

'The dump's a gold mine'

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON
Pampa News Staff

At least one Pampa resident considers the city dump grounds a veritable gold mine.

Following publication last week of the city commission's intention to hire a gate attendant at the dump, a News reporter received several calls from residents inquiring where to apply for the job.

All said they were more interested in sole salvage rights than wages.

One man said he spent a recent summer picking up scrap metal at the dump, and earned enough in three months to buy a new Ford LTD. "And that was on scrap metal alone," he said. "The dump's a gold mine if you want to work."

Other men mentioned the value of lumber, furniture and appliances salvaged there.

"There's a lot of industry here, and rich people, and the dump is really good," one aspiring applicant said.

Hutchinson county (Stinnett) recently hired their gate attendant for $150 a month plus salvage.

City manager Mack Wofford said today an agreement has been reached with a former city employee who offered to keep attendants at the gate from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week for sole salvage rights plus $700 monthly.

Wofford said that "At times there have been as many as 50 or 60 people out there taking things out just about as fast as other people were putting them in the dump. Everytime the state inspector was up here he'd write a letter to the mayor saying that it was in violation."

No bids were advertised prior to the city's contracting with former employe Ignacio Vargas for dump management.

According to terms of the contract, Wofford said, either party can terminate the agreement on five days written notice.

"If we find this thing is more lucrative than we think it is going to be, we could take another look at the arrangement," he said.

Wofford pointed out that Vargas is a private contractor under the agreement and will receive none of the benefits that go with a city employe's salary.

"It would cost us about $10,000 per year, salary and benefits, for one full-time man," he said. "At one time we estimated it would cost us $30,000 a year to keep the dump open if we manned it with city employes."

The city manager pointed out that immediate plans for the dump operations do not provide for the charging of any use fees. He said that all other operations he knows about have a schedule of rates charged persons who use the dump facilities.

Speaking of Pampa's transition from open dump system to a controlled system, Wofford said, "We have gotten away with it longer than anyone in the area," and mentioned that Berger and Amarillo both have had controlled systems for five or six years.

Man killed in horse crash

A 60-year-old Dumas man was killed near Lefors Sunday night when the 1975 Toyota pickup he was driving collided with an appaloosa mare.

The accident occurred about 8:54 p.m. when Daniel Webster Newman and his wife, Georgia S. Newman, 51, were traveling south on Texas State Highway 273 about 150 feet west of Lefors and about a half mile south of Spur 398.

Trooper Wayne Williams with the Texas Department of Public Safety said that the horse apparently jumped in the path of the vehicle and after being struck, fell on top of the pickup, crushing the cab down.

Mr. Newman was caught between the cab roof and the steering wheel and suffered massive injuries to his head.

An ambulance from Lefors took Mr. and Mrs. Newman to Highland General Hospital in Pampa where he was pronounced dead by Dr. Wilber R. Whitsell Jr. She was treated for a bump on the head and minor lacerations and released.

Trooper Williams said the horse which was killed by the impact, was not branded and the owner was not known. He described it as having four black stocking legs and a white face.

Mr. Newman's body was taken to Carmichael - Whitley Funeral Directors Sunday evening and was to be transferred today to a Dumas funeral home.

Weather

A 20 per cent chance of precipitation is included in the forecast for today and Tuesday. High today will be the low - 70s and on Tuesday will reach near 70 degrees. Overnight low will be in the upper - 40s.

Highland General to consider loan

The need for a loan to Highland General Hospital will be considered by the Board of Managers of Highland and McLean General Hospitals during a 2 p.m. meeting today in the Highland General conference room.

The panel also will hear reports by Guy Hazlett II, hospital administrator, and from Dr. Wilbur Whitsell Jr., chief of staff.

Budget amendments for the emergency room and security system will be considered and the board will hear a request for consultation for evaluation of personnel policies, procedures and a wage and salary plan.

A revision to the by-laws will be presented to the board and a budget sub-committee will be appointed. The members will also hear a report on the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals.

Minutes of the previous meeting will be read for approval and the board will be asked to approve March and April accounts payable and the April payroll.

An executive session is planned for the discussion of professional service contracts and personnel matters and the board will reconvene in open session following the executive session. The board will also be asked to approve a board meeting on April 25.

Ramona Hite to head Top O' Texas pageant

Ramona Hite, business education teacher at Pampa High School and past worker on the Miss Top O' Texas Pageant, was named director of the 1977 pageant Friday.

The announcement was made by the Executive Board of the Chamber of Commerce and the co-chairmen of the Chamber's retail trade committee, Ken Plotner and Jerry Smith.

"We'll give her quite a bit of leeway on this thing," Melvin Kunkel, Chamber president, said today.

Mrs. Lois Steward of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, said Mrs. Hite will have "complete" charge of all pageant activities.

"She'll have a finance committee and a program committee," Mrs. Steward said, adding that those committees will be named later.

