

A sweepstakes sweep

Two of the four sweepstakes awards received by junior high school choirs during nearly two days of Region I University Interscholastic League competition in Amarillo this week went to Pampa Junior High School. The Mixed Choir and Boys Choir earned first division ratings in both concert performance and sight reading to win the sweepstakes. The Second Mixed Choir took a first division in concert and a second division in sight reading. Receiving two second division ratings was the Girls Choir and the Second Girls Choir won a second division in concert and a third division in sight reading. Elena Donald, choir director, said Region I includes all of the Panhandle north of Tulsa. With the sweepstakes trophies and plaque for the division one rating are, from left, Kim Gattis, Marvin Goad and Ronda Geer. (Pampa News photo by Gene Anderson)

No hair cut no job, police tell woman

ST PETERSBURG BEACH Fla. (AP) — Police rookie Sherry Landsberg got her waist-length hair cut to the collar, but Chief Gil Thivener said it isn't up to code and fired her. "I fired her for flat-out insubordination and refusing to follow the same dress code as other officers," Chief Gil Thivener says. "She refused to comply with a direct order and I dismissed her."

Officer Landsberg, 24, fired this week after three weeks on the job as the only woman on the force, says the only regulation in the code is for male officers.

"It said how long your sideburns and mustache could be and that your hair couldn't touch your collar or protrude over your ears," Miss Landsberg says. When Thivener hired her March 24, Miss Landsberg's light brown hair was almost waist length. "Since there wasn't a regulation for women, I had my hair cut Monday until it just touches my collar when its curled under," she says. "I didn't want any hassles and decided that if I have to cut my hair to keep my job, I'll do that."

The next day she was told to report with her gear to the chief's office and was fired.

"I offered to cut my hair shorter, but he said no," says Miss Landsberg, who holds a bachelor's degree in criminology from Florida State University and a degree in police science from a community college.

Said Thivener: "An officer has to follow the rules and regulations of this police department. She indicated she had talked to other people who told her she didn't have to comply with the same dress code as other officers."

The chief says the dress code doesn't distinguish between men and women. "I've got a dress code for police officers," he says. "Her hair was shoulder-length when I saw her. She refused to comply with a direct order and I dismissed her for that and I'll dismiss anyone else for that."

by the three television networks, possibly next week.

It will contain some of the same conservation incentives recommended by the President — such as tax breaks for home insulation — but will allow energy prices to rise by free market competition rather than through new taxes, say GOP Senate leaders.

Carter's news conference was his third nationwide television appearance this week to present and defend his energy program; he set the stage with a speech Monday night and presented the program to a joint session of Congress on Wednesday night, both times before the TV cameras, then appeared again today in the news conference.

On Thursday, Carter told reporters that he felt his proposal for a standby gasoline tax of up to 30 cents a gallon, perhaps the most controversial part of his program, would win congressional approval.

But many key lawmakers were issuing gloomier assessments over that portion of the energy plan Carter unveiled at a joint session of Congress Wednesday. Several hinted that it might be the first part of the package to go down the drain.

Meanwhile, the House took a first step toward action on the Carter proposals by creating a special 37-member committee to steer them toward House floor action.

Chaired by Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, the panel will mold the energy program into a single bill after regular House committees, with jurisdiction over various elements of the package, complete their work.

The action was seen as a means of overcoming jurisdictional rivalries that have hampered the House's past efforts to enact energy legislation.

Ashley said the special subcommittee won't necessarily endorse the President's program down the line, but will certainly have a "tilt" toward the stiff measures the President recommended.

Republicans, who thus far generally have held their punches in reacting to Carter's energy program, appear ready to go on the offensive.

Republican National Committee Chairman Bill Brock, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona asked the networks for half an hour of "equal time" to counter the President's proposals.

Each network has offered the time, but not on the same day or hour, the aide to Baker said. The Republicans would like to be able to go on the air simultaneously on all three networks.

The aide said negotiations are still underway with the networks.

Carter promises fight for conservation plan

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today he will fight "to the last vote in Congress" for passage of his plan to impose a five-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline if U.S. consumption exceeds his energy conservation targets.

He said the money would be refunded, and a family that does conserve will get back more than it pays in higher gasoline prices.

At a nationally broadcast news conference dominated, like Carter's entire week, by the energy issue, the President also said:

—He doesn't feel threatened by criticism of his administration by former President Gerald R. Ford, who drew Democratic protests by saying that he could have won a new strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union by now. Carter said that historically, the fraternity of presidents and former presidents has kept its criticism private. But Carter said he doesn't feel that Ford has violated a promise to keep such comments private.

—No decision has been made about sending tanks to Zaire, the African nation trying to beat off insurgent attackers.

—It is highly unlikely I would advocate such a sale," he said.

—He is concerned about possible overexposure during a week that has seen two nationally televised addresses and the news conference, but it isn't likely to happen often. "Attendance at the press conferences is voluntary," he said with a smile.

—The energy program he proposed to Congress Wednesday night would, if fully implemented, cost the federal government $4 billion between now and 1985. He said that would be the over-all expense counting expenditures and tax revenues from all features of the program. Carter said that with net spending of $4 billion, the nation will purchase and store one billion barrels of oil, worth $13 billion, as insurance against a future embargo or emergency.

—Carter will meet in Geneva next month with Syrian President Hafez Assad as he seeks "some common ground" for Middle East settlement.

—The administration has information that Katangan insurgents fighting in Zaire were trained by Cubans. "I have no direct evidence at all that there are Cubans in Zaire," he said.

His formal news conference finished, Carter insisted in conversation with newsmen that his figures on gasoline and crude-oil tax rebates were accurate, and that his program would mean refunds of $188 for an average family to offset higher oil prices, and $100 in refunds for each five-cent gas tax boost if that tax is triggered.

The gasoline tax proposal, already stirring strong opposition in Congress, is to add gasoline taxes in five-cent increments up to a maximum of 50 cents for each year in which consumption exceeds government-set target levels.

The President dismissed speculation that his gasoline tax proposal may actually be no more than a bargaining chip, to be dealt away in Congress in exchange for other measures he wants.

He said he is "deeply committed to the standby gasoline tax as part of a comprehensive and well-balanced energy program."

"In my opinion the gasoline tax is a good idea," Carter said. He said it will help families that cut their gasoline consumption, because the proceeds would be rebated to taxpayers.

Asked why he did not ask for authority to impose gasoline rationing as a means of reducing consumption, Carter said he has that power under existing law if there should be a national emergency such as another oil embargo.

The President also indicated he would consider vetoing a tax bill now being debated in the Senate if it contains a business tax credit Carter asked Congress to delete along with the $50 rebate.

Locals get raise

The Social Security pay hike will fetch an additional $8.439 a month for the Pampa community.

The 5,123 beneficiaries in Gray County already pull in nearly a million dollars a month, according to Howard Weatherly, Social Security Administration branch manager in Pampa.

Social Security and Supplemental Security Income recipients will receive a 5.9 per cent cost of living increase July 1.

As an example, Weatherly cited a retired worker living alone who now receives $221 in Social Security. His benefits will increase to $234.

Similarly, an aged couple receiving $377 will find their checks increasing to $400. Payments to a mother and two children will go from $517 to $547, Weatherly said, and an aged widow who has been drawing $210 per month will now receive $223.

Under Social Security, beneficiaries under age 72 are allowed to earn $3,000 per year before their Social Security checks are reduced. Weatherly said that figure will not change this year, but may be revised in 1978.

"It was raised to $3,000 from $2,760 in 1976," he said.

The cost of living raises have been made every June for the past three years, he added.

"What that is, the way the Congress sets that up is based on the consumer price index from March 31 to March 31. It's just a one way thing," he said. "Either a raise is warranted or the payments stay the same. They cannot be lowered."

Weatherly said beneficiaries will receive a flyer explaining the increases in their checks July 1.

SSI beneficiaries, he continued, may expect a $10 per month raise.

Payments for individual will go from $167.80 to $177.80 and couples will receive $266.70 instead of $251.80.

Weatherly said SSI used to be called old age assistance.

"It takes into account all a person's resources," he said. "It's a welfare program whereas Social Security is an insurance program."

On an annual basis, the increase will mean beneficiaries in Gray County will receive $12,587,264.

Genesis House thanks 'giver'

Genesis House honored one of its fathers Thursday.

Henry Urbanczyk, who farms southwest of Pampa and who is quietly active in several projects for young people, was thanked for helping make the two half-way houses in Pampa possible.

The board of directors, headed by Reed Echols, recognized "his vision and understanding" and presented him with a framed, lettered certificate for "his heartfelt and great concern for the well being and care of the boys and girls as individuals."

Urbanczyk "has a deep love" for Genesis House.

He insisted on no fanfare when he arranged for the boys house to be purchased and renovated two years ago and picked up part of the bill.

"He has a deep love for people," his wife Jean said. "But he is a private person. He believes that if you do things in secret you'll be rewarded."

The farmer became involved in Genesis House about two years ago when Mrs. Urbanczyk joined the board of directors.

Lois Still, administrator, mentioned how much Pampa needed a home for boys, too, and Urbanczyk adopted the idea as his pet project.

"Some in this world are givers and some are takers."

Henry is a giver," commented one of the directors.

He also is involved with the Top O Texas Rodeo Association, the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, the Lions Club, Eye Bank and Genesis House Advisory Board.

The presentation took place at a Dutch treat gathering of board members and volunteers for Genesis House at Dyers.

Genesis House for girls on Starkweather was opened in 1971 and Genesis House for boys at 612 W. Browning last year.

Annual budget of the two houses, which can house 14 teenagers, is close to $50,000. The project is 75 per cent funded by the Pampa community.

Henry Urbanczyk was shy about being recognized Thursday for his contribution to Genesis House. Presenting the framed thanks was Don Loshner, treasurer. (Pampa News photo by Jane P. Marshall)

'Energy policy assures rebate' -- Carter

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today a typical American family would receive rebates of hundreds of dollars in federal tax credits or payments if his energy policy is adopted.

Carter has proposed a series of federal taxes on oil and natural gas and a "standby" tax on gasoline which could start at five cents a gallon and rise as high as 50 cents.

Carter told a news conference such taxes would penalize drivers and families that waste energy but benefit those who conserve.

He said that every five-cent tax on gasoline, for example, would be returned at the rate of about $100 for a family of four.

Thus, if that tax increased to 25 cents per gallon as a result of public gasoline consumption surpassing target limits, the family of four would get back about $500, Carter explained.

In addition, the government would be collecting general taxes on oil and natural gas designed to raise their prices to the equivalent of world oil prices, and Carter said the return of those funds would bring about $188 in income tax credits to a family.

Families that do not pay income taxes, Carter said, would receive refunds of energy taxes in the form of direct government payments.

Carter said he is serious about his controversial standby gasoline tax proposal and does not view it as a "bargaining chip" to be surrendered in return for congressional approval of other measures.

He said his complete program would add less than one-half of one per cent to the nation's annual inflation rate, which currently is about 6 per cent a year.

Although Carter said during his election campaign he would work toward ending federal regulation of interstate natural gas prices, his energy proposals call for continuation of price ceilings and even their extension to new gas sold within producing states, an area not now under regulation.

Asked whether he has abandoned his campaign position, Carter said he has not and explained his proposal would peg natural gas price ceilings to the equivalent price of oil on the world market. He said this would be a step in the direction of ending natural gas regulation.

Meanwhile, Senate Republicans prepared to take on President Carter with an energy program of their own that would not include the proposed new taxes that have drawn so much congressional fire.

What is being called the "Republican alternative" may be spelled out when GOP spokesmen get their "equal time" offered

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The water opportunity

The problem of toxic chemicals in the air we breathe, the water we drink and the products we consume is something we've heard much about lately. Probably too much. There is a terrible amount of demagoguery making the rounds. From Governor Brown's broad brush characterization of the Sacramento Valley as a cancer belt, if Dow built a chemical plant there to the absurd FDA ban of saccharin because it can give cancer to rats.

Still, there is a very real problem, and if the demagoguery ever fades we may be able to accomplish something appreciable by applying technology to its solution. Aye, the problem is a lack of technology, not too much technology.

We know reflexively how to blame technology if we find alarming deposits of carcinogenic substances in our drinking water, as indeed we found them in the New Orleans water supply a few years ago. But it will not do to pass technology inhibiting laws in order to cope with the situation; it will not do to impede free enterprise.

It is precisely the incalculable amount of talent and scientific acumen reposing in the free enterprise system we must tap if ever we will remove the multifarious health hazards from the environment. Indeed, if you grant the alarmists their count of hazards knocking about with impunity in our daily lives, you should understand immediately that simplistic government regulations are hopelessly inadequate.

There are hopeful signs. Here and there individuals who have not abandoned their faith in technology are steadily applying their ingenuity to saving us (literally) from the awful diseases. For instance, the bottled water industry, as more and more families are discovering, provides an alternative to the public water supply. One science writer branded the stuff that comes out of the municipal tap a "chemical soup" — very likely dangerous — and commercially available water looks awfully desirable therefore.

Even as home refrigerators (technology) made the ice delivery business obsolete, there is the strong possibility home water distillers will render the bottled water boys unnecessary. Home water distillers just now are an embryonic business, very few small entrepreneurs are involved in selling them. But they constitute a revolutionary way to clean up the water we drink.

What's more, as business picks up the costs of installing the distillers will become popularly acceptable. When ball point pens were invented they cost $50 and more — now they cost 19 cents. Home distillers will be an enormous savings over the massive government expenditures projected to clean up municipal supplies. Private enterprise always works that way.

Probably technology will develop portable water distillers that travelers can tote to faraway places. Think of the enormous boon to world tourism. There is no question countless travelers stay home for the perfectly reasonable fear of local drinking water. Pack a lightweight water distiller and you get revenge, finally, against Montezuma's.

"But do you feel, sir, that America is ready to ride to work three to a motor scooter?"

