cut for individuals in the bill would come through changes in the standard deduction. Present law allows persons who do not itemize to deduct 16 per cent of their gross income. but not less than $1,700 and not more than $2,400 For couples who file a joint return the minimum is $2.100 and the maximum is

The Senate bill would allow single persons a flat standard deduction of $2 200 and couples $3,200 That would mean a tax cut for about 46 million couples or individuals but a tax hike of about $51 each for 2.1 million single persons who under present law qualified for the maximum standard deduction of $2,400.

A part of the bill that would affect most taxpayers is aimed at simplification of the tax forms. This comes six months after Congess changed the tax laws in a way that has resulted in a record number of taxpayer errors.

The House has already passed the new method of tax-computation that the Treasury Department says will make the annual taxpaying process easier for 96 per cent of the population. It will result in a longer but far simpler tax form, the experts

The full Senate, meanwhile, hopes to complete work on a bill that would require senators to disclose their finances and would limit the income they could earn above their congressional salaries.

And in the House, debate begins Wednesday on a hotly disputed bill that would allow unions to picket an entire construction site, even though they have grievances with only one subcontractor Similar legislation was vetoed last year by then-President Gerald R. Ford. President Carter has said he would sign such a measure. The tax bill being written by the Senate proposed by Carter mainly as a method of stimulating the economy But he also recommended simplification of individual tax-filing after the Internal Revenue Service reported a sharp increase in errors on returns filed this year

cation that Congress' costs are growing faster than executive branch costs. He said the congressional hike in the current budget is $70 million, or 8 per cent, compared with a 9 per cent increase in President Carter's over-all spending propos-

A large number of those errors are mathematical mistakes traceable to the computation of the standard deduction. used by those who don't itemize deductions. The simplification that Congress expects to pass this year would do away with that computation in almost all cases.

None of the changes in the current tax bill would affect 1976 tax returns, which must be filed by April 15 of this year. The simplification changes would be used a year from now when 1977 returns are filed.

The key part of the proposed simplification would, in effect, do away with the separate standard deduction. The deduction would be built directly into the tax tables, along with the personal exemptions and the $35-per-person tax

As a result, a person who does not itemize deductions would find out how much tax he owes just by looking at a table. The only factor in determining what table to use would be the number of exemptions he claims.

The only computations would be to subtract any moving expenses, employe business expenses and tax-free retirementaccount payments from total income to arrive at adjusted gross income.

The changes also would simplify things for the 31 per cent who now itemize deductions. Their only computation above that required of non-itemizers would be to determine how much their itemized deductions exceed the standard deduction.

Wrong Response

Recently the Soviet Union found a pretext to expel George Krimsky, an Associated Press correspondent in Moscow. The real reason for the expulsion was that Krimsky was digging too deeply into the affairs of Soviet dissidents.

The United States retaliated with a diplomatic charade as old as time. Washington first protested and then ordered Vladimir I. Alekseyev, the Tass correspondent in the capital, to leave the United States

Tax on Sunlight: A Concocted Political Gem

Those of us who are inclined to the George Orwell - Samuel Butler - Aldous Huxley view of political institutions have once again been vindicated. The caretakers of the collective looney - bin — ever on the prowl for new sources of tax revenues and the public - utility monopolists — ever vigilant for signs of a relapse of competition CANCER (June 21-July 22) in their industry - have

> Aware of the growing interest in the use of solar energy, this plunder and protectionism lobby has a couple of proposals before the California Legislature and the California Public Utilities Commission, that bear a remarkable resemblance to a 19th century tongue - in - cheek offering by Frederic Bastiat.