The "Miss Top o' Texas Pageant attracts entrants from across the Texas Panhandle each year, Mrs. Steward added.

Mrs. Hite has worked on committees for the Miss Top o' Texas Pageant for the past three years and has previous experience directing a pageant. She directed the District Lions Queen Contest in 1975.

Mrs. Hite said this morning that no date has been set for the 1977 pageant, but added it will be "in July or August" in the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

'Spring forward'

Sunset continues to arrive later and later each day as the season progresses into summer. And soon an additional hour will be added to the sunshine with daylight savings time. Clocks will be moved forward one hour at 2 a.m., Sunday, April 24 as the annual event arrives. This stark sunset scene is in northeast New Mexico.

Soviet trawler seized in fishing zone

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

A Soviet trawler was brought to dock at Boston today while a second Soviet ship was under Coast Guard control, the first two Soviet ships taken for violations of the United States 200-mile fishing zone.

The gray and white trawler Taras Shevchenko docked at the Boston Coast Guard base shortly after 9 a.m. as its crew stood at the rails listening to rock music on transistor radios. Coast Guard lawyers and representatives of the U.S. Attorney's office immediately boarded the ship.

The 275-foot ship, with a crew of 93, was seized late Saturday after the Coast Guard said it discovered the craft was carrying more than her allowed quota of river herring.

The Coast Guard announced Monday that a second Soviet ship, the Antanas Snechkus, had been ordered into Boston from 160 miles east-southeast of Nantucket. The action took place on Sunday, the Coast Guard said, and the vessel was being escorted to Boston.

"Isn't that beautiful," said U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, who was at the dock to watch the Taras Shevchenko tie up.

"Look at those flags," he said in reference to the trawler sailing with the American flag flying from her foremast and the Soviet flag waving at her stern. This is routine, the flag of the host nation is flown on a forward mast.

The Coast Guard said the second vessel, a processing ship measuring 503 feet, was discovered carrying contraband fish. The Coast Guard did not name the species.

The Coast Guard said the cargo of the second vessel was seized, not the ship itself. But to seize the cargo, the vessel had to be taken into custody.

The crew of the Taras Shevchenko will remain on board, with the gangway guarded and small craft prevented from approaching it.

The Antanas Snechkus, a transport refrigerator ship acts as a support ship to fishing ships, a Coast Guard spokesman in New York said.

He said it was the first time that the Coast Guard had taken control of a nonfishing Soviet ship. "We've never had one like this when we just seized the cargo. This is new ground for the Coast Guard," he said.

The Antanas Snechkus has a crew of 63 persons. It was built in 1974 and is home-ported in Klaipeda, Russia.

The Coast Guard has issued more than 60 citations and warnings to Soviet fishing vessels since the 200-mile limit went into effect March 1.

"We've released several of them," President Carter said of the Soviet ships as he left Easter services in Georgia on Sunday. "But we just had to draw the line somewhere. We informed the Soviet Embassy this past week we couldn't continue to release them that we had to enforce the law."

Authority over impounded ships passes to the U.S. Attorney in Boston after the ship

France sends planes for Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — France has sent 11 cargo planes to transport supplies for Moroccan troops aiding the Zaire government's war against invaders in the southern part of the country. French officials say.

Officials in Paris said the cargo planes would carry exclusively Moroccan materiel and no troops whatsoever. The French government said the governments of Zaire and Morocco asked for the assistance.

Western diplomats in Kinshasa confirmed the arrival of 1,500 Moroccan troops to fight the Katangan exiles who invaded their native province — now called Shaba — from Angola on March 8.

Meanwhile, Zaire's President Mobutu Sese Seko told Newsweek magazine he was "bitterly disappointed" because the United States had not sent him the arms and ammunition he requested.

"If you have decided to surrender piecemeal to the Soviet-Cuban grand design in Africa, I think you owe it to us and to your friends to have the frankness to admit it," Mobutu said in an interview with the American news magazine.

The United States says it has sent Mobutu medical supplies and non-combat military supplies. Belgium has sent small arms, and a Zaire government spokesman said the Chinese are sending 30 tons of emergency supplies.

Mobutu told a rally in Kinshasa that the invading Katangans had been helped "by complicities at the highest levels of the Zaire army." He said one army officer had been arrested.

The president said the invaders intercepted his forces' communications. He said this enabled them to cross the border just as fuel rationing was imposed in Shaba and armored units were withdrawn from the area.

There have been no reports of fighting in the province for a week. The invaders' front lines are believed to have stabilized some 30 to 50 miles west of Kolwezi, the center of the copper mines. It is some 800 miles southeast of Kinshasa and 210 miles east of the Angolan border.

The invaders are reported to be veterans of Mose Tshombe's Katanga army of the early 1960s who fled to Angola after the failure of Tshombe's attempt to detach mineral-rich Shaba from the rest of the country.