Signals from the French

On the surface, the governmental crisis in Britain and France appear to be riptides pulling in opposite directions. In Britain, the Labor government of Prime Minister James Callaghan narrowly averted a vote of confidence March 23. In France the far left wing, the Communists and the Socialists, have handed President Giscard d'Estaing his second thumping electoral defeat in a year, first by sweeping the cantonal elections last March, and this March by winning a decisive victory in the French municipal elections. In the past, French municipal elections were not considered dress rehearsals for national elections, but merely occasions for venting local grievances. No longer. The French president himself says the local plebiscites will influence parliamentary elections next year and could force him to resign before his term expires in 1981. The trend that is visible in the French elections is indeed alarming, not only to the Gaullist republic, which is closer to the brink of extinction than it has been at any time since its founding in 1958, but also to the Western alliance. France is an integral part of the social, political, economic and defense systems.

In the aftermath of the election, few observers in the Common Market or North Atlantic Treaty Organization can find a silver lining. French Communists and Social Democrats will run 70 per cent of the nation's cities with populations over 30,000. And the latest voting represents a trend to the left that has become more pronounced in the last three years. Five years ago, Socialists in France could command only 5 per cent of the vote. Two years ago, Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand was nearly elected president. He claims 30 per cent of the vote in the last elections.

By the same token, Communists, who now are allied with the Socialists, are on the threshold of participating in a West European government although they constitute only 15 per cent of the electorate.

Since the left still constitutes a minority of French voters, one plausible explanation for France's drift toward socialism and communism is that people are tired of new faces in the same old government. They seem to be willing to take a chance, even with communism.

If so, the French attitude is a paradox. The reason that President Giscard is a trouble is precisely the same reason that Prime Minister Callaghan's administration hangs in the balance in Britain.

A few years ago the French economy was doing relatively well. At the first sign of economic dysfunction, Giscard chose the same wrong solutions as Callaghan — governmental pump priming, bigger deficits and debts. Inflation followed. When the government reached the end of the spending rope, Giscard was forced to take austerity measures. The result: higher prices and taxes and lids on wage increases. These aren't the ingredients of political victories.

If the French install a government dominated by a Socialist-led coalition they will have Callaghan economics in spades — and they can look at the plight of Britain to get an idea of the end results.

Sadlowski's ambition undimmed

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, April 21 — Burly Ed Sadlowski is having no better luck upsetting his smashing defeat for president of the United Steelworkers than running for the job.

The International Tellers Committee is finding no grounds to bar Lloyd McBride, who won by more than 86,000 votes, from becoming president June 1.

The teller panel is slated to report around May 1. Steelworker insiders deem it virtually certain Sadlowski will appeal the tellers' findings to the union's executive board.

Basis for such a challenge was announced by Joe ("Kingmaker") Rauh within hours after Sadlowski's thumping defeat. Rauh, his militant leftist attorney and mastermind of his aggressive, well-financed campaign, is an old hand at such diversionary tactics.

The aim is to drag out the contest and carping against McBride as long as possible.

That will keep Sadlowski in the public eye, and also fuel his hopes for another try for president. At 38 and a loudly vocal "insurgent," the former head of Chicago's Gary District 31 is making no secret of his unrequited ambition.

Similarly, Rauh is just as eager to further it in every way he can.

How They'll Do It

The strategy calls for stalling for time, and Rauh is an expert at that.

The former head of the radical Americans for Democratic Action largely engineered the election of "insurgent" Arnold Miller as head of the dissension-wracked United Mine Workers. Subsequently, Rauh billed the union for $700,000 legal fees, later cut to $303,000 plus a sizable charge for Rauh's lawyer in pressing the claim.

With the International Tellers Committee, consisting of steelworkers elected by the union at last year's convention, upholding McBride's overwhelming election, Rauh's next maneuver will likely be an appeal to the union's executive board.

If the board turns him down, as is highly probable, that settles it as far as the union is concerned.

But not likely for Rauh and Sadlowski — bent on machinating to the limit.

Almost certain next strategem will be to seek Labor Department intervention. If that proves unavailing, next recourse could well be court action — at which Rauh has had a lot of experience. So has Sadlowski, who, represented by Rauh, waged a long and expensive battle to gain the directorship of District 31. It paid off well for both of them.

FORUM...and against 'em

By THOM MARSHALL

Pampa News Co-editor
During 1929 and 30 the Depression was getting underway Back East but most folks in Pampa didn't know or care a lot about it. It just didn't have much meaning in a town where everybody was working.

I imagine there were 125 or 130 rotary rigs running within a 30-mile radius of Pampa. Jesse Mayes recalled. It was the second oil boom. You could go out on the old LeFors Highway where it hit the top of the hill out there and count as many as 100 rigs running at night between here and LeFors.

Fellows on the rigs worked from 12 o'clock to 12 o'clock.

The boys that worked from noon to midnight, they'd get their shoes shined before they went on tower. Jesse said. And the ones that worked from midnight to noon, well then, they'd play around until about 7 or 8 o'clock before they would retire.

He was shining shoes in a six-chair barber shop then. Jesse was over where the north part of the First National Bank is now.

"I was making $100 to $125 every week," he said.

That kind of income gave Jesse some real purchasing power in 1929 when Wamba brand coffee was selling three pounds for $1.17 (including a free cup and saucer) at the Helpy - Selly Store at 118 N. Cuyler, first door south of the

Texas Garage

Or when Roston Phillips at the corner of Cuyler and Tuke would sell a new Essex coupe for $750.

Or when Jesse could have bought a new pair of unions — Men's Heavy Winter Underwear, the kind that keeps you warm, feel right, and wear — for only 98 cents from Farris Dry Goods Store at 117 S. Cuyler across from the White Deer Land Building.

Or when well, the dollar was a lot bigger then. And Jesse was making more than 100 of them every week.

But, of course, the idea of saving money never entered my mind," he said.

Like many of his fellow hard-working Pampans, Jesse found time to enjoy himself and places to spend his money.

The main attraction in Pampa then was the old Plamor Club," he said. The Rathskeller is only one-fourth of the old Plamor. They had wrestling on one night and they'd have prize fights on another night. Then every Saturday night was a dance with a band. That was the main enjoyment for people was to go to the Plamor on Saturday night.

"Of course, Prohibition was on but there was about 15 or 20 places that sold home brew and moonshine whiskey. And it seemed like everybody had a good time."

It may have been like one big, long Saturday night — 1929 and 30 — but the morning after

Bootleg whisky helped Jesse survive Depression came along

"Slowly but surely, just like a cold wave crossing the nation, the Depression finally hit Pampa," Jesse said. There was no market for oil, it went from $2.75 a barrel down to 10 cents a barrel. All drilling stopped. The companies laid off every man that they could. There was no way you could buy a job."

Jesse still had his shoe shining job but "after it really got bad in 1932, it was hard to make as much as 75 or 80 cents a day where I had been making 15 or 20 dollars a day."

"Unless people lived through it, they'd never know how dreadful that Depression really was. And on top of the Depression, here come the drought — the Dustbowl days — which made life very, very miserable. It wasn't just me, or a few people, everybody was broke."

Somebody once asked Jesse, as he served them one of his third-pound cheeseburgers, if he'd ever been really hungry in Pampa.

"Oh yeah," he shot back in a hurry. "You're damn right I have. I've been hungry and I've been to where I couldn't pay the rent and I've been to where I'd like to have had a nickel to buy a cigar. I damn sure have and there's no need a-lying about it. Here in Pampa... You see, a shine went down to a dime but nobody had a dime. They went down to where haircuts were 25 cents and shaves was 15 and they'd fight one another to get to cut somebody's hair that had a quarter."

"That Depression was hell. Yeah, you bet I've been hungry in this town. I'll tell you that, 1932. That's right. Of course, not many times, but I have been hungry. Damn sure have."

"No jobs. No money to speak of any more in shining shoes. But Jesse had a wife and children."

"That moonshine," he said. "I bought it and bottled it and resold it. I bought it here. They delivered it from McLean — Cotton Sullivan, everybody remembers him."

Jesse said Cotton made a quality product.

"Real good. It was amber. He'd make that whisky... see, when whisky comes out, it's white. But they put it in these charred kegs and took a bunch of oak chips, you see, and sort of burned them a little bit, dropped them in there and, hell, in three days they had that amber color. Looked just like the whisky you buy right now."

Except it wasn't aged. "Lot of times that whiskey wasn't a week old," Jesse said. "I paid $5 a gallon and got $3 a pint. I made some money."

More money than a mathematician might suspect possible based on the normal standards of measure.

"You got 10 pints to a gallon," Jesse explained. "A little over 10 pints. There's 128 ounces to a gallon. Some of those bottles were 12 ounces and some were 14. You had to go to the drug store to buy them. They looked like a flask. You've probably seen them, haven't you? None of them held 16 ounces."

Jesse bought the lightning six half gallons to a $15 case.

"If you had a steady nerve, you didn't even need a funnel — just pour it out of a half gallon into these bottles and never spill a drop. Nobody had a hydrometer back in those days, but I'd say it was 110 proof. At least, I mean it. It'd knock the hell out of you."

Jesse's bootlegging wasn't a big-time operation. He operated right out of the barber shop.

"You only had a few customers. You knew who they were. I had an old Navy pea coat. I had some pockets sewed in it and it'd hold 10 pints. I just hung it up in the back, you know. So somebody'd come in and wanted a pint, you didn't bother with them. They had their money ready and would take it right on back: I'd let 'em have a bottle, put the money in my pocket, and they went on."

"They never did come back after any more that day. Of course, hell, at night, at home, they were liable to come out to the house any time day or night."

And that's how Jesse managed to survive the Depression days. He credits bootleg booze with keeping him in groceries. And he credits legalization of liquor with helping end the hard times all over the country.

"What really began the end of the Depression was repeal of the 18th Amendment — the Volstead Act," Jesse said, "which came the sixth day of April, 1933.

which was exactly 17 years to the day, that Woodrow Wilson had asked Congress to declare war on Germany in World War I. Well, it seemed like overnight peoples' faces lighted up. People that you wouldn't think had any money started buying this 3.2 beer."

Texas wasn't ready for repeal. Texas didn't have 3.2 beer or anything else. That's when Jesse's new job came along.

But that's another story.

Group's crusade: 'Save our benches'

By The Associated Press
A group of citizens called the Committee to Save Our Beaches is planning a trip to Austin next week to protest a bill which would keep vehicles off Texas beaches.

A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, who argued that the department "can't keep parking lots free, because they don't have any money."

About 150 persons attended a meeting in Port Aransas Thursday and petitions bearing the signatures of 1,200 protesters were collected.

San Patricio County Commissioner J.P. Luby said he could not recall a single fatality or serious accident on the beaches because of traffic.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, described his bill to keep vehicles off beaches as the only "sane and sensible" approach to the problem of crowded beaches. He said Thursday in Austin the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department would be required to build free parking lots to provide access to beaches.

"95 per cent of the accidents on the beaches are water-related, and not due to traffic," he said.

Port Aransas Mayor Protem John Bietenorf said an attempt will be made to route the house bill to a subcommittee so its members can look at the environmental and economic impact on Port Aransas.

Tom Hale of the Flower Bluff Business Association called on the citizen's group to pressure representatives in Austin.

"Let's pack the gallery Tuesday night. Let them know that we are damn well up in arms."

Soviet bombers retreat from US

Move could jail Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court will remove the last legal barrier keeping former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and ex-White House aide H.R. Haldeman out of prison, according to a report that may have broken the high court's 188-year tradition of secrecy.

The report claimed to contain advance notice of what the justices have decided behind closed doors. If accurate, it is believed to be the first breach of the justices' secret conferences in history.

The court has made no public statement about the pending Watergate cover-up appeals of Mitchell, Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, but National Public Radio reported Thursday that a majority of the court has decided not to hear their appeals.

Such conferences are attended by the nine justices only, and no other court official is allowed into their meeting room during the secret sessions.

According to the NPR report which quoted unnamed sources, Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun and Lewis F. Powell, all appointed to the court by Nixon, voted to grant review of appeals. Five justices voted to turn them down, and Justice William H. Rehnquist, another NPR's report said Burger delayed releasing the result of the court's vote in hopes of persuading one of the five justices to change his mind. The NPR report said Burger was concentrating his lobbying efforts on Justices Byron R. White and John Paul Stevens.

The other justices are Potter Stewart, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is delaying the announcement in an effort to gain a review by the full court. NPR reported.

Davis seeks change of venue

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — State District Court Judge Tom Cave has set May 9 for a hearing on a change of venue motion for the capital murder trial of millionaire Cullen Davis.

Davis is accused of capital murder in the shooting deaths of Andrea Wilborn, his 12-year-old stepdaughter, and Stan Farr, a boyfriend of Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla Davis.

of achieving what they considered to be favorable pre-trial publicity.

Judge Cave declared a mistrial after ruling one of the eight selected jurors made unauthorized telephone calls while visiting her ailing father in Chicago. Jury selection had opened Feb. 22.

Briscoe was scheduled to address the South Texas Press Association convention at 10 a.m. Then at 1:15 p.m. he and Mrs. Briscoe will participate in Monday, the governor will give the welcome address at the 10th biennial conference of the International Association of Ports and Harbors in Houston.

Cave said Thursday he has decided to move the trial from Fort Worth to another Texas city because of "massive publicity surrounding the case."

Miss Wilborn and Farr were shot to death last August when Mrs. Davis and Gus Gavrel Jr., a visitor to the Davis multi-million dollar mansion, were also wounded in a shooting spree.

Included in the state's answer to the defense's bond motion is an affidavit signed by David McCrory in which McCrory refutes statements attributed to him by the defense.

Dead on arrival at a Fort Worth hospital was Anthony Eugene Jones, who was free on bond on another robbery and beating charge. Officers said he sustained multiple gunshot wounds in the chest.

FBI grabs escapees
JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two escapees from federal prisons are awaiting transfer back to their cells after being captured by FBI agents and local officers in a wooded area near Enterprise.

Homer R. Hauer, special agent in charge of the Jackson FBI office, said the men were Gary Lavelle Bailey, 26, who escaped from the G. K. Fountain Correctional Center at Attmore, Ala., and William Warren Holland, 29, who escaped from the federal prison at Tezakana, Tex.

Judge Cave, who presided over almost two months of jury selection in the case before declaring a mistrial last week, set a change of venue hearing for May 9 to determine a new location.

Although the judge would not reveal where he plans to move the trial to, he said Thursday "I've got an idea where I'm going to move it. I just haven't nailed it down yet."

The defense motion had included an unsigned affidavit from McCrory in which he allegedly told of Priscilla Davis' connection with narcotics and illegal sex.