One proposal calls for a tax on the use of sunlight. Those who use the sun as a source of power must, if this measure becomes law, pay the state for the privilege of doing so. I suppose the conservationists and their disaster - lobby gaggle will get in on this one. with documentation that the sun is being wasted by irresponsible profligacy, and is threatened with extinction if a few years unless something is "done

The other measure is designed to guarantee the power companies yet another legal rip off of the public. It proposes that people who convert from the use of electric and-or gas power to solar power must pay the utility companies for the amount of electricity or gas they would have used if they had not made such a conversion

The utilities, in other words. are to have a monopoly even in those energy markets for which the so-called 'natural monopoly" arguments do not apply. If this cavalier assault on consumers succeeds. I would expect other industries to want to get in on the racket as well: perhaps the petroleum companies could get legislation enacted to require cyclists and owners of economy - cars to pay them for the gasoline they did not use, and telephone companies could charge people for communications that were not made via the telephone. After all, farmers have gotten away with this same practice in being paid, by the taxpayers, for crops they have not produced.

I think, however, that if the politicians, bureaucrats, and monopolists are as intent on bringing the dreas of the aforementioned futuristic novelists to fruition as they seem, they should go further than they have proposed. After all, do we want Russia, Red China, or Uganda to get ahead of us in the race for absurd political programs? Do we want to become a second - rate political system? I say we must take the bull by the tail and face the issue squarely. If California officials can come up with such bold, new programs as deal with so valuable a resource as sunlight, the rest of us should do our part

I offer, therefore, the following proposals (which, as you can see, are just crazy enough to attract the support of Jimmy Carter): first, turn all water resources - including rivers, lakes, oceans, and even rainfall — over to the water companies. Why should they have to suffer revenue losses when it rains and people don't have to water their own lawns. or when people go to the beach or the ocean to swim instead of filling their own swimming pools? It's not fair!

Second, let us turn the use of the air over to the Environmental Protection Agency. It is, after all, difficult for the EPA to help assure clean air when people are breathing it all up. In addition, people who live outside major industrial areas get to breathe clean air while urbanites get stuck with smog and other forms of pollution. This is a clear case of "discrimination," and federal regulations are called for. Perhaps city - dwellers and rural residents should be bused back and forth to make up for this obvious inequity.

With such proposals as I have offered, and those being considered in California, our energy and resource problems would be on the way to being solved. We would have someone to tell us when we could breathe. when we could consume water. and when we could enjoy the use of the sun, and which monopolist we would have to pay for the privilege of so doing. How else can we hope to maintain a free society?

Carter learns lesson

Daniel P. Moynihan, former ambassador to the U.N. and now Democratic senator from New York, made a perceptive capsule commentary the other day.

Asked if President Carter's defense of the Central Intelligence Agency in the matter of payments to foreign heads of states meant that he had forgotten his campaign promise to curb secrecy in government, Moynihan replied, 'No. He's just learned that it's his CIA

In other words, the view from the oval office is not the same as the view from the campaign stump. There is a world of difference between being a candidate for president and actually being president, between offering solutions and programs from outside the White House and actually sitting behind the desk where the buck stops. Moynihan might well have said, "He's just learned that it's his baby" — meaning the government as a whole. Call it "the graying of the president."

As another example of good intentions grounded by reality, consider Mr. Carter's complaint that his cabinet and staff are burying him in paperwork. According to his deputy press secretary, the president told a cabinet meeting that in one week he received 125 memos and additional national security papers totaling 800 pages, all of which he was supposed to study and digest in a day and a half.

So vast and complex has the government become that no one man can possibly comprehend it all, much less preside over its operations in every detail. Even lesser officials whose areas of responsibility are far smaller than those of the president are overwhelmed

Mr. Carter has, in fact, revoked an order requiring all cabinet officers to personally read each new regulation issued by their departments — after having achieved his objective to impress upon them the sheer volume and complexity of their departments' activities.

What is true of the president and the executive branch is equally true of the legislative and judicial branches.

Senators and representatives cannot absorb all the data, information and testimony amassed by congressional committees, or read and weigh each one of the thousands of bills dropped into the hopper each session. They often leave the final interpretation of the laws they pass up to the judges, who themselves are burdened by growing caseloads.

Shift in corporate ethics?

A survey published in the prestigious Harvard Business Review suggests that corporation executives are more cynical about the level of ethics in their industries than any Nader raider.

For instance, when posed a hypothetical situation in which under - the - table payments could help win a big. profitable contract. 42 per cent of the executives said they would refuse to pay a bribe no matter what the consequences. But only nine per cent said that the average executive in the same situation would refuse to pay.