But Mobutu told Newsweek only the officers and senior noncommissioned officers were Tshombe's veterans and the rest of the invaders were recruited in Shaba in the past two years.

Mobutu claims the invaders are armed by the Soviet Union, supported by Angola's Marxist government and led by Cuban troops who helped the Angolan Marxists defeat two pro-Western rival factions last year. Angola, Cuba and the Soviet Union have denied helping the invaders.

Fair warning

Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills hopes signs posted in Pampa convenience stores "will make an armed robber think twice." The signs and the department's shotgun patrol are part of Pampa's crime prevention program, Mills added. Merchants may request the police department post one of the signs in their store. Joe Phillips, Toot 'n' Totum supervisor, said the program "should make the public feel a lot better knowing the police is on the job." The police chief said there is no set schedule for the patrol and added that members of Pampa's tactical team perform the service. Those officers, Mills said, have completed special weapons and tactics (S.W.A.T.) training. Pampa Det. J.J. Ryzman posts a sign in Toot 'n' Totum No. 43, Alecock and Hobart, as Patrolman Norman Rushing stands guard.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old widow who is being pestered by a bachelor in whom I have no interest. But HE is interested in ME.

I work from 8 to 5, and when I come home I find him puttering around in my garden, or sweeping my garage or driveway.

I told him I am not interested in marriage, sex, love or a live-in companion. He said HE was.

I don't want to have him arrested for trespassing on my property or harassing me, because I don't think he's dangerous.

How can I get this man to leave me alone without going to the law?

NOT THAT LONESOME

DEAR NOT: TELL him you will have him arrested if he doesn't stay off your property and quit bothering you. And if that doesn't work, you may have to call the police. He may not be dangerous, but you have a right to be left alone.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I gave our married son (who lives near us) a key to our home so he can come here to check up on things when we're out of town.

Well, it seems that while we're away, he and his wife come in and borrow whatever they want. We don't even know what they've borrowed until we look for something and can't find it. (I refer to serving trays, linen, card tables, garden tools and bottles from our bar!)

We've always been on good terms with our children and want to stay that way, but we think they have their nerve helping themselves to our things and not returning them.

Is there any way we can get our key back and put a stop to this without demanding it and hurting their feelings?
PHILADELPHIA PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: What's wrong with the direct approach? Simply ask them to return: [a] everything they've borrowed; [b] the key. And don't be bashful about telling them why.

DEAR ABBY: As a professional musician, I know I speak for all pianists and organists who have performed at parties and have wanted to tell the guests the following: Please do not:

1. Sit on the bench with me and engage me in conversation. It makes it impossible for me to perform.
2. Place drinks on the organ or piano. (I've had whole drinks fall on the keyboard and saturate the organ.)
3. Decide that you can play, too, and then proceed to fiddle with the keys while I am playing.
4. Sing loudly into my ear.

Abby, you would be doing all musicians a tremendous favor if you'd publish this.

R.G.R., THIBODAUX, LA.

DEAR R.G.R.: Consider it done.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 70 and I am 68 years old. Your advice is to use skim milk, a quart a day. Each of us uses about three cups, some of it buttermilk, most two per cent butterfat, partially skimmed milk.

My husband doesn't like completely skimmed milk. Do you think we get too much fat from the low fat milk? Is the skim milk powder all right? Older friends tell us they buy garlic pills and take one every day. They say they keep the arteries clean. Before we start this I would like to hear your opinion.

DEAR READER — In the interests of avoiding an excess intake of fat and particularly saturated fat it is wise to limit the amount of dairy fat in your diet. That is the only good reason to use skim milk as opposed to whole milk. The low-fat, two per cent fat milk is half way in between the two products. About a third of its calories are from fat as opposed to half in whole milk.

If you limit the fats in the rest of your diet that will not be too much of a burden on your fat intake budget. Buttermilk is a good choice for part of your milk intake. The non-fat dry milk powder is fine and is particularly useful in cooking.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, to give you a table of the values for various milk products and information on milk. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Garlic won't help you unless it cuts down on your socializing and the inevitable eating accompanying any social gathering of our society. It is one of those useless health food fads that do nothing for you except lighten your pocketbook.

The idea that garlic helps is as old as Dioscorides who first claimed it would clean out the arteries. The Egyptians fed it to their laborers to keep them strong while building the pyramids. One enthusiast advised everyone to put a piece of garlic in the rectum every night before retiring. It is all nonsense. Garlic will not lower blood pressure, clean out your arteries, your digestive system or give you strength. All it cleans out is your pocketbook.

You'll need to stay on a good balanced diet that is moderately restricted in fats, particularly saturated fats and cholesterol. Sensible living, not fads, is the real route to health and longevity.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was surprised to read in your column that some very young girls between the ages of 2 and 8 sometimes start menstruating and some have even become pregnant. Surely that is a misprint! Any comment?

DEAR READER — To err is human and misprints do occur along the production chain from me to your newspaper — but this is not one of them! The statement is correct.