Jean Baptiste Point du Sable (1750-1818), black pioneer trader, was the first settler of Chicago (1779).

The change of venue announcement came after Dist. Atty. Tim Curry filed an answer to the defense's bond motion.

In answering the motion for bond, Curry referred to "numerous unsigned affidavits" in it and accused the defense of filing the document in "bad faith and for the sole purpose

26 dead in Pakistani unrest

By MOHAMMED AFTAB
Associated Press Writer
ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The army fired on a procession held in violation of martial law today, killing 10 to 22 persons and wounding about 200 in Karachi, reports from Pakistan's largest city said.

Four persons were reported killed elsewhere in Pakistan, bringing the death toll to today to as high as 26, which would make it the worst day of violence in six weeks of political unrest. The opposition has been demanding the resignation of Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, claiming the March 7 national election was rigged.

Reports from Karachi said a large procession moved toward the Teen Hatti Bridge, where army troops took up positions. The soldiers reportedly warned marchers to disperse but the procession did not stop.

The unofficial reports said the troops opened fire into the crowd, killing 22 persons and injuring about 200. Some bodies were carried away by the security forces while others were still lying in the street, according to one account.

The official figures put the death toll in the Karachi shooting at 10, according to early reports received in the capital, about 700 miles to the north.

Unofficial accounts said the shooting took place during a four-hour interval in a round-the-clock curfew. The break was meant to allow people to do their shopping and attend mosques on the Muslim Sabbath.

Bhutto placed Karachi, Pakistan's largest city, Lahore and Hyderabad under martial law Thursday. It was extended today to Lyallpur, 250 miles southeast of the capital.

Police opened fire and killed two persons in Sargodha, a major farming center in Punjab 200 miles southeast of Islamabad, when antigovernment demonstrators tried to set a railroad station on fire and uproot the railroad track.

Reports from Multan, 500 miles south of Islamabad, said demonstrators were refusing to allow even bicycles to move. There were unconfirmed reports of two stabbing deaths in the central Punjab city.

Two persons were stabbed to death by rival political groups in Lyallpur, center of the textile industry 250 miles southeast of the capital.

Police fired on a demonstration in Peshawar and wounded at least five persons. The police opened fire after failing to disperse the crowd with tear gas and a baton charge.

More than 200 persons have been killed since the opposition Pakistan National Alliance — PNA — mounted a series of protests and strikes six weeks ago to protest the March 7 elections.

The martial law decree banned all political activity and agitation in the three cities. The curfew, ordered in Karachi early Wednesday and extended to Lahore and Hyderabad today, kept all civilians off the streets except the few with passes.

Nineteen persons were reported killed in Karachi and 13 in Hyderabad Wednesday and Thursday in clashes between Bhutto's supporters and his foes. Security forces shot and killed two alleged curfew breakers in Hyderabad.

Nearly 200 persons have been reported killed in political violence since the election.

Lions Club selects beauty queens

Janis Johnson accepted red roses and a beauty contest title during competition Thursday. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Johnson of 2123 Russell was named Sweetheart of the Year by the Noon Lions Club. First alternate for the title is Penny Bright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bright of 1123 Mary Ellen. Both girls are seniors at Pampa High School. Other contestants were Sue Smith, Dana Kent, Cindy Trollingier, Frankie Watt, Ann Johnson, Millie Fatheree and Kris Richardson. Briscoe says Texas may sue for attention

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says it may take a Texas lawsuit to get Washington's attention about President Carter's new energy plans.

"Twenty-two years of federal regulation of the interstate market has been a complete disaster," Briscoe told a news conference late Thursday after returning from Washington.

"Why is it not possible to recognize that price controls do not work for the benefit of this country? The President's proposals extend federal regulation instead of moving toward solutions in the market place. Adjustments (such as switching from one basic fuel to another) should be made in the market place."

"What bothers me most is substitution of more government regulation for the mechanics of the market place."

Briscoe said he is considering going to court to test the constitutionality of a proposal to extend federal jurisdiction over intrastate natural gas.

The governor said he thought the Washington bureaucracy put one over Carter in selling him the energy recommendations detailed to Congress and the nation Wednesday night.

"I am very disappointed in these proposals," he said. "In the first encounter between the new President and the Washington bureaucracy, that bureaucracy has won and the public has lost."

"I'm just starting to fight for a sound national energy policy. The next step lies in the Texas congressional delegation. I do not think these proposals will pass. The people want less government intervention in their lives, not more."

Briscoe said the Carter program if fully implemented, would cost Texans $6.6 billion a year including $3 billion in taxes on oil. $2.4 billion on industrial use of natural gas, $900 million on gasoline and $400 million industrial use of oil.

Briscoe said he spent the last two days in Washington trying to head off as many of the proposals that he considers harmful to Texas. "My request to them was: 'Stay out of our market. You messed up the interstate market to the point of crisis last winter,'" he said.

Utility tax hikes surplus

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock said today $38.5 million of the state's surplus came from taxes from increased gas, electric, and water utility rates and telephone charges over the same charges four years ago.

The state collected $80.2 million from these sources in fiscal 1976, compared with $42.7 in fiscal 1972, he said.

The state cash balance at the end of February was $1.3 billion, he said.

He said, "Now that we have one presented to us, we must not allow ourselves to be killed by harsh and strident criticism.

Unyielding positions by special and narrow interests have done in proposals in the past. We must keep this one alive through calm, reasoned discussion, held in a spirit of compromise and dedicated commitment to the nation's interest."

Sharbaugh said Sun supports the concept of a national leadership conference on energy to bring together the leaders of different opinion groups for idea exchange and public debate. He said such a conference would go a long way in fostering the trust necessary to gain broad agreement on steps to be taken.

Oil firm changing image

DALLAS (AP) — Sun Company is preparing for the day when oil and gas run out by diversifying its operations to non-petroleum energy areas.

Officials have announced the dropping of "Oil" from the company name and a switch from an integrated oil company to a corporate set up with 14 independent companies.

Vice-chairman Robert W. Donahue said at a stockholders meeting in Dallas Thursday that Sun has entered a partnership with U.S. Steel and Union Minière (a Belgian industrial firm) to determine the feasibility of recovering small lumps of mineral from the ocean floor.

Donahue said the project will also attempt to develop a commercial process for refining the mineral nodules into metals such as manganese, nickel, cobalt, and copper.

Sun has also gone into coal mining.

Sunoco Energy Development Co., one of the 14 new Sun companies, recently made its first coal shipment from a mine near Gillette, Wyo., Donahue said.

Regarding President Carter's recent energy speech, H. Robert Sharbaugh, Sun Board chairman and chief executive officer, told the group it is too early to tell what effect the Carter energy package might have on Sun and other oil company operations.

Sharbaugh called the program "an excellent start" towards strengthening the country's energy position.

"The country has gone too long without an energy plan,"

Welfare reform may guarantee minimum income

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Carter Administration is giving serious consideration to a welfare reform proposal guaranteeing a national minimum yearly income of $4,300 for a family of four, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The newspaper, in a story from Washington, quoted unidentified administration sources working on the project.

It said the proposal calls for establishment of a national income floor of $4,300 for a married couple with two children, $3,300 for childless married couples and $2,300 for single persons who are aged, blind or disabled.

President Carter will receive the proposal May 1, make a final decision by early summer and submit proposed legislation to Congress in late July, the Times said.

The proposal also would make $2.7 billion available for public service jobs, the sources said. They added that the final welfare reform plan would simplify the current system by abolishing such existing programs as aid to families with dependent children, food stamps and supplemental security income.

Gummo Marx dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Gummo Marx, the second youngest of the five Marx brothers who appeared in the group only during their early days in vaudeville, is dead at 84.

Gummo died Thursday at Eisenhower Medical Center of natural causes, a spokesman said. He had been hospitalized for the past month.

Funeral services are scheduled for Monday at Forest Lawn in Glendale, where two other Marx brothers are buried. Chico, whose given name was Leonard, died in 1961, and Harpo (Arthur) died in 1964.

Gummo's death leaves only the 86-year-old Groucho (Julius) and 74-year-old Zeppo (Herbert), surviving from the comedy team.

"I guess his heart just gave out," said Zeppo.

Burglar found guilty, gets 10 year probation

Chris Ward Kelley, 26, was found guilty and sentenced to 10 years probation Thursday in 31st District Court, Judge Grainger McIlhenny presiding.

Kelley was charged with the Sept. 9, 1976, burglary of Four R Industrial Supply Co., 719 S. Cuyler. Welding equipment was taken.

In courtroom testimony, Kelley said he was intoxicated at the time of the burglary and had intended to return the property taken. However, his wife turned him in before he could.

A jury found Kelley guilty and set the punishment. District Attorney Harold Comer represented the state in the case and Lee Waters served as attorney for the defense.

Man accepts $200 for shooting two

NEW YORK — "I want to live peacefully," said 67-year-old Zygmunt Soroka, as he accepted a $200 "Courageous Citizens Award" from a gun club here for having critically wounded one of two men who tried to rob him.

Soroka, a Czechoslovakian immigrant, became the first person to accept a cash gift from the Federation of Greater New York Pistol and Rifle Clubs, which reinstated its controversial award program despite sharp criticism from city officials.

The award was the idea of William Greif, executive director of the federation, who said "there is nothing indecent about honest, law-abiding citizens defending themselves."

The club first announced the program last week, offering the $200 bounty to robbery victims who shoot and kill their attackers.

The federation's president, Gerald Preiser, clarifying earlier statements, said Thursday that the awards were not for killing but for "armed self-defense, including killing only when necessary."

The first three men offered the cash turned it down. Mayor Abraham Beame and Police Commissioner Michael Codd condemned the program, saying that half the citizens who get into gun battles lose. The National Rifle Association, which the federation is affiliated, also dissociated itself from awards for killing.

The award program was suspended, and the federation tried to give $500 for the three unclaimed awards to the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which spurned the offer.

Soroka, who has a permit for the pistol, said he had been robbed four times previously and that he accepted the award because "I want to show other people they do not have to be afraid for themselves, they can defend themselves and protect themselves."

He said he would give the $200 to the National Rifle Association to support its lobby against gun control.

Court gives life sentence for murder

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — State District Court Judge Robert Barton has sentenced Lyle Brummett to life in prison after Brummett pleaded guilty to a murder charge in the 1975 rape-slaying of a Kerrville teenager.

Brummett plead guilty to a charge of murder in the death of Carol Ann London, who was reported missing in 1975 with another Kerrville teenager.

Alan Ladd Woody, 20, of Kerrville, was convicted recently at Ft. Stockton and was sentenced to 99 years in prison in the death of Mrs. Beth Pearson, 15.

Brummett led police to the bodies of Miss London and Mrs. Pearson last August near Kerrville.

Brummett is scheduled to go on trial at Austin next week on a murder charge in the rape-slaying of Diane Roberts, 20, an Austin secretary.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Mild spring weather took command across Texas once more today.

A weak cool front, after setting off downpours of rain for nearly a week, finally departed into Louisiana and the Gulf of Mexico during the night.

A few showers fell in Northeast Texas late Thursday night and there was even light rain and drizzle in the Texas Panhandle from around Spearman into Oklahoma after midnight.

By this morning, however, it was dry again except in some parts of South Texas still plagued by flooding from the week's protracted rains. One of the worst trouble spots was along the Lower Colorado River, where the highest crests in 37 years threatened flood woes into this weekend.

Fair weather was back in all sections except for a few clouds in the Panhandle, the northeast corner of the state and here and there along the coast. No change was in prospect through Saturday.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 35 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle up to 65 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Thursday afternoon's top marks hit a maximum of 85 at Brownsville.

National weather

By The Associated Press
Showers and thundershowers were forecast today from Louisiana to the Lower Mississippi and Ohio valleys. Rain was also predicted for the Great Lakes, New England and south and mid-Atlantic coast regions.

The rest of the nation was promised sunny or mostly sun-

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know you aren't running a Lonely Hearts Club, but I've nothing to lose but a postage stamp, so here goes.

I'd like you to help me find a wife. I am 50 years old, I've never been married and I'm in excellent health. I'm a retired S/Sgt (U.S. Navy), get a lifetime pension, have money in the bank and some income property. I own a nice little cabin on 12 acres, deep in the woods near a mountain stream. I love to hunt and fish.

My wife must be the outdoor type. If she's never skinned a rabbit or filleted a fish, she should be willing to learn. Don't send me any widows with kids or women under 40. I'm too old to start raising a family, and I don't care to finish raising somebody else's. She doesn't have to look like Sophia Loren as long as she's strong and healthy.

Enclosed is my picture. (I look short because I'm standing next to a redwood tree, but I am actually 5 ft. 9 and weigh 170.) I'd appreciate any leads you can give me. By the way, you don't happen to be single, do you?

WILLING TO GAMBLE

DEAR WILLING: Don't gamble on strangers—the risk is great enough when you marry someone you know.

No, I don't happen to be single, but I wouldn't qualify anyway because I've never skinned a rabbit, and I'm NOT willing to learn.

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 and Herbie is 22. We aren't engaged or anything like that, but we sort of have an understanding.

Herbie never lets me know when he's going to take me out. He just drops in and expects me to be sitting home waiting for him. And I always am.

I've even turned down other dates to wait for Herbie. How can I break him of this habit? When I ask him to please telephone in advance, he says he doesn't like to use the phone.

AVAILABLE ANNIE

DEAR AVAILABLE: If Herbie knows you're always available, why should he bother to call?

When he tells you he doesn't like to use the phone, tell him that YOU don't like to use the crystal ball! And the next time he drops in, manage to be "out." If you lose him, you lose him. Life with the likes of Herbie doesn't sound too peachy to me.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17, but have always been very mature for my age. I am in love with a 24-year-old guy, but I have to see him behind my parents' back because they hate him without even knowing him. You see, he was married to a no-good run-around, has two children by her, and his divorce is not quite final yet, and my folks don't want me going with a guy who has had that kind of record. Abby, you've got to believe me, he is a wonderful guy, and the messed-up marriage wasn't his fault. It was hers. Please tell me how I can get my parents to at least meet him and judge him for what he is.