The question was part of a survey conducted by Steven N. Brenner and Earl A. Molander of Portland State University, in which the views of 1,277 representative business officials were compared with responses in a 1961 study.

Although 27 per cent of the executives said that ethical standards in business are high today than in 1961, and 41 percent said they were the same, 32 per cent said they were lower. More significant, by a ratio of better than two to one, those executives who see a trend either way believe it is in the direction of lower standards.

Young off to a noisy start

By WILLIAM RUSHER NEW YORK - Andrew Young. President Carter's new ambassador to the U.N., is off to a noisy start, and is already being referred to as "America's unguided missile." Hardly a week passes without Young making some new and sweeping statement that the State Department feels called upon to explain, qualify, or disayow.

How much all this matters. given the eccentricity and basic unimportance of the U.N., is open to legitimate question. But Young has lately begun developing a position on thoughtful observers chewing their lower lips.

As an American black, formerly a Georgia congressman and known to be close to Jimmy Carter, Young seemed especially well qualified to represent this country in dealings with the black nations of Africa, which of course are bitterly hostile to the minority white regimes in Rhodesia and the Republic of South Africa. If Young's own racial background insured that he would share that hositility to the full, nobody minded much, since support for 'black majority rule' in southern Africa has been a fixed feature of U.S. policy for several

But Young has recently started mobilizing black political support in the United States in favor of a more aggressive American effort to replace the white - ruled nations in southern Africa. He speaks of a sense of identification that American blacks increasingly feel with the blacks of southern Africa, comparing it to the sentiments of American Jews on the subject of Israel. He quite clearly looks forward to a day when the mass political pressure of America's black voters will dominate U.S. policy on southern Africa as definitely as the pressure of Jewish voters today dominates U.S. policy on the Middle East. Nothing terribly wrong with that scenario, you say? Perhaps not, but just look down the road a bit. The Arab nations of the Middle East have clearly thrown in their lot with black Africa — witness Saudi Arabia's recent gift of a cool billion dollars in aid to the region. It doesn't take much imagination southern Africa that has to see an Arab - black alliance shaping up, dedicated to the overthrow of white dominance in southern Africa. And if Ambassador Young has his way. this coalition will have the enthusiastic support of the freshly mobilized black voters of America, who were recently taught by Alex Haley's enormously influential "Roots" to remember and take pride in their own African ancestry. But now suppose - just suppose — that as this impressive combination of political forces gears up to drive the white Rhodesians and South Africans into the sea, or at least from power, the Arab financiers of the project ask a small favor of their black colleagues in Africa and the United States: support for the Arabs' own dream of eliminating Israel, which the Arabs of course regard as every bit as much an alien minority regime as Rhodesia or South Africa. That nightmare is no doubt a comfortable distance off, for the present. In the first place. Young takes care to be as passionately pro - Israel in his public remarks on the Middle has been appointed to the Canadian River Basin Advisory Committee, according to an announcement today by James H. Rose, special advisor on natural resources in Texas.

The appointment, Rose stated, is made under the Federal Water Pollution Act Amendments of 1972, and the committee is a requirement of the Environmental Protection Agency in each planning area. The act levies a mandatory requirement on all states to conduct waste water treatment management planning.

Primary responsibility of the advisory committees will be to advise the responsible planning or implementing agency during the development and implementation of the plan on broad policy matters, including the fiscal, economic and social impacts of the waste water management plan.

Rose said a meeting would be called soon of the committee named for the Canadian River

A marriage doesn't have to be exclusive to be good. Each of us can love more than one person. Why be hypocritical? If there were fewer "either/or" ultimatums, there would be fewer divorces. After 28 years of a monogamous marriage, my wife and I decided to "open" our marriage to include others. I now encourage and help my wife to have outside relationships with other men, and she does the same for me with other women. Our open marriage has revitalized us and strengthened our marriage

OPEN AND HAPPY

DEAR OPEN: I didn't suggest an "open marriage" because I wouldn't advise anyone to do what I myself wouldn't do. Marriage is (or should be) a sacred covenant between two people, and to "open" it to include others is a violation of that covenant.