Dr. Robert Kistner, well known gynecologist from Harvard, discusses this in his text, Gynecology, Principles and Practice, (Year Book Publishers, 2nd Edition 1971 page 183). Usually when this occurs in very young girls there is some underlying disorder but it has happened in apparently normal girls. It is rare, however. The usual age to start menstruation is between 10 and 16 years of age.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I am answering the reader who inquired about mounting old buttons. I have been collecting them since 1941 and have over 7,000 in my collection. Most of my buttons are mounted in loose leaf albums or scrap books. When mounting them I use two sheets together for extra support.

So that each button stands out more prominently I draw a double black line about one-half inch in from the edge of a sheet and then line off the center in blocks one or more inches square, depending on the size of the buttons. I then place one button in each block. If the buttons have holes I sew them on with double duty thread. If the buttons have shanks I press the shank through the sheet and insert a safety pin of the proper size on the back of secure the button. On the back of the sheet I write where they were bought or who gave them to me, prices and any other important information.

Trays covered with velvet can be bought and then stacked in shallow drawers but this can be expensive if one has many buttons. Many of mine are on their original cards and kept in separate books with plastic tape holding the cards in place. I should add that the first sheet of every scrapbook has an index and each kind is kept separately and on a different page from others. — M.K.W.

DEAR POLLY — My new telephone book has just come and this reminded me of a Pointer I would like to share. I always remove the map of our city and community and when a friend from out of town is coming to visit I send them the map with the route to our house marked on it. This also works well for a club or organization when they have a speaker or guest coming from out of town. — GLENNA.

By Rosette Hargrove

PARIS — (NEA) — The 1977 Paris haute couture styles surely will be branded as the most exasperatingly feminine in years. They are the kind that full-blooded men will approve — softly lyrical, nostalgic, romantic, a definite lure which will leave jeans and tank tops far behind.

Forget that last year was heralded as the year of the woman. 1977 will be "the year of the man's woman."

Although the once estimated 20,000 women in the world who could afford to dress in the high fashion circuit may have dwindled to 4,000, the feminine world still wants to see clothes impeccably executed in beautiful fabrics, providing feasts of color. High fashion influences ready-to-wear. Most important, women are not forbidden to dream and hope that some day they can be the proud possessor of a haute couture model.

And some woman will have her dream answered richly. A party-stopper at the recent showings was a naive, white cotton dress studded with 516 diamonds of up to two carats, priced at $1.25 million. According to a Serge Lepage-Schiaparelli spokesman, "Many ladies are interested in this dress. We have firm inquiries from two from Arabia." Lepage-Schiaparelli's fabulous collection also featured only formal late day and evening models, of Botticelli inspiration, fashioned in luxurious chiffons, gauzes, satins and the finest cotton. Models wore flat gold sandals or went barefoot, flower garlands in their hair and in jeweled waistbands.

Generally speaking the prevailing mood for spring and summer is soft, sensuous, unfettered, with rounded shoulders and hips, a natural waistline. The straight, gathered, off-shoulder neckline was seen everywhere, or it was heart-shaped and deep.

Meanwhile, there is no need to worry about an overwhelming return of the mini-dress. One or two appeared in some collections but most skirts cover the knees and some are even mid-calf length, except for Cardin, who went all out for what he called his "nymphettes" which had a definite Greek touch. Sleeves are all lengths, usually wide and sometimes cuffed. One important point is the new skirt width. Sunpleated or accordion-pleated skirts with topping blazer, short unfitted coatees swinging from the shoulder or boleros, sleeveless, may well become the spring uniform because it is so easy and flattering.

Yves Saint Laurent brought on the girls with a vengeance. He showed a minimum of slick pants suits, but introduced the feminine touch with Pierrot-frilled blouses. The main body of his collection showed his swing to the restoration of gala occasion dressing in the grand old manner. Ultra-full swinging gypsy skirts, crinolines (without the underpinnings) and dirndls swished down the catwalk. One leit-motif with this designer of many parts was the braiding which he featured to soften bellboy jackets, and what he calls a "liseuse" which is the use of ribbon of all widths. His Gibson Girl blouses teamed to a full-length taffeta dirndl, completed by a long scarf, is a theme attractive to all ages. Pierre Cardin still can claim his title of innovator. Always original, this season he opted for the mini look, sometimes in dresses made of two enormous gathered ruffles — one for the top, one for the mini skirt. Several of these "nymphettes" had long full sleeves or fell in handkerchief points from bare shoulders. The majority of his models were cut on the bias and in the longer dresses, floating panels fell just below the knees. Capes of all lengths belong to the Cardin picture, also.

Conventional coats are conspicuous by their absence and dresses often are topped by a sleeveless "wrap."

No woman can ever go wrong with a Givenchy. His daytime dresses in soft pleated tie silks are worn with sleeveless jackets of varying length in a contrasting color and always braided.