LOVES THE GUY

DEAR LOVES: Assuming that this fellow is guiltless, I am wondering what kind of a "wonderful" 24-year-old guy, not yet divorced, would see a 17-year-old girl behind her parent's back.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 51 years old and still menstruating, although at age 45 I started missing a period now and then. The last one was seven months ago and now another one.

I have read that a woman can still get pregnant for as long as two years after the last menstrual period. Wouldn't this apply to a woman younger than 51 years old? My doctor has me on Premarin. Would this act as a birth control pill?

DEAR READER — Many of those mid-life babies are in women who thought they could not get pregnant and threw caution to the wind. A good rule of thumb is to assume you can get pregnant until two years after your last period after your menopause unless your doctor specifically tells you otherwise.

I usually say that the oldest woman on record to have a child is 56 years of age. A few of my readers have called my attention to some women who were past 57 so I may have to raise that a couple of notches but it is exceptionally rare for a woman to ever get pregnant after her mid 50s.

Female hormones such as contained in Premarin may act as a birth control pill and birth control pills may act as a source of female hormones — delaying or obscuring menopause.

I have learned from readers that many women on birth control pills or hormones, that are stopped once a month to induce an artificial menstruation, have the mistaken idea that they can still get pregnant. Such withdrawal artificial menstruations are unrelated to ovulation. The lining of the uterus still grows from hormone stimulation — but the stimulation comes from the pills. When the pills are stopped once a month the lining of the uterus sheds because there is not enough female hormones in the body to maintain those overgrown cells. An artificial menstrua-

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Some time ago a reader asked how to remove crayon marks that got on clothing in the dryer. I had the same problem when a big purple crayon found its way into the dryer with our best permanent-press and double knit clothing. I thought the clothes were ruined when I saw these large spots but I saturated each spot thoroughly with that spray household cleaner that says on the label "Cleans most washable surfaces. Spray on, wipe off. No rinsing needed." I let the clothing soak a short while in the washer, dumped some more of this cleaner in the machine and washed through the cycle. Every spot disappeared — the result was fantastic. — MRS. A.W.

DEAR POLLY — I keep a clip type clothespin on the turn signal on my car. When I pull on the light switch I clip the clothespin to my ignition key and then I can never turn off the engine and leave my car lights on. Saves batteries a lot. — KAY.

Cold feet at night? Try heated stones

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

You can keep warm and cozy without using a lot of expensive fuel. Just borrow some ideas used by your grandparents.

"When I was a girl our bedrooms were as cold as any bedrooms could be," says 78-year-old Florence Scribner of Cannondale, Conn. "We had no heat in them and no insulation but we were always cozy and snug and we were healthy."

"Before going to bed we would heat a brick or a round stone about the size of a grapefruit in the oven, wrap it in a piece of carpet and tuck it into our beds. First, we would test it by moistening a finger the way you might test to see if an iron is at the right temperature. We would look for nice round stones, the size of a grapefruit," she continues.

"On extremely cold nights we might add an aluminum hot water bottle. The aluminum held the heat better than some kinds you find today."

Sometimes youngsters would tuck heated stones in their pockets when they went off to school and when they went ice skating. If they felt cold they would rub the hot stones between their hands or stick their hands in their pockets to keep warm.

"In winter you went into your cold weather bed clothes. We didn't worry about looking fancy," Mrs. Scribner recalls. "We crocheted or knitted ankle length foot socks that were nice and warm. We wore some kind of little night cap to keep our heads warm and we wore flannel night gowns. We made warm bedcovers out of cotton scraps and lengths of fabric lined with cotton batting. The quilts were wonderfully warm, and colorful. Our bedsheets were longer in those days. They could be pulled up from the bottom to cover your body.

"The only time we put heat in a bedroom was when my great-aunt came to visit," she adds. "She would bring along her bed warmer, a metal pan with a long wood handle. Coals went into the metal pan."

A hearty, vigorous woman, and a widow, Mrs. Scribner is a petite five feet, but maintains the house in which she grew up and takes care of the kinds of chores that keep it ticking along.

"You had to learn to stay healthy when I was a girl. There were no telephones and you would have to walk miles to get a doctor if one was needed. We had terrible snows in the winter and the temperature always seemed to be around zero or below. My father made snowshoes out of wooden cheese boxes."

"And weather was no excuse for losing a day on the job. In forty years my father was late only once for his job at the wire mill and that was during the blizzard of '88, and they docked him for it, he told us.

They just figured workers should be prepared for every emergency," Mrs. Scribner says.

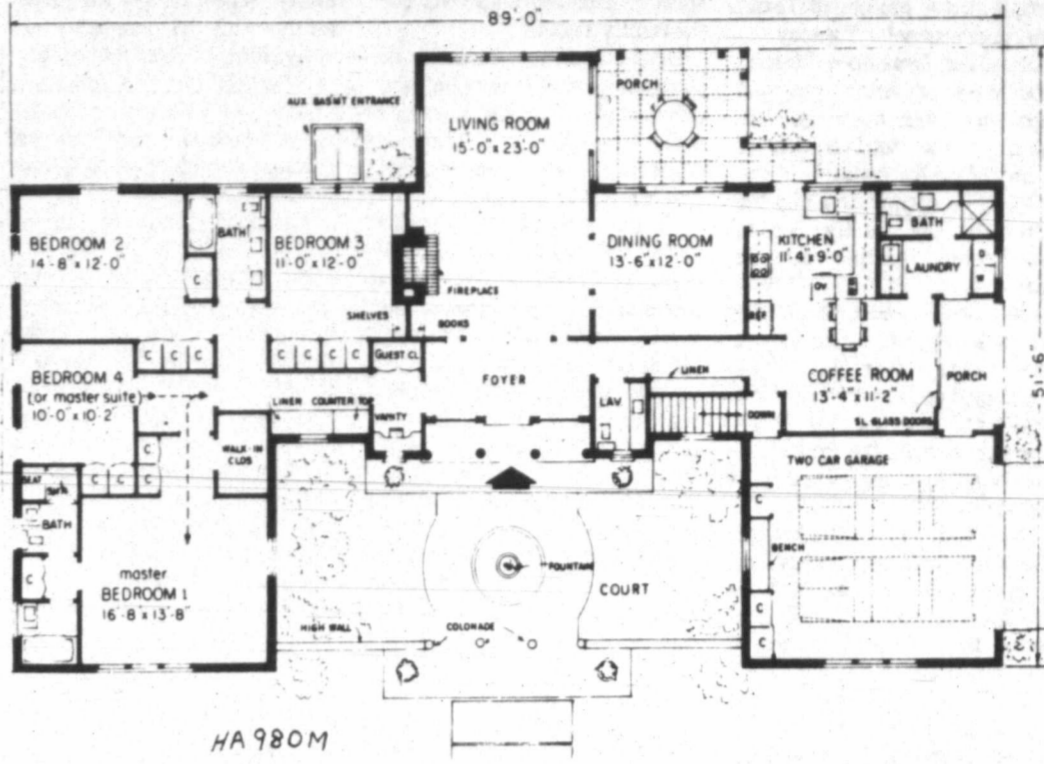

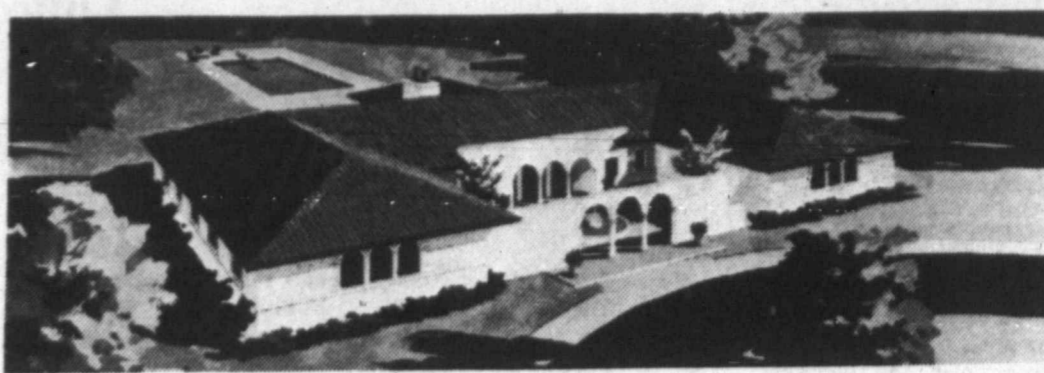

"He had taken a shortcut through the woods and down the cliff and his tin lunch pail had become such a burden in the storm that he had to hang it on a tree. He couldn't remove it for months, the snows were so high."

"He had hated to be late for work even those few minutes to break his record — he had heard the factory whistle as he approached the plant. Usually he wouldn't even eat breakfast if he thought it would make him late."

After that experience the family rented a house every winter ($8 a month) on Route 7 so that her father could walk to work on the railroad tracks that ran behind the house.

Nowadays Mrs. Scribner has a bit more heat, a side register in the wall, but she turns the heat on about a half hour before she plans to go to bed and then turns it off upon retiring.

People shouldn't expect a furnace to do everything for them. They should get into the habit of wearing warm clothes indoors in winter. A sweater is important, she advises. If it isn't too warm indoors, you will not feel so cold when you are outdoors. It will be easier to psyche yourself into believing it isn't so cold.

It's just good common sense to want great gas mileage these days. But there are more economies built into these Toyotas than just what you'll save at the gas pump.

Durability. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold up. Toyotas are built to last. That's why you see so many older Toyotas still on the road.

Reliability. It makes sense to buy a car you can depend on. Toyota built its reputation with reliable cars. For example, you can't buy a new Toyota that doesn't have a transistorized ignition system for dependable starting. And there are 27 different Toyota models to choose from.

Value. It makes sense to buy a car that'll hold its value. Toyotas have traditionally high resale value. A Toyota is like money in the bank. *These EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

Church should help with 'empty nest' crisis

'Family's in trouble' but prof optimistic

By MARTHA RICHARDSON
Pampa News Staff

"It's easier to get a marriage license than to get a license to drive down the highways," complained a prominent Texas marriage counselor Tuesday.

Dr. John Drakeford blamed "the ease of entry into and departure from marriage" for much of the deterioration of family life in America.

But he is optimistic about the future of the family despite prophecies spelling out its death.

"No doubt about it — the family is in trouble. Just look at the facts. One of three marriages ends in divorce." But Drakeford asserted that "it's a mistake to write the family off. It has an amazing capacity to bounce back."

Dr. and Mrs. Drakeford, husband-wife psychology and counseling team, presented the all-day seminar in Amarillo's Hilton Inn. "Communication — The Life Line of Family Life," under the auspices of the Panhandle Economic Program of Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Dr. Drakeford's morning topic, "The Family's Finest Hour," reflected his optimism for the future of the family, in spite of prophecies spelling out the family's death.

Drakeford is professor of psychology and counseling and director of the Baptist Marriage and Counseling Center at Southwestern Theological Seminary, Fort Worth.

Recalling Winston Churchill's words in 1940, when Churchill took on Great Britain's leadership at the time of the country's apparent defeat, Drakeford said, "It may be that in this darkest hour, we are regrouping our forces. The time of the family's apparent defeat may turn out to be its finest hour if we can develop a new concern for family life."

And such a victory for the family, he said, will demand commitment in place of the indifference and detachment so common in our families today.

Drakeford, a native of Sidney, Australia, compared functions and patterns of family life, past and present, and deplored the loss of yesterday's large family. "I believe we have lost something of inestimable value in the passing of the large family. When we lost the large family with its emphasis on many children to provide a labor force for the family's economic welfare, we also lost the large family's valuable gift of sharing and real commitment to fellow family members."

Drakeford recalled that in the past, a mother of 12 children found time to listen to and inspire each child. But today, Drakeford indicated, "the question is often, 'Who listens?' or, 'Who cares?'" Today, when it is predicted that the average woman will have 1.8 child and will be a grandmother at age 44, Drakeford said we live in a detached society.

He pointed to evidence of a "split-level" society, — the many young married couples who make up the "lonely crowd" of our large cities and the frequent trauma women suffer as part of "the empty nest" phenomenon.

Drakeford's "split-level society" is an apt term for a common family pattern: "Kids worship their peers, and they and their peers move along on one level while parents go along on another." Often, said Drakeford, this problem is compounded by parental encouragement. "And churches are to blame, as they've also gone along with this."

Today, when so many newly-married couples move to a large city, they're caught up in the irony of "the lonely crowd," said Drakeford. "They have spatial closeness but wide emotional and psychological separation from others in the community." This pattern is a vivid contrast to the family of the past's built-in closeness, with many relatives close by to help and advise newlyweds.

Compared with her grandmother, who commonly had her last child at age 35, and "was often a slave to her entire family," today's young woman is often unprepared for "the whole new area of life after the kids are gone," said Drakeford.

This "empty nest" crisis for today's young woman who, "on the average, has had her last child at age 26," is an increasingly important factor in family unhappiness.

How to make this the family's finest hour when it looks like the time of ultimate defeat?

"To combat our loss of the large, closely-knit family, the church needs to help," Drakeford said. "The church should move in and fill the vacuum left by the passing of the large family. They can help involve the elderly of the church and the community with younger people."

Also, to teach children realistic expectations of marriage and family life, Drakeford suggested emphasis on pre-marital counseling. "Look at how much money is spent on weddings. Instead of pouring all that money into that part of the preparation, why not spend half of the money on counseling services?"

It is wrong, said Drakeford, that too often, the total focus of a marriage is put on the children. It should, instead, be put on one's spouse. "I love my sons best when I love their mother."

That's because parents provide the emotional basis from which children launch their lives." Also, Drakeford commented, "kids con their parents and separate them."

Developing the skills of communication, especially listening, is a vital key to family commitment. "One may accuse others of mumbling only because in reality, he, himself, isn't listening. And when a spouse sits in front of the TV, and never hears you or answers you, he's still communicating. It's one of my basic propositions that 'You cannot NOT communicate.'"

Drakeford advised his audience to grasp the concept of "distortion points" in their daily lives with family and friends. Keep the channels of communication open. Learn to remember who you're mad at when it's been a lousy day at the office, instead of "displacing your emotions on your spouse."

Other advice: "Learn to negotiate with your children. That means rewarding them appropriately when they do good."