It may be possible to love more than one person, but in a civilized society, it's one at a time. The "group" thing, which includes many partners, is not a "love feast"-it's a sexual smorgasbord.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your comment about the 73year-old woman signed TALKS TOO MUCH. "Your son did you a kindness to tell you so.'

However, I have a better way to find out if I'm talking too much. If someone interrupts me, I just keep quiet. And if nobody asks me what I was saying before I was interrupted, I know I've been talking too much.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the letter about a sixth grade teacher telling a dirty joke to his class:

I have six children (the youngest in the seventh grade) and have worked as an aide in an elementary school for eight years, and I have a message for parents:

If you dislike something your child tells you happened at school, talk to the teacher. Sometimes a child misunderstand or, unfortunately, lies. If the teacher's explanation doesn't satisfy you, go to the principal.

If it is something serious or dangerous, and you are CER-TAIN of your facts, state your concern in writing and send it to the personnel department of your school district.

Get involved; see what is happening at your child's school. But remember, too, that neither your child nor the teacher is perfect.

> Ask Dr. Lamb By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have just learned that I have a borderline high cholesterol level. The doctor said no salad oils, creamed vegetables, butter or cheese. No more than three eggs a week. I'm wondering just what I can eat to gain weight. I'm 5 feet 6 and weigh 114 pounds. So you see I am not overweight. Can I eat creamed vegetables made with skim milk? Can you tell me what foods I can eat and which ones I should not eat other than those I have listed?

DEAR READER - A person can be thin and have a high cholesterol level as your case points out, but most people with high levels tend to be overweight. Regardless of that point the most important aspect of the diet is to NOT GAIN WEIGHT and to eliminate any excess fat that you have. I doubt that any of the diets to lower cholesterol have any useful effect unless the person also avoids or eliminates obesity. The first of the recommendations of the InterSociety Commission on Heart Disease Resources sponsored by the government regarding diet is to eliminate or prevent obesi-

Yes, you can use a white sauce made with skimmed milk or by using dry skim milk powder. I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter, number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclerosis, and number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis. These will give you a good start on your program. Others who want these can send 50 cents for each with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a senior citizen, 71 years of age.

Polly's pointers By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY - Mrs. E.M. who washed her jeans with glass fiber curtains can soak them overnight in cider (not white) vinegar. This can also be put on the skin in case it has attracted some of the fibers and it will cut the stinging. The vinegar odor will soon disappear. — PAT.

DEAR POLLY — People who live alone and on limited budgets find buying garbage bags soon taxes their budgets so I save all my bread bags and put in them what garbage I have to dispose of during a day. The bag is put in my kitchen garbage can and then I put several of these bags in a regular garbage bag before collection time. — K.R.M.

DEAR POLLY - Even though many of us wear clothes that require little or no ironing there are times when they do need a bit of touching up with an iron. One day when I need to do a bit of this the steam part of my iron did not want to work so I filled an empty man's cologne bottle with water and used that to dampen the places that needed some touch-up ironing. I was very happy with the results. I used a bottle that has a removable top and found it ideal as it gives off a fine spray.

NEW YORK - (NEA) -That day in 1965 when she bought the plant, Patti Cappalli knew she was in trouble.

It was a splendid plant, she remembers, huge and leafy with a white lily in the middle. "As I'm walking down the street, people are saying, what a fabulous plant. And I'm saying, yes, it's too bad it's going to die in my apart-

Boston firms behind her. Why, then, couldn't she lose the excess weight she'd carried since childhood? Why did she feel so unattractive and why, aside from her career, was her ego still so fragile? "I really had to be successful in what I was doing," she says, "because my work was me.

She began seeing an analyst and eventually discovered that her "boring hangups" from a conventional '50s childhood were boringly com-

"Analysis made me realize I wasn't alone, that my fears were shared by many people. I really believed," she says slowly, "that I was the only shy person in New York; the only one who never had a terrific time at parties, who blushed and couldn't accept compliments.