A new devil-may-care Givenchy mood is seen in the short pert "dance" dresses, often black, always flaring wide, teamed to tight little bodices with shoestring straps or none at all. Formal ball gowns include the new full skirt with organdy blouses and finely beaded corselet belts. Balmain, who has always stood for understated elegance showed spectacular gala gowns in the grand manner. Another line is the apron theme which Balmain shows with both day and evening gowns.

Dior's designer, Marc Bohan, always can be relied upon to offer a wide choice of ideas for daywear, from slim pants suits with easy-fitted jackets to simple pleated silk dresses with bloused tops. Also a wealth of modish accessories like wide draped cummerbunds, printed silk or taffeta shawls slung over one shoulder on simple evening dresses in monotone crepe or chiffon. His excursion into the mini-dress line takes the form of a trio of printed chiffon above kneelength dresses with a harem hem. There are also chiffon parkas and one spectacular evening dress showed long tight pants under a floating printed gauze skirt.

DAN CARTER SALUTES THE CUSTOMER OF THE DAY
Mr. & Mrs. W.D. Price Jr.

PARIS GIVES jeans and boots the backseat turning to more feminine styles for 1977. Guy Laroche offers a braided dolman in cobalt blue cotton over a green silk bloused dress of white wool crepe. Multi-colored cross-stitching, trim belt in leather strips reflect haute couture's directions.

BOTTICELLI inspired this gold silk pants ensemble with softly flowing cape presented by Serge Lepage-Schiaparelli in Paris for spring-summer. Gold sandals complete the mood.

SHORT SHORTS sub for the mini-skirt in this Jean-Louis Scherrer ensemble introduced in Paris for spring-summer. Vivid floral printed crepe is in green, blue and yellow.

BLOUSES AND long skirts take on new meaning for day and evening wear according to Paris.

Is it hard to sabotage minuteman site?

NEA correspondent Tom Tiede gained access to a Minuteman control chamber with 12-year-old press credentials and a Social Security card. He carried a camera bag with a note inside which read "I am a terrorist." The bag was never opened. When Tiede confronted military officials with an account of his penetration, the response was silence.

WHILE CAPT. BILL POHLAD (left) and Lt. Mark Homrie were explaining the missile control panel system, they were asked why they hadn't searched a reporter's camera bag. They said they assumed it had been cleared and, hence, hadn't bothered to check it. (Photo by Tom Tiede)

By Tom Tiede

DAHLEN, N.D. — (NEA) — When the Air Force established the Minuteman

Intercontinental Ballistic Missile system in the early 1960s it did so with security in mind. Both bombs and launching crews were placed underground, defended from intrusion by topside guards and by mechanical protections designed to be impenetrable.

But are they impenetrable? At a time of increasingly bold terrorist activity, are the warhead installations safe from invasion?

The answer to both questions may be no. In a visit to a Minuteman site near this small agriculture community I have learned that under some circumstances installation security is nonexistent.

I am not referring to conventional circumstances. It appears the Air Force is correct when it says the missile locations are safe from any direct terrorist attack. The facilities are surrounded by fencing, as well as small arms protection, and full reinforcements are merely a radio call and helicopter hop away.

What's more, even if attacking terrorists were to get into a compound, they would not be able to breach the underground control chamber. The elevator leading to it can be frozen (remotely) by the launch crew; and, finally, the chamber itself is sealed off by a three-foot thick steel door that is indeed beyond forcible entry.

Yet what if the terrorist assault were unconventional? For example, what if a lone thug were to pose as a student doing research, or a citizen on a readily available Minuteman tour, or even a newspaper reporter? Here is where security may fail.

In my experience it did fail, and had I been a terrorist I could have shaken the free world.

What I did was no more than what thousands of other civilians have done over the last decade: apply for permission to visit one of America's 1,000 Minuteman (III) installations. I applied by phone; others, ranging from Boy Scouts to scientists, have done it mostly by letter. Permission was given to me almost immediately.

All that was required by way of identification was a social security number, and something indicating my newspaper affiliation. Anyone can get a social security number, of course; each of the Hanafi Muslims who terrified Washington last month had them. As for my affiliation, I "proved" it with a faded, 12-year-old I.D. card.

From here on there was no more checking. I was cleared. No one actually had any idea who I was, or for that matter for whom I worked, but I was taken directly to launch control station "Golf-Zero," a site having responsibility for 10 missiles, each of which carry more destructive power than was released in any war history.

I was given a thorough safety briefing on the upstairs level of Golf-Zero. Then, without a search, and with no further need of identification, I was taken 60 feet into the earth to the launch control chamber, the thick door of which was wide open for welcome.

Capt. Bill Pohlad greeted me, and showed me around. We talked pleasantly of the mission, of the procedures, of safeguards and duty requirements. With him in the control room was Lt. Mark Homrie. The lieutenant is 24, a post Vietnam soldier as are many at the Minuteman sites; he conducted a panel exercise for me.