Dr. John Drakeford's ideas toward family commitment, to realize "The Family's Finest Hour" are detailed in his many publications. Among the titles of some of his books are: "Family Enrichment," "The Great Sex Swindle," "Red Blueprint For the World," "Surviving the Sex Talk With Your Children," "How to Manipulate Your Mate," "Integrity Therapy," "Do You Hear Me, Honey?" and "Games Husbands and Wives Play."

Panhellenic party planners

The Pampa Panhellenic Council is planning a sorority sudaie party to acquaint graduating senior girls from Pampa High School with college sororities and the benefits of sorority membership. The party will be 2 p.m. Sunday in the home of Mrs. J.G. Morrison, 2101 Christine. The council will prepare a master file on each girl to assist college sororities during fall rush. Senior girls planning on participating in rush should compile a card at the party and included on the card should be S.A.T. and A.C.T. scores, four year grade average, rank in class, honors and activities. Each girl also should bring a billfold size picture of herself to be attached to the master file. The party planners are, from left, Mrs. Carol Fields, 1024 Mary Ellen, treasurer; Mrs. Linda Alred, 1122 Charles, party chairwoman; Mrs. Linda Johnson, 2100 Russell, vice president; Mrs. Jan Cribb, 1700 Charles, president, and Mrs. Ruth Morrison, 2101 Christine, hostess.

20th Century Club
Members of 20th Century Club heard a program on crime prevention and self-defense for women, presented by Officer Jerry Burgdorf of the Department of Public Safety.

Mrs. Dot Stowers was leader for the day at the Club's recent meeting in the home of Mrs. Roy Braswell.

Mrs. Maxine Freeman and Mrs. Mary Braswell gave a report of the club's district convention.

El Progreso Club
Members of El Progreso Club toured the White Deer Land Company Museum recently and heard a brief history of the beginning of the White Deer Land Company.

Mrs. Clotilde Thompson, museum curator, conducted the tour. Mrs. Thompson, who assisted M.K. Brown in renovating the White Deer Land Company building, showed members the newly-opened upstairs portion of the museum, including a view of an old-time doctor's office, post office, pharmacy, photographic studio, sewing room, and military room.

Civic Culture Club
"Operation Identification" — a way to safeguard property — was the subject of Mrs. Chester William's program on safety at the April 12 meeting of the Civic Culture Club in the home of Mrs. W.F. Taylor.

Mrs. Williams instructed club members in use of an engraver to mark their TV's, radios, and guns.

According to Mrs. Williams, law enforcement officials ask that citizens mark their property with their driver's license number, and advertise the identification by displaying the corresponding sticker on their car, house, or business.

Varietas Study Club
Mrs. Sherman White was guest speaker at Varietas Study Club's recent meeting.

In her talk, "Bobby Traps, Do's and Don'ts — On Highways and In Homes," Mrs. White discussed causes and prevention of highway and home accidents.

Focusing on the various ways to guard against accidents in any location, Mrs. White gave statistics on highway safety, listing weather, worn tires, youth, old age, speeding and intoxication as the leading road hazards. She urged her audience to drive defensively and to adhere to the 55-mile speed limit.

Mrs. White advised her audience to turn off electric appliances when leaving home, to avoid icy steps and walks, and to keep health equipment ready at all times.

She also outlined what to do in case of fire, flood or tornado.

The club met in the home of Mrs. J.E. Gibson. Miss Anna Pierce, president, was in charge of the meeting.

Child, rector see face of Christ in cloth

SHAMOKIN, Pa. (AP) — The curious and reverent are flocking to a small Episcopal church in this eastern Pennsylvania coal town to view what appears to be an image of Christ on an altar cloth.

The rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church first noticed what he said was the face of Christ on the cloth three days before Easter. But it was a 9-year-old girl who stirred interest in the image.

"Grandma, Grandma, hurry, come see God! Grandma, on the cloth. See, there is God's face," said Iris Reigle.

"I couldn't see anything except the altar....," said the girl's grandmother, Mrs. Clarence Pegley. "Then, as I looked more closely at the veil, I, too, could plainly see what my granddaughter first saw: the face of Jesus."

The church has had a steady flow of visitors ever since.

"They don't want to leave," said the Rev. Frank R. Knutti, the rector. "They stay and stay, and when they do go away, they come back with someone else."

"We can't close the church," he said. "It's a constant stream of people in and out."

Knutti estimated that 2,000 people of all faiths have visited the small church, which has about 150 members. He said he was reluctant to discuss the image because, "I don't want to make a carnival out of this."

Knutti, who said he has moved the cloth twice since the vision appeared on the Thursday before Easter, said he doubted that shadows in its folds were causing an optical illusion.

"Too many people have seen the same thing," he said. "It doesn't change, as the light changes, either."

'Be content' to be topic for Koerselman

The Rev. Lewis Koerselman Sr., interim pastor at the First Presbyterian Church, will use as his Sunday sermon topic "Prepare Yourself to Be Content With Your Lot."

The choir anthem will be by the Chancel Choir, directed by Sally Green.

Elder Ray Kuhn will assist in the pulpit.

Church school begins at 9:30 a.m. with worship service at 10:45 a.m. Nursery facilities are available.

Scheduled events for the week include a monthly meeting of the worship and sacrament committee at 9 a.m. Sunday in the pastor's study; a covered dish supper at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in Fellowship Hall, honoring graduating seniors of the church; a Diaconate monthly meeting in the west room and choir rehearsal in the sanctuary, both at 8 p.m. Wednesday; and a meeting of the communicant's class with the Rev. Koerselman at 4 p.m. Friday at the church.

Medlin to give sermon to Adventists

Lay preacher Paul Medlin of Amarillo will be guest speaker for Sabbath services Saturday at Pampa Seventh-day Adventist Church, 425 N. Ward.

According to an announcement by pastor Franklin E. Horne, Medlin will be assisting with services on a regular basis.

A graduate of Southwest Union College, he includes experiences from his service as a missionary to Korea in his sermons.

Pastor Horne extends a welcome to the public to attend Bible school at 9:30 a.m. and church services at 11 a.m.

Janice Tatlock

First Christian to feature missionary

Mrs. Janice Tatlock, missionary to Latin America, will speak at the 10:50 a.m. Sunday worship service at the First Christian Church.

Both she and her husband, Lloyd, are ordained ministers and missionaries. They have serviced in Paraguay, Argentina and Mexico.

While Mrs. Tatlock speaks here, her husband will give a sermon at the First Christian Church of Borger.

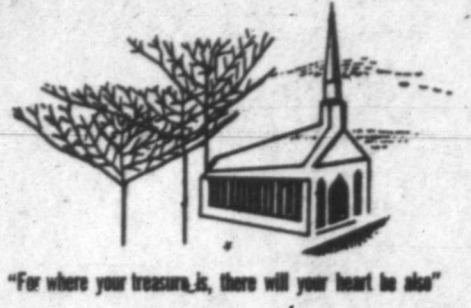

While in Mexico, the couple represented the Christian Church and was liaison between the Division of Overseas Ministries and the Mexican churches.

They currently pastor the Greenville Avenue Christian Church in Dallas.

Dr. Ralph T. Palmer, pastor, extends a welcome to the community.

LONDON (AP) — An Australian Methodist known around the world for combining evangelistic preaching with social activism, the Rev. Alan Walker, has been named director of the World Methodist Council's evangelism program.

An investment in Your Future ...ATTEND CHURCH

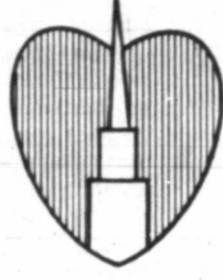

Be ever mindful and thankful to GOD for...

HEALTH and FOOD

In our nation today, the majority of us have so much to be thankful for. Sure we lose a tooth or two in growing up, as the one pictured here, but these will soon be replaced. Health and Happiness are generally ours, and through our abundance we should share with others who are less fortunate. God's word and the church encourage sharing with others. There are many areas of service to others within the churches, and these we should not neglect, but God has said that we should take advantage, as we are able, of all opportunities to give aid.

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men."

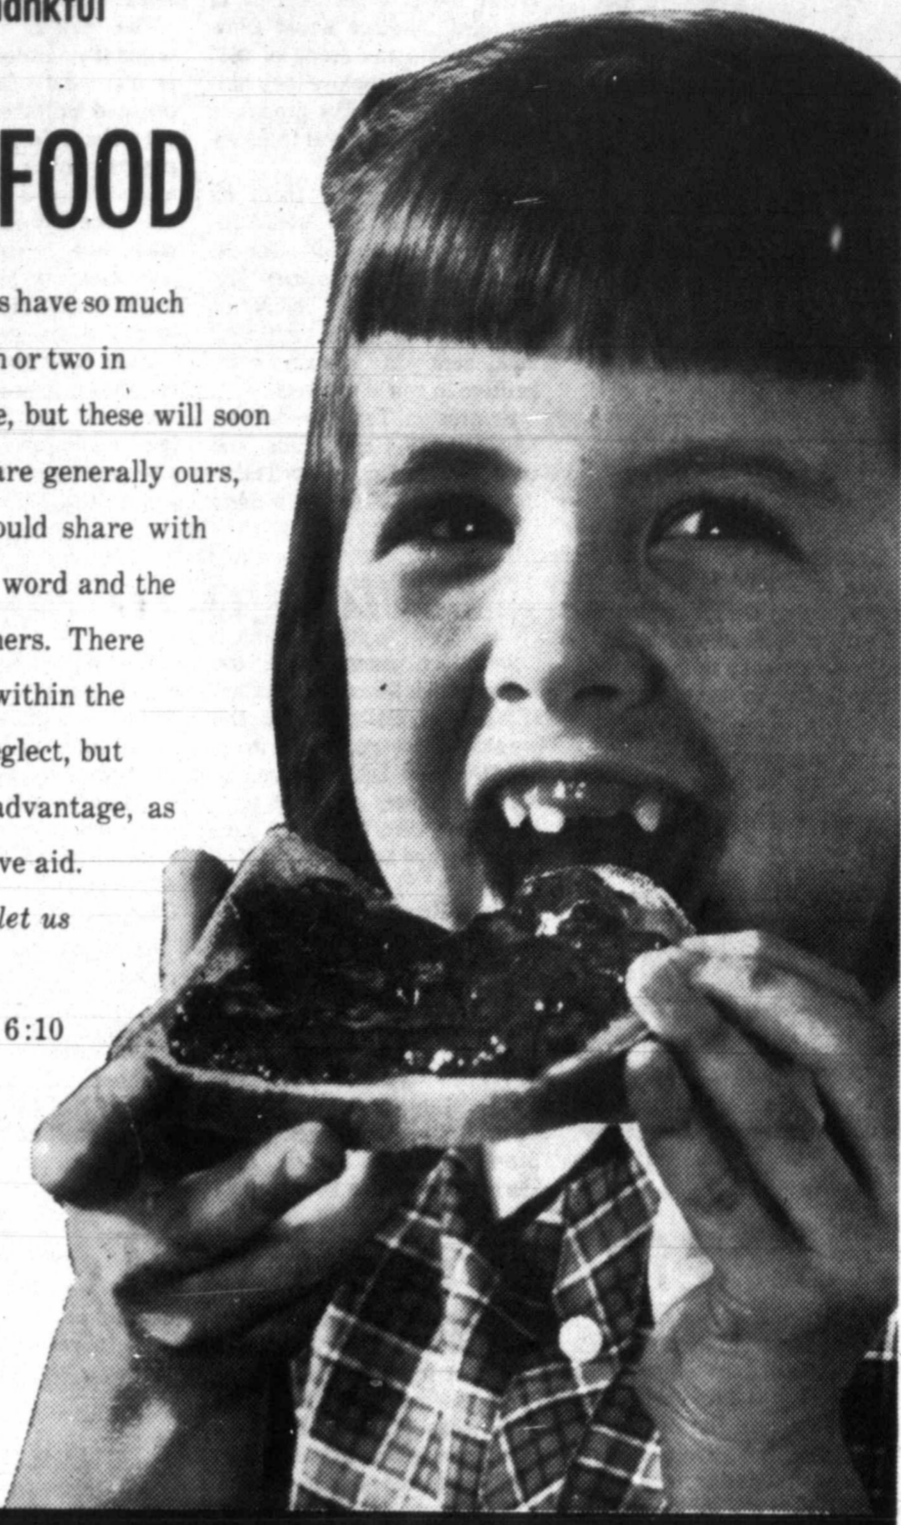

GALATIANS 6:10

THE CHURCH ENCOURAGES LOVE AND COMPASSION FOR OTHERS

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Appearance and Reality

It is a weakness of many people to decide that a way is right because it is attractive and pleasant. Solomon spoke of this. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."

Satan is a trickster. He is subtle. He lures people into his ways by appearances. He can transform himself into an angel of light and make his devices look innocent and attractive. An example is found in Genesis 3. The serpent (Satan) deceived Eve by the way he emphasized the appearance of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. As she listened, she was led to believe that the fruit of the tree was good for food, pleasant to the eye, and to be desired to make one wise. She was deceived.

God had told them if they ate of that fruit or even touched it, the result would be death. The appearance of the tree, as Satan presented it to her was radically different from Reality. Presented by Satan, it looked like wisdom and life to eat of it, but the end was separation from God, spiritual death that day and physical death later. God told them the truth. He put the emphasis on reality. Stan put the emphasis on appearance. We know the result.

Adam and Even made the mistake when they rejected divine guidance and followed counsel contrary to it. Many of their descendants make the same kind of mistake today.

God has given men, through Christ, a perfect law of liberty (James 1:25). It provides us with ALL things that pertain unto life and godliness (2 Peter 1:3). It is the TRUTH: God's word, the gospel of Christ. But men will not consider reality. They look at the appearance of their own creeds and doctrines and find them to be more desirable. So they reject the gospel, God's wisdom, for that of men.

God, knowing man's weaknesses and need, purposed and made the kind of church that will fill man's need, overcome his weaknesses and honor God. But men looking at outward appearances, make the kind of church they want and encourage each other to find the one that is most satisfactory to themselves. The church of God's choice is rejected for appearances that please men.

Wisdom exercised, requires man to search for reality and not be deceived by mere outward appearance. Which is of greater concern to you - reality or appearance?