"I also felt envious and very jealous of people more fortunate than me. I never understood what was meant by, if you want to be successful, surround yourself with talent. I was afraid I'd lose what I

And all she had, she thought, was her talent. That passion for creating clothes that first showed up in the gowns and handed them in to the teacher. "Clothes to me were very Hollywood and lavish. Glamorous. They were something I wasn't and I could express that through my drawings."

Happily, the teacher recognized more than a child's fancy. "She encouraged my folks to send me to children's art classes," Ms. Cappalli says. Still, her parents never did seem to understand her "esthetic leanings."

"My father was a lawyer," she explains, "and the only vision he had for me was that I'd be a nifty legal secretary. If the Rhode Island School of Design hadn't been right there in town, I probably never would have gone to design

Still, she probably would have had to end up in the profession some day - her drive was overwhelming. If only her hangups had proven less tenacious. After three years in analysis, she was still heavy, still dreaming future dreams of ball gowns despite continuing professional

In 1968, you see, Bobbie Brooks had started Addenda for her, one of the first contemporary clothing houses in the country. Ms. Cappalli was free to leave juniors to their disposable clothing. wears a size 8 or 10 dress. She wears her black hair short, in a blunt Sassoon cut (her husband is a vice president of Vidal Sassoon's) and she doesn't blush or get depressed about plants.

The 20-pound weight loss didn't come about, however, until last spring. That's when everything seemed to come together for her, she says. "I started designing for Jerry Silverman Sport a year ago and when I was doing the fall '76 collection, I found myself losing weight. It was really the first time I was motivated to wear my own clothes. The quality was there," she explains. "I'd been designing less expensive clothes up to that point and they always got bastardized along the way. If I did a tartan plaid in 100 per cent wool, we couldn't afford to ship it in wool so it went in acrylic." But Silverman permits her to do fully lined blazers at $110, classic, understated shirts and skirts from $40 to 60, just about anything she wants. "My life and my ego became more integrated, she says, "and once I felt comfortable with my success, I could be responsible for the way I looked.

There are still problems, of course. "I tend to live in the future although I try to live in the present. But on a scale of one to ten as far as success goes, I see myself between eight and nine, because success for me is being totally responsible for what you do on a day to day basis.'

And should one of her five collections a year not quite make it, well, she learned long ago that if you're human, you make mistakes.

"Somebody once told me if you're right all the time, you shouldn't show the line - you should charge admission for people to see it."

Cutting: before cutting, press fabric to remove wrinkles. A steam pressing will eliminate any shrinkage. Use silk pins, set at close intervals. Silk does ravel, so you may wish to leave more than the usual five-eighths inch seam allowance

Marking: Carbon markings may show through fine fabrics, so use tailors tacks. Basting: Silk is slippery. Baste with a small hand needle, using mercerized thread and working just outside the stitching line, in the seam allowance.

Stitching: Use a new #11 needle for all silk fabrics. Use your straight-stitch foot and throat plate - not the ones which accommodate a zigzag stitch - for better fabric control. If necessary, sew over tissue paper to prevent puckering. Use silk or mercerized thread - never a synthetic. Set your machine for light tension, 10-12 stitches per inch; be sure to run a test swatch to check settings.

Seam Finishes: The neatest finish is a French seam. Otherwise, hand-overcast the raw edges, or turn the seam edges under and machine

Linings: The sheer silks are not lined, because their beauty is in the way they seem to float. Broadcloth and crepe de chine are among the usuallyunlined silks. Heavier silks shantung, linen or twill — are usually lined or underlined, since they take to more tailored styles. China silk is often used as a lining: this is a plain, lightweight material zipper may be too heavy for a fine silk. Choose the lightest zipper you can find, and put it in with small hand stitches. Snaps may be more suitable than buttons with buttonholes, unless the buttons are tiny and the buttonholes handmade.

Pressing: Use a silk to wool

Hobby plans highway money

Gov. Bill Hobby says he has a two years but would provide plan that would funnel more more money for highways over money into highway construction and still leave money for property taxpayers and teach-

Gov. Dolph Briscoe had $825 million in existing revenue for highways, and the House quickly passed a bill providing about $600 million.