At length I interrupted the routine questioning to raise a more pertinent matter. I had a black bag with me, I said, and I wondered why it had not been searched. Supposedly it contained a camera, but realistically it could have contained a gun or a bomb. If I were a terrorist, I said, I would have now penetrated the site.

My revelation was sobering. The smiles of my hosts faded. A sergeant, who had immediate responsibility for my visit, said he'd been told the bag was a camera case, that it had been cleared as such, so he hadn't thought to check further. Neither the captain nor the lieutenant made excuses; they knew they had been negligent.

In subsequent conversations I was told that even if I had been a terrorist, and taken over the site, I could not have launched a missile. The procedures and codes are far too complex, for one thing. Then too, the crew said that if I forced them to fire their effort would be immediately negated by another launching station.

Still in all, had I been a terrorist I could have scored several other impressive victories. For one thing, I would have seen the codes and thereby invalidated them. For another, I could have thrown an enormously brutal scare into the nation. A madman in a missile site? It's something that only happens in the movies; the public psychology would have been devastated.

Fortunately, I was not a madman. Though I had gone so far in my experiment as to put a sobering note ("I am a terrorist!") in my black bag, I am merely a mild mannered reporter, to coin a phrase. But I'm struck by what I could have done, and could have done, and it's clear that our missile site security is not all that it's supposed to be.

Illness became success

DALLAS (AP) — No one in Steve Bielamowicz' eight-member family can remember any gifts he got for his 10th birthday eight years ago, but they remember the day vividly.

It was the day Steve came down with the high fever that later was diagnosed as encephalitis.

For a six-month period Steve's family was given little hope that he would ever get out of bed again because brain damage was almost a certainty.

But a miracle happened and the brain damage was minor and today 18-year-old Steve is a high school senior and an enterprising businessman.

Two months away from his high school graduation, Steve is the owner of three rental houses in Dallas, purchased with his own capital and maintained with his own craftsmanship.

"Actually the third house I bought doesn't really belong to me yet," says young Bielamowicz. "I got a loan from the bank to buy it, but I hope to have it paid off soon."

Steve spends most of his time in school, at his 12-hour per week job in a grocery store and keeping watch over his rental property.

It was wages from his jobs as a grocery sacker, paper boy and summertime yard worker to take his first step into real estate two years ago.

He bought a HUD repossessed home for $2,050, taking almost all of his savings.

Young Steve then bought paint and a little lumber, rolled up his sleeves and went to work repairing the two-bedroom frame house. In a short period, young Bielamowicz had rented our the house for $110 per month.

Soon he was building up his savings-account again. As soon as he had enough money saved, he bid $1,350 on a two-bedroom brick home and invested another $1,000 in materials.

He has completed a new roof for the home and is now working on the interior.

"I hope to have it ready by May," he says. "I've already got a family ready to move into it as soon as it's ready."

Even as the remodeling work on the second house is progressing, Steve purchased the third house.

"I hope to get enough money to go to college," Steve says. "And if things work out I'll probably buy another house. Right now I'm making pretty good money at it — enough to put some back into savings after I pay the insurance, the taxes and the upkeep on the ones I have. It's something I really enjoy so I'm going to stay with it."

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

If you don't want to read sad stories today, then skip this one. Mine is the story of a million women who once were happy in their lemon-scented houses, raising their kids, smelling their laundry, and hitting the Sara Lee every couple of hours.

Then one day I was out on the playground reading the American Journal on Tooth Decay when a sleazy-looking woman sat down beside me and said, "Hey kid, wanta try a Diet-Rite cola?"

"What is it?" I asked, my eyes wide with innocence.

"It'll make you thin," she said. "Just take one sip. Go ahead. It won't hurt you."

"How much does it cost?" "Hey, no problem," she smiled. "It's on me. If you like it, I'll be back here tomorrow with another six-pack."

It's an old story. Within a week, I had developed a real Diet-Rite habit. I had it with my lunch ... in the evening with popcorn ... on the airlines ... on picnics. It made me feel good. (Especially, the cans of cola cut with lemon.)

One day my husband said, "I'm worried about you. You look good. Are you taking too good care of yourself?" "Don't worry about me," I said. "I've just lost a few pounds. I'll pig out at Christmas. You'll see."

But Christmas came and went and the flab continued to drop off.

Then, last week, I went to the store and a fear gripped me that nearly stopped my heart from beating. The shelves were stripped of low-calorie drinks. There was none to be had. I rushed to the cashier. "Where are the diet drinks? The Tabs ... The Pepsi Lights? The Frescas?"

"Where have you been?" she asked. "There's a ban on saccharin. The Food and Drug Administration has taken it off the market because it's bad. It's cold turkey for you."

I shoved her aside and ran out into the street, not daring to believe what I had heard. I can't diet by myself. I'm weak. There was only one course left for me — back to the playground.