From Star Trek to NASA

No stranger to space-age equipment, actress Nichelle Nichols who played the communications officer ("Open hailing frequencies, please, Lt. Uhura.") during several years of light-year voyages aboard the starship "Enterprise" on TV's Star Trek, checks out the real thing at NASA's Johnson Space Center at Houston. The actress visited the manned flight facility prior to a nationwide tour to acquaint potential minority group applicants with opportunities available in the space agency's Space Shuttle Recruitment Program.

Farm fuel may cost more

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers will have to pay more for fuel to grow crops and livestock under President Carter's energy plan, and if the entire package of proposals is carried out, including tax hikes, it could mean a two to three per cent increase in retail food costs by 1980, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

Deputy Secretary John White said Thursday, however, that the two to three per cent increase is the "worst scenario" considered possible under the Carter plan and assumes a maximum impact on the entire food-producing chain from farmer to consumer.

"That's the worst case, assuming that we're stupid and we don't do anything," White told a news conference.

But if conservation efforts are successful, food prices probably will not rise any more than they would as a result of inflation by 1980, he said.

Last year food prices went up an average of 3.1 per cent and are expected to climb four to five per cent in 1977, according to USDA economists.

White pledged that the department will make energy "a number one priority" and that efforts will be stepped up to find new ways for farmers to conserve fuel. Farmers will be looking hard for such alternatives, he said.

"I think prices will be high enough so any farmer, if he's got a lick of sense, is going to conserve all he can," White said.

Farmers use less than three per cent of U.S. energy consumption to produce food, White said. But that is a "critical three per cent" for the country. When the entire production chain is considered, from farmers to processors and merchandizers, about 16 per cent of U.S. energy use goes into food.

The diseases of the tongue, in order of severity, are cancer, leuloplakia, syphilis and actinomycosis.

O'Neill names five Texans

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill named five Texans to the House's new ad hoc energy committee, but he by-passed U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, who has led the fight for natural gas deregulation.

Krueger, of New Braunfels, came within a vote last year of getting a deregulation bill through the house and had lobbied hard to get on this year's energy committee. When the selections were announced, Krueger was not among the 25 Democrats on the committee.

The select committee will put President Carter's energy package into final shape after its components are worked over by the various regular committees which deal with energy. O'Neill said that more than 150 Democrats asked for spots on it.

"It looks like it will be a very sympathetic committee for Carter," said Rep. James Collins, R-Tex., as he surveyed the list. Collins and Rep. William Archer, R-Tex., were both among the 12 Republicans chosen by House Minority Leader John Rhodes.

O'Neill selected three Texas Democrats for the committee. They were Reps. John Young of Corpus Christi, Charles Wilson of Lufkin, and Bob Eckhardt of Houston.

Young and Wilson, like Collins and Archer, are proponents of deregulation, while Eckhardt has said he favors Carter's proposal to cap the price of both interstate and intrastate gas at $1.75.

Air patrol spots crash

GRUVER, Tex. (AP) — A private plane en route from Lamar, Colo., to Gage, Okla., crashed Friday morning near Gruver in the Texas Panhandle, Hansford County officers said.

It was not known immediately if the crash resulted in death or injury.

Civil Air Patrol searchers spotted the wreckage from the air.

Torrential rains slacken

By The Associated Press

Three days of stormy weather that brought floods, tornadoes and deaths to Louisiana diminished to light rains early today — a welcome change for people caught in the rampaging waters.

The two deaths occurred in a tornado near Breaux Bridge and in a flooded yard at Hammond.

Nearly 200 persons in the Lafayette area were evacuated Thursday as flash floods sent water pouring into scores of homes.

The National Guard helped evacuate 100 Lafayette residents and another 80 from nearby Carencro and Youngsville.

Some 2,600 inmates at the Angola State Penitentiary were without normal power most of the day Thursday because winds toppled a tree onto a power line and broke it.

State Commissioner of Administration Charles Roemer said emergency generators were sent in because Angola's regular backup generators needed help in pumping rainwater over levees around the prison.

Roemer said although some property damage was expected, no lives were in danger.

About two dozen parishes reported flash flooding, mostly from creeks and bayous.

Several towns in South Louisiana — including Franklinton, Mermentau, Hammond and Crowley — reported nearly 12 inches of rain within 48 hours by Thursday night.

Classes at Southeastern University in Hammond were suspended Thursday when water reached a three-foot depth near dormitories and classrooms.

Several dozen homes were flooded in the Hammond area.

Capt. Harry Saucier of the Lafayette Parish Sheriff's Department said there was water up to four feet deep in Carencro and in Scott. Both towns have a population of about 2,000.

Bentsen pushes tax credits

WASHINGTON (AP) — A beefed-up version of a multi-billion dollar business tax break has won a preliminary bout in the U.S. Senate despite heated opposition, but Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says the new provisions have only a 50-50 chance of becoming law.

One of Bentsen's provisions would raise the investment tax credit from 10 per cent to 12 per cent. Another would allow businesses a tax credit of $600 for each new employee they hire in 1977 and 1978. The proposals would cost the federal treasury $3.4 billion.

Bentsen described them as needed stimuli that would result in more jobs for labor-intensive service industries and modernization in industries which need to update inefficient equipment to remain competitive in world markets.

Bentsen, a Texas Democrat, joined with Republicans and conservative Democrats Thursday to turn aside by a 74-20 margin an effort to strip the current tax bill of the business tax credits Bentsen is sponsoring.

His opponents, led by Sens. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., attacked the plan as a windfall for big businesses. "It's the old 'trickle down theory' that never has worked and never will work," Bumpers said.

The Carter administration originally endorsed the tax credit. But last week, it dropped both the credit and the $50 rebate for individual taxpayers, saying the economy no longer needed that stimulus. The Senate dropped the $50 rebate with alacrity. Bumpers and Kennedy said equity demanded that the business tax breaks be dropped as well.

They concentrated their fire on the investment credit. If Bentsen's provision becomes law, a company which invests $100 million in, for example, a gas drilling platform, would be able to subtract $12 million from the taxes it owed the government.

Kennedy, appearing angry and shouting, said the big corporations will make their decisions on investment based on their perception of consumer demand and the possibility of making a profit. The credit, he said, would amount to a windfall for decisions they would make anyway.

He noted that in 1975, when a 10 per cent credit was in effect, 75 per cent of the investment credit was claimed by corporations with assets of more than $100 million.

Bentsen, in an interview, said he was concerned about the low rate of capital investment in the United States and wanted to stimulate it. Even though the 10 per cent credit has failed to do that, he said the situation would be worse without it.

Bentsen said there was no way of telling how many of the credit dollars would actually persuade industries to make investments and hire employees they otherwise might forego and how many would be windfalls for decisions that would have been made anyway.

"The point has to be made that this package (the entire tax bill) has $14 billion in cuts for the average taxpayer and only $3.4 billion for businesses," he said, in a reference to the increases in the standard personal deduction that are also in the bill.

The tax measure passed earlier this year by the more populist-minded House contained no increase in the investment tax credit. The House's credit for new employees had a cap on it that would limit its value to major corporations.

The differences will be ironed out in a conference committee. Bentsen said he had about a 50-50 chance of getting his business tax breaks into law.

Bell hears criticism on border practices

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — State law enforcement officials from along the U.S.-Mexico border have told Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell that they believe the federal government is failing its responsibility to police the boundary.

Bell listened Thursday to criticism of a number of federal agencies, including some within the Justice Department, while he attended the Southwestern Conference on Crime and the Border.

California Atty. Gen. Evell J. Younger told a news conference the San Diego Police Department, which has formed an undercover Border Crimes Task Force, should not be engaged in such an operation.

"This small group of dedicated officers patrols the rugged border area nightly, operating as human targets to attract border bandits. The commitment of these officers goes far beyond what we should demand of our police," said Younger.

"They've done a tremendous job," he added, "and it's a job they shouldn't have to assume. This is another example of where the federal government has a basic responsibility which they have not been fulfilling."

He said there are 1.5 million illegal aliens in California, many in Los Angeles where they compete for jobs or turn to crime.

"The Los Angeles County sheriff's office estimates that as many as 50 illegal aliens are burglarizing homes in that county at any moment of any day," he said.

Anthony Anaya, New Mexico's attorney general, criticized what he said is an apparent federal policy of ignoring marijuana smuggling.

"Air smuggling, as a practical matter, has proven to be almost an exclusive concern of state authorities since federal drug agencies, specifically the Drug Enforcement Agency, do not consider marijuana smuggling, in any amount, to merit commitment of their resources," Anaya told the 300 law enforcement officers.

Anaya said New Mexico state police do not have an aircraft of their own with which to give pursuit.

Later, Bell revealed he will decide within the next two months whether to merge the Drug Enforcement Agency into the FBI to improve the battle against narcotics.

"We're in a helluva mess," Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill told Bell. "These are tough, rough problems."

Before he left, Bell said the federal government is moving to resolve the dilemma — especially that of the 10 million undocumented foreign nationals in the country.

But Bell said legislation and policy changes must consider factors such as the labor markets, foreign policy and justice for everyone involved.

"Making progress on all of these fronts—undocumented aliens, narcotics and other types of border crime—will be difficult and time-consuming," he said.

Dope dealing, murder reported by mayor

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — The Louisiana attorney general has dispatched two staffers to find out more about Mayor John K. Snyder's strange reports of dope dealing and murder.

Snyder asked for state help Thursday in investigating "criminal matters here in my opinion involving murder and dope production, peddling, buying and selling."

A spokesman at Atty. Gen. William Guste's headquarters in New Orleans said a lawyer and an investigator from the Organized Crime Unit flew to Alexandria to confer with Snyder.

The mayor asked for help in a telegram stating, "The situation here very possibly involves people in high elected offices as well as police officers in the sheriff's office, state police and city police."

The mayor would not elaborate.

Snyder sent the telegram a few hours after imposing an indefinite suspension with pay on Police Chief Jack Rodgers. Snyder said the chief had disobeyed orders.

Snyder said Rodgers ignored orders to remove four city policemen from the joint city-parish narcotics team, where they were hippy-style undercover agents, and have them get hair cuts and shaves.

In his order suspending Rodgers, Mayor Snyder said, "I told you in my opinion some of the people on this squad were directly responsible for the dope peddling and buying in this area, and were actually working within the law to violate that law."

The mayor cited the slaying of Benton D. Bordelon Jr., 25, an undercover agent from the team who was shot six times on a rural road near Richmond, Tex., on April 16.

Officers said apparently he was in Texas trying to make a drug buy — but a spokesman in the Rapides district attorney's office said Bordelon had not been assigned to go to Texas, and that the money he was carrying had not been issued to him.

Rodgers, police chief since 1969, did not appear to be perturbed by the furor when he stopped by the station to pick up some belongings. He was replaced by Asst. Chief Edwin Paul.

Santa Fe to mine coal

A coal development project announced Friday in Albuquerque, N.M., is expected to advance the objectives of President Carter's National Energy Plan.

The project involves the lease of approximately 300 million tons of coal by a Santa Fe subsidiary, Inc. subsidiary to Chaco Energy Company. About 70 per cent of this total is covered by a firm schedule of advance royalty payments and mining is expected to begin in the early 1980s. The royalty and mining schedule for the remainder of the coal will be determined at a later date.

Eventually this mining operation will employ several hundred people and will have an investment of several hundred million dollars, according to John J. Schmidt, executive vice president of Santa Fe Industries, who negotiated the lease. He said that under the newly signed agreement coal properties owned or controlled by Hospah Coal Company, a Santa Fe subsidiary, in the Star Lake and South Hospah areas of New Mexico have been leased to Chaco Energy Company, a Texas Utilities subsidiary. Payment for Hospah's coal through advance royalties will begin this year.

The initial agreement covering about 210 million tons runs through 2012, but the mining of the remaining tonnage may extend the delivery period through the year 2022," Schmidt said. Under the lease it is anticipated that about one and one-quarter million tons of Hospah's coal will be mined the first year of mining, increasing by 1991 to over seven million tons annually.

The agreement culminated negotiations first reported in May 1976, when Santa Fe Industries and Texas Utilities announced the signing of a memorandum of intent covering both Santa Fe coal located at Star Lake, South Hospah, and a nearby area, Gallo Wash, as well as the coal under federal and state lease to Thercol Energy Company, a Texas-based joint venture. That memorandum was terminated in September, 1976, but the companies stated then that negotiations were continuing.

This agreement culminates the new negotiations regarding Santa Fe's coal and covers all but about 140 million tons of coal located in the Gallo Wash area. Santa Fe has pending a memorandum of intent covering the sale of the Gallo Wash coal to Tucson Gas and Electric Co.

"The Btu content of the coal in the ground varies between 8,000 at Star Lake and 9,500 at South Hospah," Schmidt said. When part of the coal is prepared as anticipated, before its transportation, the average Btu of all of the coal will be raised to above 9,000 Btu per pound, improving the economics of handling it.

On Jan. 28 Chaco announced purchase of an undivided interest in certain coal properties held under state and federal leases by Thercol and others. It also entered into a joint development and operating agreement for the remainder of that coal.

The coal involved in the Chaco-Thercol transactions is believed to total over 200 million tons. A considerable portion of this coal is adjacent to Hospah's deposit at Star Lake and will be mined pursuant to a single mining plan.

B.G. Bradley, president of Chaco, said his company will conduct the mining operations involving Hospah's coal as well as that purchased from Thercol. He said the coal, totaling over 500 million tons, will be sold primarily for power generating stations located principally in Texas.

It is anticipated that the coal will be hauled by unit trains on a line of railroad yet to be constructed from the coal deposits to a junction with the Santa Fe Railway main line near Baca, (Prewitt) N.M. The flexibility and efficiency of the proposed distribution system will permit the economical development of this New Mexico coal and facilitate the gradual shift from gas to coal as the primary fuel of the electric utility generating plants.

Bradley and Schmidt pointed out that the project fits well into the emerging national energy policy favoring use of domestic fuel sources, as it opens for development a previously untapped source of coal deposits that can eventually provide energy needed in various parts of the country.

Unemployment check may hike

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Senators approved on voice vote today a bill authorizing construction of a $50 million hospital in Galveston for the use of Texas prison system patients.

The measure goes to the House. The Texas Department of Corrections is under federal order to furnish a medical facility for inmates and we have already made plans in the appropriations bill for this," Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, told the Senate.