The proposal, however. stalled in a Senate subcommittee after Hobby expressed his opposition to it.

Hobby said in a telephone interview Friday that his plan would increase highway fundthe next 20 years than Briscoe's.

The highway fund will be insufficient if left' without new sources of revenue. But properasked legislators to allocate ty taxpayers seeking tax relief and teachers seeking more money are putting heavy demands on the treasury, creating a dilemma for lawmakers.

Hobby's plan would increase highway funding in the future as the Highway Construction Price Index and the Highway Maintenance Price Index rise.

Both indices are issued by the U.S. Department of Transportation

Sanders says that he had 150 offers for his services, but ultimately settled on St. Bonventure "because I wanted to be a big fish in a small pond."

AP Sports Writer Top-rated Michigan and third-ranked Kentucky bit the dust Saturday. No. 2 UCLA bowed out two days earlier and San Francisco, which held the top spot for much of the season, has been long gone from the National Collegiate basketball championships. But the "Men from UNCC" are still alive.

The "Men from UNCC" isn't a TV spy story. It's more a Cinderella tale in which a school whose basketball history only dates back a dozen years knocks off the No. 1 team in the nation to make the championship round-of-four in Atlanta

If you're not aware of it by now, UNCC stands for the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, as differentiated from THE University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, which also advanced to the national semifinals and which hereafter shall be known simply as North Carolina

Joining them are Marquette and the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. Saturday afternoon's nationally televised semifinals sends fourth-ranked Ne-ranked Marquette. The pairings came about last Saturday when North Carolina upset Kentucky 79-72 in the East Regional, the "Men from UNCC" shocked mighty Michigan 75-68 in the Mideast. Marquette trimmed Wake Forest 82-68 in the Midwest and Nevada-Las Vegas ran away from Idaho State 107-90 in the West Regional.

If UNCC meets UNLV in the finals, it might be mistaken for a spelling bee. And North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt has suggested that the NCAA's name be changed to North Carolina Athletic Association. Imagine if Wake Forest had made it. too.

The No. 1 Man from UFCC is a lanky 6foot-8 center with the catchy handle of Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who led the the 49ers past Michigan with a 25point, 13-rebound show. Lew Massey added 19 and Kevin King helped hold Michigan center Phil Hubbard to just 14.

We've never played guys like that before." marveled Michigan All-American Rickey Green, who led the Wolverines with 20 points. Their arm reach was so long I couldn't believe it. No matter how high you'd get your shot, it seemed like they'd be waiting to tip it."

If UNCC is Cinderella, veteran Marquette Coach Al McGuire, with his past penchant for drawing costly technicals, certainly isn't Prince Charming. However, McGuire will have plenty of followers in Atlanta, having announced his retirement at the end of this season.

McGuire would have been granted early retirement but for a career-high 18point performance against Wake Forest by 6-9 substitute Bernard Toone to go with Bo Ellis' 20 and Butch Lee's 19. Toone, a sophomore, will be back on the bench when the ball goes up against UNCC. And he'll probably be off the bench in a hurry if the Warriors fall behind again.

North Carolina was comfortable most of the way against Kentucky's physical Wildcats despite the loss of foul-plagued. sore-elbowed All-American Phil Ford for the last 19 minutes. While he was in there. Ford scored only two points. But his backcourt mate. John Kuester, took over, running the Tar Heels' four-corner offense down the stretch and hitting four crucial free throws in the final 72 seconds after Kentucky had whacked a 15-point deficit to just one.

The injury-plagued Tar Heels also played without center Tommy LaGarde. out for the season with a knee injury. while Walter Davis scored 21 points despite a broken index finger on his shooting hand. Ford, LaGarde and Davis all were members of the United States gold medal-winning Olympic basketball

It would have been Cinderella vs. Cinderella had Idaho State beaten runand-gun Nevada-Las Vegas. But after trailing 52-51 at the half. UNLV's Runnin' Rebels caught fire following a pep talk from Coach Jerry Tarkanian and outscored the Bengals 20-7 in the first seven minutes of the second half.

"I gave them a scolding." Tarkanian reported. "The first half, we played like we were in a trance. We didn't play with any intensity. We're not a good basketball team unless we play with intensity.