It didn't take me long to find my contact. She was humming,

"You put a little lemony taste in and take out half the calories."

"You've got to help me," I said hysterically. "They've taken all the diet soft drinks off the shelves in the supermarkets. I can't go back to being fat again, do you understand? I can't do it."

She smacked my face. "Get hold of yourself. Here, this will tide you over." I gave her a buck in exchange for a brown bag that concealed a can of cola. Feverishly, I flipped the top off and took a drink. Then I spit it out. It was pure sugar!

May my blubber be on the Food and Drug Administration's conscience.

"YOU'RE A LIAR!"

SOMETIMES YOU FEEL LIKE TELLING THE WHOLE WORLD THAT. AND WHY NOT? YOU KNOW HOW THINGS ARE. IT SEEMS YOU CAN'T TRUST ANYONE ANYMORE. OR BELIEVE ANYTHING YOU SEE OR HEAR. PEOPLE SAY ONE THING AND DO ANOTHER. ALL YOU GET ARE FALSE PROMISES AND WORTHLESS GUARANTEES.

If that's the case, where can we put our trust? There has to be someone or something we can believe in. It's hard to live in a world where you can't depend on anybody or anything from one day to the next.

Well, there is someone you can put your faith in. And there always has been. He's the one person who has kept all the promises and commitments He has ever made.

His name is Jesus Christ. For 2000 years people like yourself have been able to put their total faith in Him. And thousands today are living proof that you still can.

Jesus said, "In this world you will have many trials and sorrows; but take courage, for I have overcome the world." Christians today are living proof that Jesus Christ can still deprive the world of the power to harm. That He is eternal, and can be trusted as much now as ever.

If you would like to know more about people who are living proof ... if you need more information, or have made a decision to accept Jesus Christ ... there are people nearby ready to share that with you. Please let them know.

It makes a difference to believe in someone who also believes in you.

Today Tom Snyder will stay with 'Tommorrow'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No, Tom Snyder doesn't want to host "Tonight" if Johnny Carson leaves. No, NBC News hasn't asked him about eventually anchoring the "NBC Nightly News," which John Chancellor now does.

Yes, NBC has asked him if he'd like to host a tube version of "People" magazine, which gets a six-week summer try even though a first effort Lily Tomlin hosted flopped earlier this season.

Having disposed of the first two rumors, Snyder said that in the matter of the "People" caper "they've (NBC) asked whether I want to do it — if they do it — and I said, 'Sure.'"

And he's convinced NBC there's no reason he can't do "Tommorrow" here, now that he recently finished a second job he was anxious to leave — anchoring local news on NBC-owned WNBC-TV in New York.

That job was part of the deal when NBC moved him and "Tommorrow" out to the East Coast. He agreed to anchor the second hour of WNBC's two-hour "Newscenter 4" in addition to his "Tommorrow" duties each night.

He says he's returning here "because I think I've done my tour of duty in New York. I think I did what I was supposed to do there for 'Newscenter 4.'"

Gardeners take out homegrown insurance

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer
Sales of garden seeds are booming as millions of consumers take out homegrown insurance against feared increases in fruit and vegetable prices following a severe winter and the continued Western drought.

Americans turned to gardening in large numbers in 1974 and 1975, when food prices soared. The rate of price increases declined last year and so did the number of gardeners.

If you are thinking of planting a home garden, you should do some checking before you start digging. Ask local gardeners for advice on what types of vegetables grow best in your area and find out about soil conditions and planting times.

The rival factions of the Irish Republican Army held marches in both Dublin, capital of the Irish republic, and Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, to commemorate the 1916 Easter uprising. Meanwhile, the IRA's Official wing accused the Provisionals of planting a bomb

Seattle man teaches janitorship in college

SEATTLE (AP) — Bill Griffin says he used to hang around with the janitor when his high school teachers kicked him out of class. Now he has written a custodian's textbook and teaches janitors at South Seattle Community College.
"Honestly, how I got into it was when I was in high school. They used to kick me out of class," said Griffin. "I was kind of slow. I just didn't adapt very well to the educational system."
Griffin, 27, has written a 350-page "Comprehensive Custodial Training Manual," and teaches an eight-week class at the two-year school on how to be a janitor.
"The janitor always used to be thought of as the guy who swept the floor," Griffin said. "You know, just kind of hung around the basement with a dirty pail and a dirty mop over his shoulder."
"That's changed. There's so many surfaces that they have to take care of now and a lot of governmental regulations they've got to know, like in food processing."
His textbook contains such headings as:
"Lesson 5. Dusting. What is dust? What is dusting? How do we dust a room? Dusting venetian blinds. Dusting very high or low areas."
It contains such wisdom and philosophy as:

"Any good battlefield general will advise that knowledge of the enemy is essential. And dirt is the enemy."
Like any textbook, Griffin's needs to be updated.
"The material on carpets is three years old," he said. "It's got to be redone, because carpets have changed so much."
Griffin says his class is not easy.
"You can't drink and goof off and make it to class every single morning to work hard and work up a sweat," he said. "I mean, we get right down and scrub baseboards and stick our hands in toilets and climb ladders."
Graduates get a certificate and usually a job paying not much more than the minimum wage.
"They look at it as, you know, 'I can't get a job as anything else, so I'll be a janitor,'" Griffin said. "We try to change that. We try to have them look at it as a stepping stone to the future. I mean, every place has to be cleaned, right?"
He adds: "I've always been kind of clean, you know. When my parents would leave home and go to town or something, I'd clean up the house."
"Sometimes I wondered if they left on purpose."