The medical facility would be solely for patients from the prison system and would be operated as a teaching hospital in connection with training at the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston. Moore said the bill was a compromise between legislators, the UT system, prison officials and others. Prison labor will not be used in the construction.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House a bill that would raise maximum unemployment benefits from $63 to $84 a week and would provide automatic increases in the future keyed to average wage increases. A $10 increase in average wages would result in a $7 increase for jobless benefits, said Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas. The length of time for payment of jobless benefits was cut from 44 to 43 weeks.

In still other action, the Senate approved on voice vote a bill that would have the six parole commissioners employed by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles instead of appointed by the governor. Two of the commissioners would be required to live in Huntsville.

"I will be against this unless it requires that the whole board moves to Huntsville. That's where they ought to be," said Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston. Sen. Max Sherman, D-Amarillo, said his bill would not affect the location of the board but said a pending House bill would require them to move to Huntsville.

Billy told to cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter, the President's younger brother, has been ordered by the federal government to clean up debris around his Plains, Ga., service station to meet health and safety requirements.

A spokesman for the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration said today that Carter was cited for housekeeping and safety violations.

Among them were an improperly charged fire extinguisher, two ungrounded electrical tools and failure to display a government notice that the premises are covered by OSHA regulations.

Officials denied that the debris cited included beer cans, as reported by the Detroit Free Press in disclosing the OSHA action.

OSHA officials inspected the station April 14 after the agency's Macon, Ga., office received a complaint in the mail from a Columbus, Ohio, resident. The complainant, who apparently visited the station, sent two pictures depicting "junk and scrap" around the station, the spokesman said. Carter was not available for comment.

Carter was cited for nine non-serious violations and was given 15 days to correct them the spokesman said. The violations carry no penalty but if Carter refuses to comply, the spokesman said he could be cited for serious or willful violations which could carry a small fine. Details of the violations could not be disclosed, the spokesman said, until OSHA received official notification from Carter that he had received the citation.

Social Security pay up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security and Supplemental Security Income payments will increase 5.9 per cent beginning with checks going to beneficiaries July 1, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced today.

The increase is automatic and pegged to the rising cost of living.

The law requires that, whenever the consumer price indexes rises 3 per cent or more, recipients of Social Security and the federal SSI program for the aged and disabled must increase as well.

'Murder timed to cast suspicion on unions'

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The murder of advertising executive Jim Leslie was timed to coincide with passage of a "right-to-work" bill so labor unions would be suspected, says Sheriff Al Amis.

Because Leslie's Shreveport firm had handled advertising for the bill and the bill passed on the night of his murder, there was initial speculation that the bill and the murder were related.

Amis said Wednesday, however, that labor was cleared by the arrests of George D'Artois, former Shreveport public safety commissioner, and Don Gardner, a 325-pound ex-wrestler from Shreveport.

"This vindicates organized labor," Amis said. Leslie, a former D'Artois friend, had testified before a grand jury that indicted D'Artois on several charges, including felony theft of city funds. D'Artois is accused of financing his murder.

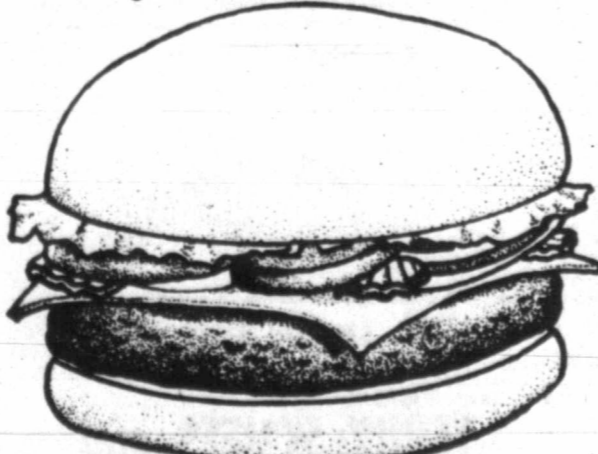

Gardner also is booked with the murder in Concordia Parish last fall of a third man implicated in the Leslie case—Shreveport underworld figure Russell Griffith.

Energy and households

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy message bristles with facts, figures and requests to sacrifice, but it doesn't specify a price tag for the average American family.

Each of the country's 72 million households spent about $1,206 for such energy items as heat, light and gasoline in 1976, according to government figures.

But Carter's senior energy advisors either don't know or won't say what each household will spend if Congress passes the President's plan.

The government says the average size of an American household is, in round numbers, about three people. It defines a household as one or more people living in a single housing unit.

Here's what the government says heating a house cost in 1976:

—For households that heat with oil, an average of $550.

—For households that heat with natural gas, $235.

—For households that heat with electricity, $290.

There were 58 million families that owned at least one car in 1970, the latest year for which government figures are available. The study shows that the average car-owning household spent about $815 for 1,379 gallons of gasoline in 1976.

Carter's proposals would add about seven cents per gallon to the cost of gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products by 1980 through a series of taxes on crude oil.

That means the average car-owning household would have to spend about $96 more a year to make the car run.

On top of that, if people don't cut back in use of gasoline, they will face a further gasoline tax of five cents per gallon by 1979. That would add about $69 a year in taxes alone to a household's bill.

The total increase to households with at least one car would be about $165 by 1980, if people don't cut back and Carter has his way.

Carter has asked Congress to return some of his proposed new energy taxes to the public in the form of tax rebates and refunds.

The figures show that about 39 million American households are heated with natural gas. The FEA says that the average household that heats with gas used about 125,000 cubic feet in 1976 at a cost of just under $2 per thousand cubic feet to the household.

If Carter's plan should increase the price of natural gas to households by 25 cents per thousand cubic feet, which sources say is possible, the average household would pay about $31 extra a year.

About 10 million households are heated by electricity, the figures show. They used an average of 8,058 kilowatts at a cost of about 3.6 cents per kilowatt, the study shows.

The 18 million households that use oil heat consumed an average of 1,275 gallons each in 1976 at an average cost of 43.5 cents per gallon.

About 5 million households heat with propane, wood or nothing at all, the government says.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK
I've been reading a lot lately about vacation house swapping and frankly I'm intrigued by it. Goodies like: FRANCE: Rem'died farm, 15 mi. Geneva, 5 bed'rs, 2 baths, near ski resort.
Or VERMONT, Ludlow, Mt. chalet, 6 rms, two baths.
Or how about CANADA, Nanaimo, lux. 4 bed'rs, 3 baths, sea front, boat, sailing, skiing, salmon fishing.
The plan is the brainchild of Wilma Ferguson of Winnetka, Ill., who originated a program called Adventures - In - Living.
As I told my husband, "Maybe we could exchange our home for a lush Hawaiian beach estate or a chic Manhattan apartment, or how about a luxurious villa in Spain?"
"Are you kidding? You couldn't force hostages to spend the night here."
"I can't believe you are saying this! This house is perfectly charming. It's near the water." Especially behind the washer where the floor is rotting out.

"Has a panoramic view."
"Of a panoramic highway."
"Has rustic charm."
"Not the least being the plumbing."
"Is near City Cultural Attractions."
"Since when does the road company of 'God's Little Acre' spell cultural attractions?"
"Well, if you don't have some pride in your home, I do. I cannot imagine why some other family wouldn't snap at the chance to come visit a southwest showcase."
"Showcase! I'd have to fix the doorknob, replace the dental floss with a chain on the lamp in the living room, seed the path with grass leading from the mailbox to the front door, refinish the coffee table where YOUR daughter left her hot curlers plugged in, take down the Christmas decorations and find the garage. Good grief, woman, do you know the work involved?"

"Listen to this," I said. "How does this ad sound for our house: 'Stunning Spanish mini-villa, 4 bed'rs, spac. outdr area for entrng, antiques galor, inter primitive architecture, nature wonderland for the adventurous."
He grabbed the paper. "That's our house? You know something? When you put it down on paper like that, it sounds terrific. In fact, I don't see why we should even go out of town this summer. Why don't we just stay home and enjoy our nature wonderland?"
"In this dump?" I shrieked.

Spanking rule pleases schools

By The Associated Press
School officials in Texas generally say they are pleased with this week's U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding corporal punishment in schools although they expressed "last resort" feelings about student spanking.
"I think it's a great decision," said Gordon Cotton, deputy superintendent of administration for Houston schools. "I think the federal courts have finally realized they need to leave the discipline to the individual school administrators."
Cotton said he doubts if the Supreme Court ruling that school spankings are not "cruel and unusual punishment" will cause a massive return to the days when teachers carried a paddle as part of their standard equipment.
"We've always used a paddle in Houston, but only as a last resort," he said. "I don't think the ruling is going to change anything here, but it should relieve some of the administrators from worrying about getting sued if they use the paddle."

Dallas School Supt. Nolan Estes said he sees no effect on Dallas' policy on using corporal punishment as a last resort, with teachers paddling their students only with permission from a principal.
But Doyle Weaver, a spokesman for Citizens Against Physical Punishment (CAPP), said corporal punishment is "unbelievably widespread" in the Dallas school district, and school policy is violated frequently.
Asst. School Supt. James Bailey of Fort Worth, "I've found very little objection to corporal punishment if used properly." He said corporal punishment is used in Fort Worth schools only in cases of extreme or persistent violation of a school rule.

Fort Worth Supt. Gerald Ward added, "I think it has a place. It must be used judicially and with judgment and as a last resort."
Bob Wallace, president of the Fort Worth Classroom Teachers Association, said teachers have mixed feelings about corporal punishment. Some, he said, believe in discipline "up to that point," while others would like to keep paddles in the classroom.
"We have some who do it now even though it is not school board policy," Wallace said.
In Corpus Christi, elementary school principal Jose Guerra said, "We're not at school to beat up anyone," but "corporal punishment is one of the tools we need."
The cardinal is the state bird of Illinois.

Each of them was sentenced to 30 days in jail, probated to six months, and fined $200.
Odath Ray Reed, 19, of 1417 E. Francis, pleaded no contest to a charge of driving while license suspended. He was sentenced to three days in jail and fined $200.
In addition to the fines, the four also must pay a court cost charge.
Four men entered no contest pleas Wednesday in Gray County Court to charges of driving while intoxicated.
Judge Don Hinton sentenced three of the men each to serve three days in jail and to pay $100 fines plus court costs. They were Terry Gene Washington, 23, of 1806 N. Faulkner; Franklin Don Kennedy, 27, of Perryton; and Wesley Dean Sober, 20, of Wellington.
Harvey Ray Brown, 45, of Pampa, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, probated to six months, and fined $200 plus costs.

Elk City teen fined for DWI
Jerry Lynn Cupp, 19, of Elk City, Okla., was sentenced to 30 days in jail, probated to six months, and fined $200 Thursday by Judge Don Hinton in Gray County Court. Cupp entered a plea of no contest to a charge of driving while intoxicated.
Also charged with DWI were Geary Ray Johnson, 30, of Liberal, Kans., and Pedro Garcia Hernandez Jr., 26, of 514 S. Ballard. Johnson pleaded no contest; Hernandez, guilty.

Flyers nip Maple Leafs to advance to semifinals

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — The "War of the Chromosomes" is beginning to wear on Dr. Renee Richards, the transsexual who is fighting for the right to play tournament tennis as a woman.

"It reminds me of the time I served in the navy," said the prominent 42-year-old eye surgeon who until a sex change 20 months ago lived as Richard Raskind, New York ophthalmologist, former Yale tennis captain and ranking sectional player.

"I was assigned to this sub. We had to make 16 dives a day. The purpose was to keep repeating, looking for a dive that might go wrong. Once, I recall, a hatch didn't close and the tower was filled with two feet of water before the alarm went off.

"I feel now that those who oppose my playing will keep insisting on tests until one comes up that can be used as an excuse to bar me."

Dr. Richards underwent the prescribed test a couple of weeks ago in Little Rock, Ark., properly supervised and attested to. She passed.

Results of the test were sent to the International Lawn Tennis Federation and the U.S. Tennis Association to insure her entry in the year's major events — the Italian and French opens, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

The Women's Tennis Association, which directs the major tour that includes players such as Chris Evert, Rosemary Casals and Virginia Wade, refused to accept the latest finding.

"They are trying to keep me out because they are afraid I will take some of their prize money," Dr. Richards said during a break in a weekend tournament at the Port Washington Academy.

"They are trying to protect the false image of the ladies' tour. All except Chris Evert, they are deathly afraid of exposure of their own proclivities, which are well known and not above reproach.

"The WTA and the USTA are idiots. I have my documents, my airline reservations and accommodations for two months of play in Europe. I don't intend to be denied this privilege."

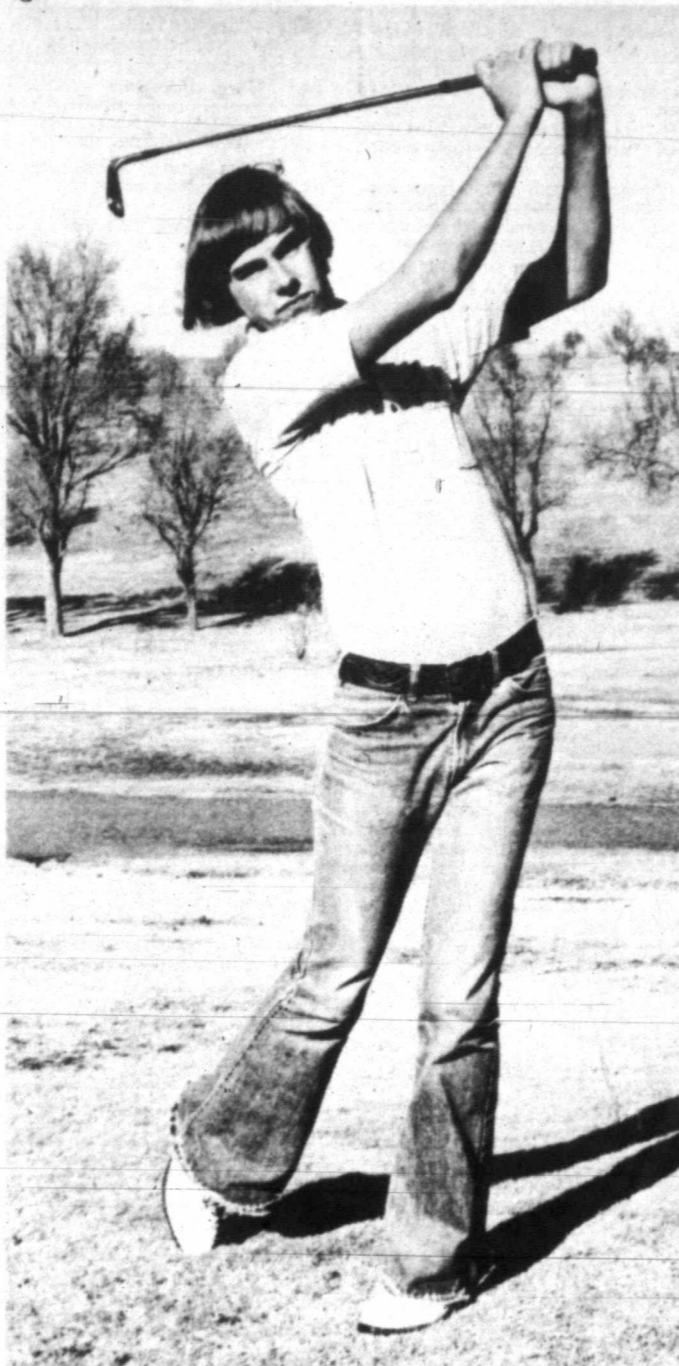

Renee, who faced up bravely to the circus-like atmosphere that surrounded her attempt to crash into big-time tennis last year, suddenly has become lazier, less patient and less accessible in public dealing with the issue.