"Hello?" "Hi Marge, this is Suzie." "Suzie, Suzie, Suzie! What a pleasant surprise!" "How are ya?" "I'm doing just fine. How are things with you?" "Oh, things are terrific around here since you left." "I'll bet. You know I miss you guys." "How do you like your new house?" "Oh, Suzie, it's terrific." "Did you get what you wanted?" "That and more." "Well?" "Well what?" "Tell me about your stupid new house." "Suzie, it's fabulous." "Did you get the big back yard you wanted?" "Three acres with a pond." "Do you have a garden?" "We have a greenhouse!" "Do you have a nice kitchen?" "A huge kitchen with all new appliances!" "Do you have some aspirin?" "Aspirin?" "Yeah, you're making me sick." "You should complain. You're not exactly living in a dump." "How does Fred like his new job?" "Suzie, he's a new man." "He likes it?" "He loves it. Absolutely loves it." "That's good." "How is Jack?" "Fine. He's going through a do-it-yourself phase right now." "Oh, good." "Everytime I ask him to do something, he yells 'Do it yourself?" "Oh, not good." "When are you coming to visit us?" "When are you going to invite us?" "You know you have a standing invitation." "Yeah, but we'd rather sit." "I'm serious. When are you coming?" "Name a date." "How about in a few weeks...say the week of the 29th?" "Wait a minute, let me get my calendar...the 29th?" "That's a Saturday." "Yeah. Sounds good." "Okay, it's a deal. We'll be expecting you." "What do you want us to bring?" "Just your sense of humor." "No." "No." "Just joking." "Funny." "You missed a great party at the Smiths' last night." "They had a party? They never have parties." "They've been waiting for you to move away." "What happened?" "Well, for starters, Jackie's dog ate the main course before any of the guests arrived." "You're kidding." "No. Then the air conditioning went on the blink." "No wonder they never had any parties. What did everyone do?" "We starved and perspired a lot." "Sounds awful." "Speaking of starving, how's the old diet?" "Pll tell you if you tell me." "125" "Oh, Susan! You've been cheating!" "No I haven't." "Well how can you lose weight if you've been eating?" "How about you?" "I'm not telling." "Come on." "One fxvie five." "What?" "One fxvie five." "Marge, you're mumbling." "One fxvie five." "One forty five?" "Less." "One thirty five?" "See, that's not so bad." "That's terrible." "I know." "What's your excuse?" "A perfectly understandable insecurity resulting from having to adapt to new surroundings." "New surroundings. The only new surroundings you're gonna have to adapt to is the lard surrounding your midsection." "Hey, look. Go easy kid. I don't have you to nag .me any more." "Well, it hasn't been easy for me either." "You wouldn't believe the food prices here." "Oh?" "Low." "Low." "Low." "No wonder you're eating so much." "I'm not kidding..." "Neither am I." "... I'm saving about 15 dollars a week over what I used to pay." "You're kidding!" "I'm not kidding." "Sounds like you got a raise, too." "Right. 15 dollars to blow on anything I like...toilet paper, floor wax and soap." "Don't forget laundry detergent." "Right." "Hey, you took something of mine when you left." "Your yellow sweater?" "Did you take my sweater?" "Sorry, I wasn't going to tell you." "That's okay. You keep my sweater and I'll keep your skirt." "Skirt?" "You know, the one with all the animals on it?" "Oh, yeah. I'd forgotten about that." "Is it a deal?" "We'll trade when you come to visit." "Sour puss. I'm sorry I even brought the subject up." "What were you going to say?" "I was going to say that you took my Suzie Fu Yung recipe." "Did I?" "Yes." "I'll give you that too when you come." "Good." "See? Just think of all the nice things awaiting you when you come." "I can't wait. Hey, I have something for you." "What?" "A riddle." "Shoot." "What has four holder-uppers, four puller-downers, a pair of lookers, and a swishy-wishy?" "I don't know, what?" "I'll tell you when we come to visit." "Oh, no you don't!" "Bye." "Come on, tell me!" "Bye." "Suzie!"