MDs, lawyers battle

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A dispute over medical malpractice cases has erupted into a battle, with doctors allegedly refusing to treat "gunslinging" lawyers and lawyers accusing the doctors of trying to "blackmail" them into dropping suits.
Several lawyers, who agreed to be interviewed only if their names were withheld, accused the doctors of having an "enemies list" of lawyers who handle malpractice cases.
"They figure that if you can scare the lawyers, you can get the (malpractice) immunity you want," a lawyer said Sunday.

not going to treat him. If a guy comes into my office to sue me or my buddy, I'm not going to treat him.... I'm not a public employe yet," Von Hippel said.
Dr. George Seuffert, an anesthesiologist, said, "There are certain lawyers in this town that totally terrify me... because they're real gunslinging plaintiffs' lawyers. I've seen a couple of them work my friends over the coals."
He said there's been no organized effort to refuse treatment to lawyers who specialize in malpractice cases but that "this is a small enough town that we know who they are."
Sources familiar with the matter have described two cases they believe were particularly serious, although neither involved emergency treatment.
One involved a lawyer's child who went to Seattle for a tonsil-

The dispute has been intensified by soaring malpractice insurance rates and a controversial mandatory state insurance program. It came to light Friday when Distr. Atty. Joe Balfe confirmed that his office was investigating a complaint of doctors refusing to treat lawyers or their kin.
No doctor would admit having denied treatment to a lawyer or a lawyer's relative, but several said they had a legal right to do so.
"I personally do not intend to care for people who are attacking me if I can help it," said Arndt Von Hippel, a surgeon.
"If a guy comes into my office drunk, I'm not going to treat him. If a guy comes into my office carrying a gun, I'm

Man dies in pulpit
BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Pistol in hand and his dog at his side, Ford Dawson spoke quietly from the pulpit of the First Baptist Church while worshippers huddled in fear behind pews.
A worshipper cried, "Brother, I love you." Dawson called back, "I love you, too." Then he shot himself to death.
Dawson, 52, of Gulfport, Miss., took the pulpit during televised Easter services Sunday after he fired a shot into the air in a scuffle with an usher. He spoke for about two minutes, and then shot his dog and himself.
"He just kept looking straight at the television camera at the back of the church," said the

Englishman jabs at 'Roots'

LONDON (AP) — British journalist Mark Ottaway, who challenged facts in the best-seller "Roots," said today he was "a little bit annoyed by the fuss this has all caused."
Author Alex Haley arrived in London Sunday and told reporters Ottaway's attack on his book was "unwarranted, unfair and unjust."
"I stand by and defend my work," Haley said as he arrived for a four-day stay en route to Africa. "I took over nine years to write my book, but I think that this reporter took less than nine days."
"All I'm saying is that his case on the African segment is not proven," said Ottaway. "As far as I am concerned, my job is done. I'm only a reporter concerned with facts."
Ottaway and a spokesman for Haley said there were no plans for the two men to meet in London.
Haley's book roughly traces his family's history from Africa, through years of slavery in the American South, to the present. Ottaway wrote in last week's Sunday Times that parts of the book had "little basis in provable fact."

Ottaway was particularly critical of Haley's climactic chapter tracing his ancestry to an 18th century West African named Kunta Kinte who was seized by slavers while chopping wood outside the village of Juffure, in what is now Gambia.
Ottaway after an investigation in Gambia wrote that Haley's information came from an oral historian who was notoriously unreliable. He said Juffure was "a white trading post surrounded by white colonialization," and "insofar as the inhabitants of Juffure were involved in slave trading, it was not as victims but as collaborators with the whites."
Haley said the man who told him the story of Kunta Kinte: "I never had the slightest cause to consider him unreliable. What am I to do but accept what he told me? There are no written records in African villages. The only thing that works in African villages is oral history."
He agreed with Ottaway that the villagers of Juffure cooperated in the slave trade but said this did not disprove the story that Kunta Kinte was captured by slavers.
"Slave ship captains did not care about pacts or agreements," he said. "They had holds to be filled with blacks and anybody who was accessible to kidnaping was kidnaped and taken away."
Haley said he had talked with Ottaway only once, by telephone on Saturday.