"I have proved I don't have two heads," she said. "It is a 'fait accompli.' I don't want any more headlines. I am tired of interviews dealing with the subject. I am constantly being besieged for TV talk shows and other appearances. I turn down most.

"I resent the attention given my tennis matches just because I am transsexual. I want to be judged strictly as a person and on my achievements."

As the tall, willowy doctor talked in the club lounge, 16-year-old Caroline Stoll sneaked up behind her and pretended to choke her. Players thought it was hilarious.

To play final round

Chad Darce will be among the Pampa Harvester A-teams competing for the District 3-AAAA championship today at the Amarillo Public Golf Course. The fifth and final district round is scheduled today, with Amarillo High leading the pack at 1,270, followed by Amarillo Tascosa at 1,275 and Pampa at 1,282. None of the other teams are in contention. Tascosa's Brent Jacobs leads the medalist race at 307, followed by Pampa's Scott Barrett at 310 and Amarillo High's James Bischof at 312. The top two teams and individuals after today's round will qualify for the regional tournament.

Rockets blast past Bullets

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets misfired in their playoff opener, but managed to blast off the launching pad in the second game of their National Basketball Association quarter-final series against the Washington Bullets.

Moses Malone scored a career-high 31 points and grabbed 26 rebounds, one short of his season high, as the Rockets posted a 124-118 overtime victory against the Bullets Thursday night.

The triumph tied the best-of-seven series 1-1, with the third game scheduled Sunday at Landover, Md.

Washington, which erased an 18-point Rockets lead in winning the first game Tuesday night, used the hot shooting of Phil Chenier and Kevin Grevey for a 44-32 advantage midway through the second quarter.

The Rockets closed the gap late in the period and trailed by only 53-50 at halftime, before outscoring the Bullets 18-5 at the start of the third quarter.

Rudy Tomjanovich's jump shot put Houston ahead 56-55 less than two minutes into the quarter, and the Rockets never trailed again. Tomjanovich finished with 20 points.

Mike Newlin, who missed a 35-foot shot at the fourth-quarter buzzer with the game tied 108-108, scored six of his 16 points in overtime.

Optimists slate clinic for youngsters

Three former major league players and a Pampano who was a standout shortstop in the Chicago Cubs organization while in the minors will conduct a baseball clinic for youngsters 8-18 years of age Saturday at the Pampa Optimist Park.

Luke Walker, formerly of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will instruct pitchers, while Bob Didier, an ex-catcher with the Detroit Tigers and Milwaukee Brewers, will work with catchers and Dalton Jones, a utility infielder who played with Boston, Detroit and Texas will work with infielders.

Tommy Lindsey of Pampa, once a standout minor league player, will work with outfielders.

Youngsters 13-18 will meet from 9 a.m. until noon Saturday and those 8-12 will work out from 1-4 p.m.

A chili supper for all area baseball coaches will be in the Optimist Club building during the clinic. Cost is $1 per couple.

There is no charge to youngsters for the clinic.

District thinclads run Saturday

AMARILLO — Amarillo High and Amarillo Palo Duro, which won last weekend's prestigious Amarillo Relays title, are co-favorites in the chase for the team trophy in Saturday's District 3-AAAA Boys Track Meet in Dick Bivins Stadium.

Amarillo Tascosa, strong in the field events, and Pampa, with quality athletes in the high jump and weights, have an outside chance. The other team entered is Amarillo Caprock.

Pampa's top threats are Phil George, who has high jumped 6-8 and long jumped 22-1, and David Caldwell, who has placed consistently high in the shot put and discus.

Caldwell, the defending district champion in the 100, has not run the event for a knee injury, may compete in the sprints Saturday.

Robert Thaxton in the mile, Tommy Albus in the hurdles and Clyde Whitten in the 800 are other Pampanos to be reckoned with Saturday.

The top two finishers in each event qualify for the regional meet.

Running preliminaries and field finals start at 10 a.m. Saturday, with running finals scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

Cabbage leads Twins by ex-teammates 11-4

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Texas Rangers did Mike Cabbage a favor when they traded him to the Minnesota Twins last year.

But he didn't do any favors for them Thursday night. Given a chance to start with the Twins after warming the Texas bench, Cabbage is making the most of his opportunity — and in his latest outing knocked in four runs to lead Minnesota to an 11-4 victory over his former teammates.

"I don't play any harder against Texas," said Cabbage, denying any revenge motive for his trade. "The season is just too long for that."

However, Cabbage did admit to some satisfaction in one-upsmanship.

"I got a lot of pleasure out of Minnesota finishing 12 games ahead of Texas last year," said Cabbage, who was involved in a big trade last June that sent pitcher Bert Blyleven to Texas.

Incidentally, Cabbage's batting average is one of the main reasons that Minnesota is running ahead of Texas again this year in the American League West. He's hitting close to .400.

In the other American League games Thursday, the New York Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 8-6 and the Detroit Tigers blanked the Boston Red Sox 8-0. The game between Chicago and California at Anaheim Stadium was postponed because of a power failure. There were no games scheduled in the National League.

Cabbage had a two-run double and a sacrifice fly and knocked in a fourth run with a fielder's-choice grounder. Lyman Bostock also drove in four runs to share some of the glory. Geoff Zahn notched his third straight victory of the season despite being roughed up for nine hits and four runs in 6 2-3 innings.

Yankees 8, Blue Jays 6
Chris Chambliss drove in five runs with a pair of doubles and a towering three-run home run, leading New York over Toronto. Chambliss smashed home-scoring doubles in the fourth and sixth innings before pounding his homer in the seventh, when the Yankees scored four times to put the game away.

Tigers 8, Red Sox 0
Rookie Dave Rozema pitched a four-hitter for his first major league victory and Jason Thompson knocked in four runs as Detroit beat Boston. Rozema, a 20-year-old right-hander, struck out four and didn't walk a batter in his third start of the season. Mickey Stanley and Aurelio Rodriguez hit home runs in support of the rookie pitcher.

Montreal Canadiens against the New York Islanders.

"We didn't have a real good series against the Leafs, but my guys worked hard," said Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero.

"They worked like heck to come back and win this series."

Shero gave a lot of credit to defenseman Bob Dailey, acquired from the Vancouver Canucks late in the season.

Dailey played a solid defensive game and scored his second goal of the playoffs late in the second period. Bobby Clarke and Rick MacLeish had the other Philadelphia scores.

Lanny McDonald continued to be the big gun for the Leafs, scoring his ninth and 10th goals of the playoffs. Ian Turnbull scored the other Leafs goal.

The Leafs lost all three of their home games at Maple Leaf Gardens. They also lost their only home game in the preliminary round against the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Duncan hired at Canadian

CANADIAN — Vega's Jimmy Duncan has been hired as head football coach and athletic director at Canadian High School, according to Jim Pollard, assistant superintendent here.

Duncan's Vega Longhorns have been in the playoffs four times in his eight seasons. Vega reached the Class A finals in 1974 while compiling a 14-1 record. Duncan's record at Vega was 68-30-7.

Duncan, 40, and his wife, Tommie, have a daughter, Tashia, in the fifth grade.

From the White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter White House has adopted tough new standards of eligibility for people who want to receive a birthday greeting from the President. It's part of a continuing economy and austerity campaign.

Until Jimmy Carter took office, you could write to the White House and report that Grandma or any other relative or friend had a birthday upcoming.

Provided the individual was at least 80, a congratulatory presidential letter would be dispatched.

Carter's economists contemplated the prospects of mailing out thousands of such letters each year and decided it was time to cut back.

In the Carter White House, birthday greetings now are sent only to those who are at least 100.

Carter will continue the practice of sending greetings to couples observing golden wedding anniversaries, so perhaps Grandma still can get a letter from him without having to live to be 100.

The man and woman who brought you Carter's inaugural celebration haven't been exactly overwhelmed with offers of top jobs in the new administration.

Bardyl R. Tirana, the Washington lawyer who was inaugural co-chairperson, has been appointed director of the Pentagon's National Civil Defense Preparedness Agency. That's an outfit rarely heard from, even at the Pentagon.

His inaugural partner, Vicki Rogers, who once served as chief scheduler for the Carter campaign, has returned to her home in Florence, S.C.

Major problems that beset inaugural planning under the Tirana-Rogers leadership prompted the Carter camp to bring in A.D. Frazier of Atlanta's Citizens and Southern Bank to straighten out some of the snarls.

Frazier is doing just fine, thank you. Now a key official of the Office of Management and Budget, he heads a team preparing Carter's first government reorganization plan.

Due in June, the plan will revamp the Executive Office of the President.

A reporter called the office of Tim Kraft, the President's appointments secretary, to check out a rumor that Kraft soon would be going to New Mexico to get married.

Kraft's secretary replied that she understood her boss already was married, but she promised to try to get more information and call back.

Several hours later, the secretary called back to say she had gotten the following information from Kraft:

The appointments secretary and Judy Rush, a school teacher, were married April 9 at the home of friends in Santa Fe, N.M.

The marriage took place during a lull in the conversation.

Honest, that's what the woman said.

Sharon Hovinga formerly of Skellytown

Mrs. Hovinga named to White House Confab

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A former Skellytown resident, Sharon Hovinga, is one of twelve delegates from Iowa named to the President's White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals.

Only six of the twelve are handicapped. The others are professionals, advocates, parents or business concerns. Mrs. Hovinga is the only deaf delegate from her state.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crawford of Skellytown, Mrs. Hovinga will be able to actively participate in the conference. Although totally deaf, she has good speech and lipreading skills, and several interpreters will be available.

In speaking of her handicap, Mrs. Hovinga said, "I am luckier than most hearing-impaired adults in that my parents accepted my deafness and spent considerable time and love developing my speech and lipreading skills."

"I have heard normal taxpayers gripe about the tax money being spent on rehabilitation programs for the handicapped... I ask myself, 'Would I rather have these handicapped people live off welfare for the rest of their lives or would I rather see them go through a rehabilitation program for two or three years, then become self-supporting taxpayers themselves?'"

"I hope this interview will give people a better insight as to what deafness is all about and help them to realize that deaf people are just as capable of high-level performance as the next person, if given the opportunity."

The conference is set for May 25-29 at the Sheraton Park Hotel. Officials said it will be the largest meeting of persons with disabilities ever assembled in the United States.

Mrs. Hovinga is active in several organizations for the handicapped. She is director of the Miss Deaf Iowa Pageant, and is on the board of directors for the Iowa Conference for the Hearing Impaired. She has served on the advisory board to the deaf at Iowa Western Community College for several years. She provided care for two multiple-handicapped adults for more than a year, during which time they became self-supporting and socially acceptable.

After graduation from White Deer High School, she attended Gallaudet College. She has an associate degree in education from Iowa Western Community College where she was on the dean's list. A senior at the University of Nebraska in Omaha, she has earned a 3.50 grade-point average. She also holds a full-time job as voucher examiner in the office of the comptroller.

She is married to Dale Hovinga, and the couple has five children.

Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Crawford, are Skellytown residents. Her sister Colleen is a former Miss Pampa.

The world's worst mine disaster occurred in Honkeiko Colliery, Manchuria, on April 25, 1942, and claimed the lives of 1,549 mine workers.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Neither a vasectomy nor an attempted abortion prevented the birth of Francine Speck, and now her parents are heartbroken because their fears that she would be a sickly child have come true.

The parents have sued the doctors who performed the operations, seeking damages for themselves and their child.

"She is a beautiful baby," her mother Dorothy Speck said in an interview Wednesday. "But as time goes on she will suffer."

The baby's steel-blue eyes were crossed at birth. She has cerebral palsy and has inherited a rare, crippling disease that her father and two sisters share.

"She can't sit up or walk yet and she's nearly two years old," said Frank Speck, a retail grocer. "Don't you think that's heartbreaking?"

Francine attends a local school for crippled children, and therapists there say she is a year behind others her age.

Mrs. Speck added, "I have a 2-year-old daughter who doesn't say Momma or Dadda yet. She knows us, but she can't say

"Hi."

The Specks decided three years ago that they didn't want another child because both their daughters had inherited neurofibromatosis, a disease that causes tumors to grow on nerves and makes bones brittle and slow to heal.

Valerie, 13, has birth marks over much of her body, one of the symptoms of the illness.

She's a dark-haired beauty, but her mother says she will never be able to wear a bikini or a low-cut dress.

Lee Ann, 9, broke her ankle when she was five months old. A tumor snapped the bone. She's undergone four operations to repair her leg, left crooked by the fracture.

Dr. Richard A. Feingold performed the vasectomy in April 1974, but Mrs. Speck became pregnant in October.

The abortion was performed in December 1974, and Dr. J.J. Schwartz termed it successful, but Mrs. Speck continued to feel signs of life in her womb.

"When I told the doctor that I thought I was still pregnant, he told me it was probably a floating urinary tumor," she recalled.
